

Presidents agree on Latin debt problem, but still differ on Central America

- MEXICALI, Mexico (AP) -Presidents Reagan and Miguel de la Madrid have agreed on the need to help Latin America repay its huge foreign debt, but gave no indication that they had narrowed differences over another common concern, how to achieve peace in Central America.

The U.S. and Mexican leaders broke no new ground Friday in 75 minutes of private talks on those issues, as well as on trade, migrant workers and narcotics trafficking.

In his luncheon speech, Reagan reminded de la Madrid of a recent interview in which the Mexican president was quoted as saying, "Regimes of force or authoritarian regimes are not the solution to overcoming economic and social problems in Latin America."

"Well, your words ring true, Mr. President," Reagan said. "A commitment to democracy is the only true path to economic progress."

De la Madrid, in turn, stood firmly by his Central America policy emphasizing "the principles of selfdetermination." U.S. officials have criticized the Mexican policy as too favorable to Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government, while Mexico opposes American efforts to combat revolutionaries in El Salvador.

Meeting for the third time, Reagan and de la Madrid talked in the office of the governor of Northern Baja California state in the small border town of Mexicali. Reagan spent four hours in Mexico on his way back to Washington from a California vacation.

He touched on economic matters in his public remarks upon arrival, urging exploration of "new ways of improving the well-being of both our peoples by enhancing the business, trade and financial ties that bind us."

mark his first try for public office. Johnny Latham, 46-year-old The longtime county resident is seekfarmer-rancher, announced Friday ing the seat, now held by James that he will file as a candidate for Deaf Smith County Commissioner, Voyles.

David Ruland, incumbent county clerk, also announced last week his intention to seek reelection. Saturday was the first day a candidate could actually file for office. The only other person to announce as a candidate before the filing date was Dempsey Alexander, who said he will be a candidate for county judge. Latham was born in Ropesville and moved here with his family in 1951. He graduated from Hereford High School and attended Texas Tech for two years. His father, Marcus Latham, served as teh Precinct 2 should repeat the strong performance in 1986, analysts say.

Although some of the month-tomonth declines in home sales during 1985 defied the steady drop in mortgage rates, the sales declines were an exception to what otherwise was a strong year for the industry.

The National Association of Realtors reported this past week that sales of existing single-family homes plunged 3.4 percent in November, the sharpest drop in nine months. But for the first 11 months of the year, existing home sales still were more than 21 percent ahead of the same period in 1984.

In contrast, the departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development reported that new home sales ended a three-month decline in November by rising 7.7 percent. It was the largest gain in the category since a 20.3 percent surge in August 1984.

New home sales rose to a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of 671,000 units in November, while exthe 3 million annual rate for the ninth straight month.

In another measure of the housing market reported in mid-December, the Commerce Department said housing construction fell sharply in November to an annual rate of April 1983.

Analysts say a number of reasons, such as weather and regional economic trends, probably made monthly sales figures more volatile but did not affect the overall strong trend.

1985, up from 3.5 million in 1984.

The numbers fall short of the record sales of 3.98 million existing homes in 1978 and 819,000 new homes in 1977, but still are regarded as healthy, Crellin said.

The group also expects home sales to increase about 5.3 percent in 1986.

"The market is doing well, but not as vibrant as might have been expected given the level of interest rates," said John Goldfarb, a vice president of research at Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith in New York.

The Bank Rate Monitor, a newsletter that reports on interest rates, said that as of Dec. 24, its survey of 50 major banks found an average 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage at 11.21 percent. That rate was more than a percentage point below the 12.26 percent rate of Oct. 2 and about two points below the national averages compiled a year ago by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

"I'm certain to some degree the usual kind of pent-up demand that isting home sales remained above occurs with high mortgage rates had already been satisfied with the decline in rates earlier this year and the general drop from the peak of several years ago," said Mark Obrinsky, an economist for the U.S. League of Savings Institutions.

The growing acceptance of ad-928,000 units, its lowest pace since justable rate mortgages, which typically offer interest rates two to three percentage points lower than conventional fixed-rate loans, also may have helped satisfy the pent up demand, Obrinsky said.

-School prepares to fade into memory-

ESTELLINE, Texas (AP) - It was the first classroom Patti Nivens saw as a first grader and it may be the last she sees unless she finds another teaching job.

She will not be around for her 22nd year of teaching at Estelline School, which will close next year a sign of the times, a victim of numbers.

"When it's over, it's over," she said nostalgically, "...And now is the time. The doors have been open too long. Two years too long, I'd say. This is the last year."

Estelline School, nestled on the plains of Hall County in the eastern Panhandle where a cattleman can see 20 miles from horizon to horizon in any direction, apparently will go the route of many of the state's smaller school districts close the doors and walk away.

Already gone are the junior high and high schools, which were abandoned several years ago, with students shipped to Memphis or Childress.

One day recently, Mrs. Nivens' seven young students stood ramrod straight singing the National Anthem a bit off-key, but with gusto and seemingly enjoying it all.

They will be the last class to call the room home

The modestly furnished classroom where Mrs. Nivens has taught for 21 years sits on the same foundation that supported a new brick-and-mortar schoolhouse in 1909. The first students, numbering more than 200 at one time, walked or rode to the school in mule-drawn wagons.

But, gone are the days of football lore, the excitement of basketball

> Trying to keep a country school operating when the enrollment of the entire school district dropped to 25 has become a losing proposition.

> "Until four years ago, as far as our elementary and junior high were concerned, I'd put the system up against any in the state academically," Mrs. Nivens said.

> "...But when parents started to move their kids to Memphis or Childress for school, well..."

> Estelline's student body today includes only kindergarten through the sixth grade.

Yet it is not the smallest school on the windswept plains. Fifty-five miles away, the Dougherty Independent School District in Floyd County has only 14 students, through the fourth grade.

State records show that there are 444 independent school districts in Texas with 500 or less students.

A proposition to consolidate Estelline ISD with Childress failed at the ballot box during the last election, and now the machinery is running toward a consolidation election Jan. 18 with Memphis ISD.

The eloquent, articulate schoolmarm who graduated from Estelline High in 1947, said, however, that she is a realist.

She is among five of a vanishing breed of country schoolteachers at Estelline who will be out of a job next year. There has been a school in Estelline since 1893, a year after the town was platted and named for Estelle D. Shields, daughter of an early settler. No problem at Estelline with student-teacher ratios. It is like 5-to-1, or less most days, occasionally 7-to-1.

That turns out to be a blessing and a curse.

"I teach 16 subjects from 8 in the morning until school is out," she said, thumbing through statemandated lesson plans. "The kids don't get a fair deal. If we were just teaching reading, writing and arithmetic, we could do it.

"I was against closing the school 10 years ago. In fact, I fought it and had it defeated. But no more. The time has come," she said. Her young charges, she said, will be better off in a larger system.

Mrs. Nivens, though, cannot keep from exuding pride in what was acbasketball Olympic team in 1980, but never got to compete when the U.S. pulled out of the Games in a rift with the Soviet Union

The empty hallways at Estelline, punctuated only occasionally by the laughter of the few remaining children, echo the past. Graduation pictures adorn the walls and the sports trophy case is full.

"I don't know what we'll do with the class pictures," said superintendent Gene Conway, stopping by one photograph dated 1909. "And the sports trophies? Don't know where they'll go, either."

Across the way, the building that once housed the junior high stands empty.

The sports fieldhouse with its basketball court is locked, unused. Conway said that the basketball scoreboard time clock was sold to Memphis last year. He said he knows of no plans for the buildings to be used for some other purpose when the school closes.

There is barely a hint of what was once the football field. Mike and Darlene McClimans, both teachers at Estelline, live in a house trailer smack dab in the middle of what was once the gridiron.

Strangely, though, no one seemed to know precisely when was the last year there were enough high school students to field a team. "The early 70s, I think," said Mrs. Nivens, "Maybe '72, or was that '74?"

In the 400-seat auditorium, which could seat the entire student body in the first two rows, the McClimans were busy coaching a school play.

Dea Evans was busy as usual in her classroom while her students were taking a break.

"I hate to see it close," she said, adding that she is in her seventh teaching year. "I love it. I've enjoyed all my children. The advantage is showing individual attention.

"My most memorable experience? Seeing a youngster see the light, knowing he knows what I'm talking about," the McMurry College grad said. "Academically, it's better, but there's so much social stuff the kids are missing band, athletics ...

"It's like losing my own children," she said. "I've lived in the area all of my life. I won't like searching for a job, but I hope to stay in teaching."

Sherri Pennel, a Kingfisher, Okla., native who teaches fourth, fifth and sixth grades, said her experience at Estelline has been memorable. It is her first and last year at Estelline. "Good kids, all of 'em," she said. The sign set on a wrought-iron backdrop of Texas at the entrance to the Estelline campus is weatherbeaten now,- a testimonial perhaps that the days of small country schools in Texas soon could be just a memory. Estelline will become the ghost of school years past.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States now has forces in the Mediterranean Sea that could launch a retaliatory strike against Libya, but military officials feel any such action would be dangerous and difficult, Pentagon sources say.

The Navy has conducted what it called a routine deployment of a battle group into the Mediterranean, the sources said Friday, but President Reagan has made no decision to proceed with any type of military response to the Dec. 27 terrorist attacks on the Rome and Vienna airports.

Speaking on condition they not be identified, the Pentagon sources said top officials, including Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, were asked to prepare for a possible "strategy meeting" at the White House today.

President Reagan was asked in Mexicali, Mexico, where he met Friday with Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid, about reports of U.S .military movements in the Mediterranean.

"I'm not aware that we're doing anything out of the ordinary at all," Reagan said.

Asked whether a buildup of U.S. forces was under way, he said, "You've got to stop listening to Khadafy."

economic picture in the community. Last year's total of $4.3 million also included two big tax-exempt buildings-the Senior Citizens Center and the Hereford YMCA.

The building totals have primarily centered on non-residential construction the past two years. Only one home was in the top 12 of the largest permits this past year, and it was for $115,000.

A monthly rundown of the building permits in 1985 (along with the largest project for the month): January $183,500; February $1,672,500 (Jail); March $469,500 (Town & Country); April $2,091,050 (motel, which has not been started); May $891,900 (Golden Plains Nursing Home); June $296,500; July $176,000; August $1,785,950 (Smith Food & Drug); September $180,000; October $2,261,060 (Sav-N-Gain); November $540,700 (Garrison Seed and fire sta-tion); December. $1,289,201 (Sav-N-Gain complex).

The United States accused the government of Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy of supporting the Palestinian group blamed for the airport raids, and Khadafy has accused the United States of aggressive intentions.

On Friday, the U.S. carrier Coral Sea and her battle group ended a holiday port leave in Italy and steamed into the central Mediterranean in what Navy officials termed a routine maneuver. Sources said the battle group includes two cruisers, two destroyers and two frigates.

The Pentagon sources also confirmed that earlier this week that at least six EA-6B Prowler radarjamming aircraft were dispatched from their base in Washington state to the Sigonella Air Base in Italy. The planes, along with a small number of other combat planes sent from the United States, are now on hand to assist attack jets from the Coral Sea in the event of an air strike, the sources said.

But the Pentagon sources noted Libya has a wide range of sophisticated weapons, including Soviet-made fighters and surface-toair missiles as well as coastal patrol boats, a half-dozen diesel-powered submarines and anti-aircraft guns and radar.

One Pentagon oficial, stressing the hazards of an American military operation, said of the Libyans:

Defense Department officials cited many sticky military and political problems that would arise from a strike against Libya. Beyond the military problems of knocking out radar and missile sites as well as Libyan fighters, one source cited fears for the safety of Americans inside Libya and the ramifications of an attack if Soviet advisers were killed.

"On the other hand, you can only bluster so long with threats of retaliation before you have to do something," said another source.

Another important factor blunting the rise of home sales was a tightening of eligibility standards for low down payment mortgages by some lenders, Obrisky said.

The Federal National Mortgage Association, the nation's largest buyer of mortgages, in October adopted tighter standards for the low down payment mortgages it purchases, as a means of reducing the default rate.

"That has probably kept some potential homebuyers out of the market," Obrisky said.

U.S. divorce rate shows slight decline

WASHINGTON (AP) - After two decades of increasing numbers of U.S. divorces, the government is reporting a second consecutive year that fewer marriages were dissolved.

Although the new figures may seem to show a trend of fewer divorces, some population experts say it may be only a brief respite.

"I think it's a fairly short-term change, although some people want to interpret it to mean that marriage is getting" more solid, said Jean van der Tak of the Population Reference

The government's new figures. released Friday by the National Center for Health Statistics, showed a 1 percent decline in divorce in 1983, following a 4 percent drop in 1982.

There were 1,158,000 divorces in the United States in 1983, 12,000 fewer than 1982, the Center for Health Statistics said. Figures for those years were the most recent complete data available.

The declines reversed a twodecade trend that had seen the number of U.S. divorces more than Bureau, a private Washington triple to an all-time high of 1,213,000

The center, a part of the Department of Health and Human Services, compiles the nation's vital statistics, along with observations of change, but does not interpret the reasons for change.

Population experts have indicated that the drop in divorces is related to trends in family composition - with many young people delaying marriage - and the recession in the early years of this decade.

Mrs. van der Tak said that provisional estimates indicate divorces will again be on the rise when the final figures are reported for 1984 and 1985, according to updated statistics published in Population Today, her group's periodical.

The 1981 recession was the worst since the Depression of the 1930s, she said, adding that at that time the number of household formations dropped as people delayed living on their own because they couldn't af-. ford it.

"Divorces cost money," she observed. "Divorce often is a great reflection of the economic times. I believe the recession was a prime cause for that (the divorce decline) happening in 1983."

With the current improvements in the economy, she said, divorces are again increasing, up to an estimated 1,159,000 in the year ending in September 1984, and 1,186,000 for the year ended in September, 1985. The final figures for those years are not yet compiled.

Other demographers have also cited changes in society as a factor, with members of the post World War II baby boom generation delaying marriage to pursue education and careers.

The average length of marriages that end in divorce is 9.6 years, according to government statistics. Thus, if many marriages started later, they will also dissolve at a later date, the population experts say.

And since the marriage rate sagged in the 1970s with baby boomers putting it off, divorce could be expected to echo that drop a decade or so later.

Postponement of marriage also has resulted in people marrying when they are somewhat more mature. That also tends to reduce the odds of divorce, since marriages are least stable among younger people.

"In 1983, divorce rates were highest for married men 20-24 years of age (45.2 per 1,000) and for teenage women (48.1)," the Center for Health Statistics reported. The rate was only half that for men in their 40s, and for men in their 50s it was one-fourth the level of men in their 20s, the center said. And the decline was even sharper for women, with those aged 50-54 only oneseventh as likely to divorce as teenagers.

As people tend to marry later in life, the average age at divorce also has increased. The average age of divorcing husbands was 36.1 in 1963, up from 34.8 in 1978. In the same time span the average age of wives at divorce rose from 32.1 to 33.5.

The Northeast had the lowest divorce rate at 3.6 per 1,000 people, down from 3.7 in 1982. Next was the Midwest with a rate of 4.6 per 1,000, unchanged.

In the South the rate was 5.6, down from 5.7, while the West had the highest divorce rate at 5.8, down

supporting curtailment

HOUSTON (AP) - In a moved rule used in federal prisons. decried by critics and "switching sides," the U.S. Justice Department says it is supporting a Texas Department of Corrections proposal that would virtually abolish inmate to inmate mail.

In a brief filed in federal court, the Justice Department - which has intervened on behalf of inmates in prison reform - supports a TDC proposal limiting inmate mail.

"The use of inmate-to-inmate correspondence to foment violent illegal activities in prison systems elsewhere has been confirmed," according to court papers filed Friday by the Justice Department.

State officials in seeking court approval for the restrictions said inmate gangs now are able to recruit and organize "planned assaults and murders through the mail."

"The Department of Justice is normally representing federal prisons as defendants." Reasoner said. "The position they're taking here is really a position they think will help them (later) as defendants." The state is proposing that all correspondence between inmates be limited to immediate family members, parties or witnesses in same legal action and those with "exceptional circumstances."

The proposal is closely patterned after a rule used by the Federal Bureau of Prisons. Inmate mail is now screened by officials.

In its brief, the Justice Department urges the judges to approve the TDC proposal if sufficient evidence is presented at the hearing show inmates are using the mail system to mote violence.

superpower summit in November.

"Rambo - First Blood Part II" is about a military veteran sent to rescue U.S. prisoners of war in Vietnam. In "Red Dawn," Communists invade the United States.

"Such horrible things as 'Rambo' and 'Red Dawn' - I call these things 'warnography,' said Yevtushenko.

Ivanov also mentioned "Rocky IV," about an American boxer who takes on a Soviet rival, and an upcoming television miniseries by ABC called "Amerika," which portrays the United States under Soviet occupation.

"People are being brought up with the malicious idea that the Russians can be talked to only in the language of force and arms," Ivanov said. "A new generation of Americans is being raised to consider deliberate murder as something natural and even necessary."

Ivanov said the Rambo-type superhero is a new kind of professional killer who "does not merely kill, but kills specifically the 'Reds,' or the Russians, and not for the sake of money, but for ideological reasons and with kind of a perverse relish."

But he said he also had high hopes for the new cultural exchange agreement, signed in Geneva by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The five-year agreement calls for increased exchanges of art works, writers, composers, orchestras, ballet troupes and other performers.

Superpower cultural exchanges were halted for six years after the 1979 Sovjet military intervention in Afghanistan. Yevtushenko, 52, who has often criticized Soviet bureaucracy, suggested the exchanges be directed by a volunteer group of leading cultural figures from both countries, rather than by government offices.

The poet was asked about his recent speech before the Soviet writers union in which he criticized officials and fellow writers for distorting Soviet history and keeping silent about mistakes.

"I am surprised that you are surprised that a poet speaks against bureaucracy because the two words - poet and bureaucrat - are mutually exclusive," Yevtushenko responded.

A hearing is scheduled here Thursday, before U.S. District Judges John V. Singleton of Houston and William Wayne Justice of Tyler.

The proposal affects two longrunning prison lawsuits. In one by Guadalupe Guajardo, Singleton upheld prisoners' rights to receive mail. Another suit by David Ruiz led to major prison reforms ordered by Justice.

The Justice Department's supports for the TDC proposal drew quick criticism from attorneys representing inmates.

"It's unusual, but not unheard of," said attorney William Bennett, who represents inmates in the Ruiz lawsuit. "It doesn't surprise me in the Reagan administration that the civil rights division is switching sides."

Attorney Harry Reasoner, who represents inmates in the Guajardo case, said the Justice Department should not have gotten involved since the TDC proposal is patterned after a

"TDC asserts...that inmate to inmate correspondence is being used to recruit prison gang members, to plan assaults, murders, and other illegal activity harmful to the security of TDC inmates and staff."

The Justice Department says the prisoners' first amendment right to free speech are outweighed by the state's need for prison security.

Attorneys for inmates have called the TDC proposals "hysterical reaction to prison violence and argues the plan would unfairly punish all prisoners for the actions of a few.

Justice approved major reforms in the Texas prison system, the nation's second largest, as a result of the Ruiz lawsuit in 1981.

Singleton, who approved a settlement in 1963 regarding the 1971 Guajardo civil rights case, has ruled that prisoners should be allowed to correspond with each other.

Both judges are expected to preside jointly during Thursday's hearing.

Search for industry and 'the Collider'

Hereford, like all communities of any size, is out to land new industry and new payrolls. It's a longterm proposition in most cases and it is not enough just to tall a prospect that he's welcome.

In these days, it usually takes special benefits to lure some industries to a community. In Plainview, for example, it took some $750,000 in community contributions to finance the project that landed the big Wal-Mart distribution center. Most communities have industrial development committees and some of them have money and land to use in their hunt for new payrolls.

There has been talk lately about the huge Super Collider project which Amarillo is seeking to land in the Panhandle. The catch is that it may take about $4 to $6 billion to put together such a project and the U.S. government is not making the funds available. Such a program also needs plenty of land and a major university nearby.

The Midland-Odessa area, with its land and a branch of the University of Texas, has been wooing the project for some time. So has the Houston area and so have cities in 27 other states.

What is the Super Collider? It is a giant machine that can smash atoms by propelling them through a giant ring at close to the speed of light. To build such a machine requires land for an underground tunnel built in a ring some 60 miles in circumference. At one side of the ring would be the offices, instruments and scientists.

According to the report we read, the primary benefit of the machine is in medical technology, making the CAT scan obsolete and enabling doctors to detect chemicals in the body, and to pinpoint tumors, cancers, heart conditions and other disorders. There are also many spinoff benefits.

Texas has a slight advantage in that much of the preliminary work has been done by the Texas Accelerator Center at the Woodlands, near Houston. The center is operated by a consortium of four universities--Texas, Texas A&M, Rice and Houston. The center has developed super conducting magnets and new tunnelling techniques that promise to lower the cost of the Collider project to about $2.3 billion.

This subject came up because there had been rumors that Amarillo had landed the project, and because many people didn't know what a Super Collider is. The project is still on the drawing board, but a lot of cities want the "plum" if and when the dream comes true.

LUKE

Can you imagine someone named Luke Duke? His real name was Luther but Luther Duke does not sound all that much better. Luke was more than my uncle. He was also one of the real characters in my life. It was through people like Luke that I learned to be attracted to and love characters. I collect characters like some people collect stamps or old coins. This collection has enriched my life and colored my personality.

Luke was one of those rare people who could do anything that required hands. Had he been educated he would have been called a brilliant engineer. If it was broken Luke could fix it. If it needed building Luke could build it. If it was a motor Luke could perform miracles.

He drank a little too much and probably helped invent cussing, but characters are always eccentric. Characters seem to have large talents and large faults all rolled into one.

there is something about those aprons.

Luke never agreed to do a job. He just did it. We went by his house in the 30's. Our car did not have a trunk. My father asked about a luggage rack on the back. Luke just grunted. The next morning, by the time we finished breakfast, Luke had a luggage rack built and installed.

I remember his toughness. He ran a cotton gin. During cotton season he worked around the clock, trying to keep the gin running. There was no time for regular sleep. Luke learned how to sleep standing up. He would light a cigarette, put it between his fingers just right, lean against the wall, and sleep until the cigarette burned his fingers and woke him up.

As would be expected, Luke fixed

Bootleg Philospher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek claims he has found some good news for farmers. /

Dear editor:

Viewpoint

Farmers haven't had much good news lately but there's one piece of news that removes a certain amount of concern as we face another year of over-production.

A tobacco company has won that suit filed against it by survivors of a man who smoked two packs a day for 50 years.

What's that got to do with farmers?

Well, according to doctors who ought to know because many of them are overweight, overweigh-ness is one of the major causes of heart attacks. And what causes overweightness? Food. Too much food. And who produces too much food? Farmers.

Had that tobacco company suit gone the other way, the courts would have been filled with suits by families who've lost hefty loved ones because there was too much food available. Farmers would have had to take out liability insurance to protect them from people who over-eat.

The U.S. Surgeon General, who, from pictures of him I've seen on television looks like a man who enjoys a second helping, would have had to require every sack of potatoes, for example, to carry the message: "Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that overeating potatoes is hazardous to your health.

I'd be a little difficult to get a warning label for example on a hog and make it stick, but trying would give a lot of people in Washington something to do.

Yours faithfully, J.A.

As the years turn

1 YEAR AGO

Secretary of State George Shultz sets out tonight for arms control talks in Geneva claiming strong backing in Congress for the "Star Wars" anti-missile program which the Kremlin insists must be abandoned if U.S.-Soviet negotiations are to progress.

A lot of publicity has resulted over the recent announced by the Texas Cattle Feeders Association that the state set a new record in 1964 when 5.1 million head of cattle moved through the commercial feedyards of Texas.

10 YEARS AGO

The building trade may not have experienced its best year across the country in 1975, but that certainly wasn't the case in this region and especially here as city building permits for the year reached the highest level since 1970 when construction set records.

Southwestern Public Service Company will invest more than $389 million during the next five years in new equipment and improvements, according to Roy Tolk, chairman and president of the electric company.

25 YEARS AGO

Although there was a noticable lack of major construction activity in Hereford in 1960, 142 building permits were issued by City Hall during the year for a total valuation of more than a million dollarswhich shows Hereford is still growing fast.

Permits issued during the year totaled a valuation of $1,068,415. That figure is shadowed by $1,519,361 for 133 permits issued in 1959.

50 YEARS AGO

Landowners in the district surrounding the 25,000 acre soil conservation demonstration tract in the southwest section of the county Monday expressed favoritism for herd laws there by paying the way for the planting of thousands of trees on roadside sites throughout the district.

New laws govern exemptions of voters this year, according to a bulletin received by Pete Murchison, deputy tax collector. Poll taxes, as well as all other regular taxes, must be paid on or before Jan. 31. Since this is an importnt election year, the payment of poll taxes is expected to be unusually heavy.

Democrats. The, too, is an open letter to anyone planning to file in the Democratic Primary

My family, being from Northern Georgia, has been in the Democratic Party ever since Sherman marched through that great, state. The Democratic Party has been the party of the people ... all of the people. Because of this, it's nearly impossible to get three Democrats in the same room and have all of them believe exactly the same thing.

Recently, the Democratic platform has included homosexual liberation, abortion, big-government and bureaucrats that answer to no one. But, that's not the Democratic party.

The Statue of Liberty must be a Democrat. She says, "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breath free...send these homeless, tempest tost to me." This is the essence of the Democratic Party and this is why I'm a Democrat.

In last week's letter you were told you must believe in (among other things) Lloyd Doggett and Walter Mondale before you can file as Democrat.

You don't have to believe as the letter writer does to be a Democrat. I don't believe in homosexual liberation, abortion, helping lazy people, indiscriminate spending, uncontrolled government bureaucracies, or Doggett-Mondale extremists. But, most of the people reading this have problems with one, or more, of these philosophies.

I do believe in human rights. These include the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; the right to dignity, no matter what the circumstances; and the right to personal safety. I believe in constitutional rights, and these include the right to see fit. I believe in helping the poor, the tired and the sick. believe in racial sexual and legal equality. I believe in freedom...both personal freedom and freedom from "Big Brother." I believe in the rights of victims as well as criminals. I believe in America...the America founded on the philosphy of a government of the people, for the people and by the people, not of the bureaucrat, for the bureaucrat, and by the bureaucrat

And, I believe in the Democratic Party. If you are considering filing as a Democrat, I welcome you. Whether you are an extreme conservative, a moderate or an extreme liberal; I welcome you. I'll shake your hand and applaud your choice of the Democratic Party, the People's Party.

Responsible press freedom

Freedom of the press is one of our most precious rights in this country and it is of course defended the most vigorously by members of the news media who want it to continue that way. Any encroachment upon press freedom is fought bitterly by the media, as should be.

But there are some things to consider when talking about absolute freedom of the press. South Africa's government has banned the use of television cameras now in certain areas and in covering some events. This is being criticized around the world by advocates of press freedom.

But we must recember that the South African government may have a point. Freedom of speech does not extend to the right to yell "Fire" in a crowded theatre. Members of the press must exercise some responsibility and unfortunately some members of the press have not done so, especially the electronic media whose job is to present a visual, hopefully sensational bit of film coverage to gain viewers.

Day after day, television camera crews have sought out riots and acts of violence in South Africa, fanning the flames of rebellion. Press coverage has all but ignored the fact that much of the fighting has been between blacks and that the latest eruption was a tribal clash between Zulu and Khosa tribes and had nothing to do with apartheid or white oppression.

Sometimes a government feels it has the right and the duty to control press freedom. In World War II the press was denied the right to report departure times of ships in harbor as well as being denied advance information as to military maneuvers. This restriction was accepted because it was

war. The government of South Africa may well feel that it is on the verge of civil war and that it needs to take drastic measures to prevent the fanning of fires of revolt through continual publicizing of violent incidents.

Any restrictions upon the press is distasteful. But some acts of the press are equally distasteful. The Washington Post published the Pentagon Papers, illegally obtained by Daniel Ellsburg who stole them from a Washington office, knowing full well that this information was restricted to the press and public. By publishing these, the Post set itself above the law which was expressed in the form of a court order.

The famous example of Indian uprising at Wounded Knee in South Dakota involved widespread publicity for a renegade Indian, Russell Means, and brought world wide attention to that part of the U.S.

It was later proved that the entire Wounded Knee incident was carefully staged by all three TV networks and was not spontaneous at all. It was created as a news event entirely without substance. This is not responsible news coverage and before we members of the news media howl too loudly about South African restrictions we might take a look to see if indeed all of our own house is in order.

School athletics, YMCA programs, summer sports

1985 was busy year in sports in Hereford

School athletics, YMCA sports pro- softball teams competed for the first grams, and summer baseball and softball made 1985 a busy year in Hereford.

From Hereford Whiteface varsity football all the way down to T-ball, there was plenty of sports action involving teenagers and children. A new YMCA building meant many leagues and organizations for adults as well as youth, and Pitman Municipal Golf Course kept golfers active with several events.

There were exciting times as well as disappointing times. A high school basketball team came ever so close to making the playoffs, and some high school runners were just a few seconds away from a trip to a state meet.

A Herd football player signed to play with the University of Texas. A junior high school basketball team won a district title.

In the spring, the high school boys' golf team went to regionals. Hundreds of youth filled Whiteface Stadium for an elementary track meet.

time ever in state tournaments. A Hereford rodeoer won a season championship in a high school rodeo association.

Summer baseball and softball had its exciting moments, as well as unusual plays. A group of Hereford boys won the West Texas state Babe Ruth League title, advancing to a regional tournament.

Many of the top cowgirls in the nation visited Hereford for the All-Girl Rodeo. A Hereford boy won a state 4-H championship in trap and skeet shooting.

Hereford High School had an up and down year in football, with most of the ups coming in the last half of the season. Some former Hereford High School athletes were honored by their schools and athletic conferences.

The no-pass, no-play rule was a controversial subject all year in high school athletics. The rule made its biggest impact in Hereford in junior high school sports.

Many Hereford High School In the summer, Hereford girls' athletes were honored on all-district teams in several sports, with one football player being named to the first team.

Excitement reigned in many school basketball contest, particularly in a girls' high school game when Hereford won' with a last-second shot

Here is a month-by-month summary of the year in sports in Hereford:

JANUARY

The Hereford High School varsity basketball teams resumed their seasons following the Christmas holidays. The boys' varsity was 1-2 in the district and 7-7 overall going into the January games, and the girls' varsity was 3-2 and 4-7.

In the middle of January, the Hereford varsity girls were tied for third place in District 3-5A with Amarillo and Palo Duro, all with 6-3 records. In boys' district competition, the Hereford Whitefaces stood in sixth place in the district with a 2-5 record.

After defeating Lubbock High 58-42 on Jan. 17, the HHS girls were still tied for third place with Amarillo and Palo Duro. Hereford suffered a 49-47 loss to Plainview on Jan. 22, dimming the playoff hopes.

After that loss to Plainview, the HHS varsity girls were 7-4 in the district, compared to 10-2 for Plainview which was in second place in the district.

In junior high school basketball action, the La Plata Junior High School ninth grade team won the Canyon tournament by scoring victories over Plainview Blue, Valley View and Canyon Purple.

The last week of January saw the playoff hopes of the Hereford varsity girls crushed when they were edged by Amarillo High 31-30. The loss dropped Hereford to 8-5 in the district, in fourth place and three wins behind the third place team.

Junior high

to resume season

Junior high school basketball action resumes this week for Hereford teams, with nine of them playing on Monday and the other three playing on Thursday.

The only teams playing at home Monday will be the Stanton Junior) High School girls' teams, who will be going against Yucca of Clovis, N.M. Action starts at 4:30 p.m.

The Stanton boys' teams play in Clovis against Yucca, with the first game starting at 4:30 p.m.

The other teams playing Monday are the La Plata Junior High School girls teams. La Plata plays Plainview Blue in Plainview. The ninth grade game is set for 4:30 p.m., followed by the seventh grade contest and then the eighth grade game. On Thursday, the La Plata boys' teams play at home against Plainview Blue, with the first contest beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Seventh grade teams from both schools are scheduled to play in the Canyon boys' and girls' tournaments on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Late in January, Hereford High School linebacker Lee Brockman, the leading tackler for the Whiteface football team, announced his decision to play at the University of Texas.

The 6-2, 210-pounder, who was named defensive player of the year in District 3-5A, verbally committed to play with the Longhorns. Brockman, who totaled 115 tackles in the 1984 season, was offered a full scholarship to UT.

FEBRUARY

The new Hereford and Vicinity YMCA facility officially opened in ribbon cutting ceremonies on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 3. An estimate of at least 1,500 people toured the new building.

A fund drive from July 1983 through August 1984 raised the goal of $925,000. Construction on the 26,000 square foot facility began in the spring of 1984, after being planned and designed for more than two years.

Before the new facility, located on Fifteenth Street, was built, the YM-CA operated out of temporary facilities. The new building includes a gym, racquetball courts, men's and women's steam rooms, saunas and whirlpools.

The 1985 officers of the YMCA were Charles Hoover, president; Temple Abney, Roger Albracht and Darwin Manning, vice presidents; Roger Eades, treasurer; Keith Ann Gearn, secretary; and Rick Brown, past president. The YMCA board had 21 directors at the time the new building was opened.

The Kids Inc. organization elected officers for the 1985 youth sports

Bears battle Giants in NFC semifinals

By NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - If the hot air emanating from the Chicago Bears and the New York Giants could be harnessed and blown into Soldier Field, there would be no concern about cold weather at Sunday's National Football League playoff game.

"We create intimidation on the field," said Chicago linebacker Otis Wilson, a main cog in the NFL's topranked defense, the only one to hold opponents under 200 points this season.

"We won't be intimidated, I can promise you that," said New York's Carl Banks, one of the fine corps of linebackers in the NFL's secondranked defense.

"I heard they think they're better than we are," said New York cornerback Perry Williams. "They've been mouthing off, but we think we've got a pretty good defense, too."

By most accounts, the game should be low-scoring and won in the trenches. With a high temperature of about 30 degrees forecast, both teams are likely to stay conservative.

The Bears won their first 12 games en route to a 15-1 record. The Giants were 10-6 in the regular season under Bill Parcells and impressive in last week's victory over San Francisco in the NFC wild card game.

The winner of Sunday's game, which begins at 12:30 p.m. EST, will play for the National Football Conference championship, and a Super Bowl berth, the following Sunday. The Bears are heavily favored over the Giants.

"What they've done more or less is issue us a verbal challenge, 'You can't stop us,"' said New York center Bart Oates."Well, let them prove it."

MARCH

The high school baseball, tennis and track seasons began the first week of March. The Hereford High School varsity baseball team defeated Dumas 11-7 in the season opener.

The Hereford boys' tennis team won the Hereford five-team tournament, and the HHS girls' tennis team placed second in the Hereford tournament.

The Hereford High School girls' track team placed second in the XIT Relays in Dalhart, setting four meet records.

The all-District 3-5A basketball teams were announced, but no-Hereford High players were named to either the boys' or girls' first teams.

Natalie Sims was named to the alldistrict girls' second team. Darla Alford and Stacie High were selected to the girls' third team. High was selected later in the month to play in the Golden Spread All-Star Girls' Basketball Games.

Hereford players on the boys' alldistrict team were Kevin Redus on the third team, and Bobby Baker, who tied for newcomer of the year honors.

A girls' track meet, the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational, was held on Saturday, March 9. Hereford High School won the varsity division, and Stanton Junior High School placed first in the junior varsity-ninth grade division and in the seventh grade division.

The no-pass, no-play rule was passed by a vote of 10-3 by the Texas State Board of Education, resulting in much controversy and argument. The rule is that students must pass all of their classes to be eligible to participate in extracurricular activities, including school sports.

Canyon Reef Relays track meet in Snyder on March 23, totaling team points 147 points to outscore San Angelo Central by 18 points.

Volleyball championships at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA were on use of YMCA decided late in March: St. Anthony's I claimed the "A" division title in the co-ed church volleyball league, and the Church of the Nazarene team captured the "B" division championship in the co-ed church volleyball

Stanton, with athletes placing in all but two events, had 139 team points in their first place effort. The Kids Inc. organization in Hereford received word that their girls' softball teams would be officially sanctioned in the 1985 season--making it the first time that a team from Hereford would compete in the state tournament for girls 11 years old and older.

Six Hereford High track athletes qualified for regional meet. Lee Brockman qualified for the regional boys' class AAAAA meet by winning the shot put at the District 3-5A meet. Girls who qualified for regionals, and their placings at the district meet were: Diana Devers, first, shot put; Stephanie Thomas, second, shot put; Lisa Redmon, first, 100-meter dash; Selma Moreno, second, 3,200-meter run; and Lina Esqueda, second, 1,600-meter run.

A racquetball tournament was held at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA in which competition was held in men's singles, men's doubles, women's singles, women's doubles, open mixed doubles, men's novice, and junior boys under 12.

Tournament winners were: Brenda Reeh and Marc Williamson in open mixed doubles, David Bone, junior boys under 12; Linda Barnett and Cindy Baker, women's doubles; Brenda Reeh, women's singles: John Dominguez, men's novice; Gerald Payne and Bill Kennan, men's class B doubles: Marc Williamson and Terry Russell, men's class A doubles: Bill Kennan, men's class'B singles; and Chris White, men's class A singles.

The Hereford High boys' golf team won the final District 3-5A round of the season at Amarillo on April 19, and finished second in the district to qualify for regionals. Players on the team were Bobby Baker, Matt Albracht, Bobby Valdez, Albert Dumas meet on April 19.

A 1973 graduate of Hereford High School, Mike Mayberry, was named head basketball coach at Lubbock Coronado High School.

The Texas Tech Red Raider Day was held on Thursday, April 25 in Hereford. Those who won golf matches were Texas Tech Coach Taylor McNeel, who teamed with Hereford golfers Gene Coulter, Kenny Hagar and Lowell Neumayer.

Youth basketball tournaments were held at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA. The champion teams were the Mavericks in the fifth and sixth grade boys' league, the Court Jesters in the fifth and sixth grade girls' league, the Bruins in the third and fourth grade boys' league, and the Bucks in the third and fourth grade girls' league.

The Hereford Whiteface varsity baseball team defeated Palo Duro 4-3 in its season finale on April 27. Hereford finished the season in sixth place in District 3-5A with a 5-11 record. Overall, Hereford was 9-13 for the season.

Hereford High School athletes were honored at the all-sports banquet on April 30. The athletes of the year were Lee Brockman, who participated in football, track and basketball, and Stacie High, who was in basketball and track.

The "Fighting Heart" awards were presented to Augustine Castillo and Stacey Sanders. Fourteen individuals were named outstanding athletes in the various sports at Hereford High School.

A special award was presented at the banquet by the Booster Club to Dave Hopper, naming him "Fan of the Year."

MAY

The Hereford Whiteface football team began its spring training with 75 out for practice.

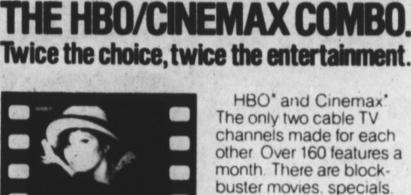

The Kiwanis Elementary School Track Meet was held on May 2. Boys and girls in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades from all elementary schools in Hereford competed in the meet.

In the Fellowship of Christian Athletes "Crazy Scramble" golf tournament on May 3, the winning team was Don Clements, Mike Fields, Don Martin and N.D. Kelso, who shot a three-under-par 32 score in the nine-hole event.

A soccer team from Hereford, Lil Charro's, won the championship of the Amarillo spring soccer league's 19 and under division.

Lisa Redmon of Hereford High School qualified for the state class AAAAA track meet when she finished in second place in the 100-meter dash at the regional meet.

A former Hereford High School athlete, Keith Kitchens, was named athletic director at Shallowater High School. Kitchens had been head (See Year in Sports, Page 7A)

The YMCA basketball league for high school age boys was won by a team called 6-Pack. Blair Rogers coached the championship team.

Championship matches were played on Saturday, May 11 in four volleyball tournaments at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA. Tournament champions were the Salty Dogs in the co-ed "A" division, the Little Rascals in the co-ed "B" division, the Amarillo Coyotes in the men's division, and the Friona Star team in the women's division.

Fourteen Special Olympics athletes from the Hereford Satellite Workshop competed in meets during the spring. They were Aseneth Duncan, Mary Ann Brown, Beth Clark, Karen Shore, Tonie Dominguez, Mary Brinkman, Joe Brown, Roger Garcia, Travis Johnson, Jerry Hall, Royce Legates, Mitch Merritt, Dale Bromlow, and Roy Zamora.

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA men's basketball league was won by the N.W.B. team, which edged Hi-Pro Feeds in the championship game, 40-38.

In the annual Maroon & White spring game, which marked the conclusion of the Hereford High School football spring practice, the Herd offense defeated the Herd defense 32-21 on may 21.

Raiders go against touchdowns and a pair of extra-point kicks for its 32 points. Defensive scoring was based on denying the offense a first down, recovering fumbles or intercepting passes, blocking punts, blocking extra points, and goal line stands.

JUNE

Three Hereford High School rodeo club members qualified for the finals of the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association-Jana Johnson, Sheri McQuigg and Dusty Wells.

A former Hereford resident, Kelly Kitchens of Plainview, won the KAMR Action 4 News Open golf tournament on June 1-2 at Pitman Municipal Golf Course in Hereford. Hereford golfers who won flights were: Tom Simons, first flight; Mark Don Turner, third flight; Leonard Nikkel, seventh flight; and Jerry Richburg, eighth flight.

Youth and teenage tennis players from throughout the Texas Panhandle participated in the Hereford Tennis Tournament on June 6-7. The event was held at the Hereford High School tennis courts. Age divisions, for boys and for girls, included 12 and under, 14 and under, 16 and under and 18 and under. On Saturday, June 8, the adult division competition of the Hereford Tennis Tournament was held.

Jana Johnson of Hereford won the barrel racing season title in the Tri-The Whiteface offense scored five State High School Rodeo Association, and later competed in the Texas State High Rodeo.

The Kitchen brothers, Kelly and Keith, won the championship of the Hereford Partnership Golf Tournament on June 8 at Pitman Municipal-Golf Course. The won the tournament by one stroke.

Two Hereford High School baseball players, Mike Scott and Chet Bunch, were named to the all-District 3-5A team. Scott, a second baseman who batted .400 for the Whitefaces, was named to the second team. Bunch, who received honorable mention, played at the pitcher and outfield positions for the Herd. Bunch batted .460 and had a 4-1 pitching record.

A 13-year-old Hereford boy won the sub-junior division at the Texas State Trapshooting Tournament in Amarillo. Shawn Sciumbato achieved a score of 94 out of a possible 100 to tie for first place with a boy from Wichita Falls.

In a shootoff for the division title, Sciumbato hit 22 of 25 targets, one more than his opponent.

The Hereford Lions Club won the Service Club Olympics at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA by piling up 585 team points. The second place club was the Hereford Noon Kiwanis Club with 510 points, and the Whiteface Kiwanis Club came in third with 450 points.

Volleyball league title were decided in the Hereford and Vicinity YM-CA men's and women's leagues. K&A Sales won the women's league championship, and Barrett Crofoot won the men's league title.

Nearly 500 athletes participated in the Hereford YMCA T.A.C. Track Meet on Saturday, June 15 at Whiteface Stadium.

A new all-purpose athletic building began to take shape next to the football fieldhouse by Whiteface Stadium. The building would later serve as a place for athletes to work out inside when the weather is bad, particularly during football, track and baseball seasons.

The all-purpose building is 70 feet by 100 feet in size, and 20 feet high. Hereford golfers Mike Horton, golf pro at Pitman Municipal Golf Course, and James Salinas, threetime city champion, attempted to set a world record for holes of golf played in one 24-hour period. They played 288 straight holes, but fell far short of the world record.

Tournament champions and regular season champions in the Kids Inc. baseball and softball season; Braves, boys' major league tournament; Angels, girls' major league; Braves, boys' minor league; Giants, girls' minor league regular season; Braves, girls' minor league tournament; Cardinals, beys' T-ball league tournament and regular season; Yankees, girls' T-ball tournament; Cardinals, girls' T-ball regular season.

The Kids Inc. leagues named allstar teams for Babe Ruth 14 and 15-year-olds, Babe Ruth 13-year-olds, girls' 15 and 16-year-olds, girls' 12 to 14-year-olds, and girls' minor league, boys' major league; and boys' minor league.

JULY

Something very unusual happened in the world of sports right here in Hereford during a Babe Ruth 13-year-olds district tournament on July . The Hereford Kids Inc. organization was hosting the tournament.

Friona held a 7-0 lead over Hereford, and had apparently increased the lead to 11-0 with a grand slam home run. The Hereford team made an appeal that the man on third when the home run was hit had not touched home plate.

The appeal was upheld and the score went back to 7-0. Hereford went on to defeat Friona 15-12, proving that the mental error was costly.

The Babe Ruth tournament championship was later decided in a second championship game when Plainview beat Hereford 37-9. Hereford lost to Plainview 18-3 in the first championship game.

A former Hereford High School athlete, Wayne Schumacher, was named to the "All-Decade" football team of the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association, marking the conference's 10th anniversary.

Schumacher, who played outside linebacker for Tarleton State University, was a four-year letterman. He was a first team selection on the allconference team in 1978, after receiving honorable mention on the all-conference team in 1977.

First Christian won the YMCA church softball league championship by defeating Avenue Baptist two games to one in the title series.

Helen Ann McWhorter and Bernice Orel won the two-women golf scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course on July 13 with a score of 77. The tournament was an American Cancer Society benefit event. Jamie Dear and Alanna Muller won the second flight with a score of 88.

The Hereford Kids Inc. Babe Ruth League 14 and 15-year-old all-stars scored three straight shutout wins to win the district tournament in Friona. The team went on to win the West Texas state tournament by defeating Mineral Wells, Andrews, and Randall County.

In the Mustang League district championship series, a team of allstars from the Kids Inc. boys' minor league defeated Dimmitt, winning in two games, 1-0 and 14-2. The Hereford team advanced to the regional tournament.

Girls' softball all-star teams from Hereford played in the state Pony League and Colt League tournaments in Fort Worth.

The Hereford Women's tennis tournament was held July 19-22. The first two days of the tournament had competition for youth, in junior high girls' and boys' singles and doubles, junior high mixed doubles, and fourth, fifth and sixth grade girls singles and doubles. Competitin in women's singles, women's doubles, and mixed doubles was held the last two days of the tournament.

Several Hereford tracksters placed in the state TAAF track meet in Fort Worth. Members of the Hereford Track Club totaled 29 placings in the meet.

Patriots on Sunday By DAVE GOLDBERG

AP Football Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) - This has been a big week for Howie Long. 6-foot-5 inches and 270 pounds of defensive end for the Los Angeles Raiders.

He was elected to the All-Pro team for the second year, and the New England Patriots arrived from Boston, his hometown, to play the AFC West champion Raiders in a National Football League divisional playoff game Sunday at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

So Long was unleashed, along with his green Boston Celtics T-shirt, to provide visitors to Southern California his version of "The World According to Howie.'

Howie Long is not your average All-Pro defensive end, picked second to the Chicago Bears' Mike Singletary in balloting for defensive player of the year. For Howie Long has an opinion on everything. - Like the way Boston (Long grew up in the Charlestown section) has taken to the Patriots. Or not taken to them. "Let me tell you what I got for Christmas," he says. "I got a book. 'Four Decades of Greatness of the Celtics.' I got a Larry Bird T-shirt. My kid got a Larry Bird warmup. I grew up 400 yards from Boston Garden. I bleed green. "People out here don't understand what fan support like that is. People love those Celtics back there. John Havlicek was God. The Patriots? They like them. They like them a lot right now. But I don't think anyone's bleeding red, white and blue back there." - Like Lyle Alzado, who began the season playing at the other end of the Raiders defensive line before he injured his Achilles tendon. To Long's taste, Alzado's become a West Coast version of the media player of the year, Chicago's William "The Refrigerator" Perry. Too many television commercials for shampoo and other items. "This guy is on television so much," says Howie Long, standup comic. "My grandmother is here visiting me. 'There's Lyle on TV.' she says. No kiddin' Ma. I know you don't use that shampoo any more, Lyle."

- Like Patriots linebacker Andre Tippett, third behind Long and Singletary in defensive player of the year voting.

"The scary thing is, this guy lives clean. I mean he's not going to be picked up and arrested on the way to the game. That's scary. He's going to show up."

Like, finally, why. Long thinks the Raiders will beat New England, which qualified for the game by beating the New York Jets 26-14 last week.

"I feel very confident about playing them here and playing them on grass. Plus we'll be wearing our black jerseys. That's significant, believe me. When we play some teams that normally wear light jerseys at home, they switch and I can't blame them. Those dark jerseys, everyone knows, brings out the best in us."

Renewed interest in" energy from biomass" comes with a new publication. Texas Add University's biomass research team has published a book on the subject that they hope will spark new interest in the subject. "Biomass Energy: A Monograph" edited by Dr. Edward A. Hiler, professor and head of A(M's Department of Agriculture Engineer-ing and Dr. Bill A . Stout, professor of agriculture engineering and an authority on alternitive energy source. The basis for this interest is organic matter, plant materials, have great deal of stored solar energy which through conversion processes can be made ugh conversion processess can be made iable in gaseous, liquid or solid fuels, conents believe these biomass-derived fuels may play a major part in supplying our future energy needs. The book is available by constacting the Texas A&M University Press, Drawer C, College Station, Texas 77843-4354.

The All-Girl Rodeo was held on Aug. 9-11 at the Cowboy Country Club. The top five cowgirls in the Women's Professional Rodeo Association standings competed in the event. The all-around cowgirl title was claimed by Twila Rutherford of Noble, Okla.

Six Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers competed in the state 4-H trap and skeet shoot in San Antonio on Aug. 10. One of them, Shawn Sciumbato, placed first in the international trap subjunior division. Six trophies were brought home by the county 4-H youth.

Volleyball practice at Hereford High School began on Aug. 12.

Shoe day on Thursday, Aug. 15 marked the first step of the 1985 high school football season, when Hereford High School athletes reported to the Coach Jerry Taylor that they were trying out for the team. Two-a-day practices began on Monday, Aug. 19.

The first annual Greg Black Memorial 10-Kilometer and Two-Mile Runs were held on Saturday, Aug. 17. Winners in the 10-kilometer run were Jesse Sturgeon in the men's division and Donnie Henderson in the women's division. In the two-mile run, Allen Dudding won the men's division and Nena Veazey won the women's division.

The runs had been known from 1981 to 1984 as the Town and Country Jubilee 10-kilometer and two-mile runs, having always been held during the jubilee, as were the runs this year. Eighty-nine people entered the runs

A highlight of the race was that the widow of Greg Black, Debbie Black, and her two children, Eric and Erin, finished the two-mile race.

High school, junior high school, and elementary division competition was held as part of the YMCA Deaf Smith County Closed Tennis Tournament on Aug. 17.

James Salinas win his fifth city golf championship in seven years by shooting a two-round score of 141 at Pitman Municipal Golf Course on 24-25. Mike Fields finished s cond with a score of 143, and Tom Simons was third with a total of 144. A volleyball match was played between the staff members of the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA and the board of directors of the "Y" late in August. The staff members won the best-offive match in four games, and literally "creamed" the board of directors. How? The winning team had the privilege of taking it out on the losers-throwing what supposedly were cream pies into the faces of the members of the board of directors. The Hereford Whiteface football team outscored Lubbock Estacado three touchdowns to two in a controlled scrimmage on Aug. 29. SEPTEMBER

The Whiteface varsity football team was ranked 89th in the state in the preseason rankings of the Harris Rating System.

Ron Weishaar and Ken Mechtley won the annual Hereford County Club Member-Guest Golf Tournament on Monday, Sept. 2. Other flight winners were Dennis Richardson and Charles Skinner, in the first flight, Arthur Clark and Herb Clark in the second flight, and Earl Stagner and Dick Sulzbach in the third flight. A Hereford youth, T.J. Head, won the boys' age 12 singles competition in the Tri-State Tennis Tournament in Amarillo.

The St. Anthony's I team went undefeated in six regular season games to place first in the YMCA coed church softball league. The team then went on to capture the league tournament, defeating First Christian in two championship games in the tournament.

Racquetball tournaments were held at the YMCA. Winners were the men's doubles team of Weldon Knabe and Darwin Manning: the women's doubles team of Linda Barnett and Brenda Reeh; Marc Williamson in men's "A" singles; Linda Barnett in women's singles; and Paul Smith in men's "B" singles.

The 1985 high school football season opened Sept. 6 for the Hereford Whitefaces when they played on the road against San Angelo Central. For a little more than three quarters, Hereford scared San Angelo Central, ranked third in the state in the preseason Harris Rating System rankings.

The Herd led 7-6 after three quarters of play, but suffered a 26-13 loss to the San Angelo team.

The next week, the Whitefaces battled Palo Duro in a game played sloppily by both teams, but won by Palo Duro 38-0.

Hereford High School runners Nancy Garza and Selma Moreno placed first and second, respectively, to lead their team to victory in the Brownfield cross country meet on Sept. 14. One week later, the HHS girls won another meet, the Plainview meet. Garza placed first again, and Moreno finished in ninth place.

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA introduced a new game called "Wallyball." The game is a combination of volleyball and racquetball.

Hereford High School broke into the win column in high school football on Sept. 20 by defeating Lubbock High 21-6. Hereford held an 18-0 halftime lead on touchdowns scored by Stefan Hacker, Allen Dudding, and Bobby Baker.

Three members of the Crox Tae Kwon Do School of Karate in Hereford won national titles at the 1985 U.S. Martial Arts Open Tae

Bass fishing institute scheduled at WTSU

A bass fishing institute has been scheduled by the West Texas State University Continuing Education program for Jan. 28, and Feb. 4, 11 and 25.

The Tuesday night classes will be instructed by four of the top professional anglers in the nation. Class time each night is 7:30 p.m.

The professional anglers teaching the classes will be Rick Clunn, Bo Dowden, Roger Moore, and Rich Tauber.

Clunn, the second all-time money winnings leader in bass fishing, will teach the class on Jan. 28. A threetime Bassmaster Classic champion, Clunn's topic will be using bass fishing lures as tools to accomplish one's fishing goals. Clunn will discuss organizing one's approach to fishing. On Feb. 4, Dowden will teach about using the "Flippin" technique, tackles and lures. The 1980 Bassmaster Class champion and the 1976 runnerup, Dowden will also speak about the top water technique and the "walk the dog" technique.

Moore, who has also been a Bassmaster Class runnerup, will instruct class members on Feb. 11 about utilizing light tackle to one's advantage, and the new scents and using the new scents to attract bass. He will also speak about fishing with the new plastic crawdads.

On Feb. 25, Tauber is the class instructor. The $50,000 U.S. Open winner, Tauber is the youngest angler ever to win the Western Bass Angler of the Year award.

Tauber's subjects will be plastic worm fishing, and tackle equipment, philosophy and presentation.

Kwon Do Karate-Kung Fu Championship, held in Lawton, Okla. They were Victor Diaz, Domingo Diaz, and Gary Hamilton.

Turnovers hurt the Whiteface football team in their fourth game of the season, when they suffered a 20-7 loss to Amarillo High School on Saturday, Sept. 28. Two HHS fumbles led directly to Amarillo High touchdowns.

The Hereford High School cross country teams were hosts of the Hereford meet on Sept. 28 at Veterans Park. Runners from Hereford won two of the races-Nancy Garza in the varsity girls' race, and Benny Carrasco, a La Plata student, in the junior varsity boys' race. Varsity team winners in the meet were the Boys Ranch boys' team and the Tascosa girls' team.

OCTOBER

The Hereford Whiteface football team stampeded to a 30-6 district victory over Lubbock Coronado in its homecoming game on Oct. 4. Mark Artho rushed for 84 yards and scored three touchdowns. Allen Dudding rushed for 102 yards and scored one touchdown.

Tarleton State University honored a former Hereford High School athlete, Charles High, at the university's homecoming game. High, who was named to the school's athletic hall of fame, participated in football and track at Tarleton State from 1974 to 1978.

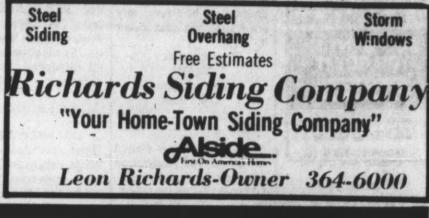

High was an NAIA all-American in track, and rushed for 2,126 yards in three football seasons. Tarleton State reached the NAIA playoffs in 1978, a season in which High rushed for 746 yards.

A wrestling club was organized at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA on Oct. 8 for boys ages four to 17. Donnie Fangman was named coach in the club and planned to work closely with Hank Harmony of the Maverick Boys Club of Amarillo.

An interstate rivalry in football was renewed on Oct. 11 when the Hereford Whitefaces played at Clovis, N.M. The Clovis Wildcats defeated the Herd, 30-21, but it was a

Racquetball clinics set at YMCA

The fundamentals and rules of the game of racquetball will be taught in racquetball clinics at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA, starting Monday.

A morning class is planned from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday, and an evening class is set for 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A minimum of four people is needed to hold each class, and a maximum of eight people may sign up for the evening class.

For more information on the racquetball clinics, call the YMCA at 364-6990

For more information on the bass fishing classes, or to register, contact Jim Holston at 656-2171. The registration fee is $48 per person.

Holston notes that the course is designed for both the novice angler and the expert angler.

hard struggle for the New Mexico school. Hereford led 14-10 in the second quarter, and trailed Clovis 23-21 midway through the third quarter.

On Oct. 18, Whiteface running back Marcus Brown scored three touchdowns in helping lead Hereford to a 34-15 win over Caprock. Brown's touchdowns were scored with threeyard and 10-yard touchdown runs, and a 61-yard punt return.

When the first six-weeks grading period of the school year ended in the Hereford Independent School District, junior high schools suffered more losses of athletes because of inelibility than did the high school.

The controversial no-pass, no play rule resulted in nearly 100 junior high school football players being ineligible for the rest of the grid season. Hereford High School lost only one varsity athlete, not a starter, and four junior varsity players.

No players were lost from the HHS varsity volleyball team, and two junior varsity spikers became ineligible.

The Plainview "Dot" was cracked up by the Hereford Whiteface football team when the Herd pounded the Bulldogs at Whiteface Stadium on Oct. 25. Stefan Hacker and Marcus Brown each scored a pair of touchdowns for the Whitefaces.

Three Hereford High School girls' cross country runners placed in the top 10 at the District 3-5A meet in Lubbock, enabling their team to place second and qualify for regionals. Nancy Garza placed second, Selma Moreno was fifth, and Frances Flores finished in seventh place.

A tennis player from Hereford, Kevin Hansen, finished in the top four of a tournament in Abilene that was sponsored by the United State Tennis Association (USTA) and the Texas Tennis Association (TTA). Hansen, who scored five wins in the tournament, qualified for the championship division of tournaments to be held in March 1986 in Corpus Christi and Dallas.

NOVEMBER The Hereford Whitefaces overowered Lubbock Monterey 26-6 on Friday, Nov. 1 in a District 3-5A contest. The Herd totaled 322 yards rushing, including 138 yards by Mark Artho and 78 yards by Marcus Brown.

Hereford High School's volleyball teams had a tough season, with both the varsity and junior varsity failing to record a victory. The season records were 0-23 for the varsity and 0-19 for the junior varsity.

Two Hereford High School cross country runners barely missed qualifying for the state meet. Nancy Garza and Selma Moreno both finished within 10 seconds of the 10th place runner at the Region I meet on Nov.

Garza was two seconds behind the 10th place finisher and Moreno was behind that runner by eighth seconds. Only the top 10 individuals qualify for state.

A Hereford city football rivalry took place once again on Tuesday, Nov. 5 when the Stanton and La Plata teams played each other in three games. La Plata scored a 6-0 victory in the ninth grade game, and Stanton won the other two contests-12-8 in the eighth grade game and 14-12 in the seventh grade game.

The 1985 football season came to a close on Nov. 8 for the Hereford Whitefaces when they defeated Tascosa 29-14. The contest was capped off with the Herd's own versions of "The Refrigerator." Several linemen were given a chance to in his final game as a senior, rushing for 119 yards and scoring two touchdowns.

Hereford was the site of several high school football playoff games in November. Vega beat Sudan on Nov. 14, Phillips defeated Amherst on Nov. 22, and Post beat Perryton on Nov. 23.

Center Brett Clements of the Hereford Whiteface football team was named to the all-District 3-5A offensive first team. Four of his teammates were named to the seconds teams-wide receiver Bobby Baker, tight end Doug Watts and offensive guard Casey Smith on offense and defensive back Freddie Gamboa on defense.

Hereford High School also had several players receive honorable mention: defensive tackle Adam Olivarez, linebacker Curtis Cotten, free safety Rodney Torres, cornerback Patrick Phibbs, offensive guard Danny DelToro, quarterback Stefan Hacker, and fullback Allen Dudding.

Varsity basketball teams at Hereford High School opened the season on Nov. 19 at Levelland. The Whiteface boys rallied in the fourth quarter, outscoring Levelland 15-7 and edging the Lobos 49-47. The HHS varsity girls suffered a 74-44 loss to Levelland in their season opener.

The other HHS basketball team, the sophomore boys, defeated Plainview 54-46 in their season opener on Nov. 21.

The first annual All-Mule Rodeo was held at the Cowboy Country Club on Saturday, Nov. 23. The individual winning the most events was a 72-year-old competitor, Grady Pierce, who won the barrel racing, poles and hide race events. Ben Pierce was also a winner in one individual event, steer stopping, and two team events, team roping and

A team known as the Dinkers won the YMCA girls' volleyball league championship by defeating the Spiketts in a three-game title series. Basketball tournaments for junior high school girls' teams were held at three Hereford school gyms on Nov. 22-23. Winners of the tournaments were Canyon Purple, ninth grade; Valley View, eighth grade; and Canyon Purple, seventh grade.

Placings by Hereford schools included La Plata, fourth place in both the seventh and ninth grade tournaments, La Plata eighth grade, third; and Stanton eighth grade, fourth.

The Hereford High School varsity girls' basketball team used a fastbreaking third quarter to score 20 points and defeat Tascosa 44-32 in a District 3-5A opener. Emma Gonzales scored 10 points in that quarter, and Natalie Sims led all scorers, helping boost Hereford to its victory.

DECEMBER Hereford defeated Odessa 63-55 in a first-round game of the Amarillo varsity boys' basketball tournament, but lost two close games to Tascosa and El Paso Bowie during the second day of the tournament.

Children as young as three years old participated in the Hereford YM-CA tumbling meet on Dec. 7. Eleven children from Hereford and Friona, representing the Hereford YMCA, won first place blue ribbons.

Junior high school boys' basketball tournaments were held in Hereford on Dec. 5-7. La Plata won the ninth grade tournament, and Stanton placed fourth.

The winner of the eighth grade boys' basketball tournament was Plainview Red, and La Plata defeated Stanton in the consolation game. Canyon Purple won the seventh grade tournament, with Dimmitt defeating Stanton in the third place game.

It was La Plata versus Stanton in junior high boys' and girls' basketball on Monday, Dec. 9. La Plata won all six ball games.

YMCA 'co-ed church volleyball league championship matches were played in mid-December, with St. Anthony's III winning the "A" division and Community Church winning the "B" division.

The Hereford High School girls' basketball team defeated Lubbock High 47-41 and beat Caprock 52-41 to up its district record to 3-0 before suffering two straight district losses to Plainview and Amarillo High.

The Whiteface boys' varsity lost its district opener 62-56 to Caprock on Dec. 13, and finished its December district schedule at 0-3 after losing to Plainview and Amarillo High.

A former Hereford High School athlete earned his fourth straight letter at the University of Texas at Arlington. Don DeLozier was one of five seniors who lettered each of his college football seasons.

The Hereford High School varsity girls' basketball team completed the first half of their season with a bang, defeating Clovis, N.M. 46-45 when Emma Gonzales hit a last-second shot.

Clovis held a 45-44 lead with six seconds left. Hereford, which gained possession of the ball with seconds left, after a traveling violation by Clovis, had no timeouts left. But Clovis called a timeout and the HHS the bride's cousin, Bill Haseloff. Presenting gifts during the ceremony were the groom's parents and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs.

James Pavlicek. Elizabeth Baca served her sister as matron of honor and the groom's brother, Dominic James Diller, was best man.

Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Emily Diller, and Suzanne Butcher and Pam Blackwood.

Groomsmen were Gary Mitchell, Richard Cochran and Jeff Finnegan.

Escorting guests were the bride's brothers, Jason and James Edd Andrews; the groom's cousin, Steven Diller; and Robert Hefley.

Programs were distributed by the bride's cousins, Gary John Haseloff of Farwell and Lynn Andrews of La Russel, Mo.

The bride's niece, Suzanne Baca, daughter of Elizabeth and Audie Baca, was flower girl and the fell to cathedral-length and was dotgroom's cousin, Nathan Diller, son of ted in seed pearls. Ralph and Shelly Diller, was ring bearer.

Candles were lit by Chris Urbanczyk, son of Tony and Loretta Urbanczyk, and Bobby Backus, son of Fritz and Connie Backus.

Kellie Campbell of Amarillo vocalized "Walk Hand and Hand With Me" and "The Lord's Prayer." The groom's uncle, Robert McFadden of Durant, Ok. was organist. Preludes included "Jesu, The Joy Of Man's Desiring" and "Sheep May Safely Graze." "Trumpet Voluntary" was the processional and "The Wedding March" was the recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a formal gown of candlelight silk cloud satin designed with a fitted basque bodice and slightly dropped pointed waistline.

Her portrait scoop neckline was entirely edged in seed pearls. Her long fitted Juliet sleeves tapered to points over her ring finger and were edged in pearls.

Scrolls and floral patterns were reembroidered over the entire bodice front and back and repeated on the fullness of the sleeves. Tiny crystals were sewn on the center of each flower.

Her full skirt fell to a bordered hemline which was also outlined in seed pearls. The skirt swept into back fullness cascading into a full cathedral-length train.

The bride wore a matching Juliet cap completely beaded in pearls and crystals and enhanced by a selffabric silk flower and ruching across the front. Seed pearls formed loops on her hair down the side. Her veil

She wore an heirloom garter belonging to Mrs. Bob Simpson and carried a rosary given to her by the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Marvin Diller. She also carried a white lace handkerchief which the groom's mother carried in her wedding.

Her cresent bridal bouquet consisted of gardenias, lilly-of-thevalley and lemon leaves. Lilly-of-thevalley cascaded down the satin picot streamers.

The bride's jewelry included her mother's strand of pearls and matching pearl earrings.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore red satin tealength dresses fashioned with fitted bodices, scoop necklines and puffed sleeves cuffed just above the elbow. The skirts were full and gathered. Matching red satin pumps completed their ensembles.

They carried cascades of red pixie carnations with white crystal poms and asparagus fern.

The flower girl was attired in a red satin gown designed with a high closely fitted neckline and puff sleeves. Her fitted waist was adorned and joined a full satin skirt featuring a side draped overskirt caught with flowers on either side. Her hooped under skirt fell to a deep ruffled hemline.

She carried a lace trimmed basket with satin streamers which was filled with red carnations, baby's breath and lilly-of-the-valley.

The groom's mother wore a streetlength beige silk dress with a blouson bodice, rounded collar and pleated jacket. The skirt was straight and featured back pleats.

The bride's mother was attired in a tea-length dress of silk and satin. Both women wore corsages of white roses and lilly-of-the-valley.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Robert Zerrel Haseloff of Jackson, Miss., invited guests to register at the reception held in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Mrs. Billy Haseloff of Childress, the bride's cousin, served cake, and punch and coffee were poured by Donna Holland of Vernon, also a cousin of the bride.

Other members of the houseparty included the bride's cousin, Jan Briones of Amarillo, and Rhonda Campsey of Texline.

At the reception, the bride's 10 foot table was draped with a floor-length white crepe cloth and swags with matching material roses were used as a valance. Gold appointments further enhanced the table as did the bride's bouquet which was used as a centerpiece. The bride's three-tiered formal white cake was covered with sculptured glacial blossoms and roses and rosebuds decorated the middle layer. Garlands and scallops trimmed the sides and bells, garlands and shell borders decorated the bottom layer. Antique angels, belonging to the bride, topped the cake as did a confection cluster of bridal trumpets, petunias, stephanotis and forget-meknots. Cluster of lilly-of-the-valley and sugar coated doves also adorned the cake.

quilted tailored valances: Large formal arrangements of red gladioli and white mums were used as centerpieces on both tables. Appointments included a gold coffee urn and flatwear.

The guests were served fresh fruit from a large gold compote and other entrees were served from the buffet. The groom's large German chocolate cake and the bridal cake were made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. George Zetzsche.

Rice bags were distributed by Wendy Haseloff of Childress, the bride's cousin, and Belinda Haseloff of Jackson, Miss., also a cousin of the bride. They carried white lace baskets trimmed in red carnations, satin and lilly-of-the-valley.

Leaving for a honeymoon to Cuchara, Colo., the bride wore a red velvet suit with matching accessories.

The couple will make their home in Canyon.

The bride is a May graduate of West Texas State University where she received a B.A. degree in ag economics. She is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority, Alpha Zeta Honor Fraternity and Student Senate.

The bridegroom received his B.S. degree in ag business from WTSU.

Out-of-town guests included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Anton Haseloff of Rockport, Tx.

Other towns represented included Amarillo, Canyon, Omaha, Neb., Skellytown, Pampa, Wichita Falls, Durant, Ok., Portland, Tx., Spearville, Ks., Texline, Farwell, La Russel, Mo., Vernon, Rockport, Jackson, Miss., Lockett, Tx., Clovis, N.M. and Childress.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Diller entertained the wedding party, families and out-of-town guests at the rehearsal dinner Friday following the wedding rehearsal.

Tables were decorated with individual floral arrangements of red carnations and mums placed on dollies. The wedding couple presented their attendants with remembrances of the occasion.

The bride was feted with several pre-nuptial events.

She was honored with a bridal shower held in the parish hall of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Texline. Silver appointments were used on a lace cloth.

Hostesses for the shower included Barbara Campsey, Bonneetab

DEAR MARY — A strong mothball odor is really tough to get rid of. Here are some things to try:

First, air the closet thoroughly. Training a fan into it for a few hours may help somewhat. Remove all the clothes and other items in the closet and air them in the sun.

Wash out the closet with a mild bleach and detergent solution (a few drops of liquid dish detergent and onefourth cup chlorine bleach to one-to two-quarts water). Rinse thoroughly, then wipe down the walls and shelves with a 50/50 mixture of white vinegar with a 50/50 mixture of white vinegar and water. Let dry thoroughly before putting anything back in the closet. Make up spice pomanders and spice bags and hang these in the closet to re-place the mothball odor with a lovely, spicy aroma. To make a spice bag, mix sweet spices such as cloves, all-spice and cinnamon sticks and pack them into little muslin or cheesecloth bags (you, can tie squares of fabric with string or thread to make bags). Hang these bags in the closet. Mix a teaspoon of vanilla extract in a cup of water and wipe the solution outo the shelves. The vanilla aroma is very good for covering up other more Wynessa Wheeler; and telephone committee, Audrey Powell and Mildred Lewis.

New officers were installed by Dottie Darden, installing officer; Bea Hutson, installing chaplain; and Bonnie Hartley, installing marshal.

New hostesses for the year were selected. Bea Hutson will serve as hostess at the March 31 meeting with Bonnie Hartley as co-hostess; Ludie Greeson hostess Sept. 29 with Dorothy Noland as co-hostess; Lucille Naylor hostess Dec. 29 with Bea Noland as co-hostess.

The meeting was closed with the group singing "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

Refreshments were served by Rusher and Greeson to the 10 members present.

Golden Spread Paper Airplane Contest set

Since that first memo found its way into the first in-basket, there have been paper airplanes.

Have paper airplane designs in schools, universities and businesses of the Golden Spread kept pace with technological advances in the aeronautics industry? And, more importantly, will they fly?

"Flip, Flop & Fly: The Greater Golden Spread Paper Airplane Contest," sponsored by the Don Harrington Discovery Center in Amarillo, will answer these questions and give residents of the Golden Spread a chance to win an airplane glider ride and other prizes.

"We want everyone in the area to take the time to crease a piece of paper - maybe that test someone failed or that rejected budget request - into their own paper airplane design and enter it," said Melody Parker, director of communications.

Deadline for entries is Sat. Feb. 15, 1986. Winners will be announced Mon. Feb. 24 and entries will be exhibited at the Discovery Center through March 30.

LIGHTS OUT AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Signs saying "last one out turn out the lights" may not be necessary in the future, accor-ding to Energy User News. The publication reports development

Entries will be tested by a team of experts and judged for time aloft, distance flown and aesthetic design. Airplanes will compete in professional or nonprofessional categories.

Professionals include employees, teachers and graduate students in science, aeronautics, engineering, architecture, design and related fields. Nonprofessional encompasses everyone else - elementary; secondary and university students, adults and parent-child teams.

Prizes for 1st, 2nd, 3rd and Honorable Mentions will be awarded in each category. First place winners receive airplane glider rides, DHDC memberships, tickets to Theatre-360 "To Fly," certificates and entry in the International Paper Airplane Hereford High School and attended Contest. Second place winners receive DHDC memberships, tickets to Theatre-360 "To Fly" and certificates. Third place winners receive "To Fly" tickets and certificates and Honorable Mentions, , certificates.

Glider rides have been donated by Wayne Schmitt of Miller National Corp. in Amarillo, an experienced glider pilot.

All entries must be made of paper. Glue and cellophane tape may be used only for bonding purposes, not to add weight. Paper la reinforcement is allowed. No propellants, launching systems, etc. will be accepted. The entry form is the AIRPLANE, properly folded, with name, address, phone number, category and any special throwing instructions written clearly on the plane. Planes missing the required information will be disqualified. Entries become property of the Discovery Center and may be used in subsequent releases. Send entries to: Greater Golden Spread Paper Airplane Contest, Don Harrington Discovery Center, 1200 Streit Drive, Amarillo, Tx. 79106. The Don Harrington Discovery Center is a full-service sciencetechnology museum and planetarium serving the Golden Spread.

Bolf, Duggan vows spoken in Amarillo

Glenda Cheryl Bolf of Amarillo became the bride of Willis Dean Duggan of Route 4 during an early evening wedding ceremony Saturday in Kingswood United Methodist Church in Amarillo.

Tom N. Mills, pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.J. Bolf of Amarillo and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Duggan of Route 4.

Two arrangements of white gladioli and yellow carnations ent-wined with baby's breath decorated the front church altar.

LaRue Bolf of Amarillo served her sister as maid of honor and Dusty Lorah of Amarillo was best man.

Escorting guests were the groom's cousins, Gary and Darrell Blevins.

Sheri Adams of Hereford sang "You Light Up My Life" accompanied by organist, Arlis Hamilton of Amarillo. A cassette recording of "My Only Love" by the Statler Brothers was also played during the. ceremony.

The bride wore a tea-length chiffon ivory dress with lace accenting the hem. The long-sleeved overlay bodice was designed with lace and accented with a long silk bow.

Fresh miniature yellow carnations and silk lily-of-the valley flowers were worn in her hair. She carried a cascade arrangement of fresh miniature yellow carnations and silk lily-of-the-valley adorned with lace and white satin ribbon streamers.

As a good luck piece, she wore her maternal grandmother's lavalier necklace.

The maid of honor was attired in a long sleeve yellow and miniature black checked dress fashioned with a tie belt. She carried a cascading bouquet of flowers which coordinated with the bride's bouquet.

At the reception held in the church, guests registered from a table decorated by the couple's wedding book, their pictures and a bud vase holding yellow carnations.

Assisting at the reception were the groom's cousins, Sheri Adams and Carol Blevins.

The bride's three-tiered spice cake with ivory icing was topped with silk flowers. Decorating the table were yellow punch and an arrangement of white spider mums accented with candles.

The chocolate groom's cake was made in the shape of an open Bible with the inscriptions "Let Us Walk In The Light Of His Love" and "Glenda and Willis".

The bride left the reception in her wedding dress. The couple will make their home at Route 5 in Hereford.

The bride, a 1977 graduate of Tascosa High School in Amarillo, is a 1979 graduate of Amarillo College. She previously was employed by State Farm Claims Office in Amarillo and had worked for five years as a secretary and administrative secretary at Diamond Shamrock Exploration Co. in Amarillo.

The bridegroom, a 1973 graduate of Hereford High School, attended West Texas State University and is presented engaged as a farmer/rancher outside of Hereford.

Ann Landers

Don't be an 'Indian giver'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am desperate. My good friend has terminal cancer. Through the years I have given her collector's plates for Christmas. Naturally they have increased in value.

I don't know the best way to ask her for them.

Hurry your answer since she can't live much onger .-- SINCERELY SENTIMENTAL

DEAR S.S.: Sentimental? You could have fooled me. Gifts belong to the person to whom you gave them. You have no right to ask that they be returned. To do so would be incredibly gross. Consider the possibility that your friend may have promised those plates to a daughter or grandchild.

I'll say one thing for you: You came up with a problem I had never heard before in all the years of writing this column. I've run into all kinds of people in this space, but few as calculating, crass and vulgar as you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 22 years old and I have been going with a 25-year-old man (who I'll call Steve) for eight months. He asked me to marry him.

Steve is intelligent, generous and very attractive. I want very much to be his wife.

The problem is this: Three years ago he fathered a child by a woman he went with in college. I know little about their relationship except that she was in love with him and wanted to get married. Steve did not. His parents are very close to the woman and are helping her raise their grandchild.

Steve is supporting his daughter but seldom sees her. If I ask questions about the child or her mother he becomes upset and says he doesn't want to talk about it.

Ann, I love the man, but this side of his character disturbs me. It pains me to see him turning his back on his own little girl I cannot help but wonder what kind of father he will be to our children.

I am trying to decide if I should go see the mother of his child. Much as I want to marry Steve, I feel too many things are unresolved. Can you help me sort this out? Call me-SHARON, NO CITY OR STATE PLEASE

DEAR SHARON: I see nothing to be gained by calling on the young woman. In fact, it might cause her a good deal of pain and I suspect she has had enough already.

Teen suicide program scheduled for Tuesday

Esther Quine, director of the Suicide Prevention Center in Amarillo, will be the guest speaker for a teen suicide program Tuesday sponsored by the eight grade Camp Fire group.

The public program will be at 7 p.m. at the Camp Fire Lodge.

Quine is a member of the American Association of Suicidology and has served on the Mental Health Advisory Committee for the Texas Department of Mental Health-Mental Retardation. She has 15 years experience in the field of suicidology. Recent statistics show that suicide is the second leading cause of death for youth with 18 young people a day taking their lives. (Accidental death is the first cause of death.) For every completed suicide, it is estimated that there are about 150 attempts. Quine says suicide threats and contemplations should always be taken seriously because there is no particular "type" of person who commits suicide, although there are some signals. Those include depression, erratic behavior or personality changes, and sudden efforts to get one's affairs in order, such as giving away possessions.

Give the relationship plenty of time before you make a final decision. Urge Steve to get some counsel-

He has not come to terms with his responsibilities toward the child and probably has a good deal of guilt about his former sweetheart. Unless resolved, these problems could louse up your marriage.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your "expert" gave you bum counsel in response to the question, "Which surgeon general determined that cigarette smoking is hazardous to our health?"

Her answer dealt with the warning on cigarette packages. The surgeon general who deserves the credit was Luther Terry, who served from 1961 to 1965.

In the interest of accuracy and as a matter of fairness, please set the record straight.-CREED BLACK, PUBLISHER, LEXINGTON HERALD-LEADER

There are some tricks that decorators and designers use to acheive a "trompe l'oeil" (French for fool the eye). Select furniture with legs. Sofas and chairs that are solid to the floor prevent the eye from going beyond them. Because of this, do not cover chair legs with skirts. Choose chairs with slatted instead of solid backs. Look for objects d'art in glass or see-throughh plastic. Even a/large coffee table, if it is glass, will not take any visual space. Keep fabrics on furniture in tone with the walls of the room. Use mirrors. Even one well-placed mirror can make a room look bigger and brighter. Position a sofa placed at a 45 degree angle across a corner will eliminate boxiness in a small, square room.

Heater fuel line fractured gasoline heater fuel line was fractured on the plane that crashed in northeast Texas on New Year's Eve, killing singer Rick Nelson and six others, federal aviation investigators said

On Nelson plane

But National Transportation Safety Board chairman Jim Burnett said Friday it's unknown whether that fuel line ruptured before or after the plane crashed.

He said the cause of the crash remains unknown, although the head of a private air transportation safety group blames the 26-year-old heater for causing the fire, which led to the crash.

At a news conference Friday in nearby Texarkana, Ark., Burnett also said federal regulations require inspections of such heaters every 500 hours of flying time. But he said that so far, investigators have been unable to find maintenance records confirming those inspections.

Pressed further by reporters about the safety of the heaters, Burnett replied, "We are not here to do analysis."

Earlier Friday, Wayne Williams, president of the National Transportation Safety Association based in Dania, Fla., said elimination of gasoline heaters on aircraft was one of several safety steps recommended by the Airline Pilot's Association more than 30 years ago.

Williams said such heaters are still used on many DC-3s, like the Nelson plane. Investigators found a bill of sale confirming Nelson had bought the plane last May 2.

He and his band were on their way from Guntersville, Ala., to Dallas where they were to perform in a New DE KALB, Texas (AP) - A Year's Eve concert when the plane crashed at De Kalb, Texas, near the Texas-Oklahoma-Arkansas border. Only pilot Brad Rank and co-pilot Kenneth Ferguson survived.

> Burnett has said Rank and Ferguson will be crucial in determining the cause of the crash. While the men's medical condition is improving, they have been unable to answer questions so far.

Early today, Rank, 34, was in good condition in St. Michael Hospital in Texarkana, and Ferguson, 40, was in fair and improving condition in the University of Arkansas Medical Center at Little Rock. Both suffered second-and third-degree burns and smoke inhalation.

The seven victims died from smoke inhalation and burns, not necessarily from the crash impact, according to the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office.

Williams said "it's damned interesting, and more than a little sad" that in 1947 ALPA had recommended changing the old gasoline heaters. but they are still in use today.

Williams' consumer watchdog group, founded in 1981, has several advisory board members representing aviation industry unions. As federal officials continued to search for clues at the crash site, Burnett said there was an unexplained hole on the right engine propeller, and the cause is unknown.

He also said the pilot had a "slight problem" starting the left engine the day of the crash, but it started up after mechanics worked about an hour on a clogged primer line.

But he said that would not have indicated any serious problem.

Memorial services for Nelson will be at 3 p.m. Monday at Church of the Hills at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in the Hollywood Hills, Nelson's publicist Oscar Arshlanian said Friday.

Arshlanian said the family has requested that in lieu of flowers, donations be sent to the Ozzie Nelson Memorial Cancer Fund at St. Joseph Medical Center in the Los Angeles suburb of Burbank.

High frequency cries mean plants want water

WASHINGTON (AP) - If scientists persist, you may be awakened in the middle of the night by the cries of a thirsty cauliflower wanting a drink from the garden sprinkler.

The Agriculture Department says researchers are already strapping tiny microphones to growing plants, listening to unique sounds made by plants when they need watering.

Eventually, according to a report by the department's Agricultural Research Service, farmers may be able to tell exactly when crops need to be irrigated, thereby saving water and energy by providing the right amount at the right time.

Dr. Edwin L. Fiscus, a USDA plant pathologist at Fort Collins, Colo., has been listing to corn plants for two years, using microphones and ultrasensitive electronic equipment to record "high-frequency popping sounds" emitted by the plants.

The sounds are in the 100-kilohertz range, more than five times the upper limit of what is audible to humans. A kilohertz is 1,000 hertz, the international unit of frequency.

Fiscus monitors only the acoustics of certain cells, those that make up the xylem or water tubes of a plant. They are the pipes that carry water and nutrients from roots to leaves.

When there is adequate water in tubes under tension. If the soil lacks enough water, the tension in the tubes becomes too great and the water tubes fracture.

"It's the minute, high-frequency noise of these fractures that the sound equipment detects," Fiscus said.

Air pockets form in the water tubes when they fracture. If enough water is available in the soil, some plants refill their tubes overnight, and by the following day, water and dissolved nutrients again flow to the leaves.

Without refilling, the tubes remain empty and unable to transport water, he said. At that point, the plants wilt.

According to Fiscus, the number of fractures or "pops" appear to be related to just how much the plant is stressed, a clue that it is time to irrigate.

Fiscus said that some farmers, like home gardeners, sometimes apply water to their plants after they notice wilting. Although plants usually recover from this stress, their growth and eventual yield already may have been reduced. Other growers prevent such stress by applying too much water.

The research is being conducted in cooperation with Dr. Melvin T. Tyree, a biophysicist at the Universi-

Other noises come from the rustling of leaves in a breeze and the bending of stalks.

We didn't want to record these noises, so the equipment was designed to operate at much higher frequencies, where only the sounds created by the breaking water tubes are detected," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) Preliminary figures show that U.S. farm debt leveled off in 1985 and in some major categories may actually have declined, according to Agriculture Department economists. Not counting what families owe on homes, furnishings and other household items, total farm debt "was likely" to have been about $198.9 billion at the end of 1985, the same as on Dec. 31, 1984, the department's Economic Research Service said in the January issue of Agricultural Outlook magazine.

Excluding price support loans made by the department's Commodity Credit Corp., 1985 farm debt was estimated to have dropped between 2 percent and 6 percent from the 1984 level, the report said. Real estate and non-real estate debt each declined about 4 percent.

"However, a surge in CCC loan activity during the third and fourth 1944," the report said. quarters of 1985 offset declines in the other debt categories," the report said. "Cash grain farms, which account for about 25 percent of all farms, hold about one-third of all farm debt. Meat animal farms and ranches account for roughly another third."

Farm debt leveled off in 1985

The analysis, which was actually prepared in mid-December for publication in this month's magazine, said that because of last year's near-record total crop output, many crop farmers "had enough cash to meet current obligations and pay down some of their debt."

For example, it said, farm real estate debt probably dropped to a range of $96 billion to $101 billion, compared with $102.9 billion in 1984. "If the forecast figures are correct, 1985 saw the largest year-toyear decline in real estate debt since

-010

Federal land banks, which are part of the financially crunched Farm Credit System, probably realized the largest declines in loans and a reduced share of the market. Life insurance companies and individual lenders also may have lost market share in 1985.

"On the other hand, the Farmers Home Administration and commercial banks increased their share of outstanding real estate loans," the report said.

Non-real estate debt, excluding CCC loans, ranged from $82 billion to $86 billion in 1985, compared with $87.3 billion in 1984.

"Again the Farmers Home Administration likely gained significant loan volume and market share at the expense of other lenders, especially production credit associations and commercial banks," the report said.

Announcement of Presley's appointment was made in a statement by Elbert Harp, executive director of the two sorghum organizations. According to the statement, Presley will oversee activities of market development, research and education and will be involved in legislative activities of National GSPA. He assumed the duties of his new office on January 2, 1986.

Presley grew up on a Texa sorghum farm and received a degree in Animal Business from Texas Tech University at Lubbock in 1980. Since graduation, he has been employed in agricultural banking, most recently as vice-president and loan officer of Security State Bank and Trust Company of Ralls, Texas.

Winter wheat belt edging farther north

WASHINGTON (AP) - New planting techniques and improved varieties are helping the winter wheat belt edge farther north, a development that U.S. grain experts are beginning to watch carefully.

For example, Canada's winter wheat acreage has increased 16-fold in the last four years, from fewer than 50,000 acres in 1981 to 350,000 acres in 1984 and more than 800,000 acres in 1985, according to Agriculture Department estimates.

The winter wheat area, however, still represents only about 2.4 percent of Canada's 34 million acres of wheat this year. But the trend has started to alert a few commodity watchers.

"We're aware of it," Carl Schwensen, executive vice president of the National Association of Wheat Growers said Monday in a telephone interview. "But we haven't performed any analysis of what the impact may be or whether the trend will continue."

Suppose the trend to winter wheat does continue to grow in Canada?

"In that case, we definitely would have a big concern, if we saw a shift of that magnitude," Schwensen said. "It would mean more competition from Canada" in selling hard, red winter wheat to foreign buyers, the chief kind grown in the United States.

As a rule-of-thumb, wheat planted in the fall and harvested the following summer has larger yields. But it can die in the bitter cold winters of the north. So, farmers use wheat that is suited for planting in the spring, to be harvested later the same year.

Kansas, for example, is the leading U.S. wheat producer - winter wheat. In North Dakota and Minnesota, it's mainly durum and other spring-planted wheat. Canada's crop is mostly planted in the spring.

Scientists have been working for years on hardier varities of winter wheat to find just the right kind that would stand up to sustained temperatures of 20, 30 or 40 degrees below zero - the kind of winters that are found in spring wheat's primary domains, including the Soviet Union's huge area between the Urals and Western Siberia.

Besides improvements in plant breeding, there have been some recent changes in the way winter wheat is grown. One change involves the use of "no-till" practices, a modern version of "stubble-mulch" farming used for decades by dry land wheat farmers in semi-arid parts of the Great Plains.

The basic idea is to leave stubble from previous crops and other plant residue relatively undisturbed on the surface of a field, so that the soil is protected from wind and moisture preserved.

According to one Agriculture Department analysis, research at Washington State University in Pullman, Wash., "is changing how dry land wheat is being grown as far south as Texas and California" by demonstrating the advantages of notill production.

"The new plowless methods also are pushing the range of winter wheat into the inhospitable climates of North Dakota and Saskatchewan," the report said. "Northern growers can now exploit winter wheat's inherent ability to out-yield spring wheat by 20 percent.'

Researchers at Pullman say that yields of no-till wheat can be competitive with those obtained with conventional tillage, in which crop residue is plowed into the soil. Other benefits cited include:

-Curbing the rate of soil loss in the highly erodible Palouse region, which extends from southeastern Washington to northwestern Idaho, from as much as 20 tons per acre to less than two tons.

-Reducing herbicide chemical use by up to 70 percent.

-Lowering fuel bills by reducing tractor trips to work a field. -Reducing a producer's capital costs by requiring fewer pieces of field equipment. Robert Papendick, a scientist with is planting winter wheat in paired or "skipped" rows with an improved no-till planter.

In this concept, seed is placed in two rows five inches apart, with 15 inches of unplanted space between the next set of row pairs. By comparison, conventional planting involves spacing rows of seed at regular intervals of about seven inches, he said.

First, a band of fertilizer is placed four inches below the soil surface. located so that it will feed the primary root of the wheat plant as it enters the critical "three-leaf" stage when growth is the fastest.

Wheat plants in paired rows benefit from what scientists call the 'off-row" light effect, Papendick said. Farmers know that plants in USDA's Agricultural Research Ser- outside rows grow best, and in this vice in Pullman, said one of the keys system all rows are outside rows.

and is a to said wat to said an all the Specially adapted drills for pairedrow planting of wheat in no-till operations stem from cooperative research that was started in 1974, involving ARS and experiment stations of Washington, Idaho and Oregon. More recently, the work included a private company, Yielder Drill Inc. of Spokane, Wash., the report said.

"The drills simultaneously plant seeds and apply a full season's fertilizer in one pass across a field," the report said. "In doing so, they achieve excellent penetration through thick layers of crop residues."

According to the agency's report, efforts are being made by some Canadians to promote winter wheat and to set up a plant to manufacture grain drills designed to handle no-till planting.

FmHA foreclosure

notices going out

WASHINGTON (AP) - It will be the third week of January, at least, before the Farmers Home Administration gets notices in the hands of farm borrowers, telling them what they must do to avoid foreclosure on overdue loans.

The notices and procedures were announced on Nov. 1 by the, Agriculture Department agency. The letters, called notice of intent to take adverse action, go to delinquent borrowers and include how much each was in arrears as of Dec. 31.

As of last Sept. 30, nearly one-third of the FmHA's 270,000 borrowers were overdue in their payments.

The agency handled about $5.9 billion in farm loans last fiscal year. Of that, $4.7 billion was for operating loans, money farmers need to meet seasonal and day-to-day expenses.

Joe O'Neill, a spokesman for the agency, said Thursday that he had no exact estimate of how many farm borrowers will be getting notices later this month. The procedure, he said, is not a sudden move by the agency.

A little over two years ago, a federal court ordered a halt to new FmHA foreclosure proceedings until the agency came up with a program to inform borrowers what choices they had in order to avoid foreclosures.

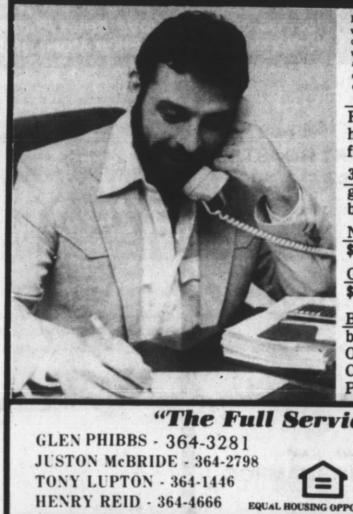

The final rules were announced on Nov. 1, including an announcement that the notices would be sent out in January. Each borrower will be informed of the amount of his delinquent account as of Dec. 31, and told of the choices available, such as loan rescheduling and deferral.

Borrowers then will have 30 days to notify FmHA which action they want to pursue.

Foreclosures by the agency were not halted by the court order. Those that were in progress were allowed to proceed. During the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, FmHA foreclosed on 89 farms and shared foreclosures with other lenders on 703 others, making a total of 792.
