Scenes from Tuesday fire

Friends console Rebekah Smith, above, outside her home Tuesday following a fire there. A fire broke out in a heater closet of the home, located two miles west on the Harrison Highway, causing several thousand dollars of fire and smoke damage. Below, Hereford firefighter Paul Hamilton works with a colleague to connect water lines to refill a department booster truck at the fire scene.

Hereford firefighters kept busy

Hereford firefighters were kept busy Tuesday afternoon and this morning, as they received four calls to a variety of disasters.

The activity began at 12:51 p.m. Tuesday, when a fire started in a heater closet in the home of Barry and Rebekah Smith, two miles west of town on the Harrison Highway.

Firefighters contained the blaze, but the newly-remodeled home nonetheless sustained fire and smoke damage estimated at several thousand dollars.

Less than 30 minutes later - at 1:18 p.m. - firefighters were dispatched to a location four miles east of town on U.S. 60.

There they fought a grass fire on the Santa Fe Railway right of way. Tuesday evening, firefighters were again called out.

A call was received at 5:16 p.m. to a home one-half mile south of Road 6 on Road EE.

There, said department Fire Marshal Jay Spain, a propane explosion destroyed the home of Clifford Walton.

Walton, Spain said, suffered burns in the incident and was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital, where he was listed in stable condition.

The house was levelled in the explosion and ensuing fire.

The fourth incident occurred this morning, as firefighters were called to the Beefco Feedyard six miles south of town.

There, Spain said, they extinguished a pit fire.

None of the incidents were related to any of the others.

Ex-parole board members would not get to represent inmates under bill

AUSTIN (AP) - Former state parole board members would be barred from representing inmates before the panel for six years under a bill given preliminary approval by the House.

The six-year waiting period also would apply to state criminal justice board members and employees, and to lawmakers. The bill faces another House vote before it can be sent to the Senate for consideration.

Rep. Sherri Greenberg, sponsor of the measure, said Tuesday that the bill was meant address problems in the parole system.

"We've had situations ... that have been documented for over a year, where individuals who had inside information basically were being paid to then get people who were incarcerated out of prison," said Ms.

Greenberg, D-Austin.

The parole system drew controversy after the release of former death row inmate Kenneth Allen McDuff, whose sentence had been commuted to life. McDuff last month was convicted in a murder committed while he was on parole.

An investigation that began in the wake of the McDuff uproar has resulted in former parole board chairman James Granberry of Lubbock being charged with lying to a federal court about his post-board work as a parole consultant. The charge is unrelated to the McDuff parole.

The six-year moratorium in the House bill coincides with the six-year parole board terms, Ms. Greenberg noted.

"Within six years, people that you have friendships with would be off the parole board," she said.

TROUBLED NOMINATION

Gov. Ann Richards' office says partisan politics is jeopardizing confirmation of the official who represents consumers in state insurance proceedings. A two-thirds Senate majority is needed to confirm Amy Johnson as chief of the Office of Public Insurance Counsel.

Republicans, who hold 13 of the 31 seats, could block it.

HOSPITAL TESTIMONY

Former psychiatric hospital patients told a Senate committee that the state needs to enact new laws to end abuses they suffered, including excessive shock therapy. The panel is considering eight bills to overhaul regulation of private psychiatric and substance abuse hospitals.

Demos confident of passing budget bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House neared its first vote on President Clinton's economic plan as top congressional Democrats tried to thwart party conservatives intent on trimming a companion jobs-creation package.

The House was set to debate the outlines today of the Democratic-written $510 billion budget-cutting plan, and perhaps a separate $16 billion jobs bill as well.

Votes on final passage of both measures were scheduled for Thursday, and Democratic leaders expressed confidence they would overwhelm outnumbered Republicans.

"I think we're in good shape," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said Tuesday.

Senate debate on a similar half-trillion-dollar deficit-reduction outline also was set to begin as early as today.

Even before the House took them up, GOP lawmakers were sniping at the budget-cutting and jobs measures and preparing numerous budget alternatives of their own.

Rep. Joseph McDade, R-Pa., scoffed at White House claims that the jobs measure would create employment for 219,000 Americans next year while stimulating the sluggish economy.

"It won't stimulate the economy. It's going to have the opposite effect, and it will add to the deficit," McDade, ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee, told reporters.

And Rep. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, a member of the House Budget Committee, criticized the Democrats' deficit-cutting plan.

The $510 billion in savings over the next five years outlined in the measure would come from spending cuts and $246 billion in tax increases - largely on the rich - that Clinton wants. The actual cuts would be made in later legislation, which won't be ready until May at the earliest.

"We cannot ask the American people ... to accept tax increases without first asking an even greater sacrifice of the federal government," Snowe said.

Meanwhile, behind the scenes, Democratic leaders in the House and Senate faced revolts by conservatives eager to shrink the $16 billion package that Clinton wants for road-building, summer jobs for youths and other job-creating programs.

In both chambers, conservative Democrats were worried the expenditure would upset voters believed to be more eager to shrink the federal deficit.

In the Senate, Sen. John Breaux, D-La., and others said about 15 of the chamber's 57 Democrats were reluctant to support the full $16 billion without a chance to vote first on the actual tax increases and spending cuts that are merely outlined in the plan being considered this week.

Breaux's vote count would spell trouble for Democratic leaders, who can afford to lose few Democrats and retain a majority in the 100-member Senate.

"I have a real concern that the whole thing could go down if we try to pass it now and do the cuts later," Breaux said in an interview.

Breaux, Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., and others were proposing that while the entire $16 billion should be approved now, less than half the money should be released immediately. The rest - for items that need not be approved until after the summer - would wait until after Congress approves deficit-reduction legislation.

Among the alternative GOP budget proposals was a plan by Snowe and others that would cut spending more than Clinton, accept his tax increases on the rich, but eliminate his new taxes on energy and Social Security benefits.

The House and Senate deficit-reduction plans are included in similar $1.5 trillion budgets that both chambers have written for fiscal 1994, which begins Oct. 1.

Three more candidates file for school board race

Three candidates have filed for at-large positions on the Hereford School Board, assuring a contested race for the two seats coming up for election on May 1.

Today is the filing deadline for city and school elections, while hospital board candidates have until April 1 to file. The Brand previously reported the hospital board deadline as being today, also.

Jim Marsh, farmer-rancher; Jeff O'Rand, manager of The Service Co., and Joe Hernandez, minister of the Mexican Baptist Church, were the three to file as school board candidates Tuesday. Dennis Newton had previously filed for reelection to his at-large seat, and Raul Valdez is the lone candidate for District 2.

Three terms are up for election on Hereford City Commission and three candidates have filed: Bob Josseland for mayor; Silvana Juarez for reelection to Place 1, and Dennis Hicks is a candidate for Place 3.

Three at-large terms are coming up on the hospital board, and two have filed. Mal Manchec seeks reelection and Jo Beth Shackelford is a new candidate.

Meat safety would start at farm under new plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department's new approach to meat safety will start at the farm rather than the slaughterhouse and end in the dining room.

The department's Food Safety and Inspection Service on Tuesday outlined its "pathogen reduction program" in response to the deadly outbreak of food poisoning two months ago in Washington state. The outbreak, in which two children died and close to 500 people were sickened, was caused by the bacteria E. coli O157:H7 in hamburgers served by Jack in the Box restaurants.

President Clinton responded to the January outbreak by requesting that 160 more meat inspectors be hired this year while acknowledging the need to overhaul a system that has been in place since 1906.

The program "incorporates actions that can be taken immediately at key points along the route from the farm to the table," H. Russell Cross, administrator of the food safety agency, told a joint hearing of two House Agriculture subcommittees.

Other steps can be taken later, he said.

Cross said the program will "reduce the likelihood that harmful micro-organisms ... will enter the food supply at key points in the production, distribution and consumption chain."

The Agriculture Department gradually wants to shift its emphasis from inspections based on touch, feel and smell of carcasses to inspections aided with microbiological testing. Inspections would focus on "critical control points" where contamination is likely to occur.

For the first time, authorities will go to the farm to gather information on bacteria such as E. coli O157:H7, that are carried in the intestines of farm animals, Cross said. USDA also wants legal changes that will make it easier to trace infected animals.

Cross gave no cost estimate for the improvements and said they would be implemented only after a series of public hearings beginning next month in Washington.

Campers rescued, storm's death toll now totals 219

By JOYA MCTILLMON

Associated Press Writer

The last of a group of high school campers were rescued from the snowy Appalachian wilderness, but the storm that swept the East Coast over the weekend - causing more than 200 deaths - wasn't finished causing trouble.

Storm remnants today included impassable roads, closed schools, mountains of snow on city streets and financial worries. Thousands still had no electrical service.

The death toll from Cuba to Canada reached 219, and 48 people were missing at sea off Florida and Nova Scotia.

The National Weather Service warned Tuesday that much of the East, especially the Ohio Valley and New England, is likely to face springtime flooding because of the storm.

The last 24 campers from the Cranbrook Kingswood Upper School outside Detroit were found Tuesday near Fontana Lake in North Carolina, said Col. Larry Shelton of the Tennessee Air National Guard.

"When we heard the helicopters, we knew we were OK," said student co-leader Meghan Nealis, 18.

The 24 were among a group of 117 who set out more than a week ago for an expedition in the Smokies. Most were teen-agers who had undergone wilderness survival training. Some emerged from the woods on their own Sunday and others were rescued Monday.

One teacher and one student remained hospitalized today with frostbite after the ordeal that began with the blizzard that blew through on Friday.

Their boots froze. Their trails disappeared under fallen trees and waist-deep snow. They doubled up in sleeping bags to stay warm.

"There was never any time to panic. There was never any time for fear because we knew what we had to do and we did it," said Shane Lavery, 16.

The group was to take chartered buses back to Michigan, leaving sometime this morning, said Ray Carson, spokesman for the exclusive private school. They were expected to get back to the school this afternoon.

Other survivors of the storm still were struggling today to get their lives back to normal.

Two Florida men who recently moved to Liberty, N.C., near the Tennessee line, spent the past few days taking water and wood to mountain residents trapped in their homes by waist-high snow drifts and fallen trees.

Among other efforts, Greg Kimble and Bernie Wooley rescued an elderly woman who had no heat.

"We tried to take the Jeep, but we couldn't make it, so we drug her down to the house on a sled," Wooley said of the quarter-mile ride. "We got her warmed up again."

Tennessee Gov. Ned McWherter surveyed damage in the eastern part of his state on Tuesday.

Checking the oil level

Isaias Espino, right, a service department employee at Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, checks the oil on a car while being watched by Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers board vice president Conny Whitehorn and president Daniel Villarreal. Stevens will sponsor a benefit oil changing session on Saturday to raise money for Crimestoppers activities. All oil, filters and labor will be donated, and a minimum $10 is required to participate, with checks to be made out directly to Crimestoppers. People interested in having their oil changed to benefit Crimestoppers need to call the Stevens service department at 364-2160 to make an appointment.

Panhandle finally put in right place

By SUZANNE MILLER

Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Folks traveling north into the Panhandle no longer have to drive off the map to get there.

After 20 years, and the advent of new printing presses, the Texas Official Highway Travel Map has put the Panhandle in its proper place.

Previously, to get the entire state on one sheet, the Panhandle had to be chopped off and represented by a small box positioned somewhere to the left of Lubbock over New Mexico. Including the Panhandle in its proper place in northwest Texas generally results in too much wasted map white space or depicts too much of neighboring New Mexico and Oklahoma.

A big push for getting the map's redesign came from Bill R. Woods, executive director of Amarillo's Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"I went to bat for it about three years ago. It takes time to get things changed," said Woods, who was in Dallas for a weekend travel convention.

"It just didn't show our state in the image that we have. The shape of our state is our logo," Woods said.

Refreshments at another convention once helped Woods illustrate his cause.

"One day we had a meeting with some advertising people, and they just happened to have cookies in the shape of Texas," Woods said.

"We're talking about image," Woods told the advertisers. "We're talking about Texas. We're talking about our travel map."

To further prove his point, Woods snapped the Panhandle off the cookie.

"You show me anybody in the state of Texas who would build a swimming pool shaped like that," Woods told the group.

Don Clark, director of the Division of Travel and Information at the Texas Department of Transportation, was in charge of getting out the new maps.

He encountered no resistance in the effort, and said the biggest push for its redesign came from the people most affected.

"Our citizens in the Panhandle wanted to get back where they belonged," Clark said.

WTSU student body re-elects HHS grad

Richard A. Perez II, a junior marketing major from Hereford, was reelected last week as president of the West Texas State University student body.

Perez is the son of Richard and Nora Perez of Hereford. Richard said his parents were very happy because of his victory. "They taught me if I really wanted to do something to go out and do it."

He said his main goal as student body president is to get more students involved, and he wants to promote WT more in the Amarillo and Panhandle area. He hopes to attend graduate school after finishing his degree, and his longrange goal is to be president of a university.

In his goal of student involvement, Richard has already set up a Student Advisory Council. The 10-member council helps relay information between student government and university organizations.

Feedyards will benefit in proposed legislation

The Texas Cattle Feeders Association has told its members that the state Legislature has introduced a bill to exempt some air emissions from the definition of air contaminants.

The association's March 12 newsletter notes that SB 684 was introduced by Sens. Armbrister, D-Victoria; Bivins, R-Amarillo; Haley, D-Center; and Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant.

If passed, the bill would exclude air emissions such as dust and odor at agricultural operations from the definition of air contaminants.

It would exempt ag operations such as feedyards from regulation by the Texas Air Quality Control Board.

Latest cold spell hits glancing blow at state's ag crops

AUSTIN (AP) - Most of the state's agricultural operations escaped last week's winter blast that sent temperatures plummeting. But some crops did suffer considerable damage, the Texas Department of Agriculture says.

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said weekend temperatures fell as low as 18 degrees in some Hill Country peach orchards.

Perry said the freeze knocked out most of the East Texas blueberry crop and damaged some specialty crops, such as apricots.

Record low temperatures in some parts of East Texas destroyed up to 90 percent of the blueberry crop, and growers with later blooming varieties are waiting to determine final damage, he said.

"We've also had isolated reports of some tomato and cantaloupe fields being destroyed by the freeze, but as a whole Texas agriculture survived Mother Nature's onslaught in fairly good shape," Perry said Tuesday.

Most Hill Country peach trees were early enough in bloom to escape major freeze damage, he said.

Early blooming varieties, such as June Gold and Bicentennial, likely were hit the hardest and the early peach crop might be a little lighter than expected.

Experts still expect Hill Country peach production to be close to 80 percent of a full crop.

"We're just lucky this freeze didn't hit two weeks later," said John Lipe, extension service horticulturist in Fredericksburg.

In the Rio Grande Valley, minor wind burn was reported on some vegetables in Starr County, but most watermelons, cucumbers and honeydew melons escaped serious damage, agency officials said.

Grain crops weathered the cold front in good shape, with no major problems reported for wheat, corn or sorghum.

Cool soil temperatures may delay emerging cotton fields in the Valley and planting from Victoria north, agency officials said. Wet fields in some areas also have delayed planting.

Practical application seen for youth's idea

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - The Texas Department of Transportation is warming up to a cool idea from an eighth-grader.

Clack Middle School student Jeff Casey won four awards at last month's Big Country Spring Science Fair for his "Ice Light." The light is designed to be placed over signs near overpasses that warn motorists of slippery roads.

"I'm pretty amazed," said Casey. "I thought (the invention) applied to them, but I didn't think they would take it seriously. It's a simple idea, but someone just had to think of it."

Casey's "freezing water switch" illuminates a bulb on the signs. The switch is actually a syringe filled with water. When the liquid freezes and expands, it pushes the syringe's plunger into a connection, completing a circuit between the light and a battery.

When warm weather melts the ice, the vacuum within the syringe causes the plunger to retreat from the connection.

Blair Haynie, an engineer with the transportation department's Abilene district, was one of the judges for the Texas Society of Professional Engineers, who presented Casey with one of his awards.

Now, Haynie's district office has inspected Casey's invention plans to place it on warning signs at area overpasses next winter.

The only modification Haynie foresees is replacing the water with a chemical that expands before temperatures reach freezing. He also likes Casey's suggestion to power the contraption with solar panels.

"I was impressed by how simple it was," Haynie said. "You see something like that and wonder why no one came up with it before. Sometimes it takes someone young without all this education we've had to come up with these ideas."

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

The intent of this letter is to clarify some of the statements made at the meeting here with Texas Water Commission officials last week.

The remark was made by an employee of the Texas Water Commission, and reported in The Brand, that my water permit had been approved in less than 30 days. This may or may not have been a lie, but at least it was untrue. My permit application has been in Austin for 60 days now, and I have not heard a word from the commission about it yet.

As a matter of fact, I pointed out at the meeting that approval of my permit required that my current permit be amended first. This amendment was mailed the same day as my new permit application and last I heard, the water commission claimed they never received it.

I further believe that the water commission used the meeting as they have used several similar meetings across the state during the last few years--as a decoy. They make the general public believe that they want to help, but nothing ever comes of it. We're still dead ducks.

There also seems to be some confusion about what New Mexico requires from us in our applications.

They tell us what the rules are, and we basically outline how we're going to follow them. Anyone with some experience in feeding cattle can tell you that it doesn't take a Ph.D. to write out a little farm plan. The basic requirement is: don't pollute.

That's what this all boils down to. It is imperative that we all let Senator Bivins and Rep. Smithee know that we need to recapture the independence that Texans are famous for. Tell them that we only want to know what the rules are, then let us play the game.

Sincerely,
John Haflinger

Dear Editor:

My name is Dannielle. I am involved in a very special class project. If you would please print this letter in your "Letters to the Editor" column, I would appreciate receiving post cards from the people of your great city.

By the end of the year, our class hopes to have a wall filled with post cards from people all over the U.S. Thank you for your assistance in this worthwhile educational project.

Don't give up on Duke's dynasty Cowboys sign Haley for three more years

By The Associated Press
College basketball's next dynasty? Don't close the book on the last one, says Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski. "People are waiting to close the chapter," Krzyzewski said as he prepared his Blue Devils for their NCAA opener on Thursday night. "What we have to try to do is use that to our advantage, don't let anybody close any darn chapters on us. This is our time."
Of course, Krzyzewski also realizes his Blue Devils are not as powerful as in the last two seasons, when they won the national championship.
While the Blue Devils have plenty of postseason experience with star players like Bobby Hurley, Grant Hill and Thomas Hill, who have two championship rings each, Krzyzewski said his 1992-93 team has been more apprehensive at times.
"They are more easily distracted than my last two teams," Krzyzewski said. "They might be distracted by a performance of a player against them ... it knocks them back. A call, or if they miss a couple of shots. In some games that will impact on them more than we would like."

"This team gets along great, but that's what we mean by maturity. It has nothing to do with something like 'you stole my towel and I'm mad at you for life.'"
A comparison to last year's team, which beat Indiana and Michigan in the Final Four to win the crown, is unfair, he said.
"Last year's team was very unusual," Krzyzewski said. "Last year's team was one of the best teams to ever come out of this conference. So, when you have extremes ... your standard of comparison is that we have seen how great it can be, and can we ever measure up to that? Well, you'll never measure up to that. You are not going to measure up to that."
The Blue Devils have lost seven games, including four since Feb. 13, and questions surround Grant Hill's effectiveness. While they're favored to beat Southern Illinois in a Midwest Regional opener in Rosemont, Ill., on Thursday, the Blue Devils (23-7) are 10-10-1 to make it three in a row.

Duke is looking to join UCLA as the only schools to win three consecutive Division I basketball titles.
Among the teams standing in the Blue Devils way are the four No. 1 seeds - Kentucky, North Carolina, Indiana and Michigan.
North Carolina will open against East Carolina in the East on Thursday. Kentucky goes against Rider in the Southeast, Michigan will play Coastal Carolina in the West and Indiana will face Wright State in the Midwest on Friday.
There will be 16 games on each of the first two days of the tournament, when the field will be cut in half. The Final Four will be held in New Orleans on April 3-5.
While Duke may be a longshot to "three-peat", the chances are considerably longer for the 16th-seeded teams in each region to even get past the first round.
Since the tournament went to 64 teams in 1985, no 16th seed has won. In fact, last year, all four lost by an average of 26 points. Overall, they're 0-32.

Just to make it a little tougher this year, the top seeds in each of the four regions each received first-place votes in the final Associated Press poll, and all four have been ranked No. 1 at some point this season.
"I don't think our kids are going to be in awe," Wright State coach Ralph Underhill said.
Underhill brings a 317-113 record in 15 seasons at Wright State into the NCAA tournament. The Raiders won the Division II national title in 1983.
"Indiana is a great basketball team," Underhill said. "But I think we can match up well in certain situations."
Coastal Carolina coach Russ Bergman isn't so sure about his game with Michigan in Arizona.
"The best thing for us to do is circle the wagons and pray for a dust storm," Bergman said. "If that happens out in Arizona, then we've got a good shot."

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The NFL's new open market wasn't even tested by Charles Haley.
The pass rusher supreme wanted to stay with the Dallas Cowboys so much that he signed a three-year deal Tuesday without putting his services up for bid.
Haley said he did it for "respect" because the world champions took a chance on him.
Haley, 29, whose sack of Buffalo quarterback Jim Kelly in the Super Bowl produced a fumble which was returned for a touchdown by Jimmie Jones, said: "Johnson traded for me and believed in me. I owe the Cowboys some respect and that's why I didn't try the open market."
Terms were not disclosed, but Haley's package with incentives was expected to approach $6 million over the next three seasons.
The sometimes moody Haley only had six sacks during the regular season but as Johnson said, "There's no question Charles had a big impact on our football team. His addition allowed our defense to improve. I look forward to him being a great player in the future. I believe he will even be a better player."
Haley, who was obtained in a trade with the San Francisco 49ers last fall, said after the Super Bowl victory that he wanted to stay with the Cowboys.

"I was just waiting for the Cowboys to nod," Haley said. "Money isn't everything to me. If I had wanted money I could have stayed in San Francisco. The Cowboys respected my ability and my loyalty is to them and this is the way I reward them."
Haley said his reputation as a troublemaker is overblown.
"People like to remember all the bad things you did, not the good things," he said.
Haley held several interviews at the Super Bowl which he cut short when he got questions he didn't like.
Johnson kidded Haley, saying something happened in the Super Bowl he didn't like.
"I'm going to get on him for messing up my hair," Johnson said.
After Johnson was doused with water, Haley and running back Emmitt Smith ran their fingers through Johnson's coiffure.
Haley said Johnson was his kind of coach.
"I'm glad to have this opportunity with a coach like Jimmy Johnson and an owner like Jerry Jones who are committed to win," Haley said.

Rockets get 14th straight win

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

Leave it to the coach - practically any coach - to spoil the party by looking at the big picture.

Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich did just that after the Rockets beat the Orlando Magic 94-93 Tuesday night for their 14th straight victory.

"The streak is wonderful, I'm not going to say it's not," Tomjanovich said. "But the thing that is really great is that we're getting in the best position for the playoffs to finally get an upper hand."

The victory, Houston's ninth straight at home, broke the 1991 franchise record of 13 overall. It also tied an earlier streak by Phoenix as the longest of the season in the NBA.

A 3-point basket by Robert Horry with 42 seconds left gave Houston its first lead since the game's opening basket.

"When I saw he had no indecision when he went up, I knew he would nail it," Tomjanovich said.

He may not have been surprised, but Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal certainly was.

"I've played against Horry before, and I've never seen him hit that shot before," O'Neal said. "I can't say anything about the Rockets' winning streak. Fourteen in a row speaks for itself."

Kenny Smith led the Rockets with 23 points. Otis Thorpe added 21 points and 13 rebounds, and Hakeem Olajuwon 20 points and 15 rebounds. Horry finished with 13 points.

Nick Anderson led Orlando with 22 points, followed by Scott Skiles with 18 points and 12 assists. O'Neal had 16 points and 17 rebounds for the Magic, which has lost three straight games and six of eight.

Knicks 102, Bucks 99

Patrick Ewing kept a hot hand with 35 points on 14-for-20 shooting, and New York won its 12th consecutive home game and seventh straight overall.

Ewing, 24 for 32 in his last two games, hit two dunks and a jumper in a 1-minute span down the stretch, giving the Knicks a 99-93 lead with 1:51 left after the Bucks cut an 11-point deficit to one in the fourth quarter.

Milwaukee's Fred Roberts scored 12 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter. Eric Murdock scored 19 points.

Hawks 122, Hornets 107

Dominique Wilkins scored 38 points, and visiting Atlanta dominated on the boards 50-35 in its sixth straight victory.

Kevin Willis had 20 points and 16 of 50 Atlanta rebounds. The Hawks outrebounded Charlotte 26-12 on the offensive end.

Larry Johnson and Alonzo Mourning had 23 points apiece for the Hornets.

Cavaliers 110, 76ers 98

Cleveland ran off 21 straight points early in the third quarter, then sweated out a remarkable Philadelphia comeback.

Mark Price scored 20 points, and Brad Daugherty, Larry Nance and Gerald Wilkins 19 each for Cleveland. Armon Gilliam had 21 points and Jeff Hornacek 17 for Philadelphia, which had a 23-5 surge in the final period.

Timberwolves 100, Nuggets 97

Doug West scored 28 points, and Minnesota overcame injuries to end a five-game losing streak.

Minnesota center Luc Longley left the game with a foot injury in the first quarter. Chuck Person and Thurl

Bailey already are sidelined.

Chris Jackson scored 24 points for visiting Denver, but Jackson missed a 3-point shot with 15 seconds left and the Nuggets missed three follow-up shots.

SuperSonics 98, Heat 85

Vincent Askew and Gary Payton led a 14-2 fourth-quarter tear by Seattle, which beat Miami in a matchup of surging teams.

Askew's basket broke a 73-73 tie and ignited the game-breaking run for the Sonics.

Shawn Kemp led the Sonics with 19 points and 12 rebounds.

Celtics 114, Warriors 88

Alaa Abdelnaby had 25 points and Kevin Gamble 23, helping visiting

Boston beat injury-ravaged Golden State.

Latrell Sprewell had 22 points and Chris Gatling 18 for the Warriors, winless since losing All-Star guard Tim Hardaway to a bruised right knee on March 3. Chris Mullin and Sarunas Marciulionis are other injured Warriors.

Pistons 113, Kings 110

Joe Dumars scored 31 points as Detroit won at Sacramento for its 11th straight victory over the Kings.

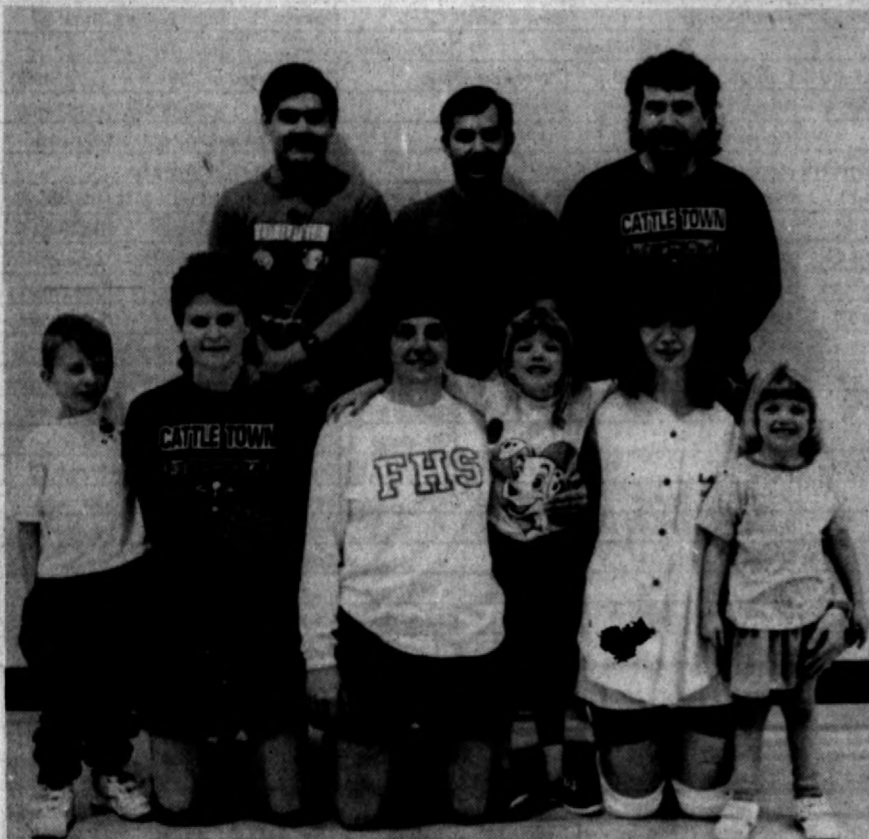

The Pistons stayed in front as Dumars made four straight free throws in the waning seconds.

Dennis Rodman grabbed 22 rebounds and Isiah Thomas scored 25 points for the Pistons. Wayman Tisdale finished with 26 points for Sacramento.

Co-ed B volleyball champs

Pirates pound Rangers

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) - The Pittsburgh Pirates unleashed an 18-hit attack Tuesday, winning their fourth straight game, an 8-3 decision over the Texas Rangers before 4,305 at Charlotte County Stadium.

Kevin Young and Jeff Richardson led the way with four hits each. Young knocked in two runs, while Richardson scored three times. John Wehner and Tom Foley chipped in with three hits each the Pittsburgh (7-5).

The Rangers (6-6) have lost four straight.

All of the Texas runs came on home runs off starter Bob Walk. In the first, Jose Canseco hit a two-run homer, his second of the spring. In the third, Dean Palmer connected for his first, a solo shot.

Walk allowed four hits and three runs while walking one and striking out two. Dave Otto got the victory by throwing two perfect innings in relief.

Kevin Brown, a 21-game winner for the Rangers last year, was tagged for eight hits and three runs while walking three and striking out three.

Awards given at Camp Fire banquet

Erin Bullard received her Wo-He-Lo Medallion during the Hereford Camp Fire Annual Awards Banquet held Thursday evening, March 11, at the Hereford Community Center.

The coveted award, which is the highest honor a Camp Fire youth can achieve, is a culmination of 12 years of work to reach a goal. Wo-He-Lo stands for work, health and love and is a self-planned project consistent with Camp Fire's commitment to help develop planning and decision making skills.

Also, during the banquet, which is traditionally known as The Father-Daughter/Son Banquet, Janie Nino was named as the Camp Fire Leader of the Year and Linda and Denny Herrin were honored as the organization's Sponsors of the Year. Other leaders were recognized for their dedication to the Camp Fire purpose and to the task required of volunteers.

Twelve-year membership awards were given to Erin Bullard and Nikki Messer.

Camp Fire Adventure Club member, Kimberly Montgomery, was given special recognition for selling the highest number of boxes of Camp Fire candy (186). Selling 150 boxes of candy were Starflight member, Rachel Kearns, and Adventure member, Vanessa Orosco. Those selling 100 boxes of candy or more were Starflight members, Tiffany Rhodes and Jacklyn Salinas, and Adventure member, Natalie Nino.

Eighty boxes of candy were sold by Starflight member, Brandi Smith, and Adventure member, Kimberly Scott.

Selling 60 boxes of candy were Starflight members, Cassidy Roark, Nicole Clark, Heather Brown, Dede Garza, Isabel Ontiveros and April Riley; Adventure members, Stephanie Moya, Tiffani Cabezuela and Cheryl Herrin; and Discovery member, Denice Herrin.

Recognized as Camp Fire's super kid candy sellers for selling 50 boxes of candy were: Starflight members, Penny Nino, Cynthia Segovia and Jordan Davison; Adventure member, Valerie Pesina; and Discovery member, Meredith McGowen.

Those selling 40 boxes of candy were Starflight member, Jennifer Kaesheimer; Adventure members, Shyra Smith and Michelle Torres; Discovery member, Amy Perrin; and Horizon member, Diane Wilhelm.

Honored for selling 15-39 boxes of candy were: Starflight members, Aaron Brock, Jennifer Brock, Adreanna Carillo, Nick Celaya, Lissandra Ramos, Kalanni White, Amanda Zepeda and Lex Zepeda; Adventure members, Deana Barrett, Krystal Kirkeby and Erica Marquez; and Discovery members, Janet Beavers, Katrina Brock, Richard Jimenez and Erin Shirley.

Savings bonds and certificates were awarded to the candy sellers.

The National Camp Fire organization is celebrating its 83rd anniversary. It was organized in 1910 by Luther Halsey Gulick and was the first non-sectarian organization for girls in the United States. It was expanded to include boys in the 1970s.

The "Happy Birthday Camp Fire" theme was depicted in the banquet decorations.

Savings bonds awarded

Several Camp Fire members were presented with savings bonds during the Hereford Camp Fire Annual Awards Banquet held March 11 at the Hereford Community Center. The savings bonds were presented to those who sold 100 boxes of candy or more. They included, from left, Natalie Nino, Tiffany Rhodes, Jacklyn Salinas and Vanessa Orosco. Not pictured are Rachel Kearns and Kimberly Montgomery.

CHICAGO (AP) - Frank Zappa sounds stoic about the inoperable prostate cancer that has kept the rock star from touring in recent years.

"What can you do?" the 52-year-old said in the April issue of Playboy. "People get sick. Sometimes they can fix it, and sometimes they can't."

Zappa has undergone several grueling rounds of radiation and chemotherapy since he was diagnosed with cancer in 1990.

He continues to compose and has experimented with styles ranging from rock and jazz to classical.

"I do it to amuse myself," he said. "If I like it, I release it. If somebody else likes it, that's a bonus."

The most common causes of burns include carelessness with matches and lighted cigarettes, scalds from hot liquids, defective equipment and the use of open fires. The severity of a burn is determined by its depth and its extent.

The first professional baseball team still playing are the Cincinnati Reds.

Family film night Thursday

"Davy Crockett: King of the Wild Frontier" is the film which will be shown at 7 p.m. Thursday in the basement of Deaf Smith County Library.

The movie is free of charge. Popcorn will be for sale.

This is a movie classic starring Fess Parker as the legendary Tennessean and Buddy Ebsen as his best friend, George. The pair tangle with Indians, crooks and "critters" on their way to the Alamo.

The film was selected in conjunction with the observance of Texas History Month.

NEW YORK (AP) - Even Broadway's hottest director couldn't salvage the latest effort of David Henry Hwang, author of the acclaimed "M. Butterfly."

"Face Value" closed Sunday before ever hitting Broadway, after eight preview performances in Boston. The producers cited "a lack of box office interest."

Translation: a $2 million loss and devastating reviews of the farce about a white actor who steps into the role of Fu Manchu in a musical.

Jerry Zaks, who supervised the smash revival of "Guys and Dolls" and other hits, directed. Mark Linn-Baker of TV's "Perfect Strangers" played the lead.

"Not very funny," Kevin Kelly wrote in The Boston Globe.

Hwang wrote the play in response to the controversy two years ago over the casting of a white actor as a Eurasian pimp in Broadway's "Miss Saigon."

Three cheers for foster grandparents

A growing number of older Americans, including many who have disabilities, are volunteering to serve children with special needs through the Foster Grandparent Program (FGP). Foster Grandparents are very special role models for children with emotional and physical disabilities.

FGP volunteers come from all walks of life. They are low-income men and women in good health, age 60 and over, say the people at ACTION, the federal domestic volunteer agency, which funds, monitors and supports local public agencies and private non-profit organizations that sponsor individual FGP projects.

About 10 percent of Foster Grandparents are individuals who have disabilities. They serve a wide range of children with disabilities, including those who are physically, mentally or learning disabled.

SUGARLAND MALL & DIMMITT

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine who was a heavy smoker recently lost her baby to SIDS (Sudden Infant Death Syndrome). I am enclosing an article that recently appeared in USA Today about the link between women who smoke and this cruellest of all baby killers. People need to be aware of the connection.

I see people smoking as they drive, with the windows rolled up. There are often children in the back seat. To me, this is child abuse. I've seen women holding babies in their arms with cigarettes dangling from their mouths while ashes and smoke get in the child's face.

I'm a single man, and I won't date a woman who smokes. Maybe if you print this article, it will wake up some of these foolish people.--Brunswick, Fa.

DEAR BRUNSWICK: Thanks for your comments and the clipping. Here are the highlights:

A new study has revealed that babies whose mothers smoked during pregnancy or soon after giving birth are much more likely to die of SIDS than infants whose moms never smoked cigarettes.

Scientists have established a link between prenatal smoking and SIDS in the past few years, but this is the first study to show that an infant's exposure to smoke AFTER birth can be linked to death from SIDS.

According to the study in pediatrics, babies exposed to smoking only in utero were twice as likely to die of SIDS as the infants of non-smoking women. Babies exposed both in the womb and after birth were three times as likely to become SIDS victims.

Well, dear readers, this is a strong message for all pregnant women and new mothers. I hope they get it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a well-educated Ivy League professional man who comes from a fine family. I'm turning to you with a problem I've lived with for several years. It's his foul mouth.

The man can't utter one sentence without some form of profanity I've told him repeatedly that his language is offensive to me and to please cut it out, but I might as well talk to the lamppost.

I know my husband's constant cussing must offend others, although no one has ever come out and said so. Whenever I mention it to him, he blows his top and yells, "I'm old enough to say what I want. Get off my back."

I am not a prude, Ann. I don't mind an occasional swear word, but when there's a G.D. and S.O.B. in every sentence, it grates on my nerves. No one else I know talks this way.

Please, Ann, how can I make him understand?--Red-Faced Wife in California

DEAR RED-FACED WIFE: When people lack confidence in the validity or strength of their message, they often lean on profanity for emphasis.

Language patterns become habitual. Once established, they are difficult to break. Unless your husband should decide on his own to cut out the cussing and is willing to work at it, nothing will change.

Gem of the Day: A great deal of the stress in our lives is a matter of choice. People who like themselves refuse to suffer for the foolishness of others.

Is life passing you by? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Discussing 42 tournament

Members of the Hereford Pilot Club invite the public to participate in the benefit 42 tournament planned from 7-10 p.m. Friday at the Hereford Community Center. Tickets are priced at $5 per person and may be purchased from Pilot members or at the door. All proceeds will be used to help purchase a security system for King's Manor Retirement Home. Refreshments will be served during the tournament and Hereford Bucks will be awarded to the winners. Looking at the work schedule for the tournament are Pilot Club members, from left, Brenda Thomas, Betty Taylor, Linda Minchew and Marcie Ginn. Pictured in the background are Betty Mercer and Margaret Schroeter.

DAR chapter discusses spring garage sale

Plans for a spring garage sale were discussed when members of the Los Ciboleros Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution met recently in the home of Ruth Knox.

Juanita Brown was the presiding officer, opening the meeting with the DAR Ritual, aided by Chaplain Helen Rose. The Pledge to the Flag of the United States of America was led by Mary Williamson; Mildred Drake led the reading of the American's Creed; and Violet Reinauer directed the singing of "America."

Knox, chairman of the National Defense Committee, read as her report and the program an article by Michael Medved titled "Does Hollywood Hate America?". Knox read quotes from the article, "America's long-running romance with Hollywood is over. For millions of people, the entertainment industry no longer represents a source of enchantment, of magical fantasy, of uplift, or even of harmless diversion. The Hollywood dream factory has become the poison factory."

"This disenchantment is reflected in poll after poll. An AP Media general poll released in 1990 showed that 80 percent of Americans objected to the amount of foul language in motion pictures; 82 percent objected to the amount of violence; 72 percent objected to the amount of explicit sexuality; and, by a ratio of three to one, they felt that movies today are worse than ever.

Fur seal pups suffer high mortality in the first weeks following birth, often being crushed by highly aggressive males moving about to defend their territories.

"What Hollywood insiders refuse to recognize is that the crises of popular culture is at its very core a crisis of values. Hollywood no longer reflects--or even respects--the values that most Americans cherish."

Chairman of the DAR schools committee, Ruth newsom, for her DAR School Minute, read thank you letters from the Marlborough School in Massachusetts and the Kate Duncan Smith School in Alabama for the Campbell soup labels the chapter had sent to them.

Kate Duncan Smith wrote that in 1991-92, they had received 244,000 labels with which a computer with keyboard and mouse, 15 educational software programs, and a AM/FM stereo radio/record player with cassette system and frequency speakers were purchased.

The next meeting will be held April 8 in the home of Juanita Brown.

Hoop earrings fashionable

Sterling silver hoop earrings are making a comeback on the fashion scene. Everywhere you look, women are wearing hoops once again.

Truth is, the hoop has been riding the trend roller coaster for centuries - more precisely, since 3,000 B.C.

Sumerian trendsetters adorned their hoops with semi-precious stones. During the Bronze Age (1400 B.C.), hoops became long, sleek and hollow, sometimes with dangling embossed charms, similar to those worn today.

The Byzantines had their own version of the rap-inspired hoops, with full, crescent-shaped bottoms inset with pearls and cabochon stones. Victorians may have found hoops too vulgar, but they returned in the 20th century in minimalist styles as well as variations of their historic cousins. Popularized by music and screen idols, super models and style setters, large, thin silver hoops typify the '90s simple, no-frills fashion look.

The success of silver hoops can be attributed to celebrity sightings, of course, but they also make good economic sense.

Be a good neighbor. Be alert for vandalism or break-ins. If you see anything unusual around a residence or business, call the police. Let's all be involved in policing our neighborhoods.
