

Texans: Buckle up by Sunday

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

If an officer sees the seat belt dangling, he has the right to stop us. "We're going to enforce the Texas seat belt law like any other law," said Wayne Beigle, public information officer who serves 31 Panhandle counties for the Department of Public Safety. Will policemen be stopping cars just to check seat belt compliance? "We know there are some older-model cars that have only a lap-belt and no shoulder harness," said Beigle. "We won't be stopping these people if we can't tell for sure; on the other hand, if we stop a person for some other traffic violation, we will be checking the seat belts." Beigle explained that now Texans are still in a warning period until December 1. "We have not given out any tickets, only verbal warnings for not wearing seat belts," said Beigle. "This is customary that we do this," explained Beigle. "There is a 90 day grace period which allows the driver to get used to the new law." According to the new law, a minimum fine of $25 and no more than $50 will be given for not wearing a seat belt. "The seat belt law applies only to front seat passengers and the driver in passenger cars and light trucks, any vehicle up to and including three-fourth ton pickups," said Beigle. "Basically, only three passengers are allowed to ride in the front seat," said Beigle.

"We recommend that you buckle up anywhere in every vehicle even though the passenger in the back seat is exempt from wearing the seat belt," advised Beigle. Beigle explained that there are only two exemptions to the seat belt law: 1) if the driver has a written statement from a licensed physician stating that for some medical reason the passenger should not wear a seat belt, and the statement be carried with the passenger in the car; and 2) any federal postal employee who is actively engaged in the delivery of the mail is also exempt from the seat belt.

Your chance of having an accident is once every 10 years. One in 20 will be serious. One in 60 will be fatal.

"I've talked to several doctors and we don't expect to see many of these (exemption) letters," commented Beigle. "The only ones that have been issued in this area were for temporary medical issues only," said Beigle. "Even though they (DPS) are getting many requests for the letter, we don't anticipate seeing very many once the law is in effect," said Beigle. Beigle also said the New York State Medical Association had the same stipulation as Texas and could not see any permanent medical reasons for exemption. "A lot of people have asked us, 'Are we really going to enforce this?' and the answer is 'aggressively yes,'" said Beigle sternly. He explained that this law is not going into effect to harass the driver. "It is a proven fact that the seat belt is the most effective life-saving and injury reducing device available to the passenger of a motor vehicle," stressed Beigle. "In 1984, 3,913 people lost their lives in motor vehicle accidents in Texas alone. "Of that 3,913, people, almost 98 percent of the passengers were not wearing seat belts and could have still been alive," said Beigle. "The National Safety Council informed us that in one to a maximum of two percent of the time, a person would be worse off because he had on a seat belt during a crash." Locally, Beigle said that since Sept. 1 fatality rates in the Panhandle have dropped almost 18 percent. Statewide, the fatality rate has dropped five percent compared to the same time period of 1984. "Probably the biggest reason people are not wearing seat belts now is because they don't believe that an accident will ever happen to them," admitted Beigle. "But statistics show your chances of having an accident are once every ten years. On the national average, for every one in 20 of those (See BUCKLE, Page 2)

Nation marks holiday with wet parades, dinner by the ton, airborne greetings

By GEORGE KAUGH
Associated Press Writer
Betty Boop and Kermit the Frog got soaked in New York, astronauts dined on irradiated turkey in space, dinner was served by the ton in Denver, and President Reagan got an airborne greeting as the nation marked Thanksgiving.

While millions of Americans feasted at well-laden tables with relatives, thousands of others made sure those in need were not forgotten on a holiday that celebrates the land's bounty. Some dinners were huge affairs.

"Daddy" Bruce Randolph, who started out selling barbecue sandwiches for a dime apiece in Arkansas, estimated 100,000 people came to devour the 4 tons of turkey and ribs and 3,000 pounds of beans he served on a Denver street that was renamed in his honor.

The free Thanksgiving dinners, for which much of the food is donated, started shortly after Randolph, 85, came to town in the 1950s and opened Daddy Bruce's Bar-B-Q.

"I just carried a lot of ribs and stuff out there (in City Park) with my portable barbecue and gave it all away," he said. "The next year, I had about 300 to 500 people out here, and its been goin' and growing ever since."

In Washington, D.C., hundreds of the capital's hungry and homeless lined up in Lafayette Park across the street from the White House for a meal provided by the Center for Creative Non-Violence.

In flood-stricken West Virginia, 10,000 dinners were trucked or flown in by the Red Cross and National Guard to feed displaced residents.

The weather did not cooperate as parade-goers in New York City, Philadelphia and Detroit had to brave rain or snow to see the festivities in person.

"It's cold, it's raining, but at least it's Thanksgiving," said Bill Classen, one of the workers who inflated helium-filled balloons of characters such as Betty Boop and Kermit the Frog for the 59th annual Macy's parade in New York. "It could be worse."

In Detroit, 36 handicapped Boy Scouts watched the Michigan Thanksgiving Day Parade in a wet snowfall from a muddy stretch of sidewalk, sorry that they were not allowed to march again this year because of a cut in the procession's size.

Thousands of people took to the air Thursday, taking advantage of low airline fares offered to attract holiday travelers.

The day's main course was served in an unusual form when the astronauts aboard shuttle Atlantis dined on space-age fare: turkey kept fresh by gamma rays, freeze-dried vegetables and heat-processed cranberry sauce.

The menu was more traditional when the first family gathered at Rancho Cielo near Santa Barbara, Calif.: turkey, corn bread dressing, cranberries, string beans with

City police issue 30 traffic citations

Thirty traffic citations were issued Wednesday and Thursday by the Hereford city police, and four thefts and one burglary of a business were reported.

The thefts were a stolen vehicle reported in the 200 block of Whitter, a 1974 Chevrolet Bellaire; a Christmas tree from a store; a clarinet valued at $300; and a tire.

A burglary of a business was reported in which a window was broken and a typewriter valued at $1,000 taken. Police officers found the typewriter outside the business. Nothing else was reported stolen. Also reported was the burglary of a vehicle in which some checks and cassette tapes were stolen.

Other arrests or charges, reported by the Hereford police, included: one drunk in control of motor vehicle, one person driving with license suspended, one person arrested on a traffic warrant; one person charged with criminal mischief; and one person charged with assault.

The police also received a report of disorderly conduct in 200 block of Main Street, and a report of reckless driving.

The Hereford fire department reported that there were no fires called in on Wednesday or Thursday.

Farmer's share of food dollar dropped 7 percent this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of livestock and crops have sunk so low that farmers will get about 32 cents of each consumer dollar spent on food in 1984, the smallest share in more than half a century, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

"The farm value of food — that part of the consumer's food dollar that goes to farmers — has dropped about 7 percent this year," says USDA economist Ralph Parlett. "This drop has helped hold down increases in retail prices."

Even so, the creep of inflation has caused overall food prices to increase again in 1985, but at only a clip of little over 2 percent, compared with a 3.8 percent annual increase in 1984. That makes this year's food price gain the smallest in 18 years.

"Large supplies of many commodities — particularly cattle, hogs and poultry — have depressed producer prices," Parlett said in a new outlook report. "Also, farm prices for eggs and fresh vegetables have declined, as supplies have recovered from scarcities and high prices in 1984."

The 32 cents that farmers are expected to get from each consumer dollar spent on USDA's market basket list of foods this year is down from 34 cents in 1984. According to USDA records, 32 cents would match the all-time low reported for 1932 and 1933 in the depths of the Great Depression.

During World War II, the farmer's share of the consumer food dollar climbed to more than 50 cents, reflecting high wartime prices. Since the late 1940s, the farmer's share has mostly been in the range of 37 to 44 cents. But since 1980, when the indicator was 37 cents, the farm share of the food dollar has eroded steadily.

Looking at overall food prices, the report said this year's increase of slightly more than 2 percent is mainly due to higher costs of fresh fruit, processed fruit, fish and seafood, cereal and bakery products, and other prepared foods.

"In contrast, prices for red meats and poultry have declined 1 percent to 2 percent, and egg prices may average 18 percent lower than last," the report said.

Crew delivers baby to couple

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Neilan and Cynthia Anderson were thankful Thursday for Jim Bucherie Jr., Jan Davidson and the crew of Abilene Fire Department Truck No. 1.

Most of all the couple was thankful for the healthy 6-pound, 9-ounce baby girl all those people had a role in delivering on Thanksgiving Day.

Bucherie and Ms. Davidson are the Abilene Emergency Medical Service employees, who work with the fire department which gets emergency calls. The Andersons' call for help came shortly before 5 a.m.

"We got there, and four minutes later, we had a baby in our hands," said Bucherie, who delivered the fourth of his career in the Andersons' home.

"I'm still really excited about it," Ms. Davidson said Thursday afternoon. It was her first delivery. "I'm so happy the mother is OK, and the baby is OK."

Ms. Davidson said the baby was born in a bathroom, "only about three feet wide. There wasn't a lot of room to work in."

Bucherie said Mrs. Anderson said she woke up at 4:30 a.m. and discovered the baby's birth was imminent.

"While she was in there (in the bathroom), her water broke. Her husband called us," Bucherie said.

"We grabbed the OB kit as soon as we arrived. It's got gloves, clamps and a scalpel in it. Within four minutes, we had a baby."

Half of Lucas murder cases unsolved

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities in 18 states now say that nearly half the murder cases the Texas Rangers attributed to Henry Lee Lucas and Otis Toole are now the object of renewed investigations or were never closed in the first place.

Some of those reopened investigations have led to new suspects, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

A Times Herald survey of lawmen in charge of investigating 191 murder cases listed as closed or "cleared" by the Rangers-led Henry Lee Lucas Homicide Task Force shows that 90 now are considered unsolved.

Forty-three of those crimes had been attributed to Lucas, 14 to Toole and 33 to both men acting together.

Lucas, once considered the greatest serial killer in U.S. history, is now widely viewed as the perpetrator of a gigantic hoax who, in the words of Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, "took a lot of people for a ride."

Case after case against Lucas and Toole began to unravel earlier this year after the Times Herald challenged the validity of their confessions in an investigative series that revealed evidence placing them far from the scenes of many of their alleged crimes.

Mattox, who has completed an investigation into the Lucas affair, said last week he believed "sloppy police work" made it possible for Lucas to pull off the hoax.

Two girls save great-grandmother

SUFFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A 7-year-old girl and her 5-year-old sister saved their partially blind, 86-year-old great-grandmother when they led her out of their burning house, fire officials said.

Kimberly Brookens and her younger sister, Kelly, of Springfield, Mass., were alone with the elderly woman when the fire started about 10 a.m. Wednesday, said Fire Chief Thomas L. Bellmore.

The two girls heard what sounded like an explosion in the living room, Bellmore said. They found the living room carpet on fire and rushed to the second floor to lead Frances Turner out of the burning house, he said. Mrs. Turner has only partial sight.

"The kids saved her life. If they hadn't gotten out of the house by the time we got there, she would have been gone," Bellmore said.

Rajneesh invites followers to India

RAJNEESH PURAM, Ore. (AP) — Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh has invited his followers to join a commune in Poona, India, but the announcement has drawn little enthusiasm from disciples at his American commune.

"It doesn't excite me," said Swami Madyapa, a Rajneesh follower who plans to return to his native Australia.

He said his opinion would change if he knew Rajneesh would be living at the Indian commune.

The invitation to the commune in Poona was conveyed Wednesday in a message from Ma Prem Hasya, the guru's personal secretary, who is with Rajneesh in the Himalayan foothills.

The invitation did not mention whether Rajneesh would live in Poona, where the guru set up his original ashram in the late 1970s.

Man alerted by TV gets transplant

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Doctors began transplanting the heart and lungs of an unidentified donor into the chest of a man who was alerted that the organs were available when a message flashed across his television screen.

Nina Trasoff, a spokeswoman for the University of Arizona Medical Center, said the message was flashed in a bid to find 32-year-old Terry May after doctors had tried to reach him at his home in Tempe, and then on the beeper he always carries. She said there was no answer at his home and the beeper was not working.

"Terry May: Call University Medical Center in Tucson," the line read.

May was eating Thanksgiving dinner at a cousin's house in Phoenix when friends called and told him they had seen the message while watching the National Football League game between the Dallas Cowboys and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Saboteurs paralyze rail lines

TOKYO (AP) — Saboteurs firebombed a train station and sliced railroad communications cables today, paralyzing commuter rail lines in the Tokyo area and creating chaos for more than 10 million rush-hour travelers, officials said.

Acts of vandalism were reported at the same time in six other parts of the country, including the cities of Osaka, Kyoto and Hiroshima, but with less serious impact on rail service, the government-run Japan National Railways and National Police Agency reported.

No injuries were reported in any of the incidents. A national police spokesman said 48 people were arrested in Tokyo and Osaka in connection with the station firebombing.

The spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the wrecking was apparently carried out by radical leftists sympathetic with striking railway employees.

The employees are opposed to plans to make the deficit-ridden government train system private and drastically reduce its workforce.

accidents-it will be an extremely serious accident and for one in 60, it will be fatal," "The point being--no one is immune to an accident," urged Beighle.

"If you don't do anything to protect yourself before you start driving, you won't have time to take advantage of it once you're in a crash," explained the officer.

Officer Beighle illustrated one wreck he investigated.

"The last fatality I went to involved a pickup and a small car that collided at an intersection on a country road.

"Two people lost their lives in the accident, but the damage to the vehicles was relatively small. There was no damage at all in the passenger's compartment," said Beighle.

"These people died because of extensive internal and head injuries which they received when they lifted off the seat and flew forward..." recalled Beighle sadly, "...not any damage to the passenger compartment."

Beighle said it is very common to see death caused by severe internal and head injuries that were sustained by being thrown as a result of not having a seat belt on.

"This is what a seat belt is designed to do; it prevents your body from striking the numerous hard objects in a vehicle," he said.

"In this case, all the damage done was to a left fender and passengers in both vehicles could have walked away had they worn their seat belts," said Beighle.

Beighle explained that if the seat belts are included in the car from the factory, the passenger would be required to have them and use them.

"If the seat belt anchors were not made in the car when it came it from the factory, these will have to be installed," warned Beighle.

"You are only required to use whatever seat belt the car was equipped with at the time it came out on the market," said Beighle. "But remember, no one is immune to an accident."

American officials allowed to interview

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel will allow American officials to interview two diplomats recalled from the United States about the case of a U.S. Navy analyst accused of spying for Israel, newspapers here reported today.

Meanwhile, The New York Times reported that an internal Israeli inquiry has determined that Jonathan J. Pollard, 31, the American arrested on charges of selling classified documents to Israel, was an operative for a secretive Israeli counterterrorism bureau.

FBI agents would be allowed to

"talk" with the recalled diplomats in Israel as an apparent goodwill gesture toward the United States, according to Harretz, the Jerusalem Post and other newspapers carrying the report.

A formal interrogation will not be allowed, the reports said, apparently to safeguard Israeli security interests and the diplomatic immunity status of the diplomats.

Israeli sources have identified the recalled diplomats as Yosef Yagur, science attache at the consulate-general in New York, and Ilan Ravid, deputy science attache in the Washington embassy.

The government rejected U.S. demands that the two be sent back to Washington for questioning, according to the daily Davar, allied with Prime Minister Shimon Peres' Labor Party.

But Israeli radio said Peres has sent a message to Secretary of State George P. Shultz expressing Israel's willingness to give the Americans whatever documents it can find that may have been bought from Pollard.

The New York Times, quoting a "highly placed Israeli source" who was not identified, said an internal Israeli investigation found that Pollard volunteered in 1984 to provide classified information, and that a senior Israeli official apparently associated with the office of the prime minister's adviser on terrorism oversaw his activities.

Raphael Eytan, an adviser on counterterrorism, was named Tuesday by two Israeli newspapers as Pollard's recruiter, but he was quoted by the daily Maariv as saying "my name is in the news by mistake."

The Israeli probe found that the counterterrorism official sought U.S. intelligence concerning Arab military capabilities, the Times said.

The internal investigation was put together by Prime Minister Shimon Peres and other top leaders, the Times said.

Peres on Thursday refused to discuss the Pollard case during an interview on Israeli television.

According to a source, who spoke on condition he not be identified by name or position, Pollard was in touch with Ravid just before the FBI arrested Pollard on Nov. 21.

Pollard's wife, Ann Henderson-Pollard, was arrested shortly afterward and accused of illegal possession of secret documents.

The newspaper Davar, without giving details, said Thursday that the United States had tried to spy on secret Israeli scientific research five times in recent years.

Samuel Lewis, former U.S. ambassador to Israel, said in an interview from the United States broadcast on Israel radio that he was "skeptical" of those reports.

Texans in Panhandle opposed to nuke site

Of 1,232 responses to a questionnaire mailed to registered voters by State Rep. John Smithee, 83.8 percent of those polled are opposed to a nuclear repository being built in the Panhandle.

Favoring the repository were 16.2 percent of those polled.

Smithee's poll, mailed in October, covered Randall and Deaf Smith Counties.

- Other responses in the poll were:
- 1) Do you support an amendment prohibiting a state income tax? Yes - 92.3 percent. No - 7.7 percent.
 - 2) Do you support legislation authorizing a study on importation of water to the Texas Panhandle? Yes - 83.6 percent. No - 16.4 percent.
 - 3) Do you feel there should be additional cuts in the state budget? Yes - 91.5 percent. No - 8.5 percent.
 - 4) Do you favor the no pass-no play rule? Yes - 75.6 percent. No - 24.4 percent. (A large number of respondents favored modifications to the rule such as a shorter sit-out period.)
 - 5) Do you favor a state lottery? Yes - 53 percent. No - 47 percent.
 - And, 6) Do you favor pari-mutuel wagering? Yes - 46 percent. No - 54 percent.

People become habitual non-readers

NEW YORK (AP) — Most people have become "habitual non-readers," says a Scripture specialist, a condition that has been added to illiteracy as an obstacle in regard to the Bible.

Unless it is "heard through the ears, the great majority of people in every country will not receive it," says the Rev. Tom Houston, president of World Vision and former head of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

He told the 1985 annual meeting of the American Bible Society:

"It is not just that the majority of people in the Third World are not yet literate or able to read. It is that the majority of people in our Western countries like the United States are habitual non-readers."

Tumult of summer still smouldering

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

That vast midsummer collision among Southern Baptists still is reverberating, the fallout including a threatened lawsuit, charges of "heresy" and proposed bylaw changes.

All the while, a peace committee has pleaded for quiet restraint, and to a degree, has obtained it, except for signs of the underlying ferment that keep cropping up.

The banked tensions stem from last June's convention in Dallas at which the president, the Rev. Charles Stanley, overruled a majority vote of the record-size convention of 45,000.

He ruled the result out-of-order and void, even though he himself earlier had ordered the ballot to clarify an uncertain standing vote.

In a denomination that prides itself on democracy, the one-man squelching of the majority has fueled a running controversy, with a Georgia couple threatening a lawsuit unless the procedures nullified.

But the denomination's executive committee refused to do that, deciding to affirm the challenged proceedings despite, it said, "whatever mistakes may have occurred."

Robert S. Crowder of Birmingham, who with his wife had retained an attorney to press the matter, said he was "heartbroken" that the committee failed its "duty and responsibility" in the matter.

His attorney, Emmitt J. Bondurant of Atlanta, contended that convention "messengers" clearly had the "power to amend" any report, but "were thwarted in their effort to do so" by chair rulings.

Southern Baptist bylaws were "run roughshod over" by the "arbitrary and ... fundamentally illegal and unfair rulings" by Stanley, the attorney contended in presenting Crowder's plea to the executive committee.

Bondurant said the denomination's "representative form of government ... depends upon the integrity of the procedures guaranteeing" majority rule, but it "was denied the messengers of the Dallas convention."

The partisan conflict in the 14 million-member denomination, the largest in American Protestantism, involves a drive by a resurgent fundamentalist wing, charging liberalism in denominational institutions, to achieve control.

In the controversial vote, a majority held that the convention could substitute an entire slate for a committee, chosen through presidential appointive powers, that picks trustees overseeing agencies and institutions.

Stanley, earlier re-elected as the fundamentalist incumbent, had submitted the issue to a ballot, but when the result was announced, ruled it out-of-order, backed by his parliamentarian, refusing to recognize floor objections.

However, the denomination's executive committee rebuffed Crowder's protest to the procedures, affirming them and declaring its own decision "makes all procedural defects moot, if any occurred."

At the same time, a proposal to revise a key bylaw 16 to specify that alternate nominations can be made from the floor was expected to be presented at the next executive committee meeting in February.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Robison B. James, a religion professor at the University of Richmond, affiliated with Virginia Southern Baptists, accused the increasingly dominant fundamentalists of heresy.

This is "the Baptist heresy," James says, violating the historic, non-creedal freedom of Baptists "to respond in trustful submission directly to the Bible, and directly to Christ," without institutional regulations of it.

'Real Life' recipe

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I found this great recipe in some old files and thought it might be something you would want to share with your readers. I have no idea who wrote it but the underlying philosophy is pretty solid. Will you try to find space for it in your column?—A NEW HAVEN FEMINIST

DEAR N.H.F.: You bet. Here it is. Thanks for sharing.
RECIPE FOR REAL LIFE

1 cup crushed ego.
1 teaspoon job discrimination.
¼ teaspoon chauvinism.
1 well-beaten path to the washing machine.
½ teaspoon grated nerves.
1 pinch from a man on the street.
1 dash from the dentist and home in heavy traffic to release the babysitter.
Mix all ingredients together and stir violently. Cook until you feel a slow burn and then add one last straw. Serves 53 percent of the population.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you check with your experts and find out if nursing mothers are protected against becoming pregnant?

I always believed this was an old wives' tale, but someone very close to me insists it is true. Perhaps if she sees it in print she will stop being so stubborn and save herself from an unwanted pregnancy. In fact I think I read a letter in your column a few years ago from a woman who had two babies in 11 months because she believed this myth.—NO NAME IN DAYTON

DEAR DAYTON: It is a myth. A woman who is nursing a child may indeed become pregnant—and many do.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several days ago I read a letter from "Impatient or Dead-Ended" in my daily new England paper. Your response made it clear that some people must try three, four or even more therapists before they connect with the one who is right.

I believe I can improve on your advice if you allow me to do so presumptuously.

Selecting a therapist frequently can be more effective if the person first sees a clinical psychologist for an evaluation. The evaluation may take six hours or longer but it will be well worth the time and expense.

The individual seeking help will receive from the clinical psychologist a full written report outlining the issues that need to be confronted in therapy as well as facts about his or her personality that can make a better "fit" more likely.

Anyone interested should seek out a clinical psychologist who does this sort of evaluation. (Check the phone book or call the psychology department of a college or university and ask for guidance. (No need for anyone to be either "Impatient" or "Dead-Ended." I know because I have—BEEN THERE MYSELF

DEAR BEEN THERE: Thank you for some excellent advice. Readers such as you help me do a better job. I appreciate the assist.

Even if drinking is the "in" think in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You—For Teenagers Only." Send 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Ronnie Lance elected PTA president

Ronnie Lance recently was elected president of the newly chartered Bluebonnet Elementary School chapter of the Parent Teacher Association.

Also elected were Mrs. Billie Jo Gee, first vice president; Rick Hutson, second vice president; Mrs. Janet Coleman, secretary; and Rick Garcia, treasurer.

Appointed by Lance for the 1985-86 year were Mrs. Peggy Cooper, historian; Jim Campbell, parliamentarian; Sherry Harder, program committee chairman; George Denton, fund raising committee chairman; Mrs. Tonya Klueskens, homeroom activity chairman; Mrs. Lorraine Sandoval, membership committee chairman; and Louise Boyce, Rueben McGilvary, and Tonya Crabtree, teacher-advisors.

The group plans to have a membership drive contest between homerooms. Membership is $2.20 each.

The organizational meeting was closed with a square dancing program performed by fifth graders under instruction of Mrs. Johnny Martinez.

DEAR POLLY — Here's another use for the plastic sacks you get with your cleaning. When painting the ceiling of a room, tie a plastic bag around a hanging light fixture to protect it from paint drips and splatters. These sacks can also be tied around each of the four blades of a ceiling fan. BUT MAKE SURE YOU PAINT DURING THE DAY! DO NOT TURN THE LIGHTS OR THE FAN ON WHEN USING THESE PLASTIC SACKS. — VI

DEAR POLLY — An excellent and quick way to make cracker crumbs for breading pork chops or other foods is to put the crackers into an empty bread wrapper and crush them with a rolling pin. They can't scatter or jump away and the meat pieces can then be dropped into the bag and shaken to coat them. This is easy to clean up by disposing of the leftover crumbs and bread wrapper, then putting the unsoiled rolling pin away in the drawer. — MRS. B.N.S.

DEAR POLLY — I have a 3-year-old granddaughter. Since she was 1 ½ years old she has loved magazines and the pictures in them. I cut out her favorite magazine pictures and put them in a photo album with plastic pages — the kind that takes a single photo on each page. It's small enough for her to hold and carry along in the car, the pages are washable and the pictures can easily be changed. — MRS. A.D.

DEAR POLLY — Here's one for Moms who use those portable seats that hook onto the dining table instead of a regular high chair. Before you hang the seat on the table, put a washable cloth or plastic placemat on the table, then hook the seat on so the arms hold the mat in place. When mealtime is done, the child can be removed from the chair and the placemat can be taken to the sink to be shaken out or washed. Eliminates crumbs and spills on the table and makes cleanup easy. Because the chair holds the mat on the table, the child can't push or throw it around, either. — P.J.

ACME, Texas (AP) — The material dentists use to make impressions of your teeth is the same substance that was used by Michelangelo to help create his masterpieces and by the ancient Egyptians to seal the tombs of the Great Pyramid.

The versatile material is gypsum, according to Georgia-Pacific Corp., a maker of gypsum products such as wallboards and textured ceiling panels.

GRAPHOLOGY AND YOU

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — More than 2,000 companies in the United States are making personnel decisions with the help of graphology, according to Barbara Harding, a graphologist.

She says that by studying written strokes, a professional can gain an insight into a person's personal traits, talents, and motivations.

"Handwriting is actually 'brain-writing.' The brain directs the nerves and muscles of the writing process; the hand merely holds the pen," she says.

Crew delivers baby to couple

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Neilan and Cynthia Anderson were thankful Thursday for Jim Bucherie Jr., Jan Davidson and the crew of Abilene Fire Department Truck No. 1.

Most of all the couple was thankful for the healthy 6-pound, 9-ounce baby girl all those people had a role in delivering on Thanksgiving Day.

Bucherie and Ms. Davidson are the Abilene Emergency Medical Service employees, who work with the fire department which gets emergency calls. The Andersons' call for help came shortly before 5 a.m.

"We got there, and four minutes later, we had a baby in our hands," said Bucherie, who delivered the fourth of his career in the Andersons' home.

"I'm still really excited about it," Ms. Davidson said Thursday afternoon. It was her first delivery. "I'm so happy the mother is OK, and the baby is OK."

Ms Davidson said the baby was born in a bathroom, "only about three feet wide. There wasn't a lot of room to work in."

Bucherie said Mrs. Anderson said she woke up at 4:30 a.m. and discovered the baby's birth was imminent.

"While she was in there (in the bathroom), her water broke. Her husband called us," Bucherie said.

"We grabbed the OB kit as soon as we arrived. It's got gloves, clamps and a scalpel in it. Within four minutes, we had a baby."

Half of Lucas murder cases unsolved

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities in 18 states now say that nearly half the murder cases the Texas Rangers attributed to Henry Lee Lucas and Otis Toole are now the object of renewed investigations or were never closed in the first place.

Some of those reopened investigations have led to new suspects, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

A Times Herald survey of lawmen in charge of investigating 191 murder cases listed as closed or "cleared" by the Rangers-led Henry Lee Lucas Homicide Task Force shows that 90 now are considered unsolved.

Forty-three of those crimes had been attributed to Lucas, 14 to Toole and 33 to both men acting together.

Lucas, once considered the greatest serial killer in U.S. history, is now widely viewed as the perpetrator of a gigantic hoax who, in the words of Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, "took a lot of people for a ride."

Case after case against Lucas and Toole began to unravel earlier this year after the Times Herald challenged the validity of their confessions in an investigative series that revealed evidence placing them far from the scenes of many of their alleged crimes.

Mattox, who has completed an investigation into the Lucas affair, said last week he believed "sloppy police work" made it possible for Lucas to pull off the hoax.

Two girls save great-grandmother

SUFFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A 7-year-old girl and her 5-year-old sister saved their partially blind, 86-year-old great-grandmother when they led her out of their burning house, fire officials said.

Kimberly Brookens and her younger sister, Kelly, of Springfield, Mass., were alone with the elderly woman when the fire started about 10 a.m. Wednesday, said Fire Chief Thomas L. Bellmore.

The two girls heard what sounded like an explosion in the living room, Bellmore said. They found the living room carpet on fire and rushed to the second floor to lead Frances Turner out of the burning house, he said. Mrs. Turner has only partial sight.

"The kids saved her life. If they hadn't gotten out of the house by the time we got there, she would have been gone," Bellmore said.

Rajneesh invites followers to India

RAJNEESHPURAM, Ore. (AP) — Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh has invited his followers to join a commune in Poona, India, but the announcement has drawn little enthusiasm from disciples at his American commune.

"It doesn't excite me," said Swami Madyapa, a Rajneesh follower who plans to return to his native Australia.

He said his opinion would change if he knew Rajneesh would be living at the Indian commune.

The invitation to the commune in Poona was conveyed Wednesday in a message from Ma Prem Hasya, the guru's personal secretary, who is with Rajneesh in the Himalayan foothills.

The invitation did not mention whether Rajneesh would live in Poona, where the guru set up his original ashram in the late 1970s.

Man alerted by TV gets transplant

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Doctors began transplanting the heart and lungs of an unidentified donor into the chest of a man who was alerted that the organs were available when a message flashed across his television screen.

Nina Trasoff, a spokeswoman for the University of Arizona Medical Center, said the message was flashed in a bid to find 32-year-old Terry May after doctors had tried to reach him at his home in Tempe, and then on the beeper he always carries. She said there was no answer at his home and the beeper was not working.

"Terry May: Call University Medical Center in Tucson," the line read.

May was eating Thanksgiving dinner at a cousin's house in Phoenix when friends called and told him they had seen the message while watching the National Football League game between the Dallas Cowboys and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Saboteurs paralyze rail lines

TOKYO (AP) — Saboteurs firebombed a train station and sliced railroad communications cables today, paralyzing commuter rail lines in the Tokyo area and creating chaos for more than 10 million rush-hour travelers, officials said.

Acts of vandalism were reported at the same time in six other parts of the country, including the cities of Osaka, Kyoto and Hiroshima, but with less serious impact on rail service, the government-run Japan National Railways and National Police Agency reported.

No injuries were reported in any of the incidents. A national police spokesman said 48 people were arrested in Tokyo and Osaka in connection with the station firebombing.

The spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the wrecking was apparently carried out by radical leftists sympathetic with striking railway employees.

The employees are opposed to plans to make the deficit-ridden government train system private and drastically reduce its workforce.

accidents-it will be an extremely serious accident and for one in 60, it will be fatal," "The point being-no one is immune to an accident," urged Beighle.

"If you don't do anything to protect yourself before you start driving, you won't have time to take advantage of it once you're in crash," explained the officer.

Officer Beighle illustrated one wreck he investigated. "The last fatality I went to involved a pickup and a small car that collided at an intersection on a country road."

"Two people lost their lives in the accident, but the damage to the vehicles was relatively small. There was no damage at all in the passenger's compartment," said Beighle.

"These people died because of extensive internal and head injuries which they received when they lifted off the seat and flew forward..." recalled Beighle sadly, "...not any damage to the passenger compartment."

Beighle said it is very common to see death caused by severe internal and head injuries that were sustained by being thrown as a result of not having a seat belt on.

"This is what a seat belt is designed to do; it prevents your body from striking the numerous hard objects in a vehicle," he said.

"In this case, all the damage done was to a left fender and passengers in both vehicles could have walked away had they worn their seat belts," said Beighle.

Beighle explained that if the seat belts are included in the car from the factory, the passenger would be required to have them and use them.

"If the seat belt anchors were not made in the car when it came it from the factory, these will have to be installed," warned Beighle.

"You are only required to use whatever seat belt the car was equipped with at the time it came out on the market," said Beighle. "But remember, no one is immune to an accident."

American officials allowed to interview

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel will allow American officials to interview two diplomats recalled from the United States about the case of a U.S. Navy analyst accused of spying for Israel, newspapers here reported today.

Meanwhile, The New York Times reported that an internal Israeli inquiry has determined that Jonathan J. Pollard, 31, the American arrested on charges of selling classified documents to Israel, was an operative for a secretive Israeli counterterrorism bureau.

FBI agents would be allowed to

"talk" with the recalled diplomats in Israel as an apparent goodwill gesture toward the United States, according to Harretz, the Jerusalem Post and other newspapers carrying the report.

A formal interrogation will not be allowed, the reports said, apparently to safeguard Israeli security interests and the diplomatic immunity status of the diplomats.

Israeli sources have identified the recalled diplomats as Yosef Yagur, science attache at the consulate-general in New York, and Ilan Ravid, deputy science attache in the Washington embassy.

The government rejected U.S. demands that the two be sent back to Washington for questioning, according to the daily Davar, allied with Prime Minister Shimon Peres' Labor Party.

But Israeli radio said Peres has sent a message to Secretary of State George P. Shultz expressing Israel's willingness to give the Americans whatever documents it can find that may have been bought from Pollard.

The New York Times, quoting a "highly placed Israeli source" who was not identified, said an internal Israeli investigation found that Pollard volunteered in 1984 to provide classified information, and that a senior Israeli official apparently associated with the office of the prime minister's adviser on terrorism oversaw his activities.

Raphael Eytan, an adviser on counterterrorism, was named Tuesday by two Israeli newspapers as Pollard's recruiter, but he was quoted by the daily Maariv as saying "my name is in the news by mistake."

The Israeli probe found that the counterterrorism official sought U.S. intelligence concerning Arab military capabilities, the Times said.

The internal investigation was put together by Prime Minister Shimon Peres and other top leaders, the Times said.

Peres on Thursday refused to discuss the Pollard case during an interview on Israel television.

According to a source, who spoke on condition he not be identified by name or position, Pollard was in touch with Ravid just before the FBI arrested Pollard on Nov. 21.

Pollard's wife, Ann Henderson-Pollard, was arrested shortly afterward and accused of illegal possession of secret documents.

The newspaper Davar, without giving details, said Thursday that the United States had tried to spy on secret Israeli scientific research five times in recent years.

Samuel Lewis, former U.S. ambassador to Israel, said in an interview from the United States broadcast on Israel radio that he was "skeptical" of those reports.

Texans in Panhandle opposed to nuke site

Of 1,232 responses to a questionnaire mailed to registered voters by State Rep. John Smithee, 83.8 percent of those polled are opposed to a nuclear repository being built in the Panhandle.

Favoring the repository were 16.2 percent of those polled.

Smithee's poll, mailed in October, covered Randall and Deaf Smith Counties.

Other responses in the poll were:

- 1) Do you support an amendment prohibiting a state income tax? Yes - 92.3 percent. No - 7.7 percent.
2) Do you support legislation authorizing a study on importation of water to the Texas Panhandle? Yes - 83.6 percent. No - 16.4 percent.
3) Do you feel there should be additional cuts in the state budget? Yes - 91.5 percent. No - 8.5 percent.
4) Do you favor the no pass-no play rule? Yes - 75.6 percent. No - 24.4 percent. (A large number of respondents favored modifications to the rule such as a shorter sit-out period.)
5) Do you favor a state lottery? Yes - 53 percent. No - 47 percent.
And, 6) Do you favor pari-mutuel wagering? Yes - 46 percent. No - 54 percent.

People become habitual non-readers

NEW YORK (AP) — Most people have become "habitual non-readers," says a Scripture specialist, a condition that has been added to illiteracy as an obstacle in regard to the Bible.

Unless it is "heard through the ears, the great majority of people in every country will not receive it," says the Rev. Tom Houston, president of World Vision and former head of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

He told the 1985 annual meeting of the American Bible Society:

"It is not just that the majority of people in the Third World are not yet literate or able to read. It is that the majority of people in our Western countries like the United States are habitual non-readers."

Tumult of summer still smouldering

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

That vast midsummer collision among Southern Baptists still is reverberating, the fallout including a threatened lawsuit, charges of "heresy" and proposed bylaw changes.

All the while, a peace committee has pleaded for quiet restraint, and to a degree, has obtained it, except for signs of the underlying ferment that keep cropping up.

The barked tensions stem from last June's convention in Dallas at which the president, the Rev. Charles Stanley, overruled a majority vote of the record-size convention of 45,000.

He ruled the result out-of-order and void, even though he himself earlier had ordered the ballot to clarify an uncertain standing vote.

In a denomination that prides itself on democracy, the one-man squelching of the majority has fueled a running controversy, with a Georgia couple threatening a lawsuit unless the procedures nullified.

But the denomination's executive committee refused to do that, deciding to affirm the challenged proceedings despite, it said, "whatever mistakes may have occurred."

Robert S. Crowder of Birmingham, who with his wife had retained an attorney to press the matter, said he was "heartbroken" that the committee failed its "duty and responsibility" in the matter.

His attorney, Ermit J. Bondurant of Atlanta, contended that convention "messengers" clearly had the "power to amend" any report, but "were thwarted in their effort to do so" by chair rulings.

Southern Baptist bylaws were "run roughshod over" by the "arbitrary and ... fundamentally illegal and unfair rulings" by Stanley, the attorney contended in presenting Crowder's plea to the executive committee.

Bondurant said the denomination's "representative form of government ... depends upon the integrity of the procedures guaranteeing" majority rule, but it "was denied the messengers of the Dallas convention."

Young voices needed for ceremony

Any children through fifth grade from church choirs who wish to sing at the annual Christmas Tree Lighting ceremony at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse need to report to a song practice at 4 p.m. Monday.

Herd slide program reset

The "Salute the Herd" slide program will be presented to the public again at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the Church of the Nazarene gym.

Slides from various athletic and school events from this fall are included in the show.

The partisan conflict in the 14 million-member denomination, the largest in American Protestantism, involves a drive by a resurgent fundamentalist wing, charging liberalism in denominational institutions, to achieve control.

In the controversial vote, a majority held that the convention could substitute an entire slate for a committee, chosen through presidential appointive powers, that picks trustees overseeing agencies and institutions.

Stanley, earlier re-elected as the fundamentalist incumbent, had submitted the issue to a ballot, but when the result was announced, ruled it out-of-order, backed by his parliamentarian, refusing to recognize floor objections.

However, the denomination's executive committee rebuffed Crowder's protest to the procedures, affirming them and declaring its own decision "makes all procedural defects moot, if any occurred."

At the same time, a proposal to revise a key bylaw 16 to specify that alternate nominations can be made from the floor was expected to be presented at the next executive committee meeting in February.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Robison B. James, a religion professor at the University of Richmond, affiliated with Virginia Southern Baptists, accused the increasingly dominant fundamentalists of heresy.

This is "the Baptist heresy," James says, violating the historic, non-creedal freedom of Baptists "to respond in trustful submission directly to the Bible, and directly to Christ," without institutional regulations of it.

Ann Landers

'Real Life' recipe

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I found this great recipe in some old files and thought it might be something you would want to share with your readers. I have no idea who wrote it but the underlying philosophy is pretty solid. Will you try to find space for it in your column?—A NEW HAVEN FEMINIST

DEAR N.H.F.: You bet. Here it is. Thanks for sharing.
RECIPE FOR REAL LIFE

1 cup crushed ego.
1 teaspoon job discrimination.
¼ teaspoon chauvinism.
1 well-beaten path to the washing machine.
½ teaspoon grated nerves.
1 pinch from a man on the street.
1 dash from the dentist and home in heavy traffic to release the babysitter.
Mix all ingredients together and stir violently. Cook until you feel a slow burn and then add one last straw. Serves 53 percent of the population.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you check with your experts and find out if nursing mothers are protected against becoming pregnant?

I always believed this was an old wives' tale, but someone very close to me insists it is true. Perhaps if she sees it in print she will stop being so stubborn and save herself from an unwanted pregnancy. In fact I think I read a letter in your column a few years ago from a woman who had two babies in 11 months because she believed this myth.—NO NAME IN DAYTON

DEAR DAYTON: It is a myth. A woman who is nursing a child may indeed become pregnant—and many do.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several days ago I read a letter from "Impatient or Dead-Ended" in my daily new England paper. Your response made it clear that some people must try three, four or even more therapists before they connect with the one who is right.

I believe I can improve on your advice if you allow me to do so presumptuously.

Selecting a therapist frequently can be more effective if the person first sees a clinical psychologist for an evaluation. The evaluation may take six hours or longer but it will be well worth the time and expense.

The individual seeking help will receive from the clinical psychologist a full written report outlining the issues that need to be confronted in therapy as well as facts about his or her personality that can make a better "fit" more likely.

Anyone interested should seek out a clinical psychologist who does this sort of evaluation. (Check the phone book or call the psychology department of a college or university and ask for guidance. (No need for anyone to be either "Impatient" or "Dead-Ended." I know because I have—BEEN THERE MYSELF

DEAR BEEN THERE: Thank you for some excellent advice. Readers such as you help me do a better job. I appreciate the assist.

Even if drinking is the "in" think in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You—For Teenagers Only." Send 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Ronnie Lance elected PTA president

Ronnie Lance recently was elected president of the newly chartered Bluebonnet Elementary School chapter of the Parent Teacher Association.

Also elected were Mrs. Billie Jo Gee, first vice president; Rick Hutson, second vice president; Mrs. Janet Coleman, secretary; and Rick Garcia, treasurer.

Appointed by Lance for the 1985-86 year were Mrs. Peggy Cooper, historian; Jim Campbell, parliamentarian; Sherry Harder, program committee chairman; George Denton, fund raising committee chairman; Mrs. Tonya Klueskens, homeroom activity chairman; Mrs. Lorraine Sandoval, membership committee chairman; and Louise Boyce, Rueben McGilvary, and Tonya Crabtree, teacher-advisors.

The group plans to have a membership drive contest between homerooms. Membership is $2.20 each.

The organizational meeting was closed with a square dancing program performed by fifth graders under instruction of Mrs. Johnny Martinez.

DATE BOOK

November 29, 1985

Today is the first day of the Giant Tinkertoy Extravaganza at the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia, Pa. It is the 333rd day of 1985 and the 69th day of autumn.

TODAY'S HISTORY: Yugoslavia became a socialist republic on this day in 1945. Marshal Tito was its first president.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS: Louisa May Alcott (1832); C.S. Lewis (1898); Chuck Mangione (1940).

TODAY'S QUOTE: "The future is something which everyone reaches at the rate of sixty minutes an hour, whatever he does, whoever he is." — C.S. Lewis.

TODAY'S MOON: Between full moon (Nov. 27) and last quarter (Dec. 5)

TODAY'S TRIVIA: What was the real name of Marshal Tito, former president of Yugoslavia? (a) Draja Mikhailovich (b) Alexander Dubcek (c) Josip Broz

TODAY'S BARBS BY PHIL PASTORET
Frozen turkey dinners will never make it as Thanksgiving fare until they find a way to include a wishbone in each trayful.

Those fond of saying they plan to finalize something somehow never get around to completing much of anything.

TODAY'S TRIVIA ANSWER: (c) Josip Broz was Marshal Tito's real name.

OF TEETH AND TOMBS

ACME, Texas (AP) — The material dentists use to make impressions of your teeth is the same substance that was used by Michelangelo to help create his masterpieces and by the ancient Egyptians to seal the tombs of the Great Pyramid.

The versatile material is gypsum, according to Georgia-Pacific Corp., a maker of gypsum products such as wallboards and textured ceiling panels.

GRAPHOLOGY AND YOU

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — More than 2,000 companies in the United States are making personnel decisions with the help of graphology, according to Barbara Harding, a graphologist.

She says that by studying written strokes, a professional can gain an insight into a person's personal traits, talents, and motivations.

"Handwriting is actually 'brain-writing.' The brain directs the nerves and muscles of the writing process; the hand merely holds the pen," she says.

DR. GOTT 'Beneficial' keeps changing

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

I ruminate about the myriad children who have been subjected for generations to their mothers' convictions that spinach is a vital dietary component. The axiom, "Spinach is good for you. Eat it or you won't get any dessert," must have familiar ring to most Western adults and children. For all I know, the statement — in one form or another — may be universal to all cultures.

Popeye popularized the concept, of course. Yet, spinach has long had the reputation of being an important nutrient, a rich source of iron and a necessity for growing youngsters. I suspect that this dogma preceded Popeye. In any case, the parental demand, "Eat your spinach," certainly evolved into an ecumenical fiat that forced children to knuckle under ... or else. Eating spinach became a metaphor for life in general; you had to learn to put up with something unpleasant (but beneficial) in order to achieve a more long-lasting desirable goal.

Then science stepped in to produce chaos, as scientists are often wont to do. Nutritionists discovered that the slimy green glop on your plate, the stuff you slyly spread around while you eat your mashed potatoes, the unappetizing verdant litter you try to hide under chicken bones — in a word, spinach — is not a great health food. The iron in spinach, permanently bound to a kind of vegetable Crazy Glue, is not absorbed in significant amounts during digestion. Moreover, spinach forms calcium oxalate crystals that can make kidney stones. So here we are. Spinach may be a flavor-some constituent of fresh salads, but you might as well save your grass clippings, boil them and eat them for all the nutrition you get from spinach.

Seemingly, nothing gastronomical is forever, if you believe the abrupt about-face on the value of spinach. People who are supposed to know about these things tell us to cut down on beef and pork, load up on fiber, look to fish oil for salvation, buckle-up, get off booze, stay away from radiation, and exercise until our eyes pop out.

However, a generation ago, equally respected experts proclaimed animal protein to be the most nutritious; they prohibited bran for all but the most sluggish intestines. They virtually ignored seafood, devoted millions of work hours to designing faster automobiles that were death-traps, and used quantities of alcohol in tonics and stimulants. Radium-watch-dial painters were permitted to lick their brushes, thereby ensuring that the unfortunate workers would develop cancer. For most of this century, exercise was considered to injure the heart and to be ungentlemanly (and unladylike) conduct. According to Dr. Kenneth Cooper, the aerobic guru, joggers on smog-blanketed highways may inhale enough pollutants to cause irreparable internal damage. Heretofore, academics mocked the deficiencies of Asian and African diets. Now we are scratching our heads to discover if diet is the reason the Japanese have such a low incidence of heart disease and colorectal cancer is so rare in the Third World.

What on earth are we going to do in the next 25 years when our leaders tell us we ought to be eating wood chips, drinking bathwater and riding horses? Worse still, suppose exercise really IS harmful and fish IS so full of contaminants that it's not fit to feed cats? Scientists are expected to know The Truth about our world. They're supposed to counsel and guide us; they're not allowed to make mistakes. By extension, doctors are scientists and we, too, are expected to be all-knowing.

A recent malpractice suit in New York was settled out of court. Twenty years ago, the defendant (a pediatrician) prescribed for his patient treatment that was entirely acceptable in those days. Based on 1980s knowledge, however, his curative measures would be inappropriate. The doctor's insurance company apparently accepted the argument that the physician's 1960s act should be accountable by 1980s standards. The insurers paid off. I'd like to hear from any attorney — let alone from any sane adult — who thinks that today's doctors should be clairvoyant enough to predict what treatment will be appropriate in 2005.

I am tempted to side with the little boy whose mother, in the wonderfully classic New Yorker cartoon, tells him to eat his broccoli: "I say it's spinach and I say to hell with it!" Sure as shooting, our most fervently held beliefs about health and science are going to be altered in the future. The few learned elders of our tribe who predict the future are, in my opinion, just plain lucky. There are no guarantees that what is good for you today will be proved salubrious next year. Until such time as we have the unlikely blessing of solid scientific validity, we'll just have to muddle through, stubbing our toes and shaking our heads, exercising moderation and using enough common sense to get us over the humps.

In the meantime, eat your carrots or you can't have a Fruit Roll-Up.

Dance halls in Texas step into past

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Changing times are taking a toll of country dance halls in some Central Texas communities.

In New Braunfels, one once-popular country emporium is vacant, another is being crowded by a planned shopping center, and a third that formerly staged two big dances a week now has only one.

In Seguin, only a big lounge in a bowling alley continues to have live music to dance to several times a week.

In Kirby, a former big dance hall has become a car barn and lot, and a newly reconditioned hall in Luxello has thrown in the towel after operating less than a year.

How come the dwindling crowds in an area often called second only to Nashville as a country music headquarters?

Heidelberg Halle in New Braunfels had its last function in February. Real estate broker Graham Green, whose firm owns the property, said, "The people leasing the Heidelberg just went out of business, and there seem to be several reasons — the increasing expense of doing business, the high cost of bands, increasing insurance rates and some loss of popularity of the country dance hall faded popularized by 'The Urban Cowboy'."

Another New Braunfels dance spot, the Crystal Chandelier, is adjacent to a lot with the newly erected sign, "Chandelier Shopping Center." Diane Akers, who identified herself as "manager, secretary and Gal Friday" of the Crystal Chandelier said: "We are in the dark about the long-range future here, but we are scheduling dances up to the first of the year."

A third New Braunfels-area place, Gruene Hall, will close at the middle of December and remain closed through February.

"Three years ago we had dances every Friday and Saturday night, but now we have 'em Saturday night only," said manager Nanette Sullivan.

Green said: "Another point in the demise of country dance halls that are away from a big city is that to make any money operators have to charge so much at the door that the admission fee discourages attendance."

In many cases, he said that the real estate the hall is located on is worth more when put to other uses.

"Also, at Heidelberg, our insurance last year jumped from $4,000 to $18,000," he said.

Television is responsible for some decrease in dance hall crowds, the New Braunfels businessman added.

"The dance halls never really appealed to the white-collar folks but drew primarily from blue-collar people, and now many of them are staying at home to watch cable-television and VCR movies," Green said.

New judicial interpretation of liability laws making a dance hall operator at least partly responsible when a drinking patron is involved in a car wreck is a further pitfall, some say.

Agreeing that the rollback of legal drinking hours in New Braunfels and Seguin may be a further stumbling block for the dance hall business was Frank Wilson, manager of Sports West in Seguin. The big lounge and dance area in that sports center is one of the few suburban dance places doing well, an exception to the trend.

Both communities now require dance halls to close at midnight on weeknights and at 1 a.m. after a Saturday night dance.

"Of course, shorter hours mean fewer drinks sold," Wilson said.

With such recent headlines at Sports West as Dotsy, Bobby Jenkins and Kenny Dale and such bands as Two Way Street, Black Mountain, Open Road and the Revival Brothers, it's not hurting for crowds.

"And we're often at capacity in spite of the jump from 10 to 12 percent in the beverage taxes about a year ago," he said, adding that his no-cover charge "may well be a plus factor, too, as it's better to sell drinks to 300 customers who pay no cover charge than to sell to 100 who pay a few bucks to get in."

Two other places in Seguin — the Corral and K.C. Hall — have occasional dances.

The Golden Stallion in Kirby, once a leading dance spot, is now the site of an auto auction. Former owner Arne Klenshof commented, "For some time before it quit doing business as a dance hall, the only people making any money there were the musicians — since after they were paid, little or nothing was left."

And the big Texas Dance Hall 14 miles north of town, no longer exists.

Luxello Hall, located in the community of the same name, near Reama Polo Field, has quit the dance business and is up for sale.

"We never did have the crowds to justify operating costs, and maybe we got it to the dance hall business at a bad time — just when the craze triggered by 'The Urban Cowboy' was on the wane," said co-owner Ruth Freedman.

Luxello offered name country stars at first — Johnny Bush, Carrell McCall and Frenchie Burke — but soon switched to entertainers that would play for 80 percent of the gate. Crowds generally remained sparse.

Keep Christmas tree fresh with proper care

COLLEGE STATION — This year you don't have to watch your Christmas tree droop and turn brown before the holiday even arrives.

With proper selection and care, you can keep your tree fresh throughout the season, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service forestry specialist.

"Start with the freshest tree you can find," says Alan Dreessen. "A Texas-grown tree you cut yourself at a tree farm or buy off a lot will be fresher than trees shipped from distant states."

The forestry specialist recommends the following steps to keep a fresh-cut tree at its peak:

- Place the tree trunk in a container of water, since a fresh-cut tree will still be growing when it's harvested, and will initially absorb from one-half to one gallon of water a day.

- Store the tree in a shaded area, such as a covered patio or garage.

- Before you take the tree inside for decorating, remove the loose interior needles by tapping the tree on the patio or driveway a few times. The interior needles turn brown when they no longer get direct sunlight, and this is not a sign of dryness.

- Cut an inch off the base before placing the tree in a water-holding stand. Then check the water daily for the first week to keep the stand full. Don't let the water level fall below the tree's cut base.

- To prevent premature drying of the needles, place the tree away from heat sources such as warm air ducts, plate glass windows with a southern exposure and space heaters.

Forecasters hoping hurricane season ending

MIAMI (AP) — Forecasters say this year's record-setting hurricane season was simply a return to normal following three years when hurricane development was prevented in part by a weather phenomenon called "El Niño."

During the 1985 season, which began June 1 and ends Saturday, 11 storms formed including seven hurricanes, six of which hit land. Of the four other tropical storms, two sloshed ashore.

Records set in this year's season include the most storms to strike the U.S. coast since 1916, the largest evacuation, the costliest damage, and the first November storm to make landfall in 50 years.

But don't expect next year to be much better, hurricane forecasters warn.

"The El Niño phenomenon is believed to allow great heat releases in thunderstorms, which shear the tops off tropical waves, stunting their growth," said forecaster Gil Clark, a 30-year storm veteran at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables.

"In 1962, '83 and '84, we had very light hurricane seasons" because El Niño was present, Clark said. But El Niño appears only in three- to seven-year cycles and the rest of the time, Clark said, "we have an average 10 tropical storms and hurricanes a year," with an average of three hitting the United States.

Not since 1916, however, have as many as eight storms hit the U.S. coast, and never has the damage been costlier than this season. Preliminary estimates show more than $4 billion in hurricane and tropical storm damage this year, he said.

Damage estimates are so high because more people live on the coast now and coastal property costs more than in the past, he said.

Hurricane Kate, which recently dissolved in the Atlantic Ocean, caused the most damage this season. The final numbers aren't in, but forecasters are guessing at least $1 billion.

Kate was the first November storm to reach the U.S. coast in 50 years and the first in memory to push inland at hurricane strength through the northwest Florida Panhandle, destroying coastal roads and blacking out Tallahassee, Florida's capital.

Born Nov. 15 in the Atlantic Ocean north of Puerto Rico, the late-season storm slashed Cuba, brushed the Florida Keys and then headed directly for the Panhandle, where it came ashore between Panama City and Apalachicola.

The 70,000 Panhandle residents who fled Kate were well hurricane-trained.

Some were among those who darted out of the way of Juan, which hit Louisiana as a hurricane, retreated into the Gulf of Mexico and then drenched the Panhandle as a tropical storm before dying Nov. 1.

And they were among more than 1 million northeast Gulf residents ordered out of the way of Elena from Aug. 28 to Sept. 2, the most people ever evacuated in the United States for a hurricane.

During Elena, which did a slow loop in the Gulf, near-hurricane winds, rain and tornadoes pounded an area from Central Florida to Mississippi.

Many Panhandle residents were ordered out twice, once as the indecisive storm swung east through the Gulf and then again when it turned west, eventually landing in Mississippi.

The U.S. Atlantic Coast wasn't ignored. The season's longest-lived storm, Hurricane Gloria, reached hurricane strength Sept. 16, touched land along the mid-Atlantic coast and swept north, coming in again at Long Island, N.Y., pushing through New England and dissipating in Canada Sept. 27.

More than 200,000 people were forced to evacuate in the face of the fast-moving storm.

Other hurricanes this season were Bob, Claudette, and Danny. Bob, nicknamed the "wimp," dumped rain on South Florida as a tropical storm and then landed quietly near Charleston, S.C., before disappearing July 25th.

Claudette lived and died in mid-August in the open Atlantic far from land. Danny, also a mid-August storm, spanked Louisiana with 90 mph winds and caused moderate damage when it roared onto land there.

Tropical storms this season included Ana, Fabian, Henri and Isabel. Only Henri and Isabel made landfall, Henri in Massachusetts and Isabel on Georgia's short coast.

The first electric shavers went on sale in 1931.

WESLEY UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Eugene Crane, pastor of the church located at 410 Irving, will be giving Advent season titles concerning "Do You Know My Jesus?"

His first sermon to be presented at 11 a.m. Sunday will be "Prophecy of Jesus the Messiah." Sunday school begins at 10 a.m.

The church has recently had the pew seats covered making them more comfortable. All visitors are welcome to come worship.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

"Preparing the Way" is the title of the Rev. Bruce Kochsmeier's sermon for the Sunday morning worship service. The scripture text is Matthew 3:1-12.

It's Lifesaver Night at 139 Liveoak. Bring your favorite flavor of Lifesavers and join the fun and fellowship for this lifesaving good time. Junior high youth fellowship will be meeting at 5:30 p.m. and senior high at 7:30 p.m. Supper for both groups is at 7 p.m.

The Women's Association will meet Wednesday, Dec. 4, at 11:30 a.m. The program will include a special Christmas story, singing of carols, food and fellowship. Please join us.

The Deacons will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The congregation will be donating goods to Operation Good Shepherd during the Christmas season. Clothing, toys and items are needed. Please put your gifts in the large Christmas box in the small fellowship hall.

A congregational meeting has been called by the Session for 6 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 11. This will be the annual dinner meeting when Elders and Deacons will be elected. The budget will be presented at this time. Please don't miss this important time of fellowship in the life of the church.

ST. ANTHONY'S CATHOLIC CHURCH

At the 11 a.m. Mass Sunday, Father Patrick Walsh will be installed as pastor of St. Anthony's Church. The installer and celebrant will be Bishop Leroy T. Matthiesen, Bishop of the Diocese of Amarillo. All parishioners are cordially invited.

Everyone is invited to come and join the fellowship at 10 a.m. Sunday in the cafeteria during hospitality hour.

Tuesday at 8 a.m. St. Anthony's Women Organization will meet for a Christmas party. Bring a dozen Christmas baked items for cookie and candy exchange. Also, bring an unwrapped gift appropriate for a teenage girl.

A mini-retreat is scheduled from 1-5 p.m. Dec. 8.

FIRST CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

The Prime Timers will meet for a sing along at 6:30 p.m. Monday at E.V. and Maude Carter's home.

Everyone is reminded of the Christmas tree lighting service at 6 p.m. Monday at the courthouse.

There will be a special visitor in a sleigh on Dec. 18 at Caravans. Be sure to be there and get a ride on the horse drawn sleigh.

Plans are to begin work on the fireplace in the fellowship hall around Monday. This is being done in memory of Buddy Martin. Anyone that would be interested in donating to this, see John David or Beverly Bryant.

Don't miss the Christmas cantata performed by the sanctuary choir at 6 p.m. Dec. 15 and 7 p.m. Dec. 17.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

The Advent season will be observed in First United Methodist Church beginning Sunday, with special worship services and programs by the choirs and other groups each Sunday morning and evening. The climax will be in a Family Communion service on Christmas Eve.

An Advent wreath will be in place at the altar, and one candle will be lighted by a family each Sunday morning, then the Christ Candle will be lighted Christmas Eve. Music of Advent and Christmas will be a part of each worship hour on Sunday mornings, and Dr. J. Weldon Butler's sermons will be in the Christmas theme.

Hanging of the Greens will be the feature Sunday evening beginning at 7 p.m. In a program which has become a tradition in this church, the Christmas tree in the sanctuary will be lighted and other greenery will be placed about the room.

A Christmas concert, "Unto Us A Son Is Given," will be presented by the Sanctuary and Carol Choirs at 7 p.m. Dec. 8. Another annual service at First UMC, the evening of Carols and Candles is scheduled Dec. 15, featuring children's choir along with congregational singing of familiar Christmas songs.

All the programs are keyed to family participation, and the congregation invites all to be a part of each one.

Delta Force, intelligence officers target of army probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two years after the Army opened an internal investigation involving some of its most secret operations, the probe's secrecy has been shattered and the reputation of some of the Army's most elite units has been tarnished.

Officially, the Army flatly refuses to discuss any aspect of its probe or to even identify the specific units for which men charged in the case worked. Some details have emerged, however, because of court proceedings and courts-martial and the involvement of Justice Department investigators.

The probe focuses on the obscure work of intelligence-gathering and special operations; allegations of fraud and larceny by active-duty personnel, and the disposition of "laundered" money set aside for covert missions and secret travel.

One officer involved in intelligence work has now been indicted, and two others are facing courts-martial. A fourth man, an Army master sergeant, went to court-martial earlier this month but was subsequently cleared of larceny charges.

Legal documents have disclosed the Army at one point ran a "front company" in the Virginia suburbs of Washington to provide security support for secret operations, using money that had been purposely laundered to prevent it from ever being traced to the military.

And Army sources have confirmed the probe was expanded at some unspecified point after it began in late 1983 to include a review of alleged financial irregularities by men attached to the Delta Force. That is the elite, super-secret unit trained to deal with terrorists and hostage situations that is based at Fort Bragg, N.C.

That part of the investigation is said to involve double-billing by dozens of Delta soldiers for their living expenses over the past three years while on temporary details to protect U.S. ambassadors. The sources say members of the unit are suspected of billing the Army for expenses that had already been paid by the State Department.

According to sources quoted recently by the Washington Post, the commander of the Delta force had to ask the Pentagon to suspend that part of the probe during the recent hijacking of the cruise ship Achille Lauro because he was afraid he wouldn't have the necessary manpower for any rescue attempt.

The first crack in the official secrecy of the probe occurred in August, when a veteran intelligence officer filed an unusual suit against the Army alleging he had been wrongly accused of misusing government funds.

Lt. Col. Dale C. Duncan, 39, charged he had been under investigation by the Army and a federal grand jury since 1983 for his role in running Business Security International. The Annandale, Va., firm was described as a front company that supported "classified, sensitive special operations units" involved in "military and foreign intelligence missions."

On Nov. 19, a federal grand jury in Alexandria, Va., returned an indictment against Duncan, alleging he had misused more than $60,000 in government money.

The indictment charged Duncan with filing a false claim for an airline ticket he had received free under an airline bonus program; with falsely claiming to have spent $8,400 to charter an airplane in April 1983, and with submitting a voucher for more than $56,000 worth of electronic equipment, which had been paid for earlier by the Army Intelligence and Security Command.

Duncan has pleaded innocent to the charges.

Officially, the Army will also confirm that two other officers, Lt. Col. Frederick Byard and Col. James Longhofer, are facing courts-martial in connection with the probe.

Longhorns accept bowl bid despite A&M defeat

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The 18th-ranked Texas Longhorns, despite a disappointing 42-10 loss to the Texas A&M Aggies Thursday night, extended their bowl streak to nine straight appearances by accepting a bid to play in the Bluebonnet Bowl on New Year's Eve afternoon. The Longhorns, 8-3, will be matched against 11th-ranked Air Force, 11-1. Texas coach Fred Akers accepted the Bluebonnet invitation from selection committee member Al Ramirez.

"One game doesn't make a season," Ramirez said. "You have an opportunity to start all over again and a chance to prove yourselves." Akers then tried to explain the somber mood of the post-game dressing room.

"I hope you understand the lack of smiles," Akers told Ramirez. "These guys are fighters, and right now, they're hurting like hell."

The Longhorns went into the Thanksgiving Day showdown tied for the Southwest Conference lead with the Aggies with the winner slated to play in the Cotton Bowl against Auburn on New Year's Day. But the Aggies' 21-point burst over a 3:36 span of the third quarter broke open the game and sent the Longhorns to Houston instead of Dallas.

"It's really tough right now because of what we wanted," Texas linebacker Ty Allert said. "But we're going to go, and we're going to work hard to get ready and do our best." Air Force averaged 293.2 yards rushing during the regular season, the 6th best total in the nation. They are led by double-threat quarterback Bart Weiss, who rushed 1,032 and passed for 1,449 yards in the regular season. The Falcons' only loss was to Brigham Young, 28-21.

Dallas Cowboys are in control of own destiny

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have placed themselves in perfect position for the National Conference Eastern Division's stretch run.

Quarterback Danny White rifled four touchdown passes in a 35-17 Thanksgiving Day offensive feast over the St. Louis Cardinals. It increased the Cowboys' record to 9-4, a half game ahead of the New York Giants in the National Conference East.

"This puts us in great position in our own division," said running back Tony Dorsett. "We can control our own destiny."

"Danny was just excellent. When he's playing like that we're going to be hard to stop. We're ready for the big showdown now against the New York Giants (Dec. 15) in Texas Stadium."

White hit 14 of 26 passes for 235 yards, throwing touchdown passes of 53 and 16 yards to Tony Hill, 18 yards to Mike Renfro and 19 yards to Doug Cosbie.

Hill also turned passer, throwing a 42-yard pass to Cosbie off a reverse to set up Dorsett's three-yard scoring run.

"We learned after the Chicago game (a 44-0 thumping) that if we don't play to the best of our ability we can get embarrassed," said Dorsett. "It's a happy Thanksgiving for sure."

Dallas is now 14-3-1 in Thanksgiving games and 4-0 against the Cardinals on the holiday.

The Cowboys are 16-1 after Thanksgiving. Their next game is Dec. 8 against Cincinnati.

The 4-9 Cardinals, seeking to sweep Dallas for the first time since 1970, had their moments as quarterback Neil Lomax passed for 319 yards on 28 of 43, including a five-yard scoring pass to Roy Green.

Dallas led only 21-17 at halftime as the Cardinals also got a two-yard touchdown run from Stump Mitchell and a 38-yard field goal from Novo Bojovic.

"New York is the class of the East right now," said Landry. "But right now we have a lot going for us and some time off to relax and get ready for the final three games."

Landry said the Cowboys' offense is coming on strong.

"I feel a lot better after our last two games," Landry said. "Danny has seven touchdown passes and I think our offense will have a lot more confidence."

White said he had a more positive attitude.

"Things are starting to fall together for me," White said. "Our offense is finally getting it going."

Landry agreed, saying, "We're starting to play well now. The offense is picking up."

Landry was so happy with the victory that he gave the team three days off and they won't have to report for workouts until Monday.

"They earned it," said Landry. For St. Louis, it was the Cardinals' eighth loss in their last nine games and Coach Jim Hanifan's job is in question going into the final three games.

"We had great effort against Dallas," Hanifan said. "I'm pleased and proud of the fact that the guys played so hard. We just didn't take advantage of the opportunities we had."

Praising White, he said, "We had great coverage several times and he put the ball right on the money."

Lomax was knocked out of the game briefly in the third period but came back. "Neil showed a lot of guts and courage by coming back," said Hanifan. "He landed on his head and left shoulder, but he's all right."

THAT'S PRESSURE

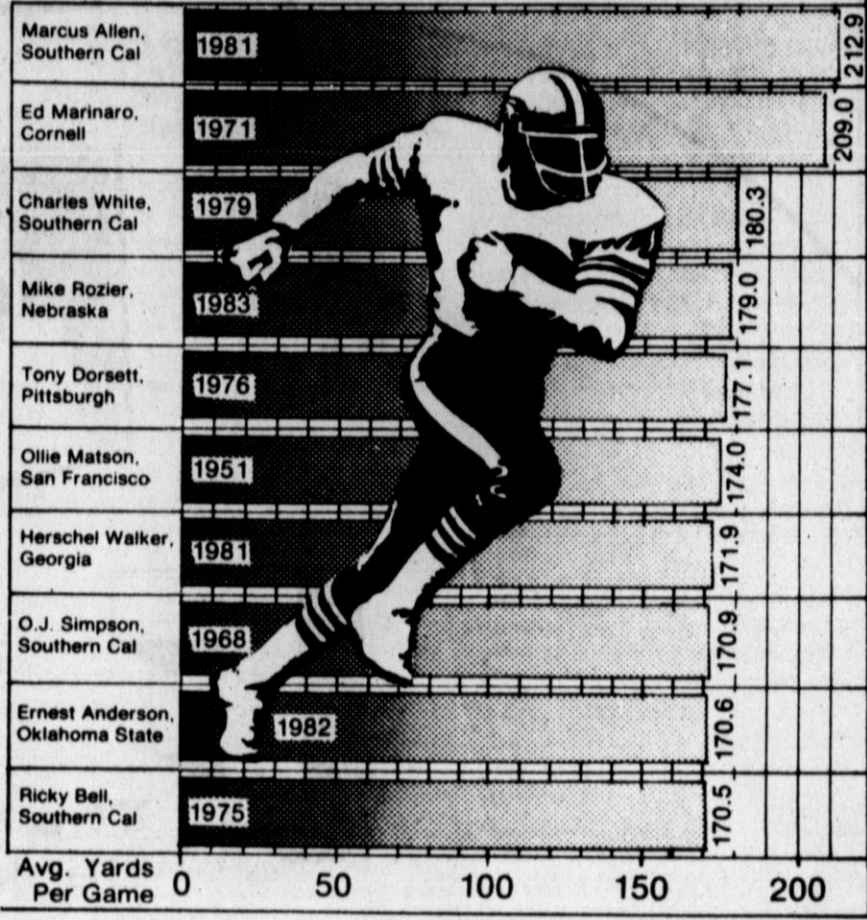

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — It has been said — and never disproved — that there are many kinds of pressure.

Coach Bob Donewald of the Illinois State basketball team can tell you about that. Last season, his team played four straight overtime games, which might bring a lot of pressure with them.

"I guess they were," Donewald said, "but a few days later I had to take my 16-year-old daughter, Lisa, for her driver's license test. Now that was real pressure."

New series of fitness classes set at Hereford YMCA

A new series of fitness classes will start on Monday, Dec. 2, and continue through Dec. 20 at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCAs.

No fitness classes will be held from Dec. 23 to Jan. 5.

The fitness classes are early bird fitness, stretch and flexibility, start out fitness, and fitness plus.

The early bird fitness class is scheduled at 6:15 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The stretch and flexibility class will be held at 8:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Three start out fitness classes are scheduled: 9 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday; 4:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; and 5:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Two fitness plus classes are planned. One is at 9 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and the other is set for 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

For more information on the fitness classes, call the YMCA at 364-6990.

Texas A&M earns Cotton Bowl berth

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The Texas A&M Aggies, rich in tradition that naggingly hasn't included the Cotton Bowl since 1968, accepted an invitation to play in the New Year's Day classic Thursday night after blasting arch rival Texas 42-10.

The Aggies will be paired with 7th-ranked Auburn, 8-2. Thursday's victory gave Texas A&M a 9-2 season record and marked its first bowl invitation since defeating Oklahoma State 33-16 in the 1981 Independence Bowl.

"We're trying to get the Cotton Bowl to put 20,000 extra seats in," A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill said. "With us and (Auburn running back) Bo Jackson, we won't have any trouble selling the extra seats."

The Aggies last played in the Cotton Bowl as the Southwest Conference representative under former A&M coach Gene Stallings. The Aggies defeated Stallings' former coach, Bear Bryant, and the Alabama Crimson Tide.

Thursday was a double celebration for Sherrill, who turned 42 years old in addition to reaching the Cotton Bowl.

"I don't even know how old I am," he said. "All I know is that I'm a lot younger than I was yesterday."

In the Cotton Bowl, the Aggies will face Bo Jackson, the nation's No. 3 rusher who is averaging 164.4 yards per game. The Cotton Bowl also has a chance to showcase Heisman Trophy winners in successive years.

Doug Flutie, last year's Heisman winner, led Boston College to a victory over Houston in 1984. Jackson is among those being considered for this year's Heisman Trophy.

Sherrill said the Aggie drive to the SWC title actually started with a pair of late-season victories last year, including a 37-12 decision over the Longhorns.

"This gives us a lot of gratification," he said. "It started last year in the last two games. All the credit goes to the seniors. They got it started for us."

Auburn ranks 12th in the nation on scoring with a 30.5 points-per-game average, and it will also bring the No. 9-ranked total defense to Dallas' Fair Park.

Earlier this year, Auburn lost to Tennessee 38-20 and to Florida 14-10, and it closes out its regular season Saturday against Alabama.

The Aggies, packing the SWC's leading offense and defense, ranks 12th in the nation in total offense and 11th in total defense.

"We knew we were good before the seasons started. We thought we had possibly the best talent in the conference," A&M quarterback Kevin Murray said. "It was just a matter of getting together as a unit. We did and here we are."

FOOTBALL

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Former Green Bay Packers football great Johnny V. McNally, one of the original inductees into the Professional Football Hall of Fame, died Thursday in Palm Springs. He was 82.

McNally, who was known during his playing days as "Johnny Blood," died at Desert Hospital the day after his 82nd birthday. The cause of death was not released at the family's request, said a nursing supervisor who would not give her name.

McNally, a halfback whose efforts rank him 16th on the Packer all-time scoring list with 224 points, was one of the original 17 players inducted in 1963 into the Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken O'Brien of the New York Jets, Roger Craig of San Francisco, Fred Marion of New England and Otis Wilson of Chicago have earned the National Football League's players of the month honors for November.

O'Brien, who led New York to three victories with 85 completions for 1,235 yards, was named AFC offensive player. Marion, who had three interceptions and a fumble recovery for New England, earned the division's defensive honors.

Craig compiled 560 yards from scrimmage during the month to earn NFC offensive honors and Wilson won the defensive award for his play on the Bears' team that hasn't allowed a touchdown for 13 quarters.

Because of no-pass, no-play rule

Some schools lost half of football players

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's no pass, no play law cost some school districts nearly half their high school football players, according to reports prepared for a suit challenging the law.

The reports showed that 18 percent of the 35,500 football players from more than 300 school districts were ineligible to play during the second six-week grading period this fall.

Although 13 districts reported losing no players, other districts reported that up to 40 percent of the students had been sidelined for failing one or more classes.

One in seven students had to give up extracurricular activities such as band, cheerleading and student council because of the rule, according to the data supplied on orders of a state district judge in Houston and reported by the Dallas Morning News on Thursday.

Judge Marsha Anthony is hearing a class-action lawsuit challenging the legality of the rule.

The figures represent only about one-third of the state's 1,100 school districts, which had managed to comply with Ms. Anthony's order to give the data to the Texas Education Agency.

But the Texas Supreme Court overturned Ms. Anthony's order and ruled Wednesday that districts did not have to supply the agency with the information.

Donald Jay, executive director of the Texas High School Coaches Association, said the 18 percent figure "seems to be very conservative."

"We received reports indicating that some junior varsity and freshman teams lost almost half of their players," he said.

While a majority of the reporting districts held their losses to under 20 percent, figures from several districts showed that their football teams lost in excess of 40 percent of their players.

For example, the Livingston school district in East Texas lost more than 43 percent of its football roster.

"It hit us real hard, both in our football and our band programs," said Livingston Superintendent E. F. Lewis, who ordered after school tutorial classes twice a week for failing students after the impact of the no pass, no play rule became apparent.

Lewis said the six-week suspension period is too long.

"I think two or three weeks at a maximum would get the message across to students," he said. "The rule needs to be changed."

However, the O'Donnell school district, about 40 miles south of Lubbock, reported no casualties to any extracurricular activity from the rule.

"We came in with the attitude that even though we thought it was a bad rule, we were going to accept it for now and find ways to overcome it," said Superintendent Dale Read. "We started off from day one to head off any problems with it."

Weekly grade checks were instituted and tutoring sessions were required for students who were in danger of failing, Read said.

But Read also said the rule is too harsh.

"Six weeks is a long time for a 15-year-old youngster," he said. "I think you could get their attention just as much with one or two weeks."

HEREFORD BRAND PUZZLE CONTEST

NAME _____ PHONE _____

ADDRESS _____

NAME OF PUZZLE GUEST: _____

Deposit at Brand office or mail to Hereford Brand, Box 673. Must be received at Brand by noon Monday. Each entry must be accompanied by Completed Picture Puzzle.

OBJECT OF GAME:
The object is to clip pieces or blocks which will be published in The Brand Sunday through Friday. Paste the pieces, in correct position, to form a 4 inch by 5 inch photo of a Very Important Person in the community. There will be at least one piece of the puzzle published each day, but any number of game blocks may appear on any day. Save the pieces and paste on a sheet of paper.

HOW TO ENTER:
After the final piece, or pieces, are published Friday, paste them together to make the puzzle complete. Even though the mystery guest may be known before the puzzle is completed, entries must have the full photo completed and the guest identified. An entry form will be published in the Friday Brand to send along with the puzzle. Entrants may mail their puzzle to The Brand, or bring the envelope to the Brand office and deposit in the mail drop or leave at front desk. The Brand will not be responsible for entries that do not comply with the rules, or entries delayed for any reason.

RULES:
Each week's correct entries will be eligible for a drawing for $50 in Hereford Bucks. The first correct entry in the random drawing will be the winner, who will be announced in the Tuesday Brand. Hereford Brand and North Plains Printing employees and their families are not eligible to play the game. Decision of the judges is final. Convicted killer not surprised by decision

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Convicted killer Jay Kelly Pinkerton today said he had just ordered his last meal when word came that the U.S. Supreme Court had blocked his execution for the second time in three months.

"I knew I was going to get a stay. That's what I was trying to tell everyone," said Pinkerton, 23, who had been scheduled to die by injection early Tuesday for the 1979 rape-murder of an Amarillo woman.

Pinkerton was taken Monday morning to the Texas Department of Corrections' Walls Unit, where he was to spend his final day in a holding cell a few steps from the death chamber.

"I just finished ordering my last meal when the warden came in and told me (of the stay), Pinkerton said.

Pinkerton said he had no reaction to the news.

"I tried to talk them into letting me stay and eat the meal but he (the warden) wouldn't go for it," the inmate said in an interview at Texas' death row.

Potter County District Attorney Randy Sherrod indicated he was disappointed that the nation's highest court issued an indefinite stay while it decides whether jurors opposed to the death penalty can be excluded from capital cases.

"I heard the DA's comments," Pinkerton said. "The evidence in my case is totally misunderstood. The evidence against me is untrue. I have an opportunity to respond to that now."

In August, the Supreme Court voted 6-2 to halt Pinkerton's execution while it decided whether to hear his appeal. The justices later refused to consider the appeal, allowing a Texas judge to set Tuesday's execution date.

The baby-faced Pinkerton, an apprentice meat cutter, faced lethal injection for the October 1979 mutilation death of Sara Donn Lawrence. He was 17 at the time of Mrs. Lawrence's killing.

Pinkerton also was convicted of the similar slaying five months later of Sherry Welch.

The killings terrorized the Amarillo area, prompting residents to buy extra locks for their doors and guns to protect themselves.

Load of Christmas spirit arrives by ship

HONOLULU (AP) — In this land of endless sunshine where there is never a white Christmas, you know the season is on the way when the ship comes in bringing more than 170,000 Christmas trees from the mainland.

And if you're not quick when they're unloaded, your chances of having a Christmas tree are about as good as a snowball's chances in Honolulu.

The trees that will be unloaded today from the Matson Navigation Co. vessel S.S. Maunalani are 98 percent of Hawaii's supply. They'll sell out within the week.

The trees are squeezed into 285 containers aboard the Maunalani, which sailed Sunday from Seattle. Each of the containers holds 600-800 trees.

Many sales will take place in parking lots, with trees sold straight from the containers.

"We let the people know the arrival date, and when they go on sale, and to hurry down," Stan Inman, spokesman for Safeway stores in Hawaii, a major Christmas tree retailer, said Wednesday. "There's only one boat."

Inman said trees will be sold from the shipping containers in parking lots of Safeway Stores on Oahu, Hawaii's most populous island.

"They are usually hundreds of customers lined up; we usually run out in about three days," he said. "We don't take advance orders."

Before the trees can be released to retailers, state agriculture officials inspect each container for unwanted pests. Agriculture is the state's third-largest industry, after tourism and government spending.

"Then it is simply a question of how fast they (the trees) can be driven to retail sites where they will be sold," said John Kelley, spokesman for Alexander & Baldwin, Matson's parent company.

"This is a once-a-year major event for the state and for Matson," said Barry L. Prince, spokesman for the shipping line.

The smallest Safeway trees will go for $5.98, with 7-8 foot high trees going for $56, he said.
