Great American Race coming to Hereford Tuesday

Eighty-five antique cars will be in Hereford on Tuesday morning as the Great American Race passes through the city.

The race is the 10th in the series; it's the first time the antique cars, some over 80 years old, will come through Hereford. They are going from Charleston, SC, where they started last Sunday, to Costa Mesa, Calif. The race will end July 4th.

The racers will stop at Hereford Buick-Pontiac-GMC, Second and Miles, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday after beginning the day in Amarillo. The cars, with a driver and navigator in each vehicle, will leave from Amarillo at one-minute intervals on Tuesday morning.

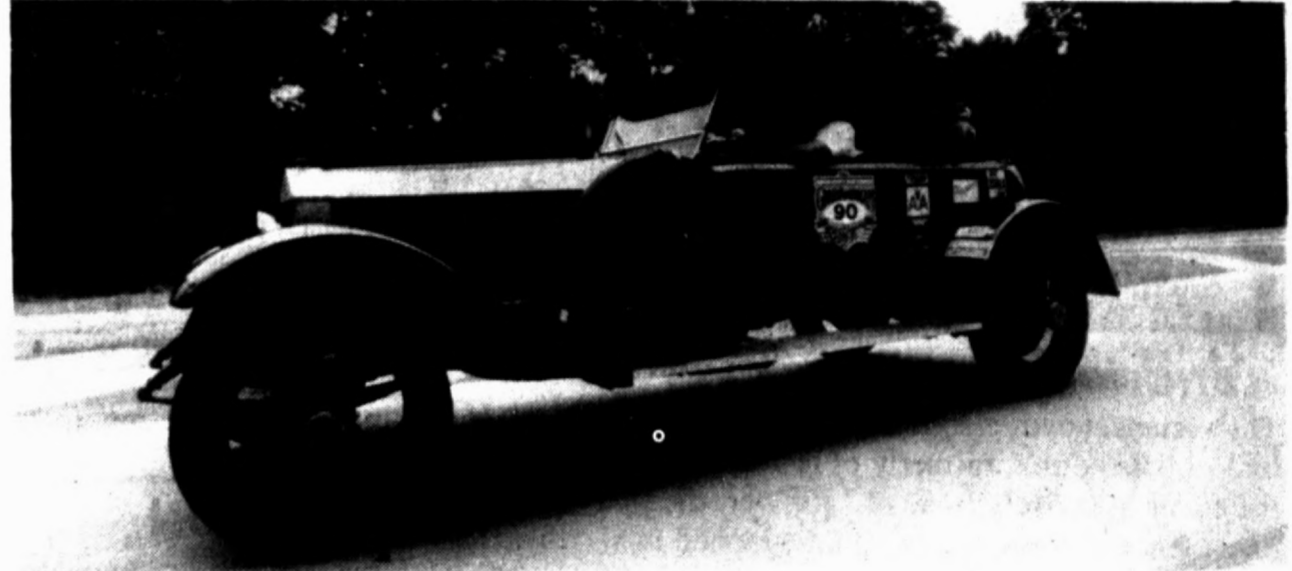

The cars and crews, including accompanying support persons, go 170-480 miles a day with a morning pit stop, lunch and an afternoon pit stop. They are racing not only against each other but against computer-generated time formulas. The driver and navigator, though, use only the car's speedometer, stop watches, paper and pencil. The cars do not have odometer. Cars are penalized a penalty point for each second off schedule, fast or slow. Some crews are so expert they finish within seconds of the "exact" time on daily stages.

Like golf, the low score is the winner. The most accurate team at scheduled and unscheduled check points wins. The cars have no odometer; the only modifications allowed are for safety. A malfunction must be repaired on the spot or at one of the overnight spots. However, some things are too big to fix immediately, and each car may miss one leg and still be eligible for the last two days (the first 11 legs are like qualifying heats, but only those cars that finish 10 legs may qualify for the last two days).

The cars are in two classes: the Championship class, for pre-WWII cars, and the World class, for pre-1920 vehicles. Certain exceptions can be made in the Championship class for very special cars.

Cars are financed by sponsorships from major companies and minor sponsorships by chambers, car clubs, other groups and individuals.

Tuesday's rare opportunity to see the cars will be open to the public at the Buick dealership. Businesses and organizations have been retained as hosts and sponsors of crews and cars as they stop in Hereford through the efforts of chairman Ken Rogers and the work of others through the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

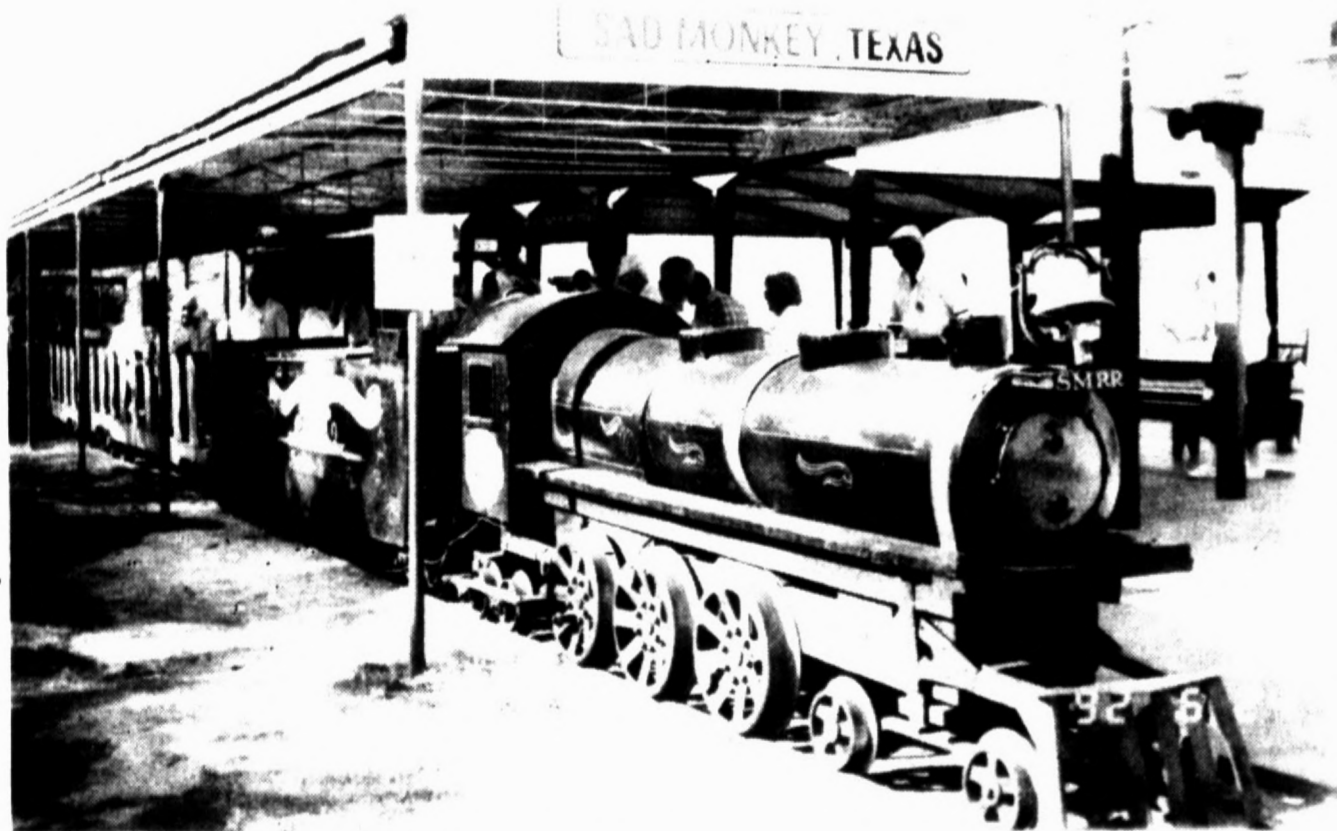

Cars from around the world compete in Greatrace

Cars like this 1915 Rolls Royce Silver Shadow from Australia are among the competitors in the 1992 Great American Race. This year, one of the cars is a 1928 Auburn Boattail Speedster from New Zealand. The antique racers will travel through Hereford on Tuesday.

Musical is one of many attractions at wondrous Palo Duro just down the road. By Georgia Tyler

Choo-choo travels canyon floor

Operating on a two-mile, 30-minute trip on the floor of Palo Duro Canyon, the Sad Monkey Railroad offers visitors to the park a unique opportunity to see the effects of centuries of wind through the canyon as well as trees and plants native to the area.

History never recorded what Capt. R.B. Marcy said when he "discovered" Palo Duro Canyon in 1852.

But anything he could have said about the awe-inspiring sight undoubtedly has been repeated at some time in the last 140 years.

Marcy surely wasn't the first explorer to spot the spectacular natural wonder, located only about an hour's drive from Hereford.

In all likelihood, Coronado stumbled on the canyon, carved by the Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River, when he went through the area in 1541. But, he was more interested in finding the Seven Cities of Gold than canyons.

Today, the adjectives attached to Palo Duro Canyon run the full range of superlatives . . . beautiful, spectacular, fascinating, outstanding, gorgeous . . . as applied to the physical scenery as well as the chief drawing card every summer.

"TEXAS," the musical show created in 1966 by Paul Green attracts audiences from mid-June to mid-August. Even with a talented cast and production design, though, the show can't help but be upstaged by the canyon itself.

Who hasn't thrilled to the horseback riders tearing across the rim of the canyon with the flags of the Lone Star State and the United States?

Who hasn't enjoyed the venerable story of cattlemen vs. homesteaders? Who hasn't shivered as "lightning" cracks against the cliff and causes spectators to rise from their seats?

But, with due credit to "TEXAS" and the draw the show generates during the summer, there's more to Palo Duro Canyon than a musical drama.

Centuries of the wind whistling through the canyon have produced

Long-lived tree

Naturalists believe this tree had lived some 500 years before it died. Juniper and other hardwood trees gave the name to Palo Duro Canyon. Palo Duro can be translated "hard wood."

Fireworks, music, watermelon on 4th

An evening of picnicking, entertainment, free watermelon and a spectacular fireworks show are on tap Saturday at the second annual community July 4th celebration.

The first celebration was planned as a tribute to local persons who served in Operation Desert Storm and to all persons who had served in past conflicts. The celebration was so successful that organizers will make the celebration annual as long as community support warrants.

One way to show community support is through donations. Although the city and county have given $2,500 each to the celebration, costs are near $10,000. Donations to support the celebration may be mailed to: July 4th Celebration, c/o Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, PO Box 192, Hereford TX 79045.

The road in the park from the bridge at Tierra Blanca Creek to the south end of the park will be closed at 4 p.m., and families wishing to enjoy a picnic supper may go to the park at any time. Entertainment will start around 6:30 p.m. Ice cold watermelon provided through Warner Seed and Bill Lyles will be available to picnickers and throughout the evening.

An all-new 30-minute fireworks show will begin around 9:30 p.m. Western Enterprises of Enid, Okla., has a new program. The company produced last year's spectacular.

Wes Klett is general chairman of the July 4th committee, assisted by Lyles, Diane Beavers and Janie Nino.

Car will be raffled Sunday at festival

Rev. Darryl Birkenfeld stands beside the 1991 Pontiac that will be given away during a raffle at Sunday's June Fest Jamaica at Dameron Park. Tickets are $25 each and will be available at the park. Proceeds from the raffle and food and game booths will benefit church activities.

The goal of the program, funded in part by a grant from The Robert Wood Johnson foundation, is to increase minority representation in medicine.

The program includes academic enrichment in the biological sciences, mathematics and communications at Rice and practical research laboratory and clinical experiences at Baylor.

While in the program, he will work in the plastic surgery department. Avila, a biology major at West Texas State University, is the son of Ignacio and Consuelo Avila of Hereford, Texas.

Homebuyers being shut out

As many as 60,000 entry-level home buyers may be shut out of the housing market as a result of changes to the Federal Housing Administration's (FHA) single-family mortgage insurance program. FHA typically serves borrowers who have lower incomes, make smaller down payments, and purchase less expensive homes than buyers who use private financing sources. FHA has long been a vital tool for helping people achieve home ownership.

However, program changes implemented last year are making FHA more costly for buyers to use. The changes included raising the down payment requirements and limiting the amount of closing costs that can be financed. New limits on the amount FHA borrowers can finance were mandated by the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990. The law limits FHA mortgages to 97.75 percent of the value of properties appraised for more than $50,000, and 98.75 percent of the value of properties below that amount. However, after this change took effect, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) imposed additional restrictions. Last July, HUD, which oversees FHA, limited the amount of closing costs that can be financed to 57 percent.

Borrowers trying to use FHA are being unfairly penalized. The combined effect of these changes has added hundreds of dollars to the costs FHA borrowers must pay at settlement, explains no less an expert than Dorcas T. Helfant, president of the National Association of Realtors (NAR). Now, the annual premium, which is charged on the unpaid principle balance, is collected in monthly increments as part of the borrower's mortgage payment. This change could lower the size of the mortgage for which a borrower may qualify, because the fee is included as part of the monthly housing expense for FHA underwriting requirements. This means a buyer has to borrow less or earn more.

This seems to be hurting the FHA, as well as the rest of the economy. According to NAR research, between the first and second half of 1991, housing markets nationwide experienced a notable fall-off in FHA activity.

The NAR suggests that along with rescinding the closing costs restriction, another step that should be taken to shore up FHA is to adjust the program's mortgage insurance limit to reflect local housing costs. The current limit, $124,875, renders FHA virtually useless where home prices are higher. Basing the limit on local home prices would enable the FHA to serve borrowers in more areas, as well as a wider range of borrower. Broadening usage of FHA would strengthen it by making it less vulnerable to economic down turns in any one market or region.

Many Americans, concerned about the country's economy and their own, are asking their legislators what they're doing about this. Citizens can write Congress on this issue at the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 and the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

There are four kinds of apes: gorillas, chimpanzees, gibbons and orangutans.

PURCHASING AN OLDER HOME

If you want more house for your dollar you may want to consider looking at an older home. There are many reasons for considering an older home. For one thing there are more older homes than new ones. For every new house that's built there are some 45 existing homes already on the market. Many older homes especially those built in the fifties and sixties offer more abundant space than some of the new homes being built. If you have a growing family, an older home offers more room and may cost less to purchase. Most of the older homes are in established well developed neighborhoods. There is no waiting for streets to be paved, sewers to be connected or schools to be built. Everything is in place so there is no need to worry about these things. We have a large selection of older homes at this time and we would be happy to show the differences in established homes versus new homes.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thanks for your recent column alerting the public to Lyme disease. While nearly 90 percent of all Lyme disease cases have been reported by 10 states in the Northeast, upper Midwest and Pacific Coastal regions, the Public Health Service last month said cases have now been reported by 49 states.

I would like your readers to know, however, that the information supplied by your correspondent, Mary Persons, was not entirely correct. There is no scientific evidence that Lyme disease is transmitted by the bite of a horse fly, deer fly or common flea, or that it can be transmitted by blood contact between hunters and infected, slain deer. We DO know, however, that the bacterium which causes Lyme disease is transmitted by infected deer ticks, black-legged ticks and western black-legged ticks, which are smaller than common dog and cattle ticks and difficult to spot.

Please tell your readers about the following guidelines we recommend to reduce encounters with ticks that carry the disease:

1. Avoid known tick-infested areas, especially in May, June and July. (Your local health department and park services can supply information on tick distribution.) When in suspect areas:
2. Use insect repellents containing the chemical Deet, which can be sprayed on the skin or clothing. Other repellents are designed to be sprayed only on clothing. Be careful to use all of these products according to label directions.

3. Wear light-colored clothes so you can spot ticks more easily. Tuck pant legs into socks or boots, and shirts into pants. Tape the area where pants and socks meet to prevent ticks from crawling under clothing.

4. Check yourself and your children daily for ticks, and remove them promptly with tweezers.

Thanks, Ann, for keeping the public informed.--James Mason, M.D., head of the Public Health Service, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MASON: I am indebted to you for giving my readers this excellent information. Please continue to keep your eye on this column. We need your input.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me what to say when friends or family members phone and ask, "Do you have plans for Saturday night?" or "Are you busy this evening?"

Frequently I have answered a truthful, "No," and then found myself without a plausible excuse for not doing something I really have no interest in. Just as often, I have answered, "Yes", and found that I have lied myself out of something that might have been very enjoyable.

Wouldn't it much more polite and considerate to call and say, "If you do not already have plans for Saturday night, we would like to have you come for dinner," or "If you aren't busy this evening, would you be willing to make a fourth for bridge?"

Please don't print my name. This is a small city and I don't want to offend anyone.--Want to Know What I'm Letting Myself in for in New Brunswick, Canada

DEAR CANADA: Thanks for proving once again that the naked truth is always better than the best-dressed lie.

When asked, "Do you have plans tonight?" the safest response is, "How thoughtful of you to call. What do you have in mind?" You then have left the door open, and you haven't told any fibs.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am incredibly stupid when it comes to directions. My husband passed away two years ago, and I've been stranded ever since. I've lived in this city for 20 years, and I still get lost a lot. Even when I'm going to places I'm familiar with, if there's road construction or I have to detour, I freak out. It's especially embarrassing if there is someone else in the car with me, so I seldom give anyone a ride.

I have met a gentleman at work who is from another state. He has asked me to show him around the city and I would love to, but I keep putting him off because I know I'll get lost if I go too far from home.

I don't know east from west or north from south. I have a very responsible job and am intelligent in other areas. Please help me, Ann. I'm feeling--Stupid in Indianapolis

DEAR INDIANAPOLIS: Confess your problem and accept his invitation. Hand him a map of the city and ask him to serve as your navigator. He'll appreciate your candor and think none the less of you for it.

Heat burn Angels

By JAY PEDEEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford Heat put the heat on the Amarillo Angels 16-5 in the second quarter and came away with a 54-40 victory in the first round of the Cuby Kitchens Classic Friday in Hereford.

The Heat, Hereford's only girls' entry in the debuting AAU tournament, took a 13-10 lead in the first quarter, then blew it open in the second. The Angels never really threatened. The Heat got 14 points each from Julie Rampley and Catie Betzen, and Misty Davis added 10.

The Hereford Rebels, a boys 13-under team, fell 63-44 to the Dimmitt Bulls. The Bulls took a 24-20 lead after one quarter and blew it open with a 16-4 advantage in the second quarter. Hereford got 11 points from Isaac Walker and nine from Eric Ambold.

In the only other game played Friday, Tucker's beat a team from Clovis 36-30 in boys' action.

Davis beats Astros in 8th

By The Associated Press

Keeping Eric Davis healthy and coming home to Dodger Stadium is all part of manager Tommy Lasorda's plan for getting Los Angeles back in the race.

Davis hit a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning as the Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 6-5 Friday night to make it two straight wins at the start of their 22-game homestand. But it will take a while to recover from that 1-10 road trip.

John Candelaria (1-1) retired the only batter he faced, getting Steve Finley on an inning-ending grounder in the eighth for the victory. Roger McDowell pitched the ninth for his 10th save.

An RBI single by Mike Sharperson and two wild pitches by Houston reliever Xavier Hernandez with Davis at bat in the sixth inning resulted in three runs and a 5-3 lead for Orel Hershisier.

Elsewhere in the NL it was Cincinnati 7, Atlanta 4; Chicago 3, Philadelphia 0; Montreal 6, Pittsburgh 2; St. Louis 4, New York 3; and San Diego 6, San Francisco 2.

Courier upset at Wimbledon

By ROB GLOSTER
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Jim Courier's bid to become the first man in 23 years to win the Grand Slam ended unexpectedly early Saturday on Centre Court at Wimbledon. Courier, the top seed, was upset 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 by qualifier Andrei Olhovskiy.

Courier, who won the Australian and French opens earlier this year and is ranked No. 1 in the world, had been seeking to become the first man to win all four tournaments of the Grand Slam since Rod Laver in 1969.

The match presented a fascinating contrast between power and finesse. Whereas Courier threw his whole body into nearly every shot, Olhovskiy seemed to lope across the court and displayed an easy stroke that seemed almost nonchalant.

Women's sixth seed Jennifer Capriati had little difficulty in her third-round match today, defeating Patricia Hy 6-3, 4-1 in 53 minutes, and 13th seed Zina Garrison won 6-4, 6-2 against Rosalyn Fairbank-Nideffer.

Texan enjoyed one shot at big leagues

By CHUCK PICKARD
Sulphur Springs
News-Telegram

EDGEWOOD, Texas (AP) - For a player who only had a "cup of coffee" in the big leagues, Alex Hooks does not back off the plate when pouring out memories of his 17 seasons in professional baseball.

Although five and a half decades have passed since the 85-year-old Edgewood native hung up his spikes as the playing manager for Greenville in the East Texas League, the thrills and spills remain crystal clear in his mind.

Starting at first base for Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics in the 1935 Presidential Opener against the Washington Senators provided one of the bigger moments for the 6-foot-1 Texan.

Hooks singled leading off the game against Washington pitcher Earl Whitcomb.

"It was the first time I had batted in the leadoff spot and getting my first major league hit with President Roosevelt looking on made it a day to remember for an old country boy from Edgewood, Texas," recalled the former Southern Methodist University standout.

Hooks earned letters in four sports at SMU. He even lettered in two sports on the same day.

"A track meet was held across the street from the baseball field and I won the shot put event after a couple of throws... I didn't miss a lick at bat in the baseball game either," he recalls.

Unfortunately, Hooks would collect only nine more hits in his limited big league career that spanned 15 games before the rookie first baseman was shuttled off to Atlanta (Ga.) of the Southern Association.

"Being sent down was the biggest disappointment of my career, but I do not hold any grudges against Mr. Mack because he was in a pickle at the start of the season," he said.

Jimmy Foxx was shifted from first base to catcher as the replacement for Mickey Cochrane, who had been dealt to Detroit in the off-season.

"No one was going up there and take Foxx's place at bat even though I hit .300 and something at Tulsa; but that was in the minors," added Hooks.

Oddly enough, the left handed hitting Texan sandwiched his two best seasons around that brief fling with Philly in '35.

Hooks fashioned a .340 average for Tulsa in 1934, missing the Texas League batting crown by a single percentage point, and he posted a .341 mark in 106 games for Atlanta after being sent down.

The 183-pound first baseman bowed out as a professional by hitting .283 while appearing in 129 games for Greenville in 1946.

Sulphur Springs fielded a team in the semi-pro leagues known as the Eagles. Manager Pinky Griffin, who still resides in Sulphur Springs, remembers Hooks as an easy-going person who would go out of his way to help someone.

"Alex was an excellent coach and a bare-down type player," said Griffin. "He brought his SMU team to Sulphur Springs one year and the game received a lot of publicity because their star quarterback (Fred Benners) was a pitcher on the baseball team."

Monty Stratton, whose big league pitching career was cut short by the loss of a leg in a hunting accident, was also a big drawing card around the East Texas League as a member of the Sherman-Denison Twins. Although the league adopted a rule that forbade batters to bunt on Stratton, Greenville had a player who tried bunting against the peg-legged hurler.

"I told the player that was a cowardly thing to do, but he ignored me anyway... Monty pounced on the ball and threw the guy out by half a mile... it tickled me good."

Hooks played in 2,261 minor league games and wound up with a .297 career average while just missing the century mark with 99 home runs. Greenville was the last of 14 cities that appear on Hooks' minor league travel log with the first stop being Decatur, Ill. (Three "1" League) in 1928.

"Doak and Kyle often made trips to Edgewood and we would go frog gigging. My wife would cook them frog legs and we would have big meals."

Although baseball was his first love Hooks became addicted to football and his roots run deep in the sport at SMU.

"I worked hard in the summer of 1925 helping put up Ownby Stadium and pushing concrete to the top of the stadium," he said.

The foundation to the school's football program has crumbled in recent years, and Hooks paints a bleak football future for his alma mater.

"I feel bad about the SMU football situation, but I can't see much hope if the school keeps going deeper and deeper in debt," he explained.

"There's also more attention being placed on classroom work and the two-year absence from football put a big dent in recruiting." Hooks is too busy to worry about football, however. He is more concerned with tending 100 head of cattle on his 320 acre spread outside of Edgewood. Hooks kept his hand in ranching even while coaching baseball at SMU.

"Things got a little hectic for a couple of years when I also helped coach the football team, but we managed to keep things going around here." Hooks and his wife Inez have been married 63 years. They have raised three sons and a daughter.

By a twist of fate, Hooks ended his professional baseball travels in the same town (Greenville) where he launched his collegiate career as a raw boned 16-year-old athlete at Wesley Academy. The Edgewood teen earned his final year of high school credits at Wesley.

Hooks played in the first football team that he ever saw as receiver on the 1924 Wesley team.

"I was so scared that I barely knew who I was in that first game. The thing I remember most about my Wesley days was catching a touchdown pass in a win over Weatherford that gave us our conference title."

The 1926 SMU football team carved special niche in Mustang annals by winning the Southwest Conference championship. Quarterbacking the Mustangs to an 8-0-1 record that year was the late Gerald Mann, who gained acclaim as a Sulphur Springs High School athlete.

"Gerald was a fine gentleman in addition to being an outstanding player," said Hooks. Beating the University of Texas in Austin provided Hooks with his biggest gridiron thrill because "it clinched the conference championship."

SMU athletic director Matty Bell persuaded Hooks to coach the Mustangs' baseball team on a parttime basis in 1949. Hooks remained on the job for 16 seasons and he wound up winning more games (156) than any SMU baseball coach.

The Mustangs dropped baseball from their athletic program in 1980, something Hooks felt was long needed. "We relied mostly on Dallas high school kids and football players because we were limited to three scholarships."

Two of SMU's all-time great football players, Doak Walker and Kyle Rote, excelled on Mustang baseball teams coached by Hooks.

placed on classroom work and the two-year absence from football put a big dent in recruiting."

Robert, who followed in his dad's football steps at SMU, makes his home in Terrell. Jerry and James both live in Edgewood as does Mary, a teacher.

Hooks mingled with some of baseball's all-time greats and New York Yankee legend Lou Gehrig topped the list. Vivid in his memory are the chats with Gehrig.

"Lou was one of the nicest guys you would ever want to meet and since we both played first base I was able to chat with him a lot. I didn't talk with Babe Ruth because he was out of my league."

In Texas, Alex Hooks is in a league of his own.

Countless mail offers promise to make you a "millionaire" if your lucky entry is drawn in the sweepstakes. Just how likely is it that a winning number will be drawn? Not very likely.

Millions of entries are mailed but only one big winner is drawn. And even if the winning entry draws a promise of a million dollars, it is very unlikely that the winner will actually receive a million dollars. Deception? Not necessarily. Just the terms of the pay-out.

In one well-known million dollar event, the winner will receive $25,000 a year for 30 years and a one-time payment of $250,000 in the 30th year. Although this does add up to a million dollars, each year the annual payment of $25,000 will be worth less and less. Because of inflation, the purchasing power of money declines each year. The only year $25,000 will buy $25,000 worth of goods and services is in the first year. After that, it will buy less each year. Accounting for inflation, the one million dollars paid over 30 years is only worth about $509,381 in today's terms, assuming an average annual inflation rate of about 4 percent.

If the million dollars were paid to the winner all at once in the beginning, the winner would have a greater chance to maximize earnings. A million dollars invested at 3 percent more than the rate of inflation would generate $1,427,260 in interest over a 30-year period. In contrast, the $25,000 paid out annually for 30 years plus the final $250,000 payment, will generate $439,375 in interest at the same rate. This means that the winner loses interest potential of $987,885 ($1,427,260 minus $439,375) by receiving annual installments instead of the lump sum pay-out.

Finally, the age of the winner may have a lot to do with how much money is actually received under the 30-year pay-out. Suppose the winner does not live for 30 more years. Unless the plan pays the balance to the recipient's estate, the full pay-out will not be realized.

A million dollars may sound like a lot of money. Consumers should recognize that it won't mean they'll be an instant "millionaire," even if their entry is drawn. Consider that before spending postage money on sending in the sweepstakes offer. Not only is your chance of winning extremely tiny, but you may not become a "millionaire" in the process.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white summer suit designed with puffed sleeves and a pleated peplum. A lace insert accented the front of the bodice which was adorned with seed pearls.

The headpiece, designed by the bride, was fashioned with cascading satin flowers and pearls. She carried a spring bouquet of rubrum lilies, pink roses and baby's breath.

To complete her attire, the bride wore matching pearl earrings, necklace and bracelet.

Bridal attendants wore solid fuchsia summer dresses fashioned with peplums over the skirts. They carried nosegays of rubrum lilies and pink roses.

Toni Eicke invited guests to register at the reception held at the E.B. Black House.

The groom's sister-in-law, Tamara Nikkel, served cake. Punch and coffee were poured by Patricia Martinez. Others assisting included Rene Eicke and Sheila Thames.

The two-tiered wedding cake, topped with Precious Moments figurines, was placed on a table which was decorated with spring flowers of day lilies, roses, larkspur and baby's breath. Punch was served from a silver punch bowl. Other refreshments included a fruit tray and cheese tray.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Miss Oklahoma DuSharme Carter says she's dedicated to fighting breast cancer, especially since she had a lump removed just days after the state pageant.

"My fight to get more funding for breast cancer research will go on long after the pageant is over," the 21-year-old said. "It's not just something I say to impress a judge."

Miss Carter, who will compete for the Miss America crown in September, said her doctor is 99 percent sure the breast lump was not cancerous. She still awaits biopsy results from the surgery June 16.

Don't drink and dive

Safety experts say more than half of all serious diving accidents occur when the diver has been drinking.

Diving-related injuries account for one out of every ten serious spinal cord injuries in the United States each year—injuries that can lead to paralysis or brain damage.

Diving requires clear thinking before and during the dive—so if you've been drinking, stay away from the pool, say experts.

More than 69 million Americans have one or more forms of heart or blood vessel disease, according to the American Heart Association.

Breast Cancer Screening clinic scheduled July 10

The Breast Cancer Screening Program of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and High Plains Baptist Hospital of Amarillo will continue community outreach clinics for early detection of breast cancer.

A clinic will be held in Hereford on Friday, July 10, from 10am to 3 pm, at the South Plains Health Care Providers, Inc., 603 East Park. Exams are done by appointment only. For more information or to make an appointment, please call the Harrington Cancer Center at our toll free number 1-800-377-HOPE (4673).

Funding is available through the Texas Department of Health for screening mammography for Texas residents qualifying for financial assistance.

Early detection of breast cancer is the major goal of cancer control for each woman seen in the clinic. The clinic provides low cost screening which includes a breast exam by a Registered Nurse trained in breast cancer detection, teaching of breast self examination, and a mammogram.

Currently, the most effective method known to win the battle against breast cancer is early detection. Early detection is best done by following the guidelines recommended by the American Cancer Society for breast cancer screening for women who have no signs or symptoms of breast cancer. The guidelines are:

1. Learn and perform breast self examination every month.
2. Have a physical examination every year.
3. Have a mammogram according to the recommendations by age.
 - Age 35 to 40 One baseline mammogram
 - 40 to 50 A mammogram every 1 to 2 years
 - over 50 Yearly mammograms

Maximize summer's energy

When temperatures rise to over 90 degrees, your personal energy level is likely to fall to less than zero unless you find ways to bet the heat. Here are some quick and easy tips for keeping energized, fit and refreshed, even in summer's worst heat waves:

Begin your day with a warm/cool shower (two minutes of warm, followed by two minutes of cool). End with a brisk towel drying and a generous application of a refreshing, citrus product. It'll stimulate and revitalize the senses for instant energy!

When heat and humidity are at their highest outdoor exercise can cause heat exhaustion or heatstroke.

Try to limit these activities to early morning or evening hours, when temperatures tend to be cooler.

Active people should drink eight to ten glasses of water or other beverages to replenish supplies lost through perspiration. When working out in the heat, drink a glass of water for every 1/2 hour of exercise. Drink cool or room temperature beverages only, since icy cold drinks can cause headaches and muscle cramps.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

WANT TO START SOMETHING

Owning your own small business means that you work 60-70 hours per week so you don't have to work 40 hours per week for someone else. Still, millions of Americans each year are bitten by the "I want to start my own business" bug.

Every year at our Small Business Development Center, we present 25-30 FASTRAC® start-up workshops. We are asked a lot of interesting questions, but one comes up more often than all the others. That question is: What kind of business would we recommend that someone start?

Frankly, we've never had a good answer for that question. First, good business opportunities are rare. Second, what may be a good opportunity for you, may be a bad one for someone else. Third, there are many variables that you should consider before starting a small business.

Let's take a few minutes to list some of the most important factors. The length of this column will keep me from listing them all. Therefore, please realize that this should start your thinking process, not end it.

Let's get personal

One of the best places to start is to take a good look at yourself. Are you in good health? Do you have a lot of energy? Do you enjoy working long hours? According to recent research, 65-70 hour weeks are the norm for most small business owners. You will need good health, energy and drive to maintain that pace.

What experience do you have? A primary reason businesses fail is because the owner had no experience in operating businesses like the ones they started. List your experience and skills. Then list the skills and experience you will need in your business. Do your lists match?

Another personal factor to consider is what kind of work do you like to do. What are your hobbies and interests? Be cautious in this area. Many people have started a business doing what they like to do, only to find out no one else cares.

Can you handle money? Have you accumulated personal savings? Have you maintained a solid credit history? Do you pay your bills on time... always? If you are having trouble with your personal finances, don't expect owning your own businesses to make it better.

What kind of personality do you have? Are you optimistic and outgoing? Do folks refer to you as determined or stubborn? Are you willing to take risks? Are you bored easily? Do you stay with a job until you finish it? Even when you don't care for the work?

Being optimistic, outgoing and determined are positive entrepreneurial traits. Being disciplined and possessing the ability to persevere are also good traits.

Find a niche

People are only willing to pay for two things: 1) solutions to problems, and 2) good feelings. Can you find a common problem to solve or a way to make people feel wonderful?

Listen to people you work with. What problems do they talk about? What kind of businesses do they complain about? What needs do they express that remain unfulfilled?

Examine your own needs as well. What things cause frustrations in your life? What would you like to have that isn't available? What brings happy thoughts and good feelings to mind? Do others have the same thoughts or problems?

Can you make a profit while you solve the problems or fill the needs? Would you enjoy the process?

Try to avoid direct competition. Don't be too quick to start a "me too" business. Although you may think you can grab a share of someone else's market, going head-to-head with existing competition is tough. Instead, look for an area where you can be unique. Then, go start something.

House features family living space

Master suite located on ground floor

A generous wrap-around porch greets visitors to the "Carmen," a medium-size home that features plenty of family living space, both formal and informal.

Owners of the home could confine their living to the ground floor, if they wish, since the master suite is on this level. This leaves the second floor for children, visiting grandchildren, or other guests.

A long custom shaped eating bar provides partial separation between the kitchen and family room. Otherwise the area is wide open. Vaulted to the second floor (as is the dining room), the family room, nook and kitchen are bathed in natural light from a wealth of windows. The second floor landing forms a unique bridge that overlooks the family room, to the back, and the dining room and entry way to the front. Holiday and formal gatherings can spread out in the spacious dining room and living room. The living room is brightened by a wide bay window.

The house's master suite features access to the screened porch, and has a private bathroom with a huge walk-in closet, a raised spa, compartmentalized toilet and double basins. The upstairs bathroom, shared by occupants of the two big bedrooms, also has two lavatories.

A utility room and powder room are equally convenient to the kitchen and the two-car garage.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist conception, send $7.50 to Associated Designs, 1260 Charnelton St., Suite 2, Eugene, Ore. 97401. Please specify the Carmen 11-006 and include a return address when ordering.

Question/Answer

Q: A year ago we purchased a 100-year old house. The upstairs bedroom and bath have double, exposed brick walls. The bricks themselves are very soft and porous, so I don't believe they were fired very well. I would like to seal the bricks against further deterioration and also to prevent the residue from coming off on anything that touches them. I also want to preserve the red color of the bricks as some sealed bricks that I've seen turn yellow.

A: The brick deterioration is due to the moisture coming through from the outside. Stop this moisture and the brick deterioration will stop. If the exterior bricks themselves are porous, apply a sealer on the outside only. If you seal the inside surface, you'll trap moisture within the wall. What you can do to the inside wall is apply a waterproof coating. Several of these products are available at hardware and paint stores. They can be sprayed, brushed or rolled on. This will allow the interior surface to breathe, while stabilizing the face of the brick.

June marks start of summer salad days

The salad days of summer are returning in June with fresh, tasty vegetables and fruits coming to market.

Tomatoes and peaches are but two of many favorites that have been missing much of their flavor since last summer.

"It's nice to have peaches in February, although they frequently smell, taste and have the texture of styrofoam," said Dr. Dick Edwards, marketing expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "This also can be said for any number of items that come to market during the winter."

Tomatoes will be on sale in June for about 39 cents per pound. Blueberries at 99 cents a pint will be available, he said. Watermelon will be marked down to 25 cents per pound.

The continuing parade of other fresh, domestically grown vegetables that started in May will be sweet onions, artichokes, radishes and carrots.

Reappearing in the market will be apricots, red and black raspberries, cherries, cantaloupes, sweet corn, honeydew melons, plums, yellow squash, green beans, rhubarb, mangoes and pineapples.

"This past winter was relatively warm with more rain than has been seen in the past few years. These conditions have guaranteed excellent production for many of these crops."

In Texas, peach producers are expecting one of their best years ever.

"We're doing great, except it's murderous trying to get the peaches picked with all this rain," said Dr. John Lipe, Extension Service horticulturist in Fredericksburg.

He termed this year's crop better than last year's in yield and size.

"And last year was better than any other crop in 10 years," he said.

Wholesale prices are holding fairly stable," Lipe said. "We've had good prices for the producer, but they're not high prices."

Two-inch peaches are selling wholesale for $10 to $13 for half bushels, he said. Pick-your-own peaches start at $10 for a half-bushel.

With the emphasis on fresh, wholesome products that began about 10 years ago, fruits and vegetables have become increasingly popular.

June also is National Dairy Month, and promotions will abound.

"The most attention will be focused on everyone's summertime favorite—ice cream," he said. Another warm weather treat—yogurt—also will be featured in sales and coupons, he said.

Seafood is growing in popularity, and catfish producers have been disappointed that their product has not followed this trend.

"Consumption was down in 1991 and they are determined to reverse this trend. They will do it the old-fashioned way—by reducing prices," he said.

Whole fish prices will remain below $2 a pound and fillets should stay less than $3 per pound.

Shrimp prices will follow a pattern similar to that of poultry, he said. Prices have remained constant for more than a year, with imports from other countries stifling any price increases. The best buy remains the medium-sized, 36- to 50-count, shrimp, which are priced at $3.50 per pound. Other seafood items reduced in June will be snapper, king crab legs, trout, and crab salad.

Poultry consumption leaps during the summer, with fried chicken being a picnic favorite. Whole birds at 45 to 49 cents per pound and leg-thigh cuts at 29 to 35 cents per pound will be featured. Boneless breasts at $2.25 or bone-in breasts for $1.19 per pound are both excellent buys.

Meat marketing will shift toward products that are faster to prepare or that can be cooked outside. Expected sale prices are $1.59 for round steak, $1.79 for sirloin, $3 to $3.50 per pound for rib and t-bone steaks. The best buy will be hamburger in the chub packs for about $1 per pound.

"Prices will not be quite as pleasing as they were during the winter months because demand for such cuts during the summer will cause prices to increase," Edwards said.

Producers also have been reducing their herds, thus fewer cattle will be available. However, these forces are not great, and prices should increase only about 5 percent during the next several months, he said.

Featured pork cuts will be chops and ribs from $1.39 to $1.49 per pound.

Deaf Smith farmers may apply for loans

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers in 42 Texas counties, including Deaf Smith, are eligible for Farmers Home Administration emergency loans because of crop damages and losses caused by adverse weather conditions last year.

Farmers have eight months to apply for the loans to cover part of their actual losses. To be eligible, they must have suffered normal production losses of 30 percent or more, be able to repay the loan, be unable to get credit elsewhere and have adequate security.

The loans apply to: Baylor, Hall, Parmer and Wichita counties due to freezes between Oct. 1, 1991 and Nov. 30, 1991.

-Cochran, Lamb and King counties due to drought, hail, flood and freeze occurring during the year.

-Floyd, Motley and Young counties due to extreme weather conditions sustained between Sept. 1, 1991 and Dec. 31, 1991.

-Archer, Armstrong, Bailey, Briscoe, Castro, Childress, Clay, Collingsworth, Deaf Smith, Dickens, Donley, Foard, Gray, Hale, Haskell, Hockley, Jack, Kent, Knox, Lubbock, Montague, Palo Pinto, Stephens, Stonewall, Swisher, Terry, Throckmorton, Wheeler, Wichita, Wilbarger, Yoakum and Young counties were named because they are adjacent to primary counties affected by the adverse weather conditions.

Zimbabwe to get food from U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States will provide $15 million in food aid for drought-stricken Zimbabwe under the Food for Peace program.

The aid will involve purchases of 84,000 metric tons of American corn and 10,000 metric tons of edible vegetable oil, Deputy Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman said Thursday.

Besides alleviating hunger, the program will help American farms establish and maintain the U.S. share of agricultural markets in the southern African country, she said.

TFS services explained

During an afternoon meeting in Hereford Friday, Texas Forest Service personnel visited with area residents about the support offered in rural fire protection by TFS. In this photo, a Deaf Smith County resident, Ernest Brown, standing back, introduces TFS officials to participants in the meeting. Hosting the meeting in the Hereford fire station were the Hereford and Bootleg volunteer fire departments.

The United States has about 5,000 state parks and 48 national parks.

What is the Greatrace?

•Up to 100 of the world's most beautiful antique cars, from 1910-41, from 30 states and 5 foreign countries, in a 14-day contest of controlled speed, precision driving and endurance.

•The Greatrace is the world's largest old car race with a purse of at least $250,000. It goes 4,475 miles across 9 states with 47 stops in cities much larger and much smaller than Hereford.

•It started June 21 in Charleston, SC. It ends July 4 in Costa Mesa, Calif.

•Greatrace is going through South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

•Each day the cars race from 170-480 miles, with a morning pit stop (that's what we're hosting), lunch stop, afternoon pit stop and overnight stop. The first 11 legs are qualifying races, and cars must complete 10 of them to qualify for the Grand Championship Race the last two days.

How the race works

The Greatrace isn't a high speed race. It's a demanding competition involving a driver and navigator. They try to match computer-generated instructions with calculations using a clock, stop watch, the car's speedometer (no odometers on these cars), paper and pencil. The teams are clocked several times each day and are assessed a penalty point for each second off schedule at secret checkpoints. The low score wins, just like golf. These drivers are experts: last year, a team finished a 350-mile daily stage only one second off the perfect time. Most daily stage winners are within 15 seconds of the perfect time.

Section features history, nostalgia

This special section of the Brand includes several stories from the early days of the Hereford Brand and background on the Great American Race.

The Brand banner reproduced above is from the first actual edition of the Brand in March 1902. The Brand was intended as a monthly supplement to the Hereford Reporter, which started in 1901. The Brand lasted only a month as a supplement; it soon took over as the name of the newspaper.

This special section includes several nostalgic car advertisements from the collection of Wayne White of Hereford. Hereford Buick-Pontiac-GMC is the official host of Hereford's pit stop Tuesday morning--a section of an old Buick Roadmaster ad appears at right.

We hope you enjoy this quick look at Hereford history, and we hope you enjoy the Great American Race on Tuesday.

Cars in Greatrace have unique history

Cars that grandma and grandpa used to drive -- beautiful antiques from across the world, each more distinctive than the next -- that's the lure when America turns out to see the 10th Anniversary Interstate Batteries Great American Race -- the world's greatest old car race.

They call it The Greatest Show on Old Wheels. Watch for 'em. The cars roll from June 21 to July 4 -- History on the Highway, in a nine-state, 47-city, 4,475-mile route that began in Charleston, S.C., and ends in Costa Mesa, Cal.

Before World War II, automobiles were designed to operate within about a 100-mile radius of their home base. The wildest dreamer never would have envisioned a coast-to-coast classic such as the Greatrace. But, here they are -- with the 21st century bearing down on us -- amazing antique anachronisms ambling across

XIT land being divided for sale

BRAND, Sept. 26, 1902
On account of the Capitol syndicate Company's (better known as the XIT's) intention to discontinue their cattle business their large ranch, consisting of over 3 million acres and situated in the best part of the Texas Panhandle, will be sold in any size tract--to suit the purchaser.

This land is all fenced and has numerous wells and windmills, and other similar improvements which make it the best in the Panhandle. Improvements on land purchased will be sold to the purchaser at the actual cost to the company.

Nearly 2 million acres of this great ranch has been sold and it will be only a few months until the stock farmer of one or two sections will have the one million acres left in beautiful homes and farms.

It has been demonstrated that the small stock farmer can make more money compared to his investment than can the large ranch owner, and the splitting up of this large ranch (until recently the largest ranch in the world) will be a great boon to this class of farmers.

The Pecos Valley railroad (a branch of the Santa Fe system), the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific and the Fort Worth and Denver City railroads are now intersecting this great ranch and the choctaw road is now building from Amarillo to Tucumcari, N.M., and will traverse the entire Deaf Smith county portion of the ranch. It is also expected that the Santa Fe branch, running to Bovina, to Albuquerque, will be built in the near future.

This land, being situated in the western part of the Panhandle, lies close to the mountains of New Mexico and therefore is more susceptible to good rains than is land further east.

Be a good neighbor. Be alert for vandalism or break-ins. If you see anything unusual around a residence or business, call the police. Let's all be involved in policing our neighborhoods.

4th of July celebration planned for Hereford

BRAND, June 14, 1901

On last Friday afternoon pursuant to a general call a large number of Hereford's most prominent business men and citizens gathered at the courthouse to discuss ways and means of celebrating the Fourth of July in Hereford in a fitting manner.

Hon A.J. Lipscomb was elected chairman and F.L. Vanderburgh secretary. The purpose of the meeting being stated it was unanimously voted that Hereford could have a celebration and a big one at that. Various suggestions were offered and discussed and it was decided to appoint a committee for each department of the celebration and leave all arrangements to them.

There will be all kinds of games and amusements, and a grand picnic and barbecue at the Courthouse. The program will begin at 10:30 a.m. with music by the Hereford String Band.

(Activities included a burro race, bicycle race, sack race, baseball game, races, with suitable premiums given to all winners and reduced rates on all races, according to the newspaper the next week).

Automobile license plates have arrived

THE BRAND
Dec. 10, 1936

More than 1,300 shining new 1937 license plates for passenger automobiles have arrived at the Deaf Smith County tax collector's office. They are attractive buff numeral on a black background, these new plates, and every automobile owner not only wants one of the things for his car, but must have one before the first of April of the coming year. But you just try to get one between this date and the first of February, when the little things go on sale.

For love nor money, you can't buy one now. But don't worry, just form a line on the right and be at the collector's office early Monday morning, Feb. 3, with your money ready, and the officials will be kind enough to let you have one if you stay with them long enough. Then on the first day of March you may put the plate on your automobile--if you don't do it before the first of April you may have some help (or trouble) from the officials.

The 1936 tags in this county were numbered "293--" while the 1937 tags will begin at 305-501 and run through 306-850 in the passenger automobile class.

The commercial plates, black on orange, will run in number from 46-051 to 46-150 for Deaf Smith in 1937, a check of the plates received shows.

Farm trucks run in numbers from 25-201 to 25-450 for this area in 1937. They are rust on black.

Bankhart and Rice had taken over the Overland agency and were advertising their popular car at $750 for the five-passenger touring car, for Toledo.

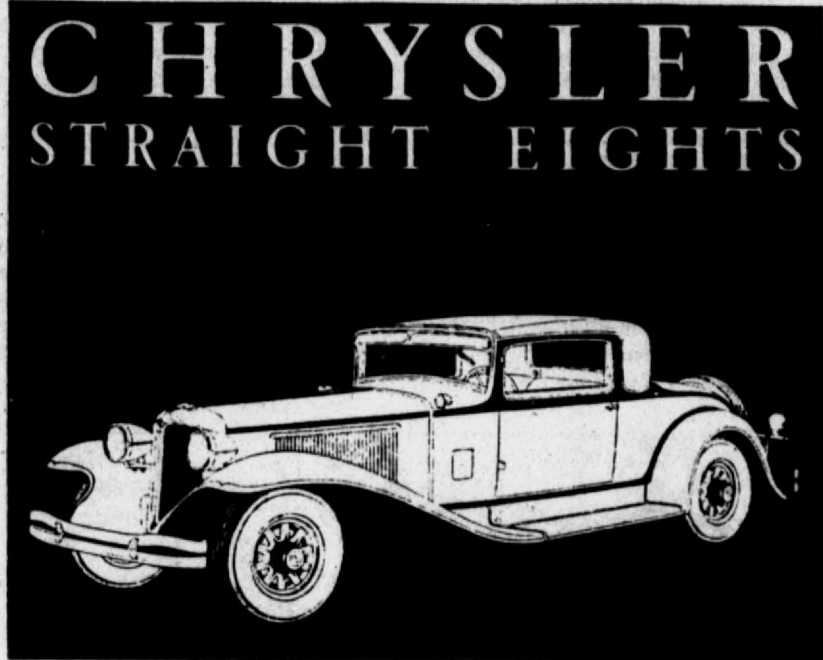

FROM THE BRAND
Dec. 8, 1905

In addition to graveling and grading Dewey Avenue, arrangements were being made to drain the lower end of that thoroughfare, which was inclined to fill up with water every time it rained.

Wall Street was uneasy about the prospects of growing cotton here, with wires asking about the actual number of bales, and other information.

The President had been petitioned by local citizens in an effort to have him prohibit the promiscuous sending out of garden seeds by Congressmen.

Around Arney some farmers were gathering 30 bushels of corn to the acre.

CHRYSLER EIGHT COUPE $1495, F. O. B. FACTORY

SILENT... SWIFT... SMOOTH
DUAL HIGH GEARS GIVE FASCINATING RESULTS

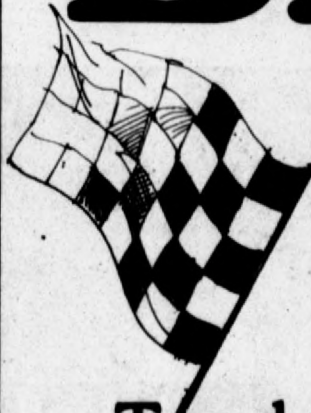

THERE is a deep and lasting satisfaction in owning one of the new Chrysler Straight Eights—for they are fascinating in performance, distinguished in appearance and safe at all speeds. Chrysler eight-cylinder smoothness gives a fascination to performance that is remarkable not only in power, but in the results of an exclusive Multi-Range 4-speed transmission with Dual High gears. You have the driving pleasure of two distinctly different high gears—one quiet "high" for the sprints of traffic and speedy hill-climbing, another quiet "high" for the open road. Shifting back and forth, either up or down between these two "highs", may be done at any speed without hesitation or clashing. Marked distinction and smartness are due to the graceful design of their strong insulated steel bodies in combination with an extremely low center of gravity. Low-slung car weight makes possible a perfection of balance that assures better performance, finer riding qualities and greatest safety at all speeds. A constant sense of safety is also inspired by the positive control of internal hydraulic brakes. At the national automobile shows, and everywhere, all public comment supports the fact that these are the outstanding motor cars of 1931.

CHRYSLER EIGHT—Coupe (with rumble seat) $1495; Sedan $1525; Convertible Coupe $1665; Roadster $1495. Six wire wheels, $80 extra. Sport Roadster including six wire wheels and trunk rack $1595. CHRYSLER IMPERIAL EIGHT—Five-passenger Sedan $2745; Close-Coupled Sedan $2845; Seven-passenger Sedan $2945; Sedan-Limousine $3145. With custom bodies designed by LeBaron—Coupe $3150; Roadster $3200; Convertible Coupe $3320; Phaeton $3375. All prices f. o. b. factory. Chrysler Eight and Chrysler Imperial Eight closed cars are factory-wired for immediate installation of Transitone, the pioneer automobile radio. Other models will be equipped on order.

THERE'S STILL NO EQUAL TO THE MOTORING THRILL OF DE SOTO'S AIRFLOW

Fraser purchases elevator

BRAND, Nov. 5, 1936

Alton Fraser announced Monday morning the purchase of the Cone elevator here and the opening soon of the Farmers Oil Company, an independent oil company operating its own trucks.

The oil company, Mr. Fraser stated, will be established at the elevator, and probably will be opened in about 10 days from the date of the announcement. In order to open the independent concern, Mr. Fraser ended his connection with the Consumers Fuel Association, he announced.

The elevator was purchased from S.E. Cone of Lubbock. It will not be opened until next spring. A new office building will be constructed at the elevator site, and a warehouse and six storage tanks moved here from Dimmitt.

Mr. Fraser now operates a fleet of five small oil trucks and one large truck, with a capacity of 4,003 gallons, which is used only in New Mexico. He has just completed a new plant at Mountainair, New Mexico, he said. Independently operated, the Farmers Oil Company will handle Mid-Continent Oils and greases and Dansiger Roadrunner gasoline, both wholesale and retail.

Proposed highway will connect Hereford with rest of Panhandle

BRAND Nov. 19, 1936

Hereford and Dimmitt soon will be connected by a direct route, another step in the dream of a state highway north and south through this section of the Panhandle. It will offer a direct route between Dalhart, Vega, Hereford, Dimmitt, Plainview, Lubbock and Central Texas.

Castro county commissioners visited Deaf Smith County officials Monday afternoon in the interest of the Hereford-Dimmitt route. They reported that two machines are at work on their section of the road and will complete the work in a short time.

Work had not been started on the Deaf Smith portion of the road yesterday, the county's grader being used elsewhere in the county at the time. However, that work was to be completed and the grader shifted to the new Dimmitt road the latter part of the week. The grading will require only a short time.

All other work has been completed, with exception of a bridge across Frio Draw. Traffic, however, will be directed from South Main Street to the point where it intersects the new route below the draw, until the connection of the entire route to 25-Mile Avenue.

The wheel and the wagon were developed together about 5,000 years ago.

Cars have unique history

America, racing in a grueling, demanding competition in which one slight mistake dooms a chance for victory. Here are a few on the road:

-- A 1910 Knox Raceabout so far ahead of its time that today's race cars still use the same "goodies;" a dainty little 1911 Model T Ford runabout; a huge 1912 Oldsmobile Autocrat that scourged California tracks in its heyday; a 1914 Stevens-Duryea behemoth; a 1916 Buick Speedster; a 1916 Mitchell; a 1917 Marmon racer; a 1919 Hudson speedster and a beefy 1915 Winton from Indiana.

-- From the Roaring '20s come a 1920 Packard Speedway Racer; a 1920 Mercedes Sports-Tourer; a 1924 Bentley Speedster and a 1923 Hudson county fair racer. New Zealand is sending a fabulous 1928 Auburn boattail speedster. There's a 1925 Durant speedster from America, a 1926 Ford racer driven by Rossie "The Lone Racer" Morris, who eschews a navigator, and a 1924 Hupmobile Roadster.

-- The '30s and '40s come on strong. Cars like a 1936 "coffin-nose" Cord and a 1940 "shark nose" Graham; a 1938 Jaguar SS-100; a 1930 DeSoto Phaeton and a 1930 Pierce-Arrow, plus a '34 Bentley from Japan, a '38 British Jaguar that calls Pennsylvania home, plus two "block-long" 1941 Cadillac convertibles.

-- There's a gaggle of antique '20s and '30s Ford County Fair Dirt Track Racers to go along with lots of Buicks plus American and European "royalty" -- Cadillac, Lincoln, Chrysler, Jaguar, Bentley, Mercedes, Cord and Auburn, even a big 1938 Kenworth truck.

The 100 cars take an hour and 40 minutes to pass a given point -- a 71-mile History on the Highway caravan of American's automotive heritage that rolls across the country in a star-spangled red, white and blue happening that's a big show in American cities and something to see out on the open road. Don't miss it.

Greatracers will begin arriving in Hereford at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, stopping at Hereford Buick-Pontiac-GMC.

Is Your Wife Marooned During the Day?

Have you ever considered what is meant by the hundreds of cars parked in the business sections during working hours?

Most of them carried business men to work, leaving their wives and families at home, marooned because the family's one car is in daily use by the husband and father.

That is one reason why architects and builders now find that all suburban and many city homes must be provided with twin garages.

The Chevrolet Utility Coupé with Fisher Body makes an ideal extra car, especially in combination with a 5-passenger touring or sedan.

The wife finds it of every day utility for shopping, calling, taking the children to school in bad weather, etc.

Its price and upkeep are low yet the quality is high.

Race has great record

The 10th Anniversary Interstate Batteries Great American Race that started last Sunday on King Street in historic Charleston, S.C., is one milestone; but the world's greatest old car race will post a mark of another sort soon after up to 100 cars from across the globe head out on a 14-day, nine-state, 47-stop, 4,475-mile journey to a July 4 finish at South Coast Metro in Costa Mesa, Cal.

At some point along the route one of the race cars, 60 support vehicles, 36 Buick Official cars or the Buick Skylark Pace Car will ring up the seven millionth mile traveled by the Greatrace since its 1983 inception. Today that figure is at 6.25 million miles -- with only three minor injury accidents. Some safety record!

This year's race just missed putting the total number of cars that have competed in the Greatrace over the thousand car mark. When the last car crosses the start line, 968 cars will have competed in 10 years -- an average of 97 cars per race. Biggest field was 119 cars in 1988. Lowest was the inaugural race in 1983. Last year the field limit was lowered to 100 so that mark may stand for quite a while.

There were equipment and teams from 31 states and five countries slated to start this year's greatest show on wheels. A total of 26 different makes built from 1910 to 1941 are in the running. They set up housekeeping Thursday, June 18, in Charleston's beautiful Francis Marion Square adjacent to the old Citadel campus buildings.

Racers traveled to Charleston Naval Base prior to the race start and became newly sworn-in as honorary navy recruiters. Then there was a practice rally to sharpen skills or to get acquainted with Greatracing before a contestants meeting.

After church on June 21, the cars moved down King Street to the starting area. A U.S. Navy Ceremonial Band started things rolling at 1 p.m. After a short stint down King and Broad Street, Greatracers turned north toward Columbia, S.C., and the quest for old car racings' richest purse of $250,000 was on.

Limited to authentic restorations through 1936 with cars up to 1942 admitted on individual merit, the field is a complement to Charleston's charm," said Greatrace Executive Director Tom McRae. "USA entries will meet teams from Japan, New Zealand, England and Canada, forming a 71-mile long transcontinental caravan that obeys all traffic laws in a test hard enough to finish, let alone win.

"Our route includes Columbia, S.C., Atlanta, Ga., Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile, Ala., Picayune, Miss., Baton Rouge and Lake Charles, La., Galveston, Victoria, Austin, Hillsboro, Dallas, Wichita Falls and Amarillo, Albuquerque and Farmington, N.M., Pinetop-Lakeside and Phoenix, Ariz., and Blythe and San Diego, Cal., en route to the big finish in Costa Mesa," he asserted.

Citizens vote for lake

(The Brand, 12-3-36)

A group of Hereford citizens Friday afternoon voted to endorse a proposed dam across Tierra Blanca Creek in Randall and Deaf Smith counties, which would create the largest body of water in Northwest Texas.

The plan, studied for some time by citizens of Canyon, headed by its chamber of commerce, was presented to the local people by a representative group from Canyon at a meeting in the county courtroom. About 30 persons were present.

Word pictures of the recreational center such a lake would afford, its value as a flood control and water conservation project, were fluently painted by enthusiastic citizens who had caught up the idea as "the greatest thing ever planned in the Panhandle," and by those who had long dreamed of the possibilities of the site southwest of Umbarger.

According to the estimates, the lake would be about 100 feet deep at the dam, 80 feet deep in the approximate center, and about 40 feet deep at the Deaf Smith County line. The proposed project, when worked out, will probably be presented to the federal government.

'Pave Rte. 60' is slogan of meeting

(The Brand, 11-19-36)

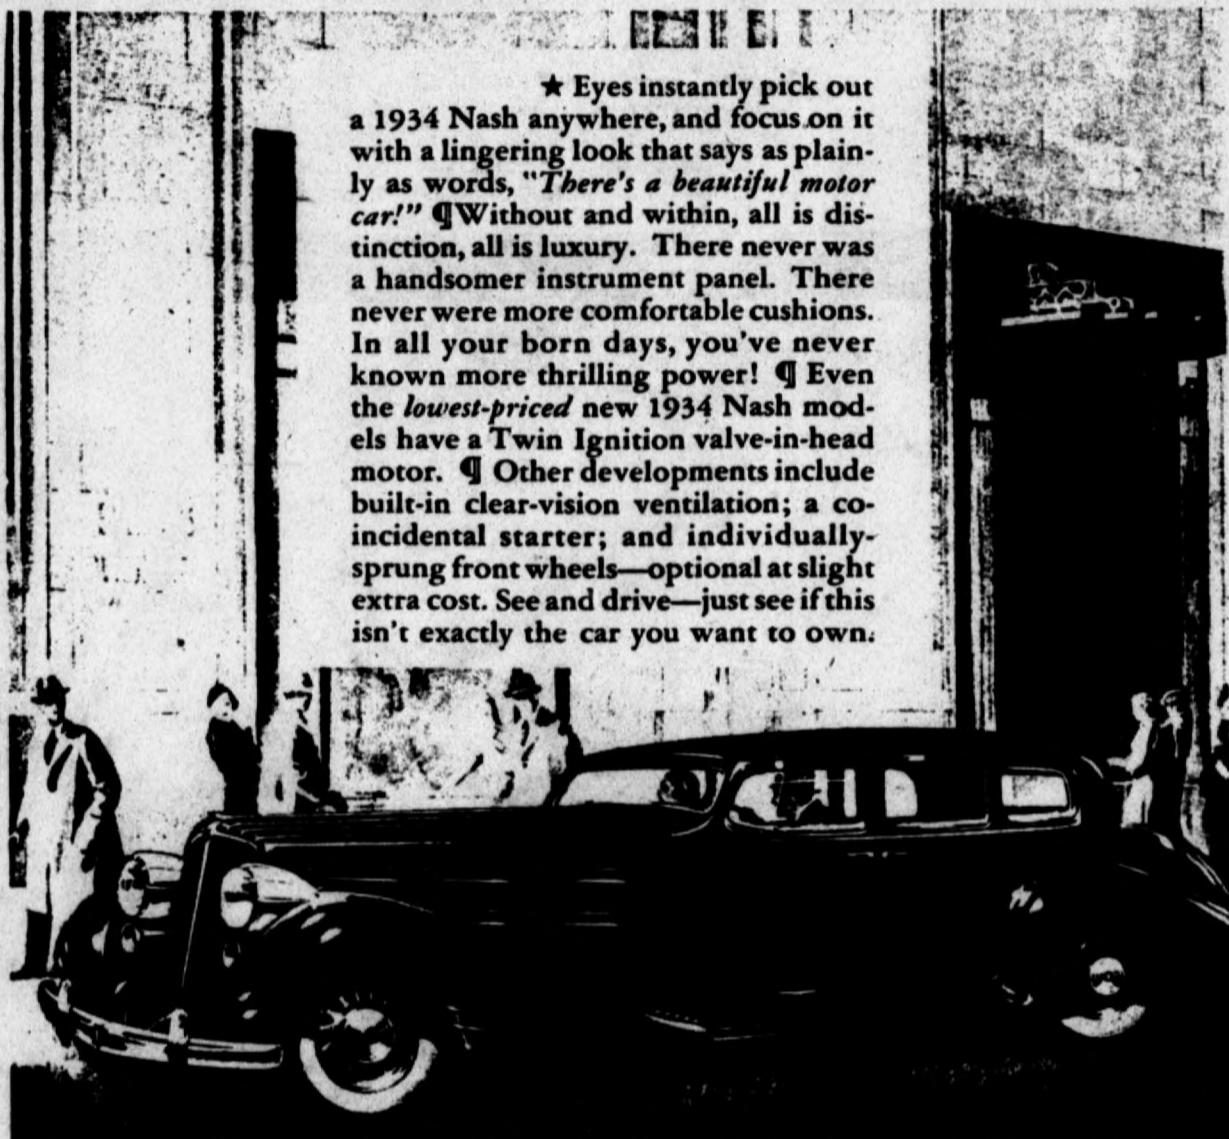

"Pave Route 60 Through Deaf Smith and Parmer Counties" will be the slogan at a highway meeting to be held in Amarillo on Dec. 8, at which time representatives of the cities along the route will be guests of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

"Since the meeting last year, much has been done toward carrying out the wishes of the convention as to the closing of the gaps on Highway 60," said the chairman of the Amarillo C of C highway committee. He said the Texas Highway Commission reported the current program included the grading and drainage of all the gaps between Amarillo and Farwell.

Lions Club carnival debuts

(The Brand, 12-10-36)

Hi-ye, hi-ye! Take a chance...win a prize...this way, folks...try your skill with a baseball...play Bingo...someone wins every game.

Thus the Hereford Lions roared their way through three successful days of their first semi-annual carnival, Thursday through Saturday of last week. Vast crowds of Herefordites and area citizens crowded the carnival "grounds" within the spacious Pitman elevator building on South Main Street each evening to eat hamburgers, hot dogs, drink coffee and pink lemonade as they tried their skill at many games and amusement booths.

Each booth was conducted in true competitive spirit of the carnival world, as respective Lion sponsors "barked" their attractions at the booths. As ambitious public spun the wheel of chance around and around, they knew that funds secured would go to another noble Lions Club "good work."

Mingled cries for the spectators to try their skills resulted in the patrons plunking down good American cash, trying, winning or losing, laughing and shelling out for another trial—all in the same splendid spirit which makes the affair the success it was.

The public's loyal support netted a nice sum for use in furthering the club's good works, according to reports from Lion officials. At present, plans are to continue with the original idea of making the carnival a semi-annual affair, with every effort extended to make each show bigger and more attractive.

Many goodwill and charity work is forever being done by the local Lions via sponsoring the Boy Scout troop in Hereford, helping with the school cafeteria project, and other conditions which face this community at various times.

Their most recent work is the purchasing of over 100 pairs of glasses for needy children. The Lions also co-sponsored the erection of the bleachers at Whiteface Stadium.

Western swing lives in tribute to Bob Willis

TNN's The Texas Connection features a two-part salute to Bob Willis and the Texas Playboys on Saturday, July 4, and Saturday, July 11. The late Willis (on horse) was the creator of the musical style known as western swing. The tribute in performance features former members of the Texas Playboys and special guests.

Texas Playboys reunite for two-part concert

By Dan Rice

When country and western music underwent a progressive renaissance during the mid-'70s in Texas, mighty efforts were made to shake up the complacent "Nashville Sound" and introduce new elements of musical and personal style. But while those "out-law" performers distanced themselves from the rhinestone suits, they clung fast to the legacy of the rebel innovators who came before them. As Waylon Jennings sang in his song of the time, "It don't matter who's in Austin, Bob Willis is still the king."

The bridge between the two camps is once more safe to tread, for The Nashville Network's Lone Star import, The Texas Connection, pays tribute to the creator of western swing with a salute to Bob Willis and the Texas Playboys, airing in two parts on Saturday, July 4 and 11.

Host Jerry Jeff Walker welcomes Willis' brother Luke and former Texas Playboys including Johnny Gimble, Joe Ferguson, Smokey Dacus, Joe Ferguson, Buddy Spicher, Herb Remington, Leon Rausch and Tommy Allsup for a concert of songs popularized by the late Willis and his band. Ray Benson, Floyd Domino and Chris O'Connell of Asleep at the Wheel, a band that continues to perform Bob Willis songs, also join in on stage.

A native Texan, Willis was an established professional fiddler in 1933 when he formed Bob Willis and the Playboys in Waco, Texas. After moving to Tulsa, Okla., the band's name was changed to the Texas Playboys. (One of Willis' trademark songs, "Take Me Back to Tulsa," was first known as "Take Me Back to Texas" during this Oklahoma stay.) Willis continually refined his band, adding new players and new instruments such as drums and horns, which were unheard of in country music at the time. His Texas Playboys became a national sensation, selling many records, appearing on radio and in movies. By the early '40s, people across the country knew his catch phrase "Ah, ha! San Antone."

After his death in 1975, the bands that Bob built reunited here and there, most using the name Texas Playboys.

Ray Benson says that western swing is "essentially a cross between popular swing music of the day and a cowboy band instrumentation." Willis "really kept an element of grit or funk or realness in his music, because a lot of western swing slicked up the music. Bob always had that raw blues feel to his music," Benson says.

Fiddler Johnny Gimble, who joined the Texas Playboys in 1949, defines the style as "happy, good time music. Even

SOAP TALK

Reader fills in on closed captioning

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: Recently you advised a reader who complained about being unable to hear the dialogue on soaps to get a closed-captioned decoder.

Unfortunately, not all the soaps are captioned, so a decoder won't help. The only ones that are captioned are Days of Our Lives, Loving and The Bold and the Beautiful. With typical network scheduling, they are all on about the same time in most areas.

It would help if readers would write to the producers of their favorite shows and ask that they be captioned.—Mary Stone, Bardstown, Ky.

Dear Reader: I checked with the National Captioning Institute and you are right about those being the only soaps that are closed-captioned. Thank you for letting us know.

Dear Candace: Last year when Dr. Taylor Hayes came on The Bold and the Beautiful, she was Caroline's cancer doctor. Jake then went to her at Felicia's request about being abused as a child. At that time, Hayes said counseling and psychiatry were not her specialties. Months later we discover she is a full-time shrink. She seems to have acquired this speciality in a very short time.

Where could I write to make suggestions for upcoming shows?—Judy Dickson, Rosharon, Texas.

Dear Reader: Haye's (Hunter Tylo) profession was changed to facilitate a story line. Through psychiatry she can relate with several characters who come to her for advice.

Bill Bell, the creator of B&B, doesn't pay much attention to what the audience writes to him. He completes the story lines several weeks in advance, so by the time the letters reach him most of the action has already happened. He also likes to follow his own intuition and feels he is in touch with what the audience likes to see. He must be doing something right, because one of his soaps, The Young and the Restless, is consistently rated No. 1, and B&B is climbing up to the top.

After all that, if you still want to write him the address is 7800 Beverly Blvd., Suite 3371, Los Angeles, Calif., 90036.

Send your comments to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.

The Fourth goes pop after furious fists fly

By Dan Rice

Happy birthday, America. Celebrate Independence Day this Saturday, July 4, with A&E's live broadcast of Pops Goes the Fourth. Harry Dickson Ellis conducts the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra in a fireworks-punctuated concert on the banks of Boston's Charles River.

Speaking of birthdays, this Tuesday, June 30, would have been actress Susan Hayward's 74th. AMC remembers Hayward with a Tuesday showing of Deadline at Dawn, A Woman Obsessed, I Can Get It For You Wholesale and Thunder in the Sun.

For a more turbulent Tuesday, Cinemax's Summer of 1,000 Movies offers four fierce films of the late kung-fu master Bruce Lee: Fists of Fury, The Chinese Connection, Return of the Dragon (features Chuck Norris' film debut) and Game of Death, co-starring Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

It's cold, but not cool. The Arctic: Man's Last Frontier, airing Monday, June 29, on The Discovery Channel, examines the state of the world's northernmost region. The special examines the effect of environmental disasters, including the Exxon Valdez oil spill and the depletion of the ozone layer, on life in the Arctic.

And then there's sport. Saturday, July 4, marks the beginning of ESPN's same-day taped highlights of the Tour de France bicycle race, which lasts until July 26.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

WHITE MEN CAN'T JUMP: Scott) is smart and nice, so the pair go off to fall in love by the seaside.

Starring Wesley Snipes and Woody Harrelson. Everyone loves a tongue in cheek con-game; which is exactly what you get in Ron Shelton's new comedy. Although not exactly in the same league with the writer-director's Bull Durham, Can't Jump is tons of fun; especially when the rapid-fire action stays on the courts. The film is about two basketball hustlers who team up to run a slick scam on Los Angeles' toughest courts. These games are sort of a cross between ritual combat, street theatre and a gloating con-game. Sidney (Snipes) is the obvious athlete, the one with the smooth moves. Billy (Harrelson) is the goofy-looking newcomer with droopy socks and baggy shorts. It's, of course, predestined that these two should meet and pair up. Central Casting couldn't have done a better job. The hook in the film is the con the two play on each other, and what happens when they suddenly have to rely on the other to survive.

The basketball scenes, full of showmanship and wonderful physical moves, are the best part. These scenes have the sharpest dialogue and the best one-liners.

The romance, Sidney's with his long-suffering wife and Billy's with his strange girlfriend, seems almost prerequisite.

The acting is terrific, blending into a fascinating ensemble company. The company is blessed with tight, under-the-skin directing. You'll probably forget the script, remember the cons, and chuckle again over the quick retorts. This is a Walter Mitty kind of evening. Rated R for language.

DYING YOUNG: (1991) Starring Julia Roberts and Campbell Scott.

There is a growing belief that Julia Roberts is a product of hype. This could quite possibly be true. Certainly her one-dimensional, highly mannered performance in this soap opera could well support this belief. However, if you are a fan and are in the mood for a real sudsy soap, a lot of laughs (at a film), and are able to suspend all touch with reality, Dying Young is for you.

Assume that it's dirty work, but somebody, preferably an attractive young woman has got to do it. The assumption is for someone to care for a rich, young man who has leukemia and needs help after his chemotherapy treatments. Into this position, on the strength of a memorable job interview in a very tight, red mini-suit, steps a vision named Hilary O'Neil (Julia Roberts).

Now Hilary finds the job exasperating, but Victor (Campbell

Well, you won't have to think much in this tale, where only Hollywood would try to get mileage out of a lethal illness. This is a film best appreciated by those willing to check their tastes for realism, good dialogue and a plausible scripts at the door. Rated R for mature themes.

Food choices impact environment

CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
MS RD/LD

The recent magnification of interest between food and the environment is becoming a factor in food choices. All aspects of food production, processing, handling, distribution, and marketing are being impacted. This surge of the environmental movement is being labeled the "green consumerism" or "food ecology."

Voluntary changes prompted by social, health, and environmental activists are occurring without legislative action or reform. Newly introduced food products show an importance of health and/or environmentally compatible characteristics and the willingness of consumers to pay the price difference.

Potential changes in food-packaging, a major contributor to the solid waste stream, involves package types, recyclability, degradability, edibility, weight, and design. All of these are under review with emphasis on the three "R's": REDUCE, REUSE, AND RECYCLE.

Ten years ago the world was flooded in grain. Today, it is afloat with so-called environmental disasters, emerging environmental problems, concerns, and issues. Ozone depletion, global warming, acid rain, deforestation, air and water pollution, and solid waste disposal are the concerns most frequently mentioned. Many of these are related directly or indirectly to our food supply and food choices.

Eating habits have changed drastically during the past 10 years. Gone are the regular family meals, three times a day. Instead, "grazing" is in frequent smaller meals and snacks, relying heavily on processed and packaged foods and fast food, deli items, and home-delivered entrees. Food safety, diet, and health are moving to top place as consumer concerns.

The National Research Council has responded to these concerns with a major report, Diet and Health: Implications for Reducing Chronic Disease Risk, Washington, D.C., 1989. In the report the results analyzed point out the fact that potential health risks and benefits stem from one's diet. Major recommendations from the report are:

1. reduce total fat consumption to 30% or less of calories; saturated fats to less than 10% of calories; cholesterol to less than 300 mg. per day.

2. eat 5 or more serving daily of vegetables and fruit, and 6 or more starches and other complex carbohydrates to total more than 55% of calories.

3. meet the daily protein recommendations; limit salt intake to 6 gms. or less; balance food intake with physical activity, and avoid alcoholic beverages.

Americans literally are on a "health blitz." Food factors which dominate consumer wants and needs relating to what they buy include nutritional concerns, such as diet, cholesterol, and salt content. Other attributes such as high fiber are desirable, but without loss of taste, texture, or quality.

People wish to control their environment to enjoy life as free as possible from disease. Diet composition, which influences human health, is one variable in the environment that can be controlled. The amount and kind of dietary fat are variables that are receiving increasing attention by consumers, scientists, and food processing because of their relationship to human health and longevity.

The American food supply has long been considered to be, and remains the safest, most wholesome, abundant, and varied of any in the world. This is assured by heat treatments, dehydration, refrigeration, freezing, specialized packaging, and antimicrobial preservation, coupled with national an international storage, transportation, and marketing systems. Most food safety problems arise from mishandling by food service establishments and in private homes.

A new dimension—a wave of the future—is emerging for many food and food products. In the past, food choices have been motivated by price, appearance, taste, flavor, ease of preparation, and by being fast, easy, and portable. Most recently, health-conscious consumer's interests are dominated by nutritional values and quality of food items—with emphasis on "natural", along with food safety.

The latest factor motivation food choices is "food ecology" or the "greening effect"; which foods and food products are being produced and processed in an environmentally friendly, responsible, conscious, sensitive, favorable, compatible, and sound manner.

A verdant revolution is literally emerging in grocery stores across the land. Items promoted as having a "green connection" accounted for 11.4% of all new products in 1990. Some of the health-related as environmentally compatible characteristics are reduced/low calorie, reduced/low fat, all natural, reduced/low sugar, and organic.

Food processors must accept the challenge to redesign packaging with materials and containers that can be recycled, eaten, or made less environmentally harmful and to enhance food quality and protect it's safety.

Texas population is aging

AUSTIN - "By the year 2026, Texans over the age of 65 will be the state's fastest-growing group, and as our population matures, public and private services for the elderly will be more in demand than ever before," State Comptroller John Sharp says.

"Health services, particularly long-term care, will become increasingly important to the state's budget and will require more of the Legislature's attention," Sharp said. "As baby boomers gray, the number of Texans age 65 will swell from the current 1.7 million to 3.9 million in 2026, a 127 percent increase."

"A combination of pensions, various retirement programs, personal savings, and Social Security benefits will push retirees into the highest income bracket in history," Sharp says "This age group is expected to carry more political pressure for resources for elderly concerns and they will carry a significant impact in the state's suburban counties."

Data on the aging Texas population has been compiled by the Forces of Change project, a year-long analysis by the Comptroller's office of the sweeping issues likely to shape the citizens, business climate and government of Texas over the coming generation. The data reveals that in the year 2026, Texas' median population is expected to be 37.7 years old, considerably older than the current 30.6 years old.

The study also points out that by the 21st century, the population in Texas is expected to reach a total of 22.3 million. However, the estimates for the annual average population growth of 0.7 percent between 1992-2026 is much slower than the 2 percent annual average growth Texas experienced during 1950-90.

"This decrease of the annual growth is due primarily to fewer births rather than newcomers migrating to Texas," Sharp says.

The Forces of Change report on the aging Texas population was compiled by the Comptroller's Office and the Department of Rural Sociology at Texas A&M University.

Recommendations will be made for the 73rd Legislature when it convenes in January 1993.

Baby boomers growing up

By Lloyd Walker

Manufacturers, wholesalers and retail business leaders of this country are already making changes in their sales approach, and product designs will soon begin to take on a new look.

Instead of appealing to just the average customer, forcing all others to adjust accordingly, they will become more compatible with human abilities. This is because during the next 20 years, the full impact of the "Baby Boomers" will be felt by most of the business world.

Many of the country's product designers are leaning heavily towards a philosophy of catering more to the senior citizens of the future. These changes are due to the age escalation that will begin to reach a majority status in the next couple of decades.

The predictions are that the baby boom will have developed into an elderly boom, and increase the number of senior citizens by nine million in the next 13 years. And by year 2025 the majority of the population will be at least 55 years of age.

Evidence of this trend is predicted to be noticeable in the near future in the form of more convenience items for the elderly. Such as tamper proof bottle caps that can be opened by adults without a physical struggle, and yet be safe around children. Also, brooms and dust mops with curved handles, extensions, etc.

Ramps for walking and vehicles for the handicapped have increased considerably during the past five years, and will continue with new ideas for building confidence for senior shoppers when entering public buildings.

It has been said that "old people" do not have much money to spend. But statistics show that only 17 percent of the senior population admit to dire financial problems, the remaining 83 percent enjoy debt free living!

Manufacturers and merchants who are looking to the future are analyzing the trend that lies ahead for an aging America. They are even now shifting their attention from the coveted 18 to 34 age group, toward the elderly who control a large amount of this country's income, over and above necessities of life.

but just as the "Baby Boomers" had an effect on society's lifestyle, including dress code, music, etc., the seniors will also alter America's look into the future.

Retinitis pigmentosa attacks over 100,000

BALTIMORE (AP) - Marilyn Green has accidentally sat in a stranger's lap in a movie theater because she can't see when it's dark. Paul Karos, an airline analyst, reads his industry reports with a video camera. And Evelyn Swecker carries flashlights in her pocketbook to read restaurant menus.

They each have a type of retinitis pigmentosa, a group of inherited, progressive diseases that cause night blindness and tunnel vision.

Their mishaps and obstacles are familiar to 100,000 people in this country, according to estimates of the National Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation Inc., based in Baltimore.

"The hardest thing is that people think you look normal, and yet you have this severe disability," said Ms. Green, a former model who now runs a modeling agency in Greensboro, N.C.

There are no known treatments for retinitis pigmentosa.

The disease attacks the cells lining the back of the eye that capture light and transmit signals to the brain. As the disease progresses, the eyes need more and more light to see.

Victims often cannot drive, walk at night or see the stars. In many cases, the deterioration is gradual, but the end result is often blindness.

Most difficult for non-sufferers to understand is that the field of vision shrinks.

"If there are three people standing in front of you and you're looking at the person in the middle you can still see the people at the sides. I can't," said Ms. Swecker, vice president of the Maryland affiliate of the RP foundation.

"What we tell people is it's kind of like looking through your fist if you make a small opening in it," she said. "It's sort of like looking at life through a keyhole."

She now has only a 7-degree field of vision, compared with the normal 100-degree field.

"Some people just say, 'I wish it was done and over with: completely blind.' It's like nature's cruel joke," Ms. Swecker said.

In coming to terms with the disease, Karos has rejected that attitude and pushed himself all the harder to succeed.

"A lot of my fear about my eyes made me a workaholic," said Karos, who uses a video reading machine that projects text on a 19-inch screen.

Karos, who was diagnosed at 8 with retinitis pigmentosa, said the toughest part for him was feeling left out. He couldn't play hockey, his favorite sport.

"As an RP kid you're afraid to go to parties because they're dark. Dating is a problem because you can't drive. I was always lucky in that my girlfriends were usually willing to drive," said Karos, 29, who grew up in Minneapolis.

Research has blossomed in the last few years, said Jeanette S. Felix, geneticist and director of science for the foundation.

"Diagnostic tests have become very sophisticated, and the genetic research has been exploding," she said.

Golden Line Dancers

The Golden Line Dancers continue to meet every Monday and Friday. This group has grown very close and enjoy fun and fellowship as well as getting good exercise.

Lloyd and Frances Crume went on a trip recently and visited former residents Ruth and Gwynne Owen at Cedar Creek Lake for four days and then spent two days with their son David and his wife, Georgia in Pflugerville, Texas.

Marchetta Hutcheson had a wonderful time when she went to Dallas, Duncanville, Garland and Mesquite. She visited with relatives and enjoyed a family reunion on her Mother's side. She was guest in the home of her niece, Tiffany Davis of Garland.

Jolene Bledsoe enjoyed having Helen Morrison of Concrete, Washington visit her for a few days. Helen was simply amazed at all the things to do in Hereford. She was really impressed with the Hereford Senior Citizens facility and the Cowgirl Hall of Fame. Helen's Brother, Hugh Keller of Lubbock came to Hereford to pick her up and he to was very impressed with our beautiful building. Helen and Jolene had a lot of catching up to do since they had not seen each other for about 20 years and have been friends for more than 50 years. June 18-21 Jolene enjoyed a bell Reunion at Lake Travis with her two brothers and three sisters plus a host of nieces and nephews.

Edna Johnson and Geraldine Frank have been gallivanting around again!! they enjoyed a week in Vernal, Utah with Edna's sister and niece, Aleen Maples and Betty McKnight. They went to all the sights in the surrounding area while there. On their return trip they toured the Colorado mountains with all the beautiful scenery and the weather cooperated beautifully during the entire trip. We line dancers are most happy to have them back. HAPPY BIRTHDAY THIS MONTH TO ANNA STINDT AND FRANCES CRUME.

Frances Hill had two very exciting weekends during the past month. Her grandson, James Cary Gossett, III, graduated from the University of Texas Medical School at Houston on June 9, 1992. On June 12, 1992 another grandson, Cory Strickland, was married to Tess Lovett in the Paramount Terrace Christian Church in Amarillo, Texas.

Here's health costs facts

If you're a Medicare beneficiary, here's news that may save you money on medical bills: There is a limit as to the amount a doctor can legally charge for services covered by medicare medical insurance (Part B). Under the law, doctors who do not accept Medicare's approved amount for a particular service, generally are allowed to charge up to 20 percent more than that amount. In other words, if a beneficiary receives services for which the medicare approved amount is $100, the doctor is not allowed to charge more than $120. If the charge is higher, the beneficiary does not have to pay the excess amount. In 1993 and thereafter, the limit will be 115 percent of the medicare approved amount for doctors who do not participate in the program. Doctors can be penalized for overcharging.

According to the Health Care Financing Administration, medicare beneficiaries can avoid excess charges by using doctors who accept assignment of medicare claims. Doctors who take assignment agree to accept the amount medicare approves for a service as payment in full. The Medicare approved amount is taken from a national fee schedule that assigns a dollar value to each medical service covered by medicare. Many doctors sign a participation agreement with Medicare and accept assignment on all claims while others accept assignment on a case-by-case basis.

Look for signs of Alzheimer's Disease

At some point, you've probably forgotten something as basic as an important phone number, the name of a favorite restaurant or where the extra house keys are hidden. Although temporary memory loss can be annoying, it doesn't affect your ability to lead a normal life. However, memory loss among the senior population, when associated with Alzheimer's disease, can be a serious condition as it begins to interfere with the routine activities of daily life.

One of the most prevalent forms of dementia among the growing senior population. Alzheimer's disease affects approximately 4 million Americans, according to the Alzheimer's Association. It is characterized by severe memory loss and intellectual impairment can also lead to confusion, language problems, disorientation and personality changes. How quickly these symptoms appear in an Alzheimer's patient varies.

If you have noticed a family member or friend who has exhibited memory loss along with other symptoms mentioned, this may signal the beginning of Alzheimer's disease. How serious than age-related memory impairment? Review the following points, provided as a public service by Hoechst-Roussel Pharmaceutical Inc., to determine if your loved one exhibits signs of Alzheimer's disease.

The primary symptoms of Alzheimer's disease are gradual loss of memory and intellectual ability severe enough to interfere with daily living. Some symptoms that become progressively more disruptive include:

*Getting lost in familiar surroundings, forgetting how to get to a familiar destination, wandering.

*Forgetting names of familiar people and appointments, location of once-familiar objects and belongings.

*Inability to handle money, keep a checkbook, read or write.

Although there is no cure for Alzheimer's disease, many corporations are dedicated to the research, discovery and development of new compounds to treat sufferers. These companies include Hoechst-Roussel Pharmaceutical, Warner-Lambert, Forest Laboratories, DuPont Merck and Miles Laboratories. Hoechst-Roussel has several compounds, in clinical trials, for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease. The company has adopted a three-tiered approach to Alzheimer's disease research and development: first, develop drugs to treat the disease's early symptoms; second, develop compounds to treat advanced symptoms and third, develop compounds to arrest or reverse the disease itself.

Eye Openers

The eye is truly a wonderful mechanism. As an optical system, it is not perfect but it is amazingly close for a living organic structure. The front of the eye has to approximate a sphere in order to focus the light hitting it into the back of the eye. If that focused light does not strike the back of the eye at a point, then what we see is out of focus. Glasses can be used to catch that light before it gets to the eye and help focus it on the retina.

Some people have eyes where the front surface of the cornea is not a hemisphere. These people cannot use glasses to see clearly. There is a condition called "keratoconus" where the front of the eye is shaped more like a cone rather than a hemisphere. Even with glasses, the patient's vision is quite blurry. Many of these people can see clearly again if they are fitted with a hard contact lens. The hard contact lens sits on the front of the eye and makes the front of the eye again into a hemisphere. The problem with wearing a hard contact lens in keratoconus is to get it to center on the cornea and to be comfortable. If the contact lens cannot be worn successfully, then the only answer so this problem is to do a corneal transplant.

In a corneal transplant procedure, a small button of a donor eye is transplanted into a small buttonhole in the recipient eye. The cone part of the cornea is removed and replaced with a normal hemispherical-shaped cornea.

It's good to remember that all blurry vision that can't be corrected with glasses is not due to cataracts. There are numerous other conditions that can blur your vision, many of which are treatable.

Each year heart attack, stroke and other cardiovascular diseases kill nearly one million Americans — almost as many as all other diseases combined — according to the American Heart Association.

SSA alerting public of "come ons"

The Social Security Administration (SSA) is increasing its efforts to alert the public to misleading advertisers who use Social Security as a "come on" for profitmaking and fundraising ventures. Their direct marketing campaigns are designed to capture your attention and your money. Social Security is actively working to protect the public from this fraud and deceit.

According to Trish Butler, Social Security's Associate Commissioner for Public Affairs, "The words 'Social Security' frequently are used to lure seniors into a web of deceit. Often Social Security services are offered for a fee when these same services and information are available free of charge from Social Security. But these unscrupulous advertisers charge fees to obtain Social Security numbers for newborns, notify Social Security of name changes for brides, or obtain personal earnings and benefit estimate statements. A phone call to Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, business days between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. will take care of your needs FOR FREE."

Of particular significance to the public should be an increased awareness of what unscrupulous marketeers could do with the confidential information they solicit in the form of an SS-5 (Application for a Social Security Card). "It's hard for me to believe that consumers would send the personal information needed for a Social Security number or replacement card to an anonymous post office box. The information on a completed SS-5 is sufficient to establish credit, apply for a loan, buy a car, and many other financial transactions that individuals 'could be paying for' for many years to come," said Associate Commissioner Butler.

Other advertisers suggest that the future of Social Security is ill-fated. Their direct marketing pieces seem to deliberately mislead the public into thinking that they must respond with a donation or membership fee or risk losing their Social Security benefits or Medicare coverage.

"We've also recently seen an increased problem with direct mail campaigns from insurance vendors," stated Butler. "They're using Social Security as a 'come on' to encourage people to respond: naturally, when they do follow up, they find they're being sold insurance."

Social Security's Office of Public Affairs reviews potentially misleading solicitations sent to them by the public.

To date, to avoid potential violation of section 1140 of the Social Security Act, 45 companies have voluntarily agreed to stop or change advertising that Social Security has questioned.

To help crack down on misleading advertisers:

- Section 1140 of the Social Security Act prohibits non-Social Security entities from using names that seemingly represent Social Security, or the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), or emblems that are intentionally fashioned after those of the Government;

- A Social Security regulation provides for written Agency approval before any Social Security forms can be reproduced by private interests; and
- The Deceptive Mailings Prevention Act gives the United States Postal Service specific power to stop delivery of mail solicitations if the public could be misled into believing they are from a government source.

To combat the actions of misleading and fraudulent advertisers and prevent them from exploiting the public further, you need to act.

If you receive misleading information about a "Social Security" service from a private organization seeking payment for the service, send the entire solicitation (including the envelope) to the Social Security Administration Office of Public Affairs, Misleading Advertising, Box 17740, Baltimore, MD 21235.

-For misleading appearing mail solicitations, take or mail the entire solicitation (including the envelope) to your local postmaster or postal inspector, or send a complaint to:

Chief Postal Inspector
United States Postal Service
475 L'Enfant Plaza, SW.
Washington, DC 20260-2100.

-Advise your State Attorney General, Consumer Affairs Office, and local Better Business Bureau.

For more information about any Social Security program, telephone the toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, business days between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. You can avoid paying for something that Social Security provides free.

A taxpayer must now list the social security number of all dependents claimed who are over two years old.

Dealing with diabetes

When you get down to it, your feet can be among the places most affected by diabetes. Because that disease can impair circulation, the tissues in the foot become less able to fight infection. Diabetics often have dry skin, which can lead to itchy feet. Scratching can break the skin and bring on infection. Daily use of a good skin cream can help. Diabetic neuropathy can cause a loss of the ability to feel pain, heat and cold and feet may be burned or otherwise injured without your knowing it.

Fortunately, there's a lot you can do to protect your feet if you have diabetes.

1. Have your feet professionally examined at least twice a year. A podiatrist can help monitor your condition and you may receive necessary treatment early.

2. Wash your feet daily and dry them well. Wear well-fitting, comfortable shoes and cleanhose.

3. Inspect your feet daily. Check for redness, blisters, scratches, discolorations or any other changes. Notify your podiatrist promptly.

4. Avoid actions that restrict circulation, such as smoking, crossing your legs and sunbathing.

5. Test water temperature before putting your feet into it.

6. Avoid over-the-counter corn remedies. They contain acid and can destroy tissues in diabetics.

7. Don't walk barefoot. Don't treat your own feet with sharp instruments or dig into the corners of your toenails.
