

McPherson resigns as county sheriff

By O.G. NIEMAN
Publisher-Editor

Travis McPherson, Deaf Smith County Sheriff since 1970, announced Monday afternoon that he is resigning the office effective Aug. 15.

McPherson gave no reason in his letter of resignation to the County Judge and Commissioners' Court, but he told The Brand that he was considering "several offers in the private sector."

McPherson, who will observe his 42nd birthday Friday, met with his department people about 4 p.m. Monday to tell them of his decision, then took his letter of resignation to the judge and commissioners.

The short letter stated: "I hereby submit my resignation effective Aug. 15, 1983, and would recommend that Dean Butcher be appointed as Sheriff upon my departure. I would request a meeting to discuss this further, at your convenience."

Judge Nelson said he doubted that the commission would have a special meeting to discuss the matter, since the next regular meeting is next Monday. Nelson, after receiving the letter shortly before 5 p.m. Monday, said he was "not too surprised...Travis has been telling us that he was looking at other job possibilities, that the pay was not adequate for him or his deputies."

McPherson, who has won four consecutive elections to the sheriff's post, simply said he had been "thinking about a change for some time, and this appears a good time to look to the future."

McPherson also said he was considering the possibility of entering an area-wide political race. "It's a wait-and-see proposition," he said. "I just really haven't decided yet what I'm going to do."

The sheriff explained that the jail problem was "about resolved" and there are no other big problems facing his office at this time. "It was a difficult decision...the people here have been very supportive and it's made my job easier. There's no finer community or people than here in Deaf Smith County."

McPherson was appointed to the sheriff's post in March of 1970, replacing Ed Roberson who had resigned to move to Austin with the Department of Public Safety. He won election to a two-year term later in 1970, then was elected to four-year terms in 1972, 1976 and 1980. His current term expires Dec. 31, 1984.

Born in Yazoo City, Miss., McPherson was reared in the Mississippi Delta. He moved to Hereford in 1963 and was working as a grocery store clerk when he took on a second job as a dispatcher at the sheriff's office from midnight to 8. He soon earned a fulltime job as a deputy under Sheriff Lowell Sharp, and will have been with the department about 19 years on his departure.

Over the past 10 years, McPherson has earned the reputation of being a leader in the use of forensic hypnosis in law enforcement. He attended a number of schools on forensic hypnosis and fingerprinting, and other phases of law enforcement.

He has often been called upon by police departments in the area to hypnotize witnesses to crimes. One of his notable successes in the field was in the "traveling rapist" case. He hypnotized a local victim to help get a description of the suspect. That description helped lead to the arrest of Samuel C. Hawkins, who was later convicted.

McPherson is also widely known for his modern-day, scientific approach to enforcing laws in Deaf Smith County. His appearance often surprises people. He does not fit the image of the gruff-talking, tobacco-chewing, boot-wearing western sheriff. He usually wears a three-piece business suit.

He has also become known as an artist. McPherson started painting in 1974 after he was told it might help his ulcers and tension. His first painting sold for $75; now they bring an average of $400 or more.

McPherson has served as chairman of the legislative committee of the International Association of Forensic Hypnosis, has been active in the Texas Sheriffs' Association, and the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

May be offered in 3-4 weeks City updated on PBS channel

By REED PARSELL
Staff Writer

Hereford Cablevision could know within three or four weeks whether it will be able to offer Public Broadcasting Station KTX-T Lubbock to local cable subscribers, the Hereford City Commission was told Monday night.

The local cable television company is hoping to obtain the KTX-T signal via Lee Microwave. Hereford has been without a PBS channel since April 15, 1982, when the company dropped KERA-Dallas. That channel had been supplied by West Texas Microwave (WTM).

According to Clint Formby, owner of Hereford Cablevision who was present at Monday's regular commission meeting, WTM demanded a 631 percent rate increase for KERA and another Dallas channel, raising the monthly fee to $4,388. Only one other Texas town - Albany - was given a larger rate hike. Amarillo received just a 2 percent increase, Formby said.

Hereford and several other area cable companies subsequently dropped WTM's services. On Monday, Formby and Lloyd Ames, Hereford Cablevision manager, described the series of measures their company has made to obtain an alternative PBS channel. The principally desired channel is KTX-T, which operates from the campus of Texas Tech University.

"We have spent much time and money, I can assure you," Formby told the commissioners, "trying to bring PBS into this town."

"It's been very frustrating in what we're trying to do,"

Florist's carpet damaged

An estimated $1,400 damage was done Saturday or Sunday to the carpet in front of Park Avenue Florist, 315 Park Ave. Hereford police reported this morning.

An unknown person or persons left tar footprints which cannot be removed from the carpet, according to the police report.

Otherwise, the weekend featured nine arrests: six for public intoxication (two of which involved possession of marijuana) and one each for criminal trespassing, DWI and juvenile in possession of marijuana.

Also reported were four incidents of criminal mischief, one domestic disturbance, four assaults, one criminal trespassing, one civil problem, one harassment, three minor thefts, one possible threat, one public intoxication and one verbal threat.

he later commented. "I'd be glad to put our record of trying to get KTX-T against anyone."

Formby described the three methemphris cable company has agreed to replace KERA. Formby is being pursued by Lee Microwave. When Lee asked the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) for permission to provide KTX-T to several area cable companies, WTM filed a protest. It claimed it is the only microwave system which should be allowed to provide a PBS channel to the Texas Panhandle.

Late last month, Lee and the concerned area cable companies requested the FCC waive WTM's self-proclaimed monopoly. Cable subscribers and other concerned citizens were urged to send letters supporting KTX-T to Lee attorneys, who would in turn present them to the FCC.

Ames said 100 letters were sent to Hereford Cablevision's office while 60-80 more were sent by Hereford residents directly to Howard Liberman, attorney for Lee out of Washington. More letters came from

Against Franc, Mark

NEW YORK (AP) - West Germany, Japan and reportedly the United States intervened on foreign exchanges, halting today an advance in the dollar's value spurred by investors' fears of higher American interest rates.

On international currency exchanges Monday, the expectation of higher U.S. rates helped push the dollar to record peaks in relation to the French franc. The dollar also climbed to an eight-year high against the West German mark.

Intervention in the markets by the West German central bank, the Bank of Japan and reportedly by the Federal Reserve Board, halted the dollar's advance on foreign

Stone back from Latin America tour

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. special envoy Richard Stone returned home today, saying his 11-day Latin American tour had been "quite useful" but refusing to discuss his first meeting with a Salvadoran leftist leader or an apparent snub by Nicaraguan officials.

Stone would not say if there would be further talks with leftist-ruled Nicaragua, telling reporters at Andrews Air Force Base, "We have to preserve the confidentiality" of the negotiating process.

He said he expects to meet with Henry A. Kissinger, chairman of President Reagan's commission on Central America, and also would brief Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

exchanges today.

But by mid-morning in Europe, the dollar stabilized at rates only slightly below the record levels it hit Monday.

The Wall Street Journal quoted U.S. Treasury spokeswoman Ann McLaughlin as saying Monday that the central banks of the United States, Japan and West Germany were engaging in "coordinated exchange-market intervention" to stabilize exchange rates.

She said the Fed was using a "healthy amount" of funds in the first U.S. exchange-market intervention since October, when the Fed purchased German marks and Japanese yen, the Journal reported.

At home, the stock market stumbled, the bond market sagged and interest rates on Treasury bills auctioned by the government hit their highest levels in nearly a year.

The markets are jittery about the Treasury's record borrowing binge this week. The government is scheduled to begin today a series of offers to raise $15.75 billion to help finance the federal budget deficit. The figure is a one-week record.

Many economists are predicting that a surge in private and government borrowing will create a credit crunch that would push interest rates higher. That, in turn, could slow or even halt the current U.S. recovery from recession.

The dollar soared above 8 French francs in European and U.S. trading Monday for the first time since the 1920s, surpassing the previous high set Friday.

Hereford woman dies in wreck

A 19-year-old Hereford woman was killed and seven other persons injured in a two-vehicle accident Monday about 18 miles southeast of Friona. Pronounced dead on arrival at Parmer County Community Hospital in Friona was Maria Erlinda Reyes, of 906 South Lee.

Authorities reported that the 1980 Buick Miss Reyes was driving attempted to make a U-turn from a ditch on FM 2397 about 4:25 p.m. Monday when a 1965 Plymouth driven by Ostolia Sanchez Ramos, 47, of Dimmitt, slammed into the passenger side of the Reyes vehicle.

Two passengers in the Reyes Buick were also injured. David Garcia, 14, was listed in critical condition at PCCH with chest injuries. Delia Barrientes, 47, was reported in good condition with minor injuries at the Friona hospital.

Both are from Hereford.

Ramos was listed in fair condition at PCCH. Passengers in the Ramos vehicle who were injured included Irene Ramos, 25; Tina Ramos 14; and Jesse Ramos, 12—all reported in good condition in PCCH; and Billy Ray Aleman, 9, who was transferred to Deaf Smith General Hospital, where he is listed in good condition. All are from Dimmitt.

Miss Reyes a 1982 Hereford High School graduate, was born June 27, 1964, in Hobart, Okla. She had been a Hereford resident for 16 years and was a member of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses Church with Johnny Soto officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral Directors of Hereford.

Survivors include her mother and stepfather, Delia and Francisco Garcia, two sisters, Silvia Reyes and Hope Garcia, one brother, David Garcia, and her grandfather, Juan Barrientes, all of Hereford.

Astroworld planning changes in procedure

HOUSTON (AP) - Astroworld officials plan to implement new procedures on the Texas Cyclone roller coaster ride to try to prevent accidents similar to one that claimed the life of one amusement park employee and injured three others.

A new train carrying 15 park employees on a test ride rolled back into its elevated storage shed and plunged to the ground Friday night.

"We are going to do everything possible to make sure it doesn't happen again," Astroworld General Manager Lamar Parker said Monday.

Three new safeguards will be installed to make sure the track is in place, replacing the current braking system, Parker said. A backup system also will be installed and bumpers put at the end of the storage shed, which is about 15 feet above the ground, he said. None of the procedures will affect the public portion of the track since the accident involved the section only accessible to employees, Parker said. However, the rest of the ride is being routinely re-examined, he said.

He predicted it would be reopened by Friday or Saturday.

Astroworld officials said employees were testing a new four-car train being added in anticipation of a large number of passengers from a crowd which had attended a rock concert in the park.

When employees pushed the new train from the shed to the ride's starting point a short distance away, Parker said, someone forgot to replace the transfer track that guides the train onto the roller coaster.

In addition, he said, an employee helping push the train out of the shed left an 18-inch board resting atop a nearby manual brake switch, deactivating the switch. Parker refused to specify the number or identify of the errant employees. The mistakes weren't noticed until the train started up and coasted out of control at 10 mph back through the shed.

Frank Wamble Jr., 22, of Deer Park, was trapped under one of the two cars that crashed to the ground and killed. The injured were also riding in the front two cars. The rear cars were left suspended from the edge of the track.

Parker said an elevated control platform will be put next to the transfer track so a worker can monitor that position at all times. If the worker fails to detect a problem, Parker said, an electrical eye and a flashing beacon light being installed will be set off if the track is not in the right position.

The manual brake switch will be replaced with magnetic switches, which cannot be overridden by hand, he said. And, an additional braking system will be installed between the transfer track and storage shed.

Optometrist moves here to set up new practice

By LINDA CAUDLE

"I feel like Hereford will be a good place to start my own practice. Everyone has been so friendly and pleasant, and it seems like a good size town for getting involved in the community," states Dr. Harold Brigrance, who will soon open an optometry office in Sugarland Mall.

"I'm doing all the design and construction work myself, and I hope to open the office around the second week of August," he adds.
Dr. Brigrance's office will be located just inside the main entrance to the mall on the west side, next door to Sweetbriar.

The young optometrist received his doctor of optometry from the University of Houston College of Optometry in May and his bachelor of science degree from the same school in 1982. He has also attended the University of Kansas Pharmacy School and did undergraduate work there and at the University of Fort Hays.

Brigrance is a native of Missouri, and because his father was in the military, he lived in a number of places while growing up, mainly in Kansas and Germany, and also in Florida and Texas. He graduated from high school in Junction City, Kan., and served in the military himself for three years.

While at the University of Houston, he was active in student affairs, receiving the Gold Key Award upon graduation. This award is bestowed upon outstanding optometry students in the top 10 percent of the graduating class for both academic achievements and participation in student activities and organizations.

He was a member and officer of Phi Theta Epsilon and he received five letters of merit for organizational and committee work from the American Optometric Student Association and a letter of merit from the American Optometric Association for work as National Sports Vision Liaison.

An active participant in a variety of sports, including racquetball, basketball, football, softball, and cross country, he served as sports vision chairperson at the university for two years, and was responsible to the school for the latest in protective eyewear, hand-eye coordination exercises for participants in sports activities, and other new developments.
He was a member of the student chapter of Sports Vision and constructed a showcase of protective eyewear which became a part of the permanent display in the lobby of the College of Optometry. Included in the exhibit were eyewear for activities such as skiing, scuba diving, racquetball, and field hockey.

"I think it is very important to make people aware of possible eye injury during sporting events and to educate them about the risks of not wearing protective eyewear, especially in racquet-type sports," notes Brigrance.

He served as coach, manager, and player for the Oglaucoma Sooners, an intramural team at the College of Optometry. He was also a contributing writer for the college's newspaper and had one article reprinted in the Texas Optometry Association Journal. He attended one convention of the American Optometric Association in Dallas.

Brigrance plans to stay active in sports activities and already has plans to instruct a men's flexibility and conditioning class at the Academy of Dance starting in September. Having done similar work in Houston, he says, "I think it will be a good way to meet people." He has been a runner for seven or eight years, running in six marathons and about thirty 10K races.

He would also like to become involved in other outside activities, and when he has time, he would like to visit school nurses, elementary school classrooms, and community civic groups, presenting slide shows and giving talks on vision and eye health.

Brigrance held a number of part-time jobs while in school, from roofing to moving furniture and working as a security guard. He was also employed by four different optometrists in the Houston area and has visited in a number of other optometry offices to get a feel for the general operations and gain experience which will be valuable in setting up his own practice.

"These experiences have given me a good practical background, which, in addition to my education, will enable me to provide high quality optometric care," he comments.

Ann Landers Runaways please call

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several years ago a good friend of mine disappeared from the face of the earth. Authorities suspected foul play but they couldn't produce any evidence and have long since written the case off. I have always had the feeling that Michael is alive somewhere.

Yesterday I received another heartbreaking phone call from Michael's mother asking once again if I had heard anything.

If Michael and the thousands of adults who disappear every year had any idea of the anguish and grief they are causing their family and friends, I believe they would come out of hiding.

Ann, I know millions of people read your column every day. Will you please print this letter? If just one Michael or Mary calls home collect and lets someone know he or she is alive, it would be a marvelous thing that you did. There are agencies to help find runaway kids, but nothing for grown-ups. Sign me—Moon In Massachusetts.

DEAR MOON: Here's your letter. I hope and pray it will move some runaways to pick up the phone and say, "Sorry it took me so long, but I want you to know I am okay." Such a call would be the greatest gift you could bestow on someone close to you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Over the years I have disagreed with some of your answers, but I have never felt compelled to write to you. Today I must speak out. This letter was prompted by "Future Statistic in Saginaw." At issue is the husband who gets drunk at parties and insists on driving home. I firmly believe that phoning the police to alert them to a drunk driver is a viable solution. The argument that "men get mad as hell if they have to pay a fine and their insurance rates go up" leaves me cold.

I'd like to sit in your seat for a minute and give some advice. Thank you. If your husband has a tendency to get drunk when he is out and insists on driving home, carry two dimes. With the first dime, call a cab. With the second, call the police and get this guy off the road before he makes you a widow and kills a few innocent people.

Thanks for the chance to speak my piece, Ann. Just for the record: I have been convicted of six drinking-and-driving charges. Three years ago I voluntarily signed myself into a clinic that sobers people up and very often keeps them that way for life. It was the best thing that ever happened to me. I haven't had a drop since.—R.S. In Campbell, N.Y.

DEAR R.S.: Thanks for a good letter and a great plug for the dry-out hospitals. Many of them do a terrific job. P.S.: So does Alcoholics Anonymous—and it's cheaper.

DEAR READERS: Here is the best bit of philosophy I have read in a very long time. Sorry I can't tell you who said it, but it's one of those rare gems that everyone will identify with:

"It takes two people to ruin a perfectly good day. First a person who says something downright nasty about you, and second, a dear 'friend' who makes sure you hear about it immediately."

THE EASY HANDLE
By Bob Wear

Everything has two handles, according to some observations; one of these handles is the easy one and the other the difficult one. If it is necessary that we take hold of something, it is better to pick it up by the easy handle. Of course, this is just another way of being aware of the fact that we do have a choice about how we deal with living; and we do have a choice.

The secret, and it does seem to be a "secret," in view of the difficulties experienced by most of us; is in "wise management." This includes making wise choices, being cautious, being frugal, taking good care of ourselves and what we have, and keeping the loose ends gathered up.

It includes doing only what is best for us, with the view that we will thus be able to do the most and the best we can to help those about whom we care. We will leave the criticism and the fault-finding to those who delight in such actions. We will be positive in our responses to what others say and do, and to the happenings and circumstances with which we may be concerned.

It is true that we cannot control what others say and do, and some of the happenings and circumstances which may touch and have some effect upon us. The difficult handle is in reacting to these things, whether they are desirable or undesirable. "The easy handle" is in our positive response. In reaction, we will be letting the happenings control us. The better way, the easy handle of "positive response," keeps us in control of ourselves.

Living is a continuing challenge, and this can become a burden too heavy; however, it need not be so. We do have the power and the responsibility to meet this continuing challenge victoriously. We can do this.

As we go about our daily living, we must be just as wise as we can be in how we deal with the things which concern us. When we take hold of something, we will do better if we take "The easy handle."

Kuhn backers surface at Hall

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP
Special Correspondent
COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Jocko Conlan said he'd like to buy a half-page space in all the nation's major newspapers for a eulogy to baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"Integrity — you can't buy integrity — or genuine love for the game," said the colorful 83-year-old former umpire, whose career reached back to the reign of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

George Kell found it hard to believe that club owners would want to replace a man who has presided over the game's phenomenal growth.

Duke Snider said he thought it would be hard to find a man as capable as the present commissioner and Bill Terry expressed the opinion that Kuhn, with a shaky start, had grown in his 14 years in office and should be more qualified than ever to hold the job.

A strong "Don't Dump Bowie" movement surfaced during the Hall of Fame induction ceremonies here over the weekend — either spontaneously or by design — and increased the uncertainty of the scheduled changing of the guard this week in Boston.

"What they are doing to this man is terrible," said the stocky, outspoken Conlan, who delivered the most impassioned plea at the exclusive Hall of Fame dinner Sunday night.

"Bowie Kuhn is the best commissioner we've ever had and I've served under them all. He is smart. He is honest. He has a great feel for the game dating back to when he was scoreboard boy at Griffith Stadium in Washington."

The Kuhn accolades may have fallen on the deaf ears of that militant segment of owners determined to put a new man in the office. A screening committee is supposed to present names of prospective successors at the Boston meetings.

Kuhn's second seven-year contract expires Aug. 12 and he technically already has been fired, failing to win enough votes for reelection.

Word spreading through the baseball world is that no strong, viable and acceptable candidate has been produced and baseball may face a period of headlessness until the fragmented owners, all protecting varied private interests, can reach accord.

Kuhn has insisted he will not serve as an interim commissioner. But he has allowed reports to circulate that he wouldn't be averse to a shorter term — possibly two or three years.

This has raised conjecture in many knowledgeable quarters that the commissioner might escape the fall of the axe, if only briefly.

Kuhn's fate appears in the hands of influential St. Louis Cardinal owner Augie Busch, said to control part of the National League voting bloc that axed Bowie in the first place.

"I've written a lot of letters to Busch," said former Commissioner A.B. (Happy) Chandler, one of Kuhn's most strident boosters. "He hasn't answered a one. I'm not sure he's reading my mail."

Taylor reports for tilt

Former Hereford Whiteface grid standout Brian Taylor joined 21 other members of the West Squad in reporting Sunday for workouts for Friday's Annual Greenbelt Bowl Football Classic. Taylor, a first-team District 3-5A All-District performer at wide receiver last season, will be under the tutelage of former HHS assistant Rodney Murphey, now coach at McMurray Coolege.

The players were slated for two-a-day workouts through Thursday in preparation for the game, which begins at 8 p.m. Friday at Childress' Fair Park Stadium.

Taylor, who played at 170 pounds for HHS, was also named to the Amarillo Globe-News' Golden Spread Super Team following a banner year for the Herd in 1982. He will be remembered for years for two spectacular catches in the waning moments of the HHS-Plainview game last fall, giving the Whitefaces a 21-14 upset victory over the previously undefeated Bulldogs.

With Hereford trailing 14-13, Taylor grabbed a 48-yard touchdown strike from quarterback Charles McDowell for a score on a 4th-and-11 play. He also made a diving catch of a McDowell aerial in the corner of the endzone for the two-point conversion following.

The 22 players for each Greenbelt Bowl squad met Sunday for a team meeting and short practice session.

The East leads the series, which began in 1949, 17-14-2. The West, however, has won the last five games, including a 16-10 decision last year.

Win twice over weekend

Local all-stars still undefeated

Hereford's 13 year-old Babe Ruth All Stars took two giant steps toward the Babe Ruth World Series over the weekend, picking up a pair of victories at the Babe Ruth Sectional Tournament in Durant, Okla., to remain undefeated in the double-elimination event.

Hereford blasted Sooner State champion Miami 11-1

Saturday behind the pitching of Tim Long and a two-hit performance by Marcus Brown. Long limited Miami to three hits in going the distance, while Brown collected a double and a single to lead the local stars at the plate.

Hereford continued its winning ways Sunday with a 6-3 win over the South Texas State Champions from Eagle Pass. James Hernandez went seven innings, allowing just three hits to gain the victory, while Mike Phibbs went 3-for-3 at the plate to lead the local attack.

Hereford is slated to play the Arkansas State Champions at 8 p.m. tonight in a winners' bracket final game. Arkansas defeated host Durant 15-10 in the first round, and then beat New Orleans 4-1 to advance to the winners' bracket finale.

The winner of the sectional tournament will advance to the Babe Ruth World Series, which will be held Aug. 13-20 in Niles, Mich.

Who will be commissioner?

Question to dominate meeting

By JOHN NELSON AP
Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The first item on the agenda for this summer's annual meeting of baseball owners is the question of who will succeed Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

It might as well be the only item on the agenda.

"Everything is being held hostage to the commissioner question," says Oakland A's owner Roy Eisenhardt. "Until that's resolved, nobody is going to give any attention to other matters."

These summer meetings, coming one year after the fate of Kuhn's re-election bid more or less was resolved, could represent the commissioner's final chance to succeed himself.

Baseball's owners met in San Diego last summer, but when it became clear that Kuhn could not gain the necessary three-quarters majority for re-election, his supporters put off a vote until Nov. 1.

That vote finally came in Chicago. There were three dissenting votes in the 14-member American League and five no-votes in the 12-member National League. Kuhn had fallen two votes short in the NL.

The possibility still remains, however, that the owners could vote on Kuhn one more time during the summer meetings this Wednesday and Thursday in Boston.

Kuhn was quoted Monday as saying Baseball's Executive Council has worked out a procedure for him to continue in his job, but he refused to predict an actual vote would keep him there. There also were conflicting reports Monday night that a secret vote already had been taken on the issue.

"I have discussed the possibility with the Council," Kuhn was quoted as saying in today's New York Times. "But there has been no resolution of it, and I want to stop there in mentioning it."

ABC Sports quoted an unidentified owner as saying that a secret vote already was taken to retain the commissioner. But RKO Sports quoted Kuhn supporter Jerry Reinsdorf, chairman of the board of the Chicago White Sox and a member of the Council, as saying no vote had been taken.

"There's no procedure for voting him out of office," Eisenhardt said. "There's only a procedure for electing and re-electing a commissioner. There's no rule saying that a commissioner, having failed in re-election in that one meeting we had, is no longer eligible to be re-elected."

Even Kuhn's most ardent supporters, however, admit the chances are slim at this point that Kuhn will succeed himself.

"He has the same support he had, but the opposition is also the same," San Diego Padres President Ballard Smith said.

Last November, the telling no-votes in the National League came from August Busch Jr. of the St. Louis Cardinals, Nelson Doubleday of the New York Mets, John McMullen of the Houston Astros, Ted Turner of the Atlanta Braves and James R. Williams of the Cincinnati Reds.

Girls play in weekend affair

Hereford's Girls Softball League All-Stars participated in an all-star tournament in Clovis last Saturday, with the local "B" team finishing third in the event.

After losing to Clovis "B" 20-1 in their first game, Hereford's "B" team came back to squeeze by Muleshoe 12-9 and then beat the Hereford "A" team 11-4. Clovis "B" then took a 12-0 decision in the third-place battle.

Clovis "A" won the tournament with an 8-7 victory over their "B" team, going undefeated in the process.

Hereford's "A" team began the tournament with a 21-18 win over Muleshoe before losing to Clovis "A" 21-1 and dropping the 11-4 decision to the local "B" team.

Local league president Suzanne Duvall said the girls "really enjoyed themselves at the tourney, and gained a lot of valuable experience."

All the girls received medals for participating, while Hereford's Shantel Cornelius won the Sportsmanship Award.

Duvall said that Hereford will host the tournament next year. She also said that the girls "had a lot of support," with a caravan following the teams to Clovis for the day-long tournament Saturday.

The two local teams were composed of girls ages 9-12 who played in the local Kids, Inc. league this summer.

Tickets go on sale

DALLAS (AP) — Tickets went on sale Monday for the 1984 Cotton Bowl Classic, the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association said.

The annual college football classic will be played here Jan. 2 instead of the traditional New Years Day. Jan. 1 falls on a Sunday in 1984 and would conflict with professional football games.

This Saturday

Dalhart's 5,000-meter run set

DALHART — The Sixth Annual Empty Saddle 5000 Meter Run will be held at 7 a.m., Saturday, Aug. 6 beginning in front of the Dalhart High School Gym, announced Joe Nisbett, Run Chairman. Entry fee is $6.

This year's run will be co-sponsored by the Citizens State Bank and the Dalhart Area Chamber of Commerce, according to David Partlow, Chamber Manager.

Entries will be accepted in person at White-Nisbett Agency, 309 Denrock, Dalhart, on weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mail entries should be sent to Box 829, Dalhart, Texas 79022. Checks are to be made out to the Empty Saddle Run. The deadline for mailed entries is Aug. 4. Contestants are to pick up race packets at the Dalhart High School Gym from 6:30-8:30 p.m., Friday August 5, or 6-6:40 a.m. the day of the race. There will be shower facilities but contestants are asked to bring their own towels.

The race is broken up into age divisions with the following holding records in their respective divisions:

MEN—Age 14 and under—Craig Lechner, Dalhart, (time 19:43); 15-19 Bruce Washburn, Tucumcari, N.M., (15:39); 20-29 George Chavez, Tucumcari, N.M., (16:07); 30-39-Louis Allred, Pampa, Texas (17:13); 40-49-Léo L. Karlin, Borger, Texas (18:33); 50-over-Dick Knight, Dallas, Texas (21:57).

WOMEN: Ages 14-under—Janelle Corbyn, Conrad, California (32:29); 15-19-Suzanne Murphy, Dalhart, (22:14); 20-29-Caylene Caddell, Lubbock, Texas, (22:06); 30-over, Caylene Caddell, Lubbock, Texas, (20:25).

Trophies or medals will be awarded to the first three finishers in each division. Empty Saddle T-Shirts will be given to each contestant. For more information call Nisbett at 249-5594, or Partlow at 249-5646. Both are area code 806 numbers.

Tequila industry wants to go upscale

TEQUILA, Mexico (AP) — The folks who produce a potent drink from the succulent juice of a desert cactus are trying to do something about their image.

Tequila is suffering from an identity crisis.

"We have only ourselves to blame," said J. Ramon Yanez Mutio, director of the Tequila Industry Regional Chamber of Commerce. "We're almost ready to start an institutional campaign to dignify tequila."

Tequila producers say their mighty mash has been maligned by tales of lost souls who quaff the stuff straight with lemon and salt on the side — and wake up the next morning wishing they hadn't.

That image is too macho, they say, because tequila is a sophisticated beverage.

"We're not in that era of the macho Mexican anymore," said Roberto Rosales, production chief at the Cuervo distillery in this central Mexican town of 25,000. "We're almost on a level with a brandy."

Mexico consumes 6.3 million gallons annually, the United States 5 million gallons and the rest of the world 1.3 million gallons, Yanez Mutio said. He said growth that took off in the 1960s with the expansion of the U.S. export market is continuing, "but only a little."

Tequila distillers already have started individual campaigns to sell their product to a more sophisticated market.

An advertisement for Sauza's top-of-the-line Commemorative tequila shows a man in coat and tie savoring his drink in front of an ornately carved wooden bar well stocked with competitive imported whiskeys and liquors.

Competitor Jose Cuervo promotes a mixed drink called the "Vampire" with tequila, the popular "sangrita" chili-based accompaniment, orange juice, salt and lime.

Tequila, located 35 miles west of Guadalajara and 360 miles northwest of Mexico City, has the largest concentration of tequila distilleries anywhere. There are at least 13. But no one is certain if the town gave the name to the drink or if it was the other way around.

Tequila is, after all, the stuff of which legends are made.

One legend has it that centuries ago Indians saw a lightning bolt strike a blue agave cactus, split it open and cook it to form a sugary liquid. They sampled the liquid and found it to be a tasty liquor.

Modern distilling methods were not learned until after the arrival of the Spanish colonizers in the 16th century.

A mural at the Sauza distillery, which along with Cuervo is a founder and a giant of the industry, shows the history of tequila starting with the lightning bolt. It ends with a scene of outdoor revelry that comes close to an orgy.

Diana Kennedy in her encyclopedic "The Cuisines of Mexico" writes that tequila was not distilled until the middle of the 18th century.

Most regions of Mexico have their distinctive liquors. The best known other than tequila is mezcal from the southern state of Oaxaca, which comes with a worm at the bottom of the bottle. Tradition has it that by the time you finish the bottle you don't care if you eat the worm.

By government regulation, tequila can be distilled only in the Jalisco region surrounding Tequila, from the blue agave cactus grown there.

The cactus has distinctive, spear-like leaves that jut up in the shape of a crown. Fields of it flank the roads leading to Tequila.

Rosales said the blue agave takes nine to 12 years to reach maturity. The cactus changes its character if grown elsewhere and cannot be used to make tequila, Rosales said.

All-Around Champ expected All-Girl Rodeo set soon soon in Hereford

The current 1983 All-Around Cowgirl Betty Gayle Cooper will be just one of many women to compete at the 1983 annual All Girls Rodeo, Aug. 11, 12 and 13.

The event is sanctioned by the Women's Professional Rodeo Association, (WPRA).

Betty Gayle Cooper was the 1983 WPRA All Around Champion, 1982 WPRA Goat Tying Champion and 1982 WPRA Calf Roping Champion.

It is no accident that she is one of the most outstanding contestants in timed events in the association today. She comes from a long line of rodeo people beginning with her parents who met at a college rodeo.

Cooper's brother, Roy, has been PRCA World Champion Calf Roper seven times, and is acclaimed the greatest roper of all time. Brother Clay rodeoed, cousin Jimmie is a past PRCA All Around Champion, Father Tuffy is one of the great ropers in rodeo history.

Cooper says her father taught her that both mental and physical preparation is important, and winning is really a state of mind. She tries to rope several calves every day, and believes in going over and over an event in her mind before she competes.

Although she is very competent in all of the roping events, it is calf roping that motivates her the most, as it is 'sort of a family affair.' Starting out at the age of four, Cooper grew up roping.

Interested not only in arena competition, Cooper serves as WPRA Calf Roping Director where she works diligently for more all girl events and larger purses. An example of the discrepancy in earnings for women, Cooper's earnings for 1982 were only one-tenth of what cowboys earn in the same events. When she is finished with active competition, she would like to look toward a job in PR promoting women's rodeo.

Betty Gayle Cooper

A sweet but slightly acrid smell from the fermentation process pervades the distilleries. Both Cuervo and Sauza date back to 1800, and despite expansions they have retained their colonial-style, white adobe walls in an effort to keep their historical flavor.

The softened cactus hearts are taken to mills and cut into pieces to make it easier for the juices to be extracted. The sugar and water mixture is homogenized and fermented in vats before it is distilled.

Conference on domestic violence set Saturday

Rural health professionals and community officials from the Permian Basin to the Panhandle have been invited to participate in a conference on Domestic Violence and Rural Texas Saturday at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC) in Lubbock.

The conference is one of six regional meetings sponsored by the Texas Rural Health Field Services Program in coordination with the Texas Council on Family Violence. Funding is provided by the Hogg Foundation for Mental Health.

Co-sponsors for the Lubbock meeting for the TTUHSC School of Nursing and Women's Protective Services, Inc.

"Domestic violence is a serious, yet often neglected mental health problem," said Teresa Edwards, local conference coordinator. "A scarcity of rural health professionals and rural health providers with limited skills in rendering services to victims of domestic violence compounds the problem."

"This conference is designed to answer questions about domestic violence and to provide rural health providers with basic skills to identify domestic violence victims, use existing services and resources, coordinate existing services and local networks," Edwards said.

The conference will feature an overview by Karen Mountain, R.N., M.S.N., project coordinator, RTDVPHEP, Austin. Wes Wallace, M.D., director, Emergency Medical Services, Austin, will discuss identification and intervention with victims.

Statewide resources for dealing with child abuse, spouse abuse and elder abuse will be described by representatives of the Department of Human Resources Lubbock office and the Texas Council of Family Violence, Dallas.

Afternoon sessions of the conference will be workshops on topics including diagnosis and intervention in child abuse; community assessment and funding; counseling techniques for crisis intervention, working with the abuser; the referral process, documentation and charting and empathizing with the victim. Workshop sessions will be led by local health and service organization personnel.

"The conference plan is to introduce concepts and resources to people from throughout the region," Edwards said. "The content will not solve every problem which will arise, but will help identify area resources which can help."

Conference registration will be at 8:30 a.m. Saturday in the fifth floor lobby of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center Building, 4th Street and Indiana Avenue, Lubbock. Conference sessions will begin at 9 a.m.

For information, contact Joe Love Nelson, executive director, Women's Protective Services, (806)799-7033, or Teresa Edwards at (806)742-2254 or (806)792-1043.

PORT JEFFERSON, N.Y. — In a hand-made schooner with a one-man crew, Greg Brazier plies the coastal sea twice daily on the Phoenix, a 70-hk60t that has brought mercantile sailing to Long Island Sound for the first time in 40 years.

The steel-hulled ship, the flagship of Brazier's fledgling Atlantic Packet Lines, has carried cargoes ranging from woodburning stoves to cauliflower between Connecticut and Long Island, even though bad weather cost 15 working days last winter.

"I love what I am doing, but it's never going to make me a millionaire," said the 37-year-old Brazier, who built the two-masted Phoenix in his backyard in suburban Islip, N.Y. "Hopefully, by the end of the summer, I will be in the black."

Richard Hofmiller, a Milford, Conn., businessman who uses the Phoenix to ship parts to a company on Long Island, said the two-hour crossing is "very convenient."

"The same merchandise by truck would take 3½ hours or more and would be more expensive," Hofmiller said. "A bridge would be ideal, but this is the next best thing."

That is Brazier's sales pitch: the schooner can carry cargo more quickly and more cheaply across the 15-mile wide sound than trucking it 120 miles around the sea passage, which extends east from New York City for 190 miles, separating Long Island from Connecticut.

Brazier has always loved risk sports, including surfing, motorcycling and hang gliding, and frequently built his own machines professionally.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Calories in fish

DEAR DR. LAMB - We have discovered something new at our house to cut down on calories - fish. We need to watch our calories and since fish are low in calories but still provide the same protein you get in meat, we are making fish a regular habit around here. I've heard that some fish contain more calories than others. I wondered if that is true and if it's really important. Aren't fish low-fat foods? Isn't that the reason they contain so few calories? We would appreciate any tips you have about using fish to control calories. I know it is good to help prevent heart disease but what we want to do is cut down on calories. If we control our weight maybe we won't have heart disease either.

DEAR READER - Yes, fish is a good food that provides complete protein and an opportunity to cut down on calories. One of the main reasons raw fish are low in calories is that about 80 percent of their lean edible meat is water. Incidentally, that is why lean raw beef is low in calories, too. It is about 73 percent water by weight.

Some fish are also very low in fat and that makes them even lower in calories. Codfish, flounder and red snapper are examples. Fish that contain more fat, such as canned salmon, may contain twice as many calories per ounce. Use the tables in Fish and Shellfish As Health Foods, Health Letter 11-12, which I am sending you, to determine which are the lowest calorie fish and shellfish. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

How you prepare fish is important. If you fry it, particularly if you use a batter, it will contain a lot of calories. That is often a problem in restaurants. The fish may be mostly batter soaked in grease. Not only is it an insult to the palate but it is a dietary disaster in terms of calories.

Broiling is fine. But don't add a lot of fat such as butter in the process. Broiled fish in restaurants often swim in butter. Ugh. Steaming and poaching are good. Poaching in wine gives a good flavor and the cooking eliminates the alcohol. This is commonly done in Europe but not so commonly in the United States.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I can't understand why they allow smoking in hospitals if a hospital is a place of health. When I visited my mom in the hospital she was smoking while she had pains in her stomach. And I saw a lot of others there with illnesses but puffing away.

I can't believe this could go on when they are always telling us smoking is bad for us. Maybe I can't understand it because I don't smoke. I'd appreciate your comments.

DEAR READER - Hospitals are for the community and that means people. And people smoke. I do agree with you. If I had my way people would not smoke in hospitals, doctors' offices or in any public place.

A major portion of people's illnesses are aggravated or even caused by tobacco and a close second cause is alcohol. Cigarette smoking is bad for people who have digestive disorders that cause pain in the stomach. If the public really got behind stopping smoking in public places, including hospitals, it would stop. 'Iron' that steak!

DEAR READERS - Today's Pointer round-up includes a new use for an old iron, a nifty packing tip and a cookie plumper - plus much more. Enjoy! - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - My husband likes his steaks cooked done - with a capital D! I had wanted to buy a steak press for a long time, but it always slipped my mind. Then last night, while I was cooking a steak for him, I thought of using the old worn-out iron I'd been meaning to throw away. It works perfectly. I don't have to cook the steak so long that it gets tough, but with the extra weight, it cooks thoroughly. The iron is easy to wash off and doesn't look out of place in my cupboard. One of these days I'll even remove the cord! Thanks for all the wonderful Pointers: we women are an ingenious lot, aren't we? - S.G.T.

DEAR S.G.T. - We sure are - but then, so are the many men who read, and write to, this column. Just lots of clever people out there! - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - On your next trip, carefully fold your scarves between the sheets of a thin magazine. This takes up very little space in your luggage, but ties, ribbons and scarves all arrive ready to wear. - OLGA

DEAR POLLY - My cookies used to flatten out too much when I baked them. Then I switched from using butter or margarine to white vegetable shortening. The shortening made cookies that taste very good and didn't flatten out. - FLORINE

DEAR POLLY - To make a nice, clean cut through meringue on a pie, butter the knife before cutting. Vary cottage cheese deliciously by adding a tablespoon of finely chopped pickle, cucumber, olives or chives to each cup of cheese. - MRS. R.R.

DEAR POLLY - Here's my pet peeve. I wish manufacturers would attach tabs with sizes inside jeans and men's trousers, the way they do with women's garments. It's impossible to know what sizes they are after they've been put away for a while. You really need that information when sorting garments for a garage sale, or when giving them away. - BETTY

Rice grads 'hot' about African trip

HOUSTON (AP) - Flyers from the Rice University Alumni Association offer adventure in South Africa - but does not note that country's policy of total racial segregation.

"We'll do Johannesburg, the Blue Train, Capetown, diamond and gold mines; beautiful flowers in season; Zululand; animals at Mala-Mala, and Durban."

But the flyer failed to mention that under South Africa's racially segregated government, black alumni might not be so welcome.

Alumni Association officials acknowledge as much, and at least one outraged black alumna and two other former students have taken vocal exception to next year's planned trip.

"I cannot imagine how anyone could cruise merrily about the countryside, tossing money into the treasury of the only regime left on Earth which officially declares the vast majority of its people to be non-citizens," alumna Glenn Cooper of Chicago wrote the Alumni Association.

Bari Watkins, a 1969 Rice graduate who until last week was working at Northwestern University in Chicago, wrote that a similar trip planned by Northwestern two years ago drew such protest from students, faculty and alumni that the university had to back out.

"To put it mildly, all hell broke loose," she said. Kathryn Duffie, executive director of the Rice Alumni Association, acknowledged officials "knew we were going to stir up some people who won't be happy." But she said alumni reaction has been overwhelmingly favorable.

"We're not going for any political reasons," she said. "We're simply doing this as an educational experience."

Of 23,500 former students polled by the association last year, Ms. Duffie said, 141 expressed interest in the 18-day, $4,000 trip in September and October 1984.

Ms. Duffie said the association's travel committee in January approved the trip and will begin signing up participants next January.

A Rice professor always makes such trips, adding an educational atmosphere. Biology professor Paul Harcombe, who has expressed interest in studying a flower which blooms only in that country, is scheduled to make the trip.

"He's going to lecture on the flowers and trees of South Africa," Ms. Duffie said.

Ship sails on research odyssey

By C.W. MIRANKER Associated Press Writer

ABOARD THE SAMUEL P. LEE (AP) - A ship brimming with high-tech electronic hardware has set sail on a $12 million pole-to-pole voyage of discovery to explore seabed geology and the energy and mineral potential beneath the Pacific.

The 208-foot Samuel P. Lee began the first leg of its trip Monday, leaving its home port of Redwood City near San Francisco, bound for Alaska.

The U.S. Geological Survey project, dubbed "Operation Deep Sweep," is expected to produce a wealth of information of interest to scientists, the petroleum industry and Pacific Basin countries that could profit from off-shore riches.

Its meandering itinerary will cover 40,000 miles and 13 research projects from the Chukchi Sea off Alaska to McMurdo Sound in Antarctica, from the Fiji Islands to Papua New Guinea. During the year-long voyage, more than 100 scientists will collect data and conduct experiments.

Alive with chirping electronic signals and thudding air guns aimed at the seabed - even in San Francisco Bay - the Lee tracks the ocean floor and its sub-bottom structures around the clock.

The sounds reflected back are recorded by thousands of microphones inside a 2-mile cable length known as a "seismic streamer" trailing the vessel 40 feet below the surface.

The crew also will fire more than 1,000 "sonobuoys" that parachute into the water, erect an antenna, fire sound at the sea floor and transmit the reflected sound back to the ship.

Fed into a computer, the sounds produce a profile of the seabed sediments and the rock strata below.

This arsenal of equipment will examine underwater earthquake faults near the Aleutian Islands and submarine volcanoes in the mid-Pacific.

The scientists also will try to gauge petroleum reserves of areas like the Bering and Chukchi seas and the Lord Howe Rise east of Australia, Vanuatu and the Solomons.

Funds for the $12 million project come largely from government agencies, but the Circum-Pacific Council for Energy and Mineral Resources hopes to underwrite the Antarctic portion of the voyage with contributions from industry.

The council, part of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, believes the seabed beneath Antarctic waters "will prove very valuable in the future," says its founder and chairman, Michel T. Halbouty.

Commercial exploration is barred by treaty in that area, but Halbouty, a Texas oil man and adviser to President Reagan, predicted that "somewhere (in that area), sometime, wells will be drilled. ... It will be productive in the future."

The largest jigsaw puzzle in the world measured 15 feet by ten feet and it contained over 10,000 pieces.

Home economists meet in Amarillo this week

COLLEGE STATION—The progressing image and future roles of home economists is the major theme as about 250 county Extension home economics agents are gathering in Amarillo for the annual meeting of the Texas Association of Extension Home Economists this week.

Featured speakers during the three-day program include Earle Younts, director of field services for the Cotton Board, Memphis, Tenn.; Dr. Zerle Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service; and Dr. Elizabeth Haley, dean of home economics at Texas Tech University.

In a special session open to the public, Susie Woodward, executive director of Images by Susie, Palo Alto, Calif., will make a presentation on "Progressing Images for Women." The session, which focuses on wardrobe coordination, cycles in clothing trends and image projection, is scheduled for 1-4 p.m. Wednesday.

Other speakers include Doug Manning, president of Insight Books of Hereford, who will speak on "People Need People," and Argen Draper, retired Deaf Smith County Agent, who will relate the "Heritage of Extension." Educational tours to the Amarillo Boys' Ranch and the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum, where the home economists may get a behind-the-scenes look at the textile department, are also part of the conference.

Six agents who have been elected to receive the Distinguished Service Award, highest award given by the National Association of Extension Home Economists, are to be recognized during ceremonies at the meeting, along with almost a dozen other award winners.

Association officers for 1983 include Toy Smith, Brazoria County, president; Jean Carlton, Dallas, 1st vice-president; Kathy Gist, Carson County, 2nd vice-president; Nancy Fuhrken, Lavaca County, secretary; Betty Duncan, Denton County, treasurer; Elinor Harvey, Gaines County, president-elect; and Irene Keating, Potter County, immediate past president.

Dr. Jennie C. Kitching, assistant director for home economics, will be in charge of the installation ceremony for new officers at the closing banquet session on Wednesday.

POLLY'S POINTERS Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY—While washing windows outside, I use one of those cheap wire hangers with the cardboard tube across the bottom for holding my roll of paper towels. Just unhook one side of the hanger from the cardboard tube, slip the paper towel roll over the tube and tuck the hanger back into place. I hang the hanger onto my ladder for easy access at all times.

Instead of trying to pour distilled water into my iron from those large plastic jugs, I pour the distilled water into a clean, empty dishsoap bottle (the kind with the pop-up squirt top). You can squirt the water into the iron without spilling.

Hamby attends annual convention in Dallas

Mary Hamby of 328 Avenue F, a freelance photographer and owner of Mary Hamby Photography, recently returned from the Professional Photographers of America annual convention in Dallas.

The event was attended by over 5,000 professional photographers and featured a combination of seminars and product displays.

Over 100 speakers were included on the various programs. Two of these were NASA photographic consultant Richard Underwood, who gave a tour of the first seven space shuttle missions through the eye of the camera, and Peter Dyer, a well-known photographer from London, England, who told about the approximately 500 weddings he photographs each year.

Face analysis and lighting techniques were other workshop topics.

Ms. Hamby's family-oriented business specializes in freelance (environmental) photography on location. She started the business last year and her children, James David, 19, Marie McIntosh, 18, Irene, 17, Anne, 15, Judy, 13, and Michelle, 10, are her business associates.

Irene, Judy, and Michelle accompanied their mother to Dallas to learn more about photography.

Ms. Hamby is a member of the Professional Photographers of America, Texas Professional Photographers Association Inc., Associated Photographers International, and several fine arts associations.

Fortunate rubble

Some of the finest carvings of antiquity survive today because the Persian capital of Persepolis was sacked in 331 B.C. A thousand years later, when Moslems occupied the ruins, they destroyed all sculpture they found because their faith forbade images—but missed those buried in the rubble. The carvings were finally dug up by archaeologists in the 20th century.

WT cheerleaders to host annual clinic

Cheerleaders at West Texas State University will host a clinic for cheerleaders at Panhandle area junior high schools and high schools on Saturday, Aug. 13.

Cheerleaders have been invited from 35 schools in the Texas Panhandle for the clinic which begins at 9 a.m. at the WTSU Activities Center. The clinic will continue until 5 p.m.

WTSU's 12 cheerleaders for the 1983-84 academic year will instruct clinic participants in cheers, sideline chants, pyramids, mini-trampoline jumps and dance routines to taped music, said

Faith McDonald, WTSU instructor in physical education.

Trophies will be awarded to outstanding squads, she said.

Participants may attend as a member of a cheerleading squad or as individuals. Cost of the clinic is $10 per person for up to five members in a squad and $5 for each additional person. Participants should register in advance by mail before Aug. 6 and may pay the day of the clinic. The cost includes lunch.

Sponsors also may attend and will not be charged.

The WTSU cheerleaders are sponsoring the clinic to raise funds for traveling expenses to out-of-town athletic games. McDonald said she plans to continue the clinic as an annual fund-raising event.

This is the first year for the WTSU cheerleading squad to include 12 students. The number of participants selected was raised last spring semester from eight.

WTSU cheerleaders will attend a cheerleading camp at Southern Methodist University at Dallas before they host the clinic.

The squad includes head cheerleader, Sharon Epps, sophomore accounting major from Plano; BeLinda Simmons, junior nursing major from Canyon; Tanya Sellers, sophomore elementary education major, Loop; Jill Pickens, Hereford freshman; Tracy Cravey, junior physical education major, Lubbock; and Shondale Seymour, freshman accounting major, Amarillo.

Others are Jeff Kennedy, freshman marketing major, Amarillo; John Teeters, junior accounting major, Lefors; Charlie Rigby, sophomore physical education major, Hale Center; Tim Keefer, freshman communication graphics major, Amarillo; Mark Kreid, freshman marketing major, Waco; and Cory Huey.

A mascot, who will wear a buffalo suit and perform with the cheerleaders during the year, will be selected after tryouts in August, McDonald said.

Additional information concerning the clinic may be obtained by calling the WTSU Activities Center.

Cummings earns Able Toastmaster award

Joe Don Cummings received the Able Toastmaster (ATM) award from Toastmasters International recently. He is the first member of Hereford Toastmasters Club No. 275 to receive this award.

Best speakers for the month of July in the local club included Roger Williams, Clark Andrews, John Faulkner, and Bill Devers.

James Self spoke at the area leadership conference in Tulsa on July 30. His topic was "Proper Evaluations."

Toastmasters meets at 6:30 a.m. each Thursday at the Thompson House Restaurant. All interested persons are welcome. For more information, contact Cummings at 364-0067 or Jerry Walsh at 364-3811.

Broadway, New York City's main thoroughfare, was nicknamed the "Great White Way" when the stretch between 14th and 26th streets was illuminated by electricity for the first time.
