Opening weekend may reap dismal results for hunters

Local sportsmen say pheasant number down

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

Texas Parks and Wildlife Game Warden Chuck Cosper, patrolling Deaf Smith County last week, saw 41 cock pheasants in one field.

"I drove the rest of the day and never saw another pheasant," Cosper said.

Officially, he said, the season begins Saturday and runs through Dec. 29.

Pheasants will be harder to find this year. Yet, thousands of hunters will flock to the county in search of the colorful cock pheasants.

"We've had hunters come in from all over the United States to hunt pheasants. Fifteen years ago, we'd expect 10,000 hunters in this area."

"People were literally taking them out in pick-up loads," Jim Steiert of Quality Hunts in Hereford said.

"Between 1975 and 1985, this was a hot spot to hunt," Cosper said.

During this year's 16-day pheasant season, probably three thousand people will hunt the county, he said.

A late start to the season and hunters' schedule conflicts caused his books to be off, Steiert said.

He has booked 21 people to hunt on opening day, compared to 66 in recent years.

"We're still going to have some hunters. But, the hunters' success is not going to be real good," Cosper said.

The pheasant population, which has substantially declined in recent years, varies with weather and habitat conditions.

"From 1975 to 1985, they just boomed. We had more birds than we knew what to do with. Since 1985, there has been a pretty rapid decline," he said.

"I don't know if we're ever going to see populations like we had in the 1960s and 1970s," Steiert said.

Dry spring weather caused a decline in the pheasant populations.

"The weather controls their population.

"If no rain, the pheasants will nest, but the eggs won't hatch due to the lack of moisture," Cosper said.

The eggs usually hatch in early spring. Pheasants were hatched in July and August this year, Steiert said.

"A late hatch is better than no hatch," he said.

Most pheasants can be found in playa lake bottoms and Conservation Reserve Program land.

"Playas have the moisture which they need and the nesting cover which they need. For young birds, playas have the insects they need to start out on," Steiert said.

"CRP is a good habitat for pheasants, but, yet it's a good habitat for coyotes, skunks and wild house cats that are predators to the pheasants," Cosper said.

CRP country provides a lot of cover, he said, but there's lots of places for the birds to hide.

In Deaf Smith County, hunters can purchase their licenses at the county clerk's office in the courthouse.

The county clerk's office regular hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., weekdays. The office will be open 7 a.m. to 12 p.m. Dec. 14 and Dec. 21 for those hunters who have not purchased their licenses.

The fee is $6 for a senior citizen, $19 for an adult and $6 for those 17 and under. Out-of-state hunters can purchase a five-day license for $35.

Some county landowners are making their land available for lease. The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce fields hunters' inquiries about leases.

Hunters can expect to pay $100 per gun for a one-day civic hunt or $150 to $200 per gun for a one-day commercial hunt, Steiert said.

The bag limit is three cocks per day with a possession limit of six birds, Cosper said.

He will patrol the Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties to check for game violations.

To attract road side hunters, Cosper has set up some decoy pheasants.

"Don't shoot the decoy pheasant," Cosper said.

For any game violation, he said, fines range between $25 and $500.

Pheasant season brings hundreds of dollars to the local economy, with hunters shelling out money for hunting leases, supplies, lodging and meals.

The chamber estimates the average hunter spends between $150 and $200 per day in addition to the cost of hunting leases.

"To have good pheasant hunting, you have to work for it," Steiert said.

And he is prepared to work even harder to provide a quality hunt for his clients.

"It ought to be a good season as long as everyone has fun and does it in a safe way," Cosper said.

55 years later: Texas WWII veterans recall horrific Japanese attack on U.S. naval base

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas - T.D. Gafford, Jay Merrell, R.B. Bennett and Bill Wilson have a lot in common.

They are all residents of Honkins County. Each has entered the seventh decade of life but seems to possess a youthful spirit.

They are all U.S. Navy veterans, and three are members of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8560.

And all four survived the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

"It blew up like a big ball of fire and, boy, it looked like the rising sun," said Wilson, describing the destruction of a Japanese aircraft attacking the battleship Arizona that fateful morning of Dec. 7, 1941.

"It went shwooh!" he added, illustrating with a quick dive of his hand, "into the bay."

Wilson, then only a 20-year-old ship's cook attached to the submarine base, had a ringside seat watching the destruction of Battleship Row from the second deck of the Lanai Barracks.

He did more than watch, however. Wilson, along with some 600 other soldiers, grabbed weapons from the armory and after waiting a good 10 minutes for ammunition to arrive began to blast away.

"We were firing, man, we were firing them as fast as we could," he said, his voice quickening as he recalled the frenzy of the battle. "You couldn't hold on the barrel, it was so hot."

"We doubt if we got any of them with rifle fire."

The most chilling part of the Pearl Harbor experience, the 73-year-old said, was the aftermath - collecting the dead and wounded. He remembers a doctor examining the wounded men burned in the attacks and saying, "He's not going to make it, stack him over there."

"So we stacked them along the hallway, four deep, on both sides of the hallway, that had died," Wilson recalled. "And we'd go get more. The ones they could save they would try to save, but most of them couldn't be saved."

A total of 2,343 American officers and enlisted men were killed in the attack. Another 1,272 were counted among the wounded, and nearly a thousand men were missing following the ambush.

Bivins sets town hall meeting Monday at community center

A town hall meeting in Hereford Monday will provide State Senator Teel Bivins a forum to discuss prospects for work of the 75th Legislature, opening in January.

Senator Bivins, R-Amarillo, will meet constituents at the Hereford Community Center, beginning at 1 p.m. Monday.

During the meeting Monday, the senator will discuss issues, such as tax reform, redistricting, tort reform and economic development, that are expected to surface during the legislative session.

Bivins represents the 31st Senatorial District in the Texas Legislature. The district, including Hereford and Deaf Smith County, stretches from the Panhandle to the Permian Basin.

He is serving his third term in the Texas Senate and serves as chairman of the senate education committee. He also is a member of the finance and natural resources committees.

Struggling family seeks help with medical, utility expenses

Raising a teenager can be difficult under the best of circumstances. Add to the challenge the raising of 12- and 9-year-old grandchildren, and poor physical condition for both grandparents, and the challenge becomes truly daunting.

The father/grandfather is presently on unpaid medical leave from his job. He underwent heart surgery some time ago and is still recovering.

The mother/grandmother in this household is disabled, and draws some supplemental income from Social Security.

An older daughter of the couple -- their grandchild's mother -- is incarcerated in prison.

This couple is hopeful that Hereford and Deaf Smith County's holiday charity Christmas Stocking Fund can help them with some of their medical and utility bills this month.

CSF extends help not only with food and clothing for the community's less fortunate at the holiday season, but also provides for medical, pharmacy and utility help through vouchers issued by the charity.

Local Roundup

County posts agenda

Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court will receive reports on audits of the county's financial affairs at a regular meeting Monday, beginning at 9 a.m., in the county courthouse. Other items on the agenda are to designate holidays for 1997, appoint members to the child welfare board and approve bonds for public officials.

Child Welfare board to meet

The Deaf Smith County Child Welfare board will meet Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in Room 202 of the courthouse. Among agenda items are financial report, report from case workers and discussion of new or unfinished business that needs to be addressed.

Post office extends hours

According to Postmaster Charles Britten, the U.S. Post Office in Hereford will be open Saturdays, Dec. 14 and Dec. 21 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in order to assist its customers with last-minute Christmas mailing.

Outlook sunny

Weather for the weekend is expected to be mild and sunny. High temperature recorded Friday was 55 degrees with an overnight low of 24 degrees early Saturday morning. Saturday's high was expected to be between 50-55 degrees, with the mercury dipping to the mid-20s Saturday night. High Sunday could be in the low 60s.

REGIONAL

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Plutonium storage would be increased at the nation's only nuclear bomb plant under a federal plan that would also continue dismantling, weapons surveillance and high explosives work.

The U.S. Energy Department plan unveiled Friday was accompanied by a recommendation to begin cutting in half the Pantex nuclear weapons assembly and disassembly plant's work force of about 3,440 by the year 2003.

A copy of a report obtained by the Amarillo Globe-News showed the department's preferred alternative for Pantex operations includes increasing plutonium storage to 20,000 nuclear weapons cores, or pits.

The final environmental impact statement for the plant's continued operation and nuclear components' storage also includes implementing six projects to handle missions over the next 10 years.

However, Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary or her successor must make a final decision on any plan.

Federal officials have also identified about 350 positions as unnecessary in the future and is asking for applicants for a "voluntary separation" program.

"Because Pantex Plant is the only facility currently capable of performing the requirements to maintain, monitor and perform quality assurance on nuclear weapons, the shutdown of Pantex Plant within the near-term scope of this EIS is unreasonable," the report stated.

Pantex's position in the future weapons complex appears to be secure for now, said U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry, R-Amarillo.

He sponsored legislation passed by Congress to keep the DOE from shipping high-explosive weapons work to other sites.

The Energy Department one month ago announced that Pantex could suffer roughly 1,700 job losses once a realignment of the nation's nuclear weapons complex is complete.

Most job reductions would come from the assembly-disassembly mission, which is Pantex's largest.

STATE

HOUSTON (AP) - The U.S. Justice Department is sending poll watchers to Southeast Texas to monitor Tuesday's 9th Congressional District runoff following accusations of voter fraud and intimidation.

The department will post four attorneys and 24 other federal observers for the runoff between incumbent U.S. Rep. Steve Stockman and Democrat Nick Lampson.

Observers will also set up a toll-free hot line to take any complaints of voter intimidation or voting irregularities. Federal agents had stopped a get-out-the-vote drive that involved chances to win free turkeys or hams in exchange for votes.

"They will consult with local observers and stay in touch with the candidates and talk to the local sheriffs," said Keith Ellison, an attorney working with the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. "I've called around - people in Washington, federal observers - and nobody has any recollection of this happening before in Texas."

Attorney General Janet Reno has agreed with Democrats' request for an inquiry, said Gerald Hebert, an attorney for the congressional committee. The request was on behalf of Lampson, a former Jefferson County tax assessor.

Another finalist for the job being vacated by President Nils Hasselmo next summer was William Muse, president of Auburn University. He withdrew this week to accept a 5-year contract with his school. Ramaley said the narrowed field influenced her decision.

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Police who found an abandoned 1995 red Mustang forced their way into the home of the crusading crime reporter who owned it to find that he, his wife and their three children had been beaten to death in their beds.

The bodies of Fernando Balderas, his wife, Yolanda Figueroa, their 18-year-old daughter and two younger sons were discovered Thursday night in their home in a fashionable neighborhood of southern Mexico City.

They were all beaten to death with a blunt object - possibly with the base of a heavy statue - and appeared to have been dead more than 24 hours, police said.

During an afternoon news conference, Mexico City police denied earlier news reports that said the five had been killed with shots to the head.

Vengeance was being investigated as a possible motive.

Federal law could leave thousands of police, military personnel holding unlawful weaponry

By ARLENE LEVINSON
AP National Writer

Law officers and military personnel who have been convicted of domestic violence are breaking a new federal law every time they pick up a gun.

With federal, state and local law officers totaling about 700,000, and with 1.5 million Americans serving in the military, some criminal justice experts say the law breakers could number in the thousands.

The new law, tucked into a federal spending bill that went into effect Sept. 30, applies to anyone convicted of a misdemeanor for using or attempting to use physical force on an intimate partner or a family member. The penalty is up to 10 years in prison and up to $250,000 fine.

It gives no exemption to the military or law officers, for most of whom a gun is a job requirement. In most states, crimes of domestic violence are prosecuted as misdemeanors.

The law applies equally to private citizens and to FBI and Treasury agents, the Secret Service and U.S. marshals, jail guards and state troopers, housing police and campus security, and every local police officer from chiefs to cops on the beat.

Spot checks by The Associated Press found many law enforcement agencies still unaware of the law this week. This, despite an open letter to all local and state law enforcement officials on Nov. 26 from John Magaw, director of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Officers convicted of a domestic violence misdemeanor, Magaw advised, "must immediately dispose of all firearms and ammunition in their possession."

On Friday, the Justice Department told its agency chiefs that all their law enforcement employees with government-issued firearms must immediately return their weapons to their supervisor if they have a conviction.

All agents in the department, including FBI and Drug Enforcement Administration agents, will get a document they must sign within 10 days stating they were never convicted of a misdemeanor crime of domestic violence, said Gregory King, a department spokesman. Lying on that form will be a federal crime.

Few agencies, it seems, know how many of their employees have been found guilty of domestic violence misdemeanors.

"It isn't something you can just look up. Often, misdemeanor convictions are not listed on rap sheets," King said.

Air Force Maj. Monica Aloisio, a Defense Department spokesperson, said, "We are not in compliance with the law, and we know we're not in compliance with the law."

Some law enforcement agencies are simply hoping the guilty will come forward and turn in their weapons. In others, a few officers have already been disarmed.

In Denver, Officer Alex Woods Jr., convicted last year of assaulting his girlfriend, was one of two officers who surrendered their guns Monday.

Woods, 25, turned his three handguns and a shotgun over to his father, homicide Detective Alex Woods Sr., and was temporarily assigned to working with equipment.

The young officer didn't return a reporter's phone call. His father said victims will be fearful of reporting domestic violence when it might cost their spouses their jobs.

The younger Woods's former girlfriend, Mary Taylor, 28, said from her home in Aurora, Colo., she's glad the law was enacted.

ELVISE STAMBAUGH Dec. 7, 1996

Elvise Stambaugh, 98, of Hereford died Saturday in Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Services will be 2 p.m. Monday in First United Methodist Church with Dr. Tom Fuller, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Rest Lawn Memorial Park Cemetery by Gililand-Watson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Stambaugh was born Feb. 4, 1898, in Austin County. She married Troy D. Stambaugh on Jan. 4, 1922, in Ballinger. He preceded her in death in 1966.

She moved to Deaf Smith County in 1932 from Abernathy. She was a homemaker and associate member of First United Methodist Church.

Survivors include her daughter, Troyce Hanna of Hereford, two granddaughters and one great-granddaughter.

PEARL

insignia of Japan's Rising Sun emblazoned on their wings swept in from the sea exactly 55 years ago today. Their purpose was to strike down the heart of the United States' Pacific fleet.

Some 70 combat ships were moored at Pearl Harbor that day, including eight battleships.

The battleship California, like most of her sisters in the fleet, took a beating that morning, recalled Bennett, who was forced to jump overboard to escape the smoking hulk.

"They just started bombing, you know," said Bennett, now a vigorous 73 years old but then an 18-year-old apprentice seaman. He joined the Navy at age 17, only six months before the attack.

"Nobody expected nothing. They just started dropping bombs and torpedoes before anybody even knew anything."

"The ship's crew was very short," he added, estimating that 312 men from the California died that day. "Most of them was in town, on leave, liberty, you know, on the weekend."

Miraculously, the Saltillo man survived the aerial assault and his dip into the sea, which was aflame with burning oil.

Local newspaper accounts, however, didn't think he was so lucky. The Hopkins County Echo mistakenly listed Bennett as the first Hopkins County casualty of the war. Only a letter home a month later verified he was alive and well. The former cotton grower still has the yellowed news clippings telling of his demise and subsequent rebirth.

After Pearl Harbor, Bennett was eventually assigned to a cargo freighter that cruised the Alaskan and western coast of the United States. He spent most of the remainder of the war there, and was part of the fleet that eventually drove the Japanese out of the Aleutian Islands.

After a six-year tour of duty, the second class boatswain returned to the United States to travel and work.

"I've had a good life," Bennett reflected. "I appreciate it."

Merrell, who grew up with Bennett in Hopkins County, was also on the stricken California that day.

"You could really see the whites of their eyes," insisted Merrell, his own eyes glazing a bit as remembers locking gazes with the Japanese pilots.

Like his fellow shipmate, Merrell said he joined the Navy in June of that year, never with any thoughts that he would spend most of his six years of duty in a war.

"It didn't really cross my mind," said Merrell, 73.

"I just thought I joined the Navy so I could get paid $21 a month - big time (money)," he said, and laughed.

The veteran said there was nothing humorous about Dec. 7, especially when one "trigger happy guy" shot down a U.S. airplane later that night, mistaking it for an enemy aircraft.

"I was laying down on the deck of the California and I was so damn scared I couldn't keep my legs from jumping," he said, chuckling at the memory. "I was jumping all over the place."

Eventually, Merrell, like his old Sulphur Springs High School classmate Wilson, went on to East Texas State Teacher's College (now Texas A&M-Commerce) and became an instructor. He keeps busy these days working at his own used car business in Sulphur Springs.

Gafford, on the other hand, eventually made a 30-year career out of the military. He left for the Navy the same day he graduated from Miller Grove High School in 1941.

Stepmother is charged in 1961 death of 4-year-old girl

CONROE, Texas (AP) - The stepmother of a 4-year-old girl whose 1961 death was once attributed to pneumonia is now accused of kicking the child to death.

Mary Morgan, 56, was arrested by police in Splendora, Texas on an Illinois warrant Friday, one day after St. Clair County authorities examined Michele LeAnn Morgan's exhumed remains.

The investigation was re-opened after Michele's brother, who was 8 at the time of her death, claimed last year he saw his sister bounce "like a rag doll" as their stepmother stamped on her stomach Aug. 9, 1961. The girl later threw up blood clots, he said.

Mrs. Morgan was being held on $1 million bond on a first-degree murder charge in the Montgomery County, Texas, Jail, said Splendora Police Chief Bob Gonzalez. She has been living in West Columbia, Texas.

Gonzalez said he pulled over the van carrying Mrs. Morgan and her husband after being alerted by a Houston television news crew that had been following the couple since they left their home Friday morning.

West Columbia Police Chief Don Fairrel said officers had gone earlier Friday to arrest Mrs. Morgan on a murder warrant out of Illinois but that no one was home.

"We learned that they had left about 30 minutes before we got there with a news crew behind them," Fairrel said.

Gonzalez said a van from KTRK-TV in Houston had followed the Morgans for more than 40 miles from West Columbia.

Doug Tisdale of KTRK-TV said a reporter and cameraman from his station wanted to interview the couple.

"As we got there, we saw them loading up their car and pull out," Tisdale said, adding that the station's crew then decided to follow them.

Along the way, Tisdale said his station learned from KDNL-TV in St. Louis, which also was working on the story, that charges had been filed against Mrs. Morgan.

"(The reporter) saw a Splendora police department cop and he flags him down," Tisdale said.

Montgomery County Sheriff Guy Williams said Mrs. Morgan is not talking, except to say that she and her husband were on their way to Illinois to get legal advice in connection with the charges when they were stopped.

Williams said he was contacted by Illinois state police Friday afternoon and advised that they would immediately travel to Texas to take custody of Mrs. Morgan if she waived extradition.

Montgomery County District Attorney Dan Rice said he intended to cooperate in any way he can in the extradition process.

When Michele died in 1961, the family lived in a rural area near Mascoutah, Ill. Her father Billy Morgan, who was stationed at Scott Air Force Base at the time, has not been charged.

Military physicians originally ruled that Michele had been beaten to death. But medical records show that in the last year of her life, she had been at the Scott Air Force Base hospital at least two dozen times for injuries and unexplained illnesses.

An autopsy at the time she died found two old rib fractures, a brain hemorrhage and wounds on her head and thigh. For reasons no one has explained, however, the investigation into Michele's death went nowhere.

After a 15-year delay, a civilian coroner ruled in 1976 that she had died of pneumonia.

Last year, George Morgan, who is serving time for rape, began a genealogical search from his Jefferson City, Mo., prison cell. When he got a copy of his sister's death certificate, he said, he was surprised to see pneumonia listed as the cause.

He wrote a funeral home to say the certificate was wrong. That letter was turned over to St. Clair County Coroner Rick Stone's office, which opened an investigation.

Michele's remains were exhumed Wednesday and examined Thursday by a county pathologist. Stone said the examination "reconfirmed" his belief that Michele's death was a homicide.

Watchdog group opposes Bush's proposals to increase sales tax

By JUAN B. ELIZONDO Jr. Associated Press Writer AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. George W. Bush's ideas for replacing local property taxes as the main funding source for Texas schools would put too much of the tax burden on middle- and low-income families, according to a government watchdog group.

Common Cause of Texas announced Friday that it opposes Bush's proposals to increase the state sales tax, impose new business taxes or somehow combine the two. The group said that instead, the state should consider a state income tax and other measures to reduce tax burdens while providing school funding.

"The best defense against being overtaxed is to have everyone pay his or her fair share," said Common Cause Chairman Briscoe Swan.

Since last year, Bush has talked about the need to replace local property taxes as the main funding source for schools. Those taxes raise about $10 billion a year.

Bush's office has not announced a formal tax replacement plan and has set no deadline to do so, according to his office.

"The governor's preference for providing property tax relief is through simple, fair and consumption-based revenues, rather than taxing savings or property," said Bush spokesman Ray Sullivan. "A consumption tax, like a sales tax, gives consumers a choice based on how much they purchase rather than paying property tax, where they have no choice in the matter."

Bush and other state leaders have said a state income tax will not be considered.

"There is no way we're going to consider a state income tax," said Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland and chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Craddick said Common Cause is welcome to participate in the process, but no one knows what the final proposal will be and how it will affect Texans until its completed.

Swan said each of the ideas floated by the governor would hurt consumers, especially poorer Texans.

"Texas has the third-most regressive taxing system in the country," he said. "It's hard to believe that the legislative priority of the governor's office for the upcoming session is to raise sales taxes ... and lower property taxes that are relatively low and less regressive."

Common Cause suggested its own alternatives to reform the state's tax system, including:

- A state income tax.
- Lower sales and property taxes.
- A tax refund for any Texas family that pays more than 5 percent of its annual income toward property taxes.

- A state property tax instead of local property taxes.

"The alternatives we present ... would generate adequate support for public education, while easing the burden on heavily taxed middle- and low-income Texas families," Swan said.

Two Texans among heroes honored with annual award

PAWLING, N.Y. (AP) - A half-dozen unsung heroes, including two Texans who altered their lives to help young people, were honored Friday as winners of the 1996 America's Awards.

The awards, created in 1990 by minister and author Norman Vincent Peale, annually cite unappreciated Americans who personify the country's character and spirit. Each winner receives $1,000 from the Positive Thinking Foundation.

- Edie Lewis, 70, of Garland, Texas, who has allowed more than 200 young adults to turn their lives around by moving in with her over the last 20 years.

- Jim Newman, 89, of Azle, Texas, a widower and retired engineer who befriended a pair of mentally retarded youths in a nursing home. When the state moved one of them to a facility 320 miles away, Newman packed up and moved with him.

Cockleburr and Devil's Claw

By Georgia Tyler

The trappings of Christmas, i.e. greeting cards, presents, poinsettias, trips to grandma's house, etc., once were simple and sincere expressions of the season. Where did it all go?

Contrary to popular belief, the commercialization of Christmas is not the fault of retail business. People did it to themselves. In every ad placed in a newspaper or in the electronic media, shoppers are offered such a myriad of items that it's hard to resist.

In the olden days, when money was tight and choices were few, a stocking hung in just the right place would be full of fruit, nuts and small toys on Christmas morning.

Nowadays, the stocking is full of what they call "stuffers," often expensive googaws that might get lost under a tree piled to the ceiling.

My family could not provide very sumptuous gifts, but my sister and I never felt different from our friends. Chances were, they were in the same boat. Oh, I had one friend whose parents were retailers and they could buy things at a discount, so she always had more than I. But, it was not an issue between us.

As family affluence climbed and consumer items returned to shelves after World War II, competition for the dollar accelerated. Newspapers became only part of the advertising scheme of things. Television intruded on the living room and piqued the desires, especially of children.

When my children were young, they faithfully made their wish lists and I, just as faithfully, made the rounds. Usually, I spent an entire day scouting prices and availability before ever spending a penny.

My No. 1 (in age) daughter came along at nearly the same time as Barbie. For years, Barbie clothes, sisters, boyfriends, etc. were automatic at Christmas. Daughter No. 2 even followed in her sister's footsteps. Sibling rivalry made my shopping tense. Similar, but not identical, items were the order.

The younger girl was the first to acquire one of those dolls that spawned hundreds, if not thousands, of human-like dolls. Baby Two-Step had to be the worst ripoff I ever indulged a child. We could never get that thing to work.

Nowadays, I notice, there are dolls that eat, talk, etc., even to the point of soiling diapers. Having a couple granddaughters introduced me to that world.

But, back to Barbie. . . We had quite a collection of Barbie dolls and once, before moving, I had help packing up everything. My mother was a believer in traveling light. She convinced my girls that they were too old to play with Barbies and we put most of them in a garage sale.

Oh woe! How many times in the last 20-plus years have I been chastised for that episode! More than I can remember, or even want to remember.

Now, my granddaughters are Barbie fans. I don't know of any toy that has maintained popularity from generation to generation the way Barbie has. When I say "I don't know," that's what I mean. There may be others but I don't know what they are.

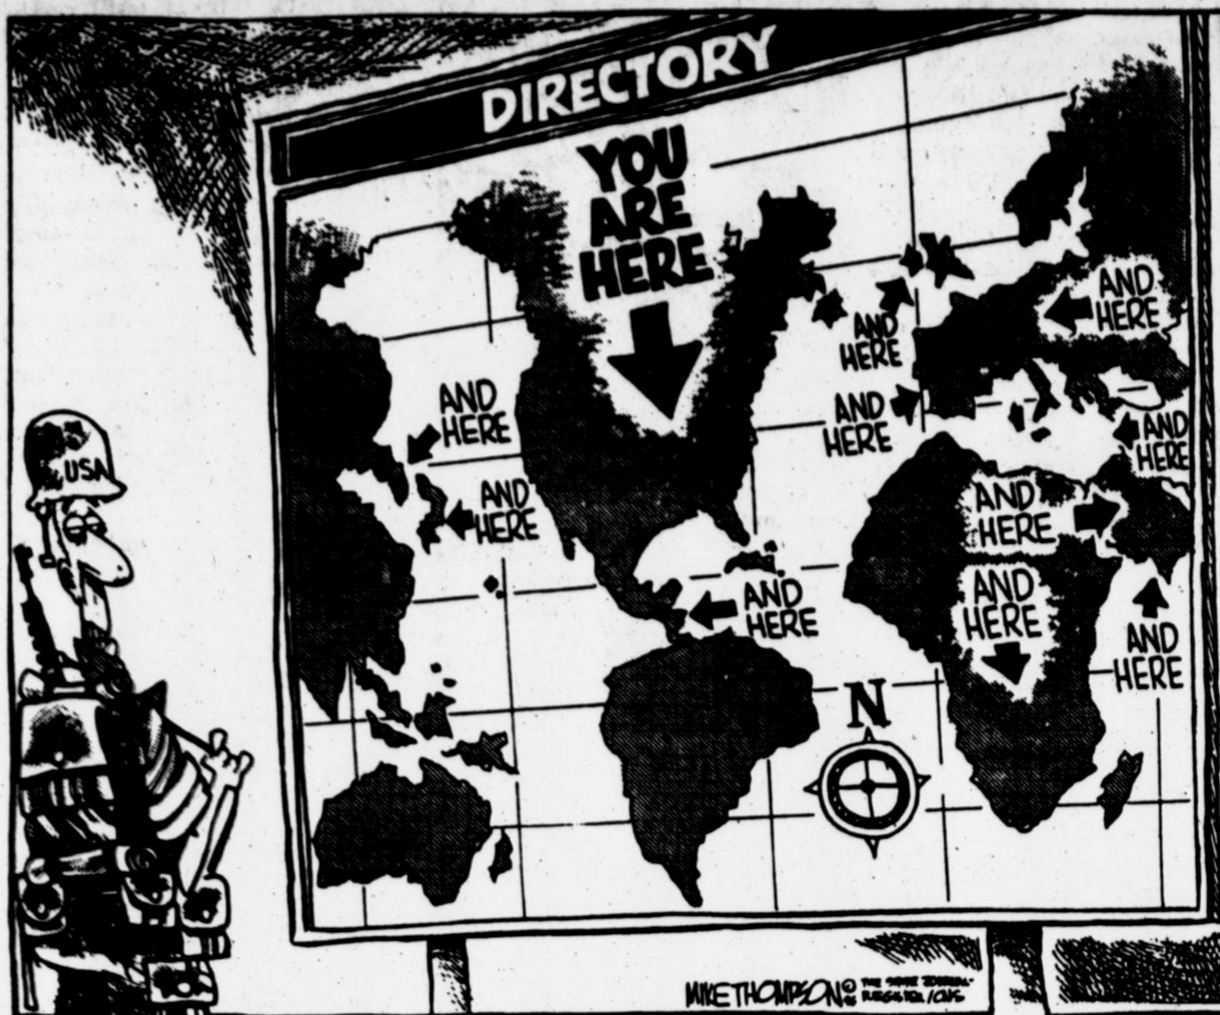

Toy departments in stores have shelf after shelf of Barbie dolls and all the accoutrements of the genre. For those who haven't inspected, just take my word for it. And, there are friends of Barbie, little sisters, boyfriends, clothes, cars and, now the ultimate in Barbie.

A lifelike Barbie, if you will. My three-year-old granddaughter is as susceptible as any little girl to advertising. She has told her mother that she wants a lifelike Barbie. Actually, what she said, as I recall, was "I want two, Mommy."

While making my rounds of toy departments, I spied the lifeliked doll and reported back to my daughter, especially on the cost of the item.

The price I saw was in the $130-range.

"I don't think she'll get two. She'll do well to get one," was the response.

Editorials from around the Nation

San Francisco Chronicle, on liquor advertising on radio and television: For a half century, parents did not need to worry about their children being bombarded with hard-liquor advertising from radio and television.

The distilled spirits industry voluntarily refrained from broadcast ads. All that changed on November 7, when the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States "updated" its advertising and marketing code to lift its restrictions on broadcast commercials.

The hard-liquor manufacturers had plenty of rationalizations about why their "good practices" code was outdated. But none of the explanations held up to scrutiny. . .

So far, the four major networks - ABC, NBC, CBS and Fox - have heeded the call to reject hard-liquor advertising. They should be commended for doing so. But that leaves about 1,000 local television stations and 10,000 radio stations to make their own decision about whether to take the ads.

We suggest all broadcasters voluntarily forgo this revenue source both as a community service and as a way to head off any attempt to legislate such a ban.

The hard-liquor industry just does not know when to say when. It needs the help.

The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle, on the state's injunction against California's Proposition 209:

Three weeks after nearly 55 percent of Californian voters - 4.7 million strong - approved getting rid of race and gender preferences in state hiring, contracting and education, a left-wing federal judge banned enforcement.

This is a perfect example of why voter turnout is hitting record lows. When one man can substitute his will for the voting majority, why shouldn't people conclude that voting is a waste of their time?

Chief U.S. District Judge Thelton Henderson, a Jimmy Carter appointee, is known as California's most liberal judge - which is why referendum foes went "shopping" for him. And, sure enough, Henderson issued a temporary order barring enforcement of Proposition 209, claiming the California Civil Rights Initiative might be discriminatory.

The CCRI was designed to reaffirm the 14th Amendment, guaranteeing equal protection under the law, and its language was borrowed from the 1964 Civil Rights Act, banning state favoritism for any group or individual. The first sentence reads, "The state shall not discriminate. . ."

Yet in the face of all that, Henderson held, (the) "Courts must look beyond the plain language of an enactment."

News & Record of Greensboro, N.C., on marijuana's medicinal value:

The question of whether marijuana has redeeming medicinal value has been debated since the plant first arrived in the United States in the 1840s. It's unlikely that the controversy will be resolved by moving the discussion to Capitol Hill. But the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings that began Monday are not just about marijuana's medical utility.

Regardless of the benefits, marijuana is also an illicit drug that many people, particularly teenagers, use for pleasure. The obvious worry is that legalization for medical use would open another avenue for abuse. . . Unfortunately, the opposing views on medicinal marijuana have led to conflicting state and federal laws. Only Congress can resolve this problem.

It is both a state and federal crime to possess marijuana. Yet an estimated 20,000 people have bought it through medical buying clubs in Los Angeles and San Francisco alone. Last month, voters in California and Arizona approved ballot initiatives that decriminalized therapeutic use of marijuana. Under the new California law, not only is medicinal use allowed, but people with a marijuana prescription will be allowed to grow the plant.

The Philadelphia Inquirer, on David Kessler resigning from Food and Drug Administration:

Wall Street delivered the strongest testimonial to David Kessler's leadership of the Food and Drug Administration: Tobacco stocks surged on the news that he's stepping down.

Investors were betting that his successor won't be so hard on tobacco's lethal product line. Anybody interested in public health - and that should be a universal concern - ought to insist that Dr. Kessler's successor be equally committed.

The Washington Post, on baseball's labor agreement:

Baseball, one of the great inventions of the 19th century, apparently will make it into the 21st without further interruption, thanks to the team owners' unexpected approval this week of a new labor agreement with the players. . .

This same agreement . . . was rejected just a few weeks ago by (the) . . . owners in an 18-12 vote that repudiated the long, hard work of their hired negotiator. . .

The agreement imposes a kind of temporary "tax" on teams that sign players to big, expensive contracts, but it sets no rigid salary cap overall for the players. It's questionable whether it will solve the problems of the "small-market" cities, which fear they can't keep up with salary demands, but it does pretty much ensure there will be no strike through the year 2000 season at the least. . .

Roswell (N.M.) Daily Record, on pope's planned visit to Cuba:

Many political analysts assert convincingly that John Paul II's moral authority as the first Polish pope, in convergence with other historical forces, was instrumental in undermining communism in Eastern Europe and, ultimately, in dismantling the Soviet Union.

Could the charismatic 76-year-old pontiff have a destabilizing effect on Fidel Castro's Cuba? That question looms especially large with the announcement of the pope's planned visit next year to Cuba, one of the last bastions of Marxism.

The pope's conditions are that he be permitted to travel freely throughout the country, meet with whomever he pleases and say whatever he wishes. This could cause the Cuban dictator considerable consternation, particularly in light of the pontiff's fierce anti-communism and his longstanding commitment to human rights. . .

The trip is suffused with irony because it pits the Jesuit-educated dictator against a pope whose firsthand knowledge of Marxism is only exceeded by his utter contempt for its morally bankrupt philosophy.

Tri-City Herald, Kennewick, Wash., on defeat of U.S. Rep. Bob Dorman: Bob Dorman is best known for his shrill attacks on President Clinton and his endless bragging about himself on talk radio.

He has earned his reputation as a firebrand extremist, attacking ethnic groups, trying to bully women, naming himself as a super patriot and labeling any who don't agree with him 100 percent as disloyal and unworthy Americans.

But 1996 was not a good year for Dorman. He wasn't even an afterthought for voters when he ran for the Republican nomination for president. Now he has lost his seat in Congress to - of all things - a woman.

Of course Dorman is crying voter fraud. He believes that because his Orange County, Calif., district now has a heavy share of Hispanic voters, there must have been illegal aliens who cast ballots. He offers zero evidence to support the accusation. Just bombast. . .

Texan does his part to preserve storied Longhorns

77-year-old rancher now tends herd of 250 head of cattle breed once near extinction

By CINDY HORSWELL
Houston Chronicle

DAYTON, Texas - Astride his faithful steed, 77-year-old Blackie Graves stood his ground as a Texas longhorn that could have easily skewered him like a shish kebab began to charge.

The cow was angry that her calf had been corralled for branding. She knocked Graves' horse a few steps backward with her muscled body - but without making the slightest contact with her horns.

Graves refused to budge further, and the cow backed down.

"She could have used those horns if she'd wanted. But this breed is about the gentlest you'll ever find," said Graves, who has seen a longhorn snag a horse off its back.

Graves recently marked his 42nd annual roundup since he began preserving the historic breed - a breed that by the 1920s had grown closer to extinction than the buffalo or whooping crane.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture officially calls the breed "Texas longhorn," because this is where it made its debut in this country before gaining fame on long trail drives.

He is a charter member of the Texas Longhorn Breeders Association of America, founded in 1964 to protect what has become a Texas symbol - ranking right up there with the bluebonnet, armadillo and oil.

The association in 1992 honored him as a pioneer for his devotion to safeguarding the breed.

Today, at 77, Graves continues to feel more comfortable seated in a saddle than an easy chair.

"I've seen a lot of my neighbors retire," he said, "but then they don't live a year. It's better to stay active."

He leaves home by 6 a.m. each day to tend the 250 longhorns - one of the largest herds in the area - that graze on his 4,000-acre spread in Liberty County about 40 miles east of Houston.

Others in Graves' position might have turned the reins over to a manager by now, but he still ropes and rides with the best of them, said Sam Wirick, a cowboy who helped corral cattle for the recent roundup.

Wirick and others call Graves by his nickname, Blackie, which is emblazoned in big white letters on the back of his black jacket.

"That name started as a joke in high school because I was white-headed. Only then it was blond, not gray," said Graves with a chuckle. He doffs his cowboy hat to smooth back his milk-white hair.

He brands the skittish young calves with the skill of an artist. He uses an iron hook - known as a "running iron" - instead of a stamp with a pre-formed logo that most ranchers use today.

Graves twists and turns the hook as he forms the curves and lines of a flawless "3h," identical to thousands of brands that have come before. The hook hisses and smokes as it is pressed against the calf's hide.

"It's just the way I've always done it," he said.

Most calves eventually submit to the branding after being clamped into a squeeze chute designed to inhibit movement. However, a few turn into crafty escape artists, slipping a leg between the rails or trying to scale the top of the pen.

A herd of longhorns is a colorful sight. They come in a variety of hues - black, white and red - and patterns - speckled, blotched and solid.

They are like Easter eggs, said V.R. Hylton of Wallisville, a history buff who filmed the roundup for the Sam Houston Regional Library as part of his documentation of the longhorn's heritage.

The cattle are known for being disease-resistant, for being able to survive harsh conditions and for their calving ease.

"Some breeds have calves that are so huge it takes a vet to assist in the delivery, and if they turn wrong you can lose both the mama and her calf," he said. "But usually longhorns have easy births, and they don't stop calving in 12 years like most breeds. They sometimes keep going for more than 20 years."

Hylton, who has been researching the breed for 20 years, says longhorns may be traced to "Jacob's cattle in the Bible." Herodotus, a 10th century historian, described "spotted cattle" being captured from Israel and taken to Assyria in 721 B.C., he said.

Historians say that the Moors brought longhorns from North Africa to Spain. Columbus brought the first herd from Spain to Santa Domingo in 1493, and longhorns grazed northward.

The cattle entered Texas in 1690 when 200 head were driven to a mission near Sabine Pass.

The longhorn had evolved into a hearty breed out of necessity, said Carolyn Hunter, editor of Texas Longhorn Trails magazine.

In order to reach the New World alive, the longhorns first had to survive with scant food and water aboard ship and then swim ashore. Later, only the fittest survived as many were loose in the wild after escaping from missions, being scattered by Indian raids, or being abandoned when ranches failed.

The durable breed nonetheless multiplied into the millions and became the backbone of the Texas trail drives that helped settle the West, Hunter said.

By the turn of the century, ranchers were moving to the beefier breeds being imported from England. Fences and plows also cut back on the cattle range. By the 1920s, only a few longhorns existed, she said.

The federal government came to the rescue in 1927. With a $3,000 appropriation, two forest rangers scoured the countryside and found about two dozen purebred longhorns, which were placed on a wildlife refuge in Oklahoma, Hylton said.

About the same time, six ranching families had some longhorn stock that they had protected and kept separate from other breeds.

The bloodlines of purebred longhorns that exist today are traced to the cattle from the refuge or to those owned by those six families.

Graves got most of his first longhorns from one of those families, headed by the late Milby Butler of League City.

"I'd only seen this breed in pictures and didn't know there were any left until I saw them on the Butler ranch," he recalled.

He has a longtime interest in horse breeding and had gone there to mate a prized Appaloosa mare with a stallion owned by Butler. He asked Butler if he would sell any of those longhorns, but the rancher refused.

However, he became friends with the family and the Butlers gave him his first longhorn bull, Sam.

Most of the Butler longhorn stock was auctioned after his death, with Graves acquiring more then.

Butler's only surviving child, G.I. Butler, 88, a retired U.S. Navy pilot, still lives in League City.

"I think Graves is the main breeder today who is championing the Butler line," he said recently. "It is the bloodline that is known for growing the longest horns."

In fact, for a while during the 1970s one of Graves' bulls, Classic, held a record for the longest horns - 62 inches from tip to tip.

Since then, that's been surpassed by a few animals - including one of Graves' own cows that boasted a 66-inch set when recently sold.

Yet none has replaced Classic in his heart. Today, the head of the huge white bull is mounted over Graves' fireplace.

"I had to put him down when he was 19 years old. He was so crippled and stiff," said Graves, displaying a postcard featuring a picture of Classic in his prime. "I couldn't shoot him myself. I was too attached - had to have someone else do it."

"Classic was so gentle that I'd open the door and he would come to me. He'd get into his trailer without prodding. He liked going places."

The only other bull that Graves had mounted was Sam, the 15th bull registered by the association.

Texas colleges, universities seeking funds from Legislature State's higher education institutions band together

By RENAE MERLE
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Maroon Aggies, burnt orange Longhorns and Red Raiders, along with other Texas colleges and universities, have set aside the rivalries that have often dominated their relationships.

Well, in one arena anyway: getting money from the state legislature. Instead of lobbying separately, and sometimes at cross-purposes, the institutions have banded together as the Texas Higher Education Coalition to ask the 1997 Legislature for a $925 million raise to fund their "Back to Basics" plan, which ultimately strives to increase the number of degrees awarded in Texas by 15,200 per year.

"We felt we could be successful if we had a common focus," said University of Texas System Chancellor William Cunningham.

The proposal, which would be implemented over four years, is almost 25 percent more than the $3.4 billion the schools were given in the 1996-1997 biennium.

Those are lofty goals considering that the portion of the state budget dedicated to higher education has steadily decreased for more than 20 years.

Higher education funding is projected to make up only 15.5 percent of the state's budget in 1997 compared to 55.77 percent in 1970. The amount of funding has leveled off at about $3 billion since 1994.

The coalition hopes that by presenting a united front they will stem the tide.

One of the coalition's major goals is to reach the national average in the number of bachelor degrees awarded. To do so, the coalition says, the schools need an estimated $530 million more to fit more freshman and sophomores into classes with tenured faculty and to intervene with freshman at risk of dropping out.

Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, chairman of the Senate Higher Education Committee, said he hopes the Legislature will be able to address the coalition's issues and fund the major ones. He said the united approach could prove valuable.

It's a "refreshing change. Sometimes they worked against each other," Bivins said. "When you have all of higher education working together it makes it easier for legislators, so you don't have to choose. Here you have everybody speaking with one voice, which is going to give them visibility and credibility."

Texas A&M System Chancellor Barry Thompson said recent studies have shown that as the population of the state continues to grow, it will become more uneducated.

"I think we have an eight- to ten-year window to do something," Thompson said.

He said it is important that more people graduate from college in order for Texas to grow economically and attract new businesses.

"To me, the important thing is to call attention to what is coming down the road for Texas," said Jerome Supple, president of Southwest Texas State University.

He said a "baby-boom echo" will begin next fall, with colleges facing larger freshman classes.

Rep. Robert Junell, D-San Angelo, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said while the coalition has presented a "worthy proposal," the state does not have the money.

"There's not that kind of surplus," Junell said. "There will be a moderate increase in funding, but not $900 million worth."

He said the state will have to deal with the effects of block grants for welfare for the first time in addition to covering the cost of 150,000 new students in the public schools at a projected cost of $1.2 billion.

"Texas just keeps growing and growing," said Junell, adding that public education is legislators' No. 1 priority.

Texas Tech University Chancellor John Montford, who chaired the Senate Finance Committee until last August, agreed that getting the money will be difficult.

"I don't know if we have a chance to get it all, probably not. But the worst thing you could do is nothing," he added.

Even if the coalition can persuade legislators its needs are essential, it faces another hurdle.

"The money is there but of course there will be a lot of demand for it," Supple said. "Everyone else needs it too."

Other parts of the proposal include a public school partnership to increase the number of people going to college and decrease the high school dropout rates. That part of the plan is estimated to cost $71.6 million.

For $100 million, the coalition pledges to strengthen the research base with multi-year fellowships and specialized equipment, provide matching funds to attract large federal grants and develop workforce skills programs.

There is also a $132 million proposal to increase funding for health-related institutions that the schools hope help them deal with inflation and enrollment growth, which have exceeded growth in funding.

The group also is concerned about student debt. Students receive only 60 percent of the financial aid they qualify for, the group said. The solution, the coalition concludes, is to increase state funding for financial aid 25 percent at a cost of $91.5 million.

As state funding for higher education has decreased, student have had to pick up more of the bill, Supple said.

"For a while that was OK, but I would hate for that to continue," he said.

prominently in the pedigrees of many longhorns in the marketplace today, Hunter said.

"I think Graves is one of the premier Butler breeders in the country," said J.B. Blake, a longhorn fancier from Dry Creek, La.

But when Graves first started raising longhorns in 1962, there weren't many around and there wasn't much interest in those that were, he said.

"Some ranchers made fun of me, saying things like 'You can't eat them horns,'" Graves recalled. "But I liked them because they were pretty and something different."

And his interest paid off. Some of his prized bulls have sold for more than $100,000 apiece, though the average price for a longhorn with good confirmation today runs between $2,000 to $3,000.

Today, ranchers cite a number of reasons for raising the Texas longhorn. Some just like the appeal of raising a reminder of the old West - not to mention a mascot of the University of Texas.

Others point to the value of the colorful hide for leather goods and the prices they get from folk who want to display a mounted head or horns. Some also cite increased markets for the beef, which is leaner than that from most breeds. Longhorns also are sought to breed hearty characteristics into beefier cattle.

The breed's personality is what Graves' wife, Lorene, loves most: "We can drive our pickup into a pasture and blow the horn and they come from all directions and cover us up while we feed them."

Mormon building proposal proves divisive in Boston

By ROSS DOMAN
Associated Press Writer
BELMONT, Mass. (AP) - The Mormon Church has big plans for this fancy Boston suburb, and that's why Julie Altschuler and other residents are so upset.

The church is planning a $30 million temple with six spires that would stand on a rock ledge 40 feet above a highway on one of the highest points in the area, making it visible from miles away.

"They have a right to build," Altschuler said. "But they can build an adequate temple that will not tower above my house, the equivalent of a 25-story building."

The proposed structure, at 94,000 square feet, is massive for a residential neighborhood. But what really ranks many residents is a church plan for a lighted, 139-foot-high steeple, one of the six spires.

The problem for the builders is getting the project off the ground.

Residents opposed to the plan and church officials have stood toe-to-toe for over a year at several zoning board meetings and more than 50 informal gatherings.

"This is a project that has divided the city," said Town Planning Coordinator Jeffrey Wheeler. "There are some who feel the church should be allowed to build because there are not enough churches in a time of moral decline, and others who believe in the zoning laws."

Also, this is New England, full of residents protective of its Norman Rockwell reputation of a white Congregationalist church in each town beneath a modest steeple in a quaint town square.

In Belmont, many people are alarmed at the prospect of the enormous tower.

"I don't think this church or this design is considerate of the neighbors," said John Forster, whose home is just south of the temple site. "It's going to dominate the top of the hill."

Teen-age drivers in fewer fatal car wrecks

ATLANTA (AP) - Teen-age drivers have been involved in fewer deadly wrecks over the past eight years, partly because of new laws that restrict their driving privileges, the government said.

Teen-age drivers were involved in 7,993 fatal crashes in 1995, down 24 percent from 10,415 in 1988, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported Thursday.

However, crashes are still the top killer of youths between 15 and 20 and the CDC urged parents to be the road police in states without the laws.

"People will be encouraged by this decline," said Ann Dellinger, a CDC epidemiologist, "but I don't want them to forget that teens are at a higher risk for these accidents than any other age."

That's evident in another statistic: Young drivers were involved in about 2 million nonfatal crashes in 1995 alone, the CDC said.

Young drivers between 15 and 20 make up 7 percent of all licensed drivers but 14 percent of drivers involved in deadly wrecks.

Teens are more apt to speed and to drive recklessly, have little experience behind the wheel and, as they grow older, have more access to alcohol, Ms. Dellinger said.

for the Belmont congregation, said he believes neighbors would be opposed to any structure.

"We have 8.9 acres of undeveloped woodland surrounded by very, very, expensive homes," he said. "They plainly don't want anything built."

The Boston Temple would serve the estimated 5,000 Mormons in Boston as well as the roughly 40,000 in New England.

For area worshippers, the nearest temples are in Washington, D.C., and Toronto. There are 11,300 Mormon meetinghouses worldwide, but only 50 temples. The church, headquartered in Salt Lake City, has about 9 million members worldwide, many of whom are in Utah and other Western states.

Temples are set aside as holier buildings, used for sacrosanct events such as marriages, and closed even to some Mormons. Admission is allowed only to "pure" members who tithe and abstain from alcohol, tobacco and caffeine.

Schools and religious buildings are largely exempt from zoning regulations in Massachusetts. The battle lines in Belmont are drawn at the height of the planned temple's steeples, which do not comply with town bylaws because they are all taller than 72 feet. The six planned spires range from 76 to 139 feet.

Bennett is seeking a special permit to allow the church to build anyway. He vowed the temple will be built, even if it takes 50 years.

Belmont's Zoning Board of Appeals will debate again on Monday whether to grant the Mormons a special permit.

If the zoning board decides to not grant approval, the avenue of appeals is infinite, said lawyer Arthur Kreiger, hired by Altschuler and other neighbors to fight the temple.

"This could, conceivably, go on and on," he said.

Rediscovered Twain letters show writer maintained humor to end

By BEN DOBBIN
Associated Press Writer
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - In letters rediscovered in an attic, Mark Twain displays his trademark pithy humor and an amiable exuberance that some biographers believed had deserted him near the end of his life.

The correspondence contradicts the typical portrayal of the celebrated author as being a bitter, cynical and disillusioned old man in the years before his death in April 1910, a Twain scholar said Wednesday.

Only a month earlier, in a letter from Bermuda to a close family friend, Maude Littleton, Twain describes a secluded, easygoing vacation interspersed with sailing, a daily drive and band concerts.

"Time drifts along here at about the gait I like," he wrote. "There are no excitements and I don't want any. ... I think I could live here always and be contented."

Twain also jokes about a photograph Mrs. Littleton had sent him, chiding her for her hat. "I won't go so far as to say it is the damndest hat I ever saw, I will say it is the derndest," he wrote.

He ends with the words, "You go to heaven if you want to - I'd rather stay here."

Four letters dated between 1908 and 1910, a photograph of Twain and a "Happy New Year" greeting he sent to Mrs. Littleton and her husband, Martin, a noted orator, were given to Elmira College this summer.

They were found some years earlier in the attic at the Littletons' home in Plandome on Long Island by Richard Brown and his wife, Elmira College graduate Barbara Ericson Brown. Brown's parents had bought the Littleton estate.

"These letters were written by an engaging and vital Mark Twain, not by the grim, cynical old man so often portrayed by some of his biographers," said Gretchen Sharlow, director of the college's Center for Mark Twain Studies.

"They will make a valuable contribution to the work of scholars who are re-evaluating the last years of Twain's life."

In a December 1908 letter, Twain thanks the Littletons for their gift of tobacco and whiskey. "I had just reformed, but it is not too late to rearrange that."

Twain is buried in Elmira, a western New York town where his family summered for more than 20 years.

Twain, whose real name was Samuel Clemens, wrote some of his best novels at his Elmira home, including "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" and "The Prince and the Pauper."

Swiss government made profits, memo reports

NEW YORK (AP) - The Swiss government made "considerable profit" after World War II by providing Germans with phony documents needed for them to flee to Argentina, according to a U.S. military memo from 1948.

The temporary residence document necessary to board a flight out of Switzerland was available for 200,000 francs, said the three-paragraph memo found in the National Archives by the staff of Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y. That sum was worth about $45,000 at the time.

"There may be a possibility (that) Swiss government officials could have helped prepare false travel documents," D'Amato said Thursday.

A day earlier, D'Amato released a 1946 U.S. memo that said high-level Nazi officials, including air force chief Hermann Goering and propaganda minister Joseph Goebbels, may have used Swiss businessmen with diplomatic clearance to smuggle $20 million to Argentina.

D'Amato wants the return of assets taken from Holocaust victims and hidden in Swiss bank accounts. The World Jewish Congress has estimated that $7 billion in assets could be found.

Swiss officials have promised an independent investigation of allegations involving the country's role with the Nazis will be conducted next year. The deputy head of the Swiss government's task force on the assets of Nazi victims, Lukas Beglinger, accused D'Amato of continuing a publicity campaign.

He said D'Amato's remarks are based on sources of questionable historical worth; he also said the senator has not responded to a request to share documents with Swiss investigators.

"Mr. D'Amato is not very cooperative, which reinforces the suspicion that he has is pursuing tactical objectives in making his revelations," Beglinger said Friday.

The Feb. 4, 1948, memo was sent to unidentified U.S. embassy officials in the Netherlands by Maj. Tom Carruth, an assistant military attache.

"It would seem ... that too many questions were not asked German nationals in Switzerland ... provided these German nationals wished to recede to another country, preferably Argentina," the memo said.

The Germans were then able to fly to Argentina via KLM, the Dutch airline.

A confidential informer with connections in the Swiss and Dutch governments "told me frankly that the Swiss government was not only anxious to get rid of German nationals ... but further that they made a considerable profit in getting rid of them," the memo said.

KLM spokesman Hugo Baas confirmed that KLM planes flew between Europe and South America after the war

Herd girls stifle No. 5 Plainview

The Lady Whiteface basketball team knocked off fifth-ranked Plainview Friday to reach the championship game of the Concho River Classic in San Angelo.

Hereford, ranked 15th in Class 4A in the preseason by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches, used stingy defense to overcome a struggling offense against the No. 5 Lady Bulldogs.

The game was tied 21-21 with six minutes left in the third quarter, but Hereford limited Plainview to only three more points in the quarter. Hereford went on to a 47-37 victory over the team from District 2-4A.

"Defense is carrying us right now," Hereford coach Eddie Fortenberry said. "Our shooting's not what it should be, but we're playing through it with great defense. The kids are really working hard at it.

It was a confidence builder for Hereford (7-3), which was to face San Angelo Central in the championship game Saturday afternoon.

"I'd bet it's the first time Hereford's beat a ranked team in a while," he added.

The Lady Whitefaces could make it two in a row with an infinitely tougher win Tuesday. They open District 1-4A play at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday against Canyon (11-0), which is ranked No. 1 in Class 4A and as high as No. 5 in national rankings. The Lady Eagles won the Class 4A state championship last year with an undefeated season.

Hereford also defeated Killeen

Ellison, 50-28, in an earlier game Friday. Fortenberry that in both games Friday, Hereford made up for offensive woes with defensive effort.

The Hereford boys' team continued to struggle in the Plainview Lions Classic, falling Friday to an Estacado team the Herd had beaten by 28 points a week and a half ago. Estacado got its revenge Friday with a 66-50 win.

Hereford (3-8) led 17-14 after one quarter and 29-22 at halftime, but things went sour in the second half.

"We went into a scoring drought midway through the third quarter and never recovered out of it," Herd coach Randy Dean said. "Estacado played real physical with us in the second half and that took us out of our game."

Estacado won it at the line, hitting 22-of-29 free throws in the second half, including 15-of-21 in the fourth quarter.

Hereford A teams find way into championship games

Hereford's seventh, eighth and ninth grade A teams all won semifinal games Friday in the tournaments being held in Hereford, moving them into championship games which were to be played Saturday.

The Hereford ninth grade A team had the toughest challenge. Hereford was tied with Canyon A at 31-31 for much of the fourth quarter, but Canyon failed to score on several trips down the floor.

Hereford hits its free throws, and that was a good thing, because it didn't hit a field goal in the fourth quarter. From the line, Hereford hit 11-of-16.

Nick Whatley led the team with 12 points, and L.J. Vallejo added 10.

In the finals, they were to face Dimmitt, a 54-38 winner over Valleyview A.

The Hereford eighth grade A team had no challenge. In an unfortunate way the bracket came out, Valleyview's B team was forced to play Hereford's high-powered A team. Valleyview didn't score in the first quarter and eventually lost 88-15.

Slade Hodges outscored Valleyview by himself, with 19 points. Tim Dudley added 14 and Cody Hodges scored 13. Israel Martinez and Kyle Artho each chipped in nine points, and Joe Mendoza added eight.

They were to play Valleyview's A team, a 51-45 winner over Dimmitt.

In the seventh grade bracket, Hereford's A team got by Dimmitt, 45-32. Geoffrey Marquez led Hereford with 14 points, and Freddy Garcia added eight.

The Hereford seventh-graders were to play Canyon's A team, which beat Westover Park A, 36-21.

Two Hereford B teams played in losers' bracket games Friday.

The eighth grade B team drubbed Canyon's B team 48-17 behind a balanced scoring attack. Only Eddie Ruiz, with 10 points, reached double figures.

The seventh grade B team lost to Plainview, 68-17. Daniel Stringham was Hereford's leading scorer with six points.

Architect of modern NFL passes away

By BERNIE WILSON
AP Sports Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) - Pete Rozelle, who turned the NFL into a Sunday obsession and a Monday night showcase, has died at age 70.

The father of the Super Bowl, Rozelle changed the nation's leisure habits and, through TV, imprinted pro football on the nation's lifestyle. In leading the National Football League for 29 years, he created a legacy as perhaps the greatest commissioner in sports history.

"It's the end of a great era," Baltimore Ravens owner Art Modell said. "What we enjoy every Sunday can be attributed to Pete's vision and talents."

Rozelle died of brain cancer at his home in Rancho Santa Fe, a suburb of San Diego, Friday afternoon. He had undergone surgery for brain cancer in December 1993.

The league has recommended a moment of silence at Sunday's games. There will also be a special tribute to Rozelle next month at the Super Bowl in New Orleans.

"No one was more responsible for the success of the National Football League and public passion of the NFL game than Pete Rozelle," said commissioner Paul Tagliabue, who succeeded Rozelle.

"Though he would credit others, Pete was the driving force in changing the face of professional sports in this country. His vision, integrity and commitment made him the ideal leader during a period of tremendous growth for the NFL."

Baseball was king in 1960 when Rozelle, a one-time public relations man, was picked as a compromise choice by NFL owners to replace Bert Bell, who had died in office. By the time Rozelle retired unexpectedly in 1989, he had guided it to the preeminent position it still holds today - the nation's No. 1 spectator sport.

"I think the National Football League in 1960, when he took over as commissioner, 33 years old, was facing one of the most energetic, volatile periods that we've ever seen in sports - in television and all the other things," said Tex Schramm, the former Dallas Cowboys president.

"He was able to bring a young man's vision, a young man's background into the role and produce a league that surpassed major league baseball and everything else to become the greatest entertainment

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Basketball Writer
To put it in Hollywood terms, the sequel didn't live up to its advance billing. The leading man did his part, but the absence of his co-stars left the plot too thin.

A dud? No.
A four-star thriller? Hardly.
It was something in between, a show the critics would call a ho-hummer.

Shaquille O'Neal faced his injury-riddled former team Friday night and led the Los Angeles Lakers to a 92-81 home victory over the Orlando Magic.

But the matchup lost much of its luster due to the sorry state of Orlando's health.

O'Neal hugged Horace Grant and chatted with Brian Shaw, but he couldn't fraternize with Penny Hardaway, Nick Anderson or Dennis Scott - at least not on the court.

Grant was the only member of last season's starting five to be in Orlando's lineup for the opening tap. Grant and O'Neal joked and hugged during warmups, and O'Neal had a few friendly words with Shaw in the center circle right before the game began.

After that, the injured Hardaway, Anderson and Scott sat side-by-side on Orlando's bench and watched a mostly dull game that turned the Lakers' way late in the third quarter.

In other games, Utah beat Minnesota 106-95, Detroit beat Cleveland 93-81, New York beat Miami 103-85, Phoenix beat Sacramento 101-95, Vancouver beat San Antonio 105-89, Indiana beat Golden State 86-71, Portland beat Charlotte 97-93 and New Jersey beat Boston 110-108 in overtime.

O'Neal had 25 points, 18 rebounds and a career-high-tying five steals. He also went 7-of-10 from the free-throw line before leaving with 42 seconds remaining and the outcome already assured.

"You can't keep the big guy down," Orlando's Horace Grant said. "He's going to get his shots and he's going to block some shots, but we can take a moral victory from this because we didn't have all our guys and we still hung tough."

Nicks 103, Heat 85
At Miami, the Knicks avenged a 24-point home loss from Tuesday night with perhaps their most inspired game of the young season.

"They kicked our butts royally in New York, and we came out and kicked their butts tonight," said Patrick Ewing, who had 26 points and seven rebounds. "The other night they did anything they wanted. Tonight we did a good job stopping them."

John Starks had 21 points, Allan Houston added 19 and Larry Johnson had 13 before being ejected for his second technical foul.

Suns 101, Kings 95
At Sacramento, the Suns won on the road for the first time this season.

Danny Manning had 19 points, Michael Finley and Wesley Person scored 13 points each and Kevin Johnson had 12 assists for Phoenix, whose bench outscored the Kings' reserves 51-22.

Grizzlies 105, Spurs 89
At San Antonio, the Grizzlies also got their first road win of the season.

Bryant Reeves scored 29 points and Vancouver, which snapped a five-game losing streak, had its highest point total of the season and shot 54 percent from the field, easily eclipsing its season average of 41 percent.

"This was the best win in franchise history," Reeves gushed.

Pacers 86, Warriors 71

At San Jose, Calif., the Pacers won their fifth straight, including three on the road, behind 16 points from Reggie Miller and 12 each from Dale Davis and Antonio Davis.

The Warriors were 0-for-15 from 3-point range, tying Houston's NBA record set in 1991.

Nets 110, Celtics 108, OT

At Boston, Kerry Kittles scored a season-high 30 points and Shawn Bradley blocked two shots in the final 36 seconds of overtime.

Jayson Williams added 23 points and 19 rebounds, Robert Pack had 18 points and 12 assists and Bradley scored 10 points with 12 rebounds.

Los Angeles began its comeback from an 11-point second-quarter deficit in the third period. Nick Van Exel's basket gave the Lakers their first lead, 56-54, since midway through the opening quarter.

That sparked an 11-0 run that gave the Lakers a 65-54 advantage heading into the final 12 minutes. Orlando never got closer than six points in the final period.

"Shaqu inspired everybody to play hard," Van Exel said. "He wanted to win this game real badly because it was against his old team. Guys really took it to heart."

Jazz 106, Timberwolves 95

At Salt Lake City, the Jazz moved within one victory of tying the longest winning streak in franchise history.

Karl Malone led all scorers with 34 points, 14 in the fourth quarter, but he played 43 minutes on the first night of a back-to-back, home-away set.

Jeff Hornacek added 23 points and John Stockton handed out 16 assists as the Jazz won their 13th in a row. They'll try to tie the team record of 14 straight victories tonight at Denver.

Pistons 93, Cavaliers 81

At Auburn Hills, Mich., Terry Mills was 6-for-6 on 3-pointers, giving him 12 made 3-pointers in a row - one shy of Brent Price's NBA record.

"My confidence is at an all-time high," Mills said. "I had a four-point play early in the game, and that's when I knew it might be another one of those nights."

Mills finished with 23 points and nine assists, and Detroit also got 19 points from Otis Thorpe and 14 points and eight assists from Grant Hill. The Pistons finished the game with a 19-7 run to improve to 14-3.

Trail Blazers 97, Hornets 93
At Portland, Arvydas Sabonis scored 15 of his team-high 22 points in the second half as the Trail Blazers held off a late rally.

Vlade Divac led the Hornets with a season-high 29 points.

Tarheels' Zwickler dominates USC

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - Scoring a grand total of 27 points in four games was not how Serge Zwickler planned to begin his senior season at North Carolina.

"I'd be lying if I told you it didn't bother me a little bit," Zwickler said Friday night after he snapped out of his slump in the opening game of the Harris Teeter-Pepsi Challenge.

The 7-foot-3, 273-pound Zwickler had career highs of 22 points and 20 rebounds to lead No. 14 North Carolina to a 99-84 victory over Southern Cal.

His outburst set up the Tar Heels (4-1) to go after their sixth consecutive tournament championship tonight against South Carolina, a 75-60 winner over North Carolina Charlotte.

In the only other game of the night involving a ranked team, No. 9 Iowa State beat Siena 64-54.

Zwickler, the lone senior on a starting lineup that features one freshman and three sophomores, made his biggest impact on the offensive end, where he had 11 rebounds and 16 points off second chances.

Zwickler's performance came on a night when the Trojans (2-1) spent much of the time double- and triple-teaming North Carolina sophomore Antawn Jamison, who wound up with 26 points and 12 rebounds.

"Serge was just right there in position all night. Just incredible," Jamison said. "He just played relaxed, like there was no pressure and he was just having fun. That's what we need of Serge all year."

Stais Boseman led Southern Cal with a career-high 26 points. The Trojans, 0-5 against North Carolina, also got a career-high 24 points from Jaha Wilson.

Zwickler and the 6-8 Jamison helped North Carolina to a 52-37 rebounding advantage.

"We just didn't have the bodies to match up with them," Southern Cal coach Henry Bibby said.

Zwickler, whose previous career bests were 19 points and 12 rebounds, had 16 points and 11 boards by halftime. All eight of his baskets were from 10 feet or closer, and six came after Zwickler had gotten an offensive rebound.

"I hadn't been playing up to the level I'm capable of reaching," Zwickler said. "It was important for me to come out tonight and show I can contribute to this team."

In Friday night's second game, South Carolina's Larry Davis and BJ McKie fueled a 15-0 run in the second half that sent the Gamecocks to victory.

McKie finished with 24 points and Davis had 18 as South Carolina won its fourth in a row after a season-opening loss to Virginia in the Maui Invitational.

"I thought our second half was easily the best half of the year so far," South Carolina coach Eddie Fogler said. "We've been lackluster, we've been un-enthusiased, we've played with a lack of emotion."

DeMarco Johnson led North Carolina Charlotte (2-2) with 20 points and 16 rebounds.

The outcome set up a championship game featuring Fogler against his former coach and mentor, Dean Smith. Fogler, a 1970 graduate of North Carolina who later served as an assistant under Smith, said his ties to the Tar Heels won't necessarily give him an advantage tonight.

"They're on TV so much," Fogler said. "Everybody kind of knows what they can do."

No. 9 Iowa State 64, Siena 54
Iowa State overcame the absence of leading scorer Dedic Willoughby to win its Cyclone Challenge in Ames, Iowa.

Willoughby, averaging 22 points a game, sat out because of a strained hamstring sustained in practice on Wednesday.

Kelvin Cato and Shawn Bankhead led Iowa State (4-0) with 10 points. Brad Johnson, who started in Willoughby's place, added nine.

Siena (2-2) shot only 28.6 percent in the first half and 33 percent for the game.

force that we know today," he said.

Rozelle built the NFL by linking the game with television. He created the Super Bowl, which blossomed into America's most-watched sport event, and Monday Night Football, now the nation's longest-running sports series.

The Monday night game, and Rozelle's idea to televise every game, created "football widows" throughout the nation two days a week.

Rozelle helped the NFL survive bidding wars with three rival leagues and three player strikes, shepherding it from 12 teams to 28.

"He will always be the gold standard against which sports commissioners are measured," Tagliabue said.

"Now that I look back, Pete had always seemed to have destiny on his shoulder," said Schramm, who as general manager of the Los Angeles Rams hired Rozelle in 1952 as the team's public relations director, his first full-time job.

Rozelle was elected the league's sixth commissioner on Jan. 26, 1960, a compromise choice on the 23rd ballot as the NFL sought a successor for Bell.

In an effort to end the acrimonious deadlock, New York Giants owner Wellington Mara, the late Paul Brown of the Cleveland Browns and Dan Reeves of the Rams put forth Rozelle's practically unknown name as a candidate for commissioner.

Mara acknowledged that the owners approached Rozelle "out of desperation."

"I think in the last analysis, Dan and Paul and I and maybe one or two others said, 'Well, how about Pete?' He was the next guy on the list - maybe the last one," Mara said.

Rozelle helped make the NFL one of the wealthiest sports entities in the world. He brought sports into 10 figures when he negotiated a landmark five-year, $2.1 billion contract with television's three major networks in 1982.

McNair gets start against Jacksonville

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The Jacksonville Jaguars have a hot quarterback. Houston Oilers hope they do, too.

The expansion Jaguars (6-7) got their first NFL victory at the Oilers' expense, and they'd like to get behind quarterback Mark Brunell on Sunday and improve their playoff chances against the Oilers (7-6).

Houston, meanwhile, is giving second-year quarterback Steve McNair a chance to shine under pressure.

Brunell, in his fourth pro season, leads the NFL in passing yards, is third in the NFL in completion percentage and has passed for 200 or more yards in 15 straight games.

But Brunell and the Jaguars want much more.

"We certainly haven't won enough games to earn a lot of respect," Brunell said. "Naturally with the other expansion team Carolina (9-4) winning more games, they get the attention. We wish we'd won more games but we are in a position to finish strong."

The Jaguars have blossomed in their second year of existence behind Brunell. They are second in the league in total offense and they rank No. 1 in passing.

Coach Tom Coughlin would like for the Jaguars' offense to be more balanced, but Brunell will always be a major part of the offense.

"I don't think it's a question of relying on the quarterback, you always rely on the quarterback," Coughlin said. "It's his job to get the ball in the end zone but we'd like to be in a position where you have better balance."

Coughlin traces the Jaguars' offensive improvement to Brunell's experience under fire.

"We've been in so many fourth quarter games and so many games that were pressure packed and so many games that a young quarterback of his competitiveness can develop," Coughlin said.

It's just the kind of experience McNair hopes to get after almost two seasons of waiting his turn to replace Chris Chandler as the Oilers' starter.

Coach Jeff Fisher gave McNair the nod on Wednesday over Chandler, who has started for the past two seasons but is still recovering from a sprained ankle.

Chandler is 80-90 percent ready and might have been the starter if it were earlier in the year.

"Things are different now than early in the season," Fisher said. "Steve has come along and proved that he can play. I don't see this as a controversy. I see it as a positive situation for the football team. We've got two quarterbacks who have proven they can win."

Fisher wouldn't say that McNair will be the starter for the rest of the season. But if McNair performs well against the Jaguars, Chandler could become off-season trade bait.

"Chris has done a great job getting us to this point that we have a chance to win," Fisher said. "Steve has done a good job of learning and has shown he can come in and win ball games."

The Oilers (7-6) feel they must win all of their remaining games to have a chance for the playoffs, leaving McNair feeling complimented to be given the starting role.

"Now I've got to go out there and be prepared the best I can to keep this team winning," McNair said. "Jacksonville is in our way right now and we've got to be ready."

The Jaguars have warm feelings about returning to the Astrodome, where they won their first game ever Oct. 1, 1995, 17-16 over the Oilers. Coughlin doesn't anticipate any residual benefits on Sunday.

"I'm sure when I walk out there it will be a great memory from a year ago because it was such a significance attached to that," Coughlin said. "But this is a new year and a new team and the Oilers are a strong football team."

"I'm sure my concentration will be on what it takes to win this particular day."

Cowboys take distractions to Arizona

By MEL REISNER
AP Sports Writer

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) - The carnival is coming to town.

The Dallas Cowboys could accomplish a number of things against the Arizona Cardinals: Stay in the chase for their fifth straight NFC East title; set a franchise record for consecutive victories over an opponent; and get one more win past Nov. 24, when the New York Giants upset them.

But the Cowboys (8-5), who have beaten Arizona 12 straight times, may be out of focus after their latest scandal, the one-year suspension of defensive tackle Leon Lett for violating the NFL's drug policy.

"It must be a three-ring circus down there," the Cardinals' Boomer Esiason said.

Esiason wasn't naive enough to read anything into the Cowboys' struggles, though.

"When you look at their Giants game, I think they had five turnovers and only lost 20-6," he said. "If that was us and we had five turnovers, we probably would have lost 55-10 or something; it would have been ridiculous. It just shows you how good they really are on defense."

Some considered Lett the best player on the No. 1 defensive unit, but Esiason said there wouldn't be much dropoff with Tony Casillas moving from backup at left tackle to Lett's spot at right tackle.

Arizona left guards Duval Love and Rob Selby are injured, and rookie center Aaron Graham likely will start there, trying to deal with Casillas at a position he's never played.

"In practice, Casillas was annoying, because he was going 100 mph, and he's that way in a game," said Esiason, who knows him from the New York Jets. "I'm sure he thinks this is the greatest thing in the world that he gets to play against a rookie."

"You get a better feel for the game when you start," said Casillas, an 11-year veteran. Cowboys coach Barry Switzer ridiculed opinion pieces about him presiding over a fading dynasty.

"We didn't look like a team crumbling," Switzer said of a 21-10 humbling of the Washington Redskins on Thanksgiving Day. "We looked like a pretty damn good football team. But I talked to the team about these things. The foundation cracks from within."

The Cowboys fell short of the Super Bowl in 1994, when offensive lineman Erik Williams wrecked his car after drinking alcohol, then had to settle out of court with a 17-year-old topless dancer who claimed he sexually assaulted her.

But Dallas won its third NFL championship in four years last season despite the distraction of losing cornerback Clayton Holmes after he failed a drug test. Not having Michael Irvin for the first five games this season affected the Cowboys more - they and the Cardinals were

2-3 until Oct. 13, when Irvin returned and the Cowboys beat Arizona 17-3.

"We should have learned our lesson the first five weeks of the season, but teams play well against us," Emmitt Smith said. "They're professionals like we are. They have talent, we have talent. It just boils down to the team that plays the best on that particular day."

Smith - whose 108 touchdowns rushing leave him two short of Walter Payton for second place on the career list behind still-active Marcus Allen - is the Cowboys' hole card against any collapse.

In a season when Irvin's absence seemed to throw the passing game out of sync, Smith has run for over 1,000 yards, reaching that level for the sixth consecutive year to set a club record.

He scored both Dallas TDs in the first meeting with the Cardinals.

Linebacker Eric Hill has 157 tackles, one bright spot for an erratic Arizona defense that ranks 22nd in the league against the run. He said

Smith reads defensive movement better than anyone.

"People talk about his great offensive line, and there's no question he has these 300-pound guys, and they're knocking guys off the ball," Hill said. "But you look at Emmitt on film, and he's a smart guy. He knows where the weaknesses are, and that's why he cuts back so much and finds holes."

The Cardinals (6-7) have modest but significant goals for a team that hasn't had a winning record since 1984. For the second time this year, Dallas represents a chance to reach .500 and keep alive Arizona's hopes of a postseason instead of a vacation.

In the first meeting, the Cardinals gained only 178 yards. Things changed when Kent Graham hurt his knee Nov. 3 against the Giants. In four starts since, Esiason has thrown for 1,419 yards and 10 TDs. But a three-game win streak ended last week, when Minnesota beat Arizona 41-17.

National Cotton Council agronomist to analyze this season's crop at New Orleans conference MEMPHIS -- National Cotton Council agronomist Dr. Anne Wrona will analyze the good and the bad of this season's cotton crop at the 1997 Beltwide Cotton Conferences.

"Competitive in Every Quarter" is the theme for the NCC-sponsored conference Jan. 6-10 at the New Orleans Marriott and Sheraton hotels. More than 5,000 people involved in the U.S. cotton industry, including producers, ginners, textile manufacurers, scientists, extension, county agents, consultants, and agribusiness representatives are expected to attend.

"There were a number of beneficial tools, including Bt cotton, introduced in 1996 that enhanced production," said, Wrona, the Council's manager of cotton agronomy and physiology. "However, I also want to address the obstacles such as the hurricanes and other adverse weather that presented growers with serious agronomic challenges."

Joining Wrona in the Cotton Production Conference general session Jan. 7 will be Memphis cotton merchant William B. Dunavant, Jr. He will share his insights on today's dynamic global marketplace. Council President Tom W. Smith of Bakersfield, Calif. will open the session with a look at challenges facing the U.S. cotton industry.

The general session will offer a broad range of information aimed at enhancing competitiveness.

Will McCarty, extension cotton specialist at Mississippi State University, will talk about grower experiences with transgenic farming. Scientists will share lessons learned in protecting learned in protecting crops against insects, weeds, diseases and nematodes. Conferees will get a peek at future production systems, including the use of precision farming technology. They also will hear a report on balancing profitable production with conservation compliance, including a briefing on key provisions of the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other conservation programs.

Charles Parker, chairman of the Council's Boll Weevil Action Committee, will cover the status of the National Boll Weevil Eradication Program, including post-and-active programs and expansion plans. The Missouri producer also will describe the advantages of producing cotton without the weevil as a key pest.

Wrona, who chaired the production conference's planning committee, said that panel was unanimous in its desire to provide opportunities for producers to interact with the new technologies and the scientists bringing these tools to the marketplace.

That's why in-depth information will be provided on Jan. 8 at various hands-on workshops and special sessions. Workshops will be offered on seedling diseases, soil and plant nutrition, emerging production technologies such as precision farming and "producing the best cotton." Special sessions will be devoted to cotton physiology with a focus on Bt cotton, the latest information technology, price risk management, fiber quality improvement and new product developments.

The "Producing the Best Cotton" workshop, for example, will feature 10 stations with scientists sharing information ranging from agronomic practices to cotton classing. Participants will be able to try out computer software, inspect fiber and fabric samples under microscope and slice bolls to determine maturity.

The 12 cotton research conferences Jan. 9-10 include the 50th Cotton Physiology Conference. In recognition of that anniversary, that session will include a symposium looking at past and current work and future directions in this important discipline.

Conferees can get updates on Cotton Foundation special research and education projects and the latest products and services available from more than 50 suppliers at the Foundation member exhibits. The Information Resource Technology Exhibits will offer hands-on demonstrations of innovative agricultural computing in communications, research, software development, electronic cotton warehouse receipts, commodity market news and other areas.

For more information, contact the Council's Debbie Richter at (901) 274-9030.

TSSWCB to host conference

The Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board will host the South Plains Agricultural Nonpoint Source Conference on Jan. 17 at Koko Palace, 5101 Avenue Q in Lubbock.

The conference will encourage farmers and ranchers to adopt management practices that will help prevent agricultural nonpoint source (NPS) pollution.

Producers will learn an array of Best Management Practice options to help their operations meet state water quality goals. Several South Plains producers will share personal experiences in developing water quality management plans to meet their specific needs.

Speakers will address questions of practical relevance to the producer. For example, "Are there legal and economic benefits to obtaining a certified water quality management plan?" "How do I obtain one?" "Is cost-share assistance available?"

In addition, producers needing Continuing Education Units (CEUs) to renew their private pesticide applicator's license will have the opportunity to earn needed credits at this conference.

The registration fee is $15, payable to the Lubbock County SWCD by Jan. 8. The fee includes all sessions and catered lunch.

For more information, contact the TSSWCB regional office in Hale Center at (806) 839-1030.

Cattle on feed down 3 percent

AUSTIN -- Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in Texas feedlots with capacity of 1,000 head or more totaled 2.50 million head on Nov. 1, down 3 percent from a year ago.

According to the monthly report released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the estimate was up 13 percent from the Oct. 1 level. Producers placed 800,000 head in commercial feedlots during October, up 8 percent from a year ago and up 33 percent from the Sept. 1996 total.

Texas commercial feeders marketed 495,000 head during October, down 1 percent from a year ago. Monthly marketings were up 19 percent from the Sept. 1996.

On Nov. 1, there were 1.99 million head of cattle and calves on feed in the Northern High Plains, 80 percent of the state's total. The number on feed across the area decreased 1 percent from last month. Marketings increased 18 percent from last month to 394,000 head.

Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in the United States in feedlots with a capacity of 1,000 head or more totaled 10.07 million head.

Placements in feedlots during October totaled 2.99 million. During October, placements of cattle and calves weighing less than 600 pounds were 834,000; 600-699 pounds were 724,000; 700-799 pounds were 822,000; 800 pounds and greater were 609,000. Marketings of fed cattle during October totaled 1.68 million.

Feeders in the historical seven monthly states with feedlots having a capacity of 1,000 or more reported 8.54 million head on feed Nov. 1, up 1 percent from last year, and 7 percent above Nov. 1, 1994.

October placements totaled 2.53 million head, 11 percent above last year and 13 percent above 1994. Marketings during October, at 1.42 million head, were down 7 percent from last year and 6 percent below 1994.

ILC to offer travel scholarships

COLLEGE STATION -- The International Livestock Congress (ILC) has initiated a travel scholarship program in an effort to enhance the educational experiences of college students and strengthen the leaders of tomorrow's livestock industry.

"We realize that today's agricultural students will be the leaders of tomorrow's livestock industry," said Pat Lee, Executive Director of the International Livestock Congress.

As a unique globally focused event, ILC brings leaders from the livestock industry together with government officials, scientists, educators and this year's students to discuss issues of international importance that affect the future of animal agriculture.

Lee said that students will have every opportunity to network with industry professionals, participate in the congress sessions and enjoy the special events.

This year's beef session is "Global Markets: Focus on Crises, Competition and Marketing," and the 1997 horse session is "The Successful Marketing and Promotion of Horses and Horse Sports."

The goal of the congress is to solicit the support and participation of world industry leaders, to foster better international communications and to help the livestock industry respond to ever-shifting technological, trade and political circumstances.

The ILC is sponsored by the International Stockmen's Educational Foundation in cooperation with the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo and the Texas A&M University System. The International Stockmen's Educational Foundation is currently involved in a scholarship fund-raising campaign to meet a goal of providing 10 scholarship this year, Lee said.

She said a nationwide panel of judges will select the top 10 applicants; however, other students are encouraged to attend this year's congress at a special student rate.

Scholarship applications are available from the Deans of the College of Agriculture.

Future home of artworks being considered Dallas real estate broker can see sculptures from windows of home

By PAM EASTON
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Art history textbook pages come alive in Ray Nasher's yard.

Each day as the millionaire real estate developer looks out any of the large, picture windows of his North Dallas home, he sees the three-dimensional sculptures of Henry Moore, Henri Matisse and Pablo Picasso that some only view on the flat page of a textbook.

His museum-style home seems miniature when compared to the famous sculptures that surround it in an 8-acre sculpture garden that neighbors casually jog around.

Although Nasher has poured himself into creating just the right home for himself and his art collection, he is now exploring options for a new perfect setting.

One option is Dallas' Museum of Art.

However, other cities are also chipping at the chance to have part or all of the $250 million historical sculpture collection that includes more than 300 pieces spanning from Rodin through Joel Shapiro's more recent works.

The National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., the Tate Gallery in London and the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum in New York have all expressed interest.

"The collection is without question the most important privately held collection of modern sculpture in the world," said Dr. William B. Jordan, an art historian who recently retired as deputy director of Fort Worth's Kimbell Art Museum.

Dallas City Manager John Ware recognizes the collection's importance and doesn't plan to let his city miss the opportunity.

This August, Dallas approved a $250,000 study to build an Arts District home for Nasher's medley. "Dallas will overnight become world class in the art world," Ware said.

But Nasher isn't promising anything just yet.

He wants to make sure his collection is maintained and housed properly.

If that can be achieved along with finding a way for his collection to become the core of an advanced center of the study of modern sculpture, there is a strong possibility Texas will remain the historical collection's home.

"Dallas is so important to us because this is where we live. And this is where we raised our family and our business, and (where) we developed the collection," he said. "So, it would be nice to be able to have it properly acquired into the community."

Jordan, who first urged Nasher and his late wife, Patsy, to display their collection in Southern Methodist University's Gallery, said the collection would be an important cultural addition to any community.

"The importance of the collection lies in its breadth and its depths," he said. "This is a collection of references. This is the collection the scholars will always have to refer to and study and use as a point of comparison."

The Nashers didn't even realize the importance of their possessions until Jordan approached them in the late 1970s.

"They were a little hesitant at first whether their collection was worth showing," he said, but "it turned out to be just spectacular."

And the small exposure was enough to take the Nashers' collection around the world after its meager beginnings in the 1950s during archaeological digs in Columbia.

Since the early 1980s, parts of the collection have been featured in Madrid, London, Tel Aviv, Berlin, Venice and New York.

"We never really thought about a collection per se... That was not our goal," Nasher said. "We just determined that it would be fun from an educational point of view for our children and from an aesthetic point of view for ourselves."

The hobby that began four decades ago with $5 and $10 sculptures has grown into a multi-million dollar accumulation.

Included in the collection is Rodin's Eve, Picasso's head, Matisse's Large Seated Nude, Brancusi's The Kiss, Joan Miro's Moonbird and Alberto Giacometti's bust of his brother.

"We just selected pieces that we wanted to live with, and that we loved ourselves," Nasher said. "With our good fortune they really turned out to be important works."

But now, Nasher wants to share the complete collection with the public. Normally only a portion of the collection is featured at a showing.

"He's very generous in terms of loans, but he doesn't relish having this many works out at one time," said Steven Nash, chief curator of Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco, where about 73 pieces of the collection are currently on display.

Early next year, 110 of Nasher's pieces will appear at New York's Guggenheim.

When pieces are on loan, Nasher feels as if his home is partially bare. So, he visits the showings whenever he can break away.

"It's fun to just sit and watch the people as they relate to the works of art," he said. "It's fun to listen, you know, them not knowing who you are."

Nasher also displays some of his collection at NorthPark Center, the vast shopping mall Nasher owns in Dallas.

The general public might not know Nasher's face or name, but the art world does, Jordan said.

"There are not very many that match the Nasher collection in terms of scale," said Nash, former director of the Dallas Museum of Art. "It is loaded with master works which are beautiful and powerful."

And the beauty and quality is something Nasher continuously strives for as he passionately adds pieces to the collection, Jordan said.

"Numbers really don't make any difference," Nasher said. "It's a question of quality."

That quality is something most every museum wants, Nash said.

"Right now, number one in his mind, is the discussion going on with Dallas," he said, adding the donation is a real possibility if the city can provide Nasher with a proper home.

"That would be the envy of many cities, and I think, put Dallas on the map culturally, something it's been striving for, but unable to achieve to this point."

Are You Crawling or Walking?

Every baby goes through the same basic process when learning to walk. First, they balance on their hands and knees. Next, they crawl. From there, they pull up to furniture and then take a few tentative steps. Finally, they master the art of walking.

Why do babies learn to walk? Crawling is much safer; you're much more stable on all fours. But walking offers many advantages over crawling; it's faster, more efficient and can take you many more places.

Investing is like learning to walk. Unfortunately, some investors never muster enough courage to take those first few tentative steps past fixed-income investments. Instead, they limit themselves to certificates of deposit, government, municipal and corporate bonds; and income mutual funds. They feel quite safe knowing exactly how much their investment will pay over a set amount of time and exactly how much they'll receive at the end of that time.

Other investors have learned that taking calculated risks offers greater rewards. They know that to gain greater independence, they need to expand their investment portfolios by choosing investments that offer their money an opportunity to grow and thus work harder for them.

Consider two couples who each had $200,000 to invest in 1979. Bob and Jane Roper would not need the money for 15 years. They wanted to know exactly what they would earn and wanted all their money back at the end of that time. They bought a 15-year insured corporate bond paying 8.5 percent. Over the 15-year period, they received $255,000 in interest, and at the end of 1994 got their $200,000 back.

Fuller and Edith Baxter, on the other hand, wanted an investment that would give them some income and also help keep up with the rising cost of living over the next 15 years. They invested in a large growth-and-income mutual fund. This fund owned high-quality, dividend-paying common stocks of companies such as General Electric, Exxon, General Motors, AT&T and others. Each year, the Baxters took 6 percent of their end-of-the-year account value and reinvested any other earnings.

Over the 15-year period, the Baxters received $391,221 in dividends, and at the end of 1994, their account was worth $677,171. The Baxters also got the safety they wanted from their investment. In the first years, they received less investment income, but over the entire period, their income clearly exceeded that of the Ropers. And the growth of their investment allowed them to keep up with inflation.

The Baxters were walkers. They did their homework and then decided that the potential reward offered by a growth-and-income mutual fund outweighed the stability of an insured bond. The investment they chose offered no guarantees, but the Baxters knew that the stock market historically has outperformed all other market segments. They took a calculated risk, and it paid off.

If you're still a crawler when it comes to investing, ask a financial professional to run hypothetical illustrations that compare the returns of your investment to other investments that offer more opportunity for growth. Then do your homework, and learn all the risks associated with that investment. Only then can you determine if the potential rewards outweigh the risks.

Like a baby learning to walk, you may encounter a few bumps and bruises along the way, but in the end, you'll have graduated to a whole new world of investment opportunity.

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) - Prince Charles had a somber task on the first day of his visit to the Ukraine, but spectators had more lighthearted pursuits in mind for him.

The heir to Great Britain's throne arrived Monday for a nine-day tour of former Soviet Central Asia, including the site of the 19th century "Charge of the Light Brigade."

He laid a wreath at Kiev's Tomb of Unknown Soldiers, a monument to those killed in World War II. An estimated 13 million Ukrainians died in the war against Nazi Germany.

"Maybe he's coming to look for a new wife," said 23-year-old Anna Chubar.

On Tuesday, Charles will travel to the Crimean city of Sevastopol to visit the Valley of Death, where Britain's Light Brigade charged overwhelming imperial Russian forces during the Crimean Wars of the 1850s.

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) - Whoopi Goldberg, Madonna and Steven Spielberg are signing up for George Clooney's war on paparazzi television.

Clooney, one of the stars of "ER," said last week that he will no longer do interviews with Paramount Television's syndicated "Entertainment Tonight" because "Hard Copy," another Paramount show, used unauthorized videotape of him and his girlfriend.

Spielberg told USA Today that he'll join Clooney's boycott as a way of "insuring personal privacy."

Officials of Paramount, "ET" and "Hard Copy" have refused to comment.

Chavez named director of Satellite Center

New director for center

Gracie Chavez has been named director of Amarillo State Center Industries in Hereford, known locally as the Hereford Satellite Center.

Chavez, who assumed the position on Oct. 1, replaces Lorraine Sandoval.

The Satellite Center, which operates under a contract with Amarillo State Center, is primarily funded by local donations.

According to Robert Mercer, chairman of the seven-member advisory board, funds donated are used locally to benefit the clients.

Only two area churches contribute to the Satellite Center on a regular monthly basis. The remainder of the budget is received from other churches, civic organizations, clubs and individuals who donate periodically.

The funds are administered by the advisory board which is composed of Mercer and Eleanor Hudspeth, Janice Robinson, Celia Serrano, Juanice Jones, Betty Mercer, Rev. H. Wyatt Bartlett and Charles Britten.

"The main purpose of the Satellite Center is to train our clients, the mentally and physically handicapped, to get jobs," Chavez said.

The Satellite Center provides continuing education for those individuals who have had to leave the public schools due to age limitations. "These people are taught a usable skill to take to the market place so they can go to work and become contributing members of the community," Chavez said. "And we would like to thank the businesses which provide jobs for our clients."

Local businesses that have appropriate job openings are encouraged to contact the Satellite Center.

Chavez, a Hereford native, is a graduate of Hereford High School and Amarillo College. She is currently attending West Texas A&M University studying social services and management.

Her family includes four brothers, Robert, Raymond, Rickey and George of Hereford; and three sisters, Yolanda Valdez and Martha Melendez of Amarillo and Maria Taylor of Dalhart.

Grandpa's best eggnog recipe may taste as good as ever but it is imperative to think of safety first.

Eggs are not considered safe to eat raw. Salmonella bacteria may have contaminated the eggs. The contamination, along with the practice of pouring the eggnog in a punch bowl and leaving it unrefrigerated for a time, all add to an unsafe practice.

The recommended method of preparing eggnog is to cook the eggs in a custard like fashion. Though the texture will be a little thicker, many may find that they prefer the new taste to the old one.

Cooked Custard Eggnog

1 quart milk
5 egg (6 small eggs may be used)
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1-1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
Heat milk in a large saucepan (do not boil). Beat eggs and salt in a large bowl; gradually add sugar continuing to mix well. Gradually stir about 1/4 of hot milk into egg mixture; add this gradually to remaining hot milk, stirring constantly. Cook over medium-low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and reaches 160 degrees F. Stir in nutmeg and vanilla. Cool in refrigerator or set pan in small amount of ice water in a larger pan and cool. Can be covered and refrigerated for up to 48 hours. Before serving, gently fold in whipped cream. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Will make about 7 cups.

Need I tell you that one cup of this mixture contains 15 grams of fat per serving? If fat is a concern, try the following recipe.

Lowfat Eggnog

3/4 cup egg substitute

4 ounces powder sugar
3 tablespoons vanilla extract
2 (12 oz.) cans evaporated skim milk
3 cups nonfat milk (skim milk)
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup lowfat or nonfat vanilla yogurt

Place egg substitute in a blender and gradually add remaining ingredients, except 1 can of evaporated skim milk. Blend at medium speed. Place mixture into a beverage container and add can of evaporated milk. Chill for several hours before serving. Stir well before serving. Makes 16 (1 cup) servings. 1 cup contains 65 calories and zero grams of fat and 2 milligrams of cholesterol.

Each year about this time, The Brand publishes a request for children's letters to Santa.

I don't know for sure how many years these letters have been included in a pre-Christmas edition of the paper, but I have found letters to Santa as far back as 1921.

I thought it might be interesting to see what children have requested through the years.

I am a little boy age four years. I have been good all year, so please bring me a tool set, gun, a blue tie and some candy, nuts, apples and oranges.

Your little friend,
Willard Turnbow

Dear Santa Claus,

Please bring me a doll, please take all little girls in the world a doll and good things. I also want a store and doll buggy. And don't think me selfish for such dear things as these, a set of dishes. All good wishes to dear Santa.

I'm lovingly your friend,
Virginia T. Barnett

Dear Santa Claus,

Please bring me a erector set, a train, a BB gun, a snake that you wind up and a tank that will go.

You don't need to bring any candy, nuts or fruit because I always get those off the Christmas tree at church.

Rex A. Tynes, Jr.

Mr. Santa Clause
North Pole

Dear Santy,

Please send me a peddle car, an air plane that goes round and round a pole, a little horn, some fire crackers and some nuts, fruit and candy.

Your little friend,
Walter Milton Orr

Dear Santa,

I am 10 years old and I want a box of clay, and a broom, and a dust pan and a mop and a Mexican doll for Christmas.

Charlene Gates

Dear Santa,

I want a red wagon, a leather jacket and a tricycle for Christmas please Santa. By now.

Jimmy Woolsey

Dear Santa,

I am in grade 3. I will be 9 years old in December 22. Now I am 8. I want an electric train and a catepular and a bicycle and a good pair of skates and don't forget my little sister Agatha.

Ronnie Malone

Dear Santa Claus,

I want you to bring me a record player and three records and if you can I want a baby doll. If you have a little walkey talkey girl I would like to have one. Santa Claus, please remember all the little children. Thank you for the teeter totter you sent us two years ago.

Carla Sue Crosthwait

Dear Santa Claus,

How are you? I want some play dishes and a doll that talks. Also a little stove and a refrigerator and the thing where you wash the dishes.

Love,
Olivia Vargas

Dear Santa,

I want you to rite me a letter. I would like you drop down a Christi a Velvet and borbey with grown pritty hair. I am 7 years old, I am good. Lisa is not here. I want a deader Rudolf. Lisa wated a wagen west Park turn 2nd house.

My house is 844 W. Park.

Love,
Gina Richardson

Dear Santa Claus

for Christmas I want a Screamon Deamon and a gijoe and a hotwheel and a racecarset and a B-B gun.

Love Scott

Dear Santa Claus,

I would like to have a bike. Mother says it is too cold to have a bike, so does Daddy. Also I want a race track with a bunch of fast cars. My sister she is 16 years old, she wants a car.

Your friend,
Alan Wartes

This small sampling of letters from the last 75 years illustrates that the more things change, the more they stay the same.

Mayor signs proclamation

Mayor Bob Jossrand has proclaimed the week of Dec. 9-13 as Anchor Club Week in Hereford. The Anchor Club of Hereford, a volunteer co-ed service club sponsored by the Pilot Club of Hereford, is to be chartered Thursday. The Anchor Club focuses on health and safety and helps members develop leadership,

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Don't you just hate the blatant materialism surrounding Christmas? And aren't you just dying to know what you'll have under the tree?

-- M. Clarke

HJH and HHS choirs, under the direction of Margaret Williams, will be in concert Thursday, Dec. 12, at 7:00 p.m. Donations will be accepted towards High School choir uniforms.

Choir is recruiting for next semester. If you are interested, please contact Mrs. Williams.

Blue Team students will attend the dress rehearsal for the "Nutcracker Ballet" on Thursday, Dec. 12. Teachers have arranged this at no cost to the students.

Raul Guerra and Rosalinda Davila are Blue Team Students of the Week for Nov. 25-30. Tim Dudley and Gina Mendoza were chosen for the week of Dec. 2-6.

Mrs. Drake's American history classes will be writing essays on America's unique cultural characteristics. This paper will also be used for a grade in Mrs. Cortez' English classes. This subject was chosen to complete the unit on colonists in America.

Pink Team science students are currently studying chemistry. Students will perform a lab, "A Kitchen Chemistry," which will illustrate the difference between physical and chemical changes. Various chemical reactions will also be shown as the students make hard candy for Christmas.

Mrs. Wilhelm's students have made Christmas jewelry and ornaments. They are selling these items each day. This class also decorated our school Christmas tree with ornaments that they made. The tree is in our entry hall and provides a beautiful welcome to HJH!

HJH will host a Scholastic Book Fair Dec. 9-13 from 8:00 until 4:00 each day. Along with books that have been winners of state and national awards, the fair will offer hundreds of titles from over 100 publishers. Included will be how-to books, biographies, timeless classics and a wonderful variety of some of the newest titles in children's literature.

Progress reports were mailed last week to parents of students who have grade averages of 74 or below. We do hope that parents will show their concern about these reports.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Several days ago, a friend sent me a copy of your new book, "Wake Up and Smell the Coffee." She knows I'm a big fan of yours and thought it would be the ideal birthday present. It certainly was. I can't put it down. Your book not only has all those terrific poems and essays I was forever cutting out and saving but dozens of letters I had never read before.

I laughed myself silly over the dogs that played the piano and the parakeet that got turned on watching people undress. Then, my eyes teared over when I read the minister's response to the little boy's question, "Do dogs go to heaven when they die?" My personal favorite was the one from the woman who enjoyed doing her housework in the nude -- until she ran into the meter reader.

There are words of wisdom in that book for people of all ages. You deal with almost every human problem imaginable. I loved reading the arguments on the right way to hang toilet paper. And I had forgotten the uproar in this country in the 1960s over bomb shelters. Your column describing the warning signs of cancer must surely have saved lives.

My kids are grown now, but I wish this book had been available when they were younger. The section on raising children would have been a godsend.

Tell your readers it would be a great idea to send copies of your book as Christmas gifts to their children's teachers (they have enough cologne and bath powder) and to relatives who have everything.

Please print this letter, Ann. There are a lot of people out there who would appreciate the information. -- Lida Hurd, Bainbridge Island, Wash.

Dear Lida Hurd: Thank you for your generous words about my book, "Wake Up and Smell the Coffee." It was published by Random House and represents the 40-year love affair I have had with my readers.

If your bookstore is sold out, ask them to order a copy -- or call 1-800-733-3000 to order one directly from the publisher (the price is $23).

Dear Ann Landers: Six months ago, my husband ended an affair with a well-known woman in our town.

Because of the scandal, he nearly lost his job and our family has been through emotional and financial hell. We are now in counseling and slowly putting our lives back together.

Meanwhile, this woman and her husband, who were good friends of ours, seem to be suffering no ill effects. Because of her repeated telephone calls, we had to change our phone number. She has written me several notes asking if we could still be friends. Such nerve! Of course, I have not responded. When she phoned me at my office, I refused to take her call.

The problem now is that Mrs. X has gotten a full-time job with a firm that is a client of the company I work for. In addition to seeing her around town, I will now have to deal with her face to face on business.

I have forgiven my husband and am trying to forget the whole ugly affair, but it's going to be difficult. I've considered blowing my top and telling this woman to leave us alone, but I'm not sure that's a good idea. I need to know how to handle this before I explode. -- On the Edge in

Kentucky

Dear Kentucky: Tell the woman you are not ready to resume the friendship but will be cooperative and even-handed in your mutual business dealings. I suspect what she really wants is assurance that you will not ruin her reputation with the business community. Give her that, and keep your distance.

Is alcohol ruining your life or the life of a loved one? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" can turn things around. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.55.)

Country home on tour

The country home of Ernest and Carmen Flood is one of the featured homes on La Madre Mia Study Club's annual Christmas Tour of Homes. The home, which has unique wall treatments, a formal laundry room and a basement, is located 4-1/2 miles west of the Harrison Highway from the intersection of Park and 25 Mile Avenue. Pictured with Mrs. Flood, standing, are Mysedia Smith, left, president of La Madre Mia, and Bettye Owen. Also included on the tour from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday will be the homes of Ralph and Judy Detten at 147 N. Texas; Frank and Diana Griffin, 114 Juniper; and R.C. and Diane Hoelscher, 207 N. Texas. Tickets are $5 and are available from La Madre members or any home on the day of the tour.

HRSEA to hold Christmas party

Hereford Retired School Employees Association will meet at 6 p.m. Monday at the Hereford Community Center for its Christmas party.

A covered dish dinner is planned and each member is asked to bring a dish.

Special musical entertainment will be featured for the program. Several door prizes will be given.

After the dinner and program, members may play table games. Leona Schilling is the social chairman and may be reached at 364-3793 if there are questions.

All retired school employees are invited.

Plan on a ten percent loss of material for each step in a sequential chemical reaction.

— YOUR EYES —

Getting Used To Bifocals

Remember that it wasn't easy getting used to eye muscles that wouldn't let you focus on small type up close. It wasn't easy getting used to arms too short to hold reading matter far enough away.

Keep that in mind, and you'll find it's a lot easier to get used to bifocals that let you see again what you want to see.

The basic rule: look straight out to see far, look down to see close, and try to ignore that little line in between. In time you will. Remember how convenient it is not to keep switching glasses.

Hold reading matter closer to your body and lower your eyes so you can see through the lower part of the lenses. Lower your eyes, not your head. Newspapers are easier to read if you fold them in halves or quarters; move the paper, not your eyes, to read.

Don't look down at your feet when walking.

Make sure glasses are properly adjusted. If they're off kilter, the lens segments may be out of position.

Moseley is century old, given party

Holly Blanche Carl Moseley was honored on her 100th birthday Thursday with a party at Hereford Care Center.

Mrs. Moseley was born Dec. 4, 1896 in the community of Stony in Denton County.

In 1917, she married Edgar Moseley of Hereford. The couple had two children.

Mrs. Moseley lives at Hereford Care Center where she still enjoys playing games, especially bingo.

Her family members include a son-in-law, G.S. "Mutt" Wheeler of Hereford; four granddaughters, Patsy Gallager of Hereford, Gerry Sigman of Dallas, Mary Rosel of Austin and Linda Acton of Stockton, Calif.; one grandson, Randal Moseley of Baja, Mexico; seven great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren.

Reaches century mark

Holly Blanche Moseley celebrated her 100th birthday on Dec. 4 with a party at Hereford Care Center. Mrs. Moseley still enjoys participating in games, especially bingo.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Take Lauren Bacall seriously as a comedian, please!

"Don't you understand, that's what I do. I play comedy," Ms. Bacall said in a recent interview. "I'm very good at comedy. That's the one area of my career that I really feel good about."

Ms. Bacall stars as Hannah Morgan, the vain mother of Barbra Streisand's character in "The Mirror Has Two Faces." The 72-year-old actress said it's the best part she's had in some time.

She is perhaps best known for her role as the sultry Slim opposite Humphrey Bogart in "To Have and Have Not."

Comparing the current movie scene to the 1940s, Ms. Bacall said she prefers black and whites movies to color - "we all looked fabulous" - and bemoans the lack of stars and "the tackiness of so much of the work."

"I was in heaven when I could go ... and watch Bette Davis and be her," she said. "I would live whatever she was playing."

FCE schedules Yule luncheon

Deaf Smith County Family Community Education Clubs and Council will hold their annual Christmas activity on Monday, Dec. 9.

The activity will begin at 12 noon with a covered dish luncheon. The place has been changed to the Hereford Community Center due to the library being closed.

Council officers for 1997 will be installed and the club will share the seasons good will by donating and preparing gifts for community individuals in need.

Red Cross Update

We at the Red Cross office are hoping all of you had a very nice Thanksgiving. We are sorry that we could not give turkeys this year like we have in the past, but we will continue to take your requests and pass them along.

Please be careful about your seasonal decorations. Using old, frayed or damaged electric cords can cause fires. Leaving packages and wrappings too close to lights and heaters can also ruin your holidays. Cold weather stress and viruses, like flu and HIV, will also be a part in our highly social holiday season. This might be a good time for a Red Cross class for your family group.

A new community CPR class starts Tuesday, Dec. 10 with Adult CPR at the Red Cross office, and Child/Infant CPR, Dec. 14, at the Community Center. The First Aid section of the class will be postponed until after the holidays.

We are also looking for a few good toys. OK, a bunch of good toys and a few volunteers to help with the toy give-away. Red Cross is a group of people who take action and give their support because they care about the quality of life and the social ethics of our nation and our world. Volunteers are the life and muscle of the Red Cross. Please call if you want to help.

Packages for the 20,000 American servicemen in Croatia and Hungary must be sent no later than Dec. 9.

RANDY BYRD

Byrd is speaker for Barn Church

Randy Byrd will return as speaker when Barn Church meets at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 12, at the B-S Arena. Barn Church is a non-denominational Christian ministry for everyone who likes things a little on the country side.

B-S Arena is 6 miles west on FM 1058 and 2 miles north on FM 1057.

Note the date of the December service has been changed from the third Thursday because of the Christmas holidays.

If a piece of holly from the church is kept in the house it's good luck year round. Legend has it that domestic animals thrive when they see a piece of holly hung on Christmas Eve.

America's best legitimate advertising buy is still the local newspaper that is involved in your community. Junk mailers don't contribute a dime to the betterment of Hereford. They take and don't give back.

Twelve named storms affected 60,000 families. Red Cross spent more than $27 million in the operation of 652 shelters and the serving of 930,000 meals. Thirty-five thousand families received case-work services. Red Cross must raise $20 million to replace what has been spent on this year's storms.

Four thousand children are separated from their parents. These are in addition to 20,000 unaccompanied children due to the 1994 disaster. The good news, 1,100 families have been reunited. An estimated 500,000 to 700,000 Rwandan refugees and Zairian residents are still unaccounted for and possibly without food or water. It will take political pressures to force warring factions to allow Red Cross into the area, and it will take donations to support the effort.

Mail donations to the American Red Cross, P.O. Box 1371, Hereford, Texas 79045, or P.O. Box 37243, Washington, DC 20013. To charge to Visa, MasterCard or American Express, call 806-364-3761 or one of the two national numbers, 800-435-3761 or 800-257-7575 (Spanish), or online to Red Cross Internet at <http://www.redcross.org>.

Solutions for holiday cooks

By The Associated Press
 The following are some solutions to holiday cooking problems that home cooks may encounter.
Problem: There is only one oven to cook all the foods.
 --Plan menu to reserve oven space for turkey. Include stove top, microwave and refrigerator recipes.
 --Allow 30 minutes for turkey standing time and carving. Bake extra stuffing and reheat side dishes during that time.
 --To avoid food safety problems, do not partially cook the turkey ahead of time.
Problem: Turkey is still frozen the day before Christmas.
 --Speed defrosting by placing turkey in original wrapping in cold water. Allow 30 minutes defrosting time per pound. (The American Plastics Council recommends changing the water every 30 minutes.)
 --Do not leave a turkey on the counter overnight to defrost. Room temperatures allow bacteria to grow.
Problem: Stuffing the turkey the day before.
 --For food safety, do not stuff a turkey until it's ready to be cooked.
Problem: Lots of leftovers.

--Two hours is the maximum amount of time roasted turkey, stuffing and gravy can be left at room temperature. After two hours, leftovers must be refrigerated.

From: Reynolds Wrap. The Reynolds Holiday Turkey Tips Line is open until Dec. 31 with recorded information on easy defrosting and roasting. Call (800)-745-4000.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Why Businesses Succeed

I believe there are easily identifiable reasons why some businesses prosper while others decline. I'm talking about similar markets.

During the past three or four years I've been writing down some of these reasons. Recently, I reviewed the file where I keep those notes, and decided to combine them into this column.

Success factors

Businesses succeed because someone is willing to make sacrifices that others aren't willing to make. Hard work is one of those sacrifices. A very wise person once said that every day at 5:00 pm you have to decide whether you are exhausted or just lazy.

Businesses succeed because they know where they are going. They have a plan, a sense of direction, a purpose to complete. A mountain climber heads for the peak, a quarter back aims for the end zone and a race car driver pushes toward the finish line. They become successful because they focus on the result or destination they desire. It works the same way in business. You must know where you want to go before you can get there.

Businesses succeed because they stay focused on satisfying the customer. There is, of course, no good reason for any business to exist aside from satisfying customers. You need to know your competitors strengths and weaknesses, understand your industry and watch your local business environment. However, if your main focus isn't on pleasing your customers, you make it easy for your competitors to take business from you.

Businesses succeed because they are never satisfied with excellence. Some of the best run companies of the 70s were trampled by up-and-comers in the 80s. It just proves the adage that even if you're on the right track you'll get run over if you just sit there. Successful companies raise the level of competition, create new standards and refuse to accept anything less than continuing improvement.

Businesses succeed because they understand that bigger is not better. Remember, dinosaurs are gone forever. The lion is king of the jungle, not the elephant or rhino. Certainly, being big has some advantages. However, it is tough to remember what they are when faster, tougher and smarter competitors surround you.

Businesses succeed because they seek success, not security.

Prisons are secure, but they do not house successful men and women. University tenure provides security, but no guaranteed of success. Any company that focuses on protecting its assets is vulnerable to a competitor willing to risk its assets for gain.

Businesses succeed because they never stop hustling. There are times when every successful business owner relaxes a little and decides to "let business come to me for awhile." You may be able to coast in the short term, but never in the long run. When you're coasting, you're either going downhill or slowing down.

Businesses succeed because the owner is careful about investing his or her spare time. Spare time is any time not used productively in becoming successful. Now don't get me wrong here. I'm not advocating that you become a workaholic. Rest, relaxation and leisure are critical to your success. However, we should limit time spent watching TV, repeating work because it wasn't done right the first time and doing urgent, but unimportant tasks.

Businesses succeed because management doesn't tell employees what to do. Instead, they show the team the results they need and want, and they step aside and let their people find the best ways to accomplish those results. Management's role shifts from "managing" to "leading." Businesses succeed because they never wait for their ship to come in. Instead, they row out to meet it. They are proactive in looking for, and capitalizing on opportunities.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

Contrary to popular belief, library staff members are not on vacation. We are moving books, furniture (well, not a lot of furniture, there are guys to do that stuff), and whatever else is not nailed down -- and a few things that are nailed down.

So far things have gone very well. By the time you read this most of the carpet will have been laid and juvenile shelves will be ready to be moved back in place.

Because we had to remove more books from the shelves than originally planned, we now have the task before us of getting everything back where it should be. It's a big job to shelve hundreds of books and read all the shelves, but it will be so nice when everything is in its place and shelves and books are dusted, etc.

You know how it is at your house, at least it is at ours, when you get something new, it makes the rest of the place look shabby and calls for some redecorating. We are doing some of that and hope to have an updated look for the library.

So far our most exciting decorating achievement has been in the office. You may have noticed the partition in the office which was covered with yellow/gold/orange/brown/black kitchen carpet a la 1973. However you may not have noticed it since we covered it with everything we could get our hands on in an effort to hide it.

We pulled the carpet off the wall, put up sheet rock, and put some gorgeous wallpaper on it to match our new carpet. It's a really classy look. It's a good thing Sue Cherry knows something (actually, a lot) about wallpapering because Becky and I don't. We're not sure whether we're more like the Three Stooges or Lucy and Ethel.

At any rate, we were so excited about the way it turned out, we are exploring the possibilities of updating the foyer as well. Decor really should be updated once every 22 years whether it needs it or not.

In the midst of all the confusion, we learned that someone has donated a Christmas tree to the library from the Festival of Trees at the Senior Citizens Center. Because we have no place to put it at present, we had to delay delivery. We did not find out who donated it, but we thank whoever was so very kind. It is bound to look beautiful when we get things back together and can bring it over and put it up.

It's going to take at least another full week to be able to open again. Our apologies to those of you who have reports due, have run out of reading material, or who wanted to make copies.

It has been interesting to realize how many people depend on the library for services. Several people a day, who have somehow missed the word of our closing, come in or call expecting to check out books, recheck books, do research, and make copies.

If you have books out, remember that the book drop is open. We also plan to have amnesty week the first week we are open. If you will bring your overdue books in that week, we will not charge you the fine. Lost or damaged book charges will still apply, but it's a great time to avoid those overdue charges. LaJuan is not sending out her love letters during our closing either, so you will not be notified when you have a book that is long overdue.

When it's all done, you'll need to come in and see the changes. We are planning some more redecorating that will have to be done as we can get to it, some small things that should really improve the looks of things. If we can just figure out what to do with those 1972 model orange chairs...

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Dec. 8, the 343rd day of 1996. There are 23 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 8, 1941, the United States entered World War II as Congress declared war against Japan, a day after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

On this date:

In 1776, George Washington's retreating army crossed the Delaware River from New Jersey to Pennsylvania.

In 1854, Pope Pius IX proclaimed the dogma of the Immaculate Conception.

In 1863, President Abraham Lincoln announced his plan for the Reconstruction of the South.

In 1886, the American Federation of Labor was founded at a convention of union leaders in Columbus, Ohio.

In 1949, the Chinese Nationalist government moved from the Chinese mainland to Formosa, now called Taiwan, as the Communists pressed their attacks.

In 1978, Golda Meir, prime minister of Israel from 1969 to 1974, died in Jerusalem at age 80.

In 1980, former Beatle John Lennon was shot to death outside his New York City apartment building by an apparently deranged fan.

In 1987, President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev signed a treaty under which the superpowers agreed to destroy their arsenals of intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

In 1987, the "intifadah" (Arabic for uprising) by Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories began.

Ten years ago: House Democrats selected majority leader Jim Wright to be the chamber's 48th speaker, succeeding Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill.

Five years ago: Russia, Byelorussia and Ukraine declared the Soviet national government dead, forging a new alliance to be known as the Commonwealth of Independent States. AIDS patient Kimberly Bergalis, who had contracted the disease from her dentist, died in Fort Pierce, Fla., at age 23.

One year ago: In New York, an arsonist killed seven workers and himself at a Harlem clothing store that had been the target of a racially charged lease dispute. Four months after the death of founder Jerry Garcia, The Grateful Dead announced it was breaking up after 30 years of making music.

Today's Birthdays: Actor-director Maximilian Schell is 66. Comedian Flip Wilson is 63. Actor David Carradine is 60. Actor James MacArthur is 59. Flutist James Galway is 57. Singer Jerry Butler is 57. Actor John Rubenstein is 50. Rock singer-musician Gregg Allman is 49. Rock singer-musician Ray Shulman (Gentle Giant) is 47. Actress Kim Basinger is 43. Rock musician Warren Cuccurullo (Duran Duran) is 40. Rock musician Phil Collen (Def Leppard) is 39. Country singer Marty Raybon (Shenandoah) is 37. Rock musician Marty Friedman (Megadeth) is 34. Actress Teri Hatcher is 32.

Thought for Today: "So long as governments set the example of killing their enemies, private individuals will occasionally kill theirs." -- Elbert Hubbard, American author (1856-1915).

Five generations, twice

The House of the Week

This Is It

A HANDSOME BRICK exterior, stately columns and a porch give this home an understated, dignified look.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures

For the family looking for a comfortable, casual place to call home, Plan G 27, by HomeStyles Designers Network, could be it. The plan has 1,738 square feet of living space and many features, inside and out.

At the front of the home, a porch welcomes guests in style.

Inside, the dining room is ideal for formal dinners. Built-in china cabinets replace the stairway to the basement in the crawlspace and slab versions.

In the kitchen, the snack bar is suited for quick breakfasts or afternoon treats, while the adjacent morning room is for everyday family dinners.

Out back, an enormous deck includes a built-in barbecue, a bench and a spa tub, making this a perfect spot for summer entertaining. A covered area protects guests from inclement weather.

In the living room, plenty of space is available for formal and informal activities. At the heart of the room, the gathering point, is a fireplace.

The master suite includes a sunny sitting area and a deluxe private bath with a dual-sink vanity, a separate tub and shower and a huge walk-in closet.

Ten-foot ceilings, in all rooms but the master bath which has a 9-footer, create a sense of space.

THE FOYER leads into the dining room to the left, and living room straight ahead. Here, a fireplace provides a focal point, while a wall of windows allows a view of the backyard deck. On the left, a snack bar separates the morning room from the kitchen, which includes a pantry and ample counter space. Across the home, the master suite has a sitting area and a private bath. Two more bedrooms and a hall bath complete the floor plan.

G-27 STATISTICS

Design G-27 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, morning room, three bedrooms, two full baths and a utility room, totaling 1,738 square feet of living space. This plan includes a standard basement, a crawlspace or a slab foundation, and 2x4 exterior wall framing. A two-car garage provides 425 square feet of space. Writing Want Ads that really sell!

"Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the word, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
--Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Dear Heloise: This summer, when traveling by plane with my cat from the heat in Texas to hot southern California, the vet warned me that she sees most problems with pets overheating because carriers sit on the tarmac or in holding areas that aren't air-conditioned.

I placed four frozen packs double wrapped in a thick towel at the bottom of my cat's carrier, leaving an equal amount of floor space for her without the packs. She stayed contentedly on top of the packs.

Being the nervous "mom" of a first-time-traveling pet, I also froze a small plastic bottle of water and fastened it in plain sight just inside the front of the carrier using double-sided sticky squares. (When freezing, don't cap the bottle or fill it all the way to the top.)

Just in case my cat went to London instead of California, I made two sets, two each, of 2x4 labels with the date, time and numbers of the departing flight, my cat's name, my name and a friend's number at home, as well as a friend's name and contact number in California.

The "departing set" was stuck on the outside of the carrier before we left. The other set went in my luggage to be stuck on the carrier before returning home. — Trisia Avery, Fort Worth, Texas

Your travel hints are the cat's meow! May I add, when making reservations, try to get a non-stop flight or at least a direct one, where there is no change of plane.

Also, morning flights are better. Just in case there is a problem, you have time to resolve it.

Most important, for the safest travel possible, call the airline you are flying, or shipping your pet on, for specific rules and regulations. — Heloise

SCHOOL MORNING

Dear Heloise: Here's a tip that made life easier when I had seven children carrying lunches to school.

On Sunday evening, everyone would gather around the table and make assembly-line sandwiches and wrap them for the freezer.

School mornings everyone could pick a sandwich and add fruit, chips, or whatever else to round out their lunch meal. I could never have made 35 sandwiches all by myself, nor was

I able to fix them each morning before the school bus arrived.

Getting breakfast was managed by each one setting out cereal, a piece of fruit, and a bowl, glass and silverware the night before.

Pouring milk and juice was easy with everything else already in place.

If there is only one child, let him or her do the same to help gain self-sufficiency. It's a great way to build self-esteem. — Pat, Terre Haute, Ind.

PLASTIC BAGS

Dear Heloise: Another use for plastic bags as well as paper bags is to take them to a thrift store. As an added bonus, fill one or two with donations.

Thrift stores also need volunteers. We volunteers make a lot of money for many good causes. — Lois Walrod, Fallbrook, Calif.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 796000, San Antonio TX 78279-6000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have year-round allergies, sneezing and watery eyes and the rest. I was given samples of the drug Claritin, a new medicine, I think. Could you please tell me about it? — Mrs. B.H.

ANSWER: Claritin — loratidine — is a relatively new antihistamine with a couple of attractive features.

A single pill works for 24 hours, a boon for the memorially challenged among us. Also, unlike some other antihistamines, it is not likely to cause drowsiness.

Claritin is a safe drug. It produces unpleasant side effects in some users, but you can say that about any medicine. Someone at some time is going to react negatively to any given drug.

As with most drugs today, Claritin comes with an imposing list of possible side effects, including flushing, increased perspiration and thirst.

Let me offer a caveat that applies to any medicine: If you feel that the drug is causing an unexpected and adverse change in your body, report it to your doctor.

If the Claritin happens to cause unwanted side effects in you, there are similar drugs that stand waiting to fill the void.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is this common? Should I be concerned? I am 35 years old and I smoke. What exactly does having clubbed fingers mean? — I.A.

ANSWER: You mean you have clubbed fingernails, right? They are not at all uncommon.

For other readers, to get an idea of what clubbed nails look like, examine a healthy one as it emerges from its base under the cuticle. Normal nails should be a bit lower than the cuticle as they emerge. Clubbed nails are more flush with the cuticle. Furthermore the tips of the nails form a bulbous shape, like the business end of a club.

We usually speak of clubbed nails in a medical setting, where the patient has been diagnosed with lung, liver or thyroid diseases. However, you can find clubbed nails on healthy individuals, so their appearance is not always indicative of anything serious.

Clubbed nails might, in fact, be nothing more than expression of a family trait.

It's up to you to express your concern to your doctor at the next checkup.

Most often, clubbed nails would be but one of several signs expressed by the illnesses I mentioned.

For more information, see the "Nail Problems" report I'm sending you. Others can order the report by sending $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope to: Dr. Donohue — No. 22, Box 5539, Riverport, NJ 08077-5539.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please tell me the difference between transient global amnesia and a transient ischemic attack. — J.T.

ANSWER: Transient global amnesia is a strange phenomenon. The person is suddenly bewildered. He can speak, knows who he is, but is hazy on other details, such as his surroundings. The fog clears in a few hours, with no effect or recurrence. The cause might be a slowdown of blood flow to the brain or a mix-up in how brain cells communicate with each other. We don't know.

A transient ischemic attack, a ministroke, is clearly a sign of a brief blockage of blood flow to the brain. More serious than transient amnesia, it can be a prelude to other attacks or a full stroke. Possible signs include a transient numbness, speech slurring and sight disturbance.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverport, NJ 08077-5539.

Digital media company specializes in software for girls

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Technology wasn't exactly Laura Groppe's main interest.

Not while studying philosophy at Virginia's Sweet Briar College. Not while teaching aerobics in Tokyo.

Not while winning an Oscar and several MTV Music Awards.

But while waiting in a Los Angeles garage to have car's oil changed, she noticed a computer store across the street.

By the time the mechanics were done, she had a laptop she needed to figure out how to use.

Four years later, Ms. Groppe is the head of Girl Games Inc., a cutting edge digital media company specializing in interactive software for girls, ages 7-17.

"There was certainly nothing out there that I would have purchased or been interested in as a young girl," said Ms. Groppe, who set aside her career as a co-producer and assistant director in Hollywood to start the Austin-based company.

"The logical step was to fill the void and produce really good interactive entertainment for girls."

Interactive computer software has grown into a $1.5 billion industry based on content produced almost exclusively for 8- to 12-year-old boys and 18- to 34-year-old men, Ms. Groppe said, adding that there had been no financial incentive for companies to expand the market.

"There were never women in the technical fields that were in positions of software design and creation on a massive level," she said. "So, the people creating the new content weren't considering the female audience."

With the growth of personal computers in the home, parents are attempting to justify a $2,000 purchase by finding software for all members of the family, especially the kids, Ms. Groppe said.

So Girl Games has entered the market with its initial product, a CD-ROM titled "Let's Talk About ME!" The game, which retails for $29.95, is drawing rave reviews from parents and, more importantly, girls. The software is sassy, hip, educational, set to music and loaded with advice on everything from fashion to dream interpretation.

There are question-and-answer games that explore relationships, self-image, personality and potential. Candid interviews with 23 well-known women of the 90s reveal their own experiences ranging from their first job to their first menstrual period.

The program even comes with a "panic button," a feature that blackens the screen so a pesky brother can't peek at a secret diary entry.

"It's got all the stuff like in Seventeen magazine," said Bryce Strickland, a 15-year-old member of one of the company's all-girl focus groups. "It helps you be informed about things you might be too embarrassed to ask questions about."

Mary Melhado, a 16-year-old Austin student, said, "Most computer games are combat games where everyone gets blown away. Guys can play that for hours, but it's boring to me just to look at."

By the end of this year, 6 million

U.S. households with girls 8 to 18 are expected to be equipped with multimedia PCs, according to industry estimates. And the U.S. Department of Commerce says that pre-teen and teen-age girls in the U.S. spend roughly $57 billion annually.

While the market is lucrative, Ms. Groppe says Girl Games will remain committed to products that help girls get through the tribulations of puberty that often cause drops in self-esteem.

"One of the results of that drop in self-esteem is a drop in the use of technology and math and science," Ms. Groppe said.

"If we can create activities and environments that are fun that help get a girl through her body's changes and finding her identity, and do it on a computer, we are helping on both fronts."

Girl Games will release a follow-up to "Let's Talk About ME!" and a CD-ROM collaboration with Mattel Inc., the maker of Barbie dolls, next year.

"When we go out looking for developers, it's hard for us to find people who know what makes girls tick," said Nancie S. Martin, director of girls' software development at Mattel. "Girl Games does focus groups and understands that girls want to be appreciated for who they are. They are not trying to do boys' products that are pink."

John Hough, a spokesman for Egghead, Inc., a Spokane, Wash.-based computer retail chain with 157 outlets across the country, said, "The products for girls really started to become available in the last six months."

"There are several new titles, all of which are doing well, including 'Let's Talk About ME!,'" Hough said.

Ms. Groppe says her work as a film producer helped her focus in on the entertainment value of her products.

She shared a Best Short Film Oscar in 1992 for "Session Man" and four 1994 MTV Video Awards for R.E.M.'s "Everybody Hurts" before moving back to Houston, where she grew up, to begin developing Girl Games.

Ms. Groppe ultimately chose Austin for the company's headquarters because of its formidable presence of high-tech research and development.

"It's hard to feel like you are doing something special and have ownership in a lot of the movies that you're working on," Ms. Groppe said. "There are six in-house employees at Girl Games, and every morning we wake up and come to work, knowing that every minute of our day is spent on making a difference in a little girl's life."

Turn leftovers into new meal

By The Associated Press
If you serve turkey on Christmas, you probably have leftovers the following day. In the recipe below, oil-packed, sun-dried tomatoes are teamed with leftover turkey, broccoli and pasta in an easy-to-make casserole. Sun-dried tomatoes are very different from canned tomatoes, so do not substitute one for the other. The recipe is from "The Butterball Turkey Cookbook" (Hearst Books, 1992).

Day-After Turkey Divan

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 bunch scallions, trimmed and finely chopped
5 cloves garlic, minced
24 sun-dried tomatoes packed in oil, drained and cut into slivers
12 ounces vermicelli
1 large bunch broccoli, tender stalks and florets cooked until just tender

4 cups chopped cooked turkey
3/4 cup crumbled blue cheese
5 large eggs
2-1/2 cups half-and-half
1 tablespoon dried tarragon
1-1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/2 cup dried bread crumbs tossed with 2 tablespoons melted unsalted butter or margarine

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Butter a shallow 2-1/2 quart casserole or lasagna pan.

Heat the olive oil in a small heavy skillet over medium-high heat. Add the scallions and cook, stirring for 3 to 4 minutes or until softened. Add the sun-dried tomatoes and cook for 1 minute more.

Cook the vermicelli in boiling salted water according to package directions until just tender. Drain the vermicelli. Combine the drained pasta with the cooked vegetables in a large bowl. Gently stir in the broccoli, turkey and blue cheese.

Beat the eggs with the half-and-half until well combined. Stir in the tarragon, salt and pepper. Pour the mixture over the pasta mixture, combining well. Turn into the prepared casserole and sprinkle the buttered bread crumbs over the top. Bake for 40 to 45 minutes, until lightly crusted and hot. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Deck the halls with Martha Stewart

Martha Stewart demonstrates her continued commitment to making the world a more appealing place in Martha Stewart: Home for the Holidays. Miss Piggy joins Stewart around the holiday hearth for the second consecutive year of the special, airing Tuesday on CBS.

By Jocelyn Beard
©TVData Features Syndicate

Happy homemakers and those with an eye for seasonal detail rejoice: Martha Stewart is right on time with her second prime-time holiday special.

Martha Stewart: Home for the Holidays airs Tuesday, Dec. 10, on CBS.

The program features an amusing trio of guest stars: Dennis Franz (NYPD Blue), Michael Jordan (Space Jam) and the inimitable Miss Piggy of Muppets fame.

The ghosts of Christmas Past, Christmas Present and Christmas Absolutely Fabulous? America's anointed lifestyle guru welcomes this eclectic trio — plus an assortment of family and friends — into her Westport, Conn., home for an exhaustive session of baking, stringing, wrapping and decking of halls.

"We had a lot of fun," Stewart says. "There are lots of projects for everybody."

"This year we went outside and learned how to pick out the perfect Christmas tree. We also learned how to light our tree with unusual lights."

This holiday how-to special finds Stewart hosting a children's tree-trimming party at the New York Athletic Club.

When NBA superstar Jordan makes an appearance, you can just bet the kids go wild.

"Michael is very charming," Stewart says. "And great with kids. He's certainly into the Christmas spirit!" With the recently released Space Jam a success in theaters, why shouldn't he be?

Back in Westport, Franz makes an appearance. "Something very funny happens with Dennis," says Stewart, politely refusing to offer any more information, not wanting to spoil the fun.

"I can tell you this: It's very, very amusing."

Noting that Franz helps Martha prepare holiday drinks, one can only wait and wonder.

Those who watched last year's special undoubtedly will recall Miss Piggy's appearance as the guest who won't just be quiet and let Stewart make the gingerbread house. The porcine diva's no homemaker and doesn't care who knows it. "Miss Piggy has a lot to say," Stewart says, "but she doesn't like to get her hands, well, hooves dirty."

Miss Piggy fans and fashion-watchers take note: The Muppet is evidently sporting a new look guaranteed to mesmerize and dazzle — or so claims her publicist.

It's surprising media-savvy Stewart would invite the wisecracking pig back.

Last year Miss Piggy flirted outrageously with Stewart's friend, an unsuspecting builder invited by to help with the construction of the gingerbread house.

The slanderous Muppet even suggested that the editor in chief of Martha Stewart Living magazine drinks from plastic glasses with the logos rubbed off!

Doubtless having a forgiving nature is an integral part of being the perfect hostess. My advice for Stewart: Keep an eye on those royal icing snowflake ornaments!

Martha Stewart: Home for the Holidays provides an excellent opportunity for those not satisfied with a store-bought wreath and a few candles to learn a few tricks from the master of finicky-domestic perfection.

So grab your wreath wire, glue gun and pastry bag, because it's time to don some gay apparel and light the yule log — Martha Stewart-style, of course.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ December 8-14 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
 Things aren't exactly where you want them on the job? Practice patience. It's OK to do the same thing over and over again; this kind of work ethic pays off in the long run. Socially, it's time to meet new people. A Sagittarian makes a friendly overture on Wednesday. Accept.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
 Too much work and no play isn't good for anyone, Taurus. Especially not for someone who's been going at it for as long and hard as you have. Take a break. Use this week to plan a special trip — and make it a long one. There will be plenty of time for work when you return!

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
 If finances aren't looking too good this week, it may be time to make a new plan. Take time out to budget your expenses for the month — or the year. Feeling creative? Make a flowchart, and note where unaccounted-for pennies are going. You'll probably be surprised with the outcome.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
 This is not the week to be your usual practical self. It's a week to treat yourself right. Work stressing you out? Call in sick, and enjoy some downtime. Your romantic outlook is good for the coming weeks, but move slowly if you want to secure victories in matters of the heart.

LEO - July 23/August 23
 You seem to be doing a lot of talking lately, Leo, and not enough listening. Wise up. A Gemini friend comes to you for career advice on Tuesday. You have the chance for a starring role this week behind the scenes, instead of in the spotlight, like you're accustomed to. Don't blow it.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
 Work isn't everything. Practice telling yourself that over and over again this week. You'll find things changing from stressful to dull often. That's OK. Don't forget you can make your own challenges outside the workplace. Plan things to look forward to. New romance looks promising.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
 Slow down, Libra. You're trying too hard to do too many things — romance, work, friends, family, hobbies and downtime. There's time for it all, but not in one day. Use this week to take time out for yourself. The weekend is a great time to focus on romance, but if things don't go the way you want on Saturday, don't force it. Instead, let go.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
 Romance not going your way? Things can change this week, but it's up to you. Are you going to keep dwelling on the past, or will you look to the future for happiness? It's your choice. Don't know where to look? Check right under your nose. You'll like what you see.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
 Got the blues? Try not to give in. Focus on things that make you feel happy. It's a great time to make efforts in health and fitness. Start a diet. Go to the gym. Maybe even look into signing up for a class. Just don't be afraid to put yourself first this week. It's a wise investment.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
 Tired of trying to please an impossible boss? Don't. Do things as you know how, and let him/her fix the rest. And, definitely don't take the aggravation home with you. Also, if your boss happens to be a Taurus, watch out for meddling. Know where to draw the line, and stand by it.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
 It's your own fickleness that's driving you crazy. Figure out what you really want. Trying new things has never been hard for you. It's sticking to them that's your problem. Advice? Slow down, and set aside a period of time for that new activity — and don't back down until the time's up.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
 Feel like you're just going through the motions in romance? Bring your heart back into the picture. Tuesday, you're hit with some serious relationship questions. Think before you answer. Honesty and sincerity are the only ways to obtain the closeness you so desire. Weigh your options carefully.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
OTVData Features Syndicate

Melinda McGraw

A: Who played Dana Scully's sister, Melissa, on 'The X-Files'? I cannot place her. -Jennifer Rowland, Berkeley, Calif.

A: Melissa, who was murdered last season, was played by Melinda McGraw, who starred in last season's NBC flop 'The Pursuit of Happiness.' You may also remember her as detective Cyd Madison on 'The Commish' and Rebecca Travis on the short-lived medical drama 'The Human Factor.'

A theater veteran, McGraw also has made guest appearances on 'Quantum Leap,' 'Night Court' and 'Seinfeld.'

Q: I heard that former 'Family Feud' host Ray Combs had been crippled in an auto accident. Is this true? -M.R.W., North Port, Fla.

A: Shortly after Combs lost his 'Family Feud' job, he sustained serious injuries in an auto accident. He recovered and worked for several months hosting the Family Channel game show 'Family Challenge.'

He suffered an emotional breakdown earlier this year following several poor financial investments and the collapse of his marriage. Combs was hospitalized after he attempted suicide, but later hanged himself at the facility. His wife and children were left almost penniless.

Q: As a child I watched an actor named Gordon McCray on a TV show in which he played the captain of a boat called the Tiki. What was the name of the show, and what has become of this actor? -Clara Turner, Cave City, Ky.

A: You're thinking of Gardner McKay, who played Capt. Adam Troy in 'Adventures in Paradise,' an ABC adventure series that ran from Oct. 5, 1959, to April 1, 1962.

On the show, Capt. Troy was a Korean War veteran who skippered a freelance schooner, the Tiki, from Hong Kong to Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific.

McKay made a movie, 'I Sailed to Tahiti With an All-Girl Crew,' in 1968, but later left acting in favor of writing plays.

Q: My mother and I watch 'The Big Easy' on the USA Network. Did Susan Walters, who plays attorney Anne Osborne, play Priscilla Presley in 'Elvis and Me'? What happened to that movie? -R.V., Vineland, N.J.

A: Yes, that was Walters in 'Elvis and Me,' which is available on video. Walters also played Mary Beth Sutton on the Judd Hirsch sitcom 'Dear John,' as well as Lorna Forbes on the soap opera 'Loving.'

Q: My friend insists that 'Forever Knight,' the Canadian series about a vampire cop, was canceled. I say it wouldn't end without some hype and will be back. Who's right? -Curious in Connecticut.

A: Your friend.

SOAP WORLD

Romance is alive in Patrick's Notebook

By Candace Havens
OTVData Features Syndicate

A cozy fire, a book of romantic poetry and a sexy Irishman. These are the makings of a wonderful scene for a soap opera.

Now it is easier than ever to play out that scene in the privacy of your own home. Oh, you'll have to provide the cozy fire, but ABC can help with the poetry and sexy Irishman.

Patrick's Notebook is the diary of Patrick Thornhart (Thorsten Kaye) on One Life to Live. It was recently released to bookstores, just in time for the holiday season.

"The book tells the story of Patrick and Margaret (Susan Haskell) during their first year together," Kaye says. "It's a journal and it is his view of their relationship."

"It's also filled with the poetry of most of the romantics. It includes Shakespeare, Yeats, Shelley ... all the big boys are in there."

Executives at ABC say the book also will appeal to those who are not regular viewers.

"It's a wonderful love story and collection of classic romantic poetry," says Angela Shapiro, senior vice president for marketing and promotion.

There is a cassette tape included with Kaye reading the poems. "I also wrote a few of the poems to go in the book," Kaye says. "I told them I'd like to have a shot at it because I'm closer to Patrick than anyone else. Fortunately, they let me."

When he came on the scene a year ago, Kaye wasn't prepared to become a heartthrob on daytime television. It does help that he has a great appreciation of women, but the whole idea of being a sex symbol surprises him.

"I come from a background in repertory theater," Kaye says. "It was strange to come into something like this."

Working on daytime is one of the toughest jobs in the acting business, and Kaye knows it. "In theater, things move quickly, but you have weeks to rehearse. Here, you get the script, and then you do it. The hardest part is you never know how it is going to end."

The four-eyed blenny, a fish found only on the Galapagos Islands, can slither as much as 150 feet inland in search of food.

Jim McKay holds the Olympic record for time in the anchor booth. He was ABC's host of the 1968, '72, '76, '80 (winter) and '84 Games.

Three Olympic athletes share the record for most gold medals won: Larissa Latynina, Paavo Nurmi and Mark Spitz each have nine.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

Now newly revised and better than ever!

Shearer Publishing is pleased to announce its new edition of THE ROADS OF TEXAS. We have added dozens of country roads, lanes, cowtrails, and put new names or numbers on hundreds of others, names like Good Luck Road (Guadalupe County), Seven Sisters Drive (Kendall County), and Lone Star Alley (Menard County). Altogether, the new edition identifies more than 25,000 state and county highways and byways, and the bright new cover features current scenic photographs from around the state. THE ROADS OF TEXAS is different from any other road atlas, with more detail, more historical travel information, more heart. It has proven especially popular with the curious traveler inclined toward a little adventure, who doesn't mind getting to Aunt Martha's house just a bit late.
