Reagan appeals facing trouble in Congress

By TOM RAUM Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's midterm

appeal for a standby tax hike and the "strong medicine" of a domestic spending freeze faces trouble in Congress, even though Democratic leaders say they will accept his summons to find a bipartisan cure for the nation's economic ills. The president, in his nationally broadcast State of the Union address to a joint House-Senate session Tuesday night, called for holding federal spending at about roughly 5 percent above current levels — except for defense programs.

Reagan said cost-of-living increases in Social Security and government retirement benefits should be delayed for six months.

to go ... but America is on the mend." He called his plan "bipartisan, fair, prudent (and) realistic."

Reagan, referring to the highest level of unemployment since the Depression, agreed this was "a painful period" for the nation's 12 million unemployed. And he declared: "We must all do everything in our power to bring their ordeal to an end."

And he urged a 1 percent income tax hike to take effect Oct. 1, 1985 if economic recovery fails to materialize. Reagan also called for excise taxes on domestic and imported oil.

And he said federal pay and retirement benefits, both military and civilian, should be frozen for one year.

Reagan's proposed standby tax surcharge would be levied as of Oct. 1, 1985 only if the deficit is projected to exceed 2.5 percent of the gross national product — and only if Congress has first adopted his freeze proposal.

Reagan said his freeze proposal — to be contained in the budget he submits to Congress next week — would hold the federal deficit at about $189 billion in fiscal 1984, the year in which he once promised to balance the budget.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., called Reagan's proposals "heroic and necessary" and said they "will be controversial but I think Congress will respond to the challenge he uttered."

At a briefing earlier in the day, Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., acknowledged the Democrats believed they had to counter the claim from the president and other Republicans that only the GOP was offering a program to deal with the nation's economic problems.

Reagan's proposed economy as "sliding backwards toward catastrophe."

Several Texas congressmen also expressed concern over Reagan's proposal for a one-year freeze on military pay, which would have extensive impact in a state with a heavy military presence.

But early in the film, Sen. Joseph Biden Jr., D-Del., said: "It's time we put up or shut up."

Produced at a cost of $120,000, the Democratic film aired on the three major commercial television networks shortly after the president's speech. Democratic members of Congress described 18 alternatives to Reagan's policies.

Like the president, the Democrats focused in the film on the record budget deficits of the past two years.

Demos respond with alternative

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Party leaders, trying to blunt Republican criticism that they don't have an alternative economic program, have spelled out proposals to reform taxes, reduce interest rates and control spending.

At a briefing earlier in the day, Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., acknowledged the Democrats believed they had to counter the claim from the president and other Republicans that only the GOP was offering a program to deal with the nation's economic problems.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's proposed economy included some particularly bad-tasting medicine for Texas, in the form of a possible new $5 per barrel tax on oil.

Better breathing club formed

By SANDY PANKEY Staff Writer
Breathing, a simple body function?

Ask that question to the individual who suffers 24 hours a day struggling just to take a breath. With respiratory diseases such as bronchitis, emphysema, asthma or lung cancer, the victim finds it very difficult to perform daily tasks. Even eating or walking across the room tires them often to the point of exhaustion.

To assist family members and friends as well as the sufferers of these diseases, "A Better Living, Better Breathing Club," is being organized in Hereford. The group will be sponsored by the American Lung Association of Texas.

Beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library, the club will meet the last Thursday of each month. Dr. Duffy McBrayer will provide the topic at the initial meeting entitled "Your Lungs, A Basic Introduction."

Ben McCulloch and Ed Holmes, both of Austin and program administrators for the Lung Association, were in Hereford this week to speak with local volunteers in organizing the new group.

"This program was actually begun in Texas approximately two years ago," McCulloch explained. "But it's the first of its kind in the Top of Texas area extending from Childress to Perryton."

"Ed and I came to speak with some of the Hereford people that will be coordinating the program," he continued. "I don't think the public is aware of how many people suffer with respiratory diseases, and we want to be able to help the volunteers inform people how to cope with their illness."

The sign-up for the Payment-in-Kind farm program started Monday and, while all ag producers are not completely sold on the plan, "it's a step in the right direction," according to John Fuston, office manager of the local Agricultural & Stabilization Conservation Service.

Fuston said his office didn't have answers to all the questions Monday, but they are now ready to explain the plan, the farmer's options, and sign up those who decide to go with the program.

An interview with Fuston, explaining the details of the program, will be published in The Brand Thursday. Fuston hopes the article will answer some basic questions before the farmer comes to the ASCS office.

THE PIK, or Crop-swap plan, is a land diversion program designed to bring supplies more in line with demand. The government offers farmers an amount of commodity for reducing that crop by a larger amount than called for under previously announced programs.

This type of plan evolved because U.S. stocks of almost all major commodities have increased dramatically. By the end of the 1982-83 crop year, compared with two years earlier, the ending stocks of rice and feed grains will have

The traditional and unavoidable line of trucks and trailers marked the opening of the Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show today as FFA and 4-H members waited to weigh 243 hogs at the Bull Barn.

Afternoon weighing chores will end after the 267 lambs registered go through and the duty starts for the 73 steers at 9 a.m. Thursday.

In addition to the regular shows, a junior commercial steer show and junior market broiler have been added as teaching tools for the youngsters.

update wednesday

Baseball knocks Houston out of bid

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros' schedule makes it impossible for Houston to host the 1984 Democratic National Convention, Mayor Kathy Whitmire says.

Mrs. Whitmire said Tuesday she was withdrawing the city's bid to host the meeting, which will be held in the summer of 1984.

The only facility large enough to house the convention would be the Astrodome, which will be booked for much of the baseball season, she said.

She said the committee required free access to major meeting halls for at least 30 days.

"The Houston Sports Association said it would be possible for the Astros to schedule a two-week road trip but difficult to make alternate arrangements for the team to play away for one month," Ms. Whitmire said.

San Francisco, Chicago, Detroit, New York and Miami are bidding to be the host city.

Mrs. Whitmire said a representative from the Democratic National Committee visited the city over the weekend and said "it was suitable to host a major convention in almost every respect."

The city has a new convention center on the drawing board, and Mrs. Whitmire said she hoped the city could bid to host both the 1988 Democratic and Republican conventions.

The last major political gathering hosted by the city of Houston was the 1928 Democratic convention.

Tent settlement turns down chance to move

TENT CITY, Texas (AP) — A group of impoverished people living in a roadside park has rejected a Baytown woman's offer to move rent-free to her private property in Crosby a few miles away.

"We hear rumors every day that somebody is going to move us out of the park," said Bill Collins, 54, the group's spokesman. "But if we were to take a caravan of people over to that private property, there's no guarantee we couldn't be kicked out at any time."

Collins, who has lived in the settlement known as Tent City since November, also said the private 25-acre tract is swampy, waterlogged and needs a 1,500-foot access road.

The property owner, Juanita Adcox, said she was shocked when her offer was refused Monday night. She said the land has proper drainage and access and that she lived in a small home in front of the pasture before moving to Baytown about a year ago.

"I would have gone to hell and back for those people if they'd shown any interest," said Mrs. Adcox, 44. "But I think they really don't want any help."

Tent City, which appeared last spring, lies about 30 miles east of Houston next to U.S. Highway 90.

Leading Texas banker dies

AUSTIN (AP) — Fred Clarke Morse, who began the savings institutions that blossomed into First Texas Savings Association and First City

National Bank, died Tuesday. He was 96.

Morse organized the Mutual Savings Institution in 1920 and Fidelity Trust Co. in 1936. He also brought a program to Austin schools that allowed children to put aside nickels and dimes in a savings account.

Personal thrift was important to Morse.

"He was interested more in building character, in the growth of morality," his wife Estelle Klett Morse said. "He thought if he taught the young to be thrifty, they'd grow up to be thrifty."

"To this day," said his son, Fred Morse Jr., "people tell me: 'If it wasn't for your father, I would never have been able to go to college or to buy a house.'"

Morse was born in Emporia, Kan., and received degrees from the College of Emporia, the University of Texas, and Rutgers University. He was licensed as a lawyer in 1910.

He served as a director of many professional, community and arts organizations, including the Texas Fine Arts Association and the Texas Savings and Loan League.

Energas makes agreements for bill assistance program

AMARILLO, Texas — Energas Company announced today that agreements have been made with seven non-profit organizations to manage the company's HEAT HELP program, which is designed to aid residential customers who need assistance with their heating bills this winter.

At news conference conducted Monday at Midland Regional Air Terminal and in Lubbock by Energas president Charles K. Vaughan, and in Amarillo by Harry E. Neel, vice president and Amarillo division manager, the seven non-profit organizations and their areas of responsibility for administering the HEAT HELP program were identified as follows:

—Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation, P.O. Box 32150, Amarillo, Texas 79120, serving Dallam County, city of Dalhart only; Hartley County; Oldham County, city of Vega and community of Wildorado only; Hutchinson County, cities of Fritch and Sanford only; Potter County; Carson County; Gray County; Deaf Smith County; Randall County; Parmer County; Castro County; Swisher County; Briscoe County; and Hall County, city of Turkey only.

—Caprock Community Action, Inc. 224 South Berkshire, Crosby, Texas 79322, serving Hale, Floyd and Crosby counties.

—The Salvation Army, 1120 17th Street, Lubbock, Texas 79401, serving the city of Lubbock.

—South Plains Community Action Association, Inc., P.O. Box 610, Levelland, Texas 79338, serving the counties of Bailey, Lamb, Hockley, Terry, Lynn, Garza, and Lubbock except for the city of Lubbock.

—West Texas Opportunities, Inc., P.O. Box 1308, Lamesa, Texas 79331, serving the counties of Gaines, Dawson, Martin and Howard.

—The Salvation Army, 810 East 11th, Odessa, Texas 79761, serving Ector County.

—The Salvation Army, 300 South Baird, Midland, Texas 79701, serving Midland County.

Representatives of the cooperating organizations attended Monday's news conferences.

"Energas has donated to each of these seven non-profit organizations, based on the number of customers the company has in the regions served by them," Vaughan said. "Each organization has agreed to distribute HEAT HELP funds on a case-by-case basis to assist persons living in Energas Company's service area who otherwise would be unable to pay their heating bills this winter," he said.

Energas had announced on Jan. 12 it would start such a program.

Energas representatives have been involved on national industry committees studying the results of pilot energy assistance programs by utility companies in other cities.

"The HEAT HELP program Energas was devised in response to Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace's request is similar to those undertaken in other areas of the country," Vaughan said. "It is a supplement to existing procedures Energas has made available for years to our customers who need help in paying their gas bills, and to existing aid programs," he said.

"Energas has offered in the past, and will continue to make available, an individualized deferred payment arrangement to customers who need help," Vaughan said.

"We at Energas realize our donations to these seven non-profit organizations are only a beginning," Vaughan said. "We are actively encouraging our employees, customers and the general public to join Energas in making contributions," he said.

An enclosure giving detailed information regarding the operation of the HEAT HELP program and soliciting additional contributions to it will be included in all customer billings mailed during February's billing cycle.

The non-profit organizations will, under terms of their agreements with Energas, distribute all contributions received, based upon their own previously established criteria of need. All donations will be tax deductible.

"Inquiries seeking further information, as well as all applications for assistance, should be made to the appropriate non-profit organization," Vaughan said.

"However," Vaughan said, "Energas will accept checks made payable to HEAT HELP from individuals wishing to contribute to the program and will forward all such checks received to the non-profit organization designated by the donor's check.

Energas provides natural gas service to a 30,000-square-mile area of West Texas extending from the Panhandle to south of Odessa. The gas utility company is a division of Pioneer Corporation, an energy resources corporation headquartered in Amarillo.

smoking does to a person's health and how to obtain a better understanding of Medications.

"We rely almost entirely on volunteers," McCulloh stressed. "They are the backbone to any success the local club will have. The lung association is a more centralized organization and the club could not even be started if it were not for the local support."

"There will be an open discussion held following each speaker's program," according to Holmes. "It is basically a support group, rather like Alcoholics Anonymous. Although the patient's problems cannot be eliminated, positive approach will be taken to their needs and concerns."

Those instrumental in beginning this program include Jerry Walls, certified respiratory therapist technologist; Shawn Poland, registered respiratory therapist; and Jewell Smith and June Rudd, R.N., both longtime lung association volunteers.

There are more than 800,000 Texans and 45 million Americans suffering from one or more respiratory diseases. Both program administrators and Walls agreed that of all the lung ailments, chronic emphysema seems to be the worst.

"Of all emphysema victims, approximately 97 percent have at one time been heavy smokers," Walls stressed. "This means that most smoked two packs of cigarettes or more a day over a 20 year period."

"It seems to be a more dreaded disease," McCulloh added. "These people suffer over a long period of time, 20 to 30 years or more. With lung cancer the average life expectancy is two to five years."

Chronic bronchitis is often associated with emphysema. Walls explained. "The sufferer of chronic bronchitis has a persistent cough for two months or more over a period of two consecutive years. There is excess mucus production in the airways usually due to cigarette smoking or a job related atmosphere."

"We will be offering valuable information and hope that anyone interested can attend this meeting," McCulloh explained. "For those who cannot be present, they can obtain a free booklet entitled 'Help Yourself to Better Breathing.' This booklet is offered free tripled. The farmer-owned reserve for corn will have increased 12 times, approaching 2.5 million bushels.

The wheat reserve will have more than doubled and reached one billion bushels. Cotton stocks will be almost three times larger than two years before.

The demand for U.S. ag products has been eroded by a number of factors, including weak economic conditions in the U.S. and throughout the world, losses related to the Soviet embargo; financial instability in a number of countries, continued East-West tensions, and unfair export competition and restrictive actions by some foreign buyers.

Under the plan, total harvested acreage for the five crops—grain sorghum, corn, wheat, cotton and rice—is expected to be reduced by 23 million acres. Total wheat, corn and sorghum production will be reduced by more than one billion bushels, and cotton production reduced by 2.5 million bales.

Trouble

The president proposed a six-month extension of unemployment compensation for those who have exhausted their benefits, tax credits for employers who hire the long-term unemployed, additional job training funds, and a below-minimum wage for teen-agers hired for summer jobs.

Reagan declined to endorse the kind of public works jobs program favored by Democrats, although said he would send Congress legislation offering "short-term help and long-term hope for our unemployed."

He mentioned only in passing the "new federalism" proposals that had been a major element of his State of the Union address last year, but which Congress ignored — a plan for turning over to states many programs now run by the government.

The president also proposed legislation providing catastrophic illness coverage under Medicare, with part of the cost to be borne by the patient.

And he called for legislation to provide tax deductions for lower- and middle-income families saving for college costs.

Reagan restated support for tuition tax credits for parents who send their children to private elementary and secondary schools, and for a constitutional amendment permitting voluntary prayer in public schools — proposals rejected by the 97th Congress.

Although he focused on domestic issues, Reagan said he would "vigorously pursue" arms reduction talks with the new leadership in the Soviet Union. But he added, "We insist on an equal balance of forces" and that any agreement "be verifiable."

Reagan also urged Congress to act on measures left over from the last session, including aid to Caribbean nations, anti-crime legislation and a program to give farmers surplus crops in return for promises not to grow the crops themselves.

"In recognizing the responsibility to take action, President Reagan has taken the first, necessary step in putting America back to work," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass.

But, the Democratic leader added: "The next step is to present a program for action that goes substantially beyond those proposals mentioned by the president."

Republicans did most of the applauding during Reagan's 43-minute speech — his first address to Congress since Democratic gains of 26 House seats in last November's elections.

But one line brought Democrats to their feet in hearty, partly mocking, applause — Reagan's declaration that "we who are in government must take the lead in restoring the economy."

Addressing the Democratic side of the aisle, Reagan ad libbed: "All the time I thought you were sitting there reading the papers."

O'Neill later said Democrats applauded

because "this represents a historic political reversal ... Two years ago, before the current recession had begun, President Reagan said that 'government is not the solution to our problem. Government is the problem.'"

Senate Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., said Reagan's comments were "very well a recognition on his part that if industry can't respond at this point, there's room for government to move in."

Some of Reagan's proposals have already been endorsed by O'Neill, including the six-month delay in Social Security increases. That plan is part of a Social Security rescue package Reagan said should be approved by Easter.

Reagan said he would trim his defense budget to save some $55 billion over the next five years, although administration officials conceded the proposed freeze would leave room for an increase of about 14 percent in the defense budget next year.

Neighbors of duck friend complain of health hazard

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Charles H. Davis said he was just being kind to his web-footed friends. His neighbors said he was creating a nuisance. And the judge said six months probation.

Davis, a 76-year-old retiree, was found guilty of feeding ducks that trooped daily from a nearby lake to his front yard.

"I got railroaded," Davis said. "If you were hungry and asked me for something to eat, I'd give you something."

Each morning for the past year, Davis would wait for the freeloaders with kernels of corn and bread he bought at three loaves for $1.

"The ducks come here.

They're harmless," he says. But neighbors didn't agree. They complained that the hungry birds roosted in flower pots, pulled out plant bulbs and made themselves at home in mud puddles created for them by Davis.

Williams Buckler, Davis' next-door neighbor, said his yard-man threatened to quit because of duck droppings.

"We didn't have this problem until he moved here," said Buckler, who testified at a hearing last week. "It's all this man's fault for feeding the birds. There used to be two or three ducks around here. Now, since he's moved in, we have about 100 of them."

Davis maintained the ducks were already visiting backyards when he moved here about a year ago.

The dispute moved out of the neighborhood a few months ago when irate homeowners summoned police to lodge complaints about a health hazard.

Davis said he stuck to his schedule of morning feedings after representatives of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said he could.

Eventually, the arguments landed in court. In handing down the probation sentence Friday, County Judge Thomas Freeman said Davis violated a city law that forbids "acts tending to cause congestion of animals."

nearly 8 p.m. That is just during the show. Mega-planning is done long before the show and gets down to dirt in early December.

Penny Reinart, Deaf Smith County Extension agent said everything served or seen at the concession stand had someone calling, okaying and getting it. She and Mrs. Hicks do the grocery shopping on the Monday before the show opens. Others are in charge of getting the miscellaneous — cups, napkins, plastic forks.

"We've kept notes on every concession stand," Mrs. Reinart adds. "What to get, where we got it, who got it, how much it cost, and exactly how much we use."

The stand itself has to be cleaned that Monday and the popcorn machine, the refrigerator, the freezer and the bun warmer moved from under the bleachers.

And on Tuesday, the meat is cooked.

"I think it would be hard to comprehend beginning to cook 200 lbs. of hamburger meat staring you in the face," laughs Mrs. Hicks. "The last one there has to chop the onions."

"Or when you start running 20 lbs. of cheese through a food processor," adds Mrs. Reinart, laughing.

They both chuckled, anticipating no water in the stand when all the kids start washing animals.

But they give kudos to Raymond Bean, who turns the Bull Barn heat on long before daylight. "He is just great. We just couldn't do without him. We turn around and the trash is emptied," Mrs. Hicks delightfully explained.

All the chopping, grinding, hopping and finding result in a clearance of nearly $4,000 to be put back into the county 4-H program. Over half of that is used to send Deaf Smith kids to state contests, 4-H Roundup and Congress. Other money goes for Career Day expenses and general program improvement.

He was the owner of Chaney LTD Cattle Feed Supplement Company and was a member of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Funds open for handicap vehicles

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is announcing that funds are still available to purchase vehicles and related equipment for the transporting of elderly and/or handicapped citizens.

Approximately $330,000 of federal funds still remain available under the Section 16b(2) program Fiscal Year 1983 allocation. Fiscal Year 1983 allocations have not been received.

Only private, non-profit agencies are eligible to receive funding. Involvement of minority-oriented organizations is encouraged. Interested individuals or organizations can obtain information and applications for 16b(2) grant program at the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation District Office. Written inquiries should be directed to:

deserve more than adequate pay," said Rep. Mickey Leland, a Houston Democrat. "His reference to (cutting pay for) them is absolutely crass."

The oil tax proposal was not immediately evident in Reagan's address, in which he proposed a standby tax program that would begin on Oct. 1, 1985 under certain circumstances. One of those circumstances would be a federal deficit of more than 2½ percent of the Gross National Product.

Reagan did not specifically detail in his speech the kind of taxes he had in mind. But a fact sheet provided by the White House indicated that one was an excise tax on domestic and imported oil that would raise about $5 per barrel.

"I think it's first of all very tricky of the president to leave it out of his text," said Rep. John Bryant, a Democrat from Dallas. Bryant said he "wouldn't support a tax on the Texas economy to bail him out" of his economic problems.

"That was the biggest shock to somebody from Texas," said Hance, who said the proposal was "just ludicrous" coming from a president who had campaigned against the windfall profits tax on oil.

"It would run the price of gasoline through the top of the ceiling," commented Rep. Ralph Hall, a Rockwall Democrat.

Hall, Hance and Rep. Martin Frost, a Dallas Democrat, said they could support such a tax on foreign oil, but not oil produced domestically.

Parents' appeals change direction

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The parents of a Brownsville man and his fiancée are appealing to different sources in their efforts to secure their children's release from a Cuban jail because one is an American and the other a German citizen.

Berni Hofstadter, 28, and his fiancée, 23-year-old Gina Strickland, also of Brownsville, have been held in a Havana prison since their chartered plane developed engine trouble and crash landed in the Cuban wilderness Nov. 12, Hofstadter's mother, Inge, said Tuesday.

Mrs. Hofstadter went to Cuba with Miss Strickland's mother, Becky Lorenz of Humble, and five other mothers of prisoners in Cuba. She said she was "very disappointed" with the German Consulate's office in Havana because she does not speak Spanish and no one from the office came to the prison to help her.

She said she is appealing for help in Berlin because Hofstadter is a German citizen authorized to live and work in the United States.

She cried when she related the story of her three-hour visit Saturday.

"I did not recognize him," she said. "They shaved his hair off completely and he lost at least 40 pounds. He weighed about 165 pounds and now he weighs less than me."

Mrs. Hofstadter said her son was so overwhelmed when he saw her "he was not able to talk for the first hour."

"He was crying to me. He said, 'Mom, help me.' If I would have known the language, I would have said 'Why don't you keep me and let my son go?'" Mrs. Hofstadter said.

Mrs. Lorenz said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Humble that her daughter's physical condition is good, but her mental condition is not.

"She was shaking all over and she cried and screamed for about an hour," she said. Mrs. Lorenz says she's appealing to Texas congressmen for help because the U.S. State Department serves only to "relay messages."

John Caulfield, press officer in the State Department's Bureau of Consular Affairs, said he could not discuss Miss Strickland's case because she had not signed a statement authorizing him to release information to the news media.

He said his office handles cases in which Americans are held in foreign jails, acting as a liaison between the foreign country and the prisoner's family by arranging transportation, visas, and the transfer of money if necessary.

Caulfield said the bureau also ensures the prisoner's human rights are protected and advises the inmate to consider getting an attorney in the country in which they are being held.

Mrs. Hofstadter said her son and Miss Strickland have not been mistreated, but are fed mostly powdered foods. She was allowed to give her son powdered soup and juice and family pictures.

She said her son, who owns a Brownsville auto repair shop, told her the couple was flying automobile parts from Jamaica and Grand Caymen Island to bring them back to Brownsville for repair when the plane's right engine blew out.

Hofstadter told her he didn't make a forced landing in the Caribbean Sea because "he might die," Mrs. Hofstadter said.

"So he decided to do a crash landing in the wilderness," she said. "He didn't even know he was in Cuba."

Hofstadter told his mother he and his fiancée wandered around the area and finally "fell asleep in the mud." The next day they were arrested by Cuban authorities who believed the couple was "trying to poison the crops," Mrs. Hofstadter said.

There's little difference in the number of calories consumed by the average American and average Soviet citizens, but significant differences in where many of the calories come from. A CIA analysis prepared for a report to Congress on the Soviet economy shows almost half the calories in the Soviet diet coming from cereal grains and potatoes while Americans consumption is much less. The reverse is the case with meat and fish.

Publicity encouraging public to report animal cruelty cases

QUINLAN, Texas (AP) — A leader of a fledgling East Texas animal protection group says the attention drawn to recent cases of malnourished horses has led to the public reporting more cases of animal starvation.

Bobbie Stinson, a spokeswoman for the eight-month-old Hunt County Humane Society, filed a complaint that led to an order to seize 24 starving horses on a Sabine River bottom ranch near Quinlan.

Volunteers from throughout East Texas arrived in a caravan of pickup trucks and trailers Tuesday to help round up the horses.

"It's rather unnerving," Ms. Stinson said of the ranch where the horses and 15 horse skeletons were discovered.

"I cannot understand how people can do it in good conscience. How can they sleep at night?" Charges of cruelty to animals — a Class A misdemeanor — were being prepared against the Dallas man who owns the 270-acre ranch and the horses. Conviction would carry a maximum $2,000 fine and a year in jail.

A helicopter search Tuesday turned up a total of 24 horses, which were found on the boggy, frequently flooded property covered with scrubby broomweed, Ms. Stinson said.

She said the last time anyone remembered seeing the animals fed was about six weeks ago, when two large bales of hay were left on the property.

Cruelty to horses, she said, is a problem that only recently gained notice when 129 malnourished mustangs were found in November — along with the carcasses of 36 horses that starved to death — on an overgrazed ranch near the East Texas town of Pittsburg.

"I think the Pittsburg deal kind of spearheaded the whole thing," Ms. Stinson said. "People have really opened their eyes."

The humane society knows there are more starving animals on ranches than has been reported, she said.

"I definitely think there's a lot more out there. It's always going to happen. These horses have been there for two years, and we found 15 skeletons — just bones," she said.

Peace Justice Merrick Money issued seizure papers for the animals Monday. The surviving animals, described as in "very poor condition because of insufficient food," were to be taken to the Fund for Animals refuge for abused animals near Tyler.

Ms. Stinson said Humane Society officials and a veterinarian surveyed the herd of ponies and horses Monday after three carcasses and at least a dozen piles of bones were discovered on the land late last week.

She said she had been told the land had been under water about six times this winter, and that the horses were stranded on small islands.

The horses were to be taken to the Fund for Animals refuge.

Hereford girls lose, 60-49

League-leading Dogs subdue stubborn Herd

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

Plainview, which sat idly by and gained sole possession of first place in the hectic 3-5A boys' basketball race Monday, retained that spot Tuesday, but had to work for it, finally subduing stubborn Hereford, 70-65, before 700 fans in the high school gym.

While the Bulldogs' 7-2 district record gives them a game and a half lead at the present time, five (count them) teams share the runnerup spot at 6-4. They include Amarillo High, Palo Duro, Tascosa, Lubbock and Caprock. And, with three weeks left in the regular season anything is possible concerning the two playoff spots.

The girls' district race has been much more predictable. Monterey leads with a 11-0 record; Plainview is a game back at 10-1 and Amarillo High is in the hunt with a 10-2 mark. Two of those three teams will make it to the playoffs. Beyond that, however, it's strictly a battle for final position between the loop's other six teams.

While Plainview's boys were escaping with a five-point win last night, the Bulldog girls coasted to a 60-49 triumph over Hereford. Plainview ran off nine unanswered points early in the opening period and was never headed, leading by as many as 20 in the third stanza.

The boys' game was close throughout, and could have gone either way.

Free-throw shooting, which kept Hereford within striking distance of Caprock Monday (in a 89-81 loss), proved to be the Herd's downfall Tuesday. Monday, the Whitefaces sank 23 of 25 charity tosses (92 percent) and on the road to boot.

Tuesday, the Herd could hit only 15 of 29 (51.7 percent), and it proved decisive.

Hereford missed the front end of four one-and-one foul situations in the fourth period. For the game, the hosts missed the front end of seven such opportunities... a swing of perhaps 14 points.

"It's tough to figure," Hereford coach Bobby Decker said, shaking his head afterward. "How can you shoot 90 percent from the line one night, and on the road, too, then come back the next night, at home, and barely shoot 50 percent?"

"I don't have an answer. But, there's no doubt our inability to hit free throws cost us the game."

"These kids deserve a better break than that. Despite their record (0-10 in league play and 5-17 overall), they keep playing everyone tough."

"There's a lot of character on this club. The record may not show it, but there's so many times they could just give up and get blown out, but they don't. They just keep coming back."

In addition to Hereford's foul shooting woes, Plainview did an excellent job on the offensive boards. The Bulldogs enjoyed a 47-37 rebound edge. Of Plainview's 47 rebounds, 25 came at the offensive end.

That enabled the winners to put up 26 more shots, of which they downed six more. Hereford shot a better percentage from the field (hitting 25 of 48 for 52 percent, compared to Plainview's 41.8 percent on 31 of 74), but the difference in numbers told the story.

Gil Wright, the district's leading scorer averaging more than 26 points a game, led the winners with 22. He came into the game needing 64 points to become the school's all-time career scoring leader - surpassing Ronnie Peret. In two games against Hereford, Wright scored 34 points - well below his season average.

Wright got into foul trouble, picking up his fourth with 1:39 left in the third period. But, his substitute, Al Aguirre came off the bench to score five key points within a span of three minutes and the Bulldogs were able to open a six-point lead. They widened that to eight, and the closest Hereford got the rest of the way was three (68-65) with 21 seconds to play. While Wright led all scorers with 22 points, Steve Welch and Terry Shelton led the Herd with 16. Gary Long added 15 and Brian Taylor 12. The winners also got double figure scoring from Kenneth Hallman and Randy Williams, who scored 15 and 12 points, respectively.

In the girls' game, Plainview jumped out to a 15-5 first quarter lead, increased it to a dozen (31-19) by halftime and led by as many as 20 (41-21) midway through the first stanza, before coasting home.

In all, 11 players saw almost equal playing time for the visitors. Coach Carl Price played his starters the entire first period, then brought in a fresh five for the second period. He played his starters half of the third period, then substituted for the remainder of the quarter. He substituted freely the final stanza, and the Bulldog girls never missed a beat.

Angela Young led the winners with 16 points and nine rebounds. For the game, Plainview shot 50.9 percent (26 of 51) from the field. Hereford sank 43 percent, hitting 16 of 37.

Plainview's pressure defense throughout forced Hereford into 25 turnovers, and the winners turned them into 22 points.

Sherri Ellis and Stephanie Foster were Hereford's only double figure scorers with 15 and 12 points, respectively. Elsewhere Tuesday, it was Caprock 74, Amarillo High 57; Lubbock 54, Tascosa 53 and Monterey 73, Palo Duro 72 (in OT) in boys' play.

In girls' play, AHS ripped Caprock, 71-48; Lubbock won its first loop game, downing Tascosa 51-46 and Monterey pounded Palo Duro, 70-54.

Friday, AHS visits Plainview. Palo Duro hosts Coronado, Tascosa is at Caprock and Monterey visits Lubbock.

Wadkins eyes healthy year

PHOENIX (AP) - Lanny Wadkins has one primary objective on the PGA Tour this year.

It does not involve the Masters, or the majors, or specific tournaments or a money-winning figure. If he can achieve his goal, he said, the other things will take care of themselves.

His objective?

"Stay healthy," Wadkins said before a practice round today for the $350,000 Phoenix Open, which he won last year. "And, knock wood, everything is fine right now."

"I've had a rap, and I think it's a bad rap, of being an up and down player. But the fact is, I've never had a bad year when I've been healthy all season. When I've been healthy all year, I've never finished out of the top 10 (money-winners)."

Those years, however, have been all too scarce. He has played without major injury or illness in only five of his 12 seasons on the Tour.

Last year was one of them. A healthy Wadkins won three titles and had a career high $306,827 in earnings.

"I'd like to think that's just the start of a five-year string," Wadkins said.

"I'd just like to keep it going from last year. I won three tournaments and it was a pretty good season. I won early, I won in the middle of the year, and I won late."

"But I would like to be a little more consistent, have more top-10 finishes... as for specific tournaments, or anything like that, I have no goals.

"Of course the majors. I'd like to win in the majors. We all would. I know I'm not going to win 15 majors. But I would like to win all four (Masters, U.S. and British Opens, the PGA) once each." Wadkins won the PGA in 1977 and also has victories in the World Series of Golf, the Tournament of Champions and the Tournament Players Championship.

In three appearances this season, Wadkins has been second twice, a fast start that has set up the year for him.

"It's a good start... I've got a good start on the money ($48,800). I'm playing pretty well. It's a good start to build on," he said.

That strong start and his history of success in this event make him one of the leading candidates for the $63,000 first prize in the 72-hole chase that begins Thursday on the 6,726-yard, par-71 Phoenix Country Club course.

Keith Fergus and the man he beat in a playoff for the Bob Hope title, Rex Caldwell, also are on hand. Other major stars include Masters champion Craig Stadler, PGA titleholder Ray Floyd, Hale Irwin, Johnny Miller, David Graham, Tom Kite, Jerry Pate and Lee Trevino.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

NCAA playoff talk surfacing

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

With the Super Bowl about to decide the king of professional football and runner-up Southern Methodist University still refusing to concede that Penn State deserved the 1982 national championship, talk of a possible major college playoff is surfacing again.

Dr. Fred Miller, former athletic director at Arizona State University, has a plan for such a playoff to begin in the mid-1980s. It would involve pay television and, Miller says, could result in a staggering annual gross of $1 billion on pay subscription TV and perhaps $2 billion on pay per view TV. It would be, he says, "the most significant sporting event in the U.S."

Miller outlined his plan in the winter edition of "Athletic Administration," the official publication of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

"I don't hold this plan sacred," he says. "But not only can this be the most quality athletic event in this country, but the cash flows generated will help fund total university athletic programs and reverse the alarming trend of sports reduction, primarily in Olympic development sports."

Miller's playoff formula would involve 24 teams, with 16 unseeded teams playing during the first week of December and the winners of those games playing seven seeded conference champions' plus one independent during the second full week of December. The last two weeks of the year would be reserved for final exams and Christmas holidays.

The post-season bowls, of course, are vehemently opposed to any sort of playoff, even one utilizing their games, as Miller's proposal would do. It would, in fact, involve all of the current bowls, except possibly the Independence Bowl, and would even establish a few more.

"All bowls in a championship format will have meaning and are the primary vehicle with which the championship is organized," Miller says. The plan assumes there will be two pay TV networks with an average of 25 million households during the period from 1986-1996. An average $10-a-month charge per household, Miller says, would produce $3 billion annually per network ($10 per month equals $120 per household per year, multiplied by 25 million households). With two networks, that means a $6-billion annual gross. The football playoffs, involving 16 games in December, would share in one-twelfth of that gross and seven January games would share in another one-twelfth.

Defensive stars Duhe, Grant reelect on title tilts

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Today's witnesses for the defense are Miami's A.J. Duhe and Darryl Grant of Washington, who will work in the trenches at Sunday's Super Bowl between the Dolphins and Redskins.

They are the grunts of pro football, the game's foot soldiers, who earn their living as Duhe likes to say, "playing down and dirty."

Let the receivers and running backs do the end zone dances and high-five hand-slaps. Duhe and Grant will settle for grass-stained uniforms. That's their style.

Then, along come the conference championship games, the Super Bowl semifinals, and who should find themselves in the end zone with the football but Duhe and Grant.

That's what interceptions will do for you.

"I'll tell you, I was surprised," said Duhe, the linebacker who had three of Miami's five interceptions in the American Conference championship game against the New York Jets. "Three interceptions in a game? I never did that before, not in sandlots, not even when I was playing in my backyard."

The last one was the touchdown as Duhe first deflected and then grabbed Richard Todd's toss to Bruce Harper. As he headed for the end zone, the big linebacker kept peeking back over his shoulder, looking for company.

"I thought Harper would get me. He's faster than me. He can outrun me. I guess he must of slipped or else somebody blocked him."

When he reached paydirt, Duhe played it cool, holding the ball high. But there were no spikes for him.

"I never considered it," he said. "Some of the guys wanted me to, but I didn't think of it."

Duhe was blasé about his TD. He has, after all, been in the end zone before. "Oh sure, in high school and junior high school. Everybody scores in high school."

That's what he thinks. "I never scored before," said Grant, a defensive end. Not even in high school? "Never."

Then, against Dallas, Dexter Manley deflected a pass into the air. When it wafted down, there was Grant waiting for it.

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA, CALIFORNIA, JANUARY 30, 1983

"I thought it took an awful long time to come down," he said. "We were in a basic 4-3 defense and when I slipped in so easy, I thought the screen pass was coming. So I stopped. That's when Dexter tipped it."

Grant had company on the road to the end zone. "I didn't know it was going to be a touchdown," he said. "I felt somebody starting to brush against me, but I kept right on running."

He had less distance to go for his TD than Duhe. It was just 10 yards to the end zone, and when he got there, he did a spike that would make the most flamboyant pass-catcher proud.

"I definitely wanted to spike it," he said. "I come from Texas, and I always take a lot of flack about the Cowboys."

But he's a defensive player. Certainly he has been on the field enough times when other teams were spiking the ball to know how irritating that could be.

A tiny twinkle crept into his eye.

"Yeah," he said. "It was

Duhe and Grant represent two proud defenses.

The Dolphins led the league in fewest yards allowed, 2,312 to 2,560 for the Redskins, who were fourth. Washington allowed the fewest points, 128 to 131 for Miami, which was second.

There is little to pick and choose between them, except that Washington uses the traditional 4-3 front while Miami lines up in a 3-4.

"Our team plays better defense than anybody else," proclaimed Duhe.

Unless it's Washington.

"We're happy with our defense," said Dave Butz, one of Grant's partners up front for the Redskins. "In years past, teams could save one play to get out of bad situations against us. But we're a lot quicker, a lot more unified now."

Against the Dolphins, Butz said Washington's defenders would have to be concerned with the mobility of quarterback David Woodley. "I think containing the run will be the major goal, and then we can tee off on the passing game."

Miami's Duhe, of course, has the same idea.

Tackle Joe Jacoby, one of the main men on the Redskins offensive line, knows that Duhe will pose a major problem for the Hogs.

"A.J. can do many different things," he said. "He's all over the place, from tackle to tackle."

Jacoby obviously is paying attention. Duhe was on the move against the Jets.

"I lined up on every position on the front line, tight end, both tackles, both guards and center," he said.

And what will he do against the Redskins?

Duhe just smiled. Washington can find that out Sunday.

Theismann in spotlight

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Every kid ought to be able to relate to Joe Theismann—his dreams, frustrations, highs and lows, his fractured and fulfilled fantasies.

He's run the gamut.

Now the dreams have turned rosy red for this saucy, gutsy little quarterback of the Washington Redskins who leads his teammates against the Miami Dolphins Sunday in football's Super Bowl.

"I am a 13-year-old kid wrapped up in a 33-year-old body," he confessed Tuesday in his press briefing.

Cordons of newsmen in relays crowded around him at the workout in nearby Anaheim. He enjoyed every minute of it.

"I'm happy to represent the team," he said. "But it just goes with the territory. I am just 1-49th of this team."

It was a role he always dreamed of.

"I had visions of floating and filling the air with footballs," he said.

"Johnny Unitas, Bart Starr, Joe Namath—all of them were my idols," he added. "I watched Dan Fouts so much on TV I got to believing every football team wore yellow and blue uniforms."

Born and reared in New Brunswick, N. J., he recalled that his greatest ambition always had been to quarterback the New York Giants or Jets.

"My dad was a Giants fan," he added. "We would take a bus from New Brunswick to see the Giants. I always had to sit behind a pole and strain to see around it."

"We would go watch the Jets. I loved to watch Joe Namath. Later we became good friends."

Theismann recalled his playing days at Notre Dame when he led the Fighting Irish to consecutive Cotton Bowls and also had those great pulse-pounding games against Southern Cal.

Knox quits Bills, may take Seattle post

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Chuck Knox has given up his job as head coach of the Buffalo Bills to assume that position with the Seattle Seahawks next season, according to several reports.

WKBW-TV and the Buffalo News said Knox, one of the most successful National Football League coaches over the last 10 years, was expected to announce his plans at a news conference today. The time was uncertain.

Knox, who quit the Bills Tuesday, didn't return several calls placed to his home. Spokesmen for the Bills and the Seahawks said they knew nothing about Knox's plans.

The News also reported that defensive coordinator Tom Catlin may replace Knox, and was set to meet with club owner Ralph Wilson today in Detroit.

Knox, who had one year left on a six-year contract, met with Wilson Tuesday. Upon his return here, he told reporters at the airport.

"I was offered an extension of my contract, but I decided that I should resign and be relieved of any contractual obligations."

Differences between Knox and Wilson reportedly stemmed from the team's refusal to sign or keep satisfied top players such as linebacker Tom Cousineau, running back Joe Cribbs and nose tackle Fred Smerlas.

Cousineau, the first player picked in the 1979 draft, rejected a Bills' contract and played in Canada. When the Bills had a shot at signing him last summer, they traded him to Cleveland.

Cribbs, who held out unsuccessfully from training camp and the team's first two games this year to force a new contract, and Smerlas are All-Pros.

Fifteen players on the 49-man roster become free agents Feb. 1 and Knox reportedly was unhappy at the slow progress being made to re-sign them, and to extend his own contract.

As usual, however, he kept his views of the team to himself.

"In order for me to remain, a lot had to be resolved and a lot had to happen," he said. "I don't want to go into anything like that right now. That's not my style."

Knox and players said Catlin, a linebacker coach with the Los Angeles Rams for 12 seasons through 1978, would be a worthy successor.

"I couldn't give anybody a higher recommendation," Knox said. "Tom Catlin is an excellent football coach."

"If they move up someone from the ranks, like Tom Catlin, maybe rebuilding wouldn't be affected," reserve wide receiver Lou Piccone said.

Anthony 'Bowler of Year'

CHICAGO (AP) — For the fifth time in his career and the second straight year, Californian Earl Anthony has been named Bowler of the Year by the Bowling Writers Association.

The honor leaves 44-year-old Anthony, a southpaw from Dublin, Calif., one behind Don Carter, who has been selected a record six times. Anthony previously was named in 1974, 1975, 1976 and 1981.

Anthony was named on 209 of the 211 ballots cast by a panel of writers and broadcasters, receiving 194 first-place votes and a total of 1,615 points. He also received 11 seconds, two thirds and two fifths.

Dave Husted of Milwaukie, Ore., was a distant second with nine first-place votes and 814 points followed by Mike Durbin of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, with one first-place vote and 420 points.

Anthony won three tournaments during 1982, including the Pro Bowlers Association National in Toledo, and led all pro bowlers in earnings with $134,760.

Hayes hoping to settle into role of substitute

HOUSTON (AP) — After a record 47,947 minutes of playing time in the National Basketball Association, Houston forward Elvin Hayes has become a substitute.

Rockets Coach Del Harris decided before Tuesday night's 114-111 victory over the New Jersey Nets that the time was right to put "Plan A" in effect.

Hayes, following one of the most illustrious careers in the history of the NBA, would play a support role, yielding his starting position to James Bailey.

Hayes' initial reaction to the decision was to call Harris petty, paranoid and a bad coach, a statement that cost him an undisclosed fine from Rockets General Manager Ray Patterson earlier Tuesday.

But when the dust settled from Hayes' statement on Tuesday, the plan worked to perfection.

Bailey scored 24 points on 11 of 17 shots from the field and two from the free throw line and Hayes provided able help off the bench as the Rockets won for only the seventh time this season.

After his 16 minutes of playing time against the Nets, Hayes smiled amiably with reporters and called his new role "a lot of fun."

"Everybody has to face this at some time in his career," Hayes said. "Willie Mays and Hank Aaron didn't start in the latter stages of their careers. It's not as big a thing as everybody is making it."

Hayes made a big thing of it earlier when he blasted Harris.

"I really don't see how things can ever get better next year under him," he told the Houston Chronicle. "This stuff is all too far imbedded. It's not me or one or two other veterans. It's just about every one of the veterans."

"He's a petty person. He's paranoid. And he's not a good coach. I think that you've got to think about changes. I don't think you can say that, right now, there is anybody who automatically has the right to come back. I don't care what the job is."

But following his backup performance Tuesday night, Hayes said, "I was pleased with the way I played tonight."

I'm surprised but I adapted to it very well."

Harris, trying to maintain a winning attitude after the loss of Moses Malone to the Philadelphia 76ers, said he hopes he's made the right decision.

"We didn't want to go into next season not knowing if James Bailey could be a starter," Harris said. "And we didn't want to wait until then to see if Elvin could adapt to coming off the bench."

"It's not easy to go from one of the greatest players of all time to being a backup. If Elvin can show he has the temperament to come off the bench, that will be great. If he doesn't, then that is another story."

"We are not going to put together a team that is built around a 38-year-old forward," he said.

Harris said he got what he hoped for in Tuesday night's game.

"Controversy within itself doesn't push or pull," he said. "Anybody can make a positive or negative approach to a situation. I was hoping for a positive response to a problem that should not have become public... but did. I made the decision because I felt it was for the good of the team at this moment."

Bailey kept away from the controversy. "I'll never consider myself as the player who replaced Elvin Hayes," he said. "I have great respect for Elvin to be able to still do the things at his age that he's able to do."

Bryant admitted to hospital for chest pains

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Former Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, who won more games than any other college football coach, was kept overnight for observation after he was admitted to a hospital complaining of chest pains.

John Lucas, assistant administrator at Druid City Hospital, said the 69-year-old Bryant was brought into the emergency room at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Lucas said Bryant did not suffer a heart attack, and "there appears to be no present danger."

Bryant announced Dec. 15 that he was resigning after 25 years as head coach at the University of Alabama.

Boxcar artist's 'Bozo Texino' gone but not forgotten

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — He smoked a long-stemmed pipe and wore a 10-gallon cowboy hat adorned with the Lone Star of Texas.

His name was Bozo Texino and for awhile he was famous.

He was a face scrawled on boxcars with yellow chalk. People all over the United States, and sometime seven in foreign countries, spotted the caricature for almost 50 years.

Bozo Texino became as familiar to the railroad workers and hobos as Kilroy once did to American GIs overseas. The originator of Bozo Texino, however, was one man.

James Herbert McKinley was a railroad engineer who worked for Missouri Pacific from 1914 to 1964. He lived in San Antonio before he died in nearby Pleasanton in 1967 at age 75.

Early in his career, he began to draw the once familiar but now nearly forgotten figure on the sides of boxcars. In 1939, McKinley told a reporter he had adorned a quarter-million or so boxcars since 1919.

Boxcar art was once a thriving art form.

Arthur Hecox, a Southern Pacific station clerk in the 1930s, reported that he often saw comics serialized on a string of cars.

One series depicted the bodies of men with the heads of birds and were labeled "the Scissor-Bill Bunch." A scissor-bill was a brakeman.

Boxcar nudes were popular as well as graffiti. Recurrent names glimpsed on boxcars included J.B. King, Dead-Eye Dick and Stockton Jim. Doggerel was often illustrated with crude sketches.

"Boxcar art is seldom seen nowadays," said F.A. Schmidt, a San Antonio railroad buff and author who has published five books on railroading, particularly on Texas rail lines. His latest book is "Train Wrecks."

"I saw some well-drawn naked women on a boxcar in the Katy railyard about two or three years ago, but I haven't seen much since," he said.

The meaning and original inspiration for Bozo Texino is unclear and is perhaps lost with the colorful character who invented him.

Other railroad men who worked with McKinley remember that "Bozo" was his own nickname. But no one seems to know where "Texino" came from.

"I never could understand that," said Henry "The Fox" Munoz, a consultant for employer-labor relations. "It was not 'Tejano' or 'Texano' which would've meant 'Texan.' I think there must have been a catch to it. He (McKinley) certainly was no clown."

Well, not exactly, although McKinley was known to sometimes wear a checkered shirt, a bow-tie, and a derby hat with his denim railroad overalls and is remembered by one of his peers as "one of the wildest engineers who ever worked for Missouri-Pacific."

Munoz first encountered Bozo Texino as a young shoeshine boy in Laredo in the early 1930s.

"I would get 3 cents to shine a pair of shoes. That was a hell of a lot in those days. My father made $1.50 a week and my grandfather earned $2 a week digging holes for the city gas company," Munoz remembered.

"I'll never forget when a train would come in with Bozo Texino drawn on it. There were freight train and passenger trains in those days. 'The Eagle' went all the way to Mexico City. I'm in the chips today, I would tell myself when I saw Bozo Texino."

"He always came on big trains with a lot of railroad men with him. They had to take the cars across the border and would have a couple of days layover in Laredo."

"I would go to the hotel where they stayed and collect at least 15 pairs of shoes to take home and shine. They were good shoes and they always paid me a little extra."

"I never knew which man draw Bozo Texino but I always figured he must have been somebody leading the pack. Obviously he knew what was going on, and when I saw his boxcar I knew I would make some money," Munoz said.

Two retired railroad men in San Antonio knew and worked with McKinley.

Howard Handley, a former Mo-Pac railroad conductor, said he spent many an afternoon sitting in front of that Laredo hotel getting his shoes shined.

It is Handley who remembers Bozo as "one of the wildest engineers who ever came down here."

"Those cartoons traveled all over the country. In 1949 I went to Cuba with the Army reserves and saw a train there with one of Bozo's logos on it," Handley said.

It has been reported that McKinley never drew on a Missouri Pacific boxcar, selecting "foreign" boxcars instead, because there was a rule against it. However, Handley said "the cartoons were very unofficial as far as the railroad was concerned, but they didn't really care, because they were pretty good advertising."

Henry Doerr worked with McKinley in "about '52 or '53 on the San Antonio to Austin and return run."

"He was quite a guy," Doerr said. "He had asthma and always carried around a little thing that he put in his mouth to rejuvenate his lungs. He was a pleasant fellow. Everything always seemed to be funny to him.

"Most of the people who would've known him are gone now. I'm crowdin' 79 now and ones even younger than me are dying."

McKinley was survived by his wife, Mrs. J.H. McKinley, 88, who lives in Pleasanton, and a sister-in-law, Willa Mae Preston, of nearby Poteet.

"He was a very talented, intelligent, special person," Mrs. Preston said. "I think he had a photographic memory."

"I thought it was silly and I don't remember much about those little things he used to do," Mrs. McKinley said. "I guess I was a gripey wife. I didn't like them but he did and he kept on doing them. I never did like that name 'Bozo' either. Maybe I should have encouraged him, but I didn't."

Mrs. McKinley said she never wrote any of the McKinley's poems or articles which appeared under the 'Bozo Texino' pen name in some railroad publications.

"He'd write them in pencil and I would type them for him. But I don't have any of those articles now. He threw them all away before he died."

There hasn't been a Bozo Texino spotted on the side of a boxcar in many years. But once they could be seen from Illinois to Florida, from Texas to California.

If the rails had continued as they were — then so too might have Bozo Texino, with new artists keeping the character alive.

But the hobo camps are quiet now, more and more of the great trains are silent, and the steam whistle is only heard on ghost runs.

THE PLO Today ... and Tomorrow?

Palestine Liberation Organization fighting forces are widely dispersed following their withdrawal from Beirut. Some 6,000 men remain in Lebanon in Syrian-controlled areas. Another 12,000 are in eight other Arab host countries with both Tunis and Damascus functioning as political headquarters. But PLO leader Yasir Arafat's close post-Beirut contact with Jordan's King Hussein points to another Arab capital, Amman, as the likely new focus of PLO activity.

Hanoi's wars still have not come in program

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A decade after American troops fired their last shots and eight years after Communist tanks rolled into Saigon, ending resistance by South Vietnamese forces, Hanoi continues to fight.

It fights in two Indochinese countries and maintains the world's fourth largest army to deter another neighbor, China.

It also fights at home — battling food shortages, international debts, farmers who don't want to sell their rice to the state and stubborn South Vietnamese who would rather flee the country.

An estimated 900,000 people have left Vietnam in the last 10 years, while some 425,000 others have applied for resettlement in the United States under a special United Nations-sponsored program. The regime says it still holds 20,000 incorrigibles in "re-education centers," described by American diplomats as forced labor camps.

Most of the refugees and internees are South Vietnamese who have found adjustment to communism difficult.

Thursday marks the 10th anniversary of the Paris peace agreement which ended America's military involvement in Vietnam. The conflict left 57,939 Americans dead or missing. However, the battles didn't end for the Vietnamese until 27 bloody months later, on April 30, 1975, after a final, brilliant offensive by the North Vietnamese.

But the fruits of victory have not been sweet.

Vietnam's soldiers continue to fight and die. About 180,000 in Cambodia and 45,000 in Laos are helping pro-Hanoi regimes. Both China and Vietnam report frequent skirmishes along the Sino-Vietnamese frontier, following their 17-day war in 1979.

Vietnam maintains a military force estimated at one million men, a resource-draining measure for a nation which the International Monetary Fund lists among the dozen poorest in the world. Gross national product per capita is $160 per year.

Although Vietnam has expressed a desire for normalized relations with the United States, prospects for diplomatic ties are dim.

Small U.S. government missions and private groups, however, deal with Hanoi on such matters as the 2,500 Americans still missing from the Indochina war; the controversial issue of the defoliant Agent Orange which U.S. forces employed in Vietnam, and, most recently, the fate of several thousand Amerasians, children of American fathers and Vietnamese mothers still living in Vietnam.

The Vietnamese have allowed three airlifts of these children to the United States, with the fourth and largest scheduled for Thursday.

"We have been able to win on the battlefield, but we can't win in the economic field," Vietnamese officials have told visiting newsmen. Vietnam's economy — which was in danger of collapse during the five years following the war — continues to be plagued by a lack of raw materials, poor transportation, admitted waste and corruption as well as mounting debts.

Reporters visiting Vietnam in 1962, however, noted some improvements and Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach summed it up saying, "Very bad but not worse."

Free enterprise has been given some encouragement.

Farmers and factory workers in northern Vietnam have been allowed to devote part of their time to personal rather than collective labor, while in southern Vietnam the rush to full-scale socialism has been slowed.

In the Mekong River delta, Vietnam's rice bowl, the government has increased the price it pays farmers for rice and has otherwise allowed them to remain free producers.

Vo Van Kiet, the country's new economic czar, announced last year that Vietnam hoped to attain self-sufficiency in food during 1983. In the past, mismanagement, natural disasters and foreign wars have led to huge food deficits, which the Soviet Union and its East European allies have had to fill.

Life in Vietnam's capital, Hanoi, is spartan, drab and organized. Most of the people live in overcrowded tenements, carefully count their ration coupons for necessities and save for years to buy small luxuries. A worker who earned 200 dong ($22) a month last year had to spend 120 dong if he wanted a new bicycle tire.

In contrast, Saigon — now called Ho Chi Minh City — remains tough, cocky, resilient and greedy. It has an officially tolerated black market which offers stereos from Singapore and beer from Australia.

But there is a far greater gap than in the north between those who have and those who must eke out an existence on the streets.

Many want out. They fear re-education, being shipped off to rugged "new economic zones" in the countryside and future political and economic crackdowns.

Senator says Pope must announce retirement

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate's "honor is at stake" in an apparent standoff with Chief Justice Jack Pope of the Texas Supreme Court over his appointment by lame-duck Gov. Bill Clements, a senator says.

Sen. Chet Brooks said Tuesday that Pope has only two choices — retire before April 1984 or be rejected by the Senate. Brooks had asked Clements not to appoint anyone to the job.

Brooks, a Pasadena Democrat, said anyone besides Pope probably already would have been rejected.

Fourteen Democratic senators signed a letter Nov. 8, six days after Democrat Mark White defeated the Republican Clements, saying they did not want Clements to fill the chief justice vacancy, which was created when Joe Greenhill resigned to practice law here.

Although the Senate's authority to confirm or reject Pope has been questioned, Sen. Chet Brooks said even Pope thinks the Senate has that power. An informal opinion is being sought from Attorney General Jim Mattox.

It only takes 11 senators to reject an appointment.

"The Senate's honor is at stake here," said Brooks, who signed the November letter. "Fourteen members of the Senate signed the letter to Gov. Clements saying that we don't want to see a lame-duck appointment in this position."

There has been speculation that White wants to appoint former Attorney General John Hill as chief justice before the May 1984 Democratic primary so Hill could run as an incumbent. Clements defeated Hill for governor in 1978.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby told reporters he hears from Hill "about once a week" about the position, but that Hill has never discussed being appointed so he could run as an incumbent. "I think all of us are really leaning over backwards to give him (Pope) every chance in the world ... to get confirmed and finish his career honorably, and still accommodate what all of us want — and that is the right of the new administration to fill that vacancy at some point. But nobody is trying to push him into a definite (retirement) date," Brooks said.

Pope, a 69-year-old lifelong Democrat, is scheduled to appear at a public hearing before the Senate Nominations Subcommittee on Feb. 8, and Brooks said he thought the full Senate would vote on his appointment that week.

"It seems to me 70 is an appropriate time (to retire)," Brooks said, "but also 71, because he really doesn't lose any retirement benefits until he's 71."

"I don't think anybody would object to him until he's 71, which would be in April 1984," the senator said.

Brooks described Pope as "unusually acceptable to the Senate" if he would offer some word on his retirement.

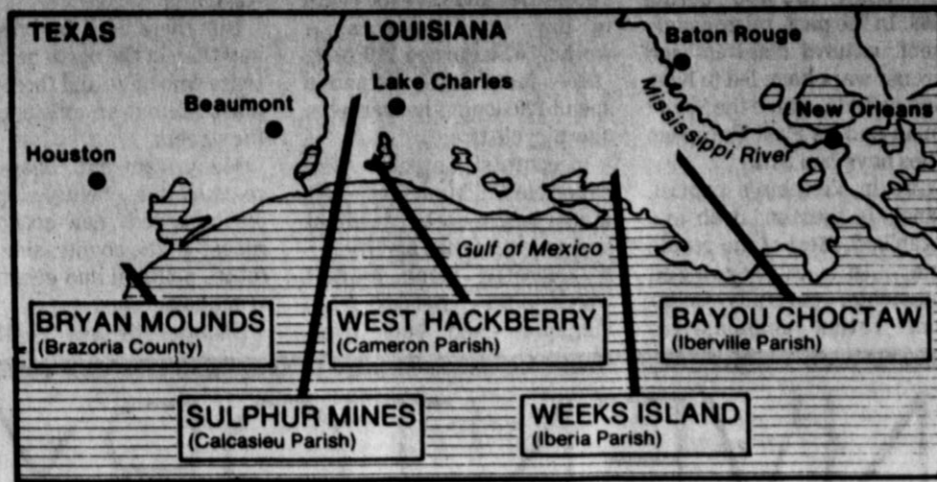

A reporter told Brooks that Pope had said "the chief justice should not have to make a deal."

"I just think it is a very reasonable thing to ask, and it indicates that 14 members who signed that letter are leaning over backwards to try to accommodate him," Brooks said. "Those 14 would already have busted anybody else, I think."

Asked if Pope had only two alternatives, "retire or be busted," Brooks said, "At this point, I think that's true. ... I just don't see much choice, frankly, other than him to realize he facts of the matter about the 14."

"If any accommodation at all can be reached on this retirement issue, Mr. Justice Pope will get 31 votes (for confirmation)," Brooks said.

More than 288 million barrels of oil stored in five underground sites along the Gulf Coast provide the U.S. economy with an energy cushion in the event of another cutoff in imported oil supplies. The reserve, established after the oil shocks of the '70s, represents 70 days of net U.S. imports at current rates. The administration has come under some congressional fire recently for paying above-market prices for much of the imported oil pumped into the reserve.

Senator introduces PUC reform legislation

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White's speech to legislators Thursday could include a call for election of Public Utility Commission members. At present, they are appointed by the governor.

White said Tuesday that his staff is looking into the potential pitfalls of an elected commission — including the chance it could be dominated by utility companies armed with enough money to influence the elections.

"I don't want to see an elected commission that would be dominated by the industry," White told reporters, adding he also fears an elected commission in which "whoever promises the lowest rate gets elected."

He said an elected commission is "one of the alternatives we are considering."

Sens. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, and Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, already have filed bills that would abolish the three-member appointed commission and replace it with an elected panel.

Caperton wants three commissioners, elected statewide. Doggett's bill calls for six commissioners from single-member districts.

White was not specific about his own proposal, which he said he would discuss in detail Thursday when he lays out his legislative program to state lawmakers during a joint session. He acknowledged there could be legal barriers to a ban on contributions from utility firms.

"It's not easily done, I'll admit," said White.

"We don't want a (utility companies-) dominated elected commission. We don't want an appointed commission of people who don't understand their responsibilities. I think we've seen examples of both of these," he said.

White opposed elected commissioners during the spring primary campaign. Now he says his opposition was to an elected commission that would be "dominated by the industry."

Caperton complained Tuesday that the current commission is "a weak, industry-controlled farce."

"A majority of Texans are simply fed up with the current sham of utility regulation."

Hearing set against nursing home

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A judge was asked today to immediately declare a nursing home firm guilty in the death of a patient, rather than putting off any finding for 10 years as arranged in a plea bargain.

Galveston County District Attorney Mike Guarino said Tuesday he would ask State District Judge Larry Gist "to enter a finding of guilt" against Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc. of Houston.

The hearing was set for 10:30 a.m.

Gist approved a plea bargain Dec. 27 that allowed Autumn Hills to plead no contest to a single count of involuntary manslaughter in the Oct. 16, 1978, death of Edna Mae Witt at its facility in Texas City.

The company and eight present or former employees had been charged with murder in the deaths of eight patients between 1977 and 1979.

Gist deferred adjudication in the plea bargain, meaning that if the firm kept state law for the next 10 years, it would have no criminal record. The firm also agreed to pay $100,000.

The plea bargain ended a three-year investigation of patients' deaths at the facility.

Guarino, who took office at the first of the year, said his investigation of state law indicated deferred adjudication could not be granted to a corporation.

He said the law was brought to his attention by Attorney General Jim Mattox.

Former Assistant District Attorney David Marks contends the home killed 56 patients through neglect between Sept. 1, 1977, and Aug. 31, 1979.

Marks was fired Dec. 16 for insubordination for attempting to keep his boss, former District Attorney James Hury, from presenting the plea bargain to Gist for approval. Marks filed suit and appealed to Texas' 14th Court of Civil Appeals in an effort to block the agreement.

Marks contended Hury knew virtually nothing of the case and had thrown obstacles in the path of the investigation.

Hury, now a state representative, said the 38 indictments were the "most unprofessional and incompetent I have seen" and contended no prosecutor could win a case based on them.

Marks, reached at his Galveston home, said Guarino's planned action was not all he had hoped for.

"I will never take the posture that what took place in the past was right," he said. "Until there is a factual inquiry as to what took place, I think there will always be a cloud of impropriety hanging over it."

Marks said the hearing "is a testimonial to how little the parties involved in this plea bargain knew of the law and the facts."

No one answered phone calls to Hury's home or office in Austin or to his home in Galveston.

A woman who answered the phone at Autumn Hills' headquarters in Houston said no company officials could be reached for comment on Guarino's plans. She said representatives of the firm would be present at the hearing.

Milk producers promoting diversion program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Milk Producers Federation is working on a new "voluntary paid diversion" program which federation officials say could help ease the cost of federal milk supports.

Federation officials said that the plan — still in the development stage — will be submitted to the organization's board of directors next month. As outlined Tuesday in the federation's weekly newsletter, the concept would "work in conjunction" with the current milk support program, which costs the government about $2 billion a year to prop up milk prices at the farm. "In concept, it would be similar to the diversion programs now in place for wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice," the report said. "Prior to the beginning of the marketing year, dairy farmers would be given an opportunity to enter into agreements whereby they would reduce milk sales by a specified percentage below their 1982 marketings. In exchange for this cutback, participating farmers would receive an incentive payment."

The federation said the plan was designed to "replace the assessment provisions" enacted by Congress last year — the 50-cent fee of 50 cents per 100 pounds of milk is supposed to go into effect on Dec. 1.

But a federal judge in South Carolina banned the fee collections on Dec. 21 until the case could be settled. Another court decision will clear the way for implementing both steps of the fee program. The federation said its replacement program would reduce federal dairy support costs because "the incentive payments would be substantially lower" than the present system of the government buying surplus butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk to bolster milk prices.

Corn surplus will be smaller

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The huge U.S. corn surplus will be a bit smaller than Agriculture Department experts had forecast, but it still will be enough to keep prices depressed through the remainder of the 1982-83 marketing year.

A new USDA supply-and-demand analysis issued Monday said that a Jan. 1 inventory of grain stocks showed that the use of corn as livestock feed has been larger than previously projected.

Further, Jan. 1 surveys indicated the number of cattle in feedlots was "a little above expectations, suggesting slightly larger beef production in the first half of 1983 than previously estimated," the report said.

The result is that there will be about 100 million bushels more corn fed to livestock in the 1982-83 marketing year than had been previously estimated.

Thus, the carryover "surplus" of corn next Oct. 1 — the beginning of the new marketing year — is expected to be 3.38 billion bushels, 5 percent less than previously forecast.

Even so, 3.38 billion bushels of corn in the U.S. stockpile would be a record, nearly 50 percent more than the inventory of 2.29 billion bushels last Oct. 1.

The report said that corn prices at the farm still are expected to average $2.20 to $2.40 per bushel this marketing year, unchanged from the previous estimate. The average in 1981-82 was $2.45 per bushel, and in 1980-81 it was $3.11.

Looking at the balance sheet, analysts said the total U.S. corn supply this year was nearly 10.7 billion bushels, including nearly 2.29 billion on hand last Oct. 1 and a record harvest of almost 8.4 billion bushels.

In 1981-82, the supply was about 9.24 billion bushels, also a record.

An estimated 4.3 billion bushels of corn will be fed to poultry and livestock this year, up from less than 4.2 billion in 1981-82. About 900 million bushels will be used for food, seed and industrial purposes, up from 811 million bushels last season.

Exports of corn in 1982-83 will account for 2.1 billion bushels, up slightly from 1.97 billion last season but still below the mark of 2.36 billion bushels shipped abroad two years ago.

In all, about 7.3 billion bushels of corn will be used this year, up from 6.95 billion in 1981-82, the report said.

That will leave more than 3.38 billion bushels of corn in the U.S. stockpile on Oct. 1. An estimated 2.5 billion bushels of that will be under government loan, in the farm-owned reserve, and thus not available for immediate sale.

The figures, however, relate only to the 1982-83 situation and do not take into account what may happen under the administration's payment-in-kind program in which farmers cut 1983 crop acreages will get surplus grain as compensation.

Four named to cotton board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block has named four new members and four alternates to the 20-member cotton board, which administers a national cotton research and promotion program.

The program is financed by cotton farmers who pay assessments of about $2 per bale. The program budget for the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1 is $18 million, down from $22.5 million in 1981-82.

Projects and spending budgets are developed and carried out by Cotton Inc. under contract with the cotton board. The USDA monitors the program to see that it conforms to the law and public interest.

The new board members and alternates for each state, in that order, are:

Arkansas — Carter Paterson, Jonesboro; and Ross D. Hughes Jr., Blythville.

Arizona — J.S. Francis Jr., Phoenix; and Wilbur H. Wuertz, Casa Grande.

Georgia — J. Marvin Ruark, Bostwick; and Louie Perry, Moultrie.

Texas — Tommy R. Funk, Harlingen; and Allan R. Anderson, Raymondville.

Comments wanted on peanuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is seeking public comments through Feb. 11 to help make decisions on the government's 1983 peanut acreage program.

Everett Rank, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said Monday the comments are being sought to help set price support loan rates for both "quota" and "additional" peanuts grown this year.

Peanuts grown within a farmer's quota carry a higher loan rate, while those produced as additional peanuts get a lower rate.

The law provides that the national average support for 1983, 1984 and 1985 quota peanuts shall be the support rate for the preceding year's crop — with adjustments to reflect any increase in the national average cost of production.

However, the law says that the rate cannot be less than 27.5 cents a pound — $550 per ton.

The cost of producing peanuts last year is estimated to have declined from 1981. Thus, the national average support rate for 1983 would remain unchanged from the 1982 level of $550 per ton, Rank said.

Price support for "additional" peanuts are set as determined by the secretary of agriculture but at a level "to ensure no loss" to the government under its loan program. The 1982 rate for additional peanuts was $200 per ton.

Comments can be sent by Feb. 11 to: Director, Analysis Division, Room 3741-S, USDA, ASCS, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

NEW 100-190 HP TRACTORS JOHN DEERE SETS NEW PTO FUEL EFFICIENCY RECORD IN OFFICIAL TESTS

The John Deere 4850 is the most fuel-efficient big tractor you can buy. It now holds the record for PTO-measured fuel efficiency: In official tests at rated engine speed, the new 4850 bested every current production tractor of 100 horsepower or more. (Actually it's the most fuel efficient tractor over 65 hp currently available.) The record? Take your choice: 17.47 horsepower hours per gallon or .399 pounds of fuel per horsepower hour. But the 4850 wasn't alone in turning in an improved PTO fuel efficiency. All five of our 100- to 190-hp tractors are more fuel efficient than their predecessors. Across the line, they average 10 percent better on overall PTO fuel efficiency. Stop in for the full story.

POWERFUL NEW EFFICIENCY FOR YOUR BREAD-AND-BUTTER MACHINE

NEW 100-190 HP TRACTORS JOHN DEERE OUTPULLS THEM ALL IN OFFICIAL TESTS

Two of our new 50 Series Tractors have broken the drawbar pull record for 2-wheel-drive tractors in official tests. Yes, that's right. TWO of them. The new 4650 recorded a maximum pull of 18,794 lb. And the new 4850 recorded a maximum pull of 20,810 lb. Both of these tractors recorded more drawbar pull than any other 2-wheel-drive tractor ever tested. All five of our new tractors generate a considerable increase in pulling power when compared to their predecessors. And torque reserve? It's increased as well. Drawbar fuel efficiency? It's improved on all five. Stop by the store for complete details on these record-setting tractors. We want to tell you about our PTO fuel efficiency record and sensational sound levels, too. If you're looking for better fuel efficiency, more pulling power or a better working environment, look at a new John Deere.

Home builders optimistic

HOUSTON (AP) — The "disastrous slump" plaguing America's housing industry for the past two years may finally have bottomed out, says the new president of the National Association of Home Builders.

And homebuilders nationwide are "cautiously optimistic" about their future, Harry Pryde said Tuesday as the organization's 40th annual convention closed.

"The general feeling is that 1983 will be a better year for everyone. Housing starts are picking up and we're predicting that interest rates will drop another percentage point and those are both good signs," Pryde said.

The Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration interest rate is 12 percent, compared with 16½ percent a year ago. Conventional home loans range from 12 percent to 13 percent.

Ann Landers

Given no warning

DEAR ANN: The letter from "Mary in Providence" who was furious because her doctor didn't prepare her for the loss of sexual desire after a hysterectomy is sure to produce a bushel of letters from women who had the same experience. Your consultant, gynecologist Dr. George Ryan, is, of course, a MALE. What do they know?

I had my tubes tied and went through the same thing for eight months—no desire for sex, completely turned off. My husband was sure he had lost his touch and that I was sleeping with someone else. It almost knocked the hell out of our marriage.

I decided on my own to seek counseling, and thank God I did. My therapist explained the close relationship between sexual desire and the psychological mind-set of child-bearing. My gynecologist never said one word to me about this possibility, and the women I know who had tubal ligations and hysterectomies were never told of it either.

If this letter helps just one woman prepare for what she may experience, I will sleep better tonight.—Back From The Dead In Syracuse

DEAR BACK: Would you believe five bushels of letters on that subject? Get with it, all you gnyies who fail to alert your patients that they may need counseling. While there is no organic reason for the loss of sex drive after a hysterectomy or tubal ligation, obviously there may be emotional side-effects that should not be ignored.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My favorite column has been on my dresser under glass for years. Every time I read it I laugh. Please do your readers a favor and run it again.—Marietta In Moline

DEAR MARIETTA: Here it is. (I laughed, too!)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married for 44 years to a man I will call Albert. Although he is a far cry from what my mother had in mind for me, we have gotten along fairly well and raised good children.

I have always been known for my Dutch apple pies. I never could give out the recipe because I don't measure anything. I learned to bake from watching my mother.

Last night my sister and her husband came over for

All Home Satellite Systems Are Not Created Equal!

A "real deal" isn't always a good bargain!

There's a lot of hullabaloo and advertising hype around now days about TV earth stations with claims like the best highest quality lowest price etc. etc. You also see one company touting their antennas others promoting their receivers, and still another pushing bits, parts, and pieces that add on or tie in to make up a satellite receiving system.

If you're getting a bit confused, (and who wouldn't) consider these simple facts about a Birdview System:

- 1 It is a highly advanced, but straight forward system, engineered and manufactured from the ground up entirely by Birdview as a totally matched system.
- 2 The antenna is a one piece, 9' spun aluminum dish with a simple, but very unique polar mount that sets on a single 6" pipe.
- 3 The use of a dual conversion LNC with crystal synthesis tuning, comparable in design and construction to commercial quality units and enclosed in a solid weather proof housing.
- 4 The use of two low noise amplifiers that simplifies tuning and eliminates rotating devices usually found on other systems.
- 5 A small compact receiver with 24 channel detente video tuning, variable audio tuning, LED digital readout built in modulator and source selection that operates as simply as your television set. Straight 21 channel selection, no time tuning to adjust. Over 20 channels to select. From sports, movies, weather, music, spanish, children's, religious & dancing.

Canyon museum exhibits quilts

Now through Feb. 15 the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon will exhibit a large selection of antique and contemporary quilts.

Entitled "Piecing the Past," the exhibit shows quilts ranging in date from 1809 to the present and reflecting much of America's cultural heritage.

A quilt is much more than just a bed covering, according to curator of textiles, JoAnne Arasim. "Each quilt tells a story by its design, the fabrics used, and the background of the quiltmaker."

The exhibit examines various quilt patterns and quilting tools and techniques. Popular patterns, such as the wedding ring and the star, are displayed and described. The exhibit also points out folklore and legends associated with quilting and quilt patterns.

According to Arasim, "One folk tale says that knots in quilting should be skillfully hidden in the seams or pulled through, because the number of knots visible indicate the number of children the young quilter will bear."

Many of the quilts on exhibit are from the museum's own collection, but the majority are on loan from area residents. An audio-visual presentation entitled

"Quilter's Holiday" will be shown every day at 10 a.m., 2 p.m., and 4 p.m.

The quilt exhibit is located on the second floor of the main museum building. The exhibit poster, as well as post cards and other materials and literature related to quilting, are offered in the Gift Shop. Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday thru Friday and 2-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is free.

'Texas' auditions slated next month

Auditions for the musical drama, "Texas," held each summer in the Pioneer Amphitheatre at Palo Duro Canyon State Park near Canyon, will be held Feb. 13 in Lubbock and Feb. 20 in Canyon.

Directors will be looking for 32 singers, 13 actors, 25 dancers, six instrumentalists, and 16 technicians. Minimum age is 18 years by May 22. Schedules for participants in "Texas" permit time to enroll in courses at West Texas State University.

Music Building No. 1 at Texas Tech University will be the site for auditions in Lubbock on Sunday, Feb. 13. Prospective performers should come between 1 and 4 p.m. and dancers should report at 3 p.m.

On Sunday, Feb. 20, auditions will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Recital Hall of Mary Moody Northern Fine Arts Building on the West Texas State University campus. Dancers should come at 4 p.m.

Applicants should bring a photo and both their school and home addresses and phone numbers.

Singers should prepare an art song or aria or musical show tune and may also prepare a short one or two minute memorized scene or monologue if they wish. Actors should prepare a memorized scene not to exceed three minutes and may prepare a song if they want to also sing. Four men and three women are needed for leading roles and six male actors will be selected to play a variety of supporting roles.

Men and women with ballet or modern dance training should come with appropriate work-out clothing. Two violins, string bass (upright), guitar (standard), banjo and accordian will be needed and those wanting to apply for a technical position will be interviewed personally. They should bring a profile of past accomplishments in the theatre.

This year marks the 18th season that this drama of Panhandle history by Paul Green will be performed at Palo Duro Canyon. Over 1,410,000 people have seen the production. Performances are scheduled from June 15 through Aug. 20, Monday through Saturday, and Sunday July 3. Performers will report for the first rehearsal on May 22.

For more information, write "Texas", Box 268, Canyon Tx 79015 or call (806)655-2181.

Planning Awards Luncheon

Nancy Josseland of Hereford helps plan the eighth annual Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards luncheon which will be hosted by West Texas State University on April 16. Ms. Josseland is a member of the WTSU returning student program's area advisory council. The annual awards luncheon honors women from the top 32 counties of the Panhandle for service in a variety of areas. (WTSU Photo by Andy Hester)

April luncheon to honor service award nominees

"Women-Aware" has been chosen as the theme for the eighth annual Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards luncheon hosted by West Texas State University. Women from throughout the Texas Panhandle area will be honored for their contributions to education, medicine, business, civic service and professional areas on Saturday, April 16, at the WTSU East Dining Hall.

Nominations of women who are 18 years of age and older and who are residents of one of the top 32 counties in the Panhandle, must be received by the WTSU returning student program office before March 25. Nominees do not have to be former students or graduates of WTSU.

Serving as honorary chairpersons for the 1983 luncheon are Bea Pickens of Amarillo and Helen Shannon of Canyon. Co-chairpersons are Donna Moseley of Amarillo and Dr. Sue Park of Canyon.

Other members of the planning committee are members of the area advisory council of the WTSU returning student program and members of the WTSU faculty and staff.

Area advisory council members are Claudia Stuart,

Caroline Chamblin, and Charlotte Quackenbush, all of Amarillo; Paula Britt of Wheeler; Ruth Magee, McLean; Poppy Hulsey, Tulia; Nancy Josseland, Hereford; and Ruth Cross and Joan Van Doren, both of Canyon.

Also serving on the planning committee are Sandra Meek, WTSU dean of student affairs; Sylvia McTague, counselor with the University Counseling and Testing Center; Dr. Mary Gill, associate professor of modern languages; Ronnie Hutcherson, instructor in the School of Business; Mary Hill, assistant professor of physical education.

And, Lila Vars, director of development; Mona Williams Statser, university information service director; Peggy Yeager, returning student program secretary; Jackie McAlpin, associate registrar; and Jane Kerr, director of the returning student program.

Tickets to the Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards luncheon are $10 each and may be obtained from the WTSU returning student program before April 11.

Extension club presidents give project reports at Homemakers Council meet

Carol Odom, of Wyche Extension Club, gave the Lord's Prayer as opening exercise when the County Extension Homemakers Council convened at the Heritage Room of the library on Monday.

Cindy Norvell, chairman, presided over the meeting, announcing that nine clubs were represented, six with 100 percent attendance. Each club president gave a semi-annual report on club activities since September, with emphasis on club projects and unique ideas.

Jewel Hargrave, retiring treasurer, gave a report on the booth at the Westway Club's bazaar last fall. Johnnie Messer, corresponding secretary, read thank you notes from Louise Walker, County Extension Agent, Penny Reinart, assistant CEA, and Brittany Reinart.

Committee recommendations for 1983 were read and approved.

Ms. Reinart thanked members for their support of the Junior Livestock Show coming up this weekend. She also stated that 11 4-H members will be competing in a wool garment contest next month, and that a program on sewing machine care will be started. Career Day will be Feb. 21 at the high school.

Ms. Walker, gave an extended report on activities through March. She reminded club women of the year nominees to get their reports in to her office by Feb. 1. Pictures will be made at the Brand office on Jan. 27.

June Cline, organization specialist, Texas A&M, will be the featured speaker at a leadership training session tonight.

Other dates and events include an herb and spice workshop on Tuesday, Feb. 1, in the banquet room of the Community Center; KPAN

Cooking School on Feb. 15; a home and family life workshop Feb. 22; the annual appreciation luncheon Feb. 28 at the Bull Barn; the Sew Fair workshop and Sew Fair scheduled from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 8 at the Community Center.

Kate Bradley, outgoing TEHA chairman, presented Anna Messer as the new chairman for 1983. Ms. Messer reminded club members to send in TEHA contributions and mark their calendars for the District TEHA meeting on April 12 in Borger.

Louise Axe, Beverly Brooke, and Ms. Odom of Wyche Extension Club served refreshments following the meeting.

Cats have two sets of vocal cords. The upper cords are used to purr and growl while the lower cords produce the "meow" sound.

Insulin developed for diabetics

The threat of insulin shortage is a major concern to physicians who treat patients with diabetes. Now, after decades of scientific research and clinical testing, human-type insulin, which can be mass-produced in laboratories, is available.

Diabetes is a disorder in which the body fails to make proper use of sugar. Normally, a hormone secreted by the pancreas produces insulin and helps to burn sugar and provide energy. But, when the pancreas fails to produce enough insulin, excessive amounts of sugar accumulate in the blood, causing the body chemistry to be upset.

Although some people with diabetes can control the disease by diet, others must depend on injections of insulin.

In the past, diabetics had to use animal-produced insulin. Dependence on slaughterhouses as the only source of raw material for insulin has been a problem—the supply of pancreas glands fluctuates with the meat industry. While the demand for meat changes, the need for insulin does not.

According to Carlos E. Menendez, M.D., endocrinologist and assistant professor of internal medicine at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, production of human-type insulin is a major medical breakthrough for patients with diabetes. Because of allergy, some diabetics cannot use animal-produced insulin.

Development of insulin for diabetics started in the 1920s when two scientists, Frederick G. Banting and Charles Best, began to investigate the possibility of isolating an internal pancreatic secretion thought to regulate the body's use of sugar.

In 1923, Eli Lilly and Company began to market animal-produced insulin through pharmaceutical trade channels. Since that time, the company has continued to heighten the purity of insulin using pancreas glands of either cattle or swine.

In 1953, scientists began developing a method for manufacturing insulin in a limitless supply. Scientists began studying DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid), which carries the genetic information that enables species to produce their own kind.

"The structure of DNA can be described as a twisted ladder," said Menendez. "The two strands that twist around each other are formed by bonds between sugars and phosphates."

Through scientific study of genes, it was determined that synthetic genes could be created to make human-type insulin.

To produce the insulin, the bacteria and genes are grown by fermentation to produce large quantities of the insulin. Several purification steps follow before the insulin is ready for human use.

In 1980, Eli Lilly and Company began clinical trials in the United States. Less than two years later, there were over 900 patients being treated with human insulin therapy.

The development of human-type insulin—which can be produced on a massive scale—will have a strong impact on the future of the 60 million diabetics in the world, said Menendez.

Of the 10,300,000 diabetics in the United States, 6,300,000 are diagnosed and four million remain undiagnosed. More than two million are treated with insulin. And, as the life span of the diabetic increases with improved medical care, the need for abundant supplies of insulin increases.

Menendez was one of the first physicians in Lubbock to treat a patient with the human-type insulin. Early this year, Eli Lilly and Company will make the insulin available to five other South Plains physicians.

Heat pump

receiving attention

COLLEGE STATION—The heat pump, first marketed in the late 1950s, is receiving increased attention in the Southwest as heating energy costs increase.

A heat pump is a refrigeration device that can be used for both heating and cooling, explains Dr. Bill Stewart, agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. It can either collect heat in a home and pump it to the outside in summer or collect heat in outside air and pump it into the home in winter.

Heat pumps may remove heat from air or other fluid as well water. Heating efficiency varies with the temperature of the air or fluid, increasing as the temperature increases, says Stewart.

When winter temperatures are above 30 degrees F.—quite common in Texas—a typical heat pump can provide two-and-a-half or more times as much heat energy per kilowatt of electric power consumed as an electric resistance furnace.

Research at Oklahoma State University and Louisiana State University indicates that water source heat pumps may operate with seasonal efficiencies that are 25 percent or more above those using air as the heat source, says the engineer.

Heat pumps are available as single packaged units for window or through-the-wall installation, or as split systems where the compressor is mounted outside and a heat exchanger and blower are mounted inside. Most central residential air conditioners are installed in a similar manner.

Most heat pump installations will require a supplemental source of heat—electric or gas—in winter when outside temperatures drop below about 30 degrees F.

Heat pumps provide a competitive heat source in most areas where propane or wood are the alternative heating energies, Stewart points out. However, heat pump installation and servicing requires special training above that for conventional refrigeration system service. Be sure adequate service is available before choosing this type of system, he cautions.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, Jan. 26, the 26th day of 1983. There are 339 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Jan. 26, 1942, the first U.S. Expeditionary Force arrived in Europe during World War II, putting ashore in Northern Ireland.

On this date:
In 1827, the South American country of Peru seceded from Colombia.

In 1837, Michigan joined the union as the 26th state.

In 1841, British sovereignty was proclaimed over Hong Kong.

In 1971, the Soviet Union announced an unmanned spacecraft had made a soft landing on Mars.

Ten years ago: Actor Edward G. Robinson died at the age of 79.

Five years ago: A blizzard struck the Middle West, Great Lakes and Ohio Valley.

One year ago: In his first State of the Union message, President Reagan vowed to stick with the tax cuts that lie at the heart of his economic program.

Interlibrary loan improves selection

It would cost over $5,000,000 to purchase one copy of each of the 200,000 books published each year in the United States. It would also cost a significant amount to build structures to house them.

Because of these factors, libraries have to be very selective about the materials they purchase for their collections. Most libraries purchase only a small fraction of the books published annually.

What happens when you want to read a book that isn't owned by your local public library?

1. You might decide to do without the book. This option will be an irritation, the severity of which depends on how much you really want to read that book.

2. You might buy the book...assuming it is still in print and you can locate a copy of it. The average hard-back book cost $25.48 in 1981, the most current year for which this kind of information is available. If you want to read very many books your library doesn't own, this will soon become quite expensive.

3. A third option is to ask your librarian to try to get the book for you from another library on interlibrary loan. Interlibrary loan is a federally funded service administered through the Texas State Library in Austin and is free of charge to users of Texas public, college and special libraries. In addition to books you can get copies of magazine articles, government publications and answers to almost any question.

The Amarillo Public Library serves as interlibrary loan's major resource center for the Texas Panhandle. Other libraries in the top 25 counties, including the Deaf Smith County Library call the interlibrary loan staff in the Amarillo library with their requests. If Amarillo Public owns the needed time, staff members mail it to the requesting library.

For items not owned by the Amarillo library, staff members turn to a computerized data base connecting over 2,000 libraries. Each of these libraries has put its card catalog information into the data base and most have agreed to loan their materials to other libraries. This means that over nine million titles are available for loan through your local library.

The interlibrary loan staff not only identifies what libraries own a particular book, but they can also "call up" an interlibrary loan "work form" on the computer screen and request that the book be loaned to your library.

Library staff at the other library check to see if the requested book is on the shelf; if so, it is mailed to the library where you made your request.

When the book arrives, your librarian will contact you and you can come and check out the book. When you are finished, just bring the book back and the librarian will mail it back to its home library.

Future plans of the Harrington Library Consortium, four Amarillo area libraries which are beginning to use a computer to help cut down on paperwork and to share their resources, call for making interlibrary loan even more efficient.

At some future time all Panhandle libraries may be linked electronically through computer terminals to a shared data base. Your librarian will be able to see which library in this area owns a book, whether it is on the shelf and request that it be sent...all by "pushing a button."

Until that time, those using interlibrary loan need to keep the following in mind:

1. Although it is impossible to say how long it will take for you to get a book on interlibrary loan, the average time is about two weeks. If you have a deadline, let your librarian know and it will be specially treated as a "rush" request.

2. Have as much information about the book on hand as possible. Author, title, approximately when it was written, where you heard of it and anything else that will help identify and locate the item you want will be helpful.

3. Not every request can be filled. The vast majority can and are...but there are some things that just can't be found and some things that libraries just won't loan. (But it never hurts to try!)

Terri Jolly, the interlibrary loan librarian at the Amarillo Public Library, says she thinks more people could enrich their lives by taking advantage of the service. "Not every library can own every book," she says. "But every Texas citizen has the opportunity to read almost any book in any library in the country."

Interest in work is big motivation

COLLEGE STATION - The strongest motivation for volunteering, according to a '81 Gallup Poll, is the desire to help others. But the second most popular motivation is "interest in work," reports Jane Cline, organization specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In 1974, the typical American volunteer was a married, college-educated, white woman between the ages of 25 and 44 from the upper income brackets. Today's "new volunteer" is more likely to be employed full-time, says Cline.

As a result, volunteers now select jobs that they consider important both to the community, and for self-improvement. Volunteers want to put their limited time into projects they really care about, Cline adds.

People are anticipating how the skills they develop from volunteering might qualify them for a better paying position, says Cline. Today's volunteers may also expect benefits and incentives such as mileage, insurance coverage, formal training, and a performance review.

Corporations are encouraging employees to volunteer their time rather than making large cash donations. According to Cline, a 1979 study found that more than 350 companies—including 30 percent of the Fortune 500—encourage their employees to volunteer in the community. Of these, 333 have formal programs.

Some corporations give an hour of released time to match an hour of personal time contributed by a volunteer. A less common approach to volunteer work is the "social service leave" which enables an employee to carry out a social-welfare project for a specific non-profit community agency.

These efforts help companies express their sense of social responsibility. They also raise employee morale, expose employees to the community and help them improve their skills.

If volunteerism is to survive, Cline warns, the first step is to renew faith in volunteers and to express community appreciation for their gift of service. Second, volunteers must be involved in planning projects or they will mistrust the motives of those requesting their services. Finally, volunteers must be well-trained and well-placed for maximum job satisfaction.

"The future of volunteering looks good," says Cline. "People of all ages, both sexes and all nationalities will volunteer, but for somewhat different reasons and for shorter periods of time," she adds.

Volunteer work will be more fulfilling in the future, says Cline, because it helps others, is interesting, provides training and skill development that benefits the volunteer.

LAST WORDS OF JESUS: "I'LL BE BACK"

"See, I am coming soon. and My reward is with Me. to repay everyone according to the deeds he has done. I am the A and the Z, the Beginning and the End, the First and Last. Blessed forever are all who are washing their robes, to have the right to enter in through the gates of the city, and to eat the fruit from the Tree of Life. Outside the city are those who have strayed away from God, and the sorcerers and the immoral and murderers and idolaters, and all who love to lie, and do so. I, Jesus, have sent My angel to you to tell the churches all these things. I am both David's Root and his Descendant. I am the bright Morning Star. The Spirit and the bride say, 'Come.' Let each one who hears them say the same, 'Come.' Let the thirsty one come--anyone who wants to; let him come and drink the Water of Life without charge. And I solemnly declare to everyone who reads this book: If anyone adds anything to what is written here, God shall add to him the plagues described in this book. And if anyone subtracts any part of these prophecies, God shall take away his share in the Tree of Life, and in the Holy City just described. He who has said all these things declares: Yes, I am coming soon!" Amen! Come, Lord Jesus!

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen! (Revelation 22:12-21)

Powerful 'Journey's End'

By Aphrodite Jones

"Journey's End," starring Maxwell Caulfield and Andrew Stevens, is the latest "Broadway on Showtime" special. The play, which airs on the pay-TV service throughout the January and February schedules, is a searing portrayal of life in the trenches during World War I.

Originally produced in England in the late 1920s with a young Sir Laurence Olivier in the lead, "Journey's End" was deemed too grim for the audiences of the day. The revised Showtime presentation promises gripping drama. The two men are seen in the dugout, surrounded by barbed wire, wearing gas masks and drab army uniforms throughout the two-hour production.

"The muted tones give a lot of texture to the tape, bringing out the mood of the play so that audiences will get the feeling that they are there," Stevens said in a recent interview in Los Angeles.

"I think we'll capture the audience because the production is outstanding. It varies from scene to scene, but most of the dialogue is fast-paced and the language is well-written."

"Journey's End" was R.C. Sherriff's first play. He later wrote the screenplays for such film classics as "Mrs. Miniver" and "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

"People are going to be exposed to cultural elements they didn't even know existed in this play. The piece is very controversial. It was one of the first plays to make an anti-war statement and it's certainly strong drama."

Stevens has appeared in such feature films as "The Boys in Company C" and "The Seduction." Caulfield made his movie debut in "Grease II."

"Journey's End" was taped at the Cast-in-the-Circle Theater in Hollywood. Other featured players are Ian Abercrombie, Wayne Alexander and Robert Anton.

"The play was not originally conceived as a project for Showtime. Maxwell and myself were putting this on in a tiny little theater in Los Angeles and three days before the end of the run, Showtime saw it and decided to try it. I always thought that the show would wind up on cable if not in New York," Stevens said.

Block says budget won't affect crop surpluses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says farm exports and the new payment-in-kind program to reduce U.S. crop surpluses outweigh any agriculture budget proposals which soon will be sent to Congress.

President Reagan is scheduled to send his budget recommendations to Congress next week. It will be for the year that will begin next Oct. 1.

But Block said Tuesday, "As far as the farm commodity programs are concerned, I don't see that the budget is going to have a major effect on them one way or the other."

He also said that sign-up figures in the administration's PIK program won't be disclosed until after the books are closed in March.

Traditionally, the Agriculture Department has issued reports periodically to show how farmers are signing up in crop acreage programs.

Farmers began signing up for the PIK program on Jan. 24 and will continue through March 11. There will be no progress reports issued by the department, Block said.

"For one thing, it's difficult to keep an eye on this thing," he told a group of farm broadcasters in a telephone interview. "It's going to be moving quickly. The sign-up period is not that long, it's fairly short."

Also, Block said, the old system of issuing sign-up progress report sometimes is self-defeating.

"Farmers will go ahead and try and outsmart the system, and I understand that, I'm a farmer," Block said. "It's a natural thing to do."

Thus, he said, it was decided to "just not report all this stuff" so that farmers will have to "play the game based on the facts that we have."

The facts, Block said, are that there is an immense supply of grain which will have to be reduced before commodity prices improve significantly.

Under PIK, farmers who idle a portion of their crop land will be paid in surplus wheat, corn, sorghum, cotton or rice, depending on their type of operation. They can sell or use the commodities as they choose.

Block said that once a farmer signs up in the PIK program he will have until March 11 to back out.

"But once the sign-up is closed, then the producer is in," he said. "He has made a contract with us to perform accordingly."

If a farmer chooses to ignore the contract, he will be subject to penalties — the details of which have not been worked out," Block said.

"But there's going to be a price paid," he said. "There has to be when someone backs out of a contract."

The department is working with the Internal Revenue Service to determine how PIK commodities given to farmers will be taxed. Block said he favors taxing farmers after they sell the commodities, not when they get them from the government.

"If we don't get the right ruling, I think we'll get some help from Congress on this, because they're not going to let farmers be holding the bag like this," Block said.

Dirty Work

Growers want PIK to include barley

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Wheat Growers says the Agriculture Department should include barley in this year's payment-in-kind program to curb 1983 crop plantings.

As it stands, PIK will provide for qualified farmers to get surplus commodities for reducing acreages of wheat, corn, sorghum, rice and cotton.

Don Loeslie, president of the association, said Tuesday that PIK "should be extended to all major grains which are in oversupply" and that USDA should not depend solely on its corn program to correct the barley problem. The major U.S. feed grains are corn, sorghum, barley and oats.

According to USDA figures, the barley stockpile at the end of the current marketing year on May 31 will be about 235 million bushels, up from 150 million bushels at the beginning of the year.

Department officials said when PIK was announced on Jan. 11 that barley and oats were not included in the program because supplies of those grains were not burdensome.

'Good life' interrupted

Law finally caught up with physician

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. John Hall Thomas lived the good life in a restored three-story Victorian mansion in Nacogdoches. He had a swimming pool and was building a carriage house. Then the law caught up with him. Thomas, 38, ran weight reduction clinics in Dallas and Nacogdoches — and a prosecutor says that in six months in 1982 Thomas wrote 46 percent of the prescriptions for the stimulant Preludin issued in Texas.

Thomas was indicted Sept. 28 on 63 counts of illegally prescribing the drug, conspiring to dispense the drug illegally, and operating a continuing criminal enterprise. His license to practice medicine has been revoked, and in a plea bargain arrangement, he pleaded guilty Monday in Tyler federal court to one count of illegally prescribing the drug.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Chris Harrison said in a telephone interview from Tyler that Thomas wrote 5,065 Preludin prescriptions amounting to 300,000 doses from January to June 1982. He made more than $450,000 during that time, Harrison said. His mansion in Nacogdoches had a historical marker on the front, and copper pipes under the floors to heat the place.

"It was completely restored, something right out of Disneyland," Harrison said.

Harrison said Thomas, a former Air Force doctor who had a general practice in Nacogdoches, ran into financial trouble after he and a partner, Bruce Morris, began a computer software business in 1979.

"They were coming from as far away as Dallas and Fort Worth."

Harrison said investigators arranged to send Allen Byrd, a Harris County sheriff's deputy working as an undercover agent, to the clinic to buy Preludin. Byrd is not overweight, Harrison said.

"Byrd, using the name Allen Smith, went to Thomas's office and told him he wanted the drug and he was going to use it to shoot up," Harrison said.

Thomas told him they would have to make it look legal, so Byrd would have to bring four fat girls with him.

"He came back with the girls, all law enforcement officers, and got the prescriptions."

Harrison said authorities ran a computer check on the triplicate prescription forms doctors must file with law enforcement agencies on restricted drugs, and discovered the extraordinary number of prescriptions for Preludin, a drug with limited therapeutic value to which legitimate users develop a tolerance after about three weeks.

Thomas opened a second clinic in Dallas, operating it out of several different addresses, Harrison said.

"There was no advertising, no sign out front, no listing in the phone book. It was just a house, but the day it opened about 250 people were waiting for him to get there. Somehow, people who wanted to lose weight just found out about it," Harrison said sarcastically.

Thomas is free on $1,000 bond awaiting sentencing by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice. He faces a five-year sentence and $15,000 fine on the charge, Harrison said.

John Sortore, head of the hearings division of the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners, said Thomas' license to practice medicine was revoked July 1 for non-therapeutic prescription of drugs and failure to practice medicine in a manner consistent with public health.

Mattox says executions will be frequent in Texas one day

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox says executions eventually could take place in Texas "every six to eight weeks" and that there may be as many as 10 this year in the death house at Huntsville.

Mattox also said, however, that he doesn't believe any executions will be carried out anywhere in the United States until the Supreme Court rules in the case of Thomas Andy Barefoot.

Barefoot, convicted of killing a policeman, came within 12 hours of his scheduled execution before the Supreme Court issued a stay Monday. The court plans to use the case to establish procedures for dealing with emergency appeals in death penalty cases.

A key issue to be considered by the high court is whether federal appeals courts should grant stays of execution to inmates whose federal habeas corpus appeals have not been fully reviewed and ruled on by the appeals court.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had rejected Barefoot's request for a stay, deciding not to issue stays unless it found the appeal had a good chance of success.

The result in the Barefoot case would have been the same as in the case of Charlie Brooks Jr., who was executed in Huntsville Dec. 7 — the execution would have taken place without the appeals court ruling on the formal appeal.

Mattox said Tuesday that if the Supreme Court rules in the Barefoot case that the 5th Circuit's standards are correct, and that a full federal habeas corpus appeal is not necessary, Texas could have as many as 10 more executions this year.

Only six people have been executed in the nation since the death penalty was reinstated in 1976.

The high court is not expected to issue a decision in the Barefoot case until July. A hearing is set for April 26.

Mattox said he believes that regardless of the outcome of that case, executions eventually will be frequent in Texas.

"I believe the executions could start taking place every six to eight weeks, or perhaps more quickly," Mattox said in a telephone interview.

Three of the 169 inmates with death sentences in Texas have execution dates. Henry Porter is to be hanged Feb. 10 for murdering a Fort Worth policeman, James David Autry is to die Feb. 21 for murdering a clerk in Port Arthur, and Leon R. King is to die March 13, for beating a man to death after abducting him in Houston.

Assistant Attorney General Doug Becker said the state will not oppose requests for stays of those executions pending the Supreme Court ruling in the Barefoot case.

Becker said none of the Texas inmates now under sentence of death has had a full federal habeas corpus appeal.

He said the closest to reaching to stage is Ronald Clark O'Bryan, who was known as the "Candy Man" after being convicted of killing his son with poisoned Halloween candy. The 5th Circuit held a hearing in the case Tuesday but is not expected to rule for weeks.

In a federal habeas corpus appeal, a conviction or sentence is challenged on grounds that a federal constitutional right was violated. Death Row inmates have two other avenues of appeal before that. They can appeal directly to the state's highest court and then to the Supreme Court. And they can file a state habeas corpus appeal, which also can end up at the Supreme Court.

Mattox said it is possible that a Texas inmate could be executed before the Supreme Court rules in the Barefoot case, if the inmate's "procedural position" differed from Barefoot's. But he said that is unlikely.

Becker cited the case of Charles Rumbaugh, who was convicted of killing a jewelry store operator.

Rumbaugh told a judge he wanted to go ahead with his execution. The inmate's parents won a stay after arguing Rumbaugh was mentally incompetent when he made the request.

despite a bid from VION that was $1.1 million cheaper.

A federal grand jury in San Jose, Calif., indicted Hitachi and 17 individuals last June on charges of conspiring to transport stolen property. Hitachi allegedly had paid an undercover FBI agent $622,000 for what was purported to be stolen technical data on IBM computers.

Japan's Mitsubishi Electric Corp. and four individuals were indicted on similar charges for allegedly paying $26,000 to obtain trade secrets. A judge later dropped charges against three of the defendants.

No date has been set for the Hitachi or Mitsubishi trials. Both firms have acknowledged making payments to the FBI from organization called Glenmar Associates for computer information, but they deny trying to steal any secrets.

FBI officials have said VION had nothing to do with the alleged theft of trade secrets.

According to court records, Hitachi's main objective was to buy microcodes and software for IBM's new "extended architecture."

Agent says written record not necessary

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An FBI agent testified in Jimmy Chagra's murder trial that he gave instructions to Chagra's cellmate about taping prison conversations, but it wasn't necessary for him to make a written record of the instructions.

The tape recordings comprise key evidence in the government's case against Chagra, on trial for the murder of U.S. District Judge

John H. Wood Jr. of San Antonio, Texas.

"No instruction that I gave him was unique," Gary W. Hart testified Tuesday about his discussions with Chagra's cellmate, Jerry Lee James. He said a record of instructions to James already had been made.

Hart was in charge of the late 1980 and early 1981 taping at the U.S. Penitentiary at Leavenworth, including the recording of conversations between Chagra and James.

DEAR POLLY — For my birthday, my husband bought me a beautiful white 100 percent acrylic robe. One morning I got too near the heater and scorched it. I've tried laundry pre-soak products and chlorine bleach on the spot, but nothing has helped? Do you have any suggestions? — MRS. J.T.

DEAR MRS. J.T. — Unfortunately, the fibers may be too burned to really remove the spot. If the fabric is only stained, however, hydrogen peroxide may do the trick. Sponge it on, then rinse with clear water. Repeat if necessary. If the fibers are too damaged for the peroxide to remove the stain, there's almost nothing that can be done. The only treatment would be to try to cover up the scorched spot (you might try white fabric paint or white typewriter correction fluid). — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When playing a board game, put the playing board on a turntable. This makes it easy for each player to see the board clearly when it's his or her turn. — MRS. R.L.B.

DEAR POLLY — In giftware and fine china departments, we often see the sign: "If you break it, it's yours." I suggest the stores place the price stickers where they are easily visible, rather than on the bottom of items. No one would need to handle the breakable items to find the price. One often doesn't have time to wait for busy store clerks when one just wants to know the price of a piece. I hope merchants everywhere will consider this. — MRS. L.H.

DEAR POLLY — It has come to my attention that some manufacturers are not incorporating the process of permanent press into some garments. If you don't want to end up ironing all shirts as we did 30 years ago, be sure to check all labels on new clothing to see if it is permanent press or not. Otherwise, you'll be stung by the "ironing bee." Also, if a garment is labeled "100 percent rayon," it will need to be ironed. — GRANNY KNOW IT ALL

DEAR POLLY — When a recipe calls for melted chocolate, I use my egg poacher to do the job instead of messing up an entire double boiler. The individual egg cups are easy to pour the melted chocolate from and they are very easy to clean. — MRS. R.D.L.

HEALTH Ankylosing spondylitis?

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor has been telling me for the last 15 years (I'm 45) that I have all the classic symptoms of arthritis, which does run in my family. But he has been unable to pinpoint it with blood tests. I read your column about ankylosing spondylitis and began to wonder if that is what I have. Would the tests differ?

The joints affected until this year have been between the fingers of both hands, elbows, knees, big toes and sometimes wrists and ankles. This year both shoulders and the right hip are involved with decreased movement. Apparently there is some arthritis in the spine between the shoulder blades, discovered on X-ray.

I also had a bout with gout when I was only 23. To my knowledge this should not affect me. The one medication that seems to have the best results has been Indocin.

DEAR READER — Your self-diagnosis is just speculation at this point but well worth considering. Many doctors would not think about ankylosing spondylitis in your case because you are a female. In the past it has been considered primarily a disease of young white males. But recent studies have shown that it may be nearly as common in females. It is being classified as seronegative rheumatoid arthritis.

And that phrase answers your question. Yes, the tests may be quite different from rheumatoid arthritis. Specifically, the "rheumatoid factor" found with tests is absent.

The disease usually begins with low back pain and the only thing that can be found may be changes in the sacroiliac joints, by X-rays. But now we know it can cause involvement of peripheral joints, such as the legs. The classic form causes progressive fusion of the vertebrae causing a poker spine.

Indocin is often the most effective medicine in relieving symptoms. It is treated with other medicines as well. But don't discount gout. It, too, can cause involvement of many joints.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is vitamin B-6 harmful for people to take? Does it do any harm for a person to take a vitamin B-6 supplement with prescription medications? I am taking about 50 mg a day. I have heard of a number of cases where it has been helpful and am wondering why most doctors do not prescribe it to help correct disorders such as premenstrual edema and arthritic conditions.

DEAR READER — Vitamin B-6 includes pyridoxine, pyridoxal and pyridoxamine. These are water-soluble substances and excess amounts are eliminated in the urine. There is little evidence of a deficiency disease caused by inadequate amounts, but a deficiency may cause changes in the skin and rarely an anemia. The chief role of B-6 is in co-enzymes that help to utilize the amino acids from the protein in your diet. Hence a person on a high protein diet may need some extra B-6.

Your 50 mg dose will not hurt you. Much larger doses have been taken without ill effects. It is not prescribed for a lot of ailments such as you mention because of little or no reliable evidence that it is of any benefit.
