UWDSC ahead of last year

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The United Way of Deaf Smith County has reached 26 percent of its 1988 campaign goal of $123,500, volunteers announced at Monday's weekly report luncheon.

At the halfway point of its campaign drive, UWDSC has received $32,251.70, and is significantly ahead of the 1987 drive.

Most of the advantage over last year's drive comes from the addition of 60 new pledges from persons, businesses or organizations that have not been UWDSC contributors in the past.

The biggest improvement in the past week came in the Metro Division, led by Donna West.

"We have worked all of the elementary schools, and two of them are up and two of them are down," West reported. "We made presentations at Energas and Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, and we hope to have their pledges by Friday."

These are businesses who are 100 percent contributors to the 1988 UWDSC campaign:

- George Warner Seed Little's
- Summerfield Fertilizer
- Gilliland Agency
- Hereford Butane
- Goodin Fuels
- Tip Top Oil Co.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says you can still make a small fortune in the stock market... if you start with a large fortune

Men and rivers become crooked by following the line of least resistance. —Boyet

At a golf club, a member was boasting about his strength when a puny little listener bet him $50 that he could wheel a load in a wheelbarrow from the clubhouse to the street which the athlete couldn't wheel back.

"You're on," said the boaster. A wheelbarrow was brought up to the clubhouse. "All right," said the little guy. "Get in."

Some politicians have a lot of gall. The kind of gall I'm talking about is defined in the dictionary as "brazen boldness coupled with impudent assurance and insolence."

The kind of politician I'm referring to is Bill Sarpalius. Unfortunately, he's not the only one. Lloyd Bentsen and Jim Hightower also come to mind.

But Sarpalius got me on this soapbox. He sent me a letter this week. The letter invited me and my wife "to continue the role you have already established as a part of our winning team" from the 31st District in the Texas Senate. I assume the fund-raising letter went to a lot of other voters in the 31st Seat Senatorial District.

Sarpalius is not running for the state senate, nor is he running for the U.S. Congressional seat for this district. He doesn't mention which district, or that he won't be on the ballot in Deaf Smith County.

To top off this brazen attempt to get contributions from outside his district, Sarpalius' letter says funds are needed "to support the airing of radio and television ads." Some voters might pass over that statement without a blink, but not a newspaper man! Sarpalius may think he can get the most votes by having his pretty face on tv, but surveys show that voters still read the community newspaper to find out more about the issues and the candidate.

If Deaf Smith County voters want to contribute to their congressman, it would be either Republican Larry Combest of Lubbock, the incumbent, or Gerald McCathern of Hereford, the Democratic challenger.

Gold Star 4-H'ers

Monica Grotegut and Greg Urbanczyk were named the 1987-88 Deaf Smith County Gold Star 4-H'ers, the top 4-H award, at the County 4-H Banquet held Monday at the Bull Barn in Hereford.

Grotegut, Urbanczyk named top 4-H'ers

Monica Grotegut and Greg Urbanczyk were named the Deaf Smith County 1987-88 Gold Star 4-H'ers Monday at the annual Deaf Smith County 4-H Banquet at the Bull Barn in Hereford.

Over 160 4-H'ers were honored with certificates and other awards at the banquet.

Three 4-H'ers — Jill Dutton, Donna Grotegut and Jeffery Carlson — were given the "I Dare You" Award.

Honored as Friends of 4-H were Bob Hughes, Craig Keating, and EXCEL of Friona.

In her Gold Star application, Monica Grotegut said she had learned "to be kind and loving to all things I encounter," said County Extension Agent Beverly Harder. Harder pointed out that Monica had completed numerous projects and competed at the county, district and state level in the 1987-88 year, and had done "quiet, behind-the-scenes work with younger 4-H'ers."

Urbanczyk "has matured in a way that makes feel good about his future," said County Extension Agent Davy Vestal. "His peers and younger kids look up to him, and the older folks look forward to what he will become. He is an outstanding 4-H'er."

Urbanczyk and Grotegut will be honored at the District 4-H Banquet to be held later this year, where they will compete for the District Gold Star awards.

Dutton, Carlson and Donna Grotegut were presented their awards for their "willingness to succeed," according to the eligibility requirements for the award.

Hughes, Keating and the EXCEL Co. were honored for their work with 4-H concessions at the county stock show. EXCEL donates the beef; Keating, at K&A Meat Market, cuts it for cooking; and Hughes, at Bob's Hickory Pit and The Country Store, cooks it.

"These three have been especially supportive of our 4-H activities," said Loretta Urbanczyk, a 4-H Parent Leader who, with Susan Hicks, presented the awards.

City sidesteps zoning request

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

A disagreement between a property developer and residents in the Bluebonnet Subdivision had the Hereford City Commission sidestepping a rezoning request Monday night until the discord was resolved.

Rick Brown, a property developer in Hereford, requested that the area east of the Bluebonnet Elementary School be rezoned from a single family district to a multi-family district in order to build a "retirement village" similar to La Plata Manor at 425 Ranger Ave. which Brown helped to build.

But 31 Bluebonnet residents issued a petition to the commission Monday requesting that Brown file a deed restriction saying the property won't be used for anything but a retirement village for 50 years, fearing that the apartments will be used for low-income housing which might reduce their property value.

Brown, who was not at the meeting, submitted a letter to the commission last Thursday stating that even though he had agreed to the 50-year restriction earlier, the restriction now seemed unwise.

"There may come a time in 40 years that the apartments might better be converted to townhomes or condominiums for the elderly rather than apartments... To burden future generations with restrictions that cannot be changed for 50 years seems unwise to me," said Brown in the letter.

"We just don't want another Blue Water Garden Apartments out there or anything like it," said one of the petitioners, J.W. McMorries, in reference to the apartments at 612 Irving St. which are funded by Housing and Urban Development and which has a high crime rate. "If that is his intent, we're gonna have to take another look at this thing."

Brown obtained funding through the Farmers Home Administration

(FmHA) which stipulates that the property remain a senior housing project for a minimum of 20 years.

Brown also said in his letter that he has filed a letter with the city clerk's office stating that if the property were not used for senior housing, he would request the zoning be reverted to single family.

"Our major concern here is that once the zoning is changed to a family, it can be used for anything. If Rick should have to sell the property and the deed restriction were in place, it can be anything," said McMorries.

The petition says that the petitioners and Brown have agreed that the city commission would take no action on rezoning until the year agreement and the deed restrictions were approved and filed.

Brown's letter stating he was against the 50-year restriction was received Monday.

Jackie Flood, Brown's secretary who represented him at the meeting, agreed with McMorries that the two parties needed to compromise on the 20- or 50-year restriction before the commission rezoned the area.

The commission also voted to pursue a $250,000 funding from Panhandle Regional Planning Commission to pave a series of dirt streets west of U.S. Highway 385 and south of Park Avenue.

City Manager Darwin McGill said the city had applied for such funding in 1984, 1985 and 1986 but was turned down.

The commission also: — Awarded a bid to Stagner-Orsborn Buick-Pontiac-GMC Inc. for a 1989 pickup, costing $11,422.46. This was the only bid; — Awarded a bid to Fuqua Enterprises in Cleburne for 15, 4-cubic yard trash containers and 10, 3-cubic yard trash containers costing $7,780. This also was the only bid; — Voted to condemn dangerous building in the La Villa Subdivision.

Candidates pledge to support issues

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer
Democrat Michael Dukakis promised a presidency that would enforce civil rights laws while Republican George Bush pledged support for development of a space station in his administration as the coming debate between the two candidates survived the withdrawal of its sponsor.

With the election five weeks away, the Democratic presidential nominee told black supporters on Chicago's South Side Monday night that the nation will be deciding between "two different futures, two different roads to travel."

And the choice of the GOP nominee will lead to an "America of privilege — an America where the very rich get even richer and the rest of us just get by. This is George Bush's America," Dukakis said.

Democrat Lloyd Bentsen, who did his cramming in Austin, Texas.

Dukakis was addressing a National Business Council meeting and a rally at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., before heading to Toledo, Ohio. At stake in Illinois and Ohio are a combined 45 electoral votes.

Bush was attending rallies in the California cities of Sacramento and Riverside before traveling to Albuquerque, N.M. California holds the biggest electoral prize with 47 votes.

The vice president, who earlier Monday welcomed the return of the space shuttle Discovery and its five-man crew, told a rally in Redding, Calif., that he is committed to the creation of an operational space station by 1996.

"This goal is achievable, sensible... and we will meet that goal," Bush said.

While the two White House contenders campaigned in critical states — Illinois and California — the vice presidential candidates devoted their time to preparing for Wednesday night's debate in Omaha, Neb.

Republican Dan Quayle, who has studied at an undisclosed location in Washington, D.C., is leaving for Omaha today, as is hoodwinking of the American public," she said.

The bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates, sponsors of the first presidential debate and the vice presidential encounter, quickly stepped in and agreed to take over sponsorship.

Janet Brown, executive director of the commission, said the group hopes to keep the debate in Los Angeles and was seeking help from local groups to finance preparations, which the League had estimated at $500,000.

Dukakis, in a rare appearance in the predominantly black Chicago neighborhood, paid tribute to late Mayor Harold Washington and the Democrat nominee's former rival for the nomination, Jesse Jackson.

Jackson is a "great son of Chicago" whose "still shines brightly over all of America," Dukakis told the audience.

The candidate pledged that his administration would enforce civil rights laws, provide same-day voter registration and select judges committed to equality.

"We're going to aim high and enforce the civil rights laws of this country, not veto them; we're going to have a Justice Department that will inspire us, not embarrass us; and we're going to have an attorney general who understands what the word justice means," Dukakis said.

Earlier in the day, the Massachusetts governor stopped in Dearborn Heights, Mich., where he spoke to students about drug use and helped destroy about $100,000 worth of marijuana, cocaine and heroin by throwing it into a county incinerator.

Discovery astronauts come home to hero's welcome

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Discovery's astronauts, back from a nearly flawless flight that returned Americans to space for the first time since the Challenger disaster, came home to a hero's welcome and urged space center workers to "make this adventure happen again."

NASA officials hailed the four-day mission as a "stunning success" that verified a massive effort by the space agency to redesign and correct the flaws that destroyed the Challenger and killed seven astronauts 32 months ago.

Discovery commander Frederick Hauck, speaking Monday night to a crowd of nearly 5,000 flag-waving space center workers who welcomed the crew to Houston, called the Challenger accident a "tremendous loss... that affected us very deeply."

"It also made us resolved to recover from that, and we have done that," Hauck said, adding a reference to the seven who died on Challenger: "We will never forget them, we will always remember the sacrifice that they made."

Hauck guided the 97-ton Discovery through cloudless skies to a pinpoint touchdown on the center line of the desert runway at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., at 9:37 a.m. PDT Monday.

In the most festive welcome home since early in the shuttle program, Johnson Space Center workers, their families and friends lined the Ellington Field runway Monday evening to cheer as the astronauts stepped from two slick blue and white Gulfstream jets.

Hauck, his crewmates, pilot Richard Covey, John M. Lounge, David C. Hilmers and George D. "Pinky" Nelson, and their wives walked down a red carpet between two rows of flag-waving drill team members while a high school band played the theme from "Star Wars."

"We just got back from the greatest adventure of our lives," Hilmers said. "Each one of us knows where our place in the future is, where Americans should be — it's in space. So let's go back to work tomorrow and make this adventure happen again, and again and again."

Discovery landed smoothly on a dry lakebed in the Mojave Desert, completing a 1.68-million-mile voyage that lasted four days, one hour and 57 seconds.

The landing was witnessed by more than 300,000 people. Many waved American flags and the Star-Spangled Banner was played over loudspeakers.

Hauck, waving a large American flag, led his crew mates through a hatch and down a ramp to the runway where they were greeted by Vice President George Bush and top NASA officials.

At welcoming ceremony, Bush said he was proud to "welcome the space shuttle Discovery back to earth, back to America, and back to the future."

He said the crew had shown that "the shuttle is a strong bird and it could and should fly again."

In a post-landing news conference,

NASA shuttle boss Richard Truly called the mission "an absolute stunning success."

He said the $100 million Tracking and Data Relay Satellite, the primary payload of the Discovery mission, has rocketed itself "to precisely where we want it."

Truly said there were only a few small dents on Discovery's heat tiles, and only about 10 small malfunctions to be analyzed.

"I don't know how you can get much better than that," he said.

Discovery is to be ferried back to Kennedy atop a 747 transport. Space transportation system manager Arnold Aldrich said the shuttle should leave Edwards on Saturday and arrive at Kennedy on Sunday after an overnight stop at a San Antonio Air Force base.

The first shuttle flight since the Jan. 28, 1986 Challenger explosion went as planned from beginning to end.

Discovery rocketed into orbit last Thursday and the astronauts launched the TDRS communications satellite five hours later.

The astronauts conducted 11 experiments on board Discovery, took photographs of weather patterns and features on Earth, and tested new escape system equipment.

And on Sunday, they remembered their fallen Challenger colleagues by taking turns reading an emotional message that was broadcast to the ground.

Kennedy vote crucial in lawsuit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Supreme Court case involving a Christmas nativity scene and a Jewish symbol will provide the first test of Justice Anthony M. Kennedy's views on the often emotional issue of separation of church and state.

Although the high court's newest member was a federal appeals court judge for 12 years, little is known about his approach to church-state controversies.

The Supreme Court, beginning its 1988-89 term Monday, announced it will conduct its latest study of the constitutionality of religious displays in a case from Pittsburgh.

The justices frequently have been sharply divided over church-state issues, and Kennedy's vote could be decisive.

On returning to the bench after a three-month summer recess, the court issued orders in about 1,000 cases — agreeing to grant full review in 20 of them. That is about one-eighth of the cases that will yield full-scale decisions before the court completes this term's work in July.

In its latest examination of how imposing the wall separating church and state must be, the justices will decide whether displays of a Christmas nativity scene and a menorah, symbolizing the Jewish holiday of Chanukah, should be allowed at two government buildings in Pittsburgh.

The dispute could provide important clues on whether the court is prepared to rearrange the constitutional tests applied in certain freedom-of-religion cases.

The court also agreed to consider, for the second time in two years, the authority of states to deny unemployment benefits to people who refuse to work on their Sabbath.

Illinois officials refused to pay benefits to a man whose refusal to work was not based on the doctrine of any established religious body but on his personal Christian belief.

In the religious display case, a federal appeals court ruled that housing a creche and menorah at the public buildings in Pittsburgh violated the constitution.

Since 1961, a creche depicting the birth of Jesus Christ has been displayed inside the main entrance to the Allegheny County Courthouse for about six weeks during the Christmas season.

Lifestyles

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son is 20 years old, a college student who lives at home. He has been seeing a girl who will soon be 15. "Suzy" looks older but when she opens her mouth you can tell she is very young and not too smart.

Several evenings during the summer Suzy would come by and she and Lloyd would watch TV until 1:30 in the morning. When he took her home he rarely came back before 4:30 a.m. All this was with her mother's permission. I called up once at 5 o'clock in the morning to ask if Lloyd was there. She said, "Yes, he's here, but you don't have to worry. I trust them both."

I can't understand her attitude, Ann. If I had a daughter that age I would be worried to death to have her out so late. When I hinted that I thought she should impose some sort of curfew on her daughter, she said, "Nonsense! You have to let your children know you have faith in them."

What about this, Ann? Am I wrong? Please answer in your column. — Richmond, Va.

DEAR VA: My first question is, what's a 20-year-old college student doing with a 14-year-old girl? Doesn't he know that he could be arrested for contributing to the delinquency of a minor?

If the girl's mother thinks it's perfectly OK to let her adolescent daughter keep such hours it means the elevator isn't going all the way up to the top. You need to take control. Hand this column to Lloyd and tell him to wake up and smell the coffee. Obviously the attraction is physical. He could be heading for big trouble.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please tell me why so many people who have a serious hearing problem refuse to admit it? I have a dear friend and bridge partner who drives us all crazy because she can't hear the bidding.

Then there's my neighbor in the next apartment whom I dread running into because I must repeat everything four times and she still doesn't know what I'm talking about.

My mother-in-law is the one who sends me around the bend. It is impossible to carry on a conversation with her because she just plain can't hear. When I suggested that perhaps she ought to consider a hearing aid she blew up like a volcano. I didn't mean it as an insult, Ann, I wanted to be helpful.

To be hearing-impaired is not a disgrace. Why are women particularly sensitive about this? Please reply in the paper. I'm sure there are many readers who would like to be enlightened.—La Porte, Ind.

DEAR LA PORTE: Hearing problems often suggest that the years are beginning to take their toll. Of course this is not necessarily so, but it is a common notion. People who for vanity's sake refuse to admit that they can't hear miss a great deal in life and make things difficult for those around them. We need to do a better job of educating in this area.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Help me win a bet. Which of the following has the legal right to break into a funeral procession: (1) Fire engine, (2) ambulance, (3) police car, (4) U.S. Mail Truck? I said the U.S. Mail truck and was told I was crazy. Am I??—M.E.R. in Wyocena, Wis.

DEAR WYOCENA: You win. A vehicle owned by the federal government has the right of way. Though this is technically correct it is of practically so. I'm sure no one would object if a fire truck or an ambulance cut through a funeral procession.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs and drug use, Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," will give you the answers. Quarterly meeting Thursday

The fourth quarterly meeting of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Hereford Community Center.

All members and prospective members are invited to attend the business session and program. Desserts will be served by members of the tour and public relations committee.

Three new board members and the new Women's Division president will be introduced and the guest speakers will include past presidents, Virginia Adams, Georgia Sparks, and Betty Gilbert, and this year's president, Sue Malamen.

Ladies Golf Tourney set

The Hereford Ladies Golf Association is having a tournament for its members Saturday, Oct. 8 at 9:30 a.m. at the local golf course.

The format will be individual gross score minus handicap. After the tournament, members will go to lunch.

All members are urged to participate. To enter, call the pro shop 364-2782, by Thursday.

Military Muster

Kile D. Brown, son of Davis L. and La Von K. Brown of Adrian, has been officially accepted into the U.S. Military Academy's Corps of Cadets as a new member of the class of 1992 during the annual acceptance parade.

The parade followed six weeks of rigorous basic cadet training at the West Point, N.Y., academy. Training in military customs and courtesies, drill and physical conditioning, tactical exercises and the firing of weapons introduced the basic cadets to military life with special emphasis on leadership, duty, honor and country.

The academy is a four-year educational institution graduating men and women to serve as career Army officers. In addition to military training, the academy offers athletics and an academic curriculum which includes basic and engineering sciences and social sciences and the humanities.

The new cadet is a graduate of Adrian High School.

Those who keep asking what inning it is aren't likely to be asked more than once to be your guests at a football game.

Feeling good means being 'health-wise'

Feeling good physically and emotionally is an important part of a productive and enjoyable life. But people do not always do what they should to achieve good overall health.

Unfortunately, it often takes an illness or other health problem to motivate a person to become "health-wise", according to the Texas Medical Association.

This term means learning how to prevent disease as well as to promote health. The key is maintaining a healthy lifestyle by focusing on areas such as exercise, stress, smoking, alcohol, nutrition, medication, and accident prevention.

"Once you identify the risks you are taking, you can work to reduce or eliminate them," says a TMA pamphlet titled "Feeling Good—Enjoying a Health-Wise Lifestyle." It offers these suggestions among others on reducing health risks:

Alcohol: Frequent excessive drinking can lead to alcoholism, heart disease, cirrhosis of the liver, and accidents. When drinking alcohol, sip it slowly, and eat something before you drink.

Eating: Being overweight can lead to such problems as heart attacks, high blood pressure, and diabetes. To help avoid overeating, eat slowly, and eat less at meals. Avoid crash diets, and cut back on junk foods.

Smoking: Don't.

Stress: Prolonged stress can lead to both mental and physical ills. Stress can come from job pressures, responsibilities at home, or troubles with friends and family. To relieve stress, find time to relax, whether it's reading a book, exercising, or doing nothing.

Medication: Avoid mixing drugs—prescription or over-the-counter—unless your doctor says it is safe. Never mix drugs with alcohol.

Geriatric workshop time changed

A series of workshops focusing on geriatric emergencies is scheduled Oct. 12 at King's Manor Methodist Home from 3-6 p.m. instead of 6-9 p.m. as reported in Sunday's Hereford Brand.

A press release from West Texas State University erroneously listed the time as 6-9 p.m. but the earlier time is correct.

The West Texas State University division of nursing continuing education program will present the program.

The workshops are open to RNs, LVNs, nursing students, allied health personnel, EMS personnel and other interested health care providers and community members.

Registration fee is $20 for health care workers and $10 for students at the door. Preregistration fees are $16 and $8, respectively.

For more information, call the continuing education office, division of nursing at (806)656-2648.

Volleyball team drops Pampa, travels to Borger

The Hereford High School varsity volleyball team began a tough three-game road swing on Saturday with a 15-6, 15-11 win at Pampa.

The Hereford JV came back to win its match, 2-15, 15-6, 15-13. "The varsity played pretty sharp in the first game, but in the second game our concentration wavered a bit," said coach Brenda Reeh. "We weren't as intense as we should have been.

"Cande Robbins played well at the net with seven kills, and our setters, Jill West and Nikki Self, had good service games. They also placed their sets well, according to the opposing blockers.

"Pampa was a big game for us. We really needed to beat them on the road."

Tonight, Hereford will travel to Borger. The JV match begins at 6:30 p.m., with the varsity match scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Boys seventh in C-C meet

The Hereford varsity boys placed seventh overall with an improved performance on Saturday at the Amarillo Invitational Cross-Country Meet.

The Hereford varsity girls were without three of their members (two had suffered injuries during the week, including Yvonne Padilla, who fell during a pre-game cheerleader stunt Friday night) and could not field a complete team.

Benny Carrasco led Hereford's boys with a seventh-place finish.

"I was really pleased with the boys team," said coach Martha Emerson. "Instead of just running, we competed. We beat Pampa this time, which put us second from our district. That's what we're working on."

"The girls all competed well. We must get a full team back together for the Lubbock meet on Saturday."

Power pitching match-up begins playoffs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Orel Hershiser, who hasn't allowed a run since August, may need another shutout if he is to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to victory over the New York Mets tonight in Game 1 of the National League playoffs.

The reason is his mound opponent, New York's Dwight Gooden, who has a 4-0 lifetime record at Dodger Stadium. That statistic, coupled with the Mets' 10-1 record this season against the Dodgers, means Hershiser probably will have to pitch extremely well if Los Angeles is to take the lead in the best-of-seven series.

"I'll be carrying the burden of 24 players and the Dodgers' fans," Hershiser said Monday after a brief workout. "My intensity won't change. I've got to execute the pitches and hope for some good breaks."

Hershiser finished the regular season with 59 consecutive scoreless innings to break former Dodger Don Drysdale's 20-year-old mark of 58.

It's a record right up there with Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak and Lou Gehrig's 2,130 consecutive games.

"The streak doesn't have any bearing now, it doesn't even carry into the playoffs," Hershiser said.

"Today is just another game. I want to reduce it to its simplest form. I'll look at (catcher Mike) Scioscia's fingers and try and execute the pitches."

Hershiser finished the season 23-8 with a 2.26 earned-run average. He had 178 strikeouts in 267 innings and pitched eight shutouts.

"He's had one of the finest years ever," Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said. "I never thought anyone could beat Don Drysdale's record. Orel has been something special and he has kept us out of tailspins all season. If he is not the Cy Young Award winner in the National League, I will see to it personally that the guys who are voting will be under investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

With John Tudor ailing with muscle spasms in his left hip, Lasorda has hinted he may start Hershiser three times if the series goes seven games.

"I'll take the ball every game," Hershiser said. "I pitched on three days' rest at times this season and in some instances prefer it. When I've got my rhythm it is better for me to have the ball as often as possible."

Gooden, whose only career loss to the Dodgers was in New York, feels very comfortable in Dodger Stadium.

"The mound is great," he said. "It's a nice and high mound, and that helps you get over the top with your breaking ball. It seems like you're right on top of the hitter here."

While the Dodgers worry about hitting Gooden, he's not worrying about facing Hershiser.

"I can't dwell on what Hershiser has done," Gooden said. "I'll have to let my hitters take care of him. Hershiser's not going to be the one that beats me. I've got to worry about the Dodgers' hitters."

Hershiser's last defeat was a 2-1 setback against the Mets at Dodger Stadium on Aug. 24.

He led 1-0 until the Mets scored twice in the eighth.

"Hershiser is an awfully tough pitcher to try and manufacture runs against," Mets manager Davey Johnson said. "I don't plan on doing a lot of strange things in one game just to beat one pitcher."

The Mets faced a similar problem in the 1986 playoffs against Houston when Mike Scott was just about untouchable.

Scott beat the Mets and Gooden 1-0 with a five-hitter in Game 1 and beat them 3-1 with a three-hitter in Game 4. The Dodgers announced Monday that Tudor will pitch Game 3 Friday at Shea Stadium against Ron Darling.

Wednesday's matchup will see David Cone, 20-3, oppose rookie Tim Lincecum, 12-6.

It's A's power vs. Fenway Park

BOSTON (AP) — The big numbers favor Oakland. The Athletics won more games, beat Boston more often and hit a lot more home runs.

But the Red Sox are the slight favorites. The main reason? The best-of-7 American League playoffs start at Fenway Park.

"If we have any advantage, it's having those first two games in Boston," Manager Joe Morgan said.

For the Red Sox, anything would be better than opening the series in Oakland. Boston lost all six games at the Oakland Coliseum this year and has won only once in the last 15 games there.

"People are making a great deal out of our not being able to win a game in Oakland this year, but I'll repeat what I said out there on our last trip," Morgan said. "I said 'when' — that's 'when,' not 'if' — we return, the odds will be in our favor because we're better than one out of 14."

Boston went 53-28 at home, including an AL record 24-game winning streak, and 36-45 on the road. Oakland was 55-27 at home.

But cozy Fenway Park must seem like a nice home to Oakland. The Athletics hit 156 homers, second to Toronto in the AL.

Jose Canseco hit 42 homers and Mark McGwire hit 32. The Red Sox, who hit 124, were led by Mike Greenwell with 22 and Dwight Evans with 21. At 36, Evans is the only major league player to hit 20 homers in each of the last eight seasons.

To compensate for the power gap, Boston hits singles and doubles. The Red Sox batted .283 to lead the league, 20 points higher than Oakland. Wade Boggs hit .366 for his fourth consecutive batting championship and Greenwell hit .325.

But despite the offensive differences, the result was nearly the same. Boston scored 813 runs and Oakland 800.

McWilliams looking forward to OU

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Longhorns seem to be better equipped to stop the run this season, and they should get plenty of opportunity to do so Saturday when they face Oklahoma in their annual football battle at Dallas.

Texas leads the nation in defense against the rush, allowing only 37.3 yards a game. But when it comes to executing the running game, probably no one does it better than Oklahoma.

"It'll be a nice test for our defensive line to see if they really are that good," McWilliams said Monday at his weekly news conference. "We really haven't had an option team like we're fixing to see, but I think we should hold up all right."

"They (the Sooners) make you make mistakes," he said. "You may stop them once, but they're going to come right back and do the same thing again. ... They're going to make you run it correctly."

Both teams enter the game with 3-1 records for the first time in 20 years. The Sooners dumped Iowa State 35-7 on Saturday, with their only setback a 23-7 loss to No. 3-ranked Southern California.

Oklahoma, which defeated Texas 44-9 last year, enters the game with six runners with at least 100 yards rushing. Of their 1,017 total yardage, only 405 of it is through the air.

McWilliams, however, believes even the Sooners will put the ball up more against Texas' young defensive backfield, which has yielded 306 yards a game passing.

"When they are marching the ball downfield, that's when they are most dangerous with the pass," McWilliams said. "When they continue to get first down after first down, that's when they sting you with a play-action pass."

"A lot of people are saying that Oklahoma is down this year," McWilliams said.

Andersen loses control; Cowboys lose

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Usually, Morten Andersen trots onto the field, does his thing, and heads back to the sidelines. This time, after he had beaten the Dallas Cowboys with a last-second field goal, Andersen lost control.

"Elation. Pure joy," Andersen said after his 49-yard kick gave the New Orleans Saints a 20-17 victory over the Dallas Cowboys as time expired Monday night.

His actions spoke clearly for him. He ran. He jumped. He punched his fists into the air. He boogied briefly on the sidelines with Saints owner Tom Benson.

The Saints are 4-1 and tied with the Rams and the 49ers for the lead in the NFC West. The Cowboys fell to 2-3.

After trailing 14-0 in the second quarter, Dallas came back to tie at 17 with 29 seconds left in the game on a 39-yard field goal by Roger Ruzek.

Mel Gray returned the ensuing kickoff 39 yards to the Saints' 42-yard line, and two Bobby Hebert passes fell incomplete, leaving just seven seconds left in the game.

"I didn't believe we'd get it down there close enough. I was thinking overtime," Andersen said.

On third down, Hebert told fleet wide receiver Brett Perriman to adjust a route they had run on second down. Perriman gathered in the pass at the Dallas 32 and went out of bounds with two seconds left.

Andersen said he was totally confident going onto the field and knew the kick was good as soon as he hit it. "You can usually tell," he said. "I felt like it was going to be long enough."

"I don't know how I felt. I blanked out for about three minutes. 'I didn't know what to do. I just started jumping and running. High fives. Low fives. Head butts. I was just working off all that energy I had left.'"

Andersen, a native of Denmark, is the most accurate kicker in NFL history, having made 80 percent of his field goal attempts over a career now in its seventh season.

"That was probably my biggest one," he said.

The Saints opened a 14-0 lead on two touchdown passes by Hebert, a 7-yarder to Lonzell Hill in the first quarter and a 17-yarder to Perriman in the second quarter.

The Cowboys came back to tie it at 14 on touchdown passes from Steve Pelluer to Kelvin Martin. Pelluer hit Martin for a 13-yard score in the second quarter and a 14-yarder in the third.

Andersen put the Saints back on top briefly with a 27-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Ruzek, who earlier hit the upright in missing from 39 yards, kicked one true from the same distance with 29 seconds left, tying the game at 17 and setting the stage for Andersen.

"I was pleased with the way we came back," said Pelluer, who passed for 271 yards and ran for 54.

Herschel Walker had 124 yards rushing on 26 carries and caught four passes for 23 yards.

Martin, who had eight catches for 95 yards, including the two touchdowns, said the Cowboys will profit from the loss.

"We're young, and we'll get better. We lost tonight, but we can go out and win some," he said.

Hebert's passing was almost all of the Saints' offense. He threw for 273 yards, and the running game picked up only 65.

"Thank God, we were able to win in spite of that," said Saints coach Jim Mora. "They were playing a lot of guys close to the line of scrimmage, and we were having some trouble running the ball."

Andersen said the offense was just good enough to win, particularly Hebert's final completion.

"It was beautiful," he said. "He said he would have to wait until later to evaluate his game-winning kick."

"I'll have to see the replay on that one," he said. "It looked awfully pretty from my point of view."

Financial management skills help couples

When every penny counts, as it does for an increasing number of young families, knowing something about financial management becomes very important.

Two recently released studies based on U.S. Census Bureau data have underscored the fact that America's young families are struggling financially.

According to a report by the Children's Defense Fund, in terms of constant dollars, the income of families with children which are headed by an adult under age 30 fell by about one-fourth between 1973 and 1986.

Another study from the Economic Policy Group indicated the incomes of young families are growing much more slowly than their parents' incomes did when they were young. For example, the average income of a family headed by someone between 25 and 34 is nine percent lower than a similar family in 1973.

Nancy Granovsky, a family economics specialist who has been designing educational programs for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service since 1978, said these figures don't surprise her.

"Most of the skills we taught in the 70's for stretching family budgets to cope with inflation or survive unemployment still apply to young families, even when both spouses work," she said.

"Today's young families have to spend a higher percentage of their income for housing, medical care and child care than did their parents, which means they have to find ways to economize in other areas."

Granovsky, who is currently directing a project to teach financial management to young couples in 57 Texas counties as part of a statewide Extension study, said certain skills have become a necessity for couples who want to get ahead.

"Developing a spending plan and knowing how to use credit is important both for managing the day-to-day family budget and staying out of trouble with a debt overload," she said.

Although 20 percent of take-home pay, not counting house payments, is considered a safe debt load, Granovsky said many young couples can easily exceed this limit by overusing credit cards.

"It's also important to have a plan or savings to meet emergencies and future goals, such as a downpayment on a house," the home economist said. "Young couples may feel like they don't make enough money to save, when in fact, they can't afford to not save. When every penny of take-home pay is spent and there are no savings, the family is very vulnerable in case of even a minor emergency, like an unexpected car repair or medical bill."

The specialist said young couples may also realize cost savings by informing themselves and making better consumer decisions about credit card finance charges, auto loans and insurance or food buying.

The Extension Service offers workshops, publications and study-at-home lessons on basic family financial management. Check with your county Extension office for information on local offerings.

Hints from Heloise

TEEN-AGE DRIVER

Dear Heloise: My daughter recently got her driver's license and what a change our family has gone through!

During the day she can drive practically anywhere she chooses; however, at night I didn't particularly relish the thought of her driving around. She and her friends enjoy going to the movie at the local mall, but I don't want her driving anywhere else.

So, before she goes to the mall I have her write down the mileage on the car. It is seven miles to the mall. When she returns home she is allowed 14 miles on the car, and if there are any more miles, she has to pay 10 cents per mile after that.

This really works. She would rather have the money to spend on the movies than on mileage. — A Concerned Parent, Greenboro, N.C.

BAKING SODA

Dear Heloise: What can I put into my chest-type cooler to keep it fresh smelling? Every time we get back from camping and I store it, when I get it out again it smells musty. — Jane Cee, Dover, Del.

Before putting the cooler away, always wash it well and then sprinkle baking soda inside.

The next time that you need it, it won't have a musty odor. When ready for use, just rinse out. This is just one of the uses for this wonderful product. For more, send $1 and a stamped, self-addressed, legal-sized envelope to Heloise/Baking Soda, P.O. Box 19765, Irvine, Calif. 92713

Senator Bill Sarpalius reports

AUSTIN — To the list of topics certain to be debated at length during the next legislative session, add judicial selection.

At issue is the way we select our judges in Texas. Currently, state judges at all levels are elected directly by the people. They campaign like any other candidate for political office might, generally running either as Democrats or Republicans. They can accept unlimited contributions from virtually any citizen, including attorneys who practice before their courts. Some question whether this is the best way to select judges. They are concerned that having jurists seek office just like any other politician creates an impression that judges are beholden to individuals rather than the law. They say we must change the way we select our judges.

Suggestions for reform have ranged from limiting contributions and expenditures in judicial races to having candidates run on a non-partisan ballot to having judges appointed by the governor and then retained or dismissed by the people in subsequent elections.

We understand this is not necessarily a new topic, and that these suggestions have been offered before. A variety of bills aimed at changing the way Texans select their judges have been introduced during each of the last two sessions. There is a difference, though, between what happened in 1985 and 1987 and what appears more and more likely to happen in 1989.

Debate during the last two sessions largely was kept within the walls of the Capitol. Hearings were conducted on the various bills, and they all were dutifully shuffled off to subcommittees from which they never were heard again. There was some press coverage, but the issue never captured the imagination of the general public.

But, since the end of the last session, a number of things have happened to thrust the judicial selection question into the public eye.

First, "60 Minutes," the television newsmagazine, did a scathing story on the Texas Supreme Court. The story hinted strongly that the Supreme Court's influence was for sale, and that corruption was one reason both the high court and lower courts agreed to impose the largest fine in corporate history on Texaco.

Second, prominent politicians began to address the issue. Gov. Bill Clements, for instance, said businesses outside the state perceive Texas civil courts as being unduly influenced by attorneys who practice before the court. He said that perception is stifling economic development in the state because businesses feel they won't get a fair shake here. Other state officials, thought, say such concerns are nonsense and that the people have a right to continue electing judges directly.

Third, citizens' groups on both sides of the issue have begun crusades to get popular support for their particular point of view. Public awareness of the issue undoubtedly is on the rise, and that scrutiny will only increase pressure for the Legislature to deal with this matter in some fashion.

Clearly, this is an issue that will be impossible to ignore next year. Just as clearly, it will be one of the most difficult and divisive issue lawmakers wrestle with during the session.

Both sides offer convincing arguments. Those that want to keep the system exactly the way it is point out that electing judges is most democratic way to conduct business. Those who want to curb or even eliminate the elections process say drastic reform is necessary to reclaim the integrity of the courts. And, the people who want finance reform say the democratic process can be maintained while at the same time improving the courts' reputations.

No doubt there will be even more discussion of the issue between now and January, and perhaps some new proposals will surface. But, one thing already is clear at this point. Judicial selection next year will be an issue with a much higher profile than ever before.

just a reminder . . . The deadline for registering to vote is Oct. 9. If you are not registered to vote or you have not received your voter registration card, be sure to contact your local county clerk and make sure you are registered. Democracy works best when everyone participates.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Developer Donald Trump, already a millionaire many times over, will save almost $2 million by avoiding New Jersey's 6 percent sales tax on his $29 million yacht, the Trump Princess.

The state Division of Taxation reviewed the lease arrangement between Trump's Aliban Inc. corporation, which owns the Princess, and Trump's Castle Associates, which leases it at $400,000 monthly.

The division recently concluded that only the monthly lease payments are subject to the sales tax, or about $24,000 a month. The sales tax on the yacht would have amounted to $1.74 million.

The 282-foot yacht — complete with a discotheque, movie theater and hand-carved onyx bathrooms — is used for promotional and marketing purposes and to entertain high rollers.

Trump bought the ship from the sultan of Brunei. The sale was closed in London aboard the vessel.

Magic with mushrooms creates elegant meal

By News USA - Let's face it. Cooking every day can be boring. You'd like to prepare something new and original, but it just seems like too much work.

If you don't want the same old meal and aren't up to experimenting with a recipe you've never tried, you may want to use a secret suggested by experts on creativity.

The secret to developing your creative skills - that wonderful power of imagination you had as a child - is to take something that you know is successful and change it ever so slightly. Instead of inventing a new dish from scratch, take your favorite food and add a new ingredient.

Manna From Heaven
The mushroom has been used by cooks for at least 3,000 years - in fact, some people believe one of its relatives may have been the manna from heaven that fed the Israelites in their journey through the wilderness.

Jack Czarnecki, whose family restaurant in Reading, Pennsylvania, has specialized in mushroom cookery for more than 70 years, says about the only thing mushrooms won't liven up is desserts.

Though Joe's Restaurant is known for innovative dishes that use a variety of wild mushrooms, Jack notes that the mushrooms we find in our supermarket fit our views of how mushrooms should look and taste. They are relatively firm and have a distinctive flavor that gourmets refer to as creamy and earthy.

These now common mushrooms grew wild, too, until they were first cultivated in caves outside Paris nearly 300 years ago.

The secrets of the French growers were so closely guarded that it was nearly a century before they were rediscovered in Sweden and England, and another century before Americans began serious work in this field.

Today the U.S. is a leading supplier of cultivated mushrooms, and Americans are eating nearly four times as many as they did just a decade ago - for good reasons.

Mushrooms are nearly calorie-free. The common supermarket mushroom contains potassium and other minerals as well as niacin, riboflavin, and thiamin, but a cup has only about 20 calories. You can eat both the stems and caps, with no waste.

You can keep mushrooms for two to five days in the refrigerator if you leave them in their original packaging. Once the dark gills under the cap begin to show, you should use the mushrooms immediately.

When you are ready to serve them, rinse them very quickly under cool water or wipe them with a damp cloth. Then slice about an eighth of an inch off the bottom of the stem. The rest is up to you.

Some Hints

With a tasty dip, raw mushrooms give you an appetizer that requires nearly no preparation. You can take an extra minute and slice them before adding them to a salad, where they make lettuce and tomato seem a bit more sophisticated.

Mushrooms can be added to other fresh vegetables and quickly stir-fried as either a side dish or a main course. They are excellent for stuffing and for adding to soups. When cooked and added to a meat dish, they are a special treat.

It takes just two minutes to cook two cups of mushrooms in a bit of oil or clarified butter over high heat.

This method best preserves the texture and the moistness of the mushroom. The more traditional method common in Europe - cooking in butter over low heat for ten to fifteen minutes - provides a little better flavor and a softer mushroom.

Butter, garlic, and onions are among the best ingredients to complement the flavor of mushrooms.

Now, let your imagination mushroom!

Books can harm posture

By News USA - When you watch your child leaving for school, full of energy and eager to learn, posture experts see something very different. Strolling peacefully, books under one arm or slung over a shoulder in a book bag, your child is off balance, straining against the weight.

No matter how often we tell our children to sit upright or stand straight, as long as they are lugging heavy books from place to place, chances are that their bodies are being slowly twisted out of shape. To the specialist, such practices are likely to lead to future problems with the spine and a host of related physical ailments.

Four Steps

Since carrying books under or over one arm is a habit that will be practiced for many years, doctors of chiropractic, who specialize in body posture and movement, suggest you act now to reduce the danger to your children. Four simple steps can prevent a great deal of discomfort in the years to come.

1. Carry only those books needed for scheduled classes each day.
2. Distribute the weight on both arms, frequently shifting books from arm to arm.
3. Stand erect and walk briskly, keeping the stomach in.
4. Whenever possible, use a backpack.

Aches and Pains

Tell the average child that he or she is carrying too much and you may get an argument. If, on the other hand, you approach the subject as part of teaching how one can lift and carry more weight for longer distances without getting tired or sore, you may find a willing listener.

If your child is already complaining of aches in the arms, legs, or back, the cause may be a spinal or pelvic problem.

The American Kitchen

Perk up meals with traditional fall flavors

Ⓢ Eating for fitness and good health while maintaining variety in your diet can be a challenge. Because chicken is adaptable to many recipes, easy to cook and nutritious, it has become a family favorite.

One way to enhance the naturally delicious flavor of chicken without adding to its low calorie, sodium and cholesterol content is to prepare it with seasonal fruits and spices.

Fall is the perfect time of year to try the following Baked Chicken and Apples recipe. The apples, whether you've picked them yourself or purchased them at the grocery store, add a savory touch of natural sweetness to the chicken and accompanying spices.

BAKED CHICKEN AND APPLES

8 broiler-fryer chicken parts with skin removed

1/4 tsp. pepper

1/4 tsp. ginger

1/4 tsp. curry powder

1/4 tsp. cinnamon

Vegetable cooking spray

1/4 cup water

3 apples, cored and sliced

In small bowl, mix together pepper, ginger, curry and cinnamon; set aside one-fourth of this mixture (1/4 tsp.). Sprinkle chicken with remaining spice mixture.

Spray non-stick frypan with vegetable cooking spray; heat over medium temperature. Add chicken and cook, turning every 15 minutes or until brown on all sides.

Add water to remaining 1/4 tsp. of spice mixture. In two-quart baking dish, arrange slices of two of the apples; top with browned chicken. Place remaining apple slices on top. Pour liquid over chicken and apples. Cover and bake at 350°F for about 45 minutes or until done.

Serves four.

Abundant Life

STRENGTH IN PURITY

By Bob Wear

There is much justified concern about the downgrading and degrading of life, and the impurity that is causing it. Pornography seems widespread, and expressed in so many different ways that it is a national problem and a national disgrace. It is undermining the national strength and morale. Obscene and licentious forces are finding more and more avenues by which to corrupt the thoughts and speech and the lives of people. This may be the worst kind of pollution.

Impurity, immorality and such like are destructive and weakening for the individual, the family, the community and the nation. Such influences have, in other cultures and in other times, been most destructive. It is sad to see a once great nation destroying itself, or permitting itself to be destroyed. "Moral sense is more important than intelligence. When it disappears from a nation, the whole social structure begins to crumble away." A. Carret.

The sophisticated minimize the importance of being pure and wholesome in mind and life. They look upon the advocates of purity and morality with condescending contempt. They seem to think that efforts to be pure and moral will restrict and restrain to the extent of making life narrow, colorless, and generally uninteresting. Of course, they are wrong in their premise, and this makes them wrong in their conclusion.

Historically, it is a fact that strong lives, strong families-strong homes, strong social orders and strong nations require the framework of purity and the foundation of morality. If we refuse to give heed to the warnings of history, with regard to these considerations, we are running the risk of losing the very things we would like to save.

Much is being said about the need for pure air, pure water, pure food, pure environment, etc., and these are very important to all of us. With all of this concern, let us remember that our basic strength and well-being come from purity of mind and life.

Names in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Two-time double gold medal winner Greg Louganis returned home from the Seoul Olympics with an eye on Hollywood but plans to continue competitive diving - for now.

"I want to pursue my acting," the 28-year-old champion said on his arrival Wednesday at Los Angeles International Airport, adding that he has been working for 10 years to dip into television and film.

"I'm not looking for any starring roles, I want to take my career seriously. I started out as a dancer," Louganis told a news conference. "Musical theater would be fun. I would even enjoy getting lost in the chorus for a while."

Louganis, who lives in Malibu, duplicated his 1984 diving performance at the Los Angeles Games by winning two gold medals in South Korea this week.

He may be making his last competitive dives in April in the indoor national championships at Mission Bay Club in Boca Raton, Fla., his home pool.

Three titles are at stake, and Louganis is one win short of equaling Tracy Caulkins' record 48 U.S. aquatic titles. "I'm so close to Tracy Caulkin's national record, I just want to break it," he said.

Asked if he would compete in the 1992 Games, Louganis said, "It's not out of the question. Right now, though, I feel it's time to move on."

DuRoss Ford, the late auto magnate's son, Edsel Ford II, other family members, and trustee William Donaldson.

A last-minute settlement in the feud over the $350 million trust left by Henry Ford II broke down in court Monday.

Mrs. Ford had complained that Donaldson, an ally of Edsel Ford, was demanding a $1 million-a-year salary to administer the trust, and that he had threatened to cut her income to the minimum level of $1.5 million.

Fourteen attorneys for both sides hammered out a compromise early Monday. But a question over whether a legal guardian should be appointed for Ford's minor grandchildren created a furor, and the whole settlement collapsed.

Ford, who died last year, took control of Ford Motor Co. in 1945 from his grandfather, auto pioneer Henry Ford.

He named Mrs. Ford as sole beneficiary of his trust, but stipulated that upon her death his six grandchildren would become the beneficiaries.

He named three people to manage the trust - Mrs. Ford, Edsel Ford, and family friend Martin Citrin. In April, Citrin killed himself. Ford's choice for an alternate trustee was Donaldson.
