PORTRAIT MOVED FROM EXHIBIT

A portrait of Marlon Davies (above) by a Polish artist was removed from the American pavilion to the Polish pavilion of the dismantled art exhibition at Venice, Italy, following protests of Mrs. Juliana Force, director of the Whitney museum of art. Mrs. Force had ordered the whole American exhibit withdrawn because of the unauthorized hanging of the picture of the actress. (Associated Press Photo).

swellings are fire-traps, and that the average American home is wasteful of heat because not properly insulated—and very uncomfortable in summer for the same reason.
He adds that many small homes of the south lack the screens in doors and windows that screens will prevent malaria among the occupants. In addition to this, as applied to individual homes, recent revelations in the New York City investigations of tenement conditions have shown horrible conditions of housing that are duplicated to some degree in almost every American city.

Thus the huge housing remodeling program of President Roosevelt gains considerable support. Certainly there can be no better use of federal funds than to loan them for rebuilding the American home into something that will be fit to sing about.
Perhaps, if the housing program is successfully carried through, a future generation of song writers will cease to chant of tumbledown shacks and cabins in the cotton and write some tender lyrics to "That Electrical Home of Mine."
At least that would be something worth singing about.

CANADIAN RECIPROCALITY
The new tariff deal, which empowers the president to make mutually beneficial import and export agreements with other countries, adjusting tariffs accordingly, opens the way to new consideration of closer relations with Canada.
It was in 1911 that President Taft tried to engineer a reciprocity treaty with Canada. It was passed by Congress, but later rejected by the Dominion government.

Now it is reported that Canada again is exploring the possibilities of such arrangement. With the completely new view of foreign trade which now prevails throughout the world, there are possibilities here.
Five years ago the United States and Canada carried on the greatest two-nation commerce in the world. Today there must still be vast possibilities for trade between us, which will be equally advantageous to both. Certainly no two nations are more closely linked by geography and every consideration of true neighborliness that should enable them to help each other in trade.

THE CLINT SMALL SPEECH

From the Houston Chronicle:
Senator Clint Small's address on the Rice roof Friday was the kind of sane and clear discussion of the facts and possibilities of state government that can not fail to please the modern business and professional man, and all citizens who wish to think calmly and practically about their problems, whether they be problems of state, of business, or family affairs. In a day of so many plans and schemes and panaceas, most of them offered by men of vast impracticality or by men intent only on exploiting distress, the Clint Small speech will come to many conservative men and women as a cool breeze over a blazing wasteland.

This is not to say that one need agree with everything he says or advocates. Perhaps we need in our next governor more desire for fundamental changes at Austin, perhaps we need the determination which some candidates have to create more safeguards against special interests. Mr. Small himself, is not without some far-reaching ideas. He would set up a new gas and oil commission, taking all authority over the regulation from the railroad commission, and he would reorganize that body as a state utilities commission having rate authority over all public service concerns, including the railroads. He is ready to repeal the pari-mutuel horse racing law. He probably can get an argument on all these points even from conservative citizens; nevertheless, he must appeal strongly to conservatives. He is not afraid of the name, and that means a good deal at this time. He talks of being sound and sane, of doing the sensible thing, of eschewing "new deal" talk and thought. He speaks plainly of the pleasant things that can't be done, and of the hard things that must be done. He knows you can't maintain schools, improve highways and improve the shamefully overburdened state hospitals, all of which he says must be done, while drastically cutting the total cost of government.

This sort of talk bears the earmarks of honesty and common sense and courage. For those of our citizens who wish to branch out in daring state enterprises, or who wish to sacrifice our public services to remove their tax burden, Clint Small can not be acceptable. For those who want the state to pursue the so-called safe and sane course, to plug away at the old job as energetically and faithfully as possible, but without launching great new types of enterprises, he will be very appealing.

Regardless of whether we may prefer to support another candidate, the fact can be stated that Texas would have a good and able and faithful governor if Clint Small were elected.

A MEMORY WE WOULD NOT WANT TO REVIVE

The American home has always been a good like the weather. There was a lot of talk about it, but very few ever really did anything about it.

Sentimental songs about Getting Back to That Tumble-Down Shack and Shanties in Old Shantytown have been extremely popular, though it's hard to see just what there is that is really attractive about shacks and shanties.
But apparently there was a lot more reality in these songs than there is in most popular songs of the day. A report of the American Public Health association reveals some startling things about the Great American Home.

Only one-sixth of rural homes have plumbing. Less than one-fourth of the nation's homes have running water; less than half have electricity.
Dr. Haven Emerson, president of the association points out in addition that many private single

Fog Over Europe

What with the blanket of censorship that lies over practically all of Europe east of the Rhine, what with the absolute control of propaganda, what with the revival of secret diplomacy in its most virulent form, any interpretation of current events is bound to be largely guess work. It may be doubted even whether any of the foreign offices has a reliable picture of what is going on all over Europe or is able to distinguish between the apparent and the real forces. There is a state of high tension and extremely unstable equilibrium which might produce any one of a half dozen combinations.

If we attempt at this distance to make some sort of tentative estimate of the position, we find Germany at the center of the crisis. A year of Nazi diplomacy has produced very different results from those which Herr Hitler promised his followers when he was climbing to power. The first sensational evidence of this was in the agreement which he made with Poland under which for ten years he renounced the ambition to recover the Polish corridor. No statesman of the German Republic dared to make such a concession. Herr Hitler made it and then turned his energies toward the absorption of Austria. There he encountered Mussolini, who took a stand, backed by the threat of armed force, against the union with Austria. Thus the Nazi program was checked all along the eastern frontier. In the west there is nothing to be recovered except the Saar and the fate of the Saar will not be decided until next winter. Thus Nazi Germany finds herself confined within the frontiers laid down in the Treaty of Versailles.

In the mean time she has begun to re-arm. But she is as far as she ever was, and possibly further, from obtaining a legalization of her re-armament. This means that she is continually liable to penalties by France for breach of the treaties. At the same time the German re-armament has strengthened French determination to maintain a military superiority; the French liberals and socialists no longer oppose, even if they do not openly approve, the strengthening of the French forces. The German re-armament, accompanied as it is by the militarist propaganda within Germany, has brought together Russia, with France and the Little Entente in an understanding which has all the earmarks of a military and diplomatic alliance.

Hitler has already had to postpone expansion at the expense of Poland and Austria, and while nobody can stop him from re-arming, the increasing military power of Germany is counterbalanced by the strengthening of the French alliances and the French armaments.

Outside of this immediate balance of forces stand Italy and Great Britain. Both are primarily concerned to prevent the situation from exploding. What they would like to arrange is some kind of compromise in which Germany renounces territorial ambitions and France agrees to legalize some German re-armament. But this

SPORT SLANTS
By ALAN GOULD

The Yankee's haven't had the most consistent pitching in the American League but they have had the best, at intervals, and they cannot complain about a lack of recruits with ability.

Of the three one-hit performances pitched so far in the American League, Yankee elbowers have contributed two of them. Both are of recent vintage, with the young Yale graduate, Johnny Bronco, turning the trick against the Browns and Charley (Red) Ruffing blanking the Indians with a single safe blow.
Earl Whitehill registered the other one-hit shutout in the American League and it was at the expense of the Yankees, although Jack Russell came to Earl's assistance and quelled the New Yorkers after Ben Chapman got the first Yankee hit in the ninth.
The Yankees also lead in three-hit performances by the pitching craft. The bespectacled right-hander, Bronco, turned in one against the Browns. Lefty Gomez, the ace of the staff, hurled two others, against the Tigers and White Sox. Gomez pitched hitless ball against the Athletics for seven innings on June 8 but when the spell was broken he released and used his batting practice ball the rest of the game.

AND THE RED SOX
"Where would the Boston Red Sox be in the pennant race today if Lefty Grove had come through with the same effectiveness and winning results he showed with the Athletics during the past half dozen years?" asks our old friend,

Qua H. Pan.
The answer is that they would probably be right in the lead now and all set to draw away from even the Yankees or Tigers, with Grove in form to post 20 to 25 victories.
The decline of the Athletics of year is pretty good proof. Grove is or was the main difference between a third place and a seventh place club. At his best he would be available to save at least a dozen games as a relief pitcher.

The Red Sox have done fairly well despite disappointments. They have brought the fans back to Fenway Park in greater number than at any time in the past ten years. They are still within striking distance of the American League race-sets, with some belated help from another expensive acquisition, Wes Ferrell, but Grove remains the big problem and the main reason why the club has failed to do better.

JUST A PUSH-OVER
The sad part of all this, from the Red Sox standpoint, is that the American League pennant race this season is a push-over for a club with only medium all-around strength and something resembling consistent pitching.

No team in the league can be compared, for power or pitching, with the Yankee powerhouse of 1925-26 and 1927 or the Athletics of 1929-31. Washington, the best club in 1933, got off to such a bad start this spring that it has taken a remarkable come-back to put Joe Cronin's crew back in the running.
Meanwhile all the other potential winners, including the Yankees, Tigers, Indians, have had spells of staggering. The St. Louis Browns have taken advantage of the situation to insert themselves in the running, along with the Red Sox. This leaves only the Chicago White Sox and the Athletics in the non-contending class.

MORSAN (Spl).—The Cosden Pipeliners continued their winning streak Thursday afternoon by defeating Hammer's Ironhorn Pumpers 27 to 11.

He smashed out two home runs and scored six of the Pumpers runs. Heustis performed brilliantly for the Cosdenites in the field. He figured in three double plays from second base.

Games, however, played regular and errors were numerous.

Golf, too, has its Business Moments

"HEAD DOWN, eye on the ball." When this admonition to yourself brings the reward of a zinging drive up the fairway, a beautiful mashie shot to the green or a twenty-foot putt right into the cup . . . It's then that the real thrill of the game begins to seep into your veins; the worries of state give way to the pleasant concern of lowering your score; while the fresh air and the exercise pay dividends in health and mental fitness for the battles of life.

"Head down, eye on the ball." But keep your eye also on that other phase so productive of added pleasure—the possession of up-to-date equipment.

August is golf's mid-season. Sale of golfers' requisites are on or imminent. That set of matched irons, that swanky new-fangled bag, those comfortable spiked moccasin-tops, or those look-the-part-of-a-golfer-togs—all are beckoning to you from the stores in this city.

Keep your "head down"—and keep the cost of your golf "down" too. Keep your "eye on the ball"—and on the golfing-supplies advertisements in this newspaper. Shrewd buying—the business phase of your golf—is at hand. Cash in.

P. S.—There are good bargains, too, in equipment for tennis, swimming, camping, fishing, touring.

National Defense Impaired By Probe, Says Secretary Dern

WASHINGTON, UP—Secretary Dern said Thursday investigations of the war department are impairing its national defense program. Dern expressed concern at the delay in getting the army mechanization program started.

He made the statement while the house committee heard testimony and denials that General Motors representative proposed proposed Chevrolet, Chrysler and Ford companies split government business.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Hansen of Pomona, California, former residents of Big Spring, were here Friday, after having visited his brother, Lee Hansen in Lamesa.

ALL-BRAN RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Brought New Health to Mr. Bartholomew

We quote from his voluntary letter: I had considerable trouble with my stomach. Digestion was out of the question. I got medicine which gave me only temporary relief.

"Then I thought of taking ALL-BRAN. I started eating a cereal dishful two or three times a day.

"It has been over a year now since I ate that first dish of bran, but from that day to this I have had the pleasure of enjoying the proper functioning of the digestive organs.

"Thanks to ALL-BRAN, I still eat it regularly and like it better all the time." Lester Bartholomew, Cadillac, Mich.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote elimination. ALL-BRAN supplies both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Certainly this food is more natural than taking harmful patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily will usually overcome most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

There is no doubt, though, that the Roosevelt lieutenants are heading for the hustings in platoon formation. The New Deal is going to get a liberal resiling this summer.

Harry Hopkins is embarking on an inspection swing which unquestionably will give his larynx a workout.

Undersecretary of Agriculture Rex Tugwell is explaining the good features of the Triple A program to the farmers.

Postmaster General Jim Farley is laying a few cornerstones and hitting a lick for (party) glory.

Secretary of Commerce Dan Roper will find time out from inspecting the Alaskan seals to speak pieces on route to and from. There will be ideas. This just gives you a rough idea.

All reports floating back to Washington from Wyoming indicate that Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney is going to have a hard fight getting elected in his own right this fall. (He was appointed last year to fill out the term of the late John B. Kendrick.)

Administration forces will rally behind Senator Joe with everything they have. He was first assistant postmaster general before stepping into the senate and he is one of Jim Farley's most trusted lieutenants. On the floor he could be counted upon to battle valiantly for the administration.

O'Mahoney made all the hay he could while congress was in session. Whenever legislation affecting the far west went through, he could be found riding with it. Grazing districts in public land states, the Indian bill and the set permit-

Use of water discovered by one and off prospectors all bore his fingerprints.

Notes—
The Farm Credit administration is making feed and forage loans in the drought sections to save live stock. The farmer's note is taken, due in November 1935, with interest at 5-1/2 per cent. At least four New Deal test cases will be before the U. S. Supreme court this fall affecting NRA, AAA and the "gold clause".

Richard Sanderville, an old Blackfoot Indian, is in Washington completing Gen. Hugh L. Scott's dictionary of the sign language. Secretary Wallace frankly admits he will ask farmers this summer what kind of AAA they want. The Home Loan Board is negotiating for purchase of a 10-story Washington office building.

Uncle Sam is paying out $1,000,000 a year for rent besides putting up many new buildings.

NEW YORK

Profits—
Opponents of the New Deal planned economy are making quiet but effective progress on several fronts. Conservative business and financial leaders have begun to earnestly apply the historical adage—"in union there is strength."

Various groups with no visible interconnection are moving up in their respective sectors as smoothly as well-trained units in an army corps. The first common purpose behind their maneuvering is restoration of the profit incentive to its ancient glory. The second is gradual elimination of government interference with business.

Divisions—

Five such groups are especially active at present—each with a specific field of operations where it won't tread on the others' toes.

1. Secretary Roper's Planning and Research Council—which unofficially sponsored the Hot Springs conference of industrial leaders and will follow it up with others. Its first objectives are to assure industry a permanent and potent voice in Washington and to make NRA safe for individualism. Its long range targets are a revised NRA of five master codes under industry's supervision and permanent suspension of anti-trust laws.

2. The National Association of Manufacturers—whose job is to wake up trade groups to the need for united conservative political action as recently outlined in this column.

3. The Crusaders—whose latent mission in life is to unseal Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen on New Deal heresies—thereby furthering the election of a "sound" congress this November.

4. The Republican party—especially its backstage directors—whose immediate task is to gather a war-chest adequate to rear it as a really effective conservative nucleus.

5. The Committee for the Nation—whose unremitting propaganda for more devaluation is now directed chiefly at the farmers. Despite its disagreement with some of the other groups on monetary matters it is contributing to the main cause by persistent sniping at AAA and NRA.

Practical—
The purely political element is a surprising minor factor in the converging attack.

The aim is to mobilize conservative sentiment rather than Republican as such. Many New Yorkers identified with the campaign believe it will get faster action through the election of conservative Democrats this fall than by concentrating on a Republican victory. That might be desirable later but it's practical results that count now.

Hence the Crusaders' avowed intention to support any candidate regardless of party who subscribes to their platform. This is a leaf from the American Legion's book. Hence also the Business Planning Council's superb indifference to politics.

You'd give New York leaders too much credit if you ascribed their cooperative efforts of the various divisions to unified generalship. But the real GHQ for each of the "five is here and the liaison—though informal—is effective and sympathetic (except on the comparatively minor issue of money). If tighter coordination becomes advisable it will develop behind the scenes when needed.

Technique—
The Crusaders are privately referred to here as world's champion "quick-change artists."

They started out as a pro-repeal outfit. When repeal was assured they switched to support of the original Roosevelt economy act. Both battles were won but you can write your own ticket on how much they had to do with it. Then they tried their hand at boosting sound money but that act didn't go over so well. Now they've enlarged their field to a broad conservative program. No figures are available on membership turnover but insiders say it's been high.

You'll hear a lot more about them soon via an intensive organization campaign. Fourteen men will make the setup and supervise installation of local groups to carry the gospel to every hamlet. New York must raise $173,000 of the total national organization quota of $250,000. Local units are to be self-supporting.

The Crusaders' technique takes full account of the president's popularity. Their assault on the New Deal will be as devious as a golfer's trail.

Banks—
Leo T. Crowley's bias at banks which haven't fulfilled agreements to sell preferred stock or debentures to the RFC drew loud applause from New York.

A number of small banks wriggle under the wire to FDIC membership on the strength of a pledge to bolster their capital structure that way. They couldn't have qualified otherwise—but having qualified they forget the pledge. Naturally that hasn't sat well with the banks which are guaranteeing their deposits. It's understood here that Crowley means business and intends to evict all offenders who continue to wince. He may be blocked by Washington higher-ups who are sensitive about closing more banks.

The argument shows up the weakness of a dual banking setup. Banking authorities of several states have gummed up the federal program repeatedly by imposing contradictory rulings. Local authorities believe FDIC's experience will speed the administration's plan for a unified banking system.

Slingshot—
Wall Street gets a chuckle from the announced plan of large importers to battle for restoration of the gold standard at the next session of congress because of "unfair" losses from devaluation. The boys wish them luck but comment it's like a boy with a slingshot setting out to capture a battleship.

It has been developed so far that about 7,000 super-zealous young German-Americans have been drilling weekly here and there like so many National Guardsmen. Considering the nation's total population, you would have to jump six places to the right of the decimal point to get their representative percentage.

The calculation would read about .0000056.

Nevertheless, 7,000 men willing to spread insidious propaganda and "do or die" in was best known to themselves for the Fatherland represent a factor to be considered. The State Department welcomes this Committee evidence that we are on guard. It only hops no official Berlin toes will be trod upon too hard in the course of the summer's investigating—and campaigning.

Eagles—
NRA, beleaguered and beset upon, is now in the second phase of its big experiment of industrial regimentation. Behind is the baby's teething year—a year devoted largely to codification.

Ahead are six months in the administrative laboratory. Already Hugh Johnson has ducked right swings long enough to perform some clinical operations on existing codes. It remains to be seen how far unites conservative political action as recently outlined in this column.

If he can dodge the punches, he will carve out plenty of appendices, gut stones and indifferent livers. He wants to sew up industry so it will tick for itself. Reports from his anaesthetists that many patients want to retain their gall—and also their livers, even though turning yellow—are very annoying.

Johnson is trying in his usual offensiveness to revise the code administration in the next few weeks in such fashion as to suit the bosses and meanwhile not kick labor and the consumer so hard a lasting bruise will result. It is a large order. The licensing provision of NIRA died on June 16 and gave a lot of the boys Dutch courage.

Looking into the future, the Roosevelt administration will try for as many mutually satisfactory administrative adjustments as possible before Congress reassembles for the 1935 battle-royal.

Then a request will be made for another year's extension of the Industrial Recovery Act's chief features as an emergency move. It will be explained that further tinkering is necessary with actual administration before the third and permanent phase of industrial control is undertaken. This is figured to satisfy industry. When the big boys want permanent legislation Congress will take the nod quicker from them than from the White House.

Saved—
Are the spollsmen mad? Secretary of Commerce Dan Roper held on to a juicy $12,500 plum until Congress adjourned and then deliberately tossed it overboard.

Just before starting to Alaska, Roper appointed Acting Director of the Shipping Board Bureau James

C. Peacock to serve also as president of the Merchant Fleet Corporation. His original $10,000 less 5 per cent will cover both titles.

The $12,500 Fleet Corporation job has been vacant since August 1933 when Capt. Elmer Crowley resigned. Many have aspired to the salary but nobody will get it now.

Notes—
FDR will make a lot of recess appointments before July 1.

Stock Exchange and communications commissions are the most important. . . . More than 300 candidates are listed for the Stock Exchange job. . . . Secretary Tolson has picked the site for the new Interior building, just south of the present one. . . . Cost: $10,000,000. . . . Bernie Baruch is to write reminiscences. . . . He could take an unfold regarding International rivalries for American supplies during the late unpleasantness. . . . Somebody told Secretary Wallace that Brazil had burned 6,000,000,000 pounds—or tons—of coffee. . . . He pointed to Tugwell and said "Shush!" . . . Home Owners' Loan has taken over another office building and filled it.

Jack Rabbits Invade Valley
WICHITA, Kan. (UP)—Thousands of jack rabbits, tramping up the Arkansas valley in quest of green victuals, have brought something of a plague to this section. Owners of gardens to which the advancing legions paid visits said the rabbits must have traveled far on an empty stomach, judging from their appetites.

Wet Kansas Prophesied
GOODLAND, Kan. (UP)—Dry Kansas will be wet yet in the opinion of Sen. Charles E. Miller, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. After working in 62 of the state's 103 counties he became convinced the voters would take the prohibition amendment out of the state constitution next November.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—A bronze statue of Edward Bates, who was Abraham Lincoln's opponent for President in 1860, is to be removed from a park highway entrance here to make way for a new express highway. It will be re-erected elsewhere in Forest Park Bates died in 1869.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

AGAIN DEATH

"You appear to be moved at all points, Harper. It's a very grave error. You're almost convinced of it."

"We've had all these pieces of evidence," the detective continued calmly, "but we couldn't get them into a pattern. After we had a talk with Ellen Becker we began to understand."

Pierre Dufrene looked at him as if he felt a knife at his ribs. "Ellen Becker?" he echoed faintly.

"Yes, and once again I can tell you something you didn't know before. Your bribes to her were a waste of money. She had already got her silence in pawn elsewhere."

Dufrene leaned on his face working, his eyes glittering in stark rage. He gripped the detective's shoulder. "My wife?" he choked.

Harper nodded. "Ellen Becker has been taking money from both of you. When she confessed about those notes in the sand, it became obvious how you must have planned to catch that man in your house and murder him. But you have nobody produced your case by being secret and subtle, with the result that a perfectly innocent man lost his life as well. That part is not so easy to forgive."

Dufrene faced the detective. "Harper," he exploded, "what would you say if I denied everything, completely and absolutely?"

"You may deny all you like, but you'll find it pretty hard to explain away Ellen Becker's evidence, or those letters. Then there's the presence of the master-key on your stove, and the murder gun, first hidden in your room. Besides, there's only one amount of corroborative evidence."

"But didn't you tell me you had two suspects on your list? Or were you lying to try to trap me?"

"Not exactly that, Mr. Dufrene. Harper threw his bombshell. Mrs. Dufrene's actions are under equal scrutiny. She is known to have been away from Mrs. Morlock's house during that mysterious fire. She has refused to give an explanation or account of her movements."

Dufrene halted in his tracks, a peculiar intensity coming into his eyes, as though looking at something far away.

"I suppose you threatened my wife with arrest?"

"I am giving her every chance to reconsider her decision," Harper replied, "but continued refusal to answer my questions will force my hand."

Pierre Dufrene threw back his head and burst into harsh, jarring laughter. "Are you mad?" he cried. "No one in this house is ever going to stand trial for murder."

"The prize quantity of all time!" Sergeant Stephen Harper, still

DADDY BROWNING CRITICALLY ILL

His left side paralyzed as the result of a cerebral hemorrhage, Edward W. "Daddy" Browning, wealthy real estate operator and estranged husband of Frances "Pesches" Browning, has been critically ill in a New York hospital. iny, gave the signal to the photographer and the police sergeant and they set about their routine procedure. Then the detective turned to the piece of resistance of this unexpected climax.

A chair, with Donaghy's feet still under it, was drawn up close to the bed. On the chair stood a portable typewriter and in it was typed a letter. The arrangement suggested that the chauffeur had finished typing, reached for his gun, and fallen sideways across the bed. Harper carefully released the letter and read it. This was the

I never had any luck after I got in with Harry. We started on jobs but when Harry wanted to try the dirty stuff I wanted to pull out. He got nasty and said he would take me in if I didn't play ball. So I figured out a way to get rid of him.

Look in the old tire hanging on the wall of the garage and it will save a lot of explaining. My scheme worked out fine and my ally held up and everything would have been all right if it hadn't been for the cop.

Nobody will shed a tear because Harry has gone, so I burned all his papers. Harper can figure out the rest of it for himself. Anyway I swore I'd never go to jail and I won't. I can't find anything to sign this with, but I guess that won't be necessary.

Harper read this startling confession through twice and put the letter aside thoughtfully. "Have you been down in the garage, O'Connell?"

"Yes sir. It's just like it says in the letter—an old tire hanging up on a big spike."

"All right, bring the tire up here."

Presently the ruddy-faced policeman, came back with the designated tire. O'Connell held it up right on the window-seat, while Harper's eager fingers dislodged the contents of the circular hiding-place.

The first and bulkiest portion of the treasure proved to be a neatly-shined length of a very thin, but exceptionally strong and durable rope. It was a brownish yellow in color and to each end of it a metal ring was bound. These rings had the circumference of a fifty-cent piece.

Adoption of the 14-inch in seam ball to play with here was a wise move if you want our opinion. A survey conducted by President Jess Hall et al. revealed that the 14 inch in seam was the ball most generally used. The idea of staging a soft ball tournament here later in the summer has already been talked of, and if that idea is carried out, it would be much better to have teams used to playing with the same size ball.

A vote of thanks to Doyle Robinson and Jess Hall. Those two have spent a large part of their time for the past several weeks trying to get the soft ball leagues better organized. Many others have contributed time and money, but Hall and Robinson have done more than all of the others put together.

Approximately $135 has been collected to help defray the cost of re-lighting the diamond. "Only a little more is needed," the president reported this morning, "and we hope to realize the small sum out of the dance tonight."
