

Livestock show has added features this year

The Hereford Young Farmers will add a new twist to their annual junior livestock show this year when they introduce a market broiler show in beef country in addition to a commercial steer show.

The junior livestock show, scheduled for Jan. 27-29 at the Bull Barn, will feature the traditional lamb, market hog and steer shows, as well as the two new events.

Top livestock has long been a strong point of the local stock show which features entries from a four-county area, but the addition of a poultry show is a new concept for the local Young Farmer chapter.

Monty Adams, Hereford Young Farmers advisor, says the primary reason for opening a new broiler division in the local show is to present a new opportunity.

"A broiler show gives local kids in town, or those without much to spend on a project an opportunity to have a project at a considerably lower cost," says Adams.

"A broiler project is something that kids can conduct in their back yard if they have to, and the whole cost for the project is only about $50."

The broiler division of the Hereford stock show will be open only to Deaf Smith county youngsters this year as the idea gets a trial run. If the broiler show meets with the approval of FFA and 4-H leaders from the four-county area the competition may be opened to four-county competition in the future.

A total of 21 pens of broilers have been entered in the initial competition. Dr. Floyd Golan, the head of the Department of Poultry Science at Texas A&M University will be judging the broiler pens in this year's competition.

While the cost of a broiler project is relatively low, Adams says a broiler show is a relatively tough contest to win.

"Uniformity of finish is everything in a broiler show and the judge will be looking closely for uniformity to weight, uniform breast size and proper finish. Weight tolerances often fall within an ounce or two," says Adams.

"We feel like the broiler show should be a good addition to the junior livestock show here, and should give youngsters some good learning opportunities in relation to the show," says Adam.

Mark Urbanczyk will serve as superintendent of the new broiler show and will be assisted by Tony Reinart.

Broilers will be received at the stock show Thursday, Jan. 27 and a show time for the broilers will be announced.

Roy Carlson, superintendent for the commercial steer show, says the event has been added to "encourage more 4-H and FFA members to participate in a practical beef production program with emphasis on feeding economy."

Carlson is being assisted as superintendent of the commercial steer show by Kevin Urbanczyk.

While the livestock itself is generally the major concern at stock show events, the local commercial steer show will place considerable emphasis upon the management and record keeping abilities of the youngsters entered in the show.

Carlson says the local commercial steer show will be broken down into four categories with accumulated points determining the winner.

A total of up to 35 points will be awarded for cattle grade, based on a pen of three

Fun And Fruitful Hobby

Coupons, rebates proving profitable to local women

Money talks, whether making it or saving it.

A savings of $1,000 a year on the grocery bill sounds appealing as does purchasing $101.74 worth of groceries for $19.29.

Too good to be true? Not really. All it takes is a little time each day and organization.

Mary Russell of 142 Hickory and Margot Sims of 704 Cherokee have been collecting store coupons and "raiding" store shelves for refund forms for three years.

"It's very profitable," Mary explains. "Once you get into this project, it not only saves you money, but it's a lot of fun. It's exciting to see what will come in the mail each day. I get free products, coupons, refund forms and checks."

Margot agrees that it is definitely worth while. "Three years ago Mary and I got together with mutual friends and started a refunding club where we exchanged refunding forms and coupons. Other club members gradually fell out of it but it just got more exciting for us," she said.

Keeping books is a must in this hobby. Both women write down the amount of their grocery bill before and after the coupon exchange and keep exact records of purchases.

In the first year, Margot saved $570 on her grocery bill, $667 the second year and $993 the third year. She said that the family who spends approximately $400 a month on groceries can save close to $1,000 a year.

Mary was thrilled recently when she took her cents off coupons and free product coupons and purchased over $100 worth of groceries for less than $20. "Store employees actually applauded me," she recalled.

"With everything getting so expensive, it's great to be able to cut down on the food bill," she added. It's rather complicated trying to explain to someone just how to get into the refunding hobby. The main thing is to get organized, don't get behind in your filling and purchase your groceries on double coupon days.

Nakasone remaining aloof to pressure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, in talks with President Reagan, is resisting U.S. pressure to take immediate steps to further dismantle his country's trade barriers.

Nakasone, who was meeting with Reagan for a second time at the White House today, indicated that he is constrained by political forces in Japan.

Since taking office last November, Nakasone has ordered a number of corrective measures on trade and defense. But the 64-year-old prime minister told Reagan Tuesday there are some things "Japan cannot do."

Also on Nakasone's agenda today are meetings with members of Congress, some of whom advocate erecting U.S. barriers to protect American jobs against Japanese imports.

tant parts of the Japanese market remain effectively closed to U.S. exports.

Reagan, however, characterized the U.S.-Japan relationship as that of "a good marriage," which remains sound even though there are arguments.

And Vice President George Bush, in a toast at a dinner in Nakasone's honor Tuesday night, said the administration understands the values and goals shared by the two countries "far outweigh any specific frictions between us."

But Nakasone apparently is not prepared to move quickly beyond the steps he has already taken to lower or eliminate tariffs on a wide variety of imported products and to streamline import procedures.

"He thinks the first thing is to carry out and implement the things he has already announced," said Taizo Watanabe, spokesman for the Japanese Foreign Ministry.

Gromyko fuels nuclear debate

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko is promoting two new disarmament proposals to West German citizens and urging them to disregard U.S. arguments as they debate the planned deployment of new American nuclear missiles.

West Germans will vote in national elections March 6, with nuclear weapons and rising unemployment the two hottest issues in the campaign.

Voters are torn between the demands of the NATO defense alliance and fears of nuclear warfare on their soil. Of the 572 new U.S. missiles to be deployed in NATO countries beginning in December, 204 are slated for West Germany.

In his four-day visit here, which ends today, Gromyko cautioned that the country would be caught in a heightened superpower confrontation if NATO does not cancel the deployment.

The veteran diplomat also made the Soviet Union's first public statements on two key elements in the Kremlin's arms control stance, one of which already had been advanced in private negotiations and relayed to the Western public indirectly.

Gromyko said Moscow would be willing to dismantle some of its medium-range missiles pointed at Western Europe, and to negotiate an agreement for a mutual reduction of tactical missiles with a range of less than 600 miles.

White pledges to recognize only the people's interest

AUSTIN (AP) — Mark White today began his first full day as Texas' chief executive, after being sworn in as governor and pledging to recognize only "the people's interest."

The 42-year-old Houston lawyer, who defeated Republican Gov. Bill Clements, promised Tuesday that he would be guided by two simple questions: "Is it right? Is it fair?"

His speech before a sodden crowd of 2,000 drew the loudest applause when the 42nd Texas governor, former state attorney general, talked about education.

"Our goal must be to build the best system of education that the mind of man can devise — from first grade through graduate school — and make that system responsive to the needs of every boy and girl in Texas," White said.

Among the spectators were former Govs. John Connally, Preston Smith and Dolph Briscoe, who appointed White as secretary of state 10 years ago. White united Texas' traditional Democratic forces — liberals, labor and minorities — in sweeping Clements out of office Nov. 2. White said his broad base of support would afford him freedom in the governor's chair.

"I owe nothing to any group or to any special interest. The only interest I recognize is the people's interest," he said.

White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby were sworn in at the south entrance to the Capitol. White dramatized his opposition to a "privileged class," by walking a block in the rain to the Governor's Mansion and cutting a chain that had been strung across the front gate.

"Come on in," he shouted to his followers.

White said his generation was a generation "whose time has come."

"It is a generation that was educated after World War II, that grew up in the shadow of nuclear terror, that lived through our transition from a rural to an urban state, that watched towering buildings rise from the ground, that saw the first signs of progress choking our cities and despoiling our environment.

"It is a generation whose time has come. It is a generation whose hopes and visions and policies and actions will lead this state into the 21st century. That is our destiny."

White predicted Texas would become the industrial and financial leader of the United States, and said it could be the "greatest state this Republic has ever known — or we can enjoy our brief moment in the sun and go the way that states have gone before us. The choice is ours."

The Inauguration ceremony was marked by a 19-gun salute. White was sworn in by Chief Justice Jack Pope of the Texas Supreme Court, and capped the ceremonies later with a downtown parade and three Tuesday night dances.

At the first of the three inaugural balls, White and his wife, Linda Gale, danced their first steps as governor and first lady to the tune of "Waltz Across Texas."

HISD extends Holder's contract

BY JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

The Hereford Independent School District board of directors granted Monday night an extended year on Dr. Harrell Holder's constant three-year contract.

The superintendent's contract will continue through 1986 at an annual salary of $46,791. Holder is also provided a car and $3,790 for travel expenses.

A special election will be held to coincide with the regular election on the first Saturday of April to fill the position of Bobby Griego, who recently resigned from the board. Two years remain in that post. Two other three year positions will be open at the election also.

A line graph on enrollment shows the gap closing with 4,791 in school last Monday. Last year's enrollment was at 4,787. Adjustments made last year in lunch expenses have helped keep the cafeteria on the level, according to assistant superintendent Larry Wartes. He also reported that participation was good.

The district is considering putting diesel engines in two more busses, hopefully to double fuel mileage.

Tax collections are running at about 75 percent.

The social studies departments from the three secondary schools presented the curriculum reports.

La Plata Junior High featured a review of a class which includes mock trials, mock murder investigations, comparison of international courts, and special speakers to show how the law affects each citizen.

Chamber banquet tickets available

Tickets are now on sale for the annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Banquet, scheduled Feb. 3 at the Bull Barn.

Highlights of the traditional event include the recognition of the "Citizen of the Year", introduction of new officers and directors, and a guest speaker.

Bert V. Massey of Brownwood, an attorney and land title company officer, will be the featured speaker this year. Tickets for the fete, at $10 each, are available at the chamber office and from directors and hustlers.

Massey served as president of the Texas Land Title Association this past year. He is secretary-treasurer of the Brown County Abstract Co., and a member of the board of Pioneer Title Co. of Austin.

In addition to service in a number of civic and industry committee capacities, Massey is a past president of the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce, has been a city councilman for six years and is the current Mayor pro-tem, and has served as a director of the Heart O'Texas Council of Girls Scouts, and the American Cancer Society.

Massey is currently a director of the Brooke S. Ramey Foundation of Brownwood and of the H. Malvern Marks Foundation of Fort Worth. In 1978, he was selected the Outstanding Citizen under 35 in the city of Brownwood.

He is a member of the American Bar Association, the State Bar of Texas, and the Brownwood-Brown County Bar Assn. He is a graduate of the University of Texas School of Law. He and his wife, Melinda, have two children, Sarah 8, and Rachel, 4.

Austin neighborhood made safe

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin neighborhood has been made safe from attacks by a "killer squirrel" that bit at least two people, including an elderly woman, before it was killed by a policeman.

Tests revealed the ill-tempered rodent did not have rabies.

Police got involved after Agnes Frisbie, 75, of Lubbock, was attacked near her son's Austin home Thursday.

"This thing came up behind her, and without a sound it started biting her on the legs," said the woman's son, Richard Frisbie. "It bit her again and again, breaking the skin several times. It was really pretty savage."

He said the squirrel then climbed on his mother's back and shoulders, biting as it went. Mrs. Frisbie fell to the ground until the squirrel left and then she ran inside to tell her son, he said.

Frisbie and his mother, advised by a veterinarian to find the squirrel so it could be checked for rabies, went looking for it in the neighborhood, armed with a pellet gun and a slingshot.

Two passing motorcycle policemen who stopped to ask them about the air gun joined in the hunt. Two construction workers reported that "crazy squirrel" had "bitten the devil out of" a youngster in the area the previous day.

Suddenly the squirrel attacked one of the officers, "biting right through his boots," Frisbie said. The policeman stomped the squirrel to death and sent the remains to the state health department for tests.

Jury selection to begin in kidnapping trial

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — A jury has been selected for the trial of a 41-year-old man charged with collecting a $50,000 ransom for the return of a bank president's infant son.

Testimony is set to begin at 9 a.m. today in the trial of Travis Alvie McCann, accused of abducting Clay Lewis from his home at gunpoint and then stealing Lewis' car to escape.

Banker Gordon Lewis, the infant's father, paid the ransom and the boy was released unharmed in Mesquite.

A three-man, nine-woman jury was seated Tuesday by State District Judge William Parker after 4½ hours of questioning by attorneys.

Jury selection began after Parker earlier denied several defense motions, one a request that McCann be tried simultaneously on both aggravated robbery and aggravated kidnapping charges.

McCann is being tried now only on the aggravated robbery charge.

Parker also ruled Monday that evidence gathered during a search of McCann's Mesquite home was admissible.

Attorneys for McCann had alleged in a pretrial motion that officers searched his property without a proper search warrant. Officers said that McCann signed a document at the time of his arrest authorizing the search.

McCann is accused of forcing his way into the Lewis home Sept. 17 and abducting the infant.

Tuesday his office will go before a federal grand jury in Fresno.

Kennard Stewart, 35, and Gerald Orville Graham, 46, both of Houston, are accused of trying to extort $200,000 from Gallo, considered the world's largest wine producer, by threatening to pollute its wine.

Stewart, owner of a Houston charter bus company, and Graham, an unemployed bus driver, were arrested in Houston Sunday.

An FBI affidavit alleged that Graham, on Jan. 12, telephoned Gallo instructions to pick up a package at the Modesto airport. The package contained a 1½-liter bottle of wine contaminated with hydrochloric acid, the affidavit said.

The FBI said there was no evidence that any other bottles of Gallo wine had been contaminated.

Man offers to replace stolen flag

IRVING, Texas (AP) — A Dallas corporate executive — and father of four Eagle Scouts — has offered an award of more than $2,270 to replace a huge new American flag stolen from the Boy Scouts' national headquarters here, a spokesman says.

"We think it's a great gesture," Scouts spokesman Mike Whittaker said. "We still have no idea why anyone would want to rip off an American flag that big. It doesn't sound very patriotic."

sumer would be buying a product they don't use in order to use their coupon," Margot said. "That would be defeating your purpose."

"There have been times when I have saved coupons for products I have not previously tried. If the offer was good enough I would buy that product. Usually I have found that I like it and continue to use the product. Everyone benefits, the consumer as well as the company who sells it."

"Margot and I spend approximately one hour each day cutting labels from boxes, soaking them from jars, collecting refund forms from stores, magazines and other consumers across the United States. Then it's time to file," Mary said.

Mary's system of filing is somewhat different than that of Margot's. "I file by alphabetical order, such as baby-products, batteries, breakfast products, clothes, drugs, frozen foods, flour, etc.," she said.

"I file all my soaked-off labels in one place and then file my coupons and refund forms by the company's name," adds Margot.

"Everyone has to decide what filing system best suits their individual needs."

Besides making a drastic cut in the grocery bill, there are also other fringe benefits of the hobby. "Perhaps the most important aspect of this project is that it makes you feel good about yourself," says Mary. "I am making an important contribution to our budget. My husband is really proud of me, and refunding is like having a job with the exception that I don't have to leave the house."

The refunding checks can accumulate quickly. "The average refunding check is $1.50. "That in itself is a pretty fair profit considering it only cost 20 cents to mail the form in to the company," Mary said. "There have been some months that I collected $50 in checks and one refund check was $20."

Both women use their checks like a savings account. Mary has purchased a sewing machine with the money she has received, Margot bought a five-speed bike and a framed print for her home.

There are also many free gifts that can be obtained by saving coupons and labels. Some of the products sent to the pair have included a pump thermos (which was obtained by sending a proof of purchase coupon from a name brand paper towel product) stuffed animals, desk lamp, kitchen utensils, tote bags, clothes and games.

"These products make excellent gift items," Mary explained. "When the high school students were collecting toys for needy children I donated several items I received from my coupons."

There are a few basic steps one must follow for this adventure to be profitable for the homemakers stressed.

"Subscribing to a newsletter helped me to understand exactly what refunding is and how it works," Mary said. "The refunding basically consists of sending in labels, registering tapes or whatever a company requests as proof of purchase. It informs the consumer of current refund offers available. Also, it lists other consumers interested in

Clements, who flew to his Dallas home Monday afternoon, had arranged for a fried chicken lunch to be served to White, his wife and their children — Wells, 12, Andy, 10, and Elizabeth, 8, at the mansion.

Tuesday.

Carbon dating will be used to determine the age of the bones. A tiny piece of rib and a few grains of charcoal found in the grave are to be sent to the University of Arizona at Tucson, where the tandem particle accelerator there — one of only two in the United States — will measure the amount of radioactive carbon in them and establish their age.

The complicated tests will take about six weeks, Young said.

Meanwhile, the woman's fragile bones, encased in protective coats of plaster, are in five boxes and 15 bags in the highway department laboratory, some of them still in the soil in which they lay for thousands of years.

The delicate, tedious work of excavating the skeleton took two weeks — "the longest two weeks of my life," Young said.

While the archeologists worked in the deep hole, crowds gathered.

"We must have had 1,000 out there Sunday, but it was very quiet, very reverential. People were talking in whispers, like they were at a funeral or in church," Young said.

His first awe at the find never left him, he said.

"I remember one night, we were camping out at the site, had a big bonfire going, and I was lying there looking up at the stars, trying to get inside her head, trying to imagine what it would have been like 10,000 years ago.

"Just then, a satellite crossed the sky."

Find

til we have an exact age," Weir said.

The oldest human bones found so far in North America are fragments from the Anzick site in Montana. They are thought to be 12,000 years old.

The Texas woman was fairly tall, about 5-foot-2 to 5-foot-4, Weir said. She died when she was between 25 and 35 years old.

"Among primitive people, hunters and gatherers, the life they lead is very rigorous. A person who is 40 is verging on being old," Weir said. "So she had already passed her prime as far as the rest of the population goes."

Somehow, her left collarbone had been broken, and it fused to her first rib as it healed, so she could not have raised her left arm over her head.

"It's hard to estimate to what degree she was crippled, but certainly she could not work like a healthy individual," Weir said. "If she had to do anything that required great movement of that arm, she would have been in constant pain."

There is no way to know how she died. The oval grave, only one foot deep, was scratched out of the earth with sticks. She was buried along with a tool, a flat quartzite stone with a cutting edge, and a shark tooth Weir theorizes was an ornament, probably part of a necklace.

A large rock was placed in the curve of her body, between her elbows and drawn-up knees. When the earth was filled in, the rock would have poked out of the ground.

"It could have been an early tombstone," Weir said.

Small town's post office out of step with modern world

CENTRALIA, Texas (AP) — Every morning except Sunday and holidays, Imogene Tullos runs an American flag up the crooked flagpole next to the white, one-room shack. Without the flag, the building easily could be mistaken for a tool shed.

Inside, Mrs. Tullos, sitting at her desk among stacks of mail, fills out forms and cancels letters. The eyes of numerous criminals wanted by the FBI stare out from the wall at her, frozen as if they are amazed by what they see.

For the 26 or so residents of this small Texas community, this is the post office.

"People will come in and wait on the mail," said Mrs. Tullos. Centralia's postmaster since 1967. "This is the only building left for them to meet in since they closed the store over there."

She put five chairs and a desk in the lobby for those who come in to wait for the 10:30 a.m. mail delivery or for those who come in just to sit and talk. She said other postmasters don't understand that.

"One said, 'I've never seen a post office with chairs before,'" she said. "I told him, 'You've never been in a country post office where you have to sit on the mail.'"

Centralia has had a post office since June 22, 1874, and since then there have been 21 postmasters. Mrs. Tullos, 56, worked as an assistant to the previous postmaster before getting the job.

"When she died, they appointed me acting postmaster," she said.

Mrs. Tullos was confirmed as the 22nd postmaster in Centralia's history shortly after that.

The post office has been in the 12-by-14 foot shack for about 10 years, previously being housed in one corner of a local store. Mrs. Tullos, and her husband, Campbell, have just bought the land where the post office sits, and they plan to put a new building there to replace the shack.

"When I first open up in the morning, it's cold," she said of the small building. "But I turn the heat on and it gets warm. It stays pretty cool in the summertime because the wind will blow through the front and back door."

The fourth-class post office, open four hours a day to serve about 32 families in the area, seems oddly out of place in today's mechanized world of mail delivery.

"I sell everything that any other post office would sell," she said, adding that she can't sell international money orders. "I don't deliver the mail, though."

Several rows of cubbyholes hang over her desk with the names of residents scrawled on them.

"Part of them have names on them and part of the mail I stick in here," she said. "I know where it is."

A star route carrier brings her a locked sack of mail every morning, and she bundles up Centralia's mail, bearing the inked stamp of the community, to be sent all over the world.

"We receive more mail than we send out," she said.

Mrs. Tullos still stamps each piece of mail by hand, one of the few post offices that do. She said she enjoys her job.

"I meet the public four hours a day and that's enough," she said. "Then I go home and do what I want to."

Arteries clipped to stop heart recipient's nose bleeding

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Artificial heart recipient Barney Clark looked "much better" after surgery to stop a stubborn 10-day nosebleed, but the operation probably will delay his release from hospital, doctors say.

The 2½-hour operation Tuesday to seal two arteries in the left nasal passage was a success and Clark "was not bleeding more than is average from surgery when he left the operating room," said Dr. James L. Parkin, who performed the surgery.

Clark's wife, Una Loy, "was very happy because she had seen him suffering a fair amount," largely from the packing in his nose that doctors had hoped would stop the bleeding, he said.

"He will be more comfortable now — even with the incisions — than he was with the packing," said Parkin, an ear, nose and throat specialist who is acting chief surgeon at the University of Utah Medical Center.

"He's looking much better already," Parkin said. "His color is better."

Before the bleeding began Jan. 9, doctors had been enthused as Clark's gained strength while recovering from seizures and previous surgery and battling respiratory and kidney problems.

They had said Clark might leave the hospital possibly as early as the end of the month, but now "there is no question that this will delay his recovery," said John Dwan, medical center spokesman.

He said he could not predict when Clark may be able to leave for a specially equipped home in Salt Lake City.

Clark, a retired dentist from suburban Seattle who turns 62 Friday, remained in serious but stable condition today, his 49th day on the artificial heart. Hospital officials said he was hours from death when surgeons removed his failing heart Dec. 2 and implanted the polyurethane, air-driven Jarvik 7.

Clark must receive anti-coagulants all his life to prevent blood clots from forming around the plastic heart — clots that could cause a stroke.

The anti-coagulants contributed to Clark's nosebleeds, Dwan said, and doctors had lowered the dosage — "a risk in itself" — and also tried to control the bleeding by packing the nose.

Parkin removed the packing Tuesday, and the left nostril began bleeding "immediately and seriously."

Doctors could not reach the blood vessels to cauterize them because Clark had a deviated septum, which separates the two nasal passages. Dr. William C. DeVries, the surgeon who implanted the artificial heart and who is in charge of Clark's care, "decided the safest thing to do was to surgically tie off the two arteries," Dwan said.

Parkin said he made an incision under Clark's upper lip to reach the affected artery and tied off six branches of it with metal clips. Bleeding persisted, so he made an incision under the left eye and tied off a second artery with another clip, he said.

The arteries will be permanently sealed, but Parkin said other vessels provide enough blood to the area.

trading coupons."

"The other steps include saving labels, especially all universal proof of code symbols," she continued. "It was also exceptionally helpful for me to read 'Cashing in at the Checkout,' a book I obtained from the library."

"Next, have a roll of stamps, paper clips, envelopes and refunding forms. Then it's time to begin filing according to your needs. It's also important to arrange your grocery shopping around these forms," Mary added.

"It's good to start this project with a friend," Margot concluded. "Mary and I encourage each other. It makes the hobby much more enjoyable."

Company barred from exporting fruitcakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas baking company says it has been barred from exporting 500 fruitcakes to Japan because of the coloring in the cake's cherries, a situation one company official regards as "definitely nuttier than a fruitcake."

The fruitcakes have been sitting on a Yokahama dock for more than a month, after Japanese customs officials said the food coloring in the cherries was not approved for use in Japan, said Bill McNutt III, vice president of Collin Street Bakery in Corsicana.

"I ought to send him a fruitcake," McNutt said of Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, who is on a visit to the United States.

McNutt called the decision typical of unfair import barriers put up by the Japanese, saying his firm sends cakes to nearly "every other country in the world, and we've never had a problem like this before."

McNutt said that if he met Nakasone, "I'd tell him we make the world's finest fruitcake and I'm sorry that 500 people in Japan won't be able to taste it this year."

After it became evident the fruitcakes wouldn't be delivered, McNutt contacted Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, about the possibility of donating them to U.S. military personnel.

Hereford police report a quiet day and night Tuesday with a plate glass window shattered at Ray's Welding on West Hwy 60 the only item on the blotter. Value of the window was set at $200.

The HPD also issued nine traffic citations Tuesday.

Herd girls win, boys lose

Logjam in 3-5A boys' race

And, suddenly, there were three. Caprock stunned Plainview, while Palo Duro blistered Amarillo High Tuesday night to throw the District 3-5A boys' basketball race into a three-way tie.

And, in the process, Tascosa closed to within a game of the leaders with a 10-point victory over Coronado.

Hereford, meanwhile, remained the loop's only winless team in district action, dropping a 86-74 decision to Lubbock High.

In girls' play Tuesday, the leaders remained that way. Monterey, the only unbeaten team with a 9-0 district mark, was idle. But Plainview and Amarillo High won. The Bulldog girls moved to 9-1, while the Sandie girls improved their record to 8-2.

Ironically, the boys and girls winners Tuesday were just the opposite. Lubbock High, Caprock, Palo Duro and Tascosa won boys' games, while Hereford, Plainview, AHS and Coronado won the girls' contests.

While Hereford's boys fell to 0-8 in district play and 5-15 overall, the girls rolled to a 71-35 victory over winless Lubbock (0-10 in league play and 2-14 overall). The victory gave the Whiteface girls a 4-6 district record, and improved their season standard to 6-8. It also snapped a three-game losing streak.

For the boys, it was another frustrating night. The loss was their fifth in a row, and the 86 points Lubbock scored represented the most any team has scored against the Herd this season.

Lubbock, now 4-4 in league play and 13-9 overall, jumped out to a 24-16 first period lead, and never was headed. The Westerners enjoyed a 24-point (54-30) halftime cushion, and by the time the third stanza ended the margin was 32 (72-40).

For Lubbock, Keenan Roberts, Leroy Mitchell and Sam Stephenson combined to score 71 points. Roberts led the way with 29, while Mitchell chipped in with 72 and Stephenson 20.

Jeff Streun led Hereford with 14 points, while Brian Taylor and Terry Shelton added 13. Steve Welch also was in double figures with 11.

In Tuesday's other boys' game it was Caprock 70, Plainview 62; Palo Duro 75, AHS 61 and Tascosa 64, Coronado 54. In the other girls' contests it was Plainview 56, Caprock 53; AHS 55, Palo Duro 35 and Coronado 51, Tascosa 22.

As a result of Tuesday's games AHS Palo Duro and Plainview share the top spot in the boys' race with 6-2 records. Tascosa is a game back at 5-3. Caprock and Lubbock High are 4-4, while Coronado is 3-5. Monterey stands 2-6 and Hereford 0-8.

Friday, Hereford travels to Amarillo to take on Caprock; AHS is at Lubbock; Tascosa visits Palo Duro and Coronado hosts Monterey.

Says NFL commissioner

Allegations only gossip

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle says allegations in a television documentary linking NFL owners and players to gamblers are nothing more than gossip, rumor and innuendo presented through "cheap sensationalism and checkbook journalism."

In his first statement on the subject since the show was previewed last week, Rozelle said Tuesday "there is no known evidence" to support the statement by a jailed gambler — whose family was paid by the show's producers — that four NFL games per season were fixed in the 1968, 1969 and 1970 seasons.

The show did not reveal the names and teams allegedly involved in the fix.

Nor is there anything, Rozelle said, to support the Public Broadcasting Service show's suggestion that Los Angeles Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom, who drowned off Golden Beach, Fla., in April 1979, was murdered. The coroner ruled that Rosenbloom's death was an accidental drowning.

The documentary, "An Unauthorized History of the NFL," was aired Monday night as the first offering in PBS' 26-show "Frontline" series. In addition to the segments on the alleged fix and Rosenbloom's death, it details a long history of associations by NFL owners and players with gamblers and other unsavory characters.

"The program presented by PBS," Rozelle said, "was chiefly a rehash of press clippings, gossip and rumor, some almost 25 years old. The innuendoes and unsupported allegations, including the circumstances of Carroll Rosenbloom's death and the so-called fixed games, were, in my view, disgraceful examples of cheap sensationalism and checkbook journalism. ..."

But David Fanning, executive producer of "Frontline," said the show stands by its reporting.

"Frontline" is not surprised by Mr. Rozelle's comments," he said. "We believe we have acted responsibly in bringing to the attention of the American public serious questions about the league's record in policing itself against the influence of illegal gambling interests and organized crime."

"The film is a carefully researched document that uses history to examine questionable associations past and present, not all necessarily illegal, that, in Mr. Rozelle's own words, go 'to the integrity of the game.'"

Rozelle challenged PBS to offer specifics to support the charges.

"For example," he said, "if the producers of the show and their paid informants are at all confident of their information, why won't they offer specific facts, including names of players and dates of games? Without these facts, every player and coach of the period the show cited, 1968-1970, is subjected to suspicion."

But Fanning reiterated what other members of the show's staff had said following the screening — that "Frontline's" investigation is continuing and more will be made public as it is uncovered.

"A commitment to good journalism and fairness to the individuals involved requires that the highest standard of corroboration be met before specific names are published," he said.

After 60 years

Thorpe' olympic medals returned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "My dad's life was like a Greek tragedy," says Grace Thorpe, daughter of the great American Indian athlete, Jim Thorpe. "He went from the bottom to the heights and back down to the bottom again."

On Tuesday, Thorpe's name again rose to the top, nearly 30 years after his death.

Juan Antonio Samaranch of Spain, president of the International Olympic Committee, officially returned to Thorpe's family two gold medals he had won in the 1912 Olympic Games but lost a year later when he was stripped of his amateur status.

"The 70-year-old marathon is over," said another daughter, Charlotte, 63, one of six Thorpe children who attended the ceremony.

Thorpe won gold medals in the decathlon and pentathlon at the 1912 Olympics in Stockholm, Sweden. Afterward, he was ordered to hand them back because he had admitted playing baseball for $2 a game for a resort town in 1910. That was an infringement of the strict rules of amateurism on which the Olympic Games were run.

One athlete who competed against Thorpe at Stockholm was Avery Brundage, a 24-year-old American who went on to become a powerful president of the IOC and refused to budge one inch from the Olympic code of amateurism.

Through the 20 years of Brundage's presidency, every plea for the return of Thorpe's medals to his family was futile. Brundage's successor, Lord Killanin, was no more sympathetic.

But under Killanin, and again under Samaranch, the eligibility rules were broadened by stages. The Olympic Charter does not mention amateurism any more.

Julian K. Roosevelt, elected to the IOC executive board last summer, finally persuaded the board to return the medals.

"I don't think it's possible to say why this has happened just now," said William Simon, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee. "All I know is that I am very lucky to be the president of our committee when it happened. I would like to pay tribute to President Samaranch, who had the courage, the compassion and the wisdom to see these issues as they really are."

One of those who did not try to get the medals returned was Thorpe himself.

"Thousands of people have worked to get dad's medals returned, but not dad himself," said Grace Thorpe, 61, of Tahlequah, Okla. "He didn't even like speaking about them."

"I think he simply had the satisfaction of knowing he had won two Olympic events, and was content with that," she said.

The medals presented to the family were replicas of the ones Thorpe won. The replicas were cast in the same Swedish foundry where the medals were made for the 1912 Games.

"It would be unfair to ask survivors of the second place finishers to return their medals," Samaranch said.

When Thorpe's medals were taken from him in 1912 they were given to the men who finished second to him — Ferdinand Bie of Norway in the pentathlon and Hugo Wieslander of Sweden in the decathlon.

Bie's medal was among family possessions stolen three years ago and has never been traced. The other is believed to be in Stockholm, in a large chest containing hundreds of Olympic relics.

"It would be a very difficult task to find it and identify it," said Wolf Lyberg, secretary

Motta notches 600th victory

OAKLAND (AP) — Dick Motta's 600th National Basketball Association coaching victory came on the road, just like the first.

"I remember that first one very well, because it was the first NBA game I'd ever seen. We opened the season in New York, there were 19,500 people at Madison Square Garden, and we won by four points," said Motta, whose team disappointed a much smaller crowd Tuesday night.

The Dallas Mavericks, led by Mark Aguirre's 30 points and Pat Cummings' strong performance at center, outplayed the Golden State Warriors decisively in the second half and won 112-102 before 6,163 fans at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

Aguirre reached the 30-point level a sixth straight game. The 6-foot-9 Cummings scored a season-high 23 points and grabbed 12 rebounds.

Golden State Coach Al Attles, who was seeking his 544th NBA victory, said too many of his players were weary. And there's no rest for

Palmer still America's hero

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent
 "He still is America's hero — boyish appeal and a 'let's-get-it-done' grit that everybody loves," said Bob Hope. "It's great to have Arnie back and charging again."
 A rejuvenated Arnold Palmer is just what the ageless comedian needs to add extra lure to his annual Bob Hope Desert Classic in Palm Springs, Calif., this weekend, traditionally the nation's most watched golf tournament but this year bucking — although not going head-to-head — with the weekend NFL conference championship games leading to the Super Bowl.
 "It was hairy for a while," Hope said by telephone from the West Coast. "Luckily both games landed in the Eastern time zones (Washington, D. C., and Miami). If the Western teams had won, we would have had to do a lot of juggling and taping."

 As it stands, the Redskins and Dallas Cowboys will meet for the NFC crown in the nation's capital Saturday (12:30 p.m. EST CBS-TV) and the New York Jets and Miami Dolphins clash in Miami's Orange Bowl Sunday (1 p.m. NBC-TV), leading directly into the Hope showdown, also on NBC, 4:30 to 6.
 The Desert Classic, which regularly has beaten out the Masters, Open and PGA in TV ratings, was strategically placed in the open week preceding the Super Bowl, giving it little competition, but the player strike fouled up that nice situation.
 "Arnie was terrific last week," said Hope, referring to the veteran's vintage performance in the Los Angeles Open where he led with 10 holes to play. "I think he's found it again and will keep playing like that. It's a big boost for golf."

 Hope is the country's funny bone who for more than half a century has been the royal court jester, equally at ease with presidential golf partners as with golf legends, boxing champions, baseball and football stars.
 After his big pro-am golf event, a five-day affair, he will get busy taping his "Bob Hope's All-Star Super Bowl Party," a football lampoon, to be shown Saturday night (NBC 8-9 p.m., EST and PST).
 Merlin Olsen, the massive onetime defensive tackle of the Los Angeles Rams and current star of TV's "Father Murphy" series, was in on the original idea of the show, helped produce it and is one of the actors.
 It's madcap stuff. Hope and Rickles provide the one-liners. Six gargantuan pro players dress up like Shirley Temple in wigs and dresses and sing "Good Ship Lollipop." Terry Bradshaw plays a guitar and sings.

 Imagine Hope and Olsen dressed like cheer leaders, trying to crash the high-kicking line of some of the NFL's prettiest.
 The boundless energy of the 79-year-old Hope continues to astound us all. He never stops. He's always on the road to somewhere. But he never wearies of fraternizing with athletes, industrial tycoons and political bigwigs, probably rated in that order.
 Although stricken last month with an eye ailment, he teed tee off in the opening of his Pro-Am today with former President Ford, House Speaker Tip O'Neill and defending champion Ed Flori.

Nervous Bird leads Celts past Pacers, 130-123

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer
 Larry Bird admits he gets a "little nervous" whenever he has to play basketball back home in Indiana.
 But obviously that didn't bother his performance Tuesday night, when he scored 32 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and dished out seven assists to lead the Boston Celtics to a 130-123 National Basketball Association victory over the Indiana Pacers.
 "I usually haven't played that well when I've come in here," said the Celtic forward after his reversal of form. "But this was the best I've ever played in the fourth quarter here."
 Bird scored 17 of his points in the final period, leading the Celtics back from a 15-point deficit. They began their rally with five minutes remaining.
 "We weren't playing up to our potential," said Bird, a former All-American at Indiana State who had a cheering block from Terre Haute among the season-high crowd of 11,889 at Market Square Arena in Indianapolis.
 Indiana held a seemingly safe lead at 111-94 early in the fourth quarter and still led 118-103 before Boston started its rally. After a basket by Clark Kellogg, who led Indiana with 32 points and 16 rebounds, the Celtics ran off 12 straight points.
 A shot by Robert Parish pulled Boston within one point, then M.L. Carr scored on a fast-break stuff for the Celtics' first lead since the second quarter. Two free throws by Bird put Boston ahead for good, at 125-122.
 In other NBA games, it was Philadelphia 98, Cleveland

90; San Antonio 143, Denver 124; Houston 100, Washington 98 and Dallas 112, Golden State 102.
76ers 98, Cavaliers 90
 Andrew Toney scored 23 points and Moses Malone added 21 as Philadelphia tied a club record with its 12th straight victory. The winning streak improved the 76ers' record to an NBA-best 32-5 and matched a franchise mark attained in 1949 and again in 1980. It also matched the season's longest streak, set by Seattle.
 Cleveland, coming off a 90-86 weekend upset of the Celtics, trailed 36-23 after one quarter, but then held Philadelphia to 14 second-quarter points for a 50-50 halftime tie. The 76ers went ahead to stay in the third period behind their two high scorers.
 Cleveland got 23 points from World B. Free.
Spurs 143, Nuggets 124
 Gene Banks scored a career-high 30 points to lead San Antonio over Denver as the Spurs posted their highest point total of the season.
 With Banks, Mike Mitchell and George Gervin doing most of the scoring, San Antonio blitzed the Nuggets 29-15 over the first six minutes of the third period to gain control of the game.
 Mitchell and Gervin supplemented Banks' scoring with totals of 26 and 25, respectively. San Antonio shot a crisp 55.1 per cent from the floor.
Rockets 100, Bullets 98
 Joe Bryant's driving layup at the buzzer lifted Houston over Washington as the Rockets broke a five-game losing streak and extended the Bullets' spin to six.

The Rockets, 6-32, led by as many as eight points in the fourth quarter. But Jeff Ruland brought the Bullets back to tie the game at 96 on a layup and free throw with 1:17 to play. It was another Ruland basket that later tied the game at 98 and set the stage for Bryant's winning shot.
 Allen Leavell paced Houston with 22 points. Mavericks 112, Warriors 102
 Mark Aguirre scored 30 points for Dallas and Coach Dick Motta got his 600th NBA victory as the Mavericks beat Golden State. Motta became the fifth coach in NBA history to win 600 games, joining Red Auerbach, Red Holzman, Jack Ramsay and Gene Shue. Aguirre, one of the league's top forwards, reached the 30-point mark for a sixth straight game. Center Pat Cummings added a season-high 23 points for Dallas. The Mavericks went ahead to stay in the third period by outscoring the Warriors 32-25 to take an 81-77 lead. Cummings scored 12 points and Aguirre had 10 in that quarter.

Pirates still family-run

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates will remain a family-run major league franchise, even though Warner Communications Inc. has bought 48 percent of the team's stock, says the ballclub's president.
 Pirates President Daniel M. Galbreath denied Tuesday that the estimated $10 million stock purchase is a prelude to a pending buyout of the Pirates by Warner. The move was made to eliminate Pirates' debts, he said.
 Warner, an industry giant that owns the New York Cosmos soccer team, has tried for several years to buy a baseball team.
 "It seemed like a natural marriage to us," said Galbreath, whose family has owned controlling interest in the Pirates for 37 years.
 Galbreath said he will continue as the team's president and will represent the club at all owners' meetings.
 Two previously family-owned teams, the Chicago Cubs and the Philadelphia Phillies, recently were sold to large corporations.
 Under the agreement, the Galbreaths will retain controlling interest, or 51 percent, of the Pirates' stock. The agreement is expected to be finalized by Jan. 31, pending approval by the National League.
 "The investment will substantially eliminate the accumulated debt of the corporation. And we are just as committed to fielding a winner as we were before," said Galbreath, whose father, John W. Galbreath, bought controlling interest of the Pirates in 1946.

 He cited the team's new financial strength, the multi-million-dollar refurbishing of Three Rivers Stadium, an agreement by the city of Pittsburgh to manage and maintain the stadium, the team's improved play in 1982 and the acquisition of outfielder Lee Mazzilli.
 "We have had championship teams here," Galbreath said, recalling World Series winners in 1960, 1971 and 1979. "We think 1983 will be a championship season."
 Caesar P. Kimmel, executive vice president of Warner Communications, called the agreement "a new and exciting partnership."
 Kimmel said Warner has tried for some time to buy a major league team. The company tried to buy the New York Mets several years ago.
 "This gives us a presence in major league baseball," Kimmel said. "We feel Pittsburgh is the right place for us to be."
 Warner Communications is co-owner of Warner Amex Cable, which owns and operates Pittsburgh's TV cable system. Warner Amex announced last month that it had reached a five-year agreement with the Pirates to televise games over a new pay-TV channel, Home Sports Entertainment-Pittsburgh.

St. Johns regains winning formula

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer
St. John's is back in the victory column, and forward David Russell says the Redmen now have reason to look forward to their Big East Conference game Saturday at Syracuse.

Russell was limited to four points — playing with a sprained right wrist — in St. John's first loss of the season, 69-64, last Saturday at Boston College.

Tuesday night, he was listed as doubtful against Providence, but by the time the shooting was over, there was no doubt he had recovered. He and Chris Mullin scored 20 points apiece as the eighth-ranked Redmen defeated Providence 74-54.

"The loss to Boston College was good for us because we didn't want to lose our first one to Syracuse," Russell said. "We take it very seriously when we play each other. We don't like to lose to them."

The game will be played at the 25,000-seat Carrier Dome, home of the 15th-ranked Orangemen.

Russell said the wrist still did not really bother him. Most of his points were scored from short range.

"He couldn't shoot from the outside," Coach Lou Carnesecca said. "It was strictly up to the doctors whether Russell played. I had nothing to do with it, but the doctors gave their OK."

St. John's made a romp of it midway through the second half, outscoring Providence 11-2 to take a 60-49 lead with 8:22 left. The homecourt victory gave the Redmen a 15-1 record, 5-1 in the Big East. Otis Thorpe had 17 points for Providence, which fell to 8-9 and 1-4 in the league.

In the only other game Tuesday night involving a ranked team, No. 9 Louisville defeated Tulane 63-55.

Top Team
Milt Wagner led Louisville on a 16-6 scoring romp in the first half, and the Cardinals turned away a Tulane rally in the second half to win the Metro Conference game at Tulane. Wagner scored eight of his game-high 34 points during the spree, which gave Louisville a 26-16 lead with 3:42 left in the half.

Wagner also hit several key free throws after Tulane had fought back to within three points, 52-49, with 1:48 left. Lancaster Gordon added 15 points for the Cardinals, 14-2.

"Free throws — that's what hurt me against DePaul," Wagner said. The Cardinals escaped with a 63-58 victory in that game last Sunday. "I wasn't concentrating, and I was missing the front end of one-and-ones."

Tyrone Beaman hit four free throws in the final 1:19, helping Tennessee hand Alabama its fifth loss in six games, 73-64, in Southeastern Conference action at Knoxville, Tenn. Michael Brooks topped Tennessee with 22 points, and Ennis Whatley had 22 for Alabama. Tennessee now is 11-3 and 3-2 in the SEC, while the Crimson Tide dropped to 9-5 and 1-5 in the conference.

Glenn Rivers scored 15 points, and Marquette led by as many as 27 points in the second half before beating Tennessee Tech 78-59. Freshman Dave Hoppen scored 20 points to lead Nebraska over Iowa State, 59-54, in the Big Eight Conference.

Butch Moore hit a jumper with 11 seconds left, then made a game-saving steal as Southern Methodist defeated Baylor 62-61 in the Southwest Conference. Kelvin Johnson scored 21 points to lead Richmond over Old Dominion, 71-70.

Olympic delegates angry about high room costs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Olympic delegates were angry to learn that competitors are to pay $45 a day for bed and food at the 1984 Olympic Games at Los Angeles, especially since athletes paid just $18 for rooms at the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

The athletes at Moscow were lodged in newly built apartment blocks that were later used for city housing. In Los Angeles, they'll live two and three to a room in student quarters at the two big local universities, the University of Southern California and UCLA.

Delegates from 135 countries learned of the accommodation prices Tuesday at a closed meeting of the Association of National Olympic Committees (ANOC). Afterward, they said the atmosphere became heated and some Africans maintained they would never pay more than $25 for their athletes.

The executive board of the International Olympic Committee met in another room as the ANOC delegates heatedly discussed the proposed rates. The IOC will receive a report from ANOC when the two bodies meet together Thursday.

High school student shoots wife

HOUSTON (AP) — A high school student was calm and showed no anger before he pulled a pistol from his jacket and pumped three bullets into the back of his 19-year-old wife at school, officials say.

He ended the 10- to 15-second outburst of violence in a counselor's office by shooting himself once in the head, said police Detective G.J. Novak.

Though the couple had separated and her father has asked that they be kept apart at school for her safety, no fighting was apparent just before the shooting Tuesday.

"The counselor said there was no argument, no belligerence," Novak said. "What sparked the shooting is unknown until we talk to the husband, should he survive."

Daniel Samudio, a 21-year-old junior at John H. Reagan High School, was in critical condition at Hermann Hospital. His wife, Monica Sanmiguel, died in the office where she was shot at 10:25 a.m.

"The complainant (wife) never stood up or knew what happened," Novak said.

Novak said the counselor, Alice Leonard, saw Samudio pull a .22-caliber pistol from his jacket.

"She hollered, 'Daniel, no!'" and approached him, Novak said. Samudio turned and pointed the gun at the counselor, and when she ducked he turned and shot his wife once, Novak said.

The counselor then grabbed Samudio by the arm, but he pulled away and again pointed the gun at the counselor, Novak said. Again she ducked and again he turned and shot his wife, hitting her twice this time, Novak said. He then quickly shot himself once in the head, the detective said.

Novak said the victim's father, Joe Sanmiguel, last week accused Samudio of shooting at him and his daughter and asked that Samudio be charged.

Sanmiguel said that shooting came as Ms. Sanmiguel fled into her father's car on Jan. 11 when Samudio tried to pull her into his house, according to a police report. Sanmiguel said his daughter went to the house to pick up the couple's child, the report stated.

Sanmiguel talked to the district attorney's office to file charges against Samudio, and was told he should file a Class C misdemeanor charge with a justice of the peace court, said Assistant District Attorney Rusty Hammer. Hammer said he did not know if Sanmiguel did.

Les Burton, head of security for the Houston Independent School District, said the school tried to comply with the father's wishes to keep Samudio away from Ms. Sanmiguel. But he said the school was powerless to keep them apart Tuesday because they were adults and she had agreed to talk with her husband.

Ms. Sanmiguel was taking an exam in the counselor's office as part of the effort to keep her from Samudio, Burton said. Samudio was turned away earlier that morning because his wife was still taking the exam, but afterward was allowed to see her when she agreed, Burton said.

The counselor said the shooting erupted after the two had talked quietly for seven minutes and Samudio got up to leave, Burton said.

Joel Sturdivant, principal of the school located in the Houston Heights area, said the couple's child was about 10 months old. Ms. Sanmiguel was to have graduated in June.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have just recently found a lump right next to one of my testicles. It is rather sore to touch. I'm in school and would like to avoid embarrassment if I can. Would it be all right to wait a month and see if it disappears before seeing a doctor?

DEAR-READER — By the time I got your letter a month had already passed but your letter serves a good purpose in reminding me to tell all men who develop an unexplained lump near or on the testicle to have an examination immediately. Such a lump can be a malignant tumor. The fact that you are young does not rule out the possibility of cancer. I really hope you have had that lump examined by your doctor. If you have not, get there as fast as you can.

Now, the lump may be something else. It could be an inflammation or a hernia. But some of the cancers of the testicle progress very rapidly so it is best not to delay a single day if you have any reason to suspect that you might have one. A lump is a good reason to suspect one until proved otherwise.

CBS wins weekly TV ratings, football on top

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The CBS National Football League playoff game reached the top of the television ratings for the week ending Jan. 18, unseating "60 Minutes" from first place.

The afternoon game, in which the Dallas Cowboys defeated the Green Bay Packers, spilled over into prime time on Sunday.

The CBS football postgame show placed second and CBS' "60 Minutes" was third. In two previous weeks CBS' "60 Minutes" finished ahead of the college bowl and pro football games.

The playoff game and the postgame show were listed by CBS and NBC, but not by

ABC. ABC does not count prime-time spillovers and showed "60 Minutes" as No. 1.

CBS was first in the ratings compiled by the A.C. Nielsen Co. with 19.9. The networks say this means in an average prime-time minute 19.9 percent of the nation's homes with television were tuned to CBS. ABC was second with 17.2 and NBC was in third place with 13.6.

CBS had eight of the Top 10 shows and ABC had two. In the next 10, CBS had seven shows and ABC had three. NBC's highest-rated show was "Real People" in 29th place.

Judge sets deadline for response

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge set a deadline today for a response from the Federal Aviation Administration, which has been asked to rule on the status of former Braniff International landing slots.

If the FAA does not respond today, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers said he would rule that a preliminary response from the government would stand.

The FAA filed a general objection to discussing the slot issue on Jan. 12, saying it had unspecified reservations about doing so and also did not have enough information to make a decision.

FAA attorneys said they would try to file a more detailed answer this morning.

Braniff chairman Howard Putnam has said the landing slots are the only barrier to the grounded airline's proposed venture with Pacific Southwest Airlines.

PSA officials have said they want an answer from the deal by Feb. 1.

Flowers pressed the FAA for a response Tuesday during the fourth day of a trial on the merits of Braniff's plans to partially repay creditors and lease 30 planes to PSA, a California-based airline.

Braniff ceased operations May 12 and filed for protection from its creditors the next day under the weight of an estimated $1 billion debt.

Flowers set today's deadline after a request from Continental Airlines. Continental and other airlines have objected to relinquishing landing slots acquired when Braniff collapsed.

Most of Braniff's 411 landing slots across the country were temporarily allocated to other carriers after the airline suspended operations.

Earlier Tuesday, Braniff chief financial officer M. Philip Guthrie testified the proposed PSA venture would benefit unsecured creditors who held more than $600 million in debt.

He said the proposed settlement represents "a favorable transaction to the Braniff estate" and said it satisfied secured creditors and offered higher returns to unsecured creditors.

Unsecured creditors would receive an estimated 9 cents on the dollar for the debt in a liquidation, but a successful PSA Texas Division could return the creditors up to 16 cents on the dollar, according to documents introduced by Braniff in support of the venture.

Guthrie estimated that secured creditors probably will receive about 70 cents on the dollar for their $467 million dollars in debts.

He answered questions from attorneys representing former Braniff machinists, pilots and flight attendants, who oppose the deal.

Dan Lewis, an attorney with Braniff general legal counsel Arnold & Porter, said the airline and PSA will argue the FAA must abide by its agreement with Braniff last summer in which the agency agreed to return Braniff slots to it or a successor airline.

The agreement by Braniff and PSA is strongly opposed by competitors — notably Continental, American Airlines and Delta Air Lines.

The airlines and other carriers received more than 360 of the Braniff slots shortly after the airline suspended operations. The FAA withdrew 51 of the slots to relieve congestion at some crowded airports.

Campaign Plans Finalized

The American Heart Association campaign drive has been scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. Feb. 6. Headquarters will be at the Community Center. Making final preparations are Tony Cortez, area chairperson, and Mrs. Charles Watson Heart-Home chairman.

Plans underway for heart campaign

"Heart-Home Sunday", the residential campaign sponsored by the American Heart Association, is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 6. Headquarters will be located at the Community Center.

The purpose of this campaign is to contact as many residents of this community as possible and give them an opportunity to contribute to the Heart Association.

This year's home drive chairman is Mrs. Charles Watson. Area chairpersons include Mmes. Lynton Allred, Bud Eades, Sammy Gonzales, Arnulfo Lafuente, Ken Rogers, Butch White, Roger Williams and Tony Cortez.

This year's goal is $4,500. Any person or organization wishing to help with the drive is asked to contact one of the chairpersons.

Amarillo businessman sets goals for Texas Book Month

One hundred thousand books by Texans or about Texas for Texas libraries is the goal of Texas Book Month in March set by Wales Madden, III, Amarillo businessman and chairman of Texas Book Month.

Madden's appointment as chairman of the drive was made by Wayne C. Sellers, Palestine Carnegie Library trustee and chairman of Books for Texans, an organization formed by leaders in statewide library organizations.

Madden will be joined by Vice-chairman John F. Sammons Jr., mayor of Temple.

"Texas has nationally known publishing houses and thousands of published authors, many of whom have won international acclaim. In addition, there are Texas authors who have earned distinction in their fields, but whose works are not widely known."

"From history and philosophy to prose and poetry, the books placed on library shelves will cover the full spectrum of learning and literary craftsmanship," Madden said to explain the need for Texas Book Month.

"While many Texas authors have not yet earned fame of a Walter Prescott Webb, J. Frank Dobie, Katherine Anne Porter or Fred Gipson, their works deserve recognition and appreciation," Madden added. The chairman said a vigorous campaign will be conducted through the ten public library systems in Texas and through the city and county civic groups.

During the month Texans will be urged to make gifts, either of money or of Texas books to libraries. Selection of the books can be made from a list prepared under the direction of Dr. Dorman Winfrey, Texas state librarian.

"We hope, also, to help libraries acquire histories of Texas counties and cities and biographies of Texas citizens not now widely known," Madden added.

The chairman is a native of Amarillo and a graduate of The University of Texas. He is self-employed, is a member of the board of directors of the Texas Lyceum Association, Inc., a member of the board of the College of Business Administration Century Club at Texas and is a member of the citizen's budget committee of the Amarillo United Way.

Madden's wife is the former Susan Hamilton and they are the parents of one son.

Sammons is serving his second term as mayor of Temple. He is the third generation of his family to serve on the Temple city commission. He attended Temple Junior College and The University of Texas.

Sammons and his wife, Marilyn, have three sons.

Counterfeit cops stop motorist in El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — For the eighth time in as many days, an impostor posing as an El Paso patrolman has stopped a motorist and tried to fool him into paying cash on the spot for a purported traffic fine, officials say.

"We're still being hit by bogus cops," El Paso Lt. Eddie Agan said.

Tuesday morning, police said four men in an unmarked car with flashing red lights stopped a motorist. One man displayed a badge in his wallet and told the motorist he was a policeman.

But the motorist, suspecting the man was a phony patrolman, jumped back in his car and drove away, police said.

And Monday, for the seventh time since Dec. 23, a man posing as a police officer stopped a driver in this West Texas city and asked for money on the spot for a "speeding ticket."

When the driver — wary because of newspaper and television reports warning drivers to verify policemen's credentials are genuine — asked the counterfeit policemen for identification, the suspect fled, police said.

"We think maybe there are three suspects in this case," said Agan.

Motorists report the bogus policemen have taken $770 in cash since the spree started.

But police also suspect some reports could be covers for other types of losses, such as gambling.

 "Maybe one of the guys has been out gambling and has lost some money. Well, maybe he tells Momma he got hit up by the bogus cops," Agan said.
 Police, who suspect the victims are being duped by former patrolmen, say they fear the rash of ripoffs could continue until one of the bogus policeman is tracked down.

Feds may ask Congress to freeze target prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration reportedly has not given up on an earlier bid to freeze target prices for major crops as a way of holding down federal spending.

asked not to be named, the administration is considering asking Congress for legislation to freeze target prices at their 1983 levels.

The legislative request could be included in President Reagan's budget proposals for 1983-84, which will be sent to Congress at the end of the month.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block raised the possibility late last year when he described the proposed payment-in-kind program then under consideration by the lame-duck Congress.

When PIK failed to be approved, the administration earlier this month moved on its own to put the program in place for 1983. It includes giving farmers surplus grain in return for reducing 1983 plantings of wheat, corn, sorghum, cotton and rice.

keeping figures used to compute any direct federal "deficiency" payments, or subsidies due farmers.

When market prices fall below the targets — as they currently are — payments make up the difference between the target and the market price or the loan level, whichever is larger.

Block on Dec. 9 told the Senate Agriculture Committee that current law requires target prices to be increased each year and that those boosts "provide incentive for production increases at a time when moderation is needed."

Thus, he said, the secretary of agriculture should have the authority "to determine the appropriate target level" through the 1985 crop season. In no case, however, would the targets be lower than the 1983 levels.

Target prices for the PIK crops and the regular loan rates for 1983 include: Wheat, a target of $4.30 per bushel and a regular loan of $3.65; corn, $2.86 per bushel and $2.65; sorghum, $2.72 per bushel and $2.52; upland cotton, 76 cents per pound and 55 cents; and rice, $11.40 per 100 pounds and $8.14.

Market prices in mid-December, comparatively, were reported by USDA at: wheat, $3.50; corn, $2.27; sorghum, $2.26; cotton, 58.6 cents; and rice, $8.05.

If Reagan's budget recommends a freeze in target prices, questions from congressional farm leaders won't be long in coming.

Block is scheduled to appear before the House Agriculture Committee on Feb. 9 for a review of economic conditions on the nation's farms and to go over the administration's budget proposals for the fiscal year which will begin Oct. 1.

Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, chairman of the committee, said the meeting was scheduled early in the new session because members "want to hear any proposals Block may have for new actions" to improve farm income.

"American farmers are facing critical strains this year," De la Garza said. "Market prices may continue low even if the payment-in-kind program works as well as the administration hopes it will."

Regier presented 1982 TAES performance award

COLLEGE STATION — Cecil Regier, research scientist in charge at the North Plains Research Field at Etter, was presented the 1982 Distinguished Performance Award at the annual conference of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station last week.

Regier was presented the award for excellence by technical support personnel by Dr. Perry L. Adkisson, deputy chancellor for agriculture.

It was one of 13 awards to TAES administrative, service, support, teaching and research personnel across the state. Adkisson established the annual awards several years ago to honor staff excellence.

Regier has served at the Etter station since 1964 and worked closely with the late Dr. John Shipley. Regier has made major contributions to developing the North Plains Research Field into an excellent location for a variety of agricultural research projects.

Among his inventions have been a logger for center pivot irrigation systems, a continuous runoff recorder, an Ettergate flow rate calibrating system and a mixing device for pesticides used in chemigation (chemical application through irrigation systems).

Regier was cited for his research contributions not only at Etter but at the Bushland and Amarillo stations.

Prior to joining the TAES, Regier was with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, serving as an assistant county extension agent in Gray County and later as county agent in Collingsworth County.

He holds a B.S. degree in animal science from Oklahoma State University and has done graduate work at Texas A&M.

Beef pipeline numbers 10.3 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers and feedlot operators continue to pour cattle into the beef pipeline at a fast clip, according to the latest Agriculture Department survey.

The number of cattle being fed for the slaughter market in 13 major beef states on Jan. 1 totaled 10.3 million head, up 14 percent from a year ago and 4 percent above the inventory of two years ago, the department said Tuesday.

According to the quarterly inventory report, 7.23 million cattle were placed in feeding pens during the October-December period, 16 percent more than a year earlier and 9 percent more than in the same fourth quarter of 1981.

Feedlot cattle — those which are fattened on grain-based rations prior to slaughter — provide most of the more-expensive beef cuts on sale in supermarkets. Much of the hamburger and some other cheaper cuts comes from slaughtered cows and other "non-fed" beef.

The report said that marketings of fed cattle during the quarter totaled 5.38 million head, up 6 percent from a year earlier and 2 percent more than in the last quarter of 1981.

Looking at prospects in the first quarter of 1983, the report said an estimated 6.07 million head are expected to be marketed from feedlots, up 11 percent from a year ago and 9 percent above 1981.

Total beef output is expected to decline slightly this year, according to USDA projections.

The 13 states included in the quarterly report account for about 5 percent of the nation's beef production. Traditionally, the report covered 23 states, but 10 were dropped last year as part of the administration's budget cutting.

Feedlot inventories as of Jan. 1 increased from a year ago in 11 of the 13 states, held steady in California and dropped in Idaho. The states and percentage change from a year earlier are:

Arizona, 385,000 head on Jan. 1 and 117 percent of a year ago; California, 581,000 and 100; Colorado, 1,020,000 and 136; Idaho, 208,000 and 90; Illinois, 530,000 and 110; Iowa, 1,210,000 and 107; Kansas, 1,320,000 and 119; Minnesota, 405,000 and 116; Nebraska, 1,880,000 and 115; Oklahoma, 300,000 and 111; South Dakota, 345,000 and 103; Texas, 1,920,000 and 116; and Washington, 167,000 and 104.

J.D. tractors tops in tests

Five new John Deere tractors introduced in August are record-setters in PTO fuel efficiency, drawbar pull and low-sound level, it was announced today by Chris White of White Implement Co. of Hereford.

As a John Deere dealer, White has just received a set of official test results performed at the University of Nebraska Test Station in Lincoln.

"John Deere's new 50 series, 100 to 190-horsepower tractors, were announced in August," said White, "but the test results were only recently made public."

Comparison of test results shows that the 190-hp 4850 is the most fuel-efficient tractor available in the over-100-hp category, according to White. "In fact, it's the most fuel-efficient tractor over 65 horsepower," added White. In official test language, the 4850 produced 17.47 horsepower hours per gallon of fuel, he pointed out.

Both the 4850 and the 165-hp 4650 broke all existing records for drawbar pull measured on a 2-wheel-drive tractor. White said the 4650 pulled 18,794 pounds and the 4850 pulled 20,810 pounds.

White noted that the 100-hp 4050 set a completely different kind of record. It's the quietest tractor ever tested at rated speed and maximum power. "All of the tractors are really quiet, and the test figures were really impressive."

White invited interested farmers to stop in and see the test results on the tractor.

Tech dept. receives $3,000

LUBBOCK — A gift of $3,000 has been made to the Texas Tech University Department of Animal Sciences by Bill and Floyce Masterson Bates of Lubbock and Guthrie. The money will be used to support beef cattle research and instruction.

The gift was made in honor of the late C.L. "Chuck" Siewert, a long-time Texas Tech friend and former president and chairman of the board of the Great Plains Co. Inc. of Lubbock.

Dr. Robert A. Long, animal science professor and supervisor of the beef cattle breeding herd, said Mrs. Bates, owner of the F-Cross Ranch near Guthrie, has been a staunch backer of the university's beef cattle research program.

Both the F-Cross Ranch and the university herds are Angus, one of the popular cattle breeds in Texas. The university maintains a breeding herd of 50 mature cows at the Texas Tech Agricultural Field Laboratories.

NEW 100-190 HP TRACTORS

JOHN DEERE SETS NEW PTO FUEL EFFICIENCY RECORD IN OFFICIAL TESTS

The John Deere 4850 is the most fuel-efficient big tractor you can buy. It now holds the record for PTO-measured fuel efficiency: In official tests at rated engine speed, the new 4850 bested every current production tractor of 100 horsepower or more. (Actually it's the most fuel efficient tractor over 65 hp currently available.) The record? Take your choice: 17.47 horsepower hours per gallon or .399 pounds of fuel per horsepower hour. But the 4850 wasn't alone in turning in an improved PTO fuel efficiency. All five of our 100- to 190-hp tractors are more fuel efficient than their predecessors. Across the line, they average 10 percent better on overall PTO fuel efficiency. Stop in for the full story.

POWERFUL NEW EFFICIENCY FOR YOUR BREAD-AND-BUTTER MACHINE

NEW 100-190 HP TRACTORS

JOHN DEERE OUTPULLS THEM ALL IN OFFICIAL TESTS

Two of our new 50 Series Tractors have broken the drawbar pull record for 2-wheel-drive tractors in official tests. Yes, that's right. TWO of them. The new 4650 recorded a maximum pull of 18,794 lb. And the new 4850 recorded a maximum pull of 20,810 lb. Both of these tractors recorded more drawbar pull than any other 2-wheel-drive tractor ever tested. All five of our new tractors generate a considerable increase in pulling power when compared to their predecessors. And torque reserve? It's increased as well. Drawbar fuel efficiency? It's improved on all five. Stop by the store for complete details on these record-setting tractors. We want to tell you about our PTO fuel efficiency record and sensational sound levels, too. If you're looking for better fuel efficiency, more pulling power or a better working environment, look at a new John Deere.

Having peace of mind

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This statement was enclosed with our paychecks from the state of Kansas. I think it is worth circulating. — M.V.W.

DEAR M.V.W.: So do I. Here it is:

THOUGHTS TO PONDER

Several years ago the sociology department of Duke University did a study on "Peace of Mind." Several factors were found to contribute greatly to emotional and mental stability. They are:

1. The absence of suspicion and resentment. Nursing a grudge was a major factor in unhappiness.

2. Not living in the past. An unwholesome preoccupation with old mistakes and failures leads to depression.

3. Not wasting time and energy fighting with conditions you cannot change. Cooperate with life, instead of trying to run away from it.

4. Force yourself to stay involved with the living world. Resist the temptation to withdraw and become reclusive during periods of emotional stress.

5. Refuse to indulge in self-pity when life hands you a raw deal. Accept the fact that nobody gets through life without some sorrow and misfortune.

6. Cultivate the old-fashioned virtues — love, honor, compassion and loyalty.

7. Don't expect too much of yourself. When there is a wide gap between self-expectation and your ability to meet the goals you have set, feelings of inadequacy are inevitable.

8. Find something bigger than yourself to believe in. Self-centered, egotistical people score lowest in any test for measuring happiness.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I

read with interest the letter from a mother who was trying, unsuccessfully, to cope with her grown children who had moved back home because of the economy. I am in the same boat, and so are several of my friends. Believe me, it's tough on us, too.

I am a college graduate and have been on my own for five years. The toughest part of coming home is the loss of independence. When I left I was a kid. Today I am an adult. When my mother asks, "Where are you going?" and I reply, "Out," no disrespect is intended. It is my way of letting her know I am not a little boy anymore and she shouldn't be so nosy.

Please tell us "homing pigeons" how we can maintain a good relationship with our parents and avoid the humiliation of being treated like adolescents. — Louisville Predicament

DEAR LOU: Communicate. It's the name of the game. Have a quiet discussion with your parents. (No yelling allowed.) Use this column as a basis for discussion. I concede it's as difficult to GO home as it is for your parents to have you there. But your privacy should be respected, even though they may feel that theirs is being invaded. Good luck!

CareUnit opens Monday in Canyon

Researchers say that one out of every 15 adults 18 and older is an alcoholic or problem drinker. If these figures are indeed correct, that means the Panhandle has 35,000 alcoholics or problem drinkers.

The message is clear — alcoholism is a huge problem in this country, this state and in the Panhandle.

On Monday, Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon in affiliation with St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo will open an adult CareUnit for the medical treatment of alcohol and drug abuse, including marijuana, cocaine and prescription drugs.

"We feel there is a real need in the Panhandle for this type of hospital-based treatment," says St. Anthony's Hospital Administrator John J. Buckley Jr. "St. Anthony's Hospital has been investigating a facility of this kind for over a year. Through a cooperative effort with Palo Duro Hospital, we are proud to be instrumental in providing this much needed service for the area."

Palo Duro Hospital Administrator Bob Bybee added, "We are working closely with law enforcement agencies, civic leaders and local business people and all agree that alcohol and drug abuse have reached epidemic proportions in this area. With the opening of the CareUnit at Palo Duro Hospital we are making a positive commitment to help alcoholics and their families."

The new CareUnit will provide a four-week treatment program including medical detoxification, psychotherapy, structured and unstructured groups, educational sessions, individual and family counseling and a very strong, lifetime aftercare program. The entire program is covered by medical insurance policies including Medicare, and is strongly oriented toward the concepts of Alcoholics Anonymous.

The unit will also provide many community services such as free confidential evaluation interviews for problem drinkers and their families, family intervention counseling, a 24-hour CareLine for crisis counseling and a variety of educational programs for clubs and service organizations.

The CareUnit will be staffed by an interdisciplinary team of chemical dependency professionals including: Rolly Meyer, program coordinator; Dudley Moore, MD, medical director; Joe Garms, Ph.D., clinical psychologist; Ben Warner, M.S.W., clinical social worker; Kathryn Tracy, B.A.

alcoholism therapist; and a team of specially trained nurses.

"Recovery from alcohol or drug abuse is tough," says Bybee. "It means not only revamping one's ideas, attitudes and lifestyle, but learning to live comfortably without drinking or using — a very difficult task for the recovering alcoholic. Our unit's supportive lifetime aftercare program will make this process easier."

For further information call the CareLine at 655-7723.

Former resident is selected

Janice Turrentine Whelan, daughter of Hereford residents Mr. and Mrs. George Turrentine, has been selected as an Outstanding Young Woman of America for 1982, recognizing service given to enrich the quality of American life. A complete biographical sketch will appear in the 1982 edition of "Outstanding Young Women of America," which is published annually. Those included in the volume were chosen from thousands of nominations submitted by respected business and civic leaders throughout the country.

Mrs. Whelan resides in Plano with her husband, Ron, and their son, Ryan. She is a graduate of Hereford High School and attended Southern Methodist University. She earned her bachelor's and master's degrees in speech therapy from Texas Tech University and was a speech therapist at Walcott School last year.

She is currently employed as a speech therapist for the Plano School District.

Today In History

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 19, the 19th day of 1983. There are 346 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 19, 1938, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Nationalist Air Force bombed the Spanish cities of Barcelona and Valencia, killing 700 people.

On this date: In 1861, Georgia seceded from the union.

In 1918, the Bolsheviks dissolved the Russian Constitutional Assembly in Petrograd.

In 1942, Japan invaded Burma in World War II.

In 1981, the United States and Iran reached final agreement on the release of 52 Americans held hostage 13 months by Iranian militants.

Ten years ago: It was announced that the U.S. gross national product for 1972 had risen 6.3 percent.

Five years ago: In his State of the Union message, President Carter said his priorities for 1978 were a strong energy bill and Senate approval of the Panama Canal treaty.

One year ago: President Reagan said in a news conference that conditions in Poland had worsened with the imposition of martial law, and that further sanctions were contemplated against the military regime and the Soviet Union.

Today's birthdays: Singer Dolly Parton is 37. Baseball pitcher Jon Matlack is 33.

Thought for today: "None but a mule denies his family." — A Moroccan proverb.

New program grants endorsement of English as a second language

PLAINVIEW — A new program granting endorsement of English as a Second Language to certified Texas public school teachers will take shape during the spring term at Wayland Baptist University.

Recently approved by the Texas Education Agency, the program will allow persons already holding provisional teaching certificates to receive the endorsement to teach English to youngsters who speak another language.

The program is a direct result of a bill passed by the 1981 Texas legislature requiring the teaching of English as a second language in schools too small to have a bilingual program.

"If a school has 20 or more students in a grade level with a limited English proficiency, that school must have a bilingual program up through third grade," said Dr. Terry Northup, chairman of the Division of Education. "In these same schools ESL programs are also established at the fourth grade level to continue progress made through the bilingual program."

Four courses, or a total of 12 additional hours, are required for the ESL endorsement by Texas' Commission on Standards for the Teaching Profession.

In addition to the course work, the student must either practice teaching in an ESL classroom or have one year of public teaching experience in the ESL program.

Bilingual and ESL programs help non-English speaking children to learn in Texas public schools and keep up with their classmates, Northup says.

"It prevents the child's language from being a handicap. We've done a poor job of educating these (non-English speaking) kids in some areas — they've been ignored, pushed off to the side, and as a result, held back in school. There is a high dropout rate among these students."

Whereas bilingual programs begin with the student's native language ESL's initial attempts focus on the learning of some of English's functional words — eat, drink, bathroom.

Mike Moon speaks to El Llano Study Club

Mike Moon of the Hereford Family Services Center presented the program at Monday's meeting of El Llano Study Club. Members met in the home of Jane Coplan, with Jeane Dowell serving as co-hostess.

Following a short business meeting, Moon explained specific services offered by the Center and returned the quiz results on a personality questionnaire which club members had taken at an earlier meeting.

Refreshments were served to Kathy Johnson, Jean

Ballard, Mozell Childers, Zula Arney, Leona Kimbell, Roberta Caviness, Elizabeth Cesar, Opal Bookout, Avis White, Sue Amstutz, Ursalee Jacobsen, Donna Jones, Helen Eades, Diane Hoelscher, Dolores Foster, and Donna Warrick.

Houseflies have taste-sensitive cells on their feet as well as on their mouths.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Significance of lost senses

DEAR DR. LAMB — My grandmother is 85 years old.
Last year she lost her sense of smell. This year she has lost her sense of taste. Seasoned or spicy food tastes bitter. This makes eating very unpleasant and she does not eat enough.

My grandmother has an allergy that makes her eyes itch. She is now itching around her mouth and nostrils. Could an allergy cause her to lose her sense of taste and smell?

DEAR READER — Loss
of taste or smell or both is much more common than you might realize, judging from the large number of letters about these problems. And I'm sorry to say there are limited things that can be done. But such findings should never be ignored
as they can be an important symptom of significant problems.

A good place to start with a loss of smell is to see an ear, nose and throat specialist if your family doctor cannot help you. Local changes in the nose can affect a person's ability to smell. A common cold is a good example of the problem. Your grandmother's allergy may be associated with nasal blockage that affects her ability to smell.

Ultimately all information from the special senses must arrive at the brain
before your conscious mind is aware of the stimulus. To illustrate, a person may be blind because special areas of the brain that perceive signals from the eye are damaged. The same is true with smell. The cells here are in the frontal lobe and sometimes a brain tumor
may cause its first symptoms by causing a loss of smell.

Other diseases that damage the frontal lobes may also cause a loss of smell, and so can injuries. That is why if there is nothing found from a nose examination it is good to see a neurologist.

U.S. Chamber Report

Taxpayers face learning process

When Congress lowers taxes one year and raises taxes the next year, the right to tax is more readily seen in a different light: The power to confuse.

Taxpayers beware: The 97th Congress, which has eased into history, devoted more time to revising tax laws than any Congress in memory.

"Barely a year after enacting the largest tax cut in history, Congress passed a bill that many call the largest income tax increase in history," Dr. Richard W.
Rahn, chief economist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, notes in the foreword of a new tax booklet published by the Chamber.

Besides raising and lowering taxes by record-setting examples, Congress also made countless changes in rules that will affect individual taxpayers. As might be expected, the changes will help some taxpayers and hurt others. Taxpayers will learn how they fared when they compute the final tax bill for 1982 and future years.

Between now and April 15, when 1982 tax returns are due, both business executives and ordinary taxpayers face a learning process. To help its members cope with the changes, the Tax Policy Center of the Chamber has published a 43-page booklet,
"The 1982 Tax Law: What It Does to You and Your Business." Not surprisingly,
it is a sequel to a booklet published after the 1981 tax law, entitled "The New Tax Law: What's in It for You and Your Business."

The publications deal not only with corporate and business taxes but also with numerous changes affecting individual taxpayers. Why?

Over 90 percent of the Chamber's members employ fewer than 100 persons, and most owners of businesses of that size file returns and pay taxes as individuals, rather than as corporate entities.

The 1982 booklet, which deals with the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 and the Subchapter S Revision Act, which concerns some small businesses, also summarizes key changes of both the 1981 and 1982 laws.

Some major revisions applicable to 1982 returns (effective Jan. 1, 1982, unless otherwise indicated):

—Individual income tax rates are lowered by 10 percent. Taxpayers saw the difference in tax withheld from their paychecks, starting last July 1.

—The top tax rate for investment income — such as dividends and interest — is lowered from 70 to 50 percent.

—The so-called marriage
"penalty" tax is reduced for working couples. Five percent (up to $1,500) of the first $30,000 of income of the lesser-earning spouse is tax free. In 1983 this exclusion rises to 10 percent.

—Americans working abroad may earn $75,000 and a housing allowance tax free.
The exclusion jumps by $5,000
a year until 1986.

—Taxpayers who do not itemize deductions may deduct charitable contributions up to $25.

—Credits for child and dependent care are increased. Amounts spent up to $2,400 for one child or dependent and $4,800 for two or more are eligible for credit, computed at 20 percent for those with adjusted gross income above $28,000 and 30 percent for those with $10,000 or less.

—The first $100 ($200 on a joint return) of income from dividends is tax free but all interest income — even amounts below $100 — is taxable.

—Individuals covered by employer pension programs for the first time may set up their own IRAs — Individual Retirement Accounts. Up to $2,000 ($2,250 on a joint return) may be invested tax free in a future investment.
Money invested through April 15, 1983, may be deducted from 1982 income.

—Self-employed taxpayers
may put aside up to $2,000 in an IRA, in addition to their Keogh fund.

—Self-employed may double the amount — to a maximum of $15,000 a year — they can invest tax free in their Keogh or other retirement fund.

The new year also features important adjustments:

—Individual tax rates are reduced 10 percent effective July 1, 1983.

—Banks, savings and loans
and other payers must start withholding 10 percent as tax on dividend and interest payments of over $150 a year, effective July 1, 1983.

—Pension, profit-sharing and annuity plan managers

must withhold 10 percent tax on pension checks and annuities, unless recipients elect against it.

—Only medical expenses
over 5 percent of adjusted gross income are eligible for deduction, compared with expenses of over 3 percent in the past.

—Casualty loss may be deducted only for amounts exceeding 10 percent of adjusted gross income.

—Telephone tax is raised from 1 to 3 percent.

—Cigarette tax is raised from 8 to 16 cents a pack.

How did you fare? And don't forget, the gasoline tax is raised from 4 to 9 cents a gallon, starting April 1.

Self-cleaning ovens

DEAR POLLY — The cleaning cycle of my electric self-cleaning oven isn't doing an adequate job of cleaning. Is there any way it can be improved? Can I use regular oven cleaner to clean it? — TRACY

DEAR TRACY — From all the reports I've received — from both owners of self-cleaning ovens and professional consumer testing of these appliances — the cleaning cycles of self-cleaning ovens are generally very effective. Therefore, I urge you to try to get the oven to clean properly before using any other type of cleaner on it. You may not be using the self-cleaning cycle frequently enough. With a very heavy buildup of grease and food soil, the effectiveness of the cleaning cycle may be somewhat reduced. Use your cleaning cycle frequently, and if it doesn't do a complete job, repeat the cycle. Another helpful measure is to wipe out the inside of the oven with a damp cloth before running the cleaning cycle. This will pick up any excess grease that has not yet baked on to the oven walls, further improving the efficiency of the cleaning cycle. Also, it's possible that the cleaning cycle has been set incorrectly. It might be worthwhile to call in the company's service rep in your area and have the appliance checked out with this in mind. Commercial oven cleaners are not recommended for these appliances. For one thing, any residue of the harsh chemicals in these cleaners left in the oven could cause corrosion to the oven interior under the high heat of the self-cleaning cycle when next it is used. And never, never use oven cleaners on continuous-clean ovens. They can damage the special coating on the oven walls (which keep foods from burning on) and destroy the continuous-clean feature of the oven. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Put a clean sock over a baby bottle while feeding baby. Keeps the milk or formula warm. Instead of a mattress sheet for a crib, I use a regular pillow case. Much less expensive and more practical. — FELICIA
