School board tables abatement proposal

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford school board tabled a tax abatement proposal for the new location of Whiteface Ford, with questions about whether the board could legally offer the abatement.

The board unanimously voted to table the recommendation from the Hereford Area Tax Abatement Board to offer 100 percent abatement on property taxes for the dealership's new location at the corner of 15th and North U.S. Highway 385 because work was already underway at the new location before Whiteface officials made their pitch to the abatement board last month.

"I would like to find out two things," said school board member Dennis Newton. "One, I would like to find out what the property value is where (Whiteface) is at now (Whiteface leases its location at Lee Street and U.S. Highway 60), and what its value would be after they move; and two, I want to know if their plans for relocation were in progress before they came to the Tax Abatement Board."

Section 3 (e) of the "Model Guidelines and Criteria" of the abatement board, which were approved by the school district, Hereford city commission and the Deaf Smith County commissioners' court, says:

"The Hereford Area Tax Abatement Board will not grant tax abatement if it finds that the abatement was filed after the commencement of construction, alteration, or installation of improvements related to a proposed modernization, expansion, or new facility."

"It bothers me that they intended to move, had their plans drawn up and bought the land and then were offered abatement," Newton said.

"That had to be done before the plans were made and construction started."

School board member Raymond Schiabs, who also serves on HATAB, explained that a proposed deal between Whiteface and Budget Rent-A-Car would add 160 cars to the local tax rolls and would offset the amount of the abatement, but Schiabs made the motion to table the proposal "until we see that contract."

Jimmy Christie of Sumnerfield told the board that he was concerned "about abatement when there are no new jobs, and I question your right to offer abatement when everyone else is taxed at the regular rate," Christie said. "I think there is a question of legalities if this abatement is given."

The board also approved a health insurance plan underwritten by MD Physicians and State Mutual through the same Amarillo insurance company that the school has worked with in the past. The new plan will result in a 10 percent general increase for employee premiums, lower than earlier administration projections. Superintendent Charles Greenawalt said some employees may see no increase in their premiums, depending on the plan they accept.

The board also formally agreed to make a final payment of $27,125 to High Plains Construction Company of Amarillo for work at Hereford High School and Hereford Junior High while keeping $27,125 as liquidated damages because the construction was completed several months behind schedule.

The board had earlier paid most of the money owed to High Plains but had withheld $54,250. The board's Long Range Planning Committee met with High Plains officials and negotiated the final settlement which was approved by the full board on Monday.

The board also heard a presentation about the district dyslexia program from Marlene Watson and Delores McCuisitan.

Watson explained that dyslexia "has no more relation with intelligence than does color blindness." She said the program uses the three major learning utilities (visual, kinesthetic and auditory) and utilizes the strongest of the three while working on the other two to make them stronger.

Watson, who works with 17 boys and three girls in grades two through seven in the Hereford schools, showed some of the tools she uses, including an alphabet strip the students touch and read and a writing frame that helps students form letters.

McCuisitan, who works with four children, said the program also uses the history of language dating back to cave men; three-dimensional letters; alphabetizing and dictionary skills; spelling and syllable concepts and rules; and verbal expression.

"We also talk about dyslexia, what problems the children have, and how to cope with the problems," McCuisitan said.

Assistant superintendent Marc Williamson said the Hereford program "is the Cadillac in this area because the board made an early commitment."

"The program is working, it's successful, and it's doing what we want it to do," Williamson said. "We are extremely pleased with the results we are getting."

The board also had the first reading of the revised Special Education Policy Handbook and began review of the Annual Performance Report.

Hance warns of crisis

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Republican incumbent Texas Railroad Commission candidate Kent Hance made a last-day campaign swing through his old home area Monday, and told a small group of local supporters that another energy crisis could be in the making.

Hance, who was appointed to the railroad commission in 1987 and is being challenged by Democratic candidate Clint Hackney for election to the unexpired, two-year, term, said that a crisis could drive the price of gas and diesel to $2 a gallon.

"We can't afford that as consumers, and we especially can't afford that in agriculture," Hance said. "For 40 years, the Railroad Commission controlled the price of oil, and from 1933 through 1973, we got a good deal. Then OPEC took control and we've had boom and bust."

Hance has attended two OPEC meetings since gaining his seat on the Railroad Commission, and plans to attend a meeting Nov. 21 in Vienna.

"I'm not one to sit on my seat," Hance said. "The people who make decisions will be there, and I plan to be there with them. With the Iran-Iraq war at a close, if we see a peace treaty we could see oil at $17-$18 a barrel (See HANCE, Page 2)

Kent Hance, left, Republican incumbent candidate for the state Railroad Commission, and Teel Bivins, GOP hopeful for the 31st District seat in the state senate, made an eleventh-hour campaign stop in Hereford on Monday.

City turns down zoning requests

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

The Hereford City Commission voted Monday not to rezone the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Greenwood Street, partly because rezoning would allow gasoline pumps, causing traffic congestion and endangering children from a nearby school.

The commission received applause from the 23-member audience after it voted 4-2 (Commissioner Tom LeGate abstaining) to uphold the Planning and Zoning Commission's recommendation to deny a request to change the lot from restricted commercial retail to a commercial retail district.

An Allsup's Convenience Store was planned for the lot.

If the lot were rezoned, it could accommodate service stations, gas service stations, drive-ins, restaurants or cafes, and washeterias or laundries.

"I just don't feel this lot justifies putting a (convenience store) there," said Gary Phipps, vice president of Rix Funeral Directors which is west of the lot. "It's gonna be a problem for grade school kids who cross over Park every day (from West Central Elementary School), and a convenience store is a gathering place for kids to park, litter and make noise. I think a lot of hootin' and hollerin' could be bad for my business and for the neighbors."

Mayor Wes Fisher said the lot is already zoned as restricted commercial retail, meaning a convenience store could already locate at the corner without gas pumps.

Phipps said a new convenience store could steal business from a neighboring grocery store and other convenience stores.

"Handy Hut is 200 feet down the street and Jack and Jill (grocery store) is right across the street. I understand we need the tax base, but I don't think a convenience store is the answer because it brings in vandalism and the grocery stores will lose business," said Phipps.

Commissioners Paul Hamilton and Irene Cantu disagreed with Phipps and the audience because they said the convenience store could give Hereford an economic boost.

Early voting shatters records

Today is general election day, but a record number of Deaf Smith County voters had already cast their ballots in the absentee voting box.

A record 2,096 voters had voted absentee and that represents about 21 percent of the eligible voters in the county. County Clerk David Ruland said the previous record was about 867. The primary reason for the big turnout is that this is the first year voters were not required to sign affidavits listing a reason they would be unable to vote on election day.

Ruland attributed the record absentee voting to the relaxed rules on absentee voting, as well as a hotly-contested sheriff's race. Since all registered voters can now vote absentee, many of them probably saw a chance to escape long lines on election day.

Ruland speculated that the county could have a record percentage of registered voters going to the polls. "I think we could have close to 75 percent of our voters turn out for this election," said Ruland. The county has approximately 9,800 eligible voters. Ruland said he would have to check for sure, but he thought the record turnout was about 63 to 68 percent.

Blood center needs Hereford's 'usual' response

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Coffee Memorial Blood Center is looking forward to its monthly blood drive on Wednesday at the Hereford High School auditorium.

This month's drive is being sponsored by the Hereford High School Key Club, and Coffee officials are looking forward to an average Hereford turnout: huge.

The center, which supplies blood to most Panhandle hospitals, is experiencing a drastic shortage of O-positive and A-positive blood, the two most common types.

The shortage was felt in Hereford last week when Karen Drake, a Deaf Smith General Hospital employee, called the Amarillo center for some O-positive blood.

The hospital had just four units of O positive on hand and needed eight more units because of scheduled surgeries.

When Drake called to place her order, she got the bad news. There was no O-positive to be had, and Coffee officials didn't know when they might get some.

NOV 8 1988

BLOOD

City. It was only the third time in eight years that the center had to go outside the Panhandle to meet its blood supply needs.

"We don't ever cry 'Wolf,'" said Bobby Thomas, Coffee's executive director. "In other areas, people are constantly in the media hollering 'shortage, shortage.'"

"We've had some tough times before, but now we have exhausted our supply. We aren't trying to jump on someone's bandwagon, we're just being straightforward and honest."

Thomas said that some blood centers run advertisements showing a patient lying in a hospital bed, with a doctor in the background telling the family that if they had just had two or three pints of blood, the patient might have lived.

"Maybe we've been too passive, but I don't like to holler, 'Death,'" Thomas said.

Thomas fears that one reason for a general decline in blood donations has been the discontinuance of "blood insurance." In the past, an insurance company would underwrite a family's blood needs for a full year in return for a donation, but the company went bankrupt.

"That was a situation we had no control over," Thomas said. "We had people calling us saying the company was writing hot checks. We can't afford to be part of something like that."

The center then began donor clubs and gave away caps and T-shirts, but those items have been ruled off-limits because they might be enticements to people who have suffered hepatitis or other diseases that could potentially contaminate the blood supply.

"I don't know if those are valid reasons, but we have lost 3,700 pints in the last year."

Thomas said the blood center is using the money it used to use for "enticements" to perform more tests on the blood it accepts.

"We now run 10 different tests that would cost hundreds of dollars if they were done by a doctor," Thomas said. "We are able to do it cost-effectively because we're doing them 20,000 times a year."

"We took the $3 we were spending on give-aways and ran two more tests on the blood. It was a case where you could be more assured the blood was safe, or you could have a $3 T-shirt in the closet. I would think people would be happier with safe blood."

Drake said the blood center has helped DSGH "by performing tests besides supplying the blood we need. It's nice to have someone to turn to that can help us, and they're there at any time."

"We work 24 hours a day, seven days a week," Thomas said. "It would be nice if we could say at 5 o'clock that we're finished and can go home, but we can't do that."

"We need 75 pints of blood a day, minimum. If we stand up at a blood drive for five hours and we don't get the blood we need, our work doesn't end. We have to call in donors and do other things because we have to have that blood."

Thomas said he is still having to battle a myth that donors could contract AIDS by donating blood ("We deal with that constantly, and it's simply not true," Thomas said), and is still trying to convince persons over 65 that they can now donate blood.

"It used to be that a person over 65 had to have their doctor's permission," Thomas said. "Now, all they have to do is pass the same routine tests everyone else has to pass. You can be 165 years old and donate."

"It's important that we get senior citizens to donate. 80 percent of the blood components used from our center are used by persons over 65 or under 16, and many of those people had never qualified for blood insurance or any of our other programs in the past."

Give blood

Cody Wilson and Jim Eric Andrews, members of the Hereford High School Key Club, show one of the posters they are posting around Hereford to remind residents of Wednesday's blood drive at the HHS auditorium.

Thomas is excited about Wednesday's drive because of Hereford's history of meeting blood supply needs.

"Hereford should be proud of what it does," Thomas said. "We are in Hereford 12 times a year, including three times at the high school."

"We go to sponsoring organizations in other towns and show them what Hereford does and ask them why they can't get on board like they do in Hereford. Hereford has always given above its fair share, and we hope it will this time."

Drake said Hereford doctors are encouraging eligible patients they see to donate. "Our doctors are putting forth some effort because they know what kind of bind we're in," Drake said.

"I'm fired up about coming to Hereford," Thomas said. "October was our lowest production month ever, and December is always a poor month. We need a good month, and I hope Wednesday is one of our bread-and-butter days because the people of Hereford always respond to our needs."

barrel and that would get some drilling activities going. If there isn't a peace treaty, we could see oil at $10-$14 a barrel.

"That hurts our state revenue, because so much of our money for education and other state programs comes from our oil revenue."

Hance stressed the need for voters to go to the polls on his behalf.

"My opponent isn't advertising in West Texas, but he is running a lot of TV advertising in other parts of the state," Hance said. "He's hoping that everyone will go to sleep out here."

"The Dallas Morning News has me ahead by nine points, and I would hope I can take 52 percent to 55 percent of the vote. But we can't take anything for granted."

Hance has spent a lot of time campaigning over the state on his own behalf and for other Republican candidates, including Teel Bivins, who appeared here with Hance at the Hereford State Bank community room.

"I would urge you to vote for Teel," Hance said. "I've campaigned with and for him, and as a former state senator I feel Teel will do an excellent job for you in Austin. This is a big district, bigger than many Congressional districts, it's even bigger than some states. I think Teel will do a good job for the entire district."

"I really feel the Presidential campaign has been over for some time. After the (Democratic) convention, (Michael) Dukakis never really got started."

"Something that helped Dukakis is that Jesse Jackson made Dukakis look like a moderate before the convention, but that all changed after the convention," Hance also said. "Dukakis' 'lack of emotion' in his answer to the question asked by moderator Bernard Shaw at the second presidential debate 'hurt his chances with both men and women.'"

Bivins said Monday that he was confident about his chances in his race for state senator against Democratic candidate Mel Phillips.

"I feel confident about our campaign in the North Plains and the Amarillo area, and I think I will carry enough counties in the South Plains to win," Bivins said.

Pot-Shots BY ASHLEIGH BRILLIANT

THE MAJORITY IS NEVER RIGHT,

UNLESS IT INCLUDES ME.

"We've put in $150,000 in economic development and this store could bring in a $200,000 to $300,000 investment, 12 employees and money coming from (state comptroller) Bob Bullock (increased sales tax revenue)," Hamilton said. "You people have just cause to be here, but we were elected by 16,000 people and we have to weigh what we're doing for the entire city. By turning this business down, we're shooting ourselves in the foot."

Eloise McDougal, 836 W. Park Ave., said she sympathized with Hamilton's sentiments, but said Hamilton would not have to live near the convenience store.

"We are all truly interested in economic development and we're all pulling for it, but no little business on that corner is going to make that big of a difference because what you put there is going to take business away from someone else," McDougal said. "And you have to live out there to know the noise and the traffic. Besides, these youth look different when the sun goes down and we don't need another place for these teen-agers to hang around."

The commission also denied a request to change the 900 block of Brevard Street from a single family district to a mobile home district.

"My property is right across the street and the value of it is tough enough to maintain without having a mobile home park there," said Jerry Wilburn, 1500

Brevard St. "People wind up moving in and out of those things and it just becomes a junk area."

The commission requested that the Planning and Zoning Commission review a zoning ordinance prohibiting off-premise signs. The current ordinance excepts church signs, and the commission requested that non-profit organizations' signs to be included in the exception.

City Manager Darwin McGill said the request was spurred after the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame requested its sign be placed across U.S. Highway 385 on the northeast corner.

The commissioners also appointed Deaf Smith General Hospital administrator Gary Moore to the Regional Emergency Medical Service Systems.

Hopefuls make final pitch

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

As the final appeals echoed across the land from a long, bare-knuckle campaign, Americans headed for the polls today to choose between presidential rivals George Bush and Michael Dukakis, and determine the makeup of the next Congress and the outcome of thousands of races for lesser offices.

"I come away from all of this even more optimistic about the future of this great country of ours than when I started," a sleepless Dukakis told 3,000 supporters who turned out for a 3 a.m. rally in sub-freezing weather in Des Moines, Iowa.

Battling for an upset, the Democratic nominee campaigned through the night, flying from Iowa to Detroit to Boston, where he was attending a final campaign rally and casting his vote in Brookline, Mass. Then he awaits the voters' verdict on his marathon quest for the presidency.

"Our spirits are bright, the future looks good. We're grateful to all of you," he told several hundred people who stood in the rain in Detroit.

"It's in the hands of the gods and the American people," said Bush as he completed his final campaign swing Monday.

Following long-standing tradition, the 38 voters of Dixville Notch, N.H., cast their ballots at midnight.

Their votes, the first counted, were 34 for Bush, three for Dukakis and one write-in ballot for former Republican candidate Rep. Jack Kemp of New York.

If the race is tight, voter turnout could be a major factor in determining the outcome.

Republicans and Democrats had major efforts under way to get their supporters to the polls.

With pollsters still finding millions of voters claiming they hadn't made up their minds, Bush and Dukakis made final-hour appeals for support on television Monday night.

"I cannot predict all of the challenges America will face in the years ahead," Bush said at the conclusion of a 30-minute television commercial broadcast on the three major networks. "I can tell you what principles will guide me, what values I hold dear and I can say that I believe I have the experience to be a steady hand guiding our country."

He described Dukakis as someone with "no experience in national security affairs."

The Democratic nominee's 30-minute appeal was on the networks immediately preceding the Bush broadcast.

The campaigns paid about $1 million each for the time for their back-to-back appeals.

Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, was in Texas although he had used an absentee ballot to cast his vote early. Dan Quayle, the Republican vice presidential nominee, was home in Huntington, Ind., where he planned to vote.

"We are running an unprecedented level of activity to turn out our voters," said Susan Estrich, Dukakis' campaign manager. "By our calculation there's a half a dozen to 10 states that are within a couple of points where being able to turn out our vote can make the difference."

"The question is not whether turnout will go down but rather how far," said Curtis B. Gans, director of the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate.

While predicting that up to 95 million Americans would vote, Gans said the percentage of eligible voters casting ballots could be the lowest since 1948 when it was 51.1 percent.

Americans who do vote will elect 33 senators and the entire House, as well as 12 governors and thousands of other state and local officials.

Of the Senate seats being filled, 18 currently are held by Democrats and 15 by Republicans. By most estimates the Democrats, now holding a 54-46 majority, should keep control.

Among the closest Senate races were contests for open seats in Florida, Washington, Wisconsin and Mississippi. Threatened incumbents included Chic Hecht, R-Nev., Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and John Melcher, D-Mont.

Democrats control the House by a 255-177 margin and not even the most partisan Republicans expect that to change very much.

Among the nation's governors, three Republicans — Arch Moore of West Virginia, Edward DiPrete of Rhode Island and Norman Bangert of Utah — were rated the most threatened. In addition, Democrat Evan Bayh was favored to defeat Republican John Mutz in the race to succeed GOP Indiana Gov. Robert D. Orr.

In the presidential race, the poll offered a mixed view of the prospects, although all gave Bush the lead heading into Election Day.

A CBS News poll said Bush's lead had narrowed from nine points to six, while a Harris poll said Dukakis had moved to within four points.

But a new Gallup poll said Bush had an 11-point lead that was holding steady. However, the Gallup survey found 20 percent of the people still undecided.

behind George Bush. The attention paid polls was having a "terrible effect," he told reporters.

Two days later, Dukakis was in Illinois holding a Republican campaign flier aloft, declaring, "Friends, this is garbage."

The next day, he was again on the attack. In the Bush campaign, as in the Watergate scandal, he said, "truth was the first casualty."

Lachina draws satisfaction from what he told Dukakis. "I felt it was sort of the sentiment of the people," he says. "I didn't want to see him pushed around by negatives."

The Glorious Day of the Dead Fish
BOSTON — No one had made such effective political use of Boston Harbor since the Boston Tea Party.

Sept. 1, a glorious late summer day, and the sparkle on the surface of the harbor belied the underlying realities. It was a perfect opportunity to make some hay.

So Bush took a boat ride on Boston Harbor and, with television cameras tagging along, belittled Dukakis' environmental record.

The Bush campaign sent its own cameras along to capture harbor scum, floating debris, dead fish, warning signs.

"Extremely frustrating" is what James Hoyte, secretary for environmental affairs in Dukakis' Massachusetts cabinet, says of the day. He says the campaign should have done a better job in advance of spelling out Dukakis' environmental record.

Don't blame us, says Carolyn Kiley whose firm rented the harbor cruise ship to the Bush people: "We weren't a party to slam dunk any Democrat. They asked us for a boat ride. We're real good at that."

She Became a Believer
AMES, Iowa — Remember the "Invisible Army"?

Those were Pat Robertson's troops. They first showed their strength at a straw poll among Republicans in the cavernous basketball arena at Iowa State University on a Saturday night in September 1987.

"I kept hearing rumors, people kept saying 'you are not going to believe it until you get down there,'" said Christy Cobb, whose job was to escort reporters. "They were right, I didn't believe it until I got down there."

The sight she saw was a roaring crowd of thousands of Robertson backers who had just thumped Bush in a straw poll.

"Not only was I dumbstruck and speechless with no spit in my mouth, I was heartsick," she said.

"It was the first time concretely and absolutely I saw evidence that George Bush was not going to carry Iowa," she said.

On Feb. 8, Bush finished third in the state's precinct caucuses, behind Bob Dole and Pat Robertson.

Carrasco, HHS girls earn state CC trips

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford High School girls cross-country team will return to the State Cross-Country Meet on Saturday at Georgetown after finishing second at the Region I Cross-Country Meet held last weekend at Mae Simmons Park in Lubbock.

Also returning to the state meet will be Benny Carrasco, who finished fourth overall at the regional meet. It will be Carrasco's third time to go to the state meet.

The Hereford girls were a close second behind Leander, 84-90. Waco Midway was third with 98 points.

Alina Benitez, fourth overall, ran the two miles in 12:34, her best-ever time on the hilly Lubbock course.

Teresa Castillo finished sixth in 12:35.4, 76 seconds better than her time on the same course in the District 1-4A Meet and her best time of the year.

Lisa Zepeda was 24th in 13:23, her best ever on the course, and Sally Garza was 33rd in 13:37.

Denise Davila was 39th overall in 13:46, a personal course best; Blanca Cervantes was 46th in 14:04; and Maria Rodriguez was 69th in 15:05.

Benitez and Rodriguez are the only seniors on the team. Garza is a junior, Castillo, Zepeda and Cervantes are sophomores, and Davila is a freshman.

Benitez and Garza are veterans of last year's team that finished fourth at state. Alina was 15th overall at last year's state meet and Sally was 53rd at Georgetown.

"These girls really put their hearts into this one," said HHS coach Martha Emerson. "We were in fast company. Texas Track and Field News has Leander ranked third in 4A and Waco Midway ranked third (Hereford is ranked eighth) so we're excited about placing ahead of Midway and only six points behind Leander."

At the state meet, Hereford will have to challenge Leander along with Highland Park and Boerne for a medal. The Hereford girls will run at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Top-ranked Randall easily won the regional meet with 37 points, while Midway was second with 91 and Andrews third with 112 to take the three team spots. Hereford finished sixth with 144 points.

Tim Stagner was 20th in 16:10 on the three-mile course, Jimmy Leinen was 29th in 17:31, and Juan Martinez was 51st in 18:03 as they recorded their best times of the year.

Ricky Montelongo was 55th in 18:14; Armando Garza was 66th in 18:40; and Blas Cantu was 71st in 19:01.

"The boys team has really competed well this season," Emerson said. "This is a fine group of young men. Their second-place finish at district was the best in six year, and the sixth place at regional was the highest-ever finish for a Hereford boys cross-country team."

Carrasco has just missed the top 10 in his other two state meets. As a sophomore, Benny was third in district, seventh at regional and 14th at state. As a junior, he was fifth at the district and regional meets and 11th at state. This year, he has finished third at district and fourth at regional.

Defending champs overpower Herd

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

When future Hereford High School volleyball teams participate in the state Class 4A playoffs, they won't have to worry about the first-ever jitters.

The playoff trail was blazed this season by Brenda Greenawalt, Jessica Dearing, Lynie Souter, Krystal Sims, Shantel Cornelius, Libby Kosub, Poppy Richardson, Cande Robbins, Nikki Self and Jill West.

That trail was ended abruptly by defending state champion Pecos, who defeated the Whitefaces, 15-4, 15-6, in the area playoff match last Saturday at Seminole High School.

"Pecos came into the match knowing what to expect and displayed lots of confidence," said Hereford coach Brenda Reeh. "We spent much of the match trying to overcome our nervousness so we could play ball."

Reeh had said last week that the Whitefaces couldn't let Pecos jump out to a big, early lead, but Pecos had just one side-out as the Eagles established an 8-0 lead.

Hereford got on the board on Libby Kosub's serve, including an ace, before Pecos ripped off five more points for a 13-2 lead. The teams traded four side-outs as Cande Robbins each recorded a kill and Kosub had a stuff, but Hereford couldn't score on the serve until Robbins scored on a Shantel Cornelius stuff.

A stuff by Krystal Sims gave the serve back to Hereford. Nikki Self served a point before Pecos regained the serve at 13-4 and served out the game.

In the second game, Self served the first point to give Hereford an early lead before Pecos came back to lead, 5-1. Jill West, with an ace and a Kosub kill, cut the lead to 5-3.

Pecos scored two more points as the teams traded side-outs until Self served two points to cut the Eagles' lead to 7-5. Pecos regained the serve and scored five points to go up 12-5 before Hereford could gain a side-out. Kosub served an ace to cut the lead to six, but Pecos earned a side-out and served out the match to win 15-6.

"Technically, our passing hurt us the worst," Reeh said. "We had passed well all year long, but we just didn't do the job Saturday we put our setters into the net too many times and we couldn't set up our offense like we needed to."

"When we did pass effectively we were able to use a variety of attacks and scored some."

"We also had trouble blocking in the middle because Pecos hit from some very sharp angles."

Reeh was disappointed with the final match, but was happy about the season.

"The kids need to realize that we went farther than any other team in HHS history," Reeh said. "We lost only one match at home all season (in the first half of the District 1-4A round-robin against district champion Dumas) and placed in the top four in two of our three tournaments."

One of the keys to Hereford's success was its well-balanced attack.

"We had a well-balanced offense all year long because we had six or seven hitters who were effective, instead of one big hitter like most teams," Reeh said, "and our setters were by far the best in the district."

"The final match was disappointing, but when you look back on the year, we can feel a lot of pride. We return all but one player (Greenawalt is the only senior) and we'll get another shot."

The game statistics showed Self with six good serves for four points; Kosub with six good serves, two aces, eight good attacks and four kills; West with three good serves including an ace, seven good attacks and one kill; Cornelius with six good attacks, two stuffs and one kill; state champion, won the match in two games. It was Hereford's first time in the volleyball playoffs. Also pictured are Cande Robbins (40), Jill West (14) and Shantel Cornelius (right).

Richardson with seven good attacks and one kill; Robbins with four good attacks and one kill; Sims with three kills; and Dearing with one kill.

Reserved seats, season passes on sale this week sold after Friday. The reserved seats open yearly and are available on a first-come, first-served basis.

The non-reserved season pass is $20 and entitles the holder to general admission to all games in grades 7-12.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: More than 65,000 people are killed or injured in fires each year in this country, because most of us don't know what to do.

Did you know that when you are asleep you lose your sense of smell and no matter how bad the smoke is, you won't wake up unless there's noise?

Did you know that a fire is dark and not light? In a real fire, you won't be able to see your hand in front of your face.

Please tell your readers what they can do to plan to get out alive.—Steven L. Duesbury, Golan/Harris Communications, Chicago

DEAR READERS: McDonald's has joined the United States Fire Administration and First Alert, a manufacturer of smoke alarms, to teach people how to get out of a fire alive. Here are some tips:

Install smoke detectors near each sleeping area. Most fire deaths occur at night, often while people are asleep.

Draw a floor plan of your home. Show all possible exits from each room.

Discuss the escape routes with your family. Make sure everyone knows the telephone number for the fire department or the local emergency number.

Sleep with your bedroom door closed at night. A closed door will help slow the spread of fire, smoke and heat. When following your escape route, be sure to close all doors behind you.

The smoke detector will sound the alarm to wake up you and your family. When you hear it, roll out of bed to the floor. Get down on your hands and knees, crawl to your door and open it. Don't stop to get clothes, papers or jewelry.

If the door feels cool, open it a crack to check for smoke. If there is none, leave by your planned escape route. Remember to crawl low and keep your head down. Cleaner air is nearer to the ground.

If the door feels hot when you touch it, do not open it. DO NOT PANIC. Escape out the window or use your alternate exit.

If you can't leave your room or apartment, seal cracks around doors and vents as best you can, using wet towels if possible. Open a window at both top and bottom. Stay low by the window to breathe fresh air. If there's a phone, call the fire department and tell them exactly where you are in the building.

If your clothes catch on fire, stop where you are. Drop to the ground and roll over and over to put out the flame. DO NOT RUN. Running fans the flame.

Teach small children never to hide under beds or in closets in case of fire.

Gather at a predetermined meeting place outside your home, well away from the building, and take a head count. Once outside, STAY OUT.

Once you've sketched your escape plan and discussed it with your family and neighbors, practice. Involve every member of the household.

By planning ahead and practicing your home fire escape plan, you can protect yourself and your family. Remember the best protection is prevention.

DEAR READERS: Every now and then I run across a "sermon" in a few words. Here's a good one: Silence is learned from the talkative, Tolerance from the intolerant, Generosity from the stingy and Kindness from the unkind.

What are the signs of alcoholism? How can you tell if someone you love is an alcoholic? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. To receive a copy, send $3 and a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cent postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Christmas shopping

Warren gives program on flower

The regular monthly meeting of St. Anthony's Women's Organization was held recently following mass at St. Anthony's Church.

Celebrant of the mass was Monsignor Blum; minister of the word, Adeline Loerwald; and ministers of music, Roger Albracht and Cheryl Betzen.

A program on flower arranging was presented by Liz Warren. She displayed basket arrangements, bud vase arrangements and those using fresh plants. She also exhibited grapevine wreaths that can be used as decorating pieces during the holidays.

During the business session with President Reta Reinart presiding, minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mary Castillo. Linda Dominguez reported for the parish committee saying that the fall church cleaning is set Nov. 19 by the ladies whose names are A-k. She also reported that 300 people were served during the farewell dinner for the Friars.

The community committee reported that roses were sold for the Right to Life program recently following mass. Also, Irene Reinart welcomed several new families to the parish.

Old business concerned the DCCW meeting held recently in Amarillo. Charlotte Paetzold reported for this 52nd annual meeting explaining that the silent auction raised $1,968. The Woman of the Year was Doris Smith from St. Francis Parish. Approximately 115 women attended the event which featured several programs.

Hostesses for the meeting were Linda Briones, Debra Reinart, Charlotte Paetzold and Elizabeth Vogel.

The door prize was given to Jennifer Jones and a new member, Edna LaFleur, was welcomed as a new member.

Before the conclusion of the meeting, additional cup towels were distributed for members to embroider for their Christmas bazaar.
