US Senate group OKs dam work

A U.S. Senate subcommittee approved funds Wednesday for various Texas projects, including the Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge near Umbarger.

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said $3.73 million was approved for new construction activities at the dam within the Buffalo Lake refuge, about 20 miles east of Hereford.

The lake had been dry for several years before heavy flooding rains endangered the dam and flooded downstream from the dam, imperiling Canyon and other sites, in 1980.

Gramm, a member of the Appropriations Committee, said the funds were approved by the Interior Department subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee.

The funds, if approved by the House, will be used during the 1992 fiscal year which begins Oct. 1.

The bill will be considered by the full Senate in upcoming weeks, Gramm said.

State will add to plates

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards says a decision to emblazon the state's license plates with the phrase "The Lone Star State" is "Texas through and through."

"We like it," said Richards spokesman Chuck McDonald. "It's fitting and appropriate and truly Texan."

The Texas Highway Commission voted Wednesday to add the phrase to Texas tags.

The commission approved the change in response to a resolution passed in the Legislature's regular session that urged the addition.

Highway department chief Arnold Oliver said the commission "agreed it was time to put Texas' unofficial but best-loved label on the plates."

"Texans have made their pride plain, to the point of making it the object of legislation," Oliver said. "We obviously have a lot to be proud of, and our newest license plates, with its flag and 'The Lone Star State,' couldn't trumpet that any more loudly."

The new slogan, which will be in small blue lettering at the bottom of passenger vehicle tags, should start appearing on Texas highways in early 1992.

Adding the logo shouldn't raise the cost of making the plates, which now feature a Texas flag along with blue numbers and letters, said department spokesman Al Zucha.

"We'll use up our existing stock, and we're looking for them to start showing up next spring," Zucha said.

In August 1989, the commission decided to leave the state tags sloganless after nearly 25,000 Texans protested a highway department proposal for adding "Friendship State." But commissioners did add a Texas flag to the upper left of the previously plain plates.

State Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said earlier this year that he sponsored the "Lone Star" resolution because "Friendship," the official state motto, was "too wimpy."

House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock concurred, saying the new slogan would capture and advertise the romance of Texas.

House, Senate plans different on state services

Both bills call for AIDS disclosure by health workers

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers approved drastically different plans to try and reorganize the state's beleaguered health and welfare agencies in a way that would save money and better deliver services.

The Senate was expected to vote today on final passage of its proposal, while the House gave final approval to its plan on Wednesday.

The competing measures are expected to be sent to a conference committee of House and Senate members.

The Senate's proposal would create a three-member commission that would assume responsibility for all health and human services in Texas.

Existing major agencies would remain in place but the proposed commission, which would be appointed by the governor, would review rules, programs and budgets. Mergers could result if the commission felt an agency was falling down on the job.

Savings to the state would total an estimated $16 million over the next two years and $81 million over five years, according to the Legislative Budget Board.

But Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said, "This is not all just about money, it's about efficiency, about productivity, providing of services... I don't think you can put a dollar figure on that."

Meanwhile, the House plan would abolish the boards overseeing 12 health and human service agencies, and place those agencies under the direction of one chief executive.

That chief would be selected by the governor.

Rep. Jack Vowell, R-El Paso, said giving the governor the power to hire and fire the top executive would make the agencies more accountable.

"Regardless of whether you're Democrat or Republican, the governor of this state has tremendous responsibility for health and human services and almost no authority," he said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said, "The benefit is trying to save money, trying to make it more efficient and more economical to run."

Both proposals contain provisions on AIDS disclosure.

In the Senate version, health care workers would be required to know if they tested positive for the AIDS virus, and all would be required to practice universal safety precautions.

A worker infected by the virus could not perform an "exposure-prone procedure" unless it was approved by his peers. Even then, any patient would have to be notified of the worker's health condition.

In the House bill, a person who has tested positive to exposure to the AIDS virus must tell their physician or dentist. They cannot force the physician to perform a medical procedure.

Conversely, a physician or dentist must tell a patient if they have tested positive for the AIDS virus.

Both bills also would look at expanding, consolidating or closing one or more state hospitals or schools.

Rogers asks for support of development efforts

Ken Rogers, a long-time volunteer in local economic development efforts, urged local residents to become more supportive of development efforts in an address Wednesday to the Hereford Lions Club.

Rogers traced the history of some recent efforts to attract new business and industry to Hereford, but emphasized that most local growth will come from already-established business and industry. He cited expansion at Hereford Bi-Products-Merrick Petfoods, Poarch Brothers, Ramirez and Sons, Holly Sugar and other efforts as growth from already-established industry.

Rogers also pointed to the need for a "war chest" to use to more easily enable local business to grow while enticing new business and industry. He pointed to Amarillo's half-cent addition to the sales tax as an easy way to gain revenue for ED efforts. Hereford voters rejected a similar addition to the local sales tax last year.

Rogers said that Amarillo, with $6 million in hand and more added every month, is able to make loans to industries and other businesses that might not be available from conventional lending sources, and is able to use the funds for intense recruiting both of which wound up in Plainview. In both cases, Hereford finished in second place.

Rogers was grateful for past economic development efforts, "but we can't go out and do it like Henry Sears and Jimmy Witherspoon used to do. There is a lot of paperwork involved, and it just can't be done with (only) volunteer help. On some of these projects, with grant and loan applications and land acquisition, it may take a stack of papers one or two inches thick."

Rogers said he felt economic development should be channeled through the chamber with professional guidance.

"The chamber has done an excellent job in the past on a very limited budget," Rogers said. "Economic development is very expensive, but we have competed very well. Mike Carr (chamber executive vice president) has done an excellent job of putting proposals together on every project we have looked at."

Rogers likened economic development to getting a raise. "We must have an increase in the tax base to provide the services we all need. We can have increases through new or expanding business and industry," Rogers said.

ROGERS
efforts not only throughout the United States but in the Panhandle.

"We needed that economic development tax," Rogers said. "We have to have that if we are going to be able to attract industry."

Rogers said that not only is economic development expensive, but "it's the most frustrating thing I've ever been in. You think you have somebody and you see them slip away." Rogers recounted efforts to attract the Wal-Mart Distribution facility and the Azteca masa plant, approval to maintain its open transfer policy.

The district, which will have only 28 students which live in the rural Deaf Smith County area for the coming school year, has opened its doors to all students wishing to attend the school. With transfers that have already signed up, the school will have about 54 students attending classes in Kindergarten through sixth grade for the 1991-92 school year.

Last week, Walcott Superintendent Dr. Bill McLaughlin said the district was not in compliance with a federal court ruling that prevent the dilution of a school district's established racial mix. However, TEA officials have given the district its blessing to maintain the open transfer policy.

TEA okays Walcott policy

Walcott school officials have received the go-ahead from the Texas Education Agency to maintain its current transfer program for the coming school year.

Susan Perrin, Walcott school board president, said a Texas Education Agency official on Wednesday gave the district the Supporters, protesters testify on Pantex plans

Denver to Pantex, the nation's final assembly point for nuclear weapons.

Reports of plutonium, a lethal carcinogen used to make triggers for nuclear warheads, seeping into the groundwater near the Rocky Flats plant have raised the fears of local farmers who draw water from the precious Ogallala Aquifer running beneath Pantex.

The battle lines were clearly drawn Wednesday as farmers and ranchers whose land surrounds the Pantex plant carried signs reading "NO!" while most business and city leaders wore buttons reading "YES."

"It's already a big battle," said Bill O'Brien, a local rancher and businessman who heads a task force, called Operation Commensense, questioning the expansion at Pantex.

"On one side you have advocates over-promising jobs and construction and the other side is exaggerating the dangers of the expansion," O'Brien said. "The bottom line is people need to do some research and check everything out before going one way or the other."

State and city officials as well as local residents took turns speaking to two DOE panels in separate rooms at the Amarillo Civic Center all day Wednesday.

Pantex is one of five weapons plants nationwide being considered for expansion as part of a downsizing of the country's nuclear weapons complex.

Among the proposals would be the relocation of the plutonium processing from the Rocky Flats plant near contamination could be as harmful as an actual emergency.

Kelly, who farms wheat and grain sorghum on 1,000 acres near Pantex, reminded DOE officials of the Alar scare in the apple industry a few years ago that caused apple sales to plunge.

"If people think our wheat and grain sorghum is contaminated because of the new expansion at Pantex and the rest of the market boycotts our product, I want the DOE to be prepared to reimburse us for our product," Kelly testified. "We have between a $3 and $4 billion dollar agriculture industry out here and I don't want to see it ruined."

Diana Webb, one of the DOE panel members, said Amarillo's list of people testifying was the largest among the hearings being conducted across the country near each of the 13 nuclear weapons facilities.

"It's very clear that the people here are concerned," Ms. Webb said Wednesday. "They have brought up some legitimate concerns and we will certainly take them into consideration."

Susan Rieff, a spokeswoman for Gov. Ann Richards, told DOE officials the state would demand open access to reconfiguration plans and assurances that the disposal of nuclear waste be safe.

"The burden of proof lies squarely on the DOE," Ms. Rieff said. "We have a $3 billion agriculture economy and if the DOE can ensure its safety, we would vigorously support the development of an environmental impact study."

The DOE will not announce the reconfiguration of the nuclear weapons plants until 1993.

Baylor, BGCT rift may come to end

DALLAS (AP) - There is new hope for healing the rift between Baylor University and the Baptist General Convention of Texas, said the head of the BGCT panel trying to resolve the dispute.

"The best thing about it is that it simply represents an affirmation on Baylor's part that they really are interested in finding common ground," said Dr. Robert E. Naylor.

However, Naylor said the symbolic agreement reached Wednesday between BGCT leaders and Baylor officials still faces a long approval process concluding in November with a vote by the full convention.

"I would emphasize that it is in no sense an official agreement," Naylor said Wednesday night.

"The names involved for the convention are respected leaders, but not a committee to produce a proposal," he said. "Their opinion will carry weight. I will say that it will be considered."

Wednesday's proposal would allow the convention to elect 25 percent of Baylor's governing board and the university's regents the remaining 75 percent.

Naylor, president emeritus of the Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth, said the proposal falls short of what the convention's executive board had said in June was needed.

"We feel that the convention is entitled to more governmental participation in the election of their regents," Naylor said.

Baylor and the convention had been at odds since last September, when the university's board of regents established an independent governing board free from convention control.

The regents cited the threat of a fundamentalist takeover of the state convention for the Sept. 21 action amending Baylor's 146-year-old charter.

The amended charter allowed the convention to choose only one-fourth of the new governing board of trustees through the regents, with the regents selecting the remaining members. Prior to that change, the convention elected the entire governing board.

The convention protested the move and froze some $6 million in funds earmarked for the university. Proposals and counterproposals offered by both sides were rebuffed.

Although the agreement signed Wednesday is similar to a proposal Baylor offered in May that was rejected, Baylor vice president of communications Mike Bishop said the accord should not be considered a victory for the school.

"This is a mutual agreement," he said. "The university wanted to preserve its relationship with the convention, and the leaders of the BGCT did not want to lose a world-class institution in Baylor."

The agreement would eliminate the board of trustees and gives the convention the right to elect a quarter of the governing board directly. The convention wanted to elect 75 percent of the board, 25 percent directly and 50 percent from a pool nominated by the university's regents.

The agreement also would provide for Baylor to be "operated within Christian-oriented aims and ideals of Baptists."

It also stipulates that "the university will be receptive to suggestions from Texas Baptists and will give due and careful consideration to the suggestions of the BGCT."

of persons to be nominated for election to the board of directors."

It also requires all of the directors to be Baptists, but it does not require them to be Texas Baptists.

"The leadership of the convention and we will be working together to convince Texas Baptists that this is best for both the convention and Baylor," Bishop said.

Those who signed the agreement include Baylor President Herbert H. Reynolds and convention officers Phil Lineberger, president; Robert Parker, chair of the executive board; and George Gaston III, chair of the administrative committee.

Regents who signed were Paul Powell, chair; Tom Powers, vice chair; and Randy Ferguson, secretary.

The agreement faces ratification by the convention's executive board on Sept. 10 and Baylor regents on Sept. 20.

But even a negative vote by the executive board could be overridden at the BGCT's annual meeting being held this year in Waco.

"If they disapprove it, it still could be presented by any messenger at our state convention and they would act on it," Naylor said. "If the convention acted on it, then it would become fact."

$100 bill will defy copiers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government is unveiling a new $100 bill designed to foil counterfeiters using high-technology, state-of-the-art color copiers.

But because the changes are subtle - the addition of a nearly invisible thread and a microscopic line of type - most people won't notice any difference.

"It does not alter the appearance, for all intents and purposes, of currency notes," Ira Polkoff, a spokesman for the Treasury Department's Bureau of Engraving and Printing, said in an interview. The new bills "will continue to look identical to current notes."

Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady and Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan were introducing the new bill today at a news conference in the Treasury's Cash Room.

Polkoff said new $100 bills, which like current ones will bear Benjamin Franklin's portrait, were being introduced first because the C-notes now in circulation "are the most susceptible to counterfeiting."

New $50 and $20 bills will be added later this year, followed in the next year or two by new $10 and $5 bills.

There is no plan to alter the $1 bill. It poses little risk because it is not worth the effort to most counterfeiters, Polkoff said.

The government decided to add what it calls "security enhancements" because of the development of sophisticated color copiers that can duplicate almost exactly the Federal Reserve notes now in circulation.

The Secret Service said counterfeiters passed $14 million in bogus bills during the fiscal year ending last Sept. 30. Another $66 million in counterfeit money was seized before it could be circulated, it added.

Katrina Adams, 12-year-old daughter of Susan and Bud Adams, has no problem finding things to keep her busy during her summer vacation.

"Mother lets me help her in the kitchen and I get to bake cookies, brownies, and fix finger jello. I haven't learned to cook a big meal yet, but someday I will," she said.

This summer she has kept busy by making colorful baskets and beaded necklaces for gifts. She is looking forward to her mother teaching her to cross stitch and embroidery.

Some of the activities she enjoys are swimming, riding her bicycle, going to the show in Amarillo, and staying with her grandmother, Mrs. Donnie Crismon on Friday nights.

"I get to stay with my grandmother on Friday nights. I help her around the house by doing chores for her and she pays me for it. We watch TV together and talk a lot. She lets me fix breakfast sometimes on Saturday mornings. I really like the time we have together," she said.

Katrina enjoys traveling and has flown to Austin twice to visit her sister, Terri and her husband Bennett Loy. She traveled to Oklahoma with her aunt Max and has stayed over night with her sister, Lorice, in Amarillo.

"I am looking forward to getting my Apple II computer. I have worked with a computer at school and I think it will be fun," she added.

Each morning Katrina makes her bed and cleans her room. She helps around the house by taking out the trash, cleaning the office room, and keeping her things picked up.

"I get an allowance each week and put it in the bank. My mother opened a checking account for me so I can learn how to manage my money," she said.

She will be returning to Shirley School this fall. She is an active Camp Fire member and attends the Fifteenth Street Church of Christ.

She is sharing with us some of the recipes she has prepared for her friends and family.

The style show and luncheon is a Town & Country Jubilee Week event. The purpose is to showcase Hereford merchants and to encourage residents to shop in Hereford.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - The FBI is investigating whether country singer Dottie West illegally hid valuables from the IRS, a newspaper reported.

Authorities are probing whether West hid the items before a bankruptcy auction held in June to pay off $1.5 million owed the Internal Revenue Service, the Nashville Banner said Wednesday, citing sources it did not identify.

FBI officials refused to say if an investigation is under way, and West's lawyer, James Harris III, did not return calls from The Associated Press.

Furniture, antiques, memorabilia and other items belonging to West were sold at the auction, which raised $86,000.

West, 58, is best known for "Every Time Two Fools Collide," a duet with Kenny Rogers.

Jubilee booths available at C of C

Local non-profit organizations are invited to sign up now for both game and food booths for this year's 1991 Ton and Country Jubilee Junction which is set for Aug. 10. The day-long event kicks off in Dameron Park at the conclusion of the Jubilee Parade.

Last year, over 50 booths offering a full variety of delicious foods and games for the entire family allowed local organizations the opportunity to raise funds for the support of their projects. In addition to the non-profit organizations, local businesses are invited to provide or sponsor special games or events to help benefit the Jubilee.

The jubilee is designed to give local organizations the opportunity to both raise money and also to give them the chance to gain additional recognition.

If any organization, church or non-profit group is interested in reserving a booth space, please come by the Chamber office at 701 N. Main and fill out the form that is now available.

Walser among winners at junior golf tourney

Mikel Walser totalled 156 to win the boys' 15-17 age group of the Hereford Junior City Golf Championship.

Walser and Jayson Mines both shot 80 for Wednesday's second round. The difference was Walser's 76 Tuesday. Cory Newton went 82-81-163 for third place in the seven-man field.

The only other age division to play 36 holes was the boys' 12-14. Justin Griffin won that with 91-88-179. All other divisions played nine holes each day.

Besides the 15-17 boys, no age division had more than three players. In fact, Kelly Kelso was the only participant in the girls' 15-17 group, so she won with a 50-50-100.

Another division with only one player was the boys' 11-under. He was Daniel Edwards, and he shot 54-57-111.

There was a close finish in the girls' 11-under. Jennifer Phipps had an 82 Tuesday and led Michelle Bixler by a stroke, but Bixler came back Wednesday with a 79 to Phipps' 80, leaving them tied at 162. Bixler was declared the winner on a scorecard playoff.

Finally, the girls' 12-14 was won by Jami Bell, who shot 69-63-132.

30 good for scramble win

The foursome of Blair Rogers, Ken McLain, Cliff Jones and Perry Ray recorded a 30 to win the Wednesday Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course yesterday.

Three teams finished just one shot back with scores of 31. One team was composed of Robert Jones, Bill Brown, Paul Hamilton and John Yocom; another was made up of Craig Rogers, Ronnie Lance, Rose Mary Robinson and M. Cochran; and the third was composed of L. Brackett, John Robinson, D. Ghoson, B.L. Jones and Pat McGinty.

The 9-hole scramble is held each Wednesday at 6 p.m. with the golf pro placing players in foursomes. The goal is to have each team composed of A-B-C-D handicap players. The tourney is open to all interested players.

State women's bowling tournament results out

The Texas Women's Bowling Association State Tournament went on from April 3-June 31, and the Hereford WBA has received the results.

Several participants placed in one or more of the numerous divisions.

In team competition, Mechanical Techniques placed third in its division. Mona Klein, Gayle Neilson, Kippi West, Betty Taylor and Rhea Scott made up of Mechanical Techniques. The Park Avenue Bowl team, consisting of Glenda Minson, Brenda Elliott, Cleta Weemes, Jo Beth Shackleford and Faye McGee, also placed.

Singles who placed were Minson, Taylor, Klein, Scott, Karen McPherson and Nancy Ruckman.

Doubles teams which placed were Ruckman and Klein; West and Neilson; and Kay Crismon and Nancy Evans.

In All-Events competition, which is a combination of performance in team, singles and doubles bowling, McPherson, West, Ruckman, Klein and Neilson all placed.

Elliot and Minson also went to Fort Worth as delegates to the TWBA convention on May 17. Next year's state tournament is in Amarillo.

Oilers' run and shoot improved by 1 year

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Tonight's controlled scrimmage between the Houston Oilers and the Dallas Cowboys doesn't figure to be that big a deal.

But Oilers quarterback Warren Moon says he's anxious to see how far along his troops are after putting a full year of the high-powered run-and-shoot under their belts.

"Last year we were just learning," the Pro Bowl quarterback said Wednesday. "As you get to know the system better, the more comfortable you feel with it."

"Right now we're light years ahead of where we were last year. We've had a year to work with the offense and most of the guys understand it."

The Oilers have had just three days of workouts with the complex offensive scheme, which coach Jack Pardee instituted last year.

Pardee spent much of the day Wednesday focusing on tonight's scrimmage against their cross-state rivals.

"We've got to look at personnel," Pardee said. "And then we have to hope that our team doesn't look too ragtag. We have to look at the individuals and then we can see about heading into the season."

Moon doesn't expect to take more than 15 snaps in the scrimmage, but said he would take more if he felt uncomfortable with his performance.

"Nobody is out there keeping score," Moon said. "I want to be sharp, but tomorrow is more for the younger players to show what they can do."

Moon said he is confident in his corps of receivers - Drew Hill, Ernest Givens, Curtis Duncan and Haywood Jeffires.

"We almost got all four with 1,000 yards last year and I think with that talent you can do a lot," Moon said. "As far as the running game, so far, so good. Allen Pinkett is a good veteran and we've got a lot of guys that can play the game."

Hill said he sees plenty of areas that need improvement, but nothing that should keep the Oilers out of the playoff picture.

"Overall we did a great job offensively last year," Hill said. "The last two or three years, he's (Moon) been one of the league's best quarterbacks. With him running your show, it's hard to go wrong."

WANTS NO COACH

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - Lee Trevino has always been rated a highly-competitive golfer who is at his best in a tough, tight situation.

Although not rated a stylist with the clubs, "Merry Mex" time and again has made a spectacular shot when one was needed for victory. He said he never had a teacher or a golf guru.

"I've never had a coach," Trevino said. "When I find one who can beat me, then I'll listen."

Moon doesn't expect to take more than 15 snaps in the scrimmage, but said he would take more if he felt uncomfortable with his performance.

"Nobody is out there keeping score," Moon said. "I want to be sharp, but tomorrow is more for the younger players to show what they can do."

Moon said he is confident in his corps of receivers - Drew Hill, Ernest Givens, Curtis Duncan and Haywood Jeffires.

"We almost got all four with 1,000 yards last year and I think with that talent you can do a lot," Moon

British fans may miss big QBs

LONDON (AP) - Rich Kotite, the new head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, figured his team would scrimmage against the Buffalo Bills before they play each other for real on Sunday in the American Bowl at Wembley Stadium.

He didn't figure that Buffalo would be ready until 12:45.

Levy said there were no hard feelings between him and Kotite.

"Since other teams that came over here had practiced together, Rich expected to do the same," he said.

"He was a little disappointed. But we're friends. It's nothing personal."

Several of the Eagles players expressed surprise at Buffalo's position.

for half an hour while most of his teammates stood off to the side in relative anonymity.

The scene was repeated when Kelly and the Bills came onto the field. Then the two superstars posed together for pictures with a London bobby and made plans to take afternoon tea together at a luxury hotel today.

It looks like they'll have time for some more socializing on Sunday at Wembley Stadium, since they're not likely to be on the field for very long.

"You've got to take the game seriously, but you also want to make sure you don't get injured," said Cunningham, who led the NFC last season with 30 touchdown passes. "A couple of series would be good enough. A quarter would be more than enough."

Kotite said he hadn't decided yet how much Cunningham would play but added, "It will be more than a series. He won't be making a token appearance."

Kelly, who pulled his right hamstring on the first day of training camp and has not practiced since, may not make any appearance.

"It's day to day," said Kelly, who threw 24 TD passes last year and led NFL quarterbacks with a 63.3 completion percentage. "Whether I play remains to be seen. I'd love to play a few series, but it's up to the doctors."

If Kelly is not ready, Frank Reich is the likely starter. Cunningham's top backup is Jim McMahon, who was the top celebrity here at the first American Bowl in 1986 when he played for the Chicago Bears.

NFL about to hit field

By The Associated Press

The NFL's exhibition season is about to begin. That doesn't mean the league's top stars are ready for a full workday.

The Chicago Bears travel to Miami to take on the Dolphins Friday night to begin the 1991 season.

Saturday's Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio, will pit the Denver Broncos against the Detroit Lions, while the San Francisco 49ers will visit the Los Angeles Raiders. The first weekend wraps up on Sunday with the Buffalo Bills taking on the Philadelphia Eagles in American Bowl '91 at Wembley Stadium in England.

Starting quarterbacks Jay Schroeder of Los Angeles and Joe Montana of San Francisco will only play the first quarter of their meeting at the Coliseum.

Raiders coach Art Shell declined to reveal how he will use his other quarterbacks - veterans Vince Evans and Steve Beuerlein and rookie Todd Marinovich - but said: "Jay's our starting quarterback. Everybody else is competing."

San Francisco coach George Seifert said Montana also would be limited to the first quarter.

Several stars will miss the Hall of Fame Game. The Lions have eight holdouts, including running back Barry Sanders. Denver is missing running back Bobby Humphrey and safety Steve Atwater, also due to contract problems.

John Elway will start at quarterback for Denver, but play sparingly.

On Wednesday, the Washington Redskins gained a quarterback but lost a tight end.

Quarterback Mark Rypien ended a 10-day holdout, signing a new contract just hours after tight end Don Warren broke his right ankle. Warren is expected to be out for at least 10 weeks.

A mainstay to the Redskins' offense, Warren, a 12-year veteran, was injured while blocking during the first play of a controlled scrimmage against Pittsburgh. Coach Joe Gibbs said another player fell over the back of Warren's legs.

Team spokesman Charles Dayton said Warren would undergo surgery today, be in a cast for two to three weeks and likely not play until early October, missing the first five games of the season.

Details of Rypien's new contract were not disclosed.

"We've reached agreement with Rypien, he'll be here tomorrow," general manager Charley Casserly said.

Red Sox spoil Boyd's Rangers debut

By The Associated Press

Going from the National League to the American League hasn't been all that smooth a transition for Eric Show, a long-time fixture in the San Diego Padres' starting rotation.

Show had won 100 games for the Padres before coming over to the American League with the Oakland Athletics as a free agent in December. But it wasn't until Wednesday night in Cleveland—Show's 11th appearance and third start with the A's—that he finally won for the first time in the AL, 8-4 over the Indians.

"This was a long time coming for me and I feel great about it," said Show, who signed with the A's after going 6-8 for the Padres last year. "The last two years have seemed like a giant rut. Frankly, my only motivation was to pay back the A's. I wanted to show them they made the right decision."

So did Orl Can Boyd, who returned to the AL with the Texas Rangers following a two-year stint in the National League with the Montreal Expos. Boyd was 6-8 with the Expos before being acquired by the Rangers last Sunday.

Boyd made his first start for Texas Wednesday and lost a 2-1 decision to the Boston Red Sox, his former team.

"You could tell he was a little nervous because he wanted to show what he had and he wanted to win," said Boston's Mike Greenwell after the game in Arlington.

Athletics 8, Indians 4

Show (1-2) allowed three runs, two earned, and six hits in six innings.

The A's took the lead for good with three runs in the sixth off Greg Swindell (6-8). Dave Henderson had a two-run homer and Oakland scored the go-ahead run on Terry Steinbach's RBI single.

Red Sox 2, Rangers 1

Joe Hesketh and two relief pitchers combined on a two-hitter.

Hesketh (4-1) went 6 2-3 innings before Jeff Gray and Jeff Reardon finished up. Boyd went five innings against his old teammates and gave up two runs, six hits, three walks and had four strikeouts.

Blue Jays 2, White Sox 1

David Wells won his seventh straight decision and John Olerud and Joe Carter each drove in a run. Olerud hit his 12th home run and Carter had an RBI single.

Wells (12-4), in 6 1-3 innings, gave up one run on six hits and one walk, striking out two.

Jack McDowell (12-5) allowed 10 hits and struck out nine.

Orioles 5, Angels 2

Rookie Chito Martinez hit his second game-winning home run since being called up from the minors on July 5.

Martinez's fourth homer in 16 games broke a seventh-inning tie.

Leo Gomez added a two-run homer in the eighth.

Bob Milacki (6-4) gave up a run and five hits in 7 1-3 innings. Chuck Finley (13-5) was foiled in his bid to become the majors' first 14-game winner.

Yankees 10, Mariners 2

Mike Hall had four hits and drove in four runs and Pat Kelly circled the bases on a two-error fielder's choice that led to three runs.

Jeff Johnson (4-3) allowed 10 hits over seven innings but didn't issue a walk before being relieved by Erik Plunk and Tim Leary, who pitched one scoreless inning each.

Erik Hanson (5-5) was the loser.

Tigers 6, Twins 3

Bill Gullickson survived a three-run homer by Chili Davis in the eighth inning.

Gullickson (13-5) moved into a five-way tie for the American League lead in victories with late relief help from Mike Henneman, who gained his 15th save with 1 1-3 innings of shutout relief.

David West (1-2) matched Gullickson before tiring in the sixth when Detroit took the lead for good.

Royals 7, Brewers 4

Todd Benzinger had four hits and drove in three runs, and the Royals snapped a tie with a three-run eighth inning.

With the score 4-4, Brian McRae scored the go-ahead run on Kirk Gibson's single. Chuck Crim (5-5) balked McRae to second ahead of Gibson's hit.

George Brett's third hit of the game sent Gibson to third. Jim Eisenreich followed with a sacrifice fly and Benzinger added a run-scoring single.

Reliever Storm Davis (3-7) won.

Dodgers stretch NL West lead

By The Associated Press

As usual, a trip to the West Coast is causing all sorts of havoc with the pennant races.

Philadelphia, much to the chagrin of Atlanta, has blown two straight late-inning leads at Dodger Stadium to help Los Angeles take a 4 1/2-game lead over the Braves in the National League West.

The New York Mets are 0-for-2 at Candlestick Park, increasing the Pittsburgh Pirates' lead in the East to 5 1/2 games. The Mets still have seven games left in California, and it could just about be all over by the time they come home on Aug. 2.

"We can't afford to fall too far behind the Pirates," New York first baseman Dave Magadan said after an 8-4 loss to San Francisco on Wednesday night. "We had a good streak to get close once, but they're too good a team to have to catch again."

After a 2-9 road trip, the Dodgers are 2-0 at the start of a nine-game homestand. After tonight's game against the Phillies, Montreal and the Mets hit town.

Mike Scioscia's sacrifice fly into foul territory scored Stan Javier as

Los Angeles rallied again to beat Philadelphia 2-1.

Dodgers 2, Phillies 1

Los Angeles' second straight comeback against Philadelphia spoiled a fine effort by Jose DeJesus, who gave up one run and three hits in eight innings.

After the Dodgers tied the score with a run in the eighth, Kal Daniels led off the ninth with a bloop double to left off reliever Steve Searcy (1-1).

Javier, a pinch-runner, went to third on Mike Sharperson's sacrifice and scored on Scioscia's foul fly to left field.

John Candaleria (1-1) pitched two innings, striking out five, for the victory.

Pirates 7, Braves 4

Lloyd McClendon had three hits and drove in two runs against All-Star starter Tom Glavine.

The anticipated duel between All-Star left-handers Glavine (13-5) and John Smiley (12-6) didn't develop—neither pitched past the sixth—but Smiley managed to win his third in a row. He gave up eight hits and three runs in 5 1-3 innings.

Giants 8, Mets 4

Kevin Bass hit his second Homer in as many nights and Kevin Mitchell also homered as San Francisco battered David Cone. Bass and Mitchell combined to drive in six runs, and John Burkett (7-5) pitched an eight-hitter.

Cone (9-7) was roughed up in a second straight outing, giving up seven runs—four of them unearned—and six hits in four innings.

Reds 12, Cubs 3

Chris Sabo drove in three runs. One day after Rob Dibble and Andre Dawson were ejected for flagrant displays, the teams played a tame game before 36,215 fans, the Cubs' largest crowd of the season.

Tom Browning (11-7) ended his three-game losing streak. He gave up 10 hits while pitching his first complete game in 22 starts this year. Mike Bielecki (10-7) allowed six runs on 10 hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Cardinals 4, Astros 3

Jose Oquendo's bases-loaded single over a drawn-in outfield lifted St. Louis over Houston.

Felix Jose drew a walk from Al Osuna (5-3) with one out in the ninth.

Todd Zeile singled and Tom Pagnozzi walked on four pitches before Oquendo hit a fly ball over the head of center fielder Gerald Young.

Lee Smith (5-2) pitched one inning for the victory.

Expos 8, Padres 2

Montreal scored five runs in the first inning off Dennis Rasmussen.

Rasmussen (3-7) lasted only two-thirds of an inning, allowing five runs on seven hits.

Brian Barnes (2-3) gave up two runs and six hits in 5 2-3 innings for the victory. Mel Rojas replaced Barnes in the sixth, and Jeff Fassero finished with three perfect innings for his fourth save.

Tigers 6, Twins 3

Bill Gullickson survived a three-run homer by Chili Davis in the eighth inning.

Erik Hanson (5-5) was the loser.

Ranger farmhand shines in Double-A all-star game

By SIMON GONZALEZ

Fort Worth Star-Telegram
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Jeff Frye somehow keeps getting overlooked.

He was a three-sport star at Panama, Okla., High School, but the best he could do was a baseball scholarship at Southeastern Oklahoma State.

He was a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics baseball All-American at Southeastern, but he wasn't drafted until the Texas Rangers took him in the 30th round of the 1988 draft.

His first three seasons in the Rangers' system produced good numbers. He hit .286 at Butte (Rookie League) in 1988, a league-leading

Graf may leave Federation Cup

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) - Two days after she condemned Monica Seles for a late withdrawal, Steffi Graf may be forced to pull out of the Federation Cup.

But whereas Seles played in an exhibition and then skipped the Federation Cup to rest her aching shins, Graf pulled out a victory for Germany on Wednesday despite tendinitis in her shoulder.

Graf was scheduled to fly home today for treatment and team officials said they did not know if she would return.

.313 at Gastonia (Class A) in 1989, and .272 at Charlotte (Class A) last year.

This year, Frye is posting good numbers at Tulsa, the Rangers' Double-A affiliate. His average has been around .300 most of the season.

But when it was time to pick the teams for the Texas League All-Star Game, Frye was almost overlooked again. He was not among the original selections for the East.

One reason is his position. Frye is a second baseman in an organization that has Julio Franco at the major-league level and Monty Fariss at Triple-A.

However, fortune smiled when Shreveport's John Patterson was promoted to Triple-A. Frye was chosen as his replacement.

He made the most of the second chance. Frye was 4 for 5 with two runs batted in, a triple and a stolen base as the Eastern Division defeated the West, 8-0, Monday night in El Paso.

Frye was chosen the game's most valuable player.

The All-Star Game was the extension of a fine season for Frye.

Lotteries no longer sure bet for revenue

By FRED BAYLES
AP National Writer

When Gov. Ann Richards opened a special session of the Texas legislature last week, she urged lawmakers to support a lottery to help with a multibillion-dollar deficit.

"It is the rarest of all creatures," she said, "a popular way to generate revenue."

But officials in Texas and Louisiana where a lottery begins this fall - may be taking a bigger gamble than they think.

State-run lotteries are no longer a sure bet.

In the fiscal year just ended, seven of the lotteries operating in 31 states and the District of Columbia made less than they did the previous year, the first time many saw lottery revenues fall. Revenues of six others saw were flat. Still others see bets drying up this year; in New York, betting is down 10 percent.

The explanations are many. A weak economy; the Gulf War; competition from other games. "With the banking crisis and the war, we're a little behind," said Peg Rose, a spokeswoman for the Rhode Island Lottery Commission.

But some see more long-term reasons. Public interest, they say, is flagging. In some cases the games have reached a saturation point. It will take new games and more hype to keep the bets coming in.

"It's going to take some fairly dramatic change in the way they are doing tickets or some significant new product," said Duane Burke of the Public Gaming Research Institute.

State lotteries have come a long way since 1964, when New Hampshire instituted a cumbersome sweepstakes game that earned the state a few million dollars.

New York started its own sweepstakes in 1967. New Jersey pioneered modern lotteries with a computerized, mass market game in 1968. Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island joined the club in the early 1970s. Lottery fever spread to the Midwest, then to the West.

Last year, people bet nearly $21 billion on state lotteries, a 7 percent increase over 1989. But the gains are modest compared with double digit increases during the heydays of the 1980s.

California saw lottery revenues drop from $2.59 billion last year to $2.29 billion this year. Oregon's lottery dropped 11 percent, from $162.6 million to $147.3 million. Idaho, Iowa, Missouri, Ohio and Pennsylvania also took in less last year.

Lottery revenues have gone flat in Florida, Illinois, Maine, New Jersey, and Rhode Island.

"We've seen increased competition over the years," said Mike Lang, a spokesman for the Illinois lottery. "We use to have no lottery states near us. Now we have several."

In a year of state budget crisis, the declines are even more painful for officials who have come to rely heavily on their lottery.

Many use the revenues to balance the state budget. Others earmark it for education, conservation and capital projects. South Dakota's video lottery netted the state $106.7 million last year, making it the third largest contributor to the state's general fund.

The effects of the decline are being felt. In Pennsylvania, declining lottery revenues and increasing medical costs have forced the state to raise the amount senior citizens pay for prescriptions.

While the recession is blamed for a drop in betting, the reasons are often more complex. California's revenue fall came after the odds of their big lotto games were raised by adding numbers to choose.

Landers' column scares off many organ donators

CHICAGO (AP) - An Ann Landers column about organ donors whose families were mistakenly charged for their generosity has alarmed thousands and prompted some people to tear up their donor cards, health officials said.

"We are extremely concerned," Esther Benenson, spokeswoman for the United Network for Organ Sharing in Richmond, Va., said Wednesday. "We were flooded with calls from people calling just to make sure that their families weren't going to be charged, and from people who said they no longer wanted to be donors."

Landers said in a statement Tuesday that she will run a clarifying column in August. She urged people not to change their minds about donating organs.

"I find it tragic that so many readers misunderstood the column on transplantation and are now tearing up their donor cards," she said.

Transplant organs were in short supply before the column. Last year there were 6,145 donors nationwide, up from 5,797 in 1989, Benenson said.

"Anything that can cut into organ donation is serious," said Betty Perlis, spokeswoman for the Regional Organ Bank of Illinois. "There are currently 23,711 people waiting for transplants nationwide and seven a day are going to die."

The column, which appeared July 14 in newspapers around the country, featured letters from readers who reported being billed thousands of dollars for relatives' donated organs.

It quoted an expert as saying the charges were a mistake.

"The problem is a lot of people read the letters and they don't read the response ... or they believe the letters, the underdogs, and don't let them to do so they can take their organs."

The New Jersey Organ and Tissue Sharing Network has gotten calls and letters from several potential donors who appeared to be very skeptical of the position that indeed there is no cost associated with donation, said Denise Payne, executive director.

"One letter I received indicated a man and his wife had taken their donor cards out of their wallets," Payne said.

The costs readers complained about may have been charges for treatment their relatives received before they died, or may have been clerical errors, Benenson said.

No donor family is ever charged for the cost of organ removal," she said.

Those costs - ranging roughly from $1,500 to $4,000 - are borne by the transplant recipient.

Officials said the concerns about costs were added to other needless worries that people have about donating organs, including fear that if they sign donor cards hospitals will let them to do so they can take their organs.

A January poll of 600 Louisiana residents found that 60 percent were willing to donate an organ, but only 14 percent had taken steps toward doing so, said Louise Jacobbi, executive director of the Louisiana Organ Procurement Agency.

Those figures are "fairly representative of the country," Jacobbi said. "We're out there constantly walking uphill."

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I would like to know if anything can be done for a yeast infection. Three times I have gone to the doctor with this complaint to be told that nothing can be done. I would like to know how I caught it and how to get rid of it.

It started about five or six years ago when I lived in North Carolina. My house was damp and humid in the summer. I had hoped it would disappear when I moved to Minnesota, but the summers here are hot and humid.

Would a dermatologist have better knowledge and be more helpful? It is usually in the creases where the skin touches another part and makes little blisters. They itch terribly. I have it in my ears also. Any information would be appreciated. Could I be allergic to man-made fabric used for my undergarments?

DEAR READER: The first question is whether you even have a yeast infection. Your comment about your ears raises serious questions. Your description of the problem also is not typical of a yeast infection. However, a more complete history and the physical examination may be more indicative of one. Yeast infections do cause red, inflamed patches that itch like mad. The vaginal area should also be involved, showing white cheeselike patches. And there is frequently a vaginal discharge.

Perhaps you have another form of a fungus infection. Yes, a yeast infection is a fungus infection. For that reason, I would think it could be quite useful for you to see a dermatologist for a definitive diagnosis. Are you seeing a gynecologist?

To give you a better understanding of yeast and other vaginal infections, I am sending you my new Special Report 103, Vaginal Discharge, Itch and Odor. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/103, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908.

You could have an allergic reaction to underwear or to soaps used for laundry. It all depends on what those blisters and the areas look like.

There are lots of things that can be done to control yeast infections and other infections that cause a vaginal discharge and itch as discussed in the report I am sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Is it true that women who have sexual intercourse with men who are not circumcised are at greater risk of cervical cancer? If this is true, is there anything else besides getting circumcised that the man can do to reduce the risk?

DEAR READER: That is an old and discredited view. Further studies showed that women who began sex early in life and had multiple partners were the ones most likely to develop cervical cancer. I hasten to add that cervical cancer has even occurred in virgins.

Hygiene may be a factor. Studies of Swedish males who were not circumcised revealed a low rate of cervical cancer in their sexual partners.

Some genital warts now appear to be the underlying cause of most cervical cancers. These are commonly transmitted sexually. Males may have these warts and transmit the virus, and females may transmit them to males.

They are not always visible to the naked eye. The more men a woman has sex with, circumcised or uncircumcised, the greater her risk of contracting the wart virus.

Hygiene is the usual reason for circumcision. However, you do not need to cut off the foreskin to stay clean any more than you need to cut off ears that can be washed rather than amputated.

Public Notice

On April 9, 1991, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to request that the optional feature "Call Transfer Disconnect" be available to all PLEXAR I customers by including the feature in Southwestern Bell's PLEXAR I tariff. Currently, this optional feature is available only on a customer requested basis.

Call Transfer Disconnect (CTD) is an optional feature that allows PLEXAR I customers the ability to transfer a call to another telephone number within or outside their PLEXAR I system, hang up, and permit the two remaining parties to continue with the call. The PLEXAR I user is then free to place or accept another call. CTD is not intended to be used to avoid toll charges. Therefore, CTD will not be available to PLEXAR I customers subscribing to optional Extended Metropolitan Service or Extended Area Calling Service.

If the company's application is approved, the monthly rate for CTD will be $4.00 for each PLEXAR I station line. Prior to the June 19, 1991, interim rate approval, Southwestern Bell was billing customers who receive the service $1.50 for each station line equipped with this feature. In addition, under Southwestern Bell's proposed tariff, every line within the PLEXAR I system must be equipped with this feature. The nonrecurring charge for the additional lines which must be equipped with CTD will be waived for existing CTD customers. The tariffed monthly rate will apply to all existing and future CTD customers.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0256, or (512) 458-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

Piper earns academic honors, attends Duke

Jeff Piper, a student at Wilson Middle School in Plano, has been selected to participate in Duke University's 1991 Summer Residential Program for academically gifted students.

While at Duke, Jeff, the grandson of J.T. and Ina Mae Gilbreath, will be enrolled in pre-calculus.

This program, administered by the Talent Identification Program (TIP), is open to seventh through 10th graders who test in the top 1 percent academically of their middle and high schools.

Talented students chosen to participate in the TIP Program are tested in the seventh grade and achieve scores comparable to college-bound 11th and 12th graders on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the American College Testing Program Assessment (ACT).

The Summer Residential Program provides an opportunity for talented young students to study intensive, fast-paced courses in several areas including mathematics, science, writing and language.

The Summer Residential Program is a three week course on the Duke University campus in Durham, NC, the Duke Marine lab in Beaufort, NC; or in various international locations.

Last summer, over 1,000 students from more than 40 states and six foreign countries attended the program. Many of the students attended Duke's international program overseas. A variety of courses were offered in Italy, Portugal and in the Federal Republic of Germany.

Students generally complete one course equivalent to a year of high school or a semester of college-level work.

TIP is a non-profit educational organization established in 1980 with a five-year grant from the Duke Endowment. The program receives continuing support from student fees, individuals, corporations and foundations. TIP annually identifies 50,000 seventh graders from 16 states in the Southeast, Midwest and Southwest, who are mathematically and verbally gifted.

JEFF PIPER

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is about a 60-year-old widower who wants to marry a 60-year-old attractive, really decent widow.

"Eddie," who is not rich but is very comfortable, seems overly concerned about "Carol" shouldering her part of the financial responsibilities. He wants everything "legal" and in writing. Here are his requirements:

Carol should pay one-half of the down payment on their new condo. She must pay half of the household bills every month. Her medical insurance and income taxes are her responsibilities. When they take a vacation together, she must pay her own way. And, oh yes, Carol is expected to buy all her own clothes and pay for any gifts she purchases for family members or friends.

Carol's children are all grown and self-sufficient, but they are somewhat concerned about what their mother may be getting into. Carol asked for my opinion and I don't know what to tell her.

I have friends who went into second marriages and none of them were asked to adhere to such rigid guidelines. It is only fair to mention that Eddie definitely has more money than Carol.

Do you believe that his demands are just the tip of the iceberg and that after they are married he will expect her to carry more of the load?

I like both Eddie and Carol but I am a bit concerned about what seems to be his preoccupation with money. Or can it be that I am just old-fashioned? Sign this letter -- Born in 1930 (Miami)

DEAR MIAMI: If Carol and Eddie have decided to share all expenses, what you have described is really cutting it right down the middle.

I do feel, however, that Carol should have a good lawyer, since Eddie is sure to have one, and make certain that all the i's are dotted and all the t's are crossed. And while she's at it, Carol should have her will in good order, so if she predeceases Eddie, her money will go where she wants it to go.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I always knew I had good neighbors, but today I found out just how wonderful they really are.

This afternoon, the beautiful, old willow tree in our front yard fell over during an unusually gusty rainstorm. The top half of the tree crashed onto the neighbor's yard. Thank God, no one was hurt and there was no property damage.

Within minutes neighbors from all over showed up with chain saws, pruning shears and rakes. They even brought heavy chains to pull out the remaining roots. Before I knew it, the front yard was filled with men, women, teenagers and young children working like beavers. People continued working until it was dark outside.

There was such a great feeling of togetherness it made me proud to have friends like these. What a real joy to live among such caring people.

Truly Blessed in Modesto, Calif. (Carol G. Gilbert)

DEAR CAROL: These days when so many folks don't know the family next door and don't wish to, your letter is like breath of fresh air. I am pleased to print it. The Chamber of Commerce in Modesto should send you a bouquet of roses when this appears in the Modesto Bee.

Now, a single policy with double protection.

Imagine a life insurance policy that protects your family's future in more than one way. Suppose it also protected you from the financial consequences of long term health care while you're living, without reducing the life insurance benefit.

That's the policy our independent agency recommends for many customers thinking about retirement. It's called the Total Protection Plan from the CNA Insurance Companies, one of several we represent. It's the first policy that pays the full cash value or death benefit of your life insurance even after you receive long term care benefits.

New recipe tips offered

A frittata is almost the twin of an omelet. But, for a frittata, the ingredients that would be enfolded in an omelet as a filling are cooked right in the egg mixture. To see how easy making a frittata can be, precook the greens and cook the egg mixture in the microwave. Serve frittata wedges as a breakfast, brunch or supper entree, or as an appetizer.

SPRING GREEN FRITTATA

4 ounces fresh spinach, sorrel or arugula
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
1/4 cup sliced green onion
6 beaten eggs
1-3rd cup light cream
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1/2 cup shredded Swiss cheese (2 ounces)
1 small tomato, seeded and chopped

Wash and trim greens. In a 1 1/2-quart, microwave-safe casserole cook greens, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 2 to 3 minutes until wilted. Drain. Chop; set aside.

In a 9-inch pie plate, cook margarine or butter, uncovered, on high for 45 to 60 seconds or until melted; swirl to coat pie plate. Add onion and cook, uncovered, on high for 2 minutes. Spread greens evenly over onions.

Combine eggs, cream, salt and pepper; pour over greens. Cook, uncovered, on high for 4 to 6 minutes or until eggs are set but still shiny, lifting cooked edges and letting uncooked portions flow underneath after every minute. Give pie plate a half-turn after every minute.

Sprinkle with cheese. Cook, uncovered, on high for 1 to 1 1/2 minutes more or until cheese melts. Top with tomato. To serve, cut into wedges. Makes 4 main-dish or 8 appetizer servings.

Low-fat yogurt and skim milk are the fat busters in this saucy entree. They add flavor and creamy texture but keep the fat level low. Another smart choice: pork tenderloin, one of the leanest of pork cuts.

PORK WITH MUSHROOMS
3/4 pound whole pork tenderloin
Non-stick spray coating
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1/4 cup sliced green onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 cup plain low-fat yogurt
1-3rd cup skim milk
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon granules
1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon pepper

About $450 million worth of pickles and pickle products is made each year.

Trim fat from pork. Cut pork crosswise into 8 slices. Place each slice between 2 sheets of clear plastic wrap. Using the flat side of a meat mallet, pound to 1/4-inch thickness. Spray a cold large skillet with non-stick coating. Preheat skillet. Add pork and cook over medium-high heat about 3 minutes or until browned. Turn and cook for 2 to 4 minutes more or until no pink remains. Remove from skillet; keep warm.

Add mushrooms, green onion and garlic to skillet. Cook and stir over medium heat until vegetables are tender. Stir together yogurt, milk, flour, bouillon granules, nutmeg and pepper. (Mixture may look curdled.) Add to mushroom mixture. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Return meat to skillet and cook 2 minutes more or until heated through. Makes 4 servings.
