WASHINGTON BY GEORGE DURNO

Nazis

Herr Hitler has placed our State Department between the devil and the deep blue sea with his moratorium on foreign debt payment. American investors are holding German I. O. U.'s in excess of a billion dollars.

Like England and France, Uncle Sam has a retaliatory weapon hand. The question is whether, if used, it might not turn out to be more of a boomerang than a black-jack.

Secretary of State Hull's problem is whether or not to spank the Nazi government by abrogating the German-American Commercial Treaty.

Our experts admit that the Franco-British idea of setting up clearing houses to seize all German funds within their borders is not readily feasible for us to adopt. Our trade balance with Germany is favorable, so-called, and we would be book-keeping sufferers from employing such tactics.

Germany already has threatened France and England with embargoes on their commodities if they carry through the clearing-house plan, which is another consideration.

Washington is watching closely to see how far London and Paris carry through as a result of this counter-threat.

Our commercial treaty with Germany is the most important single one we have. It is the only one with a first-rate power carrying an unconditional most-favored-nation clause.

By cancelling it would in effect be accusing Germany publicly of bad faith. No nation likes to have that finger leveled at it.

Unquestionably, also, the Roosevelt government has justification for voiding the treaty. Through assignment of arbitrary import quotas and control of exchanges, Berlin has violated the most-favored-nation clause.

Of course, Hitler might counter the United States had violated it, too, when it assigned less favorable liquor quotas to Germany than to other countries. The State Department nonchalantly waves his away in advance by saying those quotas were temporary, thus not discrimination, and therefore don't count.

In the past we have been taught to believe that most-favored-nation clauses were just the thing State officials of recent administrations worked hard to get as many as they could on the dotted line.

Since President Roosevelt got his tariff-bargaining powers and George Peck undertook to explode the old theory of "favorable trade balances" we have heard much less of the idea. The New Deal is turning away from that doctrine.

It's a pretty problem for Secretary Hull. Nothing is tougher to handle than a defiant debtor.

Taxes

Business men are giving notice of sharp skepticism towards the forthcoming Treasury study of the revenue and currency systems.

Some of the boys got a little jittery when they learned that Secretary Morgenthau's pony brain trust, among other things, was going to plumb the possibility of using the revenue laws as a business stabilizing device. It is decided this could mean almost anything. They weren't able to get additional light from Treasury experts, who weren't in an explaining mood.

From within the Morgenthau establishment now comes a suggestion that taxes might be used to take the curves out of industrial activity charts. The more pessimistic representatives of big business are asking if the AAA processing tax and the Bankhead cotton tax illustrate what the administration has in mind.

Incidentally, the treasury survey threatens to cramp the style of the House Ways and Means committee, which contemplates a similar study this summer. Morgenthau was so unkind as to steal their prize expert, L. H. Parker, of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, and order him off to London to examine the British taxing system.

Senator

Now that President Roosevelt is safely on the high seas some of his most loyal political lieutenants are plotting a little revolt for what they consider not only the Democratic party's good but Mr. Roosevelt's as well.

Von Papen To Be Relieved As Vice Chancellor Soon

Ousted Official Is To Be Made Saar Commissioner

BERLIN, (UP)—Franz Von Papen will be stripped of vice chancellor, the foreign department of the Nazi party indicated Thursday; but will be permitted to remain in the cabinet as Saar commissioner.

With the puzzling problem of Von Papen's disposition for the first time somewhat clarified, reports indicating Nazis had reopened their anti-Jewish campaign in provincial centers claimed attention.

Rumors had Cardinal Michael Sauthaber, archbishop of Munich, was a prisoner.

Von Papen's office was stripped of papers, furnishings and personal belongings and taken to his home.

The Associated Press learned from Frau Von Papen that her home was raided Wednesday night.

News of the slaying of four persons in Silesia "for attempting to escape while being transported," July 2nd was a strong indication of anti-Jewish violence.

Hundreds were reported fleeing Germany.

JEFFERSON, Wis. (UP)—Carl Church, captured as the slayer of Earl Gentry, erstwhile bodyguard of D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana Ku Klux Klan leader, has confessed the crime, authorities said, Thursday soon after his arrest at Fort Atkinson, near here.

Mrs. Gill, investigators said, admitted giving Church $50 to stay Gentry.

65 Men To Be Assigned On Hiway Work

Number Will Be Increased Gradually, Says Administrator McNew

Sixty-five men will begin work on Highway No. 1 Friday morning in a project that will ultimately result in a rerouted, hard surfaced road across the county from east to west.

County Administrator R. H. McNew said that the number employed would be gradually increased until approximately 135 men were on the job daily. With two shifts working three days a week each, it means that more than 300 will be given employment on the project.

Although the men going to work Friday morning will be engaged principally in digging catclaws, the project will call for every phase of activity from drainage to toppling.

Men working on the project must qualify for relief rolls first, it was announced. All employment is handled through the county relief headquarters.

Andy Pruitt, engineer for the highway department, and Sam A. McCombs, superintendent of local maintenance, will supervise the work. A staff of engineers and highway department employees has been gathered here by Pruitt for the job which will be handled as a maintenance project.

Angelo Man To Slaughter Beef

Arrangements for butchering and chilling of beef bought by the government in its campaign to buy livestock in the drought areas were completed Wednesday, assuring Big Spring of a government meat canning plant.

C. F. Hoch, San Angelo, of the Concho Produce company, contracted Wednesday to slaughter, chill, and bone beef for the plant. The A. G. Winn produce property will be utilized for this purpose.

Big Spring was given one of the 19 canning plants in the state but came in danger of losing the designation when plans for slaughtering and storage ran amuck.

Equipment for the local plant, which will be located at Ninth and Main streets, had not arrived Thursday morning although an order has been placed for it by the state relief office.

Miss Madysen Lou Parr, newly appointed county agent, will serve as superintendent of the plant although she will have an administrative assistant to care for detail work in connection with processing of the meat.

County Administrator E. H. McNew said Thursday he believed it would be the middle of next week before production could be started.

Purchasing of cattle started here Thursday, insuring meat for the plant when it is ready for operation.

Mrs. Jack Norrell, Palestine, is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rose, 522 Bell street. It is Mrs. Norrell's first visit here in more than two years. She will probably spend two weeks here.

MISS LOLA BELLE STEWART UNITED IN MARRIAGE WITH LEWIS B. RIX WEDNESDAY

A wedding of particular interest in the city is that of Miss Lola Belle Stewart and Mr. Lewis B. Rix, well known members of Big Spring's younger group, which was an event of Wednesday afternoon.

The ceremony was read in the First Presbyterian church of Midland with the pastor, Rev. Coleman, reading the ring ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Randall Pickle were attendants to the young couple.

Mrs. Rix is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Clayton Stewart of 1800 Lancaster street. She is a graduate of the local high school where she enjoyed exceptional popularity. The bride was modestly dressed in a gown of subtle brown shade with white accessories.

Mr. Rix is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rix, pioneers of this region. He is associated with his brother, Ralph Rix, in the Rix Furniture company, a firm which has been in continuous business in Big Spring for about 30 years. The bridegroom is a graduate of the local high school and attended Texas Technological college at Lubbock.

Reigning Star

For the first time in her career, Sylvia Sidney essays dual roles in "Thirty-Day Princess," feature unit of an R & R road show program playing Ritz Theatre Friday and Saturday. She is Crown Princess of Taronia, and Nancy Lane, struggling young actress closely resembling the princess, who is hired to pinch hit for her highness when the latter is stricken with mumps.

In the actress role she falls in love with Gary Grant, newspaper publisher whom she had been hired to vamp in order to gain his paper's good will for Taronia, seeking an American loan. And he falls in love with the supposed princess. Complications romantic and humorous, quixotic and exciting, arise to make the film, which is from Clarence Budington's Kelland Ladies Home Journal novel, one of absorbing interest for the spectators.

Under The Dome At Austin

By GORDON R. SMEAKER.

AUSTIN (UP)—There are 110 automobiles risks insurable in Texas. The number is indicated by that number of "endorsements" approved by State Casualty Insurance Commissioner Walter S. Pope in sending out forms for uniform policies.

Uniform policies are required beginning this month. Texas, incidentally, is the first state to call for uniform automobile insurance policies and put the order into effect.

Revised racing dates given the State Fair Association make the Dallas horse races concurrent with the Fair dates. Dallas won the dates only after a stubborn fight.

Representatives of the various tracks agreed on a non-conflicting schedule. This schedule started the races before the Fair opening and ended the racing before the Fair close.

Dallas remonstrated. It was pointed out that last March formal application was made for the fair race dates and a fee for a race meet at that time sent to the racing commission.

Then someone discovered that the racing commission had not only received the fee but had expended it in purchase of breeding stock, as the law requires.

"We asked for the dates in good faith," Dallas representatives said, "and you accepted the fee in good faith. You have no right to change."

Whether Dallas' insistence on its original dates will result in other changes is not known.

In San Antonio there is considerable propaganda for advancing the time of its fall races. Races there are scheduled to begin on Thanksgiving Day and run to Christmas. Objection comes from local sportsmen who have arranged big football dates for Thanksgiving and see prospects of loss if there is also racing on that day. Merchants remembering how the women flocked to the first race meet at San Antonio fear the late days may wreck Christmas shopping.

R. L. Holliday drove all night to get to the last meeting of the State Relief Commission on time. It was called after the State Supreme court held he was entitled to membership on the commission. He was detained in El Paso by business and could not leave until the night before.

M. N. Chestman, Dallas, also detained by business, got up at 4 a. m. and drove from his home to the capitol in time for the session.

Night Clubs And Dance Halls Are Numerous In Fort Worth

By W. WINSTON COPELAND
United Press Staff Correspondent
FORT WORTH (UP)—Night clubs and dance hall operators are becoming so numerous here they literally tread on each other's heels in the scramble for patrons.

Some of them are getting a "big play." Others apparently are about two jumps ahead of the bankruptcy process server.

There are nearly a dozen larger night clubs and dancing resorts here, aside from many smaller ones.

At least four of the clubs reputedly operate gaming rooms "on the side." Three of these purportedly are somewhat lavish rooms, where you can play anything from dice to roulette, or lay a bet on tomorrow's horse race at various tracks throughout the nation.

Beer and harder drinks flow freely—if you have the price—at some of the spots, according to informants. The price usually is far above the ordinary bootleg quotation.

County and city political candidates are making much of the situation. They are describing Fort Worth as one of the "loosest" cities in Texas and are threatening to "shut down such places within two weeks after I am elected."

One candidate for district attorney went so far as to name one night club as the operator of a gambling room, even calling the name of the club.

The gaming rooms are keeping some of these places going. It is said, while their dancing floors are doing only mediocre or even poor business.

Night clubs sprang up here last fall like mushrooms. With the closing down of many of the winter resorts because of hot weather, new ones cropped out, most of them moving outside the city or near the edge of the city to escape the heat.

Two new ones have opened in the past month, one of them a luxurious, heavy-carpeted and pompous place.

Some of the strictly dancing halls however are doing a thriving business without the "gambling" attraction. Proprietors look on this increased business as a sign indicative of general business recovery.

One leading dance resort played to nearly 2,500 couples in one night recently when it had a nationally known orchestra as the main attraction.

Despite the overabundance of dance halls and night clubs, there is not a beer garden in the city.

CHEVROLET When Chevrolet announced price reductions several weeks ago, something important happened . . . something of vital concern to every buyer of a low-priced car: Chevrolet stepped into the most favorable price position it has enjoyed in a long time!

Reductions amounting to as much as $50—the most substantial price cuts announced in the low-price field this year—dropped Chevrolet's base price to a new low figure of $465. Just compare this price—compare any Chevrolet price—with those of other cars. Then compare what you get for what you pay! There'll be no question in your mind which car to buy, once you do.

Chevrolet offers patented Knee-Action—and others do not! Chevrolet alone has a Fisher body! And the same thing applies to cable-controlled brakes, Y-K frame, shock-proof steering, and 80-horsepower, valve-in-head six-cylinder engine. Chevrolet gives you far more features—far finer quality—a far better name for dependability. Yet the price of the Chevrolet Standard is lower than that of any other six or, of course, any eight in the world.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

Chapter 32 TABLES TURNED

"Then you are not going to arrest me?" Mrs. Croymden gasped. "Oh, yes. That much is necessary, in any case. But before I take you away I am going to inform your husband of the facts."

"Don't do that! Please, I can't face any one now. Take me away without letting any one know. I have confessed. What more do you want?"

"I want to know who was in this room with you when you marked that table with your ring?" Harper retorted.

Mrs. Croymden reached out a hand blindly and collapsed into a chair. Detective Lafferty arrived post-haste, stopping in surprise at sight of Mrs. Croymden's grief-stricken face and Harper's stern features. The Sergeant of Detectives wasted no time in explanation. "I have just placed Mrs. Croymden under arrest," he said. "You will take charge of her until I come back."

Andrews was lingering in the doorway of the hall, a prey to that troubled vision of Alvin Croymden, harassed and stricken Harper strode up to the butler. "Have you seen Mr. Croymden?" he inquired.

"Mr. Croymden has gone across to his own house," Andrews answered.

"How long ago?"

"About half an hour, sir."

Harper snatched up his hat and overcoat. Putting them on as he went, he bolted through the back door, passed the garage, vaulted over the three-foot stone wall and cut across to the back of the oldest house. The doors of the garage were open, but both cars were there.

Harper's large gray limousine and his wife's small blue roadster.

He went around to the front and rang the bell. A housemaid in a white cap and apron opened the door. The sound of a piano pent-ed the quiet of the house and the soft cascade of melody increased the detective's distaste and reluctance to perform the duty that lay before him.

The maid re-appeared in the hall, beckoning him toward the music-room. He entered, just as Richard Croymden rose from the piano.

"What brings you over here, Sergeant?" the latter asked. His hand was perturbed and his hands nervously grasped the lapels of his jacket.

"I have very grave news for you, Mr. Croymden. Your wife has just confessed to having committed murder. She has given me a very circumstantial account of the method she employed, as well as her motives. She has put into my possession all the facts except the real identity of the man, H. D. This she refuses to divulge. She has surrendered and intends to plead guilty. Before taking her away, I thought it only fair that you should be notified." He paused, then repeated with peculiar emphasis. "You understand, Mr. Croymden, she gave me a very circumstantial account."

Richard Croymden cocked his head a trifle at the significant tone of the detective's repeated statement. For a moment with unspoken thoughts they eyed each other gravely, then Croymden drew a deep breath, squared his shoulders, and turned.

"I can't let her do it!" The words rushed out in one breath. "Whatever story she told you, Harper, I see that you have found out the truth. I did the killing and I'll face the consequences. I can't hide behind my wife's confession."

Harper said, "She intends to take her oath in Court."

Richard Croymden puts his hand on the detective's shoulder. "Thanks, Harper. You are blessed with understanding, but we can't let her go through with it. There are some things in life not worth buying."

RICHARD DIX WEDS SECRETARY

With deliberate fingers he lowered the lid of the piano and closed the cover over the keyboard. He turned the lock and dropped the tiny key into the detective's palm. "This will be a long farewell, I think," he looked at those strong fingers of his. "I am ready," he smiled, simply.

The maid brought Richard Croymden's hat and coat, while Harper stood silently waiting. Together they left the house and took their way by the right-angled course that led them to the entrance of the Duress mansion. The police limousine in which the Headquarters men had arrived still waited at the curb.

Once inside, Harper drew Croymden into the drawing-room. "Before we go in there, let me give you a word of advice. My part in this case practically ends at this point. When you get into Court tell your whole story, freely and frankly. Don't let any quixotic idea lead you into half-truths and evasions."

"And don't let any smart lawyer talk you into taking refuge in technicalities of the law. If I know anything about juries you'll not regret it. My personal sympathy goes with you. I understand the forces that drove you on and by the real principles of justice you ought not to stand alone in the dock. Now, is there any one you want to speak to before we leave?"

Croymden shook his head. "No, thank you. Let us get out quietly. The others will learn of it soon enough, and I hate scenes."

Alvin Croymden started up when they entered the breakfast-room, and the anxious-looking Lafferty seemed relieved. She needed but one glance to see what had happened in the meeting between the detective and her husband. "Richard! Richard!" she sobbed, "you should not have said anything. It was all my fault!"

Richard crossed to her hastily and put his arm gently around her. His eyes were alight with that love that would not perish, no matter how tried with martyrdom. "Keep up your courage, Alvin," he said, and stooping over, murmured a private message of hope into her ear.

Still with his arm about her shoulders, Croymden cast a quick look of appeal to Harper over the bended head. The detective drew Lafferty aside and quietly gave him instructions about their removal and the charges to be lodged against them. Lafferty listened with a matter-of-fact air that did not quite conceal his lively curiosity, but this was neither the time nor the place for questions and explanations.

Harper watched their departure from the doorway of the breakfast-room. Richard Croymden and his wife walked side by side, the watchful Lafferty stalking at their heels. He heard the front door close, then the door of the waiting auto slammed and the motor stirred into action. After that there was silence. The curtain had been rung down on the drama.

House Wins Golf Tourney

Beasley Wins First Flight By Defeating Glenn Two Up

M. K. House defeated Ray McMahon 2-1 Wednesday to win the Herald golf tournament. Tom Beasley won the first flight by defeating Granville Glenn 2 up.

House went to the finals by winning from W. W. Fendleton 4-3. McMahon won his semi-final match from Joe Pickle 1 up ten holes. McMahon made a strong comeback after being 3 down on the first five holes.

The Beasley-Hodges semi-final match of the tourney, Beasley was 1 down on eight holes but squared matters on the ninth and the match went three extra holes before Hodges missed a short putt and Beasley won 1 up 12 holes.

Glenn won from M. Burleson 4-2 in the other semi-final. Hodges Cross was high in the qualifying round and was forced to drop out. Pickle and Beasley were tied in the qualifying round, and in the play-off Pickle won on the third hole to go into the top flight.

D'Aragnan's Honored LUPAC (Gers), France (UP)—The memory of the Fourth Musketeer has just been feted here with speeches, a banquet and all-night dances. Thousands from all parts of Casco and Beano witnessed the unveiling of a plaque on d'Aragnan's birthplace, the Chateau de Castelmor. D'Aragnan was Charles de Baatz, Sieur d'Aragnan. The young men and maidens of the region celebrated their hero in the evening in a contest of old Cascon dances with matching music, and the festival as given here in 1669 in honor of the hero was repeated.

SET AUGUST 1 AS LAST DATE FOR TAGGING COTTON

Upon recommendation of Cully A. Cobb, chief of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's cotton section, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and the Secretary of the Treasury have approved an extension until August 1, 1934, of the time in which cotton harvested and ginned prior to June 1, 1934, may be transported, sold, purchased or opened without... It is certifying it is exempt from payment of the tax provided in the Bankhead Cotton Act.

The extension was made in Treasury Decision No. 4444, signed June 29, 1934. Under a previous decision, July 1, 1934, was the last date on which old cotton, that is cotton harvested and ginned prior to June 1, 1934, could move through the channels of commerce.

It is necessary to tag this old cotton in order to identify it so that the tax provided in the Bankhead Act may not be levied on it. Application blanks for these identification tags are available in the cotton belt at the offices of cotton agents or application may be made by letter. All applications should give the name and address of the holder of the cotton, the number of old bales and their location.

Government representatives, recommended in each county by the county agent, will attach the tags when the application calls for less than 500 bale tags. When an application for more than 500 bales is approved, the tags will be attached under the supervision of the applicant or some one in his employ who will be designated the government's agent. The person so designated or the warehouse for which he works will be bonded.

All large warehouses, including state warehouse, will follow this method.

No application for tags need be made for old cotton stored at a consuming establishment, such as a textile mill, which is not to be removed from the establishment prior to manufacture, nor for old cotton already at the point of export and covered by an export bill of lading.

Ruffing Stops Averill So Comeback Looks Real

NEW YORK (UP)—One of the biggest bits of satisfaction derived by big Charles The Red Ruffing out of the one-hit game with which he celebrated his return to pitching form against the Cleveland Indians was the fact he completely stopped Earl Averill that day.

The Yankee hurler, who let only two players reach first and none get any farther than that, fanned Averill three times, and it was the first game in which Averill had faced Ruffing that he did not get at least one hit.

TEXAS PETROLEUM COUNCIL TO CARRY ON DESPITE SEVEN OF ITS MEMBERS QUITTING POSTS

DALLAS (UP)—The Texas petroleum council Wednesday was determined to "carry on" despite Tuesday's resignation of seven independent members who charged the council had violated terms of its organization by taking sides in controversial political issues affecting the oil industry.

The council executive and advisory committee Wednesday declared the resignations "will have little effect on the Texas petroleum council and its work," although six of the independents were council directors.

A statement released by Lloyd Wheelock, of Corsicana, council president, said that the organization "sit" numbers on its membership roll many outstanding, conscientious independent oil operators who thoroughly and completely represent the law-abiding independent elements of the industry.

The statement denied charges that the council tacitly took sides against the Texas railroad commission when it employed R. D. Parker as the commission dischargee.

ed him. It added: "The council is a non-political, non-factional oil association, devoted by charter and principle to ascertaining facts and to the enforcement of law regulating the oil industry.

"As such an organization the council has not and will not act in support or opposition to any legislation or any candidate for political office.

"We regret that seven members belonging to the council have been so inactive in its meetings and affairs as to have been misled... as much as we regret the action taken by these gentlemen, their resignations will have little effect on the council and its work."

FAIRBURY, Neb. (UP)—Even the birds are going in for modern, fireproof home construction. Fred McKean, post office custodian, removed a pigeon nest from the federal building as a fire hazard. It proved to be of fireproof construction—woven entirely from strands of wire.

There are two elements in the big relief organization. One is the plain fellow who pays taxes and the plain, blunt business man who would handle relief as any other business task involving expenditure of money. The other is the professionally-trained career people, engaged in building the industry of social service and relief into a broad permanent, dominant activity of government. These latter people are the "big army" people, whose interest lies in social quantities not in the burden of finding the money, or the amount of money spent.

Conflict of these two viewpoints has hurt relief administration in the past, and will continue to hurt it until one or the other gains the exclusive right to follow its course, right or wrong.

The professionals find expression of their ideas in a present school in the university, wherein 150 or more people are being given training frankly for the purpose of quickly getting jobs as professional case-workers, social service consultants and relief administrators.

Just how sharp is the conflict was shown in the refusal of the Marie Dredson, after three months as state director, to return to her old job as social service consultant at $300 a month, just because a non-professional business man—whom she considered "inefficient"—returned to his job as director. It is further reflected in the report that Miss Louise McGuire, M. A., professor of social case work, told a class in the relief workers' institute that she doubted the use of turning out professionally-trained relief workers, in view of the fact that a "non-professional" was back at the head of the administration.

The institute, training a few al-

Paris Invites Mayors
PARIS (UP)—Invitations have been sent to each of France's 38,000 mayors to visit Paris for the "Grandes Semaines," and it is expected that at least 20,000 of them will accept. The record of the "largest table in the world" will probably be broken when these mayors sit down to a banquet at the Paris Fair on June 30. The menu will include a specialty from each province.

Midnight Rainbow Reported
EDMONTON, Alta. (UP)—"A midnight rainbow" was reported seen at Cardale, Alberta. The phenomenon was reported by R. T. Allen and his family, who declare that the rainbow, the colors of which were clearly defined, appeared across the sky from east to west between 12:30 and 1 a. m.

Bumble Bee To Blame
JONESBORO, Ark. (UP)—A bumblebee caused it all, W. H. Farmer explained. He and four other occupants of his automobile climbed from the wreckage in an eight-foot ditch near here. The bee, buzzing around his head, got Farmer nervous. He swerved the machine into a culvert and overturned into the ditch. All four of the occupants were injured.
