Noriega gives up, flown to Miami for day in court

MIAMI (AP) - Fallen Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega arrived in the United States early today to face drug trafficking charges after surrendering to U.S. troops outside his Vatican Embassy sanctuary in Panama City.

Noriega, who defied two U.S. presidents until he was toppled by the Dec. 20 American invasion, was flown to Homestead Air Force Base, about 25 miles south of Miami.

Noriega was scheduled to appear this afternoon at U.S. District Court in Miami.

His attorney said Noriega planned to plead innocent to the charges that he used his official position to provide protection for the notorious Medellín cocaine cartel.

Panamanians celebrated in the streets as he left the country he has dominated since 1983 as military leader, and Panamanian exiles cheered in the cool night air outside the air base where a C-130 carrying him landed at 2:45 a.m.

"I wanted my children to see the reason people in Panama have been suffering," said 33-year-old Manuel Arana, who brought his two young daughters to Homestead. "To me, this is as important as the Berlin Wall coming down."

Maj. Bob Barca of the Air Force said Noriega departed the base at 2:51 a.m., but he would not disclose where Noriega was taken.

Word of Noriega's departure from Panama late Wednesday triggered celebrations across Panama City. People banged pots and pans and kissed U.S. soldiers. Fireworks lighted the sky around the Vatican mission. Youngsters raced up and down streets waving Panamanian and U.S. flags.

"We are relieved to be rid of this criminal," Panamanian President Guillermo Endara said in a statement broadcast on national television. "The people feel a sense of peace knowing that the monster is leaving our land."

In Washington, President Bush said Noriega, who had taken refuge in the embassy on Christmas Eve, turned himself over to U.S. authorities voluntarily and "with the full knowledge" of the Panamanian government.

"It seems that the Vatican officials basically stressed to Noriega that his only viable strategy was to give himself up," said a U.S. official in Washington, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Bush said in his nationwide address that he is committed to giving Noriega a fair trial.

The United States agreed to three conditions set by Noriega: that he be allowed to make some phone calls, that his decision be kept secret until the actual time of his arrest, and that he be permitted to wear his uniform, administration officials said.

Although Gen. Maxwell Thurman, the commanding general of U.S. forces in Panama, said there were "no deals here," administration officials said the United States had also promised Noriega he would not be prosecuted under a new federal law allowing the death penalty for "drug kingpins."

The assurances were relayed to Noriega through Vatican officials. The United States did not directly deal with Noriega, the sources said.

Thurman said Noriega "looked vigorous, looked confident" as he walked out of the compound with the papal nuncio, Monsignor Sebastian Laboa. He was wearing his general's uniform.

But Panamanian Archbishop Marcos McGrath told ABC-TV the former chief of the Defense Forces gave up because he was "undoubtedly a lonely man, a broken man."

Thurman said Noriega's surrender "completes the fourth of our four objectives" in invading Panama. The others, he said, were to protect American lives, safeguard the integrity of the Panama Canal treaties and restore democracy to Panama.

According to authorities, about 290 Panamanian soldiers, 300 civilians, 23 U.S. troops and three American civilians died in the invasion.

Noriega's arraignment was tentatively scheduled for this afternoon in the federal courthouse in downtown Miami, said Diane Cossin, a spokeswoman for U.S. Attorney Dexter Lehtinen.

"There's going to be a plea entered tomorrow of not guilty," said Noriega defense attorney Steven Kollin. "We're going to request certain pretrial discovery requests including certain sensitive documents, and these sensitive documents will get to the truth of the matter."

"I believe he will be found not guilty if we can find a jury of 12 people after this unparalleled pretrial publicity."

If convicted, Noriega faces up to 145 years in prison and fined $1.1 million. He faces similar federal charges in Tampa.

A roadblock to prosecuting Noriega is his right to demand classified information stemming from his past cooperation with the Central Intelligence Agency, legal experts have said.

Noriega reportedly worked closely with the CIA and the Pentagon while he served as the head of Panama's military intelligence service and after he became commander in chief.

Girlstown, Boys Ranch still growing

By JOHN BROOKS
 Managing Editor

Representatives of Boys Ranch and Girlstown, USA told the Hereford Lions club on Wednesday that the two institutions are continuing to grow to serve the needs of young people.

Carl McMillan, director of information for Boys Ranch and Girlstown, also gave the Lions a big thank-you: the local club and 70 others in the Texas Panhandle donated over $12,000 in 1989 to the annual Girlstown coat and shoe shopping spree at Mervyn's in Amarillo in December.

The girls each bought about $200 worth of clothing at the store. Mervyn's then gave a 40 percent discount on the goods. The girls were also treated to a pizza party.

"Most of the girls have never had a full set of new clothes," McMillan said. There were 98 girls from the Whiteface and Borger campuses of Girlstown who took the shopping trip.

McMillan said there are 355 boys now living at Boys Ranch. There's usually room for over 400, but "we're doing some remodeling," McMillan said. "When you have something that is 50 years old, it needs some improving." There are eight boys from Hereford currently living at Boys Ranch.

McMillan pointed to several recent successes in ag programs, athletics and academics at Boys Ranch. "These boys are getting a good education and getting a chance to succeed with a pat on the back," McMillan said.

McMillan said Girlstown, which came under the Boys Ranch auspices three years ago, is seeing continued improvements in programs and facilities.

"We're excited about the progress we've made at Girlstown," McMillan said. There are currently 66 girls at the Whiteface campus, which is also under remodeling and expansion, and 32 girls at a residential treatment facility at Borger.

"We're expanding our programs all the time, and we're always happy when the boys and girls do well in whatever they are doing," McMillan said. "Our paycheck is seeing these young children succeed."

Martin seeks office

Betty Lou Martin, attendance clerk at Hereford High School and a former longtime businesswoman, filed Tuesday as a Democratic candidate for Deaf Smith County tax assessor-collector.

"I love this community and it would be a pleasure to serve the taxpayers through this office," stated Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. Martin, 48, has been a resident of Hereford for 37 years. She graduated from HHS and attended Amarillo College. Her husband, Danny, is a farmer in the Easter community. They have four children, with the youngest now attending Texas Tech University.

Over an 18-year period, Mrs. Martin was a partner in two local retail businesses. Her mother is Louise Ferguson of Hereford. Mrs. Martin has been a water safety instructor for the Red Cross for a number of years and has managed the Green Acres Swim Club the past five summers. She was a longtime member of L'Allegria Study Club and is a member of First Baptist Church.

Banks, thrifts go bust in 1980s

WASHINGTON (AP) - Most of the 1980s were boom years for the economy as a whole, but they were a bust for banks and savings institutions which failed in numbers not seen in half a century.

Capping a decade of failure for financial institutions, savings and loans in 1989 collapsed at the highest rate ever and bank closings fell only slightly short of a post-Depression high, regulators said Wednesday.

Government seizure of thrifts in Texas and New Mexico on Dec. 21 boosted the tally of failed S&Ls to 328, far above the previous high of 277 in 1938.

The Resolution Trust Corp., the agency created Aug. 9 to carry out President Bush's S&L bailout, took control of 318 failed thrifts, disposing of 37 of them by year's end. The old Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. dealt with 10 S&Ls.

Meanwhile, a commercial bank failure in California and another in New York on Dec. 20 pushed the total to 207 for the year, down from a post-Depression record of 221 in 1988, according to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The decline, although small, was the first since 1977 when six banks failed, a drop from 17 the previous year.

Academic experts and analysts point to a number of factors behind the soaring failure rate in the 1980s, some of which are still present as the financial system begins a new decade.

"I don't see 1989 as being the end of this," said Catherine England, a scholar at the Cato Institute, a conservative research group in Washington. "I think failures are going to continue to increase into the 1990s."

Rapidly advancing technology is making it more difficult for financial institutions to compete. Companies that once borrowed from banks are now able to issue junk bonds or commercial paper. Consumers can bank by telephone or computer, bypassing local banks and S&Ls in favor of better deals offered by big institutions and money market mutual funds.

A farm crisis as the decade began, followed by an oil crisis in the mid-1980s, helped guarantee that many risky investments would go bad.

High interest rates used in the early 1980s by the Federal Reserve System to fight inflation depressed commodity prices and drove the value of the dollar sky high, squelching farm export sales. Farming's crisis became rural banks' crisis.

Kimball, former HHS honor grad, first female US attorney in Amarillo

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
 Editor-Publisher

Sharon R. Kimball, a former valedictorian of Hereford High School, was sworn in Tuesday as Amarillo's first woman assistant U.S. Attorney.

Mrs. Kimball, a 1971 graduate of HHS, said she had "fond memories" of Hereford and "thoroughly enjoyed" the 15th anniversary class reunion here in 1986. She is the former Sharon Readhimer and lived with her grandmother, Viola Williams, while attending junior and senior high schools here.

"I don't have any relatives left in Hereford. My grandmother worked in school cafeterias at Northwest and high school, then she retired and moved to Houston," said Mrs. Kimball in a telephone interview with The Brand.

"I would like to say that the things I learned in the Hereford school system were instrumental in my success at Rice University and at Harvard," volunteered the attorney. She graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1975 from Rice, then obtained her law degree from Harvard in 1979.

"I owe a debt I can't repay to the Hereford schools, and especially to my English teacher, Colleen Billingsley," commented Mrs. Kimball. "She gave me a cornerstone in English that has been so important in writing briefs."

Kimball is the third attorney in the Amarillo federal office. As soon as a fourth assistant comes on board, she will assume the duties of bank fraud specialist, according to Marvin Collins, the U.S. attorney in charge of the Fort Worth-based Northern District of Texas office. Collins introduced Kimball to U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson at the swearing-in ceremony Tuesday.

Kimball fills a position that opened up when Wes Clayton, as assistant U.S. attorney, accepted a job in the 47th state district attorney's office, where he had previously worked.

Kimball taught Spanish at a high school near Houston between college and law school. She was a clerk to a justice on the civil court of appeals in Houston before joining a large law firm in New York City—where she handled primarily civil litigation including banking matters. Most recently, she was a partner in the Amarillo law firm of Whittenburg Whittenburg & Schachter where her litigation experience included an emphasis on banking.

Sharon's husband, Robert D. Kimball, is an Amarillo attorney and a native of California. They have two sons, ages 4 and 6.

Fed cattle prices reach all-time high

By The Associated Press

The price of fed cattle in the Texas Panhandle has reached the highest level in the industry's history, officials say.

The price reached $80.50 per hundredweight Tuesday. It was an increase of $21 over prices paid in 1987.

"When cattle make money, the multiplier effect goes into place and the whole Panhandle benefits," Jay O'Brien, an Amarillo cattleman said. O'Brien said the high prices this week are only a part of the true success story. Cattle feeding has been a viable part of the Texas Panhandle for more than 20 years, and is now the Panhandle's largest employer.

"Cattlemen started the new year off right," said Jim Gill, Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

"The people in this area just do a better job of marketing cattle," he said, adding that their constant supply of information allows them to stay on top of the cattle feeding industry market nationwide, generally getting $1 to $2 per hundredweight more than cattlemen in other areas of the country.

Cattle prices negotiated between packers and feedyards for fed cattle had reached $80 the final week of 1989, the second time for that year and only the third time in cattle feeding history.

On Tuesday, 2,200 head of cattle sold for $80.50 per hundredweight in the Texas Panhandle and 8,700 more head traded at $80 to $80.25 per hundredweight, Gill said.

The higher price to the cattleman doesn't necessarily mean a higher price to the consumer, Gill noted.

Retail beef prices are not expected to rise with the recent fed cattle increase, Gill said, but they could if the fed cattle price climbs much higher.

Women earn combat patches Females fight despite Congressional 'ban'

FORT CLAYTON, Panama (AP) - The women warriors who helped invade Panama have shattered myths about gender in combat and made mincemeat of a congressional ban.

"It blew everyone's theories," said 2nd Lt. Kimberly Thompson, 23. "Now they are regrouping."

Despite the ban on women in combat, female soldiers vindicated themselves so well that the White House is leaping to their defense and a leading senator said the exclusion should be re-examined.

Thompson, a platoon leader in the 988th Military Police Company from Fort Benning, Ga., knows the myths well. She is third-generation military and the wife of an airborne Ranger, a private who stayed home while she went to war.

"He's proud of me," she said of her husband, Steve Thompson. "He wishes he could have been here too."

Myth No. 1: Women can't handle combat.

Capt. Linda Bray led the 988th into battle, storming the gates of a Panamanian Defense Forces kennel in an armored jeep.

"It was an important military operation. A woman led it and she did an outstanding job," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Wednesday.

Bray's troops took the area after a 30-minute firefight in which three of the defenders were killed. There were no U.S. casualties.

"She knew exactly what to do and when to do it," said one of her platoon leaders, Sgt. Rick McGowan. "Her voice didn't quaver when she gave an order."

Myth No. 2: Men would spend their time protecting the women instead of fighting the enemy.

"Sex doesn't come into play. You don't really think about it," McGowan said. "I wasn't going to put a female squad leader over in a corner. It wouldn't have been fair."

When the top sergeant called for a machine gunner to advance, no one was thinking about Pvt. Christina Cabido's gender. They were thinking about firepower.

"I felt like we fought side by side. I felt equality," she said. "You don't always feel that in the Army."

Cabido, a 20-year-old from Strawberry, Ariz., recalled how she felt as her platoon went into battle.

"We were all scared. But we really pulled together as a team," she said. "I thought: Congress doesn't let females in combat. But I was going. I was going."

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., ranking minority member of Senate Armed Service Committee, said Wednesday in Panama that it is time to take another look at the ban.

The women warriors in Panama "discharged themselves in a very credible military, professional manner," he told a news conference.

He said what happened in Panama "will require the Congress once again to re-examine the present laws surrounding the training and the use of women in situations such as this."

Both law and military policy bar women from being assigned to units, like the infantry, whose main job is to fight the enemy. But women, who make up 11 percent of the military, serve in the military police and in support roles ranging from intelligence to infantry.

In this case, the MP unit got what turned out to be a combat assignment.

Another woman, U.S. Army special agent Julie Torres, was on a three-person team assigned to Gen. Marc Cisneros, commander of U.S. Army troops in Panama. At one point, when bullets started flying, she threw herself on him and shoved his head behind an armored truck, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"That's our mission. You take the road. Not him," she said.

The Pentagon says that 600 of the 26,000 U.S. troops who took part in the invasion were women; none were among the 23 killed.

The 988th has about 120 soldiers, at least a dozen of them women. About half of them will win combat patches for the kennel attack and other firefights around town, something few soldiers in today's peacetime Army can boast.

Lawmakers to consider judge reforms

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements said he will allow lawmakers to consider judicial election reform in a special session and urged Attorney General Jim Mattox to try to block a federal judge's order for special elections of 115 judges in May.

In a Wednesday letter, Clements asked Mattox to go to court and seek a stay of U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton's order "to avoid a wholesale disruption of the state judiciary."

Bunton on Tuesday ordered the nonpartisan, special elections after the governor and Legislature failed to act on his Nov. 6 ruling that at-large elections in nine urban counties illegally diluted minority votes.

Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Mattox, said the attorney general had decided what action to take but wouldn't disclose it until Thursday afternoon.

Clements, who controls the agenda and dates of special legislative sessions, said he would decide when lawmakers should consider judicial elections after consulting with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

The next regular legislative session doesn't begin until January 1991. "I strongly believe that it is essential for Texas to avoid wholesale upheaval as we seek to improve our judicial system so that all Texans may enjoy enhanced participation in the process," Clements said.

"Any change to Texas' 113-year-old judiciary must preserve the quality and the integrity that are so crucial to our system of justice," he said.

Clements, a Republican, has been under fire from Democrats for failing to add judicial reform to the 29-day special session that was held in November and December. "Our governor in his inimitable fashion stuck his head in the sand," said state Democratic executive director Ed Martin.

In prescribing the May special elections as an interim plan, Judge Bunton said legislators still have a chance to change the system, noting that a special session on school finance is planned for early March.

Rossanna Salazar, Clements' press secretary, said the governor wouldn't say whether judicial reform will be part of the education session or require a separate session.

"It could be either," she said. "Anything is possible."

Bunton's order applies in Bexar, Dallas, Harris, Travis, Tarrant, Jefferson, Lubbock, Ector and Midland counties.

In his Tuesday ruling, Bunton said interim judicial elections in the nine counties should be based on existing political subdivisions, and be for four-year terms.

The subdivisions include state House districts in Bexar, Dallas, Harris and Tarrant counties; justice of the peace precincts in Travis County; and county commissioner precincts in Jefferson, Lubbock, Ector and Midland counties.

Bunton's ruling was praised by the League of United Latin American Citizens, which brought the lawsuit challenging at-large judicial elections.

Millions suffer year-round from allergies

You have survived spring, summer and fall—the red, runny nose, and itchy, watery eyes—only to find that you are sniffing and sneezing even in the dead of winter. Unfortunately, you are one of the millions of Americans who suffer from indoor allergies.

"Because of indoor irritants, eight out of ten allergy sufferers are plagued with allergic-type symptoms all year round," according to Donald W. Aaronson, M.D., president of the American College of Allergy and Immunology. "For these people, there is no 'off-seasons.'"

House dust, mold and dander may be the root of many year-round allergy reactions. Additionally, smoke and cold may aggravate existing symptoms.

Allergies are triggered by chemicals released from mast cells, which are present in the mucous membranes of your eyes and nose. When stimulated by house dust mites, pet dander and other allergens, mast cells break open, releasing histamine and other chemical mediators. This sets off the whole cycle of allergic symptoms, which may include: runny nose, sneezing, nasal congestion and itchy, watery eyes.

HELPFUL HINTS

In the bedroom:

- Cover mattresses and box springs with dust-proof covers, which can be easily-removed for frequent cleaning;
- Avoid upholstered headboards and feather pillows;
- Avoid woolen blankets—replace them with cotton or synthetic blankets;
- Avoid a down comforter or chenille bedspread—go with a single-layer bedspread;
- Replace heavy draperies and slatted blinds, which tend to accumulate dust, with washable curtains and roller shades;
- Use mold-proof paint to replace old wallpaper, which harbors mold and dust;

-Books, knick-knacks and toys (especially stuffed animals) collect dust—move them to a closet and keep the closet door shut;

-Close off forced-air heating/air-conditioning outlets or cover them with double-density air filters to avoid unnecessary exposure to mold and dust;

-Keep your bedroom door shut to prevent dust and pets from entering;

-Keep windows closed to prevent dust and pollen from entering.

It is especially important to clean pillows, comforters and draperies frequently, and to be sure to keep shelves and windowsills dust-free.

In the bathroom:

-Use mold-proof paint to replace old wallpaper which has accumulated mold;

-Clean shower curtain and liner frequently to avoid mold growth;

-Scrub floor, bathtub, shower, and grout between tiles frequently with a mold-killing cleaning solution.

In the living area:

-Remove all unnecessary stored items—those needed should be stored on boxes on shelves, not on the floor;

-Use a dehumidifier during damp months;

-A light in dark areas may help to retard mold growth;

-Dry clothes immediately after washing and vent the dryer to the outside.

If you think you may have indoor allergies, you should consult your family physician or allergy specialist. They can prescribe an allergy-blocker medication, which prevents the allergic reaction as well as clearing up the symptoms.

To receive a brochure about indoor allergies and other allergy resources, call: The Allergy Information Center and Hotline, 1-800-727-5400.

Deaf Smith County 4-H members and their parents are invited to attend an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. today in the Hereford Community Center. The purpose of the meeting will be to explain the objectives and requirements of the 4-H Public Speaking Project.

The project is one of the outstanding opportunities that young people have in the 4-H program to learn to present a method demonstration or illustrated talk. The dates of district and county competition have been changed for the 1990 season so 4-H'ers will begin this project a month ahead of the previous year's schedule.

Further meeting schedules will also be announced at this meeting.

Maclaskey hosts meeting

Gay Maclaskey was hostess to 12 members of the Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority when the group met recently in her home.

President Janice Betzen called the meeting to order with members repeating the opening ritual.

Notation was made that the city council meeting will be held Jan. 8 and all representatives are reminded to be present. Noel Hutson will take over the job as social chairman and Patty Frerich will fill in as corresponding secretary.

Appreciation was read from adopted sister Holly King and family for the welcome home party.

Members present were Mary Jane Anvik, Betzen, Camille Beville, Glenna Calaway, Wanda Huseman, Hutson, Ruby Lee, Marrie Leverett, Maclaskey, Dee Ann Matthews, Frerich, and Donna Weaver.

Division meeting set tonight

Members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division are reminded of the organization's first quarterly meeting set to begin today at 7:30 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

New pacemakers give active lifestyles

It used to be that getting a pacemaker meant curtailing many activities that make life enjoyable. But now, a new generation of pacemakers allows those who used to be restricted to lead active lives.

Earlier pacemakers were like a furnace without a thermostat—they could only operate at one setting, no matter what the physical demand. In the 1960s, pacemaker technology advanced considerably, thanks to great strides in miniaturized computer circuitry. In the 1970s the advent of smaller batteries cut pacemaker sizes in half.

The 1970s and early 1980s also saw the advent of enhanced capabilities for pacemakers in terms of their ability to regulate the heart.

By the mid-1980s, a new breed of pacemaker had emerged—the rate responsive pacemaker that regulates the heart in a way that truly welcomes activity. Rate responsive pacemakers, such as the Meta MV, are designed to "sense" the body's metabolic demands and change the heart rate accordingly.

The rate responsive pacemaker opens a whole new world to its recipients. All ranges of physical activity are now possible—from climbing to bicycling, swimming, hiking and even jogging.

Certainly you have questions about pacemakers. These are some of the most frequently asked questions about pacemakers and what they mean to your lifestyle.

*What is a pacemaker?

A pacemaker consists of three parts: 1. A small device, called the pulse generator, that fits in a pocket of skin, generally under the collar bone. 2. A narrow wire, called a lead, that runs from the pulse generator to the heart. 3. The electrode, which is attached to the tip of the lead to carry electrical impulses directly to the heart.

*What does a pacemaker do?
A pacemaker stimulates the heart by converting battery powered energy into appropriately timed pulses. The pacemaker acts to stimulate the heart if it is beating too slowly.

*Can I return to work after getting a pacemaker?

Generally, your doctor will prescribe a period for recovery, as your body gets used to the pacemaker and your endurance improves. After that, there is generally no reason why you would not be able to return to your job.

*Can taking a bath, shower or a swim damage a pacemaker?

Once the surgical wound heals, there is no way water can get at the pacemaker. In addition, modern pacemakers are hermetically sealed and water resistant.

*Can I really do everything I want in terms of activity?

While extremely rough contact sports are not a good idea, if your general health is good, you are virtually unlimited in whatever you wish to do in terms of exercise and day-to-day activity.

*Will I damage my pacemaker if I fall?

Pacemakers are designed and implanted to withstand jolts and ordinary kinds of falls.

CARDIAC PROBLEM

ORADELL, N.J. (AP) - A cardiac problem known as IHSS (idiopathic hypertrophic subaortic stenosis) can make vigorous activity deadly for some people in their 20s and 30s.

There is no cure for the disease.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Three weeks ago a friend, her mother and I wallpapered my kitchen. It was paper with a dark blue background and looked beautiful ... until it dried. There, in between each sheet was a strip of white where the paper strips had pulled away from each other.

I remembered my slate-blue paint left over from stenciling my dining room and decided to try it. I used a small brush and painted right down the seam, coating a little of the wallpaper too. I did about five inches at a time and used a damp cloth to wipe the excess paint off the wallpaper. When I was finished, it looked beautiful once again.

I was so pleased that I decided to write to you. The stencil paint comes in so many different shades that you could probably match just about any solid-background wallpaper. I found this to be a inexpensive solution to a near disaster. — Mary Duffey, Iowa City, Iowa

HOSIERY POEM

Dear Heloise: What's better than pins to show there are runs in hosiery? Just tie a knot.

A knot at the toe
Shows the run is low,
And if it's in one leg or two!
A knot at the thigh
Or however high
Lets you know just what to do!
Hung over a hanger
So all the legs dance,
You see all the knots
At a single glance! — Joyce Saylan,
Houston, Texas

PILLOW USE

Dear Heloise: Save all your used fabric-softener sheets and use them to stuff pillows. They make wonderfully soft and fresh-smelling pillows. — Margaret Phelps, Midland, Texas

DRAWER PULLS

Dear Heloise: I refinished a chest-of-drawers for my 2-year-old granddaughter and thought I would purchase some fancy drawer pulls. I was amazed to find how expensive they had become. To top it all, I needed 16.

I put my thinking cap on and decided to purchase some wooden ABC blocks. I drilled a hole in the back of each one and mounted them on each drawer. They turned out beautifully. Most of all, though, my granddaughter loves it! — Rosemary Reider, Erie, Pa.

And she can learn her ABCs easily. — Heloise

Self named assistant pro at Pitman GC

Mike Self has been named assistant golf pro at Pitman Municipal Golf Course, according to Head Pro Brent Warner.

Self, 23, assumed his duties Monday, Warner said, which will include teaching golf lessons, handicapping and assisting with tournaments in addition to other aspects of running the course.

Warner added that Self must attend three PGA business schools over the next three years, earning at least 36 credits, and pass a playing ability test.

Self is a 1984 graduate of Dalhart High School where he competed on the golf team. He qualified for the regional tournament as a junior and senior and competed in the state tournament his senior year and claims a 5 handicap.

Self received a bachelors' degree in biology from West Texas State University in August.

Warner also announced that the Hereford Men's Golf Association will hold its mid-winter meeting at 5:30 p.m. Jan. 11 at the Hereford Country Club.

The meeting will be a regular agenda, Warner said.

MIKE SELF

Among other developments at Pitman GC, Warner said 240 new batteries had been installed in the course's golf carts.

Warner also unveiled the new Pitman GC logo, which will appear on golf- and baseball-style caps and visors.

Glanville survives meeting with boss

HOUSTON (AP) - All Jerry Glanville wanted to do was get on an elevator.

Asked if he was happy following a 2 1/2-hour meeting with Houston Oilers owner Bud Adams and General Manager Mike Holovak, Glanville replied:

"I don't know what happiness is right now. I think it's getting on this elevator right now. Please let me go down by myself."

With that, Glanville, whose job is rumored to be on the line following Houston's loss to Pittsburgh last weekend in the NFL playoffs, left his office building late Wednesday.

Holovak would only say the three men had a "nice" meeting and discussed "everything."

After leaving, Glanville traveled to Atlanta. Upon arriving Wednesday night, he refused to comment to Atlanta's WSB-TV that he was in town in connection with the Falcons' vacant coaching job. He said only that the meeting with the Oilers had gone well.

Adams, who ultimately will decide if Glanville will return for the final year of his contract, ended the meeting in order to attend his own birthday party. Adams did not issue a statement.

Holovak said there would be future meetings but declined to say when. Glanville said he still is coach of the Oilers.

"All we did was have our usual (postseason) meeting and everything went fine," Glanville said.

Houston lost its last three games of the season, including Sunday's AFC wild-card game to Pittsburgh 26-23 in overtime. There had been speculation Glanville would be fired if the Oilers didn't reach the Super Bowl.

University of Houston coach Jack Pardee, who formerly coached at Chicago and Washington in the NFL, has been mentioned as a possible replacement, should the Oilers' job become open.

Pardee says it is a non-issue at this point.

"I have no idea what's going on over there; they've got a coach and I've got a job," Pardee said.

Playoff not soon likely

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

It's time to debate the issue of a college football playoff again. On one thing, however, the pros and cons agree: It won't happen soon.

"I can't say it won't happen," Jim Brock, executive vice president of the Cotton Bowl, said. "Right now, I hope it won't. Personally, I don't see it happening in the '90s."

Proponents say a playoff will mean millions of dollars more for the schools, the exorcism of corporate sponsorship from postseason, and power for the schools over their own destinies. Not to mention, being able to settle once and for all: Who's No. 1.

"It's not right around the corner, but discussion has grown each year," David Ogreaun, director of the College Football Association's television committee, said.

Opponents point to drawbacks that include destruction of a national tradition, the postseason bowls, and the transformation of a sort of postseason football Mardis Gras into all-out warfare among schools.

"The bowls are supposed to be a reward for a good season, not a battlefield," Brock said. "We feel like it's better to have 18 winners instead of just one."

The CFA's television committee has formulated a plan for a 16-team playoff that will incorporate six existing bowls - the Orange, Sugar, Cotton, Citrus, Holiday and Fiesta - in the final three rounds, ending with a championship game on the Saturday before the Super Bowl. The proposal may be made to the CFA membership in June, "but we're not wedded to it," Ogreaun said.

"Never, at any time, have we claimed this would be a national championship," Ogreaun said, since the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences are not CFA members. "However, I would point out to people that it's been 11 years since a non-CFA team has been No. 1 in either wire service poll."

In 1978, Southern Cal, a Pac-10 member, was United Press International's national champion. Alabama was No. 1 in The Associated Press poll.

Ogreaun said motivation for a bowl system is three-fold.

First, and perhaps least important to the schools, is the No. 1 question.

"Second is the issue of control," he said. "We're the only sport which doesn't have its own postseason championship, and where, after an entire four-month period, we turn control of our sport over to 18 bowl committees."

If bowl committees are worried about tradition, it's hard to tell from the Sun Bowl. Corporate sponsorship has transformed it into the John Hancock Bowl, and Ogreaun said that's a perfect example of losing control.

"We have evidence that the sponsor exerted some influence over the team selection process," he said.

Marc Boehm, information director for the John Hancock Bowl, called that allegation "completely false."

"We have a selection committee of 12 people, and they decide. John Hancock has no influence whatsoever," Boehm said. "One of the things we did when we signed a contract was to assure that we would pick the teams. Sure, they'll voice an opinion, but we pick the teams."

Third, and perhaps most important, is economics. "CBS paid $1 billion for the basketball playoffs," Ogreaun said. "The economics of college football is very fragile. A lot of athletic directors are being asked not to go the corporate sponsorship route, but they're being told, 'You'd better balance your budgets, guys.' This could also help a lot of athletic programs keep other, non-revenue-producing sports alive."

While the bowls generate about $50 million a year for the schools, it's estimated that a playoff system might make $75 million. The CFA has figures of its own, but it has not released them yet.

Ogreaun said, however, that with some bowls requiring minimum ticket purchases by schools and others paying only around $1 million, "the schools come home with nothing in their pockets."

Syracuse, for example, went to the Hall of Fame Bowl last year and broke even despite its $1 million payout, Ogreaun said.

"Oregon decided to go to the Independence Bowl this year even though they were required to buy $400,000 in tickets," Ogreaun said. "Because they hadn't been to a bowl game for so long, they felt it would be worth it to their program." The Independence Bowl pays $500,000.

Lott recalls Viking upset

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) - Two years have passed since Anthony Carter and the Minnesota Vikings made Candlestick Park their personal playground.

It doesn't seem that long ago to Ronnie Lott, one of the defensive backs burned by Carter in the Vikings' 36-24 playoff upset of San Francisco.

The 49ers safety would sooner recall Carter's playoff-record 10 receptions for 227 yards than he would San Francisco's 34-9 victory in the rematch last January, when the 49ers caught almost as many of Wade Wilson's passes (two) as did Carter (three).

"I always remember the bad things," Lott said Wednesday as the 49ers held their only full-pads workout prior to Saturday's NFC playoff game.

The 49ers haven't had many bad things happen to them this season to use as motivation for the Vikings game. A year ago, on the other hand, they could point to the humiliation of a year earlier, to a rocky regular season that produced six losses, and to the controversy surrounding Bill Walsh's decision to play Steve Young at quarterback instead of Joe Montana.

Montana was so pumped up that day that he made one of the two speeches he's ever given to his teammates.

Like 1987, San Francisco goes into this game fresh from the league's best regular season, a 14-2 record, riding high and with no major injuries. That has Lott fretting.

"I don't remember much about the (Minnesota) game last year," he said.

"To remember the worst, that's how you prepare yourself. I remember that in the '87 game there were a couple of times we had a chance to turn the game around and we didn't."

Even though the Vikings were 10-6 this year with seven players selected for the Pro Bowl, the 49ers are focusing more on what Minnesota's offensive weapons are capable of than what they accomplished this year.

Carter had 65 receptions for four touchdowns and a 16.4-yard average this season, but those totals were surpassed by San Francisco's Jerry Rice and John Taylor. In fact, the receiving trio of Rice, Taylor and tight end Brent Jones had 182 catches, 3,060 yards and 31 touchdowns to 142 catches, 2,266 yards and eight touchdowns for Carter and Viking teammates Hassan Jones and Steve Jordan.

Herschel Walker finished the year with 915 yards rushing, but he was not a focal point of the Minnesota offense and his 3.7-yard average was his lowest in seven professional seasons.

San Francisco coach George Seifert, who was defensive coordinator for the last two playoff meetings with the Vikings, knows Carter is a clutch player in the postseason. And he knows this is Walker's first appearance in the NFL playoffs.

"We have to be alert to the fact they could all of a sudden use Walker a lot," Seifert said. "And Carter is the guy who broke our back in the past."

"I don't think you're ever going to stop guys like Carter or Walker. We just want to hold them in check."

Minnesota coach Jerry Burns, under fire for not using Walker more, grew a bit testy when the Bay area media raised the subject on Wednesday.

"All I worry about is whether we win or not," Burns said by conference call as the Vikings held a last practice before flying west today. "If he gets the ball one time or 50 times, the only thing that matters is the bottom line."

"We have other talented running backs and receivers. He's just one of the guys in our offense."

Woolridge leads Lakers past Denver

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Orlando Woolridge is performing some magic again and the Los Angeles Lakers are rolling again.

The Lakers, called "the worst 20-6 team ever" by Coach Pat Riley a week ago, have had blowout victories over conference rivals Golden State and Denver since then.

Woolridge, a reserve forward who missed the first 21 games of the season after knee surgery, scored 46 points in the two victories, including 24 on 11-for-13 shooting in Wednesday night's 114-98 decision over the Nuggets.

Magic Johnson had 27 points and James Worthy had 15 points and 13 rebounds for the Lakers.

"We weren't getting enough movement and the Nuggets were able to swarm James and Magic," Riley said. "We needed another scorer and Orlando's playing very well right now."

Woolridge said a position change from power forward to small forward has improved his game.

"Earlier this season, I told the coach that I wanted to play more at the '3' position (small forward)," the 6-foot-9 Woolridge said. "In my seven years in the league before I came here, that's the position I played. Now I'm able to do the things I do most naturally."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 120, Washington 101; Milwaukee 110, New Jersey 96; Chicago 93, Cleveland 87; Detroit 84, Los Angeles Clippers 80; Houston 117, Indiana 103; San Antonio 103, Philadelphia 94 and Utah 119, Seattle 108.

Denver, No. 1 in the NBA in scoring average with 116.8 per game, was held to 39 points in the second half on 14-for-48 shooting, 29.2 percent.

Coach Doug Moe called the Nuggets' performance "the worst game we've played in weeks. The Lakers didn't play well in the first half, but we let them off the hook. We just let too many opportunities go by."

Denver, which got 22 points from Walter Davis, got no closer than eight points in the fourth quarter.

Spurs 103, 76ers 94

David Robinson and Terry Cummings each scored 22 points for the Spurs, Willie Anderson had 21 and Maurice Cheeks a season-high 19 against his former team.

San Antonio led 92-90 with three minutes to play before Anderson scored the next seven points for the Spurs, giving them a 99-92 lead with 29 seconds left.

The 76ers, who led by 16 points in the first half, got 24 points and 13 rebounds from Charles Barkley.

Jazz 119, Sonics 108

Utah handed Seattle its second straight home defeat as Karl Malone and Thurl Bailey combined for 27 points in the fourth quarter.

Malone had 14 of his 36 and Bailey 13 of his 22 in the final 12 minutes.

Xavier McDaniel led the Sonics with 25 points.

Celtics 120, Bullets 101

Boston stretched its winning streak to four games and Washington's road losing streak to 11 as Larry Bird led a balanced scoring attack with 20 points.

The Celtics scored the first six points, never trailed and led by at least five for the final 44 minutes. The biggest lead was 108-87 with 5:17 left in the game.

Ledell Eackles scored 22 points to lead the Bullets.

Pistons 84, Clippers 80

Isiah Thomas scored six of his 29 points during a 17-4 fourth-quarter run that lifted Detroit over Los Angeles.

Charles Smith had 27 points and 16 rebounds for the Clippers.

Bulls 93, Cavaliers 87

Chicago beat Cleveland for its fourth consecutive victory as Michael Jordan scored 38 points and sparked an 11-1 run in the last three minutes.

Jordan had five points, an assist and a key steal down the stretch as the Bulls overcame an 86-82 deficit.

Horace Grant scored 20 points for the Bulls.

Rockets 117, Pacers 103

Houston snapped a four-game losing streak and won for only the third time in 11 games as Buck Johnson scored a career-high 27 points on his 26th birthday.

Akeem Olajuwon led the Rockets with 28 points and 17 rebounds.

Vern Fleming led Indiana with 26 points.

Bucks 110, Nets 96

Milwaukee squandered an 18-point halftime lead before Ricky Pierce helped beat New Jersey with 12 of his 32 points in the last four minutes.

New Jersey, which was led by Sam Bowie with 21 points and 18 rebounds, trailed 92-90 with 4:55 remaining. Milwaukee then scored 18 of the game's last 24 points.

New six-foul rule benefits Syracuse

By The Associated Press

The officials cried foul but Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim thought the new rule was more than fair. Even Pitt's Paul Evans, an opponent of the six-foul rule, didn't take it personal.

The Big East Conference decided to invoke some new math this season, raising the foul limit from five to six, and it played a big role in No. 1 Syracuse's 80-78 victory over Pitt on Wednesday night. Two of Syracuse's key plays down the stretch came from LeRon Ellis and Billy Owens, who were playing with five fouls apiece.

"The six-foul rule helped us tonight," Boeheim said. "There were some guys tonight who would have had to come out of the game but were able to stay in. Sure, I like the rule."

Evans was one of the biggest opponents of the rule but he refused to blame it for the loss, saying, "It really didn't make that much difference."

Syracuse wasn't the only member of the Top 25 to struggle. Iowa, ranked 20th, was embarrassed at Northern Iowa 77-74, and No. 22 Alabama fell to Vanderbilt 68-67.

Elsewhere, it was No. 6 Oklahoma 101, Alaska-Anchorage 81; No. 10 Nevada-Las Vegas 94, Fullerton State 66; No. 13 Duke 108, The Citadel 69; No. 14 Arkansas 82, Houston 78; No. 15 UCLA 89, Southern Cal 72; No. 17 La Salle 63, Temple 62; No. 18 North Carolina State 79, Clemson 77; No. 21 Memphis State 68, Northeast Louisiana 47 and No. 24 Minnesota 116, Rider 48.

Stephen Thompson, who scored 24 points, converted a three-point play with five seconds left after Syracuse rallied from 13 points down and then blew a five-point lead. Derrick Coleman added 23 points and 14 rebounds for the Orangemen (10-0).

Jason Matthews led Pitt with 20 points.

No. 6 Oklahoma 101, Alaska-Anchorage 81

Damon Patterson scored 25 points and keyed a 12-0 run in the final four minutes.

Alaska-Anchorage trailed 85-76 with 3:36 left when Patterson began a 12-point burst with a three-point play.

Todd Fisher led the Seawolves with 31 points.

No. 10 UNLV 94, Fullerton St. 66

Anderson Hunt scored a career-high 28 points for the second straight game.

Hunt made 10 of 14 shots, including six of 10 from 3-point range. Two of the 3-pointers came with seven minutes left in the half when UNLV went on a 14-3 spurt to break open a 25-22 game. Mark Hill led Fullerton with 25 points.

No. 13 Duke 108, The Citadel 69

Phil Henderson scored 29 points and Robert Brickey sparked a second-half run. Duke led 46-33 at halftime and began the second half with a 15-0 run that consumed nearly five minutes. Brickey scored seven points in the run and finished with 22.

No. 15 UCLA 89, Southern Cal 72

Don MacLean scored 35 points and Trevor Wilson added 27.

After a sluggish opening five minutes in the second half, UCLA's fast break, led by Wilson, MacLean and Mitchell Butler, gave the Bruins a 76-58 lead that reached 84-62 with four minutes left.

No. 17 La Salle 63, Temple 62

Lionel Simmons scored 23 points and made two free throws with 11 seconds left.

La Salle went on a 13-2 run and led 61-52 before Temple tied it with nine straight points.

No. 18 N. Carolina St. 79, Clemson 77

Brian Howard scored a career-high 29 points and Tom Gugliotta hit an 18-foot jumper with six seconds left.

Northern Iowa 77, No. 20 Iowa 74

Reserve Brad Hill hit two 3-point baskets and teammate Cedrick McCullough forced a key turnover as Northern Iowa rallied in the final two minutes.

Troy Muilenburg's 18 points led Northern Iowa. Thompson led Iowa with 22.

No. 21 Memphis St. 68, NE Louisiana 47

Freshman Kelvin Allen, starting his first game, scored 11 points and grabbed 11 rebounds. Ernest Smith, who had been starting, came off the bench for 12 points to lead the Tigers.

Vanderbilt 68, No. 22 Alabama 67

Derrick Wilcox hit a 14-foot jumper with three seconds remaining, capping Vanderbilt's comeback from a 16-point deficit.

No. 24 Minnesota 116, Rider 48

Minnesota held Rider College scoreless for over eight minutes in the first half and Walter Bond and Melvin Newbern scored 18 points each.

Magic leads All-Star vote

NEW YORK (AP)—Guard Magic Johnson of the Los Angeles Lakers, the all-time leader in assists in NBA All-Star competition, is the top vote-getter among Western Conference players in balloting to determine the starters for this season's All-Star Game.

The league said Wednesday that Johnson had received 31,771 votes in fan balloting for the 40th All-Star Game, to be played Feb. 11 at Miami.

Derek Harper of the Dallas Mavericks is second among West guards with 16,212 votes.

The leaders at forward are James Worthy of the Lakers with 26,849 votes and Kelly Tripucka of the Charlotte Hornets with 25,979. Houston's Akeem Olajuwon tops the West centers with 26,047 votes, followed by rookie David Robinson of the San Antonio Spurs with 17,809.

Hogs overcome Houston

By The Associated Press

Falling behind by 18 points in the first half was just what 14th ranked Arkansas needed to get ready for the Southwest Conference basketball season.

The Razorbacks, down 31-13 in the first half, rallied behind Todd Day and Arlyn Bowers to an 82-78 victory over Houston Wednesday night in the first SWC game for both teams.

In other SWC games, Texas A&M defeated Baylor, 76-69, Texas Christian edged Southern Methodist, 63-61. In a non-conference game, Detroit slipped past Rice, 77-75.

"I believe after this we can win anywhere on the road," Bowers said. "We got fired up and just got things going our way."

Getting out of their 18-point hole was a great confidence builder, Coach Nolan Richardson said.

"I told them at the half that we got down by 18 to somebody and then came back on them," Richardson said. "In the second half, we got our confidence back."

Day didn't score a point until the final 6:29 of the first half, and then he sank 15 to rally the Hogs to a 41-40 halftime lead.

They never trailed again, although the Cougars made another charge in the closing minutes, cutting Arkansas' lead to 79-78 with 2:21 to play.

But Day, who led Arkansas with 22 points, hit a three-point basket with 1:23 to go and the Cougars didn't score another point.

"We knew we had to start penetrating and start dishing it off to get our shots," Bowers said.

Bowers got three key steals and scored 14 points.

"They just didn't see me, I'm so small and I anticipated the passes," he said.

Richardson said Bower's steals turned the game around.

"I think he was the key," Richardson said. "He gave his heart to this game. I knew we had to control the guard play and I talked to him about that."

Arkansas hit three of its first 18 shots while the Cougars jumped to their early lead.

"They came out playing like it was for the national championship," Richardson said. "In the first 10 minutes, Houston was the most awesome team we've seen."

Arkansas outscored Houston 28-9 over the final minutes of the first half and hit the first eight points of the second half.

"You have to believe that you can beat someone at home when you get them down by 18," Houston's Chris Morris said. "We felt we had a spot in the (SWC) tournament sewed up if we won tonight. It's a big letdown."

Carl Herrera led Houston with 23 points and 16 rebounds. Smith added 16 and Craig Upchurch had 15. Lenzie Howell scored 16 for the Hogs.

Guards Tony Milton and Lynn Suber scored 24 points each to pace the Texas A&M Aggies to a 76-69 win over the Baylor Bears.

The game opened conference play for both teams. The Aggies are 8-7 and 1-0 in conference, while the loss drops the Bears to 7-4 and 0-1 in conference.

Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf praised Milton's performance, saying it was "his usual great game."

Forward Julius Denton led the Bears with 16 points while forward Ivan Jones contributed 12 points and 13 rebounds in a losing cause.

Tony Edmund hit a driving layup with two seconds left on and the Texas Christian Horned Frogs captured their Southwest Conference opener with a 63-61 victory over the Southern Methodist Mustangs.

TCU improved its overall record to 7-4 in the victory before 1,620 fans in Moody Coliseum. SMU dropped to 4-6 and 0-2 in SWC play.

SMU trailed by as many as 12 points in the second half before Gerald Lewis tied it at 61 with a three-point shot.

TCU called time out then worked the ball to Edmond, who drove past two Mustangs to score.

"They tried to double team me but I just cut to the basket," Edmond said. "I was thinking about getting fouled so I went for the lay-up. I wasn't worried about getting it blocked because the worst thing that could have happened was for us to go into overtime."

Edmond and Michael Strickland, who hit four three-point baskets, each scored 12 points for the Horned Frogs.

Rod Hampton scored a season high 17 points for the Mustangs while John Colborne added 12.

SMU outrebounded the Frogs 33-20 and shot out even 53 percent to 48 percent but suffered 17 turnovers because of a furious TCU fullcourt press.

Freshman guard Dwayne Kelly scored 15 points and senior guard Bill Wood added 12 as the University of Detroit scored a school record 10 three-point field goals in their 77-75 victory over Rice.

The win evens the Titans' season record to 5-5. The Owls lost for the first time in five starts in Houston, bringing their record also to 5-5.

Rice's Brent Scott scored 16 points for the Owls and teammate Dana Hardy added 14.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A letter you printed in 1983 resulted in more than 8,000 responses to the National Scoliosis Foundation. We were able to help almost everyone who wrote.

Nearly half the letters came from adults who were suffering because they were not screened as children. Today we still get letters of gratitude from people who thank us for helping turn their lives around.

I am writing to ask you to repeat that letter. The National Scoliosis Foundation's volunteers and staff stand ready and eager to serve your readers once again. Thank you so much. — Laura B. Gowan, President

DEAR LAURA: Your organization did a splendid job seven years ago. Now let's see you do it again. Here's the letter:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am lying at home in a body brace for the second time in four years,

LEANING TOWER

PISA, Italy (AP) - The Leaning Tower of Pisa, the famous Italian landmark which inclines about 14 feet out of the perpendicular, is over 800 years old.

Building began in 1174 and the ground beneath the tower started sinking after the first three of its eight stories were finished.

The circular bell tower is 179 feet tall and has walls 13 feet thick at its base and about six feet thick at the top. The marble structure has tipped one foot during the past 100 years.

recovering from surgery that should never have been necessary.

I have scoliosis, a curvature of the spine that was not detected and treated early enough. So, at age 34, I have a spine with 14 fused vertebrae held together by two long steel rods, clamps, nuts and bolts. I am unable to lift my 8-month-old son.

Here is a message to all parents of adolescent children: One out of 10 of those kids will develop scoliosis, ranging from mild to severe. It takes only 30 seconds to conduct a simple test to determine which child should be seen by a professional for further evaluation. Those 30 seconds invested in children between the ages of 10 and 14 could save a lifetime of agony, disability and huge doctor bills.

If scoliosis is not treated while a child is still growing, about one in five cases will worsen in adulthood, as mine did. The lungs can become compressed and the heart enlarged from rib rotation. Surgery to correct such a condition is painful and costly. If scoliosis is detected early, wearing a brace could make surgery unnecessary.

Here are a few things to look for in your teen-ager: Is one shoulder higher than the other? Is one shoulder blade protruding? Is one hip higher or more prominent?

It would be wonderful if we could get all schools to have an annual screening program from grades 5 through 9. Any parent or teacher who is interested in learning more about this should write to me for a free brochure. (Please enclose a long, self-addressed envelope with 45 cents return postage.) I am Kenneth Love, vice president of the National Scoliosis Foundation, 93 Concord Ave., P.O. Box 542, Belmont, Mass. 02178. Thanks for your help, Ann. — Been There

I responded: Dear Friend: I hope you have an energetic staff. You're going to need it. Thanks for the opportunity to help millions of children. If ever an ounce of prevention was worth a pound of cure, this is it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why do doctors tell men who come in for checkups that they have the body of a man half their age? To boost their egos or what?

My husband is 68 and not a terrific shape. But now that his doctor has told him he has the body of a man half his age, the old fool brags all over town and has become extra frisky in the bedroom.

Please tell those doctors to knock it off. — Mutton Dressed Like Lamb

DEAR WIFE: No way. A doctor can make his patients feel extra frisky can't be all ba-aaaa-aaaad.

Lowfat cheese a boon to dieters

This luscious main cheese dish salad is-would you believe-diet food.

If that seems too good to be true, consider the ingredients. We now know that pasta, for example, is actually healthy, providing beneficial carbohydrates. Raw vegetables won't put on the pounds and the dressing is light, sparkly, with minimal oil.

But you say 1 1/2 cups of real cheese...can that be "legal"? There's been so much talk lately about sodium, calories and cholesterol that many people are afraid to eat anything but artificial products-most of which taste like soup.

The important thing to understand is that not all cheeses are created equal. Some are, indeed, loaded with fat and salt while others-such as those used in this hearty yet slimming Nordic Cheese and Pasta Salad-offer a delicious, guilt-free alternative.

Both mellow, nutty Jarlsberg and delicately spiced Nokkelost come to us from Norway's prime dairy country, nestled in the fjords. Crafted with traditional skill by master cheese makers and completely natural, each is rich in quality calcium and protein-vital for sound bones and muscle-as well as vitamins, A,D,B6 and B12.

In addition-and this is the critical plus factor-each is made using part skim milk, therefore significantly lower in both calories and fat than many other cheeses. About 50 percent lower in cholesterol than, for example, Bric. Jarlsberg in particular is also very low in sodium.

So go ahead and enjoy these superb, versatile cheeses-they're favorites in Norway, too where "fit and trim" is the norm-for salads, sandwiches and lots of other foods. You can feel confident about nutrition...and you'll love the taste.

NORDIC CHEESE AND PASTA SALAD

2 cups cooked pasta-tri-color wheels, elbows or rotelle
3/4 cup Jarlsberg cheese, cubed
3/4 cup Nokkelost cheese, cut into julienne strips
1 cup sliced celery
1/2 cup sliced radishes

1/2 cup small black olives (pitted)
1/2 cup diced pimento
1/4 cup sliced green onions (scallions)
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
2 tablespoons orange juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon ground pepper
2 oranges, sectioned or sliced
2 tablespoons walnut pieces

In large bowl, combine first eight ingredients. Add oil, vinegar, orange juice, salt and pepper. Pour over salad and toss until well coated. Fold in orange sections. Cover; chill 1 hour or longer. Just before serving, sprinkle with walnuts. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves. Makes four servings, about 265 calories each.

Tempting dish

Nordic cheese and pasta salad is surprisingly low in calories, cholesterol and sodium. It's just one example of the tasty, nutritious recipes you can make using versatile Norwegian cheeses.

Officers to be installed

Corsicana. Genevieve Lynn served as hostess to Harris, Loving, Susie Curtsinger, Jim Loving, Jo Irlbeck, Tony Irlbeck, Sadie Shaw, Leona Sowell, Anna Conklin, Ben Conklin, Dorothy Lundry, Peggy Lemons, Lydia Hopson, Ursalee Jacobsen, Faye Brownlow and Gene Bishop.

Food contaminates more dangerous than additives

Many groups concerned with food safety are pointing the finger in the wrong direction--toward food additives instead of microbiological contamination.

According to Dr. Sanford Miller, director of the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio, our food system is under attack.

"The EEC (European Economic Community) ban on hormone treated beef is really just a non-tariff trade barrier that has no scientific basis," he said. "And these bans are not going to stop unless the United States stands up to them."

Miller said that rather than being concerned with whether a food is "natural" food, or pesticide residues, Americans would be better off worrying about microbiological contamination of food, which is a much larger threat.

The major problem in our food supply is not a chemical problem, but a microbiological problem," the health scientist said. "Some bacteria are adapting to grow in refrigeration, which is our last line of defense."

However, because public attention is focused on chemical additives and pesticide residues, money is being taken away from the microbiological work.

Additional problems in food regulation in this country are caused by having three agencies involved in food safety, Miller said.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) are all three responsible for some aspect of regulation.

"If the heads of the agencies all get along, then everything is OK; if they don't, then you have total confusion," said the former official of the Food and Drug Administration.

For example, a cheese pizza is regulated by the FDA, but a pepperoni pizza, because of the meat, is covered by the USDA, Miller said.

Social Security

Most disability claims approved for payment are awarded based on the original application rather than on an appeal, Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, said today.

Social Security records show that over 75 percent of all disability awards occur at the initial claim level.

Out of 100 disability applicants, 36 will be awarded benefits on their original claim, four more will be approved after requesting reconsideration of their claim, and another eight will be awarded benefits at a hearing. Fewer than one percent are awarded at higher levels of appeal.

When disability benefits are granted at one of the appeal levels, it is often because additional medical evidence has been provided, or the individual's medical condition has worsened, Talbot said.

For information about Social Security and SSI disability, call 1-800-234-5772 Talbot said. The Amarillo Social Security office is located in Sunset Center. The office is open weekdays 9 a.m. - 4:30.
