WT merger supporters optimistic

By HOLDEN LEWIS
Associated Press Writer

Proponents of a plan to consolidate West Texas State University into the Texas A&M system said the smaller school would benefit from the union, but some opponents have another project in mind.

The two sides are headed for a showdown Thursday in Austin, where a Coordinating Board committee will decide whether to recommend that the full board approve the merger in its meeting Friday.

Despite opposition from the staff of the Higher Education Coordinating Board, the proposal's backers said Tuesday they are optimistic they will succeed.

The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce has chartered a 150-passenger jet to fly supporters to the hearing, and 80 people had bought $200 tickets by Tuesday.

"I think just that demonstration of support would show the Coordinating Board that the people in this region support the proposition," said Steve Ahlenius, government affairs director for the chamber.

Supporters contend that making West Texas State part of the A&M system would improve the 6,000-student school and bring more research dollars to the campus in Canyon, 16 miles south of Amarillo.

But Coordinating Board's staff advisers contend that a merger would be premature, and say it would make more sense to merge West Texas State with Lubbock-based Texas Tech.

Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, said he hopes the show of support "will move some of those (Coordinating Board) members who appear to be uncommitted."

The merger's backers had thought that Friday's vote was just a formality. The Legislature has approved the plan, as have the West Texas and A&M system regents.

But in a report last week, the Coordinating Board's staff recommended the panel veto the proposal because of program duplications with Texas Tech and opposition from Texas A&M alumni.

Texas Higher Education Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth wrote in the report that a merger would be another step toward the eventual consolidation of all Texas public universities into the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

Any mergers should be delayed pending a study of the issue by a panel appointed by the Coordinating Board, he wrote.

But Ben Latham, a Coordinating Board member from Amarillo, said the staff was supposed to study whether the merger would be economical or result in program duplications.

"I think the staff, in their zeal to cover the whole issue, probably covered more than the Legislature charged them to look at," said Latham.

State Rep. John Smithee, R-Amarillo, disputed the findings.

"The merger itself doesn't add any programs; it doesn't add any faculty. All it does is eliminate one board of regents," said Smithee.

T. Boone Pickens, chairman of the West Texas State board of regents, was out of town Tuesday and unavailable for comment. He released a statement last week pointing out that the report was simply a recommendation.

Dr. Ed Roach, president of West Texas State, was also unavailable.

Ashworth said he was considering statewide issues, not just the effect of the merger in the Panhandle.

"If you took only the advantages to West Texas State University into account, you'd probably recommend approval," said Ashworth.

George Jr. blasts Jim, backs Perry

AUSTIN (AP) - George W. Bush, endorsing Republican Rick Perry for state agriculture commissioner, called incumbent Democrat Jim Hightower a "dime store cowboy" and "master of the political one-liner."

Hightower's campaign responded with a one-liner about the Texas Rangers principal owner and son of the president.

"I don't know that George the Younger has anything to do with agriculture except that his baseball team plays on real grass," quipped Andy Welch, Hightower's press secretary.

In a letter to GOP leaders statewide Tuesday, Bush said he was backing Perry because "it's critical" that Hightower be defeated in November.

"For eight years, Texans have been treated to the spectacle of Jim Hightower playing farmer," he wrote.

"Rick Perry is a working farmer and rancher, not a dime store cowboy like Hightower. The Texas agriculture commissioner should be someone from and for agriculture," Bush added.

Bush, who last year considered running as a Republican candidate for governor, said he believes Perry can help the GOP run strongly in rural counties, an area he said is pivotal for the party's hopes.

"He knows the problems of working people in agriculture and small town Texas," Bush said. "It will be a big boost to our entire statewide ticket to have (U.S. Sen.) Phil Gramm at the top and Rick Perry as the anchor."

Responding, Welch noted that Hightower on Monday won the endorsement of the 8,000-member Texas State Association of Firefighters and said of Bush's letter, "I don't think it matters a hill of beans. It's not going to carry any weight with any Texans, the fact that some rich Republican has endorsed a candidate for ag commissioner."

Welch recalled the Texas Farm Bureau's unsuccessful effort to recruit Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan to challenge Hightower and said, "Maybe George the Younger thinks it's (retired pitcher) Gaylord Perry, I don't know."

In the March 13 GOP primary, Perry faces Brownfield businessman Gene L. Duke and Stafford consultant Richard McIver. Hightower faces six other Democratic candidates, all of whom had their $3,000 filing fees paid by the Farm Bureau.

Demos reach out to labor

AUSTIN (AP) - State Attorney General Jim Mattox said his Democratic gubernatorial opponents have united to stop his political momentum at the Texas AFL-CIO meeting today.

Mattox, Texas Treasurer Ann Richards and former Gov. Mark White spoke Tuesday to the union's Committee on Political Education convention.

Texas AFL-CIO president Joe Gunn predicted the organization's convention would end with a lot of twisted arms and no endorsement for the primary.

"I did not see two-thirds in the governor's race," Gunn said after the candidates addressed the approximately 500 delegates.

A two-thirds majority is needed to win the political backing of the nearly 213,000-member union.

Gunn urged candidates and union members to refrain from a bitter floor fight over the endorsement. "As you twist arms for candidates the next couple of days, twist gently," Gunn said. Delegates are scheduled to vote today.

Mattox urged delegates to back a candidate, while Ms. Richards called for neutrality and White told the convention to concentrate on remaining unified for the November general election.

Mattox warned that if the union failed to endorse a candidate for the primary, "You will have union against union, local against local, brother against brother and sister against sister."

But Ms. Richards said, "Instead of fighting among each other about whose faith is strongest and whose done the most good works, we need to be out in the world building up this congregation so we can be successful in the general election."

White touted education gains made during his administration from 1982-1986 and poked fun at Republican candidate Clayton Williams' proposal to establish work camps for young drug offenders to break rocks.

"What we need to do is start building lives ... and see that those who are crushed by the impact of narcotics addiction are going to be given some opportunity for help and hope," he said.

Later, Mattox said, "The Ann Richards campaign and the Mark White campaign have just degenerated into the stop the Mattox momentum."

In other political developments:

- Despite polls that show him lagging, Mattox said he can win the Democratic nomination for governor without a runoff in the March 13 primary.

In a fund-raising letter, Mattox told potential supporters to "keep your checkbook handy."

In the letter dated Monday, Mattox said the decision to try for an outright primary victory is "a gamble."

Every One Matters.

"However, if the research is correct and we manage to dominate we'll save at least a million dollars in the runoff," he wrote. "So, we're going to pour the coals (your money) to this campaign train."

Campaign spokesman Kelly Fero said the letter outlined a long-standing strategy and accused the campaign of Ms. Richards of leaking it to news reporters.

Most entities turning down freeport move

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas taxing entities haven't rushed to give a property tax exemption to goods temporarily stored in the state, although the "freeport" tax break has been touted as an economic development tool.

More than 60 percent of local taxing units with a choice about giving the exemption decided against doing so for 1990, the State Property Tax Board reported Tuesday. Texas voters approved the freeport exemption with a local-option provision last November.

"Local governments in Texas are proceeding cautiously on freeport tax policy," said Ron Patterson, executive director of the Property Tax Board.

"This is a period of great uncertainty about funding of public services, especially with regard to school finance," he said.

By JOYCE RIDDLE

In the time we spend on this earth we are extremely lucky and richer by far if we have one true friend.

I am doubly blessed because I have two friends.

When I decided to write I suddenly realized I could not tell you about one without including the other. These ladies are a world apart as far as temperament and lifestyle and yet so much alike in their caring ways.

I doubt I can do them justice in describing them but I'm going to try.

I was one of those people who was convinced I had the world by the tail. My world revolved around my husband, my home and my family. Suddenly my husband wasn't there and I was in limbo. My world literally fell apart.

One of my friends, Pat Malone, is also my neighbor. She refused to let me withdraw. She had a husband, a houseful of kids, a full-time job and wall-to-wall confusion. She drew me into her family, fed me, loved me and refused to let me be lonely. To this day she keeps tabs on me and make sure I'm all right. It's been 6 1/2 years and she's still trying to take care of me. I couldn't love her more if she really was my daughter.

My other friend, Jean Dearing, is truly a lady in every sense of the word. She runs a business that in polite society would be described as "man's work." She works long hard hours, but always seems to know when someone is in need.

She sees, very quietly, that my needs are met, so few people know she was involved. She keeps a close eye on me and lets me know in a hundred ways that she values me as a friend.

She's there with a smile or a pat or a hug at the time I need it the most. She's not all sweetness and light. If she thinks I need it she has a barb on her tongue that would penetrate the toughest skin. When she thinks she has me straightened out there is always a hug to make me feel better.

My friends are both very dear to me. I cannot imagine a life without having known them. I could talk all day and never do them justice. There is nothing at all ordinary about either one: each, in her own way, is someone very special.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1990. There are 341 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Twenty-five years ago, on Jan. 24, 1965, former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill died in London at the age of 90.

On this date:

In 1848, James W. Marshall discovered a gold nugget at Sutter's Mill in northern California, a discovery that led to the gold rush of '49.

In 1908, the first Boy Scout troop was organized in England by Robert Baden-Powell.

In 1916, the Supreme Court ruled that the federal income tax was constitutional.

In 1986, the Voyager 2 made its closest approach to the planet Uranus, coming within 51,000 miles.

In 1987, about 20,000 civil rights demonstrators marched through nearly all-white Forsyth County, Ga., a week after a smaller march was disrupted by Ku Klux Klan members and supporters.

In 1987, gunmen in Lebanon kidnapped three American teachers and an Indian professor from Beirut University College. (Mithileshwar Singh, the Indian educator, was later released.)

Ten years ago: The Carter administration announced a major change in U.S. policy, saying it was willing to sell military equipment to China.

Five years ago: The space shuttle Discovery was launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., on the first secret, all-military shuttle mission, a journey that lasted three days.

One year ago: Confessed serial killer Theodore Bundy was put to death in Florida's electric chair for the 1978 kidnap-murder of one of his victims, 12-year-old Kimberly Leach.

Today's Birthdays: Television producer Mark Goodson is 75. Actor Ernest Borgnine is 73. Evangelist Oral Roberts is 72. Former Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., is 63. Singer-songwriter Neil Diamond is 49. Former State Department official Elliott Abrams is 42. Actress Nastassja Kinski is 29. Gymnast Mary Lou Retton is 22.

Thought for Today: "History with its flickering lamp stumbles along the trail of the past, trying to reconstruct its scenes, to revive its echoes, and kindle with pale gleams the passion of former days. What is the worth of all this? The only guide to a man is his conscience; the only shield to his memory is the rectitude and sincerity of his actions." - Winston Churchill.

Brandley enjoys first 'free' day

HOUSTON (AP) - After nearly a decade on Death Row, Clarence Lee Brandley used his first day of freedom to go to the church where his family and friends had held regular vigils for his release.

Brandley, 38, who once came within five days of execution, was released on a $75,000 bond Tuesday, a month after the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals threw out his capital murder conviction for the 1980 rape-slaying of a 16-year-old Bellville girl. The court issued its final mandate in the case Monday, confirming its decision that Brandley did not receive a fair trial.

Meanwhile, Montgomery County District Attorney Peter Speers said Tuesday he will pursue an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, but wouldn't seek another trial for the former Conroe High School janitor if the high court refused to hear the case.

"I believe that serious errors in constitutional interpretation were made by the (Texas) Court of Criminal Appeals in its decision and that therefore this appeal will not be frivolous," Speers said. "I realize, however, that the chances of success at that level are purely speculative."

Speers has contended Brandley is guilty of the capital murder of Cheryl Dee Ferguson, who was attending a volleyball tournament at the Conroe school in August 1980 when she was slain.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

It turns out that Manuel Antonio Noriega, the former dictator of Panama, was a tamale lover.

The U.S. Army thought it had uncovered a huge stash of Noriega's cocaine when it raided a Noriega stronghold in Panama. A thorough search turned up about 50 pounds of stuff in a freezer, wrapped in banana leaves.

It just had to be cocaine, these Army guys figured. I know we had guys down there from San Antonio and Dimmitt and Muleshoe that know the difference between a tamale and, well, anything. The guys that raided this house didn't know a tamale from a kumquat. Where were these guys from? Brooklyn?

"Hey, lookit dis here!" exclaimed Private Homer Pile, taking a big chunk from a freezer in the Noriega house. He held the big chunk of something in one hand and 10 pair of red underwear in the other hand.

"Whaddya youse guys found in dere?" asked Sawwwgint Carder.

"I dunno," replied Pvt. Pile. "Never seen nuthin' like dis nowhere in my whole life."

"Mus' be cocaine and some fancy underwear."

So Sawwwgint Carder repeated Pvt. Pile's findings: 50 pounds of a strange substance wrapped in a strange substance wrapped in banana peels, and 10 pairs of red undies. The Army repeated these findings to the media.

Col. Mike Snell, who I'm sure is a fine military man, told the media on Dec. 22 that his infantrypersons (he may have had some of those women soldiers with him) had found 50 pounds of cocaine, some of it wrapped in banana leaves, in a freezer in Noriega's house.

"We're sure it was cocaine," Snell was quoted as saying at the time. Snell's superior, Gen. Maxwell Thurman, reinforced the finding. He got so excited he couldn't remember whether it was 50 pounds or 50 kilos, but it was definitely cocaine.

So the cocaine, wrapped in the banana leaves, was sent to the Central Intelligence Division for complete analysis.

The boys in the CID are probably still laughing.

The first clue was probably when they discovered that wrapped in the banana leaves was something that resembled a cornmeal paste.

Wrapped inside that was some type of animal meat. The type of animal meat has not yet been determined by CID, but it hasn't been determined by anyone else who has eaten a tamale, so they might as well give up.

At least none of the tamales were wrapped in Gen. Noriega's famous red underwear.

Herd romps, Lady Whitefaces fall

The Hereford Whitefaces gave the Randall Raiders a long 40-mile trip home Tuesday with a 78-52 pasting in a District 1-4A contest at Whiteface Gymnasium, but the Lady Whitefaces came up short, dropping a 49-36 decision to the third-ranked Lady Raiders.

Hereford swept the junior varsity games as the Herd JV rolled to a 68-45 win while the Lady Whitefaces pulled out a 41-40 squeaker. Herd 78, Randall 52.

Hereford scored the first eight points of the game and never trailed in snapping a four-game streak of close losses.

"This was something we needed," Herd coach Jimmy Thomas said, "not only to win, but to do it by that many points."

About the only thing that went the Raiders' way was the opening tip, but Russell Backus put the Herd on top to stay with a layup in the first minute.

After Marc Franklin put Randall on the board mid-way through the first quarter, the Raiders managed to cut the margin to 14-7 at the end of the period. Matt Bromlow almost matched Randall by himself with six points in the quarter.

Hereford's defense remained stingy throughout the first half as Randall could score only eight points in the second period.

The Herd kicked the offense into high gear in the second quarter and produced more three-pointers (four) than Randall had field goals.

The four triples were the only ones the Herd made on the evening.

"They were playing us mainly in a man-to-man," Thomas said, "and that isn't very conducive to taking three-pointers. But we were able to work the ball inside enough that it didn't matter."

Jason Walterscheid hit two of the bombs for his first points while Bromlow reached double figures before halftime with five points in the period as the Herd took a 38-15 lead.

Hereford kept the margin above 20 points the entire second half and led by as much as 27 in the third period.

Breaking the press

Brienna Townsend (20) of the Hereford Lady Whitefaces crosses the time line and dribbles away from Randall's Angela Littlejohn (12) during Tuesday's 49-36 loss to the third-ranked Raiders at Whiteface Gymnasium.

before the Raiders went on a 12-5 run.

The Herd scored only six points from the field in the fourth quarter, but extended the margin back to 26 with a 14-of-17 performance at the free-throw line.

All eight Hereford players finished in the scoring column and three reached double figures. Backus took high-point honors with 20 while Bromlow added 16 and Walterscheid 12. Daniel Garcia and Chuck Lemons scored nine points each with Chad Schroeder getting six, Leo Brown four and Keith Kelso two.

Randall was led by Franklin and Michael Armstrong with nine points apiece.

The win moves the Herd to 7-14 overall and 3-7 in district. Randall 49, Lady Whitefaces 36.

Randall jumped on top early, scoring the first six points of the game and posting a 12-1 lead before the Lady Whitefaces could score from the field.

The Lady Raiders' trapping defense forced eight Hereford turnovers in the first quarter and held a 14-5 advantage at the end of the period behind eight points from Leslea Rexrode.

The Lady Whitefaces made up the deficit quickly in the second period as Stacy White connected on a pair of three-pointers and Shantel Cornelius added four points to spark an 11-2 run.

Hereford had a chance to take control of the game after pulling into a 16-16 tie, but missed four straight free throws before Cornelius hit a pair.

Randall four of its six second-quarter points in the minute of the period. Amanda Sandlin hit a free throw and Corey Norman nailed a trey to put the visitors up 20-18 at the half.

The Raiders regained control in the third quarter with a 6-0 start and finished the period with a 36-25 lead.

The Lady Whitefaces made their move early in the fourth, cutting the margin to 36-33 on field goals from Cornelius and Cande Robbins.

Randall responded by turning up the pressure and embarked on a 13-1 run to put the game out of reach.

Lady Whiteface coach Dickie Faught said Randall's quickness was the main factor in the game.

"They have the quickness to make that press work and we had problems all night trying to move the ball against it," he said. "It was just a matter of them having a little more talent and doing what they had to do."

Another problem Hereford faced was a cold night at the free-throw line. The Lady Whitefaces made seven of 21 attempts and missed the front end of three one-and-one opportunities in the third quarter.

White finished with 12 points to lead the Herd and Cornelius was also in double figures with 11. Robbins scored six points, Jennifer Bullard had three before leaving the game in the third quarter with a sprained ankle and Brienna Townsend and Patricia Martinez added two each.

Rexrode totaled 18 points for Randall while Norman had 12.

The loss drops Hereford to 13-12 on the season and 7-5 in district play. Herd JV 68, Randall 45.

The Herd overcame a second-quarter cold spell that them trailing 20-17 at halftime to post a 51-25 advantage in the second half.

The first half was a series of hot streaks and droughts for both teams. Hereford scored the first nine points of the game and led 11-2 after one period.

Randall responded with a 10-0 run to open the second quarter and take the lead at 12-11. The Raiders outscored the Herd 18-6 during the period.

Hereford came out firing after the half, using a 12-2 run to retake the lead. The Herd kept up the pace through the rest of the third quarter, pushing the lead to 44-33.

The final period was nearly a carbon copy of the third with Hereford outscoring the Raiders 24-12 to complete the rout.

Richard Sanderson led all scorers with 17 points, including four three-pointers, and was joined in double figures by Blake Buckley with 13 and Andrew Tijerina with 10. Brady Wilson added nine points for the Herd while Ben Weatherly added seven, Miguel Casas and Chris Tardy four each and Robbie Greenawalt and Chris Blair two apiece.

Randall was led by Troy Sims with 13 points.

Lady Whiteface JV 41, Randall 40. Hereford trailed most of the game,

Randall posted a 10-6 lead after the first quarter, but the Herd outscored the visitors by a point in each of the next two periods before moving ahead with a 12-9 advantage in the fourth.

Melinda Holmes led all scorers with 16 points while Jennifer Hicks added 10 for the Herd. Lori Sanders finished with seven points with Teresa Baker, Brenna Reinauer, Brek Binder and Lindsay Radford scoring two each.

Randall was led by Terry McCater with 15 points and Lori Dugan with 14.

Paris hungry for more

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The biggest eater in the best-eating town in America has been starving on salad these past few days, and now, between ham hock-sized hands, San Francisco-sized Bubba Paris is holding a reporter by the lapels. And staring hungrily.

Only a few meals away from the Super Bowl, Paris had plucked this average-sized specimen from among many and lifted him onto a platform inside the cavernous Superdome to make a point.

"Let me show you how," Paris said, and a collective prayer goes up from the unplucked that the 49ers' fine offensive tackle is talking now about blocking - and not about eating. Because when Bubba is feasting on the media, the topics are almost inseparable.

Yes, Bubba answers with practiced patience, he was always big, and yes, he was always sensitive about it.

Yes, he allows, he is bigger today, perhaps bigger than ever, and depending on whom you believe, much, much, much bigger.

Elway says Broncos will cover

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - In the great tradition of Joe Namath, John Elway offers a Super Bowl guarantee.

"Get another point-and-a-half," the Denver quarterback said, "and I guarantee we'll cover the spread."

This is somewhat less dramatic than Namath's assurance that the New York Jets, 17 1/2-point underdogs, would beat Baltimore in the 1969 Super Bowl. But then Elway's Broncos are only 12 1/2-point underdogs to the San Francisco 49ers, and so have less ground to make up.

Elway knows that covering the betting spread won't be quite enough for Denver, a three-time Super Bowl loser. The town and the team have begun to develop a complex about this game. Elway has lost two of those games, both in blowouts, and recognizes that you don't have endless chances.

"To be the quarterback I want to be in my career, I've got to win this game," he said. "This is my third opportunity. I haven't taken advantage of the others. A lot of guys don't even get the opportunity."

The Broncos are longshots partly because of their sad Super Bowl history - losing by 17 points to Dallas in 1978, 19 to the New York Giants in 1987 and a whopping 32 points to Washington in 1988.

The last two defeats came with Elway at quarterback, playing catch-up both times, and forced to throw more frequently than he might have liked. His Super Bowl log is a less-than-glowing 36-for-75. The loss to Washington, constructed on a record five-touchdown second quarter by the Redskins, was the more galling to Elway.

"We were out so fast it felt like a waste," the quarterback said. "You work so hard, to give it all back in 10 minutes, that was most disappointing."

There is a flip side to the past failures and Elway knows it. "People are not giving us a lot of chance," he said. "If we win, it will be the greatest upset of all time. If we lose, well, we're supposed to lose."

So he takes a carefree attitude into the game, one that allows him to joke about serious business like betting lines. "Even though we don't have a chance, we'll do the best we can," he said sarcastically.

Do the past defeats get him down? "Only one other team has a chance to be world champion," Elway said. "I'd rather go to bat and take my chances than not go to bat. I'll risk humiliation for the chance."

Super Bowl XXIV
San Francisco vs. Denver

And yes, he said again, there is purpose to this added poundage. His name is Joe Montana.

"Joe is so small, so frail, that he's about the size of my youngest son. I figure I have to be this big," Paris said, "to protect the both of us."

And so every calorie taken in - and there are many - is taken in the name of prevention. The sacks that keep Bubba Paris awake at night are not always the ones with food in them.

Former San Francisco coach Bill Walsh kept Bubba awake plenty of nights as well. Soon after the 49ers drafted the Louisville native by way of the University of Michigan, Walsh told Bubba to get down to 300 pounds and stay there. When that didn't work, Walsh ridiculed him, fined him and shipped him out to a fat farm.

None of it worked for long.

"Bill messed with him a lot mentally," said Steve Wallace, who shares the tackle spot with Paris and is his closest friend on the Niners. "In some ways, I think the constant pounding it into him actually made Bubba gain weight."

"I mean what difference does one pound or 20 pounds make," Wallace added, "as long as he gets the job done."

When George Seifert took over for Walsh this season, he laid down a more tolerant (waist)line. Indeed, the only nod to the weighty struggles of the past carried over by the new regime was to continue listing Paris' weight in the San Francisco media guide at 299 pounds.

Wishful thinking. One teammate who snuck a peek at the 6-foot-6 Paris on a scale several weeks ago confided the real number was 348; suffice it to say that a surveyor might be needed for an accurate assessment today.

But it wasn't always so. "I was a skinny guy at Michigan," Paris offered, "about 270."

"But they kept me there year round and worked me like a dog. Besides," he added, "I didn't have any money then to go McDonald's."

New feedyard started

Dan McWhorter putting new skyline on old ranch headquarters north of Hereford

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

The beef packing executive who predicted no expansion in custom feedyards in the Texas Panhandle during the 1990s didn't know Dan McWhorter.

The packer also didn't know a dozen other commercial feeders in the Greater Hereford area who have either upgraded or expanded cattle feeding operations during the past couple of years.

Living and working on the cutting edge of the beef business, Dan McWhorter is putting a new skyline on an old ranch headquarters out north of Hereford where a new commercial feedyard will open for business within 30 days.

"We've already got about 4,000 head on feed in the existing pens," said McWhorter, as he edged his king cab through a snowdrift on the grassy slopes of the Palo Duro. "Right now, we are planning to have the feedmill pretty well completed and the feedyard open for business by the middle of February. This snow slowed us up a little but we didn't mind...the snow is sure a welcome sight."

Initial plans of McWhorter call for an opening feeding capacity of 8,000 head, with the feeding unit to be developed into a 15,000 head operation in an on-going expansion program. By using the newly-developed Modular Mill system designed and manufactured by Gearn Industries, Inc., of Hereford, McWhorter's expansion will have unlimited possibilities since the unique milling system may be enlarged as needed without costly renovation to existing units.

"We haven't even got around to putting a name on it," said McWhorter, as he edged past a pen of top Okies that will grade out better than 90 percent Choice. "I guess we'll probably call it the McWhorter Feedyard until something better comes along."

Pinpointed 2 1/2 miles east of U. S. 385 about 15 miles north of

HUSTLE HEREFORD

Hereford, the new McWhorter Feedyard is located immediately east of his ranch headquarters that's perched on the Palo Duro which eventually funnels into the Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River. New concrete feedbunks curb a steel pen system that is interwoven with spacious alleys to allow for convenient feeding and minimum movement of cattle. A gradual slope provides excellent drainage from fence-to-fence, with the entire feeding unit visible from the ranch headquarters to the west.

Tim Gearn of Hereford is heading up construction of the feedmill which will be a stream flaking unit built around Gearn's Modular Mill concept that has become increasingly popular among custom feeders in recent years. And Gearn's positive attitude on steam flaking was reflected recently in a national magazine article:

"Steam flaking is possibly the most tested method of producing an economical feed for large scale cattle feeding ever devised. This one factor has more of an impact on the cost of gains than any single thing you can do to enhance your bottom line. A consistent 7 percent better rate of conversion is the average...if you are already steam flaking, you know that that 7 percent is what empires are built on."

A concrete bunker system is being built adjacent to the feedmill to allow for a systematic placement of feedstuff. McWhorter said his feeding rations will be based on grains and roughage which is common to the Hereford area—corn, milo, silage, alfalfa and cotton burs, along with corn bran and a sprinkling of supplements.

"Right now, we're feeding alfalfa pellets rather than chopped hay, but we take a close look at all of our ration ingredients on a day-to-day basis," said McWhorter, who noted that his consulting nutritionists are Dr. Dale Furr and Dr. Robert Beville, both of Hereford. "We prefer to feed the good kind of cattle—those that grade out 90 percent Choice or better, but don't get me wrong, we'll feed anything that will make money." His consulting veterinarian is Dr. Steve Lewis of Hereford.

He pointed out that as an individual feeder he has fed Mexican cattle from time to time—"But a lot this depends on whether or not you can buy them right...if I can buy them right, I like to feed them because it seems you have less sickness or death loss. The Mexican cattle seem to have better immunity."

A native of Hereford, McWhorter has fed cattle for more than 20 years in the Texas Panhandle, having consigned cattle to nearly every commercial feeder in the Hereford area at one time or another. Thus, his experience as an individual feeder, plus 10 years in the commodity business lends to a background that has many plus-points in management of a custom feedyard. And one of the main points in his new custom feeding business will be the offering of a risk-management program to his customers.

"I guess you might say that we will have a full-service feedyard, one that has a feeding program to fit just about anyone's needs or desires," said McWhorter.

Bordering on U.S. 385 about 3 1/2 miles north of Milo center, McWhorter's spread has been a showcase of fine beef cattle for nearly 60 years. Built on some of the finest foundation Hereford stock in North America, the ranch initially was put together in the 1930s by Mr. and Mrs. Colby Conkwright, and with their son, Jim, the Conkwrights achieved nationwide recognition in the registered Hereford business on this rolling stretch of Deaf Smith County. A paved ranch road snakes along the edge of shallow break-country for about 2 miles and ends in a winding drive that leads to a rambling ranchhouse. A big red barn, cattle fitting pens and steel livestock buildings tell the story of another era in the beef business, with McWhorter's cattle feeding contribution giving added dimensions to this prestigious ranch headquarters.

When Dan and Mary McWhorter purchased the ranch in 1983, the Deaf Smith County ranch was shifted from a purebred Hereford operation to a yearling outfit which has been McWhorter's favorite segment of the cattle business since day one. Mr. Colby Conkwright is now deceased, his wife is retired in Hereford, with their son, Jim, and his family now living in Hereford, about 15 minutes away from the old family headquarters.

"I like to bring in the lightweights, weighing around 200 to 250 pounds, shape them up on grass, winter them on wheat pasture then take them into the feedyard in the spring," said McWhorter, in outlining what he called the ideal stocker situation. "But that doesn't mean that if we can buy 'em right, we'll take about any kind, any time, any place."

McWhorter pointed out that there was a small set of pens on the ranch when they purchased it in 1983 and that when he started his own touch to the ranching operation, he developed it into a growing yard to backstop his yearling operation. The ranch, as it stands today, continues to be mostly native grassland, with McWhorter having about 700 acres in production of irrigation food corn, a few tracks of Commercial corn, and about 300 acres of irrigated wheat. The deeded headquarters spread is supplemented by considerable acreage of leased country, both in the Deaf Smith County area, grassland near Masterson, Tx., and in the Guthrie, Tx., area south of Paducah.

The McWhorter Ranch farmland is perched on top of one of the strongest underground water aquifers of the Panhandle, fed by the vast Ogallala formations that stretch all the way to the Nebraska Sandhills. "We're very fortunate in having a place that has good irrigation water," said McWhorter, who markets his food corn production through the Frito-Lay unit at Hereford.

In the beginning of the new feedyard, McWhorter ripped out the old holding pens of the purebred cattle operation and started from scratch with a spanking new network of steel rails and concrete feedbunks.

"We built it up to around 2,000 head capacity for growing cattle then I got interested in the finishing end and that's when I decided to build a custom feedyard," said McWhorter. "We had to have a mill to do it right and then we had to expand the pens to fit the mill. So now, we're going to open next month with 8,000 head capacity and probably go to 15,000 head within a year or so."

"We're setting up with one steam-flaker and leaving space for two which will give us the option of going to 15,000 head. I think the concrete bunker system appears to be the way that feeding is going these days...with added energy costs, I think that type of system is more profit-making."

He said that at this point in time, their finishing ration is basically corn, corn silage, corn bran, alfalfa hay, (pelleted) cotton burs and supplements, then moving to chopped alfalfa upon completion of the bunker system.

"I am quite optimistic about the cattle feeding business and the cattle industry in general...I think that we're looking at several years of profitable growth," he added. "I think that we (region) are yet to expand our cow herd which I think is two to three years away. Beef consumption has stabilized, if not increased, total cattle inventory setting around 100 million head or less, with total exports looking good...I think we're going to maintain strong cattle prices for the next several years."

McWhorter noted that he has had cattle on feed almost continuously for the past 20 years, with both, he and his wife coming from cattle feeding families. His father, D.C. McWhorter, was one of the founding stockholders of Friona Industries, Inc., which at one point in time included three custom cattle feedyards having a one-time feeding capacity of 112,000 head. Incorporated in 1971, Friona Industries also developed Hi-Pro Feeds, an animal health care unit, Friona Transport Co., and included the Black Grain Co., which had been owned by D.C. McWhorter prior to the development of the giant agribusiness conglomerate.

Mr. and Mrs. D.C. McWhorter continue to make their home in Hereford.

Mary Lynn Hays McWhorter's parents, Nancy and Charles Hays, were in the farm implement business in both, Dimmitt and Hereford, and he was one of the founding stockholders of the original Dimmitt Feedyard. She still resides in Hereford. Charles died in 1974.

Though some of McWhorter's stockers are now being wintered on native grassland in the Guthrie area, when it comes time for feeding, the cattle are moved to his Deaf Smith County feeding unit. Ideally, McWhorter likes his in-coming feeder cattle to weigh in the 650-700 pound range and go out in 1150 weight range. "But since you don't market all your cattle all at one time, this time of year we'll go into the yards with the cattle a little lighter and probably go out with them a little lighter in the spring," he noted. "We watch all points in both buying and selling and try to make the best moves possible on any given set of cattle."

"Hopefully, in this operation, we can combine some experience we have in cattle feeding and ranching and farming, along with the experience I've gotten in the commodity futures business. In today's market, and at these price levels, we have a lot of risk, but we're trying to handle it as efficiently as possible."

In addition to having an ideal location for feeding cattle, McWhorter says this is also the greatest place on earth to raise a family. And as he voiced words of admiration of his wife and children, sounds of laughter filled the spacious ranch

Economy grew for seven straight years in 1980s

NEW YORK (AP) - Sometimes you have to take a second look at some deeply embedded impressions.

In the 1980s the economy grew for seven straight years, longest peacetime advance ever. But:

"During the 1980s, U.S. real gross national product has grown at an annual rate of 2.6 percent, the slowest rate of growth for any decade since the 1930s," according to John Winthrop Wright of Wright Investors Service.

Moreover, he said in his 19th annual review and forecast to the New York Society of Security Analysts in December, "we have had to work increasingly hard to achieve what growth we have gotten."

The real rate of GNP growth in the 1980s was 0.8 percent a year, according to Wright, "less than half the post-1950 average of 1.7 percent a year."

Many people in the 1980s held strongly to another impression—that taxes really had been cut, in part because President Reagan stood for lower taxes and, in fact, helped engineer a big tax cut early in his first term. But:

"We are no better off than in 1981, despite strong economic growth and much ballyhooed cuts in income tax rates," according to the Tax Foundation.

The foundation hasn't yet determined when Tax Freedom Day will occur this year, but because of higher Social Security taxes it probably will be later than in 1989, when it occurred on May 4, and 1988, when it fell on May 3.

Tax Freedom Day, it says, is the theoretical date on which Americans finish working to support federal, state and local entities and begin earning money for themselves. Conceivably, it might even be later this year than in 1980.

It attributes the standoff to three main factors:

1. The base-broadening provisions in the Tax Reform Act of 1986 and other legislation that subjected a greater percentage of income to taxation.

2. Social Security taxes that increased faster than the overall economy.

3. State and local taxes that continued to rise, partly in reaction to reductions in federal aid programs.

Another major misimpression concerns the amounts of money available for spending by choice—rather than necessity.

During the 1980s, discretionary income—the amount of income left after paying for taxes and normal household expenditures—rose sharply. Such income totaled nearly $320 billion in a Census Bureau survey in March 1987, or 22 percent more than in the previous report four years earlier.

Moreover, an analysis issued by the Commerce Department and the Conference Board in 1989 showed that 30 percent of U.S. households now have income beyond that needed for a comfortable living.

Trade fair with foreign countries set in March

LUBBOCK--Foreign buyers from around the world, including official delegations from Japan, South Korea and Taiwan, will come to Seattle in March to conduct business with U.S. companies at a trade fair and conference sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) and AT&T.

"Small businesses nationwide are one of our greatest untapped resources for restoring America's trade balance with other countries," said Walter Fronstin, SBA's Lubbock district director. "We want to do everything we can to encourage exporting."

"Export Expo 1990" will be held March 27-30 and will give America's small businesses an unprecedented opportunity to meet face-to-face with international buyers without the expense of traveling overseas, Fronstin said.

The event will include a 350-booth trade fair which will display the products and services of U.S. small businesses in three fast-growing industries—health care equipment; computers, software and peripherals; and process industries and pollution control equipment.

An international business center will match small firms with interested foreign buyers. The center will also provide translators, meeting rooms, fax machines and other business services.

For more information on exhibiting or registering for the Expo, contact Macine Wall or Gronstin at SBA, 806-743-7462.

HUSTLE HEREFORD

house where the youngsters frolicked on a snowy day off from school...Katie, Emily, Hanna and Hank.

The McWhorters are not only proud of their Western heritage and Western family life, but speak in positive terms of the rural Walcott School at which their children are being taught the basics in education.

"We believe this rural school may just be the finest in America," said McWhorter, as he exhibited an assured grin. As a matter of record, the school, located about 20 minutes west of the ranch, has been recognized nationally for its progressive achievements in educational procedures.

Following World War II, the D.C. McWhorters came to Hereford where he was associated with the Fraser Milling Co., and later became associated with the Black Grain Co. at Black, Tx. In the early 1960s, Mr. McWhorter was one of the key developers of the Friona Feedyard as an adjunct to the grain business—the foundation of what later was to become the giant agribusiness conglomerate of Friona Industries.

Born in Hereford, the 42-year-old McWhorter graduated from Hereford High School in 1966 and later attended West Texas State University at Canyon, Schreiners Institute at Kerrville and Texas Tech University where he majored in finance. Following college work, McWhorter returned to Hereford where he and his brother, Ted, developed a cattle growing yard near Summerfield, Tx., in 1971.

In July of 1973, McWhorter left the growing yard segment of the cattle business and joined with another brother, Steve, in establishing Refco, Inc., Commodities office in Hereford at 145 W. 3rd. Refco, headquartered in Chicago, opened during the big boom days of the High Plains cattle feeding industry in an office about the size of an average living room and now is reputedly the largest commodity brokerage firm in the world.

Along with his parents, McWhorter's two brothers are also still engaged in farming and ranching, with the entire McWhorter clan having a central office in Hereford. "We maintain this office in Hereford but it's really just a good place for all of us to get together to drink coffee," he added.

McWhorter's day begins long before dawn and ends back at the ranch sometime during the night. Mrs. McWhorter revealed her husband's work schedule once during a recent predawn phone conversation: "Dan has been gone quite a while, and probably right about now, he's out of his truck visiting with the hands...he sort of lines out the work about this time of day."

The veteran cattle feeder speaks of the Hereford community as the most progressive agribusiness center in the nation, and doesn't hesitate to speak highly of the cattle feeders and business leaders who form a unique bond of positive progress around this Cinderella City of the Panhandle.

With Deaf Smith County being Number One in Texas in agricultural production, the Greater Hereford area holds the undisputed title of being the Cattle Feeding Capital of the World. There are more than 3 million head of cattle fed annually in a 50-mile radius of Hereford, an agribusiness hub of the Panhandle that is approaching the $80 million mark in annual retail sales and a county gross of more than $300 million. Deaf Smith County alone finished out nearly 800,000 head of grain-fed beeves in 1989 with projections showing an equal number or better in 1990.

In addition to the vast beef industry, McWhorter's hometown is also the hub of the Texas-New Mexico Sugar beet industry, the salad Bowl of the Panhandle in vegetable production and the center of the finest food corn in America.

McWhorter speaks of Hereford as being in the mainstream of American food production, a processing center that funnels packaged protein to the four corners of the world.

First Abilene Bankshares reports increased profit

First Abilene Bankshares, Inc., parent company of Hereford State Bank, reported net earnings of $6.3 million for the year ended Dec. 31, 1989.

That was a 20 percent increase over 1988 net earnings. For the fourth quarter of 1989, net earnings were $1.7 million, a 19 percent increase over the fourth quarter of 1988.

On an earnings-per-share basis, earnings were $3.04 for 1989, a 24 percent increase over 1988. For 1989's fourth quarter, earnings-per-share of 83 cents also represented a 24 percent increase over the comparable period in 1988.

Earnings per share are calculated on the average number of outstanding shares in each period. The greater percentage increases in per share comparisons include the effect of fewer shares outstanding due to the company's purchase and retirement of about 79,000 shares in 1989.

Kenneth t. Murphy, the company's chairman and chief executive officer, said the company continued to experience a favorable earnings trend in 1989 because of improved interest margins and increases in other income categories.

Nonperforming assets of the total company on Dec. 31, 1989 totaled $6.31 million, or 2.27 percent of total loans and foreclosed property, compared to $6.15 million, or 2.16 percent, on Dec. 31, 1988.

The Abilene-based holding company is also the parent company of First National Bank of Abilene, First National Bank in Sweetwater, and Eastland National Bank in Eastland.

Regional economic development conference set Jan. 31 in Lubbock

The registration deadline for the regional economic development conference, "Together We Can Make This Area Grow," has been extended to Friday.

The conference will be from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Jan. 31 at the Lubbock Plaza Inn.

"This conference is open to anyone active in or interested in helping develop a community's economy," said Gary Gibson, vice president of marketing for Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS). "I'm sure persons attending would find the information useful in their businesses."

The conference is sponsored by SPS and co-sponsored by the High Ground of Texas, the Business Quarter of New Mexico, Panhandle Regional Planning Commission and the South Plains Association of Governments.

To register or to obtain additional information on the conference, call SPS Hereford manager Lewis McDaniel at 364-3121 or the SPS economic development department at 378-2173.

Vasek attends annual dealer meet

SAN ANTONIO—Donald Vasek of Vasek Service, Inc. of Hereford, recently attended the annual southwest division dealer meeting of Lennox Industries.

An improving Southwest U.S. economy during 1990 is expected to help spur increased interest from consumers in purchasing home heating and air conditioning systems, according to discussions at the meeting.

At the meeting, Vasek joined Lennox officials and contractors in strategy sessions on new high-efficiency comfort systems, quality improvement concepts and business marketing techniques.

Ever get the idea your banker is somewhere else when you need him most?

While our example may be a bit extreme, our point is disturbingly real. It can be a waste of time and money to entrust your financial relationship to people unresponsive to your business and personal needs.

At Hereford State Bank you deal on a principal-to-principal basis with one of our loan officers, who have a personal interest in their business and therefore will be highly motivated to take a personal interest in your business.

Come to a bank where the people are known to have heads on their shoulders. And use them.

Theatre drama topic at meeting

Holly Bixler presented a program on "Drama: Theatre for Fun" by using a Jeopardy format when the Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met in her home recently.

Feb. 3 at 10 a.m. in the Community Center. Door prizes are needed for the sorority's state convention set in Amarillo.

Service committee chairman Hyer reminded everyone to bring baby food for Operation Good Shepherd as a service project.

Scrapbook committee member Reily said a committee meeting will be held in her home Jan. 31 at 6:30 p.m.

Rush will be held at the Feb. 20 meeting. Hafliger noted that a pledge meeting was held prior to the chapter meeting.

The meeting adjourned with the closing ritual and Mitzpah. Members attending were Bixler, Hafliger, Whitfill, Matthews, Coplen, Cochran, Henson, Bodner, Hyer, Williams, Kelley, Reily, Linda Arellano, Deann Harris, Susan Shaw, Danell Culp, Kathy Hafliger, Paula Todd and guest, Setliff.

Students receive degrees

Two Hereford students at Angelo State University were among 216 students to receive degrees during fall commencement at the university.

David Shannon Barton received a bachelor of business administration degree with a major in business, and Lisa Ann Connolly received a bachelor of business administration degree with a major in marketing.

Betty Crocker

Q. What would prevent my cheesecake from cracking after it has cooled for one hour? Mrs. R.T., Daytona Beach, FL

A. A high oven temperature, as well as overbaking, can cause cheesecake to crack. Check to be sure your oven temperature is accurate by using a small oven thermometer. Place cheesecake on middle position rack in oven to allow even heat distribution.

Q. What causes a rubbery layer on the bottom of a chocolate chiffon cake? Mrs. McC., Ripon, WI

A. This happens because egg yolk batter has settled to the bottom of the cake. To prevent this, beat egg whites until stiff and shiny, but not dry. Gently fold egg yolk batter into egg whites just enough to completely blend. Be sure to use vegetable oil rather than melt shortening, butter or margarine.

Q. What is turbinado sugar? Does granulated sugar substitute for it? E.K., Auburn, WA

A. Turbinado sugar is partially refined sugar that is higher in molasses than granulated sugar. They may be substituted equally for each other but turbinado has a more distinct molasses flavor.

Hints from Heloise

COLOR LASER COPIER

Dear Heloise: My mother and grandmother have several old one-of-a-kind photographs. I wanted to make copies, but neither one wanted to take the chance of having the photos damaged.

So, I took pictures of some of the photos. This turned out well. Unfortunately, several shots of the same photo needed to be taken to make sure that one good would come out. This wasted a lot of time, money and film.

Then the other day while at my favorite shopping mall I noticed a small shop that advertised photograph copies made while you wait. I took the photos in and sure enough they made copies of each photo. It is actually a copy that is made on a color laser copier. The copies came out great. You couldn't tell them from the original. — K.L.M., San Antonio, Texas

My favorite heart hint. I just made copies of some small one-of-a-kind snapshots and mailed them to a friend as a gift. What fun. — Heloise

FREEZER WRAP

Dear Heloise: To avoid freezer burn, I double-wrap meat packages with freezer wrap. Then, so I don't have to hunt through the freezer for a package of meat, I tie a piece of red string on each package and can tell meat at a glance. — Lolly Kidd, La Cresento, Calif.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.80 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy charge, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	14	2.80
2 days per word	24	4.80
3 days per word	34	6.80
4 days per word	44	8.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing; all capital letters. Rates are $3.95 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

New census begins
Counting the residents of a country as big and as energetic as the United States is no easy task. Just ask the Census Bureau, which is ready to take on the job beginning in late March for the 21st time since 1790.
The Commerce Department agency expects to count some 250 million people and 106 million housing units across the country.
The 1990 census will basically be a "do-it-yourself" count, taken almost entirely by mail with one questionnaire delivered to each housing unit. A short form containing 14 questions will go to five out of six households. A long form with 59 questions will go to the remaining households.
An adult in each household is asked to complete the form and return it by April 1, Census Day. In some rural areas, census workers will pick up or help complete the forms and check them in.
The size of the task is illustrated by the number of persons the Census Bureau will have to hire to help conduct the census. Approximately 480,000 temporary jobs will be created, with a peak temporary employment force of 300,000 working after Census Day to follow-up with those households which did not return their questionnaire.
The primary use of census numbers remains what it always has been: to equally apportion the 435 seats in the House of Representatives. This provision was included in the constitution by the Founding Fathers and has served to reflect population shifts in the makeup of the House after each census.
Over the years, state and local governments-often responding to court decisions dealing with the principle of "one-person, one-vote"-also have adopted the use of census numbers to redraw their election district boundaries.

Ann Landers

There are 500 sheets of paper in a ream.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 24-year-old female who needs your help. Lately I have had what I believe are anxiety attacks. I managed to make it but was really frightened because I had no idea what was happening to me. My sister told me to sit down and take several deep breaths. She put a cool cloth on my face and I did feel better, but let me describe my feeling.

Your body shakes and your heart beats like a trip hammer. There is shortness of breath, you feel light-headed as if you are going to faint, and you think for sure you are having a heart attack. It really is scary.

I went to a doctor who prescribed a drug. I had heard that some of these drugs are addictive and can change your personality.

I don't want to take drugs, Ann. I want to fight this thing on my own. Please tell me what to do. -- Hopeful in Detroit

DEAR DETROIT: You are courageous to want to fight this thing on your own, but it may not be possible.

I hope you will seek out a mental health professional who specializes in phobias and related anxiety disorders. For additional information contact the Phobia Society of America, P.O. Box 42514, Washington, D.C. 20015.

You are not alone. Millions of others have experienced anxiety attacks and with the proper help they have gotten them under control. You can, too. Good luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was first married, I used to clear my throat to get the attention of my in-laws. I didn't want to call the Mom and Dad, or Mother and Father, and I wouldn't have dared to call them by their first names. When I did us Mon and Dad, I was very uncomfortable, even though I liked them both a great deal. But they were not my parents and I kept searching (without success) for a name that would identify them properly and show love as well.

Now (ital) we (unital) have a son-in-law who calls my husband and me by our first names and another son-in-law who calls us "Mr. and Mrs." We are not happy either. The first is too chummy and the second too formal.

Every in-law we have talked to feels as we do except a few people who don't mind being called by their first names. Do you have a solution to this age-old dilemma? - Nameless and Placeless

DEAR N. AND P.: In the absence of an ideal salutation

(which I am unable to produce) I suggest that each family make up their own. In (the initials of his first and middle name). It was the perfect solution.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read in our local paper a tragic story of a 16-year-old boy who was shot and killed accidentally. While looking through his personal belongings, his mother found a composition he had written in school. It had a profound impact on me. Please share it with your readers. Shayne Marchand

Every morning you are handed 24 golden hours. They are one of the few things in this world that you get free of charge. If you had all the money in the world, you couldn't buy an extra hour. What will you do with this priceless treasure? Remember, you must use it, as it is given only once. Once wasted you cannot get it back.

Cummings, Roland tie for first

Joe Don Cummings and Jigger Rowland tied for best program speaker at the Thursday morning meeting of the Hereford Toastmasters.

Bruce Hernandez voiced the invocation and Rocky Lee presided over the meeting. Minutes were read and accepted. A report was given as to how the club will keep up with the progress of each member. A suggestion was made that someone be assigned as official greeter.

Hernandez, wordmaster, introduced "Bias" as the word. Margaret Perez served as grammarian while Bob Lohr was toastmaster. Dr. Milton Adams was general evaluator.

Cummings spoke on "The Awesome power of the Listening Heart" and Lynn Cook was evaluator.

Rowland spoke on "Is Jigger My Real Name" with Joe Walters evaluating.

Lynn Cook was chosen as best evaluator and Clark Andrews was timer. A parliamentary drill was led by Rocky Lee.

Others present were Joe Weaver and Larry Leon.

A game similar to soccer was probably played as early as 400 B.C. by the Chinese.
