Hillary issues challenges in Austin talk

Students plant trees

Fifth-grade students at West Central Elementary recently planted trees along the school's southern boundary to eventually provide a windbreak for the playground. Trees were purchased with student activity-fund monies and the project was planned as a civic project under the Civic Achievement Award program. The social studies classes taught by Kim Bigham and Jenny McWhorter planned the project and all fifth graders participated in the planting effort.

Clinton pressed to appoint first-ever Hispanic judge to Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) - With Supreme Court Justice Byron White's retirement just months away, Hispanics are pressing President Clinton to nominate the first Hispanic-American ever to the high court.

"Twenty-five million Hispanics in this country are without a voice at the nation's highest level of the legal system," said Carlos G. Ortiz, president of the Hispanic National Bar Association.

"Hopefully, we won't have to wait any longer," he said. "We believe we've waited long enough."

The bar association, which represents some 20,000 lawyers and others affiliated with the legal profession, has compiled a list of the Hispanic candidates it considers most qualified as potential nominees.

They are: New Mexico Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Baca; Texas Supreme Court Visiting Judge Fortunato "Pete" Benavides; Jose A. Cabranes, chief judge for the U.S. District Court for the District of Connecticut; Vilma S. Martinez, partner at Munger, Tolles & Olson in Los Angeles; Texas Attorney General Dan Morales; UCLA law professor Cruz Reynoso; and District of Columbia Superior Court Judge Ricardo M. Urbina.

The bar is seeking support for its candidates from Hispanic and non-Hispanic groups alike. The National Council of La Raza and the Congressional Hispanic Caucus already have signed on.

In an April 1 letter to Clinton, the 18 caucus members wrote: "Appointment of the first Hispanic to the Supreme Court can help to ensure that the perspectives, experiences, needs and concerns of the Hispanic community are considered when the nation's highest court charts our legal future."

The bar met last year with then-candidate Clinton to discuss what Ortiz termed "gross underrepresentation" of Hispanics in the federal judiciary. Last week, officers met with a White House associate counsel to present their short list and make the case for an Hispanic nominee.

"We certainly hope the president will keep his campaign promise to make the court look like America," Ortiz said.

Since White announced his retirement at the end of this term, in June or July, there have been calls for the appointment of a woman, a black, an Hispanic, or a Jewish justice.

In addition to the special interests, individual names have been circulated. Former Texas Congresswoman Barbara Jordan has said she wouldn't turn the job down if it's offered. Then, there continues to be speculation about New York Gov. Mario Cuomo.

Clinton said during the campaign that Cuomo has the qualities he wants in a justice, but hasn't said who he might nominate for the position, which must be confirmed by the Senate.

"I don't know how many appointments I'll get to the Supreme Court," Clinton said. "I'm going to appoint someone I think will be a great justice."

Despite support for more female, black and other minority representation on the court, Ortiz and some of the candidates on the short list said the time has come for an Hispanic justice.

AUSTIN (AP) - Hillary Rodham Clinton charged into Texas, the stomping grounds of former first lady Barbara Bush, and received an enthusiastic response to a speech about the country overcoming spiritual malaise.

Mrs. Clinton's appearance in Austin Tuesday was her first in public since her father's March 19 stroke.

Her half-hour dissertation, delivered without notes, talked about a country struggling with "alienation and helplessness," and cities where there are "too many girls with babies and angry boys with guns."

She challenged Americans to study their values and take care of their children.

"Reject cynicism and try to see others as you wish to be treated," said Mrs. Clinton, who added that she continues to work to create a health care system that covers all Americans.

Outside, about 15 protesters urged Mrs. Clinton to push for government-run health insurance.

Barbara Vackar, an Austin native, who helps run a bed and breakfast, said Mrs. Clinton's speech was inspiring.

"It gave me renewed faith that people like her are willing to speak up on the subject of the country having a spiritual void," Ms. Vackar said.

And some younger fans were equally impressed.

"She's not in office, but she should be," said Geri Morris, a 13-year-old eighth-grader in Austin. "She has the guts to stand up for what she believes in."

While her philosophical speech won the favor of the more than 5,000 people who filled the basketball arena on the University of Texas campus, she also won hearts for her sense of humor.

During a panel discussion that included Richards and Sarah Weddington, who argued the nation's landmark abortion case, Mrs. Clinton said, "I am also - just to set the record straight - not really governing."

The remark drew a hearty laugh from the crowd, recalling Republican attacks during the presidential election that Mrs. Clinton's outspoken demeanor would unduly influence policy from the White House.

Laughs also rang out when Richards responded to Mrs. Clinton's plea by saying, "If you believe that, I have got a bridge to sell."

Ms. Weddington, whose victory in the lawsuit known as Roe versus Wade gave women the right to have an abortion, said she is sleeping easier knowing that Clinton is in the White House.

"I thought an anti-choice president would be re-elected ... and another vote would be added to the Supreme Court," Ms. Weddington said. "So I just want you to know that ... while you and your husband are up late worrying about Medicaid or extending health care to others or how Janet Reno can confront the problem of clinic violence now, we sleep better. We are happier and we smile a lot more."

Mrs. Clinton greeted the crowd with smiles and jokes, despite having spent nearly two weeks at the bedside of her critically ill father, Hugh Rodham, who remains in a Little Rock hospital.

She embraced 80-year-old Lady Bird Johnson, wife of former President Lyndon Johnson, thanking her for the "grace and beauty" she exhibited while balancing personal and public responsibilities as first lady.

Mrs. Clinton praised Richards as one of the most popular governors in the country and jokingly threatened to get her hair styled like Richards' stacked, white coiffure.

"If we ever want to get Bosnia off the front page, all I have to do is either put on a headband or change my hair," she said.

She also said she felt uncomfortable speaking on the Texas campus as a loyal Arkansas Razorback fan.

"It's not a common experience for me to be in any Texas athletic facility and feel good about it," said Mrs. Clinton, who also made a note to congratulate the Texas Tech women's basketball team on winning the national championship Sunday.

"I hope you feel the same way I did, I was mighty proud of Texas Tech," she said.

Health care industry termed 'jobs machine'

WASHINGTON (AP) - It seems everyone has something bad to say about the health care system. They say it's wasteful, irrational and far too costly. An economy wrecker. But rarely do they say this: it creates lots of jobs.

Nearly half of the 550,000 jobs added in the U.S. economy in 1992 were in health services: at hospitals, dental clinics and medical laboratories, for example, according to the Labor Department. In 1991, jobs in the overall economy fell by 1.3 percent, but health services managed a 4.4 percent increase.

David Hiles, a Labor Department economist, calls health services a "job machine."

So, for whatever problems the health system is causing the American economy, the administration surely must be pleased that it is creating jobs in what President Clinton calls a "jobless" economic recovery - right?

Not entirely.

As the administration sees it, these by and large are not the sort of jobs that make the economy stronger over the long haul. Labor Secretary Robert Reich says they serve an immediate need but also occupy people whose talents could be put to greater use elsewhere.

"We cannot rely on the health care sector to be the engine of job growth in the United States, and we shouldn't try to rely on it," Reich told reporters this week.

While the administration is glad for any kind of job growth, Reich suggested that Clinton's determination to slow the increase of health care costs will also put the brakes on the industry's hiring.

"When we put a cap on the growth of health expenditures, yes, there are going to be a lot of dislocations,"

Volunteers weary of fighting blaze in Davis Mountains

ALPINE, Texas (AP) - Winds were expected to keep times tough today for dozens of weary volunteers fighting a smoky blaze at the base of the Davis Mountains.

"It's bad now and it could get worse," said Bobby Young, a fire control official with the Texas Forest Service in Lufkin.

The forest service was on hand studying the situation Tuesday but had not yet joined the fire fight, said Ed Barker, superintendent of McDonald Observatory.

The fire, apparently sparked by lightning Saturday, was the fourth in Jeff Davis and Brewster counties since last week. The other three have been extinguished.

As many as 140,000 acres reportedly have burned.

"It's mountainous, rough country," said Texas Agricultural Extension Service agent Larry Boswell of Alpine. "You can't get equipment to it. You have to hike up."

The blaze was burning in a canyon about eight miles northwest of the observatory, Barker said. Winds were driving it north-northeast, toward pastures, he said.

No homes were in its path, Barker said.

A small fire on Santiago Mountain north of Big Bend National Park was brought under control Tuesday, Boswell said.

But a six-day blaze burned 90,000 acres between Alpine and Marathon before it was extinguished Saturday, the extension service reported.

Hereford joins salute to Tech Lady Raiders

Mayor Tom LeGate Tuesday proclaimed April 14 as "Lady Raider Day" in Hereford in recognition of the NCAA women's basketball championship won by the Texas Tech University team.

LeGate chose next Wednesday as the day to honor the team because Hereford's Red Raider Club chapter already has its annual Red Raider Day program set for that date.

Tech coaches and Red Raider Club officials from Lubbock will be participating in the events, including a golf tournament and dinner, next Wednesday. Athletic director T. Jones and football coach Spike Dykes will lead the Raider contingent. Tech basketball coaches may not be present due to recruiting duties.

LeGate, in the proclamation, saluted the team for "bringing national recognition not only to Texas Tech and the City of Lubbock, but to the Panhandle, South Plains and Lone Star State." He added that the team was made up almost entirely of native West Texas talent, "demonstrating to the nation the strength and determination of this great area and state."

Tech exes and all interested fans are invited to participate in Red Raider Day activities next Wednesday. A fee of $40 covers the golf tourney and dinner at Hereford Country Club. For non-golfers, the dinner fee is $15. Reservations should be made with Dave Hopper or Tom LeGate.

Lady Raider Day proclaimed

Mayor Tom LeGate Tuesday proclaimed April 14 as "Lady Raider Day" in Hereford in honor of the Texas Tech team capturing the NCAA women's basketball championship. Watching LeGate sign the proclamation are three other local Red Raider Club chapter members—Dave Hopper, Cal Mitts and Speedy Nieman. Hereford's annual "Red Raider Day", which includes a golf tourney and dinner had already been scheduled on that date.

Critics claim unsafe conditions Plant may operate second reactor

WASHINGTON (AP) - Critics of a Texas nuclear power plant say they will continue to oppose Comanche Peak despite a Nuclear Regulatory Commission ruling allowing a second reactor to go fully on-line.

The NRC, in a 5-0 vote Tuesday, granted full-power licensing to the Comanche Peak Unit 2 reactor. Unit 1 has been in commercial operation since August 1990.

Moments earlier, the NRC on a voice vote rejected a petition by the National Whistleblower Center asking that the licensing be delayed. The public interest group, which has interceded in other nuclear regulatory cases, represents several whistleblowers who have alleged unsafe conditions at Comanche Peak.

TU Electric, which owns and operates the nuclear plant 40 miles southwest of Fort Worth, contends its operations are safe. "We of course believe that Comanche Peak 2 was ready to receive its full-power license and are pleased that it did," utility spokesman Dave Fiorelli said Tuesday.

Some criticism was voiced over Comanche Peak's use of a controversial fire barrier known as Thermo Lag, which is being investigated by the NRC. But commission chairman Ivan Selin said the NRC is "quite confident" that the fire retardant, as it is being used at Comanche Peak, will meet safety standards.

Selin said Unit 2 assures safety levels "as high as any (nuclear) plant in the country."

Michael Kohn, an attorney with the Whistleblower Center, said the group would file a motion this week in the U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia seeking to stay the NRC ruling.

Kohn said his organization is seeking a court hearing to allow whistleblowers a forum for their safety concerns about Comanche Peak. "The NRC has seen fit to determine they never had to hold a hearing on this matter," Kohn said.

"We believe it's just a violation of due process under the Atomic Energy Act, which grants citizen intervenor the right to a hearing on significant issues."

Selin said the NRC is prepared to cooperate with the Justice Department in connection with any whistleblower complaints.

Tuesday's action marks the first time since 1990 that the NRC has licensed a new nuclear power plant.

Comanche Peak is the nation's most expensive nuclear plant. Originally projected to cost $800 million when first begun in 1974, its costs are now estimated at $11 billion.

TU Electric has filed a rate increase request with the Texas Public Utility Commission, seeking a $760 million increase to pay for Unit 2. That would translate into a 15.3 percent hike for consumers. Two years ago, the utility got a 10 percent increase to pay for Unit 1, but aspects of the hike remain in court.

With both reactors at full power and all systems running perfectly, Comanche Peak could produce 2,300 megawatts of electricity, enough to supply the power needs of a city the size of Dallas.

Unit 2 has been running at low-power levels since reactor start-up occurred March 24. Now that full-power licensing has been received, Fiorelli said, "We will begin greatly increasing the power levels and conducting testing at increasing power levels and expect to be in full commercial operation this summer."

Unit 2 is the only reactor in the nation coming on line this year, said Scott Peters, a spokesman for the U.S. Council for Energy Awareness, a pro-nuclear industry group. A Tennessee Valley Authority reactor could come up for licensing next year, he said.

HEALTH----

Reich told a group of business executives Tuesday.

That prediction, coming from an administration whose No. 1 goal is to create more jobs, reflects the complexity of the problem.

"It's a real conundrum," said W. Bowman Cutter, deputy assistant to the president for economic policy. Imagine, he said, what people would be saying if say the computer industry instead of the health business were recording such good job gains.

"We'd be ecstatic," Cutter said in an interview. "And there wouldn't be large task forces saying, 'How do we control high-performance computing.'"

The health industry is creating lots of jobs mainly because it is relatively immune to the normal forces of competition. Many economists say that also explains why health costs are eating up an expanding share of national wealth.

Hiles, the labor economist, said the health industry boom is due largely to the nature of the payment system, in which a customer rarely pays directly for services. This gives little incentive either to consumers to limit their use of health services or to health care professionals to hold down their prices.

Thus the hard push in Washington to enact health care reforms this year. Hiles cited the example of the last major Medicare reform, in 1983, which changed the way hospitals and doctors receive Medicare payments for inpatient care. In the two years before 1983, job growth at hospitals rose by more than 4.5 percent a year. That slowed to a 0.7 percent gain in 1983, and in the next two years, employment actually fell. It resumed growing in 1986.

Reich likened the administration's intent to "downsize" the health industry to the shrinking of the defense establishment already under way.

"We have to control health care costs, just like we have to control military spending," he told a reporter. "Both of those sectors have been avenues of upward mobility for an awful lot of people, and society is challenged" to control those costs and "to come up with other avenues of upward mobility."

Tips for family portraits

The magic of a great photograph is found in the perception of the photographer who "sees" the inner person the subject wishes to project. Family photographs can be all this and more. They can be the creation of a moment of family unit and togetherness.

When preparing for your professional portrait session, bear in mind these tips to help the sitting run more smoothly for you and the photographer:

-When including a child, schedule the portrait for early in the morning when he or she is the most alert and rested.

-Take along a child's favorite toy for inclusion in the portrait.

-Don't forget Grandma and Grandpa-they'll be thrilled to be a part of your portraits.

-You may also want to include your family pet in the sitting.

-Coordinating everyone's clothing helps make for a more aesthetically pleasing portrait. Your photographer can help choose the colors and patterns most suitable for your background setting.

-Consider the background you want-many photographers will schedule in-home sittings.

Remember, when choosing a photographer for your family or holiday portraits, be sure to look for the Certified Professional Photographer (CPP) emblem on the door. This means that the photographer is one of a select group of skilled men and women who have passed a series of critical evaluations attesting to the high quality of their work.

To receive a listing of CPPs in your area, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to The PPA Standards Dept., 1090 Executive Way, Des Plaines, IL 60018 or call 1-800-786-6277 ext. CPP.

Mother-daughter tea held

The annual event, which is sponsored by the Women's Division, is open to all young women ages 16-21. Deadline to enter the pageant is 5 p.m. Friday. Entry forms must be returned to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main, by the designated time. Among the guests at the tea were Jenifer Holmes and her mother, Debbie Holmes.

Astronomy discussed during sorority chapter meeting

Jessie Davis talked about astronomy when members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently in the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service.

Davis explained to the group that the earth is the third planet in order of distance from the sun. She also briefly talked about astrology which is the study or science which assumes and professes to interpret the influence of the heavenly bodies on human affairs. Each chapter member was given a copy of April and May's star finding chart and a hair cutting guide.

Wanda Huseman distributed tickets for the April 8 luncheon at the E.B. Black House.

The next meeting, April 15, will be spring rituals with Alpha Iota Mu members to provide refreshments.

MaryBob Ward served pizza and soft drinks to those present: Jaime Brorman, Danell Culp, Patty Frerich, Carmen Gonzales, Wanda Huseman, Marrie Leverett, Jill Savoini and Patti Urbancyk.

Singer-actress Judy Garland died in London in 1969 at the age of 47.

The first person to formulate the laws of perspective in art, that is, representing objects on a flat surface so as to give the illusion of receding distance, was, it's believed, Leon Battista Alberti of Italy in the 1400's.

Free trees offered to public

Ten free shade trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during April.

Herd blanks 'Horns

Hereford's baseball team scored eight runs in the fourth inning to blow out Caprock 13-0 Tuesday in Amarillo. The game ended after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

"We just took care of business," coach T.R. Sartor said. "We played well; we didn't make any errors. We finally got the bats loose in the fourth inning."

"It was a situation we talked about. It was a have-to-win game," he said. "Dumas beat Randall (5-0 Tuesday) and put us back in a tie for first place. That put us where we needed to be."

Hereford improved to 2-1 in District 1-4A and 7-11 overall. Dumas and Randall are both 2-1 in district after the Dumas win at home. Borger also is 2-1 after winning 13-2 at Pampa, which falls to 1-2.

Caprock fell to 0-3 and 2-16. The struggling Longhorns have lost their three district games by a total score of 56-12 (22-5 to Dumas and 21-7 to Borger).

Hereford starter Sammy Casarez shut down the 'Horns, giving up two hits and striking out 11.

Hereford led 3-0 going into the fourth inning, Sartor said, and then the bats warmed up. Jake Head had a two-run double, Andrew Tijerina had a two-run single, and Jerry Rincon and Chris Vallejo each had RBI doubles in the inning.

Vallejo was 3-for-3 in the game.

Hereford is off this weekend but returns to action at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at Randall.

White takes Green Bay's green

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) - Why Green Bay, Reggie White? Brutal weather, no championships since the 1960s, no playoff appearances in a decade, no inner city for practicing ministers.

San Francisco beckoned and so did Washington during a whirlwind 37-day tour and sampling of the NFL. But in the league's smallest city, the price was right. Four years for $17 million, most persuasive the $9 million first year - half in salary, the other half in a signing bonus.

"This year is probably the year to do it," White said Tuesday. "When the salary cap kicks in, teams are not going to be able to pay the money I got paid."

"A lot of people will say I went for the money and money does play a part of it."

White, an ordained minister, said he plans to use his wealth to build for those who can't.

White, a seven-time All-Pro with the Philadelphia Eagles, said he also had a sense about Green Bay, even though when he first decided to visit the town, he told Packers coach Mike Holmgren it was "the farthest thing from my mind."

But he liked the way Holmgren was building the team with young players, the way defensive coordinator Ray Rhodes allowed his players input in the schemes, the grass field and the commitment to improving with a new practice facility in the planning.

White also liked the Packers, he said, because they have a young quarterback in Brett Favre, whom White predicts will one day be a better quarterback "than Randall (Cunningham) and a lot of other quarterbacks in the league."

White said at age 31 he feels very much like another popular Philadelphia athlete who left for a new team and a new start. The Packers went from 4-12 in 1991 to 9-7 last season.

"I looked at my situation as being a Charles Barkley situation. Hopefully my career can be rejuvenated," White said. "I think every (other) team is shocked, but I think I made the right decision."

White, whose 124 career sacks outnumber his games played in the NFL (121) was courted by the Redskins, 49ers, Jets and Browns, among others. And he said he wanted to play for a team that could go to the Super Bowl.

The 49ers offered a five-year, $19.5 million deal but much of the money was on the end of the contract that wasn't guaranteed.

"It just had, 'I'm going to get cut sooner or later,' written all over it and it really did," said Jimmy Sexton, White's agent. "This (the Packers offer) is structured such that we got enough guarantees we feel good enough for him."

"I felt the dollars offered by Green Bay were just far too much to overcome," 49ers president Carmen Policy said.

The Redskins, meanwhile, offered $14 million for four years.

"This team (the Packers) has always been in the back of my mind," White said. "I've been doing up and down. I thought I had my decision made and it changed. I thought I had it made and it changed again. I came to the realization this weekend this is the team I wanted to be with."

Pitman to host district golfers

The Hereford High School sports weekend gets off to an early start as Pitman Municipal Golf Course will host a District 1-4A golf round Thursday.

Both Hereford's girls' and boys' teams are in second place in the district. The boys have three district rounds left after Thursday, including Friday's at Dumas. The girls will have two rounds left, and both will be played April 16 and 17.

For the round at Pitman, all players start at 9 a.m.

Match-play tourney starts Saturday

Anyone who wants to play in the Spring Match-Play Golf Tournament needs to sign up soon. The double-elimination tournament starts Saturday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course, and the deadline to sign up is 5 p.m. Friday, said club pro Dave Kaesheimer. The tournament is open to all players and flighted by handicap. Entry fee is $40. To enter or to get more information, call the pro shop at 364-2782.

Red Raider Day set Wednesday

Red Raider Day has been scheduled here Wednesday, with Hereford and area Texas Tech University fans invited to participate in a golf tourney and dinner.

Hosted by the Hereford Red Raider Club chapter, a fee of $40 will cover green fee and cart at Pitman Municipal Golf Course and social hour and dinner at Hereford Country Club. Non-golfers are invited to the social hour and dinner at $15 a ticket. Golfers should phone entries, with handicap, to the pro shop, 364-2782, or mail them to Dave Hopper, Box 150, Hereford 79045.

Tech coaches and Red Raider Club officials will participate in the golf scramble, with teams being formed from a blind draw. Sign-in will be at 12:30 p.m. and play starts at 1 p.m. The social hour starts at 6 p.m., and dinner will be at 7 p.m.

Hereford Mayor Tom LeGate has also proclaimed the day as "Lady Raider Day" in honor of the Texas Tech team winning the NCAA national championship.

The saddle was awarded by Becky Smith and Susan Barrett.

The clinic, held March 20 and 21 at the B-Bar-S Arena outside Hereford, included 23 participants from all over the Panhandle and eastern New Mexico.

A Long Drive

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - Leave it to Chi Chi Rodriguez to put something into perspective.

After watching long-hitting John Daly unleash a massive tee shot, Rodriguez shook his head.

"When I was a kid," he said, "we didn't go on vacation as far as John drives a golf ball."

Lucky Number

NEW YORK (AP) - If your lucky number is four, you might have done well betting the Breeder's Cup races over the past nine years.

Post position four has returned eight winners, the most for any post. Number eight has sent seven horses on to victory, the second best showing.

Oddly enough, the post considered the most unfavorable, No. 14, has had four winners, including the swift mare, Paseana, on the 1992 Cup card.

Georgetown's Brown has advice for Webber

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer
Chris Webber can't get away from it, but he can get over it. Fred Brown sat down and told him as much in a letter. And he should know.

The same awful thing that happened to Webber two nights ago happened to Brown 11 years earlier on the same court on the same day against the same team and in front of the same outsize audience. And he offers himself now as proof that sometimes things really do turn out for the best.

"The thing that stuck with me through all of this was something coach (John) Thompson said right after it happened," Brown said Tuesday over the telephone from the coach's office at Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va.

"What he said was if that was the last mistake I ever made, I was going to have a wonderful life."

For the longest time that just didn't seem possible to Fred Brown.

In 1982, he was a Georgetown sophomore playing against North Carolina for the national championship. And at the end of the game, in the bat of an eye, he made a decision and it turned out to be the wrong one.

Wherever he intended to throw the ball, inexplicably, he wound up throwing it to a wide-open James Worthy of North Carolina, allowing the Tar Heels to ice a 63-62 victory.

In a scene eerily reminiscent of that game, Webber found himself in the same situation and he made an equally bad decision. With 11 seconds to go and his team down by two points, the Michigan sophomore called for a timeout when his team had none left. North Carolina went on to win again, this time by 77-71.

People never forgot what happened to Brown, which makes him certain

Suns' treys bomb Lakers

By The Associated Press

The 3-pointer has been a major weapon in carrying the Phoenix Suns to the best record in the NBA. Against the Los Angeles Lakers, it was a blockbuster bomb.

The Lakers turned a 20-point fourth-quarter deficit into a 112-109 lead with 23 seconds left before Dan Majerle hit two 3-pointers, including a 40-footer at the buzzer, giving the Suns a 115-114 victory Tuesday night.

The finish extended the Suns' winning streak to eight and gave them a 5-0 season sweep of the Lakers, their first ever.

"It was a once-in-a-lifetime kind of thing, I guess," said Majerle, who finished with 20 points.

After Majerle's first 3-pointer tied the score 112-112 with 10.8 seconds left, Anthony Peeler's 14-footer gave Los Angeles a 114-112 lead with 1.6 seconds remaining. Then Majerle won the game with his high-arching shot.

Kevin Johnson scored 32 points and Charles Barkley had 23 points and 11 rebounds for the Suns, who led 103-83 before Los Angeles rallied.

Elden Campbell scored 10 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter for the Lakers.

Mavericks 109, SuperSonics 107

Dallas, trying to avoid the worst record in NBA history (9-73), improved to 8-64 when Jimmy Jackson and Derek Harper hit two free throws apiece in the final 11 seconds at Seattle.

Jackson scored 18 points as the Mavericks improved their record to 3-33 on the road after an 0-29 start.

Trail Blazers 110, Jazz 95

Portland, playing without Clyde Drexler, won at home against Utah as Terry Porter scored 25 points.

Karl Malone scored 25 points for Utah, but only two in the final quarter when the Blazers pulled away with a 9-1 spurt that gave them an 89-73 lead.

Hawks 109, Knicks 104, OT

Atlanta won its 10th straight home game and snapped New York's six-game winning streak despite a subpar performance from the flu-weakened Dominique Wilkins.

Wilkins was limited to 26 minutes and 16 points on 4-for-17 shooting, but his backup, Duane Ferrell had 17 points on 8-for-11 shooting, while Kevin Willis had 29 points and 11 rebounds and Mookie Blaylock 20 points and 13 assists.

Rockets 114, Clippers 101

Hakeem Olajuwon matched a season-high with 42 points, and Houston took advantage of a 15-0 run in the second quarter to defeat Los Angeles for the 14th consecutive time at the Summit.

Danny Manning led the Clippers with 24 points.

Bucks 113, Bulls 109

Blue Edwards scored 10 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter, helping Milwaukee defeat Chicago for the first time in four tries this season.

Michael Jordan scored 30 points, including a basket and 3-pointer during an 11-2 Bulls run late in the game.

Warriors 125, Spurs 111

Tim Hardaway scored 18 of his 30 points in the third quarter and Billy Owens finished with 29 as Golden State won at San Antonio.

Latrell Sprewell added 26 points for the Warriors.

Magic 116, 76ers 90

Orlando won at home against Philadelphia behind Shaquille O'Neal's 35 points on 17-for-23 shooting and 16 rebounds.

The Magic blew the game open with outside shooting in the third period. Dennis Scott and Nick Anderson hit a pair of 3-pointers apiece, and Scott Skiles had one as Orlando led by as many as 21 points.

Pacers 98, Nets 85

Reggie Miller scored 21 points and the Pacers snapped New Jersey's eight-game home winning streak.

Pistons 91, Bullets 79

Detroit beat Washington for its seventh straight home victory as Joe Dumars scored 38 points.

Cavaliers 115, Heat 100

Cleveland won for the 15th time in 16 home games, beating Miami with Brad Daugherty scoring 20 points in the first half and Larry Nance 18 in the second.

Daugherty finished with 27 points on 11-of-14 shooting and 10 rebounds. Nance scored 20 points and Grant Long had 18 for the Heat.

Nuggets 101, Kings 100

Robert Pack scored the final points of the game on a dunk with 1:10 left and Denver won for the first time in five tries at Sacramento.

Chris Jackson scored 23 points for the Nuggets.

BROWN

they will never forget what happened to Webber. Ever.

"I told him the important thing is to remember is that he's never going to be able to erase it, whether he turns pro or goes back and wins a championship," Brown said.

Two years after he took that horrendous stumble, Brown picked himself back up, helped the Hoyas win their first national championship, earned his degree and almost nobody noticed. Six years later, he was one of IBM's top-grossing salesman before leaving to start his own business. Today, he has a wife and three children, working at the same game he'd turned his back on almost a decade ago.

"I grew up in the South Bronx. A whole slew of things came with that environment and almost none of them were good," Brown said. "I was in the top 10 percent of my class academically, I thought I was getting an education. But when I got to Georgetown, I had to start all over again from the bottom of the pole."

"I loved it, I worked hard at it, but basketball was a game to me. And after it happened, I truly said to myself, as long as my coach and my teammates - the people who sweat in the gym with me - know I did my best, I've got nothing to be ashamed about."

Still, for the first few years after leaving Georgetown, while Brown played pickup basketball, he almost never turned on the TV to watch other people play. But a few more years passed and he found himself making good money, raising a family, and still, somehow, missing something. A friend who was coaching asked Brown to speak to his team one day. Back in the gym and comfortable with the idea of getting involved again, he caught the bug again.

For the moment he sees himself staying in the high school rank until his middle child, 5-year-old Fred Brown III, is old enough to play for his old man. Then he sees both of them headed for the college ranks.

"It's funny. When I played, I didn't feel the pressure at all," Brown said. "And as a coach, that's the feeling I'm trying to teach the kids who play for me: Play the same game every time. Once the ball goes up, it's a game. It's what you've been doing since you were a child."

Californian Tole came to Texas Tech for education

By WHIT CANNING

FORT WORTH Star-Telegram
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - The day may soon arrive when Texas Tech's John Tole begins slapping baseballs out of various Southwest Conference ball yards. Not that there's any sense of panic over it, while we're waiting.

After all, says Tole, an avowed gap hitter, "a home run is just a line drive hit too high."

It is a typical delivery from Tole, a junior transfer from California, who is hardly your run-of-the-mill designated hitter type.

For one thing, the 6-foot Tole weighs "somewhere between 255 and 260," although he doesn't really keep up with it, he says, because he wishes to avoid becoming "scale-o-phobic."

For another, he is at Tech on an academic scholarship and is among a select few young ballplayers who have managed to avoid becoming obsessed with a major-league career.

"It would be fine if it happened," Tole says, "but I don't really think about it. I've seen too many guys count on that as their only option in life, and for most, it's a dream that isn't going to come true. The main reason I'm here is to get an education."

A native of Pleasanton, in the San Francisco Bay area, Tole arrived at Tech via Chabot College in Hayward, Calif., where he hit .454 with 13 homers and 69 RBIs last year as a first baseman. It was enough to make him a JUCO All-American and attract a crowd of Division I recruiters.

Tech had a slight edge in the person of pitcher J.J. Varney, a former teammate who had preceded Tole in Lubbock. In fact, Tole and Varney are among seven Californians on Larry Hays' Red Raider squad.

"I've been playing with or against J.J. since I was 11 years old," Tole says. "He's from a neighboring town (Livermore) and we played against each other in high school. We were on the same East Bay team, and we were teammates in college. He told me good things about Tech, and here I am."

And, currently in a slump. Tole is hitting .234 with two home runs, but he does have 10 doubles and 24 RBIs and has been instrumental in Tech's success (29-8, 7-2) thus far. It's just that both he and the Raiders expected a bit more.

"I think this is partly my fault," Hays says. "We didn't specifically tell him to try to hit home runs, but we brought him in here and stuck him in the number four slot, and I think he felt that's what he was here for. He has put pressure on himself."

"His natural stroke is to the opposite field - actually, the gap in right center. I think he's just been trying too hard to pull balls toward the fence in left."

Tole says that whatever he's doing doesn't feel that bad.

"I don't really feel like I'm in that much of a slump," he says. "I've had a lot of balls I hit square on the nose - but right at somebody. I'm hitting the ball hard."

"The main danger in a slump is to let it get to you mentally, and that's what I'm trying to avoid. I'll be OK. If I get hot for the playoffs, that'll be pretty good timing."

He has also made an adjustment to being mostly a DH, since Randy Duross - last year's SWC freshman of the year - has greater range at first base.

"It's not bad," he says. "You just have to concentrate on making something out of your four minutes of playing time each game. I'm happy. I just love this game."

Despite his size, he says, he never loved football, and didn't play in high school.

"Too much running," he says. "I could have been the tight end of the future, maybe ..."

"Nah, I would never have gotten open."

NEW YORK (AP) - The NFL keeps an eye on a lot of things, including high school sports.

The New York office of the pro league reported that the most popular game among high school athletes is football.

Quoting the National Federation of State High School Associations, the NFL reported 912,845 high school athletes played football during the 1991-92 school year out of an all-sports participation of 5,370,654.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here's another gripe for your column. I'm talking about those coupons that are printed for anything and everything. I know they save the consumer a few dollars, but in the long run are they really worth the time and trouble?

Every Sunday afternoon, I sit and cut coupons out until my shoe box runneth over. Because of my coupon-mania, I end up stocking my shelves with junk I would not ordinarily buy. The latest gimmick is to purchase one and get one free. Half the time they don't tell you that the first item will cost more than you would normally pay. And do you really need two of something when you barely use one? I can't tell you how much food I've thrown out because it has become stale or spoiled.

Then, of course, there's the fun of making it to the cash register only to be told the item I selected is the wrong size, the wrong flavor, the wrong weight or the wrong variety.

I'd like to tell the supermarkets to forget those lousy coupons. They should keep the customers' goodwill by sticking to legitimate half-price sales. And they should limit shoppers to two or three of the sale items. I've seen people rush in with a fist full of coupons and practically clean out the store.

I hope you will print my letter, Ann. There must be millions of others who are turned off by coupons, and it's time we spoke up.—Lola in Bellerose, N.Y.

DEAR LOLA: Some people love

NEW YORK (AP)—Actor Johnny Depp breaks into uncontrollable laughter when he sees someone choke.

"It's terrible," he says in the May issue of Details magazine.

"One of my good friends in L.A., he was eating a club sandwich and I hear this (gagging sound) and he was stretching his neck out and then he started almost convulsing, and I began to cackle and I couldn't stop. He was almost blue, everyone was trying to help him, and I was on the floor laughing."

Depp says his laughter is a combination of fear and panic.

"I think it's that there's nothing you can do that gets me," he said. "But I'm scared at the same time. I don't want anybody to be hurt."

couponing. Apparently there's an art to it which you have not mastered.

I remember a few years back seeing a woman on TV who was extremely good at it. She was shown with six or seven carts loaded with groceries which cost her a mere pittance. The woman credited the intelligent use of coupons with saving her hundreds of dollars. So, my dear, it works for those who get the hang of it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been dating someone for the past three months. We see each other at least three or four times a week and we talk on the telephone almost every night.

I am very much attracted to "Kent" and want a serious relationship with him. I believe the feeling is mutual or he would not be spending so much time with me. The problem is, he seems much too involved with his former wife. They were divorced 18 months ago. She married the man she had left Kent for.

Kent keeps referring to his ex-wife as his "best friend." She still balances his checkbook, goes with him when he buys clothes and prepares some of his meals.

I understand how previously married couples can still remain friends, but this seems like too cozy a "friendship." Should I ask him if there is room in his life for ANOTHER best friend? Please tell me frankly if you think I'm setting myself up for heartbreak.—Uneasy in Alaska

DEAR ALASKA: I would caution you against making too heavy an emotional investment in this relationship. It sounds as if the embers of the old marriage are still flickering.

Don't pass up an opportunity to go out with other men. If the ex continues to pick out Kent's clothes and is still balancing his checkbook, she may forget that they are divorced and wind up engaging in a few other wife-like activities.

Gem of the Day: A flashlight is something you carry dead batteries in.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Robert De Niro doesn't have to pay child support for a 10-year-old whose mother convinced him the girl was his daughter, a judge ruled.

The Oscar-winning actor testified Monday he saw the child, Nina Nadeja De Niro, no more than six times, each visit lasting about two hours, his lawyer said. Blood tests showed he was not the girl's biological father.

Her mother, Helena Lisandrello, argued De Niro remained the girl's "putative father" because he told the child she was his daughter and provided monthly support for 10 years.

Superior Court Judge James Endman dismissed Lisandrello's claim Monday, said the actor's attorney, Ronald Anteau. Her attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, didn't immediately return a telephone call seeking comment.

Anteau said De Niro, 49, paid for the child's 1982 birth because Lisandrello told him he was the father, but he didn't make regular support payments.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Both sides rested in the Rodney King beating trial after a dramatic prosecution finale turned one policeman's year-old videotaped testimony into an explosive denunciation of his three co-defendants.

"My perspective was ... too much force was used," Officer Theodore Briseno said on the tape, a condensed version of his testimony at the four officers' state court trial last year.

Testimony ended Tuesday in the 2-month-old federal trial. U.S. District Judge John G. Davies planned to discuss jury instructions with lawyers today and set closing arguments to begin Thursday.

"The case will be yours for decision Friday afternoon," he told the jury.

The officers are accused of violating King's civil rights in the beating, which was videotaped by a bystander and broadcast worldwide.

Last year's acquittals in state court on most charges of assault and excessive force triggered rioting in Los Angeles that killed more than 50 people and caused about $1 billion in damage.

The heavily edited videotape was shown to the jury Tuesday despite tumultuous legal maneuvering by defense attorneys trying to block it.

The defense later tried to recover lost ground by recalling as its last witness Sgt. Stacey Koon.

Koon restated key defense points: that there were no blows struck to King's head, that King's facial fractures were caused by a fall, and that officers saw King from a different perspective than the amateur cameraman who videotaped the beating.

But a prosecutor used Koon's return to elicit a fact edited out of Briseno's videotape - that Briseno considered another defendant, Officer Laurence Powell, "out of control" during the beating.

"Didn't you write in your book that defendant Briseno gave an incorrect motivation for trying to stop Powell?" asked Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven Clymer.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Twenty-four candidates, representing six political parties, beat the March 31 deadline to qualify for the May 1 special election for the U.S. Senate.

Considered the front-runner is interim incumbent Bob Krueger, who was appointed by Gov. Ann Richards to the Senate seat vacated when Lloyd Bentsen became President Clinton's secretary of the treasury.

Krueger will face four Democratic opponents, 10 Republicans, six independents, one Libertarian, one member of the Socialist Workers Party and one member of the People's party.

School Finance Suit
Meanwhile, state Rep. John Culberson, R-Houston, announced he will file a lawsuit to nullify the results of the school finance proposition, contending that the measure deceives voters by not telling them that passage would allow the state to set local tax rates.

Supporters of the amendment, Proposition 1, denied Culberson's interpretation and decried his plan to take the issue to court.

General counsel John Tunnell of the secretary of state's office said his agency believes "the proposed ballot language is clearly sufficient. This has come up before on other amendments."

Culberson said his lawsuit would not affect Proposition 2 and 3, which deal with unfunded education mandates and funding for school facilities.

Chuck McDonald, the governor's deputy press secretary, called Culberson's threatened lawsuit "really ridiculous."

"The people of Texas are tired of lawsuits on school finance. It is incomprehensible to me that anybody would want to start a new round of legal action before we can even have the election," McDonald said.

Culberson said it was too late to stop the election, but he said he will seek temporary and permanent injunctions to keep the ballots from being tabulated and the election results from being certified as valid.

SOS raises $191,100

Save Our Schools, the group organized to pass the "share the wealth" school finance amendment also on the May 1 ballot, has raised $191,100 — almost 34 times the amount raised by the opposition.

"We're right on target," said Margaret Justus, spokeswoman for Save Our Schools. She said polling in March showed Texans support the school finance constitutional amendment by a 6-point margin. According to campaign finance reports, Texans Against Robin Hood Taxes, which opposes the measure, has raised $5,685, largely from individuals.

The group call the amendment "Robin Hood" because it would shift $400 million annually in local tax revenue from property-rich districts to property-poor ones.

Trucking Compromise
Legislation aimed at stimulating trucking competition and make it easier for women- and minority-owned businesses to enter the industry has passed the Senate.

The action comes after the Senate, under pressure from Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, drafted compromise legislation between trucking companies and shippers who contend more competition would lower their costs.

The bill, authored by Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, would encourage competition by allowing more flexibility in rate-setting and shipping restrictions.

Health Bills Passed

Gov. Richards has indicated she will sign recently-passed bills that:
• Require hospitals and physicians to immunize children who have not been vaccinated for diseases such as measles and polio. Richards said the bill would result in "a serious reduction in the number of childhood diseases."

• Authorize the Texas Department of Health to investigate possible environmental health threats, such as the concentration of birth defects in Cameron County.

Casino Talks Begin

Dave Talbot, Gov. Richards' general counsel, has agreed to set up a formal timetable for negotiations with the Tigua Indians on their proposal to open Texas' first casino.

Talbot met last week with Tigua leaders for preliminary talks on the tribe's request for a gambling compact, a treaty required before the tribe can set up a casino in El Paso.

Other Highlights

• A bill to retain the name of the Texas Department of Health — rather than change it to the Texas Department of Public Health — has won final legislative approval and will save the state an estimated $162,000. Although lawmakers voted two years ago to change the name, Comptroller John Sharp recommended keeping the old name.

• Republican state senators opposed to a Democratic plan for electing judges brought Senate business to a halt last week by failing to show up. Lacking a quorum, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock was forced to postpone all Senate action until the next day.

• The Texas Supreme Court has ruled for the state in a $120 million oil royalty dispute that dates from the late 1920s. On a 5-4 vote the court said the state's General Land Office has been cheated out of funds from oil production on a small tract of land in Pecos County.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Along with spring and summer come household and garden pests and, for some, the need for pesticides.

Pesticides can be beneficial in some cases, but they can be harmful to our environment and family members if not handled and stored properly.

Whenever using a pesticide, it's absolutely vital to read all the information on the container and accompanying literature, especially how to use properly and any cautions and recommendations for storage and disposal.

Here are some additional guidelines if you must store pesticides.

Always store them in their original container, making sure any childproof caps are closed properly.

Never store pesticides near cleaning supplies, food, dishes or medical supplies.

It is recommended that pesticides always be kept inside a locked cabinet in a storage room or shed that is well ventilated. This will help prevent children or pets from accidentally coming in contact with them.

Do all you can to prevent any accidental poisoning or injury from pesticides when using or storing them.

One thing to keep in mind is that when you buy a pesticide, buy just enough product to treat the problem at hand and you won't need to worry about storage problems. — Heloise

Museum director presents program

The Deaf Smith County Historical Museum was the topic of the program presented by Donna Brockman, museum director, when members of the Garden Beautiful Club met Friday morning in the home of Bessie Story.

Brockman gave many interesting facts about the museum and the Deaf Smith County Historical Society. She also discussed several of the current displays at the museum including wedding dresses which belonged to Hereford pioneer residents. She stated that thousands of people have toured the museum including local school students. The museum is open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and Sunday by appointment only.

President Jerry Jackson presided over the business session when Louise Streun was presented to the club and accepted as a new member.

Garden tips were given by Louise Axe and Jeane Dowell.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and the treasurer's report given. Also, communication was read from Deaf Smith County Library.

New officers were nominated for the coming club year. They included president, Vada Axe; first vice president, Marguerite Cole; second vice president, Louise Axe; third vice president, Jeane Dowell; secretary, Helen Spinks; treasurer, Dorothy Noland; and reporter, Dottie Darden.

The next meeting, which will include a luncheon, is planned at 11:30 a.m. May 7 at Something Special. New officers for 1993-94 will be installed.

Refreshments were served by hostess, Bessie Story, and co-hostess, Jerry Jackson, to Vada Axe, Dottie Darden, Audine Dettman, Jeane Dowell, Dorothy Noland, Helen Spinks, Leona Andrews, Marguerite Cole, Louise Axe, Margaret Young and guest, Donna Brockman.

No Secretary of State has become President since James Buchanan was elected in 1856.

Bird's nest treats

Here are some simple, yummy bird's-nest treats to make. Drop a jelly bean inside each one and tuck them in Easter baskets. Or, wrap them in pastel-colored plastic wrap, tie with a ribbon and share them with friends.

You will need:
1 cup semisweet chocolate chips or butterscotch chips.

1 tablespoon margarine
2 1/2 cups chow mein noodles (substitute crushed shredded wheat cereal if you wish)

1/2 cup chopped nuts (optional) jelly beans

1. Stir together noodles and chopped nuts in a large mixing bowl.
2. An adult should melt the chips, peanut butter and margarine in a double boiler to a smooth consistency, stirring frequently.

Pour the mixture over the noodles and nuts and stir until well coated.

3. Drop the mixture by teaspoons onto cookie sheets that have been covered with wax paper. When cool enough to the touch, let kids shape the mounds to resemble birds' nests. Younger children may need assistance if you use shredded wheat instead of chow mein noodles.

4. Set jelly beans in the nests and refrigerate to set the nests.

Makes 20 serving size nests.

The first windmills were probably built, not in Holland, but in Iran.
