Editor-Publisher Sheriff Joe Brown scored a decisive win over challenger Fidel Reyna Jr. in the only contest on either the local Democratic or Republican ballots Tuesday.

Sheriff Brown carried all nine voting precincts, as well as the earlyvoting box, to reap 630 votes in the Demo sheriff's race. Reyna, a former deputy, drew 308 votes. Brown will face GOP challenger Mike Morrison in the general election.

Republicans joined the other Super Tuesday primary voters in giving Sen. Bob Dole the presidential nod and a virtual lock on the GOP nomination. Dole won 58 percent of the vote here, while Pat Buchanan garnered 25 percent and Steve Forbes followed with II. The results were similar across the seven states holding elections Tuesday.

The local elections drew 958 in the Democratic primary and 674 in the GOP balloting. The total turnout of 1,632 represents only 17.6 percent of the eligible 9,269 voters in Deaf Smith County. Five percent of the votes were recorded in early voting.

Local officials had expressed concern that the total might not reach 30 percent. With only one contest in the Democratic primary and interest fading in the GOP presidential nomination, many eligible voters didn't take the time to cast a ballot.

Dole sweeps Super Tuesday; Forbes appears ready to give up

Dole, for his part, has started doing what assumed nominees do - make it easier for lingering rivals to give up the battle by promising to heed their messages and their constituencies.

the seven Super Tuesday states -Texas, Florida, Oregon, Tennessce, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Mississippi - Dole won solid majorities in all except Louisiana, where his margin was 47 percent to Buchanan's 33 percent and Forbes' 13 percent. Dole won by 57 percent in Florida, a battleground state in the fall.

Forbes finished third or worse everywhere but Florida, where he was winning 20 percent to Buchanan's 18 percent. In Tennessee, Forbes even trailed former Gov. Lamar Alexander, who dropped out of the race last week. The millionaire publisher said failure to produce a strong showing Exit polls showed Dole relatively weak among Republicans who had voted for independent Ross Perot in 1992. Many expressed unhappiness with the Republican field.

Tennessee voter Joan Garland supported Dole but without much enthusiasm. "When you see the others, really what choice do you have?," she asked. Her husband, Ralph, said he would vote for Clinton in November.

Clinton is the first Democratic incumbent not to face an intra-party challenge since Lyndon Johnson, who inherited his office from the fallen John F. Kennedy, was nominated in his own right in 1964.

Dole tended to Senate business. His strategy is to send Clinton a stream of Republican bills - on Medicare, welfare reform, regulatory reform, perhaps another balanced budget - that would give substance to his claim that Clinton is a talker while Dole is a "doer."

Texas records lowest turnout ever in presidential primary

AUSTIN (AP) - A record low percentage of registered voters motored to the polls despite widespread pleasant weather and laws allowing Texans to become part of the process with little effort at driver's license offices.

Roughly 18 percent of the state's record 9.7 million registered voters cast ballots, state spokesman Gene Acuna said early today. About 28.6 percent voted in 1992 and 35.9 percent in 1988, but Texas has added about 2 million voters to its rolls since then.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a can blame him? 17-year-old boy. I am not a prude or a nerd, but one thing some girls are was for the women in your reading doing lately really bothers me. They audience. Men who do not get sexual are wearing low-rise jeans with high-rise underwear so that the waistband of their panties is visible.

I have nothing against low-rise jeans, but showing off underwear is gross. If they are trying to be sexy, they are failing. I have asked several girls about this, and they all agreed that it's disgusting. I also asked some guys if they were turned on by seeing a girl's underwear, and even the crudest dude I know said it didn't do a thing for him.

Not a lot of girls do this, Ann, but enough do it to make me wonder if they are trying to make some sort of fashion statement. Please print this letter and let the girls know it's not just their parents who are bothered. Their peers don't want to see their underwear either. -- R.M., Long Beach, Calif.

DEAR R.M.: Wow, times have certainly changed! I remember when a girl was embarrassed if her slip showed, and now they are showing off their underwear. You've made the point that it's gross, and I agree. Bag it, girls. DEAR ANN LANDERS: You missed an important part of the message when you advised "Silently Weeping in Kansas" to remember the good things about her 50-year marriage to "Wilmer." After he died, she found condoms in his wallet and pornography in his desk drawers. Her husband probably had 50 years of hearing, "Not tonight, honey, I have a headache. The kids might hear. It's too late. It's too early. It's too dark. It's too light. I just had my hair done. I need to make some phone calls. I'm too tired. You're too tired. The phone might ring. I haven't talked to my mother today."

After 50 years of excuses, Wilmer probably decided to go elsewhere to satisfy his sexual appetite, and who Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

The message you missed, Ann, satisfaction at home will find it somewhere else. Wives who don't want their husbands to stray should not provide them with a good excuse to do so. -- Forty Years of Excuses in Anchorage, Alaska. DEAR ALASKA: You certainly sound like a man who speaks from experience. Forty years of "Not tonight, dear" can be a long time when there's no heat in the igloo. You've made a good case for Wilmer. Thank you on behalf of all my male readers who are similarly frozen out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been reading your column for a long time and notice that you keep telling both women and men to do volunteer work. I wonder how much volunteer work YOU did before you became Ann Landers. I'd like to see this letter in the paper -- and your answer. -- A Reader in Sullivan, Mo.

DEAR MO .: Since you asked, I will tell you. My sister, Dear Abby, and I put in over 5,000 hours as Gray Ladies at Lutheran Hospital in Eau Claire, Wis., between 1945 and 1955.

And we enjoyed every minute of it. Gem of the Day (Credit Art Buchwald): Americans are broadminded people. They'll accept the fact that a person can be an alcoholic, a dope fiend or a wife-beater, but if a man doesn't drive a car, everybody thinks there's something wrong with him.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O.

HARD BROWN SUGAR

Dear Heloise: When brown sugar is hard as a rock, a small piece of fruit will soften the hardened sugar in day or two.

I use what I have on hand: a slice or peel of apple, orange or pear. It will work every time when placed in a sealed container with the hard sugar. Discard the fruit when the sugar is softened. — Dorothy J. Smith, Terre Haute, Ind.

GROUND MEAT Dear Heloise: Buy economy-size ground meat — it's cheaper! Measure a cup of the meat, put it

Pitino hopes Wildcats learn lesson from loss

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) -Kentucky coach Rick Pitino hopes the loss to Mississippi State will make his No. 2 Wildcats quit believing everything they hear about themselves.

Kentucky (28-2) had a 27-game winning streak come to an end when it fell 84-73 to Mississippi State in the Southeastern Conference tourney championship game on Sunday.

"When you hear people say it's the best team in 31 years ... you suddenly believe the nonsense," Pitino said. "Mississippi State puts a hammering on you and now you say, 'Wait a second. Boy, was that not true?'

"That's where I think the great lesson was learned. I'm excited about that because I think if we didn't learn that lesson, I don't think we had a chance of a national championship.

"We will not be full of ourselves," he added. "Right now, we have a humble group of young men.'

Kentucky opens play in the NCAA Midwest Regional against San Jose State (13-16) on Thursday at Dallas.

Pitino said his team's defense, especially against the 3-pointer in the SEC tourney, is a concern right now.

Kentucky held opponents to 30 percent shooting from 3-point range during the regular season, but in the tourney it was burned by Florida (9-for-9), Arkansas (10-for-20) and Mississippi State (9-for-15).

"That's a dangerous thing because you win on defense, Pitino said. "I think that's what we'll take out of the SEC tournament and really work on in the next few days.'

If Kentucky defeats San Jose State, it will face the winner of the game between Wisconsin-Green Bay and Virginia Tech on Saturday.

Pitino denied a rumor that forward Antoine Walker had been suspended from any games. He said Walker was benched for most of the second half against Mississippi State because he was unhappy with his overall play.

"Antoine got us this far," Pitino said of the 6-foot-8 sophomore. "He's had a great season. But Antoine has to be great for us to win the whole thing. If he's not great, we have to play almost a perfect game."

And he believes Walker has to do a lot of things for the Wildcats to be successful in the NCAA tourney

"By that I mean he has to rebound, block shots, dominate the low post. He has to pass and make everybody better. If he doesn't do that, we're not going to win the whole thing.'

Davidson takes 25-4 mark into NIT opener

By The Associated Press believes Davidson belongs in the NCAA tournament - not facing his Gamecocks tonight in the opening round of the NIT.

At 25-4, the Wildcats have the best record in the National Invitation Tournament field. Whipping opponents by nearly 18 points a (18-13); College of Charleston (24-3) game, they romped through the Southern Conference without a loss before being upset by Western Carolina in the conference tournament final. Why, Davidson even won at Mississippi.

Point guard Melvin Watson South Carolina coach Eddie Fogler averages 12.4 points and nearly five assists.

South Carolina fell out of contention for an NCAA bid when the Gamccocks dropped four of seven games down the stretch.

In other games tonight, it will be Marist (22-6) at Rhode Island at Tennessee (14-14); Washington (16-11) at Michigan State (15-15); Saint Louis (16-13) at Minnesota (18-12); Murray State (19-9) at Missouri (17-14); Mount St. Mary's, Md. (21-7) at Illinois State (20-11); Manhattan (17-11) at Wisconsin (16-14); Tulane (18-9) at Auburn (19-12); Arkansas-Little Rock (23-6) at Vanderbilt (17-13); Alabama (16-11) at Illinois (18-12); and Miami, Ohio (21-7) at Fresno State

Big East boasts All-America trio

By JIM O'CONNELL AP Basketball Writer

Only in the Big East can you be the third-best player in your conference and still be considered one of the five Best in the country.

For the time ever, a league had three members of The Associated Press' All-America team as Ray Allen of Connecticut, Allen Iverson of Georgetown and Kerry Kittles of Villanova were named to the first team Tuesday.

Marcus Camby of Massachusetts came within one vote of being a unanimous selection and Tim Duncan of Wake Forest rounded out the team, which was selected by the same 66-member national media panel that votes for the weekly Top 25.

Teammates have made the first team - the last time in 1991 with UNLV's Stacey Augmon and Larry Johnson - but never three players from the same conference.

Camby, the 6-foot-11 center who drew as much attention this season for collapsing before a game as for what he did on the court, is the first player from Massachusetts selected to the first team.

Duncan and Kittles both ended long droughts for first-team honors for their schools. Wake Forest's last first-team selection was Len Chappell in 1962, while Howard Porter in 1971 was Villanova's last first-teamer.

Connecticut's last first-teamer was Donyell Marshall in 1994 and Alonzo Mourning was Georgetown's last in 1992.

With each voter selecting three teams and points awarded on a 5-3-1 basis, Camby received 328 points, edging Allen, who had 324.

Iverson, the only sophomore on the first team, received 318 points, four more than Duncan. Kittles, the only senior, had 246. The other three players selected are juniors.

Camby, an honorable mention All-America last season, collapsed before the St. Bonaventure game in January, missed four games and returned to lead the Minutemen to their fifth straight Atlantic 10 regular-season and tournament championships.

"The individual honors are nice. but I would trade them all if it meant we would win the national championindividual honor."

Probably the quickest player in the game, the 6-1 Iverson was a highlight clip waiting to happen this season for the Hoyas, averaging 24.7 points, 3.8 rebounds, 5.0 assists and 3.5 steals. He was selected the Big East defensive player of the year for the second time and was an honorable mention All-America last season.

"It's a great honor," he said. "It's something I always wanted to be."

The 6-10 Duncan put up consistent numbers as the Demon Deacons became the first team to repeat as Atlantic Coast Conference tournament champions in 14 years. A third-team selection last year, he averaged 19.6 points, 12.3 rebounds and 3.8 blocks this season.

"I have worked hard this season and there is some sense of fulfillment in being named an All-American, but at this time I am more concerned with our season and the NCAA tournament ahead," he said. "After that's all over, I'll perhaps take time to consider my personal honors."

Kittles, a 6-5 guard who averaged 20.5 points, 7.1 rebounds and 3.5 assists this season, became Villanova's career scoring leader in the opening game of the Big East tournament. It was his first game back after serving a three-game suspension for unauthorized use of a university telephone credit card.

Keith Van Horn of Utah led the second team with 189 points and was joined by Tony Delk of Kentucky, Danny Fortson of Cincinnati, Jacque Vaughn of Kansas and John Wallace of Syracuse, yet another player from the Big East.

The third team featured two freshmen - Stephon Marbury of Georgia Tech and Shareef Abdur-Rahim of California - Lorenzen Wright of Memphis, Brian Evans of Indiana and Jason Sasser of Texas Tech.

"I've never done that," said Fogler, whose teams have lost all five times they have played Ole Miss in Oxford, Miss.

Citadel coach Pat Dennis, whose teams lost to both South Carolina (17-11) and Davidson, says the Gamecocks are quicker, but Davidson has more depth.

"Almost everyone on that team can post up or can step out and hit the three," Dennis said.

Brandon Williams leads Davidson with 18.4 points a game and another forward, Narcisse Ewodo, is the team's top rebounder, averaging 6.5 per outing. The tallest starter, 6-foot-9 center Quinn Harwood, averages 14 points.

"But South Carolina is playing at home," Dennis warned. "The Coliseum is a tough place to play."

The Gamecocks were 14-1 at home this season, losing only to Kentucky.

Larry Davis is the Gamecocks' top scorer with 18.3 points a game. Freshman BJ McKie has averaged the same the past seven games.

A's McGwire injures ankle

Here we go again with Mark McGwire.

McGwire, who has missed more than half of Oakland's games in the last three seasons because of injuries, hurt his right foot while running the bases Tuesday and will return home for further examination.

"It was impossible to walk on it. There was a lot of swelling," said McGwire, on crutches in the clubhouse. mind-boggling." "It's just

The opening round will be completed on Friday when Providence (17-11) plays Fairfield (20-9) at New Haven, Conn.

Second-round matches are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, with the third round to be played Wednesday through Friday, all at campus sites. The semifinals on March 26 and championship game March 28 will be played at New York's Madison Square Garden.

snip, Camby said.

Camby averaged 20.7 points, 8.0 rebounds and 3.8 blocks this season as the Minutemen went 31-1 and held the No. 1 ranking for 10 weeks, longer than any other team.

'There are some terrific players around the country, but with Marcus I don't have to do any posturing," Massachusetts coach John Calipari said Tuesday. "Other people say he is the best player in the country. I don't have to. Good players put up numbers. Special players make everyone around them better. Marcus Camby is a special player."

The 6-5 Allen made the jump from third team to first team by averaging 23.3 points and 6.5 rebounds as the Huskies won the regular-season title for the third straight year with a league-record 17-1 mark.

This is a high honor that I'll cherish," he said. "I felt this season would be a challenge, because other teams would be gunning for us because of our success in the past. Our success as a team unit has allowed me to reap this special

Hawks cool off Jazz; Nuggets stop Mag

By CHRIS SHERIDAN AP Basketball Writer Bad night to take the court with a seven-game winning streak. The Utah Jazz and the Orlando Magic both had their seven-game strings emphatically snapped Tuesday night on the road.

The Jazz sustained its most lopsided loss of the season, 115-89 to the Atlanta Hawks, and the Magic lost 110-93 at Denver as the Nuggets prevented Orlando from winning four straight road games for the first time in franchise history.

"It seemed like we didn't care that we've only got a one-game lead in the division," Jeff Hornacek said of the Midwest Division race, which is now a dead heat between Utah and San Antonio. "We didn't have a full effort. You don't just show up in the NBA and expect to win."

Orlando has no such problem in its division, but its lead could slip if the rest of its five-game road trip goes as poorly as the first game did. The Magic fell behind by 21 in the third quarter and never got closer than 11 after that.

"I want to congratulate Denver on best performance since being signed a well-played game," Orlando coach Brian Hill said. "They had more energy than we did, and they shot the ball better from the perimeter than we expected. We didn't take them lightly. They just played better."

In other games, San Antonio beat Golden State 106-98, Portland beat the Los Angeles Lakers 105-99, Miami beat Dallas 125-118, Phoenix beat New Jersey 98-88 and Philadelphia beat Toronto 118-110.

Hawks 115, Jazz 89

The mismatch of the night, surprisingly enough, was between point guards Mookie Blaylock and John Stockton.

Blaylock made five 3-pointers and scored 23 points, thoroughly outplaying the two-time Dream Teamer. Stockton, averaging 16 points a game, finished with only from the CBA last week.

"For lack of a better excuse, I'll say it was just one of those nights," Stockton said.

Utah was just 2-for-16 from the field in the final period

"We got beat up, manhandled," Stockton said. "We had no spurts, no runs. They pushed us around inside, and we never responded. They made four or five layups to start the fourth quarter and we did nothing."

Nuggets 110, Magic 93

Denver put aside the controversy over Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf's suspension and played one of its best games of the season.

Bryant Stith scored 23 points and rookie Antonio McDyess 19 as the Nuggets knocked off the cold-shooting Magic.

Before the game, Abdul-Rauf was suspended without pay by the NBA for not standing during the national anthem, a violation of a league rule. Abdul-Rauf, who converted to the Islamic faith in 1991, cited religious reasons.

"The league had to make a stand and Mahmoud has his beliefs," Stith said. "You have to respect both sides. Somehow we were able to go out on the court and have fun tonight."

Spurs 106, Warriors 98 San Antonio moved into a tie atop the Midwest Division by winning its seventh in a row.

David Robinson went 18-for-20 from the foul line and scored 28 points, and Chuck Person made three 3-pointers in the last 3:40. San Antonio hit 32 of 37 free throws. while Golden State went to the line 25 times, making 15.

Vinny Del Negro added 18 points and Sean Elliott had 17 for the visiting Spurs, who saw a 25-point third-quarter lead dwindle to as few as four before they managed to put the Warriors away.

Heat 125, Mavericks 118

Miami won its fourth in a row and sent Dallas to its fourth straight loss.

Alonzo Mourning had 40 points and 13 rebounds and Rex Chapman hit two key 3-pointers down the stretch. The visiting Heat moved a half-game ahead of Charlotte for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff spot. The game included 11 technicals, two ejections, 64 personal fouls and 34 3-point attempts by Dallas.

Trail Blazers 105, Lakers 99 Rod Strickland had 23 points and 12 assists for the visiting Blazers, who have won three in a row after losing 10 of their previous 12.

Strickland's jumper and two free throws, followed by Clifford Robinson's 17-footer, put the Blazers in front for good at 98-97 with 1:51 left. Arvydas Sabonis sank two free throws and scored on a putback of Harvey Grant's missed jumper to give Portland a five-point cushion with 41.5 seconds left.

"To come here on the road and beat a team of this caliber is great and gives us some momentum," Strickland said. These last three games have been enjoyable, especially because we're winning.'

Suns 98, Nets 88

At East Rutherford, N.J., the Suns overcame 10 blocked shots by Shawn Bradley to snap their three-game losing streak.

Bradley, who had eight points and 12 rebounds, had two chances for a triple-double. Charles Barkley blocked his shot with 8:14 left and Wesley Person blocked his last attempt with 4:06 left.

The Suns had a 14-0 run and outscored the Nets 32-23 in the final period.

76ers 118, Raptors 100

At Philadelphia, Jerry Stackhouse scored 34 points, Trevor Ruffin had 24, Tony Massenburg 14 and Ed Pinckney grabbed 15 rebounds for Philadelphia, which converted 22 of 23 free throws.

Tracy Murray had a career-high 31 points for the Raptors, who were without leading scorer Damon Stoudamire (flu).

Oilers may stay in Houston for at least one more year

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers Robert Eckels have said they would owner Bud Adams says he believes the team would draw well at the gate through 1997 unless the NFL if forced to remain in Houston next season.

Adams made the remarks Tuesday at the NFL owners meeting in Palm Beach, Fla., as chances increased that the team would remain in Houston for at least another season.

"We'd have good support," Adams said.

One reason Adams is optimistic about 1996 Houston attendance is the team's home schedule.

"We play the 49ers, Miami, Pittsburgh, Kansas City - we have a great schedule this year and I think we will be playing great football," he said.

Also, club officials hope interest in second-year quarterback Steve McNair, the team's most exciting rookie since Earl Campbell in 1978, and a possible playoff bid would lead to big crowds.

The Oilers drew more than 30,000 fans per game in 1995, despite a second straight losing record and ill will generated by the team's threat to leave.

Many fans believed the Oilers would move to Tennessee for the 1990 season for various reas including the lack of plans for sending out season ticket order forms in Houston. However, Houston Mayor Bob Lanier has threatened to keep the team in Houston until its Astrodome lease expires after the 1997 season. That has led to a growing realization the Oilers won't be in Tennessee this fall.

Instant replay probably won't return to NFL for 1996 season

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Football Writer

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Paul Tagliabue can't see Red Cashion fiddling with the dials on a VCR.

So instant replay won't return to the NFL until the league figures out an effective way to merge humans and technology.

"You're not going to have Red Cashion over there running the videotape machine," the NFL's commissioner said Tuesday after a long discussion of instant replay. "Is he supposed to lean over a monitor and call out 'First Doooooowwwwn? He has enough to do."

What that means is that it will be at least 1997, if ever, when instant replay returns. If the owners approve it - questionable at best - there first will be an experiment next season to see how to overcome the technological glitches in the most favored plan, one that would allow referees to make decisions.

"If there's a vote for instant replay, it will be for a complete period of experimentation, both in the preseason and regular season," Tagliabue said. "If that's the case, we're looking to try it in '96 for use in '97."

There was a lot of talk and little action at Tuesday's meetings.

In addition to instant replay, the owners:

-Heard from Nashville mayor Phil Bredesen, who expounded on why his city would be a deserving of an NFL franchise. The owners may vote this week on Bud Adams' proposal to move the Houston Oilers there.

-Discussed amending the policy prohibiting NFL owners from owning eams in other sports. Tagliabue said there is some sertiment for allowing cross-ownership in the same city, which would allow Wayne Huizenga, owner of the Miami Dolphins, to keep his baseball and hockey teams.

©1995 Texas Lottery

-Talked about the proposed move of the Seattle Seahawks to Southern California. Tagliabue said the owners were concerned about the various holdups because of lawsuits filed in attempts to block the move. ## Officer credits daughter with giving him will to live

By TOM WELLS Associated Press Writer

PLANTATION, Fla. (AP) - After another night of bad pain, police officer Joe Alu is prowling through his kitchen at dawn. He sits down at the dining room table and wraps his horribly scarred hands around a hot cup of coffee.

The warmth, he says, helps ease the pain.

Like about 30 percent of the rest of his body, Alu's hands are covered with transplanted skin to repair the burns he suffered last summer. A man holding two teen-age sisters hostage threw gasoline on Alu and another officer and set them afire.

"I saw the face of the devil," Alu says, wincing.

The fire was so hot it melted the policemen's badges.

Alu's life since then has been torturous. But an angel - his 4-year-old daughter - has given Alu the will to live.

Christina's unconditional love. The little kisses on his raw and red arms. The tiny fingers caressing his tortured face.

The child has taught the man what life is all about.

"I thought I knew my daughter," Alu says. "But I didn't. I didn't know that at breakfast she liked one Pop Tart toasted and the other untoasted. And that her favorite Pop Tart is brown sugar cinnamon frosted. And that she likes gobs of butter on her waffles and that the syrup has to fill all the little squares.

"I found out her favorite stuffed toy was Simba from 'Lion King' and that she doesn't like McDonald's or Burger King," he says. "I give thanks to God now for my little girl."

The day Alu almost died, July 25, 1995, started like any other steamy, summer morning in South Florida. The sun announced itself by painting the sky over the Atlantic Ocean a brilliant orange. It was deceptively beautiful.

Alu, a creature of habit, made his rounds and headed for breakfast at a police hangout, the Nook, a cholesterol heaven sort of restaurant.

A night person, Alu was not happy with getting up in the dark each morning. He had worked nights for several years, but his wife had persuaded him five months earlier to ask for days so the family could spend more time together.

Many of Alu's interests lay outside the home: Work. Saving the world. Body building. Motorcycles. Getting together with his police buddies.

He belonged to a group of Harley-Davidson motorcycle owners who got together one night each week and cruised to other towns.

"His arms were so big from weightlifting that I could barely get my hands around one of his biceps," says his wife, Sheila. At 5-11, her hands are not tiny.

On the job, the 6-foot, 210-pound Alu didn't take any nonsense from criminals. Five years earlier, he had shot and killed a man wielding a machete.

Shortly before noon on July 25, Alu was called to the home of Angela Marie Smith, where a man was reported to be holding hostages. Alu was one of about a half-dozen officers who responded.

The assailant, Steven Joseph, 32, had been living with Smith and her three daughters, but she kicked him out after two of the girls accused Joseph of molesting them. Now he wanted to move back in.

Earlier that morning, Joseph had bought a 7-1/2-gallon can of gasoline and a machete. Now he was holding the girls hostage inside the home. Their mother was outside with police.

"One of the girls escaped," Alu recalls. "She came out running and screaming, 'He's going to do it! He's going to do it! He's going to kill them.

That's when Alu and Officer Jim O'Hara barged into the house.

They stepped inside the bedroom where Joseph was holding the girls.

"Jim was in front of me," Alu recalls. "I heard him say, 'You don't want to do that. Don't do that. Please don't do that!'

Joseph had spread gasoline around the room and threw some on the two officers. He ignited the gas with a lighter and the room exploded in a ball of flame.

"I believed in God before, but I just sort of figured he was there, and that was it," Alu says. "Now I know he really exists. I should be dead. He saved me."

The explosion blew the bedroom door shut. Another police officer in the hallway kicked the door in. Alu ran out, his body on fire.

"I don't remember anything after the explosion," he says. "I was running down the street and screaming. A lieutenant put me in his car and took me to the hospital.

'Policemen dragged Jim into the living room. His body was so charred and black that the other officers thought he was the bad guy. It wasn't until a few minutes later that someone saw Jim's ankle holster and said, 'My God, it's O'Hara.'

"They kept a garden hose spraying water on him until emergency medical people got there."

O'Hara was burned over 78 percent of his body.

Joseph and the two girls were incinerated. The bodies of the two teen-agers - Hikedo, 15, and Ann Marie, 14 - were found clutching each other.

Alu is at home now, on disability leave. He spends most of his days with daughter Christina. He goes to physical therapy three times a week.

"Sometimes I come in and find them asleep on the couch together," Mrs. Alu says. "They're always together now. He even watches cartoons with her."

After six months of fighting off death, O'Hara in early February was released from Jackson Memorial Hospital and transferred to a rehabilitation center. Doctors have all but given up several times, but O'Hara hung on.

THAT

THEIR NESTS

Alu and O'Hara remain on full pay, each at about $40,000 a year. Alu's pay will stop when his therapy stops. Alu's physical therapist says it could be another year of stretching and exercising at the HealthSouth Sunrise Rehabilitation Hospital to keep Alu's scar tissue from growing.

His chest was spared because he was wearing a bullet-resistant vest. His face and a leg were burned badly, but didn't require skin transplants.

Alu wears gloves, made of a stretch material, that go from his biceps to his wrists. He has gloves of the same material for his hands. The elastic material helps promote healing and cases the pain, like a bandage eases the pain of a sprained ankle.

Alu takes the gloves off only for bathing and his therapy. Blood still oozes from his yellowish-red skin. Alu would like to go back to work as a police officer, but he says he won't if he is assigned to a desk job.

Alu and his wife also want to open a foster home, something the officer would have never considered, he says, before he was injured.

Mrs. Alu was a foster child. The Alus are looking for a fixer-upper house, which Alu himself will put into shape. They want to care for troubled teen-agers, "kids that no one else wants," Alu says.

"We will be private," Alu says. "We'll be state supervised, but we won't be keeping kids for the state so we can get paid. We'll do this free and depend on donations.

"I used to take these kids home and turn them over to their parents, and the parents didn't care what happened to their kids. And no one wants to adopt those without homes. Everyone wants a little baby. No one wants a teen-ager. "This is what God wants me to do now," he says, embracing his little girl.

Quilts and quilting were the topics of the program by Paulene Marion and her daughter, Kathy Roberts, presented to the Veleda Study Club at its meeting March 11.

Marion, who is the sister of club member Bettie Dickson, and Roberts displayed quilts they had made, discussed the various patterns and how they were put together.

Marion uses the "old-fashioned" way of quilting by hand while Roberts uses the more modern method of machine stitching.

Betty Gilbert was hostess for the meeting which was held at the Hereford Senior Citizen Center. The Club Collect was lead by office on a dreary winter day, fashion designer Isaac Mizrahi is characteristically animated as he talks about style and fashion and his "basic luxury" collection for spring.

Dressed in basic black turtleneck and trousers, punctuated with a signature dime-store bandanna which holds back a myriad of black curls, Mizrahi says, "I don't think adults buy fashion anymore. "I think fashion is for kids. It's haircuts with shaved messages: great, crazy, fun stuff that only kids should wear.'

But what about serious fashion? The couture as shown in Europe?

"Look at Paris, mother of all fashion! Look at what's on the runways, in the photographs! It may be really good-looking fashion, but it's impossible to wear. I don't see intelligent women dressing that way. Ever! That's over. To take it seriously is just too frivolous."

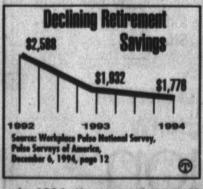

Mizrahi was the subject of "Unzipped," a 1995 prize-winning documentary that brought this accolade from Janet Maslin, film critic for The New York Times:

"It is Mizrahi's hilarious, happily Napoleonic personality that makes such a treat of "Unzipped," Douglas Keeve's crafty valentine to the fashion world in general and this irrepressible designer in particular." While not unlike his more costly couture collection in spirit, Mizrahi's new line, called Isaac (Is...c), differs vastly in price, appeal and function. "What I am focusing on is not so much fashion, but design. It's not about a look, a season, or price," says this winner of many awards, including the prestigious Council of Fashion Designers of America Award, the Oscar of the fashion want to look good.

"So we came up with the idea of basic luxury," he says. "I mean to be just basic, who needs that? "If you say 'luxury' it's like a blue mink coat. Terrible! Frivolous! But when you say 'basic luxury,' it becomes a whole new category. It's a $150 dress, a $100 silk shirt, precious but not so precious you can't wear it everywhere, all the time."

Mizrahi recalls that in his youth his mother - both his muse and inspiration - was both fashionable and stylish.

"You know, then fashion wasn't geared to the young," he says. "It was the grown-up, hat-glove-bag, ensemble thing. Now is a different time. My mother doesn't dress like that now. She is more about style."

Mizrahi says he's found great creative and stylistic freedom by doing two different lines.

"Isaac Mizrahi is luxury, you know, caviar. Is...c is really good pizza, tomato-basil-cheese pizza, ginger ale, fresh lemonade, or Fannie with their fingers. It's a different kind of luxury. I mean, who wants caviar every day?"

The 34-year old designer, who's been at his craft for 15 years, believes many things, truly well-executed, possess qualities of luxury and clegance. To him, "Good design is inanimate, but still has emotional content ....

'You know, maybe the essence of this whole thing is that you can't have style without being elegant, and you can't be elegant without style. And what is stylish and elegant changes." Is there a formula for style or elegance today? "I believe Americans and Europeans differ in what they perceive as stylish and elegant.

"I like it when American women dominate their clothes ... I like to notice the women more than the clothes. That's a very American approach to dressing. American woman want to get dressed and feel like 'I look good so I can forget about how I look and go on with my day.""

Ranchers upset over wastewater pollution

' By RANDY LEE LOFTIS The Dallas Morning News EAST MOUNTAIN, Texas - Holly

and Phil Jamison never imagined worrying about water pollution.

The Upshur County ranchers weren't happy when they learned that state officials planned to let a developer put treated wastewater into Bog Creek, which runs through their land. But they admitted that progress - in this case, a new subdivision in the country - has its price.

What got to them, however, was the language in a state notice. It said that Bog Creek has "no significant aquatic life.'

Offended by this slight of their little stream, they cajoled a couple of state officials into doing an electric shock test - stunning whatever fish were present so they could be counted - and waited as a bass and several other fish floated to the surface.

"I said, 'You call that insignificant?" Ms. Jamison said later.

People along thousands of East Texas streams could be asking similar questions. Officials of East Texas cities are squaring off against environmentalists and hunting and fishing groups in a dispute over water quality.

On one side is concern about money that cities and industries must spend to clean up millions of gallons of wastewater. On the other is the concern over the quality of Texas' thousands of miles of streams.

The fight concerns a change of a single word in Texas' environmental rules. Since 1991, the rules have presumed that most streams offer high-quality habitat to fish, shellfish and other creatures that need clean water.

Texas officials now want to change that "high quality" presump-tion to "intermediate" for most streams in East Texas.

It's more than just a paperwork revision. Lowering the habitat listing reduces the amount and cost of treatment that cities and developers must give their waste before discharging it.

It also relaxes overall rules on water quality - allowing a reduction in the amount of life-giving oxygen in the water, for example.

Supporters and opponents of the change have pressed their views upon

Names in the News

Jane Saginaw, regional administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Because the EPA oversees state water-quality programs, changes in state standards require the federal agency's approval.

The EPA isn't saying which way it is leaning. a spokesman said Ms. Saginaw should render a decision this month.

Backers of the change include officials of nine northeast Texas cities and the state's leading environmental official. They say the change would cut red tape without lowering water quality.

"The outcome will be the same, in our view," said Barry McBee, chairman of the policy-making Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission.

The commission approved the change last June, before Mr. McBee filled a slot on the three-member panel. He said he supports the change.

Opponents include environmentalists and outdoor enthusiasts in East Texas and in Austin. They say the change would violate the federal Clean Water Act and erode the quality of many of the state's best creeks, rivers and lakes.

Ruth Culver, an environmentalist from Karnack, Texas, said that degrading hundreds of little creeks would eventually degrade the big waters downstream.

"It's all going to build up," she said. "You can only dilute something so much."

The rule change would cover the most watery part of Texas, east of Interstate 35 and north of the Colorado River.

Some of the creeks and streams affected are so small that no one has bothered to name them. In other cases, their names are unknown outside the immediate neighborhood. But they feed such high-quality waters as Caddo Lake and the Sabine River.

The rule change would apply to so-called unclassified streams - ones for which no one has done a detailed environmental study. Nearly two-thirds of Texas' perennial streams are unclassified.

Streams that have been the subject of a detailed environmental study are classified by the quality of habitat they provide. Quality ranges from "exceptional," the best, to "limited," suggesting a stream unfit for much aquatic life.

Federal law is aimed at preventing discharges that would worsen a stream's quality. The higher-quality habitat a stream provides, the less pollution is allowed.

Texas used to presume that all unclassified streams provided limited quality, a ranking that allowed dirtier discharges. In 1991, after environmentalists and fishing groups sued the state, Texas changed the presumption to high quality.

With that change, every stream was entitled to a high degree of protection unless a city or industry could prove the protection wasn't warranted.

Environmentalists hailed that change. Cities complained that it was strangling them with higher costs and red tape.

Last summer, the resource commissioners heeded the cities' concerns. They voted to change the presumption on all the unclassified streams from high-quality to intermediate.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department objected that the change wasn't supported by good science. "It is far less burdensome, and certainly more cost-effective, to maintain existing healthy aquatic systems than to restore degraded ones," the department's resource protection director, Larry McKinney, told the environmental agency in a letter last year.

Mr. McBee, the commission chairman, said the two agencies simply looked at different information.

"There is adequate scientific data to support the change," he said.

The commissioners also proposed another change that upset environmentalists. It would shift the burden of proof for challenging a stream's status.

Instead of a city having to prove would be up to members of the public to prove the stream deserved more protection. Any community group wishing to argue for stricter pollution controls would have to hire experts to conduct a habitat quality study costing as much as $100,000.

Environmentalists and community groups said opponents of pollution could never afford the necessary studies.

Mr. McBee said he agrees that that provision would put an unfair burden on community groups and that the agency now has pledged to perform those studies, rather than expect permit opponents to pay for them.

However, the agency has not money earmarked for the studies, he said, and the agency's studies might not be as comprehensive as some would like.

That worries Ken Kramer, executive director of the Sierra Club's statewide Lone Star Chapter. He has been among the new policy's

"Whatever they spend on this program will have to be at the expense of something else," he said. In his mind, those proposing to do the dumping, not the state, should pay for the studies.

Dr. Kramer and other environmentalists say the cities pushing hardest for the change are just ducking their own records of dumping dirty water. Together, the cities logged more than 200 possible violations between October 1994 and September 1995, according to a report by the East Texas Communities Network, a coalition of environmental groups. One city identified with the report was Marshall, with more than a dozen possible violations.

Marshall City Manager Tony Williams said the city suffered from bad timing, not bad management. He said the city spent $8 million on a stream deserved less protection, it sewage-treatment plant upgrades in the mid-1980s. Two-thirds of the money was a grant from the EPA. But then the tighter 1991 standard took effect, he said.

"Some folks in the environmental community are trying to paint us as the violators of environmental laws," Mr. Williams said. "All we've done is to get caught in the rule change." The newly required upgrade would cost $2.5 million more in construction costs and $300,000 a year in operating costs, he said. Because of federal budget cuts, the EPA no longer helps cities pay for treatment plants. Texas cities can tap a state fund for construction money.

Instead of spending that money, Marshall spent $90,000 for a study showing that water quality in the creeks where the wastewater goes wasn't good enough to justify the expense of better treatment.

Four years later, Mr. Williams said, the EPA has made no decision on the city's argument.

"We have diligently pursued this," he said. "We are living proof that this system is broken."

Environmentalists say such arguments are misplaced. They say complaints about the costs of clean water ignore the uncounted costs of dirty water: higher treatment expense, lost recreation and tourism and a degraded quality of life.

"We're talking about the quality of the water that we drink," said Ms. Culver, the environmentalist from Karnack. "... Why not clean it up before you put it in?" Mr. McBee, the commission chairman, acknowledged that some might question why the state's environmental agency backs a plan that appears to lower the guard against pollution.

"I can understand those who say that this is a wrongheaded idea," he said. "But today, every environmental agency must weigh the costs and benefits of its rules.

chief critics.

Researchers probing near-death experiences

EDITOR'S NOTE - Dead men tell no tales, but what about those who have only visited the netherland? They come back from near death with incredible stories. Now scientists are refining their methods so that the living can learn from the nearly dead.

By DAVID REED Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) -Dr. Bruce Greyson waited beside the hospital bed of a patient whose stilled heart had been shocked back to life, eager to hear the man's tales from the threshold of death.

The patient tells of an out-of-body experience - fascinating, but tame compared with many of the visions recounted these days in publications ranging from tabloids to respected medical journals.

Some patients tell of floating out of their bodies, watching themselves on the operating table and then plunging through darkness and toward an intense light. Others report meeting deceased loved ones, having their lives reviewed or encountering an energy they describe as a loving being or God.

They all recount the fascinationwith another world, somewhere between life and death. Is it somewhere between this world and another or is it what the dying brain sees on its way to the final unconscious?

This particular patient "felt that he was somewhere above his body, floating weightless," said Greyson, a professor of psychiatric medicine at the University of Virginia. "He didn't see his own body or see a light.'

But it is among the best stories heart attack patients have told Greyson and Dr. Ian Stevenson, experiences. The project, which began in January and is funded with $250,000 from a German psychiatric institute, will compare the mental and physical development of heart-attack patients who report near-death phenomena and those who do not.

Previous studies, including one by a cardiologist in 1980, indicate that about one-third of people who come close to death have transcendental or mystical encounters.

Medical technology allows doctors to resuscitate more clinically dead patients than ever.

But some of them, fearing they Stevenson and Greyson say most other side is a much more comfortable one than what they awaken to."

Many of those who describe near-death episodes say they felt overwhelming peace, painlessness, well-being and an encounter with a loving being, Greyson said.

"There is a fair amount of evidence that people are psychologically different after a near-death experience," Greyson said. "They generally are less afraid of death, more compassionate, more altruistic, less competitive and less materialistic."

Greyson, editor of the Journal of Near-Death Studies, and Stevenson, who has collected near-deathexperience case studies since 1958. said physical aspects of patients brought back from death have never been examined before.

"There are anecdotes that people sometimes report miraculous healings after near-death experiences," Greyson said. "They often report they function better.'

He said he thinks the study will show patients improving physically as well as psychologically after near-death experiences.

If medicine can learn enough from these experiences, "we can find ways of replicating the beneficial aspects," Greyson said. "Some people have attempted to replicate the experiences with guided imagery or hypnotic suggestion."

Only a handful of American universities study the paranormal. Greyson and Stevenson said theirs will be the first prospective study one that begins with a controlled group and follows it over time. Previous studies have been retrospective, and are less reliable because they rely on the memories of subjects who come forward.

Along with what Stevenson called a "captive" study group, the Virginia researchers will have access to medical records that can corroborate what patients say about their conditions.

Dr. Ian Sarembock, director of the cardiac-care unit, said it could be difficult for the researchers to develop case studies because most people whose hearts stop either die or suffer brain damage. "Few actually survive to tell the tale."

Pint-size charmer lets loose in Texas video

By CATHY FRYE The Odessa American

ALPINE, Texas - He's a pint-sized charmer, capable of drawling his way out of just about any jam.

Even the most disciplined of eachers have been known to succumb to 8-year-old Cade Woodward's persuasive pitches, smothering their laughter as they vainly attempted to imand him. But this miniature, fast-talking cowboy is now using his notorious oratory skills outside the classroom. Cade, who lives in Alpine, is one of three Texans appearing in tourism commercials that will air nationwide. Knowing his son's ability to converse on just about any subject, Lowell Woodward had a few queasy moments during filming, especially since he knew Cade would be ad-libbing his lines, that only those wearing headsets were able to hear what the youngster was saying, Woodward recalled.

At one point, members of the film crew lost their composure after Cade uttered one particularly amusing witticism. His parents watched in bewilderment, wondering what their precocious son had told the cameramen that provoked such hilarity.

"They all went to laughing and pointing at us, and we had absolutely no idea what he had said," Woodward said.

Turns out Cade had decided to elaborate on his favorite subject, the mythical jackalope, when asked what he likes most about Texas.

The 30-second segment featuring Cade is part of the state's tourism campaign, a series of commercials in which Texans tell potential visitors what there is to see and do here.

Cade was selected after the Alpine Film Commission did screen tests at his school. The advertising company loved the way he looked on camera. The little boy with hazel eyes and a freckle-dusted nose shadowed by the large, black cowboy hat was exactly what they had envisioned.

There was only one problem, no one could figure out what Cade said during his screen test, Woodward Press

By FRAZIER MOORE

AP Television Writer NEW YORK (AP) - More than a' year after its planning began and four months after production wrapped, Meredith Baxter's return to series television happens tonight. "Oooooo!" she says, thinking about it. "I had such a rush just now!"

Half ironic, half genuinely excited, Baxter is contemplating the at-long-last premiere of "The Faculty," at 8:30 p.m. EST on ABC. The actress is in such high spirits during a Manhattan stopover that she even has, good things to say about the frigid local weather.

Even if only because "The Faculty" is wedged between hits "Ellen" and "Grace Under Fire," viewers are likely to give Baxter a warm welcome on her first sitcom since the longrunning "Family Ties" left prime time almost seven years

Not that Baxter has been idle in the interim. She has starred in a seemingly incalculable number of made-for-TV films - some quite good, some not, and most falling within the bounds of the woman-in-distress genre. Baxter goofs on her past in promotions for "The Faculty," pledging that as middle-school vice principal Flynn Sullivan she won't be a bulimic, schizophrenic, murderer, kidnapper or alcoholic - "and not once do I cry in the shower."

"It seems that every film I did," she says, "there was a shower scene. I think it's a male thing: Men like to see women naked and vulnerable and wet. Go figure."

Somewhere in there is the answer to why Baxter decided to do another series. Then she set about looking for what she calls "a fun arena."

"I wanted the setting for the show to be a workplace," she explains. "I didn't want a family. I did that before. And I didn't want to do a child-focused show."

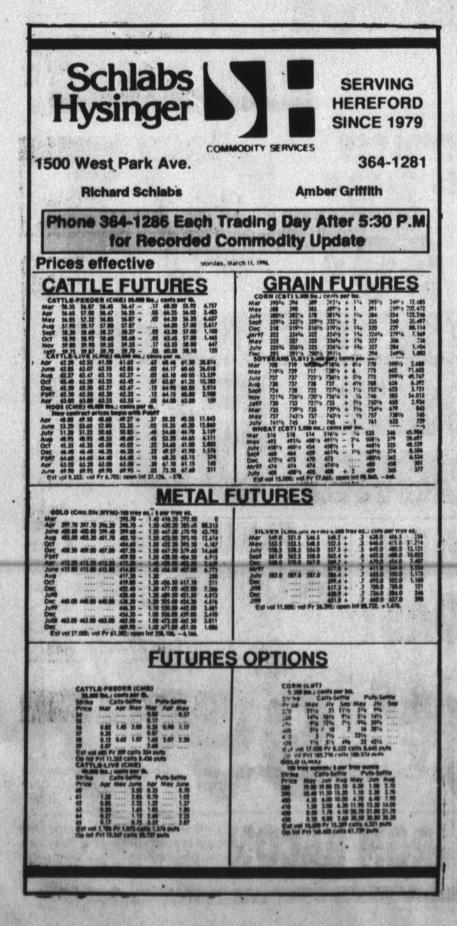

Among the early prospects for a suitable arena: a fashion magazine, an ad agency, a small newspaper.

Then she and her associates hit upon the idea of a school. Despite all the TV sitcoms and dramas that have been set in schools, "The Faculty" may be a first: It seldom if ever shows a classroom.

takes morethan blind luck topindown the right home.

In the same way that "Taxi" mostly took place back at the garage and dealt with the cabbies, "The Faculty" dwells on the staff in the faculty lounge.

"You get to see how they are not as the children see them, in class. We want to show the relaxed side, the funny side ... the dark side ... the underbelly!"

As both sitcoms and faculty lounges often are, "The Faculty" is filled with eccentrics. Among them, the soft-spoken but addled principal (played by Peter Michael Goetz). The sarcastic, controlling secretary (Nancy Lenehan). The stuffed-shirt history teacher (Peter MacKenzie).

As for Baxter's character, Flynn, she is dedicated, capable and much too harried to ever quite kick her smoking habit. She is 90 percent dignity, 10 percent dizziness.

"I would love to go with less dignity," Baxter confesses, "but as the lead you have to carry the show's seriousness. It's a lot like 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show' - everyone around her can be a little nuts, but there has to be some center there that viewers can believe in."

Baxter has another role on "The Faculty." She is one of its executive producers.

"That makes this show so different for me," she says. "In Ties,' I came on as a hired hand. At lunch, I could take naps, instead of meetings.

"For the past 18 months with this show, I've been involved in picking a concept, hiring writers, casting, selling the show to a network, setting the snow to a network, supervising scripts. Plus performing. It's hard doing it all," she says, the soul of sweetness as she adds, "It makes me cranky." "The Faculty" began production last summer, and finished its first batch of 13 episodes around Thanksgiving.

"We had such a nice time working together," she says. "The other cast members are all good actors and lovely people. I can't imagine not going back and doing more." "The Faculty" might be a smash or it might not make the grade. So Meredith Baxter realizes that the test is over, and that all she can do now is wait. It will be the viewers who assign her show a "pass" or score

Burns laid to rest during small, modest funeral

By JEFF WILSON Associated Press Writer GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) - In a small and simple funeral, George Burns was laid to rest beside his beloved Gracie in a hilltop crypt.

The cigar-chomping comic and actor was mourned Tuesday during an invitation-only funeral attended by family and close friends. He died Saturday at 100.

"He was here for 100 great years. We may have wished for more but no one in this room could have wanted him to hang on, unable to hear the laughter and applause or take his bows," manager and longtime friend Irving Fein told mourners at Wee Kirk o' the Heather church at Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

"So, George, we'll miss you. I know you took your music with you, so wherever you are, I hope they're Gracie Allen, who died in 1964. playing it in your key."

The 70 or so mourners included Ronald J. Burns and Sandra Jean Burns, the entertainer's son and daughter, plus seven grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The half-hour service for the show-biz legend had a Hollywood ending: As if on cue, the skies darkened and rain began to fall.

Burns had been unable to work since falling at his home in 1994. His 100th birthday shows were canceled and he was unable even to be a spectator at a gala in his honor a few days before he turned 100.

A hearse carried Burns' wooden coffin to the hilltop Freedom Mausoleum, where he was reunited with his vaudeville partner and wife, them all," he said.

"It will be Burns and Allen forever again," Burns' 59-year-old son said.

Alan Ladd and Nat "King" Cole are also entombed in the mausoleum.

After his wife's death, Burns made monthly visits to her crypt, telling one interviewer that her gold-leaf epitaph would be moved above his when the died. "She'll have top billing," he said.

The lettering change will be completed in a few weeks, Forest Lawn spokesman Dick Fisher said. A larger memorial service will be held in about a month for show business friends, Fein said. "Bob Hope called and wanted to

'Ben Casey' star dies of pancreatic cancer at 67

Edwards, who starred as a brooding, brilliant young doctor in the 1960s TV series "Ben Casey," has died of cancer. He was 67.

Edwards died at 7:40 p.m. Monday at UCLA Medical Center, hospital spokesman Jacquie Michels said Tuesday. He was suffering from pancreatic cancer and had been hospitalized for about 10 days, his manager, T.J. Castromovo, said.

"He was saying he was going to beat it," Castromovo said.

As darkly handsome Dr. Casey on the 1961-66 ABC series, Edwards created a rare TV antihero: a dedicated but difficult physician who battled disease and the medical establishment.

Young Casey's mentor at County General Hospital was the wise neurosurgeon, Dr. David Zorba, played by the late Sam Jaffe.

The series, one of ABC's most popular, evoked the kind of realism and tension that decades later made

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Vince magazine review of "Ben Casey" "Casey" overtook it in the second said it "accurately captures the season and was ranked in the top 10 feeling of sleepless intensity in a metropolitan hospital."

In a 1988 Associated Press interview, Edwards recalled how success came to the series in a matter of weeks.

'My picture was on the cover of Look and Life magazines," he said. "I went from obscurity to fame. What a cultural shock that was. It just exploded. I was living in a room at a friend's house.'

Fans could buy Ben Casey shirts, with their off-center row of buttons like a doctor's uniform. Edwards even had a best-selling album, "Vince Edwards Sings."

NBC had its own medical hit the same season in "Dr. Kildare," starring Richard Chamberlain. The shows and their heartthrob stars inspired a pop song: "Dr. Kildare! Dr. Casey! You Are Wanted for Consultation." "Kildare" actually led "Casey"

Edwards, a native of New York City, began his acting career on the stage in the 1940s and appeared in films and on television during the 1950s.

Among the TV productions in which he appeared were "Fireside Theatre," "The Untouchables" and "Alfred Hitchcock Presents."

His post-Casey work included another medical series, "Matt Lincoln," in which he played a hip psychiatrist running an inner-city telephone hot line for troubled teen-agers. It lasted a single season, 1970-71.

Edwards also appeared in TV movies including "Cover Girls," "The Courage and the Passion" and "Firehouse.

A syndicated TV movie, "The Return of Ben Casey," aired in 1988. The mature Casey, according to the story line, had gone to Vietnam'as a

by late-season hard freeze

- Many early blooming varieties of peach trees in Central and North Central Texas have been burned by the late-season hard freeze, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Warm February weather stimulated the peach trees to bud earlier than will be fine," Green said. usual.

"The really high temperature of 95 degrees for two to three days probably helped push them a little more than what they needed," said John Green of Weatherford, Parker County Extension agent.

Peaches go through three stages before opening into blossoms to set the fruit, but this year those stages were all ahead of schedule. Full blooms are normally scheduled to open middle to late March.

Then the freeze hit," said Larry Stein of Uvalde, Extension horticulturist.

Full blooming peach blossoms across most of Texas were destroyed by the recent hard freeze, but the Hill Country peaches suffered the greatest.

hard. Most open blooms were killed on all early varieties," Stein said.

According to Stein, the total harvest has been reduced by one-third to one-half. Peach producers are now watching carefully to see how much damage actually has been inflicted.

harder than the late blooming peaches. Late blooming varieties still had a tight bud which can withstand much colder temperatures. The tightness of the bud, which is displayed during the first stages of the peach blossom, allows for more protection during a freeze.

"Early peaches like Red Skin were hit hard, but late varieties like High Chiller and Ranger should have gotten by without harm," Stein said.

He also said that even though the overall quantity of the peach harvest has been reduced, the overall quality of the peaches should be better.

This freeze thinned them very well so any fruit is going to be large because there will be more nutrients distributed among the surviving peaches," Stein said.

Because February temperatures were not as extreme in North Central Texas, peaches were not yet in full bloom. This caused producers to lose COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) fewer peaches than their southern counterparts in the Hill Country.

Much of North Central Texas was one week ahead of schedule in the blooming stages, but had not reached the full bloom.

'We weren't in full bloom. That saved us. Those that weren't open However, many producers are still waiting to see what impact the freeze actually had on the peaches.

"A lot of times the buds will open, then fall off," Green said.

Peach producers could see the cold weather coming, but were unable to stop any of its effects.

Even circulating heat through the orchards did not relieve the trees from the damaging wind and freezing temperatures.

Some producers did try using "Typically, this week we would scattered smudge pots, which give off be in full bloom, but we were early. heat, but we aren't sure what good that did," said Green.

Peach producers can breathe a little casier as warmer weather moves into the state. Karen Shelton-Mur, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, says above "The Hill Country got hit pretty seasonable temperatures can be expected Wednesday through Saturday.
