At the regular meeting of the club last Thursday a program on past war immigration problems was rendered. Mrs. Chas. Donald gave an interesting paper portraying "The Attitude of the Foreigner Toward America" and Mrs. A. M. Jones gave "The Attitude of America Toward the Foreigner." Mrs. E. W. Harrison's paper on "Restrictions of Immigrants," follows:

RESTRICTED IMMIGRATION

This question has long been a debatable question and still is with some of our great thinkers of today. I shall not discuss whether or not America should or should not have restricted immigration—but give a few facts as to what is being done about restricting immigration.

Our forefathers or settlers of our early colonies were immigrants. They came here from northern and northwestern Europe and were of Welsh, English, Dutch, German and French descent or of the Nordic race. They settled our country, fought our battles with the Indians, won our independence and developed our country. Their numbers were too few to form social groups and classes. They came in daily contact with our citizens and our institutions of local self-government. They attended our schools, public meetings, read our papers and attained the use of our language. They worked for self-government and qualified themselves for it. With their thrift and economy they made good farmers and successful business men. In fact such immigrants were welcomed at all times.

This class of citizens didn't continue however. Between 1890 and 1910 conditions changed somewhat. Our immigrants came now from south and south-eastern Europe and gave us a different class of people, who did not wish to cut loose from the fatherland and become Americans. They segregated themselves into groups in our cities and refused to speak our language or adopt our laws. They did not assimilate or fuse into the melting pot. Such an inflow of such a people was so great that even in the early life of our colonies some need of regulation and restriction was felt to be needed. Washington questioned the advisability of allowing more immigrants to enter our country. Madison favored a more liberal policy, while Jefferson wished there was an ocean of fire between this country and Europe, so no more immigrants could enter.

In 1882 there came a tremendous wave of immigration with effects upon the labor market that largely induced the passage in that year of the first immigration law. The federal government now assumed entire control of the ports of entry, as it was manifestly essential to have a national policy and supervision. Since 1862, when Chinese coolies were excluded under popular pressure, Congress has passed eight Acts of more or less importance, culminating in the Act of 1903, which is said to be the most far reaching measure of its kind in force in any country; and the principles underlying it must serve as the foundation for all immigration restriction.

Under this law we have practically unrestricted immigration with the exceptions that Chinese laborers are not admitted and that persons suffering from contagious diseases, insane, anarchists, criminals, and public charges are debarred. The law doesn't fix a property tax, income or educational qualification, does not insist upon a knowledge of trade nor impose a tax.

Until the year 1906 the U. S. kept no record of any sort concerning aliens who had been granted citizenship in this country. Nothing was known about who was admitted or counted as citizens and made to vote. Some who had only been in the U. S. a few days were given this privilege. Such procedure brought much dissatisfaction and caused Congress to enact a new naturalization Act of June 29, 1906. This is the law under which aliens today become citizens of the U. S.

In 1907 the U. S. began for the first time to keep count of the number of aliens admitted to American citizenship. No records were kept of the nationality or race of the people who were admitted—a phase of the matter that has within the past twenty years proved to be of the highest importance to the American people. Conditions of war wrought many changes in our citizenship. Instead of having a country of Americans our country was literally filled with peoples from every nation. As a result there was an overwhelming demand for a complete stop or a severe check to immigration which Congress could not ignore. Some favored not allowing any immigrants for a period of five or ten years or until what we had were Americanized.

In 1917 the literacy test (a restrictive measure of great power) was passed over President Wilson's veto. This bill restricted such as idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded, insane, epileptics, paupers, beggars, T. B.'s contagious diseases, etc.

In December, 1920, the House of Representatives passed a bill, the Johnson bill, which provided for suspending practically all immigration for a period of fourteen months, only forty votes being recorded against it. The Senate, however, was more conservative, and after extended hearings adopted in a modified form, the Dillingham per cent limit plan as a substitute for total suspension, and eventually this prevailed. This percent plan was first proposed by Senator Dillingham, in 1913, in a bill which provided that the number of aliens of any nationality who might be admitted to the U. S. in any fiscal year should be limited to ten per cent of the number of persons of such nationality who were resident in the U. S. according to the census of 1910. At the time it was presented this bill represented a rather extreme attitude of restriction, but how materially sentiment changes during and after the war is reflected in the fact that when the idea was finally incorporated into law the limit was fixed at three per cent instead of ten as originally proposed.

The Senate bill prevailed almost unanimously, but executive approval was withheld, resulting in a "pocket veto," which obviously reflected President Wilson's opposition to immigration restriction quite as clearly as did his two previous vetoes of the literacy test bill. The measure, the Johnson bill was again introduced in the special session which followed Harding's inauguration, passed both houses almost without opposition, and became a law on May 19, 1921.

On June 3, 1921, the emergency immigration law, which is known as the three per cent law went into effect, and for the first time in history the U. S. of A. officially began to display a faint trace of common sense in the handling of the immigration problem. This law was operative from June 3, 1921, to June 30, 1922. It provides that the number of aliens of any nationality that may be admitted to the U. S. in any fiscal year shall be limited to three per cent of the number of foreign born persons of such nationality resident in U. S. as determined by the 1910 census. Certain people don't count, however, such as foreign government officials, and their families and employes; aliens in transit through the U. S.; tourists; aliens from countries which have special immigration treaties with U. S.; aliens who have lived for one year prior to their admission in Canada, Newfoundland, Mexico, Central A. or South A.

Such a condition, if not checked will result in mongrelization.

There are two bad features of this law. One is the way in which it still permits thousands of undesirable aliens to be dumped upon our shores for no other reason except to earn money and their country's desire to rid of them. The other reason is the extreme unfairness of the law in failing to provide separate quotas for countries whose population is divided into distinct racial groups. Exc. are Turkey, Rumania, Poland, Russia. These peoples are largely under a government they hate and these peoples deny their own nationality.

This law was originally designed to remain in force until June, 1922, on which date it was to be replaced by a permanent immigration law, which would take care of America's immigration problem in a comprehensive and satisfactory manner. Just as the committee was preparing to re-enact this law it was found that many relatives of the naturalized Americans could not enter the U. S. because the quotas of the countries from which they came were exhausted. It was decided by the committee to replace the law with a law admitting only blood relatives of American citizens or aliens who have lived for three years in America.

Many immigrants come in through the back door of Canada and Mexico, for if they are residents of these countries for only one year they are admitted to U. S.

There is only one way in which the immigration problems can be properly handled and that is by providing that all immigration to the U. S. shall be immigration that is needed by the U. S. for definite purposes. We are the only nation that has not regulated this movement of people to her own needs.

MRS. E. W. HARRISON.

THE PASSING DAY

By Will H. Mayes, Department of Journalism, University of Texas

The people of the United States have been vying with each other in the effort to show the Prince of Wales that we are pleased to have him visit this country, as indeed we are. The Prince is a nice sort of a visitor and a democratic kind of a fellow in spite of his inherited title. He knows how to make himself agreeable in a truly American fashion and seems to be with out that affectation that we have learned to expect in Englishmen-generally. That being true, he must at times have a feeling of disgust at the propensity of the average American to bow down and worship royalty. Doubtless he would much prefer to be accepted for what he is rather than for his title, but Americans will not have it so.

In spite of our Democratic ideals, we are not far enough removed from monarchical government to keep from toadying to royalty and seem to delight in paying homage to keep those highest in authority. This is shown so often in the character of our entertainments. The most popular spectacular shows we have are our pageants depicting the crowning of a king and queen, with great royal processions of dukes and duchesses, ladies in waiting and attendants. In spite of the almost indignant mimicry of such affairs people turn out in great numbers to witness these immense sums to bedeck themselves in what they regard as royal apparel. The spectacle would be amusing if it were not so pitiful.

We are too much disposed to truckle to those in authority. Every citizen is under obligation to support, and should delight in supporting, those to whom the affairs of government are entrusted, but this does not carry with it even a suggestion that those in service are a whit better personally than other citizens. It is interesting to watch the almost servile attention we give to a president or even to a governor and then to see how quickly and how far he can drop from public sight as soon as his term of office expires, and that in spite of the fact that his service has in most cases made him a really greater man. A governor is a great man so long as he is governor; an ex-governor is merely a man who is down and out so far as the people are concerned.

A man is handicapped by what he has been unless he is constantly striving to go forward to greater things. He can't live on past achievements and hold that position in public esteem which those achievements won for him. The more he accomplished the more the public expects and has a right to expect. The things done in the past indicate his capacity for greater undertakings, and unless he is willing to make the effort to carry on he soon finds himself losing his own grip as well as the confidence of his friends. On their part there comes a feeling that perhaps he has been over-estimated. There is no stopping-place in life at which one can hold all that he has gained in the way of public favor.

Perhaps public favor should not be regarded as a test of one's worth to his fellow-men, yet it is about the only test by which he may be gauged. Certainly few persons may be accepted on their own valuation, for that is either too high or too low. The public is the safest criterion of human values, even though it is too much disposed to give hero-worship to those temporarily in the lime-light and to forget those who are constantly endeavoring to lift themselves by their own boot-strap.

Certainly if you are not in good favor in the community in which you live—and you can learn your own standing if you really want to know it—it behooves you to examine yourself to see just where the trouble lies and then to correct it. Every one owes it to himself and those about him to do his best to hold the favor of others. He is justified in having a pride in his community standing, but should take care not to develop a spirit arrogance—a holler than thou, or better than thou attitude.

"IN WHICH SHE IS PIQUED"

After the hop at Barrancas, I woke early next morning. The group of casement windows that faced me were changed into one great splotch of blue-like stained church-glass windows. Slipping into my negligee I ran over and looked out at the resurrection of day when all little things are stirring. I could hear the first shy twittering of the birds in the tropical oleander trees that reached up to the window; their tops all ended in clusters of shell pink blossoms. Leaping out I caught one in my fingers and the tug at its stem aroused its companion flowers who sent up a sea of fragrance and I drank in their sweetness.

It was chilly, my chiffon negligee was too thin for the early morning. I looked about for something with more warmth to put about my shoulders and seeing my evening-cape on a chair where I had flung it a few hours earlier, I wrapped it around me snugly and settled down in the silken pillows of the window seat, resumed my dreaming. Everything out of doors was so fresh and lovely, the sparkling dewdrops making the blades of grass and trees resplendent. Suddenly I was conscious of an intruding odor—that was not the dainty fragrance of the oleander—no, it was stale and heavy. It came from the remains of several cigarettes in a near-by receiver.

They seemed to have no part in the picture and I flung them far out of the window. But somehow the spell was broken and thoughts of the dance came surging. I remembered Warren Fisher and felt a wave of embarrassment. After his wife had treated me so cool, I lost interest in the party. It wasn't that I cared about his being married, for I realized that the attraction I had felt for him was superficial, but I resented being placed in the position of having Mrs. Fisher think I was mad about her good looking husband. Well, I was not mad about him, had not been mad about him, and never would be, for that matter.

Right at that moment there was only one person I wanted to see. That was Curtiss Wright, and with the thought of him I became very lonely. He was so different from the other men with their "hotlines," as Ellie called them. If he ever fell in love with a girl it would be the big love of his life, the one real, living, throbbing adventure, and he'd be true to her in thought and deed—not a flirt like Warren Fisher. And yet—he hated flappers, I wondered if I had been reared in a different environment if I could have been the dream girl he wanted.

If my mother had lived I would not have been a flapper. She was attractive and charming, and could be frivolous, and yet she had a depth of mind unlike most of my friends' mothers and a yearning for mental attainment. She had wanted me to accomplish and urged me to study art and go on with my music. "With your mind full of interesting and beautiful things you won't be caught in the maelstrom that's coming."—I could hear her saying. I wondered if she meant jazz, and cocktail parties and petting. If she had not been taken away maybe I would have been Curtiss Wright's first love. And with his name on my breath—slipped down into the pillows and in a few moments was dozing.

Late that afternoon, still more or less subdued from my thoughts of the morning, I wandered away from the rest of the crowd and sat alone on the terrace overlooking the unruffled surface of the azure water. Cato, one of the Japanese servants, brought me a telegram and a square box from the florist's. I opened the wire.

"When a woman has a man in for Sunday night supper she's nothing short of designing," Marjorie.

It was just like Marj to do that. She didn't realize how I had begun to feel about the silly bet we had made in the beginning and I understood the spirit of fun in which she had sent it. I reread the words; a dull, slow emotion surged over me and I realized that I hated Anne Coddinton. For the first time in my life I was jealous. So they had been together Sunday night—Anne and Curtiss. . . . people would begin linking their names together. I was piqued and my rage mounted higher and higher.

I tore the string from the box and it was full of prebids. The card was flippant:

"Am completely surrounded by Germans. Otherwise I would be as near as these flowers which I beseech you to wear this evening. Other days Other days stretch forth with promise. The thought is distant, but it brings warmth to a lonely heart." Warren.

"The Germans"—he meant his wife. I had been told that he had married her for her money and that she watched him with suspicion. They were spending the winter at one of the pretty homes on the bay-shore and his escapades were the talk of Pensacola. "The Germans"—I smiled and reread the last part of the message. Since hearing about Anne and Curtiss Wright I liked Warren Fisher. What difference did it make if he did flirt? He made love exquisitely. "Curtiss Wright could take unpopular Anne Coddington and go to the devil!" I murmured, and skipped back into the living room where Ellie was moving about making light shins softly from lovely lamps in far corners.

Where've you been, Sallie? Not mooning." She called to me gaily; "the boys are in from the lunks and have been screaming for the 'life of the party.' Here they are now."

And with their arrival came Cato with his magical tray of cocktails and in a few moments the room resounded with good natured small-talk and laughter.

"It's a good thing Mother and Dad are in Cuba," laughed Ellie as one of the boys, who had been drinking a lot, began snapping the fragile stems of glasses.

"Hope they like the climate so well they'll stay there fever," responded the destroyer.

"Here's hoping they won't come back before mornin'—won't come back before mornin'," another began singing. And still another: "Tell you what let's do, let's all stay up all night, shoot craps, play pocker and have a reg'lar all night party. We'll go into town for ham an' when day is dawning."

"I've a better idea that that," Judith McLean suggested. It's wilder. Judith couldn't drink very much and I noticed her eyes were stary.

But I'm hoping to be able to eat Christmas dinner at home, in Texas. You see, mother is teaching down there and my little brother is with her, and I think it would be pretty fine to go home about two days before Christmas.'

Why, you know,' he said, 'as he held up his thin hand, to count off, 'when I came out here I would have thought I could count on one hand the number of people who would inquire about me, but just dozens of people came to ask. It certainly did make me feel good, and it helped mother a lot. She didn't feel so bad about leaving me when she knew I'd have so many friends.'

a pass was grounded just as the quarter ended.

Second Quarter

Thompson went to tackle for Connell, whose bad ankle had weakened, Canyon attempted a place kick which was low and was blocked. Hereford recovered on the 38 yard line; two passes failed and a right end run failed to gain, after which Russell punted and Canyon took the ball. After a small gain at left guard they punted, the ball was fumbled in a scramble for it and rolled across the side line, Canyon recovering on Hereford's 35 yard line. They swung around right tackle for 5, hit same spot for 1 yard, were stopped at center, scraped 3 around left end, grounded a pass, then sliced thru left tackle for 11 yards, putting the ball on the 22-yard line. After being stopped dead twice on the right side of the Hereford line and grounding a pass they tried another place kick which rolled across the side line. It was claimed a Hereford man touched the ball and Canyon recovered, the referee allowed Canyon a safety on the play. Score: Canyon 8, Hereford 0.

The ball was given to Hereford on the 30 yard line. A pass failed; another pass, Hines to A. Russell, was completed for 8; Thurmond slammed center for 2; Barrett thru left guard for 3; Thurmond left tackle 1; pass, Hines to Barrett, made 5; Canyon intercepted a pass and runner went 40 yards down the right side line to a touchdown; they failed to kick goal. Score, Canyon 14, Hereford 0.

Canyon kicked off and Hereford took the ball on her 32 yard line. The first play was fumbled, then Barrett hit left tackle for 1 and Hines left guard for 1, when the whistle blew for the half.

Third Quarter

Hereford kicked off to Canyon's 10 yard line and it was brought back 15 yards. They tried center without result and then punted out of bounds on the forty yard line where Hereford fumbled and Canyon recovered. J. M. Posey broke thru and dropped the Canyon fullback in his tracks before he could start the second play, costing Canyon 6 yards. Hereford was penalized five yards, however, for off side. A Canyon half back broke thru center for a big gain, putting the ball on Hereford's 30 yard line. They failed on a pass, could gain only 3 around left end, grounded another pass, and then fumbled. The alert Artie Russell was on the ball like a hawk. Hereford's ball, 45 yard line. Hines and A. Russell completed a beautiful pass for 20 yards. Barrett ripped center for 3, Thurmond wriggled thru the line for 10 more, a pass was incomplete. Hines broke over center for 6, but two passes fell down. Thurmond bagged 2 around right end and the ball went over on downs. On the first down Canyon punted, but Jess Russell blocked the play, grabbed the ball and dodged and twisted his way down the field for Hereford's lone score of the day. Goal was missed. Score, Canyon 14, Hereford 6.

Hereford's kickoff rolled out of bounds on Canyon's 14 yard line. They immediately punted back out of bounds and Hereford took the ball on the 35 yard line. A pass failed, but Thurmond circled right end and planted the ball on Canyon's 22 yard line. J. Russell gained a yard around left end, followed by a fumbled play; two passes failed and Canyon took the ball, on the 25 yard line. They took 5 off right tackle and failed to gain around right end as the whistle blew for the quarter.

Fourth Quarter

Canyon's ball, third down, 5 yards to go. A try at left tackle cost them 2 yards. They punted, and Hereford took the ball on her 45 yard line. Thurmond did not gain thru center; Posey lost 5 on an end run play; J. Russell went thru tackle for 3; A. Russell punted and Canyon's ball on her 25 yard line. They were thrown back without gain on two smashes at right end and left tackle; they punted, the ball took a bad bounce, and Hereford got in on her 12 yard line. Russell punted and Canyon took the ball on 34 yard line; a successful forward pass put the ball on Hereford's 13 yard line; Witherspoon stopped a drive thru his tackle without gain, but on the next play a pass went over the line for a touchdown. Goal was missed. Score, Canyon 20, Hereford 6.

Canyon kicked off to Hereford's 5 yard line where Captain Hines grabbed the ball and ran a brilliant 55 yards down the side line before being dragged to earth. On the next play Canyon intercepted a forward pass and immediately punted, Hereford getting the ball on her 32 yard line. Hines made no gain around left end end; Thurmond crossed left guard for 3; Barrett rumbled right tackle for 1, Russell punted and Canyon made a fair catch on her 35 yard line; they again punted back and Russell returned the compliment as the whistle blew.

This Week

By Arthur Brisbane
NOT READING.—THINKING. JOY ON MARS. YOUNG AT 102. TWO YOUNG MEN.

The World Federation of Education Associations organizes a world war against illiteracy. For this war the Crown Prince of Japan has appropriated a million yen. China has adopted the slogan "China a Literate Nation in One Generation."

It is preposterous that any human beings, outside of actual barbarism, should grow up unable to read.

But teaching them to read and write is only the first step. The next is teaching human beings TO THINK, which is considerably more difficult and important.

It isn't what you READ that counts. It's what you THINK AFTER YOU READ that improves government, and civilization.

It takes a Frenchman, and an old one, Camille Flammarion, to say that the people on Mars are much more JOYFUL than we are.

The Martian year is twice as long as ours. A man there fifty years old has lived 100 years, nearly. The climate is better and the planet being smaller, everything is lighter. An ordinary Martian could easily carry his mother-in-law upstairs in his arms, even if she weighed 400 pounds. Millions of years older in their civilization than earth men, the Martians are far ahead of us in knowledge, and that means happiness. In fact it's the only solid happiness.

John A. Stewart, called "Grand Old Man of Wall Street," who knew Abraham Lincoln, and is now head of an important bank, celebrated his 102nd birthday last week. To us, that seems old. A thousand years hence, 125 will seem young as sixty is now. Men will die out gently like fading twilight.

Mr. Stewart continues living, intellectually young, because he has continued WORKING. Men like trees die at the top. They are all right while the top is green.

After a while civilized human beings will decide that rats and mice don't pay, and take the trouble to get rid of them along with mosquitoes, flies and other nuisances that Father Noah may well have left out of the Ark.

An English scientist demonstrated that rats suffer from foot and mouth disease and, frequenting stables, infect the cattle.

Moral for farmers, use cement and copper and keep out the rats.

Clarence Darrow, a lawyer, who thinks and feels, and consequently earns little in proportion to his great ability, tells the Court that to hang the two young men whom he defends, Loeb and Lepell, "would be a worse crime than they committed."

And that is the truth, exactly. If a red Indian tortured a white man for twenty-four hours, that would not excuse white men for torturing that red man even for twenty-four minutes. The greater the intelligence and responsibility, the greater the crime.

This column, too lightly, compared Moses' forty-year trip across the desert with the four-hour trip of a small American automobile, and the one and one-half-hour trip of a flying machine, across the same desert.

Many writers send learned comment.

Hyman Bodner, of Passaic, New Jersey, says, "You needn't wait to get information from Moses in heaven. He kept the children of Israel in the desert for forty years because they were not willing to conquer the Promised Land. They practically all died. The new generation, educated and drilled, led by Huslma, won their Promised Land by fighting."

Max Himoff, of Long Island City, writer, said that Moses had to let his old followers die off while he raised a new generation "who knew nothing about Egypt and prepared them for their task."

Can anybody give more exact information about the fighting leader, Huslma?

Divers working ninety feet below the surface have recovered thirty-five million dollars of gold and silver bullion from the steamship Laurentic, sunk by a German submarine.

Thousands of tons of "liquid gold" are in the water through which steamers plow as they go back and forth. Some day men may retrieve it.

THE WORLD'S PROGRESS

The news of a day is an interesting study. Anatole France, literary embodiment of a nation, passes to the great beyond; President Emeritus Lauranus Clark Steele, first President of Smith College, is found dead in bed. Professor E. L. Larkin, world famous astronomer, meets the great adventure after 77 years of useful life. As these noted men embark for the sphere of mystery, Professor Charles W. Elliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, repudiates the theory of a Heaven where mankind can be at rest. "Such a place would be unthinkable," says Elliot, outlining his thought regarding what he believes to be a necessary new religion. Parenthetically, we cannot see much need of a new religion, our belief being that the Christian religion will prove quite a success when it is tried.

The passing of these great beacon lights in the world's progress however—save for a little editorial endorsement—is received by the public with little or no comment. Rather is its vision fixed on the discoveries of the moment. As one great mind ceases to function, another announces the solution of the smuggling problem by an X-ray machine which discloses the contents of all baggage. Another expert tells us he can now fix his machine so that an observer may peep into any home through the walls. With its sense of the grotesque always on tap the American says: "so passes the bootlegger, and with him our petting parties and midnight frolics." Jovial as is this thought it has in it the germ of greater truth. It heralds the compulsory perfection of the race. Mankind must perfect itself. It is the inexorable law of nature.

WITH THE FINANCIAL PROBLEM SOLVED

War, like politics, makes strange bedfellows. The United States put Germany out of commission in the great struggle for world freedom, now she leads in restoring to Germany her place in the sun, it is hoped with chastened spirit.

Simultaneously with the floating of the great German loan in this country there started from the other side the giant Zeppelin ZR 3, built in the German yards for the American government. The contract for the building of this great monster of the air is looked at askance by the man on the street, who, considering the terms of our peace negotiations, recalls the stipulation that the Zeppelin works should be put out of commission and German air craft production be limited to craft suitable only for commercial use. Some folks wonder if the Zeppelin trip across the ocean to our shores is just a test of possibilities.

It may be regarded as certain now that Germany will stage the greatest "comeback" in the history of the world. Those who are close to the situation believe that five years will see her firmly on her feet. Every German factory is intact, not one bullet hole has injured so much as a chicken house as a result of the war, and German land is fertile, unspoiled and intensively cultivated. Her only difficulty has been one of finance, and that is now largely removed. While some fear is held by those who have suffered severely by the war, belief is held that the German people now see the folly of ambition, and that it will be many a day before they are again led blindly into an international struggle.

After the presentation a short talk was given and some beautiful lines from Shakespeare on "Friends" were read by Mrs. E. L. O'Neil. The members then repaired to the dining room, where the table was loaded with good things to eat, each member having brought a dish. During the social hour the following toast was given to Mrs. Gollehon by Mrs. B. D. Woodlee:

Here's to our Secretary, faithful and true,
Wherever you place her, she's always true blue.

Always ready with heart and hands
To help carry out the W. M. U. plans.
Many more birthdays may she live to see,
Each one as bright and happy as can be.

And when at last her life's race is run,
May she hear our Savior say "Enter Thou, Well Done."

The afternoon passed all too swiftly, each guest having enjoyed the occasion very much.

RED CROSS DUTY TO AID VETERANS

Spends Nearly Four Millions in Year to Lessen Burdens of Disabled Soldiers.

SERVES 63,700 IN HOSPITALS

Every Case Is Given Individual Service—Assists Families of These Men Everywhere.

Washington.—The need of individual assistance by ex-service men and their families from the Red Cross is as pressing today as it was immediately after the end of the World War. For six years this work has been foremost of all Red Cross services, and in emphasizing the steady public support of this work the Red Cross National Headquarters urges the largest enrollment this year during the membership campaign opening on Armistice Day, November 11.

58,767 Soldier Cases a Month

The Red Cross work for the disabled soldier is designated "home service," for it gives individual attention to the man and his family approximating the interest and loving care of the home. Such service in the hospitals, camps, soldiers' homes and sanatoria, averaged 58,767 cases a month during the year. Assistance to ex-service men and their dependents averaged 58,767 cases a month. In addition, the Red Cross in the last twelve months provided $3,000 recreation and entertainment events in the hospitals and camps.

Work in Communities Increases

The home service of the Red Cross was the most pressing duty of 2,609 chapters, an increase of 182 communities where problems affected by the war veteran's condition required solution through immediate and intelligent assistance. The chapters alone expended some $2,000,000 in this work.

The transient disabled soldier, usually suffering from disability or tuberculosis, is almost everywhere a grave problem. From national funds the past year $173,078.26 was expended in helping the chapters to care for these wandering men.

According to government report there are 4,500 veterans in civilian institutions, and in the national homes for soldiers the complications are increasing. The large groups of patients whose claims have been disallowed, of veterans of foreign wars, and the great number of men permanently resident in these institutions call for Red Cross work which cannot be avoided nor denied.

Definite Service to 73,700

Of a total of $4,500 ex-service men in hospitals and other institutions 73,700 were rendered a definite and specialized service by the Red Cross. In a single month 4,155 new cases were presented and a total of 20,125 was acted upon—figures which serve to illustrate the magnitude of the information and claims service engaging the attention of Red Cross workers. New veteran legislation amending the War Risk act which extends many additional rights to disabled ex-service men will reopen thousands of cases and require still greater Red Cross service.

When Congress granted a charter to the American Red Cross it charged the organization with the duty to act as "the medium of communication between the American people and their Army and Navy." This responsibility is met every year without restriction.

Serves Men on Active Service

The extent of this Red Cross activity during the last year embraced a total of 195,246 cases. There were 24,925 separate soldiers' and sailors' claims; 20,316 investigations of home conditions; 11,421 cases related to discharges, furloughs, etc. Assistance was given in 39,638 instances for personal, business or family problems; 244,220 visits were made to the sick or disabled, and nearly 40,000 letters and telegrams dispatched to the homes of enlisted men.

From June to September at the numerous military training camps the Red Cross provided information and home service to the trainees, also instruction in First Aid and Life-Saving. The entertainment and recreation events at the various Army and Navy hospitals reached nearly 2,500 during the year, and occupational therapy in nine Naval hospitals gave constructive and beneficial results and occupied the time of patients in the making of useful and ornamental things.

A good program was given and the evening was well spent.

Mrs. Doyle Rose is giving expression to several of the school children. She has a room at Mrs. Applegate's, every Monday and Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Rose's pupils are learning fast. We thank Mrs. Rose for the help to our community.

Nearly everyone is very busy harvesting in this neighborhood at present. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hembree spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Williams.

Feed cutting and threshing is still in progress and every one is rejoicing over the good weather. Quite a lot of cotton is getting ready to pick these fine warm days. Earl Lance has two bales already out, we understand.

J. B. McMinn reports their house in Hereford almost completed, and they expect to move soon. October 21.

We are warned again of approaching winter as the wind comes from the north and is cool, and it is misting rain.

FRIONA

The faculty and students of Friona school have arranged for the publication of a school paper during the present school term. The first issue will appear soon.

The Union Congregational church under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. Mardis, has announced a series of church socials, the first to be given on Halloween night at the church. The opening feature of these socials will consist of a "snappy," humorous program of about thirty minutes in the auditorium, which will be followed by a series of games in which all, both old and young, may take part, in the basement. This will be followed by some good eats before going home. These socials will follow each other every two weeks. Everybody invited. Rev. Mardis says people, especially the old folks, don't play enough and he proposes to train them to it.

The "Syndicate" is putting on a progressive land sale of its lands, under the management of Judge Farwell. We understand that considerable land is being sold in and near the "Needmore" settlement, eight miles south of town.

The Friona Gin Co., under the management of Mr. Meyers is expecting to begin active operations this week. A bale or more of cotton was expected in Monday but failed to arrive.

Land sales are still being made near Friona and occasionally a new family arrives for permanent residence in the Friona territory. Yet the vast expanse of unimproved land seems unbroken. T. H. Hughes has sold his farm to Frank Reed, who will move to it about Jan. 1. W. H. Music has sold his two residence properties in town to a Mr. Keys, who has bought a half section a mile and a half southeast.

D. H. Meade, who has charge of the main highway from Farmerton to four miles east of Friona, has his part of the road in prime condition and it is said that this highway entirely through this county is in as fine condition now as it is possible to make a dirt surfaced road. It is also said that the road extending south from Friona to Needmore is in a most deplorable condition. The school bus driver says it is almost impossible to get over it and keep the children in the bus.

A letter was recently received by Mrs. Reeve from Mrs. R. S. Houlette stating that she expected to take up her residence in Friona again in the spring. She has spent the summer with her daughter in Canada but would leave there on the 19th for Des Moines, Iowa, to spend the winter with her son, John Houlette.
