Meet planned to talk about landfill closure

An informational meeting about solid waste disposal in Hereford and the closing of the city landfill will be held at 5:30 p.m. Monday in the city hall.

Citizens will have an opportunity to ask questions about landfill issues after remarks by several specialists in the field of garbage disposal.

Charles Stavely, Texas Water Commission liaison working rural and small city communities, will give an overview of landfill regulations.

From Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, John Kiehl, a solid waste specialist, will review regulations as they apply in the Panhandle.

Also presenting information will be members of an engineering firm retained by the city to make a study of waste disposal options. Fletcher Kelly and John Landgraf of Landgraf, Crutcher and Associates, Inc., of Odessa, will review the firm's report, given to the City Commission in January.

After the presentations, speakers will answer questions from the public about landfill issues. Members of the City Commission also will be present to respond to questions from residents.

The City Commission decided several months ago to close the landfill now in use at the northeast edge of the city because of anticipated expense of operating the facility when federal and state regulations become effective.

Because of the amount of garbage collected daily by the city, the engineering firm advised that Hereford would not qualify for the so-called West Texas exemption.

The exemption would permit the city to maintain a landfill, with fewer restrictions, if no more than 20 tons of solid waste is collected daily. The engineers estimated that the city's daily collection is 25 tons, or more.

The city-owned landfill must be closed on Oct. 9 unless the city decides to maintain it and comply with regulations related to operation of landfills.

The City Commission has discussed hauling solid waste to a privately-owned landfill at Canyon or a site operated by the City of Amarillo.

Retail sales note jump of 1.2 percent

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Retail sales rebounded 1.2 percent in April after a sharp, weather-related decline in March, the government said today, while consumer prices increased 0.4 percent.

The retail sales increase, to a seasonally adjusted $169.7 billion, was the best in six months, the Commerce Department said. It followed back-to-back drops of 0.8 percent in March and 0.1 percent in February.

Economists had attributed much of the March decrease to the blizzard that socked the East Coast and were expecting the April rise. However, they caution that even with the bounceback, sales are scarcely better than the $169.2 billion level reached in December.

"In essence we still ... (are) looking at a level of April sales that's . . . higher than the midwinter readings, and that's pretty slow stuff," said economist David C. Munro of High Frequency Economics in New York.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department said consumer prices in April jumped 0.4 percent, double the increase expected in advance by economists and the worst since January.

That partly reflected the effect of West Coast rains on vegetable crops. But even excluding the volatile food and energy categories, prices rose 0.4 percent.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said the number of Americans filing first-time claims for jobless benefits fell to 339,000 during the week ended May 1, down by 3,000 from the week before. It was the third straight decline and the lowest level in four weeks.

Munro and other analysts said sales and economic growth in general got ahead of themselves late last year.

House votes to lighten up 'no pass, no play' penalties

AUSTIN (AP) - Nearly a decade after adopting it, the Texas House has voted to ease the state's controversial no pass, no play rule.

Opponents of the move called it a retreat from academic excellence.

Lawmakers on Wednesday backed a proposal that could halve six-week student suspensions from sports and other extracurricular activities. The rule was a key element in the landmark 1984 school reforms of House Bill 72.

But House members argued that six weeks is too strict, discourages many students and keeps some from attempting more challenging courses.

Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, offered the option of rolling back suspensions to three weeks in an amendment to a larger bill designed to reduce state requirements on schools.

A move to kill his amendment was rejected, 117-26, and sponsors of the larger bill then accepted Stiles' proposal. The full bill later won tentative approval. A second vote is needed to send the measure to the Senate for debate.

Stiles' amendment would give campus principals the option of lifting suspensions after three weeks if students make no grades lower than 70 out of 100 during that period. If a student did receive a grade below 70 in any class, the suspension would continue for the full six weeks.

"No pass, no play in its present form does not promote success for students," Stiles said. "All I'm asking for today is a modification so if a child is passing, they can participate."

Rep. Libby Linebarger, who heads the House Public Education Committee, called the move a retreat from high academic standards.

"I think the reason no pass, no play was put in was because we made a commitment in this state to academic excellence," said Ms. Linebarger, D-Manchaca.

"That's far more important than any extracurricular activity - whether it's football, whether it's basketball ... whether it's band. We ought to be concerned about how well our kids perform on academics, and there's absolutely no reason to change from six weeks to three weeks," she argued.

Stiles and other supporters of a rollback said that because of length of seasons, many extracurricular activities end before a student's six-week suspension is up.

"It's the death penalty. I guess you could say," said Rep. Robert Saunders, D-LaGrange.

They said participation in sports and other activities helps children learn more than just classroom lessons and improves their self-esteem.

"Many of the important values of life are taught in extracurricular activities. With the breakdown of the family in Texas, one of the few places left that kids have the opportunity to learn important values - the reward for hard work, the reward for sacrifice, the reward for discipline - are extracurricular activities," said Rep. Steve Ogden, R-College Station.

"I think your amendment doesn't go far enough. I think we ought to

Clinton plan for tax increase trust fund blasted by Dole as 'gimmick' to sell plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans derided President Clinton's plan to funnel money from new taxes and spending cuts into a new deficit-reduction trust fund as a "gimmick."

"The president's proposed 'tax-increase trust fund' is just a gimmick to make his unpopular tax increases look good," Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said after Clinton described his plan in a New York speech Wednesday.

The president unveiled the proposal at a time when his five-year plan to raise taxes and cut spending by nearly $500 billion is just beginning to move through Congress. Clinton says the savings are needed to attack the government's huge federal deficit, but Republicans say Democrats simply want to use the budget cuts to boost spending for favored programs.

Clinton said his plan would require Congress to "put every penny of new

Richards to address state

Another bill passes to address school funding

AUSTIN (AP) - With a deadline looming to reform school finance, Gov. Ann Richards wants to talk directly to Texans in a live broadcast tonight.

"The future of Texas' children is at stake. We don't have time for partisan games and political posturing," Richards said Wednesday. "We must meet this court order or face the eventual closing of our schools."

Lawmakers have a June 1 court deadline to pass a plan to even out funding available to school districts of differing property wealth, or face an order cutting off state education aid.

School districts rely on state aid and local property taxes. Property wealth differences historically have resulted in large funding disparities.

"We have two and a half weeks to meet the court order," Richards said. "I want the people of Texas to understand how serious the situation is."

In the effort to meet the deadline, the Texas Senate on Wednesday approved a plan that would shift $40 billion in business property from the tax rolls of the state's richest school districts to its poorest.

"We have taken the biggest step that the state of Texas has ever taken to try to give them (poor school districts) the same access to funds that other school districts in Texas have," said Senate Education Committee Chairman Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, after his measure was approved 27-4.

The bill, which affects a portion of the $600 billion in statewide property wealth, was sent to the House for consideration. A school consolidation proposal has been developed in the House, but leaders there postponed that measure while awaiting the Senate bill.

Four GOP senators voted against Ratliff's measure Wednesday: Jane Nelson of Flower Mound, J.E. "Buster" Brown of Lake Jackson, Don Henderson of Houston and John Leedom of Dallas.

"I think you are going to have some angry business people, and not just business people, but communities who have worked so hard in the area of economic development to attract those businesses to those areas," Ms. Nelson said.

Some of the business community had been "nervous" about his proposal, Ratliff said. But he said he had met with leading business organizations and believed he had allayed most of their fears.

Ratliff said his plan would get the state out of its court battle over school funding. He said 99.6 percent of Texas' 3.4 million students would be in an equalized system under his bill.

Under Ratliff's proposal, the state education commissioner would be required to detach business property from 109 of the state's wealthiest school districts to try to achieve no more than $280,000 of property wealth per student. That's out of 1,048 school districts in Texas.

Seven of the 109 school districts don't have enough business property to get down to the $280,000 limit, including Allamore, Kenedy

More news from Austin

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Senate approved an education funding reform plan that would shift $40 billion in business property from the tax rolls of the state's richest school districts to its poorest.

The bill, which affects a portion of the $600 billion in statewide property wealth, was sent to the House on a 27-4 Senate vote Wednesday.

taxes and the budget cuts proposed in my budget into the trust fund so the American people know that it has to go to deficit reduction."

Clinton borrowed the proposal from Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., and other Democrats. The White House hopes it will help win support from voters and conservative Democratic lawmakers who might otherwise flinch at his huge deficit-reduction plan.

"The time has come to prove that when we say we're going to do something with the people's money, we actually do it," the president said.

"The proposal will do nothing by itself to reduce the government's record annual performances at running up red ink, a point Clinton conceded in his speech.

"You must undergo the pain of the spending cuts and the tax increases because that's the only way to really bring the deficit down," he told his audience at the Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art.

The measure would earmark money raised from new taxes and spending cuts for a trust fund devoted solely to shrinking the budget deficit.

But trust fund money doesn't sit untouched in a safe. It is invested in Treasury securities.

And as long as there is a budget deficit, the cash-hungry government must use all the money it collects, and more, to pay for its operations - everything from telephone bills to aircraft carriers.

Because of that, Republicans didn't hesitate to criticize the proposal.

"You can put it in a bushel basket," Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, ranking Republican on the Senate Budget Committee, said of budget savings. "You can purit in a box, and the truth of the matter is ... nobody should be fooled" that deficit reduction will actually take place.

"This idea takes the blue ribbon as the most genuinely phony proposal I have ever seen on the American budget," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. "I think this is a transparent attempt to mislead the American people."

Democrats leaped to Clinton's defense, though none claimed that the trust fund would solve the nation's deficit woes.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said the main purpose of the fund would be "persuading people that taxes that will be levied are exclusively for the purpose of deficit reduction."

Supporters hope taxpayers will view the trust fund as a legally binding contract that locks in deficit reduction.

Bulldozers flatten site of compound

WACO, Texas (AP) - One day after allowing local officials, prosecutors and defense attorneys to tour the charred remains of the Branch Davidian compound, the government hired bulldozers to flatten the scorched ruins.

Meanwhile, the federal agent who best knew members of the doomsday cult said he is haunted by the ill-fated Feb. 28 raid, the 51-day standoff that ensued, and its tragic, fiery end in which more than 70 people died.

"I think about it constantly - every day and every night - everything that happened and why," Robert Rodriguez told The Dallas Morning News in a copyright story in Thursday's editions.

"I've come to believe we never stood a chance that day. After learning about all the leaks that we didn't know about, we were doomed from the beginning."

Now, little remains on the prairie known as Mount Carmel. The blackened water tower that loomed above the wreckage since the April 19 was crumbled Wednesday as machines rolled across the crime scene for safety purposes.

Jeff Jamar, the FBI special agent in charge during the stalemate, said the bulldozers were "just filling holes" around the cult's 77 acres.

The precautions were taken in preparation for tours of the area by state health officials, who are considering quarantining the area.

Several other tours have been given recently, including a three-hour visit Tuesday for McLennan County District Attorney John Segrest, 15 of his prosecutors and the attorneys for several cult members.

Each left with grim reminders of the tragedy they previously had witnessed from afar.

"I was kind of excited about going down there and seeing it, but then the first thing that I saw was two kids' bicycles all mangled up in a big pile of junk," Dan Mosley told the Waco Tribune-Herald.

"That brought back to me real quickly who the real victims were in all of this and my whole mood changed. I wanted to leave right then because after that, all I could see were those kids."

Another person who can't leave behind the pain is Rodriguez, who is a nine-year ATF veteran who spent three months undercover as the cult's neighbor - a college student named Robert Gonzalez.

He was in the fortress when cult leader David Koresh began planning his defense for the ATF attack.

Rodriguez said he had to fight himself from being drawn under Koresh's spell. He also was aided by fellow agents, who helped him withdraw from the preachings once he left the compound.

"They would talk to me, bring me back. They would tell me what I was doing there, what we were trying to do," he said. "They'd remind me that the interpretations David had were just interpretations. ..."

"The thing that probably saved me is I didn't have to stay there. I could come and go as I pleased," he said.

Rodriguez gave few details about the morning of Feb. 28, when his colleagues tried serving federal search warrants for the compound and arrest warrants to Koresh, but ended up exchanging gunfire with the cult.

Even more than three weeks after the fire, Rodriguez is still troubled by his memories. He has yet to attend any memorial services for the slain ATF agents and he plans to skip a service next week in Washington.

"I'm just not ready ... It has eased very little," he said. "What I feel is way beyond what you can imagine."

"The one thing I want people to remember is that four good people were killed - four heroes. I just wish there were something greater I could've done."

"Right now, I'm just trying to think about prosecuting the people that did this. When that's over, hopefully, then I can find peace."

Meanwhile, health agencies must decide what to do with the compound. No matter what they come up with, a state district judge is making sure the public will be kept away from the site.

Judge Bill Logue issued Wednesday a temporary restraining order on behalf of Janet Kendrick and six other cult members that prevents former cult member George Roden and others from entering the compound.

Logue set a May 25 hearing for a temporary injunction to block access to the prairie land.

Proposed bill requires annual student testing in grades three-eight

AUSTIN (AP) - Students in grades 3-8 would be tested in reading and mathematics every year under a bill that has won Senate approval.

The measure also would continue testing students before graduation, as part of an effort to make sure schools are held accountable for the work they do, said Senate Education Committee Chairman Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant.

Under the current examination schedule for the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills, students are to be tested in grades 4, 8 and 10, said Texas Education Agency spokesman Joey Lozano.

Ratliff's bill also would provide for periodic testing in other subjects, such as science. He said Wednesday that other state tests would be eliminated if his bill took effect.

Ratliff's bill also would give the education commissioner power to intervene directly at a school campus whose students are not performing well.

For example, a new management board could be appointed to oversee campus operations.

The bill, passed by the Senate, goes to the House for consideration. Among other provisions, it would:

- Give students who fail the exit-level test required for graduation a certificate showing they had been through school.
- Study the TEA's operation and structure for two years to see if changes should be made. Under this "sunset" process, the agency would be abolished unless specifically continued through new legislation.
- Eliminate special tenure that's currently given to TEA employees, putting them on equal footing with other state workers.
- Put new and existing requirements on school accountability into one section of the education code.

U.S. interests in Bosnia undefined

Clinton has not explained need for intervention

By RUTH SINAI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - To many Americans, Yugoslavia is a far-off land beset by complex ethnic and religious rivalries. So it could be difficult for President Clinton to explain why they should care about stopping warfare in a place where no U.S. interests seem to be at risk.

Except for two or three isolated references, Clinton has not clearly defined to the American public where U.S. interests lie in the Balkan tinderbox. From what he and some members of Congress have said, these emerge as the principal U.S. interests:

- The fighting in Bosnia could spread to other former Yugoslav republics, involve neighboring European countries and draw the United States into a broader conflict.
- A broader war would destabilize Europe, disrupt trade with the United States and endanger U.S. jobs and investments.
- The United States must maintain its superpower role by displaying the moral leadership for which it has become respected and taking the lead to stop "ethnic cleansing" in Bosnia.

- Letting aggression like Serbia's go unpunished could encourage other countries to act the same.

The latter was one of the arguments used to explain why U.S. troops should fight to expel Iraq from Kuwait. But there, the overriding interest was much more easily defined: About one-third of the oil consumed in this country is produced in the Persian Gulf.

When the Bush administration sent troops to help feed hungry Somalis, it could safely say that risks to Americans were minimal - and pictures of starving Somali children did the rest.

In the complex situation in the Balkans, few could argue that U.S. military involvement carries no risks - although the pictures of burnt villages and sobbing children in Bosnia are as compelling as images from Somalia.

The United States had a clear strategic interest in Yugoslavia as long as it was the maverick among Moscow's satellites, defying Soviet foreign policies and generally being a thorn in Moscow's side.

Advocates of a military role in the dismembered Yugoslavia argue that the United States still has vital interests there.

"To state it briefly, twice in this century we tried to stay out of conflict in Europe, with which we have a special relationship, only to be drawn in later at a much higher price," said Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., referring to the delayed U.S. entry into the first and second World Wars.

The fact that Bosnia was the flashpoint that sparked World War I is a salient lesson to advocates of U.S. intervention.

In fact, the Clinton administration is considering sending U.S. troops to Macedonia and Kosovo to deter possible Serbian aggression and contain the threat inside Bosnia.

"It is in the United States' national interest to keep this conflict from spilling over into a lot of other countries, which could drag the United States into something ... that we don't want," Clinton said Wednesday.

According to this domino theory, if the Serbs exercise their historic claim to Macedonia, then Bulgaria, Turkey and Greece might do so too. That would pit two pivotal U.S. NATO allies, Greece and Turkey, against each other and could pull apart the 16-nation alliance.

Such a war within NATO, said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., could hit the United States in the pocketbook.

Another interest, cited by Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., involves the Muslim world. If the United States fails to help Bosnian Muslims, resentment among Muslims worldwide will fuel already rampant anti-American feeling.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to respond to "Joe in Springfield," who complained about the United States' unfavorable balance of trade.

I just threw away my second made-in-America telephone in three years. My German and Japanese-made ones are more than 10 years old. When I can drive my American-made car home without calling the motor club to come and get it started, put on American-made clothes without having the seams split, don American-made shoes without tears in the lining and heels that run down after two weeks, wear American-made bathrobes that do not fall apart in the laundry, buy an American-made dishwasher that doesn't need to be serviced after four months, make a cup of American coffee that isn't so bitter I choke, and pick up an American-made pen that doesn't leak ink all over my blouse pocket, THEN I will have the right to demand that my congressman do something about the unfair balance of trade.

For the time being, I suggest that we try to do something about the deplorable merchandise made in America and return quality control to the manufacturing arena. by the way, I am typing this letter on my American-made typewriter which had to be sent in for repairs within a month of purchase.--Pat in Connecticut Who Has Had It with American Junk

DEAR PAT: I received hundreds of letters from readers who had similar stories to tell. I have one, too, but it's different.

I'm typing this column on an IBM electric typewriter that I've had for nearly 20 years. It has never conked out, except the time I dropped a paper clip in the works, and it stopped dead. Imagine my embarrassment when the serviceman came out, lifted the lid and handed me the culprit.

This is not to say that your complaint is not valid, but not all American-made merchandise is shoddy. A great many products made in America are unsurpassable. The wise shoppers know this.

The worst beefs came from readers who complained about their American-made cars. An unsettling number said that foreign cars are better made, need fewer repairs and last longer. This has got to change, and I believe it will. So keep your eye on Ford, Chrysler and General Motors. Read on for another letter on the same subject.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your reply to "Joe in Springfield" about buying American was simplistic. Most of us are willing to buy American. Just tell us where the American-made products are.

Where do I find an American-made television or radio? My so-called American car uses components manufactured in France, Germany, England and Brazil and was assembled in Canada.

For the most part, the American consumer has not abandoned the American manufacturers; the manufacturers have abandoned American labor. I would feel more patriotic buying a Honda assembled in Ohio than I would buying a Chrysler made in Japan.

There should be a law that a company cannot call its product American unless it contains American-made parts and was assembled by American workers.--Bob in Walnut Creek.

DEAR BOB: Thanks for the input. Readers? How about it?

April luncheons successful

Members of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society have sponsored luncheons each Tuesday and Thursday during April for seven years. This year, 256 guests from the community and the surrounding area enjoyed the gourmet meals which were served at the E.B. Black House. Luncheon guest Holly Bixler, at left, is served cherry cream soup by Carmen Flood, Historical Society board member. Reservations for next year's luncheons are being accepted at the Deaf Smith County Museum.

Annual luncheons attract hundreds

For the past seven years, members of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society have been hosting luncheons at the historic E.B. Black House during the month of April. The festive noon meals are held each Tuesday and Thursday in April.

Because of the success of the gourmet luncheons, reservations are being accepted for April 1994 by calling the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum.

The eight luncheons were attended this year by 256 men and women from the local community as well as from Dalhart, Dimmitt, Hale Center, Amarillo, Wellington and Friona. The meals were served to members of study clubs and sororities, secretaries and other individuals.

Board members who greeted and served guests were dressed in costumes appropriate to the era of the home and a style show was presented to the guests which included fashions from the first two decades of the century. Modeling the antique clothing from the local museum were Peggy Hyer, Lisa Albiar, Mary Zinser, Mary Kay McQuigg, Melissa Walden, Shavon Lloyd and Daisha

Recycling rates grow again

Good news about glass recycling has come around again: One-third of all glass containers used in the United States were recycled in 1992. This reflects the continued success of the glass industry's commitment to recycling, explain the experts at the Glass Packaging Institute (GPI).

This also marks the fifth straight year of growth for glass recycling. "Everybody wins when the recycling rate grows," says Lewis D. Andrews, Jr., president of GPI.

Here's another positive note: the actual tonnage of recycled glass produced by the glass industry rose to 2.4 million. That represents a 95 percent increase since 1987.

Since 1989, 34 states have adopted curbside recycling laws, and now more than 4,000 communities participate in this program. The program has experienced such success because it is simple and convenient for just about everyone, particularly consumers. Consumers simply place recyclables, such as glass containers, newspapers and cans at the curb for pickup.

A 1990 Gallup Poll found a full a 51 percent of consumers surveyed were willing to separate their trash for curbside pick up. Only 19 percent are willing to participate in forced deposit programs.

Edwards. The attire featured this year at the style shows included lingerie dresses named because of their ability to be washed and ironed at home. Fabrics were organdy, dimity, fine handkerchief linen and heavy Irish linen. All costumes were white as was the fashion of that time. Tables placed in the music and dining rooms of the Black House were covered in white linen cloths and were appointed with old-fashioned China and sterling flatware. Flower arrangements, which adorned individual tables and were also placed throughout the house, featured blossoms and greenery grown in the Black House Garden and arranged by society members. For the past two years, the chairs have also been dressed in floral fabric chosen to accent the fine handmade rugs in the music and dining rooms.

The luncheon menus vary each year with the focus on flavor and beauty of presentation. As a response to many requests over the years for recipes from the luncheons, a compiled cookbook of all the meals served is being planned for the 10th anniversary which will be observed in three years. Menus are also created and cooked by the board members as a small gift to the community.

The donation requested for the luncheon is $10 with the proceeds used to help support the gardens surrounding the house.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Chad Everett does not have to submit a blood sample that a 20-year-old man insists will prove the actor is his father.

Twelve years ago, the former "Medical Center" star won a lawsuit alleging he is the father of Dale Andre Lee Everett, who was born to Sheila Scott, an extra on the TV series. The actor denied having sex with the woman.

On Tuesday, Superior Court Judge Raymond Cardenas denied a bid by the young man to obtain a blood sample for DNA analysis.

The 56-year-old actor played a doctor on "Medical Center."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: During World War II we had to save cans of fruits and vegetables for the government to use for making bullets. We opened cans on both ends and stepped on them to crush them flat. I still do it today and save a lot on trash bags. I also cut all boxes of cereal at four corners and both ends, which also reduces the garbage. I never have more than one trash bag while my neighbors have three and four. My friends are doing it too and save a lot on trash bags. — G.P. Manchester, N.H.

Girls' golf team, Blea, Coplen, at state meet

Whiteface athletes feel confident

By JAY PEDED
Sports Editor

For Greg Coplen and Steven Blea, Austin is a dream realized. For the Hereford girls' golf team, Austin is almost a home away from home.

For all three, Austin is a chance at a state championship. They'll compete this week in the state track meet and tennis and golf tournaments, each with a realistic chance of bringing home a medal—maybe even a gold one.

The girls' golf team will be playing today and Friday on Austin's Jimmy Clay Golf Course. It's the same course DUSTY SAUL, Jennifer Prater and Cecelia Jauch played during each of the last two state Class 4A tournaments. JoJo Lytal played there two years ago, and Brook Weatherly played there last year.

All five are still on the Hereford team. The two players on the squad who haven't played in the state tournament, Kelly Kelso and Stephanie Walls, just happened to turn in Hereford's second-best and third-best scores when the team won the Region I-4A Tournament two weeks ago.

Coach Stacey Bixler had to choose, from these seven girls, five to play in the state tournament. That gives him a problem any coach would love to have. All seven went to Austin Wednesday morning, and Bixler didn't have to decide which five would play until after their practice round on Wednesday.

Winning the regional tournament was a big deal to the team. To win, they had to knock off Andrews, the golfing machine which had won seven straight regional titles and four straight state championships. Beating Andrews gives the Hereford team a legitimate shot at a state title.

"I feel like this is the year," Saul said. "We beat Andrews once and we can beat them again."

"I think it meant a lot to us," said Bixler. "After being there at regionals as many times as these girls have, to take one more step and get first is quite an accomplishment. With the success we've had in girls' golf (seven regional berths in the last eight years), this was the first regional championship."

Of course, Andrews took second at the regional tournament, and will probably be bent on revenge in Austin. In addition, Bastrop, the runner-up at state the last two years, and Athens, last year's third-place finisher, also will be back.

Hereford was fourth last year, and eighth two years ago. Both times, the Herd showed a tendency to not play well on the first day, then play very well on the second day.

Last year, second-day conditions added an average of 15 strokes to the top three teams' scores from the first day to the second day. Meanwhile, Hereford shot 326 the first day, and 326 the second day. (Andrews won with a 666 total.)

"We'd like to get in the top three and of course we'd like to win if we get in that position," Bixler said. "One thing I don't feel like we've done is have a good first day down there. What that's done is put our back against the wall, but we've always come back and played better. We want to get off to a quicker start if we can."

"Our main goal is to position ourselves for Friday by playing well Thursday," Saul said. She thinks we can do it.

"I feel real confident," she said. "This will be our third year to go. We have a lot of experience that I feel will help us a great deal. We have an advantage over the other teams down there."

For Steven Blea, Monday was what people in offices all over America call a "typical Monday."

He wasn't throwing very well—for him. He was heaving a 12-pound ball of metal 55-56 feet. That's farther than approximately 99.9 percent of all 18-year-old American males could heave it, but he wasn't happy about it.

At a state qualifiers' meet last weekend, he put the shot about 56-8, he wasn't happy with that either. After all, he had set a Hereford High School record (58-3 1/2) two weeks before, and he has topped 60 feet in warmups.

"I lost focus," Blea said Monday. "I didn't work out all that great (last) week. I'm glad I lost. I can't go to state just thinking I'm going to win. I've got to work at it."

Of the seven other Class 4A athletes who'll compete with him Friday at 8 p.m., only two had better performances than Blea at the four regional meets. Tyrel Buckner of Denison had a 59-8 1/2 at regionals, and Raymond Williams of Belton had a 59-6 1/2. Blea's best throw at the regional meet was 57-11. The other five state-bound shot-putters were between 54 and 56 feet.

Blea is definitely in the hunt for a medal, shot put coach Bill Bridge said, "but he is in range to win."

"Right now he's just nervous because he's never been (to state) before," Bridge said on Monday. "He's a competitor. It's normal to be nervous, but he'll overcome it because of his competitiveness."

The state track meet will be held in awesome Memorial Stadium, the football home of the University of Texas Longhorns. That might only compound Blea's nervousness, so they'll go out to the ring today to get used to the surroundings. However, Bridge said while Memorial Stadium could make Blea nervous, it also could cause a helpful adrenaline rush.

"He's worked hard all year, and he's gotten better in every meet," Bridge said. "I told him the most important thing is to relax, have fun and compete."

Blea's week did get a little better. He was named male Athlete of the Year at Tuesday's All-Sports Banquet. He practiced better, too, according to Ron Young, the head coach of the boys' track team.

"He's getting a little nervous, but he's throwing better in practice. He's getting ready," Young said. "I think that thing last night (the banquet) probably helped him."

Greg Coplen, who'll play singles in the tennis tournament Friday and Saturday, was on the opposite end of the confidence meter from Blea on Monday.

"I feel confident," Coplen said. "I feel good about the way I'm playing."

The problem, of course, is that his opponent might feel the same way.

"It's just that when you get down there, there's a couple of outstanding players," he said.

Unlike in the shot put, which uses distances to measure an athlete's worth, tennis players from the other side of Texas are mostly a mystery. Tennis does have something called "Superchamps," which is a ranking compiled by players' performances in sanctioned tournaments. It is independent of the University Interscholastic League (UIL), the governing body for high school athletics in Texas.

Coplen doesn't play in the right tournaments, so he's not eligible to be ranked. His first-round opponent Friday morning in Austin, Jonathan Creath of Austin Westlake, is ranked third in Texas.

Coplen, owner of a 29-4 record and a Region I-4A singles championship, remained confident as he boarded the van Wednesday. So was his coach, Natalie Sims.

"He'll do good," Sims said. "Right after regionals, he had an injury (to his leg). We were both really nervous, but after these two weeks, taking it slow, we're ready to hit it."

"Whether he wins or loses, I know he will have given 110 percent," Sims said. "That's just Greg."

Johnson paces Suns past Spurs in overtime victory

PHOENIX (AP) - It wasn't enough that San Antonio held Phoenix under 100 points in Game 1 of their Western Conference semifinal. Sean Elliott wants an even slower pace.

"Defense is going to be the key for us," the Spurs forward said.

If so, the Spurs could be in trouble when the best-of-7 series resumes tonight. Kevin Johnson, who missed 31 regular-season games because of injuries, is at full throttle for the Suns.

"To be quite honest, I don't think there's a point guard in the NBA better than me," Johnson said after a 98-89 victory Tuesday.

"I'll go on record as saying that. Before, there was Magic Johnson and then Mark Price and John Stockton and Tim Hardaway, and I take nothing away from them. But I feel as the playoffs go on, people will see I'm much more complete and well-rounded than I used to be."

Johnson's 25 points, seven assists, five steals and up-tempo ball distribution tipped the scales for the Suns, who seemed attached to the Spurs with a rubber band.

Phoenix held leads of at least 15 points in every quarter, but couldn't shake the Spurs, who got 32 points, 10 rebounds and seven blocks from David Robinson.

Phoenix is the first team to fall behind 0-2 at home and then win a five-game series, finishing off the Los Angeles Lakers in overtime on Sunday. Johnson said that series could be a springboard for better performances.

Meanwhile, the Spurs polished off Portland 3-1 despite playing the first two on the road. Elliott said upsetting the Trail Blazers taught him any team is beatable.

A few breaks - such as the 6-foot-1 Johnson knocking a jump ball away from 6-9 J.R. Reid of the Spurs and to the Suns' Richard Dumas in the final minute - were critical in the loss, Elliott said.

"In the first series, late in the game, we came up with that loose ball," he said.

Robinson said he was disappointed with the way the Spurs let the Suns jump ahead in the first quarter, but pleased with the finish.

"At the end of the game, we were right where we wanted to be, but we couldn't hold onto it," Robinson said.

Charles Barkley, who missed all seven shots in the fourth quarter of an 86-81 loss to the Lakers on May 2, put drama in the game by missing six of eight late in Tuesday's game. And Robinson and Antoine Carr led San Antonio to a whopping 48-36 rebounding edge.

But Dan Majerle, who had four straight bad games against the Lakers before scoring 19 points in Game 5, showed signs of being out of his slump with three 3-pointers in the first half.

Phoenix coach Paul Westphal said he wasn't worried yet about the Suns' flat spots.

"I wish they wouldn't happen, but they must be happening to the other team a little bit more than they're happening to us. That's basketball in the NBA. Those other guys are good, too," Westphal said.

John Lucas likes what he has seen from his San Antonio squad.

"We're in great shape," Lucas insisted. "I like our chances in this series."

Tigers, Red Sox keep torrid pace

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers keep hitting home runs, the Boston Red Sox keep throwing shutouts. That's part of the reason those two teams are at the top of the AL East standings.

Detroit pounded five more home runs on Wednesday, giving them a major league-leading 41 on the year, in a 13-8 win at Toronto.

Boston got its second straight shutout and its fifth of the year, this time from Danny Darwin and two relievers in a 2-0 blanking of the Baltimore Orioles.

In other games Wednesday, Oakland defeated Texas 8-7, Minnesota beat California 5-2, Milwaukee downed New York 4-1, Cleveland beat Kansas City 6-2 and Chicago edged Seattle 6-5.

The Tigers hold a two-game lead over the Red Sox that they can increase to 2 1/2 with a win over Toronto tonight. If the pattern of the past two days holds true, they'll have to do it with their bats, not their arms.

Detroit has scored 25 runs to Toronto's 15 in the first two games of the three-game series. They got two home runs from both Cecil Fielder and Kirk Gibson, and Tony Phillips added a three-run shot.

"It's enjoyable for everybody now that we're all contributing," Fielder said after breaking out of a slump which saw him homer only once in his last 27 games.

"Sometimes the hitting doesn't come right away, but winning helps to weather the storm. I knew that sooner or later this would happen," he said.

It was the 17th multi-homer game of Fielder's career and the 12th for Gibson.

"I think, for lack of a better word, we're a tough team," Gibson said.

Bill Krueger (3-1) worked 3 1-3 innings in relief to earn the win. Pat Hentgen (4-2) gave up seven runs on eight hits over three innings and took the loss.

Red Sox 2, Orioles 0

The back-to-back shutouts made it the first time in 10 years the Orioles have been blanked in successive games.

Darwin saw limited action in spring training because of back problems and lost his first four starts this season. But he has given up only one run in his last 20 2-3 innings and has won his last three starts.

"I think right now I'm starting to get into the groove," Darwin said.

Fernando Valenzuela (0-3), despite allowing only two runs and seven hits in 8 1-3 innings, took the loss at Camden Yards.

Athletics 8, Rangers 7

At Oakland, Calif., Jose Canseco failed to catch a well-hit double by Brent Gates with two outs in the bottom of the ninth, allowing former teammate Troy Neel to score the winning run.

The Oakland rally came against Texas relief ace Tom Henke (1-1), who blew his first save in 25 opportunities. It also ruined a Texas rally in the top of the ninth off Dennis Eckersley (1-1), who blew a save for the fourth time this year - one more than he had all of last year when he won the Cy Young Award.

White Sox 6, Mariners 5

At Seattle, Chicago opened a 1 1/2-game lead in the AL West behind the pitching of Wilson Alvarez (4-0) and home runs from Ellis Burks, Robin Ventura and Craig Grebeck.

John Cummings (0-6) was tagged for five runs in 2 2-3 innings and was told after the game he had lost his spot in the rotation.

The White Sox have won 12 of their last 15 games.

Brewers 4, Yankees 1

At New York, Bill Wegman (3-5) and two relievers combined on a five-hitter to outpitch Jimmy Key (3-1), who entered the game with the second-lowest ERA among AL starters - 1.34. Matt Mieske homered and B.J. Surhoff stole home for the Brewers.

Indians 6, Royals 2

At Cleveland, the Indians snapped a five-game losing streak. Carlos Baerga hit a two-run single to cap a five-run second inning. Jose Mesa (3-2) pitched a complete game. Mark

Gardner (2-2) was the loser.

Twins 5, Angels 2

At Anaheim, Calif., Kevin Tapani (2-3) pitched six-hit ball for 7 1-3 innings and Dave Winfield hit a two-run homer off Chuck Finley (3-3).

Knicks knockoff Hornets in OT

NEW YORK (AP) - Patrick Ewing did exactly what he's expected to do, exactly what he did many times while leading the New York Knicks to a 60-win season.

What rookie Hubert Davis is expected to do is practice hard and sit on the bench during games. Luckily for the Knicks, Davis didn't play that role Wednesday night.

Ewing and Davis keyed a 19-6 run in the final 6 minutes of regulation, then Ewing took over with eight of his 34 points in overtime as the Knicks beat Charlotte 105-101 for a 2-0 lead in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Davis' seven points in the last 5:15 of the fourth period included a 3-pointer that tied the game 93-93 with 44 seconds left.

"They double-teamed me with his man, and he's a good shooter, so he had to take it," Ewing said of Davis' clutch 3-pointer. "He was wide open. I wasn't afraid to pass to him. He's a good player or he wouldn't be on the team. He hasn't been playing much, but he makes those baskets every day in practice."

Wide-eyed Davis, who played in just 50 of 82 games this season, smiled when he was told what Ewing said.

"I miss a lot of those in practice," Davis said.

The Knicks trailed 87-74 with 6:49 left before starting their comeback. Before that, they missed 26 of their first 31 shots in the second half.

"It was an incredible, incredible, incredible win," Knicks coach Pat

Riley said. "I've been in 150 playoff games and never saw anything like this. We were dead in the water. Then things started to happen for us."

Davis, put in the game because of Doc Rivers' back spasms, appeared in just one of New York's previous five playoff games.

"I was never so nervous in my life," Davis said. "I wasn't expecting to play at all. I didn't want to feel like it was all on me. I didn't want to be the one to ruin everything by missing shots."

Ewing took over in overtime. His jumper broke the last tie, 99-99, before Dell Curry missed a 3-pointer that went out-of-bounds with 14 seconds left.

John Starks' two free throws with 12 seconds remaining and Ewing's dunk made it 105-99 with 3.4 seconds to go.

"We just gave it away," Alonzo Mourning said. "It's hard to believe, but we just gave it away."

The best-of-7 series now moves to Charlotte Coliseum, where the Knicks won both meetings between the teams this season. Game 3 is Friday night and Game 4 is Sunday.

Mourning scored 24 points for the Hornets and Larry Johnson added 16 despite a bruised right leg. Charlotte again was hurt by poor shooting from its outside players, Kendall Gill and Curry, who missed 19 of 29 shots.

Starks finished with 25 points and Charles Oakley grabbed 16 rebounds for the Knicks.

Bonds hits, fights as Giants win again

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Say, what kind of hitting is Bobby Bonds teaching his son?

Barry Bonds and his dad both were ejected Wednesday night following a bench-clearing brawl in the San Francisco Giants' 8-2 victory over the Colorado Rockies.

The fight at Mile High Stadium began after Jerald Clark was hit by a pitch from San Francisco's Mike Jackson in the ninth inning. The dugouts emptied, but it appeared order had been restored without any punches being thrown.

Then, Barry Bonds began getting agitated, and the teams again rushed toward each other. This time, Bonds was in the middle, swinging away.

Bonds and his dad, the Giants hitting coach, were tossed, as were Clark and Colorado coach Ron Hassey. Both Barry and Bobby Bonds declined comment.

"If they want to fight, that's not what we're out there for, but we're not going to back down from anything," Rockies manager Don Baylor said. "I guarantee you that."

In other games, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 4-1, Montreal defeated Florida 10-7, Atlanta downed Houston 5-2, St. Louis stopped New York 6-5, Los Angeles rallied past Chicago 9-3 and Cincinnati beat San Diego 3-2 in a game called after five innings because of rain.

Baylor blamed Matt Williams for the fight, saying the Giants infielder "was pushing guys aside, and that just rekindled the fight. He and I had a little confrontation."

Colorado pitcher Butch Henry (2-3), who started the game but was gone when the fight started, appeared to be the only injured player. He needed four stitches at the base of his right thumb after being stepped on during the brawl.

Bonds had three hits and Williams hit his major league-leading 12th home run. Mark Carreon also connected for the Giants.

Bud Black (3-0) pitched three-hit ball for eight innings. Phillies 4, Pirates 1

Darren Daulton hit a three-run homer, leading Tommy Greene and Philadelphia past Pittsburgh. The start of the game at Veterans Stadium was delayed by rain for 2 hours, 13 minutes.

Greene (4-0) gave up five hits, struck out six and walked one in his first complete game since September 1991. He missed most of last season with an injured right shoulder.

Daulton put the Phillies ahead 3-1 in the fourth inning with his eighth home run. He homered off Randy Tomlin (1-4) after John Kruk singled and Dave Hollins walked.

Reds 3, Padres 2

Kevin Mitchell tripled and scored on a single by Chris Sabo moments before a storm arrived at Riverfront Stadium, and the game was called after five innings because of rain.

Sabo's two-out single off Andy Benes (5-3) gave Cincinnati its third straight victory.

Jose Rijo (5-1) won his fourth straight start despite giving up Benes' fourth career home run and Fred McGriff's sixth homer of the season. Braves 5, Astros 2

Steve Avery evened his record and Mike Stanton remained perfect in 13 save chances as Atlanta won at Houston.

Otis Nixon stole four bases, got two hits, scored two runs and made a running catch in center field for the Braves.

With the score tied at 1 in the seventh inning, Terry Pendleton and Ron Gant hit RBI singles with two outs.

Avery (2-2) pitched 6 1/3 innings and Stanton worked the ninth. Greg Swindell (4-4) lost his third straight decision.

Marlins 10, Expos 7

Chuck Carr made his first major league home run a grand slam, powering Florida past Montreal at Olympic Stadium.

Carr connected in the second inning off Chris Nabholz (2-3).

Greg Briley hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning and Rich Renteria went 4 for 5 and scored twice for the Marlins.

The Expos, trailing 8-1 in the third inning, rallied on home runs by Frank Bolick and Wil Cordero.

Richie Lewis (1-0) pitched three innings in relief of starter Charlie Hough and Bryan Harvey got three outs for his 11th save.

Cardinals 6, Mets 5

Luis Alicea hit a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning, lifting St. Louis over New York.

The Cardinals loaded the bases with no outs on a double by Geronimo Pena, an error by pitcher Mike Maddux (0-4) and a walk. Minutes after it began raining, Alicea hit a fly ball to medium center field, and Pena easily beat Joe Orsulak's weak throw.

Dwight Gooden, trying to win his third straight complete game, left in the seventh inning as the Cardinals tied it at 5. Mike Perez (3-2) pitched two scoreless innings.

Dodgers 9, Cubs 3

Cory Snyder, who entered the game when Darryl Strawberry's back again stiffened up, doubled, singled and drove in two runs during a seven-run rally in the eighth inning that led Los Angeles past Chicago at Wrigley Field.

Snyder's RBI double off Mike Morgan (2-6) tied the score at 3, and he capped the burst with a run-scoring single. Roger McDowell (1-0) got one out for the victory.

Tips for cooking meat at home

Today, people are cooking more at home, preparing foods that are convenient and healthful. When fixing the family meal, you should keep in mind that perishable food requires some special care.

Meat is a perishable food and correct handling techniques are needed to maintain its quality and safety. By taking the proper measures when preparing and cooking meat, you can serve convenient, nutritious, and worry-free meals.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board offers these commonsense preparation and cooking tips:

Preparation. Wash your hands with hot, soapy water before and after handling fresh meat and poultry. To guard against cross-contamination of food products, wash any work surfaces—cutting boards, counters, plates and utensils. Use a plastic cutting board for raw meat and save the wood board for carving cooked meats; make sure to wash any cutting board before and after use with hot, soapy water.

Cooking. Do not eat raw meat. The safest way to defrost meat is in the refrigerator; cook defrosted meat as soon as possible after thawing. Cook without interruption, as partial cooking may encourage bacterial growth. To determine doneness of steaks and chops, make a small slit near the bone and check color; for boneless cuts make a slit near the center. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends cooking ground beef to at least medium doneness (160 degrees F) or until the center is no longer pink and the juices run clear.

When any fit of gloominess, or perversion of mind, lays hold upon you, make it a rule not to publish it by complaints, but exert your whole care to hide it. By endeavoring to hide it you will drive it away.

Healthy Americans can receive refunds

Right now Congress is considering a new plan that could put money into your pocket instead of taking it out.

It's called the Medical Savings Account. It would allow you to benefit financially from having lower medical bills. If you lead a healthy lifestyle and are willing to take the responsibility of managing your own routine health care needs, seeking preventative care, choosing your own doctor and paying the routine medical bills yourself, this voluntary option may be right for you.

The plan would replace your current low deductible health insurance with a combination catastrophic health insurance policy (with a $2,000 or $3,000 deductible) and a tax free fund (equal to the amount of the deductible) out of which you pay for your routine medical care. What you don't spend each year, you keep. It's like a tax refund or a year end bonus.

The money for the fund is found in the savings realized by purchasing the far less costly, higher deductible catastrophic policy. These policies can run as low as one-third the cost of your current policy, leaving lots of money for your fund.

If you do use all of the money in your fund, your catastrophic policy kicks in with first dollar coverage. If not, remember, you keep the difference, tax free.

What's your chance for savings? Well, Pat Rooney, chairman of the board of Golden Rule Insurance Company in Indianapolis, Indiana, says, "Pretty good—since most Americans never spend as much on health care in a year as is now spent on their insurance."

You can even take the excess money out of your account for non-medical expenditures as long as you pay taxes on it. Such a fund would be especially efficient for people who change jobs often and need the cash to keep their insurance in force during that time.

If you think this is an option that should be included in a health care reform plan, you could clip out this article or express it in your own words and send it to your legislators at the U.S. Senate, Washington, DC 20510 and the House of Representatives, Washington, DC 20515.

WASHINGTON (AP) - White House spokesman George Stephanopoulos isn't talking about his romance with "Dirty Dancing" actress Jennifer Grey - but others are.

"She was here over the weekend as George's guest," one official reluctantly acknowledged after news reports that Stephanopoulos brought her to the Oval Office on Saturday to see Clinton deliver his weekly radio address.

Stephanopoulos also escorted her on a White House tour.

Grey starred as the innocent teen-ager who falls in love with a dance instructor in the 1987 movie "Dirty Dancing."

She and Stephanopoulos reportedly were set up on a date by a friend in March.

Stephanopoulos wouldn't comment on the matter.

"He's very upset about all the publicity," one White House insider said. "He's a very private person. We're not supposed to talk about it. He's surprised how much attention it's received."

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Candice Bergen says the Dan Quayle furor will "go down as a significant political episode in the history of this country."
 Well, maybe not significant. "Perhaps 'significant' is the wrong word, but certainly sort of hallucinatory," the "Murphy Brown" star said Monday.

The vice president singled out the CBS sitcom last year when he accused a "cultural elite" in Hollywood of romanticizing single motherhood. Comedians ridiculed him.

Miss Bergen spoke with reporters at the University of California at Los Angeles, where she received the 16th Annual Jack Benny Award for comedy.

AUSTIN - With only three weeks remaining until June 1, when a state district judge's order would sever school funding for public schools in Texas, a joint panel of the House and Senate education subcommittees met last Thursday, welcoming ideas from the public on how to solve the crisis.

An estimated 20,000 teachers in 142 school districts won't see paychecks this summer if the Legislature does not solve the crisis by the June 1 deadline set by Judge Scott McCown of Austin.

Of the 385 people who attended the hearing, many were members of Texans Against Robin Hood Taxes, a group that opposed Proposition 1, a proposed constitutional amendment that was defeated in the May 1 election. Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, criticized ideas by the group's chairman, Tom Pauken, who proposed dedicating lottery profits to property-poor school districts and limit funding to basic education programs.

Most of the proposals, however, would require constitutional amendments, and a statewide vote on the amendments could not take place before Aug. 14.

A proposal for a state income tax resurfaced at the hearing, this time through Rep. Billy Clemons, D-

Pollock. Clemons suggested dedicating income tax revenues to public schools and doing away with school district-levied ad valorem taxes.

Dallas lawyer Tom Luce issued a proposal to cut some school programs, tax commercial and mineral properties at the state level instead of the local level, and for the state to fork over 75 percent of public school funding - a 32 percent increase.

Representing 19 metropolitan school districts, Texas School Alliance proposed a plan that over the next two years would pump an additional $1 billion in state funds into public education, or would consolidate school district tax bases if the proposal for extra funds were rejected.

Prison Measure Stalls
 A proposed $1 billion bond issue for new prisons and jails ran into difficulty in the Texas House last week, as minority lawmakers vowed to block final passage until a school funding compromise is reached.

"We'll give them something on prisons when they give us something on education," said Rep. Irma Rangel, D-Kingsville, head of the House Hispanic caucus.

At issue is a resolution for voter approval for bonds to build new prisons and state jails. The measure passed the House 91-50, nine votes short of the 100 needed to place it on the November ballot.

Gun Bill Shot Down
 By a three-vote margin, the Texas House defeated a proposal to link a concealed weapons bill with continued operation of the Texas Department of Public Safety. The vote was 70-67.

Supporters said the proposal was the only way to force the Senate to vote on the measure allowing Texans to carry concealed guns. At issue was an amendment to a bill to reauthorize the DPS, which is scheduled to "sunset" in September. The amendment, by Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, called for a November vote on the proposal that would let adults carry concealed weapons if they get training and a state permit.

Speaker's Day Fete Modest
 Some 280 former state representatives attending Speaker's Day last Friday noticed the difference Speaker Pete Laney brought to the annual event.

The event included a continental breakfast, a tour of the new Capitol Extension and a barbecue on the Capitol grounds. In the past Speaker's Day has been an elaborate and expensive affair.

Breaking tradition, Laney refused to accept any expensive gifts from lawmakers or lobbyists, said Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, who planned the event.

In 1991, Speaker's Day included a dinner and dance at the Erwin Center. The event cost $110,940, including $57,000 for food and beverages, with lobbyists picking up most of the tab.

In comparison, Laney's first Speaker's Day cost about $13,000. Lobbyists bought most of the $50 tickets, but the public also purchased them.

"I don't like to say I'm cheap," said Laney, who enjoys Arby's roast beef sandwiches and popcorn. "I'd like to say I'm frugal."

Other Highlights
 ■ Rep. Vilma Luna, D-Corpus Christi, was sworn in last week as the newest member of the Texas House. Luna, a 35-year old lawyer, fills the seat vacated by Eddie Cavazos, who was appointed to the Texas Employment Commission.
 ■ Sen. Don Henderson has filed a bill to limit access to Houston's Tanglewood subdivision, where former President George Bush lives. Henderson, R-Houston, said the measure is intended to keep out tour buses and sightseers hoping for a glimpse of the former first family.

Perry calls for study to determine impact of Pantex on agriculture

AUSTIN--Agriculture fuels the Panhandle economy and further studies of the environment impact of the Pantex facility must focus on how it affects agriculture, Ag Commissioner Rick Perry said Tuesday in a letter to the Department of Energy.

The Pantex plant, located near Amarillo, is the primary assembly and disassembly site for the nation's nuclear warheads. DOE is planning to store up to 20,000 plutonium weapons cores or pits at Pantex.

In the letter to Hazel O'Leary, secretary of energy, Perry stated: "The Panhandle of Texas is one of the most unique and diversified agricultural regions of our state. It is the nation's leading cattle-feeding area and one of its most productive regions for corn, wheat, grain sorghum, vegetables, cotton and hay."

"Much of this agricultural bounty is also stored and processed in the area. Area agriculture results in $2 billion annually of value-added production and $5 billion of gross agricultural sales, while $10 billion in economic activity are generated by Panhandle area agriculture."

"While it is difficult to identify all of the agriculture-related employment in the Panhandle, nearly 100,000 residents work in agriculture or agribusiness. Unquestionably, these facts demonstrate that potential environmental impacts of the planned nuclear weapon storage on agriculture are immense," Perry said.

The Pantex plant sits on top of the Ogallala Aquifer, the nation's largest underground water supply. It provides water for agriculture and other uses in the Texas Panhandle as well as parts of Oklahoma, New Mexico, Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska.

Perry noted that previous DOE environmental surveys revealed that contamination of soil, sediment and groundwater beneath the Pantex plant. The Governor's office is in the third year of a five-year study to characterize the hydrology and geology at the Pantex site in order to enable the State of Texas to independently assess DOE's cleanup efforts. "We must be assured that all questions and concerns will be addressed and that the environment and public health will not be jeopardized in any way by the planned storage," Perry said.

"Furthermore, agriculture should be treated distinctively and with priority as DOE continues to gather data upon which to base its ultimate decision on this matter," said Perry.

Youths satisfy music need with own radio program

By ANDREA HAWKINS Carlsbad Current-Argus
CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) - In Carlsbad, so the joke goes, there are two kinds of music - county and western.

But three teen-age boys separated from their favorite radio stations when their parents moved from the big city to Carlsbad are regularly hauling their record collections to local top-40 music station KCDY-FM to play the music they like to hear - the latest rock, rhythm and blues, and rap.

"But don't call it 'alternative,'" pleads Cincinnati transplant Eric Weddle. Alternative is the label used for everything from MTV and Nirvana to easy-listening new age synthesizer music.

Instead, Weddle calls his music "underplayed, underexposed and under-appreciated."

Another DJ at the station was not too helpful in getting them started, and they soon found out firsthand what "dead air" - or radio without any sound - means.

If they forgot to turn a monitor off and the record rolls to the next song, the three quickly vote on whether they hate that tune; they'll pull the needle off in mid-note if they don't like the song.

A recent show featured Houston cutting Weddle's hair on the air, and a call-in popularity contest between the groups Jesus Lizard and Nirvana.

Crown of Texas Hospice topic of HRSEA program

Kathy Acton with the Crown of Texas Hospice spoke recently at the regular May meeting of the Hereford Retired School Employees Association.

In giving the history of the Hospice program in Amarillo, Acton noted that the Hospice building was built by St. Anthony's Hospital 10 years ago. Most of the volunteers have worked previously at St. Anthony's but all have been trained in hospice care.

Acton explained that hospice means a kind of caring. This care can take place in the home, in a nursing home or a hospice. This care is under the control of the patient and is for those who do not wish more aggressive treatment or for those whose avenues have been exhausted. She also said that therapy can be used to control pain and the Hospice has developed expertise in pain and symptom control and in comfort giving measures.

During the entire part of a person's stay at the Hospice, the primary care is given by volunteers. In Hereford, Acton is the registered nurse and is assisted by a nurse's aide and a social worker who helps other volunteers. If the symptoms cannot be controlled, the patient is placed in the hospital.

The speaker emphasized that the Hospice program is very committed. There is a funding system through St. Anthony's and the Crown of Texas, both having established foundations. The money is used for supplies, equipment and medicines. Equipment in the home can be paid by Medicare and Medicaid if available. Volunteers can stay in the home to relieve the primary caregiver. Since regular nurses do not often have the time to give the personal care necessary to the patient, the volunteers fill a very necessary void.

President Margaret Bell opened the business meeting with a prayer. She also mentioned members who are hospital patients: Ruby Mulkey, Dottie Darden and Florence Robinson.

Louise Witkowski announced that there were 41 teachers present at the Pre-retirement Seminar. She thanked all the members who brought refreshments for the meeting.

Leona Schilling announced that the recent Spring Fling was enjoyed by 40 members. She urged all members to attend the summer picnic scheduled in August.

Comments were made by Margaret Bell, Betty Mercer and Marie Stringer concerning the recent state convention. Bell stressed that TRTA has the potential of 103,000 members with a current membership of 24,000. The Panhandle is well represented with only one county not being organized. Hereford has one of the highest percentages in the state. These members donated over 10,000,000 reported volunteer hours last year. Mercer said that the annuity increase bill has passed the House and is now in the Senate. If passed, it will take effect in January 1994.

State dues have increased but life memberships can be purchased before June 30 for $80-$500, after which the dues will be $200.

Eleanor Hudspeth shared her memories of moving into the old high school building after the new high school was built in the early 1950s. She said students carried their books to high school and then came back and got their desks and chairs. After they moved out, the junior high students moved into the renamed Stanton Junior High School.

Hudspeth was librarian at the time of the move and she related how the students carried books to the new location and others arranged them in the correct order on the library shelves. The junior high had formerly been housed in a barracks building north of the old high school.

Counties care for America

Millions of Americans--estimates now put the number at 38 million--have no health insurance and cannot afford basic health care. This startling fact is one reason President Clinton is pressing so strongly for a proposal to reform our nation's health system.

What do these 38 million people do when they need health care now? Many turn to county governments as their safety net and get care from county hospitals, health departments and other programs.

Counties spend approximately $30 billion on health and hospital services annually and care for 40 million people in local health departments. Counties run 4,500 public health facilities including hospitals, nursing homes, clinics, health departments and mental health clinics. Responsible for indigent care in more than 30 states, counties are required to pay a portion of the non-federal share of Medicaid in 20 states. Additionally, counties provide training for 26 percent of the nation's physicians in major public teaching hospitals.

Counties provide, administer, pay for and purchase health services. That's why counties are concerned about our nation's health system and have become deeply involved in the health reform effort.

Health reform is a top priority of NACO, which has been holding hearings to gather information and prepare a recommendation for reform. County officials also provide advice and input to President Clinton's task force on health care reform, headed by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton.

The county message is simple. Cost control is very important, but we want to be sure health reform goes beyond financing questions. Reform must address delivery of services. Having the poor and uninsured receive basic medical care in emergency rooms of county hospitals is not cost effective. Causing the poor and uninsured to endure and ignore the initial signs of illnesses costs money and lives, because early intervention could have saved both.

Situations like these are costing American taxpayers millions of dollars through the property taxes they pay to county governments.

Counties want basic health services for all Americans with an emphasis on primary care and preventive health. Counties are committed to working for reform we all can live with.

The state with the most national park sites is Alaska, with a total of 23.

Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina were re-admitted to the Union in 1868.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: What can one expect in the progression of emphysema? My husband has been diagnosed as having moderate emphysema. At the time, he was smoking heavily. Now he smokes perhaps two or three a day. His doctor said that was just as bad. His emphysema symptoms seem to be a very loose cough with phlegm in the morning. He is 62 years old. I'm tempted to say he tires easily and that could be a symptom, but I'm almost 60, do not smoke and I tire easily too. My husband says we are just getting older.

My husband's parents who were heavy smokers died before age 70--his mother in her late 50s and father in the mid 60s. I am concerned about becoming a widow prematurely.

DEAR READER: Emphysema and chronic bronchitis commonly go together and obstruct breathing. That is why this is called COLD (chronic obstructive lung disease). About 90 percent of people who have this terrible disease have it because of exposure to tobacco smoke. At least 10 million Americans have this disorder, which causes 60,000 very difficult deaths a year. You have reason to worry and your husband does too, even if he doesn't realize it.

Fatigue definitely is one of the symptoms of COLD. Sometimes it is the first symptom a person notices. Of course, cough and breathlessness follow. It is a progressive disease that may not cause many symptoms at first and then progresses until a person is lying in bed gasping for air. Even providing oxygen in this state may not be adequate.

Your husband must stop smoking entirely if there is any hope of arresting his pulmonary disease. Those few cigarettes continue to keep the disease active.

Have him read Special Issue 37-02, Chronic Bronchitis and Emphysema, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/37-02, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. It will also give him information on what can be done to hopefully stop the process.

Some pulmonary specialists now believe that if you catch the disease early, before the muscles surrounding the airways enlarge and cause obstruction, you can stop or even reverse the disease. Some advocate medications at that stage to dilate the airways. Even more severe cases can be helped with inhalers, prednisone and learning to breathe more efficiently. Those who have been home bound may even be rehabilitated enough to have a better quality of life.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Last spring, I was having much pain at the base of my neck on the left side. It was very swollen. After the X-rays were done, I was told I was blessed with extra ribs. I am 72 years old and have never been told this before. Was the pain and swelling causing this? Is this condition common?

DEAR READER: You have had them all your life. This is an extension of the bony process of the lower neck vertebra (seventh cervical) as a rudimentary rib. It occurs in about 1 percent of the population. Most of the time they cause no symptoms and are an incidental finding. That is why it was not mentioned before. Whatever caused your pain and swelling did not cause the cervical ribs. And since you have had them for 72 years, I must wonder if the swelling and pain was caused by the ribs either. I would suspect cervical arthritis or some other disorder.

Karaoke to go

Singers all across America are discovering recordings that create the excitement of karaoke sing-alongs anywhere--indoors, outdoors, even in your car.

These tapes and CDs are specially-recorded recreations of popular hits from Garth Brooks, En Vogue, Frank Sinatra, Madonna, Whitney Houston and thousands of other all-time legends and contemporary stars. They "let you be the star" by tuning out the singer's voice so you can sing along with just the instrumental track.

Because they work in any stereo or karaoke machine, these recordings make karaoke sing along portable and easy to do.
