Earle says he opposes special Hutchison jury

AUSTIN (AP) - Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle says if criminal charges facing U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison are dismissed, he will oppose the impaneling of a "special grand jury" to re-hear her case.

Mrs. Hutchison's attorney Dick DeGuerin filed a motion in state district court Wednesday, saying the Republican senator should be entitled to the special grand jury with "an equal representation of Republicans and Democrats."

The senator's lawyers say they don't want her case to go before grand jurors currently serving in Travis County because they have a Democratic bent.

Death knell sounds for super collider

WASHINGTON (AP) - Backers of the super collider have all but conceded its death and now are trying to negotiate the best possible funeral arrangements.

Supporters of the $11 billion scientific machine under construction in Texas opened negotiations Wednesday with the Energy Department and opponents in hopes of salvaging some of the atom smasher's technology and equipment.

The talks were initiated after congressional proponents acknowledged that further battles were doomed to failure. The House on Tuesday reiterated its overwhelming opposition to the collider, for the third time in 16 months rejecting new spending on a project that's already cost $2 billion.

Twice previously the Senate restored funding. But the chamber's most vocal collider booster, Louisiana Democrat Bennett Johnston, appears to have conceded defeat in the face of the House's enduring opposition.

"I don't know anyone that is suggesting that the project as conceived is viable any more," said a key collider ally, Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs. "The question is in the process of closing it down, can we salvage at least part of the investment in science?"

Earle responded to DeGuerin in a letter that called the request "an extraordinary attempt to gain special treatment for your client. We're opposed to it in its entirety."

Mrs. Hutchison, 50, was indicted last month on charges of using her previous office as state treasurer for personal and political gain and then destroying records as part of cover-up.

She resigned her 2-1/2-year tenure as treasurer after winning a landslide victory June 5 to Lloyd Bentsen's vacated Senate seat. She is the first woman senator from Texas and the 10th sitting senator ever to be indicted.

Now, her case as well as over 500 other indictments, including that of convicted killer Kenneth McDuff, are in jeopardy due to an improperly impaneled grand jury.

Following a defense motion, Earle acknowledged that a grand juror who heard Mrs. Hutchison's case and others should have been excluded because of a 1988 theft charge that accuses him of writing a hot check for $20.04 to a grocery store.

But Earle vowed to take her case to a second grand jury if necessary.

A final decision on whether the case against Mrs. Hutchison will have to be reinvestigated may come this week, said assistant district attorney Claire Dawson-Brown.

Assistant District Attorney Darla Espinoza said impaneling a grand jury just to hear one case happens only on the rarest of occasions.

"I can think of one time. Our office was investigating statewide insurance fraud, involving many defendants. So we had a special grand jury to investigate massive statewide insurance fraud. But for one special defendant? No," Ms. Espinoza said.

In a related matter, state Republican leaders criticized Earle for hiring a jury consultant at taxpayer expense to assist in Mrs. Hutchison's trial, which had been scheduled for Nov. 29. It will likely be delayed if her case is dismissed.

GOP state chairman Fred Meyer said a jury consultant's main job is "to find people who will ignore the facts of the trial and rubber-stamp Ronnie Earle's preconceived conclusions about the Hutchison trial."

Ms. Espinoza said the consultant has been retained "not to stack a jury, but because we want to put forth the best possible case for the state of Texas."

UWSA chapter asks to address HISD on Smith Building deal

The Hereford Independent School District's purchase of the Smith building is still a matter of controversy--at least with the Hereford chapter of United We Stand America/Texas.

The group, in a meeting Tuesday night, decided to draft a letter to Superintendent Charles Greenawalt asking for an opportunity to address the school board about the building purchase and parliamentary procedures used by the board.

Charles Ward, UWSA district coordinator and acting chairman of the local chapter, said the letter would be hand delivered to Greenawalt this morning. He said the superintendent and board chairman refused to put one of their members on the next agenda to address the building purchase.

"By keeping us off the agenda for the Oct. 26 meeting, it has been made clear the board intends to do as they please," said Ward. "We'll see about that come the next election of school board members, and they can expect very strong opposition."

The UWSA chapter was scheduled to elect officers Tuesday night, but the election was postponed. The letter to the superintendent was signed by 17 citizens. Among the items listed for discussion is a proposal to call for a vote of citizens on use of the building and, if a majority are in opposition, to sell the building.

Supt. Greenawalt had not received the letter by press time this morning.

Mendoza convicted of murder; given 99-year prison sentence, fine

A guilty verdict and a 99-year prison sentence returned in a murder trial Wednesday have been called "appropriate" by the Deaf Smith County criminal district attorney.

Roland Saul, who prosecuted the case against Esequiel Mendoza Jr., 21, said Thursday that he hopes the verdict "sends a message that the community won't put up" with such criminal activity.

"I thought the verdict and sentence were appropriate," Saul said.

Mendoza was convicted in 222nd District Court of murder in the gunshot death on Jan. 16 of Santos Rincon Jr.

A jury of eight women and four men deliberated an hour and 22 minutes before returning the guilty verdict.

In the punishment phase of the trial, the jury spent less than an hour behind closed doors. Jurors retired to consider punishment at 6:38 p.m. and delivered their decision at 7:29 p.m. They could have assessed a sentence from five to 99 years, or life, and a $10,000 fine.

Deliberations were interrupted briefly when the jury sent a communication to the court asking for clarification on who is responsible for paying a fine assessed a defendant. The answer from the court placed the full responsibility on the defendant.

District Judge David Wesley Gulley pronounced the sentence of 99 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice and a fine of $5,000.

Mendoza was accused of firing the rifle in the death of Rincon during a fight that erupted between two other men in the early hours of Jan. 16, at a car wash at S. 25 Mile Avenue and Fuller Street.

During the trial, the prosecution called law enforcement officers as well as witnesses to the events shortly before the shooting.

The defense attorney, William C. Sowder of Lubbock, attempted to have a rifle alleged to be the murder weapon barred from evidence. Judge Gulley overruled the motion and permitted the gun admitted in evidence.

The prosecution's case was completed Wednesday morning. The defense called no witnesses. Closing arguments were made during early afternoon and the jury was sequestered at 2:23 p.m. The guilty verdict was announced at 3:45 p.m.

During the punishment phase of the trial the prosecution introduced evidence of the defendant's prior criminal activity as a juvenile and an adult. At the time of the shooting, Mendoza was on probation for an aggravated perjury conviction.

Since his arrest on Jan. 16, Mendoza has been confined to Deaf Smith County jail, in lieu of $25,000 bond. He is not eligible for bond now.

Under state law, the defendant must serve at least 15 years in prison before he is eligible for parole.

Mendoza's attorney has 30 days in which to file an appeal of the conviction or to file a motion for a new trial.

Light freeze recorded here

A "light freeze" was recorded in the Hereford area this morning as the temperature dropped to 32 degrees for about three hours. Some areas of the northern Panhandle had temperatures in the 30s.

The Deaf Smith County Extensive Service office classified it as a "light freeze," terming a hard freeze coming with temperatures in the mid 20s.

The Panhandle earlier this morning had temperatures in the 30s and temperatures in South Texas have settled in the 50s and 60s.

Rain soaked Texas most of the day Wednesday causing flooding and the closing of some main highways.

Coriscana reported the closing of northbound Interstate 45. Traffic was rerouted most of the day Wednesday. A Sheriff's Department official said rain accumulation had reached about 8 inches.

Some parts of the Houston area had received more than 4 inches of rain and a few areas had 5 1/2 inches by late Wednesday.

San Antonio also had a deluge with more than 2 inches of rain on parts of Bexar County, interrupting telephone and electric service in some areas.

Dozens of flooded roadways were closed at the peak of Wednesday's downpour.

South Texas may still see some rain. Most of the region may see cloudy skies and some light rain. Lows tonight will be in the 40s and 50s north, 60s south.

But clear skies and light winds will prevail in West Texas. It will be clear and cool tonight through Friday.

Alliance schedules Saturday 'Weed-Off' cleanup session

A "Weed-Off Day" has been scheduled for Saturday by the Hereford Beautification Alliance, and volunteers are invited to participate in the event, which is expected to take about three hours.

HBA members and all interested volunteers are asked to meet at 8:30 a.m. at the vacant service station across the street from Marn Tyler Realtors on W. Hwy. 60. Weeds will be cleared from several abandoned business sites, and then the group will move to smaller projects, said a spokeswoman.

All volunteers may bring their hoes, gasoline-powered weed-eaters, rakes and loppers. Participants are reminded to wear gloves and long-sleeve shirts or blouses.

HBA has sponsored three successful clean-up projects with a combined total of approximately 130 volunteers, and the participation "has far exceeded our expectations," said one of the HBA leaders.

HBA encourages all citizens to clean away unsightly weeds at business places and residences before winter. "Our community is looking better every day," commented the HBA leader.

Clinton, Dole reach troop agreement

President emerges from confrontation unscathed

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton is emerging relatively unscathed from an extended confrontation with Congress over who has authority to commit U.S. troops to dangerous parts of the world.

Clinton survived the latest in a series of challenges Wednesday night when Senate Republican leader Bob Dole agreed to water down his proposal to restrict the president's authority to send troops to Haiti and Bosnia.

The agreement ended a three-day stalemate and cleared the way for a vote today on language that would impose fewer restraints on the president.

The resolution, sponsored by Dole, R-Kan., and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, expresses the opinion of Congress but is not legally binding.

Lawmakers also will vote on a more restrictive amendment sponsored by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., that bars Clinton from sending troops to Haiti unless Congress approves or Americans have to be evacuated.

A week after backing Clinton on Somalia, Dole had threatened a measure similar to Helms', arguing it is in the president's interest to have prior congressional approval.

Following days of talks with the White House, Dole modified the measure to a sense of the Congress resolution that said funds for troops in Haiti should be barred unless the House and Senate approve, Americans must be evacuated or a deployment is in the national interest and there is insufficient time for congressional authorization.

However, no limitations would be imposed if the president reported in advance to Congress that U.S. national security interests were at stake and detailed the mission's objectives, duration and cost.

Dole defended his effort against criticism that he was trying to tie the president's hands on foreign policy.

"I'm not seeking to place a straight jacket on the president's powers as commander in chief,"

Dole said. "I'm trying to construct a political flak jacket to protect against congressional artillery once a deployment is under way."

In a letter that Dole sought, Clinton discussed the importance of congressional authorization before committing troops to enforcing a peace accord in another conflict - Bosnia.

The president also praised Dole and offered his "lasting gratitude for the leadership you have shown in recent days as we have worked through difficult issues affecting our national security."

Late Wednesday, the Senate voted 99-1 to back a non-binding resolution that puts Congress on record as insisting that it give its approval before any U.S. troops are used to implement a peace agreement in Bosnia.

Only Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., who has opposed defense budgets and military involvement in other conflicts, voted no.

The resolution does not affect missions or operations already under way.

It was the third time in past two weeks that the Clinton administration has fended off attempts to rein in its authority on foreign policy. Last week it was Somalia, and Tuesday it was the president's right to put U.S. troops under foreign command.

During debate Wednesday, Helms branded deposed Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide a "psychopath" and demanded that no American life be put at risk when Clinton had failed to spell out U.S. interests in Haiti.

While Aristide was in a closed-door meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Helms stood one floor above on the Senate floor and accused Aristide of inciting mob violence, abusing human rights and maintaining ties to Cuba's Fidel Castro.

In response, Aristide told the committee: "After nine attempts to kill me, I still say yes to nonviolence."

Combest takes side of diesel consumer

WASHINGTON -- Complaints about rapidly increasing diesel fuel prices have been reported to U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, in recent weeks from an area stretching from Midland to Hereford.

Combest said that low-sulphur diesel fuel prices have jumped more than 30 cents per gallon, despite claims that the Clean Air Act would only generate increases of 3 cents per gallon for the newly-required low-sulphur diesel.

"If this is the way the Clinton Administration wants to help small businesses, then this is all the help they can stand," Combest said. "As I warned in my opposition to the 1990 Clean Air Act, the cost of complying with regulations will land heavily on the shoulders of small businesses and West Texas families. Add the Clinton fuel tax increases and you have government's extra costs and regulations of 30 more cents a gallon squeezing the breath out of small business and the families who depend on them."

For example, said a news release from Combest's Washington office, Lloyd Newton of Newton Trucking of Hereford, told the Representative that his diesel costs jumped from $1.045 per gallon to $1.326 per gallon since the Clean Air Act took effect on Oct. 1.

Transportation costs run up and down the line from refiners to truckers to small businesses and their customers.

A second wave comes Jan. 1, 1994, Clinton said, when additional provisions of the Clinton fuels tax take effect.

However, his office reported, Combest is supporting legislation introduced Wednesday to delay the ultimate costs of the additional fuel regulations, which would give small businesses a chance to prepare for changes in the way they do business due to a planned shift in who pays fuel taxes.

Combest said the legislation could delay next January's additional regulatory fuel costs possibly by as much as seven months. Low-sulphur diesel suppliers have told retailers that costs could climb as high as $1.65 to $2.00 by Jan. 1.

"Small businesses depending on diesel find themselves almost washed away by more new, confusing federal regulations," Combest said. "They need a chance to come up for air, but the government keeps pushing their head back under a rising tide of regulations."

Disney re-editing 'The Program,' film blamed in death of teenager

By JOHN HORN

AP Entertainment Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) - In some towns, kids lying down in the middle of a busy road are called foolish. In Hollywood, they're called a public relations nightmare.

The Walt Disney Co. took the bold step of re-editing "The Program" after one teen-ager was killed and two others seriously injured imitating a scene from the film.

Disney's $300,000 move follows changes to the animated film "Aladdin" and the MTV cartoon "Beavis and Butt-head" after complaints about their content.

Taken together, these changes raise troubling questions of censorship and also dramatize the delicate balance between artistic freedom and social responsibility - especially when millions of dollars are involved.

Should filmmakers be held accountable and take responsibility for reckless behavior? If children start leaping off tall buildings, will Superman be grounded? What if a "Beverly Hillbillies" fan shoots a neighbor while "hunting for oil" in his backyard?

"I have a lot of faith in the intelligence of the audience," said Michael Mann, the director of "The Last of the Mohicans" and the target of complaints for his TV shows "Crime Story" and "Miami Vice." "That's why I'm against caving into this kind of pressure, because it leads to censorship. But Disney is Disney," he said.

"I have two concerns," said Mike Medavoy, the chairman of TriStar Pictures. "One, what does this stuff do to a society? And two, at what time does censorship ... destroy the creator's ability to create their works? It's a very fine line."

Earlier this week, MTV moved "Beavis and Butt-head" to a later hour after excising the cartoon show's references to fire. Both moves came when an Ohio woman blamed the program for the death of her 2-year-old daughter in a fire set by her 5-year-old brother.

In July, Disney altered lyrics of a song in the Oscar-winning animated feature "Aladdin" after Arab-American activists termed the song racist. Rapper Ice-T was dropped by a Time Warner record label earlier this year after 1991's "Cop Killer" song dispute.

What unites these incidents with "The Program" is the amount of negative publicity they all generated. And bad publicity can be as toxic as bad sales, particularly when your company name is Disney.

But executives in film, music and television found Disney, MTV and Time Warner's actions problematic. While the companies may have acted sensitively, the executives say, they implicitly are helping cement the debated proposition that fictional works prompt real-life behavior.

People who are injured lying in the middle of the road or set fire to houses may be predisposed to aberrant actions without the help of television and movies, they say.

The three youths who imitated "The Program" may be "naive and a little warped," said Angelo Pizzo, the screenwriter of "Hoosiers" and the new release "Rudy."

Lee Masters, the chairman of the cable network E! Entertainment and the former executive vice president of MTV, said he was troubled by the "Beavis and Butt-head" incident.

"There's a real knee-jerk reaction here, to instantly blame," Masters said. His two young daughters, 3 and 8, are "absolutely fascinated by fire," he said - but neither watches "Beavis and Butt-head."

"People are blaming the cartoon for a lot of things that kids do anyway," he said.

Make Halloween fun with some goeey goop

Since the discovery of mud pies, kids everywhere have carried on the tradition of delighting in goeey, sticky, grimy and slimy substances.

Here's my kids' recipe for what they call "goeey goop." They can stir it up in the kitchen in seconds and observe how simple ingredients magically transform into this weird stuff! They stretch it, squeeze it, let it slither and drip through their fingers and even bounce it if they are lucky. Your school-age kids and their friends won't want to miss it, especially with Halloween around the corner.

Here's how to make one batch of goeey goop:

-Pour an eight-ounce bottle of Elmer's glue in a medium-size mixing bowl. Fill the empty bottle with water and add the water to the glue, stirring constantly. Add several drops of liquid poster paint. Sir. (If you wish to make white goop, leave out the paint.)

-In another mixing bowl, stir together 1 cup of water and 1 1/2 teaspoons of borax powder (available in the laundry detergent section of the supermarket). Stir until dissolved.

-Pour the glue mixture into the borax mixture, stirring constantly. Within seconds, the goeey goop should form. Pick it up with your hands, knead it, squeeze it and enjoy playing with it!

-Store in a zipper-style plastic bag. Avoid playing with it on carpeting or upholstery because it is difficult to remove. If it gets on clothing, rinse with warm water immediately. Note: This activity is appropriate for children five years or older.

Do not put any of the goop or leftover liquid down the drain.

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) - Kirk Douglas said Hollywood's campaign of blacklisting actors and writers during the McCarthy era was part of "one of the most shameful stains in American history."

Douglas, speaking Sunday at a ceremony for late screenwriter Dalton Trumbo, said he was the first to remove Trumbo from the black list when he named him on the credits of "Spartacus," a 1960 film Douglas starred in and produced. Trumbo had been writing for years under aliases.

Douglas, 76, told about 300 people at the dedication of a University of Colorado fountain in Trumbo's name that the screenwriter was "a victim of a lunatic witch hunt that remains one of the most shameful stains in American history."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was annoyed by the letter from "Cheated in Orlando," the woman who was disappointed because her son chose not to have children. And your answer really burned me up.

Your response affirmed the mother's assumption that her son made this decision due to an emotional deficiency resulting from a lack of affection from his father when he was growing up.

Why must people assume there is something "wrong" with those of us who choose to be childless? Does someone have to be a "little off" in order to make this choice?

I am a 30-year-old female, and I have chosen not to have children. My husband, who is 45, did not have children with his first wife, nor does he want any now. We are a two-career family and enjoy spending our leisure time with one another.

I did not experience abuse as a child, nor am I incapable of showing love and affection. I simply DO NOT WANT TO HAVE CHILDREN! I wish people would get that straight and quit telling me, "You're still young. You will change your mind."

The woman who wrote should accept her son's decision and not assume that he is a "cold fish" because he doesn't want kids. Chances are good that he, like my husband, is perfectly normal and quite content with his life as it is.--D.D., Roseville, Calif.

DEAR ROSE: Sorry, I "burned you up," but I still believe that "Orlando" might be on to something. Childless couples, however, owe no explanations. I cannot imagine a subject that is less anyone else's business.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We've just returned from a three-year residence in Switzerland. Because our pets are old and we love them, we took them with us. We have five cats and a dog.

Our dog is well-behaved, and his manners are impeccable. "Alfie" traveled with us by car to Poland, Czechoslovakia, Austria and throughout France, Germany and Switzerland. He has stayed in elegant hotels and in small guest cottages. Alfie has sat at our side in some of the finest restaurants in those countries. He also accompanied us to shopping centers and into grocery stores.

The swallows may come back to Capistrano on March 19, but four days earlier is officially Buzzard Day in Hinkley, Ohio to mark the annual return of those birds.

Europeans have a wonderfully accepting attitude about animals in public establishments. At one memorable French chateau, we were amused at the resident cat who dozed on the lower shelf of a car in the dining room. Often, European restaurants (especially French) will bring a bowl of water and food to the table for the traveling pet that joins its owners when they stop to dine.

Many hotels have special bedding and animal dishes for their four-footed guests. If you've traveled in Switzerland, you know that their is perhaps no country on earth more obsessed with cleanliness and sanitation, yet the Swiss have no hangups about bringing a dog into a restaurant or a hotel.

Given a choice, I'd much prefer a barking dog to a yelling drunk. In all the years we have traveled throughout Europe and the United States, we've yet to encounter a loud dog. Sorry I can't say the same about drunks.--Portland, Ore.

DEAR ORE.: Obviously, you have extremely well-behaved pets. Bravo! I've printed several letters, however, about animals that are a nuisance never have created problems among family members, friends and neighbors. Yours was a welcome change of pace. Thank you.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have a questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, C/O Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Homecoming

Homecoming has different meanings for all of us. To some it's a good football game played under the veil of crisp autumn air. To others it represents a chance to enjoy fellowship with old and new friends alike. And from a younger perspective, homecoming might mean billowing streamers, mums, cow bells and that first big date.

Homecoming is all for those wonderful things, but more importantly, it is an opportunity to come together as a town and community; to rally around the spirit that makes our town prosper and grow.

It is a celebration that annually marks and rededicates our pride in the place that is as comfortable and familiar as an old shoe -- a place we call home.

And now, with all discourse aside, we now would like to add just one more thought...

Women's Division officers elected

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division met recently in the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum for a brief business meeting. New officers and directors include, from left, Linda Daniel, past president; Peggie Fox, president; Lacy Mueggenborg, president-elect; Sonya Torbert, director; Sandy Jossierand, director; and Melinda Whitfill, director. Those wishing to join the Women's Division may contact a member or call the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office at 364-3333 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. during the week.

DENVER (AP) - Edward James Olmos offered a message of hope - along with his new documentary - to about 200 mostly Hispanic adults and teen-agers this weekend.

"Lives in Hazard," which premiered here on Sunday, documents the making of another Olmos film, "American Me," about one young man's struggle to leave his life of violence behind.

Calling it the "single most important film of my life," Olmos said he hopes the documentary will keep youths out of gangs by showing them how destructive that lifestyle is.

The former "Miami Vice" co-star said the documentary will be shown on national television later this year.

But his film alone won't heal troubled communities, Olmos said. People must work together for change.

"Forgiveness means empowerment," Olmos said. "Teach others by example. Go into other neighborhoods and get every single Chicano to call a truce."

Members of the audience echoed his message. "We destroyed our communities as gang members," said Nito, a 23-year-old former gang member who now works for a Spanish-language magazine for teen-agers. "Now it's our job to put it back."

Robinson home site of recent DAR meeting

Los Ciboleros Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution met Oct. 14 in the home of Patricia Robinson, 106 Nueces.

Regent Kathryn Ruga opened the meeting with the DAR Ritual assisted by Chaplain Ruth Knox. The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America was led by Argen Draper and Margaret Bell led the "American's Creed" and the singing of "America."

Vice Regent Helen Rose reviewed the October message from President General Mrs. Wayne G. Blair. The emphasis of the message was that the youth of this country must be taught those principles of individual responsibility, respect for the rights of others, respect for the law and respect for this great country. Mrs. Blair encouraged DAR members to beneficially influence their local institutions of learning from preschool to college.

Wanda Jones presented the National Defense Committee report from the "National Defender" entitled "Human Rights Treaty Poses Dangers for America" by Andrew J. Cowin. Mrs. Jones informed the chapter that the treaty was signed in 1977 by President Carter and that it has been pending in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee since 1978. President Clinton proposes ratification of this treaty that accepts as a premise that government can create wealth. "Abundant health care, housing and food are by-products of wealth created by private individuals pursuing a profit. Ratification of this treaty could be a costly disaster," she concluded, quoted from the author of the article.

Regent Ruga gave the report of the Constitution Week Committee which was observed Sept. 17-24. Eleven schools, the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, the Deaf Smith County Library and the Hereford State Bank were provided posters and other materials regarding the United States Constitution. Public service announcements were taken to the Hereford Brand and KPAN Radio Station and Hereford Cablevision. Hereford Cablevision reported that they had aired 5,346 spots.

In the absence of Charlotte Clark, chairman of the American History Committee, Regent Ruga reported that information regarding the American History Essay Contest had been taken to 10 schools.

Ruth Knox, chairman of the Veteran Patient Committee, reminded members to bring to the November meeting unwrapped gifts for the VA Christmas Gift Shop. "Patients are invited to select gifts to send to family members for Christmas. Money is also welcome to cover costs of wrapping and postage," she said.

Regent Ruga announced plans for a tea honoring Mrs. John Kenneth Harrell of San Antonio who is serving as Texas DAR Regent. The tea is to be held from 2-3:30 p.m. Oct. 25 at the Senior Center in the Blue Room.

Ruth Newsom, chairman of the Chapter DAR School Committee, gave "the school minute" regarding the Kate Duncan Smith School located at Grant, Ala. This school has instituted a policy of no smoking on campus and no gum chewing which they predict will save much in clean-up costs.

Margaret Ann Durham and Nell Norvell served refreshments to Bell, Juanita Brownd, Argen Draper, Ruth Fish, Lois Gilliland, Jones, Knox, Newsom, Rose, Ruga and Robinson.

The next regular meeting will be held Nov. 11 at the Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: When I bake a fruit pie of any kind, the crust is always soggy. The recipe doesn't call for a pre-baked pie crust.

What can I do to solve this problem? — K.H., Omaha Neb.

The answer is simple. Just beat an egg and brush it on the pie crust before adding the filling.

The beaten egg forms a barrier between the pie crust and the filling, which keeps the crust from getting soggy.

The result: a flaky, delicious crust. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: To freshen the kitchen after cooking, drop a few quartered limes in the disposal.

Turn on the disposal and let it run for a minute, then turn it off. —

You can also run some mint leaves, orange or lemon peels, or even some peppermint extract to give the kitchen and disposal a nice aroma.

BANANA MILK SHAKE
Dear Heloise: I only buy a few bananas at a time, but sometimes before I get them used they get a little soft for eating.

So, I use them up by putting a banana in the blender with a cup of cold milk and blend for about 30 seconds.

Sometimes I add some chocolate syrup and have a chocolate banana milkshake. — Lois Young, Somerset, Pa.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: We have three adopted children and know nothing about their original parents. When our son was 34, he had an examination for insurance and discovered his cholesterol reading was 487. The best doctors in Houston couldn't bring it down very much with all sorts of medication. He had a quadruple bypass operation four months later.

He feels great now and is finally going to have a son. We never knew to watch out for cholesterol when he was a child, but he was kept in good health by military doctors. Now I know his cholesterol problem was hereditary and am very worried about my forthcoming grandchild. How can he be protected from his father's fate? I worry about them both. My son, the baby's father, ran the 26-mile New York marathon.

DEAR READER: High cholesterol levels are a major risk factor in causing coronary artery disease, and your son's history is a case in point. Individuals with such high cholesterol levels often have coronary artery disease at an early age, which is why he had to have surgery. If he is to avoid a recurrence of plugged arteries, he will need to do everything he can to limit his risk, which includes keeping his cholesterol level as low as possible, even though it is probably inherited.

Diet, exercise and, in his case, medicines are important in achieving all that can be done. Often a combination of medicines that lower high cholesterol levels is effective when one medication alone is not.

Read about risk factors in my new Special Report 133, Prevention of Angina Pectoris and Heart Attacks, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/133, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

Your grandchild should be tested very early in life for his cholesterol and triglyceride levels, and retested at frequent intervals, to have the child on the best possible program, should the levels be abnormal. Early diet training is important. In inherited situations, or where one parent has early severe disease, it is particularly important to start evaluation and management early in life. The pediatrician seeing the child can help in setting up an early program.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband spent three days in the hospital. They said he had a small bowel obstruction. He was sick three days before he went to the doctor. We thought he had the flu. He started out with his stomach hurting—burning, real bad. He would throw up at night after going to bed. He did this for three nights.

The doctor said an adhesion had wrapped around his small intestine. Can you tell us what causes this and how it can be prevented? If this should happen again, what should he do—stay on liquids or what?

DEAR READER: The most common cause of obstruction of the small intestine is adhesions, scar formation that obstructs the intestine. This is the result of scar formation after a previous operation or from an inflammation in the abdomen. If the adhesions were relieved, and do not recur, he should not have this again. But if he does, the only thing to do is see a doctor as soon as possible. If a segment of the bowel is allowed to become gangrenous, it could be very dangerous.

Whenever a person has vomiting, crampy abdominal pain, failure to pass stools and gas, along with abdominal distention and abdominal tenderness, the probability of intestinal obstruction should be considered until it is ruled out.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I think one of your columns was about my mother's heart condition. She suffers from atrial fibrillation. I believe you said that increases the chance of having a stroke. Since she's already had one stroke, I am concerned about preventing another and wonder what advice you may have for people with this condition. Is there a medication she might consider taking? Is surgery an option?

DEAR READER: Atrial fibrillation means the thin-walled sacs at the top of the heart, called the atria, are not contracting in a rhythmic fashion. They are actually twitching (fibrillating), usually at a rate of nearly 500 per minute. As a result, the atria do not empty completely, and there is an opportunity for blood to stagnate in them and form clots. One of these clots can break loose, flow through the arteries to the brain and cause a stroke.

Studies show that the risk of having a stroke in people with this condition is cut in half if they take aspirin or a medicine that prevents blood clotting, such as Coumadin. If there are no clots, one can't break loose and go to the brain. That does not mean these medicines will guarantee that a stroke will not occur, but it does decrease the risk by half.

I do not know why your mother had a stroke initially, but it is usually recommended that patients who have had a stroke should take aspirin thereafter to help prevent a second stroke. That is true for all patients, not just those who have atrial fibrillation.

Surgery is sometimes indicated when there is severe disease of the arteries in the neck that can lead to a stroke. And it is indicated in certain forms of hemorrhage in the skull that cause a stroke.

The approach to preventing the first or subsequent strokes is discussed in my new Special Report 202, Strokes: Prevention and Recovery, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/202, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

Of course, keeping the blood pressure down and not smoking are essential. Then there are studies that show a good intake of potassium will significantly decrease the risk of a stroke. Fruits and fruit juices such as orange juice are the best source for a good potassium intake.

DEAR DR. LAMB: When I exercise my face becomes hot and scarlet red to the point people comment that I look dangerously ill. I have been physically active my entire life, including moderate amounts of running, biking and swimming. Even a half hour of ping-pong will bring on extreme redness.

I took a first-aid class and read about heatstrokes which result from a malfunction of the body's temperature control system—sweating. When I exercise, my face is dry of sweat. That text said this condition can be life-threatening. Do you think my problem puts me at risk of a heatstroke? Should I avoid exercise?

DEAR READER: First you will need an accurate diagnosis. People who do not sweat (anhidrosis) cannot eliminate body heat satisfactorily. Even exposure to heat while at rest is not tolerated well.

Exercise causes the body to produce heat, and if you cannot get rid of it, your body temperature can rise to dangerous levels. It can cause a heatstroke, even in mild weather if you have exercised vigorously. Check in with a neurologist. I would not want to advise you without knowing if you really have anhidrosis or not.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

DEAR DR. LAMB: After having a Pap smear, I was diagnosed as having atrophy. My doctor recommended estrogen cream. The brochure with the cream is very alarming to read. It states one is likely to get cancer from using it and one should use it only when clearly needed. It says that women who use it after the menopause are apt to get gallbladder disease and need surgery. Other things it mentions are endometrial cancer, damage to the liver with jaundice, bleeding, cancer of the breast. The list just goes on and on.

What do you prescribe for atrophy? I am 71 years old and in good health. What happens if I don't use the estrogen?

DEAR READER: Many people don't seem to realize that often in medicine the doctor must make the recommendation that offers the best chance for improved health—not necessarily perfect health. Hormone replacement can, but often does not, cause a number of complications that one would like to avoid. That is the bad side. On the good side is the prevention of bone degeneration, heart attacks and preventing drying and atrophy of the vagina. The doctor weighs whether the patient is more likely to benefit from taking the medicine versus not taking it.

Also, most of medicines that provide an insert list all the possible things that can happen. It is a lot like the weather man telling you there could be a tornado tomorrow—it might happen, but it isn't likely. So people read all the bad things that could possibly happen, often quite rarely, and lose sight of the usual benefits provided by the medicine.

The atrophy is rather disturbing to women who are still sexually active and can pretty well ruin their sex lives. For those who are no longer sexually active there is the problem of vaginitis with increased vaginal infections and even urinary tract infections.

The use of estrogen replacement or cream if a woman has no problems, and is in the older age group, is much more controversial than estrogen replacement at the time of the menopause. For more information, I'm sending you Special Report 97, The Menopause and Beyond. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/97, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. There is no solid evidence that estrogen replacement with conjugated estrogens causes breast cancer. Most of the inserts on estrogen need to be updated.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a question many women would like answered. Should a woman douche or not? My neighbor tells me that I am making a mistake, that douching can cause infections and even cancer. I can't believe this. How could that possibly be! Please tell me if she is right. You may not be able to answer in the paper, but many of us would like to know.

DEAR READER: Why not? Good health is more important than false modesty. The vagina normally secretes an acid mantle to protect it from bacteria, yeast and even viruses. Douching removes nature's protective barrier.

One study showed that women who douched more than three times a month were 3.5 times as likely to have pelvic inflammatory disease (PID) as women who douched less than once a month. Dr. John Gardner and colleagues at the Uniformed Services University of Health Sciences in Bethesda, Md., found that women who douched more than once a week were four times as likely to have cancer of the cervix as those who did not douche or did not douche that often. Cervical cancer is believed to be caused by certain wart viruses and the acid mantle protects against them.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Herd to host Harvesters for Homecoming clash

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Hereford's football team may have gotten well just in time.

After six straight losses to open the season, the Herd got its first real win in a 29-27 thriller over Randall. The Herd will need that kind of performance and all the momentum they can find to celebrate Homecoming on Friday with a win over Pampa.

Hereford, 2-5 because of Tascosa's forfeit, hosts the 6-1 Harvesters at 7:30 Friday in Whiteface Stadium.

The most impressive thing about Pampa's record is a three-game stretch it had during pre-district. First Pampa beat Class 5A Amarillo High 27-20. Then they lost narrowly, 14-8, in Plainview to the Bulldogs, ranked fifth in Class 4A. Next they knocked off Vernon, ranked second in Class 3A, 14-6.

Since then, the Harvesters have been merely good--beating Tascosa 15-12, Dumas 18-11 and Caprock 43-6.

The Harvesters have impressed Hereford coach Danny Haney.

"Pampa obviously is the front-runner in the district because of their pre-season record: beating Vernon and Amarillo High and playing Plainview close," Haney said.

"They've got a great defense," he said. "They don't do much on offense, but what they do, they do well, making very few mistakes and turnovers."

"Their little quarterback, Tony Cavalier, makes them go--him and the running back Matt Garvin. We've got to contain Cavalier on the outside and stop Garvin on the inside. That's pretty much their 1-2 punch."

Haney added that Pampa throws only "enough to keep you honest."

Their defense is the most impressive part of the team.

"They've allowed very few points," Haney said. "They allowed Amarillo High 14 points, and they were able to hold Vernon to six. Their forcing unit is very good; they're big and strong and come at you really hard."

Haney said that a key to a Hereford win would be how well Hereford is able to throw against Pampa.

"We've got to be able to throw on third down and on first down to keep

(See HERD, Page 7)

Harvesters picked by 15

Hereford will be a 15-point underdog to Pampa Friday, according to the Pigskin Prep rating service. Hereford was an 18-point underdog to Randall. Hereford won 29-27, and the Herd moved up to 21st in Region 1-4A from 25th.

Hereford has a rating of 136.83. Pampa, ranked seventh, has a rating of 154.41.

In the other two District 1-4A games, Borger will be a four-point favorite at home against Randall, and Dumas will be favored by 26 at Caprock.

The district teams, with their ratings and rankings: Borger, 143.29, 16th; Randall, 142.46, 18th; Dumas, 141.87, 19th; and Caprock, 113.27, 34th. Caprock is the fifth-lowest rated team in all of Class 4A.

Blue Jays win wildest World Series game ever

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Don't even try to figure out what happened in Game 4 of the World Series. The players and managers sure couldn't sort it all out.

Calculators were busted, record books were marked in red and the official scorers almost needed some late-inning relief.

When the mist finally settled, the Toronto Blue Jays rallied for an incredible 15-14 victory over the stunned Philadelphia Phillies to take a 3-1 Series lead. Game 5 is scheduled for 7:12 tonight when Game 1 starters Juan Guzman and Curt Schilling will try to make some sense of things.

The Blue Jays scored six runs in the eighth inning, and after that it seemed nearly impossible for even the determined Phillies to come back.

Where to start? The score was tied 7-7 after four innings as starters Todd Stottlemyre and Tommy Greene were just awful. The Phillies took a 12-7 lead with five runs in the fifth, using two bunts and two homers along the way. Then, the Blue Jays started to chip away.

"I knew we would have to score a lot of runs because our bullpen was tired," Phillies manager Jim Fregosi said. "We just didn't score 20 runs."

Everyone else was weary, too, after watching the Phillies relievers blow it again in the postseason. Fregosi used Roger Mason, David West, Larry Andersen, loser Mitch Williams and Bobby Thigpen. The nine relievers in the game combined to allow 16 runs and 21 hits in 13 2-3 innings.

Finally, Mike Timlin and Duane Ward pitched like major leaguers and got the last six outs. The game took a Series record four hours, 14 minutes for nine innings and it all ended at 12:28 a.m. EDT.

It turned out the bullpen phones broke down for Toronto. No doubt it was from overuse.

"It was the wildest game I've been in," manager Cito Gaston said. "It was all happening so fast. Just about everything happened."

Andersen started the eighth with the Phillies leading 14-9 and gave up a single and walk with one out. Dave Hollins misplayed Paul Molitor's hard grounder to third for an error allowing a run to score and sending the runners to second and third.

Williams, 2-0 and two saves and in the NL playoffs despite some shaky pitching, relieved and gave up an RBI single to Tony Fernandez to make it 14-11.

Pat Borders walked and one out later, Rickey Henderson hit a two-run single and Devon White delivered the go-head two-run triple. None of the 62,731 left Veterans Stadium though, realizing they were watching history in the making.

White said he didn't even realize two runners were on base, he just wanted a hit.

The two teams made more records than Frank Sinatra ever dreamed of.

The four-game total of 65 runs broke the mark of 56 set by the Yankees and Cubs in 1932.

The combined 29 runs established a mark for a single Series game, shattering the record of 22 when the Yankees beat the Giants 18-4 in Game 4 in 1936.

It was the first time ever in the Series that each team scored three or more runs in the first inning.

The Blue Jays became only the third team in Series history to rally from a five-run deficit to win; the Phillies scored the most runs and lost.

"It was a nightmare," CBS-TV stat head man Steve Hirdt said.

There were also several remarkable individual performances, particularly by Lenny Dykstra. He hit two homers, a double, walked and drove in four runs. He also scored four runs and now has nine career postseason homers.

White continued his terrific postseason hitting with four RBIs on a single and triple, making him 7-for-17 in the Series. Fernandez had five runs batted in and set a Series record for a shortstop with nine overall.

Milt Thompson also drove in five runs for the Phillies as he and Fernandez came up one short of Bobby Richardson's record in 1960.

It was sort of overlooked, but Tony Castillo got the victory in a game the pitchers must of thought seemed like a workout for spring training.

"I used to think a lot about losses like this," Hollins said. "But not anymore. Too much happened tonight, too fast to break this down to one turning point or another. It seemed every inning was the turning point."

The last time a team rallied from a five-run deficit in the Series was Game 2 in 1956 when Brooklyn beat the Yankees 13-8 after trailing 6-0. Don Larsen started for New York and came back to pitch a perfect game in his next start.

Nothing was close to perfect in Game 4 of this World Series.

Game was worth remembering

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - This was a World Series game that let Little Leaguers take comfort in their own fallibility, a game so beautiful, so ugly, so enthralling and so long it broke records hardly anyone knew existed.

"In baseball history, this game will be remembered forever," Toronto's Dave Stewart said. "From the fans' perspective this was a great game, no matter which side you're on, I was a fan tonight."

No one ever saw a World Series game like Toronto's 15-14 victory Wednesday night over Philadelphia because nothing like this ever happened.

It began in a mist, dragged on in a drizzle and kept going through a downpour, ending after 4 hours, 14 minutes of magic and misery in the cool, dry morning at 12:28 a.m. - the longest and highest-scoring World Series game ever.

There was only one error but there were so many blunders and walks and fat pitches for hitters to feast on that this game resembled nothing less than a sandlot scrap by 12-year-olds.

Toronto took a 3-0 lead in the first. Terrible moans. Philadelphia made it 4-3 in the bottom of the inning. Huge roars. Philly made it 6-3 in the second. Wild screaming. Toronto scored four in the third for a 7-6 lead. Utter silence. Philly tied it in the fourth. Hopeful cheers. Philly jumped ahead 12-7 in the fifth. Thunderous cries. Toronto got two in the sixth, Philly one in the bottom of that inning and another in the seventh for a 14-9 lead.

And then it happened, the ultimate comeback inning, Toronto's six-run eighth, an inning of exquisite torture for the Phillies and grand triumph for the Blue Jays. When Rickey Henderson singled in two runs and Devon White tripled in two more, there was a simultaneous sense of electricity and emptiness by the two sides.

"It was almost like it was going to be 'Nightmare on Elm Street.' For the longest time, it seemed like nobody was going to get anybody out," said Toronto closer Duane Ward, who got the last four outs.

"That was the most bizarre game ever, World Series, Little League, you name it," said Philadelphia catcher Darren Daulton, who hit a two-run homer and was on the receiving end of a lot of bad pitches. "I'll have to watch this one on TV to figure out what happened. Once they went ahead with six runs in the eighth, it was unbelievable."

"I'm not going to sit here and rip my players, but we did not make quality pitches."

That was an understatement. Consider that starter Tommy Greene left after 2 1-3 innings after yielding seven runs on seven hits and four walks. And consider that Philadelphia's so-called closer, Mitch "Wild Thing" Williams gave up three runs on three hits and a walk in just 2-3 of an inning during Toronto's big eighth.

Toronto pitchers weren't much better, starting with Todd Stottlemyre who made his World Series debut memorable for all the wrong reasons. He walked four of the first six Phillies he faced to yield one run, then gave up a bases-loaded triple to Milt Thompson. Lenny Dykstra tapped Stottlemyre for a two-run homer in the second inning, the first of Dykstra's two homers in an incredible four-run, four-RBI show that went to waste.

Yet that wasn't even Stottlemyre's worst moment. In the top of the second, he walked to lead off, then foolishly tried to go to third on a single to shallow center by Roberto Alomar. Stottlemyre had never batted in the majors before, much less run the bases, and he dove into third chin-first, out in more ways than one.

"I blacked out for a moment and didn't know what happened," said Stottlemyre, whose chin was still bleeding after the game. "This was my first World Series start and it sure was not what I expected."

Astros to interview Valentine

HOUSTON (AP) - Former Texas Rangers manager Bobby Valentine says he will interview for the Houston Astros' vacant managerial position.

Valentine said general manager Bob Watson asked him Monday if he is interested in pursuing the position.

The Houston Post, citing a source close to Valentine, reported the former Rangers manager would get an interview within the next few days.

Among other expected to be interviewed by owner Drayton McLane Jr. and Watson are Baltimore Orioles first base coach Davey Lopes, Philadelphia third base coach Larry Bowa and Astros coach Matt Galante.

Valentine resigned Monday as Davey Johnson's third base coach in Cincinnati.

Valentine also has been approached by New York Mets general manager Joe McIlvaine about managing Triple A Norfolk next season, The Dallas Morning News reported, citing baseball sources.

Valentine was fired last summer by the Rangers after nearly seven seasons with the club in which the team never finished higher than second place in the AL West.

them off balance," he said.

"They're pretty quick, but we're quick too, so we match up pretty well there--their defense with our offense."

Hereford's win against Randall hasn't really changed the attitude around the field house, Haney said, because the attitude remained good during the losing streak.

"The win was a great deal for us, but it's just one step on the way to the playoffs," he said, adding that the win has "fortified us, given us confidence."

Haney hopes that confidence, combined with the emotional rise of Homecoming, will help the Herd overcome the Harvesters.

"Homecoming has always been a big week for us," he said. "On Homecomings in the past, our players have risen to the occasion. Some of our best games have been on the Homecoming date."

Injury report--The Herd is "the healthiest we've been in a while," Haney said. No one will be out with an injury. Even comeback Brandon Gearm, out last week with a broken wrist, will play with a cast.

Players of the week--Linebacker Chris Vallejo, offensive guard Ben Celaya and tailback Marquise Brown were selected as the varsity players of the week.

For the sub-varsity teams, the players of the week were Armando Zambrano for the junior varsity; Ralph Claudio for the sophomore team; and John Marty Galan and George Pacheco for the freshmen team.

Also, Haney has given special recognition over the last two weeks to the Herd's senior student trainers, Tommy Denton and Susan Rickman.

Davis may be close to ending losing streak

By The Associated Press
Houston Davis has made winners out of enough teams to know what victory looks like.
But the Panthers just don't seem to be able to experience it themselves, wasting three fourth-quarter chances to win this season as their national-record losing streak has grown to an astonishing 80 games.
Get used to the number, though, because there's a real good chance it will freeze there Saturday when Davis plays Houston Wheatley, another winless team that's played even more pathetically than the Panthers this season.
"If I had to pick a game that says you're here or you're not, this is it," said Davis coach Chuck Arnold. "I can't afford to have a downer."
As far as 0-7 seasons go, Davis' hasn't been so bad. The Panthers have led twice in the fourth quarter and at times have held their own, though never for 48 minutes.

Wheatley's season has been even more forgettable, especially because the Wildcats made the playoffs in 1992.
In a season of lows, their worst moment came when they lost to the junior varsity team at Houston Cypress Falls, a school that opened this fall. That loss may not seem so bad if they become the team Davis finally beats.
The Panthers, who have blown away the previous record of 72 straight defeats held by Iberia (Mo.) High, haven't won since beating Houston Austin 7-0 on Oct. 7, 1985.
They've threatened to snap the streak in three of the last four weeks, but when a team hasn't won in more than eight seasons, they forget how it's done.
"They've been close, heartbreakers," Arnold said. "It's hard to get them back up for the game each week because you get so disappointed. Hopefully, it'll be a little bit easier this week."

Last weekend's loss may have been the most painful because the Panthers led Houston Scarborough 10-0 with six minutes left to play.
Davis' defense began to tire and allowed an 80-yard touchdown drive. A two-point conversion attempt failed, keeping the score 10-6.
The Panthers' offense also stalled, though, and they lined up to punt deep in their own territory, setting up the type of play expected from perennial losers.
"We actually blocked our own punt, so to speak, while going for a reverse," Arnold said. "One or two kids thought it was a fake punt. That boiled down to panic. It was hard to understand, very hard."
Scarborough recovered the ball, scored within a few plays and the streak lives.

The previous week's 21-15 loss to Houston Furr was marred by a pair of controversial calls that led to two of Furr's touchdowns.
One was a punt fumbled by Davis, recovered by Furr, then pulled away again by Davis. Officials said the play was whistled dead when Furr had possession and they went on to score on that drive.
Later, a Furr receiver was given credit for catching a touchdown pass that replays show was juggled into the end zone then dropped.

"I think that's the first time since I've been here that the officiating totally took us out of game. It doesn't take much to take them out emotionally when you're already down," Arnold said.
Two weeks before that defeat, the Panthers had fourth-and-goal from the Cleveland 2 on the game's last play - and were stopped, sealing a 14-10 loss.
"We just didn't get in," Davis said. "We missed a block, we didn't communicate. It's very frustrating."
But Arnold, Davis' third coach during the streak, keeps trying and refuses to give up. He said he can't try harder for this week's game because he and his staff already have been giving their all.

Their one consolation has been that they've begun to get tangible returns for the time investment.
"For somebody outside, it's a little difficult to see the improvement," Arnold said.
"But seeing where we were two years ago and where we were today, we've improved miles and miles - and we've still got a good way to go."
The only way is up and they could be headed there on Saturday.

Rodman wants to undo new 'do

NEW YORK (AP) - Dennis Rodman is sick of his blonde hairdo and tired of nasty comments from his former team.
The free-spirited forward who led the NBA in rebounding the past two seasons has been sporting an eye-catching bleached flat-top during the preseason.
He said Wednesday the "do" won't do much longer.
"I'm going to another color real soon. But it won't be silver and black."
Those are the colors of the San Antonio Spurs, who acquired Rodman from the Detroit Pistons over the summer. The trade - for Sean Elliott - brought an end to Rodman's stormy stay with the Detroit Pistons.

Detroit coach Don Chaney spoke Wednesday in a conference call about the disruptions Rodman caused last season. The All-Star regularly missed practices, drew a suspension and was once found sleeping outside the Pistons' arena with a rifle in his truck.
"There were too many distractions that didn't allow us to compete. Morale-wise, we've cleaned up the Detroit Pistons," Chaney said.
Those comments didn't sit too well with Rodman.
"To hell with them. I helped them win two championships, now I'm the bad guy," he said after the Spurs lost a 95-75 decision to the New York Knicks and dropped to 1-2 in the exhibition season.

"I open my mouth, I tell it like it is."
Rodman had a few other choice words for Chaney, none of which can be printed here. He said he prefers to look ahead to his first season with the Spurs and put his seven-year career with Detroit behind him.
Still, he couldn't stop knocking the Pistons.
"I don't associate with those guys any more. I've got a lot of bad feelings toward that place, their system," Rodman said.
The Spurs can only hope that a change of scenery will bring out the best in Rodman. He is paired along the front line with David Robinson, giving the Spurs one of the best defensive duos in the NBA.

Club members meet for annual fall feast

Members of the Nouvelle Ami Study Club met recently for their annual fall feast and monthly meeting in the home of Kim Rogers.

A drawing for an "anniversary dinner" was held for members whose wedding anniversaries were held in either August, September or October. Charlotte Collier's name was drawn.

Members discussed the annual sale of pumpkin rolls which will be held in November and December. The club's annual Christmas tree raffle was discussed and the theme for the tree was decided. Tickets for the three will be sold during November. The money raised for both the pumpkin rolls sale and the Christmas tree raffle will go to the needy in the local community.

The club's T-shirts were ordered and secret pals were selected.

The fall feast consisted of lasagna, salad, bread sticks, New York cheesecake, strawberry tea and vanilla almond coffee. Tables were decorated with pumpkin candles, corn and fall leaves.

Members present were Teresa Allen, Emily Christie, Kathleen Collier, Krista Farrell, Amanda Gallagher, Dee Hamilton, Jill Harrison, Christie Henson, Twyla Jones, Leah Lee, Becky McDonald, Melanie McNutt, Janet Mercer, Jan Reeve, Rhonda Reeve, Kim Rogers, Kayla Schilling, De'Aun Spain, Shawna Sparkman, Cookie Taylor, Kamille Urbanczyk, Jan Watts, Ronna Watts and Missy Wilcox.

More feminine, classic styles wanted by women

Softer silhouettes and touches of color characterize clothes offered for women this fall.

"It's an evolution," says Lucille Klein, J.C. Penney's fashion director. "We've had structured looks with their squared shoulders and sharp lines for several years. But women have become more comfortable in the work force. They're at ease expressing themselves with more feminine, classic styles."

A case in point might be a rich red suit by Jacqueline Ferrar, available at Penney's. It's softened by a classic dress-up detail: Black velvet trim on a notched collar and buttons. The store also offers a soft ruffled blouse by Rafferty, which it shows paired with pants and a long vest in green plaid from Worthington.

A jaunty variation on the theme is a red riding jacket with black velveteen trim for Chaus, which can be worn with velveteen jodphurs.

A soft and bright ensemble from Theomiles includes a cable-knit sweater with matching wrap skirt and leggings, either in pastels or red. This new label from Leslie Fay also offers a range of classic jackets, trousers, dresses sportswear and evening clothes.

Soft but tailored fare from Jones New York include wide-leg trousers and long belted vest in neutral tones.

Women's health

Anorexia nervosa and bulimia are two serious eating disorders that have become epidemics in the United States. If you answer "yes" to all or most of the questions listed below, you may be at serious risk:

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Peter Falk's latest film has him spanning the decades.

In the movie "Roommates," the actor plays a Polish baker whose story begins at age 77, when he takes in his orphaned 5-year-old grandson.

"The old man insists he's going to raise the kid," though the boy's aunts and uncles oppose the idea, Falk said on location Friday.

Years later, the two become roommates.

"The kid is in medical school," Falk said. "The grandfather is 96 years old and looking for a job."

The 66-year-old star of "Columbo" fame endures hours at the makeup table to look as old as 106. The film also stars Ellen Burstyn, Julianne Moore and D.B. Sweeney.

-Are you a high achiever, a perfectionist?

-Do you exercise excessively?

-Are you preoccupied with food and dieting?

-Do you consider yourself fat even though friends and family say you are thin?

-Do you turn to food for comfort?

-Have you stopped menstruating?

Anorexia nervosa is the result of a dangerous pattern of restricted eating and extreme weight loss. It can begin innocently with a simple diet and spin dangerously out of control. Some anorexics restrict their diets to 200 calories a day. Most of them are severely underweight and malnourished; even so, they think of themselves as fat.

Bulimia is characterized by a cycle of bingeing--eating enormous amounts of food at one time--and then purging--vomiting or using laxatives to rid the body of the calories. Most bulimics are hard to detect; they are usually close to normal body weight and are not undernourished.

The results of anorexia and bulimia are disastrous, and, when left untreated, can lead to death. Among other complications, anorexia causes brittle bones, erratic heartbeats, shrinking of body organs--including the brain--and death. Bulimia can cause bleeding of the esophagus and a ruptured stomach and may exacerbate or foster the onset of latent diabetes. Both anorexics and bulimics can suffer from insomnia, fatigue and missed menstrual periods.

Although experts are not sure of the exact causes of these eating disorders, they do know that the underlying factor is psychological. That means that if someone you know is--or if you are--suffering from one or both of these diseases, you or she must get professional help to be cured.

The good news is that with appropriate treatment, you, or someone you know, can get better.
