Henson named Citizen of Year at banquet

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor
Deaf Smith County American Red Cross chapter manager Betty Henson was named Hereford Citizen of the Year on Thursday at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce annual banquet.

The announcement by Hereford Lions Club president Jerry Shipman capped the 2-1/2-hour affair, which included entertainment by Miss Hereford Vanessa Gonzalez and a presentation by ventriloquist and motivational speaker Nacho Estrada. Mrs. Henson was honored for her many years of service in the community. Shipman presented her with a large plaque denoting the honor.

In introducing the award, Shipman said the Citizen of the Year is presented to the "person in our community who personifies the Lions Club Motto 'We Serve.' I cannot think of any person in this town who better fits this description." Shipman said Mrs. Henson is "one of the really dedicated people whose main interest is her job. One of her outstanding characteristics is that she really loves to help people."

He said Mrs. Henson is very involved in the community, operating a clothing room from her office, obtaining clothing for needy school children and working to be at fires and other disasters to lend aid and comfort.

She was cited for her work with the Christmas Stocking Fund and in collecting more than 800 toys for needy children last Christmas.

Mrs. Henson received the chamber's 1990 Bull Chip Award. Shipman quoted Hereford Brand publisher Speedy Nieman as he presented that award, saying she "goes far beyond the call of duty in performing her job. She is truly one of the hidden treasures of hospitable, hustlin' Hereford."

Mrs. Henson was accompanied at the banquet by her husband, Dale, as well as her mother and four of her five children.

Before the presentation of the award to Mrs. Henson, banquet recognized outgoing chamber board president Charles W. Greenawalt and welcomed incoming board chairman Lewis McDaniel.

McDaniel presented Greenawalt with a plaque honoring his service to the board, while Greenawalt also praised the outgoing board members.

During his presentation, Estrada recounted stories from his growing up in Harlingen, then introduced his ventriloquist's dummy "Maclovio," who kept the audience chuckling with repeated references to chamber dignitaries and their appearance, followed by disclaimers that McDaniel, Greenawalt or chamber executive vice president Mike Carr had paid him to pass on the mock insult.

In more serious remarks, Estrada said he passed up an opportunity to make big money on the night club circuit with his dummy, because, "You don't get hugs from kids in nightclubs."

Estrada said he began using a dummy while teaching a special education class 13 years ago.

Maclovio, he said, would answer questions wrong, prompting class members to learn the information in order to correct the dummy.

As a result, he said, many of his students were mainstreamed into regular classrooms and his principal encouraged him to take his presentation on the road.

He also was named one of the nation's top clowns several years ago, he said.

"I believe that all children are gifted," Estrada said, although "some have not opened their gifts.... When a child is taught with love, he learns a lot more than where there is hate."

In closing, Estrada urged his audience to send their children and spouses off to school and work with a hug and an "I love you."

"That," he said, "would make a better Hereford."

Betty Henson was named Citizen of the Year by Hereford Lions Club president Jerry Shipman, left, during Thursday's Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet. She was honored for her many contributions to the community, including her work as manager of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Republicans blocking jobs bill from final Senate vote

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Outnumbered Senate Republicans are blocking a vote on President Clinton's short-term job-creation bill after lining up unanimously against his budget. Clinton called the GOP lawmakers "43 votes for paralysis."

"They want to gut all the job-creating programs," Clinton complained to reporters in Portland, Ore., on Thursday. "The American people have to send them a signal."

If they were getting a signal, the Republican senators didn't let on, offering - and losing - amendment after amendment to the $16.3 billion jobs bill. Democrats, who last year had urged voters to end government gridlock by giving the party control of Congress and the White House, learned in Clinton's 10th week in office that a majority is not enough. Democrats hold 57 of the 100 Senate seats but cannot muster the 60 votes necessary to choke off a filibuster.

"I'm getting a bellyful of this abuse of minority rights," Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., master of Senate rules and longtime protector of minority rights, told colleagues Thursday night.

"They are unwilling to let a new president, who was elected because the people wanted to get rid of gridlock, have a chance."

In Oregon, where he was presiding today at a conference on environmental and timber issues, Clinton chastised the Senate's 43 Republicans, who were threatening to use Senate procedures to block a vote on final passage of the measure.

"They do not get it," he said. "This is 43 votes for paralysis, for gridlock."

Republicans were offended that Democrats were refusing to accept any change in Clinton's bill.

"I don't see any way out of the impasse," said Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, who has offered himself as the spear carrier for the 57 percent of Americans who did not vote for Clinton.

Republicans ridicule the jobs bill as a grab bag of pork-barrel projects that would do little to help the economy - which, they contend, is recovering nicely anyway. Democrats say the extra spending for everything from public works to child immunization is needed to create jobs that have been slow to come out of the sluggish recovery.

The GOP campaign against the bill threatened Democratic plans to get the completed measure to Clinton before Congress recesses for two weeks. That still could happen - but the start of the break might be delayed beyond its scheduled start tonight.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, indicated he would force Republicans to vote daily on motions to choke off the debate, perhaps starting as early as today.

We missed the Chamber Banquet Thursday night, due to a previous commitment at the Panhandle Press convention in Amarillo, and it's the first one we've missed in our 21 years of living in Hereford.

Anyway, we add our congratulations to Betty Henson on being named "Citizen of the Year." It's a well deserved honor. As a member of the Lions Club selection committee, we knew those who were nominated and all were deserving. The past presidents of the club vote and only the current president, who counts the ballots, knows the identity of the winner.

The Brand had an April Fool's picture in Thursday's paper, and we hope all our readers found it amusing. Such was not the case with our prank last year!

Not everyone has the same sense of humor. It's a proven fact that laughter is good for you, but not everyone can laugh at the same thing.

That thought leads us to an article we read recently. Many doctors are encouraging their patients to laugh their way to health. A story was told about a man who was diagnosed as having a fatal disease and told he had only a short time to live.

The man, of course, was devastated. He went home and began to get his affairs in order. His depression consumed him and he began to get worse. But then, the man did something different. He went to a video store and rented all the old Three Stooges comedies he could get. The man began to watch them and laugh out loud. He now tells everyone that laughter saved his life and has given him the strength to fight the disease. He is convinced you can laugh your way to health.

Laughter is magic. It may not heal but it has become a practiced technique to help patients in both their physical and mental states.

A Methodist Hospital psychologist, Dr. Matthew Lambert, made these suggestions:

--Take a laugh break when stress gets you down. Listen to comedy tapes.

--Develop comic vision. If you look hard enough, humor can be found in most situations. As comedian Steve Allen stated in an interview: "Nothing is funnier than the unintended humor of reality."

--Find a funny friend. Whether it's a personal friend or a favorite comedian, the next time you're in a difficult situation, try to view it through his or her eyes.

--Delight yourself. Make a list of things you really enjoy doing--whether it's roller skating, dancing or watching old movies. Try to do it at least once a week.

Change clocks for Sunday time shift Proponents seek to extend daylight-saving time period

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation springs ahead an hour to daylight-saving time Sunday. And while that won't really save daylight, it will save lives, according to an insurance study.

It's been 75 years since the country first experimented with shifting an hour of light from morning to evening.

And advocates are pressing Congress to extend the daylight-saving period by another month or so.

For the record, in most of the nation clocks should be shifted ahead one hour, local time, at 2 a.m. Sunday. That means losing an hour, which will be returned Oct. 31 when standard time takes hold again.

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety recently released a study estimating that 200 lives could be saved each year if daylight-saving time were in effect year around, largely because the extra hour of evening light increases highway and pedestrian safety.

"Adding an hour of light in the afternoon increases the visibility of vehicles and pedestrians," said Brian O'Neill, president of the institute.

Institute officials noted that the afternoon rush hour is longer and heavier than the morning rush hour; children are engaged in unsupervised play in the afternoon; and there are more alcohol-impaired drivers in the afternoon and evening.

In addition, more light in the evening tends to reduce urban crime, especially at Halloween, the report said.

Halloween could get daylight time under a bill proposed by Reps. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., and Carlos J. Moorhead, R-Calif.

They would shift the start of daylight-saving time to mid-March and the end to early November. Currently, standard time returns on the last Sunday in October.

First suggested by Benjamin Franklin, daylight-saving time was not instituted until World War I, when the aim was to save energy used for lights.

Today, the shift permits folks to enjoy after-work leisure such as barbecues and gardening.

It's not universally popular, though. Farmers note that their livestock don't live by a clock, and complain that they have to adjust their working hours to deal with the animals. In addition, when daylight-time was tried out year-around, people complained that children were endangered by having to walk to school or wait for school buses in the dark.

Unemployment rate stays steady

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's jobless rate held at 7.0 percent in March as job gains in the previous month disappeared and only a few service industries such as health care managed to add employment, the government reported today.

The report figured to strengthen President Clinton's case for passage by Congress of a $16.3 billion jobs-creation bill that Republicans have stalled in the Senate. Republicans argued the measure is unnecessary because the economic recovery is strengthening and beginning to accelerate the pace of job growth.

The Labor Department said its survey of business payrolls showed that employment in March fell by 22,000 from the month before.

Two players share lotto jackpot

AUSTIN (AP) - One picked the numbers at random, while the other set up a personal drawing system, complete with Ping-Pong balls. Now they will be multi-millionaires after cashing in the two winning tickets of a $14.2 million lotto jackpot.

John Martinez, a 38-year-old nurse at Saint Paul Hospital in Dallas, said Thursday that he bought and numbered 50 Ping-Pong balls, and poured them into a popcorn tin to have his own drawing.

He chose six balls, and the numbers were the winners in Wednesday's drawing.

As he and his wife of five weeks, Antoinette Bingham, watched the drawing on television, he said, "All I need is 44," and it popped in there just like you were playing bingo."

Meanwhile, Mary Lucille Hays, a 38-year-old bookkeeper from Converse, said one-half hour before the drawing, she went to the store and picked her Lotto numbers at random.

She turned on the television just as the numbers were drawn. "I went crazy," she said.

Both players will receive $7.1 million over 20 years.

Martinez said he plans to go back to school now, and that he and his wife will go on the honeymoon they missed.

Ms. Hays said she'll pay off the mortgage on her home and set up her three children "so they don't have to struggle through life."

U.S. spending stands at $70 million in state

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government spent almost $70 million in Texas last year, the third-highest total for a state, which breaks down into almost $4,000 spent per Texan, says the Census Bureau.

Overall, the government spent $4,599 for every American last year, $317 more than the year before, the agency said Thursday.

Altogether, federal spending in the states totaled $1.2 trillion during the government's 1992 fiscal year, which ended last Sept. 30. That's nearly 9 percent more than the year before.

More than half that money went directly to individuals as retirement, disability, Social Security or other benefits.

The $69,856 million spent in Texas was behind only California at $139,695 million and New York's $83,923 million.

The per capita figure of $3,956.46 was the 13th highest among the 50 states and the District of Columbia.

The government spent the most money per person in Alaska, $6,783, and the least per person in Indiana, $3,529.

Spending grew fastest for programs that help people in need. Payments to workers whose low incomes qualified them for the earned income tax credit rose 59 percent, to $8.5 million. Unemployment compensation was up 51 percent, to $36.4 billion.

Government health payments were also up sharply. Medicaid rose by 29 percent to $67.8 billion; Medicare by 26 percent, to $147.9 billion.

Spending on goods and services for the Defense Department fell by 8 percent last year, to $129.1 billion. For all other agencies, purchasing was up by 4 percent, to $71.1 billion.

Showdown is expected on election of judiciary

AUSTIN (AP) - The stage has been set for a showdown vote next week on the judicial election system.

Sen. Rodney Ellis, D-Houston, said Thursday a majority of senators support a plan to divide nine urban counties into smaller judicial districts for the election of state judges. The proposal will be considered Monday, he said.

"There is clearly a lack of confidence on the part of minorities in the Texas judicial system, and it's completely justified," Ellis said.

"There is a distinct possibility that if we as Texans in general don't do a better job of addressing some of the concerns of minority citizens, one of our cities will blow up," he said.

But Republicans oppose the election plan. GOP senators say they want state district court judges to be appointed and then face non-partisan retention elections.

A panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that the current countywide method of electing judges in nine urban counties discriminates against blacks and Hispanics because white bloc voting prevents minority-backed candidates from winning election.

For example, Harris County has a 42 percent minority population, but only five of its 59 state district court judges are black or Hispanic.

In response to the ruling, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales has negotiated a settlement that would cut those counties into smaller districts from which judicial candidates could run for office.

Morales told senators Thursday that he wanted lawmakers to endorse the plan before he tries to persuade the New Orleans-based 5th Circuit Court to accept it.

Distractions
dangerous

Behind the wheel distractions which steal a driver's concentration—even if only for a second—can be quite dangerous.

Here's advice on avoiding typical distractions:

-If you must trim a few whiskers, freshen make-up or comb your hair while traveling, pull off the road while you do so.

-Checking a report before a meeting or jotting down a quick note shouldn't be done behind the wheel. If you must read and write, pull well off the roadway.

-Most cellular telephone manufacturers recommend dialing at the side of the road, not while driving. These companies also recommend a speaker phone adapter so you can talk while keeping both hands on the wheel.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Have you ever dried a sweater or something that you didn't want to go into the dryer? I lay a clothes hanger on top of the washer to remind me there's something in there that needs to be hung up or laid out. — Margie Berry, Red Oak, Iowa

TELEPHONE BOOKS

Dear Heloise: We are close to the North Carolina border, and quite a few members of our church group live in North Carolina. It is difficult at times to obtain a telephone number for a person over the border.

The Ladies Guild came up with the idea of having both the South Carolinians and the North Carolinians swap their old telephone books to reach people outside the telephone area listed in the local book. — V. J. Doyle, North Myrtle Beach, S.C.

And you are helping recycle phone books that otherwise might end up in a landfill. Glad you wrote. — Heloise

Ryan gets last start in Astrodome

HOUSTON (AP) - Nolan Ryan comes home to memories tonight in the Astrodome.

Most of them are pleasant. "I think the community feels good about the Astros this year the way they felt about the 1980 and 1986 teams so I'm glad to come back to pitch here with those pleasant memories," Ryan said.

Ryan, who pitched nine seasons for the Houston Astros before jumping to the Texas Rangers in 1989, returns home for his final exhibition appearance before a packed house that will include bus loads of fans from nearby Alvin, his hometown.

Not all of Ryan's memories are agreeable. He left after a contract dispute with former owner John McMullen and never expected to pitch again in the Astrodome.

"My feelings haven't changed," Ryan said. "They've never changed toward the organization or the fans. I left there because of John McMullen's attitude."

Ryan expects to have strong feelings tonight, he just doesn't know what they will be.

"I'm not saying it won't be emotional, but I don't think about those things in advance," Ryan said. "When I get out there on the field, and see a lot of people, it's hard to say how I'll handle that."

He pitched on division championships in 1980 and 1986 before leaving.

"I think the 1986 year, I enjoyed more," Ryan said. "I had established relationships with some of those players. That team stayed together longer than any I'd been on so it was a really special time."

The showdown between the two Texas teams has been billed as the Lone Star Classic and Astros officials are happy Ryan didn't suffer an injury that would have prevented an appearance.

"If something happened that I didn't pitch, I'd probably have to go ahead and move out of the Alvin-Houston area," Ryan said.

Ryan pitched his fifth career no-hitter in the Astrodome before adding Nos. 6 and 7 with the Rangers.

"On a personal basis, I'm looking forward to the game," Ryan said. "When I left I never anticipated the opportunity to pitch in Houston again. When I made my last start here I didn't realize it would be my last start."

Ryan recalled leaving his final game with a hamstring injury in September of the 1988 season while pitching against the Los Angeles Dodgers and Orel Hershiser.

"I never gave a thought that my career pitching in Houston was over until after the fact," Ryan said. "The fans in the Dome were very supportive when I pitched in the Astrodome."

"I hope I have a good performance and give the fans who were so supportive of me over those nine years a chance to see me pitch one more time."

Ryan will be going through the "one more time" routine throughout the season of victory tours in the American League.

"I'm looking forward to it from an excitement standpoint, it's something fun to do," Ryan said. "People ask me how I'll feel the last time pitching in certain stadiums."

"I really don't know, it just depends on how it strikes me and what's going on at the time."

"There's good things and bad things that you would like to be different. But I look back at everything that's happened in my career with fond memories."

Clutch performer

Wade McPherson of the Hereford junior varsity rips a two-run triple in Hereford's 10-4 win over Friona Thursday in Hereford.

Herd JV gets two wins

United they stand; divided they...well, they still stand.

Hereford's junior varsity baseball team split into two even squads Thursday, and both squads got wins. One team stayed home and beat Friona's varsity 10-4, the other went to Canyon and beat the Eagles' JV 10-2.

In Hereford, the Whitefaces trailed 3-1 going into the bottom of the third but took the lead for good on Wade McPherson's two-run triple and a score on a sac fly. Hereford added two runs in each of the next three innings: in the fourth, Marc Haney and Jacob Moreno each singled and scored; in the fifth, Gabriel Guerrero and Haney each singled and scored; in the sixth, McPherson singled and scored and Guerrero walked and scored.

Louis Hernandez pitched the first six innings, and Scott Ahola pitched the seventh. Ahola moved to Hereford from Vernon this week, coach Chris Christopher said.

In Canyon, Gregg Kalka pitched a complete game and struck out 9 Eagles. Wade Backus and Homer Hamilton led a balanced offense, each with two hits and two runs.

Hereford's combined junior varsity record improved to 15-5-1, said coach Charlie Garza.

Hornets have no problem with O'Neal-less Orlando

By The Associated Press Shaquille O'Neal's ill-advised punch has helped knock the Orlando Magic out of the eighth playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

The rookie center served a one-game suspension Thursday night as Orlando was at home to Charlotte, and the Hornets took advantage of the absence of an intimidator for a 102-93 victory.

The Magic (33-35) dropped a half-game behind Indiana (34-35) for the eighth and final spot.

In other games, New York beat Cleveland 91-83, New Jersey topped Miami 95-82, Houston defeated Milwaukee 121-115 and Sacramento downed Washington 117-97.

"With Shaquille or without Shaquille, we came out ready to play. We knew this was a big game," said Hornets guard Muggsy Bogues.

O'Neal was suspended Wednesday for fighting with Detroit's Alvin Robertson on Tuesday night. With backups Greg Kite and Brian Williams defending him, Charlotte center Alonzo Mourning had 30 points, nine rebounds and three blocked shots.

Orlando particularly felt O'Neal's absence on the defensive end as the Hornets drove the lane without fear of having their shots blocked.

Mourning downplayed the absence of O'Neal, who had averaged 32 points and 14 rebounds in two games against the Hornets earlier this season.

"We capitalized on their mistakes. That was the biggest factor in the game," Mourning said.

Mourning made 13 of 21 shots from the field, while Larry Johnson had 22 points and 15 rebounds for Charlotte. The Hornets made 17 of 20 free throws in the fourth quarter.

Knicks 91, Cavaliers 83

New York (49-20) opened a one-game lead over Chicago (48-21) in the race for the homecourt advantage through the Eastern Conference playoffs.

Rockets 121, Bucks 115

At Houston, the Rockets got seven free throws from Vernon Maxwell in the final four minutes to hold off the Bucks.

Hakeem Olajuwon scored 24 points and Maxwell had 21.

Plane crash kills race car driver

BLOUNTVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Investigators began probing the plane crash that killed Winston Cup defending champion Alan Kulwicki and at least three others aboard.

The names of the dead were not immediately released, but various associates of the driver said there was no doubt that he was aboard the twin-engine turboprop. There were no survivors of the crash.

Kulwicki, 38, died Thursday night when the plane registered in his name crashed and burned while flying him here for Sunday's race at Bristol International Raceway.

One of the most popular drivers on the Winston Cup circuit, Kulwicki had signed autographs earlier Thursday in Knoxville, Tenn., 90 miles to the southwest, and then flew here.

The other victims were believed to be one or two pilots, the marketing director of a restaurant chain that sponsors Kulwicki and a relative of one of the chain's executives.

"Four people were in the plane," Sullivan County sheriff Keith Carr said early this morning. "It is our belief the deaths were instantaneous. It was a very traumatic crash."

He said the bodies had been taken to the Quillen College of Medicine in Johnson City and would be held there for federal investigators.

The Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board are sending investigators to the crash site.

Joe Minor of the Bristol Lifesaving Crew said the plane went down behind some houses about 350 yards off a main highway between Bristol and Blountville. He said the airplane was engulfed in flames.

Dale Cannon, air traffic manager at the Tri-Cities Regional Airport, said air traffic controllers lost radio contact with the Merlin turbo prop about 9:30 p.m. EST.

Officials said the plane was on final approach to the airport, traveling behind a plane carrying driver Dale Earnhardt, a five-time Winston Cup champion.

Christy DeBord, 17, who lives near the crash site, said, "I was standing in the kitchen when I heard what sounded like an engine sputtering. Then I heard an explosion and looked and saw a big ball of flames."

Other witnesses said the plane appeared to have gone down nose first on a secluded hill behind some houses near a grove of trees.

The weather was overcast but dry, witnesses said.

Wildcats, Wolverines are well-named teams

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Wildcats and wolverines, not the friendliest creatures in nature, share hunting traits adopted by their namesakes at the Final Four:

Cunning, quickness, strength. Soaring leaps, voracious attacks, relentless survival instincts.

Kentucky's Wildcats and Michigan's Wolverines embody those characteristics with their wily defenses - different in style from each other but similarly tenacious - and their love of the chase in the open court on offense.

If they play Saturday night at the pace and intensity they're capable of reaching, it'll be a Final Four classic.

North Carolina and Kansas, the first of the two semifinals at the Superdome, are perhaps more lookalikes in talent and strategy, with the lineage clearly defined from coach Dean Smith to former assistant Roy Williams.

The Wildcats and Wolverines are distinctly aggressive predators and have the players to run anyone off.

Kentucky has been more consistent lately, romping from victory to victory at a 31-point clip in the NCAA tournament. Michigan has been tortured by the slower styles of George Washington and Temple, but still came out a winner.

If Kentucky matured under the crucible of attention when coach Rick Pitino came in 1989 to rescue the team from scandal and probation, Michigan's Fab Five has grown up under no less pressure since the start of its freshman season last year.

In their own ways, each team has learned to survive.

Each has a probable NBA lottery pick as its star - Kentucky's Jamal Mashburn and Michigan's Chris Webber - yet each sacrifices individuality for team solidarity and success, measured in their 30 victories apiece.

"I have concerns with stopping the Michigan team more than one player," Pitino said, putting off worries about Webber's strength inside and shooting outside or Jalen Rose's 11-inch height advantage at point guard over Travis Ford.

"You can't concentrate on one basketball player. I think that's the mistake that other teams have made with us, and other (Wildcats) have burned them. At this stage of the game, it's not one person, it's not two, it's a team. The team concerns me more than the individual."

Michigan can't double-team the 6-foot-8 Mashburn too much, even if he averages nearly 21 points a game. He also averages 4.5 assists in the tournament, meaning he'll burn the Wolverines by passing to someone open if they try to smother him.

"Mashburn is one of, if not the best player in the country," Michigan coach Steve Fisher said.

Michigan's defense will have to keep up with 6-9 freshman Jared Prickett, who has come in on strong late in the season to make the Wildcats more dangerous in the open court.

And if Ford lacks height at 5-9, he makes up for it in his quick moves, good outside shooting and all-court savvy that are reflected only partly by his average of 13.7 points and 4.8 assists.

Likewise, Kentucky can't single out Webber, Rose, Ray Jackson, Jimmy King or Juwan Howard, each of them capable of dominating a game.

Instead, the key will be Kentucky's full-court pressure on defense, Rose's suspect ball-handling and whether Michigan as a team will be able to cope with it. Steal the ball or block the shots - Rodney Dent has 35 blocks for Kentucky - the Wildcats are in their opponents' faces all game.

They also have depth with Gimel Martinez and Rodrick Rhodes, but so do the Wolverines with 7-footer Eric Riley and outside shooters Rob Pelinka and James Voskuil.

"I think we're playing with great confidence," Pitino said. "I think it's more due to the defense than anything else. Your defense has got to key that kind of run."

Women's Final Four time nearing

ATLANTA (AP) - All the anticipation, all the waiting, all the drilling by the coaches and the grilling by the media - it's all just about over. Four newcomers to the women's Final Four are after that first-time thrill of a national title.

First up in Saturday's semifinal round at the sold-out Omni is No. 1 Vanderbilt against No. 5 Texas Tech. Then it's a rubber match for two Big Ten rivals, No. 3 Ohio State and No. 4 Iowa.

"This is something we looked at a long time ago as a goal and a dream," Texas Tech coach Marsha Sharp said. "To reach it is very exciting."

The opener features the nation's No. 1 team against the No. 1 player, Tech's Sheryl Swoopes.

Swoopes, named the national player of the year on Thursday, has averaged 33 points a game in NCAA play and averages 27.4 for the season, plus 9.3 rebounds. With her ability to run the floor, shoot, jump, rebound and pass, she has been compared first to former Southern Cal star Cheryl Miller, then to Michael Jordan.

She'll certainly get a lot of attention from Vanderbilt's defense, but Swoopes says any team that concentrates solely on stopping her would be making a mistake.

"If the other teams are just focusing on me, that just motivates everyone else on our team," Swoopes said. "When people overlook them, it just allows them to go out and shoot the ball and score a lot of points."

Tech (29-3) does have two other double-figure scorers. Krista Kirkland averages 12.8 points a game and shoots 44.6 percent from 3-point range. Cynthia Clinger is averaging 11 points and shooting 59 percent from the field.

Likewise, Tech can't get caught up worrying just about Vanderbilt's 6-foot-10 center, Heidi Gillingham. Gillingham does lead the team in scoring with a 14.3 average, but six others have been the top scorer for the Commodores (30-2) in at least one game this season.

And while Gillingham and Shelley Jarrard were first-team all-Southeastern Conference picks, Vandy's Mara Cunningham was the most valuable player in the SEC tournament and was joined by Misty Lamb on the all-tourney team.

"The key has been unselfish play and the willingness to keep egos in check - if we had any egos to begin with," coach Jim Foster said.

Vanderbilt was strong throughout most of the 1980s, but Foster - in his second season at the school - has been able to take the Commodores the next step. This is the first time a Vanderbilt team has been ranked No. 1 in any sport.

Gillingham has been among the national leaders in field goal percentage (.623) and blocked shots (104) all season. She gets plenty of scoring help from Julie Powell (12.7), Jarrard (11.6) and Lamb (10.3).

"They are such a balanced team," Sharp said. "Obviously, we'll try to double down on Gillingham and try to make her do some things she doesn't want to do, but I think our scheme will be to defend the entire team."

Iowa and Ohio State, both 27-3, won't have to spend any time getting to know each other. They shared the Big Ten title with 16-2 records and split their two regular-season games, each winning on its own floor.

Ohio State has enjoyed a dramatic turnaround. Only two years ago, the Buckeyes were 11-17.

"We were not a unit at all," coach Nancy Darsch said. "It was a very difficult year in terms of structure and behavior and in terms of commitment. The transformation that has happened is a credit to our seniors and my assistant coaches and the new players coming that have helped give us a transfusion."

One of the newcomers is Katie Smith, the Big Ten's freshman of the year. The 5-11 forward leads the Buckeyes with an 18-point scoring average. Guard Averill Roberts averages 15.5 points.

Iowa has endured enough heartbreak this season to last a lifetime. Coach Vivian Stringer's husband, Bill, died of a heart attack on Thanksgiving Day. The Hawkeyes also had to cope with the deaths of a former ball girl, their team physician and men's player Chris Street.

Yet they lead the nation in defense and have matched the second-best victory total in school history.

"We have overcome an awful lot," Stringer said. "My husband was my best friend and he is the reason why I was successful. He was my biggest fan and he worked very closely with the team as well.

"It was a relief because we finally reached this stage, but it is sad because he, more than anyone, would have been so proud and happy to see that."

Swoopes makes Kodak team

ATLANTA (AP) - Texas Tech's Sheryl Swoopes, who won Player of the Year honors Thursday, today was named to the 1993 Kodak Women's All-America team for the second year in a row.

The only other repeater from last year on the 10-player team was Val Whiting of Stanford.

Swoopes and her Lady Raiders teammates will meet Vanderbilt in the first game of Saturday's NCAA semifinals at The Omni in Atlanta. The other game pairs Big Ten rivals Iowa and Ohio State.

Each of the other Final Four teams also had a player on the All-America team - Heidi Gillingham of Vanderbilt, freshman Katie Smith of Ohio State and Toni Foster of Iowa.

The team also included the nation's leading scorer, Andrea Congreaves of Mercer, who averaged 31 points.

Others named to the team were Lauretta Freeman of Auburn, Lisa Harrison of Tennessee, Karen Jennings of Nebraska and Milica Vukadinovic of California.

Lubbock goes 'nuts' for Lady Red Raiders

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Sports bar owner Todd LaLonde already is planning how many Bloody Marys to mix and tables to scoot when Saturday's crush of Texas Tech fans hits his Conference Cafe.

LaLonde is expecting a heavy crowd of women's basketball fans who weren't able to get tickets to the NCAA semifinals in Atlanta, where Nov. 5 Texas Tech takes on No. 1 Vanderbilt.

"The phone is ringing off the hook," LaLonde happily explained Thursday. "I'm telling them to get here early."

Red Raider Madness is sweeping this windy city like dust across the plains. Grocery store signs proclaim good luck wishes, and streamers flutter around many businesses.

"The community is going nuts," said Tech sports information director Joe Hornaday.

"The bottom line is everybody is starved for a winner," said megafan Reynolds Miller, a 1967 Tech graduate who will be in Atlanta for Saturday's game.

"To have a winner of this magnitude is beyond comprehension."

Tech (29-3) plays Vanderbilt (30-2) in the NCAA semifinals at 11:10 a.m. Saturday, with the winner advancing to Sunday's championship game against the winner of Saturday's Ohio State-Iowa game.

The Lady Raiders are riding a 17-game winning streak, currently the best for a men's or women's team, and the support of a city that can't get enough of coach Marsh Sharp's "Sharp Shooters."

"It's almost like the Lady Raider Madness has taken on a life of its own," said Jim Douglass, assistant director of the Tech Ex-Students Association.

"Every conversation in town - no matter what you're talking about - starts off with talk of the team."

A group of faithful fans mobbed Lubbock International Airport when the team arrived from last weekend's 79-54 rout of Colorado to win the West Region.

"It's kind of a common thread that everybody's come together as a city," Miller said. "It's exciting. Everybody's proud."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is in response to "Nameless, Faceless and Placeless" who was 46 years old and pregnant, and her husband didn't want the baby. You said he sounded like a "nutcase" with "strudel in his noodle."

Really, Ann. You must be joking. How can you fault a man who will be damn near 70 years old when his kid finally graduates college? Can you blame the guy for wanting peace and quiet in his retirement?

You were much too hard on him--Irate in Metairie, La.

DEAR IRATE: I don't buy your beef. A man who feels so strongly about not having any more children should put a lock on his zipper or get a vasectomy.

Here's another letter from a guy who thinks like you:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How dare you accuse a man of being crazy just because he doesn't want to become a father at 46 and go to the kid's high school graduation at age 64 and college graduation at 68. If he lives long enough, he might see a grandchild when he's 71.

Until you and the other feminists realize that males have the same rights to parental destiny as females, I see no change in the number of women who are killed every year by their husbands.

You insist that men become more caring and loving toward their families, but whenever we try, women and the law treat us like dirt. We are entitled to equal rights in the decision of childbirth.

It's time to add a male perspective

The prophet Mohammed died in A.D. 632.

to your column, or maybe you should pack it in.--Larry in Michigan

DEAR LARRY: I have no plans to pack it in, so you'd better get used to it. Anyone who thinks it's OK for men to keep killing women until they get equal rights regarding parenthood has a few screws loose. As far as I'm concerned, when males share in pregnancy and labor pains, I'll gladly plead the case for equal rights.

Your letter makes two from the male perspective. Keep reading for a woman's point of view.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say something to the 46-year-old man who was furious when he learned that his wife was pregnant?

In December 1953, I found out I was expecting again. I was 39 and my husband was 53. We already had five children ages 9 to 20. I prayed to God to take this baby from me. I didn't need another child. We were having a hard time supporting the five we had. I was beside myself.

Ann, that pregnancy was the easiest of all. I had a healthy baby girl in September 1954. When that child was 8, I had an accident and needed to depend on her since all the older children had left home.

Then, after my husband died, again my precious little girl, who had taken care of her father, helped see me through.

When I remarried and her stepfather became ill, she was there for me again. Now I am very ill and that same child has allowed me to live in her home where she is caring for me.

When I asked God what I would do with another baby, he sent this child to show me. That change-of-life baby changed my life in ways I never dreamed possible. So please tell that woman who wrote that she should thank God for having blessed her in this special way.--D.M.W., Warner Robins, Ga.

DEAR D.M.W.: Thank you for bringing some sanity and compassion to the table.

Do you have questions about sex, but no old to talk to? Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," is frank and to the point. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the man who was overwhelmed with medical bills from his estranged wife's fatal accident caught my attention. He said all he can think about now is how much his daughter will miss because he won't be able to send her to college.

Please, Ann, tell him that just because he can't pay for his daughter's college doesn't mean she can't go. There are scholarships all over the place and a surprising number of them are not even awarded because there is no qualified applicant. In some cases, there are no applicants at all.

He may want to help her start researching these scholarships and grants ahead of time. Her high school counselor should be helpful in this search. Local clubs sometimes have small scholarships that few people are aware of. Most colleges help students find part-time or full-time jobs. Student loans are also available, although she may have to struggle a bit to repay larger ones. So what? It's worth it in the long run.

This father should help his daughter mourn the loss of her mother--not the loss of a college education. She can't replace her mother, but she can go to college if she really wants to.--Paula in Corpus Christi, Texas

DEAR PAULA: Thank you for a letter that could make a big difference in a great many lives. Guidance counselors in high schools can be enormously helpful. Just today, I saw some statistics that said a college graduate will have a starting salary exactly double that of a high school graduate.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've just done the most difficult thing of my entire life. I placed my mother in a nursing home. The darling woman felt she was still able to live alone and didn't want to go to the home. Unfortunately, it was no longer possible for me to keep caring for her. I had no choice.

I have two sisters who live out of state. They both say they feel very sorry for my wife and me because we've had to take care of Mother's needs ever since Dad died six years ago. They visit Mom once or twice a year but never stay for more than a day or two. One of my sisters is a widow, and the other is divorced. Neither of them works, so there is no reason they can't contribute more of their time to Mom's care. All they do is complain that Mom calls on the phone and has nothing to talk about.

Incidentally, I've seen Mom's will, and her estate will be divided equally among the three of us. Please don't get me wrong. I don't want the money. I would just like some help from my sisters. Am I being unreasonable? Please level with me, Ann. Sign me--Weary in Illinois

DEAR WEARY: No, you aren't being unreasonable. Your story is one I've heard before. And often. My advice is to quiet pussy-footing around. Get your sisters to come together because you have something important to discuss. Tell them in plain language that you need some help. Sit down with a calendar and mark up the times you expect them to come see their mother so you can have some freedom. I've said it before, and I'll say it again -- nobody can take advantage of you without your permission.

Gem of the Day: If looks could kill, millions of people would die with bridge cards in their hands.

Forget to save some of your favorite Ann Landers columns? "Nuggets and Doozies" is the answer. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5 (this includes postage and handling) to: Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Southwest Outdoors

with Mel Phillips

Out of the mouths of our children come the questions that cause parents to re-examine their priorities and alter their actions. Last weekend we took our youngest daughters, Catherine and Lauren, to Red River for their first ski trip. Searching through the clothes boxes in the attic for some hand-me-down ski apparel triggered a flood of memories of similar trips during the 1970s when our oldest daughter Abby, now an honors student at Sweet Briar College in Virginia, was first introduced to the joy of skiing.

My wife and I retired to the kitchen where we shared a cup of coffee and were quietly discussing those good old days when in popped Catherine, our eight-year-old, who asked, "Don't you want to go to Red River?" "Of course," we answered and waited to hear the cause for her initial concern.

"I want to know why you are not jumping for joy," she demanded and then proceeded to bounce out of the kitchen just as suddenly as she had appeared.

After raising one daughter through the perils of being a teenager and now facing that task with the next two, it suddenly dawned on us that "jumping for joy" and "new adventures" had been replaced by "breathing a sigh of relief when the pitfalls of adolescence had been avoided."

A special thanks to a wise Catherine for reminding us that occasionally we all need to jump for joy and let the concerns for worldly problems retreat into the background, even if just for a little while.

K-Mart signs with Seahawks

By The Associated Press

A trio of talented receivers - Irving Fryar, Kelvin Martin and Billy Brooks - changed teams in the span of a few hours as the NFL continued to see the most player movement since the days when it competed against the USFL.

Fryar, the second-leading receiver in New England Patriots history, was traded Thursday to the Miami Dolphins for undisclosed future draft choices.

Martin, a six-year veteran of the Dallas Cowboys and ace kick returner, signed with the Seattle Seahawks as an unrestricted free agent. Brooks, the second all-time leading receiver for the Indianapolis Colts, also changed teams via free agency, signing with the Buffalo Bills.

Three other unrestricted free agent receivers already have changed teams. Mark Ingram went from the New York Giants to the Dolphins, Mark Jackson from the Denver Broncos to the Giants, and Gary Clark from the Washington Redskins to the Phoenix Cardinals.

In another NFL deal Thursday, cornerback Vinnie Clark was traded from the Green Bay Packers to the Atlanta Falcons for an undisclosed 1993 draft choice.

Martin, 27, caught 32 passes for 359 yards and three touchdowns for the Cowboys last season. He became the second player to join the Seahawks in the NFL's new free agency system. The Seahawks signed Ferrell Edmunds, a tight end from the Dolphins, three weeks ago.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

"SPIRITUAL WICKEDNESS IN HIGH PLACES"

THE BIBLE SPEAKS OF "SPIRITUAL WICKEDNESS IN HIGH PLACES" (EPH. 6:12) SOMETIMES THOSE IN AUTHORITY USED THEIR HIGH OFFICE FOR THEIR PERSONAL GRATIFICATION. THE BIBLE RECOUNTS NUMEROUS EXAMPLES OF THIS CONDUCT. DAVID'S SEDUCTION OF URIAH'S WIFE, ELI'S DRUNKEN SONS, JEZEBEL'S GREAT WICKEDNESS IN HER PAGAN WORSHIP. IN DAVID'S CASE, GOD SENT THE PROPHET NATHAN OUT OF THE WILDERNESS TO REBUKE HIS SINFUL BEHAVIOR. AGAIN, THE LORD PICKED A HUMBLE PROPHET FROM THE WILDERNESS TO BEAR THE DIRE TIDINGS OF THE EVENTUAL DESTRUCTION OF ELI'S SONS FOR THEIR UNFORGIVABLE BEHAVIOR. IN JEZEBEL'S CASE, THE GREAT PROPHET ELIJAH WAS BROUGHT FORTH, AGAIN OUT OF THE WILDERNESS, TO PREDICT VIOLENT DEATH FOR HER MOCKERY OF GOD. IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE THAT, INVARIABLY, THE HIGHER THE PERSONAGES...THE MORE HUMBLE THE MESSENGER FROM GOD!

THUS SAITH THE LORD! DID I NOT APPEAR UNTO THY FATHER'S HOUSE IN THE DAYS OF EGYPT? AND DID I NOT CHOOSE THY FATHER'S HOUSE OUT OF ALL THE TRIBES OF ISRAEL!

HILLSIDE, N.J. (AP) - Wynonna Judd's new line of signature eyewear won't just help people see better, but it should help poor people eat better too.

Judd is donating a portion of the proceeds from the Wynonna Collection to Second Harvest, a national network of food banks. She made the announcement Friday at the Community FoodBank in Hillside.

"I was raised by a single parent and we ourselves were on welfare," said Judd, of Franklin, Tenn. "If it hadn't been for organizations like the FoodBank and United Way, we might not have made it. This is going to help me get physically involved in something I believe in."

The glasses will be sold at Liberty Optical, which is also donating a portion of its proceeds.

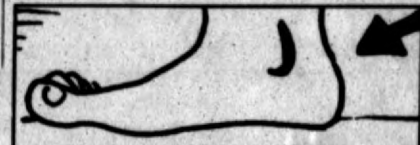

Judd, who performs under the name Wynonna, sang with her mother, Naomi, as The Judds until her mother retired in late 1991 due to chronic hepatitis. Naomi Judd said last fall the liver disease is in remission.

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) - Ted Turner has donated the tall ship the HMS Bounty, used in the filming of the 1962 film "Mutiny on the Bounty," to the Fall River Chamber of Commerce Foundation.

The three-masted ship will sail into Battleship Cove at Fall River in early June, said foundation president Thomas Murray.

Turner Broadcasting System acquired the 169-foot ship, valued between $5 million and $8 million, as part of its purchase of MGM Entertainment Co. in 1986.

The ship will join the battleship Massachusetts and other ships in the cove near Heritage State Park.

If the achilles' tendon in the back of the foot is cut, the person cannot stand on his or her toes.

Senate committee eyes sex education

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - A state Senate committee is considering whether Texas students should be required to learn sex education.

The Senate Education Committee listened Thursday to debate over whether students in Texas should be taught to practice safe sex or no sex at all.

"We need to get back to the basics. We have been teaching our children whatever feels good, do it. That's not right. My money will not go to support the use of condoms," said Melanie Elliott, a fundamental Baptist from Tyler.

Ms. Elliott was one of dozens of people who testified before the Senate Education Committee about three sex education bills.

A bill by Sen. Mike Moncrief, D-Fort Worth, would mandate that all schools teach a self-development program that includes sex education.

The program would include instruction on the benefits of abstaining from sex, pregnancy prevention, AIDS prevention and substance abuse prevention.

Sen. Jane Nelson, R-Flower Mound, is sponsoring legislation that would leave the decision to teach sex education up to individual school districts. If a school decides to teach the classes, it must include lessons on abstinence, according to Ms. Nelson's bill.

"The decision to teach sex education should be made at the local level," Ms. Nelson said.

Another bill, sponsored by Sen. Dan Shelley, R-Crosby, would abolish the Adolescent Pregnancy and Parenthood Advisory Council, a state agency that develops educational programs on topics like contraception.

"I think that parents and a community should have the opportunity to discuss sex education and not have the state of Texas tell them what curriculum is going to be laid out for their children," Shelley said.

All three bills were expected to be referred to a subcommittee after hours of debate.

Ms. Nelson hoped the bills could be consolidated into one measure that would gain approval by the Education Committee and then the full Senate.

"There are a lot of things we agree on," Ms. Nelson said. "We will work hard in subcommittee to get the differences ironed out."

Moncrief defended his bill against critics that said sex education should be left solely to a child's parents.

"We don't live in a world anymore where Mommy stays at home and Daddy goes to work," Moncrief said. "Since the end of World War II, children's lives have been increasingly disrupted by a mobile society and divorce."

"As families spend less and less time together in the home, the next generation is not being cared for as well as we were. They are getting most of their information about life, or misinformation, from a variety of sources and usually not their parents."

Sylvia Ostos, a spokeswoman for the Texas Parent Teachers Association, supported Moncrief's bill, saying "we have to have a curriculum in place."

"Today's schools are called upon to deal with increasing numbers of kids reared by life and searching for a value system that works," Ms. Ostos said. "Texas desperately needs this bill now."

Moncrief said his bill would help curb what he called alarming statistics in the state provided by the Texas Department of Health, including:

- More than 100,000 teen-age pregnancies in 1991.
- 183 suicides by children ages 10 to 19 in 1991.
