Candy Striper program is asset for hospital, youth

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

At one end of Deaf Smith General Hospital, Mandy Arellano sits waiting in the emergency room.

In the nursery, Brandy Sermino and Traci Deckard sit waiting to help in any way needed.

Nearby, Melissa Rogers and Andrea Cepeda are in their departments, serving dinner to patients and helping the nurses get them bedded down for the night.

These girls - along with several other teen-aged girls and boys - are part of a new program at the hospital that not only brings extra sets of hands into the hospital to help out where needed, it also aims to prepare youth for possible careers in the health field.

The Junior Volunteer - or Candy Striper - program officially kicked off on Feb. 11 with orientation for the initial volunteers.

It was the brainchild of Elizabeth Fowler, who serves as administrative assistant/Valu Care coordinator for the hospital.

Mrs. Fowler said when she started working at the hospital a year ago, she noticed there was not a program available for young people.

She began working with Martha Paetzold, who teaches Health Occupations at Hereford High School, to design a cooperative education program between the school and the hospital to begin in the fall, but decided the youngsters needed exposure to the hospital before then.

The volunteers must work a minimum of four hours a week to stay active, but are not restricted on maximum time allowed.

Until school dismisses for the summer, Candy Stripers work the 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. shift, rotating among departments and performing specific tasks geared toward their training and experience.

Mrs. Fowler said Candy Stripers work in numerous departments, including: the gift shop, as lobby receptionist, in the dietary department, the emergency room and in the medical/surgical, ICU, obstetrics and Intensive Care units.

There also is a Candy Striper who is available to help out in any area where additional assistance is required.

For now, there are 30 Candy Stripers, which is the most Mrs. Fowler can put to work each week.

"I'm going to stop it at 30 until school's out," she said, adding that the number will increase during the summer, allowing teens to work the 8 a.m. to noon and noon to 4 p.m. volunteer shifts as well.

Candy Stripers must be between the ages of 15 and 18, Fowler said.

They are treated just like regular hospital employees, which means they must attend a personnel orientation and take a tuberculosis test before starting work.

In addition, Mrs. Fowler said, she has written an employee handbook for the teens, which covers a variety of subjects, including rules, hospital ethics, appearance, service awards, duties, job descriptions, infection control, general safety rules and the volunteer pledge.

"They're considered just as much a part of this hospital as anyone else," she said.

Once the final volunteer roster is set, the Candy Stripers will receive their official uniforms, which will be a red-and-white striped pullover camp shirt, to be worn with white pants and shoes.

The cost for the shirts will come from fundraisers the Candy Stripers will hold themselves.

In fact, Mrs. Fowler said, their first (See CANDY, Page 2)

Pressure situation

Melissa Rogers, a hospital candy striper, carefully takes the blood pressure of patient Katherine Perrin. As a junior volunteer, Melissa can assist nurses with taking patients' vital signs. They also deliver flowers, mail and books, and can read to patients as well.

Fed cattle prices hit record setting high

Cash cattle prices hit a record $84.50 per hundred pounds Monday, according to the federal and state Market News Service in Amarillo.

The Texas Panhandle and Western Oklahoma feedlot reported trading active Monday with 37,700 confirmed. Slaughter steers and heifers were 50 cents to $1 higher.

A harsh winter nationwide has resulted in slimmer cattle this year, but trading numbers and prices are starting to hit record highs as meatpackers struggle to meet meat demands, the Associated Press reported Monday.

"We just have cattle available," said Jim Gill, market director for the Texas Cattle Feeders Association in Amarillo. "The cattle in Kansas have really been hurt by the weather. Their trade hasn't completely quit up there, but a lot of cattle sold north of Amarillo are going to Kansas and supplementing the cattle kill."

"The story is the weather," said Joe Kropf, commodities analyst in Shawnee, Kan. "We just had storm after storm that started early. It was either a blizzard or blowing and drifting or an ice storm."

Persistent cold, slush and mud forced cattle to eat just to maintain body temperature, Gill said. Weights are down about an average 30 pounds from last year, he said.

Hereford's Bob Josseland, AzTx Cattle Co., and former president of the National Cattlemen's Association, echoed Gill's statements. "There are several reasons we're seeing the finished cattle at all-time high. We are being able to capitalize on the misfortune of feedyards in Kansas and southwest Nebraska, since we weren't hit as bad by the weather."

Josseland said the export demand has "been much better than most of us anticipated for this time of the year. The Pacific-rim countries have created a strong demand for beef. Also, I think the domestic demand has picked up as some as the health community has established that beef is healthy and is a good product for consumers."

In Texas, which sells 4-4.5 million fed cattle a year, the record volume at record prices started a week ago Monday when a daily record 64,883 head were traded, eclipsing the old daily record of 64,493 that traded on Sept. 4, 1991, according to TCFA.

More than 32 percent of last Monday's trade sold at a record $83 per hundred. By week's end, more than 32,000 head traded at $83 and more than 1,000 head were reported at another record $83.50, said Gill. There were scatter reports of some $84 trades late Thursday, and the record $84.50 came Monday. Texas' previous record $82.50 was set in April 1991 and matched last month, Gill said.

"I don't anticipate the prices to stay this high forever, but I think the demand is high enough we can maintain this price level for awhile," said Gill.

Analysts in January predicted cattle prices were poised for a plunge after a Department of Agriculture report showed the number of animals in feedyards at a 14-year high.

Gill said he doesn't foresee the possibility of a crash, partly because export markets to Japan and South Korea remain strong. Instead, prices probably will gradually fall with warmer, drier weather, he said.

So what do higher market prices mean for consumers?

"You're going to see fairly high retail steak prices into the spring," Kropf said. "Seasonally, this is the time when the wholesale price and retail price trend higher anyway. This year it will go up a little more."

County income gives boost to reserve fund

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Revenues exceeded expenditures in overall operation of Deaf Smith County in the last fiscal year, giving the county's reserve funds a $155,958 boost.

An audit report reviewed for Commissioners' Court Monday shows the county had $1,008,059 in the reserve fund at the end of the year, Sept. 30, 1992.

In other business, commissioners approved a resolution in support of a grant for domestic violence, received an appreciation plaque from Panhandle Community Services for assistance, discussed the need for improved job descriptions for county employees and talked about repairs needed on county roads.

Donna West of Brown, Graham and Company presented the audit of the county's juvenile probation office, approved by commissioners, and the overall audit.

She suggested commissioners delay approval of the overall audit until the operation of the county jail commissary fund is checked.

Reserve funds at the end of the year stood at $1,008,059, an increase from the $870,931 on Sept. 30, 1991.

Revenue from all sources to the general fund, $3,237,460, was $192,445 more than the amount anticipated in the budget, $3,045,015.

Expenditures from the general fund were pegged at $3,107,188, compared with $3,045,561 budgeted for the year, a $61,627 over-run.

Special fund receipts amounted to $1,243,078, which exceeded the anticipated budget revenue of $1,095,586.

Expenses from the special fund, though, were $402,818 more than budget. The county spent $1,217,402 from the fund, but had budgeted $814,584.

County Judge Tom Simons agreed to contact elected officials and department heads about improving job descriptions to conform with Americans with Disabilities Act provisions as well as other state and federal laws.

Commissioner Troy Don Moore of Precinct 3 reported that a paved road under his supervision was damaged heavily during the winter. He requested funds from a special account to repair the road.

Commissioners decided to delay action on Moore's request until other precinct road needs are reviewed.

Yeltsin can be impeached

MOSCOW (AP) - The Constitutional Court ruled today that President Boris Yeltsin had violated the constitution when he declared emergency rule.

"There is an entire basis for impeachment," parliament speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov, Yeltsin's arch-rival said at a news conference. "That's clear."

Guilty plea yields 17-year sentence

A defendant in 222nd District Court Monday was sentenced to consecutive terms, totaling 17 years, in prison on a guilty plea and revocation of probation on a previous conviction.

Luis Antonio Madrigal received an eight-year sentence on the plea of guilty to aggravated robbery. A nine-year term was assessed on revocation of probation on a burglary of a habitation conviction.

In addition to the two consecutive terms, Madrigal was sentenced to a four-year term, to be served concurrent with the nine-year term, on revocation of probation on a prior conviction for felony driving while intoxicated.

Two other motions for revocation of probation were heard by Judge David Wesley Gulley in the Monday session.

A nine-year sentence in prison was given Niccy Graves on revocation of probation on a prior conviction for burglary of a motor vehicle.

Terms of probation were modified for Panfilo "Steven" Montelongo. Probation was extended one year and the defendant was placed on intensive supervision and counseling for a year. He was convicted of aggravated sexual assault of a child and sexual assault of a child.

Russia's 247-member standing legislature, the Supreme Soviet, hastily called a meeting for later today.

The 247-member Supreme Soviet, Russia's standing legislature, could call an emergency session of the 1,033-member Congress of People's Deputies, which has the constitutional right to impeach the president.

In his televised address, Yeltsin declared emergency rule, called for a public vote of confidence in his administration, and said the referendum could lead to a new constitution in place of the Soviet-era charter. The proposed constitution would replace the current Congress with a bicameral legislature.

The independent Interfax news agency earlier had reported that the court had found that Yeltsin violated the constitution but did not deserve impeachment.

That confrontation between Yeltsin and the Soviet-era Congress over who should rule Russia sharpened on Saturday night when Yeltsin, seeking to break the logjam, said in a nationally televised speech that he was declaring emergency rule and scheduling a referendum on April 25.

Impeachment sentiment is strong among lawmakers, more than 80 percent of whom are former Communist Party officials.

Taba'na Yuan'e prediction is for good crops this year

POST, Texas (AP) - Monday morning's northeast breeze signaled good tidings for farmers.

The "Sunrise Wind" ceremony, called Taba'na Yuan'e in the Comanche language, predicts what kind of weather and farming conditions the next year will hold.

If the wind comes from the east or northeast, there will be plenty. If it blows from the north or northwest, conditions will be average. A west or southwest wind doesn't bode well and a south wind is just plain bad news.

"Chief" Frank Runkles, a student of Indian lore, has been performing the ceremony for 20 years on the first full day following spring's start. Runkles and other participants donned Comanche dress and beat drums around a fire during today's rainy, cool ceremony.

At 6:45 a.m. - the predicted time of sunrise - Runkles pointed his arrow into the northeasterly wind.

"The Mother Earth is revered because she gives us food to eat," he said. "Wakantanka is the Great Father above. We seek his blessing."

Records on the Taba'na Yuan'e ceremony have been kept since 1906, the first year settlers about 50 miles southeast of Lubbock gathered to see what the winds had in store.

Last year, the sunrise wind blew from the north-northwest, predicting an average crop, said Chamber of Commerce manager Dru Ann Laws. Ms. Laws said Runkles has a 97 percent success rate.

Phone proposals draw fire of groups

AUSTIN (AP) - Proposals for less state control over local telephone companies, including Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and GTE Corp., are being decry by newspapers, broadcasters and consumer groups. "Southwestern Bell wants to keep its monopoly, but lose its public accountability," said Tim Curtis, executive director of Texas Citizen Action.

Among others who oppose the Texas Telephone Association's plan are the Texas Association of Broadcasters, Texas Daily Newspaper Association and Consumers Union, along with various businesses.

The Telephone Association, which includes 58 local telephone companies, defends its proposals as simply a different, progressive sort of regulation.

"We don't want deregulation. What we want is enlightened regulation that meets the needs of an emerging, information-based society," said Tim Raven, association president.

The group wants its proposals added to a broader measure on the Public Utility Commission, which was considered Monday by the House State Affairs Committee. The bill was expected to be sent to a subcommittee for further work.

The Telephone Association says it wants to modify Public Utility Commission procedures to allow quicker action on competitive services. Among other items, it wants to give telephone companies the option of "alternative regulation," which it says would streamline rate setting by establishing caps and floors. The association said its plan includes competitive safeguards.

But various opponents say the plan would deregulate a monopoly.

The Texas Association of fund raising effort will be to sell popcorn at an upcoming health fair to help pay for the shirts.

"I want it to be a program where they learn all aspects of hospital life, including board meetings and spending procedures.

As a result, the group will elect its own officers, meet monthly and manage its own budget.

At the end of the year, Candy Strippers who work 50 hours will receive a pin. A bar will be added for 100 hours of service, then another bar for each subsequent 100 hours service.

The goal of the Candy Stripper program, Mrs. Fowler said, is simple.

She said she wants to provide the youth with the environment and background so that hopefully they will chose to enter a health profession after graduation, then return to Deaf Smith General to begin their careers.

Are students excited about the program?

"The kids that I have in here, yes, I can honestly say that they are excited about the meetings. They want to participate. I definitely feel the enthusiasm is there," she said, adding that about half the volunteers are constantly pestering her to let them work more, with some of them choosing to stay at work after their normal shift ends just to help out some more.

Broadcasters said in prepared testimony that without regulatory protection, telephone companies could provide services and equipment free to subsidiaries while charging broadcasters high tolls for special lines needed to transmit reports from newsgathering sites to their stations, and in some cases from stations to transmitter towers.

The Candy Stripper program also helps the hospital, Mrs. Fowler said.

The volunteers can be taught to take patients' vital signs, freeing nurses for other duties. When there is a lot of activity and nurses are unable to see patients regularly, the Candy Strippers can look in on them periodically to make sure the patients don't need help.

For families with a child in the hospital, a junior volunteer who sits with the child can free the parents to go home for a few minutes to take a shower and rest without fretting that their child is alone.

Overall, "I think the junior volunteers bring a lot of smiles to their (patients') faces."

The students are "a young face, they're always happy, have a smile on their face."

JCAHO accreditation maintained by DSGH

Deaf Smith General Hospital is one of a select group of rural hospitals in Texas to win Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Organizations (JCAHO) approval, according to Ron Rives, chief executive officer.

"Rural hospitals are required to meet the same standards as our big city counterparts," Rives noted. "Most rural hospitals just don't have the resources or the desire to comply with the strict JCAHO standards. We have to comply with the same standards as the larger urban hospitals, and we have to do it with much fewer staff members," Rives said.

DSGH has been accredited for many years, but maintaining the level of care that the standards demand is an ongoing process. "We continue to develop new policies and procedures, and to monitor the way we give care," Rives said. "We work hard to prepare for the survey, but that work does not stop once the survey is complete."

To achieve accreditation, the hospital is evaluated by an outside independent organization of peers. "JCAHO accreditation for any hospital is a mark of prestige, but for rural hospitals it is also a mark of uniqueness," Rives said. The evaluation is based on standards developed by a variety of health care organizations.

"Defining quality is always a complex task, but putting strict definitions for quality in health care is extremely difficult," Rives said. "That's why the community should be proud of the work the hospital staff continues to do in this area."

Every department in the hospital is required to monitor quality on an ongoing basis. "The standards might be as detailed as stating the exact width of the doorways or, in clinical care, the standard procedure for administering a blood transfusion," said Rives.

Painting techniques discussed

Members of Calliopean Study Club met recently at Brookhart's on Main to hear an informative program on art given by the store owner, Earl Brookhart.

Brookhart, who has a variety of art work on display at his store, explained the different techniques used in the art of painting. He also told of the various terms used by artists such as unique picture, graphics, relief method and off-set netography.

He said, "If one has a 'limited edition' of a Norman Rockwell, for instance, it could be worth from $10,000-$30,000. If the print was purchased at the beginning of Rockwell's career, it might have only been worth $350."

After viewing the paintings, mystery pie and coffee were served by hostesses, Claudia McBrayer and Linda Gilbert, to Jan Walser, Dorothy Ott, Wilma Nobles, Irene Conway, Kay McWhorter, Audine Dettman, Katherine Ruga, Louise Leasure, Mary Sue Hull, Virginia Holmes, Cynthia Streun, and a guest, Marge Mehlberg.

PENTICTON, British Columbia (AP) - There were people waiting and the town's local scribe was in the hairdresser's chair, but they all stepped aside so former President Bush could get a badly needed trim.

"I already had three customers waiting, but ... how are you going to say no to the president of the United States?" said salon owner Sheila Watkins.

In town to give a speech, Bush told Watkins she was the first to cut his hair since he left the White House in January.

Margaret Hayes, who publishes a weekly newspaper, found herself on the cutting edge of local journalism when she gave her chair to Bush on March 12. She had to wait for her haircut to resume, but she got a great story.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am now pregnant. For the last seven months, I have had the same conversation with at least five of my friends. It goes something like this: "Do you know if it's a boy or a girl? I'm sure you must want a girl since you already have two boys."

I realize that people are trying to be nice, but hearing the same questions over and over is really annoying. Don't get me wrong, Ann, I am very happy with my two healthy, beautiful boys, and they are a great joy to my husband and me. It's just that I have always wanted a daughter.

The reason I'm so sensitive to these questions is because I found out three months ago that I will be having another boy. I haven't told anyone except my husband, he seems thrilled to be having a third son.

I want to know how to handle the situation when the baby arrives. I'm sure I'll be hearing: "I'm so sorry you had another boy." "You must be terribly upset." "I guess you're disappointed." "Are you going to try again for a girl?"

How should I respond to those comments? I've done most of my crying already. I'd appreciate any help you can give me, because in about two months I'm really going to need a lot of it.--Due Soon in St. Louis

DEAR ST. LOUIS: Those comments don't deserve a civil response. Only a clod would ask a new mother if she is going to "try again." What business is it of theirs?

As for your having done your crying already--what on earth are YOU crying about? Do you have any idea how many women would give anything to have a healthy child of ANY sex? Kwitcher blubbing, buttercup, and thank your lucky stars for having been so richly blessed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am troubled by those application forms that have little boxes to indicate race. You only get to put an X in one box. The choices are white, black or Hispanic. Sometimes they have Asian.

I have three adopted children. My daughter is black and Korean. My son is Caucasian and Korean. My oldest child is Korean and Hispanic.

What box should they check when they get old enough to fill out the forms?--Denver

DEAR DENVER: When the time comes, they will probably put a check in the box they identify with. This makes the best sense to me.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Tips to reduce auto theft

Taking the best care of your car helps ensure it will last as long as possible. However, a basic car care technique is often overlooked.

According to the National Auto Theft Bureau, auto theft is a major - and escalating - crime problem in this country. Thus, ensuring your car will "last" begins not just with special care, but with protection.

Following are 10 precautions you can take to reduce the chances of your car becoming another auto theft statistic:

1. Always close your windows, lock your doors and take your keys when leaving your car.
2. Never leave your car running when it's unattended, even if only for a few minutes.
3. If you have an anti-theft device, use it - even for quick stops. Most stolen cars either didn't have the device or simply didn't have it activated.
4. Have your vehicle identification number etched on your car's six major pieces of glass. Then a professional thief won't want your car, because it can't be easily sold on the "Black Market."

5. Don't leave valuables in your car. If you have no choice, make sure they're out of sight, and try to avoid having anyone see your put them away.

6. Although you must leave your insurance ID card in your car, don't leave your registration or house keys there, too, or a thief may also rob your house and/or impersonate you.

7. Always park in a well-lit area.

8. In urban areas, avoid parking on streets that are away from main roads.

9. Park with your wheels turned sharply to discourage towing.

10. If you have a garage, use it. Cars are often stolen from driveways and open spaces near residences - but seldom from garages.

Easter program heard by Lone Star members

"Love of God" was the Easter program presented by Retta Ramp when members of the Lone Star Study Club met recently in the home of Birdene Huff.

Ramp said, "The Bible tells us that God the creator is all powerful. The Bible is the book of love as shown in nature: spring time, flowers, rainbows and sunsets. The fruits of the spirit are love, peace, gentleness, goodness, faith and self-control." She concluded her program with a prayer of St. Frances of Assisi.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and correspondence was read from Deaf Smith County Library and the Wade family.

Memorials were given for the loss of three club members and Roxie Phipps was voted into club membership.

Each member answered roll call by telling their favorite Bible verse.

Birdene Huff and Marjorie Thomas served refreshments to Betty Jo Carlson, Margaret Ann Durham, Byrdie Fellers, Mildred Fuhrman, Wilma Goetsch, Naomi Hare, Verna Sowell, Ruby Stevenson, Gladys Willoughby and a guest, Baylor Durham.

The next meeting will be a luncheon at the E.B. Black House.

Girls' golf team wins Hereford tourney

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford girls' golf team won the Hereford Invitational golf tournament handily, while Brownfield beat out the Hereford boys for first place.

The tournament was played Friday and Saturday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Hereford's girls shot 363 on Friday, then improved 15 strokes on Saturday to total 711. District 1-4A rival Borger was second after the first round but didn't have enough players on Saturday for a team score. That left Friona in second place with a total of 777.

Hereford's boys shot 311 Saturday, improving 17 strokes over Friday's 328, for a two-day total of 639. Only Brownfield, with a 310 and a 317, could beat that.

"The girls got first and boys got second," Hereford coach Stacey Bixler said. "The girls improved 15 strokes and the boys improved 17 strokes. That's what we're looking for. We had some good days to play, and we had some good scores."

Hereford and Brownfield each had two boys among the top five scorers. Brownfield was led by medalist Rock Hicks' 150 and Mitchell McCalib's third-place 154. Hereford's Jayson Mines shot a 74 Saturday to move up to second from fifth with a 152 score. Hereford's Cory Newton totalled 157 and finished fourth, tying with Tulia's Chris Mahaney.

Dumas' Jamie McInturff took the girls' medal by following a round of 83 with an 80, beating Hereford's Dusty Saul by eight strokes. Saul shot an 82 Saturday to move up into second place.

Hereford's Stephanie Walls finished fifth at 175, behind Renee Downey of Friona (173) and Borger's Rebecca Holcomb (174).

Hereford's B girls finished fourth with a two-day total of 833, behind Hereford A, Friona and Perryton (807). Hereford's B boys came in seventh with a two-day score of 738.

Two Cleveland Indians killed in boat accident

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) - A power boat carrying three Cleveland Indians pitchers on a break from spring training rammed a dock in the darkness, killing Steve Olin and Tim Crews and seriously injuring Bob Ojeda.

The ballplayers hit the dock at almost head-level Monday night. Olin, 27, was killed instantly and Crews, 31, died this morning after being hospitalized with head and lung injuries, said Joe Brown, a spokesman at Orlando Regional Medical Center.

"What happened yesterday is hard for our team," infielder Carlos Baerga said after a team meeting this morning. "Right now, we are surprised about what happened. The team is real down."

Ojeda, 35, suffered cuts on his head and was in serious condition after surgery at South Lake Memorial Hospital in Clermont. He was expected to fully recover.

Crews and Ojeda were signed by the Indians as free agents this winter from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Herd picks up win in Canyon Classic

Hereford finished up the Canyon ISD Baseball Classic with a 6-3 win over Childress Saturday in a guarantee game. It was the Herd's second win in three games in the tournament, leaving Hereford with a 4-8 record overall.

Hereford erased a 2-0 Childress lead with a four-run second inning, then added insurance runs in the fourth and sixth innings to claim the win.

The Whitefaces got some help with their four runs in the second. Jake Head walked, Andrew Tijerina reached on an error and Tab Hathaway walked to load the bases. Vince Castillo walked, forcing in a run, then a wild pitch sent Tijerina home and moved the other runners up. After another walk to Chris Brummett, Rene Cano slapped a two-run single.

"I was real proud of the way they played," coach T.R. Sartor said. "They probably competed harder than they had in a game all year. There were several times they (Childress) could have scored and got back in it, but we made the plays. We played like we are capable of playing (Saturday)."

Childress scored a single run in the third, and it could have been much worse. The bases were loaded with one out, but Hereford starter Ruben Ramos struck out a batter, then coaxed a popup to get out of the

Pistons' Rodman quits in middle of loss to Warriors

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - If the Detroit Pistons are going to make the playoffs, they'll need a full-time performance from Dennis Rodman to get there.

In a 96-91 loss to the Golden State Warriors on Monday night, Rodman assumed a part-time role. The league's best rebounder took himself out of the game in the second quarter and finished the first half with just three rebounds. He ended the game with 10, his lowest total since November 12, 1992.

"He said he was frustrated," Detroit coach Ron Rothstein said. "Just with the way things are going, I guess."

Rodman said he didn't want to comment, then quickly added, "I was just ticked off at the game."

The Pistons fell 3 (games behind the final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference and were swept in a season series by the Warriors for the first time since 1980-81. The Warriors broke a five-game home losing streak and gained their first two-game winning streak since Feb. 14.

"It's just nice to get rewarded, to have a win, as hard as these kids have been working," Warriors coach Don Nelson said. "I didn't know that I'd ever see another two-game winning streak again."

In other games, it was Washington 97, New Jersey 92, and Denver 107, Utah 93.

Latrell Sprewell's fast-break lay-in with 1:20 remaining put Golden State ahead to stay, and the Warriors held Detroit scoreless over the final two minutes.

Isiah Thomas had given Detroit its first lead of the second half, 89-88, on a pull-up jumper with 2:38 to play. Tyrone Hill's three-point play with 2:20 left put the Warriors back up 91-89.

Two free throws by Billy Owens and another by Byron Houston iced the game for Golden State.

Owens topped the Warriors with 19 points and 11 rebounds, while Sprewell finished with 17 points and 10 assists. Hill had 16 points and 13 rebounds.

Thomas had 12 points and 12 assists, but was just 4 for 14 from the field.

Neither team led by more than six points in the game.

Bullets 97, Nets 92

Michael Adams made a pair of 3-pointers during a critical fourth-quarter surge, and undermanned Washington cooled off New Jersey.

Adams and Larry Stewart scored 22 points apiece for the Bullets.

Drazen Petrovic scored 19 points for the Nets. But Petrovic had to leave in the third quarter with a knee injury. Derrick Coleman had 16 points and 15 rebounds.

Nuggets 107, Jazz 93

Dikembe Mutombo had 21 points, 10 rebounds and eight blocks as Denver ended a five-game losing streak.

It was the third straight loss for visiting Utah, which never caught up after Denver snapped a 42-42 tie late in the second period. Utah pulled to 76-71 with 9:36 remaining in the game, but the Nuggets, with Bryant Stith scoring 10 points, responded with a 31-18 spurt to build a safe lead.

Utah was led by Jeff Malone with 19 points. Karl Malone had 17 points and 11 rebounds. Denver's Chris Jackson scored 10 of his 18 points in the opening quarter.

Lady Raiders ready for 3rd round

By JEAN PAGEL

Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Texas Tech's Lady Red Raiders leave for the NCAA basketball tournament's third round today, armed with confidence and intensity absent last year, coach Marsha Sharp says.

"Last year they were so fired up about even being in it, the only thing they talked about was being in the Sweet 16," Sharp said Monday.

Tech eventually lost to Stanford 75-63, but the loss became an incentive.

"It just whetted our appetite," guard Krista Kirkland said.

The No. 5 Lady Raiders (27-3) face No. 15 Southern Cal (22-6) Thursday in Missoula, Mont. Texas Tech's finesse will be tested against a physical Southern Cal team, Sharp said.

"The wins are not going to be pretty anymore," she predicted. "It's going to be tougher to make the fluid plays and make things look as good as they did during the year, because people are just going to pretty much tackle you with the basketball."

Texas Tech is coming off a 70-64 victory Saturday over Washington. That game - a lead-swapper that was tied six times - has helped Tech prepare for what's in store against other Pac-10 schools, Sharp said.

Southern Cal edged Washington 46-45 earlier this month. It was the Trojans' fifth consecutive victory over the Huskies.

On Sunday, Southern Cal beat Nebraska 78-60 in the West Region's second round.

"We actually had the toughest game probably to get here, and I hope that will help us a little bit," Sharp said. "I hope the fact that we had to play so hard on Saturday will really help us this week be a little more mentally tough."

Texas Tech will have its defense spread thin covering Trojan center Lisa Leslie. Leslie, a 6-5 junior, scored a season-high 31 against Washington last month.

"When she posts we're going to double her. When she's on the perimeter we're going to defend her tough," Sharp said. "Leslie will cause us some problems in our matchup zone."

Minnesota slams Oklahoma in NIT

By MIKE NADEL
AP Sports Writer

Over the years, many teams have tried slowing down the Sooners. Few have succeeded, which is why Oklahoma scores more points and wins more games than most clubs.

"We said coming in that every time we shoot, we've got to get back," Minnesota's Randy Carter said. "Get back, get back, get back, get back."

The Gophers got back on defense often enough Monday night, holding the Sooners to 31.3 percent shooting in an 86-72 NIT second-round victory.

"My Gophers, I think they're one of the finest defensive teams, at this stage of the season, in the country," coach Clem Haskins said.

The Gophers (19-10) will get their third consecutive ESPN-televized home game Wednesday night, when they meet Southern Cal (18-11) in the NIT quarterfinals.

NIT officials, impressed with Monday's rowdy crowd of 18,254 at Target Center, didn't even wait until USC defeated Pepperdine 71-59 to put another game in Minnesota. It will be played at Met Center in Bloomington, home of the NHL's North Stars, because the Timberwolves will be home for an NBA game Wednesday at Target Center. Williams Arena, the Gophers' on-campus facility, is being renovated.

In other games Monday, it was Miami, Ohio 60, Old Dominion 58; Boston College 101, Rice 68; Alabama-Birmingham 65, Clemson 64; and Southwest Missouri State 70, Jackson State 52.

Tonight, Texas-El Paso at Georgetown.

Also on Wednesday, Providence visits Boston College and the Georgetown-UTEP winner plays Miami, Ohio. On Thursday, it will be Southwest Missouri State at Alabama-Birmingham.

Boston College 101, Rice 68

At Boston, Bill Curley's inside play and Gerrod Abram's 3-pointers led hot-shooting Boston College and ended Rice's best postseason run in 39 years.

Investigators were looking into whether alcohol was involved, which is routine after such accidents, said Vinard Hitt, spokesman for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. The agency is investigating the accident.

Indians general manager John Hart said today he had "absolutely no idea" whether the players were intoxicated. He said he "did address that issue" with Indians strength and conditioning coach Fernando Montes, who was at the picnic, "and he assured me that was not the case."

The three had gathered with their families at the lake where Crews leased a house. Monday was the team's one scheduled day off during training.

"They had been fishing apparently and were traveling back toward shore around dark," said Vinard Hitt, spokesman for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, which is investigating the accident.

Crews was piloting the 18-foot open bass boat when it sped into the dock, knocking out pilings and coming to rest about 100 feet beyond, Hitt said.

The Orlando Sentinel reported that a resident, Jetta Heinrich, heard the boat strike the dock, which extends about 250 feet into the water. She rushed outside with her cordless phone, saw the boat floating and called to the players.

"I kept screaming, I kept screaming, but they wouldn't answer," she said.

Firefighters on the scene said the men hit the dock almost at head-level. Olin was killed instantly.

"Steve was one of our own," said Bob DiBiasio, vice president of public relations for the Indians. "We grew very close to him and his family. This is very tragic."

Crews, pronounced dead at 5:40 a.m., had been airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center with a damaged lung and a "very serious head injury," said spokesman Joe Brown.

The Indians said Ojeda, 35, was operated on for head lacerations and was expected to recover fully. He was in stable but serious condition this morning at South Lake Memorial Hospital in Clermont. His wife, Eleanor, was at the hospital, as were four Indians coaches.

Olin came up in the Cleveland organization in 1991 and emerged as their best reliever last season.

Selected in the 16th round of the 1987 amateur draft, he is third on the Indians' all-time saves list. Last season, he led the team with 29 saves. He was 8-5 with a 2.34 ERA.

In 48 games in 1991, he had 17 saves. He joined the Indians in 1989 and was 1-4.

Ojeda came to the Indians as a free agent this winter. Last season, he was 6-9 for Los Angeles with a 3.63 ERA. The left-handed starter began his major-league career in 1980 with Boston.

While with the New York Mets in 1988, he cut off the upper portion of his left middle finger with an electric hedge clipper while gardening at home.

Crews, who also came from Los Angeles as a free agent this year, was 0-3 with a 5.19 ERA in 49 games with the Dodgers last season.

Ojeda was expected to be in the starting rotation, while Crews was a strong candidate for a bullpen job.

Steven Robert Olin was born Oct. 4, 1965 in Portland, Ore. He played at Portland State and was named the team's outstanding pitcher in 1985 and 1987. He graduated from Beaverton (Ore.) High School.

The Indians canceled Tuesday's exhibition game at Winter Haven against Baltimore.

Olin is survived by his wife Patti and three children, Alexa, 3, and twins Garrett and Kaylee, 6 months.

inning.
In the bottom of the fourth, Brummett singled, stole second and scored on Richard Sanderson's single, pushing Hereford's lead to 5-3. In the sixth, Sanderson walked, stole second and scored on Ramos single.

On the mound, Ramos gave up six hits and walked four while striking out three. Of the three runs he gave up, two were earned. Ray Hastings pitched the final 1 2/3 and picked up the save.

Jerry Rincon came off the bench and went 2-for-2 at the plate. Cano was a defensive standout, collecting five assists and one putout at shortstop.

Hereford has three games this week in preparation for the start of district play next week. The Herd visits Canyon today for a 4 p.m. game, goes to Levelland Friday for a 4:30 game, and hosts Palo Duro at 1 Saturday at Whiteface Field.

Hereford hosts Dumas in the district opener March 30.

Hereford's junior varsity whipped Canyon 10-3 Monday at Whiteface Field. Hereford broke the game open with five runs in the second inning, as Ronald Torres and Wade McPherson each had two-run singles.

Gregg Kalka started and pitched three innings for Hereford. Louis Hernandez relieved for two innings, then Josh Tice threw the final inning.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

CCA concert planned Friday

The Hereford Community Concert Association members are reminded of the Maggini String Quartet performance to begin at 8 p.m. Friday in the Hereford High School auditorium. The musicians have performed chamber music throughout the United States, Great Britain, Eastern and Western Europe and the Far East. This spring the quartet plans to make its first appearance at Tokyo's prestigious Casals Hall as part of a major tour of Japan and Korea.

The Peace of Copenhagen ended the war between Sweden and Denmark in 1660.

In 1925, the first locomotive to haul a passenger train was operated in England by George Stephenson.

The French navy submarine Sybille disappeared in the Mediterranean in 1952. Its crew of 48 was lost.

In 1925, President Grover Cleveland proclaimed amnesty for people convicted of polygamy.

Spring eyewear fashions focus on personal style

From sheer, elegant and long layers to the flowery and funky '70s and bohemian looks, international fashion runways showed a bit of everything for spring, 1993. And, for fashion's newest accessory, eyewear and sunwear, the same holds true.

According to international eyewear manufacturer Safilo Group - whose collections include designers like Gianfranco Ferré, Laura Biagiotti, Gucci and Polo Ralph Lauren - bountiful design options are the rule this season for those wishing to update their eyewear and sunwear wardrobes. Frank Karlo, senior executive at Safilo Group, notes that "although some distinct fashion directions have surfaced this year, the emphasis is now on the wearer's personal style."

Just as individuals choose certain fashions and designer collections most appropriate for their sense of style, eyewear offers the same freedom of expression. And, since it's your face that most people notice first, eyewear can be your most important image builder. In fact, the experts at Safilo Group say not only can the right frames project a specific image - whether it be business-like, dramatic or sporty - they also can enhance and balance facial structure, making wide-set eyes appear closer or a round face appear slimmer.

The correct frame colors can even warm or soften your complexion. Karlo adds that, "Opticians are experts in fitting frames and can easily work with you to select the shapes and colors best for your individual taste and style."

As for some of the newest design trends...the Safilo Group offers a few guidelines. Metal frames, which have been growing in popularity for several seasons are continuing strong this spring, enhanced by jewel tones, multi-colorations and the addition of plastic and enamel accents. Sophisticated, elegant and wearable cat eye spin-offs continue as a popular shape in both eyewear and sunwear collections from Gucci and Laura Biagiotti.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Peter Fonda, who rose to fame in 1969 with "Easy Rider," can hardly believe he's still alive.

"That I've survived and made it to my 53rd birthday is absolutely amazing," he said, alluding to his past drug use and other hard living.

The son of Henry Fonda is in Los Angeles to direct "Southern Rapture." The play stars Sally Kirkland and country music's Dwight Yoakam and opens April 2.

"I'm working for nothing," he said. "It's just a really finely written piece."

"Dear brothers, think! David wasn't referring to himself when he spoke these words I have quoted, for he died and was buried, and his tomb is still here among us! Wyche club hears three-part program

A three-part program was presented by Argen Draper, Shirley Brown and Pet Ott when members of the Wyche Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Marcie Ginn.

"Setting the Pace for Care Givers" was the topic discussed by Draper. She said, "If you are a person caring for someone with dementia, chances are you are building resilience. Resilience is the ability to bounce back, to roll with the punches, and to adjust to change. Resilience influences the many ways we deal with difficult challenges in our lives."

Brown reported on visiting hospitals and nursing homes. She explained, "No visitors are allowed unless permission is given by the physician. Don't visit if you have a cold or other illness. You need to be calm and don't stay too long."

"The Care Givers Bill of Rights" was given by Ott. Some examples she gave included, "I have the right to take care of myself, seek help from others, have the right to get angry or be depressed and have the right to not be manipulated. Most importantly, I should take pride in what I'm accomplishing."

Ginn gave the opening exercise entitled "Lessons From the Geese." Virgie Duncan led the T.E.H.A.

prayer and pledges to the United States and Texas' flags.

President Jo Lee conducted the business meeting and roll call was answered to "caring for the elderly and my experience as a care giver."

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Coreen Odom and Mary Stubblefield gave the treasurer's report.

Members decided to conduct an auction on the second meetings of each month and to have a show and tell period at the first meeting. Clara Trowbridge exhibited a quilt she had finished that her Aunt Goldie Griffith of Friona had started.

Committee reports were heard including the bingo party held for Westgate Nursing Home. Also, a donation of $37 was sent to the American Family Association for a petition to the members of the boards of directors of every major television network urging film, music and record companies to clean up their programs.

Members present were Shirley Brown, Vada Batterman, Argen Draper, Virgie Duncan, Marcie Ginn, Camelia Jones, Jo Lee, Dorothy Lundry, Carol Odom, Coreen Odom, Pet Ott, Mary Stubblefield, Barbara Sterne, LaVerne Worley and Clara Trowbridge.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise. We have an adorable puppy, but he started to get in the habit of chewing on things in our home. I knew I had to put a stop to it before he caused any real damage.

Each day I sat him on my lap and petted and played with him, letting him chew on a rawhide bone. I would pull it away then give it back. When were finished playing I'd put him down and lay the bone next to him so he continued to chew on it.

It's been almost a month now and he's chewed through a few bones but hasn't tried chewing on anything else. — Donna Wilson, Santa Ana, Calif.

Well, it's certainly worth a try.

especially if you start at a young age.

My pamphlet, Heloise's Guide to Dog Ownership, is chock-full of information, including tips on training, feeding and grooming, for new pet owners.

For a copy, please send $2 and a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents), long envelope to: Heloise/Dog #7, PO Box 795001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: When your plastic spatula or scrapers fray on the edges, stop, don't throw them away, simply trim the unsightly edges with your scissors and you will get more mileage out of the utensils.

This scissor-trim method can also be used to change the shape to fit any jar you frequently need to get to the bottom of for the last bit of food. — Beth Needham, S. Salem, Ore.

Flower design video presented

A video on flower design and arranging was shown to members of Bud to Blossom Garden Club when the group met Thursday in the home of Ursula Jacobsen.

Roll call was answered by members describing their favorite design. Also, plans were made to assist with the April birthday party for residents of Westgate Nursing Home.

Those present were Phyllis Brown, Wilma Bryan, Mildred Fuhrmann, Ursula Jacobsen and a guest, Lou Hall.

Film shown to club members

David Bailey, scout executive with Boy Scouts of America in Amarillo, gave a program to members of El Llano Study Club when the group met March 15 in the home of Diane Hoelscher, 207 N. Texas.

Bailey showed slides of his involvement in a group of professionals who re-enact historical events through drama. The re-enactments are staged for the National Park Service for filming of movies, etc., and are authentic in dress as well as all conditions for the period that they are recreating.

Members present were Roberta Caviness, Zula Arney, Ursula Jacobsen, Tonya Kleuskens, Delores Foster, Alice Eades, Keren Abney, Jeanne Ballard, Elizabeth Cossar, Diane Hoelscher and Linda Davis.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I would like to have your opinion on my cholesterol tests. I have them taken each year. My latest test results are: total cholesterol, 230; HDL, 91; LDL, 127; triglycerides 91. Last year, my total cholesterol was 278; my LDL, 167.

I worked very hard trying to limit the fat in my diet. I'm 67 years old, 5 feet 2 inches and weigh 110. My doctor tells me I have nothing to worry about because of the HDL reading. I would like to get the cholesterol reading down to 200. What do you think?

DEAR READER: Your test results indicate that you have made significant progress in the past year in lowering both your total cholesterol and LDL. Your previous LDL of 167 was too high.

But you have proved that you can improve your values by your diet. That is great news, and there is certainly no reason for you to take medicine.

One way of looking at cholesterol levels is to divide the total cholesterol (in your case 230) by the HDL level (in your case 91). The lower that level the less your risk of heart disease because of cholesterol levels. In your case, the ratio is 2.7, which is very good. In women, a ratio of 3.27 is believed to decrease your risk by 50 percent of the average risk. Your excellent ratio means your risk is even less.

Just how protective a high HDL level is in the face of a high total cholesterol level is still a matter for debate, but your level of 230 is quite acceptable. You don't need to make a major effort to reach 200. Just keep following your present program and maintain a good level of physical activity.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Today I learned I have multiple sclerosis. I know very little about the disease but I know there is no cure. It seems so unfair. I'm a 16-year-old honor-roll student, an active participant in the Champions Against Drugs and a National All-American medalist in karate.

I am fortunate right now because my disease isn't spreading as long as I take care of myself. For everyone who might say nothing like that will ever happen to them, believe me, you never can tell, because MS patients appear to be perfectly normal.

DEAR READER: It is hard to accept you have a serious illness when you have been healthy and very active, especially at such a young age. As you probably know, MS causes a loss of the sheath of various nerve fibers in the brain and spinal cord. These are patchy lesions and may subside in one area only to involve another area. The good news is that many people do have remissions that may last a long time. Over 70 percent of patients have a spontaneous remission after an acute episode.

It remains an unpredictable disease, but many young people like yourself do have long-lasting remissions. A few never develop any significant disabilities. With your optimistic attitude you may be one of them. Although there is no specific treatment, acute attacks are often treated with adrenocorticotropic hormone (ACTH), which may shorten the episode. A lot of research is being done, which could mean that should you need it, medicines may be available in the future that are more effective.

DEAR DR. LAMB: For over a year, I have had typical heart attack symptoms—a heavy feeling in the center of my chest, but no pain. Immediately after this, all my teeth ache. This whole affair lasts between 10 to 30 seconds.

I've been to a doctor for a checkup and EKG. Nothing wrong, to my surprise. The problem is I never have an attack when I'm at the doctor's office. These attacks are inconsistent and few. Then sometimes the attacks are daily.

I'm 40 years old, male, 6 feet 2 inches, weigh 220 pounds and in pretty decent shape. Please share your opinion on what you think my problem is.

DEAR READER: Yes, those can be symptoms of angina pectoris (heart pain), but there are also many other things that can cause such symptoms. You could have a spasm of your esophagus, which mimics angina. The story of pain in your teeth is a bit disturbing, because it is true that angina pain can radiate into the jaw.

There are a number of things lacking in your story that would help to decide what is causing your symptoms. Most important is whether the pressure occurs during exertion or at random. Do you have any respiratory symptoms that might account for the reaction?

What are your other test results? Your cholesterol levels? Your blood pressure? Unless you are quite muscular, you do weigh more than you should. It is important to stay on the lean side if you wish to prevent heart disease.

For more details on what could be causing your symptoms, read Special Report 132, Angina Pectoris and Heart Attacks. I wanted to send you a free copy, but your address was not on your letterhead. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/132, P.O. Box 5537, River-ton, NJ 08077.

You should have an exercise test. It is quite common for angina to occur only with exertion and one way of bringing on changes related to angina during an examination is an exercise test. If your exercise test is good, and you have no other significant findings, such as high total cholesterol or elevated blood pressure, I would be dubious about your having angina.
