Merchants display gift ideas, Sherrod given Bull Chip award

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Presentation of the final Bull Chip award for 1996 to Karen Sherrod was the highlight of the "Eat-Your-Heart-Out-Neiman-Marcus" Fun Breakfast Thursday morning in the Hereford Community Center.

In making the presentation to Sherrod, County Judge Tom Simons said, "She is indeed worthy of this recognition, work-wise and effort-wise."

Mrs. Sherrod is currently executive director of the United Way of Deaf Smith County.

She has a Master's degree in education from West Texas A&M University. She taught 11 years in Plainview and Roosevelt.

She participates in the HOSTS program, is a member of Hereford

Cattlemen and is very active in First Baptist Church.

Mrs. Sherrod was recently appointed to serve as District 1 trustee on the board of Hereford Independent School District.

Her husband, John, is president of FirstBank Southwest of Hereford.

As Sherrod accepted the award, she said, "It is God on my side, an understanding family and a wonderful board and group of volunteers who make my job with United Way what it is. I appreciate this award. It is a real honor."

Prior to the Chamber of Commerce sponsored Fun Breakfast, local merchants displayed Christmas gift ideas in booths at the community center.

On Wednesday night, the booths were open for Preview Night to give local residents an opportunity to view their wares.

Following a meal catered by Something Special, co-emcees Charlie Bell and John Stagner directed the fun breakfast activities, assisted by special mascot Santa Claus.

Background music with a Christmas theme was provided by Nancy Denison.

Special recognition was given to Jan Walser who previously provided piano accompaniment for fun breakfast activities for many years. An award of appreciation presented by Tommie Weemes, president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, thanked Walser for sharing her time and musical talent with the community.

Announcements made during the breakfast of upcoming events included:

-Festival of Trees at the Senior Center from Nov. 20-24. Margie Daniels invited everyone to attend the Festival—which has been extended by one day—to see the decorated trees, enjoy the train display and shop the bazaar.

-Christmas Lighting Contest sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Julia Laing, president of Women's Division, announced that entry forms for the contest are available at the Chamber office and will be accepted until Dec. 16.

-November is National Hospice Month and volunteers for Crown of Texas Hospice were recognized.

-Amarillo Farm Show will be Dec. 3-5. Mark Landrum advised that several local businesses will participate in the show.

-Winter and Christmas Style Show at 6:30 p.m. tonight in the Hereford Country Club. The show is sponsored by the Retail Merchants and Women's Divisions of the Chamber. Tickets will be available at the door and dinner is included in the $8 cost.

Local businesses who participated in the Preview Night and sponsored the Fun Breakfast were Peddlers Cove, Foster Electronics, Renee's Repeat Boutique, Custom Integrated Computer Solutions, XIT Cellular, Poarch Bros., Boots and Saddle, Etcetera, Pants Cage, Anderson Studio, Radio Shack, Cellular One, West Texas Rural Telephone, Inkahoots, Caryn's Hallmark, KPAN and Wishes.

'Rosa' appears at Fun Breakfast again

Teresa Garth, alias "Rosa Lopez", made another guest appearance at the Fun Breakfast this morning. "Rosa" explained to emcees John Stagner and Charlie Bell why she voted for Ross Perot for president. "Perot" also made a brief appearance at the annual Holiday Fun Breakfast which included displays of Christmas gift ideas from local stores.

Social studies textbooks out of date in HISD, across state

According to the social studies textbooks now used by Texas schoolchildren, the Berlin Wall is still standing, the Soviet Union remains intact and presidents Bush and Clinton haven't yet been elected.

The World History textbooks currently used in the Hereford Independent School District were adopted in 1991.

"So I can see where the current textbooks are probably out of date," Assistant Superintendent of Professional Services Nena Veazey said.

Joe Rogers, head of the social studies department at Hereford High School, said teachers use newspapers and television news programs to teach current events to their students.

Channel 1, a 12 minute news program, is broadcast daily. The social studies department records the program for use in the classroom, he said.

"We modify and go on," Rogers said.

According to Veazey, the district will be adopting new social studies textbooks this year, which will go into effect in the classroom in the 1997-98 school year.

Many of the state's teachers say it's time for the 9-year-old books to be replaced, and they're hoping that will happen Friday when the state Board of Education votes on whether to adopt new social studies books for use next year.

At a public hearing on the matter Wednesday, board members indicated they were leaning toward approving the books.

But several groups hope to stymie that with complaints that the texts depict too many minorities, pay too much attention to religions aside from Christianity and portray whites and Europeans as cruel.

The education board heard comment from citizens, schoolteachers and textbook publishers at Wednesday's meeting.

Five teachers representing the Texas Council for Social Studies, which reviews social studies books, testified that the new books exceeded requirements set up by the board in 1994.

The books also were recommended earlier this year by separate 15-member state committees, said Cecile Richards, head of the education advocacy group Texas Freedom Network.

Outside the hearing, Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, said complaints about the books are "at the very least trivial and picky and at the very worst bigoted."

"We're not going to stand by while a small group of extremists try to rewrite history to their own liking," Barrientos said. "These texts were written from several perspectives, not just one."

"This is not about the need to teach our children to be politically correct, whatever that means. It is about a need to teach the children what is factually correct and not the narrow view and intolerance of a few extremists."

New Astros stadium referendum narrowly passed in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Astros owner Drayton McLane says he's confident of getting a new taxpayer-funded stadium now that the biggest battle - approval by taxpayers - has been won.

A referendum to construct the $265 million convertible-roof facility in downtown Houston passed Tuesday, albeit narrowly with 51-percent support.

McLane had threatened, if voters rejected the proposal, to sell his team to interests who would move the franchise.

On Wednesday, he pronounced that "Houston is a baseball city" and said he's hopeful the Texas Legislature will now approve the financial plan Harris County has formulated to construct the 42,000-seat stadium.

"Hopefully, there won't be (problems)," McLane said. "My understanding of the situation is that they will listen to the voters but we're going to approach those steps very seriously."

Harris County Judge Robert Eckels

sees no major obstacles.

"I don't see any problems we haven't already faced when we go to the Legislature," Eckels said. "The No. 1 thing is that the voters of Harris County have had their say in this."

The referendum also approved $200 million to renovate the Astrodome with hopes of attracting an NFL team to replace the Oilers, who are moving to Tennessee and a new publicly financed stadium.

"This will keep baseball here well into the next century," McLane said. "This is something we had to have to be competitive and I'll be happy to tell the other owners that we're moving forward in Houston."

The Astros started a victory party when polls closed at 7 p.m. Tuesday but it wasn't until much later that victory was assured. The measure was failing early in the evening but eventually prevailed.

The unofficial results on Wednesday were 396,076 for and 379,678

Hereford PD awarded block grant of $15,427

By WILLIAM SEELEY
Staff Writer

The U.S. Department of Justice has approved a request by the Hereford Police Department for a local law enforcement block grant.

The Police Department will get $15,427 from the federal government and must match $1,714 to qualify. City Manager Chester Nolen.

Police Chief David Wagner said this morning one option would be to use seizure money to fund the city's share.

There are few restrictions placed on use of the grant money. A DOJ letter to Nolen defined the grant's purpose as "to reduce crime and improve public safety."

One area of improvement desperately needed in the Hereford Police Department, Wagner said is the computer equipment.

"We've updated it through the years," he said, "but we need to do a major update to our incident and report system."

The department has the most current software, however machinery used to operate it is not quite up to snuff, Wagner said.

Ready and waiting for the improved system, Wagner said, is Officer Brent Harrison, who in June received training on the system's use in Dallas.

The Hereford Police Department currently has 26 full-time officers, five dispatchers and a secretary.

"We do a good job with what we have," Wagner said, but the improvements to the computer system will make the more mundane - but no less important - office portion of police work flow more smoothly.

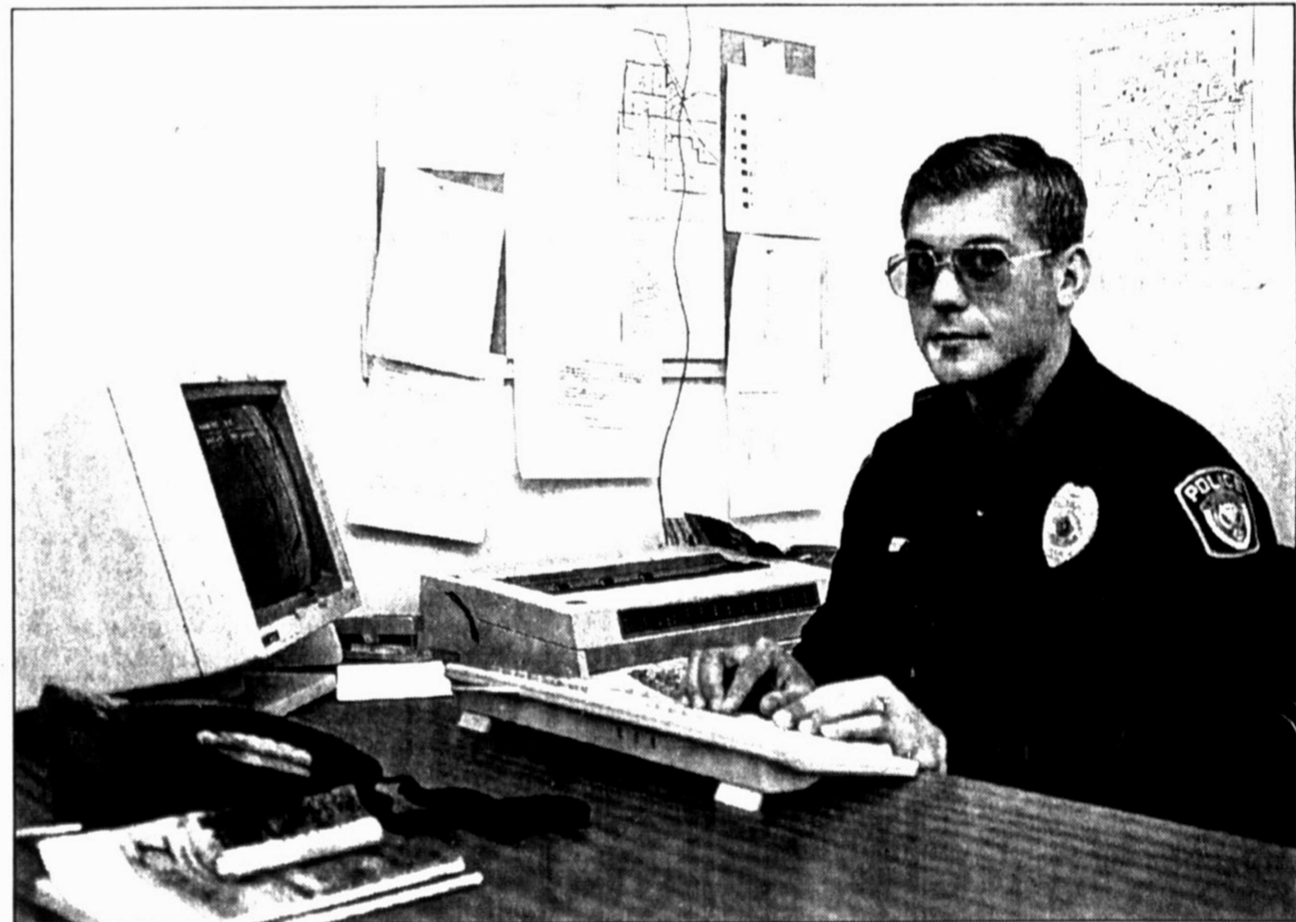

On Tuesday a newly formed board will convene to discuss uses of the grant money, Wagner said.

"Then we'll take it to the city commission for final approval."

Once the commission signs off the proposal, he said, the actual check should come "fairly quick."

The volunteer board is comprised of Judge Tawana Hollowell, Vaavia Edwards, of the City Attorney's office, Marilyn Leasure, representing the Hereford Independent School District, and the following members of Hereford Crimestoppers: Cindy Caro, Cara Dearing, Daniel Villarral, Mike Harris and Janie Nino.

Senate Control Lies in Two Races; Democrats Hold House Majority

AUSTIN (AP) - Political control of the Texas Senate rests in the results of two elections yet to come, but some lawmakers say a majority for Democrats or Republicans would have little effect on how the chamber is run.

Final unofficial ballot counts put Republicans in a temporary 15-14 majority.

A runoff is set for one other Senate seat, and another seat is headed toward a special election.

Meanwhile, the GOP didn't get the "76 in '96" they wanted in the state House. But the party managed to trim Democrat's 86-64 edge to 82-68, putting more Republicans in the House than at any time this century.

Morales Behind Him, Gramm Vows to Take on Medicare

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - With an easy victory behind him, Republican U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm is looking ahead to his third term in office and a more difficult challenge: Medicare reform.

At a post-Election Day news conference Wednesday, Gramm vowed to make Medicare a top priority and said he hoped President Clinton and the still Republican-majority Congress could agree on changes.

"I am hopeful that after this election, the president is going to put away the political hat. I hope he's going to stop trying to engage in partisan competition on something as important as Medicare," he said.

Gramm, who sits on the Senate Medicare and Social Security subcommittee, said he planned to convene a meeting Nov. 15 in Dallas of experts from the public and private sectors to discuss the program.

The goal, he said, is "to figure out not only how we're going to preserve Medicare for those who are current beneficiaries, but how we're going to preserve it for people entering the labor market today."

Next Clinton cabinet to be without Christopher, Perry

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Preparing for a second term, President Clinton's administration is rapidly changing, beginning with the departure of two of its pillars: Secretary of State Warren Christopher and Defense Secretary William Perry.

One senior administration official said Christopher was expected to go to the White House today to announce he will leave the nation's top diplomatic post by Jan. 20, Inauguration Day.

Clinton's object is to pump new vigor into his administration as it begins a second and final four years.

And as the breadth of the possible changes became clear Wednesday, the rumor mill and the news leaks were operating full time.

Commerce Secretary Mickey Kantor was portrayed as ready to resign but was said to be available for another top-level job, perhaps the attorney general's post if Janet Reno could be persuaded to step aside, no matter how reluctantly.

Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, out of favor at the White House, also was said to be leaving.

Transportation Secretary Federico Pena, criticized for mishandling the ValuJet airliner crash, and Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros, the focus of investigation involving payments he made to a former mistress, also were likely to go, administration officials said.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's brother, Bill, is a possible successor to Pena.

Clinton returned in triumph from the campaign trail Wednesday afternoon, telling his assembled Cabinet, agency heads and hundreds of other political appointees that their efforts had made the difference between victory and defeat.

"You have accomplished a phenomenal amount in the last four years," Clinton told his loyalists, spreading out by the hundreds on the South Lawn.

Chief of Staff Leon Panetta told the president the crowd contained not only those who had made victory possible but "the designers, the engineers who will build your bridge to the future."

But even Panetta is expected to leave soon, perhaps to run for governor of California, his native state.

The remodeling job had many reasons.

Some staff members, like presidential senior adviser George Stephanopoulos, make no secret of the fact that they are simply worn out.

Christopher, 71, and Perry, 69, both highly regarded, have said much the same thing.

Kantor, who negotiated hundreds of trade agreements over four years before moving on to the Cabinet, is said to be restless at Commerce.

Personally popular, Reno is not seen as a team player. White House officials are underscoring their desire to see her leave by noting her struggle with Parkinson's disease. But her doctors say her mild case of the disease should not bar her from an active career.

On the other hand, Labor Secretary Robert Reich, a Rhodes scholar with Clinton at Oxford University, is welcome to stay but appears inclined to leave, officials said.

Republicans, their grip on the Senate strengthened, have veto power over Cabinet replacements; that could mean trouble for the highly partisan Kantor if Clinton seeks to move him to another post.

The possibility exists that Clinton, in a bipartisan appeal to the re-elected GOP Congress, might place Republicans in some high administration positions.

He also could avoid confirmation fights by turning to well-known figures with stature in both political parties, including a clutch of former or retiring senators such as former Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and Democratic Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia and Republican Sen. William Cohen of Maine.

Speculation about the next secretary of state has centered on Anthony Lake, the president's national security adviser; Madeleine Albright, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations; and Mitchell.

Crum said he plans to decide within a few days what action the department will take against Hubbard. Discipline could range from a one-day suspension to dismissal.

The shooting prompted cries of racism and protests from some residents and demands by the local NAACP that Hubbard be fired and face criminal prosecution. The officer is white, while Calloway was black.

Special Agent Marjorie Poche, spokeswoman for the FBI's Dallas office, said the agency has opened a civil rights investigation and plans to file a preliminary report with the U.S. Justice Department later this month.

Other possibilities: Richard Holbrooke, who helped negotiate a settlement of the war in Bosnia; retired Gen. Colin Powell; Sen. Dick Lugar, R-Ind.; and Deputy Secretary of State Strobe Talbott, a longtime Clinton friend.

Ersine Bowles, a former White House deputy chief of staff, is considered a top choice to replace Panetta, but he is said to be reluctant to leave North Carolina.

Deputy national security adviser Sandy Berger and deputy chief of staff Harold Ickes also are possibilities.

Officer will face charges for killing mentally ill man

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) - A police officer who shot and killed a 52-year-old mentally ill man last month was unjustified in using deadly force, his department has determined.

Officer Blake Hubbard faces discipline or dismissal by the Grand Prairie Police Department and could face criminal indictment from a Dallas County grand jury that met Wednesday to consider evidence.

Defense attorney John Read, who represents Hubbard, said he believes grand jurors have decided to indict the officer on a murder charge. An announcement on the grand jury decision is expected Friday.

Election day ends in fight

PASADENA, Texas (AP) - Police are investigating an Election Day scuffle between Republican state Rep. Robert Talton and the father of his Democratic opponent.

The fight broke out as Talton argued with Ben Harrison, father of candidate Brooks Harrison, about where candidates could legally pass out campaign literature near a polling place, according to a police report.

The argument escalated into a fistfight, with both Talton and Ben Harrison exchanging blows, police said.

"We don't know who started (the fight), but we do know they fought for several minutes," said police Sgt. Kelly Payne.

Grand Prairie Police Chief Harry L. Crum said Wednesday that Hubbard was unjustified in shooting Joe Lee Calloway on Oct. 7.

Police received a report that Calloway was walking down a street holding a knife and yelling at motorists.

Hubbard arrived on the scene and found fellow officer Barry Fletcher trying to talk Calloway into dropping the knife. When Calloway refused, Hubbard opened fire and killed the man.

Dorothy White, one of four people who witnessed the shooting, said last month that she begged officers not to shoot Calloway.

"The police know him," she said. "He wasn't fighting them. He didn't have enough sense to."

Officers in the department had dealt with Calloway in the past and knew he was mentally ill, officials say.

Fletcher was cleared by an internal investigation, and a grand jury decided Wednesday not to indict the officer.

Crum said the internal probe determined that Hubbard was in no imminent danger when he drew his weapon.

"There is no question that Mr. Calloway had a knife in his hand, but an officer cannot use deadly force against another person unless there is an imminent threat," Crum said. "There was not an imminent threat when Officer Hubbard fired his weapon."

Dallas man sentenced in tax scheme

DALLAS (AP) - A Dallas man accused of filing tax returns that claim a non-existent "black tax" credit based on reparations for slavery was sentenced Wednesday to three years in prison.

U.S. District Judge Jorge Solis also fined Ben N. Badio $2,500 and ordered three years' supervised release. He will surrender to authorities on Dec. 4.

Badio was arrested in April and charged with knowingly making a fraudulent government claim.

Badio told members of Dallas-area black churches they were entitled to credit of about $40,000. That is the supposed equivalent of the 40 acres and a mule some activists believe the government promised blacks as reparations for slavery, according to IRS documents.

Congress passed such a bill, but President Andrew Johnson vetoed it in 1866.

Badio was charged with helping blacks file the phantom credit. He had claimed to be a certified public accountant. He then took a portion of the refund claimed, the affidavit accompanying his arrest warrant said.

The IRS is attempting to recover $50,000 to $75,000 that was wrongfully paid out, Assistant U.S. Attorney David Finn said.

Filers who benefited have 60 days to pay back the money without facing any penalty, he added.

against the proposal.

"It was a long battle and we're extremely pleased it worked out the way it did," McLane said. "We've still got a lot of work to do but this was a big step and it's going to mean a lot for Houstonians and the city of Houston."

Astros general manager Gerry Hunsicker said the organization was relieved.

"Last night (Tuesday) was like the seventh game of the World Series and we'd given up a five-run first inning," Hunsicker said. "But we battled back and our closer saved it for us in the ninth."

New Astros manager Larry Dierker, a former player and broadcaster for the team, also is glad the team won't be moving.

"It's an incredible relief," Dierker said. "You never want to think about uprooting after you've been in a place almost your whole life. It's a happy day for me and I think in the long run it will be great for the city of Houston."

Opponents feared property tax dollars would be used to build the stadium although the referendum wording didn't call for it. Commissioners plan to use a tax on rental cars and downtown parking, state sales and liquor tax revenues and $85 million in private funds.

Hunsicker said the new stadium won't mean a drastically increased budget for player salaries.

"This will allow us to maintain a competitive baseball team for 1997," Hunsicker said. "It doesn't mean that all of a sudden we've found a new source of money to go on a spending spree on free agents."

Growing software firm headed by pair with ties to Hereford

For Interactive Computer Designs, Inc. (INCODE), the first big break for Dusty Womble, company founder, came in Littlefield in 1984.

Womble developed a fund accounting/utility billing software for the City of Littlefield, and that was the break he needed. From there, the word spread and INCODE is becoming a niche player in the world of municipal governments.

While other software companies are making their presence known in places like Austin and Dallas, INCODE is a home-grown company doing business in Lubbock.

"We have no intentions of leaving here. We think the advantages of doing business in Lubbock outweigh the so-called disadvantages," said Steve Nieman, INCODE's co-owner, who also serves as vice president and director of marketing.

Womble and Nieman, both of whom have lived in West Texas all their lives, have known each other for about 16 years. They became partners in 1989 when Nieman learned just what Womble was trying to develop.

Nieman, a graduate of Hereford High School and West Texas A&M, had been involved in the insurance and securities business in Hereford for 12 years before moving to Lubbock. He set up a financial planning business and when that didn't work out, he talked to Womble about INCODE.

"Dusty told me about the company and the need for marketing the product, and I told him, 'I can sell that.'" The two have been partners ever since.

INCODE has since developed more than 180 accounts that service the needs of towns ranging in population from 2,500 to 60,000 that use the company's software to perform myriad tasks.

"Our mission is to automate city halls from accounting and payroll to purchase orders and municipal courts," Nieman said. "Dusty is blessed with the ability to see the big picture, even when others can't."

Since the partnership began, INCODE's annual sales have grown from $130,000 to $3 million per year.

In September, the company moved into a vacant building at 6102 Chicago Ave., setting up headquarters in a refurbished building with a prominent sign that can be seen off West Loop 289.

Nieman said the new office was necessary because of growth, and for the benefit of employees, who take great pride in the company. "It will help us recruit and retain people who want a nice working environment."

Like its sales, INCODE's employment ranks have grown steadily. It now employs 30 full-time workers, 26 of which live in Lubbock, and most are Texas Tech graduates.

In fact, Womble himself, is a graduate of Tech's first Management Information Systems class.

While most of the company's clients are in Texas, it is gradually expanding into other markets, including Oklahoma, New Mexico, Missouri, Colorado and Oregon.

The company is looking ahead, building on its existing software with plans to expand into larger cities.

"We don't intend to get away from the bread and butter that got us here," Nieman said, adding that Texas, alone, is full of small towns that can use its product to perform daily functions more efficiently.

INCODE's research and development team currently is embarked on a new project to develop a Windows-based client-server product that will be rolled out in about two or three years.

"We're excited about this new program because it's going to give us a chance to do what we do better. A lot of our money is plowed back into research and development," Nieman said, adding that it's the new products that will carry INCODE forward.

Womble is the son of Lou and Barbara Womble of Amarillo, both graduates of Hereford High. He is also the nephew of Elmo Hall, Marn Tyler and Vel Simpson of Hereford. Nieman is the son of Lavon and Speedy Nieman of Hereford.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I just read an article in the paper that upset me a lot. It told about a law in Idaho that allowed a pregnant girl to be arrested for "fornication." She received a 30-day suspended jail sentence, three years' probation and a directive to complete parenting classes and was humiliated for two hours before the magistrate. The judge seemed to think this will discourage teen pregnancy. I don't see how giving the mother a criminal record will help her much.

Ann, where is the guy who got this girl pregnant in the first place? There was no mention of him in the article at all. A girl doesn't get pregnant by herself. While she is being characterized as a tramp who got caught, Romeo is still out there, free as a bird, probably getting other girls pregnant.

I hope you will run this letter in your column. People in Idaho need to wake up and realize it takes two to tango. Any moron should be able to figure that out. I am a guy who hates to see injustice. What is your opinion? -- Pico Rivera, Calif.

Dear Pico Rivera: My opinion was the same as yours -- another nutty judge -- until I began to look into this case and discovered an entirely different scenario than I had expected.

The verdict was crazy, but it wasn't the judge's fault. He was following the letter of the law. Idaho has the most archaic laws regarding fornication that anyone could possibly imagine.

What is it going to take for the good citizens of that fine state to do something about these disgraceful injustices? Your potatoes are wonderful, folks, but what is happening in your courtrooms is outrageous. Wake up already.

Dear Ann: I just retired as head of the electric appliance repair department of a store in a large metropolitan area. This is what I have learned about the average American homemaker, after dealing with them for more than 20 years:

They ignore instructions and want Bippus dinner set for Sunday

The Bippus community will have its annual Thanksgiving dinner at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 10. Everyone is invited to bring a covered dish and enjoy the dinner and fellowship.

Games will follow the meal.

something for nothing. Also, they don't bother to save warranty slips. I've had them bring in coffee makers, toasters, blenders, mixers, electric can openers, just name it, and they want free repair service. Some of the appliances are 10 years old. When I ask, "Where's the warranty?" they say, "I probably threw it out. I never keep stuff like that." Of course, these people don't keep sales slips, either.

When I tell them I can't give them a new appliance unless I see a warranty slip or proof of sale, complete with a date of purchase, they get angry. It would be a big favor for appliance repair people all over the world if you would print this letter. -- Nameless and No City

Dear Nameless: It's hard to believe that the average homemaker is so addle-brained and irresponsible, but I'll take your word for it.

I hope your letter will encourage new appliance buyers to hang onto their sales slips and warranty papers. If they do, you will have accomplished a lot today.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to respond to the lady who was yelled at by a driver who used very vulgar language. When it happens to me, I smile, wave and shout, "Hi! Tell your mother hello for me!" The look on his or her face is too funny. I get a chuckle, and my blood pressure doesn't go up. Those clods might think before they yell next time. Can't hurt. -- Jean in Papillion, Neb.

Dear Jean: That's about as cool a comeback as I have heard in a long time. I hope my readers all over will use it.

Eagles look to beat Herd, make playoffs

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

While the Canyon football team will be looking for a playoff invitation Friday night, the Hereford Whitefaces will try to send their seniors out as winners.

Both teams close out the regular season with a game starting at 7:30 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium in Hereford.

"These seniors are getting ready for their last ballgame," Herd coach Craig Yenser said. "They've done a great job, and I'm tickled with their mental approach and all the things they've done to this point."

"We're really spending a lot of time talking to the seniors," he said. "This'll be a sentimental time for them, and we want to make this a memorable occasion for them."

Hereford enters the game with a

2-3 record in District 1-4A and 3-5 overall.

Canyon (3-2, 5-4) lost a showdown with Dumas last week, 28-17. Canyon trailed only 21-17 late in the fourth quarter.

Now the Eagles will hope for help from Dumas. If Canyon beats Hereford and Dumas beats Borger Friday, Canyon goes to the playoffs as the district's third playoff team.

"This is a big game for Canyon, and coach Patterson will have his team ready to go," Yenser said. "This will be a tough game for us at this point...I'm real impressed with the way they've improved over the season."

The Whitefaces have a chance to play spoiler, but Yenser said that isn't their focus for the game.

"We're concentrating on this being the last game for the seniors," he said. However, Yenser said that spoiling Canyon's season wouldn't be a bad thing to do.

"Canyon doesn't like us, and we don't like Canyon," he said. "It's a great rivalry and has been for a long time. It would be a great accomplishment for us to beat Canyon."

With an open spot in the schedule last Friday, Hereford has had two weeks to prepare for Canyon's running attack and swarming defense.

"We've had a good two weeks," Yenser said. "We really made sure our basics were covered. We experimented with a few things defensively and offensively, and we smoothed up some rough edges."

There isn't much balance to Canyon's offense. In nine games, the grounded Eagles have rushed for 1,670 yards and passed for 468.

"Offensively, they run the 'I' formation, with a little bit of one-back - what we call one-back trips (three receivers on one side)," Yenser said. "They like to run the football at you - try to pound you or turn the tailback outside."

Tailback Keith Wright has rushed for only 394 yards, although his yards-per-carry is good at 5.8. The best lineman is Cody Richardson, Yenser said.

Quarterback Jason Rahlfs has passed for 468 yards and run for 250.

"They have a little bit of a passing game, but not much," Yenser said. "If anything it's play-action pass - very little straight dropback."

"The key for us is to stop their running game and get them to throw," he said.

Canyon has the district's fourth best defense, giving up 280 yards per game.

"Defensively, they run a 4-4," Yenser said. "The thing that impresses you about their defense is that they swarm to the football -

UT, Tech primed for battle

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - A week off was just what the doctor ordered for Texas Tech after two straight bone-crunching games. Conversely, Texas was grateful for its chance to play - and win.

Each side considers itself primed for a Saturday showdown that could decide the inaugural Big 12 South division champion.

"Until we beat Baylor, I had forgotten what it felt like to win," Texas linebacker Tyson King said. "Those losses were stacking up."

The Longhorns (4-4, 2-2) had lost four of five games before holding off Baylor 28-23 last Saturday to keep themselves in the divisional mix.

Meanwhile, the Red Raiders (5-3, 4-2) have won four of five, the only loss coming Oct. 19 against two-time defending national champion Nebraska.

After beating hard-hitting Texas A&M 13-10 the following week, it was tough to find a Tech player not savoring last weekend's bye.

"After the A&M game, I was so beat up," offensive lineman Ben Kaufman said. "I was happy to have an off-week."

Tech's injury situation is negligible. Tight end and deep snapper Brad Spinks remains out with knee problems, but the Raiders will welcome back desperately needed fullback Ryan Jones, who had his appendix removed three weeks ago.

He'll replace redshirt freshman starter Sammy Morris, who was declared academically ineligible Monday.

The one thing the confidence-building victory over Baylor didn't do for the Longhorns was allow them to recover from a rash of ailments.

"We've had 10 forearm injuries, from the elbow to hand area," Texas coach John Mackovic said. "Most of them can play with a cast, though."

This game could go a long way in determining which school will represent the South division against the North champion in the inaugural Big 12 title game, Dec. 7 in St. Louis.

If Oklahoma beats Oklahoma State Saturday, a Tech victory over Texas that night would clinch the South and gain revenge for last season's 46-7 debacle in Austin all at once.

NCA, Adrian JH meet for hoops

Nazarene Christian Academy opened its basketball season Monday at the NCA gym and split a pair of games with Adrian Junior High.

NCA won the boys' game in a rout, 55-28. Chayse Rives led the way with 20 points, and Jeremy Gonzales added 13. Felix Rangel led Adrian with 12 points.

Adrian went to overtime to capture the girls' game, 20-18. Lindsee Goforth led NCA with seven points. Keely Meyer led Adrian, also scoring seven.

Both NCA teams will play Trinity Fellowship Tuesday in Amarillo.

Spikers to meet Bowie in Odessa

The Hereford volleyball team's next playoff match has been set: the Herd will face El Paso Bowie at 2 p.m. Saturday at Ector Junior High in Odessa.

Hereford (28-1) advanced to the regional quarterfinal match by beating Andrews Tuesday, while Bowie (28-3) defeated Snyder.

Hereford is ranked No. 1 in Class 4A by the Baden/Texas Girls Coaches Association, and Bowie is ranked sixth.

The Lady Whitefaces played at Ector Junior High in last year's playoffs and defeated El Paso Parkland.

BC suspends 13 players

By JIMMY GOLEN
 AP Sports Writer
 NEWTON, Mass. (AP) - College sports has seen scandals that involved more serious charges, and it has seen those that involved more money.

But no known gambling investigation has implicated more athletes from one team than the one that culminated Wednesday when Boston College suspended 13 players, including two who bet against their own team.

"I will not, and the team will not, accept back to the program anybody that has bet against Boston College," coach Dan Henning said. "We want every player on our team this weekend to be those that are interested in winning the football game."

Middlesex County district attorney Thomas Reilly said he was confident that the two players did not influence the outcome of the Oct. 26 game, which Syracuse won 45-17.

Although the two players were not identified separately from the others, Reilly said one did not play against Syracuse and the other played briefly on special teams.

"We have found absolutely no evidence, no indication, of any game, the outcome of any game, the score of any game, being compromised ... in any way by players at Boston College," he said.

Gambling on professional or college sporting events is against NCAA rules. All 13 suspended players will miss Saturday's game against No. 17 Notre Dame - BC's biggest of the year; Those whom Henning will allow to return can apply to the NCAA for reinstatement.

The suspended players include starting tight end Scott Dragos and linebacker Jermaine Monk, and linebacker Brian Maye, who was a starter before he dislocated his elbow against Syracuse.

Other suspended players were identified as running back Jamal Anderson, offensive lineman Marcus Bembry, defensive back Paul Cary, defensive linemen John Coleman and Dan Collins, wide receivers Chris Cosenza, Steve Everson and Brandon King, center Kyle Geiselman and tight end Rob Tardio.

There was no way to tell from the list of suspended players which ones bet from $25 to $1,000 on the World Series, college football or pro football, and which two placed $200 and $250 on Syracuse, giving 13 points against their own team on Oct. 26.

UCLA fires Harrick over dinner

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The scandal leading to Jim Harrick's downfall began with a steak dinner attended by several players and recruits.

Then came the coach's expense report.

By Wednesday, UCLA chancellor Charles Young was comparing Harrick's lies to Watergate, and Harrick's attorney was branding the coach's firing a witch-hunt.

Nineteen months after guiding the Bruins to their first NCAA title in 20 years - the first since the John Wooden era - Harrick was dismissed for an alleged violation involving extra benefits to current players and recruiting an expense report.

Asked if he lied to athletic director Peter Dalis about the expense account, Harrick said, "I did, but I corrected it."

He also said the punishment "outweighed the crime by mountains and miles."

The pink slip came just two weeks before the start of the 1996-97 season, and a week before the critical fall signing period.

Steve Lavin, a 32-year-old assistant, will be the interim coach this year; the school will look for a successor during the season.

Harrick said he had turned in hundreds of expense reports for eight seasons without any being questioned.

But the one he filed Oct. 15 would prove his undoing. The report included a dinner attended by three recruits and five current players - two more players than NCAA rules allow. Each recruit is allowed only one player as an official host.

The "sufficiently large" amount of the bill caught the eye of a UCLA official, which prompted an investigation, Young said.

According to the university, the expense report signed by Harrick falsely identified who had attended the dinner. He excluded two of the players who were there and substituted the names of two individuals who were neither players nor present at the dinner.

Current players Kris Johnson, Jelani McCoy, Charles O'Bannon, Cameron Dollar and Bob Myers attended the Oct. 11 dinner at a local steakhouse. According to Harrick, O'Bannon and Dollar showed up late.

Bulls nip Heat, stay perfect

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
 AP Basketball Writer

You'd think the Chicago Bulls would be running away from the rest of the Central Division by now, especially after four straight victories punctuated by a 50-point performance by Michael Jordan.

Well, that's not the case just yet.

The Bulls are tied for first place thanks to unbeaten starts by the Detroit Pistons and Milwaukee Bucks.

And of the three teams, the defending champions had the hardest time winning Wednesday night.

Jordan had the 29th 50-point regular-season game of his career, going 18-of-33 from the field and 13-of-14 on free throws, as Chicago defeated the Miami Heat 106-100.

"I relish the challenge, the tough game - playing on the road against a team that's undefeated," said Jordan, who had three spectacular plays.

Detroit won its fourth in a row despite playing without Grant Hill, who was bothered by a sore right wrist. The Pistons led by at least 14 points throughout the fourth quarter in beating Dallas 103-84.

Milwaukee improved to 3-0 with a 105-89 victory over Vancouver.

In other NBA games, Charlotte beat the Los Angeles Lakers 88-78, Washington defeated San Antonio 96-86, Boston downed Indiana 94-84, and Orlando topped New Jersey 108-95 in a game played at Tokyo early this morning.

Dodger gets rookie award

LOS ANGELES (AP) - How appropriate that the Los Angeles Dodgers keep cranking out NL Rookies of the Year. After all, the award is named for Jackie Robinson.

Todd Hollandsworth became the fifth consecutive Los Angeles player to be so honored Wednesday, as well as the ninth Dodgers rookie since 1979 and the 16th since 1947, when Robinson was the first recipient.

Robinson, major league baseball's first African-American player, was a member of the Brooklyn Dodgers when he won the award.

The Dodgers have more than twice as many rookie award winners as any other NL club. The New York Yankees have had eight, including this year's AL winner, shortstop Derek Jeter.

Owners vote down labor deal

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) - Baseball owners didn't want to give peace a chance.

Choosing a path that could lead baseball to yet another work stoppage in the next few years, owners voted 18-12 Wednesday to reject a proposed five-year labor agreement with the players association.

The decision probably doomed the deal, interleague play and the teams' new revenue-sharing plan.

"The fact that the owners have repudiated their own negotiator makes the future quite uncertain," said union head Donald Fehr, who agreed to the deal with management negotiator Randy Levine on Oct. 24. Fehr, due to return to New York today from London, called the rejection "extremely unfortunate."

At the end of a deeply divided six-hour meeting, owners voted 30-0 to give their ruling 10-man executive council the authority to ratify a modified agreement on behalf of all major league teams.

Duvall could be TV prof to the masses

LOS ANGELES (AP) - In addition to the movie roles that have won him critical acclaim and a best actor Oscar, Robert Duvall has a body of work in television that could earn him the title of history teacher to the masses.

In miniseries and movies for television, Duvall has played the World War II titan Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Soviet dictator Josef Stalin. Now, he's adding another war figure to his library of roles - one of history's ogres, Adolf Eichmann.

In "The Man Who Captured Eichmann," first airing at 8 p.m. EST Sunday on TNT, Duvall gives a chilling performance as a tender family man who loved his own young son but had no problem putting other children on trains headed for the crematoriums of Auschwitz.

An SS colonel who escaped to Argentina, Eichmann was the architect of the "Final Solution," the shipment of Jews to the death camps of the Holocaust.

In 1960, Eichmann was kidnapped in Argentina by Israeli agents and spirited to Israel, where he was tried for crimes against humanity and executed two years later.

The story of Eichmann's capture holds a solemn timeliness in a year in which Erich Priebke, an SS officer who participated in a massacre of Italian civilians, was largely absolved of criminal responsibility by an Italian court.

Like Priebke, Eichmann was taken in chains from Argentina. Unlike Priebke, Eichmann was hanged for his contribution to the ugliest deeds of our time.

"He kept his work totally on an administrative level," Duvall said. "He justified that he was just a member of the state, following the order of the state, so that it became abstract."

Eichmann never considered his work evil, Duvall said. He claimed instead to be a machine-like instrument of policy.

Duvall, perhaps best-known for his work in "The Godfather," "Apocalypse Now" and his Oscar turn in "Tender Mercies," said he always is looking for a character "that he can bring something to." He had wanted to play the German industrialist who saved Jews in the film version of "Schindler's List," a role that earned Liam Neeson an Academy Award nomination.

History and movies march on, and Duvall came across the book "Eichmann in My Hands," an account of Eichmann's capture by Peter Malkin, one of the Mossad agents who grabbed the SS man off the street in a Buenos Aires slum.

Duvall, who also served as executive producer of the movie, decided to make Eichmann's story with his own company for TNT.

Even without heavy makeup, Duvall achieves one of his eerie, chameleon-like transformations; he completely resembles the murderous bureaucrat who personified "the banality of evil."

CBS cancels pair of stinker dramas

By DAVID BAUDER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - "Almost Perfect" apparently wasn't.

The comedy was one of two put on "hiatus" - meaning there's no immediate plans to reschedule them - by CBS after a disastrous opening night for its Wednesday lineup.

The network also temporarily shelved the lauded drama "EZ Streets," and plans to show movies for the rest of the month in the now-vacant Wednesday night spots.

CBS had pledged patience for its new programming, but moved quickly because of the critical November ratings "sweeps" period, which began Thursday.

"Public Morals," billed as an adult sitcom about a police department vice squad, is gone after only one airing. It was the creation of producer Steven Bochco, who has "Hill Street Blues" and "L.A. Law" on his resume.

It was critically panned and drew a 5.0 rating and 8 share in its 9:30 p.m. time slot, well behind ABC's "Drew Carey Show." A rating point represents 970,000 households, while the share is the percentage of television sets in use and tuned to a show.

The show was broadcast twice last week in an attempt to give it a successful launch. Yet it scored a 5.5 rating and 9 share in overnight ratings, less than half the audience of both NBC's "Law and Order" and ABC's "Primetime Live."

It was yanked from the air on the same day Viewers for Quality Television, a citizens group that monitors and promotes quality TV, named it the best new drama of the fall season.

"EZ Streets" is a show that everyone at this network feels very strongly about," he said. "We want to look for an opportunity to bring it back in an environment where it has a chance to succeed."

The network hasn't quite given up on "EZ Streets," a bleak, moody and violent drama revolving around a police detective (Ken Olin) bent on proving his dead partner wasn't corrupt, and an ex-con (Jason Gedrick) trying to go straight.

It will be rescheduled sometime after January 1, said CBS spokesman Chris Enders.

AMARILLO

The opening event for the Amarillo College Theatre School for Children (ACTS), the "Adventures of Raggedy Ann and Andy," will hold public performances Nov. 15-17. Show times are 7:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $4 for children, $6 for adults.

Fifty children, ranging in age from 8 to 18, trained with ACTS and participated in "after school" classes at Amarillo College to prepare for this performance.

The set is an oversized toy shelf done in bright, primary colors which appears to shrink the children.

For ticket information, call the box office at 806-371-5353.

WTAMU

Set with 16th-century music, festive attire and traditional holiday food, the Madrigal Dinner will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16 in the South Dining Hall on the West Texas A&M University campus.

An authentic renaissance dinner will be served and after-dinner entertainment will include the madrigal singers.

Lee and Kathy Kendle, both WTAMU graduates, will serve as the Madrigal Dinner's Lord and Lady.

Profits from the dinner provide scholarships for students directly involved in the production and performance of the dinner, according to Dr. Bob Krause, professor music and chair of the Madrigal Dinner committee.

Tickets for the event are $18 for general admission, $12 for WTAMU faculty and staff, $9 for students, $7 for WTAMU students and $5 for WTAMU students with meal cards.

Tickets are available at the Jack B. Kelley Student Center Information Desk or by calling 806-656-2394.

The deadline to purchase tickets is 10 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 13.

Reeve, wife scheduled to attend gala benefitting paralysis research

DALLAS (AP) - Actor Christopher Reeve, who was paralyzed in a horse riding accident in May 1995, plans to attend a gala benefitting paralysis research at UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas.

Reeve, known as "Superman" to movie fans, and wife Dana are scheduled to attend the eighth annual Southwestern Ball on March 8, the University of Texas medical school announced Wednesday.

The annual galas have raised $2.9 million, which has been matched by an anonymous donor, pushing the total to $5.8 million. The donations benefit nerve regeneration research.

Proceeds have established the Kent Waldrep Foundation Center for Basic Neuroscience Research at UT Southwestern.

Last year, the ball established the Tall Texan Award to honor the person, institution or corporation that has contributed the most to raising public awareness about spinal cord injuries and the need for medical research.

The first recipients were the Reeves.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What's your opinion of the flu shots? Should we all get one? My doctor says it's up to me. I'd like a little more direction than that. — Mrs. L.B.

ANSWER: I remain a devoted fan of flu shots, and the calendar tells us it is time to get them — some would say past time.

Everyone older than 64, plus people with lung disease, diabetes or kidney ailments are prime candidates for the annual shots. Others with questionable immune systems for one reason or another are candidates as well. In fact, anyone who wants the vaccine protection can have it.

Medical personnel who work with patients should be required to get protection. Passing on the flu virus to very sick people courts disaster.

The more of us who get the protection, the less likely there is to be a major epidemic.

October and November are not too soon to get the shot, remembering that it takes six weeks to build up defenses in time for the first virus onslaught.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How helpful are iron supplements to a menopausal woman? Is there a need for it by a woman who is now 52 and who experienced menopause at 45? — Mrs. W.S.

ANSWER: We all need iron throughout life, male or female, child or adult. The question is who needs more of it than nature delivers in food form.

Why have you been taking the supplements? Many women lose iron through excess menstruation and require them.

If that shoe fits, then you need to consider your new status. The woman who is no longer losing blood through menstruation has changed her iron status significantly. She now requires 10 milligrams of iron daily, compared with the 15 milligrams formerly required.

Iron excess is stored up, and can lead to serious overload problems, as I've noted so often in the past.

Meat, eggs, vegetables and cereals, especially the fortified cereals, are rich dietary sources of iron. A proper diet provides ample iron without resorting to supplements.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Could you please write about toenail fungus? What causes it? How can it be treated? I need help. — E.M.

ANSWER: Fungi that infect toenails are all over the place, lying in wait for a chance to grab a toehold.

I can give you the name of a common one: "Trichophyton mentagrophytes." Just leave it at "toenail fungus" and you'll be fine. No one will know what you are talking about if you get too particular.

It's impossible to get rid of nail fungi without medicine. I know of two good, prescription anti-fungal pills for nail infections: Lamisil (terbinafine) and Sporanox (itraconazole). Either must be taken for three months.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket:
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 --Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 --Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 --Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the word, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 --Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Crime scene cleanup company says it caters mostly to victims

MIAMI (AP) - The blast from the package bomb killed its victim instantly and blew the hinges off the front door, shattered windows and ripped apart everything from linoleum tile to bedroom baseboards. Blood soaked the wallboards and stained the carpets.

Before such companies, crime scenes were mopped up by police, janitors and even victims' families. "We're providing a service to family members," Hosto said. "Nothing more, nothing less."

Prices range from $100 for a basic job to $54,000 for an extensive cleanup, like the damage from the package bomb last April in a home in Plantation, near Fort Lauderdale. That took a month to complete. The case is still under investigation.

Once Hosto gets the go-ahead from insurance companies, his cleanup crew dons masks and sterile suits to avoid contact with blood-borne diseases. The crews put blood in special receptacles, replace contaminated drywall and remove and burn soiled rugs and carpets. The state licenses the company to dispose of biological waste.

Autopsy: girl died of overdose

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - A 15-year-old girl who died after being gang-raped at a hotel had overdosed on heroin and also ingested cocaine and a so-called "date-rape drug," according to an autopsy report.

16-year-old friend had been taking drugs and drinking during a party at the hotel when they passed out and were subsequently gang raped by five male acquaintances. The five, including two minors, have been charged with aggravated sexual assault.

Convenience store chain to pull men's magazines

HOUSTON (AP) - The state's largest convenience store chain will not be selling sexually explicit men's magazines and cigarette rolling papers by the end of the year, Diamond Shamrock officials say. The merchandise will be pulled from the stores and their space will be taken up by Family Reading Centers with magazines and books aimed at children, teens and the family in general, company officials say.

The San Antonio-based company referred to the move as conforming with its tradition of involvement in family-oriented issues, but said the decision to remove the items was mainly an economic move. They say the decision was made after a study and review of magazine sales. Magazines and rolling papers are not large revenue producers for the stores, officials say.

NASA to launch Mars mission today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - A day after strong wind scuttled a launch, NASA prepared again today to send a spacecraft to Mars as part of a mission to determine whether there was ever life on the Red Planet.

The Martian surface and atmosphere, will take 10 months to make the 435 million-mile trip and another six months to ease into a mapping orbit.

Clouds and wind scuttled two launch attempts Wednesday. NASA has until Nov. 25 to launch the Global Surveyor on a Delta rocket. Otherwise it will have to wait two years until the planets are in proper alignment.

and last 687 days, or a full Martian year. Total mission cost: $230 million, one-fourth the cost of the much more elaborate Mars Observer program.

Court upholds death verdict of man who raped, killed girl

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has upheld the death sentence of man convicted of raping and murdering an 8-year-old girl in Hays County.

The state's high criminal court rejected his arguments and affirmed his sentence. Lane was separately assessed at least 40 years in prison in Kansas in Nancy's death, but was returned to Texas prison after that 1995 sentencing.

NASA expects to launch a pair of relatively inexpensive spacecraft to Mars every 26 months through 2005, including a robotic mission to return Martian soil and rocks to Earth that should settle the is-there-life-on-Mars debate.

As for sending humans, that will have to wait until at least the second decade of the next century, Huntress said. Money will be the determining factor.

Second man is sentenced for racially-motivated arson fire

DALLAS (AP) - The second of two white men who confessed to torching a house because a black family planned to live there has been sentenced to two years in federal prison.

Shannon Ray Singleton, 18, was sentenced for the March 6 arson fire in Wichita Falls, federal prosecutors said Wednesday.

NEA grants ruled unconstitutional

By BOB EGELKO Associated Press Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - An appeals court ruled Tuesday that a 1990 law tying decency standards to federal arts funding was unconstitutional.

Kleinfeld said the government was entitled to favor particular viewpoints when awarding grants. "NEA grants are prizes for the fortunate few, not entitlements," he said.

Policians to blame for so few voters

AUSTIN (AP) - Everett Floyd didn't vote because he thinks politicians care only about wealthy people. Jamie Edward doesn't see the difference her vote makes.

The Dallas residents are among many Texans who didn't make it to the voting booth this general election. The state had its lowest percentage voter turnout since 1970, according to the secretary of state's office.
