Independent Serbian radio reports protests

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) - In Serbia's countryside, a majority of residents who get their only news from state-run media hear nothing about massive anti-government protests that have rocked the capital for 10 consecutive days.

B-92, the nation's only independent radio station and the sole electronic medium reporting on the demonstrations, is trying to ensure that's not the case in the central part of the capital, where its broadcasts can be heard.

Their task is not an easy one. Every time they start to issue a new report on the protests, Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic jams the transmissions.

Swelling numbers of demonstrators stormed Serbia's major cities for the 10th day Thursday after Milosevic claimed victory in a rerun of local elections that opposition candidates appeared to have won the first time around.

Braving cold rain, more than 100,000 demonstrators chanted "Slobo Tyrant, Slobo Resign" as they filled the streets of Belgrade. In the second-largest city of Nis, 20,000 protesters demanded his ouster.

Milosevic, who invalidated the Nov. 17 elections because of alleged irregularities, claimed that his Socialists won Wednesday's runoffs.

A lawyer for the opposition Democratic Party said it and other opposition groups have appealed to Serbia's Constitutional Court to overturn the vote.

While official media have completely ignored the protests, B-92 reporters have been on the scene with demonstrators. But every time they try to go live on the radio, the broadcasts are jammed.

The radio, staffed mostly by young enthusiasts, regularly tricks the jammers by falsely announcing that their street reporters are about to go on the air. They then continue to play music as the government cuts off the broadcast.

When the radio goes back on the air a couple of minutes later, the station hurriedly tries to carry news and live reports before being switched off again.

"It's absolutely clear that the jamming is directly connected with our news program and reports about the current events," said Veran Matic, the radio's editor in chief.

The radio complained to the Information Ministry, but got no response. Matic said the station has received numerous faxes, calls, and letters of support. The situation also has been announced on the Internet.

"They (the regime) are very scared," Matic said. "This is the first time so many people are out on the streets and the first time that the demonstrations are not dying down, but increasing."

"The sentiment is such that no one can see the end of the protests," he said.

On Thursday, demonstrators carried banners saying "We Won't Give Up B-92."

"For Milosevic, it doesn't matter that hundreds of thousands of people are demonstrating against him," said Milica Cucic, a protesting university student. "What matters for him is that no one hears about it."

Ever since he came to power in the late 1980s, Milosevic has, in various ways, cracked down on independent media.

His regime reportedly has pressured the largest-selling independent daily newspaper, Blic, to stop reporting on the demonstrations. The deputy editor, Cvijetin Milivojevic, resigned in protest. On Wednesday, a state-controlled printer limited the paper's print run.

The demonstrators have vented their anger at the state TV and Politika newspaper, Milosevic's chief mouthpieces, by hurling eggs and stones at their buildings, shattering windows. The state-run media called the protesters "a handful of vandals."

"For the current regime, it is not enough that it puts Serbia into a spider web of lies and deceit launched by official media," said a statement by the state's independent journalists' association.

"What it wants to do now is switch off the only remaining ray of light and put Serbia into total darkness."

Spacewalk postponed due to jammed hatch

By MICHELLE KOIDIN
Associated Press Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - They pushed. They pulled. They tugged. They jiggled. But two astronauts trying to leave the space shuttle Columbia for a spacewalk couldn't open the hatch.

Finally, after more than two hours of struggling with the handle Thursday night, Tamara Jernigan and Thomas Jones were told to take off their bulky spacesuits and forget it for the night.

"Today didn't go exactly as we had hoped," commander Kenneth Cockrell told Mission Control.

Jernigan and Jones could not fully rotate the handle to release the hatch, which separates a cramped indoor chamber from the shuttle's open cargo bay. They said something seemed to be jamming the latch.

"I'm pushing as hard as I can," Jones said.

Flight director Rob Kelso said today it didn't appear debris was in the way. To be sure, Mission Control asked the crew to beam down video showing tiny holes in the latches to see if they were clogged.

If the problem is fixed quickly, the two could perform the spacewalk as early as tonight, NASA said. Another option is to cancel both spacewalks planned for the flight, which is due to end on Thursday. The second spacewalk was scheduled for Saturday.

No decision had been made by the time the crew went to sleep at 8 a.m. EST.

Earlier today, after the spacewalk was called off, the five Columbia astronauts feasted on turkey, cranberry sauce and pumpkin-colored cakes. Their Thanksgiving dinner originally was to follow the 6 1/2-hour spacewalk.

"We've got high hopes for tomorrow and the rest of this flight," Cockrell said. "But we still have a lot to be thankful for."

Jernigan and Jones were supposed to conduct two spacewalks to test tools for international space station construction. NASA wanted to see what it would be like to move cumbersome equipment like a space station battery.

Never before has a spacewalk been conducted on Columbia, the oldest space shuttle. A spacewalk that had been scheduled in 1982 aboard Columbia was canceled in orbit because of spacesuit problems.

As they struggled to solve the problem, the astronauts, who had trained for their first spacewalks for the past year, took off the handle and put it back on several times. But that didn't help.

A late Thanksgiving dinner
Horses have to be fed, even on holidays, as evidenced by Loretta Camp offering a handful of tasty grain to her colt. Of course, this was after her own more traditional Thanksgiving dinner of turkey and dressing, followed by watching football on TV.

Santa Claus to make first visit during city's tree lighting ceremony

Santa Claus will be a special guest at the first "Christmas in the Park" sponsored by the City of Hereford at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 2 in Mother's Park.

The park is located at the north end of Main Street at the intersection of Main, Avenue B and Park Avenue.

The streets immediately surrounding the park will be closed to traffic with the exception of Park Avenue.

Seating will be available for the public.

The Bell Choir from First Baptist Church will play beginning at 6:45 p.m. and Roger Eades, Mayor Pro-Tem, will welcome the spectators at 7 p.m.

Dr. Tom Fuller, minister of First United Methodist Church, will give the invocation.

Entertainment will be provided by the Hereford High School Choir and Hereford's 6th Grade Honor Choir. Both choirs are directed by Margaret Williams.

To highlight the event, Santa will have the honor of turning on the lights on the 45-foot red cedar Christmas tree. He will have candy canes for all the children present.

The Pilot Club of Hereford will prepare and serve coffee and hot chocolate in the Hereford Garden Center, directly across the street from Mother's Park. A donation has been received from the John Pitman Golf Course Association to provide the refreshments.

Co-chairs for the event are Carey Black, city commissioner and Terri Johnson, city secretary.

Inmate hopes for eventual release

Spends Thanksgiving behind Gatesville bars

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Susie Mowbray celebrated Thanksgiving Day the same way she has for the last eight years: eating turkey and dressing with her fellow inmates inside the Gatesville state women's prison.

She once thought she would be spending the holiday with her family; she thought she would have much more to be thankful for.

It was a year ago Saturday that a judge recommended Mrs. Mowbray's conviction be set aside and she be granted a new trial on a charge of killing her husband.

The ruling, based on new evidence that the state's blood-spatter expert gave scientifically invalid testimony during trial, was forwarded to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Dec. 5 for a final decision.

At the time, Mrs. Mowbray and her son - a 25-year-old law student who has worked almost four years, trying to prove his mother's innocence - had hoped she'd be out for Christmas.

But as holiday after holiday passes, Mrs. Mowbray remains behind bars while her case awaits a resolution.

Although Mrs. Mowbray says she still believes she will be released, she has stopped planning on holidays with her family.

"You learn to prepare for the worst," she told The Associated Press in an interview this week. "I have to prepare myself for another Christmas here, and I have."

Her son, Wade Burnett, also struggles to deal with the uncertainty.

"It's incredibly difficult to have to live with that kind of indefiniteness, to not be able to make any plans about the future," he said. "We've lived with a year of that."

Mrs. Mowbray, 48, a one-time cheerleader and beauty queen in her hometown of Shreveport, La., was convicted in May 1988 of killing her husband, Bill Mowbray, at their home outside of Brownsville. She was sentenced to life in prison.

She has contended all along that Mowbray, a wealthy car dealer, shot himself in their bed one night because of financial and emotional troubles.

Burnett, who at 16 was in the courtroom when his mother was convicted of his stepfather's murder, began a quest in 1993 to prove her innocence. He filed a new appeal based on evidence that appeared to contradict the state's expert witness on blood-spatter.

The witness, Austin police Sgt. Dusty Hesskew, testified at trial that scientific tests had discovered microscopic blood-spatter on Mrs. Mowbray's nightgown, even though no bloodstains were visible.

At an evidentiary hearing ordered by the Court of Criminal Appeals in August 1995, Hesskew admitted his trial testimony was scientifically invalid because a follow-up test was not conducted to confirm his findings.

State District Judge Darrell Hester ruled that without that testimony, there was "another equally reasonable hypothesis other than the applicant's guilt: Mowbray's death was suicide or an accident."

Opinions differ as to whether one year is a long time to wait for the appeals court to decide such a case.

Mrs. Mowbray's attorney, Robert Ford, called the length of deliberations "highly unusual."

"If the same trial court judge had ruled in favor of the state, we'd have had a decision within 30 days of the recommendation reaching the court," Ford said. "There is no reason for this. It is really reprehensible."

Richard Wetzel, the court's executive administrator, said the Mowbray case is simply making its way through the process. Cases that present issues requiring in-depth review and analysis can take up to three years to resolve, he said.

In the meantime, Mrs. Mowbray goes about her daily routine in prison. She works as a clerk in the education and recreation office, crochets, reads and writes letter after letter to her family and friends.

What she dreams of, however, is returning to the life she once knew.

"I just want to wash dishes, sleep in a real bed, buy groceries, cook - normal things," she said. "This isn't normal."

She says the love of her family has encouraged her to remain hopeful, but she acknowledges the past year was the hardest of all her time in jail.

"A judge ruled in my favor - where is the logic in this? Where is the justice? Doesn't this qualify as cruel and unusual punishment?"

"I don't understand," she said, "and I don't have the answers."

Christmas Stocking Fund provides true holiday spirit

Nearly everyone notices when their utility bills spiral upward during spells of cold weather. Those higher bills can sometimes stretch the household budget -- almost to a breaking point.

This extra expense is especially critical to senior citizens living on fixed incomes or small Social Security benefits.

The last couple of winters have been relatively mild, but in many Yule seasons when extended periods of cold weather settle in, CSF receives a huge number of requests for assistance with utility bills.

Such requests are reviewed by an anonymous committee of community volunteers who make decisions on extending help -- not only with utilities, but with medical and pharmacy bills, clothing and food.

Donations from caring and sharing local residents help CSF reach the maximum number of those in need during this special time of the year.

You can make your gift to CSF in person at the Hereford Brand, or mail your contribution to CSF in care of Box 673, Hereford.

TEMPLE - Family and friends had always seen William Frank Guess as an athlete, businessman, leader and neighbor.

The words "bank robber" never came to mind. Guess, 46, was in critical but stable condition at Hermann Hospital in Houston today with a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head. Doctors were optimistic he would survive.

Authorities say Guess shot himself in the head after robbing a Houston-area bank Wednesday and being surrounded by Harris County sheriff's deputies following a chase.

But even as he lay in his hospital bed, suspected of being the dapper "Polo Shirt Bandit" whom police say robbed nearly 40 banks, those who thought they knew him struggled with their shock.

SAN ANTONIO - A judge has thrown out cable theft charges against a San Antonio police officer who argued that a warrant against him was improperly obtained by an off-duty detective working for the cable company.

Willie Mendez was facing charges of misdemeanor criminal mischief and cable theft, both Class B misdemeanors punishable by up to a year in jail and a fine up to $4,000.

"I'm not defending anybody for stealing cable... but the problem was the way the cable company went about (recovering stolen boxes)," said Mendez's attorney, Bill Berchelman.

The case was dismissed Tuesday by County Court Judge Karen Crouch. Mendez still could be disciplined by the police department pending an investigation.

Paragon Cable spokesman T.J. Connolly said the company has had a longstanding relationship with the police in which off-duty officers have served warrants for the cable operator.

DALLAS - A development corporation's lawsuit over the rejection by Dallas officials of an 18-screen movie theater has been dismissed by a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders ruled the city was not liable for any harm Mayfair Development Corp. may have suffered when the City Council rejected the Tinseltown theater complex plan in January 1994.

Council members who opposed Tinseltown felt vindicated by the Wednesday ruling.

"I think this is a resounding victory for the city," said City Council member Larry Duncan. "It's too bad we didn't do the same thing with the other two lawsuits."

The Mayfair lawsuit was one of three lawsuits brought against the city over the megatheater's rejection. Two were settled.

FORT WORTH - Voter confusion caused more than 40,000 ballots cast in Dallas- and Houston-area congressional races to be thrown out, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

More than 13,000 votes for Congress in Dallas County and nearly 30,000 in the Houston area were wasted because voters bewildered by special election procedures picked two candidates for the same office, the newspaper reported Thursday, citing election records.

Texans find unique ways to celebrate Thanksgiving Day

By MADELINE BARO
Associated Press Writer
Texans found unique ways to say thanks on Thanksgiving Day - everything from making dinner for thousands to special deliveries in the rain.

In the farming community of Pep, Texas, they had plenty of turkey, but they had even more German sausage. The town of 100 people hosted its 51st annual Thanksgiving festival on Thursday, with 5,800 pounds of German sausage, 50 pounds of breakfast sausage, 700 pounds of turkey and 145 pounds of turkey breast for the 1,000 or so people they expected to show up.

Why so much sausage? Well, tiny Pep, which is about 43 miles northwest of Lubbock and has a post office, a gas station, a church, a parish hall and an alternative school, is known for it.

"People come from all areas to buy our sausage," said Marcy Demel, one of the principal organizers.

They weren't worried about leftovers, either.

"Sometimes we've got a little left over, but it's all gone before Christmas," Demel said.

But Pep's meat supply was outweighed by The 17th annual Jimenez Thanksgiving Dinner.

Chefs began cooking about 150 or more turkeys a day beginning Monday to prepare for the event which fed about 20,000 people at the San Antonio Convention Center.

The only thing lacking at the event was its founder - Raul Jimenez.

Every year, the restaurateur wears his trademark blue costume and oversized chef's hat to the dinner for the homeless and elderly, greeting crowds and dancing to mariachi music. This year, however, ill health kept him at home.

Patricia Jimenez said her father kept up with pre-Thanksgiving Day preparations.

"He came to all 16," she told the San Antonio Express News. "He can recall the emotion and joy. Though he may not be here physically, he'll be here in spirit."

If anyone knows about serving large groups of people, it's the Salvation Army. In Dallas, at the Carr P. Collins Social Service Center, more than 800 people had showed up for Thanksgiving dinner by early afternoon.

Carol Frank, executive director of the center, said they expected to feed about 1,100 people Thursday.

"We have just been overwhelmed by the number of families," Ms. Frank said.

She said most of the people coming to the center for dinner were families from the surrounding community. About 100 volunteers were pitching in to serve dinner.

Ms. Frank didn't have an exact count on how much food was being used, but said the food director had prepared 87 turkeys and there was a lot of the rest of traditional Thanksgiving food.

"I couldn't even count the pumpkin pie, couldn't even begin to count it," she said. "Believe you me, it takes a lot of food (to feed 1,000 people). I'll tell you that."

Across the state in Houston, the Bank United Thanksgiving Day parade featured a "Texas-sized" version of "101 Dalmatians" - 303 dalmatians and their owners. Among the group were "dalmatian wannabes," which included chihuahuas in dalmatian sweaters.

A giant turkey also made a customary appearance, along with Santa Claus.

Meanwhile, a South Texas family started a new custom, making Thanksgiving Dinner a private labor of love for their neighbors.

Addie and Ysidro Arismendez, along with their eight children, their children's spouses and 22 grandchildren prepared meals for about 300 elderly and handicapped Bee County neighbors, expanding on a decade-long tradition.

Gerald Arismendez, son of Addie and Ysidro, said every member of the family participates in the assembly-line preparation of the meals - the smaller children helping with tasks like stuffing bread into plastic bags.

"We do this to instill a spirit of sharing and caring to our kids," he said Thursday. "If we can demonstrate this and instill this in our children, they're going to do that with their children."

About 20 members of the Palm City Lion's Club in McAllen braved a chilly drizzle to take Thanksgiving meals to the doorsteps of local low-income families.

The volunteers took turkey, rolls, stuffing, potatoes and soda to 50 families.

"It's great we can help these families a little," Luis Figueroa, one of the volunteers, told The (McAllen) Monitor. "Without these meals, they probably won't have Thanksgiving dinner."

The Lion's Club has been delivering the meals for more than 20 years. One of the recipients this year was the family of Leticia Valles.

"I've never had a turkey on Thanksgiving before," Valles said. "We've never had the money."

Other Thanksgiving events across Texas:

- A group of Tibetan monks worked on a detailed sand painting in Thanks-Giving square in downtown Dallas during Thanksgiving week. The painting gives thanks to seven deities who they say protect mankind.

- The 15th Annual Turkey Chase in Corpus Christi, which involved a 4.1-mile run or two-mile fun walk.

- The 11th annual Southwestern Bell Uptown Holiday Lighting on Thanksgiving night in Houston.

Turkey, not ticket

Through a STEP (Selected Traffic Enforcement Program) grant, the Hereford Police Department is enforcing strict compliance with seat belt, child safety seat and speed laws. One motorist in compliance with the laws was pulled over and given a turkey in time for Thanksgiving. Here, Officer Brian Burzynski, right, presents a turkey to Reyes Ruiz, left, and her son, Rene. The program runs through Sunday.

Group in Roby wins biggest Lotto jackpot

ROBY, Texas (AP) - A little news goes a long way in this West Texas cotton farming community.

Imagine the effect of word that 43 of the town's 600 residents will share a $50 million Lotto Texas jackpot.

"Talk about Thanksgiving!" Mayor Cecil King told The Dallas Morning News. "We've really had it here today."

Confirmation won't come until today, when the Texas Lottery Commission sorts through its computer records to pinpoint the store where Wednesday night's $50 million Lotto Texas ticket was sold.

But a group of 43 relatives and friends in Roby weren't waiting to give thanks on a very special Thanksgiving Day.

If their ticket is confirmed, the group, headed by Peggy Dickson, will split the biggest Lotto Texas jackpot of the year to date.

She told the Abilene Reporter-News she was at the Terry Cotton Gin, where she is a bookkeeper, and mentioned to her cousin Vernon Terry that "we ought to all pitch in and get a pool going like they did in Snyder."

On June 5, 19 employees of BJ Services Inc. in Snyder split half of a $35 million jackpot. A ticket purchased in San Antonio took the other half of the pot.

But this pot belongs solely to the Roby Gang, 21 of whom are Terrys or their relatives.

Mrs. Dickson said she asked people who came into the gin office if they wanted to pitch in $10 each to buy Quik Picks for the Wednesday night drawing.

Mrs. Dickson had a Wednesday dental appointment in Sweetwater, about 20 miles south of Roby, so she decided to buy the tickets there at the Longhorn Liquor store, which she said has a reputation for selling winning tickets.

When she arrived with $430, store owner Jim Carson chipped in $10 of his own and tossed in another 10 tickets for free, for a total of 450 Quik Picks. Carson will get not only his share but also a 1 percent bonus - about $500,000 - because his store sold the winning ticket.

The jackpot couldn't have come at a better time for the farming town, about 45 miles northwest of Abilene.

The surrounding rolling prairie and the cotton that grows there has been hit hard by the drought of the past year. A freeze last Sunday threatened even more damage to Fisher County's most valuable crop.

Cotton is Roby's lifeblood, said Gene Terry, 61, part-owner of the gin and among those who will share in the jackpot. He said many of those in the lottery pool were on the verge of quitting farming.

"These are people who really deserved this," Terry said. "Almost everybody in this was either a farmer or a rancher. And most of the employees of the cotton gin were in on it, too."

Said Mrs. Dickson, 48: "I think that it is just so much hard times. People are like, 'Why not take the chance?' We are just grasping at straws right now."

Ann Landers

Reader says overweight boyfriend won't communicate about problem

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend, "Tad," and I have been dating for almost two years. We get along well, but there's something about him that bothers me a lot. I guess I've been pushing it to the back of my mind because I haven't wanted to confront him.

Tad is at least 40 pounds overweight. He readily admits this and even makes jokes about it, but I don't find it very funny. He attributes the weight gain to the desk job he took four months ago, but it started long before then. His regular eating habits include large quantities of junk food, and he scoffs whenever I mention exercise. My concern has nothing to do with the fact that the excess weight makes him look less attractive. I am worried because his family has a history of heart attacks.

Our other major problem is communication. I am extremely shy, although I do have a hot temper. Tad speaks only when he has something specific to say. He's also quite stubborn. It is difficult for us to have a serious discussion. He never listens to what I have to say and can be very intimidating.

What can I do? I don't want to break up with Tad, but I'm not sure we can resolve these differences. How does it look to you, Ann? -- Torn and Concerned in New York

Dear T and C in N.Y.: In your opening sentence, you tell me that you and Tad get along well. As I read further, I learn:

1. Tad is uncommunicative.
2. Tad is very stubborn.
3. It is difficult to have a serious discussion with Tad on any subject.
4. Tad never listens to anything you have to say.
5. Tad can be very intimidating.

Add to this picture that the man is 40 pounds overweight and a prime candidate (based on his family history) for a heart attack. My question to you is: What are the positive aspects of this relationship? You didn't say, and I fail to see them.

Dear Ann Landers: I love hats and am delighted to see their return on the heads of so many men. But I also have a problem. While these hats remained in the closet, we seem to have lost the rule book of when to wear a hat, particularly the most frequently seen hat of all, the baseball cap.

If any gentleman wearing a fedora, homburg, bowler, skimmer or winter-fur hat were to enter a building, he would immediately doff his head gear. Entering a restaurant, it is customary to remove one's outerwear, beginning at the top.

I've just returned from dinner in a lovely, upscale restaurant, where I counted five men wearing baseball caps. When, where, why and how did it become acceptable for ANY hat to be worn at a dining table -- at home or in public?

I have two suggestions. One is for the men in question: Gentlemen, remember the basic rule: Hats (with the exception of religious apparel) are NEVER worn indoors. The second suggestion is for the restaurateurs: Just as you have smoking and non-smoking sections in your establishments, perhaps you might introduce hat and no-hat areas. -- Hatless in New York

Dear Hatless: Hat and no-hat areas in dining rooms will never fly. More to the point, however, no gentleman who has class would wear a baseball cap while dining in an upscale restaurant.

"Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.55.)

Cowboys' Smith runs over 'Skins

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
 IRVING, Texas (AP) - An enraged Emmitt Smith is not an easy person to tackle. Just ask the innocent Washington Redskins who had to deal with an incensed Smith after the first benching of his career. Smith scored three touchdowns and gained a season-high 155 yards Thursday, carrying Dallas past Washington 21-10 and putting the Cowboys in a first-place tie with the Redskins in the NFC East. Both Dallas and Washington are 8-5. Philadelphia is 7-5 and hosts the New York Giants on Sunday. Smith was benched in the fourth quarter of Sunday's 20-6 loss to the Giants after gaining just 18 yards on 11 carries. Smith didn't practice all week while resting a sore right ankle, and coach Barry Switzer was worried. Smith said he was, too. "When we're losing and you're not doing your job, getting pulled wasn't good," Smith said. "My first instinct was to get mad, but as I thought about it, I knew if I'm not doing my job then I've got to take a backseat." But Smith is not a backseat kind of guy. "To hear all the negative stuff this week, it was an insult to me," said the four-time NFL rushing champion. "It cut deep. I knew I still had it, but the ankle wasn't allowing me to play like I want to." "I told the coach I could get the job done. With the rest, it was probably the best I felt all year. I had some spring in my step and could do some slashing and cutting. I had a whole bunch of running lanes." Smith, who became the 12th player in NFL history to reach the 10,000-yard plateau, scored on runs of 4 yards twice and again on a 3-yard carry. "Emmitt told me before the game that he could play near 100 percent," Switzer said. "He said he wanted to prove something. And he did. He slashed up in there inside." "It was like the Cowboys of old saddled up and running. Any question Emmitt Smith has lost it was answered today." Smith has 108 career rushing touchdowns to move ahead of Jim Brown into third place on the NFL's career list and it within four of Marcus Allen, who took the lead Thursday with 112 by scoring twice in Kansas City's victory over Detroit. "I ran the ball the best I have all year long," Smith said. "Last week it was cold weather and the turf was hard and I couldn't get going. It looks like I've weathered the storm." It didn't surprise his teammates. "Emmitt felt all the world was against him," said defensive back Kevin Smith. "We knew he would come out like this." Smith rushed 29 times against the Redskins, ranked No. 29 against the run, although he was spelled at times by Williams. He tore off a season-long 42-yard run in the third quarter to set up his 4-yard scoring run, and gained 55 of the 77 yards on the drive that put the Cowboys ahead 14-10. Then he gained 25 yards on a 65-yard drive to put the game away, scoring his third touchdown with 7:49 to play. Dallas running back coach Joe Brodsky said it was incredible how some people thought Smith's career was waning. "It was so ludicrous to say he's washed up it was bordering on stupidity," said Brodsky who muttered sarcastically "he's washed up, the guy's washed up" as he walked past the media. Washington coach Norv Turner said he was worried about facing an inspired Smith. "He's one of the greatest competitors you're going to be around," Turner said. "When somebody told me Emmitt had a problem I expected to see a special effort out of him. That's what happened." Linebacker Ken Harvey said he didn't believe Smith was on the downside of his career. "I didn't believe what people were saying about him," Harvey said. "He proved today that he's still a good player. I've faced him a lot over the years and he didn't look any different to me."

Herd girls down Odessa High

Kari Barrett scored 15 points to lead the Lady Whitefaces basketball team to a 48-30 victory over Odessa High in the first round of the Turkey Classic at Frenship High School in Wolfforth. Barrett hit three three-pointers - half of Hereford's total. Julie Rampley scored 12 points, with one three-pointer, and Misti Davis added eight points. Makesha Rives sank two treys to give her six points. Hereford led 21-12 at halftime and 27-20 after three quarters. The Herd outscored Odessa 21-10 in the fourth quarter to make it a rout. The team was to play Friday afternoon against the winner between Abernathy and Cooper.

Lett faces suspension

DALLAS (AP) - Storm clouds continue to gather over Leon Lett. The Dallas Morning News reports in today's editions that the Dallas Cowboys defensive tackle is facing a one-year suspension by the NFL after testing positive for cocaine. Without identifying its source, the newspaper reported that Lett appealed the suspension and that a hearing has already been held on the appeal. Lett, questioned after the Cowboys' 21-10 victory Thursday over the Washington Redskins, denied testing positive. "If the league messed up my test, then how could it be positive?" Lett asked. "I haven't failed any drug test." NFL spokesman Joe Browne, reached Thursday night by The Associated Press, declined comment, citing the league's policy of confidentiality in substance-abuse matters. Specifically, the appeal and the hearing focused on how the urine sample that tested positive for cocaine was handled. The Morning News reported the source as saying. The appeal contended that a procedural error by the NFL marred the test, the source said. If the chain of custody was broken, the results of the sample could be discarded. Cowboys owner Jerry Jones has denied any knowledge of the matter, and has said Lett denied having attended a hearing in New York. The Morning News reported that,

KC defense halts Lions' attack

Chiefs' Allen sets NFL record for rushing TDs

By HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer
PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Marcus Allen and the offense made headlines all week. That's life in the NFL. Then the defense won the game. That's life for the Kansas City Chiefs.

Oh, sure. Allen scored two touchdowns, setting an NFL record along the way. And the heady play of Rich Gannon buried any quarterback controversy.

Yet the Chiefs' gritty 28-24 Thanksgiving Day win over the Detroit Lions was made possible by their defense. It is becoming a common theme in Kansas City.

A nice spin move by Brett Perriman had turned an ordinary pass from Scott Mitchell into a 44-yard gain. Detroit had a first-and-goal at the Kansas City 3. But the Chiefs' defense stuffed Barry Sanders for a 1-yard loss, then forced Mitchell to lob two incompletions.

Broncos can clinch division with one win

By The Associated Press
Denver's John Elway, one of the NFL's masters at using the clock, has played the season like time is running out on him.

Having one of the best years of his 14 in the league, Elway has the opportunity to put his team into a better position for the NFL playoffs with a victory Sunday against the Seattle Seahawks.

The Broncos can not only win their division on Sunday, they also can earn a first-round bye in the playoffs and homefield advantage throughout the postseason.

"Our goal since summer camp was to win the AFC West," said Denver coach Mike Shanahan, whose Broncos have only lost a three-point decision to Kansas City in their 11-1 season so far. "We're going to take first things first. All I know is we play a team that beat us in our backyard last year, so we've got something to prove."

Last Dec. 10, Denver jumped out to a 20-0 lead, but Seattle rallied for 21 fourth-quarter points in a 31-27 win. The Broncos haven't lost at home since, posting six straight wins.

A victory on Sunday would give the Broncos the AFC West title. A win combined with a loss by Pittsburgh (which plays at Baltimore) would earn the Broncos a first-round bye. Denver also could earn a bye with a win if Buffalo and New England both lose. Finally, the Broncos would earn homefield advantage with a win and with losses by Buffalo and Pittsburgh.

In other games Sunday, it's Arizona at Minnesota, Buffalo at Indianapolis, Chicago at Green Bay, Cincinnati at Jacksonville, New York Giants at Philadelphia, Tampa Bay at Carolina, Houston at the New York Jets, Miami at Oakland, St. Louis at New Orleans, and New England at San Diego.

Monday night, San Francisco plays at Atlanta.

In Thursday's action, Kansas City beat Detroit 28-24 and Dallas turned back Washington 21-10.

With Elway leading the way, and Terrell Davis leading the NFL in rushing with 1,277 yards, the Broncos have already clinched a playoff spot. A 17-14 loss at Kansas City in the fourth week of the season is the only blemish on their record. The Broncos lead the NFL in total offense (390 yards per game), rushing (158) and run defense (78).

"I'm a big John Elway fan other than when we play them," said Seattle coach Dennis Erickson, whose team is 5-7. "He's just special. I've watched every game they've played this year, and he really is having an amazing year."

"He's doing the things he's always done and is making plays like he always has. There was a throw against Oakland when he's almost on his back and gets the ball to Shannon Sharpe. The emergence of their running game really helps him, too."

While the Broncos have a chance to immediately clear up their status in the standings, three other divisional races look like they might go down to the end before anything is decided.

Buffalo (9-3) has a one-game lead over New England (8-4) in the AFC East, San Francisco (9-3) the same over Carolina (8-4) in the NFC West, and Philadelphia (7-5) has a chance to tie both Dallas (8-5) and Washington (8-5) for first in the NFC East with a victory over the Giants on Sunday.

A group of turtles is called a "bale."

The Lions had to settle for Jason Hanson's 21-yard field goal. That gave Detroit a 24-21 lead, instead of a touchdown lead, with 8:41 remaining.

"When the defense came off the field, I told them they had just given us a chance to win this game," said Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer.

How right he was. The Chiefs' offense, with Gannon setting the tone, produced a drive fit for any coaching clinic. They went 76 yards in a smashmouth 15-play drive. When Allen dived in for the winning touchdown, there were only 46 seconds left.

"We played fairly well today, but in the end they ran the ball right down our throats," said Detroit safety Bennie Blades. "We just couldn't stop the run. That's the way Kansas City likes to play."

The win kept the Chiefs (9-4) within sight of the Denver Broncos while all but eliminating the Lions (5-8) from the playoff race.

Detroit needed one more miracle finish to take some heat off embattled coach Wayne Fontes. Instead, the Lions have lost six of their last seven, after starting the season 4-2.

The reason is no mystery.

"We need to play defense," Fontes said. "That's the bottom line. You look at the teams that win championships or just win. They have the quarterback and the running back and we have those."

"What makes those teams different is when their defenses go on the field they stop people."

Allen now has 112 rushing touchdowns, bettering the old mark of 110 he had shared with Walter Payton.

"The second touchdown was better, because we really needed the win after last week," said Allen, who finished with 73 yards on 15 carries. "Records are made to be broken, and there is already someone on my heels, so I feel like I'm just borrowing the record."

Allen got No. 111 at 11:11 of the first quarter. He helped set up the record-breaking score with a 35-yard run earlier in the drive, then followed a lead block by fullback Tony Richardson into the end zone.

As he headed to the sidelines, getting hugs and pats from teammates, Allen raised his right fist over his head.

"Our game plan was to run the ball and try to wear them down," Allen said.

The touchdown dropped Jim Brown to third on the NFL career list with 106 rushing TDs. Brown is followed by Emmitt Smith with 105 and John Riggins with 103.

Gannon, who was moved ahead of Steve Bono because of his mobility, scrambled for 45 of the 243 rushing yards for Kansas City. Gannon also completed 15 of 18 passes for 120 yards without an interception. He tossed a 17-yard scoring pass to Chris Penn and a 9-yard TD strike to Derrick Walker.

"It wasn't pretty, but we won," Gannon said. "I have to give a lot of credit to the offensive line, because they just pounded the Detroit defense. We ran the ball a ton, and they really came through."

The Chiefs' defense picked off three Detroit passes, including one by Sanders who was trying to lob a floater to Herman Moore in the end zone. Sanders gained 77 of Detroit's 81 rushing yards on 20 carries. He had a vintage 13-yard touchdown dash in the third quarter.

Mitchell completed 18 of 29 for 247 yards, with two interceptions. He tossed a 16-yard TD pass to Johnnie Morton, and Mike Wells fell on a Kansas City fumble in the end zone to give Detroit a 14-7 lead in the second quarter.

The Chiefs, who have won four of their last five games, now have defeated all four NFC Central teams they have played this season. Earlier, they knocked off Minnesota, Green Bay and Chicago.

Preseason NIT finals pits Knight vs. pupil

NEW YORK (AP) - College basketball is a coaches' sport. It was even before the days of star players leaving school early for the NBA.

Tonight's Preseason NIT championship game is a perfect example of how coaches dominate the game with their personalities.

Sixth-ranked Duke against No. 20 Indiana brings to mind the matchup of Mike Krzyzewski and Bob Knight.

They have a combined five national championships and are two of the most familiar of all the sideline figures. They also have a long relationship. Krzyzewski played for Knight at West Point from 1967-69 and served as his assistant at Indiana in the 1974-75 season.

Krzyzewski has won the last two of three matchups between the two. Indiana beat Duke in Midwest Regional semifinals in 1987 on the way to Knight's third national championship. Duke returned the favor in the national semifinals in 1992, when the Blue Devils repeated as national champions. The last meeting was early last season, in the semifinals of the Great Alaska Shootout.

Both say they don't like to coach against their friends. Both say the teams are what matters. Both had different reactions to their advancement to tonight's game.

"With all my former players and assistants, they are teams I really watch and like to see do real well and root for," Knight said.

He beat a former player and assistant on Wednesday night when Andrae Patterson's buzzer-beating jumper on an inbounds play gave the Hoosiers (4-0) a 74-73 victory over Evansville (3-1) and coach Jim Crews.

"I told Jimmy they should have won," Knight said after his team blew an eight-point lead with 2 1/2 minutes left only to pull it out on Patterson's basket. "There was nothing we did that was better than what they did."

Wuerffel leads Gators against 'Noles

By The Associated Press
Florida quarterback Danny Wuerffel has always played his best in the big games, and none get any bigger than Saturday's matchup against No. 2 Florida State.

The top-ranked Gators (10-0) will travel to Tallahassee to meet the hated Seminoles in a game that has been circled on college football fans' calendars since the preseason.

It's the 31st time No. 1 has played No. 2, with the No. 1 team winning 18 games with two ties.

"There's never been a bigger Florida State game than this one," FSU coach Bobby Bowden said. "For the first time in a long time, the Florida State-Florida game has national implications. People in Hawaii are going to be interested in it."

In other games involving ranked teams Saturday, it's No. 9 Tennessee at Vanderbilt, No. 10 Notre Dame at Southern California and No. 23 Miami at No. 16 Syracuse.

The Florida State-Florida game figures to come down to how well the Seminoles' defense does against Wuerffel, who has thrown for 30 TDs this season.

Wuerffel shredded the Seminoles last season, passing for 443 yards and four touchdowns in Florida's 35-24 victory.

"The best players show up in the biggest games," said Gators running back Terry Jackson. "And that's what kind of a player he is."

Against 16 ranked teams during his four years at Florida, Wuerffel has averaged 288 yards while totaling 44 touchdown passes with a rating of 158.6.

In 31 games against unranked teams, he has averaged 202 yards and thrown for 63 touchdowns.

Wuerffel's performance will affect both the national championship race and his own chances at winning the Heisman Trophy.

"I think Danny will be ready to play," said Florida coach Steve Spurrier. "He's played very well in these big games, and that's why we have a good record."

Florida State (10-0) will counter Wuerffel with its own offensive star, tailback Warrick Dunn, the school's career rushing leader. Dunn has 49 career TDs and has averaged more than 140 yards on offense in four games against Florida.

"Warrick Dunn is the key," said Gators cornerback Fred Weary. "Stop him and you can stop the offense."

Dunn needs five yards Saturday to reach the 1,000-yard mark for the third year - the only Seminole to do it more than once.

Holtz's ND-USC Finale, Robinson's Too?

Lou Holtz will be coaching his final regular-season game for Notre Dame on Saturday night in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Holtz announced on Nov. 19 that he was leaving Notre Dame after 11 seasons. A win over the Trojans would secure the Fighting Irish a berth in either the Fiesta or Orange bowls.

The Trojans are 0-12-1 against the Fighting Irish since winning 17-13 in 1972. USC was a solid favorite last year, but Notre Dame won 38-10 in South Bend, Ind.

This time, it's the Irish who are favored. Even without the rivalry factor, they figure to be motivated.

"The USC-Notre Dame game is very, very special," Holtz said. "We have trouble playing out there. It's a hard place to play."

A Southern Cal loss would put further pressure on the school to replace head coach John Robinson.

Less than 11 months after beating Northwestern in the Rose Bowl to cap a 9-2-1 season, the Trojans (5-6, 4-4 Pac-10) have underachieved this season and on the verge of just their third losing season in 35 years.

Robinson's job could be hanging on the outcome of Saturday's game.

"I want to go out and get a victory, not only for the Trojans, but for all the guys who didn't get a victory the last 13 years," said USC linebacker Sammy Knight. "We want to beat Notre Dame because they're Notre Dame. It would salvage a lot."

"For this man to be on the hot seat, I don't see how that could possibly be," Knight said.

Who's Beast of East?
At Syracuse, the Big East championship and a trip to the Orange Bowl is on the line for the Orangemen and Hurricanes.

"It's pretty big," said Syracuse quarterback Donovan McNabb. "It's the Big East championship, and it's something we've been trying to reach for all season. Once we beat Miami, then people will say that, yeah, we can compete with Miami each year. I think it's all about changing that with a win. It's something we have to do."

Syracuse (8-2, 5-0 Big East) has reeled off eight straight wins since opening the year with consecutive losses.

Nets blow lead as Warriors win

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) - One night after being embarrassed in Phoenix, New Jersey coach John Calipari was gratified his Nets at least made a game of it against Golden State.

"The one thing I wanted them to do is play hard and compete, and they did that," Calipari said after the Nets blew a fourth-quarter lead in a 124-118 loss to the Warriors Thursday night.

"I was worried about us," Calipari said, referring to the Nets' first win of the season Wednesday, 99-77 over the Nets. "But there were some good signs today, and I just wanted to win this one."

In the only other NBA game played Thursday, Reggie Miller led Indiana over a cold-shooting Sacramento 101-83.

Golden State wore down the Nets in the end, forcing three players to foul out as they won what turned out to be a free-throw shooting contest with 92 free throws attempted between the two teams in the game that lasted 2 hours, 33 minutes, 2-hour 33-minute game.

"We had a lot of guys who came up big when we needed it," Warrior coach Rick Adelman said. "When they had us down, we could've said, 'Here we go again,' but our guys didn't do that."

It took a bench player to give the Warriors a spark.

Ray Owses, an undrafted free agent from the University of Arizona, had 18 points and 11 rebounds in 25 minutes as the Warriors held off New Jersey for their second home victory of the season.

"Ray showed he's worthy of minutes, and he's going to get them," Adelman said. "His presence on the court is like he's been there for six years."

Owses was 8-for-11 from the field, helping Golden State improve to 4-10 overall and 2-6 at home. The Warriors have won 13 of their last 14 games against the Nets, who dropped to 2-9 overall and 0-5 on the road.

"I was a little out of sync and got winded pretty fast, but one of the things I can control is my shooting, which I do a lot of in practice," said Owses, who averaged 4.0 points and 11.3 minutes in his first eight games.

Latrell Sprewell made 17 of 19 free throws, including six in the last 1:19, and Joe Smith scored a season-high 30 points for the Warriors.

Trailing 114-113, Kendall Gill tried a spin move on Sprewell, who blocked Gill's shot with 1:21 left. Gill slapped at Sprewell and was called for his sixth foul and Sprewell made two free throws to put the Warriors up 116-113.

After a New Jersey turnover, Smith gave Golden State a 118-113 lead with 46 seconds remaining, and the Warriors closed it out at the foul line.

Sprewell's showing at the line helped overcome a 4-for-16 night from the field as he finished with 26 points. Rookie Kerry Kittles and Robert Pack scored 25 points each to lead the Nets, who had three players foul out.

Pacers 101, Kings 83

At Indianapolis, Miller scored 19 points as five Indiana players scored in double figures. Duane Ferrell added 15 points, Travis Best 12, Jalen Rose 10 and Dale Davis had 10 points and 12 rebounds for the Pacers, who stopped a three-game home losing streak.

Mitch Richmond led Sacramento with 18 points, but shot just 7-of-20 from the field. Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf added 12 points for the Kings, but made only 4 of 13 field goal attempts.

Indiana led by as much as 20 points in the fourth quarter.

Five questions with: Glenn Close

By MICHAEL WARREN
Associated Press Writer
Glenn Close gives goose bumps to puppy-lovers everywhere with her frightfully funny take on Cruella De Vil in Disney's live-action version of "101 Dalmatians."

Stalking pets in stiletto heels and roaring around England in a souped-up 1938 Panther de Ville roadster while swathed in endangered animal furs didn't exactly come naturally for Close, who prefers to live quietly in the suburbs with her daughter, Annie, and her fiancé, stage manager Steve Beers.

At 49, the award-winning stage and film actress has played so many larger-than-life characters that it's hard to believe she's only 5-foot-4. Her Norma Desmond made "Sunset Boulevard" a Broadway smash and grown men still cringe at the memory of her Alex Forrest character in the 1987 film "Fatal Attraction."

She has such a commanding presence that her next project is a perfect fit -- she plays the first woman vice president in a Harrison Ford thriller.

"It's a fascinating premise," she says. "The president and his family have been hijacked on Air Force One, and so everyone on the ground is engaged in their power plays. And of course I'm a woman on top of it."

Many actresses complain that roles for women have been limited to Hollywood clichés, weak-willed spouses or whores with hearts of gold. Not Close. Since her breakout role as Robin Williams' do-it-yourself mother in "The World According to Garp" in 1982, she's been playing strong, intelligent women with integrity.

"I don't know," Close demurs. "They all seemed like a good idea at the time. I don't know if anybody would believe me as a submissive ditz, but it would be fun to try!"

1. Any pets at home?
Close: Three dogs, two cats, about six fish, three mice, a horse and a pony. Our biggest dog is Chigger, and he's a mutt who arrived very abused and in terrible shape on the set of "Sarah, Plain and Tall" in Kansas. So he's a Kansas dog. Then we have Gabby, who is a rare breed, she's a Coton de Tulcar -- they're called the royal dogs of Madagascar. Then we have Belle, Annie's dog, and he's a fantastic Scottish border collie.

2. Can you compare Dalmatians to any of your co-stars? For instance, did Michael Douglas have a cold nose?
Close: No co-stars quite as hyper as a bouncing Dalmatian puppy. Maybe Robin. On a good day he can be very much like a bouncing Dalmatian. He still calls me Mom.

3. Boiled bunny ... skinned puppies. Is there a theme here?
Close: The thing about Alex is, she didn't know that you shouldn't BOIL them, you should WEAR them. That's what Cruella would have said to Alex.

4. Do you ever wear fur?
Close: No, I don't, actually. I was given a fur once but I never felt comfortable in it. It was a mink, a ranch mink.

4-1/2. How do you feel about PETA?
Close: Pita bread? Oh, People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals! I think it's great that we live in a country where people can believe in whatever they believe in. But I'm not a fanatic about that. I've lived with animals my whole life and I've raised my child surrounded by animals. I think everybody ought to learn from them. I think they teach you kindness and a lot about love. I'm a great animal fan.

5. Have you coveted anything in your life like Cruella covets the puppies?
Close: Peace and quiet is the only thing I really covet!

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) - Critics weren't kind to Franco Zeffirelli's new production of "Carmen" at the Metropolitan Opera. Now the star says she hates it too.

Waltraud Meier, the German mezzo who sings the title role, said she decided to speak out because, "I was never desperate like this in my whole life."

Designer-director Zeffirelli merely put the sets on stage and didn't follow up with direction to the soloists, Meier said Wednesday.

Critics complained that the stage was so crowded with extras and animals that Carmen and her suitors got lost in the shuffle.

"He crowded me up," she said. "In the beginning, when I entered, he had seven gypsies running into my way and hugging me. I said, 'No. They won't see me.'"

Zeffirelli, speaking to Newsday on Tuesday, said his job was to provide a spectacle. "This is not a show for a single singer, it's a show for the Met."

After two "Carmens" this week, Meier will return in March for three.

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) - A syndicated late-night TV talk show patterned after the hip-hop magazine Vibe will be launched next fall with a focus on urban music, stand-up comedy and newsmaker interviews.

Quincy Jones and David Salzman will be executive producers under the partnership with Columbia TriStar Television Distribution.

"There is a sameness to the late-night landscape creating an opportunity for a show that reaches out to young people, women, and particularly urban viewers," Jones said Wednesday.

346 Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the Book of Genesis intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times.

ABRAM IN EGYPT
PHARAOH HAS BEEN TOLD BY THE HIGH PRIEST THAT THE PLAGUE, WHICH THREATENS TO CHOKE OUT HIS LIFE, HAS HAPPENED BECAUSE HE ANGERED ABRAM'S GOD BY TAKING HIS WIFE FROM HIM, NOW...

YOU AND ALL YOUR HOUSE WILL SURELY DIE, IF YOU KEEP THIS WOMAN!

...THE TERRIFIED RULER LISTENS IN HORROR...

QUICKLY! SEND THE GUARDS AND BRING THIS MAN WHO HAS BETRAYED ME, IMMEDIATELY!

...AS THE LIGHT OF DAWN CREEPS OVER ABRAM'S TENTS...

...HE IS AROUSED BY ROUGH HANDS OUT OF HIS LONELY, RESTLESS SLEEP...

...AND NOW WITHOUT A WORD OF EXPLANATION, IS FORCED, ROUGHLY, AND RUDELY, BY PHARAOH'S GUARDS TO GO WITH THEM - WHERE HE DOES NOT EVEN KNOW...

Murray talks about noogies, elephants and aliens

By KATHLEEN SAMPEY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) -- It's hard to know what to expect from Bill Murray.

He opens the door to a hotel suite dressed in black slacks and an orange-print shirt so loud it is positively screaming.

One instinctively braces for a barrage of "noogies."

Instead, Murray extends a soft, mechanical handshake and offers a soda, politely inquiring just how much ice is desired.

Listening carefully to each question, he alternates between sober responses or comic riffs so droll it is hard to tell the difference.

Murray claims not to have yet seen his new movie, "Larger Than Life," in which he portrays a motivational speaker who inherits an elephant from the newly dead, circus-performer father he never knew about. He's also coming out in "Mars Attacks," Tim Burton's offbeat science fiction comedy about aliens who land in Arizona, and find an assortment of odd Earthlings.

A question about his Roman Catholic upbringing in Wilmette, Ill., sparks observations about the similarities between Pope John Paul II and Muhammad Ali.

"It's a big deal that the pope's sick," Murray declares. "He's got Parkinson's maybe, they say. Muhammad Ali and the pope, both with the same affliction. They're two of the most famous people on earth and they got it and they're going down. It's one thing to be a retired boxer. People don't expect you to work. But the pope's got a worldwide gig. What does he do?"

Murray is staring off into space now, and it's as if he's talking to himself.

"To have a guy who is really way up there, who can't hide -- it just makes it Greek. Very heroic. I don't know what all this illness means."

Suddenly self-conscious, Murray smiles.

"Am I really raving here?" he asks. "Because the world is raving so much."

His demeanor is almost meditative. He can be philosophical and funny without being obviously "on." It's a trait not unlike that of a man he lists as one of his comedic influences: Jack Benny.

"Only when I got older did I go, 'Holy cow!' that guy's moves are amazing," Murray, 45, says of the comedian whose show he watched regularly in his childhood.

As a player in Chicago's Second City comedy troupe in the early 1970s, Murray recalls constantly wondering who had it and who didn't in terms of comedy.

"Guys like Jackie Gleason. This guy had a lot of moves," he says with an air of amazement. "Here was a guy who was really a solid, strong actor and you saw how much comedy was about acting."

An original cast member of television's "Saturday Night Live," Murray seems to approach movie roles as that of a dramatic actor trapped in a comic's body: His steady gaze can either signal that an exasperated eye-roll is imminent or that a wounded introspection lurks beneath those frat-boy hijinks.

As if to underscore the point, Murray who is of Irish descent, leans forward and effects a whispering brogue to reveal what he considers his most Irish characteristic: "I tend to brood," he says with a nodding squint. "And I can hold a grudge. I also have an affinity for working people. Working people don't frighten me."

In fact, they inspire him. His father, Edward, was a lumber salesman, and the nine Murray children often competed for the privilege of making him laugh.

He insists that doing live television every week is much more work than making movies and admits to a certain longing to be back in the "creative hammock" that was SNL.

"I miss that job. When something really great goes on in the world, you think, 'We could do some funny stuff with that.'"

This Week in Entertainment

Entertainment highlights during the week of Dec 1-7:

40 years ago: Tommy Steele made his British concert debut at London's Finsbury Park Astoria to fan hysteria similar to Elvis Presley's in the United States.

And the Leonard Bernstein musical "Candide," based on Voltaire, opened on Broadway.

30 years ago: Andy Warhol's "Chelsea Girls" was the first underground film to make it to a midtown art house in New York City.

20 years ago: Pink Floyd made headlines when a film shoot for the cover of its "Animals" LP went disastrously wrong. A 40-foot-tall inflatable pig, moored over Battersea Power Station, broke loose from its mooring. The Civil Aviation Authority issued a warning to all pilots that a huge flying pig was on the loose. Sighted about 50 miles from London, the pig was never seen again.

10 years ago: Patti LaBelle was the first pop singer to be presented with the Philadelphia Art Alliance's Award of Merit. LaBelle grew up in Philadelphia, where she formed the Blue Belles, an all-girl group. And fans of a-ha, the Norwegian trio, stopped traffic on London's Oxford Street when they made a personal appearance at a record store.

Five years ago: Michael Jackson's "Dangerous" debuted in the No. 1 position on record charts worldwide. The much-ballyhooed album contained Jackson's first recordings since "Bad" in 1987. At the same time, Jackson's "Black or White" single was on top for a second week. The record's three-week ascent to No. 1 was the quickest since the Beatles' "Get Back" in 1969.

Spoken 10 years ago: "This is so special because I think I'm breaking the law. They don't usually honor rock 'n' roll girls." -- Patti LaBelle, the first pop singer to be presented with the Philadelphia Art Alliance's Award of Merit.

Spoken one year ago: "I could do something else, but show business is what I do on the court. So that'll be my next career." -- Chicago Bulls forward and unapologetic bad boy Dennis Rodman, who says his real nature is that of an entertainer.

Jeff Bridges had an early introduction to the Hollywood work ethic.

Like his older brother Beau, Jeff made his acting debut as a youngster in the TV series "Sea Hunt," starring dad, Lloyd Bridges.

Bridges says his father was always very supportive without being pushy. "It's great to share professions with your father because you can talk shop," says Bridges. "He knows all the excitations and problems about the job. And he's a great example, not only for myself, but everybody who works with him."

Bridges appeared with his father in "Tucker: The Man and His Dream" -- Lloyd played the senator who helps destroy the empire of an automaker, played by Jeff -- and in "Blown Away," the story of a mad bomber (Lloyd came close to stealing the picture as a crafty police old-timer).

"I remember as a kid sitting on his bed before my role in 'Sea Hunt,' and he would teach me the basics of acting: the importance of listening; don't just wait for the other guy's mouth to stop talking and then read your line; make it seem real, like it was happening for the first time."

Bridges, who was born on Dec. 4, 1949, starred with his brother in "The Fabulous Baker Boys," as duo pianists who hire Michelle Pfeiffer as their vocalist.

"My dad would be my first teacher, but Beau was also my mentor," Bridges said. "We had an interesting relationship growing up. He is eight years older than I am, so we didn't have that sibling competition; he was more like an uncle. He would teach me not only about acting, but about sports and athletics. He'd root for me and help me early in my career in getting agents."

Bridges was 20 years old when he made his third film, Peter Bogdanovich's Oscar-winning "The Last Picture Show." "It was the show that really put me on the map," says Bridges of the role that gave him an Academy Award nomination as supporting actor.

Still, he was not sure whether acting would be his life's work.

"I actually decided to pursue acting as a career after I had done about 10 films," he said. "I was still considering being a musician or a painter."

Bridges said working with Frederic March, Robert Ryan and Lee Marvin in "The Iceman Cometh," directed by John Frankenheimer, convinced him to become an actor. "It was a great experience. I said, 'Yeah, I can do this for the rest of my life.'"

Other film roles for Bridges: the robotic space visitor in "Starman," the radio talk-show host turned bum in "The Fisher King," the killer in "The Vanishing" (he buried Sandra Bullock alive), and the Western legend Wild Bill Hickok in "Wild Bill."

His current film is "The Mirror Has Two Faces," a romantic comedy directed by and starring Barbra Streisand. In it, Bridges plays a klutzy, boring math professor who thinks sex is overrated.

His philosophy about picking film roles:

"I like to mix them up. For my own enjoyment, it keeps the boredom level down. Also I think the audience, subconsciously or consciously, carries you with them in the baggage from the films you have done. I try to do different roles so you never know what this guy is going to do. Is he going to kill somebody or be a nice guy? You don't know."

Born during the week of Dec. 1-7:

Dec. 1: Director-actor Woody Allen, 61; singer Dianne Lennon with The Lennon Sisters, 57; comedian Richard Pryor, 56; musician John Densmore with rock group The Doors, 52; actress-singer Bette Midler, 51; singer Gilbert O'Sullivan, 50; actor Treat Williams, 45; actress Charlene Tilton ("Dallas"), 38; model-actress Carol Alt, 36.
