T merger backers in Austin today

AUSTIN (AP) - Backers of a proposed consolidation of West Texas State University with the Texas A&M system say their presence at a committee meeting today should show the plan has widespread support.

About 120 people from the Panhandle paid $200 each to fly to Austin on a chartered jet to attend this morning's meeting of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board. The board will hear the recommendation of a committee on whether the merger should proceed. The board is scheduled to vote on the matter Friday.

Proponents say a merger would strengthen 6,000-student West Texas State and bring more research dollars to the campus in Canyon, 16 miles south of Amarillo.

Until recently, it seemed that bringing the proposal before the Coordinating Board was just a formality. The regents of both schools and the Legislature had approved the plan.

But last week, the Coordinating Board's staff of advisers recommended against the merger, saying it would be premature. The report, written by Texas Higher Education Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth, said it would make more sense to merge West Texas State with Lubbock-based Texas Tech, though

'We're not going to go down there bearing signs or anything," to listen."

The bill's co-sponsor, state Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, said the Coordinating Board should beware

Conservation plan aims to save playas

landowners are crucial to a plan for saving an estimated 25,000 playa lakes for bird habitat in five states, officials

An alarming decline in bird populations and shrinking wildlife habitat prompted the public-private Plava Lakes Joint Venture unveiled Wednesday, according to officials.

Playa lakes are basins that flood temporarily and serve as a crossroads for millions of ducks, geese, swan, cranes, bald eagles, and other birds during their regular fall and spring migrations across the United States. Numerous mammals also need the playas in the dry southwest.

"Our main goal in the joint venture is to work with landowners and if necessary to provide incentives to keep the playa lakes wet," Bruce Morrison, head of the habitat section with the New Mexico Game and Fish Department, said Wednesday.

About 99 percent of the playa lakes are privately owned, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Incentives will include buying water rights from landowners to irrigate the playa lakes, particularly during the Studies by state and federal wildlife officials have found duck populations decreasing and their wetland habitats disappearing. According to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, duck populations are 24 percent below the average recorded from 1955-1988.

The $1.3 million venture announced Wednesday is designed to "secure, preserve and enhance vital waterfowl migrating and breeding grounds" in lakes region of Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado and Kansas, The international agreement's purpose according to the plan.

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) - Private the wildlife agencies of the five states involved, the National Wildlife Federation and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

> Under the plan, Phillips will donate $125,000 annually through 1994, which will be matched collectively by the five states. It will involve buying land and water rights, as well as working with private land owners in the playa lakes region, officials said.

"We've been looking for a project that wasn't research, wasn't paper studies, but was actually getting something done," said John Whitmire, a Phillips vice president.

The playas are as small as onehalf acre to as large as 68 acres and can range in depth from a few feet to 20 feet, Morrison said.

Ducks Unlimited, a conservation group, will contribute an undetermined amount for the playa lakes region and an additional $625,000 for waterfowl enhancement in Canada, under the

"The populations of many migrating waterfowl have been dramatically reduced because industrialization, urbanization and agricultural development have altered the natural habitat," said John Turner, director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. ### 49er wide receivers a problem for Broncos

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - That blur with the ball, prancing into the end zone, is Jerry Rice. Or is it John Taylor?

Does it really matter?

Not if you play cornerback or safety for the Denver Broncos. Rice might be an All-Pro and the game's most dangerous receiver, but he ranks even with Taylor in the minds of members of Denver's secondary.

"They're fast, quick and strong," cornerback Tyrone Braxton said. "They are great receivers, one as good as the other, as dangerous as the other. 'But it's not an overmatch. I have the heart and that's what counts."

It helps, but as hard as Braxton tries, he'll have a tough time making up for the imbalance he has in facing Rice-Taylor. Tyrone's heart could be as big as Colorado, but can it negate the edge in skill held by San Francisco's receivers?

Nor will Wymon Henderson be any better matched with them at the other corner, despite his protestations.

"I can run with them," claimed Henderson, like Braxton a starter for the first time this year. "But my biggest asset is being able to tackle them. I'm strong at that, where others have missed.

"Something in their style makes them difficult to tackle. Why, I can't answer.

Rice can. "It's God-given," the most valuable player of last year's Super Bowl said. "But it's something you also have to keep working at. "I have pride in everything I do, whether it's laying bricks when I was a kid or playing football. So I want to do everything I can as well as I can."

If Rice and Taylor, who was a noshow for Wednesday's news conference, excel Sunday, the Bi oncos are in serious trouble. Rice (82 catches, 1,483 yards, 18.1 average, 10 touchdowns) and Taylor (60, 1,077, 18.0, 10) have torn apart better sets of cornerbacks than Denver has to offer.

"Most teams have been rolling up of us at the line, Rice said. "But we've been able to avoid that with success.

"If Denver gives us the deep ball, we'll go for it. If they let us take the underneath areas, we'll take them."

And pay a price for it, according to safeties Steve Atwater and Dennis Smith, who must offer plenty of help to the cornerbacks.

They're human. We're going to have to put our helmets on their receivers all day," said Atwater, a first-round draft choice last spring who solidified the secondary. "The main thing is to make the tackle. They are going to get some catches; you can't stop everything. We've just got to contain them."

"I try to hit receivers and running backs as hard as I can," Smith said. 'We've got to make them pay for making catches, make them think about them. Intimidation is part of my

Such talk and such tactics aren't likely to bother Rice or Taylor. Both are used to attempts to rough them up. Beaten defensive backs throughout the league can attest to that.

"As a defensive back, all you know is to hit," Rice said. "The receiver catches the ball and he gets hit.

"You have to let the defensive back know you're not intimidated, which is why John and I are known as good blocking receivers. You have to let them know you're here to play football, not just catch passes. The only opportunity to get them back is to block them. You have to establish yourself."

girls, marching bands, sparkling lights, rising riverboats, cartoon characters and fireworks - and all of it will be bigger and better than ever.

Obviously it has to be the Super Bowl halftime show.

"One of the big problems in this business is that everyone always expects you to top the last one. It has to be something new and different every time. If it isn't they'll say, 'Hey, I saw that already," "co-producer Ron Miziker said.

Miziker, who produced the show along with partner Dennis Despie, said this year's event will be spectacular.

Years Of Happiness" is a salute to New Orleans in a musical tribute to the South that also celebrates the 40th anniversary of the Charles Shulz's "Peanuts" comic strip.

The production features 1,500 performers, including 400 dancers, a 500-voice gospel choir, and a 500piece band made up of musicians from Southern University, Southwestern Louisiana and Nicholls State.

Doug Kershaw will fiddle for a Cajun hoedown, Irma Thomas will sing gospel songs, and Pete Fountain will play "When The Saints Go Marching In" atop a 125-foot-long, five-story-high replica of the riverboat Delta Queen.

The show, which was 2{ years in the making and will be seen in 47 countries, runs only 12 minutes, but for Miziker it adds up to 12 minutes

'The problem is that we have two halves of a football game on either side of the show. We have 4{ minutes to set up and 3( minutes to get everything off the field and cleared away. In this case, that includes removing a goal post and replacing it," Miziker said.

Working in an enclosed stadium like the Superdome meant no worries about rain, but offered its own set of problems, Miziker said.

"Fireworks, for instance, have to be set up differently. We wanted to go dark halfway through the show, but

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - It'll have found out it takes 20 minutes to turn a cast of thousands, stars, dancing the lights off and back on in the Superdome," he said.

The show also had to be designed to look good for those in the stadium as well as those watching on television. Miziker, who has won an Emmy and had three nominations, said making the event work for both required careful planning.

"For those in the Dome, it needs 'big and lots' to be impressive. For TV, as my old teacher used to tell me, three people on the screen at once is too many. We rehearse the televised part as carefully as the overall production. The camera crews have to really be on top of things for it to

Other than one dress rehearsal in the Superdome, the performers and 150-member stage crew rehearsed at a suburban high school. On game day, Miziker said they would dress at the school and be bused to the Dome during the first half of the game.

The costs of the show are hard to figure, Miziker said, since the nonstar performers and crew are volunteers.

"If we had to pay for all this, there's no way anyone could afford to put it on."

Miziker, who produced three other Super Bowl halftime shows, as well as numerous television events, said that for him the show is the reason they call it Super Sunday.

"They kid me about not even knowing what teams are playing," he said. "I look it as a great show booked in by a football game."

Denver QB responds to Bradshaw

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - You would think John Elway would have enough to worry about just matching up against San Francisco's Joe Montana, the best quarterback in the game today.

Instead, he spent part of his day Wednesday shadowboxing with Terry Bradshaw, one of the best passers of the past.

Elway, the Denver Broncos quarterback, fired back Wednesday after Bradshaw, the former Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback, suggested his younger counterpart was coddled by his coach, adoring fans and even the Elway said Bradshaw was jealous because of his salary and had been critical of him throughout his sevenyear NFL career.

"He can stick it in his ear," Elway

Asked to compare Elway and Montana, opponents in Sunday's Super Bowl, Bradshaw said, "The first thing I think of is Joe's got three Super Bowl rings. Elway is more concerned about promoting himself than winning Super Bowls. He's been babied. He hasn't won any championships and that's the bottom line.'

Elway admitted Wednesday that he is troubled by his 0-2 Super Bowl record. "To be the quarterback I want to be in my career, I've got to win this game," he said.

'He's making $2 million a year," Bradshaw said of Elway. "Hell, things don't bother you when you making $2 million a year. Wait until you get out and have to get a job. It will bother you then. You have to get tougher.

"John's problem is he's been babied - you know, babied by the city until this year and babied by the coach a little bit. It's just too easy. And you know what I went through in Pittsburgh. There's nothing worse than just getting hammered. You fight that stuff. I think John's got to get tougher."

Bronco coach Dan Reeves bristled at Bradshaw's criticism.

"Where did he say that?" Reeves asked.

Told it was during a beer company's promotional news conference, had a few too many."

Bradshaw, meanwhile, said Wednesday from his home in Roanoke, Texas, that he was surprised his remarks a day earlier had caused such a flap.

"Normally, when I leave (an appearance), I have a feeling when Reeves snapped, "I think he may have I've said something I shouldn't have said or something that might draw headlines. ...

> "It never crossed my mind anything was wrong, but then again, it's the Super Bowl," Bradshaw said. "Hype is hype, and obviously there's not a whole hell of a lot going on if they have to jump on my stuff."

Pat Riley had plenty of people to thank for his unprecedented run of coaching success - all the players he's had on the Los Angeles Lakers.

"The team is committed to many things; all of those things are about winning," Riley said Wednesday night after the Lakers beat Indiana 120-111 for his 500th coaching victory. "I will say that about my 300th, then 400th, 500th and even 600th - it's a great team.

Riley became the 13th coach in NBA history to win 500 games, and he did it much faster than any other coach - in 684 games. Don Nelson of Golden State achieved his 500th win in 817 games.

The defeat of the Pacers also assured Riley of his eighth All-Star coaching berth in nine years.

"I can't believe I've coached 700 or 800 games," Riley said. "Life flies. It seems like just yesterday, but versatility and depth are winning it for Magic Johnson led the Lakers with 32 points, including 15 in the fourth period and 26 in the second half.

"When a game is close, especially when you're on the road, there comes a point when I say, 'Hey, I've got to stretch it out now. I've got to take us from a two- or three-point lead to six or nine,' " Johnson said. "That's when I decided. I looked up and said, 'It's about that time.'

That's exactly the way Wednesday night's game ended.

The Lakers scored the first six points of the final period to take the lead for good, but the Pacers cut the deficit to 106-105 with 3:57 left after Mike Sanders tipped in a missed shot.

After a Lakers timeout, Byron Scott hit a 3-pointer, and Johnson made two free throws and followed up with a 3pointer of his own, giving the Lakers a 114-105 advantage with 1:52 left.

Indiana shot over 60 percent from the field for three quarters and rallied from a nine-point deficit to take an 89-88 lead after three periods on a shot at the buzzer by Reggie Miller, who led the Pacers with 27 points.

San Antonio's victory over Los Angeles tied its franchise record of 17 consecutive wins at home.

FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

Richard Gere and Andy Garcia. Normally, movies like Internal Affairs are not reviewed here. This film, however (a pure definition of misogyny) depicts such violence and debasement of women that it deserves comment. To illustrate: the story's good guy, in a restaurant scene in the movie, makes graphic sexual advances toward his wife, then hits her in the face with his fist with enough brute force to knock her across the room. He further publicly humiliates her by screaming obscenities and sexual accusations at her in front of all the restaurant customers. He is later greeted by her at home with great passion and love. One can only wonder what the writers and directors of this film really think of women, and worse, what these film makers are trying to tell other people about women. This is a sick film. It is also a dirty, dangerous film that is badly made. The movie is slow moving, fragmented and lacks credibility. There are plots and subplots that go nowhere. It purports to be about good cops and bad cops, about corruption on the police force (the title comes from the internal police department that investigated crooked police). It is

INTERNAL AFFAIRS: Starring mostly hard core pornography with scenes degrading women flashed subliminally throughout the story. Internal Affairs is a totally disgusting, totally unbelievable piece of trash that should be taken off the screen. It is filthy and (sadly) well-acted enough however, to fill the theaters with a certain number of jaded voyeurs. If you have a young person in your home who will possibly see this movie, then you should tell them first that women are not barnyard animals to be treated thus. Rated R.

JANUARY VIDEO RENTAL MOVIE RELEASES

James Coburn is a leading man of lithe movement with an easy grin and a relaxed manner that makes watching his spy spoof film grand fun. Both his Flint movies have been released this month.

OUR MAN FLINT: (1966) Starring James Coburn, Lee J. Cobb and Edward Mulhare. Imagine adventures as outrageous as James Bond's, combining "gut-wrenching" action with "gut-busting" comedy. The secret agent you're imagining is Flint. Derek Flint.

An evil organization called Galaxy is out to conquer the world with a truly awesome weapon - the weather. Only "our man Flint", from Z.O.W.I.E., can stop them. Yes, this is one of the countless James Bond take-offs; but, this one is amusing, especially on the video screen where the special effects seem just a little better played smaller. The story starts briskly then becomes a bit forced, but you will forgive its inadequacies. James Coburn makes a zesty hero and Gila Golan is a most attractive, beautifulbut-deadly, female agent (read thatdecorative). Would be rated PG-13. Three Boxes

IN LIKE FLINT: (1967) Also starring Lee J. Cobb and Andrew Duggan. An admittedly weak sequel to Our Man Flint, this time Flint must disarm a group of wealthy, powerful, enticing women (does Flint eyer meet any other kind?) The women have concocted a new recipe for world doom that is made up of nuclear weapons, advanced cosmetics and beauty salon hair dryers! (You've got to agree, just the thought of the premise is funny.) Would be rated

Now You're Cooking

BY KAY CRISMON Staff Writer

Being a mother, wife, college student and campaign volunteer leaves little free time for Nicolynn Cook.

The young homemaker has lived in Hereford for 11 years moving from Las Cruces N.M. She graduated from Hereford High School in 1984 and is the wife of Robby Cook, purchasing agent for Tri-State Chemicals Inc.

She is a member of the First Baptist Church and Nouville Ami Study Club. Her past employment was with Deaf Smith County Extension Service.

The Cooks have a 16-month-old daughter named Destin. family comes first. I feel it is important for mothers to be at home with their children if possible," she said. "Teaching a child good moral standards in this day and time will help them in a world of uncertainties. Parents play an important role in their children's lives because they are role models. I hope I can always set good Christian examples for my family," she added.

Cook attends West Texas State University three days a week. "I feel it is important to have an education and a degree. This is an opportunity for me that could become a career in the future," she said. Cook will be receiving her paralegal assistants degree in May.

"Law is interesting and intriguing. I have really enjoyed the classes and I may work after my children are grown," she added.

Recently she has been involved with helping her mother campaign for tax assessor-collector of Deaf Smith County. With Destin in her stroller, she goes door-to-door as she visits with prospective voters. Painting signs is another duty along with participating in the campaign meetings. "It is quite an experience and I have really been impressed with the people I have met," she said.

It's not uncommon to have microwave interference with television, radios and even some types of telephones.

If you hear buzzing in your phone when it and the microwave are being used at the same time, try moving the phone closer to the microwave or the microwave closer to the phone or facing it toward or away from the phone. If this affects the interference, it could be related to some "leaching" which always occurs from micro-

However, not to worry. Federal standards limit the amount of leaching from microwave ovens, and unless your microwave was purchased more than 15 years ago, you are not likely to be in danger, says the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers (AHAM).

Older microwaves have metal-tometal contact which may allow some leakage, but for the past 15 years or so years, microwaves have had "choke doors" which meet federal standards for leaching.

If you have an older microwave or are concerned about excess microwave leaching, AHAM says some local health departments offer free checkups for microwave leakage. You can also have it checked by a professional repair service, but it won't be free. -

Azerbaijanis expel leader; more attacks

MOSCOW (AP) - The Communist after troops poured into Baku last leadership of strife-torn Azerbaijan weekend and killed dozens of people. expelled its newly ousted leader during an all-night session, and Soviet troops sent in to quell a nationalist revolt struggled to end armed resistance by Baku, the Azerbaijani capital, was reported calm today. But the official Tass news agency said guerrilla attacks on troops continued. It said two soldiers were killed Wednesday and one seriously wounded.

Extremists still continue (to) aim fire at the barracks from nearby houses," it said.

Strikes continued in Baku today in defiance of a military ban and public transport was at a standstill, Tass said. Azerbaijanis have pledged not to end their strikes until Soviet troops withdraw.

Abdul-Rakham Vezirov, named local Communist Party chief during ethnic troubles in May 1988 with a mandate to restore order, was ousted

At a Central Committee meeting convened late Wednesday in Baku, he was expelled for "serious mistakes" that led to the current crisis, said Baku journalist Tunzala Kasumova. She did not elaborate.

Leila Yunusova, an Azerbaijani activist, said 100,000 of Azerbaijan's 380,000 Communists have torn up their party cards -signaling growing resentment of central authorities in Moscow for ordering the crackdown.

Vezirov was replaced by Ayaz Mutalibov, the republic's prime minister. He had been named party leader a few months after ethnic tensions first flared over Nagorno-Karabakh, a predominantly Armenian enclave in Azerbaijan.

He appears to have tried to balance Moscow's desire to maintain control over the region, where the majority wanted to be annexed to neighboring

The Baku military commander, Lt. Gen. Vladimir Dubinyak, said in a radio announcement today that authorities detained more than 100 people during the night, 68 for curfew violations.

He said the city was relatively calm this morning after occasional gunfire throughout the night, adding that security forces were continuing to take measures to "neutralize the activities of certain informal organizations," a reference to pro-independence groups against whom military authorities have begun to move.

On Wednesday, soldiers rounded up 43 activists and banned rallies in Baku, where long-simmering ethnic tensions exploded Jan. 13 with anti-Armenian riots.

The violence escalated into armed clashes between groups of Moslem Azerbaijanis and predominantly Christian Armenians, thousands of whom fled to neighboring Armenia as nationalist extremists gained strength

Tass today cited Baku Radio as saying troops had detained Mamed Ali-Zade, chairman of the Defense Committee of the grass-roots Azerbaijan People's Front nationalist movement.

It said he possessed various weapons, "symbols of the popular front, medicines, radio equipment and propaganda materials calling on the population to resist authorities.

Defiant Azerbaijanis were forced to give up their five-day sea blockade of Baku port Wednesday after they were routed in a gunbattle with Soviet troops, Soviet media and residents reported. Two soldiers were reported wounded in the fighting.

The Soviet newspaper Izvestia on Wednesday characterized resistance to the Soviet occupation of Baku as 'partisan war,' including frequent night attacks on patrols. Militants have ambushed Russian soldiers and their relatives, hundreds of whom have been

Thousands of ethnic Russians were also evacuated out of fears the Azerbaijanis' rage at having Soviet troops in the republic would endanger their lives. To press for a Soviet pullout, the Azerbaijanis have paralyzed industry in the oil-producing Caspian Sea port of 1.8 million

Heart group to

NEW YORK (AP) - The U.S. Food and Drug Administration took a lastminute stand against a plan to label foods deemed safe by the American Heart Association, but the organization says it will go ahead anyway.

The program, known as Heartguide, is scheduled to begin Monday. It's an ambitious effort by the association to make consumers smarter shoppers by identifying products low in saturated fat, total fat, cholesterol and sodium.

The program has been in the works for three years, but Acting FDA Commissioner James S. Benson told the association Wednesday it risked regulatory action if it proceeded with the plan.

'FDA believes that your program will increase consumer confusion and hamper any comprehensive solution to the food labeling program," Benson wrote to the group.

The association decided to proceed. "We've already talked to the companies" participating in the program, and "they are in," said a Heartguide spokeswoman, Jamy Poth. Products tested and approved by the association would, for a fee, carry a symbol made up of a red heart and a check mark.

Discussions have been held with the Vicki Anderson, another spokeswoman for Heartguide, and the heart association was distressed with the

But an FDA spokesman said the agency has expressed concerns to the association during the past year. "I would think they would have been aware of them," said the spokesman, Jeff Nesbit.

In the wake of the letter, the second phase of the program - in which cereals, cheese, cookies, pasta, salad dressings and other foods will be included - has been put on hold to allow time for further negotiations with the FDA, Anderson said.

The FDA has no authority to act before products are sold, Nesbit said. Once they are on supermarket shelves, however, the agency determines whether labels are misleading.

If it determined that the association's seal of approval was misleading, it could order that the symbol be removed. Or it could seek a court order to block the sale of products with the symbol, or seize them, Nesbit said.

The program has been criticized on the grounds that competitive pressures would force companies to participate, and that it promotes certain foods instead of promoting the idea of a healthy overall diet.

The association said its educational program will make clear that Heartguide-approved foods should be incorporated into a diet that is beneficial overall.
