Water improvements detailed during meet

Commissioners get economic development update, hear request to close Union Street

Status of city improvements, prospects for future development and action to delay a gas rate increase were among items covered by the Hereford City Commission during a meeting Monday evening.

Rich Oller of Oller Engineering, a consulting firm working on water improvements, reported that the northwest booster station is running, replacement of fire hydrants is nearing completion and the 14th Street water line will be put in service soon.

"The northwest station is working; it's aligned and balanced, with variable frequency drives, a new technology in water systems," he said.

He said the fire hydrant project probably will be completed in about two weeks. When finished, 45 fire hydrants will be replaced by the contractor.

In a report from Mike Hatley, executive director of Hereford Economic Development Corporation, the commission heard a review of prospects for business and industrial development.

Hatley introduced Randy Nies who is working with HEDC to build and operate a four-screen movie theatre in Hereford.

Nies said a location has been identified and he is seeking bids for a concrete block structure and a metal building.

"I will bring family entertainment to Hereford," Nies, who operates a theatre in Dumas, told the commission. He said he will focus on films rated G and PG, with some R, to provide a mixture.

The largest of the four theatres in the complex will seat 210 persons and the smallest, 76. He said the total seating capacity will be 504.

Hatley reported to the commission that HEDC has submitted proposals to a company moving from California that makes certain types of equipment, such as disposable dental equipment and to a sheet metal fabricator.

He also mentioned that a freight company is expected to visit Hereford in about two months and a Hereford business may purchase a firm in Lubbock to move here.

The commission approved a program adopted by the HEDC board to encourage citizens to assist with recruitment of new business to the community. Stipends will be paid for new jobs created.

Hereford School Superintendent Charles Greenawalt asked the commission to consider closing a block of Union Street at Hereford High School during school hours.

He said "circling" the school could be stopped by barricading Union between Avenue F and Avenue G.

"Many of the drivers are non-students and circling causes congestion," he added. "We think it would create a safer environment."

Mayor Josserrand asked if liability of closing the street had been investigated.

"We don't think there would be any," Greenawalt replied. "We have to educate the public."

Police Chief David Wagner said he will go through the uniform traffic code to be certain of laws on closing the street.

City Attorney Terry Langenhennig said he fears closing a public street would create a liability, especially if something happens with the barricades.

Wagner said the "gates" would be designed to allow emergency vehicles through on Union.

On a motion by Commissioner Roger Eades to table the request until city staff can look in depth at the liability and other concerns, the vote was unanimous.

On a suggestion to allow murals to be painted on the walls of a new restroom facility in Dameron Park, the commission asked the City Manager Chester Nolen to bring concrete proposals for such a project.

Nolen said the suggestion for (See WATER, Page 2)

Library changes

Students at Tierra Blanca Elementary School will see a new look to the library this fall, as green carpeting installed when the school opened a quarter century ago is being pulled up and replaced along with carpet in all the main halls of the building. In addition, a magazine rack mounted in the center of library was removed Monday by HISD maintenance workers Nacho Hernandez, left, and Robert Mungia. The new carpet is a heather blue color and is being installed by Webster Carpet of Hereford, which will take care of carpeting needs throughout the district this summer.

New commissioner spars with panel on procedures

The newest member of the Hereford City Commission in effect accused other commissioners of discussing and deciding an issue without his knowledge, a charge other commissioners and the mayor promptly denied.

Commissioner Joe Soliz, elected in May to Place 2, objected when Mayor Bob Josserrand accepted petitions about operation of John Pitman Municipal Golf Course and told a delegation of golfers that the commission and city staff would study the complaints.

After Josserrand said, "We will study this problem and report back to you about decisions," Soliz indicated he wanted to speak to the issue. Josserrand suggested that he could be heard, along with others wishing to speak, during the Public Comments item on the agenda.

"What are the rules?" demanded Soliz.

"If the commission wants to hear, we can during public comment," responded Josserrand.

Soliz retorted, "With that kind of attitude, the quality of life suffers." Later, during the time for public discussion, Soliz said he wanted "to know if the commission discussed the golf course without me."

He then declared, "What bothers me is a decision was made to ignore the problem."

Josserrand replied, "There is no intent by anyone to ignore this. We'll respond to concerns."

Commissioner Roger Eades said he had not seen the petition, nor did he discuss it with any other members of the commission. Commissioner Carey Black echoed the remarks by Eades.

The exchanges among commissioners were made before a standing-room only crowd of about 35 persons who apparently were present in support of the petitions presented to the commission about the golf course.

Speaking for the group, Bill Dirks presented a petition apparently from non-resident golfers, Panhandle Neighbors, with 173 signatures, and a petition from Hereford golfers with 128 signatures.

The complaints focused on poor playing conditions at the golf course as well as lack of respect for senior citizens and women by personnel at the golf course.

A letter addressed to the commission noted that use has declined significantly in recent years.

Dirks said there were 16,601 paid rounds in 1992 but in 1995, the number had dropped to 10,756.

When the commission reached the public comments portion of the agenda, Josserrand invited comments from the meeting's spectators.

Among those speaking, and their remarks, were:

-- Robert Kubacek: "I'm concerned about conditions of the golf course. I play out of town because of it."

-- Max Goforth: "I'm worried that the caliche is ruining the course."

Caliche kills grass. And, senior citizens are treated like dirt. I think they've tried to get rid of senior citizens. Also, my wife does not like to go in the pro shop. There are five to seven men in there and women feel intimidated. We can't find the pro about noon."

-- Tiffie West: "I want to address the attitude out there. It's wrong. Senior citizen golfers play golf and should be treated with respect. Don't turn the public away. Open your eyes."

Bill Allen: "I want to address 'community' which bids together for the good of all. We've had airport improvements, a new pool and parks are improving. Golfers hoped the commission would look at the course like you did the parks, looking for improvements, but you didn't. It's a park and we should be heard. The caliche was the last straw. Water washed over the fairway and the caliche turned it white."

-- Julie Hubbard, wife of a former golf course employee, Paul Hubbard: "It's been said that Paul is head-hunting and out for revenge. That's not true. He has a sincere concern and it's a shame that the city lost a valued employee and he lost a job he loved. His desire is to have changes made. It shouldn't be an us vs. them mentality."

Kubacek injected a side issue into the discussion when he spoke, saying he doesn't understand why children from Blue Water Gardens could use

Experts on water regulations confer with city commission

Two men who know their way around state government brought advice on dealing with regulatory agencies, especially the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission, to the Hereford City Commission Monday evening.

During the commission's work session, Crockett Camp, an attorney with broad experience in state government, and Dan Dodson, executive director of the Texas Environmental Alliance, suggested an approach to solving city problems with regulatory agencies.

Camp has been retained by the West Texas Environmental Alliance to help write and re-write rules on landfills, with special attention to the arid lands provision in federal legislation.

The City of Hereford is a member of WTEA, a group seeking relaxation of the state's rules on operating landfills.

The primary target of the discussion between the visitors and the commission was the Texas

Natural Resources Conservation Commission, which puts in place rules on environmental issues.

Said Camp, "You can talk to the commissioners (TNRCC) about rule-making."

He explained that regulatory agencies make rules, based on legislative action.

A primary concern of the Hereford commission as well as approximately 30 other West Texas cities is the rule made on landfill operation.

Because of expense of maintaining a landfill, Hereford's solid waste has been transported to Amarillo and Canyon at considerable expense.

City Manager Chester Nolen said the federal action easing some environmental regulations is not being adopted by the TNRCC.

At issue, besides monitoring equipment, covering solid waste and other requirements, is the TNRCC position that the 20-ton limit for disposing of garbage under the West Texas exemption is related to a landfill.

Nolen said the cities involved in the West Texas consortium believe the rule should be based on "cells," or portions of landfills.

Camp said the landfill issue should be taken to the TNRCC commissioners for their consideration no later than September.

"If the commissioners don't do anything, there still is time to get it to the Legislature in January," said Camp.

"Do you think they'll give a ruling in time for us to go to the Legislature?" asked Mayor Bob Josserrand.

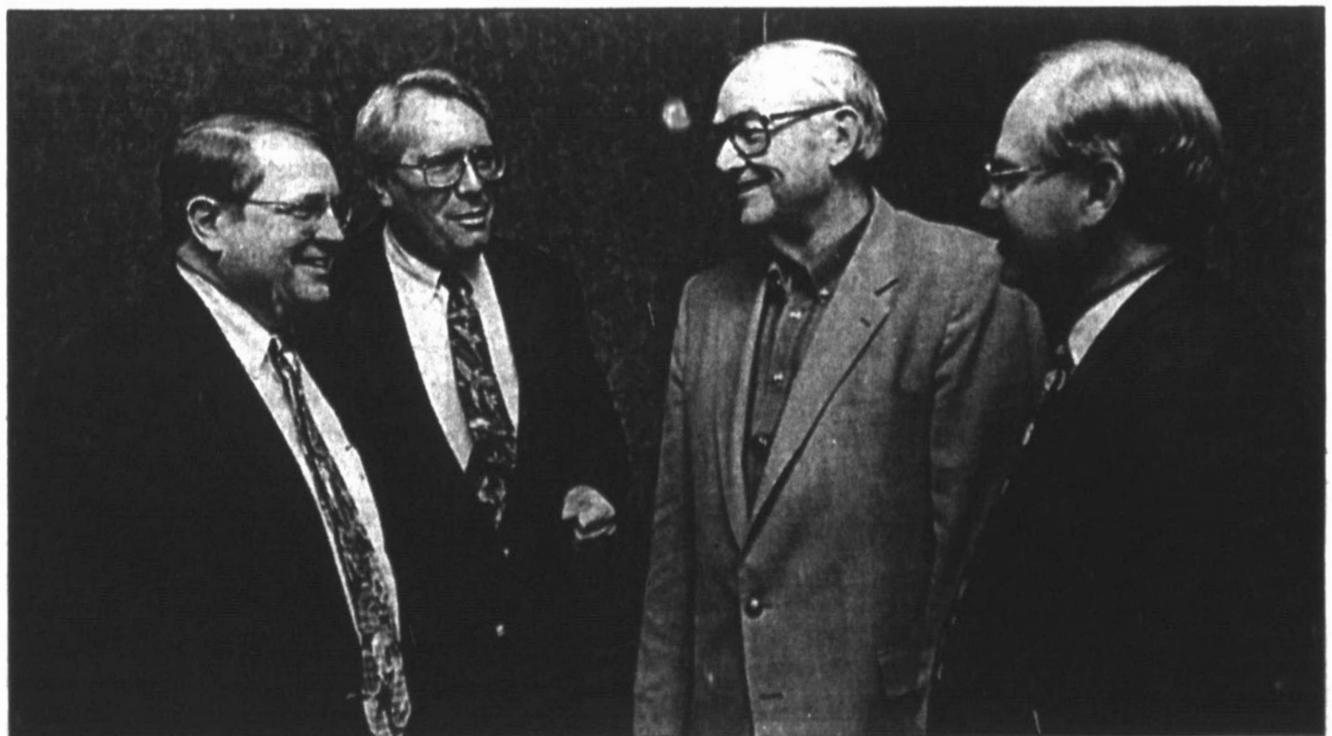

"We may not get it all done by January but we will be far enough along to go to the Legislature," replied Camp.

Besides the landfill issue, Camp said two other concerns should be addressed at the TNRCC.

"The proposal of converting irrigation water wells to municipal service and disposal of used tires are main issues," said Camp.

Discussing solid waste disposal, Dodson pointed out that the West Texas exemption has been challenged by the Sierra Club and other

Hillary focus as Whitewater panel issues pair of reports

By PETE YOST

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - With Senate Whitewater Committee Republicans zeroing in on Hillary Rodham Clinton, the Senate panel's GOP and Democratic members are ending a yearlong investigation with sharply opposing final reports.

The panel's Democratic report is supportive of the first lady, according to congressional sources familiar with the Democratic effort. The Republicans conclude that the first lady was behind an effort to keep law enforcement officials away from the files of White House Deputy Counsel Vincent Foster following his July 1993 suicide.

Both reports were being released today, but some contents of the Republican report were leaked over the weekend.

The leaking is part of a "political vendetta" - an attempt to get "political mileage out of baseless charges," said White House spokesman Mike McCurry.

One topic being dealt with extensively in both reports was the mysterious reappearance of Mrs. Clinton's billing records.

In a last battle Monday, committee Republicans and the first lady's Whitewater lawyer focused on the issue - with Mrs. Clinton saying she recalled almost nothing about the documents. The FBI found her fingerprints on them.

The billing records, which surfaced in the White House in January two years after Whitewater investigators subpoenaed them, outline her work for the Arkansas savings and loan at the center of the Whitewater affair. They refer to well over a dozen previously undisclosed conversations she had about Castle Grande, a failed real estate development in Arkansas owned by her Whitewater partner.

In a terse two-page affidavit released Monday, the first lady did not directly answer the committee's questions about a telephone conversation she had about one aspect of Castle Grande. Instead, she allowed her lawyer, David Kendall, to discount the accusation of an Arkansas savings and loan executive who says Mrs. Clinton dismissed his warning of an improper loan transaction.

Committee Republicans pressed for more information, asking whether she knew how the records came to be in the White House book room, who saw them and where the records had been since 1992.

Cattle industry suffering in drought

Three-year dry spell, high grain prices affect producers

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer
HALE CENTER, Texas (AP) - Drought has cost the Texas cattle industry nearly $794 million since March 1995, further exacerbating what already would have been a bad year for beef, a state reported concluded Monday.

Three dry years have combined with the industry's natural business cycle and inadequate price-reporting techniques to fuel a "wrenching price slide" since 1993, the report from State Comptroller John Sharp's office said.

"One industry official told me he can't remember when so many things were out of kilter at the same time," Sharp said.

The report, which tracked losses from March 15, 1995, through May 1996, requested that studies of cattle marketing methods be available for the Legislature before it convenes next year.

Feedlot owner Pat Shepard said the cattle industry generally works on a 10-year business cycle. However, the three years of drought plugging much of the region has turned a natural recession into a brutal depression.

"The shortage of grain is an extra burden on that cycle," said Shepard, owner of the Shepard Feed Lot, four miles east of Hale Center in the southern Texas Panhandle.

Texas' approximately $6 billion cattle industry accounts for about half of the state's annual agricultural sales. Last year, record cattle receipts ranked it ahead of natural gas production.

"The beef cattle industry plays a critical role in a strong Texas economy, so it's important to separate fact from fiction and identify the true long-range trends in these temporary setbacks," Sharp said.

Shepard's father, Grady Shepard, said everyone anticipated a recession because of the industry's cyclical nature. The weather is another story.

"This is the worst drought I've seen in my lifetime," said the elder Shepard, who founded the feedlot in 1955.

The report says Mexican beef imports have factored into the price plunge, but the same drought has curtailed their production and cattle from south of the border soon should environmental groups.

He said that Congress or the Legislature can be called on to change rules "agencies promulgate" that affect local government.

Dodson said agencies' regulations may be based on "legislative intent," rather than solid facts in laws.

Camp and Dodson agreed that the approach should be to get rules changed.

Camp mentioned the problems encountered by the City of Hereford on converting an irrigation water well to municipal use.

"There will be more cities wanting to do the same thing and they will have the same trouble," he commented.

Although there were no rules to support requirements TNRC staff made for converting the well, Camp said, there were demands made on the city. Finally, the issue was resolved, but there is no assurance that other cities won't face the same problems, he added.

murals was made to reduce graffiti painting on the new facility.

Commissioner Wayne Winget said, "We have a lot of talented young people. It would be interesting to see what they come up with."

Another commissioner, Joe Soliz, said that if "kids might take care of their own artwork," if allowed to participate.

Commissioner Scott Hall, while saying he has no objection to a contest to select a mural, he is concerned about maintenance.

"If it's a painted wall, it can be spot-painted, but with a mural, you can't do that," he said.

The commission passed a resolution to suspend for 90 days an Energas minimum rate increase that Nolen said is 64 percent hike. The City of Hereford has joined with 67 other cities served by Energas to study the proposal.

Nolen reported that information from Energas shows that the company is not placing a $3.7 million depreciation fund into capital improvements. Revenue from the rate hike, he said, is projected for "return on investment" by the company.

A plat for acreage at U.S. 385 and 15th Street was approved by the commission, giving the go-ahead to a firm planning to build a motel on part of the property.

The Hereford Independent School District administrative office building, located at the corner, and four lots north of the building are in the plat, presented by Kenneth Hagar in a survey.

Hagar said property lines have been resolved between HISD and Hereford Economy Lodging, Inc., and the former owner of the land, Furr's, Inc.

Another environmental issue discussed by Camp and Dodson is disposal of used tires.

As background, Nolen told the City commission that companies that were in business to recycle used tires have stopped taking them.

"We have about 1,000 used tires at the landfill," he pointed out, "and no place to get rid of them."

Although a $2 charge is added to the purchase price of a new tire, Nolen said, the recycling companies don't get enough from the state to stay in business.

"The state is keeping more than $1, supposedly to look for new uses for the tires, but they haven't done anything."

Camp and Dodson suggested that Hereford and other cities facing similar problems work together to reach solutions in Austin.

Hereford Aquatic Center facilities for 25 cents but children of low income mothers had to pay the full fee.

City Manager Chester Nolen told Kubacek that Blue Water Gardens subsidizes children at the pool.

"But, we don't turn any child away. We do have programs in place for those children," he added.

Josserand told the group that the city will take their concerns seriously. At least two persons who spoke, Kubacek and West, were asked by the mayor if they would serve on a study group. Each agreed readily to the suggestion.

State efforts to block IBP's recent acquisition of a cow slaughtering facility in East Texas failed in court, though Attorney General Dan Morales says his office remains vigilant on beef issues.

"Whenever we receive any information indicating that there may be some problem with regard to price fixing or consumer protection, we investigate," Morales said.

cease to act as a price depressant.

Once it begins raining again, the report says Mexican ranchers might purchase Texas cattle to restock their depleted herds.

The report stopped short of accusing packers of violating antitrust laws, but it called for greater availability of price data, which it said often is hindered by contracting arrangements.

"Most of us feel like we have such a great amount of packer concentration that there's no way to determine the true market value," said Chaunce Thompson, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

Kansas-based Excel Corp. and Nebraska-based IBP Inc. and Con

Agra Inc. dominate the packing industry in Texas.

Recent testimony to the U.S. Department of Agriculture that packers sometimes paid higher prices on the condition that the price not be reported indicates "price manipulation," the report said.

One packing industry executive said his business is an easy target right now.

"Look at us two to three years from now, and we're going to be the ones crying," said the cattle buyer, who asked that his name not be used.

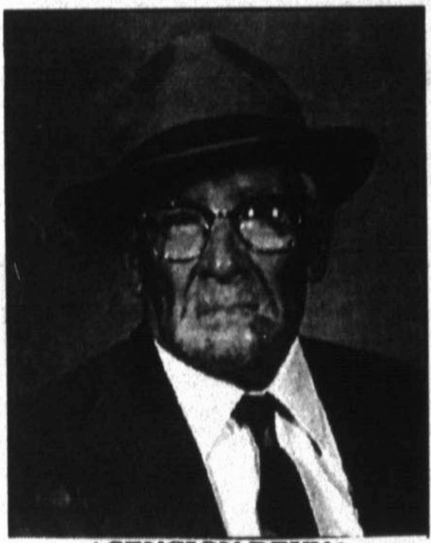

"You're in the 10-year cycle, you're in a drought and you're in a time when chicken is a better value."

Thompson, in a telephone interview from his Breckenridge ranch 85 miles west of Fort Worth, agreed that the drought and other conditions have intensified the focus on packers. But the scrutiny is justified, he said.

"More people are speaking up about this, and I think we'll see something come from it," he said.

Nebraska Gov. Ben Nelson called for a recent "beef summit" to discuss price issues in his state.

Teen-ager seeks advise on how to handle 'first kiss' experience

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14, and my friends and I always read your column, but we have noticed that you don't often address the problems of teen-age girls. Here's a very common problem we have -- kissing. Some girls have the perfect first kiss, but for most of us, it's gross.

I have always dreamed of my first kiss as something tender and thoroughly enjoyable. Recently, I received it, and it was neither of those things. My boyfriend managed to remove all my makeup in the process of sucking my face off. It was his first kiss, too, so I guess he didn't know better.

I told him he was moving too fast for me (even though I was totally ready). He apologized and felt bad the rest of the evening. Now every time I think about it, I just shudder because it was so disgusting.

Since he's so inexperienced, I feel he deserves some guidance. Should I tell him his kissing is too aggressive? How can I give him some pointers without insulting or embarrassing him? -- Confused and

Disgusted in Virginia

Dear Va.: Tell him there are different styles of kissing, and you would like to show him the style you like best. Then, demonstrate the soft kiss. I'll bet he'll be thrilled. (P.S.: Teen-agers with braces should be careful. Those wires can be sharp.) And one last caution: Keep four feet on the floor and all hands on deck.

Dear Ann Landers: May I respond to "Chris in Heyburn, Idaho," who wrote about the deprivation and challenges his generation faced?

I grew up in the '60s and '70s. Although my generation enjoyed more affluence than my parents', those years presented their own challenges. The difference between me and the younger set is that I'm not whining and complaining. I survived the lean and mean years because as an adolescent, I learned the basics of resolving problems and meeting challenges. Those life skills have served me well.

One of the problems in our contemporary society is that children are not allowed to make their own mistakes and fight their own battles. The ideal environment for children is not devoid of problems and disappointments.

Children and teens need problems, setbacks and challenges. Facing challenges and resolving problems constitute the building blocks of character, resourcefulness and the maturity to accept responsibility.

In the '60s and '70s, you couldn't be picky about jobs because there weren't enough to go around. My friends and I baby-sat, worked as nurse's aides, waited tables and spent hours on our feet in retail stores to make ends meet. Nowadays, every store and fast food restaurant I walk into advertises for part-time workers.

Many teen-agers today have no concept of what it is to set a goal and save money to realize it. They are paying dearly for their idleness and apathy. They are also missing out on the thrill of achieving a goal and the sense of accomplishment that goes with it.

I see too many teens these days who:

1. possess few or no coping mechanisms;
2. have cultivated a passive work ethic;
3. habitually blame parents or society for their problems and frustrations;
4. possess a selfish attitude of entitlement;
5. are unwilling to delay gratification -- they want everything NOW;
6. have failed to formulate realistic values;
7. lack integrity;
8. are depressed.

-- Baby Boomer in St. Charles, Mo.

Dear Boomer in Mo.: You see the bottle as half empty. I see it as half full. I know (and hear from) many teen-agers who are hard-working, goal-oriented, responsible, generous and thoughtful and want to make something of themselves. If you keep telling kids they are no good, they will prove you right. I prefer to give them something to live up to. It works.

Executive committee votes to change association name

The executive committee of the Mid Plains Pioneer Association approved a name change for the association during its meeting Monday.

The committee voted to change the name to the Mid Plains Reunion in hopes that, by deleting the reference to pioneers, younger membership would be encouraged.

Association president Homer Rudd presided at the meeting. A report was given on the Pioneer Celebration held May 25 in the Bull Barn with a registered attendance of 235.

Methods of improving the meeting were presented and discussed.

The executive committee will meet Feb. 11, 1997. Anyone who has names to add to the mailing list should submit them at that time.

Champion roper will be speaker at Barn Church

Speaking at the Barn Church this Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the B-S Arena will be Jeff Copenhaver, world champion calf roper and six times National Finals Rodeo qualifier.

He is also founder of the Cowboy Church in Fort Worth.

Copenhaver was born Jan. 12, 1949, in Post Falls, Idaho and grew up on a ranch. His father was world champion bronc rider in 1955-56.

He attended college on a rodeo scholarship and joined the RCA in 1968. He was world champion calf roper in 1975.

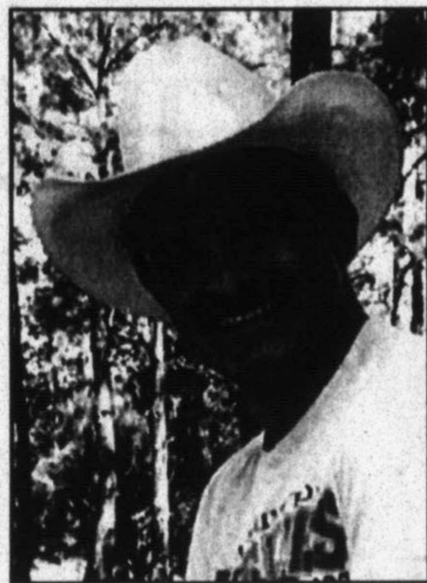

"I had a big void in my life and winning the championship was going to fill it. Well, it didn't. The night after the award ceremony I couldn't believe what an empty feeling I had. I'd spent 14 years pursuing something which wasn't an answer to anything but my ego," said Copenhaver.

In June 1978 a roper friend of Copenhaver's told him about Jesus Christ.

"I asked Jesus into my life, and I could write a book on all the blessings he's given me," Copenhaver said. The B-S Arena is six miles west on Fm 1058 then two miles north on FM 1057.

The public is invited to dust off their jeans, come on out and hear this cowboy's testimony. Bring the family and tell your friends.

Ask Mary Hoffman about her cellular service!

It's an important part of a nuts and bolts operation.

Mary Hoffman is accustomed to taking some pretty heavy shopping lists from her husband Terry and his business partner Dean Crofford.

A sample of the little odds-and-ends she may be called upon to pick up might include: nuts and bolts, shock absorbers, brake shoes, water pumps, compressors, fan belts — even a rack and pinion steering assembly.

As the bookkeeper for the very busy Crofford Automotive and Transmission located at 600 N. 25 Mile Ave, she typically makes a daily run to the bank and then to the parts store — Hereford Parts and Supply which was recently acquired by the growing automotive repair business.

"I usually call them while I'm in town to see if they need any more parts," she said. "The phone makes that really handy because it seems like they ALWAYS need parts. We've got five phones and excellent service with XIT Cellular."

Bulls reign but Sonics are close

CHICAGO (AP)--The nation knows all about Gary Payton, Shawn Kemp and the Seattle SuperSonics now. They're not just another of the pretenders who are looking up to the Chicago Bulls. The Sonics are close.

They gave the Bulls, who were being called the greatest NBA team of all time when they took a 3-0 lead in the Finals, the scare of their lives. On Sunday night, the Sonics' time ran out. After winning Games 4 and 5 in Seattle, they lost Game 6, 87-75.

After losing in the opening round of the playoffs the past two years, coach George Karl's club had a lot to prove this season. It did.

The Sonics won a franchise-best 64 games, swept two-time defending champion Houston in the West semifinals, beat Utah for the Western Conference title and pushed the Bulls and Michael Jordan to six games.

Jordan and Scottie Pippen won their fourth championship of the '90s for Chicago. Payton and Kemp, called chokers and losers after being eliminated by No. 8 seed Denver two years ago and by the Los Angeles Lakers last season, weren't good enough to beat Jordan, Pippen and Dennis Rodman in Game 6.

It wasn't because they didn't try. "When you lose, you try to learn from your mistakes," Kemp said after his 18-point, 14-rebound performance before fouling out with 4:39 to go and Chicago ahead 77-65.

"I think I became a much smarter player during the series. I think my decisions became much better. I think this series was really a turning point for me."

Hersey Hawkins and Payton, who had 19 points, blamed the Sonics' turnovers with being a major factor in their team's defeat. The Sonics had a total of only 23 turnovers in Games 4 and 5.

The Sonics avoided being swept and they kept from losing in Seattle. They came to the United Center hopeful they could win Game 6.

Jordan scored 22 points and Pippen had 17, but they were a combined 12-for-36. What killed the Sonics were Rodman's 19 rebounds, Karl said.

"I thought we did a pretty good job on Michael and Scottie in the series, but Dennis really hurt us again," Karl said.

Jordan, the league's MVP, was the series MVP, too. Karl disagreed.

"Dennis won two games all by himself," Karl said, referring to Rodman's 20-rebound Game 2 performance. "We couldn't control him."

Karl has another season on his contract, but has hinted he may sit out next year because his $1.1 million contract isn't in the same neighborhood of John Calipari's $3 million-a-season, five-year deal just signed with the New Jersey Nets.

Local All-Stars lose at Clovis

Hereford's 15-16-year-old All Stars were beaten in two games, while the 13-14-year-old Stars captured one of three games in a nine-team tournament at Clovis over the weekend.

The Champs, one of the two local Kids, Inc. All-Star teams, tied for fifth place in the 13-14-year-old division.

The Champs opened with a close 11-10 victory over the Clovis Eagles in the first game, then lost to the Texas Twisters from Lubbock by a 18-2 score in the second game. The Amarillo Eagles edged the local girls, 7-3, in the third tourney contest.

The 15-16-year-old team lost to the Amarillo Diamond Stars by 19-2 in its opening game, then was blanked, 12-0, by the Clovis Nikes in the second contest.

Lacy named to final spot on U.S. team

CHICAGO (AP)--Venus Lacy, a former Louisiana Tech star, earned the final spot on the U.S. Women's Olympic basketball team Sunday, joining the 11 members of the national team that posted a 51-0 mark in exhibition play.

Also on the team is Texas Tech great Sheryl Swoopes. Texas alumna Edna Campbell was selected as an alternate.

Lacy beat out Connecticut's Kara Wolters for the final spot on the roster, selected by USA Basketball. Wolters was named as an alternate. The 6-foot-4 Lacy played with the national team in its last four exhibition games.

In addition to Lacy and Swoopes, the women's team will consist of: Jennifer Azzi (Stanford), Ruthie Bolton (Auburn), Teresa Edwards (Georgia), Leslie (Southern Cal), Rebecca Lobo (Connecticut), McClain (Georgia), Nikki McCray (Tennessee), Carla McGhee (Tennessee), Dawn Staley (Virginia) and Katy Steding (Stanford).

Chicago fans not as violent with celebration, only 650 arrested

CHICAGO (AP)--This city may as well declare red, black and white its official colors.

While the aftermath of the Chicago Bulls' fourth NBA title included some of the violence the city had braced for, most fans preferred true celebration, like the rally the city planned in Grant Park today.

Bulls fans also headed to the stores, where NBA championship memorabilia was being snatched off the shelves Monday as fast as it was arriving.

A store devoted entirely to NBA championship merchandise opened downtown for the first time only hours after the Bulls' victory, and will stay open "as long as the Bulls are hot. That could be another 10 years," Sportsman store manager Tom Healy said Monday.

And the Bulls and their fans aren't the only ones savoring a victory.

Mayor Richard M. Daley credited police, firefighters, the media, Michael Jordan and the Bulls, and Chicago's citizens for the relatively small amount of trouble this year.

Even with 650 people arrested in 61 hours and 38 stores looted or broken into, city officials say Sunday night paled in comparison to the aftermath of Chicago's three previous NBA championships.

After the Bulls' second title in 1992, rioters set fire to businesses and damaged scores of police cars, city buses and subway cars; damage was estimated at more than $10 million. And 906 people were arrested after the 1993 championship, police said.

Nevertheless, police superintendent Matt Rodriguez said the approximately 6,000 police on the streets had their hands full, especially right after the Bulls' 87-75 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

"In the first half hour, it was almost like New Year's Eve," he said.

Fire commissioner Raymond Orozco added: "There were shots being fired all over the city."

Judge erases jury verdict against Blades

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) --Seattle Seahawks receiver Brian Blades' prayers were answered.

"I know I got a good God," he told his brother, Detroit Lions safety Bennie Blades. "I know I'm going to be a free man."

Brian Blades' confident comments came Friday after a guilty verdict left him facing a possible 10-year prison sentence for manslaughter in the shooting death of his cousin.

Three days later, Broward Circuit Judge Susan Lebow erased the decision, ruling in effect that the case was too weak to even reach the six-member jury.

Prosecutors simply hadn't proved the NFL star acted recklessly or negligently in a struggle for control of his .38-caliber handgun, which fired a fatal shot into the chin of his cousin and best friend Charles Blades, the judge ruled.

When the shock of the judge's ruling wore off Monday, Brian Blades raised his left hand in the air in a "praise God" gesture as he was hugged by relatives.

"The victory is not mine, it's the Lord's. It is a tragedy, a tragedy I'll have to deal with the rest of my life. I do have faith in the man above, and I'm going to keep serving him,"

Blades told Seattle's KING-TV as he left the courthouse.

Bennie Blades said the family was elated and thankful the case was over. "God shows up just when you want him," he said.

The directed verdict of acquittal means Blades cannot be tried again on the same charge.

"The judge recognized that it should never have gone to the jury," said defense attorney Fred Haddad. "She's going to get crucified for this, let's face it. She's going to get massacred."

Brian and Charles Blades were the only ones in the room at the time of the shooting, and Brian insisted it was an accident.

Assistant state attorney Peter Magrino said he was shocked and disappointed by the judge's intervention, but is confident an appeals court will reinstate the verdict.

"I'll take the conscience of the community, and I'll rely on their judgment," he said.

Miami attorney Neal Sonnett, former president of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, said directed verdicts are not extremely unusual.

FOOTBALL

DALLAS (AP)--Dallas Cowboys receiver Michael Irvin faces a June 25 trial date in his drug-possession case. A pretrial hearing resumes today.

Irvin and two topless dancers were re-indicted Friday, two days after a judge threw out their original charges because a member of the grand jury that indicted them April 1 lived outside the county.

IRVING, Texas (AP)--Linebacker Darrin Smith signed a one-year contract to remain with the Dallas Cowboys, the team announced Monday.

But it could be his last. The Cowboys retained exclusive negotiating rights to Smith after the league deadline to sign offer sheets as restricted free agents lapsed April 15.

The Cowboys and Smith's agent, Brian Ransom, would not disclose terms of the new contract.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) -- Former Nebraska quarterback Tommie Frazier has signed with the CFL's Montreal Alouettes, Lincoln's KLKN-TV reported.

TENNIS

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)--Despite his strong showing on grass last week, clay-court star Thomas Muster was seeded seventh for Wimbledon, five spots below his world ranking.

Three-time defending champion

Pete Sampras got the top seed, followed by three-time champion Boris Becker and 1992 champion Andre Agassi.

On the women's side, defending and six-time champion Steffi Graf got the top seed. Monica Seles, returning to Wimbledon for the first time since her stabbing in 1993, was seeded No. 2.

Braves win with Maddux; Astros slip by Reds

By TOM WITHERS
AP Sports Writer

Greg Maddux didn't change his windup, his delivery, or his tactics. All he needed was a new target. Maddux, pitching to backup catcher Eddie Perez for the first time this season after working exclusively with Javy Lopez, picked up his first win in a month as the Atlanta Braves defeated the San Diego Padres 9-3. Maddux (6-5) had two losses and three no decisions since his last victory on May 17. But the four-time Cy Young Award winner had little trouble with the slumping Padres, walking none and striking out eight. Last season, Maddux pitched only to Charlie O'Brien, who is now with Toronto. This year, with Lopez behind the plate, Maddux has struggled. Although Maddux hasn't publicly knocked Lopez, he did give the catcher several long looks during his start last week in New York. So, Atlanta manager Bobby Cox sat Lopez and gave Perez his 15th start this season. "He did a good job tonight," Maddux said. "He really did, for never catching me before. I noticed a huge improvement the last three innings." The Padres, who entered Monday tied for the NL West lead with Los Angeles, lost for the 13th time in 15 games. Ryan Klesko doubled and hit his 22nd homer for the Braves, who won for just the fourth time in 11 games. Chipper Jones hit a two-run double to highlight a four-run third inning off Sean Bergman (3-7) that gave Maddux a 5-0 lead. Elsewhere in the National League, it was New York 7, Pittsburgh 6 in 10 innings; San Francisco 1, Florida 0; Montreal 5, Colorado 3; Houston 5, Cincinnati 4; and Los Angeles at Chicago was postponed by rain. Astros 5, Reds 4 At Houston, Jeff Bagwell, the NL's RBI leader, hit a two-run double in the seventh inning for Houston. Bagwell, who has 67 RBIs, doubled to center off Reds reliever Jeff Shaw (2-3) with none out in the seventh to make it 5-4. Rick Wilkins homered and had three hits for the Astros. Reliever Anthony Young (3-3) pitched two innings for the win. Todd Jones finished for his 14th save, striking out Barry Larkin with the tying run at first. Reggie Sanders' two-run single in the fifth gave the Reds a 4-2 lead. Mets 7, Pirates 6, 10 innings At Pittsburgh, Lance Johnson homered among his three hits, stole two bases and scored the winning run after New York had blown a six-run lead. Jeff Kent also homered as the Mets opened a 6-0 lead in the second inning before offsetting a Pirates comeback, keyed by Mark Johnson's two-run pinch-hit homer and Charlie Hayes' two-run triple in a five-run seventh. Pittsburgh's bullpen had pitched seven scoreless innings before Johnson, who went 3-for-5, singled with two outs in the 10th and stole second. The single came off Pirates reliever Francisco Cordova (2-4), who struck out four of the first five hitters he faced. Dave Mlicki (2-3) pitched a scoreless ninth and John Franco finished up for his 14th save. Giants 1, Marlins 0 At San Francisco, Osvaldo Fernandez gave up two hits in 7 2/3 innings and Barry Bonds hit his 19th home run. Fernandez (4-6), who was 0-5 in his last eight starts, got his first win since April 21. Rod Beck got the final four outs for his 16th save, despite allowing a one-out double to Jeff Conine in the ninth.

Losing pitcher Al Leiter (8-6) gave up just three hits in seven innings. Expos 5, Rockies 3 At Denver, Shane Andrews homered twice and Ugueth Urbina won his fourth straight decision as Montreal ended Colorado's six-game winning streak. Andrews went 3-for-4 and drove in four runs for the Expos, who have won five of their last six. He hit his ninth and 10th homers of the season and had his third three-hit game in his last five games. Urbina (4-0) gave up five hits over 6 1/3 innings. Mel Rojas pitched the final 1 2/3 innings for his 10th save. Marvin Freeman (4-4) lost for the first time since May 9, allowing seven hits and five runs in seven innings. Andres Galarraga and Dante Bichette homered for the Rockies. Dodgers-Cubs Postponed At Chicago, the Dodgers jumped to a 5-0 lead before the game was postponed after 1 1/3 innings. The game was to be made up today as part of a doubleheader.

Brewers 'bolt' to victory; rain halts Rangers' 1-1 tilt

By The Associated Press

Life imitated art at County Stadium in Milwaukee. In a scene eerily reminiscent of "The Natural," Greg Vaughn homered off Kansas City's Kevin Appier just as a lightning bolt struck near the stadium on Monday night. It was the key moment in a game delayed for more than 2 1/2 hours by rain and fog before the Brewers went home with a 9-4 victory. "That was unbelievable, wasn't it?" Milwaukee manager Phil Garner said. "That was surreal. We get the thunderclap when it's going up into the lights." "It was a little spooky," said the Royals' Tim Lincecum, who was warming up in the bullpen at the time. "I was surprised they didn't take us off the field right then. I'm just glad nobody got hurt." As Vaughn rounded the bases, music from "The Natural" played over the sound system, and thunder continued to rumble. The two-run homer in the third inning gave Milwaukee a 5-0 lead. The shaken Appier didn't return to the game after an 87-minute delay in the fourth inning. Elsewhere in the AL, it was Oakland 8, Detroit 4 in 10 innings; Minnesota 6, New York 3; Texas 1, Baltimore 1 in a game called after 5 1/2 innings by rain; and California 9, Chicago 8 in 13 innings. Levis had his first career triple and a career-best three RBIs for the Brewers. In the seventh, he tripled home two runs off Brian Bevil, making his major-league debut. Levis scored on Pat Listach's sacrifice fly to make it 9-3. Orioles 1, Rangers 1 Rain flooded both dugouts at Camden Yards, and the overflow started seeping onto the field, forcing the game to be called off. All statistics, including Juan Gonzalez's 11th homer and Ivan Rodriguez's single that extended his hitting streak to 17 games, will count. But the game must be replayed in its entirety. After the rainout, the Orioles scheduled a doubleheader for today, but that plan was scrubbed after midnight. The date of the rescheduled game was to be announced later today. Angels 9, White Sox 8 Randy Velarde's bad-hop single drove in the winning run in the bottom of the 13th inning for California against Chicago. Tim Salmon led off the 13th with a double against Kirk McCaskill (4-4), the sixth Chicago reliever. After an intentional walk to Orlando Palmeiro, Salmon reached third on a double-play grounder. Tim Wallach also was intentionally passed before Velarde's grounder took a bad hop off the tip off shortstop Ozzie Guillen's glove. The victory went to Ryan Hancock (2-0), who allowed one hit in two innings. Twins 6, Yankees 3 Left-hander Scott Aldred, a washout on the woeful Detroit pitching staff, held New York in check at Yankee Stadium for his third straight victory for Minnesota. Aldred, whose earned run average was 9.35 with the Tigers but is 3.91 with the Twins, held the Yankees scoreless until the seventh, when he was relieved after Derek Jeter's two-run double with two outs. Aldred is 3-0 with the Twins after going 0-4 for Detroit. Minnesota scored three runs on five hits in the first inning and built a 6-0 lead before the Yankees finally scored. Paul Molitor had a pair of RBIs and scored two runs for the Twins. Athletics 8, Tigers 4 Terry Steinbach's grand slam in the 10th inning boosted Oakland to victory at Detroit. Steinbach's seventh career grand slam came after Rafael Bourimigal and Jason Giambi singled and Torey Lovullo was safe when Mike Myers (0-4) unsuccessfully tried to get Bourimigal at third base on a sacrifice attempt. One out later, Steinbach hit a 3-1 pitch into the left-field seats off Gregg Olson. Jim Corsi (3-0) worked two scoreless innings for the win. Geronimo Berroa hit a three-run homer for Oakland, which won for only the fourth time in 11 games.

GOLF

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP)--He didn't shoot a 63 on the final day, chip in for birdie from the rough or hit a clutch 4-wood on the final hole. All Steve Jones had to offer was patience, perseverance and guts. That's all the U.S. Open has ever demanded of its champions. "I don't care how much preparation and how many goals you set or anything like that," Jones said. "That would never guarantee a U.S. Open championship. I think there is a lot of people who can attest to that. I just happened to be at the right place at the right time." Hitting all but one fairway and stumbling just once over the final five holes that doomed so many of his challengers, Jones won the 96th U.S. Open on Sunday with a 1-under-par 69. His 278 was one of only three scores under par, and it gave him a one-stroke victory over Tom Lehman and Davis Love III, two players who had much more experience in pursuit of their first major championship.

BROOKLYN PARK, Minn. (AP)--To watch Liselotte Neumann putt when it mattered most during the final round of the Edina Realty LPGA Classic was to gape in disbelief when her 6-footer rimmed out on the second playoff hole. Neumann had saved herself with a two-putt from 85 feet over a monster speed bump on her last hole of regulation Sunday, and she did it again at No. 18, this time from about 55 feet up a large hill in the steady drizzle that marked the day, on the first playoff hole. So when Brandie Burton, one of four players to qualify for sudden death, missed from eight feet for birdie on the second playoff hole, it seemed Neumann was one stroke away from her second victory at Edinburgh USA Golf Course in three years. She stroked the putt cleanly and began to raise her blade in triumph. As the gallery began to cheer, the ball caught the left edge, spun around the hole and out the back side, as golf balls sometimes do. "I don't know what happened," Neumann said later. It didn't matter, however, because the next time Neumann stood over a putt, she made magic once again. She rolled a seemingly impossible 45-footer off a long, sloping ridge on No. 11, the third playoff hole, to grab the $82,500 winner's check and leave Burton, Carin Koch and Suzanne Strudwick awestruck -- and only $39,208 richer. ANCASTER, Ontario (AP)--Close to quitting a few weeks ago, Charles Coody was close to perfection in the final round of the du Maurier Champions. The 1971 Masters champion shot a 5-under-par 65 on Sunday for a one-stroke victory over Larry Mowry in the Senior PGA Tour event. "For the last 3 1/2 years, my game has deteriorated," said Coody, 58, who had a 9-under 271 total on the Hamilton Golf and Country Club course. "I wasn't having a whole lot of fun."

BOXING

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)--Roy Jones Jr. completed a unique doubleheader Saturday night, successfully defending his IBF super middleweight title after playing in a pro basketball game. Jones toyed with Eric Lucas for four rounds before going to work on the Canadian, who sustained a broken nose and a cut over his right eye before referee Brian Garry stopped the fight after the 11th round. Jones improved to 32-0 with his 28th knockout. Jones scored five points in a little more than 14 minutes in a United States Basketball League game in the afternoon, helping the Jacksonville Barracudas beat Treasure Coast 107-94. SOCGER PASADENA, Calif. (AP)--Thomas Dooley provided a dramatic ending to a rousing game, drawing the United States into a 2-2 tie with Mexico in the final minute of their U.S. Cup '96 showdown.

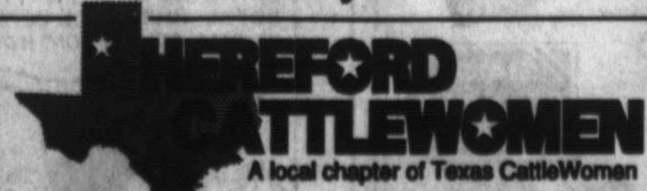

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP)--Mel Allen, the "voice of the Yankees" whose litting Alabama drawl became one of the great voices of baseball broadcasting, died Sunday at age 83 from an undisclosed illness. He had open heart surgery seven years ago. A broadcaster for 58 years, he announced the World Series and All-Star game, college football games and boxing matches. But his fame came while doing Yankees games and, for 17 years, as the voice of the weekly syndicated show, "This Week in Baseball." Allen yearned to be a Hall of Famer as a young player, but, cut from the University of Alabama team, he worked as a student team manager instead. He did make the Hall of Fame in 1978, the only announcer to do so in seven decades. Allen also received a law degree, but never worked a case. He began broadcasting football games in Birmingham, Ala., for $5 a game., then won an audition at CBS Radio in 1937. By 1940, Allen was the Yankees' lead announcer and, except for a four-year tour in the Army, held the post until 1964. Returning to the Yankees in 1976, he stayed with the team until joining "This Week in Baseball." In all, Allen did 20 World Series, 24 All-Star games, 14 Rose Bowls, five Orange Bowls and two Sugar Bowls. Allen, who never married, is survived by a sister and brother.
