

'We're praying for rain,' Glickman says in Tulia

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer
DIMMITT, Texas (AP) - Drought-stricken farmers are better off than before with the new national farm policy, even without emergency relief, U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said today.

Glickman told Panhandle wheat farmers that the revised system of federal subsidies are a workable substitute for the crisis payments Congress eliminated in the last farm bill.

"This isn't just a local problem. This is a national and worldwide problem," said Glickman as he toured withered winter wheat crops near Tulia.

Glickman began his tour early today at damaged wheat fields near Tulia before traveling 35 miles west to Dimmitt to meet with growers. His itinerary also includes a Saturday visit to a farm in Oxford, Kan.

"We're praying for rain," Glickman said. "We're trying to get our meteorologists to do their stuff better. But there will be dollars (federal money) out here."

He said the drought comes at a time when demand for farm products is particularly high, worsening a supply shortfall and sending prices to record levels.

Tulia farmer John Herring agreed that the new farm bill helped devastated producers like himself better than previous policies. But he said Glickman's suggestion that farmers buy crop insurance isn't a cure-all.

"The adjuster says I can get 2.8 bushels per acre on my (dry) lands," Herring said, who was on his way to pay a $29,000 electric bill. "But this insurance deal is a joke."

He said there's no way that farmers can harvest what little grain there is in the poorly developed plants because they are too small to be harvested by combines.

But to claim a total loss, Herring said he would have to wait - ruining his opportunity to plow under his crop and plant a summer substitute.

The Agriculture Department reported this week that more than two-thirds of the Texas crop and 58 percent of the Kansas crop were in poor condition or worse.

Beverly Boyd, a spokeswoman for Texas Agricultural Commissioner Rick Perry, said Texas wheat production is at its lowest level in almost two decades.

"The estimated 1996 wheat crop is the smallest wheat crop in Texas since 1978, when it was 54 million bushels," she said.

Farmers in Dimmitt, about 70 miles north of Lubbock, have experienced one of the driest years on record, said Pammy Millican, Castro County Agricultural Extension agent. No rain is in the immediate forecast.

"If the producers don't have any type of watering system or any water for their crops, they're seeing dry fields," said Millican.

Glickman said Thursday that the new farm bill likely means no extra disaster payments for farmers.

Under the new farm program, most wheat producers will be eligible for government payments even though prices are at historically high levels. In the past, high prices usually meant no subsidy payments.

Coupled with crop insurance taken out by many producers, Glickman said there may be enough money available to handle drought losses.

Wheat producers expect to harvest 55 million bushels this year, 27 percent less than the 1995 crop (75.6 million bushels) and the 1994 crop (75.4 million).

Production in the Panhandle or Northern High Plains of Texas is expected to total 28 million bushels, down 16 percent from one year ago. Irrigated fields across the region are in fair to good condition, while dryland fields are in poor condition, officials said.

Man hurt in electric accident

A Hereford man is hospitalized in Lubbock today after he was injured in an electrical accident Thursday afternoon.

Ramon DeLaCerde, 39, was working on an electrical pole one mile south of Dimmitt Feedyards on FM 1055 at about 2 p.m. Thursday when he accidentally made contact with a live power line carrying 7,200 volts of electricity, said Tommie Weemes, a spokesman for Deaf Smith Rural Electric Cooperative.

Weemes said DeLaCerde -- a journeyman lineman -- was working with a crew installing new power lines in the area. On the pole above where the 18-year REC employee was working was the "hot" wire.

Weemes had high praise for members of the line crew and Dimmitt emergency medical crews for their quick response to the accident.

"Our guys did what needed to be done instantly," Weemes said, noting that employees were able to get DeLaCerde down from the power pole and administer first aid at the scene.

DeLaCerde was then treated at the scene by Dimmitt ambulance personnel and transferred to University Medical Center in Lubbock by helicopter.

Weemes said the response "was fantastic," adding that his employee "was in the hospital in Lubbock at 3:17 p.m., one hour and 15 minutes after the accident."

DeLaCerde suffered burns to his hands and was being treated in the hospital's burn unit.

Spending bill to be signed by president

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans and Democrats agree on two things about the massive spending bill closing out their 1996 budget battle: It marks a great bipartisan achievement and it proves that they - and not the other guys - should be re-elected.

With broad support from both parties, the Senate voted 88-11 and the House, 399-25, Thursday to approve the $159 billion measure financing nine Cabinet-level departments and dozens of agencies for the five months left in fiscal 1996.

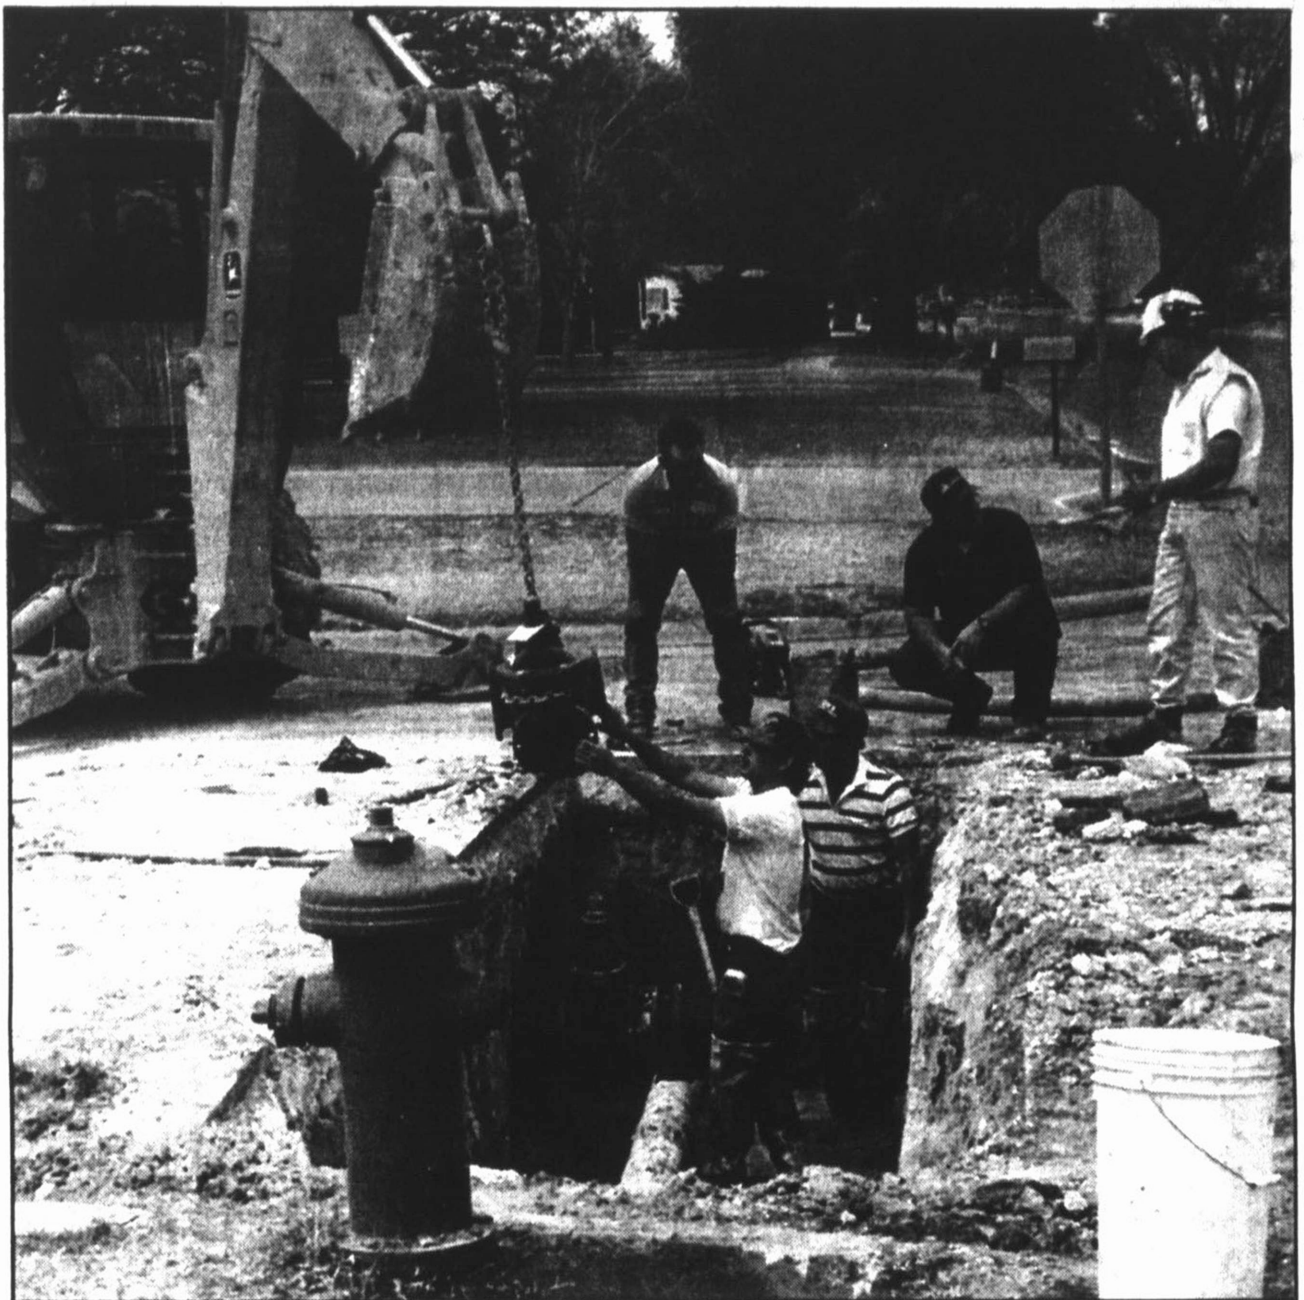

Clinton was expected to sign the measure this morning, the White House said. In any event, the government will operate normally today even though spending authority was scheduled to lapse at midnight.

Even before Congress had finished with the bill, Clinton appeared in the White House briefing room to laud it as "a real victory for progress over partisanship."

He said the deal "reflects our values by preserving our commitments to education, to the preservation of the environment, and to health care." But he freely shared credit with Republicans.

"The American people ... know that I cannot claim full credit for a bill that goes through a Congress that is majority Republican," said Clinton, who's running for re-election as the kind of Democrat who can work well with Republicans but at the same time curb their excesses.

Republicans claimed a win because the bill is the culmination of a 1996 budget process that saved $20 billion, according to Congressional Budget Office figures.

Hydrant replacement continuing

Work crews at Union and Avenue J on Thursday lower a new valve into the ground as one step in the process of replacing the aged fire hydrant seen in the foreground. The work is part of a continuing project to replace 45 hydrants throughout the city. City commissioners authorized the $122,490 job in February. Once the valve is in place, the old hydrant is removed and a new hydrant and pipes are installed.

GOP moderates say they want minimum wage vote

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Dissatisfied with their own party's leadership, House Republican moderates say they'll continue to press for a vote on raising the minimum wage before the end of the election-year session of Congress.

"I think it's difficult to discuss helping working men and women without discussing a raise in the minimum wage," Rep. Jack Quinn, R-N.Y., said Thursday as he sided with Democrats who tried unsuccessfully to muscle the measure onto the floor.

A second GOP lawmaker, Rep. Christopher Shays of Connecticut, voted with the Republican leadership on the procedural vote that blocked consideration of the bill, but said the issue will return. "The bottom line is the leadership would like an alternative," he said. "In the end we think it should be the minimum wage," possibly as part of a larger package of measures.

Whatever the outcome, the issue has thrown majority Republicans on the defensive little more than six months before the election.

President Clinton and Democrats have proposed a 90 cent increase in the federal minimum wage over two years. "As I have said so many times, you simply can't raise a family on $4.25 an hour, but millions of Americans are trying to do that," Clinton said during the day.

Grand jury issues indictments

Nine indictments were returned by the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury in a session Thursday.

The name of one offender was withheld pending arrest.

An indictment for possession of a controlled substance, cocaine, names two defendants, Bobby Gene Jones, 52, of Amarillo, and Jacqueline Denise Coleman, 24, no address given. Bond of $5,000 was posted by each.

Two indictments were returned against Raul Rivas, 24, of 219 Avenue I. He is charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and felony driving while intoxicated. He is in jail in lieu of bond.

Democratic effort as a political show designed to curry favor with the labor unions. "It is crass politics. It is mean politics," said Rep. John Linder, R-Ga., adding that Democrats had not brought minimum-wage legislation to the floor in 1993 or 1994, when they controlled Congress and the White House.

At the same time, officials concede the political potency of the issue, and say polls taken for GOP campaign organizations show substantial support for an increase in the minimum wage.

Supporters of an increase say the minimum wage hasn't been raised since 1989, and it soon will be at a 40-year low in purchasing power.

Opponents, led by House Majority Leader Dick Arney, R-Texas, say an increase will hamper job creation.

Officials said House Speaker Newt Gingrich was taking a different approach in private discussions, telling colleagues that many lawmakers probably couldn't afford politically to declare outright opposition.

These officials also noted that Gingrich must work not only with Arney, but also with Sen. Bob Dole, the Kansas Republican who is Senate majority leader and GOP presidential nominee-in-waiting. Many House conservatives fault Dole, believing he will be too willing to strike a compromise on the issue with the Democrats.

On Wednesday, Arney argued strenuously against raising the wage floor, and a statement was released in his and Gingrich's name that listed possible measures to improve worker take-home pay but omitted a minimum-wage increase.

Gingrich and Arney said in their statement they were considering a series of alternatives, including the $500-per-child tax cut that party advocated, as well as relaxation of regulatory rules imposed on business, a federal subsidy to help minimum wage workers and several other steps.

That triggered the Democratic assault in the House, which ended in a close, 220-200 roll call that kept the minimum wage measure off the floor. On the vote, 186 Democrats, 13 Republicans and one independent supported bringing a minimum wage bill to the floor. Voting against the motion were 216 Republicans and four Democrats.

Coming in Sunday's Brand

With less than a quarter of an inch of precipitation having fallen in the Hereford area this year, farmers and agriculture producers are concerned that yields will be down and they will not be able to take advantage of increasing prices being paid for commodities. At the same time, ranchers are dealing with a loss of pasture and feed, as well as a decline in cattle prices.

On Sunday, Shelly Schilling takes a look at the situation facing agriculture producers and compares current drought conditions with those experienced in the past.

HTFCU elects directors at annual meeting here

Election of three members of the board of directors was the first item on the agenda during the Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union annual meeting held Thursday in the Hereford Community Center.

Two incumbents from Hereford re-elected were Joe E. Kerr and Dan Warrick. A new board member, Jerry Heller, was elected from Dimmitt to fill the position vacated by Dr. W. J. Hill who chose not to seek re-election.

In his report to the members, board president Kerr said the credit union is in as good a shape as any time before in its history.

"The present position of capital adequacy is very strong with a ratio of capital to total assets at 14.23 percent. This ratio is well above industry average," said Kerr.

Stressing that Hereford Texas

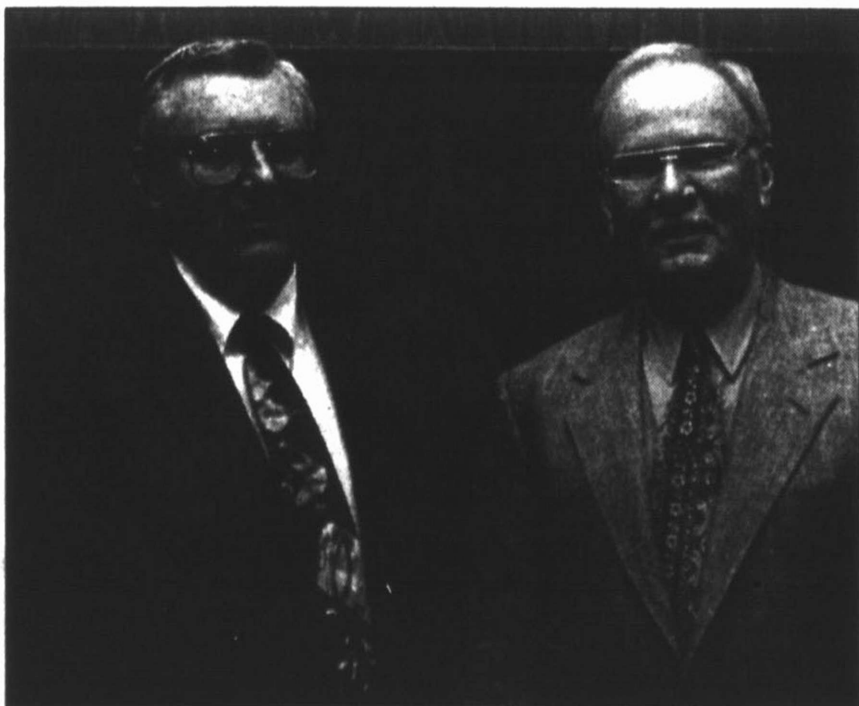

Federal Credit Union is "the only financial institution in Hereford that is locally owned and controlled," Kerr said the credit union's loan portfolio experienced steady growth in 1995 - basically due to member loyalty and repeat vehicle financing.

Bob Baker, credit union manager, briefly addressed the members asking for their continued support and suggestions.

Baker said the credit union will, with the aid of Hereford resident Jim Steiert, publish a newsletter in July and January.

Prior to the business session, entertainment was provided by Noelle Merrick, Christy Schumacher and Annie Keenan. The Hereford High School ninth graders sang a selection of religious numbers.

The meeting concluded with director Tommy Betzen conducting the drawing for door prizes, assisted by Jonathan Paschel.

Power failure blamed for death of 2,000 fish

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - A massive power outage that blacked out part of four states earlier this month also led to the death of about 2,000 fish.

The fish - mostly carp, catfish, perch and minnows - suffocated when the outage led to an overflow at the city's sewage plant, depleting the oxygen content in the water.

The damage was limited to a half-mile stretch of creek, and the spill hardly depleted the fish population within the double mountain fork of the Brazos River, said Audie Hamm, state game warden with the Parks and Wildlife Department.

City officials immediately reported the spill to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, which is investigating the incident along with the Parks and Wildlife Department.

"Right now everything is fine and dandy," said Pat Cooke, field investigator for the TNRC.

The April 16 outage, caused by a problem at a Southwestern

Public Service Co. substation, caused the water reclamation plant to lose power at about 10:30 a.m.

About 15 minutes later, pumping capability was lost, triggering the overflow said plant Supt. Henry Day.

The plant can use power from either SPS or Lubbock Power and Light, but both utilities were knocked off line. Day said officials are looking into alternate backup power sources.

Day estimates that between 2 million and 3 million gallons of untreated sewage water ran over the tops of two holding tanks and into a creek that feeds the Brazos.

Cooke said the sewage water contained bacteria, which eats organic material and depletes the oxygen supply. After the spill, oxygen content in the creek dropped from 7-8 milligrams per liter to about 0.20 milligrams per liter.

The oxygen content was restored using air compressors to pump in oxygen and adding ground water to the creek.

Federal jury acquits Hidalgo officials 12 hours of deliberations spent to reach verdict

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA Associated Press Writer

LAREDO, Texas (AP) - Five Hidalgo County officials returned home as free men today after a jury acquitted them of participating in a million-dollar bid-rigging scheme in exchange for kickbacks.

Thursday's verdict came two years and two trials after the FBI and Internal Revenue Service began its investigation into the administration of the state's seventh-most-populous county.

"Obviously we're relieved and happy. We just went through so much pain," said County Judge J. Edgar Ruiz, who was suspended from his job after being indicted last summer. "For my family, for everybody - it's unbelievable we had to go through this."

Ruiz wept and embraced his attorney as U.S. District Judge George Kazen read the verdict. His mother exclaimed in Spanish, "Thanks to God for delivering my son!" while his family and those of the other defendants clapped and cried.

On trial with Ruiz were county commissioners Sam Sanchez and Abelardo Arcaute, former Commissioner Leonardo Camarillo and Head Start Director Luciano Ozuna.

Sanchez, who blamed the trial for his re-election loss earlier this month, said of the case, "It never should have happened. It's been a very difficult year - but it's over."

A seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated 12 hours before returning innocent verdicts on all 86 counts in the government's indictment on charges of conspiracy to commit mail fraud, mail fraud, bribery and extortion.

The charges and counts against the officials differed, ranging from three counts against Sanchez to 31 against Arcaute. Ruiz was charged with nine counts.

The defendants had faced punishments ranging from up to five years in prison for the mail fraud to a maximum of 20 years' imprisonment for extortion.

Former county drainage district manager Joaquin Cerda, a defendant in the first trial, and former Commissioner Ramiro Cavazos, who pleaded guilty prior to that trial but did not testify, told the jury Gonzalez paid them kickbacks for business. Cerda also said Gonzalez told him he had bribed Ruiz and Arcaute.

Prosecutors also introduced new evidence in this trial - records showing $61,000 of untraceable cash deposits in Ruiz's bank accounts from 1990 to 1994. Ruiz testified the cash came from a number of sources and was not bribe money.

Besides Ruiz, only Arcaute took the stand in his own defense. The other defendants presented just a handful of witnesses.

The government had touted the case as its latest effort to fight public corruption in South Texas.

In July 1994, Hidalgo County Sheriff Brig Marmolejo Jr. was sentenced to seven years for taking $151,000 in bribes for allowing a drug trafficker to have special privileges in jail. Also that year, a federal investigation in nearby Zapata County resulted in drug-related convictions of the former county judge, sheriff and county clerk.

Ruiz, who would not say whether he planned to return to the county judge's office, said the outcome of this trial shows Hidalgo County is free of public corruption.

"It should return some confidence to the community that there was no corruption," he said.

Jurors in the officials' first trial, held last year in Hidalgo County, deliberated 28 hours without reaching a verdict, and a mistrial was declared. Prosecutors sought the change of venue to Laredo for the retrial.

"Needless to say we're disappointed, but we have to respect the jury's decision," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Jose Angel Moreno.

He and lead prosecutor Greg Surovic sat stone-faced as the verdicts were read. Surovic refused comment, referring questions to Gaynelle Griffin Jones, U.S. attorney for the southern district of Texas. A spokeswoman for Jones did not return messages.

The officials were accused of misusing taxpayer money by awarding about $1 million in county business to favored companies at inflated prices. In return, they allegedly accepted more than $30,000 in kickbacks.

Ruiz was accused of taking the most, including $14,000 in cash and $950 worth of plane tickets to Houston and Las Vegas.

Defense attorneys never denied a bid-rigging scheme occurred, but said it was devised and operated by former county purchasing agent Ramiro Gonzalez - without the officials' knowledge.

Gonzalez pleaded guilty to a lesser charge and testified for the prosecution. He admitted he obtained illegal contracts for companies he represented and said he bribed the officials in exchange for the business.

But the defense said Gonzalez lied about the officials' roles to save himself from prosecution. Ruiz's attorney, Joe Cisneros, said the verdict showed Gonzalez simply wasn't credible.

"The government went off half-cocked and believed in a man that was not to be believed," he said. Several jurors agreed Gonzalez decided the case for them.

"Hearing Ramiro Gonzalez ... he was just lying. That was the main reason," said Jorge Martinez.

Prosecutors had urged the jury to take into account not only Gonzalez's testimony but that of the other witnesses, including two former county officials who pleaded guilty to accepting bribes from Gonzalez.

Official backs child aviator bill

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Transportation Secretary Federico Pena says it's time to bring child aviators back down to Earth.

Pena said Thursday he is backing a bill that would require anyone trying to set an aviation record to hold a private pilot's license - effectively setting a minimum age of 17 for such attempts.

Concern has focused on young pilots since the April 11 crash that killed 7-year-old Jessica Dubroff, who was trying to become the youngest person to fly across the country.

While 16 is the minimum age for a student pilot's license, there is no minimum for taking control of a plane, as long as a licensed pilot is present.

A hearing is scheduled next week on the bill, introduced by House Transportation aviation subcommittee Chairman John Duncan Jr., R-Tenn.

Pena urged that the measure also restrict takeoffs and landings by people under 15, since those are the two most dangerous parts of any flight. However, the Federal Aviation Administration could make exemptions for groups and organizations that have safe, well-supervised programs for young people such as the Civil Air Patrol and the Experimental Aircraft Association.

The crash in Cheyenne, Wyo., killed little Jessica, her father, Lloyd Dubroff, and flight instructor Joe Reid. Legally Reid was in charge of the plane, though he had made it clear that except in emergencies Jessica would be at the controls.

The heavily loaded plane took off in bad weather and crashed shortly thereafter. Investigators haven't determined who was flying at the time, though injuries to the victims indicate that Reid may have taken control in the flight's last moments.

Restored aircraft to be placed in theme park

By GEORGIA TYLER Staff Writer

A 55-year-old airplane refurbished by a Hereford man will go to a theme park in California next week.

Benny Womble may even see his plane in a Disney movie, but it isn't likely.

Womble and the purchasing agent for Walt Disney Imagineering negotiated for several weeks before striking a bargain for WDI to acquire the 1941 Aeronca Super Chief.

"They're going to come here to get it," Womble said. "I'll help them take it apart for transporting."

Initially, the WDI official, Judy Sterne, asked Womble if he would fly the aircraft to California.

"I told her I am not interested in getting to an airport out there," Womble chuckled.

During discussions about the sale, Womble said he was asked if he would come down on the price if he kept the engine.

"I reminded her the propeller would fall off if I took out the engine," Womble added.

The Hereford man did not learn the name of the theme park that will be the final resting place of the Super Chief.

"She told me it's in Glendale," Womble said, "but that's all I know." Representatives of WDI are expected in Hereford early next week to dismantle the airplane for shipping. "We'll probably take off the wings and, maybe, the tail assembly. It depends on how they're going to take it to California," he explained about the task of disassembling the aircraft.

When Womble bought the plane from a dealer in Tucumcari, N.M., he found it pretty well maintained. He patched a hole in the instrument panel and repainted the nose, among other touch-up jobs.

After finishing his work last fall, he advertised it in a trade magazine. Response was limited and he decided to place the ad in a West Coast publication.

"I put a little picture of it in the ad and when the woman at WDI called, she asked for a larger picture," Womble said.

One of the selling points for the airplane was the cockpit configuration, he added.

"She said they needed a plane with the seats side by side and mine fit," Womble pointed out.

Womble also said he was told that the plane will be repainted when it goes to the theme park.

When he bought the aircraft, there was no logbook available so Womble doesn't know how many previous owners enjoyed the craft.

Built in Middletown, Ohio, the plane bears a metal plate in the cockpit, dated April 14, 1941. The Aeronca Super Chief is one of very few still in existence, Womble said.

A retired businessman, Womble has refurbished older aircraft as a hobby for many years. His last, before he acquired the Super Chief, was a Taylorcraft that he sold in 1991.

Womble sounds relieved to have found a buyer for his airplane, not just because of the investment he has in it. But, he's not sure he'll buy and refurbish another plane.

However, when he denies wanting another to work on, there's a gleam in his eye and a grin on his face that seem to contradict his words.

Plane to theme park

Benny Womble refurbished the Aeronca Super Chief, pictured here, last year and has sold it to Walt Disney Imagineering of California. The aircraft will be installed at a theme park in Glendale, Cal.

Arbor Day celebrated many different ways

NEBRASKA CITY, NEB. -- Today marks the 124th celebration of National Arbor Day, a day of tree planting by school children, neighborhoods and community groups across America.

Arbor Day is celebrated in many ways. The most creative celebrations happen when several groups get together. For example, libraries have joined in the fun and presented a free seedling to every child who checked out a book during Arbor Day week. A YMCA and a Senior Walkers Club worked with a Midwestern city to dedicate a fitness trail on Arbor Day, planting trees along the route.

Arbor Day activities are an expression of caring. An elementary classroom that won $25 in a contest chose to buy and plant a tree in the school yard rather than spending the money on treats.

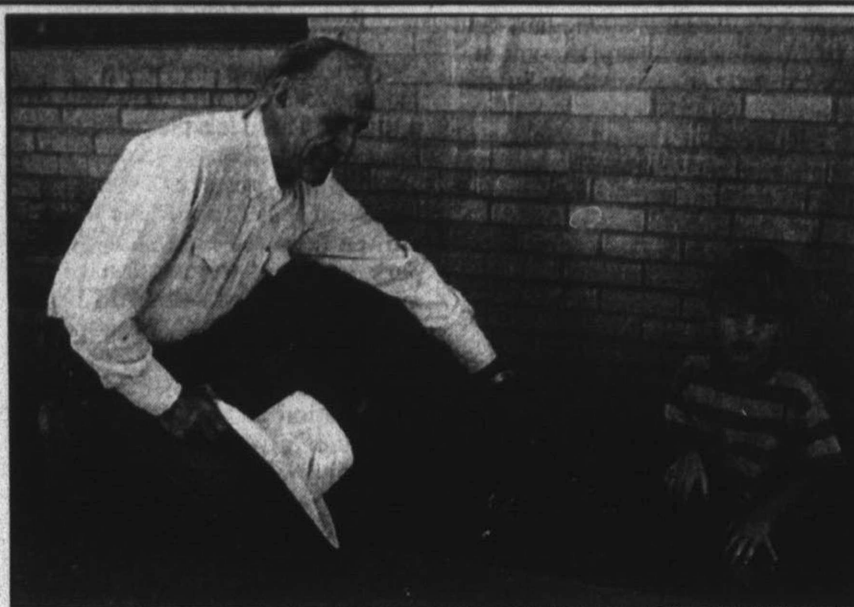

Some Arbor Day events are competitive, which can add to the fun. At a recent Arbor Day litter rally, more than 250 grade schoolers competed to see how much litter they could collect in an hour's time from one of the city's most heavily used parks. The prize was a red oak tree that they planted at their school.

Arbor Day was the idea of J. Sterling Morton, editor of Nebraska's first newspaper, who moved to Nebraska City from Michigan in the mid-1800s. An impassioned journalist and orator, Morton held a deep personal commitment to bring new families to Nebraska. He knew this be difficult in a place where just 3 percent of the land was wooded, so his message became, "Plant Trees."

Morton was diligent, and in 1872 Nebraska became the first state to proclaim Arbor Day. The idea quickly spread, and by 1890 Arbor Day was celebrated in every state.

The best way to celebrate the Arbor Day idea is to plant trees, a simple notion with far-reaching results.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 28-year-old female with three beautiful daughters. I am writing to thank you for the column you wrote in which you urged wife batterers to get counseling. That column helped me avoid a life that could have destroyed me and the future of my children.

I was the victim of a battering boyfriend. He was physically, emotionally and verbally abusive, and as your column pointed out, whenever his control became threatened, he developed an inner rage that was truly frightening. After daily criticism, arguing, fighting and complaining, I always forgave him and believed he would see the error of his ways and miraculously change.

The night before I read that column, my boyfriend took me through the classic steps of spousal abuse. First, he started an argument. Next, he shoved me. Then, he slapped me and punched me. Soon after, he became remorseful and begged me to forgive him. The following morning, I arrived at work, and your column attracted my attention -- especially the part that said, "Get out." When I went home that evening, I called a neighbor over for protection and told my boyfriend to move all his belongings out of my apartment and hand over the keys.

Ann, please keep telling your women readers that no matter what their station in life, they do not deserve to be abused. We should never allow a man to put us through that kind of pain and suffering. Now that I've finally gotten smart, I want to encourage others to do the same before it's too late. -- Once Lost But Now Found

Dear Found: Millions of abused women will read what you've written. You are to be commended for laying it on the line for the sisterhood. Brava!

Dear Ann Landers: You recently printed a letter about the theft of bank receipts from a dumpster, and you asked why the forgers weren't prosecuted. I can give you the answer from personal experience.

Two years ago, a new friend of my daughter's stole some of her checks and gave them to her mother, who was an accomplished forger. It was a nightmare dealing not only with the crime but with the police. I traced the woman's aliases myself and informed the police. She had forged my daughter's name in a five-county area, but the police didn't follow up in any of the counties, except one. I tried to get the other district attorneys to do something, but all four told me it was not a violent crime, and the stores only wanted their money back.

This type of crime is costing our nation millions of dollars. Not only are stores defrauded, but prices are increased to cover losses, and the consumer suffers, too. Because it doesn't involve guns or drugs, police aren't concerned.

I'm now a firm believer in shredding machines. -- L.K., Ripley, Okla.

Dear Ripley: You have written an extremely convincing letter. You have also sold a lot of shredding machines. Thank you for making a difference.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Truly Perplexed in Lafayette, Ind.," whose husband likes to run around the house naked since their son moved out. Why not surprise and delight him by serving a special dinner and appearing in the nude yourself? If you wanted to "go formal," you could wear pearls and earrings.

You might have one of most hilarious evenings of your life -- and I guarantee you will smile every time you think back on it. -- Enjoy Being Silly in Simi Valley, Calif.

Dear Silly in Simi Valley: The picture you painted did more than bring a smile. It made me laugh.

Local events will observe National Day of Prayer

Hereford Ministerial Alliance is sponsoring two events in observance of the National Day of Prayer, May 9.

A Prayer Breakfast will be held from 6:30 a.m.-7:45 a.m. Thursday in the Hereford Community Center. Food will be prepared by First Baptist Church and cost will be $4 a plate. Tickets may be purchased in advance by calling 364-8303 or 364-6150.

Praise and worship will be led by Susie Merrick. "Prayer Warriors" from different churches will lead Intercessory Prayer.

A second event, a time of Fasting and Prayer for the spiritual needs of our nation, our leaders and for rain, is planned for 12 noon on the south side of the courthouse.

There will be patriotic singing led by Mike Sabo, music director of First Baptist Church; special music by the Senior Citizens Choir; and a message from H.W. Bartlett, pastor of Temple Baptist Church.

The Associational Sr. Adult birthday party will be May 2 at South Georgia Baptist Church beginning at 6:30 p.m. The cost is $6 per person. Call the church office by Monday if you plan to attend.

ST. THOMAS' EPISCOPAL CHURCH

"Abundant Life" is the title of the sermon by The Very Rev. Charles A. Wilson on The Fourth Sunday of Easter. The Holy Eucharist is celebrated at 11 a.m. There is a coffee hour in the parish hall following the service.

Christian Education for all ages is at 9:30 a.m. each Sunday. Children and youth meet in the education wing for "Living the Good News," a curriculum based on the Sunday Bible readings in the liturgy. The Adult class meets in the church parlor.

The regular Wednesday Public Service of Healing is at 7 p.m. with the Litany of Healing, the Laying-on-of-Hands with Holy Unction, and Holy Communion. The proper collect and readings will be for St. Philip and St. James, Apostles.

Intercessory prayer requests from the community are most welcome. To have them included in the Prayers of the People at all services, please call 364-0146 and leave a message. In case of emergency, or to make appointments for personal conferences, please call Father Wilson in Amarillo at 353-1734.

TEMPLE BAPTIST CHURCH

The pastor, H. Wyatt Bartlett, and the congregation of the Temple Baptist Church, 700 Avenue K, invite everyone to come worship with them.

Sunday school and Bible study begins at 9:45 a.m. with classes for everyone. The morning worship service begins at 11. The pastor will preach on "Ephesus, the Careless Church," from Revelations 2:1-7.

Evening worship begins at 6 at which time we will view a video on the Bible, "The Indestructible Book, Volume Two, God's Word in English: A Bible for the Common Man."

The pastor's sermon for the evening worship service is titled "Persistent Evangelism" and the text will be from Acts 18:1-22. This service will begin at 7 p.m.

Mid-week prayer meeting is on Wednesday evenings at 7. We will study the 23rd Psalm.

The Sanctuary Choir will meet at 7:45 p.m.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Dr. Ed Williamson will use "A Power to Break the Walls Down" as his sermon topic on Sunday with Ephesians 3:13-16 as the scripture lesson. The anthem, "Song of the Covenant People," will be sung by the Sanctuary Choir, and the combined children's choirs will present "Marching to the Beat of God" as the offertory. Sunday school begins at 9:30 a.m. followed by the morning worship at 10:45.

The Confirmation Class will meet in the sanctuary from 2 p.m.-4 p.m. Saturday with Dr. Williamson for a time of prayer and preparation for their becoming full members of the United Methodist Church during the worship service on Sunday. The class, under the leadership of Billie and Mark Landrum, has been studying together for six weeks.

This Friday evening at 6 p.m. is the date and time for the United Methodist Women Friendship Dinner to be held in Fellowship Hall to honor all women of the church. After a salad supper, hosted by the UMW Circles, Nova Dickson Brown, a retired missionary who now lives in Tomball, will recount her experiences while in mission in Bolivia.

Children of the church will present the musical "Joseph: What a Life!" in Fellowship Hall at 6 p.m. Sunday. Betty Wollie is the director of this special event.

The youth of the church will serve refreshments after the performance as a fund-raising activity. An ice cream sundae bar will feature ice cream with lots of topping to choose from.

Naomi Hare, longtime member of FUMC and retired missionary, will be honored with a reception from 2 p.m.-4 p.m. Sunday in Fellowship Hall in honor of her 80th birthday.

The Mission Team of UMW will meet in the church library on Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. for its regular monthly planning meeting. No general meeting will be held that day.

CHURCH

SAN JOSE CATHOLIC CHURCH
The Promised Land Network (PLN) will hold the annual Saints Isidore and Maria Town and Country Family Gatherings on May 5 from 4 p.m.-8 p.m. People throughout the diocese can attend gatherings at Sacred Heart Church in Canadian, St. Theresa's Church in Panhandle, or Bob and Theresa Birkenfeld's farm between Nazareth and Tulia.
Central themes of the event will be prayer for ending the drought and for beneficial weather during the growing season, a renewal of human stewardship of God's creation, honoring Isidore and Maria as the patron saints of agriculture and farmworkers and "neighbor-building" among regional parishes.

Those attending are invited to bring soil, water and seeds which will be blessed during the prayer service. Also, participants are asked to bring a covered dish to share at the potluck meal. For further information about the Town and Country celebration, contact Lydia Villanueva at the PLN office at 806-364-4445.

El Horniguero Community Project is hosting a Leadership Workshop on Thursday at 7 p.m. in the San Jose Community Center, 735 Brevard. The workshop is a formation for those interested in community development and developing the skills to be leaders and organizers in their community. Sr. Maribeth Larkin of El Paso Interreligious Sponsoring Organization (EPISO), lead organizer from El Paso, will be the main speaker.

There will be a novena, a nine-day prayer service offering prayers to God for the needs of the community, on May 7-15 at 7 p.m. in San Jose Church. Deacon Jessie Guerrero will lead the novena. Our offering prayer will be for rain and the ending of drought. All are encouraged to participate in this ceremony. For more information contact Lydia Villanueva, 806-364-4445 or at San Jose Catholic Church, 806-364-5053.

Kids, join us at Nazarene Kid's Korner for fun, games, movies and outings. Call Elise at 364-8161.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I would like to share a tip that cost me $35. A while back, my clothes dryer was taking a very long time to dry clothes, so I called a repairman. All he did to correct the problem was remove the lint filter and clean it in the sink with a brush and some dish detergent. He told me that when you use fabric-softener sheets, film builds up on the lint filter and won't allow the air to circulate properly. When I asked him if I should stop using the sheets, he said no but just be sure to clean the filter regularly the way he did. Thinking back, I'm sure that's the reason the heating coils in my old dryer burned out so quickly. —John Golden, Farmington, N.M. This may just save some other readers a service call. —Heloise

HANDY HELPER
Dear Heloise: When you drop a pill and can't find it, hold a lighted flashlight close to the floor and let it cast a long beam of light across the floor. Try various directions. The pill can be found this way because it will cast a dark shadow. —J. Birnbaum, Savannah, Ga.

12 games get Cuby Kitchens Classic started

The Cuby Kitchens Classic basketball tournament opened Thursday with 12 games, several of which were won by Hereford teams.

Hereford kids keyed the two biggest blowouts of the first day.

In the boys' 13-under division, the Texas Trojans destroyed Borger, 96-32. The three Hereford boys on the team all scored big points: Cody Hodges had 20, Chayse Rives had 18 and Slade Hodges had 17.

In girls' 11-under, the Lady Hoopsters rolled up 70 points and limited a Clovis (N.M.) team to only three points in the game. The two Hereford girls on the team - Becky Bailey with 14 points and Jenna Urbanczyk with 11 - were among the team's high scorers.

The tournament was to continue through today, Saturday and Sunday.

Three other Hereford teams got wins Thursday:

--In girls' 11-under, two Hereford teams won. The West Texas Heat beat the Slammers, 25-4, with Tiffany Mercer's four points leading a balanced attack. The Limited Edition defeated Dumas, 39-26, with 12 points from McKenzie Tabor and eight from Michelle Bernhardt.

--In boys' 11-under, the Warriors whipped Tulia, 52-13, with Seth Hatley scoring 10 and Seth Hoelscher adding eight.

In other games involving Hereford-related teams:

--In girls 12-under, the Lady Warriors lost to Naz Jazz, 32-18. Sehrena Davis and Elisha Huseman both scored four for the Warriors.

--In girls' 12-under, the Lady Marauders lost 19-18 to a Dimmitt team. No high scorers were available.

--In boys 11-under, the West Texas Stars (actually a team of mostly Hereford nine-year-olds) lost to And I, 32-8. John Griffin scored three points.

In games not involving Hereford children:

--In boys' 12-under: Extreme 81, Amarillo Wolverines 27.

--In boys' 13-under: Hornets 42, Clay, 38; and Nazareth Wrath 37, Tar Heels 34.

--In girls' 13-under: Young Guns 42, West Texas Patriots 36.

In the 1983 Hambletonian, fillies finished one-two, Duenna winning and Winkys Gill finishing second.

Hoot Mon, the winner of the 1947 Hambletonian, sired four winners of the race in later years.

Belle's late shot lifts Tribe

By TOM WITHERS
AP Sports Writer

Albert Belle is in the headlines again, and this time it's good news for Cleveland.

Belle hit a tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning Thursday night to give the Indians a 4-3 win over the New York Yankees.

Baseball's reigning home run king has been a hot topic all season, but most of the discussion has centered on Belle's off-the-field problems. The latest incident involved him throwing a ball that hit a photographer before an April 6 game.

While in New York, Belle met with baseball investigators to discuss the matter. He refused to comment on the meeting, but recently said the whole thing was an accident.

What he did with Andy Pettitte's 1-2 pitch in the eighth was no accident.

Belle was having a tough night when he came to bat with the score tied 3-3. He had walked, popped out and grounded into a double play.

Pettitte (3-1) quickly got ahead in the count before Belle drove his pitch over the right-field wall for his eighth homer in 77 at-bats. Last year, when he led the majors with 50 homers, Belle hit six home runs in his first 122 at-bats.

"It was supposed to be a sinker down that was just flat," said Pettitte. "I had two strikes on him and I got a ball that was up in the zone. He got pretty good wood on it and hit it out."

Belle's homer gave the Indians only their seventh wins in 27 meetings with the Yankees, dating back to midway through the 1993 season.

Jim Poole (1-0), the second of four Indians pitchers, was the winner in relief of Jack McDowell, who made his first appearance in New York

Hereford's Jamie Harrison gets in shape for the Region 1-4A Track Meet, being held this weekend in San Angelo.

Baseball team goes to Pampa

The Hereford baseball team has three more chances to get its first win in District 1-4A play, and the first of those is Saturday in Pampa. The game with the Harvesters starts at 1 p.m. followed by another game between the schools' junior varsity teams.

The Herd is 0-9 in district, 4-19 overall, and trying to shake a 12-game losing streak. After Saturday, Hereford has two more games: hosting Borger May 4 and finishing up at Caprock May 7.

Pampa will be trying to hold on to faint playoff hopes Saturday. With four games left, the Harvesters are 4-4 in district and 14-9 overall. Pampa is currently fifth in the district race, just behind Borger and Canyon, both 5-4.

Randall leads the district at 8-1. The Raiders' district schedule is open this weekend, so they'll play at Lubbock Christian at 5 p.m. Friday.

Dumas, which hosts Borger Saturday, is second at 6-2. In the other district game Saturday, Canyon hosts Caprock (2-6).

against his former teammates. He worked 6.2-3 innings, allowing eight hits and all three Yankees runs.

Jose Mesa retired Ruben Sierra on a fly ball to the warning track for the final out for his seventh save.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Boston 8, Texas 3; Minnesota 11, Detroit 1; Milwaukee 6, California 5; Oakland 4, Toronto 3; Baltimore 3, Kansas City 2; and Chicago 4, Seattle 3.

Red Sox 8, Rangers 3

At Boston, Mo Vaughn homered twice and Tim Wakefield won for the first time this season.

Troy O'Leary homered for the third consecutive game for Boston, which won two in a row for just the second time this year. The Rangers have lost four straight.

Vaughn hit a three-run homer in the sixth off Kevin Gross (3-2) and added a solo shot in the eighth - his 10th consecutive time reaching base safely.

Wakefield (1-3), who started last

Herd track athletes ready for regionals

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Hereford is sending three girls and one boy to the Region 1-4A Track Meet, which will be held today and Saturday in San Angelo.

All of them have a chance to compete well, their coaches said. If they compete well enough and finish first or second, they get to go on to the state meet.

Junior Jamie Harrison will compete in two events, the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs. Joining her will be two freshmen: Jessica Mejia will compete in the 800 run, and Kristen Fangman will run the 100-meter hurdles.

The only Hereford boy going to San Angelo is shotputter Joseph Martinez. Marquise Brown, who qualified for regionals in the 100 dash, chose not to go.

None of Hereford's four athletes are shoo-ins in any of the five events, but all have a chance to do well and move on.

"Jessica and Jamie both have a chance," girls' coach Martha Emerson said. "Kristen could - it just depends on how much she improves over district."

The girls all turned in personal bests at the district meet, allowing Mejia and Fangman to win district titles in their event. Harrison had personal bests in both her races, but Pampa's Jenny Fatheree edged her in both - by less than half a second in the 1,600.

Those personal bests are promising.

"If they dug down to get that at district," Emerson said, "you never know what they can dig down and get at regionals."

Martinez, a senior, also narrowly missed a district title. He threw 51 feet, 1 inch; Canyon's Brian Baggett threw 1/4 inch further.

"Joseph's got an excellent chance," boys' coach Ron Young said. "He went to (a regional qualifier's meet in) San Angelo and he threw against nearly everybody who's going to be at regionals. He'll have to throw a lot better than he has the last couple of weeks. (Assistant coach Bill) Bridge thinks he'll have to throw 53 feet to have a chance - which he can."

Martinez' best throw in competition is 51-9, but he's thrown 53-11 in practice.

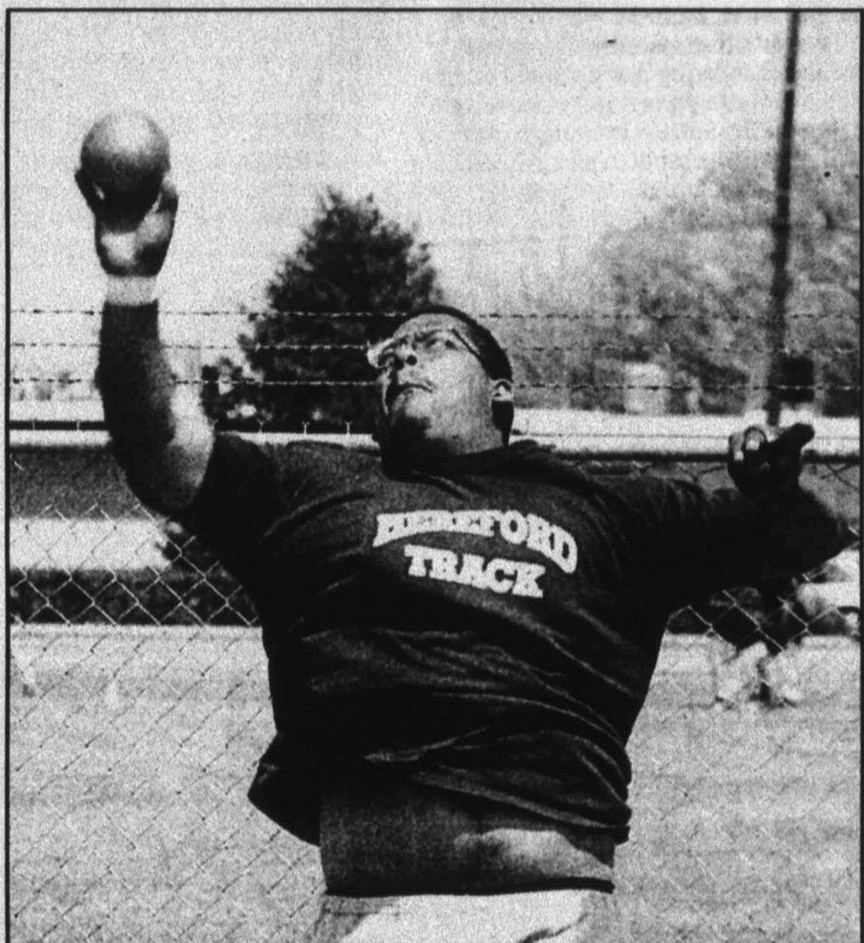

The meet starts at 6 p.m. today and Saturday at Angelo State University's stadium.

Fangman will be the first to compete, running in a preliminary race at 6:20 tonight. If she does well enough, she'll make the finals at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

The distance races don't require prelims, so Harrison's 3,200 final will be run at 8:30 tonight. Mejia's 800 final will start at 6:15 p.m. Saturday and the 1,600 will be at 7:50 Saturday.

Martinez will start throwing the shot at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

None of the Hereford athletes have competed before at the regional meet.

Mighty heave

Joseph Martinez practices throwing the shot in preparation for the Region 1-4A Track Meet.

Junior high track meet set here

Hereford will host a junior high boys' track meet starting at 9 a.m. Saturday at Whiteface Stadium.

The Hereford Junior High teams - seventh and eighth grades - will compete against teams from five other schools: Dumas, Borger, Pampa, Canyon and Valleyview.

The field events and running preliminaries will start at 9 a.m., and running finals start at 1:30 p.m. The meet will be completed by about 4:30 p.m. season 14-1 before falling apart, scattered seven hits in six innings.

Dean Palmer and Juan Gonzalez homered for Texas.

Twins 11, Tigers 1

At Detroit, the Twins picked up where they left off the previous day, rapping 15 hits to send Detroit to its eighth straight loss.

The Twins routed the Tigers 24-11 Wednesday.

Roberto Kelly had three hits, scored twice and stole two bases for the Twins.

LaTroy Hawkins (1-0), starting for the second time in three days, struck out a career-high 10 in six innings. He lasted only 1 1-3 innings Tuesday against Boston.

Scott Aldred (0-2) remained winless since May 14, 1993.

Brewers 6, Angels 5

At Milwaukee, Turner Ward tripled home the winning run in the ninth inning, and the Brewers stopped the Angels' seven-game winning streak.

However, Harrison and Mejia both were members of the cross country team that went to regionals and state last fall. Harrison also was an alternate at the regional track meet two years ago, so she's seen it.

"She's been to watch, and that gives her some insight into what goes on," Emerson said. "Jessica's been to the cross country meet, so she knows what being past district is all about."

Mejia and Fangman are both freshmen, and this will be good experience for them for years to come, Emerson said.

"It gives freshmen real incentive to go back and do it again," she said. Young expressed great pride in what Martinez has done.

"He came from fifth in the shot (last year) to second this year," Young said. "No matter what happens at regionals, he's still done a heck of a job."

Rockets capture Game 1 in Los Angeles

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Basketball Writer
One night into the playoffs, and already a week's worth of questions have been partially answered.

Can the Houston Rockets maintain their championship form? Apparently so.

Can the New York Knicks summon one last gasp from their aging team? Yup.

Can anybody on Portland stop Karl Malone? Nope.

Can Indiana survive without Reggie Miller? Apparently not.

The NBA playoffs began Thursday night, and somehow Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls didn't manage to dominate the spotlight. Instead, the two-time defending champion Rockets began this postseason the way they dominated the last one - winning on the road with all their confidence intact.

Hakeem Olajuwon had 33 points, eight rebounds and five steals, Clyde Drexler scored 21 points and the Rockets held Los Angeles scoreless for almost an eight-minute stretch in the fourth quarter of an 87-83 victory.

"We've been together for a while. We know how to win when it comes down to it," Olajuwon said.

"It was a Rocket game, getting the game under control, getting the ball in the right people's hands, doing the little things. These guys focused so quickly it's amazing," coach Rudy Tomjanovich said.

The Rockets, who have won their last eight road games in the postseason, were one of three teams to come away with victories on the road.

The Knicks set a team record with 173-pointers, missing only five times from behind the arc, and had a 20-0 run in the fourth quarter of a 106-83 rouncing of the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Utah got 33 points from Malone on 14-of-21 shooting - surviving his 5-for-15 effort from the free-throw line - and 23 assists from John Stockton in a 110-102 home victory over Portland.

The Atlanta Hawks took advantage of Miller's absence and held the Pacers to just 12 points in the fourth quarter of a 92-80 victory at Indiana.

All four series resume Saturday, and the Rockets, Knicks, Jazz and Hawks have history on their side. In 124 previous best-of-5 series, the winner of Game 1 has gone on to win 99 times.

Rockets 97, Lakers 83

After Magic Johnson's three-point play put the Lakers up 69-65 with 11:12 remaining, they went cold from the field and missed 11 straight shots.

Olajuwon had two consecutive hooks and a tap-in in a 13-0 run that put Houston in control.

The Lakers didn't score again until 3:23 remained. Los Angeles almost made up a 10-point deficit in the final 100 seconds, but Drexler made the second of two free throws for a four-point pad with 3-1/2 seconds left.

The Rockets made only two 3-pointers to the Lakers' nine, but they turned the ball over just 10 times and forced Los Angeles into 22 miscues.

Cedric Ceballos scored 22 points, Johnson had 20 and Eddie Jones 19. Nick Van Exel, playing for the first time after a seven-game suspension, went just 1-for-11 from the field.

"We had the shots, but we just didn't knock them down," Johnson said. "He (coach Del Harris) has got me playing something different. It's weird for me. And when I tried to turn it on, it wasn't there."

Knicks 106, Cavaliers 83

The Knicks finished just two 3-pointers short of the NBA record set last year by Houston.

Cleveland chose to double- and triple-team Patrick Ewing in the low post, and that left plenty of open room on the perimeter.

"We've got a lot of guys on this team who can shoot. We made the pass to find the open man, but it's amazing to shoot that percentage," coach Jeff Van Gundy said.

New York outscored Cleveland 37-16 in the fourth quarter and totaled 66 points in the second half against a team that set an NBA record by allowing just 88.5 points a game during the regular season.

Ewing scored 23 points - including the eighth 3-point shot of his playoff career - and John Starks six 3-pointers among his 21 points, Charles Oakley had 17 points and Hubert Davis five treys.

Dan Majerle had 23 points off the bench for Cleveland, which scored just eight points in the last nine minutes.

Jazz 110, Trail Blazers 102

Malone and Stockton kept Utah in charge even though it missed 19 of 48 foul shots.

"If we would have lost this ballgame, I would have felt the worst I've ever felt as a ballplayer, because of all the missed free throws," Malone said.

Homacek had 30 points on 10-of-13 shooting and Stockton's 23 assists were one shy of the NBA playoff record he shares with Magic Johnson.

The Jazz trailed by eight points after three quarters, but outscored the Blazers 37-21 in the final period. Bryon Russell had all 12 of his points in the final period. "In the playoffs you're going to be playing against good people every night and you have to play all 48 minutes," Blazers coach P.J. Carlesimo said.

Hawks 92, Pacers 80

With Miller out with a fractured eye socket, the Pacers did not have a go-to guy in the fourth quarter. It showed, too, as Indiana shot just 4-for-17 and was outscored 24-12 in the period.

Steve Smith scored 27 points, matching his playoff career-high, Christian Laettner added 14 points and Craig Ehlo scored all 12 of his points on 3-pointers in the second quarter.

"They got a lot of offensive rebounds. The beginning of the fourth quarter, we just self-destructed and they took it to us. We took some horrible shots and passed up some good shots," Indiana coach Larry Brown said.

Atlanta had lost its previous 10 games in Market Square Arena.

Padres stay hot with 5th straight win

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Although it's still early, the San Diego Padres already are starting to think this might be a special season.

Playing again without injured Tony Gwynn, the Padres beat Chicago 8-3 Thursday for their fifth straight win. The Cubs lost their sixth in a row.

San Diego, at 15-7, is tied with Montreal for the best record in the majors. The Padres are on their second five-game winning streak of the year; their longest last year was four straight.

"I'd like to feel that feeling at the end of the year, the championship, the World Series," said Ken Caminiti, who singled to start a five-run fifth inning. "All I can do is kind of look at past teams and look at their highlights and watch them celebrating and thinking how it might feel."

In other games, Los Angeles beat Houston 6-4, Montreal beat Cincinnati 8-4, San Francisco defeated Atlanta 8-0, New York stopped St. Louis 9-3, Philadelphia downed Colorado 7-1 and Florida defeated Pittsburgh 4-1.

The Padres have won despite missing Gwynn, who was batting .472 with a .532 on-base average when he was sidelined last week by an inflamed heel. He hopes to return tonight when San Diego continues its 11-game homestand.

San Diego, which has also been playing at times without injured Rickey Henderson, has matched the best start in team history, accomplished in 1984, its only pennant-winning season.

"We're just doing the little things right," said Steve Finley, who scored three times and made a nifty catch in center field. "We're getting guys over, we're getting guys in, we're making the routine play, we're making the non-routine plays."

Bob Tewksbury (3-0), signed to steady a young and talented staff, and two relievers teamed on a five-hitter.

Jim Bullinger became the first Cubs pitcher to hit two home runs in a season since Dennis Eckersley in 1986. He is 5-for-9 with five RBIs.

Dodgers 6, Astros 4

Delino DeShields hit a two-run homer and Mike Piazza drove in three runs to lift Hideo Nomo and Los Angeles.

Piazza had three RBIs for the third straight game and Mike Blowers hit his first National League homer as the Dodgers won their third in a row.

Nomo (3-2), pitching at Dodger Stadium for the first time since his 17-strikeout performance against Florida on April 13, gave up four runs and six hits in seven-plus innings. Todd Worrell got three outs for his fifth save.

Orlando Miller and Jeff Bagwell both hit two-run homers for Houston. Doug Drabek (0-2) was the loser.

Expos 8, Reds 4

Shane Andrews hit his second grand slam of the season and drove in five runs as Montreal won its seventh in a row. Moises Alou homered as the Expos completed an 8-2 homestand and sent Cincinnati to its fifth consecutive loss.

Henry Rodriguez, who had tied an Expos record with home runs in four straight games, went 1-for-4 with a double. Mark Grudzielanek extended his hitting streak to 17 games for Montreal.

Giants 8, Braves 0

Mark Gardner, rescued from the minors by San Francisco, shut out Atlanta on four hits and struck out 11. Gardner (2-0) was in spring training with Florida, but was demoted to the minor leagues. Instead, he exercised an option in his contract to become a free agent and signed with the Giants. Gardner walked none and did not allow a runner past second base in his fifth career shutout.

Tom Lampkin, who missed 17 games with a strained muscle in his right side, hit a three-run homer. Barry Bonds, Robby Thompson and Steve Scarsone hit solo home runs.

Bonds hit his seventh homer of the season and the 299th of his career. Only three major leaguers have 300 homers and 300 stolen bases - his father, Bobby Bonds, Willie Mays and Andre Dawson.

Phillies 7, Rockies 1

Eighth-place hitter Kevin Stocker showed more surprising power with two homers and driving in five runs as Philadelphia won its third in a row.

Stocker, who hit only one home run in 412 at-bats last year, set career highs for homers and RBIs in a game. He began the game with only one homer - Wednesday at Coors Field - and six RBIs this year.

Phillies reliever Ken Ryan struck out five in three hitless innings for his second save.

Mets 9, Cardinals 3

Butch Huskey, Lance Johnson and

Brent Mayne homered as New York scored eight times in the seventh inning at Busch Stadium.

Mayne tied the score with a two-run shot and Johnson hit a three-run drive. Huskey, who hit a team-record nine homers in spring training, hit his first of the regular season.

Jose Vizcaino set a Mets record with his ninth straight hit, breaking the mark of Jerry Grote in 1970 and Keith Hernandez in 1985. Vizcaino got four hits, then struck out in the eighth against reliever Jeff Parrett.

Marlins 4, Pirates 1

Al Leiter pitched shutout ball for 7 2-3 innings and Florida stopped a seven-game losing streak at Three Rivers Stadium. The skid matched the Marlins' longest at any opposing ballpark.

Leiter (4-1) worked around seven walks, allowing four hits. He got all the support he needed when Quilvio Veras hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning. Veras, who led the majors with 56 steals last year, also stole a base.

Rural district planning to pay cash for new building

By JENNY NELSON
Bryan-College Station Eagle MUMFORD, Texas - In the back roads of Robertson County there is a small school with big ideas - and a big savings account.

The community school is located about 30 miles west of Bryan in Mumford and is one of Texas' 54 school districts that only offer classes through the eighth grade. Mumford has 150 students and has been in the same building since 1925.

over the years. "We don't have any excess personnel," said Bienski. "Between myself and my secretary we do everything."

Bienski's wife, Carol, said he is not exaggerating when he says "everything."

"He taught the kitchen staff to cook turkey and dressing for Thanksgiving one year," said Carol Bienski. "He's come home before with burn holes in his pants from popping corn for the kids."

"Mumford Ferry."
 "He would ferry people, their wagons and their animals across the Brazos River for one dollar a trip," said Bienski.

The school was begun in 1917 by the mother of current school board vice-president Frances C. Foyt.

Foyt helped the school district save money by donating land adjacent to the current building for the new school.

"I went to the Mumford School, and my two children went also," said Foyt.

That is about to change. With only 15 staff members and a school board, the school district is tackling a $1 million building project without raising the already low tax rate of $1.14 or having a bond election. They've already paid for the 22,240 square-foot school through a simple idea - saving.

The school secretary, Barbara Brannon, has worked in the school for 17 years. Besides the normal secretarial duties, she acts as school "nurse," attendance clerk, lunchroom record keeper and whatever else falls into her lap.

"I think (the building program) is great," said DeStefano. "It's greater not having to raise taxes."

Bienski said he has must credit to the school trustees for their help in the savings program.

"Some of them don't even have kids here anymore, but they still want to see that the community kids get a good education," Bienski said.

"We've been saving for 19 years to build this school," said Superintendent Pete Bienski. "By practicing good management and doing a lot of the work yourself you can save money."

"I like working with the kids," Brannon said. "It's like I found my niche, and I'll probably stay until I retire."

School trustee Sam Frank DeStefano also graduated from Mumford and has served on the board for 32 years.

Sheryl Pace, senior analyst for the Texas Research League said there are not many small school districts who can save enough money to handle this type of project.

Bienski said the school does fine without such crucial positions as a principal, personnel director, financial director and transportation director.

"In addition to the school board, Bienski credits the community for its support."

"I would have to commend any school district who could do this without raising taxes," said Sheryl Pace, senior analyst for the Texas Research League.

Mumford's 1994-95 TAAS test scores show that they are several points higher than the state average. Mumford's scores were: 82.1 percent in reading, 64 percent in Math and 84.6 percent in writing. The state's average scores are: 76 percent in reading, 60 percent in math and 79 percent in writing.

"It's a small, rural community, and everybody works together and cooperates. That's why this school is still here," said Bienski. "It's survived because the people in the community want it."

Amassing such a surplus is not unprecedented, Bienski said. Other rural schools in recent years have done likewise, he said.

Mumford is a farming community that was founded in 1867 and named after Jesse Mumford who operated

 It is hard to feel individually responsible with respect to the invisible processes of a huge and distant government.

314 Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the Book of Genesis intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times

A BRIDE FOR ISAAC

ABRAHAM, IN HIS DECLINING YEARS, AND AFTER A LIFETIME OF GREAT PROSPERITY IS CONCERNED THAT HIS SON, ISAAC, DOES NOT YET HAVE A WIFE, SO....

...HE SUMMONS HIS TRUSTED SERVANT, ELIEZER....

...NOW, THEREFORE, YOU MUST DO CERTAIN THINGS!

...TO HIS STEWARD, ELIEZER, HE OUTLINES WHAT MUST BE DONE....

YOU MUST GO TO THE LAND OF MY BIRTH AND OBTAIN A WIFE FOR ISAAC!

WHAT IF I CANNOT OBTAIN A MAIDEN WHO IS WILLING TO RETURN HERE AS ISAAC'S WIFE?

ABRAHAM TELLS HIS STEWARD HE WILL BE ABSOLVED OF HIS OATH, IF HE CANNOT FIND A MAID WILLING TO RETURN WITH HIM TO CANAAN, AND NOW, IN THE CUSTOM OF THESE ANCIENT TIMES, ELIEZER SWEARS TO DO ALL THAT ABRAHAM HAS REQUESTED, IN ORDER TO FIND A WIFE FOR ISAAC!

Next Week
TO GO ON A JOURNEY!

Cat in the Hat reigns in San Antonio

By CARY CLACK
San Antonio Express-News
SAN ANTONIO - What's this I see all over town?
Where are my eyes being led?
People almost everywhere,
With Cat in the Hats on their heads.

Though Dr. Seuss is no longer with us,
Having taken the eternal siesta.
Memories of him are all around
On this fun week of Fiesta.

Cat in the Hat mania is spreading.
Forget King Antonio, Rey Feo and Elvis.

This week, the black cat with the funky red bow tie and red-and-white striped stovepipe hat is king.
He's a happening and a phenomenon, an expanding cultural icon with Fiesta as his stage.

As he approaches age 40, the meddlesome cat is enjoying a revival in popularity.

It's a popularity best reflected in the number of Cat in the Hat hats being worn by Fiesta revelers this week.

The tall hat, which resembles a thick peppermint cane, can be seen bobbing through crowds at any of the myriad of events.

Vendors say it is one of their most popular items, with a price that varies in the vicinity of $8.

Nor is it simply a San Antonio thing. Monday night, a vendor near the Hilton Palacio Del Rio who'd just come from Miami said the hats sold like crazy there.

This cat is hot. But why?
On Wednesday, a vendor in Market Square named Lucky attributed its popularity to our childhood nature.

"There's a little kid in all of us," explained Lucky. "We like to fantasize."

He said the hats have been selling well.

As he spoke, Annette Jimenez, a legal secretary who works downtown, came up and asked about the one Cat in the Hat remaining.

"I like the colors and that it's a long hat," said Jimenez, who read Dr. Seuss books as a child.

In Alamo Plaza, Stan Kamden, a tourist from Maryland, wore his Cat in the Hat with a swagger.

Apparently, wearing the hat gives its wearer an attitude.

"Nobody messes with the Cat in the Hat or the Cat with the Hat," Kamden said with bravado.

The Cat is so huge that he's being celebrated in music.

Wednesday night, at Trinity University's Laurie Auditorium, the Chamber Players of The United States Air Force Air Education & Training Command Band of the West, performed "A Cat in the Hat," a musical story.

"It's one of the most recognizable stories," explained Sue Antolini, a French horn player. "I can't think of a child or adult who hasn't read the book."

So the Cat is a star, Celebrated by bands.
But even he can't make me Eat those green eggs and ham.

Dust clouds cause trouble for Arizona DPS

By DAVID L. TEIBEL and ERIC STERN
Tucson Citizen

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - A year after 10 people died and more than 20 were hurt when a blinding dust cloud engulfed Interstate 10 near Bowie, the state still is studying what road improvements could be made to avoid a repeat. Since the disaster, emergency trauma training, but little else, has been started in southern Arizona rural areas.

And Bobby Dirickson from Deming, N.M., who lost two children, April 13, and Brent, 5, in the pileup, said his family will sue Arizona. He would not comment further.

A year ago this month, soil whipped by 60-mph winds blinded drivers on the freeway, causing chain-reaction crashes involving 24 cars and trucks east of Tucson.

A series of four collisions occurred, all in the same general area, according to the state Department of Public Safety.

The closest emergency medical services were in three small communities: Bowie, San Simon and Willcox, which is about 80 miles east of Tucson.

The collision strained the towns' resources as every available medic was thrown into the rescue operation. Medical equipment for a disaster of such magnitude was in short supply, as were hospital beds at Northern Cochise Community Hospital in Willcox, where many of the injured initially were taken.

DPS helicopters flew to the collision scene, their crews braving high winds to carry some of the injured to Tucson's major trauma centers at University Medical Center and Tucson Medical Center.

A project to set up unmanned weather stations near the Bowie-San Simon area that would provide early warnings of dust troubles is being studied. But so far, none of the stations, which would monitor wind direction and velocity, has been set up.

Walter Gray, a Phoenix spokesman for the state Department of Transportation, said another project under study would install electric signs along portions of I-10 in the area to warn motorists of dust storms.

Some additional standard, non-electric signs have been put up along I-10 in dust-prone areas, he noted.

Local emergency service officials have analyzed the medical response in the rural area since the crashes.

Dan Judkins, a registered nurse and trauma coordinator at UMC, was among those who helped look into the medical response.

Recently Judkins said not much more could be done from a medical standpoint should a similar disaster take place in the rural area. "There's really not much of a way to upgrade," he said. "I think they're doing a great job, given the resources they have."

Partly as a result of the crashes, Judkins said UMC and TMC began trauma training programs for rural areas in southern Arizona. The programs are sponsored by the Southern Arizona Trauma Network.

The training, which is for doctors, nurses and emergency medical technicians in such towns as Bowie, San Simon and Willcox, involves simulated trauma situations and treatment exercises.

But, Judkins added, "I don't think any prevention measures have been put in place."

Four months after the Bowie pileup and a week after a 20-car dust storm pileup on I-10 near Marana, various state officials said little could be done statewide to prevent such crashes.

Both the Bowie and Marana wrecks occurred in areas where plowed fields are alongside the interstate.

State officials said it is up to drivers to stay alert and expect the possibility of a dust storm.

But some experts on arid land say the state could reduce the dangers.

Gray said the most serious dust-related crashes occur primarily along I-10 from Phoenix to Tucson and I-8 from Casa Grande to Yuma. I-10 in the Bowie-San Simon area is considered another trouble spot, Gray said.

"But," Gray added, "they can occur anytime, anywhere."

And, reiterating what state officials said last year, he commented last week: "There is not too much you can do about them."

Wayne Coates, a professor in arid lands at the University of Arizona, said soon after the crashes that changing some agricultural practices, such as reducing tilling, or breaking up fields with soil fences or lines of trees to act as wind barriers, could reduce dangers.

Coates, though, said he did not know whether farmers or the state should be responsible for such measures.

Gray responded that trees and fences to protect freeways from dust would be difficult to put in place because it is hard to pinpoint where they should be.

The cost of widespread fencing, he added, would be enormous if the state were to try to protect all 6,000 miles of state highway and 1,100 miles of interstate highway in Arizona.

Not much can be done statewide to prevent dust troubles, agreed Kenneth Foster, University of Arizona Arid Land Studies director. But he said the problem can be reduced on a smaller level.

"There are certainly localized areas that have a history of repeat offenses," he said last week.

He said the Department of Transportation should explore re-vegetation projects with landowners along the highway in those limited areas - foremost with the Bureau of Land Management and other public land agencies.

However, the problems can't always be attributed to dust, Foster said.

Many out-of-state drivers are not familiar with driving during a dust storm, he said. Higher speed limits may also contribute to accidents.

"People just don't have enough time to react," Foster said.

Meanwhile, DPS apparently is keeping an eye on I-10 in the Bowie area. Based on warnings of heavy dust from a DPS officer who was on patrol, the interstate near the town was closed for more than two hours March 29. It was reopened when the dust subsided.

In 1994, the last full year for which figures are available, Gray said 30 dust storm-related collisions took place in Arizona. Fifteen of those collisions caused 24 injuries. There were no deaths.

And the beat goes on -- golf clubs sell for cool million

Sky-high prices continue in Sotheby auction of Kennedy-Onassis belongings

By KAREN MATTHEWS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - A million dollars for golf clubs? Par for the course if they belonged to President Kennedy and Sotheby's sold them.

A set of woods - $772,500 - and a set of irons - $387,500 - topped the sky-high price list Thursday on the third day of the auction house's Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis estate sale.

Earlier, a triple strand of fake pearls that might go for $65 at Macy's sold for $211,500 for the simple reason that a laughing Jacqueline Kennedy was once photographed with her toddler son playfully tugging at the necklace.

It was just another Camelot-crazed sale where items were bought at prices many times their estimated worth. Bids came from all over: Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens phoned in during a game in Boston in an unsuccessful attempt to buy the clubs.

The running total after the third day of the four-day auction was $28,311,666. Sotheby's conservative estimate for the entire auction had been $3.3 million to $4.6 million.

The sale concludes today, when the last thing on the block will be a 1992 BMW sedan.

On Wednesday, the spotlight was on Onassis glitz as a bidder - later identified as J.F. O'Reilly, chairman and chief executive officer of H.J. Heinz Co. - paid $2.59 million for a 40-carat diamond ring given by Aristotle Onassis to his bride.

On Thursday night, the attention turned to the golf clubs and three of Mrs. Onassis' hunting saddles.

An anonymous client bidding over the telephone paid $772,500 for a set of MacGregor woods, and an anonymous bidder in the room paid $387,500 for a set of Ben Hogan Power Thrust irons. Each set was in a golf bag inscribed "JFK Washington, D.C."

Two individual putters sold for $65,750 and $63,000 each.

Sotheby's presale estimate was $700 to $900 for the irons, the same for the woods and $200 to $300 each for the putters.

Clemens, an avid golfer and fan of the late president, wasn't scheduled to pitch Thursday and got permission to call in from the team doctor's office. His top bid reached $121,000, far short of the winning bids.

"My pulse was racing," Clemens said. "They told me there were 11 guys left and then it just went like Dorothy's house falling out of the sky."

In other bidding wars, Mrs. Onassis' saddles, estimated at $300 to $500 each, sold for $90,500, $46,000 and $34,500.

During the morning session, costume jewelry pieces like glass bead necklaces and fake diamond brooches were sold for thousands of dollars each.

The Franklin Mint, which makes collectibles, bought the $211,500 faux pearls worn by Jackie in a 1962 photo of her with a young John F. Kennedy Jr. The necklace, estimated to sell at about $600, will be displayed in the company's museum in suburban Philadelphia. A company spokesman said there are no plans to reproduce it.

With nostalgia raising prices exponentially, many walked away empty-handed.

Linda Dyer, president of Finishing Touches, a girls' etiquette school with branches in eight states, came prepared to bid as much as $2,500 for a piece of history.

Dyer thought $2,500 "was more than realistic, but who knew. ... My little bubble is burst."

Sotheby's based its presale estimates on the intrinsic value of the objects - few of which were antiques or unusual works of art - rather than on who owned them. The prices include Sotheby's commission, which is 15 percent of the first $50,000 and 10 percent of anything above that amount.

Mrs. Onassis died in 1994. Her will directed her children, Caroline

Kennedy Schlossberg and John F. Kennedy Jr., and the John F. Kennedy Library in Boston, to choose whatever they wanted from her possessions, then sell the rest. Proceeds were to go to her estate.

Artist of Year honor at Dove Awards ceremony proves there's room for new in gospel music

By JIM PATTERSON

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - dc Talk is proof there's room in gospel music for something new, as the twentysomething trio won artist of the year at the Gospel Music Association's 27th Annual Dove Awards.

The band, which started in rap music and still incorporates it into its mix of rock and R&B, also won best rock recorded song Thursday night for "Jesus Freak."

"We thank God for just helping us to get to the place where the kids are, and pointing kids to God," band member Toby McKeehan said at the ceremony from the Grand Ole Opry House.

McKeehan, Kevin Smith and Michael Tait became the first group to win the top prize since the Imperials in 1981.

Since then, a series of baby boomers claimed the best artist prize, including five-time winner Sandi dc Talk beat out four other nominees for the top award, including Chapman and ceremony host Michael W. Smith.

From its beginnings as a rap band, dc Talk turned into a versatile and wildly popular group that jumps from ballads to hip-hop to hard rock, sometimes mixing all three.

In other major awards, Gary Chapman won best male vocalist, and CeCe Winans best female vocalist. Best new artist was Jars of Clay.

Point of Grace won best group, and picked up three other awards honoring its song "The Great Divide," album "The Whole Truth" and its participation in the best special event album, "My Utmost for His Highest."

"Jesus Freak" won best song, with the award going to writers McKeehan and Mark Heimermann.

Anointed won three Doves, including best contemporary album for "The Call."

Balloting for the awards is done by the GMA's 5,500 voting members.
