State

DALLAS - Texans marked a hotter-than-usual Independence Day in their usual fashion with parades, trips to lakes and beaches and Willie Nelson's traditional Fourth of July Picnic, this year in Luckenbach.

EL PASO - A 57-year-old former college professor from China and his wife were among 4,078 people who were naturalized in time to celebrate the most American of holidays, Independence Day.

COLLEGE STATION - King cotton's reign in Texas is shaky this year as many farmers, stressed by Dust Bowl-like conditions and an unpopular boll weevil extermination program, have opted to plant other crops.

FORT WORTH - A former associate of Van Cliburn vowed to continue his efforts to obtain millions in cash and property from the pianist, who he says exposed him to AIDS during a 17-year relationship.

MANSFIELD, Texas - The alleged relationship between a female corrections officer at the Mansfield Law Enforcement Center and a convicted killer who was serving life without parole has resulted in a lawsuit and the transfer of the prisoner to another institution.

LUBBOCK - The baby brother of two boys stabbed to death in Rowlett is home with his paternal grandparents after a judge awarded them temporary custody at a Dallas hearing.

WASHINGTON - Just months after Douglas Wagner went on national television and before Congress to praise an unproven drug for obliterating his brain tumor, he got a shock: The cancer was back.

UNDATED - The nation's concern over black church burnings has produced more than consternation about the possible rise of racism. It has also brought on a plethora of lists of burned churches.

UNDATED - Amid all the frightening images of churches aflame, amid all the fears of raging racism, a surprising truth emerges: There is little hard evidence of a sudden wave of racially motivated arsons against black churches in the South.

WHEATON, Ill. - Sunny skies and friendly crowds couldn't keep the nettlesome abortion issue from clouding Bob Dole's Fourth of July celebration. MOSCOW - Smiling and triumphant, a newly re-elected President Boris Yeltsin urges voters to join together to make Russia great - and not to "divide this country into winners and losers." But despite Yeltsin's conciliatory words, the election shows a Russia still deeply divided over the painful, imperfect reforms that marked Yeltsin's first term. WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court's just-completed term continued a conservative trend on voting rights and law-and-order issues but also expanded the rights of women and homosexuals. WASHINGTON - There's a new twist to the old tale of Betsy Ross and the origins of the first American flag.

NEW YORK - From enormous, multicolored fireworks shows and rousing parades to ceremonies welcoming the newest Americans, the country celebrated its 220th birthday.

In Arleta, Calif., Joe Crowley, 74, saluted about a dozen flags that fluttered in front of his house as "Taps" blared over a loudspeaker, a ceremony he has repeated every day since a terrorist bomb killed 19 American servicemen in Saudi Arabia in June.

"This is not just some light thing," said Crowley, a combat engineer in World War II. "It's very precious to all of us."

JERSEY CITY, N.J. - Fifteen-year-old Abdul Bash wasn't thinking about safety when he climbed into a dark 12-story shaft of moving metal and cables to take his first joyride atop an elevator with three pals. He ended up in the hospital.

They call it "elevator surfing" on the East Coast and "riding the freight" in the Midwest. Authorities nationwide are trying everything from elevator modifications to awareness campaigns to stop it.

I met my husband-to-be while standing next to a box of rattlesnakes. I was employed by the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce, and "Jim" was one of a group of delegates from Western Oklahoma on a tour promoting the world-famous annual Rattlesnake Hunt.

The Tulsa Chamber hosted a luncheon at the Public Affairs Forum for the group, including the snakes. At the time, I was not impressed.

Later, the chamber hosted an evening at a local nightclub, and most of the staff was invited. At that time, Oklahoma was a dry state, and all liquor had to be purchased through a bootlegger. The out-of-town boys ordered six bottles, thinking they were getting pints. They got quarts. When the local chamber ladies and their staff escorts arrived, Jim met us at the door and said, "Don't buy any liquor. I have enough for all of us.'

I thought he was a bootlegger, and he thought I was a hooker provided by the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce.

After exchanging a little background, I left the party believing Jim was a tycoon with the Santa Fe railroad, and he thought my father was a rancher with a large herd of prized cattle. As you can see, we were both bull artists. Later in our relationship, I discovered he was a clerk on the night shift at the railroad, and he found out my father had two Angus bulls on the outskirts of town. We were married six months after

One day at the supermarket where work, I noticed a man standing in my line holding an envelope. As I checked his groceries, he slipped me a note, which had a phone number for me to call if I was interested in a date with him.

At first, I was hesitant. Although I'd seen this man in the store many times, I'd never exchanged more than a few words with him and he appeared to be quite a bit older than was. I finally decided to call him anyway. We had a lovely dinner and discovered we had a lot in common, despite our age difference. He told me he had prayed for a lifelong companion, just as I had.

Metro Stars get 7th at national tourney

The Metro Stars finished seventh in the national 11-under girls' AAU basketball tournament in Ogden, Utah, after falling to the Kansas Belles

The Stars, which includes Hereford's Sarah Griffin, lost two of its starters to injuries - a sprained ankle and a broken arm - in a game Wednesday, said Frank Griffin, father of Sarah. That killed the team's chance to finish even higher than seventh.

The Stars were undefeated (5-0) in the tournament until that Wednesday game, which the Stars lost 74-64 to the 4-D Stars from Los Angeles. Sarah Griffin *cored 15 points in that game, hitting 5-of-8 from behind the arc.

The coaches of their next two opponents must have had scouting reports, Frank Griffin said, because Sarah was guarded closely in the next two

Their next game was a 44-35 win over the Shorehawks from New Jersey early Thursday, but the Kansas Belles ended the Stars' run Thursday night.

Graf defeats Date, moves into finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) -Steffi Graf advanced to her eighth Wimbledon final today when she completed a three-set victory over Japan's Kimiko Date.

The six-time champion defeated the 12th-seeded Date 6-2, 2-6, 6-3. The match had been suspended by darkness Thursday after two sets.

Graf had dropped six straight games to lose the second set and looked in danger of elimination. But she came out refreshed today and needed only 26 minutes to take the third set in bright sunshine.

"I wonder how much longer she could have kept up at that level," Graf said. "All things were favoring her a little bit. At least I felt like I was serving much better than I was yesterday, so I didn't worry too much."

Date, the first Japanese woman to reach Wimbledon's semifinals, said she could have won the match had it continued late Thursday.

"It's true I wanted to finish yesterday," she said. "If play would have continued after the second set, I think I would have continued at that level ... I have pretty good eyesight and (the visibility) didn't bother me

The decisive break came in the sixth game. Graf reached break point when she angled a backhand sliced return just over the net and out of Date's reach. On break point, Date netted a backhand.

Graf, who had started the day with her third ace of the match after serving poorly Thursday, served two more aces to hold for a 5-2 lead.

Date double-faulted and faced two match points at 15-40 when a backhand return by Graf clipped the netcord and popped over. Graf hit a forehand long to lose one, match point, then Date saved the next when she got a lucky netcord.

Graf served out the match in the next game when Date struck four slowed by a hyper-extended right unforced errors, ending with a forehand that sailed wide.

"I tried to stay very close to her and it worked well at the beginning," Date said. "But still Graf kept her good form in the final set. It was just one set and it means I had fewer chances.' In Saturday's final, the defending champion will meet fourth-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario in a replay of last year's championship match.

Sanchez Vicario cruised into the final Thursday by beating Meredith McGrath 6-2, 6-1 in 61 minutes.

It will be the seventh Grand Slam final between Graf and Sanchez Vicario. Last month, Graf beat the Spaniard in three sets for the French

The completion of the Graf-Date match preceded the two men's semifinals, which pitted 13th-seeded Todd Martin against fellow American MaliVai Washington, and Richard Krajicek against Jason Stoltenberg of Australia.

It's the first time in the Open era that only one seeded player reached the men's semis.

Krajicek eliminated Pete Sampras in straight sets in the quarterfinals, ending Sampras' bid for a fourth straight title.

Thursday, turned Date's way in the 24-point third game of the second set. The game included nine deuces, four game points for Graf and six break points for Date. The Japanese player finally converted with a forehand down the line which forced a backhand error by Graf. Graf looked deflated as Date quickly ran out the set. She didn't lose her sense of humor. As she prepared to serve in the seventh game, a man shouted from the stands, "Will you marry me?" Graf yelled back, "How much money do you have?" While Graf struggled Thursday, Sanchez Vicario was barely tested. The unseeded McGrath was clearly knee, which twice required treatment during the second set.

Minor League softball champs

As they reminisced about 1988 on Thursday, Robinson and Richmond still spoke with bitterness and bewilderment. "All the years I had watched the Olympics on TV, all those guys were so proud to get their medals. But I was right in the middle of it and we felt like we let everybody down. When your country wins every Olympic Games, and then you're the first team to go out there and lose without a major controversy, it's a distinction you don't want.

"It was a disgrace," Robinson said. "We shamed our country. I remember the feeling that everyone had, and it wasn't a fun feeling."

Robinson's wife unpacked his bronze medal, framed it and put it on the wall of Robinson's office. Richmond's bronze medal has stayed in the gym bag he brought back from Seoul and dropped at his mother's house in Fort Lauderdale.

"I haven't pulled it out, haven't looked at it. Sometime I'm going to, but I've got to get the gold medal first," he said.

The 1988 Olympics was the last time a team of collegians represented the U.S. in basketball. In 1989, a specially convened FIBA congress voted 56-13 to allow "open competition" at the Olympics.

That begat the original Dream Team that won in Barcelona and improved the U.S.'s Olympic basketball record to 93-2.

Shelton's chip shot secures scramble win

Mary Shelton chipped in for an eagle on the first hole, and her team went on to shoot a 27 and win the Weekly Scramble Wednesday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The winning team was composed of Dave Kaesheimer, Steve Stevens, Shelton, Ed Durrett and Kelly Vardeman. Each team member received $80 in merchandise prizes.

The team of John Robinson, Steve Sanders, Rosie Gonzales and John Yocum won runner-up honors by scoring a 29 on the front nine. There were two 30s and two 31s recorded in the eight-team field.

The Wednesday Scramble is open to all interested golfers. Signup starts as soon as play is finished each week.

John Smoltz is streaking again. These days, though, he's going in the

The top winner in the majors lost his third straight decision Thursday night, lasting only four innings as the Houston Astros beat the Atlanta Braves 5-2.

Smoltz (14-4) remains the likely starter for the NL in Tuesday night's All-Star game. But after winning 14 decisions in a row, he's lost his last three starts, allowing 17 carned runs In 14 1-3 innings.

In his previous 10 starts, Smoltz gave up a total of 16 earned runs.

"The last three games don't take away from my first half," he said. 'Too much has been made of the streak I'm in."

In other NL games, Los Angeles defeated Colorado 9-4, New York beat Montreal 4-0, San Diego stopped San Francisco 8-4, St. Louis downed Pittsburgh 7-1, Cincinnati defeated Chicago 2-1 and Philadelphia topped Florida 8-5.

Smoltz worked around a pair of and far between, so you want to get 12 RBIs this season against San gles that started the game in one."

Francisco. Mark Leiter (4-7) allowed singles that started the game in Atlanta, but gave up four runs on six hits in the second inning. Mike Simms' two-run double did the most Braves manager Bobby Cox pulled Smoltz for a pinch-hitter in the fourth, but Dwight Smith struck out with the bases loaded to end the inning.

"I'm coming close," Smoltz said. "Affin all, I'd like to pitch later into the game. I had to come out, but I felt confident I could hold them right

For the second straight start, Shane Reynolds (10-5) lost his shutout bid with two outs in the ninth inning. Pinch-hitter Mike Mordecai hit a two-run single, and Xavier Hernandez relieved for the last out.

"I was worn out," said Reynolds, who threw 123 pitches. "I was tired after the seventh inning, but it's one of those things as a starter where shutouts and complete games are few

Dodgers 9, Rockies 4

Delino DeShields and Eric Karros hit two-run homers during an eight-run second inning that led Los Angeles over Colorado.

The Dodgers, who gave up 52 runs in losing three of four last weekend at Coors Field, did a better job of containing Colorado. Andres Galarraga, who had 11 RBIs in the series at Denver, struck out four times at Dodger Stadium.

Ismael Valdes (9-5) won his third straight start.

Padres 8, Giants 4

Steve Finley kept up his battering of San Francisco's pitchers, homering for the sixth time in seven games against the faltering Giants and driving in three runs.

Finley's 17th home run and has given up a league-high 22 homers.

Cardinals 7, Pirates 1 Brian Jordan, batting .410 with runners in scoring position, drove in four runs as visiting St. Louis won for the 11th time in 12 games against NL Central opponents.

The Cardinals own the best record (14-5) inside the division and have won four straight against Pittsburgh since Friday.

Andy Benes (6-8) won his third consecutive decision.

Jeff King hit his 20th homer, the most by a Pirates player before the All-Star break since Willie Stargell hit 24 in 1973. Mets 4, Expos 0

Jeff Kent's two-run double in the fourth and Todd Hundley's two-run homer in the eighth at Montreal sent Expos starter Jeff Fassero to his first loss since May 27.

Fassero (8-6), who entered 5-0 his average to .462 (12-for-26) with with a 1.88 ERA in his previous six starts, was outpitched by Mets rookie Robert Person.

Person (2-3) allowed four hits in seven scoreless innings.

Phillies 8, Marlins 5

Philadelphia, the worst hitting team in the major leagues at .244, collected 14 hits, including a three-run double by starting pitcher Curt Schilling. The host Phillies sent Florida to its fifth straight loss. Rookie reliever Ron Blazier (2-0) pitched 2 2-3 shutout innings. Florida starter Pat Rapp (4-11) lost for the seventh time in eight decisions, allowing four runs in 2 1-3 innings. He is tied with Frank Castillo of the Cubs for most losses in the NL.

Reds 2, Cubs 1

Mark Portugal won his fourth straight game, but not before receiving strong relief help from Jeff Shaw and Jeff Brantley at Chicago.

Portugal (5-5) got the victory, helped when Shaw pitched three shutout innings and Brantley got three outs for his 21st save.

Jim Bullinger (3-7) made his first start in a month since being demoted to the bullpen.

"Did I say I'm not answering more questions about him," he said.

"He's not here." The "him" and "he" Torre was referring to was Darryl Strawberry, who signed a one-year contract with the Yankees on Thursday and caused a stir 600 miles from Yankee Stadium by hitting a pair of two-run homers in his first two at-bats for the

Texas home to a number FRIDAY of young airplane pilots

By TERRY WALLACE

Associated Press Writer LANCASTER, Texas (AP) - They don't date yet. They don't shave yet. They certainly don't drive yet.

And technically, they don't have their wings yet. Federal rules won't allow that until they turn 17.

But what teen-agers like Amber Benson and Greg Johnson are doing is flying.

"In fact, there was a 9-year-old who came in the other Sunday," said Charito Hagad, owner of Precision Aviation at Hudson Airport, on the eastern edge of Mesquite.

"We had three years ago a lot of 11- and 12-year-olds taking flight school," said Bill Knight, owner of BK Aviation Services at Luck Field in far south Fort Worth. "I think the families wanted to challenge the kids and keep them away from undesirable friends.

There are 10,681 student pilots and 3,519 licensed pilots between the ages of 16 and 19, the Federal Aviation Administration reports. Of the young licensed pilots, the FAA counts 205 with commercial licenses.

However, the FAA has no statistics on student pilots younger than 16 since they don't meet the minimum age for solo flying.

Flyers must be at least 17 before they can obtain a private pilot's license and carry passengers. There is no age requirement, however, in federal rules or law for anyone to fly with an instructor along.

Like Jessica Dubroff.

There are few similarities between the 14-year-old Wilmer girl, the 14-year-old DeSoto boy and Jessica Dubroff, the 7-year-old San Francisco Bay-area girl killed with her father and flight instructor April 7 while trying to become the youngest person to fly across the United States.

Well, Amber did begin flying when she was 5 years old.

That was when her father, contractor and licensed pilot Jack Benson, first put Amber at the stick.

"Her father has been a pilot, and she's flown with him a lot and gotten interested," said John Irwin, flight instructor at Cardinal Aviation at Lancaster Airport, just south of Dallas. "Her father wants her to know what to do if something ever happens to him while they're flying.' For the first few years, she just kept the plane steady and on course, not executing any maneuvers until she began taking formal instruction at age 13.

"It came easy, it was exciting," said Amber, who now has about 22 hours of flying time to her credit. However, Amber, a student-athlete at a private Christian academy, enjoys flying without seeking glorification from it.

For Greg, it's just a cool thing to do, something he's been doing since 'My brother was going to start flying, but he never did. He took like one lesson, but he's afraid of heights. So I did it," he said.

Greg is the only aviator in his family, and instructors were reluctant to take on a student so young.

Putting a pre-teen at the stick isn't the prescription for disaster that many people think, some instructors say. Flying a small plane is not equivalent to driving on a busy freeway, said Don Booth, owner of Grayson Flying Services at Grayson County Airport in Denison.

Critics of young aviators "don't realize that there are two sets of controls, one of them for the instructor. There aren't that many cars that have that. And there is nowhere near the amount of traffic in the air that you'd have on a highway," Booth said.

But Irwin has mixed feelings about students who take up flying too

"The younger students tend to have a lot better hand-eye coordination, but they don't have the cognitive powers," he said.

David Horton, president of Cothron Aviation at Arlington Municipal Airport, tends to agree. "The majority of kids don't have the maturity and psychological develop-

"But the thing that scares a flight instructor isn't a child but an adult who freezes at the controls," Horton said. "It's a lot easier to seize control from a child than from a grown-up who has a white-knuckled grip on the controls."

The public horror over the Dubroff tragedy, and the girl's parents encouragement of her to seek the transcontinental flying age record, initially threatened to compel Congress and federal aviation officials to restrict or ban flying for anyone too young to certify for a license. But the fervor appears to have faded.

A bill sponsored by U.S. Rep. John Duncan, R-Tenn., chairman of the House Aviation subcommittee, would outlaw any flight record attempts by anyone younger than age 17, too young to hold a pilot's license.

The House Transportation Committee has approved the measure and sent it on to the full House, which is expected to add its approval by the end of July, said subcommittee staffer Jim Coon.

The bill, which has Clinton administration support, may become law by the end of the year, Coon said.

Amber understands the logic behind the bill. At the same time, she does not believe teen-agers should be denied the opportunity to fly with an instructor. "I can understand if they'd be worried about somebody who was 4 years old just deciding to come in and take a flight lesson," she said. "But somebody who has the intelligence level to understand it I think should be allowed to - somebody like 11, 12, 13 and on up."

The exact origins of doughnuts and their holes are shrouded in mystery. The man usually credited with the invention of the doughnut hole was a sea captain named Hanson Gregory. Supposedly, Captain Gregory was at the helm of his ship, eating a fried cake one night, when stormy weather arose. Gregory, eding both hands to steer the ship, spontaneously rammed the cake over one of the spokes. Impressed with his creation, Gregory ordered the ship's cook to make fried cakes with holes from then on.
