WASHINGTON

By George Duran

Undercover

Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is regarded by many Washington political observers as one of the shrewdest operators in the national arena.

Quite a few folks are wondering what, if anything, he has up his sleeve in the way of personal ambitions.

Not being quite sure of the answer it would appear that some of his New Deal colleagues have become so politically suspicious they are trying to sidetrack him quietly. They probably will discover Jones as a man who takes a lot of sidetracking.

Direction of RFC has furnished Jones with a powerful agency with which to build up a national following if he wants one.

Not a day goes by but what his waiting room is crowded with men of affairs in their own communities trying to get a loan.

And when a man has a meritorious proposition that has been kicked around by the local examiner and the board of review, and then that proposition gets okayed by Jones in person, the applicant just naturally is apt to be grateful to the chairman.

As a publisher, banker, financier and real estate operator Jones knows all the angles of publicity and dealing with every type of business man.

Once inside Jones' office, a caller seldom has to spend much time in argument. A half-dozen penetrating questions usually make up the RFC chairman's mind. A loan is arranged or it isn't.

"Our great president is exerting every effort to bring about a recovery in this country, and it is the duty of the state and every city and town within it to augment the national plan with recovery programs of their own." Hunter said.

"To accomplish a recovery in Texas we must do two things. There must be a restoration of an easy available credit, and the retention for the people of Texas of the proceeds of the state's natural resources.

"In order to restore an easy available credit it is necessary that the unfair tax burden now resting on real estate be relieved. While real estate bears 77 per cent of the ad valorem tax burden it brings us but 15 per cent of our income. The other 85 per cent of

Four Persons Become Lost In Jungles

Cultured Quartet Gradually Revert Into Wild State Of Being

Noted for providing the ultimate in screen entertainment, Cecil B. DeMille scores another big hit with his latest Paramount picture, "Four Frightened People," which will play Friday and Saturday at the Ritz theater.

Story, acting, setting and direction is said to hold the audience spellbound with one eye-filling surprise after another.

From the time the four principals, two men and two women, escape from a Dutch steamer on which bubonic plague has broken out and start their journey to civilization through the Malay jungles, there is not a moment in the picture when interest wanes. Their gradual reversion to the primitive provides some highly novel situations.

Claudette Colbert is outstanding with one of the most colorful roles of her career, that of a prudish school teacher whom the two men consider in their way. When the jungle causes her to blossom into a wild, beautiful creature, the men start fighting over her.

Herbert Marshall and William Gargan give splendid performances as the marooned rubber chemist and newspaper correspondent who fight over Claudette's charms, while Mary Boland, in a deft comedy characterization, walks away with many of the honors of the picture. Leo Carrillo displayed splendid ability in the role of a half caste guide.

There are no Hollywood "sets" for these people to walk through, and the real jungles in which the picture was filmed are, themselves, cause for interest and amazement.

A good job of adaptation of the original novel by E. Arnot-Robertson is turned in by Bartlett Cormack and Lenore Coffee.

Creek, south of Coahoma, early in the evening. After the barbecue meal the evening was spent in visiting. The guests were: Misses Mildred Morgan, Inez Petalick, and Edith Wright, and Mr. and Mrs. Birkhead.

They're Afraid

Three of the quartet appearing in "Four Frightened People" appear above. Mary Boland and Claudette Colbert are seen hiding behind William Gargan. Four people with conflicting natures are lost in a tropical jungle. And culture wears off like a veneer.

McCoy Cast As Law-Enforcer

Western Film Luminary Enacts Characterization Of Texas Cowboy

Tim McCoy, the Western film star, whose own life has been fully as exciting as most of the heroic roles he brings to the screen, enacts the characterization of a law-enforcing Texas cowboy in his latest Columbia picture, "Fighting For Justice," due Friday at the Queen theater.

McCoy himself, who knows the olden West as few other living men do, is authority for the statement that "Fighting for Justice" brings back more of the authentic life of the border thirty years ago than one would find in dozens of average Western pictures.

High Drama Is Utilized For Medical Story

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy head the cast of "Men in White," new M-G-M production which comes today to the Ritz Theater. This marks the first time these two popular players have ever been cast opposite each other.

"Men in White" is based on this season's famous New York stage play of the same name by Sidney Kingsley. It is a story told in vivid strokes of life in a great modern hospital. Medical men in white are its heroes and its villains. The nobility of a superior profession is extolled in high drama.

Gable as the Doctor

Clark Gable, as Dr. Ferguson, a young interne, is ambitious to become a great surgeon like his mentor, Dr. Hochberg (Jean Hersholt). But he is also in love with Laura, a young heiress (Myrna Loy). The two, in the demanding business of surgery, do not go together.

A breach is inevitable, and in disappointment Gable enters into a liaison with Barbara, a nurse (Elizabeth Allan). As a result of this Barbara is forced to visit a "quack" for an illegal operation, which results finally in peritonitis. Dying, Barbara undergoes an operation which is a futile attempt to save her life—at the hands of the man she loves. Gable, with Hersholt's help, performs the operation while Myrna Loy, faint and trembling, stands agast as a witness. The play ends on a high, poignant note of promise and retribution.

Otto Kruger is prominently cast as Dr. Levine, thwarted, disillusioned medic. The part affords the gifted Kruger an opportunity to bring a vivid characterization to screen audiences.

C. Henry Gordon plays the "heavy" role of the doctor who comes to grips with Gable over the sick bed of a child patient. Although he is the senior doctor, Gable persists in his diagnosis of the case and saves the child's life as a result.

Henry B. Walthall portrays the role of the hospital's senior surgeon. Russell Hardie and Russell Hopton weave a secondary web of drama around the principal characters with their own lives and problems, of which the picture pre-

Rail Magnate Is Tried As Man Slayer

Actions Of Alex Stream Show Upper Strata On Society About Same

"Upper World," the Warner Bros. picture based on the smashing story on "how the other half lives," by the celebrated novelist and playwright, Ben Hecht, is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Ritz Theater on Thursday.

After contributing "Underworld" to the screen, Hecht decided to write a story about the other side of life with the revenge title. He has shown in this story that the two worlds are not so far separated as far as human characteristics are concerned and that adventure, philandering, bloodshed and crime are as likely to be found in high society as in the world of crooks and gangsters.

Warren William heads a strong case of talented players in the role of a multi-millionaire railway magnate who longs for the society of his beautiful wife, a part played by Mary Astor, who neglects him shamefully to foster her social career.

This neglect leads him into an affair with a burlesque show chorus girl, enacted by Ginger Rogers, which liaison culminates in a double murder with the millionaire being arrested for the crime.

Andy Devine is cast in the role of a comedy chauffeur and is said to lend a laughable touch to an otherwise thrilling drama. Dickie Moore plays the part of the son of the wealthy couple, neglected by his mother and humored by his father. Sidney Toler is the police officer, demoted through the efforts of the millionaire, to whom he later proves a nemesis.

Others in the cast include Henry O'Neill, J. Carroll Nash, Theodore Newton, Robert Barrat, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Robert Orvig, Frank Sheridan, John Qualis and Willard Robertson.

The picture is set in the colorful background of a palatial Long Island estate, with scene in a love nest and a burlesque theater. A yacht and an airplane also play important parts in some of the thrilling incidents of the picture.

Roy Del Ruth directed the production from the screen play by Ben Markson.

Crime Club Says Murder Mystery Is Year's Best

"Murder in Trinidad," selected by the Crime Club as one of the best mystery novels of the year, comes to the Queen Theater on Wednesday and Thursday as a thrilling motion picture. The novel, written by John Vandercook, has met with great popularity because of its intense and unusual mystery. The screen play, adapted to the screen by Seton I. Miller, is reported to be equally absorbing and exciting.

The film serves to introduce a new and unusual type of detective, who to all appearances is slow moving, awkward and outwardly stupid, but in reality is a keen-minded, alert individual. It is this detective who is confronted with the task of cleaning up a group of diamond smugglers and solving three murders.

The trail he has picked up leads him to the Carol Swamps, treacherous with quicksand, inaccessible to man and infested with man-eating crocodiles. It is in this hell-hole where man has never been known to set foot before that the detective finds the astonishing evidence that leads to the capture and conviction of the murderer.

Louis King directed the film, which was produced by Sol M. Wurtzel.

sents swift, brief glimpses.

A Reckless Interne

Wallace Ford, gay and cocksure as a reckless young interne, cavorts through the scenes of "Men in White" usually arrayed in the best clothing of his fellows, borrowed for a careless evening's entertainment. He portrays "the other kind" of surgeon.

Samuel S. Hinds, Frank Puglia, Leo Chasler and Donald Douglas are seen in minor roles.

The picture was directed by Richard Boleslavsky of "Rhapsody and the Express" fame.

Scoop Hound

Lee Tracy, again playing the part of a star reporter, his news continuously sending big stories before a rival correspondent can get the dope, makes another hit in "I'll Tell the World." His shrewd work on a perplexing assignment wins for him a royal wife, Gloria Stuart.

She Caused It

Mary Astor, as the wife of Alex Stream (Warren William), is so engrossed in social activities that she cannot find time to give her husband companionship and love he longs for. As a result he is infatuated by a burlesque queen, plays the fool by writing letters and pulls a murder when faced by extortion. Such is the backbone of "The Upper World," Thursday's Ritz feature.

Tracy In Role Of Sharp News Man Of World

Globe Trotting Correspondent Gets Scoops From Canada To Equator

From the frozen wilds of northern Canada to ancient hotels and narrow streets of continental European villages is a far cry, but the scenes of "I'll Tell the World," the Universal picture starring Lee Tracy encompasses all these things. The main reason for all variety of scenery is that Tracy plays the role of a world-wide newsgathering agency.

The picture, with Gloria Stuart and Roger Pryor heading the supporting cast, will be seen at the Ritz theater next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The picture opens with Tracy racing from New York City to Looon Lake Canada, in an airplane, to get the story of the crash of a disabled dirigible. Immediately after successfully completing this assignment, has a second which takes him to a New York steamship pier, thence to Europe on the Berengaria, and from there to two small communities in the heart of Europe.

Quaint picturesqueness is supplied by an encounter with a roving band of gypsies and street scenes in the tiny town of Latvian, where a near-revolution occurs.

The production was directed by Edward Sedgwick and includes such prominent players as Onslow Stevens, Herman Bing, Lawrence Grant, Alec B. Francis, Hugh E. Field and Dorothy Granger.

Script Calls For Buck Jones To Crash Plane And Auto And This He Does Without Double's Aid

"Now in the script, Buck Jones crash a racing car and smash a plane," were the explanatory words of Director George B. Seitz to Buck Jones as preparations were made on the Columbia lot for the filming of "The Thrill Hunter" Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Queen Theater.

"But I can fly a plane and I certainly know how to drive an auto," protested Buck.

"Makes no difference," was the reply, "in this story you're deaf, dumb and blind about both of them, so just forget everything you ever knew about either."

Buck did forget all he knew about either a plane or a fast racing car and the results are seen in the thrills and action of "The Thrill Hunter."

The story called for Buck to play the title role of a roaming cowboy whose main delight in life was in the narration of fantastic but thrilling tales of his fictitious exploits of flying for Chinese rebels and winning the Grand Prix for auto racing in Europe.

The westerner discovers that the stunt he has cooked up with him when he arrives in Hollywood and he is ordered to provide thrills and action in driving a racing car and flying a fast plane.

The results contain slightly more excitement than even busy Hollywood can endure. And Buck gives an excellent idea of just what a complete novice would do at the wheel of a racing car or behind the joystick of an airplane.

Buck's versatility stretches beyond the realm of bucking broncos. He has always been avidly interested in aviation a fascination that began when he served in the First Air Squadron during the World War.

Today the amazing Buck holds a first-class transport pilot's license, the highest rating in aviation. He owns and constantly flies his own plane which he generally uses for excursions into western country or even into less traveled air lanes of Mexico.

All of this background, together with a natural intuitive sense and interest about mechanics in general, Buck was forced to forget for his role in "The Thrill Hunter," and although he did it easily, it was not an easy task.

Dorothy Revier, after a lapse of several years, returns to the screen in the leading role opposite Jones. Others in the cast are Ed Le Saint, Arthur Rankin, Robert Ellis and Frank La Rue.

Howard County Singers To Meet In Ackerly Today

The singers of Dawson and Howard counties met at Sparenberg on the second Sunday in March and organized a Sunday Eve Singing convention, which will meet on each second Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, the place of meeting is to be selected by the convention at each meeting. The purpose of this convention is to create a better interest in Gospel singing, as the interest in this kind of singing has run very low in many communities. We know of no better way to get the people revived than a get-together singing.

The convention met at Shumake the second Sunday in April with a large crowd and good singing. The convention will meet with the Ackerly class the second Sunday in May in the town of Ackerly, located on Highway No. 8, between Lamesa and Big Spring. We especially extend to Martin county a hearty welcome to meet with us and take a part in this convention. A large crowd is expected from Dawson, Howard and Martin counties, everybody is cordially invited to come, bring your song books and take a part in the singing.

Respectfully,
J. L. GARRRETT, president

HILL RESIGNS M'CAMERY POST

Leonard Hill, head athletic coach at McCamey high school for the past year, tendered his resignation to the board of trustees of the McCamey Independent school district Wednesday, according to an announcement issued by Superintendent A. M. Blackman. Coach Hill was said to have made no statement as to his future plans.

Hill went to McCamey as assistant to Coach Clyde Parks in the fall of 1932, and upon Park's resignation last year, he was elected head coach. Hill served as assistant coach at Cleco for four years prior to his McCamey job.

Hill's resignation came as a complete surprise to football followers of McCamey, because with the return of 15 lettermen to the football squad next fall, he was expected to turn out the best team ever to represent the Badgers.

Although the department shed no tears when informed of the McCamey mentor's resignation, we do feel sorry for him. His loss will be no signal for mourning in this section of the district.

WILL MIDLAND BE RE-ADMITTED?

The question now arises as to whether Midland will be readmitted to Class A if they seek the higher bracket again. It is our understanding that several members of the committee would not favor elevating the Midlanders again. Personally, we would like to have them back in the circle.

The Robinsonites, one of the strongest aggregations in the Big Spring Softball league, can't "take it" in practice affairs. The newly organized Link team spotted the Grocerymen, 3 to 1, Thursday.

ATHLETES LOAF WHEN UNREWARDED

In this day when many pessimists decry the lack of ambition and application among youngsters, and coaches pity themselves because boy athletes of today are not willing to apply themselves to learning lessons in sport unless the incentive is right in front of them in the form of trips, worthy opposition etc., the experiences of some of our fellow citizens who took part in athletics in "the good old days" is quite refreshing—not to mention re-assuring.

My, how times have changed.

What's the cause of this loss of fighting spirit? Perhaps some of the color and glamour has been taken out of sports, but not so much as one would imagine. Conditions have reached such a point that coaches can only hope to hold a job a very short time. Fans must be made to realize that every team can't win and that a team can't win all of the time.

The Herald Type Lice may be brutes for punishment, but they're due to mix 'em up again with the Kiwanians Tuesday afternoon. The Heralders set a new league record Friday for making the most errors. Bang up ball is assured in the practice fray.

Evidently believing in the old adage of "if at first you don't succeed," the local motorcycle polo club will tangle with the Lubbock cyclists this afternoon two miles east of Washington Place.

The Lubbock aggregation eked out a 9-8 victory over the Big Springers last year.

The line-up for the locals will be: L. B. McIntosh, No. 1 and captain; Homer Hart No. 2; Cecil Thixton No. 3; Howard Loyd No. 4; Bill Hengler No. 5; Everett Witt No. 6; Grady Washburn No. 7; Floyd Prody No. 8 and Sid House No. 9.

Lubbock players scheduled to see action today are Stewart Champion, captain, No. 3; Robert Howard No. 2; Cleo Glase No. 4; Buss Adams No. 5; Dugan Wheeler No. 6; Wade Anthony No. 1.

Some of the teams defeated by the Plainsmen last year included Fort Worth, 26 to 2; Wichita Falls, 16 to 4; Amarillo, 18 to 2. They have never lost a game to date.

One of their players, Albert Cobb, was injured in practice last week and will not be with the team today.

Many Players To Qualify

Over Two Hundred Links-men Expected To Take Part

By TOM BEASLEY

As plans go forward for the tenth annual championship tournament of the West Texas Golf Association which will be held on the beautiful 18-hole Country Club course here May 24-27, more and more golfers make plans to take part in the gigantic affair.

Tournament officials now anticipate over eight flights of players of thirty-two players each, which would make a total of two hundred and fifty-six golfers, a large number to accommodate in four days.

Thursday, May 24, will be qualifying day, 18 holes medal play. On Friday, first rounds in all flights will be held in the morning and second round in the afternoon. Unless the entry list is too large, consolation play will be held the same afternoon. Third round will be played Saturday morning and semifinals in the afternoon, also consolation play.

Final To Go 36 Holes

The final, Sunday, will go 36 holes. Final in consolation play, 18 holes, will be played the same day. Charles Akey, Municipal golf pro, will have charge of tournament play.

Sunday, May 20, will be the first day of qualifying, and no player will be permitted to start qualifying after 3 p. m. Thursday. Golfers qualifying on Thursday will follow the usual West Texas procedure by playing in threesomes.

The pairings will be made up Thursday night after all qualifying scores are in. There will be sixteen winners in the first round, and the sixteen losers will then play eighteen more holes in the consolation play.

Courtesy Cards

The Municipal course will extend courtesy cards to all visiting ladies. Splendid prizes will go to winners, tournament officials said, but not all of them have been selected. Many writers are expected to be on hand for the event, and a room will be provided for them in the club house with type-writers and paper.

The work shop at the club house is being moved up to the level of the ground, and the old room will be used as a place to store clubs during the tournament.

Over fifty golfers from surrounding towns have already tried the course, and have been high in their praise of the splendid condition it's in.

25 From Lubbock

Lubbock has promised to send over twenty-five entrants. C. L. Bussey of Lubbock shot the course in sixty-nine the first time he played here. Sixty-seven is the course record.

Karnes Wilson, the diminutive Abilene linkman that won the affair at Wichita Falls last year, has promised to be on hand to defend his title. Jimmy Phillips, Ranger, runner-up last year, and Stayton Bonner, medalist, will also be on hand. Charlie Qualls of Post, another outstanding West Texas golfer, will be a strong contender for the championship trophy.

A number of Big Spring golfers will probably land in the championship flight, including Shirley Robbins, winner of the invitational tourney here last year.

The executive committee of the West Texas Golf Association will meet Thursday afternoon in regular business session.

Much publicity has been given the tournament, and practically every golf club in this section of the state will have a delegation here.

Oilers Play Coahoma Here

Stanton Asks Admittance To US Eighty Circuit

Cosden Oilers, tied with Col-Tex of Colorado for second place in the US Eighty league, will play the Coahoma Bulldogs here today on the West Third diamond at 8 o'clock.

The Bulldogs are in the cellar position, having played two games and lost both of them. Chances are the Oilers will improve their league standing today, however, when the Coahoma team gets right

Dallas Team To Play Here

Texas & Pacific To Send Large Delegation May 27

On Sunday, May 27, a fast semi-pro Texas & Pacific railroad baseball team will arrive in Big Spring for an exhibition game with the strong Cosden Oilers.

Besides the uniformed team which will be here on the special train, a car or two of fans will be brought along with a large band.

Out Of Dallas

The train will be out of Dallas, and the purpose of the trip, it was stated, will be to give the people of Dallas an idea of what Big Spring is like and for all of them to have a good time.

Two games will probably be played Sunday, Mangser Spike Henninger of the Cosden Oilers said, so as not to get mixed up in US Eighty League play.

Cosden will play Col-Tex of Colorado here about 2 p. m. and the Dallas team about 3:30.

Henninger plans to have his team in top shape for the visiting "nine."

It's hard to stop them.

Ackerly Loop Leader The Ackerly team, a hundred percent good outfit, and the loop leader, will play at Colorado this afternoon.

Stanton has made application to enter the league. However, before any action will be taken, efforts will be made to secure another team to make a six club circuit.

The Stantonites will play the Oilers here Thursday in a practice game.

SPRING FLOWER SHOW MAKES GOOD SHOWING FOR W. TEXAS

Garden Lovers Visit Big Spring Motor Co.'s Showrooms To See What Growers Here Can Raise

The Flower Show put on by the members of the Garden Club in the showrooms of the Big Spring Motor Co. all day Saturday was strong in quality, if not in quantity. The trouble was that too many flower-growers thought their blossoms not pretty enough, until they went down and saw what had been brought. Then it was too late.

A large number of blue ribbons were awarded to those having the most attractive display in certain classes.

The flowers did not require expensive vases to set them off. A small bouquet of yellow columbines from Mrs. W. D. Willbanks' yard, arranged in a redish jar was one of the coolest, most attractive displays. Another that brought forth comment was an arrangement of a orchid-pink wild flower in a lovely pink vase—the loveliest vase of the collection; the combination was delightful; Mrs. J. O. Tamsett submitted it.

The most handsome showing was Mrs. W. C. Barnett's basket of seven varieties of roses combined with mock orange, snapdragons, Chinese forget-me-nots and silk vine. Mrs. McDowell's red yucca blossoms were greatly admired.

The exhibit that caught the eye of most visitors and brought forth most compliments was the vase of double poppies from Mrs. A. W. E. Seiler's yard.

Mrs. L. L. Freeman's water lilies were exquisitely beautiful. An avocado pear tree brought by a Mexican boy who works for the Ford Motor Co. was an interesting display. Nat Shick's big award fern had no competitors.

Most of the displays were roses; they ranged all the way from wild ramblers to huge American beauties and exquisitely shaded March Niel roses.

There was one kind of flower that even Mrs. Ribbles could not name. It is said to belong to the althea family and was called a detzits.

The Garden Club will hold another Flower Show next fall and hopes to hold two hereafter every year. It is hoped that next year more people will bring flowers and potted plants. The potted plant exhibit ran mostly to cacti this year.

The following first prizes were awarded: Gordon pink, Mrs. J. M. Morgan; columbine, Mrs. Willbanks; wild forget-me-nots, Mrs. Tamsett; pink honeysuckle, Mrs. Morgan; double poppy, Mrs. Shick; verbena, Mrs. Willbanks; Corona Fern, Mr. Shick; lace-fern, Mrs. Tamsett; Aqua Cate, Mrs. Almon; spinesse cactus, Mrs. Currie; mixed cactus, Mrs. Currie; rubber plant, Mrs. Morgan; rubber plant, Mrs. Aleman; Jew, Mrs. B. F. Robbins; water lilies, Mrs. Freeman; red yucca, Mrs. L. S. McDowell; red poppies, Mrs. J. R. Phillips; single poppies, Mrs. L. L. Freeman; lantana, Mrs. M. L. Musgrove; agillardia, Mrs. Freeman; Datsea, Mrs. B. B. Harris; purple larkspur, Mrs. R. V. Hart; mixed bouquet in bowl, Mrs. Driver; mixed bouquet in vase, Mrs. Harris; bouquet in basket, Mrs. W. C. Barnett; baby rambler, Mrs. W. F. Cushing; Paul Negron rose, Mrs. Phillips; vase of roses, Mrs. M. D. Mullett; banksian rambler, Mr. Shick; snapdragons, Mrs. J. A. Davidson.

Second prize for baby rambler went to Mrs. Cushing; for Paul Negron rose to Mrs. L. C. Dahme; for vase of roses to Mrs. T. S. Currie. Mrs. Driver won third with a vase of roses.

E. S. A.'s Close Year's Work With Park Picnic

The Epsilon Sigma Alpha Literary Sorority held its annual picnic Thursday evening at the City Park with a sandkerchief shower for Mrs. Frank Etter, one of its charter members who is leaving soon for Abilene to make her home.

The handkerchiefs were cleverly presented in a pie crust which the honoree was told to cut and serve. After an enjoyable picnic supper the members and their husbands and friends spent the evening in visiting.

Present were: Messrs. and Mrs. Frank Etter and family, T. J. Coffee and family, S. J. Davis, Fred Haibe Mmes. Fox Stripling, Frank Boyle, L. C. Dahme; Misses Edith Hatchett, Edith Gay, Marie Faubion, Portia Davis and Emma Ruth Stripling.

This picnic is the last gathering of the club until fall.

Mrs. Emma F. Davis left Saturday morning for Strawn, Texas, where she will visit relatives and friends over the week-end.

"MOTHER"

Mother—my own dear Mother,
Dear one, I love you always.
As I look in your eyes,
There is love shining there,
Love, that's divine and true.

Mother, my own dear Mother,
Dear heart, I love you always.
Yet I know that some day
God will take you away
To dwell in Paradise.

O Mother o' Mine, I love you.
No one can take your place.
Yes, dear heart, I love you.
Thank God for a mother like you
Mrs. J. O. Tamsett.

The above song-poem was written by Mrs. Tamsett as a tribute to her mother and other mothers. It was written to be set to music and with the proper musical setting would make an appropriate Mother's Day song.

Class Gives Program For Mother's Day

First Baptist Women Enjoy Pretty Party Friday Afternoon

The Homemakers' class of the First Baptist Sunday school entertained the four other married women's classes with a lovely Mother's Day social, Friday afternoon at the church parlor. The classes were the Friendship, Ruth, T. E. L. Dorcas.

A red and white flower motif prevailed in the decorations, with blue for contrast. The program was cleverly presented by small groups directed by Mrs. Frances Youngblood.

After the devotional, Nita Taylor sang "A Little Mother's Trial," Catherine Trice, "A Surprise Tommy," Joan Cornelison and Nancy Williamson, "Dolly's Dream," Miss May Taylor and Ruth Youngblood, "Selling the Baby," "A Mother," "Mother," "Mother," W. D. Cornelison sang "That Irish Mother of Mine." The singing number was a playlet "The Gossips" by ten little girls.

The guests were then invited into the dining room where the tables were arranged to form an H and representing Home Maker.

Flowers of cedar and beautiful roses ran the length of the tables. The menu contained chicken salad, potato chips, crackers, angel food cake served with iced tea.

Senior Class Speakers Are Chosen Here

Misses Rhoda Stewart and Irene McNeerlin Successful In Try-Outs

Misses Rhoda Stewart and Irene McNeerlin were selected to speak for the senior class on the High School Commencement program in trionts held Thursday and Friday. Miss Stewart will speak on "The History of the American Home and Family Life," and Miss McNeerlin's topic will be "The American Family and Its Functions." These speeches are designed to supplement the main address of the graduation program, "Participation in the Ideal Home," by Don Morris, dean of Abilene Christian college.

Both speakers are comparatively new members of the class of '34. Miss Stewart and her mother, Mrs. H. D. Stewart, coming here from Hobart, Ind., at the beginning of this semester, and Miss McNeerlin transferring from Fairview last September.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

CHAPTER TWO BIG BUSINESS

"Did you see any one loitering or hiding before the shot?" asked Robinson.

"There wasn't a soul in sight, man, heat, or machine," Dufresne answered.

The police chief pondered. "I'm sorry this happened in my bailiwick," he declared, "but I'll look to it myself and see that everything possible is done."

Pierre Dufresne opened his cigarette case and lit a long Russian cigarette. He gave Captain Robinson a shrewd look. "I have my own theory and I hope it's wrong. If it turns out not to have been an accident, the alternative is not very pleasant to consider. It has shaken my nerves a bit, but I'll get over that. I doubt if your men will be

"Shall I get one of the boys to ride along with you, Mr. Dufresne?"

Pierre Dufresne turned over this suggestion in his mind, then shook his head. "I'll be safe for the next few hours, anyway," he replied.

As soon as he was clear of the town, Dufresne put on something of his former speed and it was just a little after half past three when he reached the Municipal Building. He drove into the courtyard reserved for the cars of ranking city officials. The policeman on guard came up with a semi-formal salute.

Several men whom he passed greeted him deferentially. It was evident that Pierre Dufresne was not an unfamiliar figure in this now. I've got real troubles to look after. See me tomorrow and keep your shirt on—it's no money out of your pocket."

"But the deadline for filing bids is midnight, tonight," the other persisted.

Dufresne halted, forcing his mind to forget his personal problems while he dealt with this fresh matter. In a moment he was speaking rapidly. "Two can play at that game. Tell Harry to call back our original bid and rewrite it. Cut the figure $100,000 and slip in that repaving clause under section 5. We'll let them pay for their fun. And tell Harry to send the papers to me at the Austerlitz for signature."

The puffy man stood back, nodding and smiling slyly at his piece of strategy. Dufresne went on into the busy offices of the Department of Public Safety.

At the end of the room was a boxed-in cubicle with one ordinary-size switchboard, presided over by a very efficient young man. Dufresne dropped into the chair beside him and the young fellow invited him with a pleasant nod. He had a double ear-piece clamped over his head and was listening intently. Presently he pushed these aside and gave his attention to Dufresne.

"Tommy, ask the Director if he can see me now," the latter requested. "Tell him it's important."

"There's a conference of Police Captains, but it must be about over," the operator volunteered. He plugged in the connection and spoke a few words in a low tone into the transmitter.

"Five minutes—private corridor—glad to cut it short," he said. Dufresne nodded, lit a cigarette, and kept his eyes patiently on the clock until the designated time had elapsed. Then he went through a small door and along a short, narrow corridor which ended at a door whose frosted panel bore black lettering in a semi-circular arch: "Director of Police, and below, in a straight line: "James J. Connors."

As his visitor entered, Connors smiled and pushed aside the wicker of papers, as if welcoming an excuse to defer an ungenial task, then seeing the serious look on Dufresne's face, dropped the pen and wheeled around in his chair.

"What's the trouble, P. D.?" "Jim," Dufresne stated with deliberation, "somebody's trying to get me! I was put on the spot today."

Connors' eyes began to gleam. The pupils, centered in their disks of frosty blue, contracted to tiny points. Beneath Dufresne's habitual polished calm he could discern signs of the strain and panic that the man would permit neither word nor movement to reveal. "Who could it be?" Connors demanded. "Don't tell me it was that crank letter-writer?"

Mechanically the Irishman reached for one of the long, fat, mahogany-colored cigars which were never far from his hand. Dufresne shook his head. "I wish I could tell you," he said quietly. "When I came to you last week with those crank letters, Jim, it was only because they had kept coming long beyond the usual time. I've had such stuff before—even more violent in tone. But this afternoon it became a question of bullets. Some one went sniping at me between Waterfalls and Edges Hill."

able to uncover anything, Robinson. It looks like a job for Connors. At any rate, I shall turn the matter over to him as soon as I get back to the city."

It was cold, standing there by the ear. The mid-afternoon sky was already like twilight and out of the yellowish gray density came the first fluttering messengers of the hovering storm. The breath of the two men rose steaming and the Captain raising his overcoat, slipped his hands briskly together as Dufresne slid into the driving seat.

SCOUT NEWS

Monday, May 21, is Board of Review. Court of Honor for April and May will likely be held the following Sunday, May 27, according to W. C. Blankenship, chairman of the court of honor activities.

There is always a little slack after some big event. Advancement reached a peak here before the jamboree, but it has tumbled off some since. Nevertheless, it is expected that a large number will qualify for awards at the next board of review.

Indian Sign Language is the rage among scouts now. Since William Tomkins, world's greatest authority on the language, appeared here the scouts have been making queer looking gestures understood by each other.

School will be out before long and to some it means a big summer of scouting, hikes, camps, swimming. Others seize vacation as a splendid opportunity to lay aside everything. A handful always spend the summer elsewhere.

Next meeting of the scouters' Round Table will likely be called by Secretary Peyton Wheeler soon. The organization has accomplished much good with its open forums.

Troop No. 5 is among the troops registering this month. A full troop is practically assured.

Three of five troops getting the AA rating were of Big Spring.

Troop Meetings Troop No. 1—There were sixteen scouts and two troop officials present Tuesday evening for the weekly meeting. The returns on the jamboree were discussed. The troop did the best it has ever done, getting third place in the jamboree. We sang several popular scout songs and then the meeting was dismissed at about 9 o'clock.—Reported by Sam Atkins, scribe.

Troop No. 5—Twenty-five scouts were present for the meeting held Friday evening in the First Baptist church basement. Results of the jamboree were recalled and it was announced that Troop No. 5 was one of the double A troops in the council and placed fifth in the jamboree. The meeting was centered around first aid, and particularly artificial respiration. The scouts tried communicating by the Indian sign language. Plans for registering were discussed. The troop engaged in a spiritual game of Double Steal and Bacon.

James Ripps Slightly Improved At Lubbock

Condition of James Ripps, seriously ill in Lubbock following a nasal operation, was slightly improved Saturday. Intercia, which had threatened to set up, has appeared to have a large delegation represent this city at San Angelo, reiterated his wish that as large a number of car owners as possible make the trip.

He recalled the tradition that the past host city attempts in every way to show its willingness to help the current host city of the convention. Big Spring had the convention last year.

C. T. Watson, Chamber of Commerce manager, said his office would be open early to supply those going on the motorcade with hat bands, stickers bearing the Big Spring slogan of "Howdy Neighbor," and walking canes. The canes, obtained at considerable expense, will cost twenty-five cents. The stickers and hat bands will be furnished free.

Persons who attend the convention are urged to register their automobiles with the Chamber of Commerce Monday without fail.

President's Mother Talks Of Mother's Day

Mrs. Roosevelt Says Son's Fame 'Seems Natural' Now

By WILLIAM T. McCLEERY
NEW YORK—Motherhood is a subject Mrs. James Roosevelt declines to embellish with sentimentality, even in talking of Mother's day.

She doesn't expect a special Mother's day greeting from her son, the President of the United States, "because we never made much of the occasion." He telephones her frequently, though, and she spends a quiet week-end at the White House now and then.

When he was a boy he gave her what might amount to Mother's day gifts, but they came with a spontaneous disregard for calendar days.

"He used to make things for me—little baskets to put on the wall," she recalled. "And he painted pictures for me. He had a great deal of boyish skill with his hands."

she is 79 years old. She spoke of it as a matter of fact.

A large painting of the President hung over the fireplace. Other paintings and photographs around the room furnished a warm background for the handsome, gray-haired woman.

There is nothing ostentatious about the Roosevelt town house, although it stands in an exclusive neighborhood and is richly furnished. There is a footman in livery; but he has red hair, grins agreeably and talks about the weather and the stock market in a hospitable manner. His name is Robert and he has been with Mrs. Roosevelt 15 years.

While she feels "proud and privileged" to have seen her son enter the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt has a decided distaste for personal publicity. Only on rare occasions, nowadays does she consent to interviews.

'Comfortable Understanding'

Comfortable Understanding
One gets the impression from Mrs. Roosevelt's easy, informal conversation that the relationship between the President and his mother is one of comfortable understanding, requiring no damp-eyed demonstrations of affection.

There is a marked resemblance between mother and son. They have the same well-shaped head, the same strong chin and the same cordial good humor. The resemblance is particularly striking when she speaks.

"Of course we talk alike," she said, smiling. "I brought him up, didn't I? He speaks like all of my family—and like his father too."

She turned her eyes toward a large portrait of James Roosevelt, the President's father, hanging over a desk laden with feminine writing accessories.

Red-Haired Footman
Mrs. Roosevelt sat in a high-back armchair in the second floor library of her house on Sixty-fifth street. Her lively conversation and her appearance made it difficult to believe

"A Little Philosophy Helps"
"People don't care about me," she insisted with obvious sincerity. "I was talking with a friend the other day. I'm tired of reading about the Roosevelts," she said. "I prefer to be left in the background."

"How does it feel to be the mother of a President?" she was asked. She paused thoughtfully.

"One learns to take things as a matter of course," she replied, slowly. "Of course, when he was a boy I had no idea he would be President. And yet, now that he is, it seems quite natural that he should be. I think God intended things to be that way."

"You know," she added, "a little philosophy helps a great deal."

Persons attempting to analyze the character of the vigorous, optimistic man in the White House frequently attribute much of his courage and mental stamina to his long struggle with infantile paralysis. His mother disagrees.

Mrs. James Roosevelt feels "proud and privileged" to see her son in the White House. There is a striking resemblance between the President and his mother . . . and a bond of comfortable understanding. She doesn't expect a greeting from him on Mother's day, particularly, "because we never made much of the occasion."

He Couldn't Turn Back
"It may have increased his resistance," she said, "but he had courage and strength of character from the time he was a boy."

"I remember one time—he couldn't have been more than 7. . . . And she told this story: Franklin had a pony. The men

"Why, Mother," he told her, solemnly, "I couldn't turn back and let the rest of them go on."

The President's mother does not feel qualified to appraise modern mothers.

"I'm of another generation," she explained. "Why—I have great-grand children!"

On Nursery Schools
She did mention the tendency of parents to bundle their children off to boarding schools earlier than they did when she was bringing up her son. He had his schooling at home until he was 14. In some cases she supposed it's a good thing, but she chuckles over a conversation she had recently with one of her great-grandchildren, aged 3, who was attending a nursery school.

"What do you do at school?" she asked him.

"Oh, nothing," he said.

"Well, what do they teach you?"

"Nothing." He reflected a moment. "I have a moosic teachah."

"Oh, does he teach you to play the piano?"

"No."

"To sing?"

"No." The little boy hesitated thoughtfully. "Grandma," he decided, "I think you better come to school with me and find out what we do."

Mrs. Roosevelt laughed heartily. "I believe the most important thing for children to learn is honesty," she said. "The difference between true and false, between this and mine. It doesn't matter so much where they learn it."

F. D. R.'s Political Start
The Roosevelts didn't discuss politics much when Franklin was a boy. But intelligent, well-informed people came to their house. Franklin liked listening to them and they liked talking to the earnest, good-looking boy. James Roosevelt was a keen student of public affairs, national and international. Mrs. Roosevelt thinks those influences probably aroused the President's first interest in politics.

She made no particular effort to sharpen the interest.

"I think it's natural for intelligent people to be concerned about politics," she concluded.

The committee in charge of raising the $500 for Mr. Caylor's painting, "The Trail Herd," announces that every organization in town has now been solicited and that the fund needs $140 to bring it to the required amount. Those individuals whom these women have failed to see may leave their contributions at the Albert M. Fisher store. It is hoped that every citizen in town will make some sort of a contribution.

The committee has called on over 500 people. If each of these could have given a dollar each the fund would now be raised. Some gave many times that amount, some much less. It is now necessary, in order not to lose the picture, that the town make voluntary contributions.

LOCAL LUMBER DEALER TO SPONSOR NEW 'FARM TALKIE MOVIE' AT CITY AUDITORIUM

S. J. Jones Lumber Company has arranged for the showing at city auditorium on May 15 at 2 p. m. of a program of new "talkie" pictures including "Tom, Dick & Harry Co." This interesting and entertaining movie was produced by the Keystone Steel & Wire company of Peoria, Ill. makers of Red Brand Fence and has been rated by many observers as the most interesting farm picture they have ever seen. In fact the popularity and demand for this program has become so great that the Keystone people have already found it necessary to double their facilities for showing it.

The feature picture "Tom, Dick & Harry company, reveals the ex-building a poor rundown farm into a profitable one, and is so skillfully handled that at times it seems that even the pigs are trained for their part. Some of the actors are well-known farmers, interviewed on their own farms in various parts of the country. There is plenty of good clean fun and romance throughout the picture.

The program also includes "Ups & Downs," a thrilling race track comedy full of humor and laughs, and a trip through the company's modern steel and wire mills. This shows steel in the making—big open hearth furnaces containing 145 tons of boiling, bubbling metal. Shows it being tapped off into huge ladles—moulded into big 5000 pound ingots then rolled down till they come out like a white hot serpent 450 feet long—then finally made into wire, fence, nails, barb wire and other products. "These farm pictures are all regular full size "talkies"—over 6000 feet of sound and picture on film. There will be no charge for admission. Children should be accompanied by adults.
