More than 400 vote early here

With the deadline for early voting just hours away, the statewide election on constitutional amendments and a U.S. Senator had drawn more than 400 Deaf Smith County voters.

Early, no-excuse voting ends at 5 p.m. Tuesday for elections to be held Saturday.

Deaf Smith County clerk staff reported 408 ballots cast in the state election while 394 had voted in the Hereford school district election; 332 in City of Hereford and 399 in Deaf Smith County Hospital District.

Statewide, voters will decide issues on public school funding and choose a senator to take the seat formerly held by Lloyd Bentsen. A field of 24 candidates, including the appointee to the office, Bob Krueger, are seeking the post.

A constitutional amendment capturing the most interest throughout the state is the so-called "Robin Hood" approach to financing education. Taxes from wealthy districts would be used in less affluent schools.

In local voting, seven candidates are seeking two at-large seats on the Hereford Independent School District board. Running for re-election to the District 2 seat, Raul Valdez, incumbent is unopposed.

Dennis Newton, incumbent, is a candidate for re-election to an at-large seat. Challengers are Steve Bigham, Kyla Farmer-Flores, Joe Flood, Jim Marsh, Jeff O'Rand and Joe Hernandez.

Four candidates are seeking three places on the board of the hospital district. Mal Manchee is running for re-election, opposed by Scott Turner, JoBeth Shackelford, and Mary Sue Hull.

There are no contested races on the City of Hereford ballot. Running for mayor is Bob Josseland while Place 1 commissioner Silvana Juarez is unopposed and Dennis Hicks is the only candidate for Place 3. Tom LeGate chose not to seek another term as mayor and James McDowell also decided not to run for re-election to Place 3.

Another election in the county is for Walcott school trustee. Only candidate is Albert Meyer.

Teen street dance

Hundreds of Hereford's teens gathered along Main Street Friday night for a street dance sponsored by Dream Force, a community committee formed to address problems facing youth here. The dance drew as many as 700 teens. Police reported no problems with the gathering. It was held in front of First National Bank and featured a disc jockey playing popular music.

Supreme Court rules cattle odors are natural

Livestock odors are natural and normal, the Texas Supreme Court has ruled, according to the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

The association reported in its April 23 newsletter that the state high court ruled that odors from a dairy calf growing operation near Stephenville were "natural and normal for the particular area."

As a result, the report continues, the Texas Air Control Board cannot require the facility to cease operations.

The TACB had sued F/R Cattle Co. in 1991 on the grounds that odors from the facility violated the Texas Clean Air Act by releasing air contaminants without a permit.

The high court findings include: approximately 21 dairy operations are located within about a three-mile radius and any odor resulting from the operation is produced from a process that occurs in nature and is affected or controlled by human devices only to an extent normal and usual in the vicinity.

Ground water levels in county drop during '92

Ground water levels increased within the 15-county High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 in 1992, the group has reported.

However, the association's April edition of The Cross Section, its monthly newsletter, shows that Deaf Smith County did not fare so well.

Of 1,076 wells tested throughout the water district, the average increase was 0.14 feet.

Of the 88 wells tested in the part of Deaf Smith County that is within the district, the average change was a minus 1.03 feet.

In the article, the district attributed rising ground water levels to above-average precipitation in the first five months of 1992, as well as improved irrigation techniques.

"Maximum utilization of precipitation, coupled with the elimination of water losses by area irrigators, has significantly reduced the demands on the water stored in the Ogallala Formation within the Water District service area," district manager A. Wayne Wyatt said in the article.

The magazine also included a comparison of how ground water levels have changed between 1983 and 1993 and between 1988 and 1993.

The average annual change from 1983 to 1993 was down 0.72 feet, and from 1988 to 1993 it was down 1.15 feet.

The April Cross Section also includes individual county maps showing the location of each well in the county, as well as the 1983, 1988, 1992 and 1993 depth-to-water measurements for those wells.

The Deaf Smith County graphic shows 1993 water depths range from 54.6 feet in the southeast corner of the county to 332.75 feet in the middle of the county.

Additional information about the ground water survey is available by contacting the water district at 2930 Ave. Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405, or by calling (806) 762-0181.

After pleading guilty to burglary of a habitation, a first degree felony, Leopoldo Marquez, 34, was sentenced to 18 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division.

A seven-year sentence in TDCJ-ID, probated seven years, was given Ignacio Silvas Jr., 33, who entered a plea of guilty to burglary of a building. He also was fined $1,500.

Hundreds hit street for teen dance here

A street dance held Friday for Hereford youth was hailed as a success by a police official who attended the special event.

The dance was held in front of First National Bank and was organized by Dream Force, a community organization formed to deal with youth-related problems such as gangs and drugs and alcohol use.

Capt. Pat Michael said there were no real problems associated with the event.

"We had very little problems. All the kids seemed to have a good time," Michael said.

There were a few incidents, Michael noted.

One person was arrested in the area for public intoxication, but "it was not on the inside of the dance," he said. "He was not actually admitted into the dance," but had been hanging around near the event.

Bank deposits in Hereford banks reach $140.9 million

Deposits at Hereford's two banks totalled $140.9 million at the close of business March 31, 1993, it was reported in bank statements this week.

Both banks had increased their deposits over the same reporting period a year ago, combining for an increase of approximately $5.8 million. Deposits were down by $13.7 million from the traditionally peak totals at the end of the year.

First National Bank reported deposits of $76,007,000--an increase of $2.5 million over a year ago. Loans were $40 million--representing an increase of $1.5 million, and assets were listed at $87.7--a hike of $2.77 million over last year at this time.

Hereford State Bank had deposits of $64,911,000 million for the March 31 bank call. This was an increase of $3.4 million from a year ago. Loans totalled $35.3 million--representing a slight decrease over last year. Assets were listed at just over $72 million--an increase of $1.9 million.

Hereford Texas Credit Union also reported deposits of $23,978,000 million. This reflected a decrease of $2.4 million from the same time a year ago. Loans totalled $11.2 million and assets were listed at $25.7 million.

In addition, there was a brief confrontation involving some students, Michael said.

"We had one fight that almost happened that didn't," he said. One juvenile was temporarily detained by police.

Dream Force "Vision Protector" Delia Griego estimated 700 people attended the event, which featured a disc jockey playing popular music from a sound system mounted on the back of a flatbed trailer.

"For that size of a crowd and everything, we really had a good time," Michael said.

He noted that there were five officers on duty for the dance. In addition, the county's two juvenile probation officers lent assistance.

Griego said there were 34 chaperons attending the event as well.

Because of the peaceful outcome of the dance, Michael said he would be supportive of another dance in the future.

"Hopefully they'll do another one this summer," he said. "As well as this one came out, I'm game to try again."

County commissioners briefed on plan to reduce jail overcrowding

A report on progress of planning for a new program to relieve crowding in Deaf Smith County jail was given to Commissioners' Court Monday by the man who will run the program.

Tom Flood said the Supervised Prisoner Alternative Program is expected to begin operating the first of June.

In other business, commissioners approved a request from Deaf Smith County Extension Service to employ a summer program assistant and heard complaints about speeding on a county road.

Flood presented commissioners with a list of tools and equipment that he expects prisoners to use in the work program. He was authorized to purchase items at the best price.

County Judge Tom Simons said he would begin sentencing defendants to the program in time for the first crew to begin work. Non-violent prisoners assigned to SPAW will work nine hours per day but stay in their own homes at night.

Grocery store starts work on new outlet

Taylor & Sons Enterprises will open a grocery store in the north end of Sugarland Mall, mall manager Henry Reid said Monday.

Extensive remodeling is underway at this time, Reid added.

"I feel we now have the anchor store we needed in the mall, and we are now receiving inquiries about other vacant spaces," said Reid. This store will be a great asset to the mall and to the other successful businesses already located there."

Reid said the success of Taylor's other grocery store here led to the decision to open the second store in Sugarland Mall. "This store will also be good for the community because it will create about 20 new jobs and more growth."

The City of Hereford on April 12 issued a building permit in the amount of $150,000 for remodeling of the facility.

A resident of an area east of N. Progressive Rd. asked for speed control measures on a road. Commissioners took no action, pending further information.

County Extension Agent Beverly Harder asked for commission approval of expenditure of funds for an assistant to work in youth programs during the summer.

She said the largest number ever sent to state competition from Deaf Smith County will travel to College Station in June. The previous high for participation was 14 students, she said, but this year 27 members of Deaf Smith 4-H will take part in contests.

Simons also announced that he would meet with residents of the Campbell Street area Wednesday evening to review details on implementing a water and sewer project with grant funds.

House gives approval to concealed gun bill

AUSTIN (AP) - The state House has given preliminary approval to a bill allowing people to carry concealed handguns, but the controversial measure would only take effect if Texans want it.

A final vote on the concealed handgun bill is scheduled for today after preliminary House approval by a 95-47 vote on Monday. Before the vote, an amendment was added that would require approval by Texas voters.

The amendment by Rep. Curtis Seidlits, D-Sherman, would put the handgun proposal on a statewide ballot Nov. 2. If approved, it would go into effect in January.

"This is an issue that is so big and so volatile that if it's going to happen, it's going to affect everyone in this state," Seidlits said. "Let's give the people of this state the opportunity to debate this issue."

But Rep. Ron Wilson, co-sponsor of the handgun bill, says the proposed statewide referendum is unconstitutional in its current form.

But Wilson, who during House floor debate called the amendment a delaying tactic, added that it may be what proponents need to see the measure become law.

Allowing the people to vote on the bill could force Gov. Ann Richards, and others, to support the bill, Wilson said.

"Strategically it's great for us," said Wilson, D-Houston. "The opponents obviously made a mistake. That's not our problem."

Richards has said she is opposed to the handgun bill, and will likely veto it if it passes both the House and the Senate.

However, Richards' spokesman Chuck McDonald following Monday's floor debate said the proposed statewide referendum could affect the governor's decision.

"We're going to have to talk about the whole thing again now," McDonald said.

It takes a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate to override a veto.

Earlier Monday, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock challenged Richards to state her position on the gun bill.

"I think the governor ought to take a firm stand one way or the other," he said.

Bullock said many in the Senate want to know Richards' stance because they support the proposal. He favors the measure and said he would vote for it if a tiebreaker were needed.

Meanwhile, House members considered about 40 amendments to the bill.

Among those adopted by the House was one that would allow the handguns to be either concealed or exposed, as long as the gun is in a holster.

Clinton programs face reality check

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton's plans for the economy, aid to Russia and free trade with Mexico are all in trouble in Capitol Hill, his budget director says in a dose of candor reflecting political realities as Clinton nears his 100th day in office.

Budget Director Leon Panetta and House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., say Clinton might want to hold off on his plan to make health care services available to all Americans and stem their skyrocketing costs.

And Clinton, himself, following a week in which his $16 billion jobs-stimulus package disintegrated in the Senate, said over the weekend that he may have spread himself too thin.

The sobering reflections came as the administration moved toward its 100-day mark on Thursday.

Foley told an annual meeting of The Associated Press on Monday that most of Clinton's jobs package, blocked last week by a Republican filibuster, would eventually be approved "in one form or another." But he said overhauling the health care system could prove a tough sell with the American public and lawmakers alike. The cost of the plan has been estimated at $90 billion or more.

"I'm troubled because the country is not ready for the challenge of providing the kind of coverage that we want to do to ensure universality," the House speaker said. He indicated that the problem was the cost of financing it.

Clinton had aimed to unveil the proposal next month. The administration has considered asking Congress for a value-added tax to finance the program. That is essentially a national sales tax imposed at each stage of production.

But Foley said it would be unwise to set deadlines for unveiling such a complex proposal.

"I think it's more important to get it right than to get it on time," he said. He said after his speech that many Americans believe they will be able to maintain the same level of medical services at no more cost.

"That is an expectation that can't be met," he said. "This program in the short term is going to cost more money."

Panetta, in a candid, wide-ranging talk, said Monday that Clinton must get his priorities in order if he is to successfully steer his proposals through Capitol Hill.

The comments, at a luncheon with a group of reporters, were reported by The Washington Post and The Los Angeles Times in Tuesday editions and confirmed by Panetta spokesman Barry Toiv.

Clinton at a meeting of the Newspaper Association of America said Sunday that he may have spread himself too thin at the outset of his administration and that he needs to focus more on a few big issues.

Panetta said he is urging Clinton to hold off on unveiling his health care plan and concentrate on pushing through the economic blueprint, which despite initial successes has come under increasing pressure from both liberal Democrats and conservative Republicans.

Panetta also said aid promised to the Russians faces a tough fight on Capitol Hill.

At their April 4-5 meeting in Vancouver, Canada, Clinton promised Russian President Boris Yeltsin $1.6 billion in aid and American officials pledged $1.8 billion on top of that at last week's meeting of foreign and finance ministers of major industrialized democracies in Tokyo.

He also said that if the vote for the North American Free Trade Agreement were today, it would not win congressional approval. The measure would phase out tariffs and other barriers between the United States, Canada and Mexico and is opposed by labor unions, environmentalists and others who fear it would mean a drain of blue-collar jobs.

Beta Sigma Phi to observe Founder's Day

Three local chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will be celebrating the organization's 62nd Founder's Day anniversary at 7 p.m. today at K-Bob's.

Chapters participating in the observance will include Alpha Iota Mu, Xi Epsilon Alpha and Alpha Alpha Preceptor. Teresa Hopping is this year's chairman of the Founder's Day activities.

Some of the local Beta Sigma Phi projects include assisting the Rape Crises/ Domestic Violence Center, the annual Christmas Stocking Fund, the Good Shepherd Program and the Lifeline Program.

The annual local Founder's Day observance, in concert with 12,500 chapters of 250,000 members throughout the world, is held each year to honor Walter W. Ross. Ross, who during the depression, saw a need among the young women he met in his work as a traveling encyclopedia salesman. He believed they needed more in their lives than work, responsibility and hardship and decided to devote his life to providing them with a social and cultural outlet.

Ross's efforts brought seven young women in Abilene, Kan. together in 1931 to form that sort of organization. Beta Sigma Phi met their needs and continues to meet the needs of hundreds of thousands of women today. Ross will be remembered on this anniversary by the largest Greek letter sorority in the world.

During the local observance, awards will be presented to outstanding chapter members, recognizing them for their sorority and community work.

NEW YORK (AP) - Jockeys live by the furlong poles in a horse race, and the most important is the finish line.

In 1908, jockey Joe Notter almost lost the Belmont Stakes because he misjudged the winning pole. Aboard the favored Colin, Notter had a comfortable lead approaching the wire but mistakenly thought the 16th pole was the winning post. He began to ease Colin and the horse lost momentum. Fair Play, in second place, was closing fast and almost caught Colin.

At the last moment Notter saw his mistake, drove Colin hard and lasted for a narrow victory. It was the 14th straight victory for the winner.

Thank You

I offer my thanks to my many friends & neighbors for the love, support, prayers, cards & kindness shown & given to me during my recent illness.

The girls totalled 336 Monday at Riverside Golf Course, gaining the lead by five strokes over Andrews' A team. Dusty Saul's 80 led the Hereford girls and put her in fourth. She trailed Angela Stanford of Boswell at 76; Brook Lawrence of Snyder at 77; and Jamie McInturff of Dumas at 78.

Cinco de Mayo softball tourney set for weekend

The 4th Annual Cinco de Mayo Softball Tournament will be played Saturday and Sunday in Hereford.

The tournament is a D/C equalizer with a 3-2 pitch rule. All games will be played at the VFW field in Hereford.

The entry fee is $110, and the entry deadline is Thursday. For more information call Rick Castaneda at 364-8383, or call Pete Vargas at 364-1170.

Coplen makes finals of regional tourney

Hereford's Greg Coplen won his semi-final match today at the Region I-4A tennis tournament in San Angelo, putting him in the finals.

Coplen overcame foot-fault troubles to beat Jason Lester of Fort Stockton 6-3, 6-0. Hereford coach Natalie Sims said a line judge was called for the match because Coplen apparently was stepping on the baseline while serving. Coplen didn't get upset, and the presence of the judge seemed to help Coplen play better, Sims said.

"After he got a warning, he just went to town," Sims said by telephone from San Angelo. "The warning lit a fire under him. He controlled the pace of the whole match. He made the guy play his game."

Coplen, who was seeded fourth in the boys' singles bracket, awaits the winner of the other semi-final between Zach Gibson (1) of Plainview and Jason Barfield (3) of Burkburnett.

Two other Hereford players played in the tournament. Bri Reinauer won two matches on Monday, then lost her semi-final match today, falling 6-2, 6-2 to second-seeded Lindsay Woodworth of Arlington Heights.

Jamie Kapka won his first match Monday, 6-1, 6-2 over Brownwood's Manuel Rodriguez. Kapka lost in the second round, 6-2, 6-1 to Plainview's Gibson.

Because of playbacks, Reinauer is not out of the tournament, and Coplen is not guaranteed one of the two available state tournament berths just because he is in the finals.

--If Coplen loses in the finals, he'll have to play a playback match if Lester loses to the other semi-final loser. Coplen would have to win that playback match to go to the state tourney in Austin.

--Reinauer will play the loser of the other semi-final, which is between Borger's Dawna Denny and Wichita Falls' Carrie Helbing. If she wins that match, and if Woodworth wins in the finals, Reinauer would get a chance to play for a trip to Austin.

In Monday's action, Coplen had a bye in the first round and beat Matt Mills of Granbury 6-1, 6-4 in the second round. Reinauer took three sets to beat Mindy Goff of Wichita Falls, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, in the first round. In the second round, she upset fourth-seeded Paige Parker of Levelland, 7-5, 6-1.

Royals' skipper goes nuts

By The Associated Press

Two managers. Two losses. Two different ways to deal with losing.

Hal McRae, one of the most accommodating men in baseball, went wild Monday night, screaming profanities and sweeping tape recorders and microphones off his desk after Kansas City lost to Detroit 5-3.

The tirade started after a radio reporter questioned McRae's strategy. The outburst left broken glass littering his office at Royals Stadium and sent a newspaper reporter to the trainer's room with a cut cheek after being hit by something McRae sent flying.

"Every night it's these same ... stupid questions," McRae yelled. "Every night, the same ... stupid questions. That's it."

The Royals are struggling at 7-12, but that's better than Baltimore. The Orioles are 5-12, the worst record in the majors, after a 7-0 loss in Chicago.

After the game, Orioles manager Johnny Oates, another agreeable sort, closed the clubhouse for nearly two hours. No shouting was heard outside, and Oates had a smile when the door was opened, although he declined to comment about what was said.

In other games, Toronto defeated Texas 8-6, Milwaukee beat Minnesota 10-3 and Seattle downed Cleveland 6-3.

Girls' hoops coach hired

Eddie Fortenberry has been hired as the new head coach of the Hereford girls' basketball team, Girls' Athletic Director Brenda Reeh announced Monday.

Fortenberry replaces interim coach Loy Triana, who will stay in Hereford as the top assistant coach for basketball. Triana became head coach when first-year coach Carol Garrison resigned unexpectedly just days before the start of last season.

The Lady Whitefaces were 3-22 in the 1992-93 season and did not win a game in District 1-4A.

Fortenberry was the head girls' basketball coach at Lockney for six seasons, leading them to the playoffs the past two seasons. Lockney was 0-28 the year before he started, and they improved each year he was there: 4-20 in 1988; 13-14; 14-13; 16-13; 18-12; and 19-10 last season.

Before going to Lockney, Fortenberry was girls' basketball coach at Three Way for one year, then at Amherst for two years, compiling winning records all three years. In nine seasons overall, his record is 135-108.

His first coaching job was at Bovina in 1992-93, where he coached the girls' track team to a district championship. He graduated from West Texas State University in 1982 and from Lubbock Cooper High School in 1977.

Fortenberry, who said he hopes to work it out with Lockney so he can start full-time in Hereford before school lets out for the summer, will serve only as the girls' basketball coach in Hereford. In addition, Reeh said he will "oversee the development of the program from the seventh grade up."

Fortenberry said he was attracted to Hereford because it was a "bigger school with more kids."

"We were fighting a numbers game in Lockney," he said. "We were in a district with schools with more people than Lockney. And I've had people tell me that (Hereford was) close to turning it around with the girls who are coming up."

Fortenberry's family includes his wife, Terri, and two daughters: Amber, a third-grader, and Ashley, a first-grader.

Harvesters hurt Herd

The Hereford baseball team lost a wild one Saturday in Pampa, falling 21-11 to Pampa in six innings.

Hereford scored 10 runs in the first two innings, but Pampa kept pace with eight runs in the first. Scott Ahola, a junior move-in from Vernon, made his first start on the mound for Hereford and gave up eight hits on only four batters. Three of the first four batters hit safely, then Aloha was hurt by two walks and an error, after which he was hurt by a three-run homer.

"This is his first pitching outing of the year," said coach T.R. Sartor, coming to Ahola's defense. "Everybody else is in mid-season form, and he's just getting started. He did fine. He needed a little help behind him."

Despite those eight runs, Hereford had the lead through two innings. In the first, Kyle Hansen's three-run homer capped the five-run inning. The homer came after walks to Rene Cano, Ralph Holguin and Tab Hathaway loaded the bases with two outs, and the Pampa shortstop booted Ahola's grounder, letting two runs score.

In the second, Cano, Jake Head and Ruben Ramos had consecutive singles to load the bases and Hathaway drew a walk, forcing in a run. Ahola followed with a two-run double, Hansen hit a run-scoring sac fly, and Holguin's double brought home another run.

The Herd had trouble scoring runs after that, leaving two men on in each of the next two innings. A single run scored in the fifth when Head singled and advanced around the bases on a wild pitch, a ground-out and another wild pitch.

"We kept collecting (hits) right on through, we just quit scoring," Sartor said. "We didn't hit as well as we did early, and we couldn't seem to put the brakes on them."

The Harvesters got a single run in the second, took an 11-10 lead with two in the third, then added two more in the fourth. They iced the game with seven runs in the fifth, collecting seven hits of Hereford reliever Sammy Casarez, who had two costly errors behind him.

Pampa ended the game by the 10-run rule in the sixth, as a man who had walked scored on an error with two outs.

The loss drops Hereford to 3-4 in District 1-4A and to 8-14 overall. Pampa improved to 4-3 in district.

Hereford hosts Caprock at 4:30 today at Whiteface Field.

Hereford's junior varsity dropped a pair of one-run games over the weekend.

Pampa's JV won the second game of Saturday's doubleheader 6-5, getting a leadoff home run in the bottom of the tenth inning.

Hereford led this game 5-1 at one point. Stacey Sanders hit a two-run home run in the first inning and picked up another RBI in the fifth when Ronald Torres scored on his ground ball. Torres also rode home on the homer. Hereford scored two runs in the second on two Pampa errors.

Pampa scored twice in the bottom of the seventh to force extra innings. Louis Hernandez pitched all 10 innings for Hereford.

On Monday, Hereford's JV lost 15-14 to the Dumas JV. Dumas scored twice in the first; four times in the second; five times in the fourth; and four more times in the sixth.

Hereford had four-run innings in the second and fifth and scored a single run in the fourth. Hereford trailed 15-9 going into the final inning, but things got interesting when Wade Backus tripled to left field with the bases loaded. Wade McPherson singled Backus home, making the score 15-14, and went to second on the second out of the inning.

The game ended when the Dumas' third baseman made an over-the-shoulder catch of Jacob Lopez' bloop bid for a single.

Getting ready

Members of the Hereford Heat 13-under team go through drills in preparation for the Cuby Kitchens Classic, an AAU basketball tournament for boys and girls which will be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Hereford. A total of 52 teams from Hereford and other towns will play in the tournament.

Cowboys pick up speed in draft

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Stuck with no high draft selections following a Super Bowl championship, the Dallas Cowboys went for athleticism and speed.

Coach Jimmy Johnson knew just where to look.

The Cowboys, picking last in the first round, traded down, picking up two second-round selections from the Green Bay Packers to choose two quality players he had recruited to the University of Miami several years ago.

"If you know what they can do, and if they come from a winning program you have to believe they can win for you," Johnson said Monday of wide receiver Kevin Williams, who will also be the Cowboys' punt returner this year, and linebacker Darrin Smith.

Johnson likes speed and both Williams and Smith have it. Williams has been timed in 4.28 in the 40 and Smith has been clocked at 4.5.

"Kevin is the most exciting kick returner I've ever seen and Smith is the fastest linebacker I've been around."

Bledsoe tops strange NFL draft

NEW YORK (AP) - The stars of the 1993 NFL draft were Drew Bledsoe, Dick Steinberg, Garrison Hearst and just about anyone who kicks the ball.

In what must rank as the most unusual draft in years, a draft in which the effects of free agency were obvious, it was not difficult to find the headliners.

Bledsoe, of course, was the top pick, and the strong-armed quarterback from Washington State figures to be an immediate starter in New England, despite what new coach Bill Parcells claims.

"His philosophy in developing a quarterback kind of goes back to the way it used to be," Bledsoe said. "You wouldn't be expected to play for four or five years."

Parcells knows those rules don't always apply, particularly when Tommy Hodson, Scott Zolak and Scott Secules are your incumbents. But, despite courting Bledsoe since late January, Parcells isn't handing the youngster the job.

"I view him as a very good player who can come here and, hopefully, develop into someone that eventually will be the offensive leader of this team," Parcells said. "When that will happen or how soon, I really have no idea, but I promise you I will not throw him to the wolves. He will not play until he is ready."

Steinberg's work in recent drafts had been mediocre, at best. His choice of Blair Thomas with the second overall selection in 1990 has hurt the New York Jets. Thomas has been a bitter disappointment, with injuries and sloppy play slowing his development. The Jets general manager knows he could have had Cortez Kennedy or Junior Seau with that pick.

Maybe Steinberg made up for that pick and so-so collections in 1991 and '92 with his maneuvering Sunday.

He convinced the Phoenix Cardinals that he was interested in Hearst, the All-America running back from Georgia whose stock rose sharply once his knee checked out. The Jets could use a runner, even if Thomas comes through, because they lack depth in the backfield.

So the Cardinals parted with Johnny Johnson, a 1989 Pro Bowl player as a rookie who gained 734 yards and scored six TDs last season, in order to swap spots with New York.

Phoenix took Hearst and, with the next pick, the Jets went for the man they wanted all along, linebacker Marvin Jones of Florida State.

"We felt they wanted a running back," Cardinals GM Larry Wilson said of the Jets.

"I think we got the best defensive player in the draft, and as a bonus we have an established runner," Jets coach Bruce Coslet replied.

Hearst also was sought by Tampa Bay and the Los Angeles Rams, who didn't have enough to entice the Jets.

As for the kickers, eight of them were selected, the same number as quarterbacks chosen. Perhaps with the draft shortened from 12 to eight rounds, some teams didn't want to go chasing rookie free agent kickers when they had all those undrafted runners and receivers and tacklers and blockers to consider.

The final pick in the draft, Mr. Irrelevant, was a kicker, Daron Alcorn of Akron. Alcorn is now part of an 18-year tradition by the Balboa Bay Club of Newport Beach, Calif., honoring the final player picked with the Lowsman (not the Heisman) Trophy and a week filled with parties.

"I never heard of it before, but I'm ready," Alcorn said Monday from his home in Vancouver, Wash. "I didn't really expect to get picked after it went to the seventh round, but Tampa Bay called and took me. I love it."

Free agency, as well as a relatively weak crop, affected the number of quarterbacks chosen. Only eight went, four in the last two rounds, including Heisman Trophy winner Gino Torretta. He was taken by Minnesota late in the seventh round.

Quarterbacks, of course, were the first two picks - Bledsoe and Rick Mirer of Notre Dame, who went to Seattle.

After that, only two more were selected until Torretta was chosen with the 192nd pick. Both were from the University of Washington: Billy Joe Hobert, by the Los Angeles Raiders with the last pick of the second round; and Mark Brunell, to Green Bay on the fifth round.

After Torretta, Alex Van Pelt of Pitt went to the Steelers with the 216th pick, San Francisco took Michigan's Elvis Grbac at No. 219 and, three picks after that, San Diego went for Indiana's Trent Green.

With free agency for players after four years - often considered a gestation period for quarterbacks, a theory Parcells claims to adhere to, of course - teams simply aren't willing to invest the time in players who could leave when they are ready to contribute.

On the 1992 PGA Tour, Fred Couples had the best average earnings per tournament, $61,099.

Sam Snead and Ray Floyd are the only pro golfers to win PGA tournaments in four different decades.

Casualties of Glorieta Pass battle

Confederate soldiers buried again, 131 years after death

By DEBORAH BAKER
 Associated Press Writer
SANTA FE (AP) - To the strains of "Taps" from a bugle and "Dixie" from a bagpipe, 30 Confederate soldiers were laid to rest in the largest Civil War burial in this century.

The remains of the men - and boys - of the Texas Mounted Volunteers, casualties 131 years ago of the battle of Glorieta Pass, were buried Sunday at Santa Fe National Cemetery. Civil War re-enactors and enthusiasts, the descendants of one of the soldiers, and the just plain curious looked on as two pine coffins and a large steel vault were draped with Confederate flags and sprinkled with Texas dirt.

"These soldiers suffered all, sacrificed all, dared all, and died," said Sherry Davis, president of the Texas Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, at a graveside service.

About 150 authentically dressed Civil War re-enactors - most of them Confederates, but a small group of Union soldiers as well - took part. Some fired muskets and cannons in a 21-gun salute to the Texans, who were buried with full Confederate honors.

Museum of New Mexico Director Tom Livesay said it was the largest Civil War burial in the 20th century. The soldiers died on March 28, 1862, in a battle at Glorieta, a mountain pass about 15 miles southeast of Santa Fe. They were buried the next day in a mass grave that was not discovered until 1987.

Two of the 30 were positively identified: Pvt. Ebineezer Hanna Jr., at 17 the youngest of the casualties, and Pvt. J.S.L. Cotton, who was 20.

Another soldier - an officer found in a separate grave nearby - was identified as Maj. John S. Shropshire. His descendants buried his remains two years ago in Kentucky.

The battle at Glorieta was considered a Union victory because Colorado volunteers burned a Confederate wagon train full of supplies, forcing a retreat and cutting off the Confederacy's plan to seize the Southwest.

The remains of Hanna and Cotton were buried in coffins, the 28 others in a steel vault.

The coffin of Hanna, who had been elected company historian, contained a pen, writing paper, and Texas bluebonnets, the state flower.

Horse-drawn carts took the vault and coffins from a downtown museum to the cemetery Sunday morning. The somber procession was marked by the sound of drums and a Civil War-era dirge played on a fife.

The procession also included mourners on foot, among them some descendants of Hanna.

"It's really neat to come back here and do this - to be able to be a part of it," said David Reid of Plano, Tex. Hanna was his great-great-uncle, said Reid, 32, a financial planner for Texas Instruments.

Reid's mother, brother, two sisters, wife and 8-month-old son were also in the funeral procession.

No descendant of Cotton could be located, Livesay said. "We came to honor our Confederate ancestors," said Juanita Johnson of Clovis, who was with other members of a Clovis-Portales chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

"I'm a Vietnam veteran, and I have a lot of respect for soldiers - I don't care if he's an enemy or not," said Jack Allen Duran, a mortgage banker who said he came from Denver for the weekend specifically to watch the reburial.

The soldiers were eulogized in a service at Rosario Chapel, adjacent to the cemetery, as battle heroes and patriots.

"These men were noble, courageous, beautiful, loyal Confederate soldiers," said Peter Orlebeke of Dallas, commander of the Army of the Trans-Mississippi Department of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

"God bless these valiant men," he added. "God bless the South."

Man claims to know secret formula to make Coca-Cola

By MARC RICE
 AP Business Writer

ATLANTA (AP) - The original recipe for Coca-Cola has been called corporate America's best kept secret. Get it, the legend goes, and you can make a fortune. The company says the formula is in a bank vault, but the author of a new book claims he discovered it in company archives.

"The company will tell you that's not true, it's not the original," said writer Mark Pendergrast. "I think they love the mystique."

"You can't know for sure unless you look in that bank vault... but this is as close as anyone's come," said the free-lance journalist and former librarian whose forthcoming book is called "For God, Country and Coca-Cola."

Coke's insistence on secrecy about the 107-year-old recipe flavors intrigue surrounding the world's best-selling soft drink.

The Coca-Cola Co. did, in fact, deny Pendergrast's claim. The writer said he found the recipe on a yellowed piece of paper marked "X" during research for his book about the Atlanta-based company.

Pendergrast spoke about the book last week from his home in Stowe, Vt. A native of Atlanta, he spent four years researching and writing the book to be published May 4 by Charles Scribner's Sons.

When he told company executives he had the recipe, Pendergrast was denied access to the head of Coke's technical division, where chemists develop the many flavors of Coke.

Until then, Pendergrast had been allowed to speak with anyone in the company, he said.

"I'd been told they were difficult to work with, paranoid. But I didn't find that to be the case," Pendergrast said of Coca-Cola management. "I found them to be gracious and open, once I convinced them I planned to write a fair, objective book."

A Coca-Cola spokesman did not return telephone calls Friday seeking comment on the book, though the company issued a statement disputing

Pendergrast's claim about the recipe.

"The list of ingredients presented as the formula for Coca-Cola in this book is not accurate and is the latest in a long line of previous, unsuccessful attempts to reveal a 107-year-old mystery," the statement said.

Pendergrast said he was in company archives when he came across the formula in a packet of papers once belonging to John Pemberton, the Atlanta pharmacist who invented Coca-Cola in 1886. Among the documents was a page Pendergrast later determined to be the first recipe.

It included seven caffeine, extract of vanilla, citrate flavoring oils, fluid extract of coca (cocaine), citric acid, lime juice, sugar, water, caramel and alcohol.

Pendergrast said he confirmed the recipe's authenticity with a former company employee, Madin Zarubica, who was sent overseas during World War II to mix Coke for U.S. troops and the Allies' soldiers.

Neil Young lashes out at administration at Farm Aid concert; Clinton's brother present

AMES, Iowa (AP) - Willie Nelson headlined his sixth Farm Aid concert on Saturday, but he heard little harmony from Neil Young, who criticized the Clinton administration even as the president's brother sat just behind him.

Young, who joined Nelson at the first Farm Aid in Champaigne, Ill., in 1985, said he was upset that Farm Aid had deteriorated into a "kind of picnic, a party for everyone."

He was especially critical that Clinton had not sent Vice President Al Gore or U.S. Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy to Ames, where a congressional subcommittee heard suggestions Friday on how the USDA can respond better to family farmers' needs.

"Where is Gore? Where is Espy?" Young wanted to know. "I'm not too happy to be here."

"We're tired of helping. Helping is not what we're about. I thought when we got rid of Bush and Reagan there was going to be a change. Then we wouldn't need any more Farm Aids."

"I don't have respect for the administration."

Roger Clinton, the president's brother who with his band was one of the first acts to entertain the thousands of people at Cyclone Stadium, didn't appear offended. He said he paid more than $6,000 himself to bring his band to Ames as a show of support for farmers.

"It's a damn shameful situation," he said. "I'm here to learn."

Roger Clinton said the president tried to call him twice Saturday but missed him, the second time because he was at the pre-show news conference. Roger Clinton said he thought his brother wanted to talk to the stadium crowd via a phone hookup played over loudspeakers.

The Newspaper BIBLE

NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS!

With the believers multiplying rapidly, there were rumblings of discontent. Those who spoke only Greek complained that their widows were being discriminated against, that they were not being given as much food, in the daily distribution, as the widows who spoke Hebrew.

So the Twelve called a meeting of all the believers. "We should spend our time preaching, not administering a feeding program," they said. "Now look around among yourselves, dear brothers, and select seven men, wise and full of the Holy Spirit, who are well thought of by everyone; and we will put them in charge of this business. Then we can spend our time in prayer, preaching, and teaching."

This sounded reasonable to the whole assembly, and they elected the following: Stephen (a man unusually full of faith and the Holy Spirit), Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, Nicolaus of Antioch (a Gentile convert to the Jewish faith, who had become a Christian).

These seven were presented to the apostles, who prayed for them and laid their hands on them in blessing.

God's message was preached in everwidening circles, and the number of disciples increased vastly in Jerusalem; and many of the Jewish priests were converted too.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will continue to address the serious problem of charity fraud in your column. Charity fraud robs a generous public and takes much-needed funds from the legitimate charities who so vitally serve the public interest.

Please continue to remind your readers to take their time when solicited for donations. Encourage them to ask questions about how and where the money they donate will be used. If the answers are not satisfactory, they should not contribute. And if they have any questions about a charity or if they feel that the charity may not be legitimate, they should not contact their state attorney general's office or the local authorities.

Charity fraud stops with the informed donor, Miss Landers, and your column can do a great deal to keep them on the alert. I hope you will continue to provide that important service to your readers across the country.—Roland W. Burris, attorney general, state of Illinois because I don't feel she is justified in asking for financial compensation.

Reader

DEAR OHIO: In my opinion, your sister should be compensated for carrying the greater part of the burden which has fallen on her simply because she is in the same city with your mother.

You can never repay her adequately for the time and attention she is contributing, but you surely can (and should) be as generous as possible when it comes to financial assistance.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was taught that gum chewing is a private pleasure and that it is extremely rude to crack one's gum. The cracking I'm concerned about can be heard clear across our crowded office with phones ringing and processors printing.

When I informed the perpetrator that this is extremely irritating, she said, "Gum chewing is a right, and I intend to continue." What do I do now?—California

DEAR CAL: Gum chewing may be a "right" but anyone whose gum cracking can be heard clear across an office is a clod. Where's the supervisor? How about a signed petition? Others must hear it too. Get moving.

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

I'm living so far beyond my income that we may almost be said to be living apart.

DEAR ATTORNEY GENERAL BURRIS: You can be sure I will blow the whistle on phony charities whenever I spot one.

My readers can also check the legitimacy of fund-raising groups by writing to the Philanthropic Advisory Service, Council of Better Business Bureaus, 4200 Wilson Blvd., Suite 800, Arlington, Va. 22203-1804 or the National Charities Information Bureau, 19 Union Square West, Department 250, New York, N.Y. 10003-3395. Be sure to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last year, my mother moved into a nursing home in Florida. My sister lives within 15 minutes of the home. Since I live in Ohio and operate my own business, it is difficult for me to visit my mother more than three times a year.

My sister feels that she should be compensated for visiting Mother two to three times a week. She wants me to help pay for her gasoline and also for doing my mother's laundry, which can be done at the nursing home for a minimal charge.

My mother has been very generous to my sister and me throughout the years. I realize my sister is under a great deal of stress. Her husband is not well, and she is worried about him. Her request, however, upset me,

Anonymous Donor

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) - It's hard to make a half million dollars look anonymous.

Somebody did at Virginia Tech, donating $500,000 anonymously toward the construction of a new outdoor track. Other donors raised the sum to more than $1 million.

The outdoor track will take over next year for the indoor facility VPI has been using in the Rector Field House.
