Midwest's drought could be help here

By JOHN BROOKS Managing Editor

The drought that has been plaguing the Midwest for the past month could pay dividends for local farmers with big leaps in prices for their wheat, corn, and soybeans.

"I don't want to forecast the highest prices in history, but people have assumed there would always be plenty of rain and too much of a crop. This may be the year those things don't happen," said Richard Schlabs of Schlabs-Hysinger, a Hereford commodity marketing firm.

Some areas of the Midwest-Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska, Missouri, Minnesota-are eight inches or more short of their "normal" rainfall. Unlike farmers here, they don't irrigate - they usually don't have to. If they have a problem with moisture in the Midwest, it's usually too much moisture.

A high pressure system is entrenched over much of the eastern half of the United States. That system is causing storm systems to bear to the north or south, or hold them at bay to the west. The Midwest's usually abundant moisture supply is going somewhere else.

"The drought has effected all of the markets," Hysinger said. "The markets are so tied to what happens when they are focused on one thing. The market has focused its attention on the drought. With no rain at all, it will continue to rise. With a little rain, the market could level off. There's. A drought like we had in the 1930s still time to make a crop if they get some rain, so the market

-On May 13, corn was at $2.06 per bushel. Monday's closing price was $2.591/2.

"The soybean price was more radical because we were going to be short anyway, even if there were normal rainfall," Schlabs said. "We have the shortest carryover of soybeans that we've had in several years

"Wheat has been effected almost the same way. The problems are not all because of the dry conditions. We've had disease problems here, and there have been other problems elsewhere."

Schlabs says that while growers in the Midwest have problems, a normal year here could reap big dividends.

"I think the exciting part is what is to come. With a market like this, it could drastically change the economy around here. could occur up there. It obviously happened once here.

"If the weather pattern continues up there a few more weeks, corn could go up another 75 cents a bushel. That's pure speculation, but this weather pattern is so entrenched ... If it stays until the end of the growing season, the The markets began their move market, instead of being support-Commodities will be rationed by "The drought up there has also there's nothing to graze.'

Another significant factor is the dollar. Foreign currency is worth more compared to the dollar, making American goods attractive overseas.

"The dollar is a very significant factor," Steve Hysinger said. "It has made our grain very attrac tive to foreign countries.

"With the rise in the market, people don't realize we are just now coming back to what had been our 10-year low until about a year ago. We are just now at the old 10-year low. You can look at the chart and see that the corn price could go a lot higher-there's a lot more room for corn prices."

"I'm glad we can get the market up and going again," said Schlabs. "Farmers have been in this poverty thing long enough."

Schlabs explained. "People who planted less will be receiving lower deficiency payments and will see fewer benefits from the "Cattle feeders could end up

Farmers haying roadsides, bring rain dancers in to help

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) Cattle farmers are sending cows to slaughter and mowing roadside ditches to feed remaining animals trying to survive one of the region's worst droughts since the Dust Bowl. Crop farmers, meanwhile, can only wait

"Everybody is culling every cow that they don't need. You're seeing a lot of older cows going to market." said Malcolm McGregor, a Nashua farmer and regional vice president of the National Cattlemen's Association.

In northeast Iowa on Wednesday, Vernon Kuhn worked in his withering fields, which vielded 50 bushels of soybeans per acre last

"If we get 35 an acre, we'll be tickled to death," he said. "We need a week of rain.

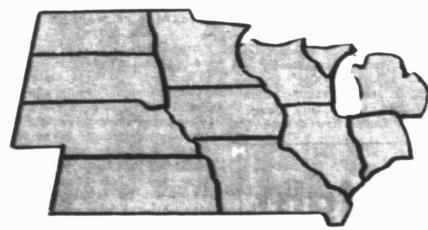

Elsewhere in the nation's midsection and Southeast, farmers turned to sometimes desperate measures to help relieve the drought that's prompted widespread water conservation and threatened farm yields, sending prices zooming on commodity exchanges.

Little relief came from weather forecasters who continued to bear bleak news after a dry winter followed by a parched spring. "It's going to be dry across the Plains and the upper Midwest at least the next couple of days," Hugh Crowther, of the National Weather Service in Kansas City. Mo., said today

King Ranch brings in outsider

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) - The legendary South Texas King Ranch is being run by a non-family member for the first time since its founding in 1853 by Richard King, the Rio Grande steamboat captain.

Darwin Smith, chairman and chief executive of Irving-based Kimberly-Clark Corp., famous for Huggies diapers and Kleenex, now holds the reins as chairman and president of the privately held ranch. He will continue to head Kimberly-Clark.

Smith, elected by stockholders at a meeting last weekend, says he's looking forward to the new job.

The family has really dedicated itself to staying together and not going down the other path that gets so divisive it breaks up the operation,

The ranch is the largest in the United States, with more than 800,000 acres, including parts of six counties between Harlingen and Corpus

The company also operates a thoroughbred horse farm in Kentucky, a farm in central Florida, and ranches in Brazil and Australia.

King-Ranch stock is held by about 100 people, all decendents by blood or marriage of King and his son-in-law, Robert Justus Kleberg.

FBI cracks down on purchase scams

Investigation stemmed from wiretapping Pentagon officials' offices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators armed with evidence from two years worth of wiretaps and this week's coast-to-coast raids are preparing to approach witnesses who now may be forced to cooperate with the government's massive Pentagon purchasing fraud probe.

The probe has turned up "rampant bribery in the government" and includes allegations of cash payments, purchase of cars and payments of bills for government employees, Sen. John Warner said Wednesday.

Government sources familiar with the probe said searches of offices of 15 defense contractors on Tuesday stemmed from wiretaps on the offices of two top Pentagon officials. The bugs have been in place for much of the two-year investigation.

The government is now preparing to approach people whose voices are recorded on the taps and who are impareated in possibly illegal acts, said the sources, speaking on condition of

A court-authorized tap also was installed in the office of James Gaines. deputy assistant secretary of the Navy for acquisition management, international programs and congressional support, said the sources.

Additionally, The Washington Post reported today that the home and oftice of Melvyn Paisley of McLean. Va., were tapped.

From 1981 to April 1987, Paisley was assistant secretary of the Navy for research, engineering and systems, a key acquisition post under former Navy Secretary John F. Lehman. Paisley is now a Washington consultant to numerous defense contractors.

The offices of both Cohen and Games were searched and sealed Tuesday as the FBI issued search warrants Tuesday and Wednesday at 38 locations in 12 states.

The wiretaps and search warrants were part of a probe involving allegations of fraud and bribery by defense contractors, consultants and U.S. government employees.

Law enforcement sources said the investigation involves the alleged sale of information by Pentagon officials to defense contractors through middlemen who were acting as consultants to the contractors.

Warner, ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee, said there were many cases where companies "paid $500 or $1,000 to a government employee for proprietary information and then went out and sold it for $50,000.

Warner made the statements in comments inadvertently recorded as he spoke to committee chairman Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., prior to a congressional hearing. The comments were aired Wednesday night by WUSA-TV, a Washington televi-

One warrant sought information from two offices at Cubic Defense Systems Inc. in San Diego, Calif., about a sophisticated electronic pilot training system used by the Air Force and Navy, said William C. Stewart, vice president and general counsel at Cubic Corp.

Stewart said the company used a consultant, William Galvin of Washington, whose office files also were searched in the probe.

Government sources said federal investigators also tried to question two Cubic employees who had spoken with Cohen, but were told by company lawyers not to do so.

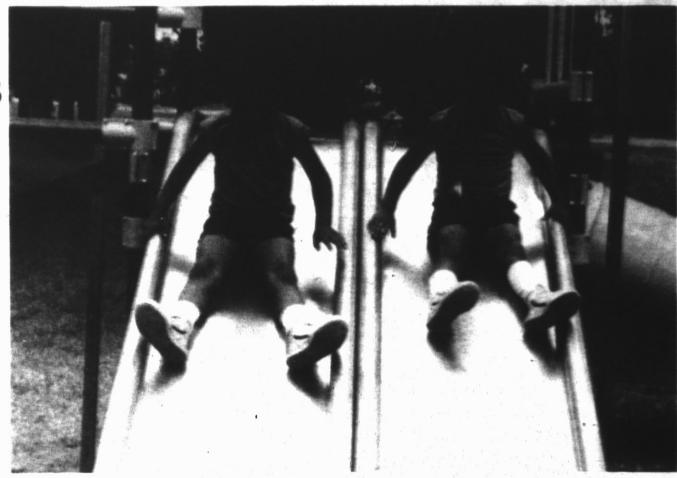

The FBI also searched Paisley's office and home.

Search warrants were served on at least six current or former Pentagon employees.

Among the offices searched was that of George Stone, an official in the Space and Naval Warfare Systems Command. Stone is director of the information management services and information transfer purchases division.

A warrant also was served on Jack Sherman, a civilian employee in the Marine Corps. Sherman works in the equipment and service acquisition section of the contracts division, installation and logistics department at Marine Corps headquarters.

Another Pentagon employee whose files were searched, Stuart Berlin, works for the Naval Air Systems Command, the prime contracting office for aircraft-related procurement. Berlin is the head of the ship systems engineering branch.

Six killed in IRA bombing of British van

THE STREET BY THE

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) A bomb planted in a British army van while six soldiers ran a halfmarathon killed them and injured 10 civilians in the worst Irish Republican Army attack in Northern Ireland in seven months.

The bombing Wednesday night in Lisburn, seven miles southwest of Belfast, brought this year's death toll from sectarian violence to 38 — eight this week alone.

Police said the soldiers drove into predominantly Protestant Lisburn's market square in an unmarked military van to run in the longest of three races and "fun runs" that attracted 4,250 competitors.

While they were away, guerrillas wired explosives to the van's chassis. The bomb exploded when the soldiers, returning from the race around 9 p.m., had driven off just a few yards, police said.

The IRA claimed responsibility. The outlawed guerrilla group is fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite the Protestant-dominated province with the Roman Catholic Irish Republic.

None of the civilians, including an 80-year-old man and a 2-year-old boy, suffered serious injuries, police said.

The death toll was the highest since an IRA bombing at a war memorial ceremony in Enniskillen last Nov. 8. The IRA said that bomb was meant to kill soldiers but accidentally massacred 11 Protestant Wednesday's blast struck the worst blow against the army since a 1982 bombing in the Droppin' Well pub in Ballykelly, near Londonderry, killed 11 soldiers and six civilians. An IRA offshoot, the Irish National Liberation Army, claimed responsibility for that attack.

Lisburn is the main base of the British army in Northern Ireland. The soldiers were driving back to the town's Thieval army barracks,

The British and Irish governments both deplored the killings, which sharpened fears that Northern Ireland is sliding into a new cycle of violence after several years of relative calm.

"So dastardly way the plan that the numbers killed could have been many times greater," said Tom King, the top British official in Northern Ireland.

parched pastures and rising feed

Iowa's not far behind, he said. Meanwhile, cattlemen here are trimming their herds.

"I don't see any liquidation yet, but it will be soon if we don't get any rain," he said, "There's certainly nothing growing up here." The USDA has allowed farmers in 96 of Iowa's 99 counties to feed cattle on land originally left out of row cropproduction under the federal setaside program. A similar measure was taken in Missouri.

"The decision to allow having and grazing on diverted acres was a lifesaver for us," said Dorothy Tisdale, who has a herd of 70 beef cows on the farm she operates with her husband, Fred, near Milton.

Gov. Terry Branstad this week ordered the Iowa Department of Transportation to allow farmers to mow ditches along roads near their property and feed the hav to livestock.

Farmers of row crops like corn and soybeans, meanwhile, are still holding out for rain to salvage 1988 yields, despite one of the worst droughts since the 1930s' Dust Bowl.

FOR CREATIVE COLOR PORTRAITS

Young at heart

Kings Manor and Westgate residents were treated to their fourth annual circus Tuesday afternoon at the Manor and youngsters helped share in the festivities. Treats of cotton candy, orange drink, and popcorn were served among decorations of colorful balloons and games set up for youngsters. "Sue Urbanczyk of Balloon Express served as the clown and provided balloons, Hereford Welding provided helium for the balloons, the Lions Club donated cotton candy and assisted while McDonalds furnished the beverage. We are truly thankful to everyone who made this event a success," noted Helen Kirkeby, activities director.

Know early warning signs of heart attack

Heart attacks can happen without much warning, and they happen anywhere, any time. Do you know how to help someone who is having a heart attack? The Texas Medical Association says that you can help save a life if you recognize the signs an attack and take action immediately.

Severe chest pain usually is the first sign. The pain often is described as pressure beneath the breast bone. It can become severe, and can move into the neck and jaw area and the left shoulder or arm. Any kind of exertion makes it worse. The pain will be continuous, but may subside.

Other early warning signals of a heart attack that accompany the pain include nausea, sweating, difficulty in breathing, and dizziness.

The first step to helping a victim is to call an ambulance immediately. Then make the person as comfortable as possible, which is usually siting, with the legs up and bent at the knees. Loosen ties, collars and any tight clothing around his or her upper body.

Another way you can help is simply by being prepared for all types of emergencies. Know what the emergency number is in your area. Know where the closest hospital is. Learn CPR. If the victim loses consciousness, and has no pulse or stops breathing—you may not have time to wait for medical help to start CPR.

Knowing all of these things also will help you remain calm and reassure the victim.

The Texas Medical Associatin is a professional organization with more than 28,000 physician and medical student members. It is located in Austin, and has 116 component county medical societies around the state.

NEW YORK (AP) — Only 7 percent of Americans know their cholesterol level, according to the Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau.

That's unfortunate, public health officials say, because 25 percent of Americans have levels that put them at high risk for coronary heart disease. About 13,000 people were tested at 11 U.S. Lipid Research Clinics to determine these figures.

College to host Prep Days for new students

Frank Phillips College is sponsoring its first series of summer orientation, Prep Days, June 24, July 16 and Aug. 1, for new students who will be attending the college in the fall.

Prospective students need to be aware of these dates because it gives them "an opportunity for academic advising and advanced registration in classes for fall semester," according to Glenda Thompson, FPC Dean of Students.

"The FPC Prep Days are designed to give students the opportunity to get acquainted with the College, faculty, staff and other students," Thompson said.

A session for the adult learner will also be included in the schedule. "We are particularly interested in meeting the needs of the non-traditiona student returning to the campus," Thompson said. "These students are invited to participate in any of the sessions. However, a Prep Day on Aug. 4 has been scheduled specifically to meet the needs of these students," she said.

Also offered is an optional parents session which will include information about the college student of the '80's, specific information about college costs, an introduction to FPC by meeting faculty, staff and touring the campus, Thompson said.

The program will begin at 8:45 a.m. on each of the three Prep Days with registration in the Borger Community Ativity Center on campus.

Following check-in the students will complete a brief asset test to aid in accurate academic placement for college courses. Afterwards, "FPC student leaders will sponsor an introduction to campus activities and provide "ice breakers" for group interaction.

At 11 a.m., Dr. Vance Gipson, vice president for academic and Student Affairs, will speak on success in college courses.

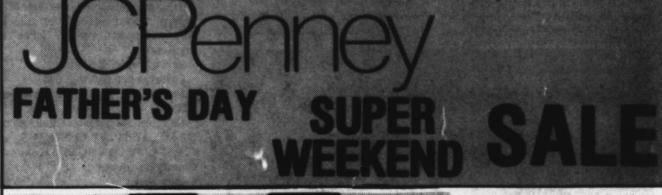

Students will be treated to a hamburger cookout at noon on the Library lawn. Faculty, administrators, coaches and current FPC students will host the meal.

Academic advising and registration will begin at 1 p.m. in the classrooms of the lower Library building. Students will have the opportunity to complete all steps of the registration process, buy textbooks, fill out housing applications and be officially entered in courses for the fall semester.

A tour of the campus will conclude the activities for the Prep Day.

All new students who will be enrolling at FPC in the fall are encouraged to attend one of the Prep Days.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently I had to go to the hospital emergency room. (Nothing serious). While I was there a woman was brought in by the police. She had been raped in a

They put her in a curtained booth and everyone in the place could hear them questioning her. They treated the woman as if she had done something wrong. There was no hint of compassion or respect. It was disgusting.

Everyone in the place heard the doctors talking while they examined her. I realize they must get samples of semen but their language was so vulgar it made me furious. I am a 36-year-old man and I was embarrassed. Can you imagine what it was like for her? She kept saying, "Why me? There are so many attractive girls out there. I am 54 years old. Why would anyone want me?"

The woman's 10-year-old grandchild had been locked in the It's bad enough to be raped, but to

Now that it is all over I am upset because I didn't do more. But what could I have done, Ann? Please tell me, and all the others in your vast reading audience.-Mr. R. in Ner

DEAR MR. R.: You could have asked to see the administrator of the hospital, reported what you had seen and heard and insisted that they send someone in to comfort the woman and stay with the child.

Thank you for the oportunity to bring this incident to the attention of the public. You did a kind and thoughtful thing today.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In the natural course of events, my two sons will probably die before their wives, who are younger. The women will no doubt have many suitors for a second marriage since both are attractive and will inherit a considerable amount of money.

I have a good relationship with my sons and their wives and I do not wish to alienate them. I confess, however, that I bristle at the thought of my daughters-in-law enjoying the fruits of my labor with second husbands.

I have four grandchildren with whom I am very close. How can I be sure that they will inherit the bulk of may have to pay a penalty.

Game 5 could become 'Wrestlemania 5'

By HOWARD ULMAN AP Sports Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Game 5 could become Wrestlemania 5.

Elbows and forearms flew in the fourth game of the NBA Championship Series when Detroit lived up to its bad boy image. Angry words flew Wednesday when the Los Angeles Lakers vowed to retaliate for the Pistons' rough play.

"I can take a beating, but I'll also give one out from now on," Lakers guard Magic Johnson said. "They've got their hit men, as they call it. We've got our hit men ... I can be one

It will be war and hand-to-hand combat," Los Angeles guard Byron Scott said of tonight's fifth game in the Silverdome

Mychal Thompson, a backup forward and center for Los Angeles and a professional wrestling fan, saw an analogy between what goes on between the ropes and on the basketball

These two teams resemble Hulk Hogan versus Andre The Giant," he said. "I'd say we're Hulk Hogan because we're sleeker. We're the good guys, have better builds, and they're Andre The Giant because they're bigger."

Andre plays the villain's role and the Pistons stepped back into it in Tuesday night's 111-86 victory after three incident-free games. The style worked as Detroit evened the best-ofseven series at two victories each.

The Lakers, whose regular-season mood is more peaceful than Detroit's, were particularly upset with Pistons forward Ricky Mahorn.

Los Angeles coach Pat Riley said Mahorn delivered a forearm smash to the back of Lakers forward A.C. Green's head in the opening three minutes of the game.

Johnson said Mahorn "deliberately just smacked me in the face." Mahorn didn't think the game was particularly physical. "A physical game for the Pistons is when everyone's bleeding from the mouth," he said.

The Lakers handed (it their own punishment as Johnson fouled Detroit guard Isiah Thomas hard and Thomas arose with an angry

"We knew coming in what was on the table," Riley said. "But we waited to see what was going to happen and by then it was too late."

The loser of tonight's battle will have a tough time winning the war, particularly if it's the Pistons. They'll be playing their last game in nearby Auburn Hills is nearly complete - and will have to play the sixth game Sunday, and possibly a seventh next Tuesday night, in Inglewood, Calif.

The Lakers were 36-5 there during the regular season and are 10-2 at home during the playoffs despite losing the series opener.

'We're the underdogs. They have the advantage because they're going home." Detroit coach Chuck Daly said. "If we don't win (tonight), we're going to be looking at an early vacation.

"Game 5 is the series," Lakers guard Michael Cooper said. "We can't go to L.A. having to win two

The upper hand has shifted from game to game. Detroit, wanting to prove it belonged in the series, won the opener. Los Angeles, trying to catch up, won Game 2 and, trying to regain the homecourt advantage, took Game 3.

Facing the possibility of losing in five games, the Pistons played aggressively in Game 4, took the ball hard to the basket and handed the Lakers the biggest defeat in finals history since Los Angeles beat Boston 136-111 in 1985. The Lakers had just eight field goals and 35 points in the second half. The Pistons' repeated drives to the basket helped them draw fouls and outscore Los Angeles 36-28 from the foul line. The Pistons took 46 free throws compared to 12 in Game 3.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) -Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor has filed a $30 million libel suit against the New York Post over a story that quoted her as saying, "Hitler had his good points," according to her attorney.

The lawsuit says the comments were falsely attributed to Miss Gabor and that she was emotionally distressed by the report, said Paul Monzione, an attorney with Melvin Belli's law firm in San Francisco.

The lawsuit, which names the New York Post Co. and several unidentified individuals, was filed Monday in the Los Angeles County Superior Court here, a clerk said.

An editor at the Post referred questions to attorney Charles Moerdler, who had left his office and was not available by telephone Tuesday afternoon. He did not return The Associated Press' telephone call Tuesday night.

Monzione said the Post's April 22 story described a confrontation that Miss Gabor had with another guest on The Regis Philbin Show, a talk show televised in the New York City

"She was so upset by the confrontation on live television she began making statements and comments. but at no time did she ever say the things that the Post stated were her statements," Monzione said.

The lawyer said the alleged libel described Zsa Zsa as getting into a limousine, drinking some vodka and then launching into a diatribe - "the gist of which was that Hitler had his good points."

'Miss Gabor is not a drinker and never has been, and so to attribute that practice to her is just flat out wrong," Monzione said. "But even .

more damaging is attributing the statement to her that 'Hitler had his good points."

Monzione said the newspaper subsequently published a retraction, saying it was unable to confirm that Miss Gabor had made the statement. But he said the retraction wasn't given sufficient prominence and should have unequivocally stated that the Hungarian-born actress never made the statement.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - On the eve of his 56th birthday, Gov. Mario Cuomo said he may not get a present from his wife, Matilda, because she is angry over his attempts to cut funding for a state council she runs.

Cuomo, facing a potential $900 million budget deficit, has proposed cutting all sorts of spending, including $500,000 of the $4 million budget for the Council on Children and Families.

"She was very unhappy, but businesslike," joked Cuomo, whose birthday is today. "She said, 'Why did you do it to me?' I said, 'We didn't do it to you."

Cuomo said he then offered her the same deal he made to his cabinet members and other agency heads facing cuts.

"I said, 'If you can find a better cut, we'll consider it," he said Tuesday. "She said, 'Good, we'll start with your birthday present."'

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) -Patrick Duffy, star of the nighttime television soap opera "Dallas," has been named grand marshal of a Buddhist parade here.

Duffy, who plays Bobby Ewing in the TV series, will lead the July 10 parade that kicks off the 25th Northeast convention of the Nichiren Soshu Soka Gakkai.

The actor, a longtime member of the Buddhist sect, also will ring a Liberty Bell replica that the Nichiren Soshu commissioned in honor of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

The 500,000-member Nichiren Soshu is the nation's largest lay Buddhist organization. Duffy was introduced to it by his wife, Carlyn, whom he met during his senior year at the University of Washington.

About 10,000 Buddhists are expected to attend the convention.

LONDON (AP) - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Prince Charles have joined in a campaign to win for Britain one of the greatest private art collections in the world, according to news reports.

The 1,600 paintings of Swiss Baron Heinrich Thyssen-Bornemisza are regarded as the finest art collection in private hands after that of Queen Elizabeth II. They are conservatively valued at $1.41 billion.

There has been a fierce international competition for the collection, with Spain regarded as the favorite. The baron, grandson of the Ruhr steel magnate who armed the German forces in World War I, has made a commitment to Spain to show most of his paintings in Madrid for at least . 10 years.

Roger de Grey, president of Britain's Royal Academy of Arts, said Charles and Mrs. Thatcher had done everything possible to see that Britain did not miss a great opportunity.

Nevada became the 36th state in 1864.

Davis emerges from slump, leads Reds over Astros, 5-3

By JOE KAY AP Sports Writer

Davis goes, so go the Cincinnati Reds.

With Davis struggling during the season's first two months, the Reds failed to put together more than three consecutive victories. Now that Davis is emerging from his slump, the Reds are starting to look more like the team of preseason predic-

Davis hit a two-run homer Wednesday for the decisive runs in a 5-3 victory over Houston that gave Cincinnati its first four-game winning streak of the season.

"When he hits, we're a good ballclub," Manager Pete Rose said. Neither has been true until recent-

Davis' ninth homer of the season off Jim Deshaies in the fifth inning put Cincinnati ahead to stay and gave Davis 14 hits in his last 40 atbats (.350). He has raised his overall average to .245 by trying to be more patient at the plate.

Davis is reluctant to pronounce his slump over.

"I'm taking it one day at a time, one at-bat at a time," he said. "I'm just trying to hit the ball hard somewhere."

That he did in the fifth.

Chris Sabo was on second with a two-out double when Davis came to bat against Deshaies, 4-4, who was trying to protect a 3-2 lead. Deshaies threw two balls and figured Davis would be looking for a fastball, so he threw a change-up.

A high change-up. "That was a game we could have won," Deshaies said. "We took the 3-2 lead, and then I made the mistake to Davis. Had I not, we might have won. I made a bad pitch to Eric."

Sabo added an RBI davis goes, so go the Cincinnati single in the seventh off Larry Andersen, and the Reds' bullpen pitched four scoreless innings to help Tom Browning, 5-3, get his third consecutive victory.

The modest four-game winning streak left the Reds in a good mood. despite their 30-33 record and fourplace standing in the National League West.

"It's the first time we've won four in a row," Davis said. "We have to be relaxed. When you win, you're relax-

The best way to ensure alertness while drinking alcoholic beverages is to ;control intake. Partygoers have long known that it is not a good idea to go to a cocktail party on an empty stomach and then down two quick drinks. Now, sleep disorder research sheds new light on drinking alcohol or coffee, and their effect on alertness. The study involved infrequent drinkers between the ages of 21 and 34. It showed that the amount of sleep a person has the night before drinking either caffee or alcohol has the greatest effect on alertness. The less sleep a person has, the greater the affect from either coffee or alcohol. One surprising fact: a persan who slept five hours and drank three cups of coffee had the same degree of alertness as one who slept leven hours an had three alcoholic
