Building permits dip in '89

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

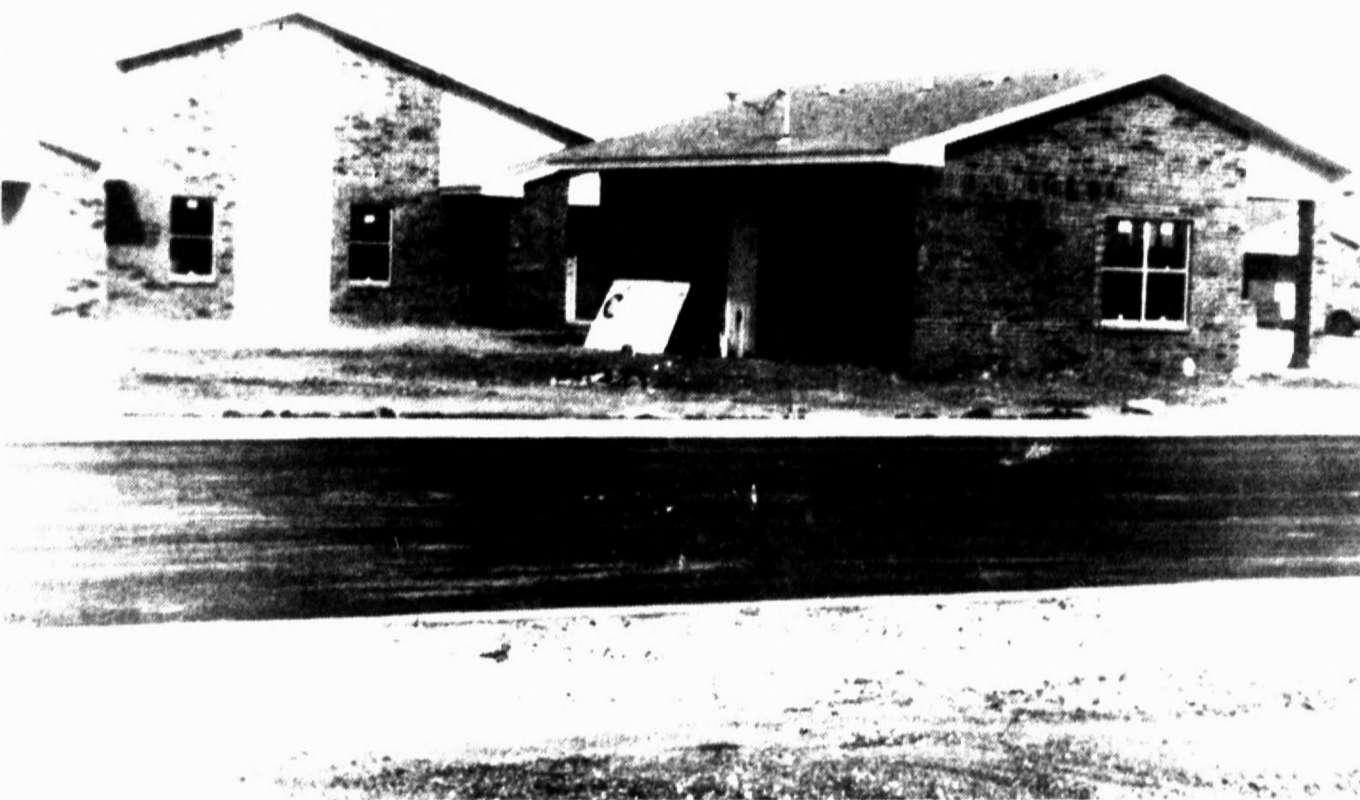

With only one new home built during the year, the 1989 building permit total in Hereford dropped by more than $1 million over the 1988 total.

A total of 128 building permits were issued in 1989 for a total of $2,208,730. The previous year's total was $3,419,810 when 173 permits were issued.

August was the top month for permits this past year with 12 permits issued for a total of $754,950. Leading the way in August was the Rick Brown apartments for a sum of $663,100.

Other large commercial permits during the year included renovation and remodeling for the AeroSpan Feeder facilities at $516,360, and the Birdsong medical clinic at $100,000. The lone new residence was listed at $118,000.

The building permit record was set in 1985 when 168 permits totalled a whopping $11,840,861. The '80s also recorded the third best building year at $6,117,955 in 1987. Five of the top years were recorded in the '70s.

Largest building permit for 1989

The Rick Brown apartments, nearing completion just east of the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, accounted for the largest building permit issued in 1989: $663,100. Building permits for 1989 totalled $2.2 million, and included only one new residence.

City building permit records go back to 1955 and yearly totals have ranged from a low of $831,450 in 1958 to the record $11.8 million in 1985. The number of permits have been recorded since 1975 and these range from 99 in 1982 to 305 in 1977.

The permit totals average $3.5 million a year. In the '80s, the average total was $3.8 million a year.

Two jailed on drug charges

Two Hereford men were arrested on drug charges over the weekend after investigations by the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office and the Hereford Police Department.

Toby Torres Jr., 22, of Hereford, is free on $10,000 bond after being charged with possession of cocaine.

Police obtained a search warrant for a house at Bradley and Campbell streets in Hereford after police learned that cocaine was allegedly being sold from the house.

Five members of the Special Reaction Team (SRT) executed the warrant at about 11 p.m. Saturday. The SRT team searched the residence and found about three grams of cocaine in the house.

Torres was not at home when the warrant was served, but turned himself in on Sunday at the Police Department. Torres immediately made the $10,000 bond.

Earlier on Saturday, the SRT helped Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputies execute a search and arrest warrant in the 100 block of Star.

The SRT stood by as deputies searched the residence and found over a pound of marijuana, valued at about $1,000.

Joe Dimas Ochoa, 30, was charged with possession of over four ounces and under five pounds of marijuana. He remains in Deaf Smith County Jail in lieu of $7,500 bond.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says retirement is when you're not dead yet, but you have all the symptoms.

Actor George Burns has a good attitude about growing old. The 93-year-old comedian says "Anybody who can still do at 60 what he was doing at 20, wasn't doing much at 20."

Rumors continue to float around Hereford about the relocating of the Department of Energy in Deaf Smith County. Recently there was a report that DOE was moving in equipment at the building on 15th and US-385. A quick check revealed they were moving office equipment out, not in.

The Canyon News reported Sunday that rumors were going around there that the Nevada site was unsuitable as a nuclear waste repository, and that U.S. Rep. Bill Sarpalius, in his predictions for the 1990s, said he expects to see DOE return for more tests in Deaf Smith County.

A DOE spokesman, however, told a Canyon newsman that DOE still plans to proceed with scientific study in Nevada as directed by Congress. The state of Nevada has filed suit against DOE, asking that it discontinue the studies, and has also denied necessary permits to the DOE.

We're not sure what Sarpalius said but, according to his aide, the statement was based on "a concern that people think the repository studies are behind us, but that's not necessarily the case."

We don't think it is likely that DOE will return to Deaf Smith County, but it's highly likely that we will continue to hear rumors.

The amount of sleep required by the average person is just five minutes more.

Say it isn't so...a survey of high school students by a national magazine was recently released. The survey asked 1,000 students how far they would stretch ethical standards in order to get ahead in the business world.

The findings were startling, and the news magazine suggested that unless maturity changes the thought process--there will be a lot of work in the future for criminal lawyers.

When asked if they would be willing to face six-months probation on an illegal deal in which they made $10 million, 59 percent of the students said either "definitely yes" or "maybe."

--36 percent said it would be okay to cheat in order to pass a certification test.

--67 percent said they would inflate their business expense reports.

--50 percent would exaggerate on an insurance claim report.

--66 percent would tell a lie to achieve a business objective.

--40 percent would accept a gift worth more than $100 from a supplier; 23 percent would accept $500 cash from a supplier, and 42 percent would take a free vacation from a supplier.

Brock honored at reception

Gene Brock, Hereford educator and Kiwanis Key Club advisor, was presented a "Key of Honor" from the Texas-Oklahoma District of Kiwanis International here Saturday during a special open-house meeting at the Community Center.

Brock, longtime advisor and leader of Key Club, a high school youth organization, was cited by a number of Kiwanians and Key Club members during a testimonial program Saturday. Brock is vocational adjustment coordinator at Hereford High School and has been faculty advisor for Key Club for more than 20 years.

Gerald Powell of Tulsa, a member of the Key Club T-O District board, announced that the district is nominating Brock for the International Key of Honor award, the highest tribute paid to Kiwanians. Local community leaders have sent letters of recommendation. Brock has been active in the Satellite Center and Camp Wigwam over the years and is an ordained minister.

National report card: a little better in reading

WASHINGTON (AP) - Schoolchildren are reading a little better than they did in 1971, but they still can't write, the Nation's Report Card indicates.

The report found only "subtle changes in reading performance at the national level" since the first reading assessment in 1971. There was no improvement in an already low writing performance.

Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos released the gloomy findings today.

The Nation's Report Card was prepared by the congressionally mandated National Assessment of Educational Progress, a project of the National Center for Education Statistics and the only nationally representative and continuing assessment of what America's students know and can do in various subject areas.

The Reading Report Card found some improvement among students age 9, 13 and 17, the three age groups periodically tested. A study found that both 9- and 17-year-olds were reading significantly better in 1988 than they were in 1971, and 13-year-olds were reading as well as in 1971.

"The overall picture suggests a nation of students who were reading better than their counterparts did in 1971, but it must be emphasized that the progress is slight and could be short-lived," the report said.

Foundation seeks grant candidates

Three-year-old John risked losing an eye to a serious infection because his mother could not afford the costly surgery that would save his sight. Ruth, a 58-year-old widow, was legally blind. Her meager savings made it impossible for her to buy a special optical appliance that would increase her vision by 60 percent and enable her to live independently.

Fortunately, John, Ruth and others like them found the help they needed through the Pearle Vision Foundation, a non-profit charitable foundation dedicated to eyecare assistance for the treatment of vision disorders as well as research and education on eyecare. Applications for grants are accepted and reviewed by the Pearle Vision Foundation on an ongoing basis. "No one should have to live with a vision problem simply because he or she cannot afford treatment and has nowhere to turn for help," said Debbie Tippett, the Foundation's vice president of administration. "The Foundation assists such people--those with treatable vision disorders who have slipped through the cracks financially. They cannot pay for treatment on their own, yet they do not qualify for aid through routine channels."

So far this year, the Pearle Vision Foundation has awarded grants ranging from surgery and visual-aid computers to corrective eyewear.

To qualify for a grant, candidates must meet certain medical and economic requirements. First, all applicants must have a treatable vision disorder that can be significantly improved.

Second, candidates must demonstrate that they have exhausted their search for financial assistance from existing channels of aid, such as Medicaid, Medicare or community charitable organizations.

Finally, the Pearle Vision Foundation requires a second party confirmation--someone who can verify the condition and financial status of the applicant's eye doctor, family physician, clergyman or social worker.

Start-up funds for the Foundation were provided by Pearle, Inc., in the form of a 10-year commitment, with a guaranteed minimum contribution during its first three years.

Additional funds are being raised by Pearle through the sale of a fine-grade lens cleaning cloth for the care of eyeglass and sunglass lenses. Pearle donates net proceeds from the cloth purchases directly to the Pearle Vision Foundation.

To obtain a grant application form, or to make a contribution, write: Pearle Vision Foundation, Attn: Manager of Administration, 2534 Royal Lane, Dallas, Texas 75229.

Hints from Heloise

BAKING SODA

Dear Readers: As most of you know, I think baking soda is just great. My pamphlet, Heloise's Best Baking Soda Hints, will show you some of its many uses. Send $1 and a stamped (45 cents), self-addressed, legal-sized envelope to Heloise/Baking Soda, P.O. Box 19765, Irvine, CA 92713. — Heloise

DRIED FLORAL ARRANGEMENTS

Dear Heloise: After many years of watching my cats destroy my dried floral arrangements (they especially liked the ones with baby's breath), I finally found a solution: I spray them with hair spray and then sprinkle them with white ground pepper. One taste of this has proven effective in keeping the cats away. — Carole Morell, Norwich, Conn.

HAM BONE

Dear Heloise: When you have leftover ham on the bone, place the bone in a large pot and cover it with water. Bring this to a boil and boil until all the meat falls off, then cool and skim off the fat. Place the ham and broth into small individual containers and freeze. These can be used to season beans, vegetables and a whole lot more. — Mrs. B. Newman, Camden, S.C.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am another one who "never thought I'd be writing," but today I reached the boiling point when I read about people who eat their way through the grocery stores. (A few grapes here, a Bing cherry there, a handful of nuts, etc.)

We operate a small but elegant country inn and restaurant in Pennsylvania. Over the years we have had customers help themselves not only to the ashtrays, salt shakers and towels, but also silk flower arrangements, Christmas decorations, valuable paintings and, today, an antique soap dish from the ladies' powder room. Many of these items are gifts from friends and customers and have sentimental value. We treasure these knickknacks collected over the years.

Why don't customers realize that we put nice things around to make them feel at home, not so they can take them? I wonder how they would feel if house guests walked off with tea towels, pillow cases and silverware? Please, Ann, do all small innkeepers a favor and print this letter. -- Ripped Off in Wycombe, Pa.

DEAR PA.: Not only do the small innkeepers suffer from this problem. The large chains sustain losses that run into millions of dollars every year. Guests steal bed linens, pillows, bath mats, lamps, pictures off the wall, trays, dishes, TV sets, coffee tables, anything that isn't nailed to the floor.

Some hotels have begun to secure lamps and porcelain objects of art with nuts and bolts. The truth is that we all pay for thievery in terms of higher room rates. Nothing is for nothing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For two years I have been dating a man whose former wife manages his very successful business. "Chet" and "Lila" have been divorced for 13 years. He hired her four years ago because (in his words) she is one of the most competent and smartest women he's ever known and he trusts her implicitly.

I am not allowed to visit Chet at his office because he says Lila still cares for him and my presence upsets her.

I should tell you that Lila remarried after their divorce, but that marriage didn't work out, either.

There is no man in her life at present.

It is bad enough that I am not allowed in my fiance's office, but now there is more to contend with. He was told me I should not plan on attending any office functions, including the annual convention that takes place in another city.

For a while I was able to accept all this, but since I've been told I cannot go to the convention I've been feeling insecure and blue. We have been arguing about Lila, and I am beginning to feel threatened by her.

Chet says I'm foolish and that I have an ego problem. According to him, if I weren't so insecure none of this would bother me. Is Chet right or am I justified in feeling as I do? - No City No State

DEAR NO CITY: Eventually Chet is going to have to decide who is more important to him, you or Lila. In my opinion you'd be smart to say, "Goodbye, dear. Call me when you have replaced Lila. If I'm not married by then, maybe we can have dinner."

DEAR READERS: My laugh for the day may be yours, too. Credit Fred Allen: English coffee tastes like water that has been squeezed out of a wet sleeve.

An alcohol problem? How can you help yourself or someone you love? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. Lady Whitefaces lead Herd teams

ESPN, the all-sports cable network, has made a big deal over the past few years about its "Big Monday" schedule with three major college basketball games being televised in one night.

Hereford Whiteface basketball teams held their own version Monday with 15 games involving every team except the sophomore boys against an array of opponents from Valleyview Junior High to the Estacado Matadors.

In varsity games played at Whiteface Gymnasium, the Lady Whitefaces topped Estacado, 64-52, while the Herd dropped a 65-60 decision to the Mats in the boys game.

Hereford swept Estacado in the junior varsity contests played at the HHS Gym, taking the boys game, 60-57, while the girls coasted to a 51-22 victory.

The Herd freshman squads took on Randall with the boys Maroon pulling out a 58-57 win while the boys White lost, 52-42, in games played at Stanton and the frosh girls fell, 43-30, at Randall.

In eighth-grade action, the girls White team scored the only win, 34-27, in overtime on the road. The girls Maroon dropped a 23-17 decision at Valleyview while the boys Maroon took a 75-30 drubbing and the boys White lost, 38-28, at the HJH Gym.

The seventh graders gained an even split with the Vikings as the boys Maroon won, 35-22, and the boys White claimed a 28-22 win at home while the girls Maroon lost, 34-14, and the girls White fell, 25-21, at Valleyview.

Estacado 65, Herd 60

Missed opportunities and turnovers at critical times plagued the Herd through most of the game as the Matadors outscored Hereford 13-5 over the last four minutes to claim the win.

Hereford held the early lead before Estacado got its running game in gear to take a 15-13 advantage at the end of the first quarter.

The Herd was able to slow the tempo down a bit during the second period and pulled into a 30-30 tie with about a minute-and-a-half remaining.

At that point Hereford lost its ability to control the ball and the Mats converted three turnovers into easy baskets, taking a 38-30 into halftime.

Estacado kept the pressure on early in the third quarter with a 6-2 run to extend the margin to 44-32. Hereford was able to slow the pace down again went on a streak of its own, outscoring the visitors 15-6 over the rest of the period to trail by three at 50-47.

The Herd continued the rally midway through the final period, taking a 55-52 lead with just over four minutes left in the game.

Estacado took over from there, scoring 13 of the game's final 18 points to seal the win.

"We just had too many turnovers," Herd Coach Jimmy Thomas said. "We missed some wide-open shots and had some mental errors that we don't normally have and it killed us."

Thomas added that the Herd's ability to overcome the 12-point deficit was a high mark, but failure to hold the lead was disappointing.

Hereford was led by Jason Walterscheid and Russell Backus with 17 points each. The pair matched almost identical scoring lines as each hit three two-point shots, three three-pointers and a pair of free throws.

Matt Bromlow and Daniel Garcia added nine points apiece for the Herd while Chuck Lemons had four and Dee Nall, Leo Brown and Chad Schroeder two apiece.

Estacado placed three players in double figures, led by Andre Brooks with 20 with Michael Irvin adding 17 and Ricky Smith 13.

The loss dropped the Herd to 6-11 on the season and 2-4 in District 1-4A competition.

Estacado's man-to-man defense proved no match for Hereford's inside game. Shantel Cornelius pumped in eight points in the first quarter and Cande Robbins six as the Lady Whitefaces built the lead to 14-8 with three minutes remaining in the period.

Estacado switched to a zone defense quickly closed the margin to 14-11 before Hereford scored the final basket of the opening quarter on Robbins' six-footer at the buzzer.

The Lady Matadors matched Hereford point-for-point in the second period as Patrice Conwright connected for 10 of Estacado's 12 while the Herd tried to establish its outside shooting.

The Hereford guards heated up during the third quarter as Stacy White hit two three-pointers and Brienna Townsend one as the pair combined for 11 of 16 Herd points to extend the lead to 44-33.

The Lady Whitefaces took firm control of the game in the fourth quarter, scoring the first four points and keeping the lead at 15 for most of the period. Estacado was never able to move closer than 11.

"We were able to run all over them early when they were in the man defense," Coach Dickie Faught said. "Then they jumped into a 2-3 zone on us and we kept trying to force it inside. For a while, we weren't taking very good shots and Estacado got the rebounds and was able to get close."

"We were able to adjust a little bit before halftime," Faught added, "and then we started hitting from outside, which was what we needed to do."

Hereford produced one of its more balanced scoring nights of the season with four players reaching double figures. Cornelius led with 18 with White adding 15, including three treys. Robbins finished the night with 12 points while Townsend matched her season high with 11. Chandra Brown scored five points for Hereford with Donna Grotegut getting two and Patricia Martinez one.

Faught said the spread-out scoring was something the team has been trying Blake Buckley took over the scoring duties in the second period, pumping in 10 points as the Herd went on an 18-6 tear to close out the half.

The Matadors shaved a point off the Herd lead in the third before scoring 20 of the first 26 points in the final period and closing the margin to two.

Sanderson finished with 18 points for the Herd to lead all scorers while Buckley had 14. Tijerina closed the night with eight point with Chris Blair and Miguel Casas adding six each, Chris Tardy three, Robbie Greenawalt and Brady Wilson two apiece and Ben Weatherly and Todd Selman one each.

Estacado was led by Edgar Ramos with 16 points and Marcus Whitehead with 15.

The win gives the Herd JV an 8-4 overall mark and a 5-1 record against 1-4A teams.

Lady Whiteface JV 51, Estacado 22
Hereford had little trouble as the Lady Whiteface JV controlled the game almost from the outset.

The Herd built a 15-9 advantage at the end of the first quarter and upped the lead to 27-16 by halftime.

The Hereford defense took over in the final two periods, allowing Estacado only six points in the second half.

Melinda Holmes scored 18 points for the Herd to lead the scoring and was the only player in double figures. Jennifer Hicks added eight points for Hereford while Lori Sanders had six, Brek Binder five and Roxann Torres four. Jayme Moore, Jennifer Howell, Teresa Baker and Brenna Reinauer all scored two point while Cassie Brooks and Lindsay Radford had one apiece.

Estacado was led by Tonya Brown with six points and Sondra Judie with five.

Frosh boys Maroon 58, Randall 57
Jason Paetzold hit a driving layup with five seconds left to give the Herd its third win of the season over the Raiders.

The game went back and forth all night with the Herd's 32-26 lead at the half being the largest difference in the contest.

Michael Melendrez led all scorers with 17 points for the Herd while Eric Sims and Greg Coplen reached double figures with 10 each. Paetzold finished with eight points with Chad Sandoval adding five and Kyle Hansen four while Ruben Gutierrez and Shawn Fogo scored two each.

Randall also had three players reach double digits, led by Tim Cox with 16 while Bill Rexrode had 12 and Robert Beene had 10.

Randall 52, Frosh boys White 42
Randall fought its way to a 26-24 halftime lead and then steadily added to the margin in the second half.

Hereford had nine of its 11 players get into the scoring column, led by Danny Eberly's nine points. Kirk Self popped for seven with Jason Tatarevich and Brad Lemons getting six apiece. Richard Wilbanks and Drew Radford added four apiece while Cameron Bell had three, Chris Woodard two and Tim Burkhalter one.

Randall was led by Chad Hooker with 11 points and Mike Hulén with 10.

Randall 43, Frosh girls 30
Randall jumped out to a 16-6 lead at the end of the first quarter and Hereford never could make up the difference.

The Herd frosh played the Raiders even over most of the final three quarters, being outscored by only three points the rest of the way.

Hereford was led by Claudia Ramirez with nine points while Brandie Webb added five. Jill Robinson and Kathy Hernandez posted four points each for the Herd with Misty Peabody, Traci Deckard and Joanna Redelsperger scoring two apiece.

Randall's Trina Spruill led all scorers with 15 points.

Valleyview 75, 8th boys Maroon 30
The Vikings routed Hereford for the second time this season, racing out to a 22-8 lead at the end of the first quarter.

The 14 points was as close as the Herd would be the rest of the way as Valleyview added at least nine points to the margin each of the last three periods.

Hereford was led by Andrew Tijerina and Wade Johnson with eight points each. Robin Simons added six for the Herd while Jeremy Blair, Mark Kuper, Omar Achley and Chad Carlile scored two apiece.

Valleyview had four players in double figures, led by Danny Reep with 17 points.

Valleyview 38, 8th boys White 29

Valleyview broke loose with a 14-3 run in the final period to take a come-from-behind win.

Hereford had trailed by as much as six points in the first half before (please see HERD HOOPS, Page 5)

Gonzales paces Herd all-state grid selections

BENNY GONZALES
First-Team All-State
Offensive Guard

ANTHONY TIJERINA
Second-Team All-State
Offensive Tackle

RUSSELL BACKUS
Third-Team All-State
Wide Receiver

The Hereford Whitefaces closed out the post-season honors by taking three spots on the Texas Sports Writers Association Class 4A All-State Football Team.

Offensive linemen Benny Gonzales and Anthony Tijerina along with wide receiver Russell Backus were named to the team, which was announced Sunday.

Gonzales was listed as a first team guard while Tijerina made the second team at tackle and Backus made the third team.

Gonzales was also second in balloting for Class 4A player of the year.

Gonzales and Tijerina anchored the line that helped the Herd score 28.3 points and gain 366 yards per game in eleven games.

Gonzales had 52 "pancakes" (blocking his opposing defensive lineman to the ground) and 30 plays where he put a linebacker in the grass while being credited with 38 great plays.

Tijerina led the Herd in pancakes with 60 and in great plays with 46 while putting 19 linebackers in the grass.

The pair allowed only two quarterback sacks apiece in 135 passing attempts.

Backus led the Herd with 45 pass receptions for 788 yards and 10 touchdowns. His yardage total also was the highest in District 1-4A.

Herd Coach Don Cumpton said the selections were more than individual honors.

"That's an honor for those three," Cumpton said, "but it's also an honor for our program and our whole team because they had to have some help from the other kids."

Cumpton added that Gonzales' selection was particularly pleasing.

"Benny being first team -- I think that's a great honor for anybody," he added, "but I'm pleased for him because he's an outstanding person; just a quality young man."

"And Benny being second in the voting for the 4A player of the year is something," he added, "especially for a lineman. Somebody noticed him."

Of his other two all-stars Cumpton said, "Anthony's started for us for two years and done a great job and then Russell's amazing in the things he can do. He just makes the plays when you have to make them."

Cumpton added that the three selections continues what is becoming an almost yearly occurrence for the program in the last half of the decade.

"In '86 we had four and last year we had two," he said.

"We've had nine all-state players since we've gone back to 4A (in 1986), and four of them have been linemen. We've had four linemen, two wide receivers, two defensive backs and a linebacker."

Lemons plans to retire

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Oklahoma City University coach Abe Lemons, whose coaching career has spanned nearly 35 years, says he is "not really doing that good a job," and plans to retire when his contract expires in June.

Lemons, 67, has a career coaching record of 586-335, but is as well-known for his wit as for his coaching abilities. He said he knew it was time to retire "when I saw my team play."

"I'm not gonna make 600 wins," Lemons said Monday. "But you say six and then you want seven. I'm not really doing that good a job. I feel I've slipped. You need somebody who can tolerate a team making 28 turnovers and not mentioning it."

Lemons started his coaching career with Oklahoma City in 1955 and stayed there 18 years, taking the Chiefs to the NCAA tournament six times and to the National Invitation Tournament twice.

He then coached three years at Pan American University, now Texas-Pan American, before going to Texas for six years. There, he coached the Longhorns to the NIT Championship in 1978, an NCAA appearance in 1979 and another NIT appearance in 1980.

He returned to Oklahoma City in 1983. After two losing seasons, the Chiefs left the NCAA to compete in the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association. They went undefeated in 1986-87 before losing in the NAIA Tournament. Last year's team went 12-14, only the fifth losing year in Lemons' coaching career.

Lemons said he would continue to work at basketball clinics and with his shoe contract. Otherwise, he said, he had no other plans.

"I'll be in the mall walking with the guys," Lemons said.

NCAA eligibility debate hot as ever

DALLAS (AP) - Seven years after it started, the NCAA's racially heated struggle over college entrance exams and black athletes is hotter than ever. "Hopefully, we will not say, 'You cannot respond to the challenge of 700 on the college boards - we don't have enough confidence in you,'" Penn State football coach Joe Paterno said. "Paterno is all wet," responded Dr. Edward Fort, chancellor of North Carolina A&T. "He's talking nonsense."

An acrimonious day of debate and confused parliamentary maneuvering in the 84th, NCAA Convention produced a modification Monday of the controversial Proposition 42 that delegates adopted a year ago. Thus,

"partial qualifiers" under Proposition 48, the freshman eligibility rule, can get need-based scholarship aid their freshmen year as long as the same aid is available to non-athletes.

Before Monday, Proposition 42 would have denied any kind of aid to partial qualifiers. Black coaches and educators, who failed in moves to either delay Proposition 42 or abolish it, accepted the half-victory. But they and the many white educators who sided with them agreed the struggle will continue at the 1991 convention.

"I think we'll see an attempt next year to do the same thing again, or some variation," said Fort. "I don't think the fight ... has been totally ended with what happened today." By a 192-133 vote, Division I schools decided that "partial qualifiers" under Proposition 48 can have the need-based aid while still not playing or practicing their freshman year. And they would have only three years of eligibility.

Prior to 42, partial qualifiers could receive full athletic scholarships while sitting out.

Most Proposition 48 casualties are black, and the heart of the issue are minimum scores required on the ACT and SAT tests. Numerous studies, as well as hard data, indicate the tests are racially and culturally biased. "I will continue to fight Proposition 42 because I think it's wrong morally," Fort said.

Earlier Monday, delegates voted down a proposal to restore to 30 the number of football scholarships upper division schools can give each year. The current cap of 25 per year and 95 overall puts schools whose numbers are depleted in a tough spot, they argued without success.

More than 2,000 delegates from all three divisions met together today in what they hoped would wrap up the convention.

Topping today's agenda were an array of potentially controversial items, led by drug-testing and the push by the Presidents Commission to cut back on football and basketball. Several drug policies measures would call for year-round testing, a one-year ban for a first offense and a lifetime ban for a second.

The Presidents Commission, citing surveys that athletes spend too much time in sports, had proposals to shorten the basketball season and allow only 25 games instead of the present 28. Opponents were expected to offer compromise amendments on those measures as well as one to cut spring football practice from 20 days to 10.

Paterno, who helped lead the original fight in 1983 for Proposition 48, once again came directly into conflict with black educators who in turn accused him "implying he knows our kids better than we know our kids."

"In my experience dealing with blacks - and basically this is a problem as to whether we're being fair to blacks - my experience with blacks in sports and entertainment, they have proven when given an opportunity that they can compete and be better," Paterno said.

"They've competed in a world where they had to be better than whites, not as good as whites, in order to be successful. Any time they've had a challenge, they've responded to it. Hopefully, we will not say, 'You cannot respond to the challenge of 700 on the college boards - we don't have enough confidence in you.'"

Speaker after speaker delivered emotionally tinged arguments. Many white educators, citing a lack of data on Proposition 48 results as well as the unreliability of standardized tests, lined up with the blacks.

But it was Paterno on center stage. If Proposition 42 were abolished, he said, "The message that will go out to those youngsters is this: You don't really have to study because there's a back door. If you're good enough, run fast enough, if you can catch the ball and throw it, if you can jump, you're going to get in. We're not going to keep you out."

As scattered applause went through the hall, E.M. Jones, faculty representative from Grambling, spoke.

"Since I've been black for 44 years," he said, pausing while laughter replaced applause, "I can say without fear of contradiction that students who are allowed to enter through the back door, as it's been stated ... often excel."

Jones said many delegates, both black and white, "... whether we elect to admit it or not, have been allowed to make strides by coming through some kind of back door."

"If elimination of 42 is considered a back door, so be it - as long as a youngster is given the opportunity to at least walk through the hallowed doors and see what an education can mean," Jones said.

"I accept Proposition 48," said Fort. "But to assert that we're ripping off student-athletes by not supporting 42 is nonsense. Absolute nonsense. As a matter of fact, the opposite is correct. Paterno is wrong."

Some speakers noted that each school would still have the same number of scholarships to give, and that excluding poor students creates opportunities for good students.

"Do we give that scholarship to the player with a 600 SAT who 80 percent of the time is exploited and doesn't graduate?" said Gary Roberts of Tulane. "Or do we give that scholarship to the kid who's not quite as good a ballplayer but who has a 1,000 SAT?"

"If we mean what we say, that our system is to provide educational opportunities to those kids who can take advantage of it, I would rather give the scholarship to the black student with the 900 SAT who scores 10 points a game, instead of the student who has a 600 SAT and scores 30."

In what seemed at times a comedy of errors, schools first voted 243-73 to make a significant change in another part of Proposition 48 - allowing athletes who have made real progress toward a degree after four years to have an extra year of eligibility.

But after passing it, they reconsidered and voted it down 199-125.

"Coaches could tell kids they will definitely get four years of eligibility," said Thomas Hearn, chancellor at Wake Forest. "And that would be a disastrous message at this time."

Magic tricks Spurs

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

First, there was David, whose victory over Goliath will stand forever as the greatest upset in history. Now there is the Orlando Magic, giving new meaning to the term giant-killer.

The NBA expansion team has won just 10 games. But five have come at the expense of division leaders.

The latest, a 111-102 victory Monday night over the San Antonio Spurs, had some of the Magic laughing about the absurdity of it. But Spurs coach Larry Brown doesn't think of the Orlando entry as a joke.

"We've got to line up more of those division leaders," Orlando's Mark Acres said after San Antonio joined New York, Chicago, Utah and the Los Angeles Lakers on the list of fallen behemoths.

"We can beat those teams," Acres added with a laugh.

Brown, whose Spurs lead the Midwest Division, said Orlando is winning games against difficult opposition by remaining competitive even in the later stages of its losses.

"We didn't have an off-night," he said. "They just outplayed us. It doesn't surprise me one bit."

The Spurs' David Robinson said winning in Orlando, where the Magic is 7-9 despite an overall 10-23 record, is not an easy task.

"The crowd was a factor," he said of the 15,077 who saw the game in the sold-out Orlando Arena. "Usually, we play well on the road. But they really got pumped up."

Elsewhere, it was Dallas 110, Seattle 96; Milwaukee 126, Charlotte 113; Portland 108, Sacramento 96; Philadelphia 120, Indiana 116, and Golden State 139, Denver 122.

Orlando's Scott Skiles hit a key 3-point shot and Otis Smith sank five free throws in the final 1:09 as the Magic ended an eight-game losing streak. The victory was only the third-all over division leaders, of course - in the last 19 games.

Reggie Theus led Orlando with 23 points and Smith, averaging 19 in his last 13 games, came off the bench to score 21.

Psoriasis sufferers should know facts

While virtually everyone has suffered the embarrassment of an unsightly blemish on a visible portion of the body, few of us can imagine the despair of the more than five million Americans who suffer from psoriasis. If you, or someone you know suffers from this skin disease, there are steps you can take to minimize the physical and emotional discomfort.

The National Psoriasis Foundation offers these tips to help you cope with psoriasis:

1. Take advantage of the positive results sunlight has in the treatment of some psoriasis. Be sure to use a sunscreen that will allow the beneficial rays to reach your skin while filtering out the damaging, burning rays.

2. Keep your skin well-lubricated. Moisturizers, creams and vaseline-like topical treatments will keep your skin supple, making it more receptive to treatment.

3. Minimize the embarrassment of visible psoriasis by investigating cosmetic cover-ups or masking agents.

4. Avoid emotionally stressful situations and learn to deal with the stress of your psoriasis. "Stress is a significant factor in psoriasis, and the disease in itself is a cause of stress," says Dr. Iona Ginsburg, a consultation-liaison psychiatrist with Dermatology Service at New York's Presbyterian Hospital. "As stress can provoke an attack, part of managing psoriasis is learning to manage the feelings of anger and frustration the disease provokes."

5. Investigate new treatment options. Studies were recently conducted by Irving Katz, M.D., clinical professor of dermatology, University of Minnesota Medical School, using a new dosing regimen with Diprolene Ointment. The treatment requires only three applications of Diprolene Ointment per week, and was found to be highly effective in relieving the symptoms of psoriasis for extended periods. The treatment, called Weekend Therapy, is currently awaiting approval from the FDA.

6. Be sure to check with your physician to avoid drugs reportedly associated with causing a worsening of psoriasis. Such drugs include antimalarial, beta blockers, systemic steroids and some heart medications.

7. Immerse your body regularly in warm water, consider adding bath oil, and minimize use of harsh soaps or detergents.

8. Begin an exercise program. Many patients report that the relaxing, stress-reducing effects of regular exercise can reduce the occurrence of psoriasis flareups.

9. Reduce risk of flare-ups by avoiding skin injuries, including scratches or acupuncture. Skin injuries have been reported to cause psoriasis flare-ups in some patients—a phenomenon known as "Koebnerization."

10. Learn as much as you can about psoriasis and focus on the facts rather than the rumors.

For further information about psoriasis or self-help groups, contact the National Psoriasis Foundation, 6443 S.W. Beaverton Highway, Suite 210, Portland, Ore. OR 97221, or call 1-503-297-1545.

Stay fit after fifty with beef

Surveys show that people over the age of 50 comprise the most health-conscious segment of the population. If you're in this age group, you've probably been trying to reduce fat, sodium and cholesterol in your diet. So you'll be glad to hear the good news about beef.

The fat content in beef has been reduced in recent years, thanks to improved feeding and management practices by livestock producers. And fresh beef, like most fresh foods, is naturally low in sodium.

Even if you've been instructed to limit cholesterol intake, there's no need to avoid beef. A three-ounce serving of trimmed, cooked, lean beef contains about 76 milligrams of cholesterol, just 25 percent of the recommended maximum daily intake.

Including beef in your healthy food plan is not only possible, it's a desirable way to add important nutrients and variety to your diet. Although your caloric needs are probably lower than they once were, your nutrient needs remain the same. Beef and other red meats provide essentials such as protein, B-vitamins, minerals and iron.

Today's beef is leaner and healthier than ever before. And it's being prepared in a number of simple yet elegant ways that take advantage of its versatility and abundance of essential nutrients. Try the following Easy Beef and Broccoli Stir-Fry recipe for a family dinner or when entertaining guests.

EASY BEEF AND BROCCOLI STIR-FRY

- 1/2 lb. beef tip or top round or sirloin steak
- 3 Tbs. soy sauce
- 3 Tbs. dry sherry (or water)
- 2 tsp. sugar
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/8 tsp. crushed red pepper pods
- 1 Tbs. vegetable oil
- 3 cups broccoli flowerettes, blanched
- 2 tsp. cornstarch
- 3 scallions, chopped
- 1/4 cup unsalted peanuts (optional)
- Hot cooked rice

Slice beef into thin, bite-size pieces (partially freeze for easier slicing). Combine soy sauce, sherry, sugar, garlic and red pepper. Place beef strips in plastic bag or dish. Pour marinade over beef strips, stirring to coat. Tie bag or cover dish and marinate in refrigerator for 30 minutes.

Drain beef strips; reserve marinade. Stir-fry beef in hot oil in wok or large non-stick skillet for 2 minutes; add broccoli and continue cooking another 2 minutes. Combine cornstarch and reserved marinade; add to beef mixture and cook, stirring until sauce thickens. Add scallions and peanuts and stir-fry an additional minute or so. Serve over hot rice. Serves 2.

Replace lost fluids when exercising

Water is the best fluid replacement after exercise for the average athlete. Water enters the bloodstream quicker than any other liquid. Fifteen minutes after drinking water, 60-70 percent of it will have left the stomach, whereas only five percent of a sugar-sweetened soft drink will have done so. If it is a carbonated beverage, it may cause cramps during and after exercise.

Thirst is certainly a signal that the body needs water, but it is not a reliable measure of how much the body really needs. To stay at peak performance level, follow these three steps:

1. Drink one to two eight-ounce glasses of plain high-quality water before exercising. This puts fluid into the system and keeps your body temperature and heart rate down.

2. During exercise, drink cool water every 20 to 30 minutes to replace lost fluid. This is especially important during hot weather.

3. After exercise, drink more water than you need just to quench your thirst. Let your weight be your guide. For every pound you lose, drink 16 ounces of water.

If fluid is not replaced, you may develop a headache and it may take several days to re-establish your body's fluid balance.

High quality water is essential to good health because water makes up 50 percent of our body weight and it is vital to the functioning of our systems. However, though we read the labels on our food, we seldom give the contents of water a second thought!

Unfortunately, our drinking water doesn't come with an ingredient list. Do you know if your tap or well-water is high in lead, radon, or cancer-causing chemicals?

What about your bottled water--do you know its source or contents? You may be surprised to know that the New York State Dept. of Health revealed that 17 percent of bottled waters tested were straight municipal tap water!

The best way to be sure of the quality of your drinking water is to leave nothing to chance and purify it. Most purifier systems kill bacteria, remove radon, cancer-causing chemicals, lead and other toxic metals.

The club will meet Jan. 18 in the home of Audrey Rusher.

Members present were Louise Axe, Camelia Jones, Coreen Odom, Audrey and Brenda Rusher, Pet Ott, Clara Trowbridge, Draper, Odom, and Lundry.
