Medicare, Medicaid costs soar in county, across U.S.

Programs total $9.5 million in Deaf Smith County

The growth of Medicare and Medicaid programs in Deaf Smith County has increased at a higher percentage rate than that of the nation, which also has seen a dramatic rise in both programs.

The Clinton administration indicates that it intends to reduce the growth of spending by the Medicare and Medicaid programs and use much of that money for a national health insurance program. The major tool in obtaining these savings is apparently going to be through caps or limits on payments to health care providers through the two programs.

Medicare and Medicaid programs are very important to a number of people in Deaf Smith County. An estimated 2,071 persons, or 10.8 percent of the county's population, were covered under the Medicare program in 1990. The national average is 12.6 percent of the population.

Medicare primarily serves the retired or disabled. Almost always, Social Security recipients are also eligible for Medicare. They have had payroll deductions made for the Medicare program during their working years. Additionally, Medicare beneficiaries are required to pay adjustable monthly premiums for coverage under the program. Medicare is not a "means" or income tested program.

Medicare expenditure in Deaf Smith County increased from $1.6 million in fiscal 1970 to $6.2 million in fiscal 1991, according to the records of the Community Services Administration and the Department of Health and Human Services.

That's an absolute increase of 277 percent during that time in the county and, even after adjusting for inflation, total Medicare spending had increased by 104.9 percent.

National spending for Medicare had increased less rapidly than in the county. Total federal expenditures had increased from $41.2 billion during 1979 to $117.9 billion by 1991. That's an increase of 186 percent, or 55.6 percent after adjusting for inflation.

Medicaid provides medical coverage for those persons deemed too poor to either provide their own health insurance or too poor to pay for their own medical care. Most recipients of the larger public assistance programs such as Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) are eligible for Medicaid. Unlike Medicare, Medicaid is a "means" or income tested program. However, a number of people eligible for Medicaid are not enrolled in the program.

Medicaid spending in Deaf Smith County grew at a greater rate than Medicare since 1979. Medicaid spending in the county grew from $544,000 in 1979 to $3.3 million in 1991, or by 514 percent. After

Healthcare Alliance targets local seniors for flu shots

As the threat of a severe influenza season looms on the horizon, the American Lung Association of Texas, the Texas Department of Health, the Texas Department on Aging and the American Association of Retired Persons are mounting a major influenza prevention drive urging high risk groups to get their flu shots.

This urgent appeal is especially targeted to senior citizens, who are among the greatest victims of influenza.

In Hereford, the Healthcare Alliance is sponsoring an immunization campaign this week.

The immunizations will be offered on Tuesday, Oct. 12, and Wednesday, Oct. 13, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

The program will be directed and supervised by Dr. Kent Walker.

The flu shots are free to senior citizens, as they are 100 percent covered by Medicare. However, people who are not on Medicare can still receive the shots at a charge of $5.

Senior citizens are asked to bring their Medicare cards to enable alliance volunteers to file for Medicare benefits.

Experts are predicting that this year's flu season may be especially severe.

According to officials of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, there is a strong likelihood that this year's influenza season will be predominated by the Type A Beijing virus, leading to increased severity of influenza cases.

Temperature drops to 35

A cold front Friday night dropped the temperature to 35 degrees in Hereford, and readings got down to the high 30s in north and west Texas as residents got an early taste of winter.

Thunderstorms raged across North Texas with golf-ball size hail reported near Gainesville. Temperatures were reported from the 50s to 70s in West Texas Saturday.

The Sunday forecast locally called for cloudy and warmer weather with a high in the upper 60s.

State constitution to be amended for 340th time

By MICHAEL HOLMES
 Associated Press Writer
 AUSTIN (AP) - Texans go to the polls Nov. 2 to decide the fate of 16 constitutional amendments.

They'll vote on everything from an income tax restriction to building more prisons to correcting a land title problem dating to Mexican land grant days.

But it's nothing new. The 117-year-old Texas Constitution, which critics long have called too detailed and confusing, already has been amended 339 times.

This will even be the second amendment election held this year. Voters in May turned down three school-finance related proposals.

Early voting for the latest election begins Wednesday and runs through Oct. 29, according to the secretary of state's office.

The proposed amendment receiving the most attention is Proposition 4, which would require voter approval of any proposed state personal income tax and any subsequent increases in such a levy.

Texas is one of the few states which has no personal income tax, and lawmakers have tried in the past to place a constitutional ban on one.

If Proposition 4 passes, a statewide referendum would have to approve any personal income tax the Legislature voted to impose.

In addition, at least two-thirds of all net revenue from the tax would be used to reduce the rates of public school maintenance-and-operations property taxes.

The net revenue remaining after such property tax relief would have to be spent for education.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who in 1991 unsuccessfully pushed for establishing an income tax, called the amendment a partnership between lawmakers and voters.

"This makes the people of Texas full partners with the Legislature in any future decision on this matter that affects everyone's pocketbooks," Bullock said.

Legislative opponents of the proposal, who were few in number, argued that the proposition would entice voters to support an income tax in order to get property tax relief.

Other opponents say the proposal is confusing, won't ensure more money for schools and does nothing to ease the sales tax burden.

"We cannot figure out whether

Early voting set to begin Wednesday in city, county

Early voting in the Nov. 2 Constitutional amendment election will begin Wednesday in the office of Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland.

Residents have until Oct. 29 to take advantage of the early voting opportunity. Ruland's office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

A total of 8,551 persons are eligible to vote in the election, Ruland said. Typically, turnout for a Constitutional amendment election is light.

There are no other issues on the ballot.

HOSTS teachers

Doris Cagle, right, is the HOSTS teacher at Northwest Elementary School, where she works with aide Aurora Jackson. Mrs. Cagle is showing one of the many baskets of materials they use in HOSTS. Workbooks have been taken apart page by page, then numbered and filed, enabling HOSTS students and mentors to focus in on specific language arts needs the child has. Mrs. Jackson shows the notebooks used by the students, which are color-coordinated by class time and desk number. Each student also gets a specific mentor each day and works with that volunteer on a computer-generated lesson plan.

HOSTS program allows one-on-one contact with student, adult mentor

By GARRY WESNER
 Managing Editor

Look into the two classrooms and there are a few differences apparent.

There are no individual desks -- instead there are small tables, each set with two chairs.

To get to the classrooms, you must walk through offices, each of which has two teacher desks, a computer and two or three tables laden with plastic storage boxes crammed full of papers.

But the real differences appear when the chairs fill up.

That is because half the chairs are filled with students, while the other half are filled with adults.

This is the setting at Northwest Elementary School and West Central Intermediate School, which are in the first year of a program known simply as HOSTS, which means Helping One Student to Succeed.

HOSTS in action

Cathy Guseman, right, is a mentor in the HOSTS (Helping One Student To Succeed) program at Northwest Elementary School. Here she works with her assigned student, Matthew Collier, during one of his daily 30-minute study sessions. The program, which operates at Northwest and West Central Intermediate School, allows students with problems in language arts to work one-on-one with volunteer mentors to improve their skills.

While HOSTS has been in existence for years, this is the first time the Hereford Independent School District has tried the language arts curriculum.

The premise is simple: Take children who test below grade-level in language arts and pair them for 30 minutes a day with volunteer adult mentors and let the two of them work on the specific areas where the child needs the most help.

Leading the charge on HOSTS are Doris Cagle and aide Aurora Jackson at Northwest and Carlynn DeLozier and aide Amelia Pesina at West Central.

"We want to get these kids so that they can be successful in the classroom," said Mrs. DeLozier. Students, she added, who become successful in class are more likely to stay in school.

The teachers and aides received special computer training before school started and have attended another HOSTS conference since the beginning of the school year.

Setting up the program was a difficult task for the women, they said.

Ever since the first day of school on Aug. 18, the teachers and aides have tested students to determine their specific needs; recruited and trained mentors and paired them with students; ordered workbooks, games and activities; and assembled notebooks to focus on three areas of language arts -- reading, vocabulary and skills.

Formal classes began at Northwest last Monday, while mentors and students met in their assigned time slots at West Central all last week for introductions and orientation.

Every page of material in the HOSTS program is treated as a separate document, the teachers said.

The notebooks were torn apart page by page, then numbered and filed. The activities on those pages were then entered into the computer by page number.

Based on the test results of each student, a "prescription" is written up that targets the specific needs of that child.

A daily lesson plan based on those needs and using the materials available is then assembled. Pages from workbooks are pulled, inserted in a plastic sleeve and placed in the student's notebook. This lets the student work with erasable marker, eliminating the need to photocopy documents or buy extra books.

Finally, after a student finishes class, the sleeve and work sheet are turned in and refiled.

More than likely, Mrs. DeLozier said, a student enrolled in HOSTS now will stay in the program all year, although testing during the year may reveal a student who is ready to return full-time to the regular classroom.

"It'd be great to have a kid who is marginal and take them to above level," she said.

At Northwest, six, 30-minute classes are held Monday through Thursday mornings. At West Central, there are seven, 30-minute sessions, both in the mornings and afternoons.

When students are gone, the teachers review mentor comments on the day's work and, based on the child's progress, pull materials for the next day's labors.

Fridays are used to retest students to determine their progress, give extra work to students in need and process more paperwork.

Class sessions last 30 minutes a day, with 15 minutes for reading, 5 for vocabulary and 10 for skills and computer work.

At the beginning of a class, the mentor signs in and collects his or her student's notebook, which contains a lesson plan for the day.

The mentors, Mrs. Cagle said, do much more than work with the children in language arts.

"So many times these kids need

Commissioners meet Tuesday

Because of the Columbus Day holiday Monday, the Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court regular meeting will be held Tuesday, beginning at 9 a.m. On the agenda for discussion are the juvenile probation office budget, appraisal district ballot, a policy related to jail inmates' visits to doctors and a community-wide recreation program.

Foster parents sought

The Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services is in need of foster parents in the Hereford area. An orientation meeting will be held from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Oct. 18 in the Hereford Community Center. Anyone interested in providing foster care to a child or children between the ages of zero and 17 is urged to attend the meeting to learn more about foster care services. For more information, contact the Hereford Children's Protective Services at 364-1266.

a positive role model," she said, adding that a little boost from someone willing to listen to them for 30 minutes adds a great deal to their self-confidence and self-image.

Mrs. Jackson noted that HOSTS teachers in Amarillo -- where the women visited last year to see HOSTS in action -- said working with the mentors and the by-products of that relationship also helped in attendance and made the kids look forward to coming to school.

Mentors come from all walks of life and all over the community.

They volunteer for as little as 30 minutes a week, often getting permission from their employers to take time off work to help out.

At Northwest, 14 Hereford High School students come in every day as part of a class in which they are graded for their work as HOSTS mentors.

At West Central, West Texas Rural Telephone has provided 12 mentors to work in the program.

Other mentors come from such places as the Deaf Smith County Courthouse, parents of students, the Hereford Police Department, McDonalds and other companies.

Both teachers are veterans with the HISD.

Mrs. DeLozier said she had a simple explanation for moving from her Chapter 1 position last year to HOSTS this year.

"We visited the HOSTS program in Amarillo... and it just looked to me like it had the answers," she said.

Mrs. DeLozier said she saw discipline problems last year in the Chapter 1 program, when students became convinced the teacher did not care for them because she was unable to give them very much personal attention.

"I could see this as taking care of this problem, because if you've got someone's undivided attention, you've got to feel important," she said. "I'm also a Christian and I feel this is a program that does unto the least of these."

She said she feels HOSTS is worth all the paperwork, recruiting, testing and plan updating.

"I think when you can give a child one-on-one, you're going to get better results," she said. "It just has started so smoothly."

Mentors key to HOSTS program; more needed

At the heart of the HOSTS program implemented this year at two Hereford schools are the adult mentors.

These are men and women, most of whom come from local businesses or who are related in some way to the school district and its students, who volunteer their time to help students learn language arts skills.

Mentors give a minimum of 30 minutes a week. They are trained in how to mentor a student, then assigned a child for every 30-minute class session they volunteer to work.

HOSTS -- which stands for Helping One Student To Succeed -- is being operated at Northwest Elementary School and West Central Intermediate School.

Classes are held Monday through Thursday at both schools. At Northwest, sessions are held in the mornings, while West Central offers some afternoon classes.

The number of students helped through HOSTS is dependant on the number of mentors paired with students.

Currently, Northwest has 62 children enrolled, with a capacity of 72 children in the six classes.

There are 149 mentors on the rolls, but some are only available one class a week and some only volunteer as substitutes.

At West Central, there are 62 as well, but with seven classes, 84 students can be accommodated.

At both schools, some students must work alone, with one of the HOSTS staffers or with personnel pulled from other areas of the school because they do not have mentors some days.

HOSTS teachers at both schools said additional mentors would first allow them to fill vacancies among existing students, then would allow additional students to be added, to a maximum of 12 students per 30-minute class.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer mentor is encouraged to call the HOSTS classrooms directly: Carlynn DeLozier, teacher, or Amelia Pesina, aide, at West Central, 363-7687; or Doris Cagle, teacher, or Aurora Jackson, aide, at Northwest, 363-7686.

inflation, the increase was still at 23.3 percent.

Total national expenditures for Medicaid had increased from $20.5 billion in 1979 to $52.5 billion by 1991, or by 156.5 percent. Adjusting for inflation, the rise was by 39.4 percent.

Medicare and Medicaid have come to account for an increasing proportion of federal spending. Medicare was responsible for 9.1 percent of total direct federal spending in 1979 and absorbed 10.6 percent by 1991. Medicaid accounted for 4.5 percent and 4.7 percent over the same time frame.

Many economists have concluded that unless there are changes in both programs, Medicare and Medicaid will continue to absorb more and more medical care and federal dollars while more and more people not covered by these programs will find health insurance and medical care itself becoming more than they can afford.

Since all persons eligible for Medicaid are not enrolled, an estimate of potential beneficiaries provides a more realistic picture of the government's obligation under this program.

According to the Census Bureau, as many as 5,305 persons, or 27.7 percent of the Deaf Smith County population were eligible for Medicaid in 1990. Comparatively, as much as an estimated 14.2 percent of the nation's population was eligible.

Changes in these programs are of obvious concern to a lot of people. And past attempts to restrain spending have not always worked out as intended.

For example, caps on Medicaid fees have caused a number of physicians to refuse Medicaid patients. As a result, it is not unusual for Medicaid recipients to be unable to find treatment that would normally be provided by an office visit. With no other source of treatment, they go for ordinary treatments to hospital emergency rooms.

Most emergency rooms accept Medicaid. However, emergency room charges are much more expensive than office visits. It would be difficult to prove that caps on Medicaid payments have resulted in either short term cost savings to the government or the long term health improvement for the poor.

Most health care providers have accepted camps on Medicare fees, so far. Many analysts feel that these caps have simply resulted in higher fees being passed on to other patients. Whether or not physicians and other health care providers will continue to accept further caps on Medicare payments is undetermined.

While local figures for Medicare and Medicaid spending for 1992 are not yet available, national figures show that spending for these programs is increasing at an ever faster rate. Medicare expenditures grew very sharply to $147.9 billion in 1992. This represents a whopping one-year increase of 25.5 percent.

Federal spending for Medicaid had increased even more sharply to $67.8 billion, or by 29.1 percent over one year. Fiscal 1992 budget figures show that together the Medicare and Medicaid programs were responsible for 16.7 percent of all direct federal spending for that year.

Congress may radically change or even reject the administration's current proposals on these two programs. At the same time, because health care costs have continued to increase so much more than other costs, it seems almost inevitable that there will be some sort of changes in Medicare and Medicaid in the near future.

It also seems inevitable that any changes in the programs will have an immediate impact on a lot of people in Deaf Smith County and across the nation.

Information for this article was compiled by an independent news service. Data was obtained from various publications of the U.S. Census Bureau.

Amarillo officers cleared by jury

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Three police officers who fatally shot an armed drug suspect have been cleared by a Potter County grand jury.

"I wasn't surprised at all," Assistant Police Chief Robert Joe Francis said of Thursday's decision concerning Danny Howard, Vernon Wilson and William Redden. "I was over there. ... They did go through the evidence and had some good questions."

"But when you've got video and stuff, that gives them a little more than they normally get on a shooting."

Fredricke Espy, 24, was killed during a raid of a room at the Travelodge motel Sept. 28. Francis said he believes Espy was shot seven times by the three policemen.

Officer Gerald Entrop was shot in the leg, possibly by a stray police bullet.

The Hereford Police Department activity report Saturday morning included the following arrests and incidents:

--An 18-year-old man was arrested for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle; an 18-year-old man was charged with terroristic threats; and a 30-year-old man was charged with resisting arrest.

--Officers issued 23 traffic citations.

--Domestic disturbances were reported in the 400 block of Ave. I and the 600 block of E. 5th Street.

--An assault was reported in the 900 block of S. Main Street, and a disorderly conduct case reported in the 1200 block of W. Hwy. 60.

--A $5 theft of gas, and a theft of $10 were reported.

--Criminal mischief was reported in the 200 block of 16th Street; and officers investigated a phone harassment complaint.

CofC meet set Tuesday

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division will hold its October quarterly membership meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 12.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Deaf Smith County Museum.

Topping the agenda will be the election of officers and two board members for 1994.

Those officers and board members will assume their positions at the January, 1994, quarterly meeting.

Current board members and officers are: Linda Daniel, president; Peggie Fox, president-elect; Sonya Torbert, vice president; Rita Bell, parliamentarian; and Kim Buckley, Mildred Fuhrmann and Lacy Mueggenberg, directors.

Bell and Buckley will leave the board at the end of the year.

Also scheduled will be a presentation by the museum and a brief program on the HOSTS program at Northwest and West Central schools.

In addition, refreshments will be served and members will have time to visit with one another.

AUSTIN (AP) - Consumer advocates praised the appointment Friday of Bob Hunter as the state's chief insurance regulator, while the insurance industry gave him a cool reception.

Hunter, 56, will take over the $150,000 per year job of Texas insurance commissioner next month.

Currently president of a nonprofit consumer insurance group in Alexandria, Va., Hunter's career spans 30 years in the insurance business as a regulator, consultant and consumer advocate.

"Bob understands what it means to buy insurance, he understands why the industry needs to be regulated, and he recognizes the need to have a strong competitive industry," Gov. Ann Richards said after appointing Hunter.

The Chamber and You

BY MIKE CARR
Executive Vice President

We hope a large number of residents will give a hospitable, hustlin' Hereford welcome to Dr. Howard Haysom and his family at a come-and-go reception Sunday from 1 to 3 p.m. at Hereford Country Club. Dr. Haysom has started practice at Hereford Medical Clinic along with Dr. Kent Walker. Special thanks to the chamber's health and education and chairman Carmen Rapp for their hard work!

The retail committee will be meeting Tuesday, according to chairperson LaJean Henry. Plans for the remainder of fall and the holiday season will be made, along with more details on a series of seminars designed for local businesses.

The Chamber is currently working with local volunteer Dean Hacker on presentations to invite the Holiday Rambler RV convention to Hereford in 1995. Even with two years to prepare, hosting the convention of approximately 300 RV's will take a tremendous amount of work and planning. Please cooperate if you are called on to help on this event.

This week your Chamber is representing Deaf Smith County and Hustlin' Hereford at the International Meat Exposition in Chicago. Through the combined efforts of your Chamber, the High Ground of Texas, and Southwestern Public Service, we have a booth at the show promoting our area for potential sites for expansion or relocation of industries. The High Ground is a coalition of Panhandle cities. By working together, we are able to do more for Hereford as we strengthen our efforts in the area of economic development.

Short notes: Congratulations to J.E. Sorrels of Hereford who was recently interviewed for Texas Country Reporter by Bob Phillips. The date of the airing will be given later.

The Chamber, this week, would like to salute one of our members who is making a name for himself and doing a super job of representing this area. Kenneth Chambers, who works for the Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, has been a strong supporter of the Chamber since 1991.

Last year, Chambers began doing a few after-dinner speaking engagements just for practice. This has led to his being in strong demand, and his schedule of commitments is beginning to be booked in 1994. We commend him on the fine job he is doing. If you know of anyone who needs an energetic and enjoyable speaker, we would urge you to give Kenneth a call, or call the chamber office for details.

Join the Chamber and help us help Hereford hustle!

Focus on Your City

By BOB JOSSERAND
Mayor, City of Hereford

One of the success stories of the City of Hereford has been the way the golf course has been turned around financially the last two years.

It used to be that we heard many stories about what we were spending on the golf course and I'm not sure but what there are at least some concerns still in the minds of Hereford residents about the golf course.

So, I thought perhaps this column offers me a chance to deal with the golf course, considered by many as one of the real outstanding courses in the Texas Panhandle.

Not being a golfer, I really don't know about that statement, but several golfer friends have told me about people from Amarillo, Friona, Canyon and elsewhere coming to play our course. I think this speaks well for what the staff has been able to accomplish.

In the last two years, a change was made in how the course is operated. I won't go into a lot of details, but will simply say that the City again assumed operation of the course with the income helping to offset the expenditures in better fashion.

For the fiscal year 1990-1991 (May 1, 1990 through April 30, 1991), the city's loss was $59,458.

The next year, the loss was $40,003. At this juncture, the City made changes based on citizen input as well as commissioner input. In the fiscal year 1992-93, the loss was trimmed to $29,403. In the shortened fiscal year of May 1, 1993, through Sept. 30, 1993, the course turned a profit of $17,472.

This, of course, is somewhat distorted in that this five-month period is the high volume time for the course. However, I think what this shows is that the staff at the course, in cooperation with the City Commission, have been moving the golf course in the right direction financially.

In addition to bringing costs in line with your Commission's desire to have the golf course improve financially, I think we want to point out the physical improvements that have been accomplished at the course.

Among the improvements is the addition of approximately 100 trees in various areas around the course. Some of these trees were removed from along the creek bed while others were donated by interested persons. The result is a better looking course with little or no cost to the taxpayers.

The golf course staff has implemented a systematic fertilizer and pesticide program which has resulted in the use of state-of-the-art products and a much improved course. I think it points to the dedication of the staff as well as many golfers that recently a Beauty Spot of the Month was awarded the area surrounding the clubhouse.

In addition to what the staff has accomplished, Stevens Chevrolet has donated a beautiful scoreboard which enhances the appearance and promotes tournaments. Various Businesses have contributed benches and bag stands, again providing a better course to play as well as a more attractive course.

All in all, I think the citizens of Hereford need to be proud of our golf course and the dedication and work of the staff, which includes David Kaesheimer, head pro; Robert Jones, assistant pro; Mary Haun, greenskeeper, and Leo Hollowell, maintenance, plus several others.

Another point which we also need to remember is that, of the surrounding courses of comparable quality, we have the lowest greens fees and cart rentals, making the golf course a real bargain for Hereford golfers as well as visitors.

As always, I encourage your comments, suggestions and criticisms of our City activities and facilities. If you have questions or comments, don't be afraid to give me a call. I appreciate that!

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"People tend to resist that which is forced upon them. People tend to support that which they help to create." Vince Pfaff

To support our middle school concept and teaming, all seventy-four HJH staff members attended the Middle School Symposium in Amarillo last Wednesday. We joined, and greatly out-numbered, faculty members from several schools across the Panhandle. By sharing and gaining knowledge under the leadership of Elliott Merenbloom of Baltimore, Maryland, we found that we are ahead of most in that we have already begun the teaming program.

Junior Historians appreciate the response to their raffle ticket sales. The chance to win a 19" color remote control TV is enticing to many. They will probably continue sales through October.

Texas history students are beginning a study of the Indians of Texas. They will begin with the earliest Texans, then the four cultures of Indians who lived in Texas and the twelve tribes within those cultures.

Texas history students on the yellow team will be writing letters to schools in each county in Texas in an effort to gain first-hand information about each area of the state. This will be an opportunity to correspond with other seventh grade students. The idea came from having received three letters from students in the Dallas and Odessa areas.

Mrs. Goodin is including writing exercises in her pottery classes, much to the surprise of some of her students. This is yet another example of integrating the curriculum.

School pictures were taken last week. These will be used for the 1994 yearbook as well as students being able to order what they would like. The lead photographer, Jim Banner, is "one of our own." Jim, an HHS graduate, was a Stanton student and began his interest in photography on the yearbook staff. It's interesting to follow the careers of former students and to take pride when they have done well in their chosen field. By the way, we have twenty-one faculty members at HJH who are HHS graduates and several more who are married to HHS graduates. We might wonder how this compares with other campuses in the district. Isn't it great that they have come back home to remain a part of the community?

Geography Bee practice will begin next week. We hope to have a good number of both seventh and eighth graders working on geography skills for this competition. We found in "our first time out" last year that this is an interesting and educational experience for students, parents and teachers.

A reminder—if you haven't come by to see the display of the "Coats of Arms" that are hanging in the cafeteria, you are missing a treat. The emphasis on morals, citizenship and education that students included is certainly refreshing!

Early adolescence has been defined as "an organism that runs wherever it has to go and when it gets there it hits somebody." Surely none of us know anyone that would fit that description!

Many of the concepts of the middle school plan and of teaming indicate that education has come "full circle" again and that educators are allowing students to learn at their own pace and style and that educators must have freedom in the classroom to address this. Most of this concept is nothing new to educators who have taught for several years. You've either done it this way or have worked with those who have!

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Former President Bush will soon be riding herd on the National Cowboy Hall of Fame.

Bush becomes an honorary member of the hall's board of directors on Oct. 15, when he will help dedicate the museum's expansion project.

"It is only fitting that a former president, great western statesman from the state of Texas and most recent appointee to the museum's board join us for the formal dedication of a project of such national significance," said Edward L. Gaylor, board chairman.

The expansion will triple the size of the complex, which houses western art and memorabilia. An interactive children's gallery is part of the new building, as well as a gallery devoted to American Indian art.

A student once wrote: "It is bad manners to break your bread and roll in your soup."

this amendment makes a state income tax more likely or less likely. So we vote no on general principles," said Mary Nell Mathis, who chairs the watchdog group Common Cause.

Four of the ballot proposals call for issuing state general obligation bonds that would add almost $1.9 billion to the state's debt.

The biggest is Proposition 14, a $1 billion proposal to build new prison beds and state jails, along with additional youth corrections and mental health and retardation facilities.

Supporters of the amendment say the money is needed to build new prisons, including the state jails to house nonviolent offenders long enough for them to benefit from rehabilitation. They say that would reserve space in the maximum security prisons for violent offenders and help reduce the backlog of state inmates in county jails.

Some opponents have objected to borrowing money to pay for the projects. Others say the state can't build its way out of a crime problem while failing to adequately fund education and other social programs.

Under Proposition 10, another $750 million in bonds would be approved to continue the land and housing loan programs for Texas veterans. The programs are self-supporting, paid for by loan repayments.

Proposition 1 is a $50 million bond issue proposal that would create a new state program of loans and guarantees to help start businesses owned by women and minorities.

And Proposition 16 seeks approval of $75 million more in bonds for loans and loan guarantees for development or expansion of businesses to produce, process, market or export agricultural products.

Agriculture Commission Rick Perry says the program will help create jobs. "In Texas, we're great agricultural producers, but we don't process very well. We process only about 8 percent of what we produce," he said.

Another amendment being considered is Proposition 3, which would relinquish state interest in land in Fort Bend and Austin counties, returning full ownership to about 140 families, two churches and a school district.

I ran across a story that I'd read somewhere, years ago, and it has a great moral.

It seems a man was visiting a home which wasn't much to look at, kind of run-down and lacking even a good coat of paint. Outside the home, a little boy and his sister were playing in the yard. They were laughing, running and having a good time. The man surveyed the situation and had pity for this needy family.

He asked the small boy some questions about the home and the family. The youngster told him that his father had not been able to work lately because of illness, and that his mother had to care for the father. When asked about his patched clothes and bare feet, the boy explained that his daddy would buy some things for him and his sister when he got well.

The man also learned that the boy and girl had not been able to enjoy some of the normal experiences of childhood which require money. Wanting to say something to help them face the situation, the man said, "It must be awful bad to be poor."

Quick as a flash the youngster answered, "Mister, we ain't poor. We just ain't got no money."

I guess the story is meaningful to me because I was once in that situation. But I didn't know that I was "poor," because we were happy. The story reminds us of the old adage: Money can't buy happiness.

A lot of us who were born in the depression have made some mistakes in judgment about "having money," and we've passed it on to our children. I've heard it so many times: My children are going to have it better than I did!

So, we made sure they did have it better and sometimes we lavished them with gifts and money. As long as we didn't forget love and discipline along the way, maybe it worked out okay. And if we remembered that our presence is more important to our children than our presents, then perhaps our grandchildren will also learn the valuable lessons that cannot be bought with money.

They will know that no person is poor who has character and purpose, who loves God with all his might and loves his neighbor as himself.

It's the policy of this newspaper not to publish unsigned "letters to the editor." We probably don't get as many letters because of the rule, but we feel writers should not remain anonymous when expressing their views.

We received an unsigned letter this week, however, on which we'd like to comment. The writer said she was taken advantage of by an out-of-town firm that had an advertising supplement in The Brand. After purchasing an orthopedic bed, she claims a bad experience with the transaction.

"I cannot stress it strong enough--I wish I had traded at home with a reputable company," she wrote. The writer added that she was embarrassed about the situation and did not want to sign her name.

The letter brings up a point, also, about ads in this newspaper. We try to screen ads in several ways, but we can't check out every company that places an advertisement. Our state press association occasionally sends us warnings about specific ads where consumer complaints have arisen, or where payment was not made for the ad.

We watch for those ads and do not accept them for publication. And, from experience, we choose not to publish some ads we feel might be questionable for some reason. The buyer still needs to do his own homework, too.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I take serious umbrage with the Am-illo TV stations for taking advantage of the cable companies to try to charge for the retransmission of their signal within the trade territory of Amarillo.

First, it indicates unbridled greed on the part of the station owners. Also, I think it indicates ignorance of the free trade concept. Personally, I feel the cable companies are doing the local television people a favor by carrying their signal. I see the threat to refuse access to cable as a breach of agreement with the advertisers who pay the TV people to carry their advertisements to the public.

Secondly, this is a fine example of government interference in the market place.

I say, a pox on the grubby lawmakers who attempt to fix something that is not broken, and a pox on the station people who attempt to take advantage of us, just because the law said they could. Also, I applaud our local cable management for standing firm for us.

Dear Editor:

To borrow a line already used once on this issue: "Maybe the board hasn't put enough study into this issue and needs to reconsider."

With one vote "no" and one vote "yes" on buying the Smith building, may I suggest a tie breaker--RECONSIDER!

P.S.--If the PEOPLE will lead, the leaders will FOLLOW.

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce)

Dear folks:

Please keep the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center open. It has put Hereford on the map.

No matter how important feedyards are to the local economy, I don't think very many tourists will visit your area just to see them. Visitors need an incentive, and I'm convinced that the Hall of Fame is your best bet. Besides, what better state to honor cowgirls than Texas?

The staff at the Hall of Fame has been mighty helpful whenever I've been researching a question about the West. Many people understand the idea of a cowgirl, and if they just knew about the Hall of Fame, they'd support it.

For example, in September I stopped at the Pioneer Auto Museum in Murdo, S.D. After paying my admission fee and spending an hour going through their eclectic collection of automobiles, farm machinery and much more, I handed a Hall of Fame brochure to one of the docents and asked him if I could leave a few more there for the benefit of later visitors.

Not only did he agree, he dug around for a copy of the Rapid City Journal and pointed to an article on the front page. "This sounds like someone they'd be interested in," he said. The article was about Sally Forbes of Sheridan, WY., who developed the Red Angus breed of cattle. I'd never heard of her.

Another example: In Washington, Idaho and Montana, you can find counties, cities and much more that have been named for Lewis and Clark. Only one other member of the expedition has been immortalized. It doesn't take long to find hotels, motels, statues, and state parks named for Sacajawea. She's still big news in the Pacific Northwest, and she's a Hall of Fame honoree, too.

Someone has got to be out there keeping the world informed about regional heroines such as Sally Forbes, Sacajawea and Lucille Mulhall. I'm proud that the Hall of Fame has done just that.

Please keep the Hall of Fame going. Thank you.

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

A familiar refrain seems to be circulating around the city that the HISD board of trustees completely ignored all public input in deciding to purchase the Smith Building.

Well, first of all, that flat isn't true. Yes, there were several people who spoke against it at the meeting, but there also were people who spoke for it.

Second of all, none of us knows for sure what kind of contact the trustees had with the public in the month between their decision to reconsider the purchase and the meeting at which it was done.

I know all the trustees said at the meeting two weeks ago that they had been contacted personally and by mail during the interim. Only they know exactly what the ratio was of comments for and against the purchase.

I suspect, though, that those who had been in favor of the deal originally got a preponderance of calls in favor, while those opposed heard mostly from people echoing that viewpoint.

Then there's the side that wants the board to re-convene and vote to un-buy the Smith Building.

The board had a very difficult decision to make, they made it and the matter is over.

The only way we will know if the purchase was good or bad will be for time to tell.

Years from now we may look back and praise the board as geniuses, or we may find ourselves saddled with a large white elephant.

Whichever, we can't know now. Finally, now that a decision has been made, we don't need to beat the district over the head with it.

If you disagreed with the purchase, don't use the purchase to condemn the district for every failing (and there will be some) that comes to light in the next years.

On a related subject, I have been very disappointed over the past few months to hear personal attacks on people during times of controversy.

For example, in the aforementioned controversy, I heard people say they were opposed to the purchase simply because another individual in the community was for it.

Another person said that a party to the controversy was totally untrustworthy and not worth getting any new building space.

So often when there is a community dispute, personalities become involved and people say things that probably are better left unsaid.

Personal attacks against the character of individuals become the order of the day and anyone supporting the issue at hand is immediately painted with the same bigoted brush as that used to paint the "enemy."

As much as I support public debate on public issues -- particularly those involving the spending of public funds -- I do not like to see personalities becoming involved.

In short, if you can't stick to the subject at hand without slandering someone on the opposite side of the debate, just don't say anything at all.

The debate on a public issue will be forgotten fairly soon, but words spoken in anger or hostility will remain a long, long time.

A few weeks ago, I heard about a statement that was made in the National Education Association's monthly magazine about religious groups and their involvement in education.

I was intrigued and a local NEA member provided me with the September issue of NEA Today.

The issue at hand was a state roundup item from Nebraska, where the Nebraska State Education Association approved a $4 dues increase to pay for a Political Action Contingency Fund which will, NSEA president Craig Christiansen said, combat "radical right extremists' attempts to eliminate public schools."

The Nebraska group was watching debate over a Colorado referendum on a measure to distribute state education funding to private, religious and home schools -- a plan NSEA says is being pursued by "right-wing" groups in Nebraska such as one called the Protection of Education Rights Council.

Says former NSEA executive director Judy Behnke, "These groups use the name of religion to uproot public schools. They must be challenged and defeated."

In other words, this public education group automatically associates "radical right" groups with religion, which must be attacked and beaten into submission at all costs.

I wonder what happened to "one nation under God" and the principle of freedom of religion.

It seems to me that this issue goes far beyond the issue of tuition tax credits and steps into attacks on the rights of the citizens to worship and believe as they please.

I certainly hope and pray that this bigoted and divisive policy does not surface in the Texas NEA affiliates.

Well, that's it for this week. Have a good week and, remember, it takes fewer muscles to smile that it does to frown.

Editorials from around the state

By The Associated Press

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers:

Sept. 28

The Marshall News Messenger on Hutchison indictment: Monday's indictment of U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison marks a sad day in Texas political life.

At the very least, fighting the allegations of misconduct, and tampering with evidence and records from the time when she was Texas state treasurer, will make Hutchison a much less effective senator for the next several months. ...

The indictment comes at a time when Texans were beginning to appreciate the fact that Hutchison, a Republican, has charted something of an independent course since her election only three months ago.

Texas needs two senators who are able to pay full attention to the legislative agenda in Washington. Hutchison won't be able to do that for the time being. She will be fighting for her political life, in fact, she's be fighting to stay out of prison. Politics aside, one imagines that Hutchison began facing a whole new set of priorities Monday.

Should Hutchison resign? No. She deserves her day in court. Is she being persecuted? No. There are enough Kay Bailey Hutchison stories out there to merit investigation, if nothing else.

Is she guilty? Dunno. In all sincerity, we hope not. There will be a trial and we'll find out. Truth to tell, this newspaper came very close to endorsing Mrs. Hutchison for election to the Senate seat but ultimately, opted against making an endorsement because of the adage, "where there's smoke, there's fire." ...

Sept. 30

Victoria Advocate on Texas Commerce Department lawsuit: We hope to have heard the last of the disgruntled Republicans who were fired from their jobs with the Texas Department of Commerce shortly after Democrat Ann Richards replaced Republican Bill Clements as governor.

On Tuesday (Sept. 28), a federal court jury in Austin found against three Republicans who contended that they were fired from the department in a political purge orchestrated by Gov. Richards. ...

There is, of course, the possibility that the unhappy ex-employees will file an appeal, but it's our hope that they have at last gotten the message that, in the eyes of the jurors -- and, we suspect, most ordinary citizens -- their firings had little to do with partisan politics and plenty to do with the dreary record of the Department of Commerce under Mr. Clements, a period during which its only notable accomplishment was the construction of a sizable -- and singularly unproductive -- bureaucracy.

Oct. 1

Amarillo Daily News on allegations against Ron Brown: While some Democrats may be chuckling over Republican Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison's problems, they better beware the adage about the last laugh.

Serious charges have been levelled against Commerce Secretary Ron Brown. Brown has been accused of secretly meeting with a Vietnamese-American businessman, Nguyen Van Hao, and agreeing to take a $700,000 bribe to push for more open trade between Vietnam and the United States.

Brown's lawyer has admitted that Brown met with Hao, but denies that there was an agreement to accept any payment. A federal grand jury in Miami and the FBI are investigating.

If there is any truth to these accusations, Brown will become a major embarrassment to the Clinton administration. Given that the president seems to be gaining some momentum after his rocky start, that embarrassment could prove disastrous.

Brown knows whether he's in the clear, but he should be given the benefit of the doubt until he is given a fair trial in a court of law. ...

Oct. 3

San Antonio Express-News on health care: Ordinary Americans who see health-care reform as a possibility this time should remember: It isn't over until the influential Washington lobbyists have their say.

"They" are well-financed, more focused and closer to Capitol Hill, literally and figuratively, than the folks back home, particularly the underclass and the unaffiliated. ...

Ordinary citizens can't match such largess. But they can vote, and 1994 is an election year. To Congress' credit, there is bipartisan agreement that soaring costs, fraud, abuse and greed in health care necessitate reform.

The inducement for ordinary people to urge reform is they will pay anyway -- either directly to finance fair universal health care or indirectly to finance lobbying for regurgitated inequities.

...Don't let insiders dismantle the best chance for reform in decades.

Oct. 4

Valley Morning Star on government involvement in auto industry: President Clinton wants to use taxpayers' money to forge a "clean car" conglomerate with the Big Three U.S. automakers to produce an 80-mpg car. ...

The funds would begin at $1 billion, combining private contributions and taxpayers' money, but taxpayers could get a multi-billion-dollar bill in the long run.

The White House called this Clintonmobile "a technological challenge comparable to or greater than that involved in the Apollo project." That's the old "if we can land a man on the moon, we can (name your favorite project here)" bromide. But the Apollo moon shots occurred during the Cold War's space race with the Soviet Union. Like the Manhattan Project of World War II, it was a matter of national security. After the Apollo program ended, NASA drifted into wasting billions of taxpayers' dollars on the problem-plagued Space Shuttle program, the nearsighted Hubble Space Telescope, and the continually redesigned space station. ...

Proposed constitutional amendments summarized

AUSTIN (AP) - Summaries of the 16 proposed constitutional amendments on the Nov. 2 ballot:

Proposition 1

$50 Million in bonds for historically underutilized businesses: Would authorize the Legislature to issue up to $50 million in general obligation bonds to aid in the start-up costs of historically underutilized businesses, those owned by women and minorities.

Proposition 2

Property tax exemption for pollution control devices: Would permit the Legislature to exempt from property taxes all or part of property used to meet federal, state and local regulations to control air, water or land pollution.

Proposition 3

Relinquishing state land in Fort Bend and Austin counties: Would relinquish the state's claim to a one-third interest in land and mineral rights in 4,428 acres of the two counties, clearing up a 160-year-old question that dates to the original Mexican land grant.

Proposition 4

Requiring income tax referendum: Would require voter approval of any law imposing a state personal income tax; require at least two-thirds of net revenue from an income tax to reduce public school maintenance-and-operations property taxes; use remaining revenue for support of education.

Proposition 5

Establishing qualifications for sheriffs: Would allow legislators to set minimum qualifications for county sheriffs in Texas.

Proposition 6

Abolishing office of Jackson County surveyor:

Would abolish the elected office of Jackson County surveyor, transferring its functions to an officer designated by the commissioners court.

Proposition 7

Repeal of corporate requirements for issuing stocks and bonds: Would repeal a section of the Constitution adopted in response to an 1870s-era "stock watering" scandal in which stock was issued with a face value greater than the amount paid for it.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Three decades after Gregory Peck won an Oscar for portraying Atticus Finch, a forthright lawyer who stands up against prejudice, the actor's found a real-life Finch.

Peck, who starred in the 1962 movie "To Kill a Mockingbird," wrote to State Attorney Harry Lee Coe III after Coe won the conviction of two white men accused of setting a black tourist on fire.

"I could not help identifying with you, and thinking that in this case you have played the role of Atticus Finch in real life, taken on the challenge and won an important victory for all of us," Peck wrote in a note dated Sept. 8.

In the movie, Finch eloquently represents a black man charged with raping a white woman. The man is nevertheless convicted by a racist jury and later shot to death while supposedly trying to escape.

"I was so struck with a certain similarity with the case I tried in the movie," Peck told The Tampa Tribune on Thursday. "Even his photograph, (Coe) looked a little bit like me with those horn-rimmed glasses."

Proposition 8

Abolishing office of McLennan County surveyor: Would abolish the elected office of McLennan County surveyor if approved by county voters.

Proposition 9

Limiting right to redeem property sold at a tax sale: Would permit the Legislature to limit the constitutional two-year right of redemption to apply only to former owners of a residence homestead or land designated for agricultural use. Former owners of other types of property would have six months to exercise a right of redemption.

Proposition 10

Allowing Veterans Land Board to issue $750 million in bonds: Would authorize the board to issue up to $750 million in general obligation bonds, with $250 million to be used to augment the Veterans Land Fund and $500 million to be used for the veterans' housing program through a new fund.

Proposition 11

Setting duties of local public pension system trustees: Would stipulate that boards of trustees of public retirement systems not belonging to a statewide public retirement system must administer it for benefit of participants and beneficiaries.

Proposition 12

Denying bail to people on probation, charged with certain offenses: Would authorize a judge to deny bail to a person accused of certain violent or sexual crimes while they are on probation, parole or free under mandatory supervision for prior felonies.

Proposition 13

Higher Education Assistance Fund aid for Texas State Technical College: Would add the four TSTC system campuses to the list of higher education campuses receiving construction and equipment funding from the Higher Education Assistance Fund.

Proposition 14

Authorizing $1 billion in bonds for corrections facilities: Would allow the state to issue up to $1 billion in general obligation bonds, with the money used to finance construction of prison beds, new state jails, youth corrections and mental health and retardation facilities.

Proposition 15

To eliminate statewide vote for abolishing county surveyor offices: Would allow county commissioners courts to call elections to abolish the elected office of county surveyor in a county.

Proposition 16

Authorizing $75 million in bonds for agricultural business loans: Would increase amount of general obligation bonds that may be issued for the Texas Agricultural Fund from $25 million to $100 million to provide financial help in production, processing, marketing or exporting Texas agricultural products.

IS IT TIME TO REDUCE THE ASKING PRICE?

No one who has a home for sale likes to think about reducing the asking price once it has been set. Most sellers would like to think that nothing further has to be done until a buyer makes an offer. Perhaps the asking price when the home went up for sale may have been appropriate, but it may not be in line with today's prices and remain competitive. Maybe a transfer came in sooner than expected and the owner's cannot wait any longer for the sale. Or, the seller is ready to close on a new home and does not want two mortgage payments. When offers are not being made on a home, it may be the asking price was set too high from the start. If the home was not professionally appraised and overpriced from the start, a price reduction could be in order. Many owners postpone price reductions by saying, "buyers can make an offer." Buyers do not make offers without showings. Many times a price reduction will encourage showings.

Hometown banks are quickly becoming a thing of the past, but not here.

The First National Bank of Hereford is a strong community bank, and that strength can only be attributed to those of you who borrow and save with a hometown bank like us.

We take the money you invest with us and then in turn reinvest it back into the community for agriculture, consumer, commercial and real estate loans.

And as a hometown bank, we believe we should take on a fair share of civic responsibility. That's why you'll find many of our employees involved in the United Way, our Chamber of Commerce, our service clubs, our schools, churches and other civic affairs.

We're part of your community, we're your neighbors and your friends. And we're a strong and secure banking institution you can count on. Most of all, we're here because of you.

Bulldogs' big plays doom Herd to 45-28 loss

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Borger's big plays killed the Herd Friday night at Whiteface Stadium. The Bulldogs raced for four touchdowns of longer than 60 yards and beat Hereford 45-28.

The loss broke a 10-game winning streak against Borger which started in 1979. Hereford falls to 1-5 on the season--the one win came from Tascosa's forfeit.

The game was the District 1-4A opener for both Hereford and Borger, which improves to 4-2 after going winless last season.

Hereford moved the ball better on Friday than it has in any other game this season: 231 yards passing and 173 yards rushing, and that with starting tailback Marquise Brown missing his second consecutive game with an injured Achilles tendon.

Borger moved the ball too, but they did it faster. Fullback Gene Kemp started Borger's scoring with a 62-yard run, and sophomore tailback Cornell Jones added touchdown runs of 80, 72 and 62 yards. Jones finished with 22 rushes for 271 yards.

"They big-played us to death," Hereford coach Danny Haney said.

Except for the big plays, Hereford was able to stop Borger early on. Of Borger's six first half possessions, three went three downs and out. Borger had only three first downs in the first half, yet led 17-14 at the break.

Hereford scored first, driving 76 yards on 14 plays on its first possession. The Herd passing attack worked like a dream in that first drive as quarterback Elias Reyna completed 6-of-9 for 68 yards to five different receivers. Two of the completions came on fourth down--the second one for a touchdown. Reyna found Hayden Andrews in the front right corner of the end zone for a five-yard TD pass.

"I sold the fade (well) and came back," Andrews said. He caught another touchdown pass on the same kind of play in the fourth quarter. "They were two perfect passes."

Terance High kicked the extra point for a 7-0 Hereford lead with 5:17 left in the first quarter.

"I just relaxed and threw," Reyna said, succinctly explaining the passing attack's success. "We practiced it all week. They were open and they caught it, and the line gave me time."

"We'd worked hard on the wing formation and it put (Borger) in a bind," Haney said. "Michael Brown was open at the wing and the three-step (dropback) passing game was working because they stayed off us."

Borger responded by running three plays and punting. Hereford again moved the ball but failed on a fourth-down conversion at the Borger 30-yard line. Two plays later--on the first snap of the second quarter--Kemp slithered up the middle and ran 62 yards for the score.

A kick by Kacey Laughery, who hit 6-of-6 extra points, tied the game.

Hereford, aided by a short kickoff and a personal foul on Borger, quickly scored again. The foul set up Hereford at the Borger 43, and three runs by tailback Chad Carlile got the ball to the 31. Reyna rolled out to his left, and threw a perfect touch pass to Marc Haney a stride behind the defense for the score. High kicked the extra point for a 14-7 lead with 9:06 in the half.

Hereford held Borger despite a 64-yard kickoff return by Jones to the Hereford 25. Linebacker Chris Vallejo had a tackle for a five-yard loss, and backs Michael Brown and Brandon Geam sandwiched a Borger receiver to break up a third-down pass.

Hereford again drove the ball

(down to the Borger 13) and again failed on a fourth-down conversion (fourth-and-two). Borger took over, and on its second play, Jones turned the corner and went 80 yards up the right sideline for a touchdown to tie it.

Borger's Laughery added a 38-yard field goal with two seconds left in the half. Borger's field position was helped by two personal foul calls on the Herd--one while Hereford had the ball, and one when several Herd special-teamers hit a Borger player who had called for a fair catch of a short punt. Laughery's kick hit the right upright and bounced through.

Hereford suffered a painful play immediately in the second half. Reyna hit Brown with a pass over the middle, and Brown shook off a tackler for an apparent 51-yard TD catch. It was called back because of an illegal man downfield penalty. Hereford ended up punting.

"If you put that on the board, you put pressure on them, and you don't know what will happen after that," Haney said. "We were unable to do that, and they extended their lead to 10."

Borger punted, and Hereford gave the ball back with an interception. Reyna's only real bad pass of the night went straight to safety Troy Griffin.

On Borger's second play, Jones performed his Barry Sanders imitation for a 72-yard TD. He started left on the sweep but was stopped by three Hereford defenders. He wasn't tackled though, and went back to his right and up the field for the score. The kick made Borger's lead 24-14 with 5:28 left in the third.

Hereford ran three plays and punted, then Borger ran 11 plays and scored. Jones only needed to run six yards for his third TD, and the kick made it 31-14 at the end of the third quarter.

The Herd revived the offense for a nine-play, 83-yard scoring drive. Brown started it with an 18-yard run, Haney caught passes for 16 and 8 yards, and Andrews made a circus sideline catch for a 25-yard gain to the four, setting up Justin Wright's one-yard plunge. The kick was wide left and Borger led 31-20 with 9:19 left.

The teams traded quick touchdowns to make it 38-28. Borger's Jones added another 62-yard TD run, then Hereford went 72 yards on three plays for a score.

Reyna hit tight end Mark Kuper for a 25-yard gain, Kuper was speared on the play, and a Borger player object enough to the call to draw a flag for unsportsmanlike conduct. The big gainer and the two 15-yard penalties put the ball at the Borger 13. Reyna and Andrews then hooked up for their second identical touchdown pass.

Kuper caught a pass for a two-point conversion, cutting the Borger lead to 38-28 with 7:10 to play.

The Whitefaces needed an inside kick, but they didn't get it--Borger's Kemp fell on the ball after it bounced off several players. The Whitefaces needed to hold Borger immediately, but they didn't--an offside penalty on the Herd gave Borger a relatively easy first down. Then, after two five-yard penalties on Borger, quarterback Toby Guest hit Tim Baker for a 33-yard gain on third-and-11 to ice the game.

Baker was driven out of bounds at the Hereford 20, and two plays later Stephen Moore ran nine yards on a reverse for the Dogs' sixth TD. Laughery's kick provided the final score.

After the game, it was a quiet Whiteface locker room. Coach Danny Haney wasn't hanging his head, though.

"I was proud of their performance--outside of the big plays,"

District play starts for most Texas teams

By JAIME ARON
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Welcome to full-gear district play, high school football's breeding ground for everything from upsets to merciless poundings.

Both aspects were evident Friday night as several highly ranked teams were knocked off and other top teams crushed opponents by embarrassing scores such as 79-0, 52-0 and 49-0--and that was just in Class 3A.

Actually, there were a few teams playing out their non-district schedule and one of them turned out to be the biggest shocker of the night as Eldorado went to Rankin and upset 1A's top-ranked Red Devils 14-0.

The Eagles (3-3) opened the scoring with a 1-yard run near the end of the first quarter and added a second touchdown in the third quarter.

The closest Rankin (5-1) came to scoring was reaching Eldorado's 1 before turning the ball over on downs.

Two other surprising results were in 5A as Arlington ended No. 4 Arlington Lamar's 33-game district winning streak with a 21-7 victory and Odessa High upset No. 5-ranked Midland Lee 13-9.

Lamar, which hadn't lost a district game since Arlington beat them Oct. 14, 1988, ended its run by fumbling six times and throwing three interceptions before 10,000 people at UT-Arlington's Maverick Stadium.

It was only the second loss in 49 regular-season games (5-1).

The Colts (4-1-1) were led by 63

White Sox pound Hentgen, cut Jays' series lead to 2-1

TORONTO (AP) - Pat Hentgen sat in front of his locker, looking very much like a jilted lover.

It was his fastball that done him wrong. Instead of allowing Hentgen to star in his first postseason game, it led him to ruin in just 64 pitches as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 6-1 Friday night in Game 3 of the AL playoffs.

The Chicago batters knew the fastball was coming, he said, and punished him for six runs on nine singles in three innings. They realized he was not paying much attention to his breaking pitches.

Never again, Hentgen vowed, would he become so infatuated with his fast ball.

"I fall in love with that pitch," he said, "and it hurts me all the time."

Chicago, which had scored seven runs in six previous playoff games, broke the game open with five runs after two were out in the third. Seven consecutive hitters reached base.

"We were successful off Hentgen because we made him get the ball down by staying off his high cheese," said Lance Johnson, who had a pair of hits and two RBIs.

Wilson Alvarez pitched a seven-hitter as the White Sox cut Toronto's lead in the series to 2-1. Chicago is trying to become the first team to win the AL playoffs after losing the first two games at home.

The White Sox got all the breaks they lacked in those home defeats - check-swings turning into doubles, loopers falling between fielders - as they continued their superb road play. Chicago won 27 of its last 35 road games during the regular season.

"It was just a matter of time before we put everything together. Tonight we had one of those innings," Ozzie Guillen said. "If we'd had one in Chicago, it would be a different story right now."

The big Chicago inning began rather innocently, with Ron Karkovice striking out and Guillen grounding out. But then Rianes singled - the first of his four straight hits - and Cora singled to put runners on first and third.

Frank Thomas hit a smash that handcuffed third baseman Ed Sprague. It was ruled a hit and an RBI for Thomas. Robin Ventura walked to load the bases and Ellis Rains singled for two runs. After Bo Johnson walked to reload the bases, Johnson blooped a single into left field for another two runs.

"They got one big inning and it cost us the ballgame, but I'm not going to fret on it," Sprague said.

Chicago added a run in the fourth on singles by Guillen and Rianes that knocked out Hentgen, a sacrifice by Cora and a sacrifice fly by Ventura.

Raines became the first White Sox player with four hits in a postseason game since the 1906 World Series.

The Blue Jays got their run in the bottom of the third. Rickey Henderson doubled to left with two outs, breaking a personal 0-for-10 start to the playoffs, and stole third before Devon White singled him home.

Ten of the 11 Toronto runs in the series have come with two outs.

Alvarez, who had finished the regular season with seven straight wins, settled down after a shaky start to pitch the complete game. Alvarez got Tony Fernandez to hit into an inning-ending double play in the second and worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the fourth by striking out Fernandez and getting Ed Sprague on a fly to center.

Hentgen, Toronto's top winner during the regular season with 19 victories, struggled again at home. Including Friday night's playoff game, he is 7-7 with a 5.35 ERA at the SkyDome this year and 12-3 with a 2.91 ERA on the road.

HERD

Haney said, "I wouldn't trade these guys for anything."

Despite the sixth loss, Haney obviously isn't ready to throw in the towel yet. He said that if Hereford wins out, they'll still gain a playoff berth. Though he doesn't pretend that will be easy, it is a possibility, and the Herd has no choice but to strive for it.

"The playoffs are up for grabs," he said. "This set us back, but the playoffs are still up for grabs. Our players will come back and be ready for another week."

Freddie Patek, a long-time star at shortstop in the big leagues, was only 5-4.

Tony Perez of Cincinnati starred in the field at both first base and third base as a Redleg player.

The full name of star pitcher Nolan Ryan is Lynn Nolan Ryan, Jr.

George or Trudeau: Cowboys don't care which QB they face

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - It makes no difference to Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson who the Indianapolis Colts start at quarterback on Sunday.

Jeff George, who lost the starting job during his 36-day preseason boycott of the team, was expected to make his first start of the season in the Hoosier Dome. However, a hand injury sustained while he was performing mop-up duty in the final minutes of last week's loss at Denver made him questionable for Sunday and Jack Trudeau's return to the back-up role has apparently been put off.

"Jeff's a very, very talented individual and can make a lot of plays," Johnson said. "I've also been very impressed with the way Trudeau has played. It really won't affect our defense, as far as how we prepare."

Both teams are 2-2, but could be headed in opposite directions. The Cowboys have won two straight since two-time NFL rushing champion Emmitt Smith ended his holdout on Sept. 16.

"I don't think he's as sharp as what he would have been had he been in training camp," Johnson said of Smith, who has gained 116 yards on 21 carries this year. "I think it will be a few weeks before he really gets as sharp as we'd want him to be."

Indianapolis, which surrendered four touchdowns and 228 yards on four consecutive possessions to start last Sunday's 35-13 loss in Denver, has more than Smith to worry about.

Troy Aikman leads the Cowboys into their first trip to Indianapolis since the Colts arrived in 1984 with the NFL's highest quarterback rating at 98.9 and is second in the NFL in passing with 1,162 yards.

The defending Super Bowl champions have the league's second most productive offense, averaging 385.8 yards. Only the New York Jets at 412.8 have a higher average.

"We feel that we have all the pieces back in place. Now it's a matter of going out and executing," said Aikman. "We feel like we're playing well. ... We've expanded the offense a little bit each year and it's given us some more opportunities to make some plays. I feel comfortable with the way that I've played up to this point."

Aikman spreads his offerings around. Eight players have caught passes this year, including four who have 12 or more receptions. Wide receiver Michael Irvin goes into the game leading the NFL with 432 receiving yards and his 27 receptions is the league's fourth highest.

Jay Novacek is second among the league's tight ends with 19 receptions and wide receiver Alvin Harper leads all NFL receivers with a 26.4 yards-per catch mark and is second in the league to Irvin with 369 receiving yards on 14 catches.

"We're going to have to step it up another level," said defensive lineman Steve Emtman. "They're really good. They're legit, they're not a fluke. You look at them on film, they're strong all the way across the offensive line. They have a great running game. Hey, we have our hands full. There's no question."

The teams haven't met since 1984 and Dallas holds a 6-2 advantage in the series. The Colts have not defeated Dallas in the regular season since Dec. 3, 1967.

Struggling Oilers go back to site of their most embarrassing loss

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers' beleaguered run-and-shoot offense is getting better but quarterback Warren Moon is losing patience.

"I'm going to have to turn it up a notch just to get back to the level where I normally am," Moon said. "I've got to get us out of this slump. I've got to feel comfortable in the pocket and be relaxed."

Moon has slumped since the season started and the Oilers have slumped with him to a 1-3 record going into Monday night's game against the Buffalo Bills in Rich Stadium.

His quarterback rating has dropped to 61.8, 24th in the NFL and he leads the AFC with eight interceptions and he's thrown only four touchdown passes.

He expects to lead the rebound for himself and the team.

"This is a chance for us to make our mark," Moon said. "There's a lot working against us. We're playing a good team in a tough stadium, and who knows what the elements are going to be?"

The Oilers have been able to score points on the Bills. They were leading 35-3 in their first round playoff game Jan. 3 before the Bills rallied for a 41-38 overtime victory that continues to haunt the Oilers.

"There are certain teams you match up well with," Moon said. "It's a challenge to play against the Bills. We know that we have to score points to win."

The memory of their last visit to Buffalo won't be on Moon's mind.

"I can't get caught up in all of that," Moon said. "I've got so many things to occupy my mind I have to stay focused on those things and not about some game in the past."

Running back Lorenzo White is rounding back into playing shape after being slowed by a contract holdout.

Guard Mike Munchak is probable for the game after missing the past two games with injuries.

"I'm expecting continued improvement," offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride said. "We're hoping to have some more big plays. Warren got better in the Rams game and I think he's going to get where he needs to be."

Sooners should thank Longhorns for allowing them to play in Texas

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - So the Oklahoma Sooners want to get out of their annual football bash in Dallas with the Texas Longhorns.

That's the word that keeps drifting down from Norman on the latest blue norther.

Home-and-home is what the Sooners want with their old rivals. To heck with the Cotton Bowl, the Texas State Fair, the tradition, and the Friday night bash in downtown Dallas.

Obviously, sentiment, assuming there still is some, is being overwhelmed by the fact the Sooners can make a faster buck without having to share any revenue with the Cotton Bowl.

Also, there is the feeling the game is a homefield advantage for Texas although one side is Sooner red and the other side is Longhorn orange. After all, it is in Texas isn't it?

Coming into Saturday's game, the Sooners had lost four consecutive games to the hated "Horns. That long drive back to Oklahoma hasn't been a happy experience. Some fans are clamoring for the site of the game to change. Perhaps, the Oklahoma fans feel cursed because of the location.

Obviously, it's the fault of the city of Dallas that the game has been such a washout in recent years for the Sooner fans. It wasn't some of coach Gary Gibbs' horrible coaching decisions was it? Couldn't have been Cale Gundy's tight collar or the fact that Peter Gardere always found a Sooner defense ready and willing to make the incorrect play at the most improper moment could it?

What Texas Longhorns should do out of spite is let Oklahoma blunder its way out of the traditional game.

Texas should say, OK, we'll play Louisiana State or Arkansas in a traditional meeting during the Texas State Fair in the Cotton Bowl.

Why not call Oklahoma's huff and bluff? Why should Texas help Oklahoma recruit anyway? The game is a recruiting bonanza for the Sooners who must recruit Texas high school football players to stay alive in the college football business.

These Oklahoma officials and fans calling for the game to leave Dallas, one of the hottest high school football recruiting places in the nation, should be given a year's sentence away from Sooner football. Talk about not knowing where your bread is buttered.

The Oklahoma-Texas game in Dallas is one of the greatest recruiting forums in the country.

Texas fans realize the significance of the game but they also know that by playing Oklahoma every year they are probably losing some Lone Star recruits to the Sooners.

Oklahoma brought an undefeated, untied, 10th ranked team into the Cotton Bowl again on Saturday and win, lose, or draw the Sooners will probably still be griping about the game being played in Dallas.

What Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds should do is tell the Sooners adios if they don't like it.

The Longhorns can live without Oklahoma a lot more than the Sooners can live without the Longhorns.

Two of golf's most famous performers, Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, both weighed 185 pounds at top playing weight.

Pro football is kinder, gentler game today

By JOHNNY PAUL
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - To those who played in the '70s and those who played before them, the game simply evolved into a kinder, gentler version of the NFL they once knew.

Conrad Dobler, so dubbed "the dirtiest man in professional football" by Alex Karras on a Monday Night Football telecast in 1975, now might choose to call it the Neighborly Football League. Dobler, the former guard who served time in St. Louis, New Orleans and Buffalo, unveiled his self-proclaimed "innovative" style of play upon the National Football League during the '70s and early '80s.

Dobler, a three-time Pro Bowler, failed to specialize in his art form. He gouged eyes, bit fingers, kicked shins and grabbed face masks equally well. "The boys today, I think they're as tough," Dobler said. "I'm not saying we were tough, because the guys in the '60s would say we were a bunch of ---. You know what I'm saying? But as far as the true pugilistic nature of the game, it was more a pugilistic event in the '50s, '60s and '70s than it is today."

Dallas Cowboys fullback Daryl Johnston might disagree. He received his first lesson in "etiquette" from Phoenix Cardinals cornerback Lorenzo Lynch and defensive end Mike Jones earlier this season. Not one, but both stuck a hand under Johnston's mask and pushed off the fullback's face when getting up after the tackle.

"It's the first time that's ever happened to me in five years of playing," Johnston said.

"People always ask you about what goes on at the bottom of a pile. The incident that happened Sunday night is something that has no place in a football game."

"I talked to Lorenzo right after the play ended and just told him that he didn't need to do --- like that, that he could just play football. There was no need for something like that in the course of game."

Today's game still has its share of players with, ahem...reputations. Houston Oilers linebacker Wilber Marshall and Philadelphia Eagles safety Andre Waters instantly come to mind as players known for playing dirty.

Yet, "I think it was more prevalent when I played," former Cowboys safety Cliff Harris said. "And I think that it was probably even tougher and meaner, and there were meaner guys before I played."

None, however, carried the reputation of Dobler.

"I wasn't really that mean," Dobler said kiddingly. "I called it victim-precipitated violence."

Huh? "Listen, I never punched anyone that didn't deserve it," Dobler explained. "They all deserved it, and they asked for it a long time before they ever got it."

Doug Sutherland, the former Minnesota Vikings defensive tackle who tangled with Dobler more than he ever wanted, probably will be remembered more for the two statements he made concerning Dobler's tactics than for his 11-year career.

"What you need for Dobler," Sutherland once said, "is a string of garlic buds around your neck and an iron stake. If they played every game under a full moon, Dobler would make All-Pro. He must be the only guy in the league that sleeps in a casket."

The other statement? "I never had to play a football game before where I also had to worry about rabies," Sutherland said of Dobler's biting.

"Why didn't the press ever ask Doug, 'Well, what were your fingers doing inside his face mask?' Huh?" Dobler asked.

"The legend has grown. First it was a finger. Then it was an ear, then an arm. Now it's a leg. You know, I think I've eaten all of Doug Sutherland. I think he's all gone now. There's nothing left of him."

"In most legends, you just do half the things. Anyone that's a legend, and I'm not saying I'm a legend, but what legends are made of is basically only 30- or 40-percent truth. You know that as well as I do. By the time newspapers, radio and television get done with people, hell, you can get someone elected like Bill Clinton."

Dick Butkus, the former Chicago Bears middle linebacker, may have been involved in the most infamous biting incident. Of all things, it occurred during an exhibition game in 1969.

Butkus, no stranger to on-field extracurricular activities, instigated a fight. In an effort to stop the brawl, referee Ralph Morcroft dove into the bottom of a pile of fighting players. The brave and/or insane Morcroft grabbed Butkus by the face mask to keep him pinned down, but one of his fingers slipped dangerously near the mouth of the ferocious linebacker. Butkus all but made a meal of Morcroft's finger. And, yes, he was ejected.

To this day, Dobler claims another linebacker taught him how to bite.

"Let me tell you something, Lee Roy Jordan was the first guy to ever bite me," Dobler recalled of his rookie season. "I came around, picked him up on a block and caught him right under the chin. He grabbed my wrist and bit my thumb. He would have bitten through, but his top retainer came out and all he could do was kind of gum my thumb."

"He was the first guy that did it. I thought, 'Well, hell, I'm 21 years old.' I thought that was the way it was supposed to be played here. I learned from a super middle linebacker, a great linebacker for the Dallas Cowboys - Lee Roy Jordan. He's the one that taught me how to bite. I wouldn't have ever done that unless it was done to me."

Cowboys fans probably best remember Dobler for the shot he gave Harris during the 1974 season. The whistle had sounded, and players already were returning to their respective huddles.

"I was just starting to get up," Harris recalled. "The whistle already had been blown. Dobler came over from the middle of the line where he had made his block and hit me from the backside - once again these guys are brave - and knocked me over. Boy, I'll tell you what, it rang my bell."

"They used to run that film for the Cardinals and say, 'This is the way we should treat every one of the Cowboys.'"

When the incident was brought to Dobler's recollection, he beamed with glee.

"Oh, yeah," recalled Dobler, his voice rising with excitement. "That was a good one. It reminded me of the movie 'The Longest Yard,' where I said, 'I think I broke his --- neck.'"

Harris managed to walk off under his own power, and he, too, had some legendary battles with the Cardinals and their great tight end, Jackie Smith.

"I used to come up behind him - you know, you could get away with more stuff then - and I would just plow my elbow into the back of his helmet and bust him sometimes or hit him extra hard or hit him when he wasn't going to get the ball," Harris said. "He would get so mad at me. I remember one game when he came up to me and said, 'Harris, I'm going to whip your ---.'"

"I said, 'Great. Bring it,' because I knew there was nothing going to happen on the football field. He said, 'No, not in the stadium ... in the parking lot after the game.'"

Harris also related the story of a later game at Texas Stadium when Smith punched him in the stomach. This time officials caught the instigator and threw flags.

"I said, 'Hey man, you can do that all day,' Harris remembered telling Smith. "He said, 'I may do it.' It didn't even bother him."

The Cowboys acquired Smith late in his career, and Harris remembered the first time he saw the tight end in the Dallas locker room.

"I said, 'Oh, my gosh. Jackie Smith is down here to beat my butt,'" Harris recalled.

Smith soon informed Harris the two now were teammates. The slate had been wiped clean.

"I turned around and went, 'Whew,'" Harris said. "The funny thing is he's turned out to be one of my best friends now."

Dobler never will say such nice things about former Los Angeles Rams defensive lineman Merlin Olsen and his partner, linebacker Jack Youngblood.

"He ended up playing 'Father Murphy,'" so everyone thinks Merlin's some pious, polite-type guy," Dobler said. "People forget the times when he grabbed my shoulder pads and held me so Jack Youngblood could come down and take a shot at my knees."

"Those defensive linemen, they were big ol' guys. They could have kicked my butt. I guess, if they had wanted to and had the guts to. They had this perceived thing that maybe I had strapped myself to dynamite - and would have killed us both."

Intimidation still stands at the heart of such tactics. Once a reputation is established, the perceived threat is worth as much as the action.

"I don't think I ever denied it," Dobler said of his reputation. "Not only did I enjoy it, but it certainly helped. All they could do during the course of the afternoon was think about what I was going to do to them and not think about what the guy with the ball was going to do."

"That's why I enjoyed building on it, because those dumb donkeys that played on defense were too stupid to realize that all they were doing was taking themselves out of the game at hand."

Cowboys defensive end Jim Jeffcoat is in his 11th season, all with Dallas. He, too, has noticed the league's slide to a more graceful on-field disposition.

"It's still an aggressive game, and some of that stuff still happens," Jeffcoat said. "Everyone still plays hard and wants to knock your head off with a good shot, but you also want to see them play next Sunday."

yards and two touchdowns from Ricky Brown.

Odessa's victory was even more dramatic because the Bronchos scored all their points in the final quarter. They capped it with a Rod Williams interception at the Odessa 5 with 1:04 remaining.

"They wanted the win," said Midland coach Earl Miller, who plays No. 1 Odessa Permian in two weeks. "We were just outcoached. This is the poorest coaching job I've seen by us."

Another huge upset was Vernon, ranked fourth in 3A, suffering its second loss of the season 17-14 to Iowa Park.

That's pretty surprising for the team expected to be the biggest obstacle between No. 1 Southlake Carroll and a second straight state title.

"We shocked the world tonight," said Iowa Park coach Robert Clensay, whose Hawks rode a burst of 14 points in 51 seconds in the third quarter for the victory.

The rally began on the opening kickoff of the second half with an onside kick the Hawks recovered and drove for a touchdown.

Vernon's next drive was short lived as Tony Lozipone grabbed an interception on the second play and returned it for a touchdown that led to another onside kick. This time, Iowa Park settled for a field goal that proved to be the winning points.

Is 'Great Pumpkin' in this bunch?

LUBBOCK -- A combination of bad weather in other parts of the country and some good pumpkin-growing weather on the High Plains has given producers a better-than-average year.

"There's a big shortage of pumpkins in the North and Midwest because of the floods earlier this year," explained Dr. Roland Roberts, professor and vegetable specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Lubbock.

The result is a higher price -- six cents per pound -- than the usual four or five cents the producers have received, Roberts said.

"Pumpkins are more valuable than they've ever been before, not only because they're in short supply, but because people are placing more value on their decorative appeal," the specialist continued.

A Floydada grower, Hulon Carthel, reported he's getting six and a half cents per pound for jack o'lantern pumpkins.

"We could get more, but we're taking care of our regular customers," he said. "If we have an excess after filling the demand of our regular customers, we could get seven and a half cents a pound on the open market."

Carthel ships pumpkins to seven or eight states, mostly in the southeast. However, he also does a large mail order business in 27 states with specialty items, such as ornamental gourds, miniatures and Indian corn.

Another High Plains producer, Beth Kropp of Lockney, who plants 150 acres of pumpkins, ornamental squash and Indian corn, said the dry summer was a mixed blessing this year.

"Yields are down some because of the dry weather, but the quality is excellent," she said.

In the last couple of seasons, prolonged rains and high humidity at the end of the growing season caused heavy damage to the growing crop.

Last year, some farmers were

Nature helps pumpkin growers this year unable to get into wet fields for a timely harvest. But this year's lack of rain just before harvest "helped a bunch," said Kropp.

Three counties -- Floyd, Hale and Bailey -- account for most of the pumpkin production on the High Plains. An estimated 2,000 acres of pumpkins and ornamental squash were planted in the area this year.

"Pumpkin Capital, U.S.A." is the billing the community of Floydada has used in recent years.

Citizens gather every fall for "Punkin Days," a celebration that features arts and crafts, parades, contests and games for all ages and a street dance. The festival traditionally is held on the last Saturday of October.

'Working' farm show slates three-day run at site near Lubbock

Billed as the Southwest's own "working" farm show, the Texas Farmer-Stockman Show will open Tuesday in Lubbock for a three-day run.

Spread over 800 acres at the City of Lubbock farm, located just east of Loop 289 on Farm Road 835, the show will feature exhibits and hands-on presentations in an Info Plaza of 2 1/2 acres.

Another 50 acres will be devoted to commercial agricultural exhibits and a number of live demonstrations on soil and water conservation, crop production and harvesting and livestock production.

Latest farm equipment will be featured in daily demonstrations, actually harvesting crops of cotton, grain sorghum and corn.

There also will be field demonstrations of alternative energy sources, such as wind and sun, drought and heat tolerant plants and grasses for lawns and pastures, differences in area soils and development of habitat for wildlife.

The Info Plaza will have seven large tents of displays and exhibits. Among subjects addressed in the displays will be quality of life, family health, water quality and conservation, agricultural competitiveness and modern livestock production.

Also available in the Info Plaza will be information about area universities and agencies that serve urban residents as well as agriculture families.

Visitors will find information and individualized help on such topics as care of dependents, good nutrition and diet, proper food handling and safety, child safety, literacy programs and family finances.

A Texas Agricultural Extension Service boot will provide visitors with assistance in analyzing family income and spending patterns, with the assistance of computer programs.

Special attention will be given by the Soil Conservation Service in displays ranging from environmental concerns in agriculture, conservation and development of resources and irrigation water management to urban water conservation and an "Earth Team Volunteer" program.

Admission of $3 will be charged. Persons under 18 will be admitted free.

Farm family counting is victim of changes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Reflecting the changing face of U.S. agriculture, the government no longer will specially count the number of Americans who live on farms.

In its swan song accounting of farm residents, the Census Bureau announced that the number dipped to 4.6 million in 1991, or just under 2 percent of the total U.S. population.

"Farm residence is no longer a reliable indication of whether or not someone is involved in farming," said the report. "Residents of Farm and Rural Areas, 1991." "The cost of collecting and publishing statistics on farm residents and farmers in separate reports could no longer be justified."

So the Census Bureau will publish its regular study of statistical and demographic information about farming in a new report called "Farm Entrepreneurial Population."

The number of resident U.S. farmers peaked in the decade between 1910 and 1920 at about 32 million. In 1945, 20 percent of the U.S. population were farm residents. And as late as 1950, there were still 23 million Americans living on farms.

But by 1991, 32 percent of all farm managers did not live on the land they were tilling, and 86 percent of farm workers lived elsewhere as well.

The median age of farm residents in 1991 was 39.1 years, compared with 33.1 years for non-farm

Hereford FFA member is winner at Tri-State Fair

A Hereford FFA member, Colby Christie, claimed the steer show championship at the recent Tri-State Fair in Amarillo.

Christie showed his Maine-Anjou Limousin cross to the championship over 160 entries in the steer show. He also won the top spot in exotic and exotic cross steer judging.

A Deaf Smith County 4-H exhibitor, Kinann Campbell, also brought home honors from the fair event.

She showed a steer to reserve honors in the English cross class.

Failure smells like chocolate as Whitman's factory sells

By TED ANTHONY
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The sweet aroma of candy still hangs in the air at the Whitman's Chocolate Factory. But it is a bittersweet week for Philadelphia, as a tradition that began in 1842 with one man's confectionery comes to an end. The factory that for 30 years turned out box after all-purpose box of Whitman's Samplers - suitable for Mother's Day, a get-well gift or sweet-tooth binge - is being auctioned off piece by piece, like Vanilla Butter Creams, Nut Crunch Cups and Marshmallow Mint Jells plucked from their compartments.

"I feel like an undertaker who knew the deceased," said Sid Dvorak, a Philadelphia native who bought the building from Pet Inc., which had owned Whitman's for 30 years.

However, the yellow box featuring more than a dozen varieties of chocolates will live on.

Russell Stover, Whitman's chief competitor in the gift-chocolate market, paid Pet $35 million last spring for the Whitman name and contents of the factory.

The flagship product will be manufactured from now on in Abilene, Kan., by a new Stover subsidiary called Whitman's Candies Inc.

The Philadelphia plant's machinery is idle now, and the factory's 700 workers, laid off in June, have gone home. Most of the one-story building is silent except for bidders plotting their next moves in whispers.

On the main assembly line, they can't get the smell of chocolate out and probably never will. But what once pumped out the popular morsels is now labeled for auction, wiped clean of sweet stickiness and ready to move out.

Cordial Cherry and Almond Truffle molds by the thousands? Going once.

Barrel-sized kettles and empty chocolate racks? Going twice.

Contraptions with names like "Otto Hansel Boxline-Chocofil Setup Station?" Sold!

"It's a bonanza," one bidder, presumably a chocolate manufacturer, said Tuesday.

Not for Northeast Philadelphia, it isn't.

It's the latest economic blow to the area, which lost 504 jobs when Mrs. Paul's Kitchens, a manufacturer of fish sticks, left in July. Sears, Roebuck & Co., a Sealtest dairy operation and a 3M Co. plant also have joined the exodus.

Confectioner Stephen F. Whitman founded the company in 1842 when he set up a shop near the waterfront and began buying exotic candy ingredients from sailors. The Sampler first was marketed in 1912 with its trademark cross-stitch. At its height, the company sold up to 12 million boxes a year.

Pet Milk, later known as Pet Inc., bought the company in 1963, two years after the northeast Philadelphia plant was completed. But profits fell, and Russell Stover announced plans to buy the name and assets in March.

Biscuit lady has crowd at state fair

By MARY LOCHRIDGE
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
DALLAS (AP) - "Cousin Ruth" never fails to draw a crowd at the State Fair of Texas. Her name is Ruth Secevers and her talent is baking biscuits.

From the Demo Kitchen inside the Creative Arts Building just northeast of the Cotton Bowl, Secevers mixes, kneads and molds 200 to 250 biscuits a day. Her presentation is sprinkled with a lot of laughter - her own and that of those watching.

"I come up here to have a lot of fun," the retired woman from Mason tells the crowd gathered for her late-morning demonstration.

Four years ago, a fair official asked if she would become part of the fair. She agreed, and will be baking daily until the fair closes Oct. 24.

"I was scared to death," he said of her first biscuit demonstration.

Now she considers it fun.

"I love this," she said. "I guess you can see that."

Secevers grew up on a ranch helping her mother cook for her seven brothers and a younger sister. The family went through "50 pounds of flour every week," she said.

"My mother started me making biscuits very young. I had to stand on a stool," she said.

Her mother also passed down the secret to making good biscuits.

"My mother made the best biscuits in the world," Secevers said. "She never used a recipe."

Although Secevers does use a recipe, she keeps it - like her age - a secret. "I don't want my recipe published," she said. "I only give it out to friends."

She will tell the basic ingredients: flour, soda, baking powder, salt and milk.

"You can use butter," Secevers said, again encouraging people to "have fun with it."

But the real secret of making a good biscuit is "the way you mix the dough," Secevers said. She tells those watching her demonstrations to use their hands for mixing because that allows more air into the flour, which results in a lighter biscuit.

"I don't know why you'd want to use a spoon," she said, laughing and holding up her sticky, dough-covered hands.

By the end of the presentation, the smell of fresh-baked biscuits works its way throughout the building and people begin to line up for a sample.

"Cousin Ruth" demonstrates her biscuit baking at 11 a.m. daily in the Creative Arts Building. And if you're going to watch, get in line early because the number of people wanting samples usually outnumbers the biscuits.

Medicine for the public

Human immunodeficiency virus, HIV, is the virus that causes AIDS. It is spread most often through sexual contact with a person who has HIV.

However, you will not get HIV or AIDS from normal kissing, hugging or shaking hands with someone who is infected.

Persons who inject drugs can get HIV by sharing needles and syringes with infected persons. Pregnant women may pass the virus on to their babies before or during birth.

People with the virus may not look or feel sick. In some cases symptoms may not show up for 10 years or more.

If you think you may have been exposed, consider having an HIV blood test. Call your local health department to find out where testing is done. The test does not detect the virus itself, but rather the antibodies that your body makes to defend itself. It takes a while--maybe up to six months--before there are enough antibodies to show up on the test.

For a list of Medicine for the Public booklets, fact sheets and videotapes, write: Clinical Center Communications, National Institutes of Health, Building 10, Room 1C255, Bethesda, Md. 20892.

Pointers for parents

Because school hours and family work schedules rarely match, finding the right place for children to go before and after school is a must for most parents.

Where do you look? What questions should you ask? What should the kids be doing? How can you tell if a program is top-notch?

"The Right Place at the Right Time," a 24-page, parents' guide published by the National Association of Elementary School Principals, says first talk with your children. Youngsters favor programs with activities they prefer, or their buddies attend. Look for:

-A caring, well trained staff, with no more than 12 children to each adult;

-Safe and healthy surroundings with a cozy, home-like atmosphere;

-A flexible schedule, which allows children to choose a variety of activities; spend time by themselves or in groups; be inside and outdoors.

Alzheimer's support group to meet

The Alzheimer's Support Group for the Hereford area will meet at noon Wednesday, Oct. 13, at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

The group provides education, opportunity for sharing and emotional nurture. All caregivers and families are encouraged to attend.

Parents looking for a fun and safe Halloween can call on the family VCR. Instead of sending your youngsters out, invite the neighborhood in for a fun evening of traditional games, costumes and candy at a party that also features a few hauntingly good Halloween videos.

School Lunch Menus

HEREFORD PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Oct. 11-15 is National School Lunch Week. To commemorate it, regional directors of the American School Food Service Association have selected two popular, balanced meals to be included in school menus throughout America during the week.

Meal number one features a low-fat USDA-approved burger on a whole wheat bun accompanied by oven-ready potatoes, a stack of trimmings and fresh fruit or canned fruit in natural juice. Meal number two offers oven-baked chicken with steamed rice or pasta, fresh garden salad with low-fat dressing (or fresh veggies with low-fat dip), a whole grain roll and frozen fruit juice treats. Both meals include low-fat milk.

National School Lunch Week promotes good nutrition for growing kids and follows through with well-balanced meals that limit fat, cholesterol, sugar and sodium. That's why some items are baked instead of fried and why whole grain breads and low-fat products are so plentiful on the menu. Studies confirm that kids who eat right have a better chance to succeed in school. That's why good nutrition will always be the focus during National School Lunch Week--and all the other school days of the year.

In 1913, the 17th amendment to the Constitution, providing for the election of senators by popular vote rather than selection by state legislatures, was ratified.

Women honored with recent bridal shower

A double bridal shower was held for Julie and Krista Fredricksen Sept. 25 in the home of Cheryl Betzen, 200 N. Texas St.

A double wedding ceremony is planned Oct. 16 for Julie Fredricksen and Dennis Detten and Krista Fredricksen and Doug Detten.

Shower guests were welcomed by the honorees; their mother, Kathy Fredricksen; and the prospective bridegrooms' mother, Judy Detten. Diana Detten and Catherine Zinser invited guests to register.

The hostesses served refreshments of fresh fruit, sweet breads, tea ring, orange delight punch and southern pecan coffee from crystal and silver appointments.

The refreshment table was covered with a Battenburg lace cloth and was decorated with an arrangement of teal paisley covered boxes topped with teal and white silk flowers and surrounded by teal curly ribbons. Also placed on the table were photos of the bridal couples placed in crystal frames.

Each shower honoree was presented with an outdoor barbecue grill by the hostesses. They included Connie Backus, Marian Yosten, Carolyn Evers, Roberta Last, Romilda Friemel, Nancy Paetzold, Sylvia Paetzold, Christine Marnell, Donna Albracht, Joan Straffus, Dolores Foster, Carol Gerk, Jo Ann Berend, Cookie Tarr, Eileen Alley, Pat Sinnacher, Cheryl Betzen, Sheily Diller, Carmen Flood and Bernadette Kalka.

Shower honors women

Julie Fredricksen, who will wed Dennis Detten, and Krista Fredricksen, who will marry Doug Detten, were honored with a bridal shower Sept. 25 in the home of Cheryl Betzen. The double wedding ceremony will be conducted Oct. 16. Greeting guests were, from left, Kathy Fredricksen, the honorees' mother; Krista and Julie Fredricksen, the honorees; and Judy Detten, the prospective bridegrooms' mother.

Former resident writes about suicide

Understanding a few basics about suicide can save lives, says Dr. Robert E. Nelson Jr., a former Hereford resident who is the author of W.I.N.N. Against Suicide.

Nelson, the son of Bob Nelson of Amarillo, is a 1970 graduate of Hereford High School. A therapist in private practice in Vancouver, WA., Nelson is a former Army chaplain and high school counselor.

Dr. Nelson has taught suicide prevention to thousands of people over the past few years. "To help increase the awareness of the basics of suicide prevention," says Dr. Nelson in the introduction of his book, "I developed the acronym W.I.N.N. for Watch, Integrate and Never, Never."

"To watch is to be aware of those around us. It is to become more sensitive to their feelings and their actions," writes Nelson. "To integrate is to make people feel that they belong, to be friendly, caring and loving. And we must never ignore threats of suicide, never take it lightly, never leave the potential suicide alone, never give them access to the means of suicide, and never keep a deadly secret."

In his book, Nelson discusses the problem, the myths and facts about suicide, the plan to prevent suicide, what to do after attempted suicide, and what to do after suicide touches your life. The book is published by R&E Publishers, P.O. Box 2008, Saratoga, CA. 95070.

The author came to Hereford with his family in 1963. His father, Bob Nelson, was employed by Holly Sugar when the plant opened in Hereford. Dr. Nelson attended Stanton Junior High and graduated from HHS.

Dr. Nelson attended Brigham Young University and went to South

Korea as a missionary for two years. After graduating from BYU, Nelson worked as a loan officer for a finance company in Amarillo for five years. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps, attaining the rank of first lieutenant before discharge.

After returning to BYU and earning his master's degree, Nelson worked for a state institution in California, then entered the U.S. Army as a chaplain. When the Army cut back personnel following the conclusion of Desert Storm, Nelson started private practice as a therapist and seminar leader in Vancouver. He and his wife, Mary, a native of California, have three sons and one daughter.

Christmas bazaar slated Nov. 13

The annual Country Christmas Bazaar, sponsored by the Westway Extension Homemakers Club, is scheduled Saturday, Nov. 13, at the Hereford Community Center.

Seniors can profit from a variety of exercises. A recent study found that regular exercise helped people 90 and older move more comfortably and perform daily activities more easily, even when they are coping with chronic illness or rare wheelchair bound.

Most wool sweaters can be washed, some in the machine. Manufacturer's care instructions should be followed carefully.

Don't take your water for granted

Time and again after a disaster such as a hurricane in Florida or a flood along the Mississippi, residents talk about the one commodity they miss the most now that it's gone - clean, safe water.

Under the stress of a water shortage, the media promotes guidelines for conserving water, and for the most part, people follow them. But what about the rest of the time?

If you find yourself taking water for granted, try an experiment. Don't use any water for one day. You won't take it for granted again. According to the National Rural Water Association, water conservation habits are easy to develop and can actually improve the quality and quantity of water service in an area.

By following a few simple tips, you can develop water-saving habits that can preserve a commodity that only seems precious when it is not available.

Change your conservation habits by following these tips.

- Check for leaks.
- Use a rake or broom instead of a hose to remove leaves or cuttings from the driveway.
- Don't use your toilet as a wastebasket or an ashtray.
- Take a quick shower instead of a bath.
- Keep a chilled pitcher of water in the refrigerator for drinking.
- Wash vehicles with a bucket of water instead of running the hose.
- Only wash full loads in washing machines and dishwashers.

Public invited to reception today for new doctor, wife

A special welcome-to-Hereford reception for Dr. and Mrs. Howard Haysom and family is scheduled today(Sunday) from 1 to 3 p.m. at Hereford Country Club. The reception is being hosted by the health and education committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

The public is invited to attend the come-and-go reception, announced Carmen Rapp, committee chairperson.

Dr. Haysom opened his medical practice here Monday at Hereford Medical Clinic, after moving here from Houston. Dr. Haysom and his wife, Nancy, have three children--Derrick, John and Susan.

"The chamber is very happy to have the opportunity to work with Hereford Regional Medical Center in its efforts to bring new physicians to our community," said Mrs. Rapp.

How to get your child to brush

Are your youngsters taking the time to brush up on their smiles?

On the average, kids only spend 35-45 seconds brushing their teeth, even though professionals recommend brushing last at least twice as long.

Happily, someone has come up with an ingenious way to get children to remember to keep brushing. It's a toothbrush with a "magic" handle that changes color. Called "Jordan Magic," it takes approximately two minutes for the handle to completely change color indicating proper brushing duration. It changes back after you are finished--ready for the next time.

Watching the toothbrush handle gradually change makes brushing fun, encouraging longer brushing--one of the keys to better oral hygiene. More than 98 percent of the children surveyed in dentists' offices liked the changing color of the toothbrush so much, they wanted to take it home. Made from a non-toxic, thermal activated plastic, the toothbrush is available in the a number of fun, vibrant colors.

ANGELA BANNER, RODNEY STRAFUSS

Couple to wed

Angela Raquel Banner and Rodney Carl Strafuss, both of Hereford, plan to wed Jan. 8, 1994, in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mark and Janie Banner of 307 Hickory and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Carl and Joan Strafuss of Route 4, Hereford.

Miss Banner graduated from Hereford High School and is a senior mathematics major at West Texas A&M University in Canyon. She is a member of the Mathematical Association of America, Texas Zeta Chapter of Alpha Chi (National College Honor Society) and WTA&M Math and Physical Sciences Club.

Strafuss, also a graduate of HHS, attended West Texas State University and is currently engaged in farming and ranching with Strafuss Brothers' Farm north of Hereford. He is also a NC + Seed salesman.

The lead pencil with an attached eraser was patented in 1858.

BALTIMORE (AP) - Buttafuoco is out, Schmoke is in.

Now that the Joey Buttafuoco-Amy Fisher story has ended - one hopes - with Buttafuoco's admission that they had sex, David Letterman has picked a new name to kick around.

"Baltimore Mayor Kurt Schmoke. I don't have a joke here, I just love saying Kurt Schmoke," Letterman said.

Letterman, who got comedic mileage simply by reciting the name Buttafuoco, pronounced the Baltimore mayor's name several times Monday night, drawing laughs each time.

"I look forward to meeting David Letterman one day," Schmoke said Wednesday. "You know, so I can say David Leeeeeeetterman or something."

MODIFYING FAT

FAT: Provides flavor and richness, Improves texture and tenderness in baked goods and Promotes flakiness and lightness

Eggs: Provide structure and tenderness, Act as a thickener and emulsifier, act as leavening agents when beaten

To Decrease total fat and calories: In casseroles and main dishes, cut back or even eliminate added fat. For example, browning meat in added fat is unnecessary because some fat will drain from the meat as it cooks. Use a nonstick pan or cooking spray.

Saute' or stir-fry vegetables with very little fat or use water, wine, or broth.

To thicken sauces and gravies without lumping, eliminate fat and instead mix cornstarch or flour with a small amount of cold liquid. Stir this mixture slowly into the hot liquid you want to thicken and bring it back to a boil.

Chill soups, gravies and stews and ski off hardened fat before reheating to serve.

Select lean cuts of meat and trim off visible fat. Remove skin from poultry. Decrease the proportion of oil in homemade salad dressings. Try one-third oil to two-thirds vinegar.

Use reduced-calories sour cream or mayonnaise, or to reduce fat further, use plain low-fat or nonfat yogurt, buttermilk, or blended cottage cheese instead of regular sour cream or mayonnaise for sauces, cottage cheese instead of regular sour cream or mayonnaise for sauces, dips and salad dressings. If a sauce made with yogurt is to be heated, add 1 tablespoon of cornstarch to 1 cup of yogurt to prevent separation.

Use skim or low-fat milk instead of whole milk. For extra richness, try evaporated skim milk.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Islands top honeymoon destinations

Hawaii is one of the most popular honeymoon destinations. In fact, it is the first honeymoon choice of Americans who leave the continental United States, say the experts at Pleasant Hawaiian Holidays, the largest travel company to the Islands.

If you're planning a honeymoon in Hawaii, here are some things you'll want to know about "America's Paradise."

-There are no traffic lights on Molokai, the island considered to be most like the Hawaii of old.

-The island of Oahu is called "the gathering place" because it is home to almost 80 percent of Hawaii's population. Here, too, are Honolulu, the state capital, and famed Waikiki Beach.

-Haleakala, an extinct volcano on Maui, is the highest point on the island. Known as "House of the Sun," its crater is 19 square miles in area.

-A winery and the only vine yard in Hawaii are located almost midway up the slope of Haleakala. Tasting rooms and tours are available for travelers.

-Kaanapali Beach, a resort area on Maui, was once part of a sugar plantation. Long before, it was a playground for Hawaiian royalty.

Operating on the edge and even outside of the law, credit clinics abuse laws and policies established to protect consumers. They flood the credit reporting agencies' consumer assistance systems with multiple disputes, hoping that accurate negative information will be erased from a client's credit files.

Easy upkeep for hardwood floors

For those who love the look of hardwood floors, but get headaches thinking about the upkeep, think again. With just a little care, the beauty of a hardwood floor can last a lifetime. Interested in giving your floors a facelift?

Follow these tips:

-The care of your floor depends on its finish. To clean floors with polyurethane finishes, damp-mop periodically with a quarter cup of vinegar diluted in one quart of water. Do not damp-mop a wax finished floor. Instead, buff to restore its luster.

-Sanding and refinishing aren't always necessary to make a waxed floor look new again. Often, a dull finish can be rejuvenated just by buffing and waxing.

-Vacuum or dust mop at least once a week to remove grit, which causes scratches.

-Keep water off the floor.

Welcomes
Howard H. Haysom, MD
Family Practice

- * Doctor of Medicine degree, Dalhousie University Medical School, Nova Scotia, Canada
- * General rotating internship, Dalhousie
- * Private practice, Houston, Tx., 16 years

Dr. Haysom's practice in Houston revolved around primary care for the entire family, and that's the focus he plans for his practice in Hereford. The primary care physician is the first guardian of a family's health, according to Dr. Haysom. It is the family physician who frequently makes the first diagnosis of an illness, and it is his expertise that helps the patient choose the proper specialist, if one is needed.

Born in Johannesburg, South Africa, Dr. Haysom spent his early years in South Africa, Rhodesia, Luxembourg, and Canada.

Dr. Haysom and his wife Nancy have three children: Derrick, John, and Susan. Mrs. Haysom is a graduate of Louisiana State University & South Texas College of Law.

The couple's leisure time is devoted to gardening and family activities.

Between The Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

Joe is on vacation this week so I have the pleasure of writing the article. This month will be a busy time for the library, so in order to prepare the Commissioners have given us a day off. The library (and other county offices) will be closed October 9-11 in celebration of Columbus Day. October 15-16th will be the beginning of the Friends of the Library Book Sale. Remember you must be a paid member of the Friends in order to attend the 15th sale. Memberships will be sold at the door. As a part of the book sale seven books are being raffled. Those books are very nice expensive books that have been donated by different people in the community. Come into the library and see which book you would like to have for your very own. The book sale will only last for one and half weeks this year instead of a month. So mark your calendars and make a special effort to come by.

The Family Film, Hawmps, will be shown at 7:00 p.m. on October 21, 1993. This film starring James Hampton, Slim Pickens and Denver Pyle is the tale of the U.S. Cavalry's attempts to use camels instead of horses in the southwest desert area of our country.

Strip Tease by Carl Hicasen is found on the New York Times Best Seller list. This is the story of Congressman David Dilbeck who has a bad problem. It seems he just can't stay away from naked women. The congressman barely escapes a bad situation in a strip joint, but not before being recognized by another observer, "Mr. Peppers." Mr. Peppers turns out to be a very cunning blackmailer and this is an election year. Dilbeck turns to Malcolm "Moldy" Moldowsky in a desperate attempt to protect his

Jackson, Cramer tie for best speaker

Rick Jackson and Sharon Cramer tied for the best speaker at the recent Hereford Toastmasters Club meeting held at the Ranch House.

Dee Hamilton was named as best evaluator and Sharon Ruland was best topic speaker.

Jackson, who presided at the business meeting, led the pledge and Chris Leonard gave the invocation.

Margaret Del Toro served as Toastmaster; Charles Minchew, timer; Ralph Barndt, "ah" counter; Bob Lohr, grammarian; Ed Gilbert, wordmaster; and "exactitude", the chosen word meaning quality for being exact.

Joe Weaver was topicmaster and topic speakers included Dan Hall, Mike Harris, Dave Kimmel, Sharon Ruland and Chris Leonard.

Sharon Cramer spoke on "A Place for Your Stuff," evaluated by Dee Hamilton, and Jackson spoke on "Effective Table Topics," evaluated by Wayne Winget.

The joke of the day was told by Linda Minchew and Dr. M.C. Adams served as general evaluator.

Play it safe when cleaning

Ask parents and most will tell you that kids and dirt are a natural combination. Whether it's a first full of cookies smeared on a chair, or crayon marks decorating newly painted walls, cleaning is bound to be a daily occurrence.

However, cleaners and kids are not a match made in heaven. Young children can easily come into contact with harsh abrasives when parents turn their heads for a split second.

The next time you're getting ready to clean up after little messes, keep your cleaning jobs child-safe by using common sense and these tips from the cleaning experts at Murphy's Oil Soap - a trusted cleaner for more than 85 years.

-Keep all cleaning agents under lock and key, or out of children's reach in above-the-sink cabinets.

-Wash toys and teething items with a soapy water solution and rinse thoroughly.

-Mop kitchen floors with a naturally gentle soap like Murphy's Oil Soap, a traditional cleaner that's been used by generations of families.

-Don't leave buckets containing cleaning solutions unattended.

-If your furniture or wooden toys are family heirlooms, make sure they are safe by today's standards. When washing these heirlooms, always pretest cleaners in an inconspicuous area. Even water, the mildest of cleaners, can have an impact on sensitive, time-worn surfaces.

-Never keep cleaners in unmarked bottles that can be mistaken for drinks.

-Use an convenient gentle, spray formula to clean hard-to-reach areas on high chairs, cribs, play pens and changing tables.

reputation, as shaky as it is. Soon the stakes are murderously high.

For those readers intrigued with vampires, Children Of The Night, by Dan Simmons is right up your alley. Kate Newman, a brilliant hematologist, is in Ceausescu Romania to assist in the treatment of rare blood diseases. Joshua, a seven month old boy, has a disease which requires bi-weekly transfusions in order to survive. None the less Joshua turns out to be a miracle child that may hold the key to a cure for cancer and AIDS as well as extending human lives. Kate adopts Joshua and returns to Colorado where she hopes to save Joshua by learning more about this amazing immune system. Just as Kate is to discover a breakthrough, terror reaches out and changes Kate's life forever.

Until Proven Guilty by Christine McGuire begins with a body of a young female being found mutilated near the Pacific Shore. Soon there is another, then a third. Kathryn Mackay, juggling dozens of cases in the district attorney's office and motherhood, has just been put in charge of the investigation of these recent murders. Now she must contend with ex-lover Dave Granz, the best detective in the department, but a maverick; Ricardo Sanchez, a charming TV newsman; and mind-hunter, smart handsome, available Steve Giordano, not to mention the killer. SOon the killer is sending cryptic notes to Kathryn signed with a drawing of a gingerbread man, "Run, run, as fast as you can. You can't catch me, I'm the Gingerbread Man."

In March 1917 the world was embroiled in a war. Lasting Treasures by Julie Ellis finds young Victoria Gunsburg stranded in war-torn Paris with only the clothe son her back. There Victoria meets and falls in love with a charming American Serviceman Gary Barton. Victoria returns to America with her husband where she finds an accepting and kind mother-in-law, but the rest of the family isn't as open minded. As Gary struggles to become a successful concert pianist, they soon find their marriage in trouble. Desperate to find a diversion from her failing marriage, Vicky becomes involved in the families Barton Tobacco Company. Vicky struggles to remain true to herself even though she is betrayed by those closest to her.

When God Doesn't Make Sense by James Dobson addresses those who have been left confused and disillusioned by life's difficulties. Dr. Dobson strives to nurture the faith of those so shaken by their inability to understand why certain life crises have stricken them. Unfortunately, some believers are so stricken that they feel a profound sense of abandonment by God. Dr. Dobson through personal experience and scripture offers insight into some of the trails of life and how to cope with them.

Senior Citizens Center discussed at meeting

Margie Daniels, executive director of the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, was the featured speaker at the recent Garden Beautiful Club meeting held in the home of Nadine Hill with Audine Dettman serving as co-hostess.

Daniels told about the center as well as the Lifeline Program which is used by many local senior citizens. She also announced that pneumonia and flu shots will be given at the center Oct. 12-13.

Garden tips were given to those present. Members were encouraged to check for grass damage and remove all weeds before the seeds scatter.

Dettman suggested to the women that they write to the companies that sponsor television programs that contain violence, profanity and sex. These sponsors are called the "Dirty Dozen."

Dorothy Noland will host the next meeting with Jeanne Dowell serving as co-hostess Nov. 12. An auction with Bessie Story in charge will be held at that time.

Those present were Vada Axe, Louise Axe, Ruby Carmichael, Leona Andrews, Marguerite Cole, Audine Dettman, Jeanne Dowell, Dorothy Noland, Helen Spinks, Bessie Story, Louise Streun, Margaret Young and Nadine Hill.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) - Dickey Betts, guitarist for the Allman Brothers Band, was fined $295 for pushing a police officer who tried to break up an argument between Betts and his wife.

Betts' lawyer, Michael Toohey, entered a guilty plea for him Tuesday to disorderly conduct. The Parrish, Fla., musician was not in court; he is in Florida undergoing treatment for alcohol abuse, Toohey said.

The argument took place at the couple's hotel room after an Allman Brothers concert July 31.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Kevin and Marci's business was doing well. Sales in their appliance and electronics store were up nearly 15 percent over last year. They were justifiably proud of that increase because the economy in their community was very slow.

Kevin was especially pleased with the new line of business he had generated. Though it had taken months of work, Kevin had convinced several local home builders to install his premium appliance brands.

One large contractor had been tough to sell. Finally, he had agreed to place his business with Kevin and Marci in return for extended credit terms. Marci was concerned because the terms more than doubled their average accounts receivable.

Kevin didn't allow Marci's fears to dampen his spirits. Although the local rumor mill had chummed a few months earlier regarding the alleged financial troubles of this builder, Kevin thought the potential sales justified that risk. After all, he pointed out to Marci, they were getting nearly the full mark-up on sales to this account.

For several months events proceeded smoothly. The contractor placed large orders, and though he was a slow paying account, the checks were always good. Kevin never thought too much about the sudden resignation of the builder's comptroller.

Less than a week later, a tearful Marci ran into the store waving the local newspaper. "I knew it was too good to be true," she cried pointing at the day's top story. The headline read, "Local contractor files for bankruptcy." Kevin's heart sank as they checked their books. The contractor's account contained nearly $40,000 in unpaid receivables.

Warning signals

Take a good look at all of your open account customers. If any of them filed for bankruptcy protection, would it place your business in jeopardy? Has competition or your desire for sales pushed you into a position of extending more credit than you would like?

If you answered yes to either of the above questions, take heed. If you are going to assume the role of banker for any of your customers, you need to be aware of the pitfalls. Unexpected bankruptcies are real.

You can lower your risk by establishing tough credit policies and watching for financial warning signals. Here are six danger signs:

- 1) Negative gossip in the local rumor mill. While you shouldn't believe everything you hear, persistent rumblings about one of your open, unsecured accounts should get your attention. Pull a current credit report, request up-to-date financial statements and watch closely for change.
- 2) Key personnel turnover. Kevin should have been concerned by the abrupt resignation of the builder's comptroller.

- 3) To use an old-time analogy, rats often jump off a sinking ship. IRS problems, tax and mechanics liens and legal actions often signal a customer in trouble. Check with the court house or the recorder of deeds for such filings. Some problems may not show up on a credit report.
- 4) Slower-than-usual, partial or sporadic payments may be an early tip-off of cash flow problems. Monitor all of your open accounts. An aging report can help you spot changes in payment patterns.
- 5) Lack of communication is a danger signal. You should be concerned about phone calls that are never returned, letters that go unanswered and key personnel who dodge any attempt to be contacted. False information should also cause alarm. The check shouldn't be in the mail for too long. An increasing volume of business may be good news or bad news. Sometimes when a poor credit risk customer is cut off by other suppliers they will be forced to place business wherever they can. Watch out for large orders and unexplained increases.

As with many other problems, early recognition may prevent loss. Look for warning signals and don't get stuck holding the bag.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you haven't closed the door on the subject of closet smokers because I would dearly love to state my views.

I have smoked for 45 years. My husband was also a smoker until six years ago when he stopped. We have had the worst fights of our entire marriage over my smoking. I resent the fact that I am forced to live with all these feelings at this stage of my life. Please don't tell me to see a shrink. In the first place, I can't afford it. In the second place, I have no desire to dredge up the horrors of my early life that lead me into this monstrous habit.

I did quit smoking once for six weeks. During that time, I became severely depressed, and all the terrible anxieties I experienced as an abused child came back to haunt me. I probably could have stayed off cigarettes if I had turned to alcohol or drugs as a substitute, but I decided not to try.

Last week, a 74-year-old woman was arrested for trying to shoplift a pack of cigarettes. Instead of helping pathetic tobacco "addicts" like this woman, what do we do? We increase the tax on the pack. Does that make any sense? I'll leave it to you. Sign this--A Smoker in Lafayette

DEAR LAFAYETTE: The mail generated by this subject has been multifaceted and very informative. Keep reading for more:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for the gentleman whose wife is a closet smoker. Perhaps if he tried to look at it from her point of view, he would see things differently.

Maybe she chooses not to smoke in front of him because of all the negative comments he has made about smoking, and she's ashamed she can't quit. Does she have outside interests that she is unable to share? Maybe she is lonely and looking for a little excitement, like sneaking cigarettes without getting caught.

Why doesn't he let his wife know he's aware of what she is doing so they can get their relationship back on an honest basis?--Mr. X

DEAR DALLAS,ORE.: I am 71 years old and have been a widow since 1990. "Gene" and I were married for 48 years. He started to smoke when he was 16 and quit 10 years ago. But it was too late. The damage had already been done. The cancer had invaded his liver and bones.

By the way, my son is a heavy smoker like his dad, and it worries me sick. It's no use telling people to stop. It's an addiction. My hands get shaky when I think about this. I hope you can read my writing.

Martinsburg, W.V.: My husband fooled me about his smoking for years. He told me he had quit, but after he died, we found piles of cigarette butts in the basement. I even caught him smoking the day before he died, and I said some awful things to him. I wish I could take those ugly words back. I am sorry now that I made him sneak around.

Mastic, N.Y.: I just read about the woman who is a closet smoker and am mad as the devil. Why should a grown woman have to sneak behind her husband's back to do anything? If he were a real man, he'd put the ashtrays back and tell his wife she should go ahead and smoke if she feels like it. They will both feel better and the marriage will be a lot healthier.--I'm For Open and Above Board

DEAR OPEN AND ABOVE: Your signature is my philosophy. Thanks to you and all who wrote.

Gem of the Day: Sign in a plumber's window: "Do it yourself. Then call us."

Do you have the questions about sex, but no one to talk to? Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," is frank and to the point. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

A record number of entries are expected in the 1994 National Student Sterling Design Competition. The primary purpose of the competition is to stimulate interest in sterling and its design among student designers/craftsmen.

Hospital Auxiliary plans fund raiser

The Hereford Regional Medical Center's Auxiliary is hosting a jewelry sale from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Oct. 29 in the dining room lobby of the hospital.

The sale, which is a major fund raiser for the auxiliary, will feature fashionable jewelry for all occasions. For sale will be 14k gold and sterling silver earrings, bracelets, watches and rings at exceptional values. Other costume jewelry and gemstones will also be featured.

Profits from the sale will be used for the hospital's adopt-a-room project and various auxiliary projects.

"This is a great time to do some early Christmas shopping," Quintina Waits, auxiliary president, said. "Customers will have a chance to make some excellent buys and help fund worthy projects at the same time."

Williams presented with 10-year membership pin

Marta Williams was presented with her 10-year membership pin when members of the Ladies Auxiliary to Roy Wederbrook Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4818 met in regular session Oct. 4 with Linda Dutton presiding.

The charter was draped in loving memory of Emma Jo Irlbeck and the auxiliary also sent memorials for her to Rebekah Lodge and Hereford Senior Citizens Association.

General Orders #2 from the state president were read along with the other correspondence.

Bills were presented and paid and all members were reminded that the next District 13 Convention will be held Nov. 6-7 at Canyon.

The meeting was preceded by a salad supper at 7 p.m.

Because of the change back to central standard time, the next meeting Nov. 1 will be held at 7:30 p.m. with supper served at 6:30 p.m.

Members present were Betty Boggs, Doris Coffin, Dorothy Collier, Linda Dutton, Marie Goheen, Ruth Morris, Terry Rhyne, Earline Schneider, Marta Williams and Doris Wilson.

Alpha Iota Mu Chapter hosts recent rush party

"Walt Disney" was the theme of the rush party attended by members of the Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority when the group met recently in the home of Pattie Urbanczyk.

The membership committee hosted the event. Serving as hostesses were Pattie Urbanczyk, chairman, and Janice Betzen, Jaime Brorman, Danell Culp and Teresa Hopping. The meal consisted of enchiladas, tea and cheesecake.

Following the dinner, President Jaime Brorman opened the meeting with the opening ritual. Roll call was answered by 11 members: Brorman, Urbanczyk, Jane Meiwes, Carmen Gonzales, Culp, Betzen, Glenna Calaway, Wanda Huseman, Marrie Leverett, Marybeth Messer and Mary Bob Ward. Three guests were also recognized: Sheryl Welch, Gwen Betzen and Debbie Grabbe.

During the business meeting, committees were discussed and Urbanczyk distributed ballots concerning changes regarding the Valentine Ball, Sweetheart Brunch and Beta Night. Also, orders were taken for two cookbooks offered by Beta Sigma Phi.

President Brorman led the members in the closing ritual.

"Red letter days," or memorable days, are so-called from the custom of using red or purple colors to mark holy days on the calendar.

NEW YORK (AP) - Billy Joel is a hit-writing phenomenon whose records regularly go gold and whose concerts sell out. And to think it all started because he wanted to meet girls.

Joel told PBS' Charlie Rose in a recent interview that what he enjoyed most about playing the piano in bands was the chance to meet women.

It didn't work too well at first when he encountered model Christie Brinkley, to whom he now is married.

"I saw her getting on a plane to go to this island in the Caribbean. I said, 'That's Christie Brinkley!' I recognized her immediately and tried to get her to recognize me," he said.

"I'm trying to look like me. I'm trying to do what I call 'throw an album cover.' Nothing," he said. Then, a few days later, Joel was playing the piano in a small restaurant, and there she was.

"We got to talking and we were friends at first," Joel said. "I was nuts about her, but it took a while for her to reciprocate."

Joel's "River of Dreams," with cover art by Brinkley, is No. 5 on the charts.

One play could run you clear of home buying interference.

Financing. Down Payments. Price negotiations. Inspections.

All obstacles that could block you from buying a home.

But one move could get you right through that red tape. A call to an experienced real estate agent.

—YOUR EYES—

CHANGES THAT COME WITH AGE

As years go by, there are changes in what we can and cannot see. They may be gradual, or quite dramatic. Most people experience limitations. Your eye doctor can help you adjust to them.

What should you look for?

- It's more difficult for the eye to change focus from distance to near, and vice versa. It's harder to read without glasses.
- The pupils become smaller, so less light enters the eye. It's harder to see at night.
- The lens inside the eye may cloud up; that cataract will have to be removed.
- Reaction time slows. Corrected vision must be improved to compensate for the delay.
- Side vision may diminish with age.

To protect your eye health, schedule regular examinations, especially if you become aware of any vision loss.

COUNTRY PLAN WITH FOUR BEDROOMS

Large Porch for Country Living

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

Cross the large country styled front porch and enter this home through a long formal entrance foyer. The dining room is through a cased opening and it features a bay window. Another cased opening leads directly into the activity room, or to the stairs up to an undeveloped attic area. The ceiling in the activity room is a stepped tray, providing an elegant feeling.

The kitchen and breakfast room open to the activity room, also contributing to the feeling of spaciousness. The breakfast room has a bay window and overlooks the sun deck which is accessible either from the master bed room or the activity room.

The kitchen includes all the modern conveniences. An extra touch for the cook is that the sink is located overlooking a snack bar between this area and the activity room.

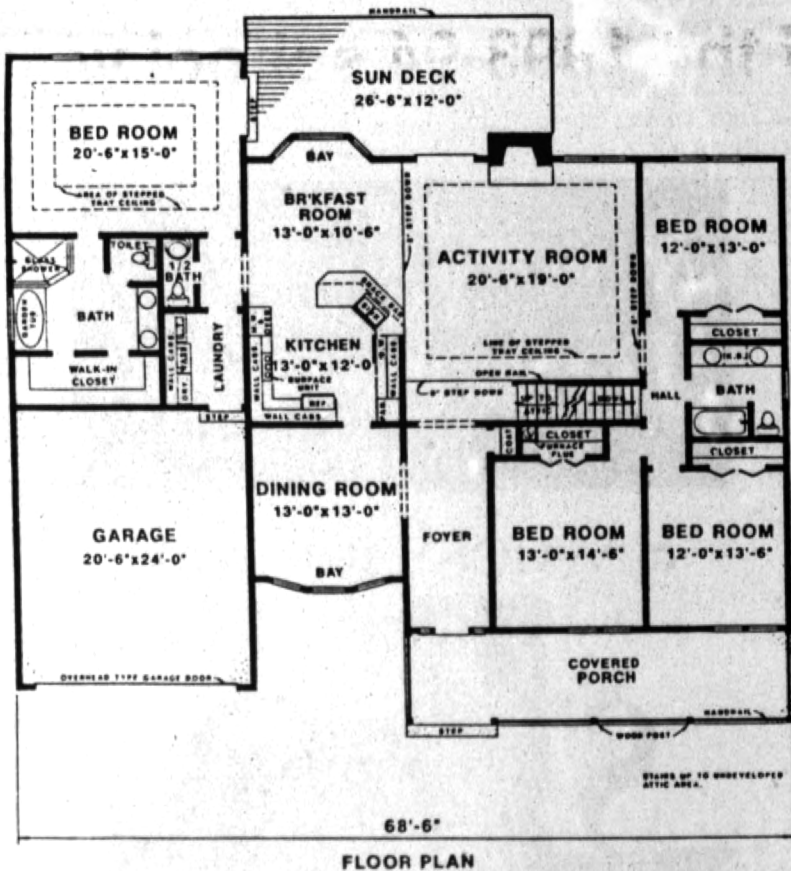

The master bed room is located off a hall which connects to the laundry room and oversized double garage. A half bath is located here as well for daytime use.

The master suite includes another stepped tray ceiling and a lavish bath including separate glass shower and garden tub. A closet with abundant hanging space is coupled with the bath area.

The three remaining bedrooms, which utilize a central bath are accessible from a hall off the activity room.

The exterior is country with triple dormers, a covered front porch and horizontal wood siding.

Plan number 2558 is a computer generated plan drawn in accordance with FHA and VA requirements, and contains 2,595 sq. ft. For further information, write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

"Dr. Quinn" to host program

NEW YORK (AP) - Jane Seymour is not a doctor, but she plays one on TV - and now she's handing out medical advice in real life.

The star of "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" - who, coincidentally, is the daughter of a surgeon - says she goes to a chiropractor for her back, uses acupuncture for headaches and wants to try biofeedback for stress.

Seymour, 42, will be host of "The Heart of Healing," a three-part series about alternative medicine to be broadcast on the TBS cable network.

She acknowledges many people have trouble accepting the value of unconventional treatments.

"I'm not saying regular medicine doesn't work," she told For Women First magazine. "All I'm saying is that alternative medicine works, too."

 You Got It!
CLASSIFIEDS
364-2030
Fax: 364-8364
313 N. Lee

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

| TIMES | RATE | MIN |
|-----------------|------|-------|
| 1 day per word | .15 | 3.00 |
| 2 days per word | .26 | 5.20 |
| 3 days per word | .37 | 7.40 |
| 4 days per word | .48 | 9.60 |
| 5 days per word | .59 | 11.80 |

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
 Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are 4.25 per column inch; 3.65 an inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS
 Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notice. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers an additional insertion will be published.

Brain tumor changes desires of Texas teen

By VIVIENNE HEINES
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
KING RANCH, Texas (AP) - Nineteen-year-old David T. Perez, in a wheelchair with a brain tumor, has simple goals these days.
"To walk. To not depend on anyone. To drive again," he said, listing them.
Once, his goals were more far-reaching but no less ambitious. He dreamed of having a career and earning enough money to move his family from its white-washed brick home on the King Ranch to a big house in a larger city.
But that dream, the aspirations of a boy whose parents' and grandparents' lives began and ended on this sprawling cattle ranch, was shattered one day five years ago.
It was the first day of classes at H.M. King High School in Kingsville and David came home sick.
Within days, he was hospitalized with a high fever. A tumor was found at the stem of his brain. His relatives were told to prepare for his death.
"At first, they told me he was inoperable. They didn't give me any hope," said David's mother, Emma. She is a divorced mother of four and works as a cook at the main residence on the King Ranch.
"One night at the hospital, he fell into a coma. The doctor told me to bring the priest and call the family."
They waited two days, and instead of dying, David opened his eyes and looked at them. The doctors decided to operate and David began the slow process of physical rehabilitation.
His mother said his future is uncertain - he has been near death twice since that first illness. He also began an equally painful struggle to obtain an education - an effort that relatives and friends describe as tenacious and courageous.

difficult for them to pass college work," he said. "I want to give them the best opportunity to learn something. And they make friends real quickly. The socialization part is very helpful to the students."
For David, life since the tumor has been a series of small and large battles. Each time he was able to achieve some academic success, he fell ill and had to struggle to maintain his grades.
The cracked cement driveway at his family's house makes it hard for his mother to push his wheelchair from the doorway to the family car, an unreliable two-door Ford. He has been unable to get a motorized wheelchair because his family lacks funds and he doesn't qualify to receive one free from the state. As a college student, no transportation is available for him to attend class so his sister drops him off and an aunt picks him up on campus.
"We would take a step forward and go back three," Anita Perez said. "His determination and his willpower and his stubbornness got him through high school."
One such obstacle occurred in 1990, when David was rehospitalized and underwent surgery a second time and had chemotherapy. When he finally came home, Anita Perez was assigned as his homebound teacher. She said David was determined to complete all his assignments without modifications, and then became just as determined to return to school with his classmates. There, he managed to keep up with his classmates and even take some honors courses.
However, in his senior year, David fell ill once again. He spent Thanksgiving of 1992 through New Year's Day of 1993 in the hospital. He returned to school and managed to catch up with his classmates so he could graduate in May, 4+ years after he began, Perez said.
Neither David nor his mother know what caused his illness. Two operations and five years later, David speculates that a head injury when he was fishing with friends could have led to the problem.
"In 1988, he was a normal child," his mother said. "He had just graduated from eighth grade and was so excited about playing football" at H.M. King High.
David said the hardest time was his second hospitalization, when he had so much schoolwork to catch up with. He would like to pursue some sort of writing career. "That's what I'm good at," he said. "I want to study for something I'm good at and that's not boring."
His mother says David was also the most academically motivated of her children and today helps tutor his younger brother and sister.
"I'm just praying," she said when asked about her oldest son's future. "They (the doctors) just say, 'Go from day to day.' He's been with me for a lot of years and I pray he'll be with me a lot longer."

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 41 years old and recently discovered I have started the menopause. My doctor suggests that I take Provera and estrogen together. I choose not to take medicine. Is there anything that I can do naturally to help feel better? Is it OK to take a daily multiple-vitamin tablet? How long does the menopause last?

My low back and entire length of both legs and calves ache all the time. I have headaches and very bad nausea which comes and goes.

DEAR READER: I am not at all sure your symptoms are caused by starting the menopause. You may have started your menopause and need hormone replacement, but have some unrelated reasons for your symptoms. In that case, you may need something more than hormones.

If you are starting the menopause, that is the most important time to have hormone-replacement therapy to prevent bone loss — a major reason for hormone-replacement therapy. There really is no substitute for the hormones or anything you can do naturally to achieve the same effect.

It is perfectly all right to take a multiple-vitamin preparation. But that will not replace a woman's need for hormone replacement when needed. It is, however, of help if you have a poor diet.

The menopause lasts a variable amount of time. It can begin in the early 30s or not until the 50s. There is a great deal of variation in onset, duration and how much difficulty a woman has with it. To help you understand it better and what can be done, I'm sending you a free copy of Special Report 97, The Menopause and Beyond. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/97, P.O. Box 5537, River-ton, NJ 08077-5537.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Could you please tell me what causes a man to be a homosexual? I need to know all the causes as soon as possible.

DEAR READER: You might as well ask what causes a man to be a heterosexual. Sexual orientation is very complicated. There is good evidence that there are anatomical differences in the brain of gays, straights and females. It is likely this is a difference established before birth, just as are the differences between males and females. The female brain has an average of a 28-day cycle. Obviously males do not. That, then, is the genetic factor that may be operating and is about the same as whether you were born to be short, tall, black, brown or white. Hormone levels during the pregnancy may also play a role in the brain development.

Then there are environmental factors. Homosexual activity in usually straight men is not uncommon in prison or situations where the heterosexual male is denied his usual form of activity. Some psychiatrists believe all males are born at least with an ambivalent sexual orientation that later becomes more or less fixed one way or the other.

Many mammals regularly engage in homosexual activity as part of their normal lifestyle, the dolphins for example. And in the days of ancient Greece in Sparta, most young men in the army had an older lover. It was the norm. There is even good evidence that Alexander the Great, the military genius of the age, was at least bisexual. So there is no one answer, but history suggests it is just part of the spectrum of human behavior, regardless of whether one considers it moral or immoral.

Many parents feel guilty because a child is gay. Usually how they raised the child had nothing to do with it.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My cholesterol readings were regularly 260 to 280 until I went on a low-fat, healthy diet a few years back. I'm 58 years old, 5 feet 10 inches and 170 pounds. I have always been athletic and workout at least three times a week in a gym. My reading stays around 240, and I can't seem to lower it no matter what I eat or how much I exercise.

I suspect the culprit is my liver, that I just produce more cholesterol than the average person. Believing this, I started to regularly take niacin, which I understand inhibits somewhat the production of cholesterol from the liver. Am I on the right track? What else can I do short of taking medicine, which I wish to avoid at all costs?

DEAR READER: A proper diet and exercise are the first steps in improving cholesterol levels. Often that is sufficient, when a person actually stays with the program. While that usually helps, as your own case demonstrates, it doesn't always help enough. In that event, medicines are often indicated.

Yes, genes are an important factor in what your cholesterol levels may be. Some rare individuals have genes that produce very low total cholesterol and high HDL cholesterol levels. They can eat what they please and never have heart attacks.

Men's clothing takes on new look

No doubt some men still swear by their pinstripe uniforms for business, but menswear designers have come up with softer, easygoing cuts and looks for both on- and off-hours.

Conservative dressers don't have to forgo tradition - there are plenty of updated plaids and stripes, many to be worn with loose sweaters and casual layers as vests, jackets, and other separates. For those closer to the fringe, there are funky "work clothes" in oversize denims and cords. Clothes representing both trends have outdoorsy, cowboy--Indian details.

Avoiding the strait-jacket approach is paramount. "Because comfort is key, most silhouettes continue to be oversized, whether it's a loose-fit jean, plaid shirt, hooded sweater or canvas barn coat," says Joe Sapienza of J.C. Penney. "Men want clothes that move when they do."

The vest is in the spotlight this season - and as an independent entity, not just the third of a three-piecer. The Rustler-Indian jacquard vest from Pendleton Woolens is one eye-stopping example; this Indian-style pattern is part of the company's High Grade Western Wear collection created in honor of the Oregon Trail anniversary this year. J.C. Penney has a down vest, meant to be outfitted with jeans and flannel shirt by St. John's Bay. A textured knit cotton vest is offered by Barnes Storm.

At the other end of the style scale there are traditional tailored vests like that in the jacket-vest match in glen plaid by Cesarini Design Studio or even a yellow crossover vest - the kind you'd expect to see worn with monocle and spats - from Garrick Anderson.

Plaids are almost ubiquitous in this season's menswear lines. They can be done up in well-tailored versions, such as mustard-olive plaid from the Grays by Gary Wasserman, or in bold, oversized lumberjack flannel shirts, like the ones from Structure (The Limited's new European-style menswear line). Plaids also are found in bomber jackets from Structure, zippered country coats from Woodman at J.C. Penney or from Barnes Storm.

Study shows kids learn about money from their parents

Parents are by far the most influential force when it comes to teaching children about money and investing, according to a new study conducted for Liberty Financial Companies by Louis Harris & Associates.

Students are most likely to say that they have learned what they know about money and investing from their parents (88 percent), and over two-in-five (44 percent) students say that their parents discuss family finances with them on a regular basis.

"The home is where children experience money first hand," said Kenneth R. Leibler, president of Liberty Financial. "They go shopping, see bills being paid and overhear talk of investments. Parents and even grandparents can help by teaching children the value of saving and investing while they are young."

The Liberty Financial Young Investor Study, a national study of 1,389 students in grades 8 through 12, also found that 89 percent of the students planned to attend college after high school, with more than half (56 percent) planning to rely on their parents for financing.

"With the rate at which college costs are rising, parents should begin saving for an education on a regular basis as soon as a child is born," said

Leibler. "Grandparents can help by giving money gifts, such as mutual funds or stocks, to help a child meet future financial needs."

Spin away rainy-day blues

Wondering what to do with the old plastic salad spinner you couldn't sell at last summer's garage sale?

Surprise your kids on a rainy day with this delightful painting technique using your old salad spinner, poster paint and a paper plate.

Here's how:
Cover your work surface with newspaper. Your kids should wear old painting shirts. Then trim a large white paper plate or a sheet of construction paper to fit the bottom of the salad spinner. Poke a hole in the middle of the plate to fit the nodule in the center of the salad spinner, if there is one.

Pour approximately one teaspoon of poster paint on the plate/paper to form a puddle of paint. Make two more puddles with other colors. For best results make the puddles near the center. They may overlap somewhat.

Put the lid on the spinner, making sure it is tightly in place. Turn the handle quickly several times. Lift off the lid and see what your spin art looks like on the plate/paper. Add another color of paint and even a pinch of glitter, if you wish, and spin it again. Or, spin in the opposite direction and see what happens. When complete, carefully remove the plate/paper and let it dry.

Set another plate in the spinner and experiment with other colors. You may enjoy mixing new colors in a cup before pouring the paint on the plate.

Note: If the paint is too thick, dilute it with a couple of drops of water before pouring it on the plate.

Rinse most of the wet paint off the salad spinner (do not use the salad spinner for food preparation) and store it for another painting spree. How about your child's next birthday party?

School struggles to right wrongs in Indians' lives

As Maria Iron Cloud's short and tragic life neared an end this summer, the Lakota Sioux woman uttered a last request to the Catholic priests and brothers across the Missouri River.

Take my daughter. Teach her. Love her.

So Rebecca Iron Cloud joined the thousands of Lakota Sioux children to whom the priests, brothers and staff at St. Joseph's Indian School in Chamberlain, S.D., have opened their hearts.

When St. Joseph's opened in 1927, the entire Sioux nation, like Rebecca, was lost.

In the 1840s, these nomads existed off the buffalo - which numbered sixty million. By 1883, the bison were virtually extinct, victims of the white man's devastating westward trek.

One of the last tribes to be conquered, the Sioux "were placed on reservations, and religious groups opened schools to provide education for the children," says Brother David Nagel, St. Joseph's director. "The government tried to teach them how to farm, but the land was not really suited for farming."

"They were helping them become whites," he said.

Then the Congregation of the Priests of the Sacred Heart turned an old college campus into a boarding school for any native American child - St. Joseph's. Catholic priests and brothers combined modern education with Indian heritage.

When the reservations gained autonomy in the 1970s and assumed control of their own schools, St. Joseph's became a school for the unluckiest of the unlucky.

Today, Brother Nagel oversees 220 students - and a waiting list of 150 - that he describes as children from "dysfunctional home settings, wards of the state, children with no place to go."

They have "moderate types of emotional difficulties and learning difficulties."

Some are neglected or abused. A few suffer from effects of fetal alcohol syndrome, although Brother Nagel says "the children we work with, the majority of them, are able to compensate from the fetal alcohol syndrome." They receive a modern education, housing, participate in after-school activities and share in the responsibilities. Trained house parents care for up to 12 children in "family living units."

Donations from Americans and some Canadians keep the school operating. Many generations of families continue making annual contributions to help the children.

These are the few who have not yet forgotten the Sioux - the Lakota, the Dakota, the Nakota and the smaller tribes within. They are, says Brother Nagel, "basically interested in helping Native American children. They feel they have gotten a bad deal because of what the government has done to Indian people."

Unable to right history, the priests, brothers and staff of St. Joseph's try to make things right for children like Rebecca.

Success will make them happy, but never content.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Chevy Chase is falling and he can't get up! Or can he?

The master pratfaller is taking a nose dive with his late night talk show, "The Chevy Chase Show," and Fox Broadcasting Co. is battling to save it.

An emergency team of new writers, consultants and executives is revamping the program that even Fox Chairwoman Lucie Salhani admits is showing only faint signs of life.

"The shows weren't good. He was very nervous. It was uncomfortable and embarrassing to watch it," she said Tuesday. But she insisted the network stands behind Chase.

Chase declined to be interviewed. One month after its Sept. 7 debut, the show has settled into fourth place, averaging a 3.1 rating. One ratings point equals 942,000 TV homes.

Cigarette smoking is responsible for 85 percent of lung cancer among men, reports the American Cancer Society.

He who enjoys doing and enjoys what he has done is happy.

HEREFORD COMMUNITY CONCERT ASSOCIATION

"Big-Time Entertainment Here At Home"

The Patron Program

Each year the members of our Association pool their membership fees into a fund to bring outstanding music and dance to our city. The size of the fund determines the number and type of concerts we can afford. The costs of the various concerts range from about $2,000.00 up to fees as far in excess of our budget - $20,000 and more. Some years ago we launched a "Patron Plan" - asking friends of finer things for Hereford to contribute annually to a special fund to add to our membership fees, to enable us to have more and finer concerts. Each year brings additional interest in our Patron Program. This year our contributions are more than $5,500.00. You will benefit from this now and in the future. Please join the officers and directors of the Association in expressing your appreciation to our patrons for 1993-1994.

NBC'S 'Flood' taps a torrent of emotions

BY DAN RICE

Disaster movies have long been a staple of entertainment, combining big stars with even bigger special effects. The high-concept formula usually serves only to dehumanize the tragedy by concentrating on destruction on a grand scale while making sure the leading players don't get their hair too mussed. Fortunately, NBC's "The Flood: Who Will Save Our Children?," airing Sunday, Oct. 10, doesn't suffer from such trite overproduction.

Produced by Emmy winner David L. Wolper ("Roots"), the drama tells the true story of the 1987 flash flood near Comfort, Texas.

As the story begins, news that a summer storm has swollen the Guadalupe River to dangerous levels reaches a church camping group. They evacuate along a suggested route, but the caravan of buses crosses a road covered with a deceptive few inches of rushing water. The next-to-last bus stalls, and in moments the two vehicles are swept away. The quick thinking of bus driver Richard Koons (Joe Spano, "Hill Street Blues") saves most of the teens outright, but dozens are washed downstream. Rescue helicopters attempt to fish survivors from the powerful current, while horrified parents watch on live TV.

"The Flood" successfully captures the look and feel of rural Southern Texas — quite a feat considering the film was shot entirely in Queensland, Australia. New Zealander Chris Thomson ("Woman on the Ledge"), who directed the thoughtful script by David Kinghorn, says the relocation was due largely to favorable production economics.

Thomson says the staging of the flood "was achieved on an unused marshland excavated as a river (which ran) in a circle about 200 yards in diameter with a huge island in the middle. We excavated around the trees, which we then had to reinforce with steel and concrete. About five jet boats, rafted together like a pontoon, created the current, which slowly ran in a circle. That was the main engineering problem.

"The other problem was having people up to their necks in cold water for 12 hours a day, especially the crew. Despite the hard work of the whole thing, (what) kept everyone going in those temperatures was the fact that it was such an appallingly moving story."

Art direction for the project required research through various Texas agencies and the importing of left-hand-drive buses (like the English, Australians drive on the left-hand side of the road).

The ensemble cast, which includes David Lascher of "Blossom" and Lisa Rieffel, formerly of "Empty Nest," breathes life into this tragic tale. Standout performances come from Scott Campbell as the college-bound son anyone would be proud of and Norm Skaggs as his overly demanding father, who is incapable of expressing that warranted pride and love. Intuitive moments make for the film's most powerful scenes, such as Skaggs' slowing walk to answer the phone, knowing it's bad news, and an anxious mother's scream at the sound of a helicopter, crying, "Oh God, is that another body?!"

While viewers may find themselves in a flood of tears from this film's heart-wrenching depiction of the grief caused by the loss of a child or friend, they will certainly be left with a good feeling about small-town folks pitching together during a crisis. Sometimes the dearest salvation comes from the outstretched hand of a stranger.

LET'S TALK

'Oz' filmed in Technicolor; helpful Hindman history

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I have a $100 bet that says "The Wizard of Oz," starring Judy Garland, was filmed in color. My wife believes that it was later colorized. Who owes whom? --M. Nielsen, Portland, Ore.

A: Tell your wife to pay up. The Aug. 16, 1939, Variety review says, "Except for the opening and closing stretches of prologue and epilogue, which are visioned in a rich sepia, the greater portion of the film is in Technicolor. Some of the scenic passages are so beautiful in design and composition as to stir audiences by their sheer unfoldment."

Q: I'm a big fan of the Canadian sketch comedy show "The Kids in the Hall." Could you please tell me how the five actors on the show formed their comedy troupe? Where can I write to them? And is there an album release of the show's funny songs and theme music? --M. Girvan, Kingston, Penn.

A: The Kids came together when Kevin McDonald and Dave Foley met a comedy duo called The Audience (Mark McKinney and Bruce McCulloch) at a 1984 midnight comedy fest in an old movie theater. Scott Thompson soon joined the budding troupe.

After becoming a Toronto comedy club favorite, they were relocated to New York by producer Lorne Michaels "to toughen them up." An hour-long special for HBO and Canadian television led to regular HBO specials. Last year, CBS picked up "The Kids in the Hall," making it the first original cable production to gain a network slot. The writing, in which the actors are quite involved, earned an Emmy nomination in July. The show has returned for a second season on CBS.

There is currently no release containing the silly sketch songs, such as "Terriers." The theme music is played by Toronto's Shadowy Man from a Shadowy Planet, which serves as an intermission band during "Kids" tapings. They don't yet have a U.S. album release. Incidentally, the title comes from Jack Benny, who used comedy bits from aspiring writers and then credited them by saying, "That's one from the kids in the hall." Write to them in care of CBC, P.O. Box 500, Station A, Toronto, Ont. M5W1E6.

Q: We need your help! My family is going crazy trying to figure out where we've seen Earl Hindman (the guy behind the fence) from "Home Improvement" before. Can you help us? --C.B., Rome, N.Y.

A: Hindman spent 10 seasons in the role of Bob Reid on the popular ABC daytime drama "Ryan's Hope," and also had a recurring part on the CBS detective series "The Equalizer." His film credits include "Talk Radio," "Three Men and a Cradle," "Silverado," "Taps," "The Parallax View" and "Greased Lightning."

Q: Could you please give me a bit of information on two movies I saw when I was young? They are "Night Must Fall," a scary film starring either Robert Young or Robert Montgomery, and "Night Club Lady" (also scary), in which a woman gets stung by a scorpion. --Rose Ann Pickett, Greenville, Ohio.

A: "Night Must Fall" (1937) was directed by Richard Thorpe and stars Robert Montgomery, along with Rosalind Russell and Kathleen Harrison. The screenplay was by noted playwright John Van Druten, and the film was remade (much less effectively) in 1964. "Night Club Lady" (1932), based on a novel by Anthony Abbott, was directed by Irving Cummings. Adolphe Menjou plays police commissioner Thatcher Colt, who solves a murder marked by the clever use of a scorpion. Skeets Gallagher co-stars as Colt's sidekick, Tony.

PBS investigates the unlikely link between the Grateful Dead, including bassist Phil Lesh, and a group of neglected British orchestral composers in "The Grateful and the Dead," airing Wednesday.

Grateful Dead makes sure 'music never stops'

BY MICHAEL SCOGIN

For years, legions of Deadheads, the nomadic band of tie-dyed-in-the-wool Grateful Dead followers, have been unknowingly supporting the work of a select group of neglected British orchestral composers. Through a series of benefit concerts for the Rex Foundation, the Grateful Dead has secretly funded the work of artists either ignored or rejected in their homeland. PBS explores this improbable hand across the water in "The Grateful and the Dead," airing Wednesday, Oct. 13, on most affiliates.

"Since our music is so lucrative, it behooves us to support that music which isn't," says Grateful Dead bassist Phil Lesh, the driving force behind the Rex Foundation's British music program.

The Foundation supports the overlooked work of composers such as Havergal Brian, Robert Simpson and the late Bernard Stevens, as well as younger musicians like Michael Finnis and Richard Barrett, giving them the time to devote to new compositions. The mysterious $10,000 grants they began receiving in the mail a few years ago have been a shot in the arm to the neglected musicians.

"It gives me the feeling that the music is actually being appreciated by somebody," says Barrett. "Somebody who's not an arts council bureaucrat, but a real person who does not have to align himself with the classical compositional tradition."

The Dead are no strangers to worthy causes. Through the Rex Foundation and other outlets, the band has lent its name to a variety of efforts, including rain forest preservation, Greenpeace and AIDS treatment and research.

"If you get somewhere, you give something back," says Dead guitarist Bob Weir. "Part of working for a living is working for a world to live in."

Lesh credits the cultural awakening of the late 1960s as the genesis of the band's charitable attitude.

"We felt we held the key to the alternate evolution of humanity," says Lesh. "There had been a door opened. The Rex Foundation is a continuation of that spirit."

Oct. 10 - Oct. 16 HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 19)
There could be news concerning a birth or new program. You may be involved with a group that has some interesting and pertinent views of the world.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20)
There is an opportunity in the offing, and you should be ready to seize it at any moment. New ventures will prosper, and you will have good health.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Forget about the past and concentrate on the future. You have a wonderful life ahead of you, and you should concentrate on the positive aspects of it.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
You must wake up and do what is necessary to accomplish your goals. There is no time for procrastination. A change for the better is on the way.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
You may not like a sudden change in plans, but you will have to deal with it just the same. Caution is needed in dealing with defensive people.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
You will meet a kind and generous person who has your best interest at heart. Pay close attention to monetary transactions and contracts.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
You feel ready to try something different, but you aren't really certain what it is. Check your diet and exercise regime. Stay positive in a difficult situation.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)
You need to set yourself on the right course and stop your self-destructive ways. Concentrate on the many blessings you have been given.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)
An unexpected event will take place and it will improve your attitude. There will be a definite change for the better. Use common sense in a difficult situation.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)
You need constant motivation and find it hard to settle down and concentrate. A dark-headed man could change your mind about something important.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
Do not feel sorry for yourself - you really don't have the time. Be prepared to adapt to an unusual set of circumstances. You need a change of pace.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
A time of peace is coming for you. There will be news of a marriage or birth. You may consider accepting a new job opportunity.

HIGHLIGHTS

Burt Reynolds and country singer Reba McEntire star in "The Man From Left Field," airing Friday, Oct. 15, on CBS. In the humorous and poignant story, Reynolds, who also directed the film, plays an amnesiac man befriended by a gang of mostly fatherless boys. Needing a coach in order to start a little league baseball team, the boys "adopt" the silent stranger, supplying him with food, shelter and the name "Jack." His newfound life also includes romance with Nancy Lee (McEntire), the waitress mom of one of the boys.

SOAP WORLD

Barbara Crampton shines as new Mindy

BY CANDACE HAVENS

There is a trend this year with West Coast actresses moving to the East Coast to accept soap roles. Colleen Dion (Brett, "Another World") and Glynnis O'Connor (Margo, "As the World Turns") were among the first to make the move, and now Barbara Crampton has joined them as the new Mindy Lewis on "Guiding Light."

Crampton turned down the opportunity to take a screen test for the part last year when Kimberly Simms vacated the role and life went on, until Crampton saw Jill Farren Phelps and told the executive producer she had changed her mind. Phelps told Crampton the role was hers, if she wanted it. No screen test, no audition -- goodbye Hamilton.

"I turned down the role because I didn't want to move to New York," says Crampton. "I don't know what I was thinking. Even though I was raised on the East Coast (Vermont), I had lived in Los Angeles for the last 10 years and had really gotten used to that laid-back way of life. I didn't think I would be happy in New York. Boy, was I wrong! I am so happy here, I don't care if I ever go back."

Crampton has been accepted by critics and fans alike for her portrayal of Mindy, and that fact pleases the actress immensely. "The writers are making Mindy a stronger person," she says. "For the last 10 years the character has been kind of a spoiled brat. She came from a rich family and had a great deal of personal problems. Now she has her own successful design business and the confidence and maturity that goes along with that kind of responsibility."

CBS special tackles tough subject

BY SCOTT WHITE

The "CBS Schoolbreak Special" makes its season premiere Tuesday, Oct. 12, with "Other Mothers," a poignant look at the prejudice and alienation experienced by a teen with lesbian parents.

Justin Whalin stars as Will Jurgenson, the new kid in town. Will is a good student and a talented basketball player who sets his sights on making new friends and joining the varsity team. However, Will's adjustment to campus life is shattered by prejudice when the community discovers that his parents are gay.

Meredith Baxter and Joanna Cassidy play Linda Jurgenson and Paula Hensen, the longtime lesbian companions who have cared for Will since he was 2. Their attempts to involve themselves in school functions like booster club meetings lead to rumors and speculation about their "agenda."

Soon Will loses his friends, is taunted at school and finds himself benched by his coach. To make matters worse, the community feels justified in persecuting Will simply because his parents take an active role in his life.

With a cast and production crew of frequent Emmy nominees, "Other Mothers" is an aptly directed, well-acted look at the injustice experienced by children of gay parents. Despite an ending that makes it feel like a bluntly truncated telemovie, "Other Mothers" is certainly worthy viewing.

TRIVIA

The troposphere is the lowest level of Earth's atmosphere, with a ceiling about six miles above the poles and 10 miles above the equator.

Tree shrews are squirrel-like animals with pointed snouts. Native to Asia, they live on fruits, leaves and smaller animals.

English Romantic poet Percy Bysshe Shelley was only 30 years old when he died in a boating accident off the coast of Italy.

SATURDAY

Sully (Joe Lando) is the local who befriends Michaela "Mike" Quinn (Jane Seymour), one of the first female doctors on the early American frontier, in CBS' "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" on Saturdays.
