Facelift for city park

Workmen began Monday on an improvement project in the city park at Sixth and Ross, planting 30 trees purchased, in part, with a grant of $5,200 from Texas Forest Service, through the federal Small Business Administration. In addition to the Austrian pines, pictured here, Arizona ash and red oak trees will be installed in the park. City crews dug holes for the trees and employees of McLain Garden Center are planting the trees, on a contract awarded the business for the trees and planting.

Northwest school asks to revamp curriculum plan next school year

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

If two waiver applications are approved by the state, Northwest Elementary School will dismiss two days early this summer and will restructure their curriculum next fall.

The Hereford Independent School District board of trustees on Tuesday approved the waiver applications during their regular meeting.

In the first application, Northwest teachers are asking the state to allow them to dismiss classes for the summer on May 26 to allow them to attend two days of training in a new HOSTS program they will implement in the fall.

While both applications were approved by the board, the second request received more debate.

Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt explained that Northwest principal Alice Lockmiller and her staff were requesting permission from the state to focus their teaching on language arts, math and English next year.

Currently, teachers are required to teach science, health and social studies once a week.

If the request is approved, Greenawalt said, the school would still teach those subjects, but would not emphasize them, instead incorporating them into language arts work as part of a structured whole-language curriculum.

Greenawalt said the students would still get separate physical education and music instruction.

He said he knows of only two other schools in Texas approved for such action. Both are in Houston and will not begin the new curriculum until this fall.

Trustee Mike Veazey expressed concern for the proposal, saying, "I'm just a little afraid of something that doesn't have any pilot" information to back it up.

"Let's be the pilot," Greenawalt responded, adding that he is sure the district would make a success of the program.

Once students get one year or more behind in their mastery of basic skills, he said, it is very hard for them to catch up, whereas the Northwest program would focus on teaching the children to read and perform math to grade level before leaving third grade.

"It's a risk, but I'm willing to take the risk," he said. "If it doesn't work, they (the teachers) are going to be held accountable, along with the superintendent."

Mrs. Lockmiller was asked if she had discussed the proposal with West Central administrators, which receives her students for fourth grade.

She said she had not, but that people at the school had told her if she sent them students who could read on grade level, they would teach the children science and social studies.

"This," Greenawalt said, "is a campus that has got a vision."

In relation to the Northwest proposal regarding the HOSTS program, Scott Turner, director of federal programs, brief board members on the program that West Central and Northwest will imple-

The HOSTS program -- which stands for Helping One Student To Succeed -- involves mentors from the community working with selected students who need help with language arts skills including reading, writing, listening, vocabulary and higher thinking.

Turner said he researched HOSTS and the company that sells it before committing the district to buying it.

Funds for the program will come from the federal government.

He said he is in the process of contacting civic groups and other organizations about providing mentors to work with students.

Mentors would work one hour a week and students would have four 30-minute sessions a week.

They would have a language curriculum specifically designed for what they need to learn.

With about 175 children due to enroll in HOSTS in the fall, Turner said, he needs to have between 150 and 200 volunteers signed up as mentors.

"I would like to see every board member give one hour of your time if possible," he said, adding that he is working with Greenawalt to recruit Central Office staff as well.

George Ochis, principal at West Central, said the district will need a part-time person responsible for scheduling the volunteers, to make sure the two schools don't fight over volunteers and to keep track of absent volunteers and track their time.

County Clerk predicts light turnout Saturday

A moderate turnout of early voters in elections to be held Saturday doesn't come close to the number recorded in last fall's general election.

Even with a controversial issue on public school funding and election of a U.S. senator on the state ballot, the early voting ended Tuesday with only 683 persons casting ballots.

In the 1992 general election, more than 2,000 votes were cast prior to election day.

Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland said Wednesday he feels a "light turnout" is in store for the Saturday elections. "I think most of those interested voted early," said Ruland.

Besides the state ballot, voters also will choose Hereford Independent School District trustees, Deaf Smith

Hospital District directors and city officials.

The hospital district election drew 669 early voters while 658 cast ballots in the HISD election.

Even though the City of Hereford election has no contests, 549 ballots were marked by the end of the early voting period Tuesday.

Polls for school district, city and hospital district will be located at the Community Center Saturday.

Residents in voting precincts four, five, six and nine will vote on the state ballot at the Community Center. Precincts one and seven will go to Aikman School, precincts three and eight to Hereford Junior High and precinct two at the Deaf Smith County courthouse.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

Bill would let voters ban tax

AUSTIN (AP) - Voters would get to decide whether they want a state income tax under a proposed constitutional amendment that has been adopted by the state Senate.

If approved by a two-thirds majority vote in the House, the proposal would go before Texas voters in November.

If voters back the measure, there would be a constitutional ban against any future state personal income tax. That ban could be lifted only if voters agreed.

And if voters do eventually approve a state income tax, the revenue would be dedicated to education and local school property tax relief. Subsequent increases in the income tax also would have to be submitted to voters.

"The final decision on an income tax should lie with the people, not with the Legislature," said Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who in the past advocated an income tax.

The Senate sent the proposal to the House on a 28-1 vote.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, voted against it. Sen. Jane Nelson,

R-Flower Mound, was present but did not vote. Ms. Nelson said she opposed the measure but did not want to vote against an income tax prohibition.

She said the measure, backed by Bullock, "potentially sets up a scenario in which an income tax can be sold, not on its merits, but on the possibility of a better educational system." Texas is one of only seven states that does not levy a state personal income tax.

Leedom said, "All we are doing is opening the door for a state income tax." He said voters will approve the levy in exchange for relief from local school taxes, which he predicted will skyrocket because of the school funding crisis.

An amendment by Leedom, which would have been an outright income tax ban unless voters approved, was defeated 24-6.

Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco, said Republicans should be satisfied with Bullock's proposal. "Sometimes as Republicans we'd rather hit home runs than have a rally and score 10 runs with singles," he said.

Property insurance benchmark rate to stay at current level

AUSTIN (AP) - The benchmark property insurance rate will be frozen at the current level under action taken by the Texas Board of Insurance.

The board, however, also approved a 5 percent increase Tuesday in the variance insurers may charge for property insurance.

The benchmark rate is a level for use by insurance companies in determining their rates within a range set by the board.

That range currently allows insurers to charge anywhere from 25 percent above the benchmark to 30 percent below.

Under the change, insurers can charge up to 30 percent above the benchmark to 30 percent below. The change takes effect June 1.

"This decision creates a climate for maximum competition, as well as rate stability," Board Chairwoman Claire Koriath said.

"At the present time, many companies write below the benchmark rate. It's clear there is competition in this market, and it pays for consumers to shop around."

Insurance companies, which had sought an 8.5 percent increase in the benchmark rate, were disappointed in the Insurance Board's decision, and said it may make it difficult for homeowners to find insurance.

"There has been continued upward pressure on claims costs as a result of several recent catastrophes," Mark Toohey, a spokesman for Farmers Insurance Group of Companies,

"Freezes, hail storms, tornadoes. You name it and Texas has experienced it in recent years. Insurance premiums collected during the last several years have fallen far short of claim costs," he said.

But Amy Johnson, the state's consumer representative, said the wide range of rates given insurers allows them "to charge the rates they need to charge to make a profit in Texas."

Last year, the Insurance Board cut the benchmark rate by 5 percent.

Beginning today, The Hereford Brand begins a new feature. Every time it rains at least a quarter of an inch in Hereford, you will see the rain cloud and rain drops on the top of the paper. So look for a little rain and a "Brand" new cloud!

Richards vows to veto handgun vote proposal

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards has vowed to veto a bill that would allow Texans decide whether they want to carry concealed handguns.

"The people of this state do not need to be reminded that weapons of violence produce death to innocent children and adults," Richards said Tuesday. "This legislation will only increase the level of violence on our streets."

The bill would allow Texans 21 and over to apply for a license to carry a gun. However, a provision added to the measure calls for it to be approved by voters before going into effect.

The legislation received final House approval Tuesday on a voice vote. It now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Since the bill originated this session, Richards has said she opposes it. However, she stopped short of promising a veto until Tuesday.

Rep. Bill Carter, a sponsor of the measure, blasted the governor's decision.

"I was surprised to see her turn her back on the thousands of law abiding citizens of Texas and deny them the ability ... to protect themselves from predators," said Carter, R-Fort Worth.

Carter said Richards' promise of a veto may cause the bill to die in Senate committee.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who earlier this week challenged the governor to state her position on the bill, had said senators wanted to know Richards' stance because they support the proposal.

Bullock said he favors the measure and would vote for it if a tiebreaker were needed.

But Carter said Richards' promise of a veto may cause Bullock to change his position and help kill the bill before it reaches the Senate floor.

"It's a democratic leadership and a democratic governor," he said. "If that happens, I think it will reflect in the voters reaction in the future."

If the bill does get out of the Senate, Carter said he believes there would be enough votes in both chambers to override a veto.

"When the next cult stages a standoff," asks Roberts, "why not name an advisory panel composed of Larry King, Tom Brokaw, those two lawyers from Houston, a couple of far-out ministers, two or three psychiatrists, and some of those reporters asking those stupid questions.

"Let the panel make the decision as to the next appropriate action for the agency to follow to bring a standoff to an end--then hold them accountable. Let them submit to nationwide second-guessing on all the talk shows across the country.

"And, for good measure, why not name the four widows of those slain agents to the same advisory panel?"

In the current talks about the nation's health care problems, it has been pointed out that 37 million Americans are uninsured for hospitalization. These are the numbers used by Hillary Clinton and her task force to label the problem as an emergency.

We've always wondered how many of those who don't have insurance simply choose to spend that money on recreation, beer or whatever.

Well, somebody on the Wall Street Journal staff recently performed a detailed study of the numbers and shed a little light on the subject.

Of the 37 million, almost half have been covered in the previous six months or will be covered within a year. They're either changing jobs, coming under the Medicare program, or temporarily not working.

Of the remaining numbers, some are self-insured, and most are young people who prefer cash to health insurance. Health care is not the problem for the young as it is for older workers. They enjoy good health and prefer to use cash for house or car payments.

Health care is a problem in this country and some changes need to be made in the delivery system, but there may not be an emergency on uninsured workers. A pilot program--well thought out and detailed--ought to be initiated prior to overhauling the nationwide system.

Newspapers split on funding issue

'Robin Hood' amendment dissected in editorials

By The Associated Press
Disadvantaged students and underpaid teachers will benefit from a proposed constitutional amendment, according to some Texas newspapers that endorsed the school finance-related proposal.

But a sampling of other editorials before Saturday's balloting urged Texas lawmakers to go back to the drawing board for a solution.

It's voters' first chance to speak directly on the proposals since three Texas Supreme Court rulings against the state's school finance system.

Dubbed by some the "Robin Hood" plan, Proposition One would allow some local property tax money to be shifted from richer to poorer school districts.

"Every attempt by the Legislature to meet court orders in the past has failed to meet the legal test, largely because lawmakers have failed to restructure the state's antiquated tax structure, which relies on the property tax and almost guarantees both inadequate funding and inequitable funding," the Austin American-Statesman said.

"Proposition One is not the ultimate solution, but it is a stopgap that should technically meet the court's mandate, at least long enough for lawmakers to come back to Austin and go about restructuring of the tax system."

However, three newspapers want lawmakers to try again.

"Because we are vitally interested in public education and because we want desperately to get the school funding situation out of the courts, we were hoping to be in a position to endorse Proposition No. 1, the so-called Robin Hood amendment, in the May 1 election," according to Fort Worth Star-Telegram editorial Sunday.

"Although the proposal is not an ideal solution to the equity problem, we felt that it was possibly the best a badly divided Legislature could produce to obey the dictates of the state Supreme Court.

"Unfortunately, we cannot make that endorsement because we cannot, in good conscience, ask Texans to vote for something without knowing the cost," said the Star-Telegram.

The Houston Post and The Dallas Morning News also urged Texans to vote against the first proposition, which seeks to make county taxing districts constitutional.

"We recommend voting 'no' on Proposition One, but with deep conviction that Texans must give full support to the Texas Legislature to find an alternative way out of court and to find a more permanent, more constructive deal for our schools," The Morning News said Sunday.

The Post discounted fears that a judge would close public schools if voters rejected the proposition and a June 1 deadline for a constitutional plan was missed.

However, the newspaper in the city where the Edgewood School District led the state's property-poor schools in court battles to equalize education funding has urged approval of the proposition.

"Without a doubt, the system of funding Texas schools is unequal," the San Antonio Express-News said April 11. "Some districts with double the average tax rate raise a fraction of the dollars of others."

"As the state has contributed less and less to funding education, the financial burden has fallen ever more heavily on such districts," the newspaper said.

"As a result of the inequality, children who, through no fault of their own, live in low-wealth school districts do not receive the same educational opportunity as those fortunate enough to live in districts with greater property values."

Also endorsing the first proposal were the Amarillo Globe-News, Edinburg Daily Review, El Paso Herald-Post, Houston Chronicle, Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, The Orange Leader, Port Arthur News and San Angelo Standard-Times.

"A threatened cutoff of state funds for public schools would be disruptive to students and teachers and needlessly costly to local economies," the Avalanche-Journal said Sunday.

Proposition Two would keep school districts from having to comply with state educational mandates not funded by the state and enacted after Dec. 31, while the third measure would provide for up to $750 million in state general obligation or revenue bonds for districts.

Workers find more bodies in debris of compound fire

WACO, Texas (AP) - Five more corpses have been pulled from the section of Branch Davidian compound where investigators have found stockpiles of guns, ammunition and other debris, officials say.

Workers rummaging through a fortified room on the ground floor of the religious group's home on Tuesday located the bodies.

They were taken out later in the day and sent to medical examiners in Fort Worth, said Laureen Chernow, a spokeswoman for the Texas Department of Public Safety, the lead agency in the cleanup and investigation.

"As they remove boxes of ammunition, it's exposing more bodies and more body parts. It looks like there's quite a lot of work to be done in there," said DPS spokesman Mike Cox.

McLennan County Peace Justice David Pareya has said four of the 44 bodies removed prior to Tuesday were found inside the cinder-block structure near the center of the city-block-sized complex. Nine more bodies were on top of it.

Including the five additional bodies found there, 18 of 86 Branch Davidians feared dead were inside or near the room, authorities said.

Pareya, however, said he's not ready to conclude that those people sought shelter in the room during last Monday's inferno.

"They seem to be centered in that area, but I don't know if there's a pattern for any particular reason," he said. "The biggest contingent of bodies, in my opinion, was not near the bunker. They were scattered."

FBI officials said they had tried shooting tear gas into the room with hopes of flushing cult leader David Koresh out of the compound on the 51st and final day of the cult's standoff with federal agents.

Authorities said the congestion of bodies, ammunition and other debris is slowing their efforts. Only three or four investigators can be in the room at a time because of the waste, Pareya said.

To help sort out the mess, Doug Ubelaker, a forensic anthropologist from the Smithsonian Institution, joined the cleanup crew Tuesday.

Other factors, including heat, health hazards because of insects and a putrid smell from exploded food cans, have hampered investigators' work. Local health officials on Tuesday provided large bins to haul the food away to a landfill.

Crime scene workers are covering their noses and mouths with filters or respirators to combat the odor, Cox said.

Cox also announced that fire investigators might finish the final version of their report on the blaze by Wednesday.

On Monday, team leader Paul Gray released a preliminary report saying the blaze was intentionally set by cultists in two locations. Cult members who survived the blaze have accused the FBI of starting the fire.

JACK WEAVER
April 27, 1993
Jack Weaver, 72, a resident of Deaf Smith County since 1929, died Tuesday at a local nursing home. Funeral services are scheduled

Friday at 2 p.m. in First Baptist Church with the Rev. Jim Bozeman, retired Baptist minister, and Dr. Ron Cook, First Baptist pastor, officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Weaver moved here in 1929 from Taylor County and was a retired farmer. His wife, the former Dorothy Miles, died in 1989. He served on the Walcott School Board and was active in the Bippus Community Church for many years. He was a U.S. Army veteran, serving in the South Pacific during World War II. He was a member of the American Legion and VFW posts.

Survivors include one son, Joe Weaver of Hereford; three daughters, Mary Ruth Baird and Charlene Pietsek of Hereford and Janell Debrl of Amarillo; three sisters, Beth Knauf of Oklahoma, June Miller of Hayward, CA., and Marguerite Knoll of Boerne; and six grandchildren.

BOARD

In other action, the board:
-- Heard from representatives of Bluebonnet Intermediate School, West Central Intermediate School and Hereford Junior High on activities at those schools and plans to improve school TAAS test scores.

-- Approved next year's transfers of students coming to school here from other districts. Greenawalt said that, although the district no longer allows such transfers, the students attending here before the policy change are allowed to continue going to school here, but that the board is required by law to approve the transfers each year.

-- Failed to approve a resolution backing the three state constitutional amendments in Saturday's special election. Greenawalt said the Texas Association of School Boards had requested the resolution, but that trustee Ron Weishaar had expressed concern with elected officials telling people how to vote. The measure died for lack of a motion from the board.

-- Accepted the retirements of Pat Montgomery and Norma Jean Gripp, both Junior High teachers; accepted the resignation of Amberly Youngblood, a Northwest teacher who is moving from Hereford; approved a one-year leave of absence for Cathy Guseman, a Northwest teacher, to receive additional education; and approved the hiring of Betty Coneway to teach at Tierra Blanca Elementary School and Eddie Fortenberry to be girl's high school basketball coach.

Folks in White Deer irate over sign ban

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
WHITE DEER, Texas (AP) - Call it a sign of the times, but folks in this Panhandle town are just plain steamed.

The Texas Department of Transportation says two city-limit welcome signs illegally promote the school's three state championships in football and basketball. The signs violate federal beautification laws, according to the highway department. Buy a permit, take them down or pay a daily fine of $200, state officials told the Lions Club in October.

Shock and defensive pride still swirl in the community. The signs still stand.

"It's a big deal," acknowledged Dee Ann Murtishaw, serving the lunch special barbecue at Dee Ann's Cafe. "If it was advertising my business, that's one thing. But it's not. It's not like somebody's making money off it."

"They don't have no business trying to tell the people what they can put up on their own property," scoffed hog farmer Dick Pierce. "Ridiculous."

Highway officials say they have no choice but to crack down on an estimated 1,300 illegal signs across the state. Otherwise, Texas could lose federal funds for roads, said John Willis, director of transportation planning and development in Amarillo.

"Personally we don't find anything wrong with it, but it's not what the law says they can do," Willis said.

"If you want to advertise your school and go rah, rah, rah, it's the American way," he said. "We don't like to go out there with black hats and ruin everybody's party."

The Lions Club put up the steel signs several years ago at the east and west edges of town, about 50 miles northeast of Amarillo on U.S. Highway 60. The signs say "Welcome to White Deer. Home of the State Champion Bucks."

They become legal when the Lions Club buys $96 permits, plus a $125 licensing fee.

But the money is not the point, said Lions Club President Jack Back, business manager for White Deer schools.

"I think the people in this community were more upset over the principle of the matter than they were over the economics. We could have raised the money," Back said.

The repercussions are rumbling down to Austin like trains through White Deer milo fields.

State Rep. Warren Chisum, D-Pampa, sponsored a bill that would lower the sign permitting fee to $10 for non-profit, charitable groups. The bill was placed Tuesday on the general state calendar.

Meanwhile, Willis said the highway department will not press the issue in White Deer while the legislation is being considered.

Chapter elects new officers

Officers for the 1993-94 club year were elected when members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently.

Serving as president will be Jaime Brorman; vice president, Pattie Urbanczyk; recording secretary, Carmen Gonzales; corresponding secretary, Jill Savoini; and extension officer, Danell Culp.

City Council representatives include Jaime Brorman, Glenna Calaway, Danell Culp and Pattie Urbanczyk. First alternate is Wanda Huseman and second alternate is Mary Bob Ward.

Refreshments of homemade tamales, cream cheese pound cake with peaches, and iced tea were provided by hostesses, Patty Frerich and Jane Meiwes. Members present were Brorman, Gonzales, Teresa Hopping, Huseman, Marrie Leverett, Savoini and Urbanczyk.

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Paul McCartney once thought rock 'n' roll would end for him at the age of 24. When he hit 30, he thought he might be finished at 40.

Now, kicking off a two-month North American tour at the age of 50, the former Beatle doesn't know what to think.

"When you get to 50, you stop thinking, I suppose," he said. "I still enjoy it. As long as the audience enjoys it and I still see smiling faces out there, I'll continue to show up."

Girls golf team earns another trip to Austin

The Hereford girls' golf team on Tuesday earned its third straight trip to the state tournament, and this time they're going at Region I-4A champions. Hereford, which led Andrews by five strokes going into the second round, held off the defending Class 4A state champion and won the regional tournament by three strokes.

Hereford shot 348 Tuesday at Riverside Golf Course in San Angelo, for a tournament total of 684. Andrews shot 346 Tuesday for a 687 total. The top two teams advance to the state tournament May 13-14 in Austin. Hereford's boys finished the regional tournament in eighth place, shooting 336 Tuesday for a total of 650. It was the Hereford boys team's first trip to the regional tournament since 1985.

Andrews won the boys' title with a 605 total. Monahans leaped past Borger into second place by shooting 303 for a total of 612. Borger's total was 615.

The Borger girls jumped from fifth to third with a 366 on Tuesday, but it wasn't nearly enough; their total of 738 left them 51 strokes out of a state berth.

Individually, Hereford's girls were led by Dusty Saul, who shot 84 Tuesday to total 164 and tie for fourth with Jamie McInturff of Dumas. Hereford's Kelly Kelso finished eighth at 170 after shooting 85 Tuesday.

For the Hereford boys, Cory Newton shot 80 Tuesday and totalled 154—which put him alone in tenth place.

Coplen wins regional tennis title

By JAY PEDEEN
Sports Editor

Hereford's Greg Coplen earned a trip to Austin by winning the boys' singles finals of the Region I-4A Tennis Tournament Tuesday in San Angelo.

Coplen beat Jason Barfield of Burkburnett 6-4, 7-5 in the finals, earning the HHS senior a berth in the state tournament May 14-15 in Austin.

Coplen, the bracket's fourth seed, played very well in a semi-final win earlier Tuesday--6-3, 6-0 over Jason Lester of Fort Stockton--according to coach Natalie Sims. Coplen said he wasn't quite as good for his finals match, but he got the job done.

"I don't think I was concentrating as well, because I had just had a big match in the semis," he said. "I didn't play as well, but I got the win. That's all I wanted to do."

"It was my best serving match," Coplen said, adding that he had about 15 aces. "(Barfield) had a little trouble with my serves, so that kept me in the match."

Barfield went on to lose to Lester in a playback match to decide true second place. Lester, who was unseeded, won 6-4, 6-4 and gets the second state berth. Barfield was the bracket's third seed--he knocked off top-seeded Zach Gibson of Plainview 6-2, 7-5 in the other semi-final.

The chips didn't fall the way Hereford's Bri Reinauer needed them to after a semi-final loss to Arlington Heights' Lindsay Woodworth (6-2, 6-2) in the girls' singles bracket.

Top-seeded Carrie Helbing of Wichita Falls beat third-seed Dawna Denny of Borger 6-2, 7-5 in the other semi-final, then went on to beat Woodworth, the second seed, 6-4, 6-2 in the finals.

Reinauer needed a loss by Helbing and a win over Denny to have a shot at Austin. She didn't get either--she lost 6-3, 6-2 to Denny in the third-place match. Denny had also beaten Reinauer in the district championship finals.

Denny made a valiant try at a trip to Austin, but she failed. In the true-second match, Woodworth downed Denny 7-6 (7-2), 1-6, 6-4 to take the second state berth.

In girls' doubles, Sharon Sundarsan and Suzanne Singleton, the top-seeded pair from Wichita Falls won the finals. Andrews' Jennifer Hines and Casey Halsey, semi-final losers to the SSSS-duo, claimed the second berth through a playback.

In boys' doubles, Rob Hogan and Martin Steenbock gave Wichita Falls three-out-of-four regional championships. Sweetwater's Alton Howard and Chris Boyd grabbed the second berth after losing in the finals.

None of District I-4A's doubles representatives (none from Hereford) made it as far as the semi-finals.

* Correction: One of Coplen's scores from the District I-4A Tennis Tournament was incorrectly reported in the April 18 edition of The Brand. Coplen's score in the semi-final win over Stefan Bressler of Pampa was reported as 7-5, 7-6, when it was actually 6-1, 6-2.

Big homer

Hereford's Russ Watts gets a hand from Tab Hathaway (19) after Watts' two-run homer in the second inning of the Herd's 11-7 win over Caprock Tuesday at Whiteface Field. The Caprock catcher opts not to join the celebration.

Watts' shot sparks Herd to 11-7 win

The Herd's six-run burst in the second inning, started by Russ Watts' two-run homer, propelled Hereford to an 11-7 win over Caprock Tuesday at Whiteface Field.

Sammy Casarez went the distance on the mound for the Herd and survived a four-run Caprock rally in the seventh inning.

The win keeps Hereford's playoff hopes alive, but they're just barely alive and will need some help. Hereford is 4-4 in district, as are Pampa and Dumas. Borger and Randall are tied for the district lead at 6-2 after Borger beat Pampa 8-7 and Randall dusted off Dumas 10-0 in five innings Tuesday.

Hereford has two remaining games: at home against Randall Saturday and at Borger May 6 (a Thursday). Hereford (9-14 overall) would need three things: to win both games, to have either leader or both lose another game, and to win in a tie-breaker.

Caprock remains winless in eight district games, but the team Hereford beat Tuesday was not quite the same Caprock team the Herd pounded 13-0 on April 6.

"They have gotten a lot better," Herd coach T.R. Sartor said. "They got some kids back from grades, and Borger and Dumas both had to score in the seventh to beat them (in Caprock's previous two games)."

The six-run second inning helped Hereford to a 10-0 lead after three innings.

"We got some key hits, and they helped us a couple of times," Sartor said, adding that the Hereford hitters did a good job of waiting on the junk-throwing Caprock pitchers.

The Herd got a single run in the second on singles by Ralph Holguin and Rene Cano. In the second, Kyle Hansen singled and rode home on Watts' shot, which cleared the left field fence just to the left of the scoreboard. Hereford kept it going, loading the bases on singles by Chris Brummett and Holguin and a walk by Jake Head. After that point, four runs scored on three errors and a wild pitch.

In the third, two Caprock errors put the first two Hereford batters on, leading to RBI's on Ruben Ramos' groundout, Cano's infield single and Tab Hathaway's double.

Caprock scored three in the fourth, making the score 10-3. Hereford added an insurance run in the fifth when Head walked and came home on Ramos' ground-rule double to left. It was Ramos' third RBI of the game.

Hereford's insurance run nearly came in handy. A single, an error by third baseman Hathaway and a walk loaded the bases, setting up a seeing-eye, two-run single. Another RBI single cut the Herd's lead to 11-6, and a Casarez wild pitch let a fourth run in, but Casarez fooled two batters for strikeouts, then coaxed a lazy fly to center for the final out.

Ex-Tech player Sheffield admits to bank robbery

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A former Texas Tech football player has admitted he robbed a San Antonio bank.

Louis A. Sheffield, 25, who played at Texas Tech University in 1988-91, appeared in federal court Tuesday charged with armed bank robbery, virtually dashing his dreams of making it to the National Football League.

Sheffield faces a maximum penalty of 25 years in prison, a $250,000 fine or both if convicted.

Sheffield admitted in a handwritten statement during a 90-minute hearing that he robbed a Bank of America branch on Thursday.

His mother, former coaches and a college official said they were shocked to learn that Sheffield was accused of the $13,353 robbery.

Sheffield was apprehended by police after a four-mile chase.

Friends testified that such an act was out of character for Sheffield, whom they described as outstanding in the classroom as well as on the athletic field.

During his appearance before U.S. Magistrate Nancy Stein Nowak, Sheffield added, "I'm truly remorseful for what I've done. Hopefully, I can make up for that in my future actions."

After finding there was probable cause to believe that Sheffield committed the holdup, the magistrate set bond at $50,000.

The magistrate said that if Sheffield was able to post bond, he must be employed, live at home with his mother, wear an electronic monitor from 8 p.m. to 7 a.m. and undergo a psychiatric evaluation.

Blazers' Strickland wants to forget 'The Pass'

By BOB BAUM
AP Sports Writer
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Rod Strickland would like to forget "the pass." His Portland teammates won't let him, though.

Three years ago, in the deciding seventh game of a thrilling Western Conference semifinal series between the Trail Blazers and San Antonio Spurs, Strickland made a mistake that virtually clinched the victory for Portland.

Strickland was San Antonio's point guard at the time. With less than a minute to play, he made a no-look pass over his head that was picked off by Portland's Jerome Kersey, setting up two free throws by Clyde Drexler that sealed the Blazers' win.

Strickland will be wearing a Portland uniform when the Blazers and San Antonio open their first-round playoff series Thursday night, and he was in no mood to recall that ill-fated pass Tuesday.

"What pass?" he said. "I ain't going to talk about any pass."

Portland's Terry Porter said the Blazers have kidded Strickland about that play all season, but not since preparation began for the playoffs.

"We don't want those negative vibes to come back," Porter said. "His muscle may flex again and he may try some pass like that again. We don't want that reoccurrence to happen."

The vibes for Strickland have been all positive since he left San Antonio and signed with Portland as a free agent during the off-season. He has played well, especially when Drexler went down with knee and hamstring injuries.

Strickland pushes the Portland offense and has blended in successfully with Porter in the backcourt.

Strickland averaged 14.9 points and 8 assists per game in April.

He insists he has no special feelings about meeting San Antonio in the playoffs. But nobody on the Portland roster knows more about the Spurs' personnel than he does.

The key to beating them, Strickland said, "is be physical with them."

"Be aggressive. They're an explosive team that can get out on the break," he said. "I think you've got to be a little patient."

Of course, David Robinson

presents most of the problems.

"You've got to be careful of Dave getting blocked shots and those guys getting out on the break and getting momentum," Strickland said.

Whether Portland will have Drexler in the lineup Thursday remains to be seen. He went through a light workout Tuesday, his most extensive practice since an aborted attempt to return to play April 18 in a game against the Spurs.

His brief first-quarter appearance against the Spurs was his only play in the last 12 regular-season games. In all, he missed 33 games with hamstring and knee problems.

Drexler is taking a cautious approach to recovery from his latest injury, a strained tendon in his left hamstring.

"It's a situation that has to be dealt with day by day because you want to see what it feels like the next day when you wake up in the morning, you want to see how it's going to respond, and you want to be safe about it," he said.

Drexler said he felt no pain in the hamstring and was able to stop and start without difficulty.

If Drexler does play, chances are he'll start at small forward in place of Jerome Kersey, leaving Porter and Strickland in the backcourt.

San Antonio, meanwhile, didn't plan to arrive in Portland until tonight. The Spurs practiced Monday and Tuesday in San Marcos, outside of San Antonio, in sort of a playoff training camp.

"It's given the guys a chance to be together on a different level," Robinson said. "I think it brings the camaraderie together."

Coach John Lucas said the workouts have been spirited. "There was a lot of fire and excitement," he said. "Hopefully, it will carry over to Thursday."

Wakefield walks 10, beats Braves

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

A manager gauges his pitcher's workload by keeping a pitch count. The norm for a starter who's doing well is 110 and 130 pitches. Anything much higher is a rarity, and anything above 150 is almost unheard of.

Unless the pitcher is Tim Lincecum.

The Pittsburgh knuckleballer plays by a different set of rules, flinging his signature junk toward home plate as many times as it takes. On Tuesday night, he floated an incredible 171 pitches at the Atlanta Braves in the Pirates' 6-2 victory.

In other games, San Francisco beat Philadelphia 6-3, Houston defeated St. Louis 9-2, San Diego downed Montreal 4-1, Los Angeles beat New York 4-1, Colorado crushed Chicago 11-2 and Florida edged Cincinnati 4-3.

Almost as amazing as Wakefield's pitch count was his walk count - 10. It had manager Jim Leyland fighting the instinct to yank Wakefield.

"No question it drives a manager up the wall. But with a knuckleballer you have to alter your philosophy a bit. With a conventional pitcher it's different. You can't put up with it," he said.

Wakefield's bases-on-balls total shouldn't be too much of a shock to those who follow the Pirates closely. He has walked at least nine batters in all three of his wins this season.

"If it wasn't for my defense, I'd have been out of there quick," Wakefield said. "You walk 10 guys, you don't deserve to win. If it wasn't for those other eight guys, I'd have got the loss."

The 26-year-old right-hander pitched into the 11th inning before giving way to Paul Wagner. He allowed six hits, hit two batters and struck out one.

"He's so wild that he's hard to get at," Braves manager Bobby Cox said.

The winning run scored in the top of the 11th when Braves reliever Mike Stanton (0-1) made a throwing error on a sacrifice bunt by Wakefield, allowing Carlos Garcia to score from second. Wakefield scored on Jeff King's two-out single to left and Orlando Merced followed with a two-run double.

Wakefield (3-2) posted his fourth career victory over the Braves.

Giants 6, Phillies 3

In a battle of first-place teams at Veterans Stadium, John Burkett (5-0) became the first National Leaguer to record his fifth victory, limiting the Phillies to seven hits, striking out six, and walking none in 7 1-3 innings.

Matt Williams homered, Will Clark doubled home two runs and Barry Bonds tripled in two more. Terry Mulholland (2-3) took the loss.

Astros 9, Cardinals 2

At Houston, Craig Biggio broke a season-long RBI drought by tripling home two runs in the fourth inning off Rheal Cormier (1-2) as the Astros stayed in a virtual tie with the Giants for first place in the NL West.

Biggio had no RBIs in 69 at-bats entering the game.

Darryl Kile (1-0) got the win, allowing two runs on three hits in five innings.

Padres 4, Expos 1

Andy Benes failed in his bid to throw San Diego's first no-hitter when Mosies Alou led off the seventh inning with an opposite-field double.

Benes (4-1) said he tried to ignore the no-hit bid.

"It was the sixth inning. If it had gotten to the ninth, then I would have got pumped up," he said. "Actually, I'm really glad there wasn't any letdown after that hit."

San Diego got all the runs it needed in the first when Gary Sheffield hit a two-run home run, his fifth of the season, off Kent Bottenfield (1-2).

Dodgers 4, Mets 1

Two former Cy Young Award winners looked like their old selves, Orel Hershiser (3-2) pitching a complete-game three-hitter and Dwight Gooden (2-3) allowing just two hits in eight innings.

Rookie catcher Mike Piazza homered in the second and Los Angeles got three unearned runs in the eighth thanks to errors by Bobby Bonilla and Tim Bogar.

Rockies 11, Cubs 2

At Denver, Andres Galarraga's 464-foot home run capped a six-run fourth inning - the most prolific one in Colorado's short history.

Colorado left-hander Butch Henry (1-2) overcame a rough start and scattered nine hits. Mike Morgan (1-4) took the loss.

Marlins 4, Reds 3

At Cincinnati, Cecil Espy misplayed Dave Magadan's liner into a three-base error, allowing the winning run to score and making a winner of Trevor Hoffman (1-0). Bobby Ayala (0-1) was the losing pitcher.

M's Bosio gets knocked out of game

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

In his first start since pitching a no-hitter, Chris Bosio got hit hard. By a runner, not a batter.

Bosio broke his left collarbone in a collision with Cleveland's Jeff Treadway, and will be out for six to eight weeks. As a small consolation, Bosio wound up the winner in Seattle's 4-0 victory over the Indians.

"It was a little bit of a bittersweet victory," Mariners manager Lou Piniella said.

The Mariners, already missing Edgar Martinez and Dave Fleming, lost Bosio in the fifth inning. Bosio was covering first base and was run over by Treadway after catching a double-play relay for the last out.

"The problem was I don't think he could find the bag. I think he was straddling it a little bit and the runner got there simultaneously and just ran over him. The runner had no choice," Piniella said.

In other games, New York beat California 5-0, Kansas City defeated Detroit 4-3 in 10 innings, Toronto topped Texas 4-3, Chicago beat Baltimore 9-4, Oakland beat Boston 7-2 and Milwaukee downed Minnesota 3-2.

Last Thursday, Bosio pitched the first no-hitter of the season and the second in Mariners history when he beat Boston. Bosio's bid to match Johnny Vander Meer's feat in 1938 of pitching consecutive no-hitters ended when Kenny Lofton led off the game at the Kingdome with a single.

Bosio (2-1) gave up three hits and extended his scoreless streak to 17 innings.

"Eight weeks is a long time to go without your No. 2 starter," No. 1 starter Randy Johnson said. "This will be a real test to see what we're made out of."

Pete O'Brien had three hits and drove in two runs off Charles Nagy (1-4).

Yankees 5, Angels 0

Jimmy Key pitched his second career one-hitter, limiting California to Gary DiSarcina's leadoff single in the sixth inning. New York won its third in a row on the road and ended the Angels' six-game winning streak.

Blue Jays 4, Rangers 3

Pat Hentgen, put into Toronto's rotation when Dave Stewart was placed on the disabled list, stopped Texas on three hits for eight innings.

Hentgen (3-1) gave up two runs, both on Dean Palmer's seventh home run of the season.

Robb Nen (0-1) walked seven in 3 2-3 innings in his first major league start. The host Blue Jays took the lead for good at 3-2 in the fourth when Dick Schofield drew a two-out walk, stole second, took third on Nen's balk and scored on reliever Todd Burns' wild pitch.

Athletics 7, Red Sox 2

Mark McGwire hit two home runs over the fence and Ruben Sierra and Lance Blankenship got homers on balls that glanced off outfielder's gloves as Oakland stopped its four-game losing streak. Boston lost its sixth in a row on a West Coast trip.

Bobby Witt (1-0) went six innings. Danny Darwin (0-4) was ejected after hitting Rickey Henderson in the ribs with his first pitch after giving up Blankenship's home run.

Royals 4, Tigers 3

Chico Lind singled home the winning run with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning, completing Kansas City's comeback from a late 3-0 deficit.

The Royals scored twice in the eighth on RBI singles by Wally Joyner and Hubie Brooks, and tied it in the ninth on a throwing error by pitcher Mike Henneman.

In the 10th, Joyner drew a leadoff walk from John Kiely (0-2), Kevin McReynolds singled and Mike Macfarlane sacrificed. Lind singled up the middle through a drawn-in infield.

Rusty Meacham (1-1) gave up one hit in two innings in relief of David Conz, whose record stayed at 0-4 in five starts.

Rockets retain grit, wait for Max's return

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The grit that helped the Houston Rockets put together winning streaks of 15 and 11 games will be with them when they open the NBA playoffs against the Los Angeles Clippers.

"We're still in the playoffs and the magic is back with us," Coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "We're looking forward to the day we're still in the playoffs and Max is with us."

The Rockets will face the Clippers in the best of five series beginning Thursday night in The Summit

New Mexico JC overcomes language barrier

By BRAD WALKER
Hobbs News-Sun
HOBBS, N.M. (AP) - So you can't tell the players without a roster? If you watch a baseball game at Thunderbird Field in Hobbs, chances are you can't tell what the players are saying even if you do know who they are.

At New Mexico Junior College, the national pastime definitely has an international flavor - at the very least it's continental. With a trio of native Puerto Ricans on the T-birds roster, plus nine other Hispanic players, baseball has become a bilingual sport in Hobbs.

Not that the average passive fan would understand half the ballpark chatter spewed back and forth between teams during a game. The most complicated part of the movie "Bull Durham" for most of the audience probably was trying to digest all the baseball lingo.

But where a phrase such as "Hum, babe" is part of the game on most fields in the United States, you are more likely to hear, "Vamos, caballero!" ("Let's go, boss!") at New Mexico Junior College.

"Caballo means horse, but it means more like the guy that carries a team," explained Jorge Perez, a sophomore from El Paso, Texas, who grew up in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico. Perez and the other Spanish-speaking players - including team captains Jose Flores, Jaime Macias and Rick Ortiz - have helped their teammates new to English.

Joe Rodriguez Cordona, from Cagrias, Puerto Rico, said he came to NMJC for the chance to play baseball and learn English at the same time at a U.S. school. So did Ivan Sanabria Roman of Humacao, Puerto Rico, and Jose "Tony" Perez of Aguas Buenas, Puerto Rico.

All three agree knowing little English the first day of the fall semester made for a tough adjustment.

"We've learned a little but there's still a long way to go," Sanabria said as Jorge Perez interpreted. "When classes started we pretty much didn't know anything."

"La idioma - Ingles," meaning, "The language - English," Tony Perez answered flatly as the most difficult part of moving here.

Tony Perez, Sanabria and Rodriguez - as well as Dominican-born New Yorkers Luis Ducasse and Trovin Valdez - rarely need to speak English outside class. With so many Spanish-speakers on the team, they communicate better in their native tongue, despite coach Ray Birmingham's insistence they be fluent in English.

"I was worried about the language barrier, but our school is better about educating these guys than other schools," Birmingham said.

The coach cited as an example to Ray Ortiz, the first student-athlete he brought from Puerto Rico. Ortiz earned a master's degree last spring and now is attending and playing for Tarleton State University in Stephenville, Texas. Birmingham and the Puerto Ricans all say faculty members Tomas Juarez and Joe Garcia are instrumental to these students succeeding at NMJC.

The language barrier has been evident at times, though.

Rodriguez said that during a recent game he had a meeting at the mound with the pitcher and Birmingham. The instructions, he later found out, were to change speeds on the curve ball.

But Rodriguez thought he was to call for more change-ups, a completely different pitch. When he got to the dugout, he got the story straight through the help of his teammates.

"Sometimes we'll have a mix up, and I'll say, 'Did you understand I gave you the hit-and-run?' They'll say yes, but I'll say a little more to see if they're picking up something," Birmingham said. "They're starting to learn a little more, though."

So are the coaches. Birmingham said he can't help but pick up words and phrases here and there, even if they're only slang. Players said they were surprised to hear assistant coach Will Roan yell "Linea!" ("Line drive!") at a recent scrimmage.

Roan was accused of cursing in Spanish and was thrown out of a game last year by a sensitive-careed umpire who understood every insult being hurled at him. Some players in the dugout were doing the talking, but the umpire tossed the first person he saw - Roan.

"Toda es sucia en Espanol," ("All of it is dirty in Spanish"), Sanabria said of the talk on the field. Indeed, raggings is part of the game in both languages, and while it can be unpleasant it is usually good-natured. Macias is known by the nickname

"Nono," which Jorge Perez said comes from a "big, fat Mexican actor." But Hispanic players aren't the only ones tagged. Designated hitter Greg Cushman is "Abuelo," or "Grandpa," while Birmingham is known as "Macaco," or "Big Head."

In the same way there are different English dialects and expressions in Texas, Maine and Ireland, there are differences among players of Mexican, Puerto Rican or Dominican descent.

But all good teams must be able to communicate.

So if the Thunderbirds field a lineup with Rodriguez at catcher, Macias at first base, Sanabria at second, Jorge Perez at third, Flores at shortstop, Ducasse, Valdez and Tony Perez in the outfield and Rick Ortiz pitching, one thing is certain: They will be talking "beisbol."

without starting guard Vernon Maxwell, sidelined with a broken bone in his left wrist.

Robert Horry, who missed the final three games of the season with tendinitis in his right knee, is expected to play against the Clippers but he may not be 100 percent.

The Rockets are taking a two-game losing streak into the playoffs. They lost to Dallas on Saturday night and then they lost to San Antonio 119-117 in overtime on Sunday after a controversial final second shot by David Robinson tied the score at the end of regulation time.

NBA officials later admitted the shot should not have counted.

"To play like we did in San Antonio means the magic is right there," Tomjanovich said. "It's out of my control who makes a call at the end of the game. To be undermanned the way we were and play as hard as we did, we're right there."

Horry labeled himself 70 percent ready to play against the Clippers.

"The lateral movement is coming back," Horry said. "It's felt good today. At least I got to practice. Before I couldn't move side to side well at all."

"Right now, I couldn't carry my normal minutes. Hopefully by game time I'll be ready. My jumping has been affected a lot. I do a lot of jumping off my right leg and right now I feel grounded."

Maxwell says he'll be playing in six days but Rockets officials don't expect him to return in time to play against the Clippers.

"This is just another obstacle for me to overcome," Maxwell said. "I've been doing it all my life and I'll be back this time too."

Matt Bullard started the final three games of the season for Horry and Winston Garland starts at guard for Maxwell.

"The bench has come along to take up the slack," guard Scott Brooks said. "The big key for us has been teammate and the unselfish play of the guys out there. We still have a strong bench that can come in and do a good job."

"Rodeo" theme of club election party

"Rodeo" was the theme of La Madre Mia Study Club's annual election party and salad supper held recently at Hereford State Bank.

Hostesses for the evening were members of the nominating committee. They included Chairman Mysedia Smith, Francyne Bromlow, Mary Beth White, Judy Williams, Linda Cumpton and Mary Herring.

New officers include president, Francyne Bromlow; vice president, Merle Clark; secretary, Mary Beth White; treasurer, Mysedia Smith; reporter, Bettye Owen; historian, Betty Taylor; and parliamentarian, Nicky Walsler.

Depicting the evening's theme, each club member was asked to bring her husband's boots and a hat. Members divided into groups for various "rodeo events." The grand champion of the calf roping contest was Nancy Paetzold; barrel race, Kay Hall; and pig calling, Bettye Owen. Each winner received a jeweled belt buckle and Kay Hall was crowned best all-around cowgirl.

The hostesses entertained club members by performing a dance arrangement, "Boot Scootin' Boogie." They invited club members to participate.

During the brief business meeting with President Nicky Walsler presiding, club members voted to give money for their annual scholarship fund and to contribute to Big Brothers/Big Sisters.

President Walsler announced the installation of officers will be held May 13 in the dining room of Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The program was given by Alice Lockmiller and Carol Rendon, principal and assistant principal, respectively, at Northwest School. The women talked about a new program which will be incorporated in the local school system called H.O.S.T.S. (Help One Child To Succeed). The program, which will begin at Northwest, will involve volunteers who can give an hour a week to listen to students read books of their choosing. The volunteers will represent all walks of live and varied careers.

Those in attendance included Francyne Bromlow, Merle Clark, Linda Cumpton, Mary Herring, Betty Lady, Barbara Manning, Glenda Marcum, Gladys Merritt, Lavon Nieman, Bettye Owen, Nancy Paetzold, Tricia Sims, Mysedia Smith, Debbie Tardy, Betty Taylor, Marlene Watson, Nicky Walsler, Mary Beth White, Judy Williams and Kay Hall.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with dismay the letter from "Still Looking," the woman who was lamenting the fact that the chances of meeting a man over 30 who isn't married, an alcoholic, a moocher or gay are mighty slim.

I know where she's coming from because I too have experienced deep disappointment in my search for a mate. Almost all the females I've met have serious psychological problems. They are insensitive or self-delusional or have alcohol dependency. Then there are those who are looking for a man with money or movie-star good looks. I am shocked by the number of women who have a very little to offer yet consider themselves some sort of prize.

While I agree it is rare to find a person of compassion, generosity and sensitivity, I keep hoping it will happen. The longer I look, the more discouraged I become. So, I've simply stopped looking and have decided to place my fate in the hands of the gods. -Disenchanted in Florida

DEAR FLORIDA: Very often as soon as you stop looking, something wonderful happens. I hope this is true for you.

You sound like an intelligent, decent man who may have been looking in all the wrong places or has had an incredible run of lousy luck. Let me know if something good turns up. I'm betting it will. Meanwhile, keep reading for another letter on the same subject.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your response to "Still Looking" was unfair to men. There are plenty of single, heterosexual men over 30 who are kind, caring, hard-working, faithful and not alcoholics. I know because I'm one of them. The reason so many women are "still looking" is that they won't settle for a guy unless he looks like Mel Gibson or Richard Gere and drives the right car.

I have known women who were painfully boring, cheaters, freeloaders and dumb as a box of rocks. A few were physically abusive. Be fair, ann, and tell the other side of the story. Sign me--Still Looking in New Orleans

DEAR NEW ORLEANS: YOU'VE told it and in a way I never could. Read on for yet another voice:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have lost count of the times I've been told, "You're really a terrific guy, and the woman who marries you will be very fortunate." (She means someone else,

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - The often squabbling Jacksons - Michael included - are said to be planning a reunion show in December.

The Jackson Family Invitational Music Benefit and Awards will be held in December, said Thomas D. Carver, president of the Casino Association of New Jersey, a sponsor of the event. The Press, quoting an unidentified association source, reported Wednesday that Michael Jackson would take part.

However, Richard Rubenstein, a publicist for the event, said he could not confirm that. He said negotiations were still going on.

The show would mark the first time since the clan's 1984 tour that the brothers have performed together. They began their career as the Jackson 5.

of course, not her.)

Consider the following conversation I recently had with an attractive emergency-room nurse:

"I can't find a good man. They're all jerks."

"So, what are you looking for in a man?"

"Well, he would have to be a good skier."

"What about finding a nice guy and TEACHING him to ski?"

"No, I wouldn't have the patience for that."

After that little conversation, I came up with a Gem for your column: "You can teach a nice guy to ski, but you can't teach a skier to be a nice guy." -A Nice Guy Who is Still Looking in Philadelphia

DEAR NICE GUY: So true, and while we're on the subject of what some women look for, they should be reminded that looks change. The aging process can be unkind. Hairlines recede, and waistlines expand, but kindness, generosity and integrity have real durability. Wake up, out there.

New officers elected by auxiliary members

New officers were elected when members of the Ladies Auxiliary to Roy Wederbrook VFW Post #4818 met recently with Linda Dutton presiding.

Serving as president will be Dutton; senior vice president, Betty Boggs; junior vice president, Doris Coffin; treasurer, Marie Goheen; chaplain, Ruth Stethem; conductress, Essie Martin; guard, Anna Conklin; one-year trustee, Doris Wilson; two-year trustee, Terry Rhyne; and three-year trustee, Erma Murphey. Appointed officers included patriotic instructor, Doris Wilson, and secretary/historian, Marie Goheen.

Kathy Acton presented a program on Hospice explaining its purpose and its benefits.

Roll was called and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was given and correspondence was read and filed for future reference.

It was announced that Saturday, May 1, is Loyalty Day. There will be a program at the flagpole in the circle in front of the Post Home at 7 p.m. The prayer will be given by Tom Draper and songs will be sung by Officer Pat Michael and his wife, Sheryl. Following the program, refreshments will be served inside the Post Home. At that time, Officer Terry Brown will give a program on home protection.

The next regular meeting is planned at 8 p.m. May 3. A supper will be served at 7 p.m. The installation of officers will be led by Doris Wilson.

The meeting was preceded by supper for VFW & Auxiliary members. Those present included Betty Boggs, Martha Bridges, Mildred and Joe Bob Clements, Anna Conklin, Marie and Tom Goheen, Jo and Tony Irlbeck, Linda Dutton, Erma Murphey, Terry Rhyne, Sadie Shaw, Ruth Stethem, Doris Wilson, Dorothy Collier, Leona Sowell and Kathy Acton.

Historical museum observes anniversary

On April 14, 1933, the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum opened its doors to the first of millions of people who have visited the museum.

For 60 years, the museum has fulfilled and continues to fulfill its mission as the cultural repository for the entire Texas Panhandle. An exhibit examining the museum's 60-year history recently opened in Pioneer Hall, the original structure dedicated in 1933.

In 1921, the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society was formed "to collect all the relics and history of the Panhandle and to place them in a fireproof building under the care of a capable guardian."

Seven years later, a building committee was formed to approve architectural designs and raise funds for a museum. The Amarillo architectural firm of Rittenberry and Carder began plans in 1930. In the original plan, Pioneer Hall was merely the west wing of a larger museum complex. In 1931, Governor Ross Sterling signed legislation appropriating $2,500 in matching funds to build a museum on the West Texas State Teachers College campus. This cooperative arrangement between the State of Texas and the college was unique in Texas and was later emulated at the University of Texas and other institutions.

On Sept. 1, 1932, construction of Pioneer Hall began under the Frank W. Little Construction Company of Amarillo. The cornerstone was laid on Nov. 5, with speeches by Society President T.D. Hobart and Dr. J.A. Hill, President of WTSNC. Mr. J.O. Guleke was the featured speaker and "the Department of Music (from WTSNC) provided appropriate music and the two thousand visitors went away with justifiable pride in this dream come true," wrote Dr. Hill. On April 1933, Pioneer Hall was dedicated and opened as "the cannon thunderously announced that the Society's museum building was ready to be inspected--ready to be used for the purposes to which it was that day being dedicated...1600 people milled through the new shrine all that afternoon, most of them enjoying a sense of ownership."

Under President Roosevelt's new Deal, the first of eight murals to adorn Pioneer Hall were painted by Harold Bugbee and Ben Carlton Mead under the Public Works of Art Project in 1934. Two years later, the Texas Centennial Commission funded the north basement addition, begun with Works Progress Administration labor.

In 1940, the "Give-a-Brick" campaign was begun for the Museum's second unit. World War II slowed the building project and by War's end all the accumulated bricks had disappeared.

The museum received an Award of Merit as the best regional organization in eight South Central States from the American Association of State and Local History in 1951. The opening of the second unit in 1952 saw the installation of the Museum's first art galleries as the charter of the Society was amended to include art objects in the late 1940s. Three years later the Museum's one-millionth visitor registered in May 1955.

The north addition, opened in 1967, added 48,000 square feet and eventually housed the Research Center, Art Galleries, Pioneer Town, and Natural History. Additional space was provided with the acquisition of West Texas State University's original library in 1973, followed by the installation of the restored T-Anchor Ranch headquarters on the Museum grounds in 1975. In 1977, the Society received the Landergin-Harrington Mansion (now called Harrington House) in Amarillo. In 1982, the Museum was accredited by the American Association of Museums and the following year the Don D. Harrington Petroleum Wing was completed, adding 75,000 square feet.

State Capital

HIGHLIGHTS
By Lyndell Williams and Ed Sterling
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — A proposed constitutional amendment endorsed by Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock would prevent the Texas Legislature from getting a wild hair and passing a state income tax, without giving voters the final say.

Under the proposal, a simple majority approval in a statewide election vote would be required before any income tax could take effect.

With anti-tax sentiment registering a "9" on the Richter scale, to put such a decision squarely in the hands of Texas voters would seem to absolve lawmakers of any blame, should an income tax be imposed.

The proposed amendment specifies that revenues from a state income tax would go directly into public education and enable some school property tax relief; it also would subject any income tax rate increase to voter approval in a statewide election.

Two-thirds Vote Needed

If the measure gets two-thirds approval in the Senate and House — and it appears it will — voters will find it among other proposed constitutional amendments on the Nov. 3 ballot.

Bullock scoffed at speculation by GOP members that his endorsement of a plebiscite is merely a smokescreen to take attention away from Proposition 1 on the May 1 special election ballot. Prop.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Publicity-shy Harper Lee, author of "To Kill a Mockingbird," let down her guard long enough to be honored by the University of Alabama but didn't sound thrilled about all the attention.

"Good Lord, child!" Lee good-naturedly scolded an autograph-seeker carrying three copies of her novel.

Lee and 30 other women graduates were honored during weekend festivities marking the 100th anniversary of women being admitted to the university's Tuscaloosa campus. Lee agreed to attend provided she was shielded from reporters.

Lee, 66, won a Pulitzer Prize for her only published book, which was turned into an Oscar-winning movie starring Gregory Peck in 1962. The novel explores racism in a small Southern town through the eyes of an 8-year-old.

The book drew heavily on the author's youth in Monroeville. She now divides her time between Monroeville and New York.

1 is the constitutional amendment known around the state as "The Robin Hood Amendment," which would allow the state to transfer ad valorem revenues from property-rich districts to property-poor ones.

Ford Endorses KHB

Still reeling from accusations that she once pummeled an employee with a loose-leaf notebook, state Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison received the blessing of former President Gerald Ford last week.

Ford endorsed Hutchison for the U.S. Senate race. Hutchison, a Republican, served in the Ford administration as vice chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board in 1976.

As the May 1 special election nears, polls show Hutchison leads GOP candidates, U.S. Reps. Joe Barton of Ennis and Jack Fields of Humble, but trails the governor's appointee Sen. Bob Krueger, D-New Braunfels.

Meanwhile, Hutchison said last week she took (and passed) a "demeaning" lie detector test to dispute allegations that she hit a former employee.

Mauro Heads Task Force

President Clinton has appointed Land Commissioner Garry Mauro to head a national task force on converting the federal vehicle fleet to natural gas and other alternative fuels.

Mauro said the task force's goal is to demonstrate that using such fuels will save money, reduce pollution, cut dependence on foreign oil and pave the way for converting thousands of private and public vehicles nationwide.

In appointing Mauro, Clinton cited Texas' efforts to convert school buses and other public vehicles to alternative fuels.

Vaccination Bill Passed

Gov. Ann Richards is expected to sign legislation that would require preschoolers to receive immunizations against childhood diseases. The Senate gave final approval to the bill last week.

"This bill is very important because in some parts of the state, the level of immunization is lower than in Third World countries, said the bill's sponsor, Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo. She said the bill would help prevent outbreaks of measles and other preventable diseases.

Zaffirini said the vaccinations will cost $55.6 million, a fraction of the expense of treating the diseases.

Bills Salute Veterans

Under legislation passed by the House and sent to the Senate:

■ Children of U.S. Military personnel killed or missing in action wouldn't have to pay tuition or fees at state universities.

■ State agencies must continue to give veterans preference over equally qualified job applicants.

Other Highlights

■ The state's public utility counsel, Luis Wilmot, has recommended that Texas Utilities Electric Co.'s proposed $760 million rate increase be slashed by 83 percent. He recommended a $129 million, or 2.5 percent rate hike. TU's request would increase rates 15.3 percent.

■ The Senate put to rest an earlier controversy and confirmed the reappointment of Amy Johnson to head the Office of Public Insurance Counsel, which represents Texas insurance consumers. Earlier, several senators said she was too aggressive against insurance companies. The vote was 27-2.

■ The House has passed legislation that allows Texas agricultural products and seafood producers to sue people who make false and disparaging remarks about their products. The 103-35 vote came over the objections of Rep. Al Granoff, D-Dallas, who called the bill a "gold mine for lawyers."

■ President Clinton's choice for secretary of the Navy is San Antonio investment banker John Dalton. A graduate of the Naval Academy, Dalton, 51, said he will be "firm, fair and sensitive" in handling reports of sexual harassment at the 1991 Tailhook convention.

You can be a portrait artist

When Mother's Day comes around, kids love to make personal gifts or cards for Mom. If you're looking for a new idea your school-age kids will enjoy, try this clever way to transform a special photograph into a contemporary drawing for a cheery Mother's Day greeting card for Mom, an aunt, grandmother or special friend. It will be cherished for years to come!

Here's how you can customize a card:

-Choose a photograph of a closeup of your child and the person receiving the card. Place the photo on the work surface and lay a piece of acetate, the same size as the photo, on top of the photo. (Look for sheets of acetate at office supply stores or use a plain overhead transparency).

-Outline the people in the photograph directly on the acetate with a fine-point black marker pen. Don't worry about drawing every detail. A basic outline along with simple curves for mouth, nose and eyes is sufficient. The completed drawing will capture the appearance of the subjects in the photo and resemble the style of drawings in a coloring book. Even those who don't feel artistically inclined will be astounded by the results!

-Tape the acetate drawing onto a sheet of white typing paper and photocopy the drawing. The photocopy will be the card. For fun, experiment with the functions on the machine and enlarge the drawing or make it small. You may also want to experiment with colored paper if available at your print shop.

--Embellish the photocopied drawing by coloring it with crayons, markers or watercolors. Add a border if you wish and print a greeting across the top.

Note: Instead of making a card, tape together several sheets of photocopied paper and use the paper for gift wrap. Or, frame a sheet to hang on the wall or for Mom to place on her desk or dresser.

New Arrivals

Dawson and Leanne Clark of Temple are the parents of a daughter, Amy Leanne, born April 20, 1993.

She is welcomed by a brother, Drew, two-years-old.

Grandparents are Rich and Pat Clark of Hereford and great-grandmother is Leatrus Clark of Hereford. Great-great-grandfather is Charlie Walser of Hereford.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Tony P. Hall says he lost 23 pounds during a three-week water-only fast to draw attention to world hunger and to protest the dissolution of his House committee on starvation.

"I'm going to enjoy putting back every pound," the Ohio Democrat said Monday after ending the fast. He was 180 pounds when he started.

Forty celebrities, including Susan Sarandon, Andy Garcia, Sam Waterston and Carol Kane, gave up food on Friday to show support for Hall.

The House abolished his Select Committee on Hunger to save money. Hall said that as soon as his system can take it, he plans to eat "some fried chicken, maybe a nice steak, maybe some blackberry pie, mashed potatoes and gravy, shoo-fly pie, some pasta."

Learning sewing skills

Deaf Smith County 4-H leader, Brenda Campbell, teaches 4-H members basic sewing skills. Making hangers for the historical clothing at Deaf Smith County Historical Museum are 4-H members, Janae Schlabs and Bryan Vasek. Youths are invited to join the local 4-H organization by calling the Deaf Smith County Extension Office.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Spring is finally here and the weather is getting warmer! Unfortunately, the warmer the weather gets, the more we tend to run the air conditioner to stay cool. This usually means a higher electric bill.

Here are some important hints to help keep those electric bills down.

- Keep the thermostat on the air conditioner set at a comfortable temperature (usually between 72 and 78 degrees) and leave it! Your air-conditioning costs can differ 3 to 5 percent with every degree up or down.

- Run ceiling or oscillating fans in occupied rooms to circulate the air. They only cost about 8 cents for 10 hours of use.

- Avoid running any "heat" appliances (washer, dryer, dishwasher, oven) during the hottest hours of the day. The extra heat they give off could cause your air conditioner to kick on more often.

- Close doors and vents in unoccupied rooms. There will be less area the air conditioner has to cool. DON'T close off too many vents or you could damage the air-conditioning unit.

These and many other money-saving hints on home energy consumption can be found in my new pamphlet, Heloise's Home Energy-Saving Hints. If you would like a copy, please send $2 along with a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Energy, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279. — Heloise

TOOL-BOX ODORS

Q. My mother has a tool box that is filled with different tools that are in very good shape, as is the tool box. However, every time it is opened an extremely foul odor is released.

What can we use to freshen up this smelly situation? — Barbara Ross, Macomb, Mich.

A. Remove the tools and clean the box with an all-purpose cleaner. Make sure it is completely dry because moisture left in the box could cause the tools to rust.

As you put the tools back, wipe them off with a clean dry cloth. Then put a couple of charcoal briquets or sprinkle some baking soda in a margarine tub. Poke several holes in the lid and put the tub in the bottom of the tool box. The baking soda (or briquets) should absorb any odors left over and keep your mom's tool box smelling fresh. — Heloise

DEFLATION SOLUTION

Dear Heloise: We have dreaded deflating our king-size air mattress because we knew it wouldn't fit back into the original box for storage.

I came up with the idea of using the vacuum cleaner to suck out the air. It folded up neatly and fit back into the original box easily. — Ashly P., Horseshoe Bend, Ark.

Dear Heloise: Since I shop at a warehouse grocery, the staples I buy are all in very large containers.

I recently bought a container of quick-cooking oats and because we don't eat them every day I was wondering how I should store them. Can they be frozen? — Murray B., Dallas, Texas

The best place to store the oats is right on the pantry shelf. If the container has a tight-fitting lid, store them as is. Otherwise put them in a container that can be tightly sealed against moisture and insects.

The container should have an expiration date on it. If not, the general shelf life is one to two years.

Freezing isn't recommended. — Heloise

BAKING SODA

Dear Heloise: I had a fire on my stove from some grease that fell on the bottom tray. Although I turned the electric stove off, it still kept spreading. Then I remembered baking soda.

Thank God it stopped, and it was a good thing I was in the kitchen at the time. — A Reader, Canfield, Ohio

Baking soda is so versatile! I have a pamphlet just plumb full of great baking soda uses. To receive a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Baking Soda #2, PO Box 795001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001. — Heloise

HANDY CONTAINERS

Dear Heloise: I have another use for clean, large margarine tubs and whipped-topping tubs.

I divide meat and put it in the containers, then trim the label from the meat package (or print my own) and affix it to the side of the container with a rubber band (which I save from the daily newspaper).

Chicken fits nicely into the larger tubs. Small tubs hold enough hamburger for spaghetti sauce.

This has saved on purchasing foil and is a money-saver for our family of three but could be adapted for any size family or for singles. — Cathy Thompson, Durham, N.C.

CASSEROLE DISHES

Dear Heloise: Soak casserole dishes that have baked-on food overnight in automatic-dishwasher detergent and water.

Presto! The next morning everything comes off. — Martha Gibbs, Novi, Mich.

Dear Heloise: Whenever I shopped for new bras, I bought the least expensive, thinking they were all the same. I never realized how wrong I was. Buying a bra that fits properly, especially for large-busted women, is very important. I have learned a simple guide for better-fitting bras.

Just take a tape measure and measure the ribcage directly under the bust, then add 5 inches. This measurement will be the band size.

To measure the cup size, measure across the fullest part of the breasts. If it is 1 inch more than your band size, then you would wear an A cup; 2 inches, a B cup; 3 inches, a C cup and so on.

Good bras can last years if laundered carefully. I've hand-washed mine and also machine-washed them, closing the hooks and washing them in a mesh lingerie bag. They still look new after years of wear. — Linda A., Houston, Texas

How right you are! Another good hint is that if you machine-dry them, set the dryer on low or air.

High heat can destroy the elastic or rubber. Also, avoid hanging them in direct sun since that can too be damaging. — Heloise

How the government is kept up: Like an hour glass when one side's quite run out, we turn up the other, and go on again.

Andrews named best speaker

Clark Andrews was chosen as the best speaker during the Hereford Toastmasters' meeting held recently at the Ranch House.

Wayne Winget and Chris Leonard tied for best evaluator and Jigger Rowland was named best topic speaker.

Winget led the pledge to the flag and Joe Don Cummings gave the invocation.

President Gayla Sanders presided over the meeting and also served as Toastmaster. Dr. Milton Adams was timer; Suzanne Finch, "ah" counter; Joe Weaver, grammarian; Dee Hamilton, wordmaster; and "ubiquitous", the chosen word. Margaret Del Toro was topicmaster.

Topic speakers included Jigger Rowland, Dr. Adams, Bob Lohr and Chris Leonard.

Clark Andrews, who spoke on "Llano Estacado", was evaluated by Winget, and Rowland, who spoke on "Toastmaster Politics", was evaluated by Leonard.

Lohr gave the reading and Clint Savoini told the joke of the day. Joe Don Cummings served as general evaluator.

Recognized as new members were Arturo Gonzales and Linda and Charles Minchew.

Others present were Dave Kimmel and Adolfo Del Toro.

Welcomed as guests were Ralph Brant, Dennis Printz, Ed Gilbert and Triny Perez.

When the U.S. Fair Labor Standards Act was passed in 1938, the minimum wage was set at 25 cents an hour.
