Research on sugar beets

Castro County sugar beet growers Coby and Matt Gilbreath work with Giovanni Piccinni, TAES plant physiologist, on research to determine efficient center pivot irrigation methods. Here, they use a Hydroprobe Moisture Gauge to determine exact soil moisture content. The research is partially funded by the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association checkoff program and Holly Sugar.

Irrigation research on beets may prove vital to all farmers in area

When Castro County farmer Coby Gilbreath talks with "old timers" who have seen droughts that rival the past year's, he hears one lasting statement: "We're giving away our water."
So it's no wonder irrigation research on his sugar beets - which indicates early that he can produce a good crop while using 50 percent less water - has him even more confident in the sweet crop his family has grown for years. And, the use of less water also may also reduce root diseases.
Gilbreath and his brother, Matt, farm corn, cotton, wheat and sugar beets southeast of Dimmitt. When they installed center pivot irrigation several years ago, their aim was to improve irrigation efficiency.
"We had to get more out of our water sources," says Gilbreath. He added that they worked directly with Dr. Leon New, Texas Agricultural Extension Service(TAEX), to develop the right pivot system for their farm.
"That's why we were eager to work closely with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station(TAES) in these new studies to determine the reaction of sugar beets to various rates and types of irrigation."

The sugar beet studies, supported by funding from the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association checkoff and Holly Sugar Corp. in Hereford, involve nine separate irrigation patterns in 32 plots on about 40 sugar beet acres that followed corn, says Giovanni Piccinni, TAES plant physiologist.
Other TAES researchers on the project include Dr. Charlie Rush, plant pathologist. New, a TAEX engineer, coordinated the irrigation set ups. Holly field agriculturalists are also monitoring the progress of the research.
The beets were pre-irrigated and planted in late March. They were periodically irrigated in June and July and the field received 3 1/2 in. of rain during that time period. "These fields received no precipitation the year preceding rains that finally came in June," noted Gilbreath.

Wells feeding the pivot system can pump up to 800 gallons per minute. Irrigation drop tubes are spaced 60 in. apart. Most are fitted with various types of low pressure nozzles situated about 2 1/2 feet above ground. One portion under test is a true Low energy Precision Application(LEPA) system with perforated LEPA "socks" which drag in beet furrows for maximum water distribution, says Piccinni.
"Our objective is to provide information to help growers save water, save money and reduce soil borne diseases," he says.
"Some of the plots are being watered at the full 800 gpm rate, some at 600 gpm and some at 400 gpm. In each case, we are measuring plant growth, as well as the soil water content to learn which irrigation method is most efficient."
Final study results won't be available until after harvest. However, initial results on July 31 (See IRRIGATION, Page 2A)

Full week of activities planned for T&C Jubilee

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor
With the sizzle of meat on the grill, the 1996 Town and Country Jubilee was scheduled to kick off Saturday night with the seventh annual Beef Fajita Cookoff sponsored by the Hereford Cattlewomen.
With a theme of "Orchestrating the Future," the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce has lined up a full week of activities that will culminate next Saturday with the Jubilee Parade and Jubilee Junction.
In addition, several classes of Hereford High School graduates will return home for their class reunions. Groups scheduled include the classes of 1961, 1966, 1971 and 1976.
On Friday and Saturday, local merchants will have their day in the sun -- literally -- as a city-wide sidewalk sale is scheduled.
Local retail merchants will offer a wide variety of merchandise at bargain prices for those days.
In addition, the retail merchants are sponsoring a drawing for tickets to the Dallas Cowboys game against the Arizona Cardinals on Oct. 13. The prize includes round-trip airfare on Southwest Airlines.
Anyone can sign up at any of the participating merchants during the sidewalk sale.
The winner of the trip will be announced on Monday, Aug. 12.
Also Friday, the Hereford Riders Club will kick off a full weekend of rodeo activities.
On Friday, a team roping competition will be held at 7 p.m., followed at the same time on Saturday by a Cowboy Rodeo. Events will conclude at 3 p.m. Sunday with a play day.
Wednesday, it's produce time, as the Chamber hosts its regular weekly Farmer's Market in the Family Dollar parking lot at Park Avenue and U.S. 385. It begins at 5 p.m. with local producers offering a variety of items for sale.
Saturday will be the big event of the entire Jubilee Week, with festivities beginning at 8 a.m. and ending more than 12 hours later.
The Greg Black Memorial 10K, 2 mile fun run and 2 mile walk will begin at 8 a.m. at the YMCA on East 15th Street.
Signups are being accepted in advance at the YMCA or the Chamber offices, 701 N. Main. The runs are sponsored by the YMCA, Hereford Cablevision and Plains Insurance.
At 10:30 a.m., the Jubilee Parade will march out from Hereford High School.

As of Thursday, more than two dozen entries have been entered in the parade, which will travel south on Avenue F to Park Avenue, then west to Main Street and south to downtown.
The parade is sponsored by the Whiteface Kiwanis Club.
This year, judges will review the entries at 9 a.m. Saturday and will award large blue ribbons to the winning entries in several categories.
Immediately following the parade, action shifts to Dameron Park for Jubilee Junction.
There, local entertainers will take the stage to perform and non-profit organizations will offer a tantalizing variety of food choices for sale, and will have games to skill and luck to test your mettle.

Entertainment is being coordinated by Connie Walker and the Country Opry and everyone is invited to bring a lawn chair to the park and enjoy the music.
At the same time as the Jubilee Junction, the Hereford Pilot Club will sponsor its Jubilee of Arts from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Community Center. Craftsmen from Texas and New Mexico will be on hand to show their wares.
The Hereford Senior Citizens Center also will get into the action with their annual Quilt Show, which begins with registration from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Friday.
The show will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday in the senior center auditorium, 426 Ranger.
And, just when you think the day just can't be any more festive, golfers (See JUBILEE, Page 2A)

School registration will be held this week

Registration for the 1996-97 Hereford ISD school year will be held beginning this week on the various school campuses.
Hereford High School students must pick up their schedules at the high school on Wednesday, Thursday or Friday.
The school will be open from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.
Fines must be paid and immunization records up to date before schedules may be picked up.
Registration for kindergarten through sixth grade will be held at the six elementary campuses on Tuesday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Kindergarten students who pre-registered in May do not need to register at this time.
Parents of kindergarten or first grade students entering the district for the first time should bring proof of age, immunization records and the child's Social Security number.
Pre-kindergarten class registration will be held on Aug. 6 in the Stanton Educational Support Center, 711 E. Park, between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m.
Pre-kindergarten classes are half-day sessions, with morning classes from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and afternoon classes from 11:55 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.
Breakfast and lunch will be provided for the morning classes, while lunch will be provided for students in the afternoon classes.

To be eligible for pre-kindergarten classes, the child's family must meet free or reduced lunch guidelines or limited English proficiency guidelines.
There will be an orientation meeting on Aug. 13 and 15 at Hereford Junior High School for students who will be in seventh and eighth grades and their parents.
The meeting for seventh graders and their parents will be at 7 p.m. Aug. 13, while the session for parents of eighth graders will be at 7 p.m. on Aug. 15.
Parents or guardians may pick up their child's schedule at that time. Schedules will not be given out to students who do not have a parent or guardian at the meeting.
All remaining seventh and eighth grade students may pick up their schedules on Aug. 16 between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.
Parents registering any student new to the Hereford ISD should bring all available educational records, proof of age, immunization records and the child's Social Security number to their school.
Bus information will be available at registration.
Parents having questions or needing additional information should contact their child's assigned campus.

Local youth group shares memories of mission trip to Atlanta Olympics

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer
In a few days the 1996 Olympics games will be a memory, but for the youth group of First Baptist Church of Hereford, the memories of their mission trip will last forever.
The group went to Atlanta as part of the Lay Witnesses for Christ International's "Reach Out '96, Atlanta Olympics."
At different Olympic venues and shopping centers around Atlanta, the group passed out tracts that included guides to Olympic games and the city of Atlanta to spectators, performed puppet acts, and participated in drama, vocal and band presentations.
"The people were very receptive of the tracts and what we had to share," Doris Huckert, an adult sponsor, said.
"On the whole," she said, "the people were very friendly, especially foreigners."
Several spectators could not believe that youth would give up part of their summer to share Christ,

Karen Smith said. "It surprised them."
The group also heard the gospel in testimonies given by athletes at "More than Gold" rallies. Speakers included Andre Bryant, Omalade Akinremi, Gus Envela, Joe DeLoach, Tracy Baskin, Linda Tolbert, Clyde Duncan Jr., Christy Akinremi, Madeline Manning Mims and Chandra Cheesborough.
At the first rally held at New Hope Baptist Church in Fayetteville, Ga., the group witnessed God's strength when Lee Haney, trainer for former Olympic boxer Evander Holyfield and himself a former Mr. Olympia, gave his testimony.
"I didn't even know he was a Christian," Seth Pietsch said. "It was amazing to see one of my idols giving testimony."
For Bonnie Wuerflein, an adult sponsor, the rallies changed her stereotype of famous athletes.
"I never thought of athletes as being anyone who didn't think of anyone else but themselves."
"I was so impressed by the warmth and oneness that they share as Christians," she said.

The group also attended a rally at Greenforest Baptist Church in Decatur, Ga., where the church's "Reach Out '96 Singers" performed.
The church had a three-story choir loft and hundreds of singers, FBC Youth Director Jacob Brewer said.
"It was like you were in heaven," he said.
The group attended the USA vs. Japan's men's baseball game.
After standing in line for hours, they found out the game was sold out, but were able to get in after 200 additional tickets were made available.
"God rewarded us with the baseball game," Pietsch said.
At that game, two Olympic records were set -- the American team hit the greatest number of home runs ever in one inning, five, and the Hereford representatives were among a crowd of 54,823 people, the most ever to attend an Olympic baseball game.

The group, except for Clay Cosby, left Atlanta Friday morning. They were in Garland when they heard of the bombing in Centennial Olympic Park.
"Almost all of us were in the spot where the bomb went off at some time or another," Kyle Goldsmith said. "The thing that really hit me hard was the blessing that God gave the whole youth group. God was with us and really blessed us."
"When it happened, I wondered if we worked hard enough to reach the people with Christ's love," Jodi Wilburn said.
"God protected us," Mrs. Wuerflein said.
Clay Cosby was not in Centennial Park when the bomb went off. However, he was in the area the next day.
"You could go around the streets and hear more about the U.S. women's gymnastics team winning a gold medal than (about) the (See BAPTIST, Page 2A)

Sharing Olympic memories
Jacob Brewer, right, youth director at First Baptist Church, looks over some of the Olympic pins collected by Clay Cosby during a recent trip to Atlanta. Cosby, son of church pastor Terry Cosby, was part of a group led by Brewer that participated in a mission program in Atlanta. Cosby and his father remained to attend some Olympic sporting events after the rest of the group returned home.

Local Roundup

School budget session set

The Hereford Independent School District board of trustees will meet in their third special budget workshop session at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the HISD board room, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue. Trustees are continuing to search for cuts in the 1996-97 school year budget, which must be approved by Aug. 31. No action is scheduled Tuesday. The meeting is open to the public.

HEDC schedules meeting

The Hereford Economic Development Corp. board will meet at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in the City Commission Chambers, 224 N. Lee. The board will face a five-item agenda, which includes consideration and approval of the HEDC 1996-97 budget and a request for the purchase of a computer for the HEDC office. In addition, the board will consider a request from the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Board for funds to promote increased sugar beet production in the area. The session is open to the public.

Obituaries

TERESA SCHLABS Aug. 3, 1996

Teresa Schlabs, 91, died Saturday in her home 13.5 miles southwest of Hereford.

Rosary will be Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Rose Chapel at Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home. Services will be conducted Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in St. Anthony's Catholic Church with Msgr. Orville Blum, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in St. Anthony's Catholic Cemetery.

Mrs. Schlabs was born April 10, 1905 in Crownpoint, Ind. She married August G. Schlabs in 1929 at Vernon. She was a homemaker and had lived in the Hereford area since 1941. She was a member of Christian Mothers.

Survivors include her husband; three sons, Raymond, Charles and Edmund, all of Hereford; one brother, Charles Heck of Dalhart; six sisters, Josephine Feelings of Tulsa, Justine McCurry, Doris Burges and Clesta Huber of Amarillo, Martina Milward of San Antonio and Imelda Cook of Pontiac, Mich.; 11 grandchildren and 37 great-grandchildren.

The family requests memorials to St. Anthony's School Endowment Fund.

BILL HARRELL JORDAN Aug. 1, 1996

Bill Harrell Jordan, 71, of Amarillo, died Thursday.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Monday in Memorial Chapel of Blackburn-Shaw Funeral Directors with the Rev. Charles Strickland, pastor of Bolton Street Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery in Hereford.

Mr. Jordan was a native of Quinlan but spent most of his life in Amarillo and Lubbock. He was an Army veteran of World War II. He had been self employed in the service station business and the food industry in the Amarillo area. He owned B.J.'s Bar-B-Q at the time of his death.

Survivors include his wife, Mary; a son, Coy Wakefield of Tyler; two sisters, Illa Inman of Hereford and Beth McIntire of Amarillo, a brother, L.C. Jordan of Gun Barrel City; and four grandchildren.

Bill to protect drinking water clears Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)--President Clinton is expected to sign legislation that would provide communities with millions of additional dollars for protecting drinking water.

The legislation, view by many as the most significant environmental measure enacted by the 104th Congress, cleared both the House and Senate on Friday by wide margins.

"Public health protection has been strengthened," declared Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., chairman of the Environmental Committee, which crafted the legislation in the Senate.

Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Carol Browner called it "a major step forward in ensuring safer drinking water for all Americans" and said many of its provisions had been sought by the administration. Clinton has said he would sign the bill.

Approved 392-30 by the House, it zipped through the Senate, 98-0, less than two hours later.

The bill creates a $7.6 billion revolving loan fund - authorizing about $1 billion a year for seven years - on which local water agencies would be able to draw to improve decaying municipal and rural water systems.

While it's not yet certain how much money Congress actually will appropriate each year, the new revolving fund will significantly increase money available for repairing deteriorating water systems.

The legislation also calls for providing people more information about the water they drink.

Thornberry tests law on use of campaign funds

WASHINGTON (AP)--Texas Rep. William "Mac" Thornberry is the latest lawmaker to test the newly defined bounds of a federal law forbidding the use of campaign funds to cover lawmakers' personal expenses.

Thornberry, R-Clarendon, wants to take his wife and children to the Republican National Convention and pay their way out of campaign coffers, claiming all of them - even his 4-year-old daughter, Mary - are "an integral part" of his re-election campaign.

The Federal Election Commission, charged with enforcing the law, has traditionally been reluctant to draw the line between which expenses are personal and which are political.

Facing complaints that lawmakers were buying fur coats, golf club memberships and fancy cars with their campaign funds, the election commission wrote new rules in April 1995 to clarify what's allowed.

Fur coats are out; cars used for campaign business are in, with some restrictions.

Still, there's plenty of room for debate. Several lawmakers have asked whether they could pay the way for family or staff members attending the convention, and so far the commissioners have said yes.

Thornberry argues that Mary, her 7-year-old brother Will and their mother should be considered part of his campaign, noting that they all appear in his TV commercials and brochures.

"Running for Congress involves all members of my family and I believe my children are an integral part of my campaign effort," he wrote. "They are not old enough to be attending events on their own but they will attend with my wife and me."

Thornberry's press secretary, Lou Zickar, said Friday he didn't know what sort of events the children would attend.

The more important issue is allowing the family to spend time together, he said.

"At the end of the day when you quit campaigning and go back to your room it's nice to have your family there," Zickar said.

But Meredith McGehee, legislative director of the reform group Common Cause, questioned why money contributed to help a member of Congress get elected should be used to pay for children's travel to another state.

"In my view most people would find it a little difficult to see what the roles of a 4- and 7-year-old are at a political convention," she said.

"It's good for members to spend time with their children, absolutely," McGehee said. "But that's not the purpose of campaign funds."

Boost for irrigation

Coby Gilbreath, area sugar beet grower, is participating in a study aimed at obtaining maximum beet irrigation efficiency. Here, he moves a LEPA irrigation drop tube used in the research program.

IRRIGATION

indicated that beets irrigated at the 400 gpm, or 50 percent watering rate, were performing just as well as beets receiving the full irrigation. The soil moisture was virtually the same at 3-feet to 6-feet depths under both irrigation levels, said Piccinni.

"Before, we have seen beet crops that have yielded about 30 tons per acre with a full application of about 30 inches of water," says Gilbreath. "We haven't been able to duplicate those type results in recent years."

"By adapting our program to findings we're seeing in this new study, we feel we can grow a high yielding and higher quality crop using much less water--and that's our main goal."

Piccinni notes that using less water can help growers lower disease problems, namely Rhizoctonia and Rhizomania. "The wetter a beet field, the more susceptible it is to these root diseases," he said. "Consequently, when some growers see plants that are wilting, they automatically think the field is too dry when it may actually be a root disease. When they put on more water, they actually promote more disease."

"We're trying to find the appropriate irrigation level to help growers minimize the effects of these soil borne diseases, as well as maximize yields."

Of the various nozzling techniques, Piccinni says the LEPA is likely the best at helping growers obtain maximum watering efficiency, as well as the best foliar disease control.

"With the above-ground nozzles, there could be cases in which fungicide or other chemicals used to control diseases are washed off, leaving plants more open to foliar disease spread," he says. "But with LEPA socks, the water goes directly into the furrow and doesn't touch the leaves."

LEPA irrigation is rated at about 98 percent efficient because there is little chance for evaporation. Gilbreath normally uses the above-ground nozzles, which themselves are highly efficient at 95 percent or more.

"We installed them because there is more flexibility in applying fertilizer and chemicals on corn, cotton and other crops that may also be grown under the same pivot that is watering beets," he says. "Whether we're using LEPA or the low pressure nozzles, we're still receiving highly efficient irrigation."

Gilbreath stresses that the irrigation studies confirm his belief that sugar beets are a highly efficient cash crop.

"More than likely, our water table will continue to go down," he says. "So we need to determine which crops can get the best use of the water we have available under full or limited irrigation."

"This research and other on-farm situations are showing us that sugar beets are definitely a good alternative crop that will help us stretch our water."

bombing," Cosby said. "I think the media made a bigger deal of it."

Clay Cosby and his father, the Rev. Terry Cosby, First Baptist Church pastor, watched Gail Devers win gold in the 100 meter dash.

"When she won, the crowd went wild. They chanted 'USA, USA, USA,'" he said.

The younger Cosby said he could not explain his feelings during Devers' medal ceremony.

"You have to be there to witness it to really feel it," he said.

In the track and field competitions, Clay Cosby said it was hard to watch three events simultaneously.

The two Cosbys also attended the Cuba vs. Nicaragua baseball game, South Korea vs. Zaire basketball game, Ukraine vs. Cuba basketball game and USA vs. Russia team handball game.

While all the games were good, Cosby's favorite games featured the American athletes.

"It's not quite as exciting to watch other countries compete as it is to watch the USA compete," he said.

Clay Cosby met nearly 40 athletes, including Jon Olsen, Olympic gold medalist in the 400 meter swim relay and Josh Davis, Olympic gold medalist in the 400 and 800 meter freestyle relays.

Cosby got his picture taken with Davis and his wife Shantel, who is a Hereford High School graduate and daughter of Darlene and Donnie Cornelius of Hereford.

Cosby also saw President Bill Clinton pass by an Olympic venue. As a hobby, Cosby has collected more than 100 Olympic games pins during the past three years. The pins range in value from $5 to hundreds of dollars.

"Everyone in Atlanta had a pin on," he said.

Gingrich snubs Combest for ag panel chairmanship

WASHINGTON (AP)--House Speaker Newt Gingrich is dangling the House Agriculture Committee chairmanship in front of a former Oregon congressman - bypassing the Texan expected to be next in line for the plum job, according to a letter obtained Friday by The Associated Press.

Rep. Larry Combest, a six-term Republican lawmaker from Lubbock, said he was "baffled" that Gingrich would make such a commitment without talking to him first. If re-elected, Combest would be the most senior of returning Republicans now serving on the committee.

After being read the letter, Combest said: "That is very surprising to me that they would send a letter without even talking to me."

Gingrich and other GOP leaders are pressuring embattled Rep. Wes Cooley to resign and are urging the man who held Cooley's seat for 12 years - Republican Bob Smith - to run again. The party is fearful of a Democratic victory if Cooley runs again. In recent months, Cooley has battled allegations that he lied about his past, his war record and his marriage.

The highly unusual chairmanship offer is an attempt to make a return to Capitol Hill more desirable to Smith, who retired in 1994 and returned to Oregon for a lucrative career as a political consultant.

Contacted at his firm Friday, Smith said he still had not decided whether he would enter the race if Cooley steps aside - but said Gingrich's support would factor heavily in his decision. "I'm honored that the leadership would, should I run, reinstate my tenure, my seniority," he said. "That is a coup for Oregon."

In the letter dated Wednesday, Gingrich stated his unequivocal support for the former congressman. "As chairman of the Steering Committee which makes the nominations and speaking for the leadership, I will recommend you for the chairmanship of the House Agriculture Committee should you be a member of the 105th Congress," he wrote.

Even the language barrier didn't stop people from trading pins. He said people would point to a pin to signal a trade.

He said popular pins include ones that depict the Olympic torch; Varsity, the world's largest drive-in; sponsor pins such as Kodak, Swatch and Coca Cola; and pins from bid cities, which are seeking to host future Olympic games.

Olympic torch pins have top trading value with athletes, he said.

For everyone on the trip, the most rewarding part of the mission was the personal satisfaction of sharing Christ with those attending the Olympics.

"It's an awesome feeling to know that you have touched so many lives," Jessica Wuerflin said.

Car owners hot about short supply of Freon

HOUSTON (AP)--An estimated 30 million car owners across the United States have to deal with dwindling supplies of Freon, a popular refrigerant that comes in handy during long, hot Texas summers.

Freon, also known as R-12, can no longer be manufactured in the United States or imported because it is thought to destroy the Earth's ozone layer.

The retail price has zoomed to $25 to $35 per pound, including the markup of shops that install it.

This could mean using $105 worth of Freon if an "O" ring has failed and the air conditioning system needs to be completely refilled. The total job could run $150, compared with $29 or $30 a couple of years ago.

People who haven't had their air conditioners worked on in the last three years are "just shocked," Oscar Arce, owner of an air conditioning shop, told the Houston Chronicle.

For those who don't want to pay that kind of price and insist on staying cool on the freeway, there are two options.

They can do a potentially expensive conversion to the R-134a coolant used in new cars. This coolant can be bought without a license for as little as $3 a pound.

Another option is to search out a mechanic who will install one of the new alternates to Freon and make some changes needed in the air conditioning system for that coolant.

A 30-pound cylinder of Freon now costs $556, Arce said. During a period in May when buyers were panicking, the price went up on almost a daily basis. A hefty federal tax is part of that cost.

About 3 1/2 years ago, a 30-pound cylinder of Freon of the type used by shops could be purchased for $29, Arce said.

An official of the Hi-Lo auto parts chain predicts that the 30-pound cylinders eventually will sell for $800.

Many owners of cars older than two or three years want to know how long Freon will be available, and at what price.

Wayne Herndon of North Richland Hills, president of the International Mobile Air Conditioning Association, said the group at its last convention forecast that the supply will be adequate in 1997, but 1998 will be a different story.

The Freon supply shrank quicker than expected, causing prices to zoom and tempers to overheat.

One factor has been the stocking-up by the big auto manufacturers trying to make sure that their dealers won't run out while there are cars still under warranty, Herndon said.

Freon is still the most important auto refrigerant, outselling the R-134a used in new cars by a ratio of three-to-one.

Meanwhile, the price of Freon has stabilized, at least for now. The retail price during the past 30 days has been basically flat.

Some car owners have had their air conditioners modified to use the R-134a refrigerant that was factory-installed in new vehicles starting in 1993 and 1994.

The cost of such retrofits can range from more than $1,000 to as low of $30, depending upon how many parts are replaced and how much work is done.

Arce's advice to car owners is to wait until something major like a compressor breaks before making any change to R-134a.

Home-based business seminar set Aug. 20-21

A home based business seminar, "There's No Business Like Home Business," will be conducted Aug. 20-21 by the Potter-Randall County Extension Office.

It will be held at the Texas AM Research Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd. West.

The conference will feature in-depth sessions led by speakers with diverse expertise and experience to offer information related to home based businesses.

Topics will include Choosing the Perfect Business; Marketing Your Craft; Creating and Marketing Your Own Business; Financial Essentials for Small Business Success; Internet 101; and Mastering Your Home Based Business.

The conference will open at 6 p.m. on Aug. 20 with a Taste of Texas Reception and Resource Fair. Concurrent sessions on two topics will begin at 7 p.m. The schedule Aug. 21 starts at 9 a.m. with the opening session on Creating and Marketing Your Own Business. Concurrent sessions will be held from 1:30 to 3 and from 3:15 to 4:45 p.m.

The Potter-Randall Extension Office is presenting the seminar in cooperation with Southwestern Public Service, Texas Comptroller's office, Texas Department of Agriculture, West Texas A&M University Small Business Development Center, and WTA&M Department of Management, Marketing and General Business.

Representatives from local and regional agencies will be at the Resource Fair, from 6 to 7 p.m. on Aug. 20 and from noon to 1:30 p.m. on Aug. 21. Agencies represented will include Amarillo Public Library, Panhandle Home Based Business Association, Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts, and WTA&M Small Business Development Center.

Registration will be $10 per session, $12 at the door, or $25 for entire conference. For more information, call 806-373-0713 or the local county extension office.

School performance ratings listed

AUSTIN (AP)--More schools and more school districts ranked higher in this year's annual rating of their performance, the Texas Education Agency reported Friday.

The TEA also said fewer schools and districts fell into the low-performing category.

"The news that we have, I think, is generally good," Education Commissioner Mike Moses said before cautioning: "We can certainly not declare victory today."

"We can certainly not say that we have achieved all we want to achieve. But we can say that Texas schools are continuing to improve and do better," Moses said.

AUSTIN (AP) - Here, in alphabetical order, are some of the area school districts rated by the Texas Education Agency as 'E' for exemplary; 'L' for low performing; 'Y' for delayed rating, 'P' for alternative education districts, 'N' for not rated and 'R' for recognized.

The agency listed 785 school districts -- including the Hereford Independent School District -- as acceptable:

|----------------------|---|
| ADRIAN ISD | E |
| BOVINA ISD | L |
| BOYS RANCH ISD | R |
| FARWELL ISD | R |
| PAMPA ISD | R |
| PANHANDLE ISD | R |
| SPRINGLAKE-EARTH ISD | R |
| WALCOTT ISD | R |

AUSTIN (AP) - Here, in alphabetical order, are the Deaf Smith County campuses rated as recognized by the Texas Education Agency. Schools are listed by their names, as given by the TEA, and the districts in which they operate:

|--------------------|--------------|
| AIKMAN ELEMENTARY | HEREFORD ISD |
| WALCOTT ELEMENTARY | WALCOTT ISD |

The ratings are based on student performance in the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills tests, dropout rates and attendance during the past school year.

To rate "acceptable," campuses and districts needed at least 30 percent of all students and those in each student group (African American, Hispanic, white and economically disadvantaged) passing each subject on the TAAS test. They also needed a dropout rate of 6 percent or less and a 94 percent or higher attendance mark.

Moses said the TAAS passing mark was raised this year to 30 percent of students from 25 percent last year.

For the top ranking, "exemplary," schools and districts needed at least 90 percent passing the TAAS and a dropout rate of 1 percent or less.

"I'm very pleased that we had fewer schools rated low-performing when we raised the TAAS standards," he said. "Our challenge is to continue that improvement."

The TEA rated a total of 6,359 campuses and 1,044 districts.

According to agency, 380 campuses earned the highest ranking during the past academic year. That's up from 255 last year.

Another 1,283 campuses were rated as recognized, the second-highest. That's up from 1,004 last year.

Both are records in the four-year history of the Texas school accountability system.

The figures showed 124 campuses in the low-performing category, a drop of more than 50 percent from the 267 schools so rated last year.

A total of 4,043 schools, down from 4,347, were ranked as acceptable.

What are the secrets to success in business and in life? There are no secrets--the principles are so simple that we put them on posters and buttons, and we repeat them in speeches and how-to books.

Understanding the principles of success is easy, says Dave Thomas, but living them is hard.

Thomas opened the first Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburger restaurant in 1969 and established the Wendy's franchise in 1973. Today there are more than 5,000 Wendy's restaurants throughout the world earning $5 billion annually.

"Success comes through doing the right things--developing proper skills, attitudes, and values," Thomas told an audience of 1,600 students and guests during a seminar at Hillsdale College in March.

"Looking at this from a hamburger cook's perspective, I have come to identify 12 ingredients for success," says Thomas. "We call them character traits, or values or virtues. People have been listing them ever since the Bible was written--and even before."

Thomas' list is divided into four basic groups:

Inward--these have to do with getting your own act together with honesty, faith and discipline.

An AP news analysis Dole has chances to bounce back

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)--What Bob Dole needs now is a bounce.

And the next two weeks are prime time for the Republican challenger to try to demonstrate that he can rebound against President Clinton's double-digit leads in public opinion polls. Those margins are reflected in state surveys that show Clinton comfortably ahead for more than the 270 electoral votes that will choose a president on Nov. 5.

Summertime polls can't measure an autumn outcome, but they do point to the trend, and Clinton has been preferred by margins of 15 to more than 20 points in nearly 50 different national surveys over the past three months.

Dole's high-visibility opportunities to crack that pattern are just ahead:

--His long-promised, long-delayed economic program, with a promise of more than $500 billion in tax cuts over the next six years. He said that will help explain to the voters "precisely where I'm coming from, what I believe in and what I will pursue as president of the United States."

--His choice of a vice presidential nominee, although none of the names on his known prospect list, now up to nine, would come with the national standing to alter the race. Vice presidential candidates rarely do; Colin Powell might have been an exception, but he's not available.

--His Republican National Convention, the four-day show in San Diego that formally bestows the nomination Dole won 4 1/2 months ago. While modern conventions are scripted presentations, with known nominees and few surprises, they always provide a boost in the polls, although how much and how long has varied.

When President Bush was renominated four years ago, a series of before and after convention polls showed him narrowing the margins by which Clinton was rated the leader. But the bounce faded quickly.

That's not unusual. Jimmy Carter emerged from the 1976 Democratic convention leading the polls by margins approaching two to one, but barely beat President Ford in that election. Michael Dukakis got a hefty boost and a double-digit poll lead out of Democratic convention in 1988. But Bush got his own bounce at the Outward--these are all about treating people right through caring teamwork and support.

Upward--these are skills you need to know if you want to go beyond just doing an okay job and really excel. That takes motivation, creativity and leadership.

Onward--these are attitudes you need to put yourself second and other people first. Thomas thinks these values may be the toughest and the most rewarding, and the values are responsibility, courage and generosity.

And, as a self-described hamburger cook, Thomas adds to these ingredients some pickles and onions as "toppings" for success:

--Anything is possible within the laws of God and man.

--You can't cut corners on quality.

--Give back--early and often.

--When you help someone, you really help yourself.

--Pay attention to the basics.

--You can't make much progress walking forward if you don't keep your balance, and that means balance in every part of your life.

--Have a sense of urgency about most things you do, and you won't end up as the caboose.

--Focus on only one thing at a time, and on just a few things in a lifetime.

--Don't waste time trying to do things you know nothing about. Either learn the basics or steer clear.

--Remember that life is short and fragile. Live it as if you don't know if your going to be around for the next breath.

--Don't take people--or their freedom--for granted.

--Be yourself--don't take yourself too seriously.

--Do the right thing--even when it may seem like the hardest thing in the world.

--Put more into life than you get out of it.

(Thomas' speech is reprinted, in part, by permission from IMPRIMIS, the monthly journal of Hillsdale College.)

GOP convention, overtook Dukakis in the polls, and won the election easily.

In this campaign, Clinton and the Democrats will have the last convention word, just before Labor Day. That could change the pollsters' numbers again.

Dole and the Republicans are trying to manage their convention so as to break the pattern of Clinton leads that has led to GOP worries that the ticket could be a drag in congressional and state contests, open criticism of the candidate's campaign performance, and even far-out suggestions by conservative commentators that the nomination winner should withdraw to let the party run somebody else.

Stalled in the campaign and snarled by Democratic tactics in the Senate, Dole had tried to break through earlier with the drama of his resignation as majority leader of the Senate from Kansas. But that didn't deliver the boost his partisans said it would.

Their explanation now is that Dole had to withstand a battering Republican contest for the nomination, while Clinton got a free ride, unopposed, leaving him able to far outpace his challenger. That's one guaranteed change after the convention: Each nominee gets $62 million in federal campaign funds.

Now the Dole people are saying that the convention will be an opportunity to define their nominee and his ideas. "The problem with Republicans right now is that they really don't know who their nominee is," said Paul Manafort, Dole's convention manager. "They know things about him, but that's it."

That's also a rather awkward admission at this stage of a campaign and a career. Dole was Senate Republican leader longer than any before him. He has been the party chairman, spent 35 years in Congress, ran twice for president, once as vice presidential nominee. He clinched his nomination last winter.

Now, with less than three months before his most crucial election, his own campaigners are saying that people know who he is but not what he stands for or what his agenda for the future will be.

"And the convention will allow us to get that message across for the first time, really, since he secured the nomination," Manafort said.

Government business SHOULD be in English

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

After years of hearing various cries for English to be the "national" language of the United States, the House of Representatives this past week took action toward that end.

A bill designating English as the official written language of the federal government passed the House on a 259-169 vote.

The action, I think, is long overdue and needs to get quick, decisive action in the Senate, followed by an autograph by the president.

Now, before all those native Spanish speakers out there brand me a bigot, racist or whatever, let me explain.

While I believe the best way to learn a new language is the "immersion" method whereby the speaker is placed in a situation where everything is done in that language, I do not believe that type of approach should be ordered by government.

I also do not believe it is the role of government to dictate what language people speak at home, in business relationships, in social circles or wherever.

The place I think English should be paramount is in government dealings.

After all, the American system of government is confusing enough as it is when we do everything in English.

Just think what happens when that governmentese has to be translated into Spanish, French, Czech, Swahili, German, Portuguese, Greek, Russian, Chinese, Arabic, etc. (Supporters of the bill said Americans speak some 320 different languages!)

Having one language also would save the cost of hiring translators and printing the same materials over and over again.

With the ethnic blend we have here in Hereford -- and throughout Texas and the Southwest -- there is no way we could eliminate the use of conversational Spanish, even if someone was fool enough to try.

But what we can do is make sure that people who are citizens of American know how to speak its language.

What many people forget is that the naturalization procedure to become a new citizen requires a certain proficiency in English.

Under the new bill from the House, naturalization ceremonies would have to be conducted all in English. This is nothing less than what happens in other countries, where government business is conducted in that nation's primary language only.

Under this bill, government documents would be printed in English only. The measure would eliminate the portion of the Voting Rights Act that requires ballots be printed in foreign languages.

'Truth is the cry of all, but the game of few' in political wars

By KEVIN GALVIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)--In the television ad war raging between Democrats and Republicans and their allies, the truth comes in many shades. And in politics, the gray area is the area of opportunity.

Whether the subject is taxes or Medicare or another matter of policy, almost every spot includes a claim that raises protests from some quarter.

"It's sad that lying is part of the system," a coalition of business groups complained in an advertisement intended to counter what business leaders say are outrageous falsehoods being spread by the AFL-CIO.

Of course, the labor federation has a bone or two to pick, too.

Republicans, on the defensive against organized labor's $35 million political campaign, have claimed union ads were being pulled by broadcasters who agreed that the spots were deceptive.

Labor says only a handful out of more than 170 stations took the ads off the air.

"They said we were pulled in Little Rock, Arkansas," said AFL-CIO spokeswoman Deborah Dion. "We were never in Little Rock, Arkansas!"

Politicians were trying to frame the debate with their own version of the facts even before Irish philosopher George Berkeley noted that "truth is the cry of all, but the game of few."

But he might as well have been describing this campaign year.

A quick volley of ads about taxes between President Clinton's campaign and the Republican National Committee shows how nettlesome the charges can be.

Basing its claims on a Tax Foundation analysis and disregarding Treasury Department data, the RNC charged that the average American family pays $1,500 more in taxes now than it did before Clinton took office.

"A baldfaced lie! Completely untrue!" exclaimed White House economic adviser Gene Sperling.

The next day, the Tax Foundation analyst who prepared the study disavowed the RNC's conclusion, and the Clinton camp aired a response, touting the president's expansion of a tax credit for the working poor.

Naturally, the Clinton spot neglected to address one of Republican candidate Bob Dole's main charges: that the president had abandoned his campaign pledge to provide tax relief for the middle class.

None of this is new. Frustrated by the game in 1988, a peevish Dole lashed out at rival George Bush, telling him, "Stop lying about my record." And how many taxpayers must have misread Bush's lips when he promised "no new taxes?"

Mandy Grunwald, a veteran Democratic ad consultant, said candidates count on the press to referee the campaign debate so that the penalty for getting caught in a lie outweighs any gain from telling it. "I hope in general that's still true," she said. "But there's less and less scrutiny of the ads and more and more reason to believe that you can shape the truth, if not outright lie with impunity."

This year, the labor ads have been a repeated area of contention. A minimum wage ad made reference to a congressional pay increase that was approved before lawmakers targeted by the ads went to Capitol Hill.

Another angered the GOP by saying Republicans wanted to "cut" Medicare by $270 billion. Republicans insist that trimming projected growth doesn't constitute a cut.

More recently, a Medicare ad revived a video of House Speaker Newt Gingrich saying Republicans wanted to see "it wither on the vine."

A text of Gingrich's remarks shows that it's somewhat ambiguous whether "it" referred to Medicare itself or the bureaucracy that controls the program.

Reasonable people can disagree, but in the rough and tumble world of politics there's no time for grammatical niceties.

"In politics the gray area is called the area of opportunity," Grunwald said.

Now in its second run, the "wither on the vine" spot is airing on 81 stations, while nine either pulled or refused it.

The wrangling over the charges in third-party ads, like the AFL-CIO's, has led broadcasters to carefully consider what they put on the air.

"It's not like back in the good old days, when you could pretty much put any sort of issues advertising on the air and expect it to fly," said Kyle Osterhout of Media Strategies and Research, a firm that places political spots with broadcasters.

"Most any issue you approach any station with nowadays, they look at it very, very closely," he said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I'm mad and very hurt and my trust in some of the citizens of Hereford was shaken Sunday night. I'm grateful The Hereford Brand brought the incident to light.

My husband was the officer, written about in the Tuesday article, who was refused assistance by some citizens in the 300 block of Star. Some might wonder: if he was off duty, why did he get involved?

Because, citizens of Hereford, when the officers of this town took the oath of a Peace Officer, they swore to protect and serve the public. This is not an eight-hour job. I thought only people in the big cities turned their backs on people calling for help, but I was mistaken.

These officers are there when we call upon them for help. It's only fair that when they call us for help that we are also obligated to help without hesitation. They are part of our community, so do not look upon them as the bad guys.

Thank you to the people who finally called 911. A special thank you goes to Dean Allen Jr., who is our neighbor and cared enough to get into his vehicle and drive up the block to check on Randy. And thanks, also, to Sgt. Toler for driving into town (he was off duty) and staying with Randy while he was being attended to in ER.

To the officers on duty, I will forever be in your debt for rushing to his aid--you guys are truly Brothers in Blue.

To the citizens of Hereford--please don't let this happen again. These officers are here to protect and serve this community. Don't fail them by refusing to help when they ask for it.

Thank you,
Liz Agan & family

Dear Editor:

We would like to thank the many businesses and individuals who helped make this year's DARE Summer Camp a success.

Sixth through eighth-grade students are treated to many extras, thanks to the generosity of those who support the Hereford DARE program.

Again, we thank you for your continued support in helping to keep Hereford's youth drug and violence free.

Researchers piece together old East German secret police files

By JILL M. CLARK
Associated Press Writer
ZIRNDORF, Germany (AP) - As communist East Germany crumbled, bureaucrats shred and ripped 50 years' worth of secret police files on East German citizens. Now, workers are trying to put them back together.

With dozens of scraps of paper spread before them like pieces of jigsaw puzzles, the 50 workers have been laboring for 19 months in a stuffy, worn-down office building in this small town near Nuremberg.

They are proud of the 180,000 pages they have pieced together since they began on Feb. 24, 1995.

They have emptied 30 sacks of paper scraps. Another 1,063 are waiting.

It takes hours to paste together thousands of scraps with special tape. "There is a certain technique. The tears in the papers must be matched exactly, and this is especially difficult when part of the paper is blank," said Lothar Flessner, who is responsible for reconstructing old telephone and address lists.

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) - Jennie Garth and Dean Cain are at the top of TV Guide's latest best-dressed list, where judging criteria include bodies of steel, "skin that glows, and hair that obeys your every command."

Garth of "Beverly Hills, 90201," was chosen for playing Kelly Taylor with just the right balance of "hip high fashion and accessible style."

Cain, star of "Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman," was picked because "he looks just as good in his civilian clothes as he does in spandex."

Others who made the list include Heather Locklear of "Melrose Place," David Duchovny of "The X-Files," Rosie O'Donnell, Oprah Winfrey and Brandy Norwood, star of "Moesha."

TV fashion failures include Tori Spelling, Laura Leighton, Debra Messing and the entire cast of "The Single Guy." The list is in the Aug. 3 issue of TV Guide.

The files were compiled by the Ministry for State Security, known as the Stasi, which tried to destroy them even after the Berlin Wall fell.

Most of the papers were shredded beyond restoration. Others were hurriedly ripped in half, or torn into dozens of pieces.

The reconstruction is tedious - but produces invaluable documents. "I like to do the work," Flessner said. "I think it is important to piece together the truth."

Some of the most important restored papers include spies' reports on the private lives of dissidents, Olympic medalists and East Germans who traveled outside the communist bloc, said project leader Peter Busse. But the workers are just as impressed with the files on ordinary people.

"It is really unbelievable how many intimate details they knew about peoples' lives," Ida Wienkier said. "Even husbands spied on their wives."

About a third of the shredded material consists of surveillance reports on the church and democracy activists of the 1980s. Documents dating back to 1961 contain information on people who died trying to get over the Berlin Wall.

A few weeks after the Wall fell, East Germans rushed into the once-dreaded Stasi headquarters building on Jan. 15, 1990 and found 17,000 cloth and brown-paper sacks, stuffed with shredded paper, index cards and photographs.

After irreparably damaged materials were weeded out, 5,650 sacks remained.

Officials believe some of the most important documents - on the East German government, political opposition, church and artistic community - may be in the hundreds of sacks transferred to Zirndorf in 1995.

After being pieced together, the restored pieces of paper are sent to back to Berlin, where they are studied by academics and archived. The project is funded until the end of this year, but may be extended.

Several of the reconstructed Stasi reports originated from "unofficial workers," or secret agents, who thought they would never be exposed in a reunited Germany.

Anita Flessner, who works on the project with her husband, recalls reconstructing secret agent reports about an East German priest who set himself on fire 20 years ago to demand religious freedom.

The documents show how secret agents spied on a religious center that was later erected in his honor in the West German city of Bad Oeynhausen.

Purple water startles residents of Corpus

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - When Ruth Alvarado saw the water in her toilet turn purple, she thought she had a kidney problem.

What she actually had was a potassium permanganate problem, and it turns out all of Corpus Christi had it, too.

The accidental release of too much of the chemical at a filtration plant Wednesday night was blamed as taps across town spewed water in shades of pink to magenta beginning early Thursday.

"The water is safe to drink," said Assistant Water Superintendent Ed Garana. "There is no cause for concern."

Officials said they have been using the chemical and increased doses of chlorine dioxide to control the taste and smell of the water supply.

The purplish hue was most noticeable in white porcelain toilet bowls.

"I thought that I had a kidney problem," said Alvarado, a substitute teacher. "It was a frightening first thing in the morning to see your toilet water take on a pinkish, purplish color."

City officials went to unusual lengths to emphasize that nothing more was amiss with the water than its color.

Mayor Mary Rhodes even went on a television newscast to drink an eight-ounce glass of the stuff.

"It didn't taste bad," she said. "And when the city says it's safe, I believe it."

SCA demonstration set

The Society for Creative Anachronism, Shire of Adlersruhe, will host a full-dress fighter practice and public demonstration at 3 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 11, in Medi Park in Amarillo. The event is open to the public and will not only include knights in armor, as above, but also displays of cooking, embroidery, sewing, metalwork, brewing and more. SCA is celebrating its 30th anniversary and includes 13 Kingdoms throughout the world. For more information call 364-4318.

US women rake in more gold

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) - It was another glorious day for American women at the Centennial Olympics. Underdog Lindsay Davenport struck gold in tennis and the synchronized swimmers did the same in the pool Friday. The basketball team reached the championship game and Jackie Joyner-Kersey, long jumping on a sore right leg, grabbed a bronze medal on the last leap of her Olympic career.

Hoping to follow in the footsteps of the gold-winning U.S. women's softball and soccer teams, the undefeated female Dream Teamers reached the final with a 93-71 win over Australia.

Lisa Leslie had 22 points and 13 rebounds for the Americans, who will play Brazil for the championship on Sunday.

"It's like I see the egg timer and there's just a little bit of sand left in it," U.S. coach Tara VanDerveer said. "We've got one more practice, one more game."

Davenport, whose father played on the 1968 Olympic volleyball team, upset Spain's Aranxa Sanchez Vicario 7-6 (8-6), 6-2.

"It's definitely the most proud I've been in my life," said the 20-year-old Davenport. "No matter what happens to me, I'll always be a gold medalist."

Joyner-Kersey didn't win the gold, but her bronze-winning jump may have been the most satisfying of her career.

On her final attempt, the greatest female track athlete in U.S. history soared 22 feet, 11 3/4 inches on a tender hamstring that forced her out of the heptathlon last week. The jump vaulted her from sixth to third place and gave the 34-year-old a sixth Olympic medal.

"Tonight is very special," said Joyner-Kersey, whose medal collection includes three golds, one silver and two bronzes. "Of all the medals I've won, this one I really had to work for."

The synchronized swimmers, whose skills are often ridiculed or ignored, used a near-perfect performance to win their sport's first team gold. The Americans received perfect 10s from all but one of the 10 judges for a five-minute routine filled with upside-down moves and complex formations.

The news wasn't as good on the men's side. Two of three American boxers lost their semifinals and the United States was shut out of a medal in the 10-meter platform, completing the worst U.S. Olympic diving performance in 84 years.

David Reid battered Karim Tulaganov of Uzbekistan in the 156-pound class to give the United States its only boxing finalist. Floyd Mayweather lost his 125-pound bout in a disputed decision and Antonio Tarver was outpointed by Vassili Jirov of Kazakhstan at 178.

One of the four U.S. boxing judges at the games quit in protest over Mayweather's 10-9 loss to Bulgaria's Serafim Todorov.

Bill Wackerle resigned after Mayweather dropped the highly unpopular decision. The U.S. team filed a protest over the bout, claiming the judges were intimidated by head official Emil Jetchev of Bulgaria.

"I refuse to be part of an organization that continues to conduct its officiating in this manner," Wackerle said.

In track, the saga of the U.S. 400-meter relay team moved toward a climax that probably will include Carl Lewis, who wants to close out his Olympic career with a record 10th gold medal.

The roster for tonight's final doesn't have to be submitted until an hour before the race. But alternate Jeff Williams has no doubt that Lewis will run.

"Will the sun come up tomorrow?" he said when asked about Lewis' chances of competing.

One thing's for sure: Michael Johnson won't run in tonight's 1,600-meter relay.

The day after completing his historic 200-400 double, Johnson announced that a tight hamstring would prevent him from seeking a third gold.

"There are a lot of guys capable of running, and I don't want to hurt the chances for a gold medal," Johnson said.

Today's schedule also includes the Dream Team's bid for gold against Yugoslavia, the championship men's soccer match between Argentina and Nigeria, and the men's tennis final between American Andre Agassi and Spain's Sergi Bruguera.

With their chances for gold wiped out the previous day, the U.S. baseball team and wrestler Bruce Baumgartner rebounded to win bronze medals Friday.

The baseball team, which lost to Japan in the semifinals, defeated Nicaragua 10-3 for the bronze. Cuba beat Japan 13-9 for its second straight gold.

Baumgartner, the U.S. flag bearer in the opening ceremonies, avenged Thursday's loss to Andrei Shumilin by beating the Russian on a referee's decision. The victory gave the U.S. super heavyweight a record fourth Olympic medal in freestyle wrestling, but he wasn't satisfied.

"I still feel my best is the gold medal," he said. "I didn't do my best in this tournament."

Tom Brands gave the United States its third wrestling gold of the games by beating South Korea's Jang Jae-sung for the 136 1/2-pound title.

Dmitry Sautin of Russia won the men's platform, preventing a Chinese sweep of the four diving events. No American won a diving gold - the first time that's happened since 1912, excluding the boycotted 1980 games in Moscow.

Physicals set for Tuesday

Physicals examinations will be provided Tuesday for high school athletes in the 10th-12th grades.

They will be given at the Hereford Independent School District administration building.

Here is the schedule: all girls at 6:30 p.m.; senior boys at 7:30; junior boys at 8; and sophomore boys at 8:30.

Two-a-day practices for football start Wednesday. The schedule has juniors and seniors starting at 8 a.m. at the field house; sophomores starting at 4 p.m. at the field house; and freshmen starting at 4 p.m. at Stanton.

The Herd tennis and cross country teams start workouts Monday, and the volleyball team starts Aug. 12.

HHS' Reinauer, Abney up for national award

Hereford High School seniors Rob Reinauer and Cassie Abney have been nominated for the Wendy's High School Heisman Award.

The national award recognizes academic achievement, community service and athletic accomplishments of high school senior men and women. The award was created by Wendy's, the National Association of Secondary School Principals and the Downtown Athletic Club of New York City, which awards college football's Heisman Trophy.

Principals at the nation's 23,000 high schools were asked to nominate one male and one female student for the award. The field will be narrowed first to state finalists, then to state winners, then to finalists of six regions.

The 12 regional finalists will be invited to New York in December, and the two national winners will be honored during the Dec. 14 Heisman Trophy presentation ceremonies, which will be televised nationally by ESPN.

Both Hereford nominees carry grade point averages of 4.0 while participating in many extracurricular activities.

Abney is the daughter of Temple and Karen Abney. During her high school career, she has been involved in FFA, Keywanettes, volleyball, track, basketball, National Honor Society. She recently earned All-America status as a cheerleader.

Reinauer, the son of Brenda Reinauer, is starting his fourth year as a member of the Herd varsity tennis team. The senior class president has been involved in Key Club, Band, PALS, basketball and Boys State.

Favre looks good after rehabilitation

By The Associated Press
It wasn't just another exhibition opener for Brett Favre, and it also turned into a special night for Doug Pederson.

Returning after his much-publicized off-season rehabilitation, Favre showed flashes of his MVP form in the Green Bay Packers' first preseason game Friday night.

Pederson got most of the work, however, and the backup quarterback sparked three second-half touchdown drives to lead the Packers to a 24-7 rout of the New England Patriots.

"When the season starts, Brett's going to get every snap, so I had to approach this as a regular-season game," said Pederson, who completed 13 of 19 passes for 125 yards, hitting nine straight at one point. "It took a while for me to settle down, but then I felt good. This is the first time I've gotten to play this much in a preseason game."

Favre was the focus, though. The Green Bay quarterback looked rusty for the most part while completing 5 of 10 passes for 54 yards.

"Brett played fine. His timing was off just a little bit," Packers quarterback coach Marty Mornhinweg said. "But that's the same problem we have the first game every preseason. I would have liked to have seen him be a little more productive. But it's hard when you only get a few snaps."

Favre had missed a sizable chunk of off-season workouts while undergoing rehabilitation for addiction to painkillers.

Elsewhere in the NFL, it was Washington 13, Buffalo 7; New Orleans 23, Detroit 22; New York Giants 24, Jacksonville 17; and Oakland 26, Arizona 3.

In exhibition action Saturday night, Denver is at San Francisco; Tampa Bay at Miami; Chicago at Carolina; Indianapolis at Cincinnati; Philadelphia at Baltimore; Houston plays the New York Jets at Jackson, Miss.; San Diego is at Minnesota; and Atlanta visits Seattle.

Dallas plays Kansas City on Monday night in Monterrey, Mexico.

Favre, looking trim after losing 14 pounds during the 46-day rehabilitation stay that ended June 28 at an NFL-sanctioned center, got a warm greeting the minute he stepped onto the plush grass for warmups at Lambeau Field.

He missed his first two passes and had another batted down. A fourth

Royals, Red Sox rally for stirring victories

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Kansas City Royals and Boston Red Sox both showed how big a difference an inch or two can make. Jose Offerman barely snuck his hand under catcher Joe Girardi's tag to score with two outs, capping a four-run rally in the bottom of the 10th inning Friday night that gave the Royals a 4-3 win over the New York Yankees.

Keith Lockhart's grounder down the third-base line turned into a winning, two-run double. The Royals came back after Cecil Fielder's first home run for the Yankees broke a scoreless tie in the top of the 10th. "I saw it was going right towards the bag and I was hoping it would either go over it or just inside it," Lockhart said.

At Fenway Park, the Red Sox also rallied for four runs in their final at-bat, beating Minnesota 11-10 in the ninth inning. Troy O'Leary won it with a two-out, two-run triple off center fielder Rich Becker's glove.

"Yes, I thought he was going to catch it," O'Leary said. "I saw Beck slowing up and I was upset for a minute."

In other games, Detroit downed Seattle 8-2, Chicago trounced Texas 9-0, Cleveland beat Baltimore 11-1, Milwaukee defeated Oakland 4-3 in 10 innings, and Toronto topped California 9-2.

Starters Dwight Gooden of the Yankees and Kevin Appier of the Royals both pitched nine shutout innings. Gooden allowed only four hits and Appier gave up just five.

Fielder put the Yankees ahead with a 420-foot drive into the water fountains in left-center field in Kansas City. Later, Derek Jeter wound up with a two-run, inside-the-park homer when Royals center fielder Tom Goodwin ran into the wall and fell to the ground.

With Yankees relief ace John Wetteland unavailable because of a head cold, Mariano Rivera came on to pitch the 10th. But Rivera (4-2), hit hard Thursday night in Texas, gave up RBI singles to Mike Sweeney and Offerman that closed the Royals to 3-2.

Lockhart followed with his double, and left fielder Gerald Williams threw to second base as Offerman was running to third. That prompted Offerman, who had hesitated at third, to take off for home.

Offerman beat the throw from Andy Fox, sliding wide on his left hip and tagging the plate just before Girardi tagged him.

In Boston, Becker hit a two-run single during a five-run eighth that put the Twins ahead 10-7.

But in the bottom of the ninth, Reggie Jefferson, who had four hits, hit a two-run homer with two outs. Scott Hatteberg then singled off the leg of pitcher Dan Naulty (3-2) and Lee Tinsley walked, bringing up O'Leary.

Tigers 8, Mariners 2

Detroit won its season-high fifth in a row, beating Seattle for the 17th time in 20 games at Tiger Stadium.

Travis Fryman hit the fourth grand slam of his career. He connected less than 12 hours after taking a ride with the U.S. Navy's Blue Angels precision flying team, who were appearing at a local air show.

The Tigers are 24-26 since they were 13-46 on June 6. Reliever Richie Lewis, hitting because of a lineup switch, grounded out - he was the first Detroit pitcher to bat since Bill Gullickson in 1991.

White Sox 9, Rangers 0

Harold Baines helped give Chicago a 4-0 lead in the first inning, and Alex Fernandez made it stand up in Texas.

Fernandez (11-7) pitched a three-hitter for his first shutout since last September. He retired the final 10 batters in improving to 3-0 against the Rangers this season.

Baines had four hits and drove in four runs. He moved past Carlton Fisk and Ren Santo into a tie for 58th place with Duke Snider on the career RBIs list with 1,333. All-Star Roger Pavlik (12-5) lost his third straight start.

Indians 11, Orioles 1

After the fans at Jacobs Field welcomed back Eddie Murray with a standing ovation, the crowd spent the rest of the evening cheering Albert Belle and Kenny Lofton.

Lofton went 4-for-5 and came within a double of the cycle and Belle hit his 37th home run as Cleveland beat Baltimore for the 10th straight time at home. Lofton also stole his major league-leading 51st base and scored his 500th career run.

Orel Hershiser (11-7) gave up just two hits in seven innings. He stepped off the mound when Murray stepped in for his first at-bat. Murray, recently traded from the Indians to the Orioles for pitcher Kent Mercker, waved to the sellout crowd.

Blue Jays 9, Angels 2

Pat Hentgen won his sixth straight start and Toronto sent visiting California to its fifth consecutive loss.

Hentgen (13-6) has allowed only four earned runs in his last four outings. Chuck Finley (11-8) began the game with a 16-inning scoreless streak, but gave up seven runs and 11 hits in seven innings.

Juan Samuel homered, doubled and drove in four runs. His RBI double keyed a five-run first inning.

Brewers 4, Athletics 3, 10 innings

David Hulse singled home the go-ahead run in the 10th inning and Milwaukee won at Oakland.

Pat Listach led off with a single, stole second and scored on Hulse's two-out hit.

Mark McGwire, leading the majors with 38 home runs, returned to the Athletics lineup after missing five games because of back problems. He singled twice and walked twice.

Dodgers batter Braves' Smoltz

By The Associated Press

John Smoltz just didn't lose, he got banged up.

Smoltz dropped to 3-5 since his club-record 14-game winning streak, allowing a go-ahead homer to pinch-hitter Billy Ashley in the Atlanta Braves' 2-1 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers on Friday night.

Worse for Smoltz, Juan Castro lined the ball off the inside of the pitcher's left wrist on his final pitch. Smoltz was examined by Dr. Mark Reis and taken for X-rays.

"It's just severely bruised, although I didn't think so when it first happened," Smoltz said. "It was a tough day, all the way around. It was probably one of the best games I've pitched all year, yet it's a double blow for me."

Smoltz (17-6) scattered nine hits in his fifth complete game this season and struck out 12, raising his major league-leading total to 195.

NFL

Incompletion was wiped out by penalty before he finally clicked with his receivers.

Saints 23, Lions 22

In Pontiac, Mich., New Orleans scored two touchdowns in the final 1:54 and the Saints hung on for a victory over Detroit as the Lions' attempt at a 2-point PAT failed on the last play of the game.

Ashley, who had been 0-for-23 against right-handers, connected for his sixth homer this season, his third as a pinch hitter. He has complained about a lack of playing time with the Dodgers and had hoped to be traded before the July 31 deadline.

"I know my role, and with the trade deadline gone, what I have to do now is just concentrate on the job at hand," Ashley said. "If it's a platoon situation and I get opportunities to play, I've got to take advantage of them."

At Dodger Stadium, Scott Radinsky (1-1) earned his first NL victory with one scoreless inning. Mark Guthrie got six outs for his first NL save, striking out five.

Astros 5, Giants 1

Doug Drabek (5-7) won for the first time in five starts since the All-Star break. He gave up seven hits in seven innings, allowing a run in the sixth when Barry Bonds tripled and Rick Wilkins hit a sacrifice fly.

Drabek, 5-0 against the Giants over the last three seasons, struck out five and walked three. Xavier Hernandez got five outs for his second save.

Mark Gardner (9-4) allowed five runs and 10 hits in six innings as San Francisco lost its sixth straight road game.

Pirates 8, Phillies 3

Jeff King, who had only one hit in his previous 25 at-bats coming in, sparked a five-run ninth with a two-run triple at Veterans Stadium.

King singled and doubled before hitting the triple that put the Pirates up 6-3. Mark Johnson followed with an RBI single and Dave Clark doubled in Johnson.

Ron Blazier (2-1) lost for the first time in the majors. Winner Marc Wilkins (2-0) allowed only one hit in two innings.

Expos 11, Reds 1

Pedro Martinez (9-6) shut out visiting Cincinnati on two hits for eight innings and added two RBIs.

Henry Rodriguez hit his 29th homer, drove in three runs and scored twice as the Expos ended the Reds' three-game winning streak.

Rodriguez hit a two-run shot off Kevin Jarvis (4-4) in the fourth for a 10-0 lead.

Cardinals 4, Mets 3

Ron Gant hit a fifth-inning grand slam off Bobby Jones (9-7) for a 4-0 lead and Todd Stottlemyre (10-7) beat the Mets for the third time this season. It was the fourth slam of Gant's career, the second this season.

Gant has six homers in his last 12 games. Stottlemyre (10-7) allowed six hits in 7 2-3 innings at Shea Stadium. With the tying run on second, Rick Honeycutt retired Lance Johnson on a grounder for his third save.

Padres 2, Marlins 1

Steve Finley tripled and scored on the play when Gary Sheffield's throw bounced past catcher Joe Siddall in the eighth at San Diego.

Siddall was promoted from the minors Thursday when Charles Johnson was placed on the disabled list.

Trevor Hoffman (7-4) was the winner. Yorkis Perez (3-4) was the loser in the Marlins' eighth defeat in 11 games.

Rockies 7, Cubs 2

Vinny Castilla and Andres Galarraga each homered at Wrigley Field as Colorado stopped a five-game losing streak and ended Chicago's four-game winning streak.

Kevin Ritz (12-7) carried a shutout into the eighth inning before the Cubs scored a pair of runs.

Amaury Telemaco (4-6) allowed six runs - four earned - in 5 1-3 innings.

Oates credits God for saving his marriage

By TIM MADIGAN
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
ARLINGTON, Texas - It is midafternoon at The Ballpark in Arlington, and Texas Rangers manager Johnny Oates, already in uniform, has begun to fidget. He watches the final inning of the Baltimore-Kansas City game on his office television, then clicks it off. There's his own lineup to prepare for that night's game against the Boston Red Sox. Will Clark, the injured first baseman, pokes his head in the door, requesting a visit. A reporter also intrudes.

Yet on this recent day, the manager's mind is only partially on his job. In just a few hours, about the time his first-place Rangers finish batting practice, Gloria Oates, his wife, and Jenny, the youngest of the couple's three children, will arrive in Texas for the summer from the family home in Virginia.

Oates is 50 years old, his trademark mustache shot through gray. But as he sits behind his desk, he grins and talks like a teen-ager newly smitten.

"It's like starting all over again," Oates says of his 29-year marriage to the pretty blonde he met in high school. "It's like two kids in a candy store. It's exciting. It's fun...."

"And there's no doubt in her mind or my mind," Oates continues. "It was all weaved together by the Lord. This was his plan. We were supposed to be here in Texas with this ballclub."

God. Gloria. The kids. These are the topics that most animate Oates during several long conversations in his office. Baseball, even with the Rangers at the top of their division, arises only incidentally. The game seems in its place, the manager at peace.

Yet that inner calm has been painfully and only recently won, and Oates freely admits his wife has paid a much higher price than he.

"My mistress," Johnny Oates says, "was called baseball."

Gloria became mentally, physically and spiritually exhausted trying to compete, and almost died before her husband woke up.

Oates was the tongue-tied jock, only a junior but already captain of the baseball team. She was the striking blonde in the Madras skirt and palomino Weejuns (THE loafer of the 1960s,) the daughter of faithful Baptists from the old church down the street. It was 1962 at the high school in Prince George County, Va., and for weeks Johnny Oates had been dying to talk to Gloria Jackson, but could never summon the courage.

Then came the moment on the stairwell between classes. Gloria was coming down at the same time Johnny went up. They were alone. For Oates there was no escape.

"Hi," he mumbled.

"Hi," Gloria replied, smiling.

Johnny went on to his class, walking on air.

Their first real conversation came at a New Year's party a short time later. They started dating after that - movies, occasional dinners, services at Gloria's church, or, more typically, Gloria sitting alone in the stands watching Johnny play football, basketball or baseball.

They were times of relative abundance for Oates, and he could sometimes afford to spend $3 or $4 entertaining his new love. His family lived in a house-trailer by then, 42 feet long, 8 feet wide. The family's brown Chevy Impala ran dependably. Oates had a couple of clean pairs of slacks from which to choose each day, among the fruits of his father's toil in military base construction.

Circumstances were much different only a few years earlier. For the first eight years of his life, Oates lived in a four-room shack built on stilts and hidden off Cedar Creek Road, deep in the Smoky Mountains of North Carolina. The windows were covered in cardboard. The winter wind whistled through gaping holes in the walls. The shack lacked electricity and indoor plumbing, and was unheated except for a wood-burning stove. Young Johnny shared a bed with an older brother, who complained when Johnny pulled his knees to his chest to try and keep warm.

Clint Oates, Johnny's hardworking, taciturn father, took jobs wherever he could find them to support his family of six - pounding nails or in the cabbage fields. Money was always scarce. Supper sometimes consisted of corn bread and milk.

Yet Johnny Oates was unaware of his deprivation at the time, having no means of comparison.

Family prospects improved after Clint Oates taught himself the sheet metal trade. When Johnny Oates was 8, the family moved to keep pace with his father's jobs on military bases across the Southeast, finally settling for several years in Prince George County.

Years before, a younger Clint played ball for teams sponsored by the local North Carolina cotton mills, and was one of the best pitchers around, folks said. At Prince George High School, it was clear Johnny Oates inherited his father's prowess, ultimately earning a baseball scholarship to Virginia Tech. He became the first member of his family to attend college.

He married Gloria in 1967, the same year he signed a pro contract with the Baltimore Orioles. For the first few years of their lives together, Gloria taught school as her husband toiled for meager pay in the minors. Then, late in the 1970 season, Johnny Oates was summoned to the big leagues, called to pinch hit against the Washington Senators. The rookie catcher lined a single to left in his first major league at bat, and the unheated, four-room shack in the Smokies seemed a lifetime away.

Oates was just glad to be along for the first few years of his major-league ride. He probably made as much in big-league meal money as his father earned in take-home pay.

Yet Oates never was a star in 11 seasons. He spent most of his time riding the bench with five different teams. Discontent set in while he played for the Atlanta Braves, team No. 2.

He earned good money by that day's baseball standards, $40,000 to $50,000 a year. But chronic worry, once it came, rarely left him. He lived in terror that the game was slipping through his fingers. Oates became a grouser at the ballpark, a moody and short-tempered husband and father at home.

The malaise didn't stop when his playing career ended in 1981. In only two seasons as a coach, Oates rose to manage the Yankees' top farm club. But he was inwardly miserable on a sultry day during spring training, Feb. 23, 1983, when professional golfer

Bill Watts arrived to give his Christian testimony to Yankees players and coaches in the stadium weight room.

Like Oates, Watts had languished on the bottom rungs of his sport for years, frustrated and miserable, until he found his peace with God.

"What you're saying is exactly what I'm feeling," Oates told Watts. "What do I do about it?"

"Let's pray," Watts replied. "You need to accept Jesus. Ask him to come into your life."

The two immediately knelt on the weight bench, which was still damp from perspiration. Oates confessed his sins and offered to turn his life over to God. The earth did not move, but Oates felt better afterward. A burden seemed to lift. In the years to come, he routinely attended Bible studies, and one year, read the Bible from cover to cover.

But for the next 11 years, Oates says now, he was a Sunday-morning Christian. He stood God in a corner and summoned him only when there was a pressing need, like God was some celestial relief pitcher.

God always delivered. Neither did God seem to mind as Oates clung obsessively to his life in baseball. In 1991, Oates was hired as manager of the Baltimore Orioles. He was fired in 1994 by the club's new owner, but within months had a new job as manager of the Texas Rangers.

Long-suffering fans in Texas counted on the new manager to reverse a tradition of losing and frustration, and Oates was eager for the challenge. Then last year, in his first training camp with the Rangers, Oates was awakened in the middle of the night by a ringing telephone.

"Dad?" Jenny Oates asked in a soft, frightened voice.

"Yes."

"Mom told me not to call," the teen-ager said. "But mom's sick."

Gloria Oates had left teaching when her husband's baseball career blossomed. As Johnny pursued his mistress, it fell to her to tend to the less glamorous matters of home and children. Lori was born in 1971, Andy in 1976, and Jenny two years after that. For most of three decades, there was no sacrifice Gloria Oates was unwilling to make.

"If I needed her she was there," Oates says of his wife. "She did everything she could to earn my love, always, from day one. She was an ideal wife and mother. There was not a guy in the world who ever had a more loving and more supportive wife than I had. She's always been an encourager, trying to share things of value that would make me a better person...."

Oates didn't realize that his wife had needs of her own. When she requested a sympathetic ear, her husband was cold, distant, preoccupied. He sometimes berated her for calling him on road trips with a family problem.

"Why are you telling me? I'm in Oakland. You handle it," Oates says he would tell her. "And you know, she would handle it. All she wanted was for me to listen to her."

Before a monthlong road trip, he might leave the family dinner table early to get his hair cut in preparation for a television interview the next day. He reacted defensively when his wife suggested he was neglecting the family, citing obligations of his high-profile profession. He sometimes made his wife the butt of jokes in public. In his first season managing the Orioles, Oates contemplated that night's lineup while at lunch with his wife to celebrate their 24th wedding anniversary, insensitivity that belied his Christian conversion.

"Gloria and I have talked about it," Oates says. "What happened to me in those 11 years? I don't think we've come up with a definite answer. I knew right from wrong. But there was no room in my life for anything but baseball. I enjoyed it. I loved it. And I was going to hang onto it at all costs. Everything else that meant anything to me in my life had always been there and had always waited for me. Why should I have to change?"

"I completely blocked her out," he says. "She was hurting and had needs, and even when I took the time to listen I wasn't hearing."

Then, in April of last year, Gloria and her two daughters set out from Virginia for the Rangers' training camp in Port Charlotte, Fla. It was Gloria's fifth trip to spring training in 1995. She made it as far as Savannah, Ga., before suffering a physical and emotional breakdown.

A panic attack that night in Georgia made it difficult for Gloria to breathe, and at the worst moments, she didn't care whether or not she continued to live. Paramedics were called to the hotel.

But even then, Gloria urged her

Cowboys are missing several key players

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - After two weeks of training camp and a rousing "Arena Ball" preseason game of impostors with stars on their helmets, it's time to report the early pulse of the defending Super Bowl champions.

An early pulse, if you can find one. The real Dallas Cowboys aren't working out yet. Charles Haley, Tony Tolbert, Jay Novacek, Kevin Smith, Ray Donaldson, Erik Williams and Michael Irvin are a few prominent members of the Super Bowl XXX winners who have yet to don combat gear.

Deion Sanders is here for his first full training camp trying to learn a new position, wide receiver. It can be tougher than being a cornerback. So far he's broken his ring finger and strained a hamstring.

Whenever Troy Aikman starts to get into a groove with Sanders, he gets some nagging injury.

Sanders didn't play in the 35-34 win over the Oakland Raiders at Texas Stadium last Saturday because of hamstring problems. These are the types of games he needs to play so he can enjoy Aikman's confidence, who expects exact routes from his receivers.

Many of Aikman's passes are timing routes where he throws the ball before the receiver breaks. That takes timing.

With Irvin missing the first five games of the season, it's critical that Aikman and his new receivers like Sanders, Stepfret Williams, Oronde Gadsden, Edward Hervey and Billy Davis get as much work as possible.

Things seem so unsettled about this Cowboy team in early camp. The Emmitt Smith contract talks with owner Jerry Jones are hanging fire. This would seem a no-brainer for Jones because of his past problems with Smith. So what's he waiting on? Go ahead and give Smith a big contract deal (his old one runs out this year) and get it over with.

Odds are Jones will do the right thing and get this deal done before it becomes a problem. Remember, Smith is holding out the threat of a walkout. Don't make him mad, Jerry, like you did several years ago and cost the Cowboys the first two games of the season.

The Dallas injury problems with Haley, Tolbert, Novacek, and Kevin Smith point out how vulnerable this team can become. This is not as deep a team as it was last year.

Take the defensive line for example. The Cowboys aren't counting on Shante Carver anymore because of his "personal" problems which caused him to leave camp. Rookie Kavika Pittman, the Cowboys first round pick, has had a rough training camp so far. Where's help coming from? Darren Benson plays every third down or so.

Despite all of their problems, the real key for the Dallas defense is Kevin Smith. He is supposed to come back and play in the final preseason game on Aug. 24 against Houston in Orlando. (In fact, that's also expected to be the first game Haley and Tolbert and perhaps Emmitt Smith play in).

Kevin Smith's expertise at cornerback is a vital ingredient to this team. If Smith doesn't bounce back from his achilles tendon tear, it means Sanders will have to play almost full-time on defense whether Primetime likes it or not.

This in turn hurts the receiving corps. Sanders has shown what he can do deep with his speed and was learning some excellent hook patterns before his hamstring acted up.

A young receiver like Williams would have to step into the fray or maybe the Cowboys could put tight end Eric Bjornson at wide receiver. He has great hands and runs solid routes.

Not having Irvin puts a real bind on the team which plays Chicago, the New York Giants, Indianapolis, Buffalo and Philadelphia without him.

The Cowboys, of course, are used to distractions. However, distractions are one thing and lack of talent is another.

"Things are getting real thin around here," said offensive lineman Nate Newton.

But it seems the more injuries the Cowboys incur, the more scrimmages Jones schedules like the one in El Paso for a big payday.

When the Cowboys should be pulling back off the hard work, their owner has them flying across state for another head-butting.

This is all part of an unsettling early scenario for the Cowboys.

OATES

youngest daughter not to call the Rangers manager in Florida.

"Baseball doesn't even stop for death," Gloria Oates told Jenny that night. "Jenny, don't call him. Let me die."

Johnny Oates reached the Holiday Inn in Savannah about 10 a.m. after driving all night from Florida, trying to convince himself that things were not as dire as Jenny made them sound on the telephone. But Oates will never forget the room where he found his wife sitting on the side of the bed, in a blue, long-sleeved jacket, with sunken, vacant, deflated eyes.

He says his life changed in the time it took for him to walk through the door. Oates went to his wife, sat next to her on the bed, put his left arm around her and laid Gloria's head on his shoulder. He held her but she didn't hold him back. She wouldn't look at him or speak to him for what seemed hours. Eventually, they both began to weep, the first of many tears the two would shed together over the next 15 months.

"God got my attention and said, 'Johnny, it's not going to work this way,'" Oates remembers. "She had been telling me things for years how she was hurting, but I wasn't hearing it. All of a sudden it was like a light switch hit me, and I sat down on the bed and it just came out. 'Now tell me. I'm ready to listen. Now that you've hit rock bottom, I'm willing to sit down and listen to what you have to say.'"

"I didn't say that word for word, but that was the feeling that was in my body."

Oates checked his family out of the hotel that day and headed home to Virginia. His mind was swimming with questions. What do I do now? Do I ever go back to baseball? Do I stay at home? How can I help her?

In Virginia, Gloria was admitted to the Christian counseling wing at a Richmond hospital. Oates took a leave of absence from the Rangers, and slowly, the healing between husband and wife began. Gloria Oates learned that her priorities had somehow become skewed, that Johnny Oates had somehow become her god. The manager learned that what he had worshipped first all these years was not God or his family, but the game.

The couple was taught how to communicate again. They talked more in 10 days than they had in the 10 years previous.

"She needed me to recognize that she was worth something, that I valued her as a person, that I valued her as an intelligent wife who was worthy of being equal to me," Oates says. "She needed me to just listen to her, and place value on her feelings, rather than to say, 'How in the world can you feel that way?'"

In was in the first days with Gloria in Virginia that Oates decided to leave baseball. But Gloria stopped him.

"I have no idea why," Oates says. "The only thing I can come up with is that she knew for the first time that I loved her. She could hear me say that she was the most important thing in my life, second to the Lord. We'd missed the boat. I needed to get down on my hands and knees and thank the good Lord that she was willing to be with me. She had been helping me for 25 years. Now what could I do to help her?"

There is a word picture Johnny Oates and his wife now use in their relationship. It is a triangle with God at the apex, the husband and wife on opposite arms.

"As we get closer to God," Oates says, "what happens? We get closer to each other."

Now almost every conversation between them begins or ends in a prayer. For the first part of the season, Gloria stayed at home in Virginia so Jenny could finish school, but daily telephone conversations with her husband lasted up to three hours. Oates also tries to speak with each of his children every day.

In the Rangers locker room, some players say, Oates seems more relaxed this year, though his style of managing hasn't changed. Oates, players say, has always been a manager who treated his players fairly and cared about them as people.

"Johnny is a tremendous friend, yet he's somebody who will get on your rear at the same time," says Rangers slugger Mickey Tetleton. "He's tremendous. You're not going to find any better in the game."

Oates doesn't preach in the clubhouse. Neither does he attend chapel services held by other coaches and players. His attendance, he feels, might put pressure on players to show up.

"I think that should be a choice," Oates says.

But when infielder Mark McLemore's father died several weeks ago, Oates prayed with him during a long-distance phone call.

"That's something you wouldn't normally expect to hear from a baseball manager," McLemore said.

Oates and his wife recently sent Spanish translations of inspirational Christian literature to outfielder Juan Gonzalez, who they know has turned to God to quell the turmoil in his personal life.

And not all of Oates' criticisms are reserved for mistakes on the playing field. At the end of a recent road trip, Oates says he watched as one player, frustrated by a hitless game, neglected to kiss his wife after getting off the team plane.

"The next day I confronted him," Oates says. "The wife had nothing to do with that player going 0 for 4 that afternoon. And now she thinks she's done something wrong. When I talked to him, he didn't even know he had done it. So he went home, and he and his wife had a great talk that night, from what I understand."

Sitting behind his desk, nervously waiting for Gloria and Jenny, Oates smiles proudly at the thought.

Davis case bears resemblances to Simpson trial

"Cullen was found not guilty by reason of celebrity" - Ex-prosecutor Jack Strickland on the 20th anniversary of a deadly shooting spree at the Cullen Davis mansion.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - The murderous "man in black" appeared at the remote Cullen Davis mansion that steamy summer night wearing a woman's black wig and carrying a .38 revolver.

He chased or dragged a 12-year-old girl to the basement, then fired a single, fatal shot through her chest. Before the savagery ended, the gunman claimed three more victims, killing one and critically wounding two. A potential fifth victim eluded the intruder in the darkness and escaped unharmed.

Survivors of the midnight carnage identified the killer as Cullen Davis, then 42, an oil and industrial heir and one of the richest men in America.

So began a bizarre and bewildering murder case 20 years ago, a long running legal saga unrivaled in Texas but similar in many chilling details to the O.J. Simpson affair.

"Some people are either so rich or so famous or so glamorous that they are beyond accountability," says Fort Worth attorney Jack Strickland, a prosecutor in the Davis trials.

"People thought 20 years ago that simply because somebody had a bunch of money they weren't subject to the same foibles and misbehavior and prejudices and mean streaks as anybody else."

With a sarcastic laugh, Strickland says his naive knows no bounds: "I thought at one point they were going to convict O.J. That shows how much I learned in the intervening 20 years."

Despite a five-month trial, devastating eyewitness testimony and mountains of corroborating evidence, a jury acquitted Davis of capital murder.

"I was the object of a conspiracy which framed me for a murder I did not commit," he declared.

And like O.J., a triumphant Cullen vowed to unmask the real killers.

"I think it's pretty strange they haven't produced anything," quips Joe Shannon, the chief prosecutor in the Davis murder trial. "Of course, O.J. hasn't had as long to work on it. We ought to give him a little more time."

"But for Cullen, 20 years is probably ample."

For Richard "Racehorse" Haynes of Houston, the Cullen Davis case would become his "Super Bowl." The widely acclaimed attorney headed a legal "Dream Team" that successfully defended Davis not only in the mansion shootings but in a subsequent and equally unusual murder-for-hire case.

After two mistrials, both cases ended in acquittals.

"I would hope," says Haynes, "the passage of time has healed some of the wounds and ... the pain that many experienced in those dark days of August 20 years ago."

Not really, except perhaps in Cullen's case.

He married his former mistress, fanatically embraced religion, survived bankruptcy and is now peddling a lotion which he claims will repel insects and protect users from all manner of diseases.

"Sometimes," he says of the shootings, "it seems it happened 100 years ago. Sometimes I look back and think it happened last year ... and sometimes I look back and think it never happened.

"But it is something that doesn't cross my mind too often."

Has he succeeded then in putting the trauma of 1976 behind him? "Yeah, I have," he said. "Nothing in my life is governed by those events that happened 20 years ago."

In the summer of 1976, Cullen and Priscilla Davis were locked in a nasty divorce battle. A judge had awarded Priscilla temporary custody of his $6 million mansion and granted a restraining order barring Cullen from his "dream home."

On Aug. 2, to Cullen's chagrin, the judge approved Priscilla's request for a postponement in the divorce trial. That night, the killer struck.

It was after midnight when Priscilla and her live-in lover, Stan Farr, returned to the mansion from an evening of dinner and drinks with friends.

Moments after arriving, Priscilla encountered the man in black. He wore a shoulder-length black wig and his hands were wrapped in a black plastic bag, concealing the revolver.

He told Priscilla, "Hi," and shot her in the chest. He wrestled with Farr, 30, a huge ex-TCU basketball player, then pumped four shots into his body.

Priscilla watched Stan die, then saw the gunman drag his body through the kitchen toward a door leading to the basement. Downstairs, her daughter by a previous marriage lay dead.

As Priscilla staggered into a courtyard, the intruder intercepted a young man returning his date to the mansion, where she planned to spend the night with Priscilla's elder daughter. The killer fired a bullet into Bubba Gavrel's spine, crippling him. His terrified date, Beverly Bass, 18, fled onto the darkened mansion grounds.

Little more than a year later, an Amarillo jury, unmoved or unconvinced by the testimony, deliberated barely four hours before ruling that Cullen did not kill 12-year-old Andrea Wilbom.

Back in Fort Worth, Priscilla told a friend: "Cullen always thought he was invincible. Now he knows he is."

Many of the pivotal events in Cullen's life occurred in August, and the year after his Amarillo acquittal was no exception. On Aug. 20, 1978, FBI agents, Texas Rangers, local police and district attorney's investigators arrested Davis at the height of a secretive, murder-for-hire investigation.

Charged with solicitation of capital murder, Cullen was accused of hiring a killer to dispose of at least a dozen people, including some who testified against him in Amarillo.

The purported hit list also included his younger brother and his divorce judge.

Instead of eyewitness testimony, the state relied this time on FBI video, photographs and tape recordings of Cullen's rendezvous with an FBI informant to negotiate mass murder.

A Houston jury deadlocked 8-4 in favor of conviction, but a Fort Worth jury subsequently acquitted him. Members of the Fort Worth panel were upset when Cullen didn't invite them to his victory party, so he and Karen later asked them over for dinner at the mansion.

Although Cullen's dynasty was crumbling, many were surprised when he sold his beloved mansion and the surrounding acreage to developers. Once empty, it fell into disrepair and was all but destroyed by vandals.

But the biggest shocker of all was Cullen's religious conversion by television evangelist James Robison, which some found difficult to accept.

"Cullen's got his own religious sect," deadpanned Jack Strickland, then a brash young assistant district attorney who prosecuted both murder-for-hire trials.

"It's called Killers for Christ." "When that got a laugh, he added: "His theme song is 'Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition.'"

As the 20th anniversary neared, prosecutors, defense lawyers, victims and relatives recalled the summer of 1976 and the events that followed.

"It's like it never goes away," said Lynda Arnold, Stan Farr's sister, who runs a nearby dude ranch. "It's become part of my life."

"I just deal with it and go on." Not unlike Priscilla and others close to the tragedy, she was displeased that local entrepreneurs rescued and renovated the mansion and reopened it recently as a restaurant, Stonegate Mansion.

"I hope the son-of-a-bitch is haunted," she snapped.

Bubba Gavrel, crippled by the assailant's bullet, cannot discuss the case under terms of a financial settlement reached with Cullen. But he and Beverly married several years ago and have a 6-year-old daughter, Katie.

Beverly's teaching school and Bubba's fishing and taking care of Katie," said Bubba's father, Gus Gavrel Sr. "They're doing fine."

The elder Gavrel rarely camouflages his feelings toward Cullen.

"He would have killed anybody who got in his way that night," Gavrel insists. "Look at Beverly. He knew her. He knew her since she was a child. He would have killed her if he'd caught her. He would have killed anybody that night."

Priscilla, who turned 55 this week, is living in Dallas and raising her granddaughter, whom she calls Priscilla II. The child is 12 years old, the same age as her slain daughter.

"I get depressed about this time each year," she admitted. "I don't think I'm much fun to be around."

Still, she was delighted that Cullen is relegated to selling "snake oil" but incensed that Karen, Cullen's third wife, was taking friends on tours of the mansion restaurant.

"I wonder," she sniffed, "what they talk about when they get to the basement."

Despite the passage of time, few involved have actually put the events of 1976 behind them. Cullen himself revealed at a news conference last year that he and Karen were writing a book "which will for the first time tell the truth of what actually happened."

Although that epic appears now to be on hold, he obviously was unhappy with the four books previously published about the case and livid over the 1995 television miniseries "Texas Justice."

Of the latter, he declared: "We have been portrayed in false light, insulted and humiliated before a watching nation. We have been damaged, our privacy invaded and our emotions distressed by this perverse invention of the network moguls."

Sighs Joe Shannon, the former prosecutor: "I've said all along this case has a life all its own."

And Steve Sumner of Dallas, the youngest member of Cullen's defense team:

"There's never been a case like this one. Some might argue it's still not over. It's like trying to hit a moving target."

Even Priscilla says she's considering an offer to write a book.

Another strange twist involves Walter Kaufmann, who most likely would have been killed 20 years ago if he had accepted Priscilla's invitation to visit the mansion that fateful night. He is now intimately involved with the Stonegate restaurant.

And, finally, over drinks one recent evening, ex-prosecutor Strickland offered still a different perspective.

"We laugh and we crack one-liners," he said, "but I can tell you I talked with Priscilla not long ago and I was struck with how her life not only was changed but in many respects ruined by the events that occurred in August 1976."

On the other side of all these criminal cases, all these books, the TV shows, the cult interest, you've got a dead child, a dead man and shattered lives, he said.

"When it comes right down to it, it's just not very damn funny. The Cullen Davis saga did not bring out the best in Fort Worth. It was not Cowtown's finest hour."

Lifestyles

Dear Ann Landers

Lifestyle changes; godparent troubles

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing about the reader who signed herself "Trying to Stay Straight But Losing the Battle." She was a married woman who had decided she was a lesbian.

Four years ago, when I was 43 and married to a wonderful husband and the father of our three children, I "came out." Within three months, I had told my husband, my siblings, our children and then my parents who I really was. It felt as if a 10-ton weight had been lifted from my shoulders.

I, too, was faithful throughout our 25 years of marriage but often dreamed of being with another woman. I sought counseling to accept myself, but I do not consider myself bisexual, even though I was married. I never knew there were others like me. I thought, "I can't be like them. I am a mother and married. I wear dresses. I don't have tattoos or a crew cut or ride a motorcycle." But I AM a lesbian.

Last year, my family had a "Geraldo" Christmas. My partner, my former husband and his wife, our three children, my former husband's wife's former husband, and his partner all came to my home for dinner. It was wonderful. We enjoy one another's company and get along great. What do you think of that, Ann? -- Bellevue, Neb.

Dear Nebraska: I think your family reunion must have been the talk of the town. Had it been Fire Island, N.Y., or Soho in London, no one would have raised an eyebrow. But Bellevue, Neb.?

As for what anyone else thinks -- it doesn't matter. Your lifestyle is strictly your business.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are faced with a serious problem. Our families are both Roman Catholic. We have followed our faith and had our children baptized in the church. For three of our children, we asked relatives to be godparents, and it has worked out well. For our last child, we asked some dear friends to be godparents. They stood up for us at our wedding, and we considered them family.

Unfortunately, there has been a falling out between us. We tried to patch things up, but they want nothing to do with us. There is no communication between them and our daughter, who is their godchild. This child feels left out because our other children have a close relationship with their godparents.

What can we do? We have thought of having our child re-baptized, with new godparents, but would the Church allow it? Our child has already received the sacrament, but she is not receiving the rewards and benefits that godparents traditionally bestow. Can you give us some guidance? -- East Coast Dilemma

Dear Dilemma: According to Joseph Cardinal Bernardin, archbishop of Chicago, baptism has a permanent spiritual effect and cannot be conferred more than once. The child's baptism is a historical fact, and the godparents are the ones chosen in connection with this event.

If the child has not yet received the Sacrament of Confirmation, she could choose a sponsor for this sacrament to whom she is especially close already and one whom she can look up to in faith. Perhaps the person chosen could be one who has already demonstrated interest in the child's growth and who is present at important occasions in the child's life.

Gem of the Day: A tactful teacher

If you cannot get rid of the family skeleton, you might as well make it dance.

—George Bernard Shaw sent this note home to all parents: If you promise not to believe everything your child says happens in school, I will promise not to believe everything he says happens at home.

"A Collection of My Favorite Gems of the Day" is the perfect little gift for that special someone who is impossible to buy for. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Collection, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562 (in Canada, $6.25).

Volunteers set fundraiser

The Volunteer Board of the Texas Department of Health & Safety is sponsoring a fundraiser during the Town & Country Jubilee Saturday. A carousel horse, above, is one of the prizes, along with bird houses, Christmas yard signs, and Indian Dream Catchers. A booth will have tickets Aug. 10 in the Community Center. Volunteers are asking for a donation of $1 per ticket, or $10 for 12 tickets. Winners' names will be drawn at 4 p.m. Saturday. The project will benefit the elderly, disabled and needy children in the county.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-FCS
Consumers generally think of food safety as it relates to perishable food such as meats and poultry, but precautions should be taken with all food even if it is in a can.

When it comes to canned food, people want to know:

Where should I store canned goods? Store canned foods in an area that is dry, dark and moderately cool. Avoid storage near heat sources -- steam pipes, radiators, furnaces and kitchen ranges.

How long can I store canned foods? For best quality, a year is suggested. However, the type of food canned, the processing, how it has been handled and stored are all factors to consider. If the can itself is normal in appearance, the food inside should still be wholesome.

What effect does freezing have on canned foods? While a single freezing and thawing may not affect the safety of canned foods, there may be some texture changes. During freezing, the contents of a can expand, put strain on can seams, and cause the ends to bulge.

Check previously frozen containers carefully after thawing to be sure that the ends return to their normal flat appearance. If they do not, air may have entered the can, and the can should be discarded.

Are metal fragments in canned foods harmful? Investigations by government agencies and industry scientists have shown that metal slivers which get into food cans when they are opened by can openers are not injurious to health. However, metal fragments are not desirable, and every effort should be made to keep them out of foods. The best prevention strategy is to keep can openers sharp, clean and in good working order.

What does discoloration in the food or in the liner of the can mean? The Food Additive Amendment of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act prohibits the use of food containers which would transfer a poisonous or harmful substance to the food in the can.

However, sometimes discoloration occurs on the inside if the can due to the release of sulfur by certain foods during processing, which causes an unsightly brown, blue or black mottling. The stains are not harmful to the contents. An etched effect sometimes appears on the inside of cans, especially those with fruit juices. This does not indicate that contents have been harmed.

LeGate, Walker wed at First Methodist

Jennifer LeGate and Bryan Walker were united in marriage in an afternoon ceremony Aug. 3 in the First United Methodist Church of Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LeGate of Hereford. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nolen LeGate of Hereford and Mrs. Clint Cross of Bella Vista, Ark.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Walker of Midland, he is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Walker of San Antonio and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Durno of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Dr. Tom Fuller, pastor of the church, officiated at the ceremony.

The church was decorated with two multi arch candelabras with exotic greens. The stained glass windows were framed in exotic greens and vines. The altar was decorated with a bouquet of mixed white flowers and green plants in terra cotta pots. Two topiary trees with white garden flowers and vine completed the altar decorations.

The music was provided by Evelyn Hacker and D'Ann Trotter. Polly Hays and Susie Merrick sang "The Greatest Gift," "Surely the Presence of the Lord is in this Place" and "Household of Faith."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white Dulcette Italian satin gown with an open, off the shoulder neckline and heavily beaded sequin and pearl bodice in a swirl motif. The short sleeves were finished with a beaded edge and the basque waist with open back was complimented with a small bow.

She wore a white tulle veil with a satin ribbon edge.

She carried a cascading bouquet of green Hydrangea, Lilly of the Valley and exotic greens tied with an ivory chiffon ribbon.

Matron of honor was Tiffany Confer, sister of the bride. Best man was Bo Watson, friend of the groom. Bridesmaids were Kristie Tidmore, Sherry Fuston and Lindsey Walker, sister of the groom.

Groomsmen were Shane Dunn, Skipper Smith and Steve Stapleton.

Assisting the groomsmen with usher duties was Blake Confer, brother of the bride.

Flower girls were Jordan and Lindsy Confer, niece of the bride. Taylor Tidmore served as ring bearer.

Bridal attendants wore dresses with a white pearl encrusted silk bodice with kiwi colored silk ballroom skirt. They carried free form bouquets of green Hydrangea, Lilly of the Valley and exotic greens.

A reception was held at the Hereford Country Club.

Kendra King presided at the registry. She assisted Kimberly Johnson, Michelle Lance and Carly Piirainen in serving the cake.

The bride's cake was a four-tiered white chocolate pound cake frosted with a draped ribbon motif. A silver cake topper crowned the cake.

The bridal cloth, covering the refreshment table, was designed and made by the bride's great-grandmother, Ada Frey, for the bride's parents wedding. A white satin cloth, decorated with roses and bells and highlighted by mother-of-pearl sequins and pearls, was overlaid with white net.

The groom's cake was a three-tiered chocolate cinnamon cake with cascading fresh strawberries dipped in milk chocolate.

Following a honeymoon to San Antonio, the couple will reside in Snyder.

The bride is a 1992 graduate of Hereford High School. She is a student at Texas Tech University and will graduate in the fall with a multi-disciplinary degree in education.

The groom is a 1990 graduate of Midland Lee High School. He graduated from Texas Tech in 1995 with a B.S. in electrical engineering. He is currently employed with Southwestern Bell in Snyder. toastmaster, Dan Hall as timer, Charles Minchew as AH counter and Rowland as grammarian.

Example was the word introduced by wordmaster Dave Kimmel.

Wayne Winget served as topic-master and topic speakers were Hall, Coleen Seright, Mike Morrison and Mike Foster.

There was a tie between Seright and Morrison for best topic speaker.

Several members gave speeches at the meeting. Speakers and titles for the meeting were Kathryn Musser, "The Job Hunt" and Joe Don Cummings, "Apathy." Seright served as evaluator for Cummings. Jeff Dodson also gave a speech.

The reading was given by Dodson and the joke was told by Seright.

Musser was selected as best speaker and Dodson as best evaluator.

Guests were Foster and Dave Kimmel.

Luebs observe 25th anniversary

MR. AND MRS. NEAL LUEB
...celebrate 25th anniversary

Neal and Ann Lueb celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on Aug. 3 at St. Anthony's Church. The couple was honored with a family dinner, anniversary blessing at the 6 p.m. liturgy and a reception.

Hosts for the event were the couple's children and members of the Homer family.

Lueb married the former Ann Marie Homer on Aug. 7, 1971, in Immaculate Heart of Mary Church in Groom. They have spent their married life in Hereford.

Lueb is plant maintenance supervisor at Moorman Manufacturing and Mrs. Lueb has been employed as a teacher and principal at St. Anthony's School for 13 years.

They are members of St. Anthony's parish where Mr. Lueb is active as a Knight of Columbus and Mrs. Lueb is involved in Christian formation and in music ministry for the church. The couple taught marriage preparation classes for several years in the parish.

Children of the couple are Jeremy and his wife Chari of Canyon, Jason, Justin and Julie Lueb of Hereford. They have one grandson, Tyler Lueb of Canyon.

Death and taxes and childbirth! There's never any convenient time for any of them!

Following a wedding trip to Carlsbad, N.M., the couple will be at home in Hereford.

Out of town guests represented Amarillo, New Braunfels, Beaumont, La Mesa, La Feria, Lubbock, California, Indiana, Oklahoma, Kansas and Mexico.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, August 4, the 217th day of 1996. There are 149 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On August 4, 1944, Nazi police raided the secret annex of a building in Amsterdam and arrested eight people -- including 15-year-old Anne Frank, whose diary became a famous account of the Holocaust. (Anne died at the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp.)

On this date:
In 1735, a jury acquitted John Peter Zenger of the New York Weekly Journal of a charge of seditious libel.

In 1790, the Coast Guard had its beginnings as the Revenue Cutter Service was formed.

In 1792, English romantic poet Percy Bysshe Shelley was born in Field Place, England.

In 1830, plans for the city of Chicago were laid out.

In 1892, Andrew and Abby Borden were axed to death in their home in Fall River, Mass. Lizzie Borden, Andrew Borden's daughter from a previous marriage, was accused of the killings, but acquitted at trial.

In 1914, Britain declared war on Germany while the United States proclaimed its neutrality.

In 1916, the United States purchased the Danish Virgin Islands for $25 million.

In 1964, the bodies of missing civil rights workers Michael H. Schwerner, Andrew Goodman and James E. Chaney were found buried in an earthen dam in Mississippi.

In 1977, President Carter signed a measure establishing the Department of Energy, the first Cabinet-level department created since 1966.

In 1985, a pair of milestones was achieved in major-league baseball as Tom Seaver of the Chicago White Sox gained his 300th victory and Rod Carew of the California Angels got his 3,000th hit.

In 1987, the Federal Communications Commission voted to rescind the Fairness Doctrine, which required radio and television stations to present balanced coverage of controversial issues.

Ten years ago: The United States Football League, having won only token damages in an antitrust suit against the National Football League, announced it was calling off its 1986 season.

Five years ago: The Greek luxury liner Oceanos sank in heavy seas off South Africa's southeast coast; all 402 passengers and 179 crew members survived. Israeli Cabinet members overwhelmingly backed a Middle East peace conference under conditions set by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

One year ago: Croat forces launched a massive attack on breakaway Serbs in their self-proclaimed capital of Knin.

Today's Birthdays: Britain's Queen Elizabeth is 96. The dean of the White House press corps, Helen Thomas of United Press International, is 76. Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat is 67. Singer Frankie Ford is 56. Actor-comedian Richard Belzer is 52. Track star Mary Decker Slaney is 38. Baseball pitcher Roger Clemens is 34.

Military Muster

Adam N. Smith has joined the United States Army under the Delayed Enlistment Program at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station, Albuquerque, N.M.

Smith is a 1994 graduate of Cal Farley's Boy's Ranch in Amarillo. He will report to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. for military-basic training on Aug. 27.

He is the son of Kay Zahodnik of Hereford.

Thank You

In our time of grief and loss, we want to thank our friends and family for their prayers, flowers and the food. All were greatly appreciated in a time when we needed comforting. We thank the Sheriff Departments of Castro and Deaf Smith County for the escort they provided for the services.

We also are especially thankful that we live in a place where people take time from their busy schedules to show respect for another's loss in times like these. Words cannot express the comfort we found as Mr. Dziuk showed his respect and shared in our sorrow as he stopped his tractor and stood beside it until the procession had passed. May God bless each of you!

McGees granddaughter weds in Canyon church

Jennifer Cansler of Canyon and Christopher Knowles of Perdido Key, Fla., exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon in the University Church of Christ in Canyon.

The bride is the daughter of Allen and Joe Ella Cansler of Canyon and the granddaughter of Lloyd and Imogene McGee of Hereford.

The bridegroom is the son of Philip and Martha Knowles of Roswell, Ga.

Officiating were Bob Shephard and Dr. David Lough of the church.

The bride's chosen colors were reflected in floral arrangements of red and ivory roses which decorated the church for the candle light, double ring ceremony.

Maid of honor was Erika Tillman of Colorado Springs, Colo. Best man was Jeff Causey of Raleigh, N.C.

Bridesmaids were Maria Boyd of Montgomery, Ala., Gina Shephard of Canyon and Allison Cansler, cousin of the bride, of Austin.

Serving as groomsmen and ushers were Jiro McCoy of Ogden, Utah, Dave Ferrari of New Orleans, La. and Jeff Knowles, brother of the groom, of Atlanta, Ga.

Flower girl was Chelsea Campbell, daughter of Jim and Brenda Campbell of Hereford. Ring bearer was Brandon Urry, son of Dan and Stephanie Urry of Atlanta.

Keith Cansler, cousin of the bride of Austin, and Taren Cansler, sister of the bride of Canyon, were candle lighters.

Vocal selections were performed by the choir of First Baptist Church of Amarillo.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight satin with an off-the-shoulder neckline. The princess style bodice was encrusted with pearls and jewels. The full, flowing skirt was covered with a tulle overlay and extended into a chapel length train studded with pearls and jewels and double edged with borders of European lace.

The bridal bouquet was composed of 30 roses in red and ivory.

Bridal attendants wore fitted, floor length dresses in summer red with a sweetheart neckline and carried a long stemmed red rose.

The couple was honored with a reception following the ceremony in the reception hall of the church.

Servers were Laura Kerr of Hereford, Carlene Rittenberry and Mellisa Lewis of Canyon.

Darcy McGee and Claire McGee, cousins of the bride of Lufkin, presided at the guest register.

Following a wedding trip to Vail, Colo., the couple will be at home in Perdido Key.

The bride is a radiation oncology therapist and has worked at Penrose Cancer Center in Colorado Springs for the past three years. She was also a DJ for KCS, country music station in Colorado Springs. She is certified in aerobics and personal fitness training.

The groom graduated in 1995 from the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs with a bachelor of science degree and a minor in political science. He is now in pilot training at the Naval Air Station in Pensacola, Fla.

MRS. LARRY HAGE WEBB
...nee Jennifer D'Lyn Smith

Nazarene Church site of Smith, Webb vows

Jennifer D'Lyn Smith and Larry Hage Webb were united in marriage Aug. 3 in the Church of Nazarene in Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Smith of Hereford. The groom is the son of Mrs. Carol Webb of Garita, N.M. and the late Olan Webb.

Rev. Ted Taylor, pastor of the church, officiated the ceremony.

The church was decorated with three 16-branch candelabras filled with gerbers, liatres, larkspurs, snapdragons, golden aster, roses, irises, tulips and star gazer lilies. Two seven-branch candelabras were placed on each side of the kneeling bench. Miniature lights with tulle, english ivy and french ribbon were worked into all candelabras.

The unity candle was placed in a bed of fresh greenery and flowers.

Keith Gearn provided the music for the ceremony, while Benton Cain and Fred Hughes performed the vocal selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a candlelight beaded Alecon lace straight sheath featuring a bateau neckline and long sleeves. The back of the gown was accented with a double bow and full train of french tulle.

To complete her ensemble, she chose a candlelight headpiece of pearls and rhinestones that was finished with a soft pouff and fingertip veiling.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of casablanca lilies, roses, Star of Bethlehem and stephanotis tied with candlelight french ribbon.

Entwined in the bride's bouquet was her maternal grandfather's New Testament Bible.

Marcie Smith, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Benton Cain was the best man.

Bridesmaids were Debbie Pierce, Becky Whitson, Jami Pounds and Michelle Meyer.

Groomsmen were Joel Bennett,

Dub White, Wade Whitson, Wayne Fought, Doug Chandler, Alvin Romero, brother-in-law of the groom, Jared White, brother-in-law of the bride and Jerry Don Thompson.

Serving as ushers were Tony Wilcox, uncle of the bride, Kevin McCarty and Jimmy Suggs.

Junior bridesmaids were Sara, Anna, Christina and Maranda Romero, all nieces of the groom.

Britney Wilcox, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and Dillion White, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Fellowship Hall.

Misti Sharp presided at the registry.

Janic Wilson, Linda McConnell and Vicki Wilson served the bride's cake. Missey Romero and Linda McKinney, sisters of the groom, served the groom's cake.

The bride's cake was a five-tiered strawberry cake frosted with cream cheese icing in a basket-weave design. The cake was decorated with fresh flowers and displayed on a crystal light tower stand.

The couple take a wedding trip to Monument Lake Resort.

The bride attended Hereford High School for two years. She graduated as valedictorian of her class in 1993 from N.C.M.A., a private school.

The groom graduated in 1988 from Tucumcari High School. He is also a graduate of Clarendon College's ranch and feedlot program.

A bridesmaid's brunch was held on Saturday morning at the Hereford Country Club.

Table decorations were fresh spring flower arrangements.

The guests enjoyed quiche, assorted fresh fruits, chocolate tart, coffee and tea.

The brunch was hosted by Marcie White, sister of the bride, Bobbie Wilson, Layvon Hughes and Jo Ann Street, both aunts of the bride.

Thank You

Thank you is not enough to say to all of you that helped during Jerry's illness and death. A special thank you to all his farmer friends who went out after the funeral and plowed and to all of the farmers who offered their help. Many blessings to all of you!

Help For The Visually Impaired

A wide variety of gadgets are available to help people with low vision and other vision handicaps lead more independent lives. Count on your optometrist to provide the special microscopic and telescopic lenses and other optical aids that maximize remaining vision. In addition, there are no-nonsense tools like a kitchen scale that announces the weight of ingredients; closed-circuit "reading" devices that magnify words; a bedside clock that announces the time when touched; a remote-control unit with big, number-shaped buttons; a "talking" bathroom scale; large-scale, high contrast watches, clocks and telephones; and even playing cards with big numbers and color-coded suits.

Many of these items come from Spectrum, a catalog service of The Lighthouse, Inc., a nonprofit organization that supports the visually handicapped; for information, call 800-829-0500.

CPL. AND MRS. CHANCY D. BAINUM
...united in marriage

Bainum marries Fire

Michelle Anne Fire of Seattle, Wa., and Cpl. Chancy D. Bainum (USMC) of Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, were married July 27 in a garden wedding at the home of the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Bainum of Summerfield.

The bride is the daughter of Karen Fire of Seattle and Michael J. Fire of Glendora, Calif.

Larry Perkins, pastor of Frio Baptist Church, officiated at the evening ceremony.

Matron of honor was Rebecca Joy Nunnally. Best man was Craig Bainum, father of the groom.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and her stepfather, Gysgt. Andrew D. Gatzke (USMC) Ret.

Vocalist was Leslie Woodard.

The bride wore a full length white gown with an embroidered lace bodice and an open back. The A-line skirt featured a chiffon fall in the back.

Her hair ornament was a floral clip accented with pearls.

She carried a bouquet of fresh cut flowers.

The bride's ring was her maternal grandmother's wedding ring. She wore a choker belonging to her godmother, the late Linda Watkins.

A reception was held in the garden following the ceremony.

Cake was served by Gysgt. Wendy Gatzke (USMC) Ret., stepmother of the bride.

Serving punch and coffee were Cami Melugin, sister of the groom, and Kay Barber, cousin of the groom.

Photographer was Eddie Sebastian, uncle of the groom and videographer was Mike Bridges.

The serving table was decorated with a bouquet of silk flowers created by the groom's mother. The two-tiered heart-shaped white cake, with two satellite cakes, was decorated with blue roses.

Coffee was served from a silver service which was given to the groom's grandmother, the late Geraldine Bainum, on her wedding day by her father Joe Kendall.

The couple honeymooned in Las Vegas.

The bride graduated from Lakewood High School in Lakewood, Wa., in 1990 and attended college in California. She has been active in volleyball since she was 9 years old. She is currently a U.S. Marine Corps enlistee, scheduled for boot camp in January 1997.

The groom is a 1992 graduate of Hereford High School. He is in the U.S. Marine Corps, stationed at Marine Corps Base Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii.

Out of town guests were from Seattle, Wa., Glendora Calif., San Bernardino, Calif., Goldendale, Wa., Cortez, Colo., Lubbock and Arlington.

Emerson, Nguyen get Harrington scholarships

John Emerson and Bao Nguyen, both of Hereford, are among 27 students to receive a Sybil B. Harrington scholarship for the 1996-97 academic year.

The Amarillo College Foundation, Inc. awards the scholarships on an annual basis. Each recipient will receive the actual cost of tuition, fees, and books, up to a maximum of $3,500 per year. The Sybil B. Harrington scholarship fund was established by through the Amarillo College Foundation, Inc., in 1989 with a gift by Mrs. Harrington. She has contributed more than $2.5 million to the corpus of this fund.

The scholarships provided by the investment earnings recognize academically outstanding graduating seniors from any of the high schools in the 26 counties of the Panhandle and students graduating from Amarillo College.

Applicants are chosen on the basis of grade point average, college entrance exam scores, financial need and recommendation of high school principals and counselors or college instructors and advisers. The scholarships are awarded on an annual basis and may be renewed if outstanding academic achievement is maintained.

Emerson plans to attend Angelo State University. Nguyen plans to attend the University of Houston.

Red Cross Update

Johnnie Meeks will be taking over the Chapter Manager's job Monday. Come by and get acquainted with him.

A First Aid class will be held Monday from 7 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. in the Red Cross office. Register for this class by calling the office.

This is the first aid section of the Community Safety and CPR class. Those taking this class must have a current CPR card.

The Water Safety Instructor class has been postponed until September. Those interested in taking the class will have time to work on their strokes. Call Sandra at the Aquatic Center for information.

The Community Water Safety book is available at the office. This book is designed to help you learn about Water Safety in all water environments. The book also cover some first aid. The Swimming and Diving book is also available at the office.

A new supplement to the First Aid class is When Help is Delayed Module. This section is designed to expand prior training to include handling emergencies when EMS response is delayed for 30 minutes or more.

First Aid Instructors can be certified with a self-study program. Call the office for more information.

The Tri-County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way agency.

Free flowering trees available from Arbor Day Foundation

Ten free flowering trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during August 1996.

The free trees are part of the non-profit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The ten trees are two white flowering Dogwoods, two flowering Crabapples, two golden Raintrees, two Washington Hawthorns and two American Redbuds.

"These compact trees were selected for planting in large or small spaces," John Rosenow, the Foundation's president said. "They will give your home the beauty of lovely pink, white and yellow flowers--and also provide winterberries and nesting sites for songbirds."

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the the right time for planting between Oct. 1 and Dec. 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the Foundation's bimonthly publication, "Arbor Day" and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive free trees, send a $10 contribution to Ten Free Flowering Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Aug. 31.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Students should be challenged to take the initiative in opening the door to opportunities. They must learn that they'll never get anywhere waiting for someone to hand them the remote control.

As a result of steady scholastic progress, Hereford Junior High has again been designated as a Mentor School. This 1996-1997 designation entails having visitors from other schools and helping with staff development in area schools.

Parents and teachers should mark calendars and make plans now to attend HJH orientations on Aug. 13 and 15. Seventh-graders will have orientation at 7 p.m. Aug. 13, and eighth-graders will meet at 7 p.m. Aug. 15. We will have details on these meetings next week.

Congratulations to Maria Solis, who won the local VFW essay contest and also placed in the area competition. She has now placed fifth in the state competition on her "My American Hero" essay which she wrote about her father as her hero.

The Solis family has moved from the area and we need for anyone who may know their new address to contact HJH at 363-7630 or Linda Dutton of the VFW at 364-0081, so that Maria may be presented with her additional award money.

This brings to mind that there will be numerous opportunities for students to compete individually or in small groups this year. Included in the contest area: Geography Bee, History Day, Conservation Essay, VFW Essay, DAR Essay, Spelling Bee and any other contests that may come our way. We do encourage studies in this area and we continually have winners.

If any new seventh-graders would like to join the Junior Historians on their trip to see "TEXAS" or to attend the air show, they should contact Mrs. Drake at 364-3213 or Krista Warren at 258-7720. The "TEXAS" trip is Aug. 16 and air show is Aug. 17. Any Junior Historian that plans to attend should call to confirm their plans.

"The difference between opportunity and temptation is that is that the first usually knocks and the second just invites itself in." --George Hall

VFW Ladies Auxiliary names nine chairmen

The Ladies Auxiliary to Roy Wederbrook Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #4818 met recently with Linda Dutton presiding.

The following chairmen were named: Dora Lea Howell, food committee and calling; Pixie Forbus, membership and National Home; Ruth Morris, legislative; Marie Goheen, Voice of Democracy; Terry Rhyme, safety; Essie Martin and Carol O'Hara, Buddy Poppy; Anita Vardell, hospital and rehabilitation and Linda Dutton, publicity.

Betty Boggs was presented with a gift in honor of being named runner-up outstanding auxiliary president in our area for 1995-1996. She will receive a plaque at the District 13 Convention in Muleshoe Aug. 11. The state president, Eve Baldwin, will be present at that time. All members are urged to attend if at all possible.

Guests at the meeting were Colleen Schaeffer from Canyon and Deanna Duke, District 13 president, from Friona.

Members present were Peggy Oakes, Earline Schneider, Imogene Sweeney, Winnie Tyler, Boggs, Dutton, Forbus, Goheen, Howell, Martin, Morris, O'Hara, Rhyme and Vardell.

The next meeting will be Aug. 5 at 8 p.m., preceded by a salad supper at 7 p.m.

Fat ordinarily accounts for about ten to 20 percent of the weight of an adult male and about 25 percent of the weight of an adult female.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

As the sun sinks slowly in the west on the Summer Reading Club 1996, we find that over 600 children were enrolled, making the program a great success. Probably the highlight of the activity days was the Wonderful Waterpark Olympics. We are considering making this an annual grand finale.

Would you believe we are already planning for next summer? At present, I have a growing file in my desk drawer with ideas that have come out of impromptu brainstorming sessions among the staff. We're excited about it already.

Our purpose in the Summer Reading Club is to excite children about reading and books and give them positive, happy experiences with the library. As a teacher, I have watched as children get hooked on reading. Achievement test scores improve, sometimes soar. Attention span lengthens, and enthusiasm for learning increases.

It doesn't seem to matter much what kind of reading a child does, whether it's fiction, fantasy, nonfiction, science fiction, action/adventure or Garfield. The exercise and experience of reading brings results. Just because Summer Reading Club is over, don't quit encouraging and enabling your child to read. It's important.

With the end of summer comes the inevitable back-to-school season. Are you ready for it, or trying to ignore it? At our house, we approach it with mixed feelings. It will be nice to have the kids occupied again (I think they're getting a little bored), but back-to-school also means back to the morning hassle.

Getting everyone up, awake, fed, clean, dressed, equipped and out the door on time is a formidable task equal to that of an Olympic event. Surely a pentathlete does not go through any more rigorous preparation or meet a greater challenge than a mother of school children on any school morning. And the pentathlon is an individual sport, not a group venture that requires serious cooperation such as leaving for school every morning does.

Kid Cooperation by Elizabeth Pantley tells us "how to stop yelling, nagging and pleading and get kids to cooperate." Sounds like a plan to me. The book begins with the general philosophies of parenting, determining your parenting style, and distinguishing between punishment and discipline, but also includes real ideas for real families. Pantley gives skills that can be used in daily interactions with your children: practical ideas for getting kids to cooperate ending sibling fights, boosting children's self-esteem, and handling discipline issues with knowledge and authority.

Pantley indicates that there is no one right answer, but rather gives more than one possible way to approach a specific situation. Maybe this will help with the morning hassle and get our children on time with a smile on their faces. We can hope.

Also approaching is the November Presidential election. The Choice by Bob Woodward, based on a massive body of original reporting and documentation, and on hundreds of interviews with firsthand sources, is the behind-the-scenes story of President Bill Clinton and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole over the last two years.

Woodward covers such topics as the Republican primary, the influence of Vice-President Al Gore and House Speaker Newt Gingrich, Colin Powell's decision not to run, the strategies of both campaigns, and Dole's consideration of running mates. The Choice is also a character study of both parties' candidates and their wives, Hillary Rodham Clinton and Elizabeth Dole.

Mister, You Got Yourself a Horse is a collection of lively tales of old-time horse trading edited by Roger Welsh. Traveling horse traders of the 1930's told these stories to Federal Writers' Project field workers covering the span of horse trading: human and equine trickery, omeriness, debility and generosity.

Fiction books out this week include New York Times bestseller Gods and Generals by Jeff Shara. The author has continued his father's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel The Killer Angels, following the main characters through the difficult years leading up to the Battle of Gettysburg.

Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson is a by-the-book military instructor and devout Christian whose fierce exterior hides a compassionate soul that few will ever see as he becomes the greatest commander of the Civil War.

Winfield Scott Hancock is a Captain of Quartermasters who is assigned command of a brigade of infantry and quickly establishes himself as one of the finest leaders in the Union army.

Joshua Chamberlain gives up his promising academic career to volunteer for service in the new army and becomes one of the most heroic soldiers in American history.

Shara paints a brilliant portrait of Robert E. Lee, who is faced with resigning from a distinguished army career to defend his home, never believing until too late that a civil war would ever come to pass.

At the Battle of Fredericksburg, these four men meet on the same field and experience the exhilaration and horror of battle from four very different points of view.

How To Spot A Loser

In life the loser's score is always zero.
-W.H. Auden

You cannot spot a loser by how they dress, what kind of car they drive or where they live. You cannot identify them by the color of their skin, their height or weight. However, there are two very easy to identify characteristics that will help you spot and avoid losers: Their attitudes and their actions.

Zig Ziglar said, "Your attitude will determine your altitude." The Bible tells us we can always judge a tree by the fruit it bears. Therefore, the state of mind with which they approach any situation and the actions they take makes it easy to tell if folks are winners or losers.

Dead Giveaways

- Losers always have an excuse. They always find it easier to fix blame than to fix the problem. Unfortunately, our federal bureaucrats usually fall into this loser's category. Their failures outnumber their successes, but they can tell you quickly whose fault the failures are. (Not their own, of course.)
- Losers have low standards. Losers would lower standards so all can win, rather than recognize that winning is without value if you expend no effort. You only need to follow our educational system to see this process in action. Johnny and Susie graduated, but neither can read or do simple math.
- Losers are easily discouraged. When little things go wrong they get upset quickly. When someone blocks their progress even for a moment they get angry, pout or stop putting out any effort.
- Losers always consider their own needs first. John Wooden said, "You can't live a perfect day without doing something for someone who will never be able to repay you." Losers don't understand the value of Wooden's wisdom.
- Losers develop a loser's vocabulary. They also talk with a whine. Phrases like, "We've tried that before," "I don't think that will work," "I can't," "We don't have to," and "This is good enough," are common loser's language.
- Losers put their boss ahead of the customer. They often don't realize that the customer really signs their paycheck, not their boss. Winners know that if they focus on taking good care of business - satisfying customers - the boss will be happy, too.
- Losers look for an easy out. Losers would sooner lie than tell the truth when there are negative consequences. A loser will always take the easy way out.

- Losers compare their efforts with other losers. It's the "I'm OK, you're OK" mentality. What losers don't comprehend is that being equal may mean they're both mediocre. Losers hang together and take comfort in each others troubles.
- Losers are satisfied with meeting quota. Losers are content with just getting by. You'll never find a loser raising the bar or pushing the envelope. They don't believe in doing more than that for which they are being paid.
- Losers watch a lot of television. Oops, I may have crossed over the hallowed ground here. However, I'll stick by this observation: Winners find better uses for their time than filling their minds with useless drivel day-after-day and night-after-night. Winners watch TV, but very selectively.
- Losers are always "tomorrow" folks. Call them procrastinators or gonna-doers, but losers will always put off doing anything constructive as long as possible. Tomorrow never comes and the loser remains one still.

If you have a few loser's habits you would like to break, don't miss next week's column. In "How to be a winner," I'll share some of the best wisdom I've collected on becoming a more positive, productive person.

Country Living With Style

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures

For the family that wants elegance and upscale living in combination with an inviting atmosphere, Plan G-12, by HomeStyles Designers Network, is a good choice. With 2,470 square feet of living space, this country-style home comfortably accommodates a large family.

The breezy wraparound porch provides a pleasant spot for leisure. Other highlights of the exterior include oversized arched windows and front-facing gables.

Inside there are high ceilings and large living spaces, introduced by the 18-foot-high foyer.

On the left, the spacious living room flows into the formal dining room, which, in turn, opens to the porch and an optional rear deck. During parties, this convenient layout allows guests to move easily from dinner to the living room or even the porch.

The nearby kitchen serves the dining room and the breakfast nook. The island work station is ideal for meal preparation, while the nook is a cheery spot for breakfast and snacks.

AN INVITING WRAPAROUND PORCH is the focal point of this country-style, two-story traditional home's exterior.

For everyday activities, the good-sized family room is the place to be. An 18-ft. vaulted ceiling creates a dramatic sense of space and a corner fireplace adds appeal.

Unless otherwise noted, every main-floor room has a 9-ft. ceiling.

Upstairs, the lush master bedroom features an 11-ft. vaulted ceiling and two walk-in closets. The sky-lighted master bath has a spa tub, a separate shower and a dual-sink vanity.

Three more bedrooms are reachable by a balcony, which overlooks the family room. In the fourth bedroom, the ceiling rises to 10 feet at the window.

G-12 STATISTICS

Design G-12 has a foyer, living room, dining room, kitchen, breakfast room, family room, four bedrooms, two full baths, one half-bath and a laundry room, totaling 2,470 square feet of living space. The plan is available with 2x4 exterior wall framing and a daylight basement, standard basement or slab foundation. A two-car garage with a storage area provides 421 square feet of space.

Bathroom cleaners can discolor aluminum and brass. Rinse off excess cleaner immediately to prevent or minimize the problem.

Beautifully decorated 4 bdrm. home. Very nice beige carpet throughout - den with woodburning fireplace, isolated master bdrm. and bath. Front kitchen and dining room. Seller might lease purchase to a qualified buyer.

Relocation company says "Get this sold!" Price is $5,000 less than the original listing. This is a great deal! Now $49,900, and seller will pay $1,000 toward buyer's closing costs. New heating unit.

Family needs to settle the estate so they are anxious to sell their parents' custom built home at 234 Beach. 3 bdrm., 2 baths, single car garage. Very attractive, large living room, central heat and air, earth-tone colors. Guest bdrm. would make a great study/office or sewing room.

The best of two worlds! Country home with 5 acres, just north of Hereford on Avenue K. Very unusual: large living room with fireplace, dining room and kitchen with fireplace, sunroom with hot-tub, den or gameroom. Several out buildings. Two domestic wells. Completely fenced.

First place at national show

Estate plan can benefit ranchers

"A properly drawn estate plan may save many ranch families over $200,000 in estate taxes." This statement made by Wayne A. Hayenga, Texas extension economist and attorney, assumes a lot of information: a married couple who "like each other" and want to care for each other, who have a ranch worth $1 million or more and want to pass it on to their children.

This is an eye opening fact for many ranchers. In fact, many people only worry about estate planning if they hear of a friend's "problem" in selling a ranch to pay estate taxes.

"But," Hayenga said, "for many families the estate tax savings are not as large as income tax savings if they have a properly prepared estate plan."

A two-day seminar talking about these complicated tax topics will be held Aug. 11-12 at Texas A&M University in College Station in conjunction with the Annual Beef Cattle Shortcourse.

The seminar is structured to help ranchers learn how to lower their tax burden and ease administrative burdens that affect passing their estates to their loved ones. In addition to discussing estate planning systems, tax savings possibilities will be discussed using corporations, partnerships and trusts when family members are involved in the business.

Making gifts to avoid estate taxes will be discussed also. Two problems that affect family operations--planning for inflation and growth needs of the business will be discussed. Another topic, how to be fair among all children when one child is interested in the ranch and others are not, will be addressed.

Hayenga is a Professor and Extension Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. An agricultural economist and attorney, Hayenga works extensively with farmers, ranchers and family-owned firms in financial, business and estate tax planning.

He is a member of the Texas and American Bar Associations and the American Agricultural Law Association. He is active in the Agricultural Law Committee of the State Bar of Texas.

The registration fee is $60 and registration information is available from Hayenga, Carl Sabo or Christine Eubank, Agricultural Economics Department, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843.

Extemporaneous speaking winners

Top contestants in the senior division of the extemporaneous speaking contest were chosen at the 1996 National Junior Angus Show in Kansas City, Mo. Moriah Olson of Hereford, right, placed second in the contest, while first place went to Jeanette Curtis of Twin Falls, Idaho.

Extension Agent's Notes

By DENNIS NEWTON
County Extension Agent--AG

The Texas Country Clean Up Program will again be in Hereford at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn on Wednesday, Aug. 7, from 8 a.m. to noon to collect pesticide containers, both plastic and metal, used motor oil filters and lead acid batteries. Please note that no pesticides or tires will be accepted.

This is the fourth year for this collection program sponsored by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Department of Agriculture. It will be free of charge and open to all agricultural producers.

To be acceptable for recycling, plastic crop protection product containers, which include EPA registered products adjuvants, crop oils and surfactants, must be empty, clean, inspected, uncapped and dry.

For more information on the Texas Country Clean Up Day in Hereford, call the Deaf Smith County extension office at 364-3573.

Agriculture Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP)--More than 600,000 acres have been withdrawn from the government's conservation reserve program under a provision of the new farm law.

The Agriculture Department said even more land will take an early release from the program because of contracts accepted before 1995. There is no deadline for requesting early termination, but there are restrictions on what types of acreage are eligible.

Nearly one-sixth--almost 97,000 acres--of the total withdrawn is in Iowa. Montana is second at 55,000 acres and North Dakota is third at nearly 58,000 acres.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)--State agriculture officials are cracking down on ornamental cotton growing in an effort to stop the pesky boll weevil.

The ban, which affects parts of the state east of the Tennessee River, prohibits cotton growing in flower beds or gardens, on lawns for decoration or for use as padding for quilts.

Boll weevil infestation of ornamental cotton puts the state's commercial crop in danger, said Joe McKenzie of the Rutherford County agricultural extension service. Cotton was the state's No. 1 cash crop last year.

Boll weevils can destroy an entire cotton crop. The pests have caused $13 billion in damage in the United States over the last 100 years.

Growers have decided to concentrate on eradicating the boll weevil rather than on controlling programs. Harvest yields have increased dramatically in areas where the pest has been eliminated, McKenzie said.

Commercial cotton growers participate in a boll-weevil eradication program, in which farmers pay a fee to have their fields assessed. Traps are placed in the fields, and if any of the pests are found, the field is sprayed, McKenzie said.

NJAA officers and directors

Hereford resident Moriah Olson, shown here at second from left in the back row, was elected a director of the National Junior Angus Association. Board members are, front, from left, Suzanne Berry, communications director; John Dickinson, chairman; Jennifer Hawkins, leadership director; Shantelle Andrews, membership information director; Bob Stevenson, vice chairman; and Monica Feeser, foundation director; and back, from left, directors Brent Scarlett; Olson; Dru Uden; Jarrod Gilling; Andrew Donnell; and Leigh Ann Campbell.

High Incident role long overdue for David Keith

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

David Keith has waited a long time for a part like the one he has in High Incident. But he wasn't really looking for a series role when this one came along.

With a resume that includes a supporting role in the Oscar-winning 1982 blockbuster An Officer and a Gentleman, plus a couple of forgettable TV series, Keith had seen his screen career taper off in recent years while he spent time on his Tennessee farm and developed his own movie projects.

"This one kind of found me," he says of High Incident, a police drama set in suburban Southern California. "With (Steven) Spielberg attached (as an executive producer), and the great writing and Charlie Haid (Hill Street Blues) directing, it was just too good a thing to pass up."

One of Keith's agents knew of the project and encouraged him to audition for the central role of Sgt. Jim Marsh.

"I wasn't interested in doing a dramatic show because I had visions of having no life," Keith says, referring to the notoriously long days actors work when they star in hourlong dramatic series.

"But because this is an ensemble piece, there are four other stories besides mine going on in any given episode. So I usually have time off every week. You don't get tired; you feel like you're always fresh."

"Of course, I'm saying that now. Hopefully it will run five years. I hope it runs long enough to get tired of it."

After debuting last winter, Incident had a long spring hiatus as ABC mulled the reasons for its tepid ratings. In the end, the show was renewed for fall. It began airing in its permanent Thursday berth during July. The renewal gave Keith the first chance he's ever had to develop a character over more than a few weeks' time.

"The arc for a character in a television series is much different from the arc you draw for a character in a film," he says. "At the end of a two-hour film he has to have gone from one place to another."

"I think with this, at the end of six months you should see a change. Marsh will learn and change at the same rate a person does in real life, not in sped-up movie time."

In the opening episodes, Marsh is driven by a sense of duty on the job, yet hounded by failures in his personal life.

"In a lot of ways," Keith notes, "it's the kind of cop I would be if I was a cop. Kind of no-nonsense and cut-to-the-chase."

"There's no controlling Jim Marsh. Nobody's going to nail him down. I think commitment is a problem for him."

That would account for Marsh's three divorces. But, Keith is quick to add, there has been "a daughter with each marriage. That's the highlight of his life. His three daughters are everything to him. They're his trophies that show he did do something right."

Keith enjoys the thoroughly suburban milieu of High Incident, which uses real-life cul-de-sacs in the San Fernando Valley for its frequent location shooting.

"If you look at most of Steven (Spielberg)'s movies," Keith notes, "they have that suburban theme. That's where he came from."

"Suburbia is all supposed to be hunky-dory. But this (series) shows what suburbia is really like. We kind of pull the bark up and watch the bugs run."

"Just open your mind," he advises, "and let us come in and play there."

David Keith (right) heads an ensemble cast in ABC's High Incident, a police drama set in suburbia. The series currently airs Thursdays and has been renewed by the network for the fall. Cole Hauser (also pictured), Aunjanue Ellis, Julio Mechoso and Matthew Beck are among the other cast members.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ August 4-10 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Trying to manipulate others to get your own way will only backfire — especially when it comes to family. Instead, try a straightforward approach. You'll see that it's much more effective. If changes are going on in the workplace, this may be the opportunity to advance.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Unforeseen interruptions will keep you from your original agenda this week. It will be especially frustrating because you will probably have no control over the situation. You may have to subscribe to the "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em" theory. Good news comes Thursday.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
An unexpected show of emotion from a work associate will take you by surprise. You'll see a completely different side of this person (probably an Aries). What seems like a wild goose chase early in the week could lead to an opportunity later on. You'll feel that it was "meant to be."

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Out of town visitors brighten the week ahead. You'll have fun playing host and tour guide. An upcoming anniversary or celebration gives you an excuse to splurge a little. A relationship you form now could hold important meaning in the years to come. Be patient with an irritable Libra.

LEO - July 23/August 23
Don't let insecurities get in the way of opportunity. Believe in yourself and others will, too. A down-and-out friend will come to you with a problem. Don't be afraid to give honest advice. It may hurt at first, but (s)he will appreciate it in the long run. The mail brings good news.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
A dream you have early in the week will help you figure out an answer to an ongoing problem. Midweek, you could be faced with a confrontation in the workplace. Don't back down — especially when dealing with authority figures. New romance is a big possibility for the weekend.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Be positive, but don't get your hopes up too high when it comes to a long shot. Think realistically. Have a big home project? Enlisting the help of friends could cut the work time in half. Just be sure you give detailed instructions or you might not get the result you want. A look towards the future gives you reason to smile.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
A scandal in the workplace makes the beginning of the week more interesting. You'll find out some interesting and shocking news. If you've been thinking about taking on a creative hobby, now's the time to make a move. You may find out something new about yourself.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
A series of mishaps on Monday could delay weekend plans. If you're in a new relationship, this could be a tricky time. Keep things at a slow pace or the object of your affections could get scared away. This is especially true with Leo. A reminder of your past comes Tuesday.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Take a stand this week or you'll be taken advantage of. Your willingness to please needs to be curbed — at least when it comes to business. In matters of love, you could be in for a pleasant surprise. When a friend confides in you later in the week, be sure to listen with both ears wide open.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
A spur-of-the-moment night out will set a relaxing tone for the rest of the week. You'll pledge to take life less seriously. News of a friend's good fortune will provide inspiration. A Scorpio's actions will effect you in some way later in the week. Keep a tight hold on finances.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Don't back down if you feel strongly about an issue. Even if you're not the most articulate debater, you'll get your point across with pure passion.

Something that started as a temporary situation will turn permanent if you want. A heart-to-heart discussion makes Friday more meaningful.

HIGHLIGHTS

Scott Reeves and Sydney Penny star in Hearts Adrift, the story of a mother and daughter learning lessons about life and love. The movie premieres Wednesday on USA Network.

Hearts Adrift is a sweet summer treat on USA

Hearts Adrift is the stuff of summer. It's not the boats and bikinis -- although there are plenty of those.

What makes Hearts Adrift a perfect summer movie is its cotton candy plot and the way it skips across the surface of real life.

Like the beach treat spun of sugar and air, the story is at times a little too sweet and sticky, but colorful all the same.

And, like skipping a stone at a lake's edge, the viewer pretty much knows which direction it will take and where it will finish, but that doesn't make doing it less enjoyable.

Hearts Adrift, premiering Wednesday, Aug. 7, on USA Network, tells the story of Grace Deerfield, an attractive widow played by Kathleen Noone, and her daughter, Maxine (Sydney Penny).

Both mother and daughter are having trouble moving on with their lives since Claude Deerfield's death three years earlier. Claude was Grace's husband and Maxine's father.

Grace hovers over Maxine, who yearns to leave the small lakeside town where she has lived her entire life.

When Grace receives an invitation to spend the weekend in California, Maxine thinks they both should go.

The invitation is from Grace's high-school sweetheart, Lloyd Raines (Don Murray), whom Grace left 30 years earlier to marry Claude, a boy she met at her family's weekend vacation site.

Lloyd is now a wealthy businessman. Grace's curiosity and Maxine's sense of adventure lead them to accept.

The glittering world of Lloyd and his son, Kyle (Scott Reeves), dazzles and intimidates Maxine. But Grace, who was raised in similar surroundings, cautions her.

During the weekend, both mother and daughter get a new perspective on their relationships with each other and with the men in their lives.

In other words, Hearts Adrift is a story of True Love and What's Important in Life.

Veteran actor Nicholas Coster plays Grace's steadfast friend and patient suitor back home.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: This has been bothering me for a long time. Did Peri Gilpin (Roz on Frasier) provide the voice of the radio doctor, Marcia Fieldstone, in Sleepless in Seattle? If not, who was it? -Tim Curran, Long Beach, Calif.

A: Caroline Aaron provided the voice of Dr. Fieldstone.

Incidentally, if you think Gilpin's Roz on Frasier sounds authentic, there's good reason for it. She's the daughter of the late Jack O'Brien, a nationally known broadcaster.

Q: What is going on with Forever Knight? Is this the end of the series? -M.T. Shepherd, Girard, Pa.

A: Yes. As of this writing, Knight is not scheduled to return next season.

Q: Can you please tell me the name of the police show from the '70s with Dennis Cole? -Mrs. A. Meola, Haledon, N.J.

A: Cole starred with Howard Duff in Felony Squad, which ran on ABC from Sept. 12, 1966, to Jan. 31, 1969.

Q: Which network aired Barney Miller? Is there a reason why it is never shown on TV? -J. Mayhew, Mashpee, Mass.

A: Barney Miller ran on ABC from Jan. 23, 1975, to Sept. 9, 1982.

It is readily available in syndication to any station that is interested and does, in fact, air in many parts of the country.

Q: Can you identify the title and composer of the song performed by the Mounties in an episode of Due South late in the season? The hook line was "We're gonna ride forever." -Phil Lane, Bainbridge, Ind.

A: Which would explain the title of the song: "Ride Forever." It was written by South star Paul Gross, who performs it on the new Due South soundtrack album.

Q: There was a doctor show on TV years before Dr. Kildare and Ben Casey. I believe it starred Richard Boone. What was it? How long did it run? -J.S., Turners Falls, Mass.

Peri Gilpin

A: Boone starred in Medic, a landmark drama that ran on NBC from Sept. 13, 1954, to Nov. 19, 1956.

To heighten the sense of realism, the series was filmed in actual hospitals and clinics and utilized actual doctors and nurses as part of the cast.

Q: Is the actress who plays Yetta, Fran Fine's grandmother, on The Nanny the same lady who played Millie Helper, the Petries' neighbor, on The Dick Van Dyke Show? The voice is similar. -Joanne Hart, Oil City, Pa.

A: Yes. Ann Morgan Guilbert played both roles.

Q: Please print the address of Cannell Entertainment Inc. -Mrs. F.M. Pike, Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

A: Cannell Entertainment Inc., 7083 Hollywood Blvd., Fourth Floor, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

SOAP TALK

AMC, GL, B&B make some casting changes

All My Children has surprised fans by replacing Mary Fickett with Lee Meriwether in the role of Ruth.

Fickett retired from the role a few months ago. The producers were going to find a new love interest for Joe (Ray MacDonnell) but decided to take a different route and hired Meriwether to take over the role.

Meriwether, Miss America 1955, starred on Barnaby Jones and Batman and has been in several TV movies.

In other casting news: Guiding Light producers were faced with the daunting task of finding someone to take over the role of Alan-Michael when Rick Hearst decided to vacate the role. Michael Dietz was selected to replace Hearst. Fans may recognize Dietz from his stint as Greg on Beverly Hills, 90210. Greg was the Cedars-Sinai Medical Center resident who dated Kelly (Jennie Garth). Fans were not happy about Hearst's departure, but Hearst said he thought it was time to move on to other things.

Ken Hanes (Mike Guthrie) is back on The Bold and the Beautiful. Mike will be helping Sheila (Kimberlin Brown) with her latest diabolical plan.

When he left town, Mike wasn't too happy with Sheila. But it looks as if all may be forgiven -- at least for now.

Dear Candace: I would like to respond to reader Patrick Hiran's comments about Brooke (Katherine Kelly Lang) on B&B.

Hiran should go through the history of the women on B&B before he begins slamming them. The entire story of how Brooke became a Forrester renders Hiran's comments pathetic. There is a reason Brooke's only friend is a supersleaze like Sheila. Hiran is a bleeding heart for a pretty face. --California Fan of Soap Talk.

Dear Reader: It's good to know someone has been paying attention all these years. New fans of B&B aren't familiar with Brooke's past. The fact both of her children were fathered by her boyfriend's father, Eric (John McCook), should give viewers some kind of clue.

CHITTER CHATTER

WAILUKU, Hawaii (AP) - "Jack" star Robin Williams' next big role is a Roman Catholic priest who embarked on the path to sainthood by ministering to the sick in a notorious Hawaiian leper colony.

Born in Belgium, the famed Father Damien was ordained in Honolulu before traveling to the Kalaupapa leprosy settlement on Molokai Island in 1873. He eventually contracted the disease and died there in 1889.

Damien was beatified last summer by Pope John Paul II. Beatification is the last step before sainthood in the church.

Williams has agreed to star in the Tri-Star Pictures film, subject to script approval and availability, the office of Maui County Mayor Linda Crockett Lingle announced Saturday.

Williams has been instrumental in developing the project with a budget of $35 million to $50 million, depending on final cast and director selections, it said. Filming is expected to begin in 1997.

NEW YORK (AP) - Life in the fast lane was no fun for rapper LL Cool J. The gangsta image is gone, along with the flashy sports cars.

"I've driven every car I ever wanted to drive in life," says the performer born as James Todd Smith. "All I need is four wheels and a cellular to conduct my business."

Times have changed for the once-archetypical rapper. Also gone are designer duds and other trappings of excess. He doesn't even carry a beeper.

"I don't live for that stuff anymore," he says. "When I think about buying a car or something, I call my broker and invest it instead."

Besides his music career, he's the star of the sitcom "In the House." Previously known for dating glamorous music scene figures like Kidada Jones, daughter of producer Quincy Jones, he's now married to his childhood sweetheart, Simone. They have three children.

TRIVIA

In England during the early 19th century, men, women and children all wore corsets. The men soon gave them up.

Eddie Murphy appeared in his first Saturday Night Live sketch at age 19. He played Richard Simmons in a spoof of Simmons' exercise show.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

Now newly revised and better than ever!

Shearer Publishing is pleased to announce its new edition of THE ROADS OF TEXAS. We have added dozens of country roads, lanes, cowtrails, and put new names or numbers on hundreds of others, names like Good Luck Road (Guadalupe County), Seven Sisters Drive (Kendall County), and Lone Star Alley (Menard County). Altogether, the new edition identifies more than 25,000 state and county highways and byways, and the bright new cover features current scenic photographs from around the state. THE ROADS OF TEXAS is different from any other road atlas, with more detail, more historical travel information, more heart. It has proven especially popular with the curious traveler inclined toward a little adventure, who doesn't mind getting to Aunt Martha's house just a bit late.
