Fatal accident

Emergency personnel were called out at about 9 a.m. this morning to what turned out to be a fatal accident six miles west of Hereford on U.S. 60. According to preliminary information, one man, whose name has not been released by authorities, died when he somehow fell or was thrown from a grain truck he was driving. One report indicated the right rear dual tires were both flat on the Chevrolet grain truck he was driving. The vehicle was loaded with wheat. Department of Public Safety troopers are investigating.

Doctor testifies he never thought Reid caused daughter's ailments

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - A Chicago doctor said he never suspected in 1983 that Tanya Reid had anything to do with her daughter's series of mysterious respiratory ailments that resulted in 10 trips to a hospital emergency room.

Now, pediatrician Shashikant Kudchadker testified Thursday, "I don't know."

Kudchadker was a witness for the prosecution at the murder trial of Ms. Reid, a 38-year-old former nurse who is being tried for the second time in connection with the death of 8-month-old Morgan Reid in February, 1984, when the family was living in the Texas Panhandle town of Hereford.

She was convicted at a Hereford trial in 1993 and sentenced to 62 years in prison. But a state appeals court overturned the verdict last year, citing the presiding judge's failure to consider a change of venue request out of Hereford.

The jury found she smothered her daughter, then shook the child into a lifeless coma.

The defense contends the child died naturally on Feb. 8, 1984, just as Ms. Reid has said ever since.

At the time of the conviction, she already was serving a 10-year sentence in Iowa for endangering the life of her 3-year-old son, Matthew, in 1988 while living in Des Moines. The case prompted Texas prosecutors to re-examine Morgan's death.

Kudchadker testified Thursday that he was the pediatrician for the baby girl and two other of Ms. Reid's children in 1983, when the family lived in Illinois.

Kudchadker recounted 10 respiratory incidents that resulted in Morgan being rushed to a Chicago emergency room. All of the attacks except one occurred between noon and 5 p.m. on weekdays between August and December of 1983, he said.

"I have no doubt she was alone with Morgan," he said. "We talked about it many, many times. Every time there was an episode, she gave CPR and the child came to."

Tests and apnea monitors were used to determine the cause of Morgan's attacks but doctors never found a medical culprit, Kudchadker said. Doctors also did not see any evidence of child abuse, and Ms. Reid always acted as a devoted, affectionate parent, he said.

"I never suspected then that she did anything to the child," Kudchadker said. "I don't know now."

Kudchadker said the Reid family returned to the Chicago area after Morgan's death and sought his medical care again when Ms. Reid gave birth to a son, Robert, in May 1985. Within his first 26 days, Robert began having apnea episodes similar to Morgan's, he said.

Robert was rushed to the hospital seven times with severe apnea attacks - a temporary stopping of breathing - and each time Ms. Reid had been alone with her son, Kudchadker said. One incident occurred in one of Kudchadker's examining rooms.

"When I came in the room she was saying 'Doctor, help me,'" Kudchadker said. "She had her mouth over the baby's mouth, was administering CPR and he was dusky."

Ms. Reid always appeared in control of the situation when her children suffered respiratory problems and showed little emotion, he said.

"She always seemed cool, calm and collected," Kudchadker said. "She was a tower of strength."

Dr. Rolf Habersang testified Wednesday that he was present at Morgan's autopsy after she died Feb.

Bullock sees White House in George W. Bush's future

AUSTIN (AP) - Another President Bush?

That's what Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, a Democrat, sees in the future of Republican Gov. George W. Bush.

"I predict Gov. Bush will be president someday," Bullock told a crowd gathered Thursday for the swearing-in ceremony of new state Sen. John Carona, R-Dallas, which Bush also attended.

"I've said it to him for quite a while," Bullock later told The Associated Press. He also said his remarks weren't an endorsement - just his best guess.

"I think he will be (president). There's no other governor in the country today that has the rapport with the Legislature and with the people that I find George Bush has. He's an extremely nice person, and 7, 1984, at Northwest Hospital in Amarillo. Blood clots in Morgan's brain pointed to evidence of child abuse, he said.

Presiding pathologist Ian Birkitt disagreed with Habersang's diagnosis and reported the baby's death as Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, Birkitt said during testimony Wednesday.

Birkitt later testified he was unfamiliar with signs of a shaken baby 12 years ago and she could have been shaken or smothered to death.

he's all Texan."

Bush is the eldest son of former President George Bush and was an adviser in his father's election campaigns. So he knows the ropes when it comes to big-time national politics.

For the record, Bush said Thursday that he's not looking at any other office right now.

"I'm concentrating on being governor of Texas," he laughed, adding that perhaps Bullock meant he would become "president of the Senate or something. I don't know."

Elected in 1994, Bush defeated the popular Democratic Gov. Ann Richards, who had become a major national political figure.

The Republican enjoyed remarkable success in the 1995 Legislature, his first and so far only session.

State sets new export record

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - With the state's NAFTA partners leading the buying binge, Texas notched its highest-ever level of exports during the first three months of this year, the state Department of Commerce reports.

Mexico and Canada, participants in the North American Free Trade Agreement, ranked first and second as Texas exports set a quarterly record of $17.98 billion.

That was up 5.6 percent from the first quarter of 1995, when exports totaled $17.02 billion.

"The new figures suggest that 1996 will be another record-breaking year for Texas exports, particularly with the revival in shipments to Mexico," said Brenda Arnett, Commerce Department executive director.

The rebounding Mexican economy paced the country's 11.6 percent increase over last year. Exports to Mexico totaled $6.18 billion, second only to the $6.35 billion recorded in the fourth quarter of 1994.

Shipments to Canada rose 9.5 percent to $1.83 billion and have roughly doubled since 1992, the Commerce Department said.

"It should be encouraging for Texas businesses interested in exporting that our closest foreign markets are also among our strongest foreign markets," Ms. Arnett said Thursday.

Rounding out the top 10 markets were Japan, the United Kingdom, Taiwan, Singapore, South Korea, China, Brazil and Venezuela.

The figures also showed something of a shakeup in exporting industries. Electronic equipment and components regained the top spot, while shipments of industrial machinery and computers rose to second.

Rules set for banks that sell insurance

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Insurance Commission Elton Bomer has set temporary rules governing banks entering the insurance market.

Under a recently upheld federal law, national banks in communities with populations of 5,000 or fewer people can sell insurance.

Although state law prohibits such business, the Texas Constitution gives state banks the same powers as national banks.

Bomer said more permanent changes to state law will have to be made next year.

"Today's guidelines ... enable Texas to comply with the law of the land until the Legislature and Congress can establish a permanent regulatory framework," Bomer said Thursday. "Under these guidelines, banks and other agents will sell insurance under the same rules."

Among the interim rules, banks:

issued by insurance companies authorized to do business in Texas.

- May not require customers to buy insurance from the bank or from a particular company or agent in order to get a loan or any other bank service.

- Are prohibited from offering discounts or other lures to buy insurance. They also cannot use special deals on insurance to lure banking business.

John Heasley, general counsel for the Texas Bankers Association, said the rules are fair and recognize the federal law.

"You will have more outlets selling the same product and that will drive the price down," he said.

Heasley said there are about 850 banks in Texas and more than half have branches in areas where banks will be allowed into the insurance market.

How hot!?!?!?

Drivers passing FirstBank Southwest's thermometer around 2:30 p.m. Thursday got an eyeful of heat when the temperature displayed showed a whopping 110 degrees. Officially, the high was 106 degrees, which broke a record for the date.

Chewy Tootsie Roll celebrates 100 years of production

By HILLARY CHURA
AP Business Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - At 76 years old, Melvin Gordon is like a kid in a candy store, snatching pieces of gooey Tootsie Roll from the assembly line and savoring the taste.

"There's nothing like a hot Tootsie Roll," the chairman of Tootsie Roll Industries Inc. says as he licks the oozing candy from his fingers.

It's been 100 years since candy maker Leo Hirschfield came up with the treat and named it for his 5-year-old daughter, Clara, his wife Tootsie. A century ago, electric lights had just begun to flicker across America, and Utah had just been added as the 45th state.

Now, Tootsie Roll makes enough candy each year to stretch from Earth to the moon and back.

Tootsie Roll's main product - a concoction of sugar, milk, corn syrup and cocoa - has endured during a general slump in the candy bar industry, as have its other treats, including Mason Dots, Charleston Chew, Sugar Daddys and Charms Blow-Pops.

Total company sales exceeded $300 million last year - making it the No. 6 candy maker in the United States with about 7 percent of the U.S. nonchocolate candy market, said company President Ellen Gordon - Melvin's wife.

Success hasn't stopped Tootsie Roll from being run like a family business by the Gordons.

Mrs. Gordon is the link to the Tootsie Roll dynasty. In the 1920s, her mother bought some of the company's shares for about $8.25 each and encouraged relatives to do the same.

By the 1930s, the family owned a controlling interest; today the Gordons hold about 50 percent of the company's stock. Melvin Gordon has been chairman since 1962, and his wife joined in 1968, after raising their four daughters.

The Gordons work hard to maintain a familylike atmosphere - greeting employees by name at the company's Chicago plant and allowing the 1,700 workers at five plants to eat their fill of sweets while on the job.

The company has paid dividends for 53 years, increased sales each year for the past 19 years and boosted earnings annually for the past 14.

The Gordons' success also stems from their aggressive expansion overseas, with their products now sold in South America, the Far East, Middle East and Eastern Europe.

And the company has tried other sweet ventures, including caramel-and-apple flavored lollipops and brightly packaged Mutant Frootians, suckers that change colors and flavors on the way to a Tootsie Roll center.

As for the Tootsie Roll, much of its continued success is attributed to its taste, low fat content and low price - individual Tootsie Rolls still sell for 1 cent.

Six pieces come with the same 3 grams of fat as the day the first chunk was made, so Americans often chomp into the bite-sized treats with little worry about their waistlines, says Susan Smith, spokeswoman for the National Confectioners Association.

"I see in Glamour and other magazines where they recommend you have a Tootsie Roll because it's small and not high in fat," Smith says.

Oddly enough, Tootsie Rolls aren't classified as chocolate under the definitions federal officials use to collect data on the candy industry.

Gone are the days where some Tootsie Rolls came with peanuts or raisins, but the basic Tootsie Roll endures.

"Nothing can happen to a Tootsie Roll. We have some that were made in 1938 that we still eat," Gordon says. "If you can't bite it when it's that old, you certainly can lick it."

Ann Landers References to loved ones help ease pain

Dear Ann Landers: Not long ago, you printed a letter from Rose Sahli in Carmel, Calif. Rose spoke of how her son had died and she wished family members and friends would talk about him more often. That letter made us think of a poem, "The Elephant in the Room." It appeared in your column a few years ago.

We have been members of The Compassionate Friends, an organization for grieving parents, since our son was killed in a freak auto accident eight years ago. Matt was 17.

This poem makes it clear that not only is it OK to talk about our dead child but that the references are appreciated because a day never goes by that our child is not in our thoughts. We give this poem to family, friends and co-workers to let them know how we feel. I hope you will find it worth sharing again. -- South Windsor, Conn.

Dear Conn.: Thank you for suggesting I use that wonderful poem in my column. I published it in 1993 and received several letters of appreciation. Incidentally, I was among those who had the mistaken notion that it was painful for family members to hear references to a loved one who had died. Many readers called me on it, and I know better now. Here is the poem: The Elephant in the Room by Terry Kettering

There's an elephant in the room.
It is large and squatting, so it is hard to get around it.

Yet we squeeze by with "How are you?" and "I'm fine" ...

And a thousand other forms of trivial chatter.

We talk about the weather.
We talk about work.

We talk about everything else -- except the elephant in the room.

There's an elephant in the room.
We all know it is there.

We are thinking about the elephant

as we talk together.
It is constantly on our minds.
For, you see, it is a very big elephant.

It has hurt us all.
But we do not talk about the elephant in the room.

Oh, please, say her name.
Oh, please, say "Barbara" again.

Oh, please, let's talk about the elephant in the room.

For if we talk about her death,
Perhaps we can talk about her life.

Can I say "Barbara" to you and not have you look away?

For if I cannot, then you are leaving me

Alone ... In a room ...
With an elephant.

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed one or two definitions of conservatives and liberals, sent in by readers. I hope you will print mine, which is a bit more off-beat than the others. Actually, it did not originate with me. I read it somewhere, but I can't remember where. Here it is:
A conservative is someone who thinks nothing should be done for the first time. -- K.L.D.

Dear K.L.D.: Thanks for your contribution. I don't know who said it, but I can assure you several people in my reading audience will know and I'll be hearing from them.

Economists give tips to make cooking easier

The kitchen range is one of the hardest-working appliances used every day in homes across the country. Its efficient surface units help prepare all kinds of foods, from oatmeal and eggs to hamburgers and chicken, plus canning vegetables and fruits, to slow-cooking stews.

Probably everyone knows how to cook on top of the range, but you might be surprised to learn a few shortcuts that can make that cooking even quicker. Here are a few tips from some home economists.

*Use only flat-bottomed pans which make good contact with the surface element for the fastest conduction of heat.

*Use pans which fit the surface elements. Placing large pans on a small element increases the heating time...and using a large element for a small pan wastes energy.

*When boiling water for pasta, cooked cereals, rice, etc., start with the hottest tap water to decrease heating time.

*Cover pots and pans during cooking to retain heat and steam and decrease cooking time.

*Keep drip bowls clean for best reflection of heat to the pan.

*Use high heat setting to start foods cooking, then lower the setting to maintain desired temperatures.

Growing up is after all only understanding that one's unique and incredible experience is what everyone shares.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband, who is not given to ruminating about nutrition, asked me an interesting question, which I pass on to you. Since many Americans have reduced salt seasoning in cooking and at the table, and food processors boast about every fraction of saltless content, are we as a culture being deprived of iodine, with which iodized salt is laced to satisfy thyroid gland needs? -- R.N.B.

ANSWER: Nature provides the iodine we need to satisfy thyroid gland needs.

A few shakes of salt, equivalent to a half-teaspoon, fills the daily iodine need: 150 micrograms. And think for a moment of the many alternative sources of salt and iodine. Milk and dairy products have iodine because cows today have iodized salt licks available.

If the population were iodine-deprived, would we not be seeing rampant goiter as evidence?

The rationale behind adding iodine to salt was a public health ploy to end goiter as a world problem in large areas where iodine content in soil or water is low.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I seem to have a condition a friend calls "restless leg syndrome." My calf muscles seem to pulsate and twitch, and I find it irritating. I've been aware of this for about six months. Sometimes, I feel a pinched feeling in the area. -- R.A.

ANSWER: I question the restless-leg diagnosis. With that, you would have an achy, crampy-crawly sensation, which would be relieved only by moving the legs. It happens mostly at night.

To explain the symptoms you describe, I'd be looking more toward a nerve problem.

Penalty against Belle finally decided: 2 games, $25,000

NEW YORK (AP)—It took 20 days to finally decide Albert Belle's suspension. The penalty will last about 10 hours.

American League president Gene Budig, who earlier this week cut the suspension from five games to three, shortened it two games Thursday in a deal with the players association that avoids a court fight.

The Cleveland Indians outfielder agreed to miss today's day-night doubleheader against the New York Yankees and pay a $25,000 fine.

"Although the league president has taken action against me that he would not take against any other player, it is time for me to put the interests of my teammates, the Indians, and the fans of Cleveland ahead of my own," Belle said in a statement issued by his agent, Arn Tellem. "I can best contribute to the team by putting this matter behind me and concentrating all of my efforts on the game of baseball."

Budig originally imposed a five-game suspension for Belle's forearm hit May 31 on Milwaukee Brewers second baseman Fernando Vina. The union claimed the collision didn't break baseball's rules, and a hearing last week convinced Budig to shave two games off the penalty, a decision he announced Tuesday.

The union filed a grievance with baseball's arbitrator the following day in an effort to stop the suspension, and arbitrator Nicholas Zumars was due to rule Thursday.

Tellem said Belle hired lawyers and was prepared to file suit in Cleveland in an effort to set aside the penalty.

"Anyone who cares about baseball believes the focus must return to the field, and this action accomplishes that," Budig said. "It is clearly in the best interests of the game."

Belle, who went 0-for-4 against Boston on Thursday night, will return for Saturday's nationally televised game against the Yankees. He has 25 homers and following the doubleheader will be on pace to hit 56. The missed doubleheader represents 1.2 percent of his season.

"Albert was unfairly singled out and victimized by the American League office," Tellem said.

Gene Orza, the union's No. 2 official, suggested the compromise to Budig in a letter Thursday morning, citing the "interest in dispensing with the necessity of further litigation."

The $25,000 fine - the largest amount ever issued by a league president - was designated for the RBI Program in Cleveland for urban children. On Feb. 29, Belle was fined $50,000 by acting commissioner Bud Selig for berating a reporter during last year's World Series.

Belle's suspension is now the smallest of the three stemming from the May 31 incident. Cleveland pitcher Julian Tavez had his five-game suspension for flipping umpire Joe Brinkman reduced to three games. Milwaukee catcher Mike Matheny, who charged the mound after Tavez whistled a fastball behind his neck, also had his five-game suspension cut to three.

room with the women. Bailey can be heard responding in the affirmative.

"Why did you say 'umm-hmm' that way - like a cat that swallowed a canary?" Clancy asked. "Was it because you know Michael Irvin was in that room?"

Bailey said he heard noises while in a vacant room directly underneath the suite occupied by Irvin.

The hotel manager said he asked for police help because other employees told him Ms. Beck and several other women had used the hotel earlier for prostitution.

The women had left the rooms "trashed out" with used condoms and drug paraphernalia, Bailey said. He said one employee also told him she had seen Irvin on the hotel grounds on other nights.

During the hearing, four Irving police officers have testified they were answering a disturbance call when they knocked at the room March 3. The four testified they had no idea Irvin was inside the room until after they entered.

A sixth day of testimony in the pretrial hearing is scheduled Friday. Irvin is expected to stand trial June 25.

Irvin's lawyers claim setup by hotel, cops

DALLAS (AP)—A hotel near Texas Stadium and law officers conspired to bring Dallas Cowboys receiver Michael Irvin down in a drug sting, according to defense lawyers.

The contention Thursday followed testimony by the night manager of the Residence Inn by Marriott that the noise complaints that he phoned in to police the night of the bust never occurred.

"I think I can show a conspiracy here between the Marriott people in this sting operation and the Irving police," said defense attorney Kevin Clancy. "And I think they're all circling their wagons."

Irving police say Irvin, 30, his former teammate Alfredo Roberts, 31, and Jasmine Jennifer Nabwangu and Angela Renee Beck, both 22, were found in at the Residence Inn on March 4 with cocaine and marijuana. Roberts has never been charged.

But Michael Bailey, the hotel manager, said he did not know Irvin was in Room 624 when he called a dispatcher to complain about noise and possible prostitution.

In a pretrial hearing, Clancy played a tape recording of Bailey's call to police in which a dispatcher asked him whether anyone was in the

Jackson gets big pay hike, to remain as Bull's coach

DEERFIELD, Ill. (AP)—It's a one-year plan for Phil Jackson and for the Chicago Bulls.

"Long term is something that right now I don't want to discuss, because one year is about what I have to give," Jackson said Thursday after signing a contract to remain Chicago's coach for the 1996-97 season. "And it's quite obvious that this team has a limitation of age."

Two of the oldest Bulls are Michael Jordan, 33, and Dennis Rodman, 35. They also might be the two main reasons Chicago just won its fourth NBA championship in six years.

So now that Jackson's deal is done, it's time for the Bulls to focus on keeping those free-agents-to-be in white and red uniforms.

"We intend to work very hard to sign Michael and Dennis, and keep this team intact," general manager Jerry Krause said. "Our goal is to get another championship and let the future take care of itself."

Jackson, the NBA's coach of the year in 1995-96 and holder of league winning-percentage records for both the regular season (.721) and playoffs (.723), said his contract provided a wonderful ending to perhaps the best season in NBA history.

"As we shook hands around the room last night," he said at Thursday's news conference, "we said, 'Now Chicago can exhale and enjoy the championship. When Michael and Dennis get signed, we can again exhale and enjoy what comes up next year.'"

Jackson refused to say if his contract contains language stipulating that the team re-sign Jordan and Rodman. But the coach did say he spoke recently with Jordan "for some duration about his intent to come back."

Both Jordan and Rodman had said they wouldn't return unless Jackson did. Unlike Jackson, they both have expressed interest in multiyear contracts.

Jackson's one-year deal, reportedly for about $2.5 million, "is exactly what I wanted." He didn't want to make a commitment past next year, when twin sons Ben and Charlie graduate from high school.

Besides, he said, "I've always said there's a certain amount of time a coach has to work with this game and the stress factor."

Jackson, in fact, thought the season just ended would be his last. But that was before the league-record 72 regular-season victories, the playoff triumphs over Miami, New York and Orlando and the six-game conquest of Seattle in the NBA Finals.

"I thought it was going to be the farewell tour this year because it was my seventh," said Jackson, a proponent of Zen philosophy who thinks life cycles last seven years. "But this team came together in such a way that it was impossible to walk away."

Jackson, 50, has a 414-160 regular-season record. He is 81-31 in the playoffs. His Bulls also won titles in 1991, 1992 and 1993.

His base salary was a middle-of-the-pack $866,000 for the just-completed season, but he'll become the league's third-highest paid coach in 1996-97. Miami's Pat Riley and New Jersey's John Calipari will make $3 million; both also act as their teams' GMs.

"I just hope what I've done is raise the bar for all coaches," Calipari said Thursday. "I've always said until the coaches are paid like the third- or fourth-highest paid player on the team, it's hard to coach."

Newcomers are co-leaders in first round of golf classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)-- Mike Swartz wants to earn back some of the money he's spent the past nine years working his way to the PGA Tour. Patrick Lee is just happy to be playing in the St. Jude Classic.

The two shot 7-under-par 64s Thursday for a share of the first-round lead with John Cook and John Daly.

"There's so many great players out here, it will take everything I've got to stay in contention by Sunday," said Swartz, who has missed eight of 14 cuts in his rookie year.

Ronnie Black, John Adams, Jim Carter, Stuart Appleby and Frank Lickliter opened with 65s. David Peoples, Anders Forsbrand and Steve Jurgensen were two strokes back at 5-under, and 11 were tied at 4-under.

Lee, 24, finally picked up a sponsor's exemption from FedEx after being turned down in previous years as an amateur at the University of Mississippi.

"I was relieved," said Lee, who finished second on the Nike Tour last week and had seven birdies, an eagle and two bogeys Thursday. "I've been waiting a while to play in this tournament."

Swartz was a teammate of Daly's for a year at the University of Arkansas in 1985-86 before Daly went on to win the 1991 PGA Championship and last year's British Open. Swartz is a PGA Tour rookie who needed nine tries to pass qualifying school.

"I really haven't done a whole lot this year. I've been learning up to this point," he said.

Daly, in the process of selling his home that sits off the 16th fairway, played his way into a share of the lead with six birdies, one eagle and a bogey in front of the home folks. His best performance this year was a tie for 10th at the Kemper Open.

"They don't get a chance to see me play at other tournaments. To win a tournament not only in front of family, but a lot of special friends and great people, it would mean a lot to me," Daly said.

For Cook, a veteran so disappointed with his game that he toyed with the idea of quitting back in March, had five birdies and an eagle for his best round this year.

He credited a firm and hardening

TPC at Southwind course for aiding his game.

With six career victories and more than $4 million in earnings, Cook wasn't sure whether he wanted to remain on tour with two children growing up back home in California. But two days of practicing with old friend and teacher Ken Venturi in March reignited his competitive streak.

Minor League champions

The Phillies captured the championship of the Kids, Inc. baseball Minor League this summer. The team included: (Front) Jacob Bodkin, Eleno Juarez, Nathan Cole, Christopher Kerr, Tanner Black, Justin Armendariz, Ruben Leon; (middle) Zack Ambold, Johnny Reyes, Nathan Louder, Taylor Tice, Jarrot Ferguson, Will Johnson; (back) Coaches Eddie Ambold, Eric Ambold, Charlie Kerr.

Clemons finally takes over as new coach of Mavericks

DALLAS (AP)-- Jim Clemons spent his first full day as head coach of the Dallas Mavericks trying to get comfortable with the fact that, finally, he was head coach of the Dallas Mavericks.

"To be perfectly honest, I haven't had time to realize it. It hasn't yet sunk in," he said Thursday.

Clemons' confusion is understandable. He was hired May 31 but left town almost immediately to get back to his other job as assistant coach of the soon-to-be world champion Chicago Bulls.

Once the Bulls wrapped up their title Sunday night, Clemons barely had time to wash the celebratory champagne out of his hair before heading to Texas. He arrived Wednesday afternoon and immediately went to work analyzing tape of draft picks with player personnel director Keith Grant.

Clemons spent a few minutes with prospective pick Lorenzen Wright and planned to visit Thursday with Kerry Kittles. Antoine Walker was expected to drop by today. John Wallace and Samaki Walker also have been to Dallas, while scouts went to Starkville, Miss., to check out Erick Dampier.

Which one of those big guys Dallas takes with the No. 6 pick in Wednesday's draft could be up to Clemons, a notion he likes.

"Now, rather than being the assistant making suggestions, I'm the head coach with major input," said Clemons, quickly adding that no decision will be made without a consensus among himself, Grant and the scouts.

"Keith is the man right now. He's done an outstanding job holding down the fort. His input is going to be monumental," Clemons said.

Clemons took this job knowing he needed some inside muscle for rebounding. Dennis Rodman may live in Dallas, but he's not likely to be

WASHINGTON (AP)--Unionized workers cannot file antitrust lawsuits against employer groups for imposing salaries after a bargaining impasse, the Supreme Court ruled in a case involving the NFL.

Labor laws give the National Labor Relations Board, not antitrust courts, the main responsibility for policing the collective bargaining process, the court said in an 8-1 decision. The ruling upholds a federal appeals court decision that threw out a $30.3 million damage award to rookie players.

playing for the Mavericks any time soon.

Finding someone else who can is vital to Clemons.

"If we can't rebound, we certainly won't play the way I want to," he said. "Any time you have an asset like Jason Kidd, you should run the floor and fill the lanes around him. To do so, you have to be able to play defense and rebound."

Clemons already has spoken with Kidd and several other players about how he plans to run the team. He's told them to expect to work together more than ever before, even if it means some personal sacrifices.

"That is the attitude needed to be successful," Clemons said. "Any time you try and do things in this sport, as an individual, you're basically just wasting time and energy. That is what I'm trying to make the focal point. ...

"There has to be a willingness to work and get the job done. They can't be satisfied with what they've done. They should be a little upset. If they do that, they'll be refocused to doing their job."

If anyone doubts Clemons, he can show them proof that those concepts work. He was with the Bulls for their run of four championships in the last six years and, as a player, he was part of the 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers who won a title following their then-record 69-win regular season.

"I don't want to rub their nose in the Chicago Bulls," he said. "But I certainly will understand what it takes to get the job done. I'm going to use it as an example without always referring to the Bulls."

Indians edge Bosox; Birds clip Rangers

By TOM WITHERS
AP Sports Writer

Bloop, bunt and bloop isn't Cleveland's usual tack to victory. But against the Boston Red Sox, everything works for the Indians.

Kenny Lofton dropped a bloop single into center field in the ninth inning Thursday night, scoring pinch-runner Jeremy Burnitz from third as the Indians defeated the Red Sox for the 13th straight time, 5-4. Typically, the Indians used the long ball to get back into the game. Trailing 4-3 in the eighth, Jim Thome hit a game-tying homer off Roger Clemens. Then in the ninth, the Indians used a little finesse to win their fifth game this season in their final at-bat.

"It's nice to be able to win a game like that," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said.

Tony Pena opened the ninth with a bloop double down the right-field line, and pinch-runner Burnitz moved to third on Omar Vizquel's sacrifice. Lofton then hit a floater to center off Mike Stanton (3-2) that dropped in front of a diving Lee Tinsley.

"I can't even describe the feeling and the pain that I have," Boston manager Kevin Kennedy said after his team dropped to 0-10 vs. Cleveland this season.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Baltimore 3, Texas 2; Minnesota 7, Detroit 3; Seattle 8, Chicago 5; California 10, Milwaukee 3; and Toronto 1, Oakland 0.

Until Thome's homer, the Red Sox, swept in three games by the Indians in last year's playoffs, appeared on their way to ending Cleveland's dominance.

It used to be very different for Clemens against the Indians. He began his career 18-2 against Cleveland, but is now 0-4 in his last nine starts against the Tribe.

Clemens struck out eight, including Albert Belle three times. Belle was scheduled to serve his two-game suspension today as the Indians play a day-night doubleheader against New York.

Orioles 3, Rangers 2

At Baltimore, Brady Anderson moved into a tie for the major-league lead with his 25th home run, and David Wells (4-6) earned his first win in a month.

Rafael Palmeiro also homered for the Orioles, who defeated Texas for only the second time in 10 games this season. Anderson and Palmeiro hit solo shots in the third inning to give Baltimore a 3-2 lead.

Anderson's homer tied him with Cleveland's Albert Belle. He also made a key play defensively by throwing out the potential tying run at the plate in the eighth inning.

Wells gave up six hits in 7 1-3 innings to pick up his first victory in seven starts since May 20. Randy Myers worked the ninth for his 14th save.

Kevin Gross (7-5) took the loss. Twins 7, Tigers 3

Cecil Fielder's first Tiger Stadium homer in 1 1/2 months wasn't enough to prevent Detroit from losing its fifth straight game.

Fielder's 17th home run of the season, and first at home since April 28, produced a 3-3 tie in the sixth.

But the Tigers couldn't get an out on Roberto Kelly's two-out, bases-loaded grounder in the seventh, allowing Paul Molitor to score.

The Twins added two runs in the eighth on Ron Coomer's two-run single and a bases-loaded walk.

Bobby Higginson, batting leadoff for the first time in his career, homered twice for Detroit.

Frank Rodriguez (6-7) went seven innings for the Twins, allowing three runs and eight hits. Omar Olivares (3-3) was the loser.

Mariners 8, White Sox 5

Paul Sorrento and Joey Cora drove in two runs apiece and Seattle, playing without Ken Griffey Jr. for only the second time this season, handed Chicago its sixth straight loss.

Sorrento had three hits, including his 12th homer, and Cora had three hits for the visiting Mariners.

Griffey, injured during Wednesday night's game against Toronto while fouling off a pitch, had hand surgery Thursday. He will be sidelined about a month.

Norberto Martin went 4-for-5 for the White Sox.

Sterling Hitchcock (6-3) gave up three runs and nine hits in six-plus innings. Norm Charlton pitched the ninth for his 11th save.

The Mariners rocked Chicago starter Kevin Tapani (7-4) for eight runs and 15 hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Angels 10, Brewers 3

Randy Velarde and Don Slaught drove in three runs as California won at Milwaukee for its 11th victory in 12 games.

The Angels fell behind in each of their previous 10 victories, but this time, they scored early and often, getting two runs in the second, three in the third and four in the fourth.

Mark Langston (5-2) allowed three runs and five hits in seven innings.

Brian Givens (1-2) was the loser for Milwaukee, which got a homer from Greg Vaughn, his 20th.

Blue Jays 1, Athletics 0

Pat Hengen allowed two hits in eight innings, and Ed Sprague tripled home the game's only run as Toronto at Oakland for its fourth straight victory.

Hengen (7-5) took a no-hitter into the sixth inning before Ernie Young led off with a double. Hengen struck out five and walked three before giving way to Mike Timlin, who pitched the ninth for his 12th save.

Rookie Don Wengert (2-5) lost his third straight decision despite allowing just one run and seven hits in 7 2-3

Reds claim third straight; Wall wins again for Astros

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Every time Dave Burba was good, he lost. When he pitched his worst game of the season, he finally came up a winner.

"It was getting to me," the Cincinnati Reds right-hander said of his nine-game losing streak stretching back to last season. "I gave the team a chance to win in every one of my starts and I was starting to wonder if it was my fault."

Cincinnati manager Ray Knight knew what the problem was.

"He's been a victim of shoddy play and no offense, and he had us in every game in which he pitched," Knight said.

Then came Thursday night's game against the New York Mets.

"Tonight was his worst game of the season, when it came to location, and he didn't have his best stuff," Knight said of the 29-year-old Burba.

It was good enough.

Bret Boone and Willie Greene hit solo home runs, Reggie Sanders went 4-for-4 and Burba himself gave the visiting Reds the lead for good with his first RBI of the season as Cincinnati won its third straight game, 5-3.

In other National League games, Montreal defeated St. Louis 8-3, Chicago edged San Diego 3-2 and Houston downed Los Angeles 4-2.

Burba (1-8) surrendered all three Mets runs in his six-inning stint, allowing six hits. It was his first victory since he defeated the Philadelphia Phillies on Sept. 22, 1995.

Jeff Shaw pitched two innings of hitless relief for his second save.

Boone's second-inning homer, his fifth of the season, gave the Reds a 1-0 lead. New York tied it in the third when losing pitcher Bobby Jones (6-4) walked and later scored when Jose Vizcaino hit into a double play.

After Cincinnati loaded the bases in the fourth on a walk, an error by Mets shortstop Rey Ordonez and an intentional walk, Jones then walked Burba, forcing in a run and putting the Reds in front for good 2-1.

Greene led off the fifth with his sixth home run, and Cincinnati scored another run with the help of Ordonez's second error of the night.

The Mets closed to 4-3 with single runs in the fifth and sixth, the latter coming on Andy Tomberlin's leadoff homer, before Cincinnati added its final run in the seventh when Sanders singled, stole second and scored on Taubensee's single.

Astros 4, Dodgers 2

Unbeaten Donnie Wall outducel Hideo Nomo through six innings and Jeff Bagwell slugged a tiebreaking solo homer in Houston's victory at Los Angeles.

Wall (5-0) allowed two runs on seven hits and two walks. Fellow rookie Billy Wagner worked 2 2-3 innings, striking out seven, before Todd Jones got the final out for his 15th save.

The Astros, tied with St. Louis for first place in the NL Central, have won all eight games Wall has started this season.

Bagwell's 21st homer, in the sixth, gave Houston a 3-2 lead and increased his league-leading RBI total to 71. Craig Biggio chased Nomo

BASEBALL

SEATTLE (AP)—Seattle Mariners outfielder Ken Griffey Jr. underwent hand surgery and is expected to be sidelined about a month.

Team physician Larry Pedegana removed a chipped-off piece of the hamate bone in the heel of Griffey's right hand during a 40-minute procedure. Because the bone is so small, repairing it was not feasible.

Griffey, hitting .299 with 23 home runs and 60 RBIs in 67 games, was injured during Wednesday night's game against Toronto while fouling off a pitch in the third inning.

(8-6) with a leadoff triple in the eighth, then scored on Derek Bell's sacrifice fly.

Eric Karros homered for the Dodgers.

Expos 8, Cardinals 3

Henry Rodriguez hit his 23rd home run and Moises Alou and Darrin Fletcher also homered as host Montreal snapped St. Louis' five-game winning streak.

Alou's three-run shot off Todd Stottlemyre (6-5) in a four-run first inning keyed the Expos' seventh win in nine games.

Fletcher hit a solo homer in the fourth, his sixth of the season but first since May 11, to give Montreal a 5-1 lead, and Rodriguez hit a two-run shot in the fifth for a 7-1 advantage, leaving him one behind Chicago's Sammy Sosa for the National League lead.

Kirk Ruetter (4-4) allowed three runs on seven hits in 5 2-3 innings to win his second straight start.

Cubs 3, Padres 2

Sosa hit his 24th homer, a two-run, sixth-inning shot off the second-deck facade, and Leo Gomez also connected as Chicago handed San Diego its 16th loss in 18 games.

Sosa nearly became the 13th player to homer into the second deck at Jack Murphy Stadium.

Gomez hit his 12th homer leading off the fifth inning to start the Cubs' scoring. Jaime Navarro (5-7) got the win.

Both homers were off San Diego's Tim Worrell (5-2) as the Padres' losing streak - now five games - dropped them into last place in the NL West.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: My husband says he read in your column about securing windows with a long bolt. Could you please explain how this is done?
 We recently installed security lights around the outside of the house and deadbolt locks on the doors and sliding glass door, but we would like to use the extra bolt as a backup to the standard window locks. — Jane S., Miami, Fla.
 Of course, and this is an added security measure that won't cost an arm and a leg, and you can easily do it yourself.
 You want to use a drill bit a little larger than the bolt you choose so the bolt can slide in and out easier.

 First, make sure the window is closed and locked. Then drill a hole in the inside of the window frame approximately 4 to 6 inches above the opening window frame. The distance of the bolt can be changed depending on how far you want the window to open when the bolt is in—don't leave enough for someone to crawl through!
 Insert the bolt into the hole. Whenever you need to open the window all the way, just remove the bolt. — Heloise
ALTERNATIVE SPREADER
 Dear Heloise: A very nice spreader for sand, salt, sand/salt mix, grass seed, lime or fertilizer can be made from two 6-by-4 plastic flowerpots.

 The pots must be the type with four drainage holes each. Place one pot within the other, making sure holes are not in line. Scoop out desired dry material and shake horizontally to spread. The alignment of holes and the degree of shaking will determine distribution.
 I find this arrangement excellent for patching lawns with grass seed in the summer and sanding/salting sidewalks and drives in the winter. — Charles Mobus, Warren, N.J.
