

Planes blast convoy, Scud missile sites

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) - Allied warplanes blasted an Iraqi convoy in central Kuwait overnight, and demolished a government ministry in Baghdad today that is led by Saddam Hussein's cousin.

American pilots on "Scud patrol" claimed they destroyed up to four Iraqi missile launchers in western Iraq, U.S. officials said. Still, Israel was hit with one missile early today launched from that region.

In an unusual step, Iraq also disclosed nearly 100 air raids on military targets in southern Iraq and Kuwait. Normally, such attacks are not mentioned in the daily military communiqués read on Baghdad radio.

President Bush said Monday that the allies will continue the air assault, taking "whatever time is necessary" to lay the groundwork for a land war.

Four explosions rocked the center of Baghdad during the night, jolting people from their beds and shattering windows in residential areas, AP correspondent Salah Nasrawi reported from the Iraqi capital.

Rockets from allied aircraft ripped through the ministry building, which is in charge of governing Kuwait, killing six people, including one child, and wounding 17 people, Iraqi civil defense officials said. Reporters taken to the site six hours later saw flames rising from the wreckage.

The Local Government Ministry is headed by Ali Hassan al-Majid, a cousin and close aide to Saddam. Al-Majid did not appear to be in the

The Baghdad government claimed that civilian targets including a maternity hospital and nursery were hit in the latest round of allied raids.

Peace activist Ramsey Clark, a former attorney general who visited Iraq last week, says allied bombs have killed an estimated 6,000 to 7,000 Iraqi civilians. He told a New York news conference Monday that his figures came from the head of Iraq's Red Crescent, the Muslim equivalent of the Red Cross.

Iraq has said thousands of civilians have been killed. Allied commanders have provided no casualty estimates.

U.S. aircraft inflicted heavy damage on the Iraqi convoy of 25 to 50 vehicles it blasted overnight in central Kuwait, American military officials in Riyadh said on condition of anonymity. They also said an Iraqi helicopter was shot down overnight near Mosul, in northern Iraq.

Allied bombing missions have been zeroing in on Iraqi ground forces and their supply routes, and the hardships of war are apparently driving more and more seasoned Iraqi troops to desert.

Students remember soldiers

Hereford Junior High School students look on as Sue Morris, an aide at the school, ties a yellow ribbon on a tree in front of the school's entrance. Mrs. Morris has a son stationed in the Persian Gulf. The students were winners of Proud Crowd t-shirts and other special honors at the school. The student body had a moment of silence for the troops, gave the pledge of allegiance and heard Vanessa Gonzales, a student at Hereford High School, sing the National Anthem.

Rally planned here Sunday

A rally to support local soldiers stationed in the Persian Gulf area and other locations will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse in Hereford.

The rally is being put together by persons interested in showing support of American soldiers, and is not being sponsored by a particular group or organizations. Rally organizers said the event is simply being held to allow local persons to show their support for soldiers.

Over 60 persons from Hereford or who have local connections are serving in the armed forces. Many of them are in Saudi Arabia or elsewhere in the Persian Gulf or Middle East.

A special sign, being prepared by Elaine McNutt, will be unveiled at the rally. The sign will include the names of all soldiers with local connections who are serving in Operation Desert Storm or elsewhere at this time in the armed forces.

Tentative plans for the rally call for the singing of the National Anthem, accompanied by the Hereford High School Mighty Maroon Band, and other songs; a color guard from Cannon Air Force Base in Clovis, N.M.; a special speaker; and presentation of certificates to members of the families of soldiers.

Sunday will also be proclaimed "Red, White and Blue Day" in Hereford, and residents are encouraged to wear the colors to the rally. Flags will also be put out across the city by members of the Hereford Key Club and the Hereford Noon Kiwanis.

Bush remains mum on attack

WASHINGTON (AP) - Content to let air attacks take their toll on Iraq's fighting ability while longer, President Bush is leaving Saddam Hussein with an uncertain wait before a likely bloody ground war begins.

The president was conferring separately today with two allied defense ministers, France's Pierre Joxe and Britain's Tom King. Each was meeting first with Defense Secretary Dick Cheney.

Bush indicated Monday he was in no hurry to start the ground campaign against Iraq, but he did so with a deliberately ambiguous statement about when the next phase of the Persian Gulf War may begin.

"The air campaign has been very, very effective, and it will continue for a while," the president said. "We are going to take whatever time is necessary to sort out when a next stage might begin."

Bush's spoke after he met for more than an hour and a half with Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, on their return from talks with allied commanders in Saudi Arabia.

The president's decision on moving to a ground battle has been widely debated, with many members of Congress - and some within the military - urging a delay to allow more time for air strikes to damage Saddam's war machine. Bush said he will decide later, again after consulting his military advisers.

"If they come to me and say there needs to be another phase, then I will then make that decision because that is a decision for the president of the United States," Bush said.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams described Cheney's meeting with Joxe as a get-acquainted session, their first, and said Cheney would discuss the progress of the war with Joxe and King.

BUSH

Britain has sent 40,000 troops to the gulf and France has committed 20,000 to the effort to dislodge Iraq from Kuwait.

Another White House visitor, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens, pressed Bush on Monday over the continuing threat to Israel posed by Iraq's Scud missiles. Israel came under attack by Scuds even as they talked in the Oval Office, and again later in the evening.

A spokeswoman for the Israeli embassy, Ruth Yaron, said Arens stressed "the need to remove this threat, even though it has diminished." The administration has urged Israeli restraint out of concern that Arab members of the allied coalition would object to an Israeli attack on Iraq.

The White House expressed irritation at Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's criticism that the U.S. war effort threatened to exceed the United Nations mandate to force Iraq from Kuwait.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater cited the remarks as

County sets hearing 7 hurt

By DANEE' WILSON Staff Writer

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners closed a portion of a road in Dawn and set a date for tax abatement during their Monday meeting.

Dawn resident Richard Hagar owns the surrounding land on Fourth Street and requested the closure to use 60 feet of the street as a part of a new business he will be opening there.

Commissioners chose Feb. 25 at 7:00 p.m. for the public hearing on tax abatement for Newlife subdivision and Holly Sugar Corporation.

Newlife Retirement Community is not a nursing home, but a liaison for people who need care but are not in need of a nursing home.

The upper floors of the complex will be apartments and the lower floors will house the rehabilitation section of the complex.

Thirty new jobs for Hereford are expected with the retirement community.

Abatement, as recommended by Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher, would start with 100 percent abatement Jan. 1, 1992, followed by 50 percent abatement after the second and third year and 25 percent abatement after the fourth and fifth year.

Approximately $5.5 million will be considered for tax abatement.

The Tax Abatement Board recommended for Holly Sugar 100 percent abatement starting Jan. 1, 1992 and continuing to 1993, and 50 percent abatement for the years 1994, 1995 and 1996.

Holly Sugar requested abatement on the $13.5 million addition being made to the Hereford plant.

The addition will allow Holly to extract additional sugar from molasses following the traditional processing of sugar beets.

Holly expects to bring approximately 20 new jobs and extend working hours for present employees.

Acting on other agenda items, commissioners adopted a resolution regarding highway funding. The resolution requests the legislature to address the problem. It asked the legislature to meet the needs of the growing highway funding problem.

By late summer or early fall, Deaf Smith County will have to file a precinct reapportionment survey with the Department of Justice. The survey can be completed "in house," said County Clerk David Ruland, "but the statistical portion will be difficult because of the lack of computer programs for that type of survey." The county may be faced with spending $10,000 to $15,000 on the survey. The reapportionment survey is required to stay with the law requiring precinct populations to keep within 10 percent of the other.

Commissioners appointed Gerald Gamboa and Carolyn Baxter to the Child Welfare Board.

The minutes from the prior meeting were approved with the understanding that an amendment may be needed for the purchasing policy.

in wreck

Seven persons were treated for minor injuries in a car-truck accident Sunday in Hereford.

The accident occurred about 6:20 p.m. Sunday in the 200 block of e. 15th St., near the Hereford YMCA.

A 1978 Pontiac driven by Mikel Jarrett, 15, of Hereford, apparently crossed the center line and struck a 1979 GMC Jimmy driven by Ronald Gene Worthan, 33, of Hereford. The vehicles struck head-on and damage to the vehicles was heavy. The Worthan vehicle was also pulling a trailer carrying two all-terrain vehicles, one of which was knocked loose from the trailer by the impact.

Jarrett and another passenger in his car, and the five persons in the Worthan vehicle, were taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital where they were treated for various cuts and abrasions.

Papers added to recycling

Newspapers and other recyclables items will be accepted at the weekly recycling collection, beginning today at the Red Cross office at 224 S. Mian in Hereford.

Organizers from EnCoRe had earlier said newspapers could not be accepted, but said Monday that newspapers will be accepted. Papers should be bundled, if possible.

Hereford area residents may also bring their used glass, plastic containers and metal cans to the Red Cross office every Tuesday from 3 to 6 p.m. A semi-truck trailer has been loaned to EnCoRe and the Red Cross for the storage of recyclable goods.

The regular weekly collections have been made possible by Hereford Iron and Metal and its Amarillo affiliate.

All donated items will be delivered to area recyclers.

Persons bringing recyclable goods should prepare them before taking them to the recycling collection: all containers must be rinsed and pre-sorted; glass containers need to be separated by color; newspapers must be bundled; and suitable plastic containers (marked with the universal recycling logo, three arrows forming a circle) should be washed.

Items given to the Red Cross can only be accepted on a donation basis. There will be no money paid for the goods given to be recycled.

Chamber issues 'alert'

A "consumer alert" was issued today by Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce to urge citizens to be aware of several solicitation programs being conducted in the community at this time.

"We ask that you check each one carefully before agreeing to support or participate in any of them," said Mike Carr, executive vice president of the chamber. Persons are invited to call the chamber if they have any questions.

Carr said programs which residents should learn all the facts and not act too hastily include such things as a coupon advertising book, and insurance or investments for senior citizens.

"If it's a good deal today, it will be a good deal tomorrow after you study the proposition and get advice from family members, accountants or lawyers," cautioned Carr.

The coupon book offers services at a bargain price and is sold to merchants as a means of attracting customers to their stores. While the merchant is told he receives the advertising at no cost, giving away goods or services could be a major cost to the firm. And, the chamber notes that the money leaves town.

On a regular basis, Hereford has out-of-town sales people calling on senior citizens to review their insurance. There have been cases when some of these are not legitimate companies. Citizens are sometimes pressured into paying a large premium in advance for insurance they may or may not need. Local insurance companies can and will answer your questions.

"If a salesman tells you the purchase or investment has to be made immediately, then this is a red flag warning that you need to beware," said Carr.

Statewide tax ruled unlikely

AUSTIN (AP) - A statewide property tax for schools is so unpopular it is no longer being considered in the House to reform public education funding, Speaker Gib Lewis said.

But the school finance alternatives being considered are variations on the same concept, Lewis said Monday. Other proposals would set a minimum local property tax rate and redistribute some of the revenue from rich to poor school districts.

"Whatever we have will be some variation" on the statewide property tax, said Lewis, D-Fort Worth. "It's not a subterfuge. You just try to find out what's going to be able to sell."

A statewide property tax to replace local property levies for schools initially was backed by state leaders as the top option to meet a Texas Supreme Court order to provide equitable funding to poor school districts.

However, groups including the Texas Association of School Boards opposed the idea.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said that does not mean the statewide property tax is dead.

"I don't think anything's dead at this point. Not until there's been a consensus on another proposal, and there has not been, to my knowledge," he said.

School finance proposals under consideration likely would require a constitutional amendment, just as a statewide property tax would, Lewis said. To be put on the ballot, a proposed constitutional amendment must be approved by two-thirds of the Legislature.

Lewis said he would like to see the House consider a school finance reform measure within two weeks. Bullock said he hoped a Senate bill could be ready this week.

The Supreme Court set an April 1 deadline for lawmakers to devise a new school finance system.

"We need to move as quickly as we possibly can," Lewis said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sharon Walsh clung to a tiny thread of hope for 22 years that her husband had survived being shot down in Vietnam. As it turns out, that hope was based on a commander's well-intentioned lie.

The commander admits he was certain that Lt. Col. Richard Walsh of Minneapolis had died. But he reported Walsh missing in action rather than killed, following what he describes as his squadron's unofficial policy and what he knew to be Walsh's wishes.

The Air Force officially denies that could have happened, and the lie came as a shock to Mrs. Walsh. "It had never occurred to me," she said.

But disclosures surrounding the Walsh case, which was first described by the Star Tribune of Minneapolis, indicate that some pilots during the Vietnam war were reported as missing rather than killed in action to protect the emotional and financial well-being of their survivors.

Families of MIA pilots qualify for substantially higher benefits than survivors of those listed as killed.

As of Monday, 27 U.S. military personnel - nearly all of them pilots or air crew members - were listed as missing in action in the Persian Gulf war.

For benefit purposes, the status of almost 2,400 Vietnam War MIAs was changed to presumed dead in the late 1970s.

State eyes rehab for offenders

AUSTIN (AP) - A request for another mammoth prison buildup is not fiscally realistic, lawmakers said, adding that the time has come to concentrate on rehabilitative programs that are cheaper.

"If you continue to focus on how many beds you can build, as opposed to the reason we're having to build those beds, then you are dedicating the rest of eternity to never fix the root problem," Rep. Allen Hightower, D-Huntsville, and chairman of the House Corrections Committee, said Monday.

The Texas Department of Criminal Justice has requested $1.6 billion to build new prisons for 37,100 more inmates. The buildup would remove a backlog of thousands of state inmates in county jails, and increase the amount of time prisoners remain behind bars, the criminal justice agency said.

There are approximately 49,200 inmates in state prisons. The average inmate serves about 20 percent of his sentence, as compared with 55 percent in 1970, the agency said.

Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said a temporary 1-cent sales tax increase, which would expire after two years, should be considered to pay for future prison construction. "A lot of people are willing to vote for a tax that's dedicated to criminal justice to solve this problem," Rudd said, but added he did not advocate such a levy.

Officials laid much of the blame for Texas' overcrowded prisons at the doorstep of Harris County because of its policy of trying to get jail time for first-time burglary offenders.

"The rest of the taxpayers in the state of Texas are supplementing their attitude," Hightower said.

The state and Harris County have been involved in a long-running lawsuit over who picks up the tab for state prisoners in the county jail.

Harris County District Attorney Johnny Holmes said that the sentencing of burglars reflects what Houston residents want. "I think it ought to be expensive and risky to be a burglar," he said.

Robert Ozer, an assistant attorney general, said Harris County is sending a disproportionate share of criminals to state prison, while other large counties send theirs to local rehabilitative programs.

"If you build all 37,000 beds, I think it's a carte blanche signal to the Harris counties to just continue business as usual," Hightower said.

Reservists tuition refund granted

AUSTIN (AP) - A bill that would allow student reservists called to active military duty to get a tuition refund or college course credit has cleared the Senate.

The measure was passed to the House 28-0, without debate, Monday. Bill sponsor Rodney Ellis, D-Houston, said the need for such legislation was brought to his attention by a constituent attending the University of Houston.

Sen. Ellis said the student was in one of the first reserve units called up for the crisis in the Middle East, and hundreds of Texas student reservists have been called up since then.

"The intent of this bill is not only to relieve these students of a financial hardship, but also to let them know that we are concerned about them and that they will not be penalized for serving their country," Ellis said.

His bill would allow tuition and fee refunds, grant students an incomplete grade, or authorize course credit if the student has finished at least one half the semester and the professor says the student has demonstrated sufficient proficiency to justify a passing grade.

It is retroactive to the fall semester.

Current law states that colleges cannot refund tuition and fees in full after the 12th class day of a semester.

In other action, the Senate passed to the House on voice vote a bill that would establish procedures for law enforcement agencies to seize and dispose of illegal drugs and drug paraphernalia.

Scheduled action on a bill that would provide funds for cleaning up oil spills, as well as assessing penalties, was postponed in the absence of the sponsor, Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

Parker, a lawyer, was delayed by a trial in Beaumont, an aide said.

A Senate vote has tentatively been set for Wednesday on the oil spill legislation.

Special guest was Margaret Golden, former member, who now lives in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Recent special events for club members include attendance at the Nutcracker Ballet performance in Amarillo and a tour of the Will Shuster art exhibit at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon. The tour was conducted by Michael Grauer, art curator at the museum.

The Feb. 21 meeting of the club will be hosted by Nancy Hays at the Hereford Country Club. Dr. Peter Petersen of the West Texas State University speakers' staff will talk on the topic "A Park for the Panhandle."

Attending the meeting were Margaret Bell, Eades, Pat Fisher, Mary Fraser, Virginia Garner, Pat Graham, Hays, Elizabeth Holt, Langley, McBride, Newsom, Helen Rose, Rudder, Lois Scott, Allison, Edna Gault and Gililand.

Sorority sweethearts honored

Sorority sweethearts honored at brunch

A brunch honoring the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority sweethearts was held Saturday in the Hereford Community Center.

Members of the three sorority chapters gave special recognition to their sweethearts: Janice Betzen of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter; Ruby Sanders, Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter; and Nan Gauthreaux, Alpha Alpha Preceptor Chapter.

The buffet-style brunch consisted of breakfast casserole, a fruit tray, sweet rolls, coffee and orange juice. The centerpiece for the food table was a large white basket filled with a flocked black top hat, a large fluffy white rabbit and magic wand with accents of red and white flowers.

The room was decorated for this year's theme of "Celebrate the Magic." Arranged on the three tables were large rabbits attired in black flocked top hats and black bow ties. They held magic wands and free floating balloons.

Mistress of ceremonies, Marrie Leverett, and former Beta Sigma Phi sweethearts, Gerry Taylor, Phyllis Neill, Dee Ann Harris and Susan Cardinal, served as hostesses for the brunch.

The sweethearts will be presented at the annual Valentine dance to be held Saturday evening, Feb. 16, at the Hereford Country Club. Music will be provided by Bobby Hughes and Jimmy Young Band.

Mayor speaks on history of Hereford at club meeting

Lydia Hopson introduced Mayor Wes Fisher when he recently presented a program on the history of Hereford to members of La Afflatus Estudio Club at the home of Mary and Le Roy Williams.

He mentioned that Hereford was incorporated in 1888 and reincorporated in 1906. The town served under general law until 1956 and then went to a city manager and mayor type government, serving under only three city managers.

The mayor talked of the big concern in solid waste disposal and was pleased with Panhandle Conference of Mayors, the Panhandle Area Alliance, Panhandle Community Development Regional Review Board, and others.

The voter apathy is a concern of the mayor and should be a concern of all eligible voters.

During the business meeting, members voted a $25 donation to Big Brothers/Big Sisters. A card was sent to Sue Cooper Harlow, sister of Louise Kinsey. She is in St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo.

The next meeting will be Feb. 19 at 3 p.m. at K-Bob's. Marie Harris will serve as hostess.

Members present were Louise Kinsey, Alberta Higgins, Della Stagner, Aileen Montgomery, Virginia Beasley, Emily Suggs, Marie Harris, Etoile Manning, Pet Ott, Hopson, Williamson, and guest Mayor Wes Fisher.

Voting may be an increasingly popular activity around the world.

Route 66 exhibit opens at museum in Canyon

A new photographic exhibit entitled "That Ribbon of Highway: Through the Texas Panhandle on Route 66" will open at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon Friday and will remain on display through January, 1992.

The exhibit is located in the Photographic Gallery on the first floor of the museum. Museum hours are 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 2-6 p.m. on Sundays.

Heralded in story, in song, by a popular television series, and by enthusiastic Route 66 Associations, U.S. Highway 66 has become America's most famous road. Millions of people have traveled the 2,400 mile concrete slab from Chicago to Los Angeles, which includes the 178-mile stretch of road through the Texas Panhandle. Travelers crossed the Oklahoma border into Texas near the small community of Benonine and exited the state at Glenrio on the Texas-New Mexico line. Photographs in this exhibit provide a backward glance at some of the sights along this well-known highway.

Route 66 was designated a national highway by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads in November 1926. The organizational meeting of the Route 66 Highway Association in Tulsa, Okla. on Feb. 4, 1927, adopted the name "The Main Street of America" for promotional purposes because the highway went through the center of so many towns.

Five-hundred people converged on Amarillo in June, 1927, to cheer on the paving of the road. The pavement was laid in two lanes, each more than nine feet wide. Local taxes were matched with federal dollars for the paving. As was the case in many of the states, county officials throughout the Texas Panhandle paved what they could and finally finished the job in the late 1930s with federal support and crews provided by various federal work programs during the depression.

Route 66 provided an economic boost to rural areas of the Texas Panhandle until Interstate 40 began bypassing the towns in its path in 1963. However, renewed interest in the old highway has prompted a study by the National Park Service to determine the best ways to preserve, commemorate and interpret the historic route. This, combined with the interest of merchants in many of the towns along the route, will insure that the reputation of Route 66 will draw travelers from the interstate for a glimpse of its history.

"The museum is indebted to the many former residents and business owners along Route 66 who have shared their collections of photographs for this exhibit," added Claire R. Keuhn, archivist for the PPHM and coordinator of the exhibit.

Casting planned tonight

There will be a casting and organizational meeting at 7 p.m. today in the St. Anthony's Catholic Church gymnasium for auditions for parts in the upcoming outdoor dramatization of the Passion of Jesus Christ.

Several interested persons representing various church congregations in Hereford are pooling their energies and resources to put together the outdoor dramatization of the passion of Jesus Christ based on the Gospel of St. John, to be held on Good Friday, March 29, at noon in Dameron Park.

To bring this to life the following are needed: actors, people who would be willing to play characters without any lines, etc.

This project is open to the public. For more information, contact Carmen Flood at 289-5381.

8th graders fall to Pampa in tourney

The Hereford Junior High eighth grade basketball teams both lost to a Pampa team Saturday in the district tournament here: the Maroon in the championship game and the White team in the consolation finals.

The Maroons led the championship game early, taking a 19-18 lead into halftime, but were victimized by a strong third quarter by Pampa's Red team.

The Maroons were outscored 12-4 in the decisive quarter and trailed 23-30 going into the fourth. They made it closer, but not close enough, succumbing 40-36.

Ashley Noland was the only Maroon player in double-figure scoring with 10.

Hereford's White team dropped the consolation game 47-38 to Pampa's Blue team, which also used a big third quarter to pull away from the Whitefaces.

The Whites trailed only 19-23 at the half, but scored only eight points to Pampa's 20 in the third. Again, a good fourth quarter was not enough.

Benton Buckley paced the Whites with 13 points, and Cody Curtis added 11.

Bowling for plaques

Robinson possible MVP

By JERRY BRIGGS

The San Antonio Light
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Spurs center David Robinson apparently has surged into the lead as a candidate for Most Valuable Player honors in the National Basketball Association this season.

Robinson had an edge on second-place Magic Johnson of the Los Angeles Lakers and third-place Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls going into the All-Star weekend, according to an informal survey conducted by The San Antonio Light this week.

"That is fabulous," Spurs owner Red McCombs said. "I think that must be unusual for a second-year player to get that kind of recognition."

In contrast, Spurs coach Larry Brown met the news with mixed emotions.

"Sure, I'm proud of him," Brown said. "But I don't want to get into talking about my player (because) I'm not with Magic and I'm not with Michael."

Brown also said the survey could put more pressure on Robinson, who was starting center for the Western Conference in Sunday's All-Star game at Charlotte, N.C. Robinson, Johnson and Utah's Karl Malone led the West's scorers with 16 points each, but the East won the game 116-114.

"The worst thing that could happen is for people to start talking about that (MVP)," Brown said. "I just don't want to get into it. David's had a lot of pressure on him from day one."

Teammate Sean Elliott gave the nod to Robinson, the 7-foot-1, second-year wonder from Navy.

"No question about it," Elliott said. "Last year if you had asked me, I might have had to stop and think about it. But this year there's no question. When he's on top of his game, he's the best."

In opinions expressed by nearly half of the electorate that is expected to vote for MVP at the end of this season, Robinson easily outdistanced Johnson, the Lakers' three-time MVP, and Jordan, the Bulls' star who has won the award once.

Philadelphia's Charles Barkley ranked as a distant fourth choice before his 17-point, 22-rebound performance that landed him MVP honors for the All-Star game.

Washington's Bernard King, coming back from knee problems that caused him to miss nearly two full seasons in 1985-86 and 1986-87, made a strong showing in fifth place.

"I saw him out here in the rookie summer league two years ago," said Scott Howard-Cooper of the Los Angeles Times of Robinson, "and it looks to me like he's playing now against veterans the way he did against those rookies."

Another writer from the West said he couldn't vote Robinson first right now because "I just can't see that team in the Western Conference finals. But maybe that's just an indictment of the team."

At the end of the season, about 90-95 journalists will pick the league's MVP. In The Light's poll, 40 writers and broadcasters who cover the league on a daily basis participated.

At least one media representative from each of the 27 franchises cast ballots.

All voters were asked to pick the MVP at this point in the year and were reminded not to project a winner.

Based on the results, it is clear that Robinson has molded a strong support base from the electorate, mainly because he has carried an injury-troubled franchise to the league's fourth best record.

If he goes on to win, he would be the first Spurs player to take the league's top individual honor and only the sixth player in NBA history to win it after only two seasons in the league.

Voters in the poll were asked to duplicate the NBA's format for determining the MVP, ranking candidates from first through fifth, with points attached to each vote in descending value.

Robinson, the 1990 NBA Rookie of the Year, totaled 294 points, to 259 for Johnson, 223 for Jordan, 117 for Barkley and 41 for King.

The Spurs' center was named first on 18 of 40 ballots - including 11 first-place votes coming from Eastern Conference media.

Johnson and Jordan each picked up nine first-place votes, Barkley three, King one and Portland Trail Blazers' guard Clyde Drexler one.

Magic, who has won the MVP voting the last two years, will have staunch support no matter what Robinson and the Spurs do during the last few months.

One voter said he thought Magic was much more of a leader than Robinson and another said that the Lakers' star was much better at the critical moment of a game.

"David's not a leader," said an Eastern conference broadcaster. "That's not a knock on him. It's just the way he is. Magic will take a teammate by the jersey and say, 'Hey, we're not going to lose.'"

One Western conference writer said the Bulls would be a .500 team at best if Jordan ever got hurt. The Spurs, at full strength minus Robinson, would be a little better, he said.

"If you take Michael away they're just an average team," the writer said. "Jordan does so much, when you talk about being valuable."

Elliott, however, dismissed all the talk about Magic or Jordan being more valuable.

"David means more to our team than any other player (means to another team)," he said. "That's what the MVP is all about."

In an interview last week, Robinson said he was surprised that he was considered the leading MVP candidate.

"I don't really think about that," he said. "I just worry about us improving as a team on a day-to-day basis."

"I worry about the struggles we've been going through. We've had a lot of injuries on this team. That (MVP consideration) is the least of my worries."

Pressed on the subject, Robinson conceded that he would love to win it.

"It would be great," said Robinson, who ranks seventh in scoring (27 points), first in rebounding (13.1) and first in blocks (4.3) in the NBA. "But I don't get to see Magic Johnson and Michael Jordan playing every day, so it's hard for me to say (who is most valuable)."

"It's one of the top honors in the game, for sure," he said. "It doesn't mean you're the best player. It just means that you've done a pretty good job this year."

In previous MVP selections, former Philadelphia Warriors center Wilt Chamberlain and Baltimore Bullets center Wes Unseld won it in their first seasons, Chamberlain in 1958-59 and Unseld in 1968-69.

Three other players - St. Louis' Bob Pettit (1956), Boston's Bill Russell (1958), and Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (1971) - won it in their second year in the league.

The smallest attendance for any Super Bowl Game was the 61,946 turnstile count for the first game in Los Angeles in 1967.

Netters place 3rd in Wichita Falls

The Hereford High School tennis team finished third in the Wichita Falls Invitational tournament played Friday and Saturday.

Coach Luis Zavala said the team left before a winner was decided but it was between Amarillo and Odessa High Schools, and Amarillo needed to win one out of two matches to take the tournament.

Zavala seemed happy with his team's performance.

"I think if we played a dual match (against Amarillo or Odessa) we would have taken them," he said.

Those two schools are strong at the top, he said, but Hereford has more quality depth.

"When I have them play number one against number six, it's close," he said.

Zavala also said that only one other 4-A school participated--Burkburnett--and obviously Hereford finished ahead of it.

Hereford's top contenders for individual honors were Eric Cortez and Torey Sellers, who finished second in boys' doubles, and Brenna Reinauer, who came in third in girls' singles.

The rest of the Hereford team finished as follows:

Boys' singles: Randy Robbins, fifth; and Brandon Flood, thirteenth.

Boys' doubles: Jamie Kapka and Donny Perales, tenth.

Girls' singles: Gina Alley, fifth.

Girls' doubles: Trisha Munoz and Robyn Sublett, fifth; and Sherry Fuston and Emily Fuston, tenth.

Girls hit links

The Hereford High School girls' golf team played in their first tournament of the year Thursday and Friday in San Angelo and finished eleventh out of 20 teams.

The team, made up of Paula Britten, Jennifer Prater, Stephanie Walls, Brook Weatherly and Kelly Kelso, had a two-day total of 899. They combined to shoot 459 on Thursday, but all five girls improved on Friday to come up with a 440.

Britten led the Lady Whitefaces with a 101 Thursday and a 98 Friday for a two-day total of 199. Prater was next with a 114 and a 109 for 223.

The tournament was won by Andrews High School's 717, which blew away second-place Odessa Permian with 771.

Other 4-A schools in the tournament were Pampa and Snyder, which tied for sixth at 803; and Borger, which finished tenth at 854.

Hall of Fame pitcher Bob Gibson was the starter in 303 consecutive games for the Cardinals from 1965 to 1975.

Hubbard hits hole-in-one

Paul Hubbard scored a hole-in-one Saturday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course in Hereford.

Hubbard achieved the rarity on the 190-yard ninth hole using a six-iron.

Witnesses were Brent Warner, Tommy Weaver, Bobby Weaver and Rick Hopping.

Richardson ready to leave conference

DALLAS (AP) - The basketball version of the Arkansas Razorbacks is handling its farewell tour of the Southwest Conference far better than its football counterparts handled the league last fall.

The Razorbacks' 112-105 loss to top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas Sunday was only the second setback of the season for No. 2 Arkansas, which hasn't lost any games in conference play.

Arkansas' football team lost eight straight SWC games before winning its finale against Southern Methodist.

In basketball, the Razorbacks are 23-2 for the season and looking ahead to postseason play. The only other defeat was at the hands of Arizona in another non-conference contest.

It's been Arkansas and the eight little stepbrothers in the SWC, with only the Texas Longhorns of Tom Penders showing enough flash and firepower to impress the NCAA Tournament Committee.

Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson has been on a mission, and he hasn't let his players forget it for one minute. He didn't want to leave the SWC for the Southeastern Conference on a load of losses like the football team suffered last fall.

After Arkansas got revenge recently for a road loss to Texas Christian in Fort Worth last year, senior Ron Hucry said:

"We came to Fort Worth to make a statement. We're going to the SEC and hopefully we're going to leave smooth. But if they want a war, we're going to bring a war to them. We're on a mission to leave this conference in stride."

Richardson wanted big revenge against TCU because he claimed that Moe Iba said the Hogs shouldn't be allowed to play one more season before they leave for the SEC.

Then came the Baylor game where, once again, Arkansas wanted revenge against the Bears, who defeated them in Waco last year.

Arkansas edged the Bears by five points and after the game Richardson said: "I'm so happy to get out of this conference, I don't know what to do."

Richardson was upset at what he perceived to be a slow clock operator in the final seconds of the game.

"Ray Charles could have looked up at the clock and known something was wrong," Richardson said. "I'm happy I never have to come back here again."

The biggest danger remaining to Arkansas' hopes of sweeping through the SWC undefeated will come in Austin March 3 in a nationally televised (ABC, 3 p.m. CST) game at the Frank Erwin Center. It likely will be the last regular-season game the Hogs will play in the SWC.

Texas could be double-tough by March 3.

The Longhorns are fast improving, just like they did last year when they came on strong at the end of the season. Texas eventually met and lost to Arkansas in the finals of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Texas had three road victories last week and a different star emerged every night. On Saturday, it was Guillermo Myers and Benford Williams, who helped Texas overcome a 10-point deficit to defeat Southern Methodist 76-73 in Dallas.

Dexter Cambridge, the national junior college player of the year, has finally started adjusting to bigtime college basketball. His bench play helped shove off a Texas A&M upset bid recently.

Texas has 16 victories and appears on its way to a 20-victory season. The Longhorns have played a tough schedule, which fits well into the NCAA computer rankings. The Longhorns have nine consecutive victories, the most ever under Penders.

'Daredevils' to perform

The Bud Light Daredevils, an acrobatic slam-dunk act, will perform during halftime of the West Texas State University basketball game against Abilene Christian University Monday at Cal Farley Coliseum in Amarillo. Tip-off time is 8 p.m.

The team's act consists of an eight-minute acrobatic slam-dunk halftime show, featuring several feats of agility, including an all-time crowd favorite: "Twist and Shout." In this act, two team-members approach mini-trampolines simultaneously. They each pass a basketball off the backboard and catch it while doing a front somersault with a half-twist. The duo then passes to two other team members for a climactic double-slam-dunk. Other dunk acts include "Dial 9-1-1" and "Shake Down the Rafter's 'til the Morning After."

The Daredevils have made more than 500 appearances with nearly every NBA team, 13 Continental Basketball Association teams and 200 colleges and college tournaments in 13 countries. Video highlights of their act have been seen on CNN, NBC

Nightly News, "Good Morning, America," "The Tonight Show" and "Late-night with David Letterman." They also have been featured in a half-hour special on ESPN.

This Daredevils team is an offshoot of the original. It consists of former members Ty Cobb and Gary Hedrick and new members Keith Rooks and Adam Hardy.

Cobb founded the group in 1980 with friend Jeff Hubbard when they were cheerleader and mascot, respectively, for the University of Mississippi. Cobb has not performed with the group for two years, but he is approaching his re-appearance on the court with enthusiasm.

"It's going to be a great rush to get back out there in front of the crowds," Cobb said. "Through the years the show has evolved and improved--and I really believe I'm returning to perform one of the most difficult and crowd-pleasing Daredevils' routines ever."

This year, the Daredevils will perform at approximately 125 events before more than a million people.

NCAA charges UTEP

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - The NCAA has alleged that the Texas-El Paso basketball program of coach Don Haskins committed 13 rules violations, including four serious infractions, a television station reported.

School officials refused Monday to comment on the report by El Paso station KVIA-TV, saying the results of an NCAA investigation would be disclosed during an afternoon news conference today in El Paso.

KVIA reported Monday it was told by people who have read the NCAA report that it alleges a lack of institutional control of the UTEP basketball program.

UTEP offices were closed Monday when called for comment by The Associated Press. Calls to Haskins' home were not answered.

The NCAA investigation began in December 1989 after Newsday, a Long Island, N.Y., newspaper, quoted former UTEP assistant coach Nate Archibald and former players Jerry Jones and Kenny Parham, saying they received cash and free use of cars from "sugar families." The three later claimed they were misquoted.

Former UTEP basketball player Shelton Boykin, a reserve forward who played only during the 1987-88 season with the Miners, was quoted in a Los Angeles Times article saying, "When we wanted to go out, we'd get a car. They were nice cars - Cadillacs, Mercedes, Jaguars..."

Last year, a California recruit who no longer attends UTEP alleged he was given housing, transportation and meals while living in El Paso for six weeks in 1988.

The recruit, John Stagers, said he never had to use his own money and that he received rides and meals from Rus Bradburd, who recently gave up an assistant coaching job at Ball State to take a part-time assistant coaching job at UTEP. Stagers also implicated assistant coach G. Ray Johnson.

Stagers was a top college recruit during his senior year at a California high school, but failed to graduate. He signed a letter of intent with UTEP, but never played because he failed to pass a high school equivalency exam. He later passed the equivalency exam and now attends Columbia Community College in California.

According to KVIA, the NCAA report also alleges a player's parent was provided free lodging and other technical recruiting violations.

Detmer takes O'Brien

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Ty Detmer, Heisman Trophy winner from Brigham Young University, accepted the Davey O'Brien Award as the nation's top collegiate quarterback and said he plans to be fully recovered from two separated shoulders by next fall.

Detmer said during Monday night's award ceremony that after seeing the medals of former BYU quarterbacks Jim McMahon and Steve Young on prominent display on campus, "It's nice to have one of my own."

"It was a great year for us. I'm thrilled to be here. Things really worked out well," Detmer said.

Detmer, who was born in San Marcos, Texas, and set high school passing records while quarterbacking for his father-coach in San Antonio, separated both shoulders during the Cougars' 55-13 loss to Texas A&M in the Holiday Bowl.

Detmer said he will miss spring training, but will be at full speed for BYU's season opener Aug. 29 in the Pigskin Classic against Florida State.

"I should be ready just after the spring. I'm going to throw all summer, and I'll be ready when the season starts. Our last two losses to Hawaii and A&M left a bad taste in my mouth," he said.

BYU coach Lavell Edwards, who was on hand for the Davey O'Brien ceremony, said he doesn't think Detmer's missing spring practice will hurt the Cougars next year.

"We just made up our mind not to use him this spring, and we'll work in our younger players," Edwards said. "It was unusual that Ty separated both shoulders in the same game, but we believe he will bounce back and be OK."

Detmer has broken 42 NCAA passing records and tied 5. His career total of 11,000 passing yards at BYU ranks him second on the all-time list.

Last season, he became the most prolific passer in the history of college football by throwing for 5,188 yards.

Detmer received a $10,000 scholarship check in honor of BYU at the 14th annual awards dinner, which was held at the Fort Worth Club.

Runnerup Craig Erickson of the University of Miami was unable to attend the ceremony because of a knee injury he suffered during practice at the Hula Bowl.

Huskies hurt Hoyas

By The Associated Press

The Connecticut Huskies had the perfect game plan for the Georgetown Hoyas. The East Tennessee State Buccaneers also had one for the Furman Paladins. Only theirs didn't work.

"One of the things we said in our scouting report was not to let Hal Henderson have a good night," said East Tennessee State coach Alan LeForce, "but he was the difference."

With Henderson scoring a career-high 29 points, Furman upset the 10th-ranked Buccaneers 104-93 in a key Southern Conference game on Monday night. The result left the two tied at the top with 9-2 records.

Connecticut, meanwhile, followed through on their plan to collapse on Georgetown's two big inside men - Dikembe Mutombo and Alonzo Mourning.

Mutombo had three field goals and Mourning none as the Huskies' defense shut down the 18th-ranked Hoyas en route to a 61-55 Big East victory.

"As the game wore on we got more confident because we knew they weren't going to hit it from the outside. Some of them weren't even looking to shoot it," Connecticut center Rod Sellers said. "That made us collapse even more."

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 2 Ohio State defeated Michigan 81-65; No. 9 Southern Mississippi beat McNeese State 81-62 and No. 12 New Mexico State defeated UC-Santa Barbara 67-64.

Furman 104, No. 10 East Tennessee State 93

Henderson, whose previous career best was 24 two seasons ago, hit eight of 10 shots from the field, including six of seven 3-pointers. He also made seven of nine free throws and had seven assists.

Connecticut (15-7, 6-6 in the Big East), coming back from a six-game losing streak, won its third straight and took sole possession of fifth place in the conference. Georgetown (15-7, 7-4) lost its share of first place.

No. 9 Southern Mississippi 81, McNeese St. 62

How a 'Warthog' Kills Tanks

This close-support aircraft would play a prime role in a Gulf war: to protect ground troops by destroying Iraqi tanks. The plane, which earned its nickname for its ungainly appearance, has never been tested in combat.

Commando units hit special, shadowy spots

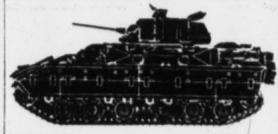

WASHINGTON (AP) - Much is made of the evasive exploits of stealth airplanes in the bombing of Iraq and Kuwait. But precious little is known about the Persian Gulf War deeds of an even stealthier American weapon: special operations forces. Secrecy and silence are watchwords of these elite units trained to operate behind enemy lines and in hostile waters. They are the unseen warriors, the hidden heroes.

Berets of the Army, the SEAL (Sea, Air, Land) teams of the Navy, and the less well-known Air Force Special Operations Force. The Pentagon doesn't count the Marines as part of its special operations forces, but they, too, have combat and reconnaissance teams designed for special missions such as hostage rescues and raids and spy operations deep in enemy territory. Defense Department officials won't talk about it publicly, but anecdotal evidence and information offered by military sources make it clear that a full range of special operations forces is operating in and around Kuwait and Iraq. "You have a tremendous capability in the area," said one government official with direct access to such information who spoke on condition of anonymity. Special operations forces often act as the tip of the spear in a major offensive. For example, at the outset of the U.S.-led air attack on Iraq on Jan. 17, a special forces unit teamed up with Army Apache helicopter gunships to knock out two Iraqi air defense command centers. They blasted the command posts with Hellfire missiles, opening a path for the initial wave of allied attack planes.

These other incidents point to special forces involvement in the war: -On Jan. 31, military sources disclosed that an AC-130 Spectre aircraft was downed behind enemy lines, and that its crew of 14 army were missing in action. The Pentagon has not commented on the aircraft's mission, but it is known to be a gunship used by Air Force Special Operations Forces for nighttime armed reconnaissance, close-air support of ground forces and rescue operations.

-Naval forces in at least one case conducted a "take down" of a merchant ship that refused to halt after warning shots were fired across its bow. The ship was suspected of violating the United Nations trade embargo against Iraq. The risky job of boarding the ship fell to a Navy SEAL team.

WAR

Today, eight Iraqi soldiers from the same unit surrendered to an Egyptian armored division after crossing the border from Kuwait - and braving a journey through their own minefields.

"Fighting, fighting, fighting, and for what? Nothing," said one.

President Bush met today with the defense chiefs of Britain and France, principal allied partners, though White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the gathering in Washington did not signal that a ground offensive was imminent.

Meanwhile, Soviet envoy Yevgeny Primakov, was to meet with Saddam in Baghdad today about a Kremlin initiative to end the war.

The four mobile Scud missile launchers believed destroyed were hit by U.S. pilots overnight in western Iraq, U.S. officials said. The pilots reported seeing what appeared to be one Scud blowing up as it was being launched.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir hinted today the Jewish state might not hold its fire indefinitely in the face of Iraqi missile attacks.

But he said Israel was mindful of the interests of the United States - which has discouraged Israeli involvement in the Gulf War because it could alienate Arab nations in the allied coalition.

An urban neighborhood in Israel was hit by a Scud early today, and Israel's army reported six injuries. Another Scud aimed at Israel hit an uninhabited area Monday night, the authorities said. For security reasons, the Israelis refuse to specify where missiles hit.

U.S.-supplied Patriot missiles destroyed an incoming Scud near the Saudi capital, Riyadh, Monday night, but falling debris injured two people.

With clear weather as an ally, the coalition's stepped-up air war caused a skyborne traffic jam on Monday. "It's like a freeway," one U.S. officer said as U.S. pilots all but competed for targets.

Today, low clouds hung over northern Saudi Arabia, but bomb-laden Saudi Tornado air-to-ground fighters took off into the hazy skies, heading north to Iraq and occupied Kuwait. France said its Jaguar fighters hit two Iraqi artillery positions in southern Kuwait today. Italian Tornado fighters also flew another mission against Iraq.

A Pentagon official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Iraq's Republican Guard and the strategic southern city of Basra remained key targets.

Saddam met with his inner circle today for a second time since Sunday. Iraq radio did not say what was discussed.

Iraq's parliament speaker, Saadi Mehdi Saleh, said Iraq "had managed to maintain its lethal developed weapons" despite the allied bombardment. He also urged allied forces to pull out of Saudi Arabia.

The pace of allied ground preparations for an expected ground assault on Kuwait and southern Iraq quickened today.

Marines and Army forces already stationed in northern Saudi Arabia broke camp and headed to the northernmost desert frontier. C-130 transport planes shuttled from rear bases for new airstrips near the border, and roads from Saudi Arabia's gulf ports were clogged with supply trucks.

The forward troops traveled light, shedding comforts like cots and tents.

"The closer you get, the leaner you get," said Chief Warrant Officer Charles Rowe. "When you move your combat power, you do it with the minimum of equipment."

BUSH

evidence that Saddam was "scoring his points" in the "propaganda and the PR battle" by claiming allied bombing attacks have killed and injured thousands of Iraqi civilians.

"There's no question there has been collateral damage, but we don't think it's been very extensive," Fitzwater said. "But he has had a very extensive PR effort, and it's disturbing to find this evidence that somebody is buying it."

Underlying the U.S. decision to delay a ground attack is an apparent belief by the military that its sustained heavy air assault is continuing to drain Iraq's capacity to fight.

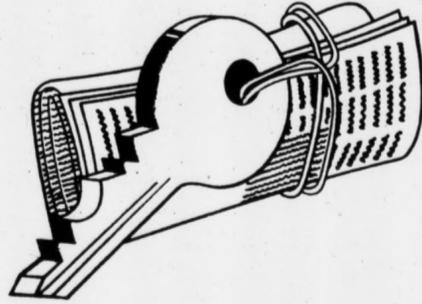

Lt. Gen. Tom Kelly, director of operations for the joint chiefs, said, "We have not passed, I think, what's been referred to as a point of diminishing returns in the air campaign."

He said allied forces believe they have destroyed 750 tanks, 600 other armored vehicles and 650 artillery pieces - as much as 15 to 20 percent of Iraq's fighting force, once considered the fourth largest in the world. It no longer can claim that ranking, said Navy Capt. David Herrington, a senior intelligence officer.

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it. This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm not sure what my next move should be. I accidentally discovered my 15-year-old daughter's diary and I know I shouldn't have read it, but I did. If what she has written is true, "Melanie" is dangerously close to becoming sexually active.

I am concerned that she may get into trouble. According to her diary she "almost does it" with guys she has just met. We've had some frank discussions about sex. She says she has never let a boy put his hands where they don't belong.

I am also bothered by the way she leaves notes lying around addressed to her best girlfriend. She writes about how she got drunk, doesn't remember what she did and hopes she isn't pregnant. She also describes how she was caught shoplifting, taken to jail and booked. I know this is not true.

My husband is as puzzled as I am, and we don't know what approach to take. Melanie participates in church activities and does all right in school, but does not measure up to her potential, according to her teachers. She is active in sports, a willing worker and helpful around the house. Melanie has many friends, both girls and boys, who phone and come to our home often.

So what is this girl trying to prove? Is she writing things in her diary and composing notes that are pure fantasy? I am puzzled and worried.--Perplexed Mother in Minneapolis

DEAR PERPLEXED: It is obvious that Melanie is trying to get your attention. The notes she leaves around the house are a clear signal.

You need to spend more time with your daughter and listen to her. Also, her tendency to embellish reality suggests that she needs counseling. Make an appointment for her soon.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a recovering alcoholic, my awareness of "social" drinking and alcoholism has been intensified. I have noticed a frequent practice in newspapers that, in my opinion, helps to promote this destructive disease.

To illustrate my point, I have enclosed several newspaper clippings of prominent persons attending various social functions. These people are all well-dressed, attractive and smiling--and they are holding drinks. I believe there is a strong subliminal message in these photos. They glamorize drinking and identify it with pleasure, social status and success. These photos are similar to the ads that link certain cigarette brands with beautiful women tennis players or rugged cowboys in the great outdoors.

I hope my letter will be printed and seen by those who are in a position to discontinue this glorification of drinking. I am referring to socially responsible newspaper editors who can make it a policy not to use such photos in their papers. Also, the people who attend these functions could help by voluntarily setting aside their drinks before being photographed.

We must stop promoting drinking as part of the "getting to the top" syndrome. What do you think?--W.W. in Renton, Wash.

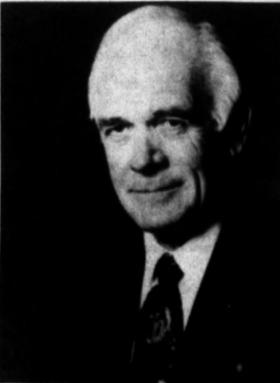

DEAR W.W.: I agree with the subliminal message in theory, but some of those glasses are filled with diet cola and soda water. (Mine, for example.) Nevertheless, before taking the picture, a competent, experienced photographer sees to it that his or her subjects put down their drinks.
