Holly optimistic about future of sugar beet plant in Hereford

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

Holly Sugar Corp. President Roger Hill was optimistic about the future of the sweetener industry and the Hereford processing plant as he spoke at the annual business meeting of the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association in the Hereford Community Center Friday.

More than 100 growers, researchers and agribusinessmen attended the meeting.

"We have a good market for your sugar. We have one of the highest nets in the country, and we have one of the better factories in the country. And that combination can generate a lot of revenue for all of us," he said.

The 1996 season was a setback for Holly Sugar. With only 14,000 acres harvested, the Hereford plant operated at 37 percent capacity, Hill said.

"It's been four years since we have made a profit at this plant," he said.

But, Holly Sugar does not like to shut down plants unless it becomes necessary because when a plant shuts down, it doesn't reopen, Hill said.

Holly Sugar and the TNMSBGA have been working on 1997 acreage commitments. The sugar company recently announced the Hereford plant will remain in operation at least another year.

Approximately 20,000 acres have been committed, which falls 5,000 acres short of the goal, he said.

"I want to thank all those growers who were able to make those commitments early. It helped us make our decision early. And I think that was best for the industry," Hill said.

Since it did not meet its goal, the association is still working on more acreage commitments, TNMSBGA President Kenneth Frye said.

"I would like to see us get to the 35,000 acre range. We think that's an area that all of us can do well at," Hill said.

And there is good news for the sugar beet growers, he said.

Holly Sugar has increased the initial payments to growers at harvest to 80 percent. In 1996, growers received an initial payment of 75 percent at harvest, Hill said.

In 1995 and 1996, the U.S. beet crop was down almost everywhere, which meant a slight increase in sugar prices, he said.

The demand for sugar is steadily growing at two percent a year. And since it would be difficult for the industry to expand at that rate, prices are expected to remain strong.

Prices are up $3 to $4 per hundred-weight on sugar beets, Hill said.

Frye of Easter and Randy Wieck of Dawn were re-elected to serve as directors.

J.C. Pohlmeier of Nazareth, who recently retired from the board of directors, received a plaque for his work with the association.

Holly Sugar Agricultural Manager Dennis Printz announced the 1996 high quality growers, which is based upon the producers' contracts, yields and sugar contents.

The following high quality growers from each growing region were recognized:

Charles and Kenneth Meyers, Factory northwest, 25.3 tons per acre, 14.81 percent sugar content; A.J. Urbanczyk, Factory southwest, 23.2 tons, 14.56 percent sugar; Stanley Friemel, Dawn, 14.2 tons, 15.38 percent sugar; and JHF Farms (Joe Flood), Friona, 18.3 tons, 14.87 percent sugar.

Junior stock show starts here Wednesday

Rhiana wants another buckle, but stock show contests tough

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

Rhiana Noland, wearing a silver and gold Grand Champion Hog belt buckle, wants to win another buckle at the Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show this year.

The annual HYF show begins Wednesday and ends with the auction Saturday.

Rhiana showed the County Grand Champion Hog last year.

To win the buckle, she will have to show against some tough hog exhibitors.

Her toughest competition may be her older brother, Landon.

The Nolands are the children of Joe Don and Micah Noland. Rhiana, 10, attends Walcott School. Noland, 14, attends Hereford Junior High School.

They are raising six hogs for the HYF show and the San Antonio Livestock Exposition. Rhiana will show "Spot," "Racket," and "Little Red." Landon will show "Babe," "Big Red," and "Blue."

The Nolands are members of Lady Bugs 4-H Club, in which their mother is the club leader.

Besides raising hogs, Rhiana is active in the arts and crafts project and food and nutrition project. She is the club's council delegate and served as the club's president last year. She also plays basketball and baseball.

Landon plays in the HJH band, basketball, and baseball.

Their older brother, Ryan, does not show hogs. He is a senior at Hereford High School. He is the drum major of the "Mighty Maroon" Marching Band and plays basketball and baseball.

Rhiana and Landon have shown hogs for three years. In those three years, the Nolands have been in the winner's circle many times.

Rhiana won the Champion OPB (Other Pure Breeds) plaque at the 1997 4-H Project Show, where she beat her brother. Landon won the Reserve Champion OPB plaque.

And it was about time, Rhiana said, because Landon has shown the Grand Champion Hog in the 1995 and 1996 4-H Project Shows.

"It felt kinda good to beat him," she said.

The Nolands, who bought their pigs several months ago, spend one to two hours each day working with their animals.

Much of that time is spent grooming, walking and feeding the hogs, Rhiana said.

And since the hogs have become such pets to the family, she said, she often feeds her hogs hard candies.

The hog breeder where the Nolands purchased their animals started his baby hogs on the "Smarties" candies, Rhiana said.

"Last year, I had a hog named Jolly that would jump up on the fence to get a Jolly Rancher," she said.

However, Landon said, raising show hogs takes more responsibility than family pets.

The Nolands have learned to accept the responsibility that comes with 4-H animal projects.

"4-H teaches you how to take care of a hog and it is a lot of fun," Rhiana said.

Whether she wins a buckle or not, Rhiana said, she still will have a good time showing her hog.

Speaking with optimism

Building permits down from 1995

BY MARTIN OCHOA
Staff Reporter

After a strong year of new construction activity in 1995, there was a decrease in home and commercial building value and permits issued in 1996.

Building permits for 1995 totaled $4,259,975, whereas in 1996, the 130 building permits totalled $3,166,835.

There were 33 commercial building permits issued, amounting to $2,333,202 and 97 home permits issued, amounting to $833,633.

Checking the amount of home and commercial building permits issued out in a year and comparing it to the previous year is just one of the ways to measure the economic health in a community.

There were two permits issued out in 1996 that were the most noticeable.

The first one was the $700,000 commercial permit for renovation and remodeling of the old bowling alley at 125 West Parkway into a medical clinic.

The second was the permit for the Hereford High tennis courts at a value of $177,527.

Beginning the year in January of 1996, four building permits were issued at a total value of $250,000. In January 1995, a higher number of permits, nine, were issued at a total value of $623,500.

February of 1996 had nine permits issued at a total value of $251,327. February of 1995 had the lesser number of permits than 1996. A total of five permits were issued at a total value of $852,372.

March of 1996 was a slower month than 1995. Seven permits were issued in 1996 at a total of $22,800, while in March of 1995, the 11 issued permits were valued at $263,570.

April of 1996 had 11 permits issued at a total of $61,500 yet back in April of 1995, eight permits were issued at a total value of $151,950.

In May of 1996, 15 permits were issued, adding up to a total value of $39,600. In the previous year, May of 1995 showed a drop down to 10

Lawmaker criticizes Texas Rural Legal Aid for lawsuit participation

By JUAN B. ELIZONDO Jr. Associated Press Writer AUSTIN (AP) - A state lawmaker says Texas Rural Legal Aid is participating in a racist, partisan and prejudicial lawsuit and should be cut off from the money it gets from a state program.

Sen. Jerry Patterson, R-Pasadena, is chairman of the Senate Veteran's Affairs and Military Installations Committee. He's criticizing Texas Rural Legal Aid, a legal services group for indigent Texans, for its part in a lawsuit challenging ballots cast by military personnel in two Val Verde County elections last November.

Patterson on Friday said he's considering legislation to strip the group of funding from a state program.

"It's ironic that TRLA has attempted to have the results of November's elections overturned based upon the ballots cast by military personnel when the right to vote has been secured by the efforts and blood of thousands of military veterans like these," he said.

A federal judge in San Antonio has blocked two Republicans from taking office as Val Verde County sheriff and county commissioner. The county is located along the Texas-Mexico border, between San Antonio and the Big Bend.

The judge's temporary injunction was issued after TRLA challenged last November's elections, saying the results were improperly decided by mail-in votes from hundreds of out-of-town military personnel.

Those voters should have received ballots only for federal offices, not for state, county or local races, TRLA contends.

The out-of-town voters - almost all of whom haven't lived in Val Verde County for at least two years, some for more than a decade - are diluting the voting strength of mostly Hispanic residents, said TRLA executive director David Hall.

TRLA is slated to get $867,081 by the end of June from a state program.

The Interest on Lawyers' Trust Accounts program collects interest on short term accounts set up by Texas attorneys. The legally required program distributes about $5 million a year to groups providing legal services for the poor.

"There's no state funding in the Val Verde case and there's no IOLTA funding," Hall said.

"This case has nothing to do with politics," he added. "We're representing a voter, not a candidate, who wants to cast her ballot and have it fairly counted."

Hall said his group has spent several thousand dollars on the Val Verde case. He said the money has come from federal funding, which also is under fire.

Hall said Patterson's idea to pull

IOLTA funding would leave as many as 3,000 indigent Texans without legal representation.

"I'm sorry the senator feels that we have offended folks in this lawsuit," Hall said. "We are simply trying to enforce the state law."

Meanwhile, Attorney General Dan Morales announced Friday that he's seeking permission to get involved in the case.

Morales said he's not taken a position on the matter.

In Central Texas

School board endorses voucher system

AUSTIN (AP) - A plan to allow parents in a Central Texas school district to get public money for their children's private-school education has drawn attention from a Nobel laureate and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Nobel-laureate economist Milton Friedman likes the idea. The ACLU doesn't.

They're the latest to weigh in a battle that pits school-choice proponents against those who oppose using tax funds to pay for private school tuition. Lake Travis ISD is the first in the state to propose a voucher program.

The school board endorsed the plan Nov. 4 contingent on a number of factors, including action by the Texas Education Agency to ensure the district wouldn't be financially penalized. TEA is reviewing the plan.

"You are blazing a path that will lead to a major improvement in the quality of our educational system as other communities follow your example," Friedman said in a letter to Superintendent Gloria Berry of Lake Travis Independent School District.

But ACLU Executive Director Jay Jacobson urged the school district to reconsider its Parents as Partners Scholarship Program.

"This scheme results in the state sponsorship of religious education and is a blatant violation" of the U.S. and Texas constitutions, Jacobson said. "The purpose of both the U.S. and Texas Constitutions is to ensure that the government does not spend money to support religious institutions," he said in the letter, which adds, "litigation is certain to follow if this plan is approved."

The San Antonio-based Texas Justice Foundation released both letters Friday, along with a promise to defend the program against any lawsuit. The foundation added that a lawsuit now would be premature since a final decision on implementing the program hasn't been made.

The foundation, which supports issues including school choice, describes itself as a nonprofit, public-interest litigation group representing people at no charge in cases of limited government, free markets, property rights and parental rights.

"It is a sad day in Texas when the ACLU threatens a school district for expanding parents' rights and liberties," said Allan Parker, foundation president.

"This is a local option plan which expands choice, saves money for the district, relieves overcrowding and increases per-pupil spending in the district's schools," he said.

Under the plan, Lake Travis ISD would provide scholarships in the form of tuition reimbursement for students to attend public or accredited private schools that meet certain requirements.

The amount of the scholarship would be designated later. Among other requirements, scholarship students would have to take the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills exam.

Typical adult lottery player wages $12 per week on gambling games

AUSTIN (AP) - Seven of 10 adult Texans like to take a chance on the lottery, a new study said Thursday. The typical player reported wagering about $12 per week on the lottery's gambling games, which generated $3.4 billion in sales last year.

The study conducted for the Texas Lottery Commission also concluded that those with the lowest levels of education and the smallest incomes were among those less likely to play.

"Not only are Texans who fall within these lower income and education groups significantly less likely to participate in the lottery, they represent a relatively small proportion of our player base," said Zoann Attwood, the lottery's acting director.

The 4-year-old Texas Lottery has set a number of records for fast growth and now alternates with New York's as the nation's largest lottery. In 1996, the lottery paid $1.9 billion in prizes and produced $1.1 billion in profit for the state treasury.

The report issued Thursday was based on a survey of 1,716 Texans aged 18 and older. The survey was conducted by the University of Texas-Austin last September. It had a margin of error of plus or minus 2.4 percentage points.

The survey found that 70 percent of adult Texans said they purchased a ticket in the preceding year. That compared with 71 percent in 1994 and 64 percent in 1992, the Texas lottery's initial year.

The typical player reported spending about $12 per week, or $636 a year.

However, lottery spokesman Steve Levine said actual sales figures indicate that players spend an average of $362 annually.

The difference appears due to using self-reported figures and extending them out over a whole year, Levine said. For example, a $1 per week error in what a player told an interviewer he spent would be a $52 difference when computed as an annual figure, he said.

The largest section of the population, 64 percent, reported playing the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, which offers million-dollar prizes.

Fifty-five percent reported that they played the lottery's scratch-card games, 29 percent played the Cash 5 lotto game, and 16 percent played the Pick 3 daily numbers game.

Those most likely to take a chance were between 26 and 66 years old, with more than 73 percent playing.

Those over 67 were the least likely to play, with 53 percent reporting lottery purchases last year.

The survey found that 75 percent of Texans with a high school diploma or some college were likely to play. Sixty percent of those who didn't finish high school said they played, and 68 percent of college graduates bought tickets.

As for income, 57 percent of Texans making less than $10,000 played, while 71 percent of those making $10,000 to $19,999 a year played. The most likely income groups to play were those making $20,000 to 29,999 - 76 percent - and $30,000 to $49,999 - 78 percent. Seventy-four percent of those making more than $50,000 played.

The study said there is "very little difference among the races concerning the incidence with which each plays the Texas Lottery."

Approximately 75 percent of men play, while 65 percent of women do.

Bullock renews call for review of 'Robin Hood' funding plan

AUSTIN (AP) - The "Robin Hood" school funding law doesn't just take from rich people, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said Friday as he renewed his call for lawmakers to review the measure.

The law requires the 91 Texas school districts with the most property wealth to share about $350 million in taxes with the rest of the school system. That's out of 1,044 Texas school districts, and more than $9 billion in school property taxes.

According to an analysis from Bullock, 54 of the 91 districts have per-capita personal income below the state average of $19,716.

"This pokes a hole in the idea that many so-called rich districts are filled with rich people," Bullock said. "Property wealth that can come from a major industry, a plant or oil wells does not always mean the people are rich."

"That is as good a reason as any to re-examine the state's Robin Hood school funding law. It's good evidence that the system is not the fairest way to fund education," he said.

The analysis came as no surprise to lawyer Al Kauffman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, who represented low-wealth school districts in their successful court battle for more equitable funding.

That lawsuit resulted in the share-the-wealth law after previous plans were found unconstitutional by the Texas Supreme Court.

"The point of the tax-sharing plan was not to penalize rich people for being rich. It was to make all the property in the state equally used to support the state's school finance system," Kauffman said.

While people in high property-wealth school districts may not be rich, their property tax rates were lower than other Texans' before the share-the-wealth plan took effect, Kauffman said.

"They saved tremendously on their own property taxes. In addition, the old system allowed the oil companies and the utility companies to avoid paying their fair share of taxes for the state system," he said.

Major beneficiaries of doing away with the share-the-wealth plan would be large property owners, such as oil and utility companies, and "very, very wealthy families," Kauffman said.

There is a concentration of low-income people in the poorest school districts, he added.

In the 5 percent of school districts with the least property wealth, 80 percent of students were from families below the poverty level, according to evidence presented during a trial in the school funding lawsuit.

Bullock said since property-tax relief is a key issue this legislative session, "that should go hand-in-hand with a close review of school funding formulas."

"Our goal should be a formula that is fair, equitable and effective," he said.

Bullock's push comes as Gov. George W. Bush calls on lawmakers to approve property-tax relief.

Kauffman said it would be possible to do away with the share-the-wealth plan and maintain a constitutional system.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says love is when you know you were made for each other; marriage is when you start making alterations.

People begin cutting their wisdom teeth the first time they bite off more than they can chew.

Today's paper includes a special section promoting the annual Hereford Young Farmers Stock Show. We hope our readers will take time to peruse these pages and learn more about this fine project for the youth.

Hereford always puts on a great junior stock show, and it takes the time and talents of many people.

The annual Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers meeting and banquet were held Friday and Saturday. With the High Plains Vegetable Conference coming up Tuesday, and the Corn Growers Association annual meeting set Friday in Dimmitt, it should remind us that we live in a great agribusiness area.

There are many things that make us wonder. Many of the great questions of life are asked in the coffee shop.

For instance, C of C Manager Don Cumpston wants to know why a dress has a "hemline" instead of a "herline."

There are other great questions to ponder:

—Why do "fat chance" and "slim chance" mean the same thing?

—Why does your nose "run" and your feet "smell"?

—If 75 percent of all accidents happen within five miles of home, why not move further away?

—Why is it called a TV "set" when you only get one? —Why do they sing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" when they are already at the stadium?

Negative thinking can be infectious. Gene Dow, in the Seminole Sentinel, lists 12 excuses for lousy business.

January—People spent all their cash for the holidays.

February—All the best customers have gone to warmer climates.

March—Unseasonably cold, and too rainy.

April—Everybody's preoccupied with income tax reports.

May—Too much rain; farmers are distressed.

June—Too little rain; farmers distressed.

July—Heat has everyone down.

August—Everybody has started taking vacations.

September—Everybody back from vacation but broke.

October—Customers waiting to see how fall clearance sales turn out.

November—People are too upset over elections.

December—Customers need their money for the holidays.

Being optimistic, too, can rub off on others. Roy McQueen, in the Snyder Daily News, has a few suggestions for the new year.

—Make up your mind to be happy.

—Don't take yourself too seriously.

—Don't fret about criticism; you can't please everyone.

—Don't let others set your standards, be yourself.

—Don't borrow trouble. Imaginary things are harder to bear than the actual ones.

—Keep busy at something. A busy person doesn't have time to be unhappy.

County wants 'hell' out of town, adopts 'Heaven-o' as new greeting

By KELLEY SHANNON Associated Press Writer

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) - In this friendly little ranching town, "Hello" is wearing out its welcome. And Leonso Canales Jr. is happy as heck.

At his urging, the Kleberg County commissioners on Monday unanimously designated "Heaven-o" as the county's official greeting.

The reason: "Hello" contains the word "Hell."

"When you go to school and church, they tell you 'hell' is negative and 'heaven' is positive," said the 56-year-old Canales, who owns the Kingsville Flea Market. "I think it's time that we set a new precedent, to tell our kids that we are positive adults."

The new salutation, according to the county resolution, is a "symbol of peace, friendship and welcome" in this "age of anxiety."

On Thursday, courthouse employees were answering the phones, "Heaven-o." And the chamber of commerce was working on a campaign promoting Kingsville, a Rio Grande Valley town of 25,000, as a "heavenly" place to visit.

"People seem to think that it might catch on," said county Judge Pete De La Garza.

The county boasts the 826,000-acre King Ranch, the most famous in Texas. The ranch raises its own breed of cattle, grows grain and cotton and has saddle-shop craftsmen who produce leather bags and luggage bearing its brand.

Not everyone is a convert to Kleberg County's heavenly ways.

"It's different. I really haven't heard many people using it, though," said Lisa Lopez, an assistant manager at a convenience store.

Maddolyn Musick, who runs a bookstore, took issue with Canales. She insisted - and linguists would agree - that "hello" has nothing to do with "hell." Besides, she added, "What's wrong with, 'Howdy, y'all!'"

Canales is flexible: "Hi" is OK.

So is "Hola," a Spanish salutation. Canales, a Catholic but not a regular churchgoer, has been as serious as heck about "Hello" since 1988, when he told his brother he might start greeting people with "God-o." His brother suggested "Heaven-o" instead.

In November, Canales stepped up his crusade to get the "hell" out of town. He bought classified ads in the Kingsville Record showing "Hello" scratched out and "Heaven-o" printed beneath it.

David Sabrio, a professor of English at Texas A&M University--

Kingsville, noted that the Oxford English Dictionary says "hello" stems from an old German greeting for hailing a boat.

"Linguistically and historically, the word 'hello' has no connection at all with what we associate with the underworld," he said. "People may make that connection in their own mind. I certainly don't."

No matter, Canales plans to mail dozens of letters to religious headquarters nationwide to get them to adopt "Heaven-o."

"They're the ones who should really jump on this," he said.

Business Mirror:

So you think DJ average too high?

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - A couple of decades ago when the Dow Jones average was struggling to stay above 1,000 points, an esteemed market analyst remarked at lunch that eventually it would reach and exceed 2,500 points.

The sound of the statement was like a clap of thunder, since the market had dilly-dallied for a decade around that 1,000-point mark, more inclined to fall than ascend very high above it.

Lightning preceded the thunder-clap, as it always does, but in this instance it was because the pronouncement came from Arnold Bernhard, founder of the Value Line Investment Survey and not inclined to overstatement.

Bernhard remarked to a listener that his intent in the remark was not to forecast 2,500 points - he was a conservative man not inclined to go that far out - but that it was nevertheless bound to happen some day.

It finally reached that mark in 1989, and though beset by occasional turbulence has risen since then at an astounding compound rate of more than 16 percent a year, leaving it climbing toward a lofty 7,000.

Should it continue to rise at that rate, which is what it's done for the past 16 years, the average would be at more than 25,000 points nine years from now. Cut the rate to 10 percent: It would reach 25,000 about 14 years from now.

But why cut the rate to "only" 10 percent? Because even Bill Gates and Microsoft can't continue to compound growth at rates prevailing when the company was smaller. It gets tougher and tougher as you grow bigger. Let us be realistic.

Then there is the law of the straight line, which declares that no road to wealth continues in a straight line for long. Sixteen years is already a very, very long time in the marketplace, and there are potholes in the road ahead.

There is, for example, the matter of unbalanced budgets and big household debts and Social Security and Medicare systems that are, euphemistically, "financially challenged." And, as they say, much, much more.

But investors are entitled now and then to good news, if only as relief from the constant anxiety. In that charitable mood, John Mauldin of ProFutures, an Austin, Texas, brokerage, put on his rose-colored glasses.

The popular stock market averages can continue to rise, says Mauldin if:

1. We see a balanced budget.
2. Greenspan heads the Federal Reserve for six more years.
3. Social Security is partially privatized.
4. The baby boom generation saves more.
5. Capital gains taxes are cut.
6. The trend to free trade and free markets continues.
7. Foreign investment capital finds a home in the United States.
8. Entrepreneurialism continues to grow.
9. Productivity grows.

It is difficult to determine if, or how strongly, Mauldin believes this can come to pass. "Clearly, I don't know the future," he concedes. Then he adds: "But for the first time in 20 years I think it is at least possible."

Gary Halbert, the company's president, doesn't think it is possible, and says he gets irritated at those who take for granted such things as budget balance and a rescued Medicare and Social Security.

"I don't think we'll get a balanced budget," he said. "I hope and pray I am wrong, and that John's rosy scenario comes to pass." But he said he was preparing a report on why the rosy scenario is not likely to happen.

Tex-Mex language claims feed growing debate

By RUSSELL GOLD
San Antonio Express-News
SAN ANTONIO - Trinity University Professor Scott Baird believes Tex-Mex, the blend of Spanish and English spoken in South Texas, is evolving into a distinct language.

He unearthed his proof in an unexpected locale: the graveyard. This unique premise is disputed by some of his fellow language experts, even if it hasn't sparked the kind of national furor inspired by the Ebonics issue.

Baird, a social linguist, studied the evolution of language on gravestones in family plots and found something telling.

Gravestones bearing a mixture of Spanish and English seem to persist for generations while earlier immigrant communities, like the Czech and German, abandoned their native languages in favor of English within three generations.

"The Spanish speakers in large numbers, significant numbers, are going back to the mixed code (of Spanish and English) and hanging on to it, fourth generation, fifth generation, sixth generation," Baird said at a lecture last week.

He thinks this indicates an unusual occurrence - the emergence of a new language.

The spoken version of Tex-Mex takes English words and adds Spanish conjugations and applies English grammatical rules, like word contraction, to a Spanish foundation. For instance, the expression "to back up" becomes "baquear pa'atras."

Baird's controversial claim is that Tex-Mex is a creole, an independent language that neither English nor Spanish speakers can readily understand.

Most other linguists regard it as a dialect of Spanish.

"I'm afraid that Professor Baird is barking up the wrong tree," said MaryEllen Garcia, associate professor of foreign languages at UTSA who has studied the Spanish spoken in San Antonio since 1990, the past three years with a National Science Foundation grant.

"In this case, speakers of Mexican Spanish do understand San Antonio Spanish," she said.

As demonstrated by the recent national flare-up over Ebonics a form of African-American vernacular English endorsed as a distinct language by the Oakland, Calif., school board the difference between a dialect and a language is a whole lot more than semantics. It often involves cultural pride and political ideology.

Also, Tex-Mex is sometimes viewed as "bad" English or "bad" Spanish. A stigma is attached to speaking it, much like Ebonics, or black English.

But Baird said that Tex-Mex, or Spanglish as he prefers, is a complex, evolved language that mixes words from English and Spanish. For example, the English "to park" has become "parquear," supplanting the word in formal Spanish. "estacion-ar."

San Antonio is a popular location for academics interested in studying Tex-Mex because it is near the floating, dividing line separating the Western hemisphere. To the north, there are 300 million English speakers. To the south, 400 million Spanish speakers.

In addition, linguists agree, Spanish and English mix here on a daily basis. And in many West Side conversations and on Tejano radio, the mixing often takes place in the same sentence.

"What you hear on (radio station ) KXTN is 'Escuche,' the popular song of the 'manana,'" said Robert Bayley, an assistant professor of bicultural-bilingual studies at UTSA.

"What happens with the language mixing is that you get something different. It becomes something of an identity marker for Texas and U.S. Latinos," he said. "You have to be brought up in that kind of community to do it right."

Baird, who speaks Japanese and wrote his doctoral dissertation on black English, said he realized what was happening while looking at a family plot in the San Fernando Cemetery.

The first generation's gravestones were in Spanish. The second generation mixed English and Spanish. The third generation was entirely in English, including changing the spelling of the name. The fourth generation, however, brought back the original spelling and wrote the epitaph in Spanish. It stuck.

Baird said there still is some natural confusion about how the languages are mixing.

"How did the combination of Arabic and Latin produce Spanish? The answer is, we don't know. How did Latin and German combine to produce French? We don't know," he said.

"And how is Spanish and English combining to produce a new Indo-European language? We don't know, but it is happening right here under our eyeballs."

New bills could affect access to information

By JUAN B. ELIZONDO Jr.
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - After now-exonerated Richard Jewel's experience as the only named summer Olympic bombing suspect, law enforcement agencies across the country appear to be taking extra precautions when naming names.

But state Rep. John Longoria wants even more caution on the part of Texas police agencies.

The San Antonio Democrat has pending before the Legislature a bill to require law enforcement officials to make a "reasonable effort" to verify that the name in any warrant is the wanted person's exact legal name, properly spelled and clearly distinguished from other similar names before the warrant is released.

Sen. Royce West - inspired by Dallas Cowboy Michael Irvin's experience as a named-then-cleared sexual assault suspect - says the state might consider a law giving the same anonymity to rape suspects not yet charged that is given to their accusers.

"It's totally unfair for anyone to have to go through that that has not been formally charged with a criminal offense - whether they're high profile, a celebrity as Michael Irvin is, or whether it's John Doe regular citizen," said West, D-Dallas. The lawmaker also is Irvin's attorney.

Irvin and fellow Cowboy Erik Williams were cleared of the sexual assault allegations leveled against them by 23-year-old Nina Shahravan, of Mesquite. She was charged last week with making a false report to police.

West said he will research the idea of protecting an uncharged suspect's name before proposing actual legislation.

Longoria said he's not attacking any police or Texans' right to obtain public information. But he said innocent people must be protected.

"It's not in anyway to impugn any agency," Longoria said. "All I'm saying is when you issue warrants, take reasonable efforts to provide specific information about that person."

But Longoria's idea has raised concern with public information advocates and law enforcement agencies. They say the proposal is unnecessary and could lead to other problems.

Jack Ryle, executive director of The Texas Police Association, said the proposal assumes police aren't taking precautions already.

Suzy Woodford, executive director of the government watchdog group Common Cause-Texas, said it could lead to more information being sealed from the public.

"I would want 'reasonable' defined to be sure that the information is public," Ms. Woodford said.

Longoria said he doesn't know anyone who has been falsely arrested or detained. His office hasn't lined up anyone to testify on behalf of the bill.

But he said he has heard from other people that the situation comes up often, especially in predominately Hispanic areas. He would not provide

President's old house for sale

MILFORD, Conn. (AP) - A beachfront house where Bill Clinton lived during his law school days is up for sale as a real estate footnote to history.

Clinton lived there as a Yale Law School student in 1970-71 - the year after he didn't inhale at Oxford.

"If the walls could talk, that would be good," said Mike Tarantino, whose real estate agency is listing the house.

Within the pine-paneled walls, Clinton practiced what he has become famous for as president - politics and eating junk food. Between classes, he helped on the unsuccessful congressional campaign and was known to whip up grilled cheese or fried eggs on the stove.

The place has stunning waterfront view, three bedrooms - Clinton's faced the street - and a $350,000 price tag.

The family who has owned the house since Clinton's days use it as a summer cottage.

Herd wins doubleheader over Caprock

J. Rampley, Davis spark 54-43 win

Hereford's Lady Whitefaces rolled up a 33-13 lead over Amarillo Caprock here Friday night, then held off a strong finish by the visitors to chalk up a 54-43 victory in District 1-4A action.

The triumph left Hereford with a 7-2 mark and firm hold on second place in the league behind Canyon. In other 1-4A games Friday, Randall beat Dumas, 54-33, and Borger downed Pampa, 63-55.

Hereford jumped to a 14-4 lead in the first quarter, then led by 20 points, 33-13, at halftime. Caprock didn't fold, however, and outscored Hereford in the second half.

Julie Rampley scored 14 of her game-high 22 points in the first half. Misti Davis followed with 13 points as the two sparked the offensive attack. Davis hit a pair of treys early in the game, and she was 5 of 6 from the free-throw line.

"Even with a big lead in the first half, we seemed to lose our concentration in the second half," said Hereford Coach Eddie Fortenberry.

"When Caprock got it down to a 7-point margin in the second half, I was a little concerned, and it was about the time that Rampley fouled out of the game," said Fortenberry.

The Lady Whiteface coach pointed out that a lot of fouls were called in the game, making it difficult to get in the flow of the game. "We got it done somehow, and right now the win is all we want."

Fortenberry added that "two big games are coming up and we have to face the fact that we're the team to beat. The other teams have nothing to lose and they'll be after us."

Susan Spann led the scoring for Caprock Friday night as she rang up 16 points for the visitors. She was the only Longhorn in double figures, however.

The junior varsity girls posted an easy 56-23 win in the preliminary contest. Lyndi Carlile led Hereford's scoring with 12 points, but 11 players joined the attack. Guzman had 9 points, while Albracht, Perrin and Cole each had 5. The JV girls have a 16-3 record on the season.

The Whiteface girls play at Borger Tuesday, then host Pampa here next Friday.

Walker on the fast break

Whiteface golf schedule released

Coach Stacy Bixler Friday released the Hereford Whiteface golf schedule for 1977.

Bixler reported the golf team has about 20 "straight golfers," boys and girls, and he expects about 5 to 10 more to turn out as the season starts. The golf schedule opens with the girls' team entered in the San Angelo Tournament Jan. 31-March 1. Both teams will be in a tourney at Big Spring Feb. 7-8. The tourney schedule continues through the Hereford Tournament March 21-22.

District 1-4A matches begin March 27 at the Palo Duro Creek course in Canyon, with both boys and girls in each of the district matches. Other matches are set for Pampa, Dumas and Amarillo.

HHS boys win defensive struggle by 37-36 count

BY CRAIG NIEMAN
Brand writer

On a night when they couldn't get their offensive attack going, Hereford's Whitefaces turned up their defensive efforts a notch and scored a close 37-36 win over the Caprock Longhorns here Friday in an important District 1-4A clash.

The triumph, coupled with Pampa's win over Borger, left the Herd tied for third place in the district race with Caprock and Pampa - all with 4-3 records. Randall leads with a 6-1 mark, and Canyon is second at 4-2.

Hereford took a 12-9 lead in the opening stanza, but Caprock came back to lead by 21-20 at halftime. The Whitefaces moved to a 33-28 advantage after three periods, but Caprock battled back in the final period.

"It was a struggle all night," said Coach Randy Dean. "It was our best defensive effort of the season. We did a great job stopping penetration and not letting their shooters get a good look at the basket."

Dean said both teams "will walk away and see where things could have gone different in places...we feel fortunate to get the win."

The Herd coach said the rest of the games are all important as Hereford battles for a playoff berth. The Herd plays at Borger Tuesday, and a win there would set up a big game against the surging Pampa Harvesters here next Friday.

Jonathan Keenan and Isaac Walker led Hereford's scoring with 12 and 11 points, respectively, in the victory Friday night. Caprock didn't have a player in double figures, as Quincy Nodine was the top scorer with 8 points.

After leading by five going into the final period, Hereford scored only 4 points in the fourth on baskets by Walker and Bryant McNutt. Caprock tallied 8 points in the late rally.

The teams were also even at the free-throw line, where Hereford converted on 6 of 9 and the Longhorns hit 7 of 10. Caprock hit three shots from 3-point range, while Keenan and McNutt had the only treys for the Whitefaces.

Hereford's junior varsity raced to a 45-27 win in a preliminary game. The win left the team with a 16-6 record and 4-2 in district.

Urbanczyk led Hereford with 15 points, while McNutt and Wagner each tallied 8 points.

Bulls' Rodman suspended, fined

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Dennis Rodman of the Chicago Bulls was suspended today without pay for at least 11 games and fined $25,000 for kicking a court-side photographer during a game at Minnesota.

It is the second-longest suspension in NBA history and second suspension for Rodman, the NBA's leading rebounder, this season.

The longest was a 26-game suspension given to Kermit Washington of the Los Angeles Lakers for punching Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich during a 1977 game.

During Rodman's suspension, he will be required to meet with a counselor designated by the NBA. A decision then will be made as to whether he can return to active status following the All-Star Game on Feb. 9.

"Until Dennis can provide meaningful assurances that he will conform his conduct on the playing court to acceptable standards - including not placing others at physical risk - his suspension will continue," NBA commissioner David Stern said in New York.

The suspension will cost Rodman about $1 million in salary and lost incentives, said Bulls general manager Jerry Krause. Included in the $9 million contract Rodman signed in the offseason was an incentive clause tied to the number of games he plays.

way out of line," said Rodman's agent, Dwight Manley. "There's no precedent for it whatsoever, and to say he needs professional help from a counselor is unfair. He's perfectly sane and cognizant, and besides, it's a team's job to attend to a player's mental affairs. And the Bulls are happy with his state of mind."

Rodman also could face assault charges from the incident, which occurred during the Bulls' 112-102 victory over the Timberwolves on Wednesday night.

Although the extent of cameraman

Eugene Amos' injuries weren't known, they weren't believed to be serious. He was treated and released at the hospital Wednesday night.

Clair Cole of the Minneapolis city attorney's office said charges wouldn't be filed before next week.

If an assault charge is filed, it most likely will be fifth-degree assault, a misdemeanor punishable by up to a year in jail and a $3,000 fine. Cases resulting in serious injuries can be upgraded to third-degree assault, a felony that carries a maximum sentence of five years and $10,000.

Patriot rookies played key role

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) - Teddy Bruschi recalls the uncertain days when he lived with other New England Patriots rookies in a motel near Foxboro Stadium, a long way from the Superdome and the Super Bowl.

How would they do in their first NFL season under Bill Parcells, who is not particularly fond of rookies? And how would the team do after struggling through a 6-10 season?

"Like coach Parcells said in training camp, 'We were deep in the tunnel and couldn't see any light,'" Bruschi said Thursday.

In nine days, New England will play the Green Bay Packers in the Super Bowl in New Orleans. The rookies have played key roles in reaching that destination.

First-round draft choice Terry Glenn set an NFL rookie record with 90 catches. Second-round strong safety Lawyer Milloy started the final 10 regular-season games and both playoff contests.

Bruschi, a linebacker from Arizona picked in the third round, came up with the clinching interception against Jacksonville in the AFC championship game last Sunday and has been a strong special teams player. And Adam Vinatieri overcame early problems and is a very reliable kicker.

"We have a bond because we've gone through the same things," Bruschi said. "So it's nice to see Terry and Lawyer and other guys do well because they're part of your class, so you feel proud."

The Patriots were the youngest of the 12 playoff teams with an average age of 26.19 years, and have had two consecutive outstanding drafts. The 1995 class brought cornerback Ty Law, linebacker Ted Johnson, running back Curtis Martin and center Dave Wohlabaugh. All have started for two seasons, and Martin led the AFC in rushing as a rookie.

"It would be a little uncommon for rookie players to come in and play as well as they have," Parcells said. Then, he added, "We knew that they were going to be good players pretty fast."

"We all come from winning programs, myself at the University of Washington, Terry at Ohio State," Milloy said. "I don't think that we came in wanting to play like rookies. We wanted to come in and contribute and produce early."

"I'm not going to say it's easy," said Johnson, New England's top tackler. "You've got coach Parcells, who is not the easiest coach for a rookie to play under, and the pressure that we've been under the last month or so."

"I've been impressed with the way the guys handled it. I don't sense any letdown from the younger players."

Other rookies have made lesser contributions.

Running back Marrio Grier, a sixth-round pick, has been solid on special teams and played an increased role on offense when fullback Sam Gash was lost for the season with a knee injury Dec. 8.

Ray Lucas, a free-agent quarterback from Rutgers, was activated from the practice squad for the Dec. 15 game against Dallas and has contributed on special teams.

"Next thing you know, you're activated and playing the last two games, we win two playoff games and I'm going to the Super Bowl," he said.

Glenn has been consistently outstanding.

In the Patriots' opening 28-3 playoff win over Pittsburgh, he caught a 53-yard pass on their second offensive play, setting up Martin's 2-yard touchdown run on the next play.

Rampley rejects a shot

Julie Rampley (30) blocked a shot by Caprock's Jennifer Terry in Friday night's game while Sarah Ramey (54) and Catie Betzen get ready to join the action. The Lady Whitefaces maintained their hold on second place in the district with a 54-43 triumph.

Holyfield eyes rich ring bout

NEW YORK (AP) - Evander Holyfield is set for the richest one-night stand in entertainment history - between $35 million and $40 million for a rematch against Mike Tyson on Kentucky Derby Day May 3.

"It's a package of considerable worth - at least $35 million," Jim Thomas, Holyfield's attorney, said, adding that Holyfield could top that minimum guarantee by as much as $5 million.

"It will be the biggest purse, not only in sports history, but for any one performance, including show business," said Jay Larkin, an executive vice president for Showtime, which will be involved in the pay-per-view distribution of the fight.

"We started talking in mid-November and reached an agreement with Don King Productions Wednesday afternoon," Thomas said Friday by telephone from Atlanta. "I had four significant face-to-face sessions with Don."

Tyson reportedly will get a minimum of $20 million for his bid to become a heavyweight champion a third time. Tyson got $30 million and Holyfield $11 million for their first fight, when Holyfield won the IBF title by stopping Tyson in the 10th round Nov. 9 in the MGM Grand Garden at Las Vegas. The MGM Grand also will be this site of the rematch.

Asked what Holyfield's take-home pay would be after taxes and other expenses, Thomas said, "I can say absolutely that Evander keeps a higher percentage of his purses than any fighter in history."

A manager's cut usually is 33 percent, but Holyfield has no manager. "He pays me a fair fee for my services," Thomas said.

Tyson not only has been training at King's camp at Orwell, Ohio, near his Southington Township, Ohio, home, but he has been living at the camp. A victory would make him the third man to become a heavyweight champion three times, but a loss would be devastating to the point of possibly ending his career.

King applied for the May 3 date, also the date of the Kentucky Derby, on Wednesday.

What Cowboys must do to get back to top

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Being in decline is one thing. Being written off is another.

The Dallas Cowboys can win the Super Bowl late next January even though they've been hit hard by free agency and have a few players past their prime.

The Cowboys ain't what they used to be.

But Dallas enemies are burying the former kings of professional football prematurely. There's still one, maybe two or three years, in which the Cowboys can take it to the limit one more time.

It's way too soon to declare the Cowboys incapable of a Super Bowl run. But there are certain things Dallas has to do to get back to the big show.

Let's look at what the Cowboys have to do right starting with the off-season:

FREE AGENCY -At least keep fullback Daryl Johnston. If any other team offers "Moose" a contract, match it. Johnston, the blue-collar banger, is a basic part of the heart and soul of this team. He'll sacrifice his body. He'll make leaping touchdown catches like he did in the playoffs. He'll play special teams. He'll get Emmitt Smith another 1,000-yard plus rushing season and help keep Troy Aikman healthy. The Cowboys will probably lose linebacker Darrin Smith, one of the best in the NFL, but they had better keep old antlers or Aikman might lead a one-man rebellion.

Of the 20 or so free agents, the Cowboys also should make it a priority to keep George Teague, who showed against Minnesota why he can become a great safety. This means Brock Marion will probably land elsewhere.

If the Cowboys lose Smith, then they need to sign Jim Schwartz, who besides being a special teams Pro Bowler could become a solid outside linebacker.

Sign placekicker Chris Boniol, the Cowboys one-man offense who currently rests on a streak of 34 consecutive field goals. Go ahead and give him a raise from his $196,000 NFL minimum. Sign punter John Jett again, one of the NFL's best.

THE DRAFT -Dallas needs receivers, offensive linemen, defensive linemen, and secondary help. This is a must year for Larry Lacewell and his personnel evaluation crew to drill a draft day gusher despite their late picking position. Don't trade down. Stay in the first round and take a swing.

TRADES -Do what ever it takes to get another big time receiver. Aikman only had two touchdowns passes longer than 20 yards. Alvin Harper, who left Dallas for big bucks at Tampa Bay, is making sounds he might want to work for the minimum wage at Valley Ranch again. Trades, free agents, whatever. But another game-breaking receiver is a must to take the heat off Michael Irvin. Kevin Williams and Kelvin Martin, both free agents, aren't the answer as big-time receivers. Martin does the best at getting open on third downs.

TIGHT END -Get Jay Novacek well. The biggest reason for the Cowboys failed offense (24th in the NFL) was the missing Novacek, who has a back so bad it hurts when he runs on level ground. If not, get Eric Bjornson going or re-sign Johnny Mitchell and teach him to run routes. This position is a must fix because of its importance in the Aikman passing game.

OFFENSIVE LINE -Fell off in 1996 but a lot of that could be traced to injuries. New backup blood is needed.

EMMITT SMITH -Get him well and keep him fresh. Teach Sherman Williams how to hold onto the ball and give him more carries. If he can't do it, bring back Herschel Walker. Whatever. Just don't run Emmitt into the ground again.

CHARLES HALEY -It's time to tell him thanks for the memories and goodbye. It would free up $2 million in base salary if Haley doesn't play in 1997. But does anyone expect Haley to get off the gravy train?

LEON LETT -He will miss the first 13 games of the season next year and the Cowboys have a rebate of $1.3 million in hand. Shouldn't they use some of that money to resign Ray Childress, who played for the team late in the season? Given a full training camp the former Houston Oilers could be a big help next year until Lett arrives. After all, didn't Carolina run at will up the Cowboys middle?

DEION SANDERS -Forget this Jerry Jones-Nike-inspired deal of Sanders going both ways. He caught only one touchdown pass last year and did more harm than good with his erratic route-running that got Aikman frustrated.

TRAINING CAMP -The Cowboys need a real training camp not a circus like they had in 1996, running off to foreign countries and never getting the work they needed to get a Novacek-less offense in synch.

ERNIE ZAMPESE -Ernie needs to get more imaginative with his play calling. Teams have the Cowboys scouted too well. Even sports writers in the press box can predict a lot of the plays.

BARRY SWITZER -Crack the whip harder. Players are taking advantage of Switzer's "professionals will do their jobs" attitude.

DISTRACTIONS -The Cowboys finally found a distraction they couldn't overcome, the media mob scene surrounding a woman's rape charges against Michael Irvin and Erik Williams. Unfounded as the accusation proved to be, it hurt preparations for the Carolina playoff game. Dallas needs a season without an NFL drug suspension, a Jones fight with the NFL, a driving while intoxicated, etc.

Beebe serving as consultant for teammates on 'big show'

By ARNIE STAPLETON
AP Sports Writer

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) - Don Beebe is serving as a Super Bowl consultant to his fellow Green Bay Packers, telling them just what the colossal event is going to be like.

Of course, there's one thing from his experience that he doesn't want to share: what it's like in the loser's locker room.

Nobody on the Packers can appreciate the all-or-nothing nature of the Super Bowl like Beebe, who lost four consecutive NFL championships with the Buffalo Bills from 1990-93.

"It's an awful experience. That whole offseason is awful. You dominate teams all year and then you lose in the Super Bowl and you're labeled as losers," Beebe said. "At Buffalo, if anything, we were winners. But that's not how we'll go down in history."

Cochin Mike Holmgren turned to Beebe and backup quarterback Jim McMahon, his only other player with Super Bowl experience, to help prepare the Packers (15-3) for the Super Bowl against New England (13-5) on Jan. 26 at the Louisiana Superdome.

McMahon was the starter for Chicago in the 1986 Super Bowl, when he took New Orleans by storm, mooning a helicopter, parading down Bourbon Street in the wee hours, feuding with Bears management over his use of an acupuncturist and finally leading his team to a 46-10 rout of the Patriots.

"We had a players meeting Wednesday and I got up and talked about the things not to do, and Jim got up and talked about the things to do," Beebe said. "So, that's a little ironic, don't you think?"

Defensive end Sean Jones said the meeting was as diametrical as it sounds.

"I guess they had Beebe, who is a Christian," Jones said. "And then they had McMahon, who's the anti-Christ. But Beebe lost four times and McMahon won. So, they're on different ends of the spectrum."

"But they had great insight. Hopefully, everyone heard what they said."

Beebe's first bit of advice was a warning about the chaotic days ahead. He advised his teammates to finish up such matters as family travel and ticket arrangements this week.

Then he told them not to have too good of a time in New Orleans, leaving them exhausted physically or mentally on game day.

"You've got to be in the eye of a tornado, where it's calm, and not on the outside because it'll be hectic," Beebe told his teammates.

"I remember my first Super Bowl, it was overwhelming - the media and everybody wanting tickets and phone calls. Once the game came I was just shot. I was able to learn from that, and, shoot, my last Super Bowl was the best mentally I ever played."

With Beebe's history of Super Bowl losses, some teammates cracked that maybe it's time for him to return to Aurora, Ill.

"Some of the guys were saying, 'OK, Don, your job's done. You can go home now. We don't want you for the Super Bowl,'" Beebe said.

Of course, Beebe is needed, not only for the game but for the preparation.

Attacks in fencing matches are made from eight different points and require eight different parries.

Hall of Famer Monte Irvin played in Cuba, Mexico and the Negro National League before signing with the New York Giants in 1949.

"Beebe brings experience, he's been there four times," split end Antonio Freeman said. "And he knows what it's like down there. He knows the attention we're going to receive. He knows how wild it's going to be. He's letting guys know it's going to be something you can't even imagine."

Something else Beebe knows about is facing difficulties in the big game.

"You're going to face adversity, no matter what game you ever play in," Beebe said. "And in this game, it's going to be much more hype than any game you've ever played. The emotions are going to be riding high."

"If you make a mistake, you're going to feel like you've let the team down, yourself and your fans, and you're going to feel really low, unlike a regular-season game where it was just another play and you just go on," he said.

"So if we have a turnover early in the game, big deal. Let's just keep going, plugging away, and keep driving, just like we did against Carolina in the championship game," Beebe said. "We had the interception and then a fumble and we gave them 10 points. But we just kept plugging away and kept going and finally we ended up dominating the game at the end."

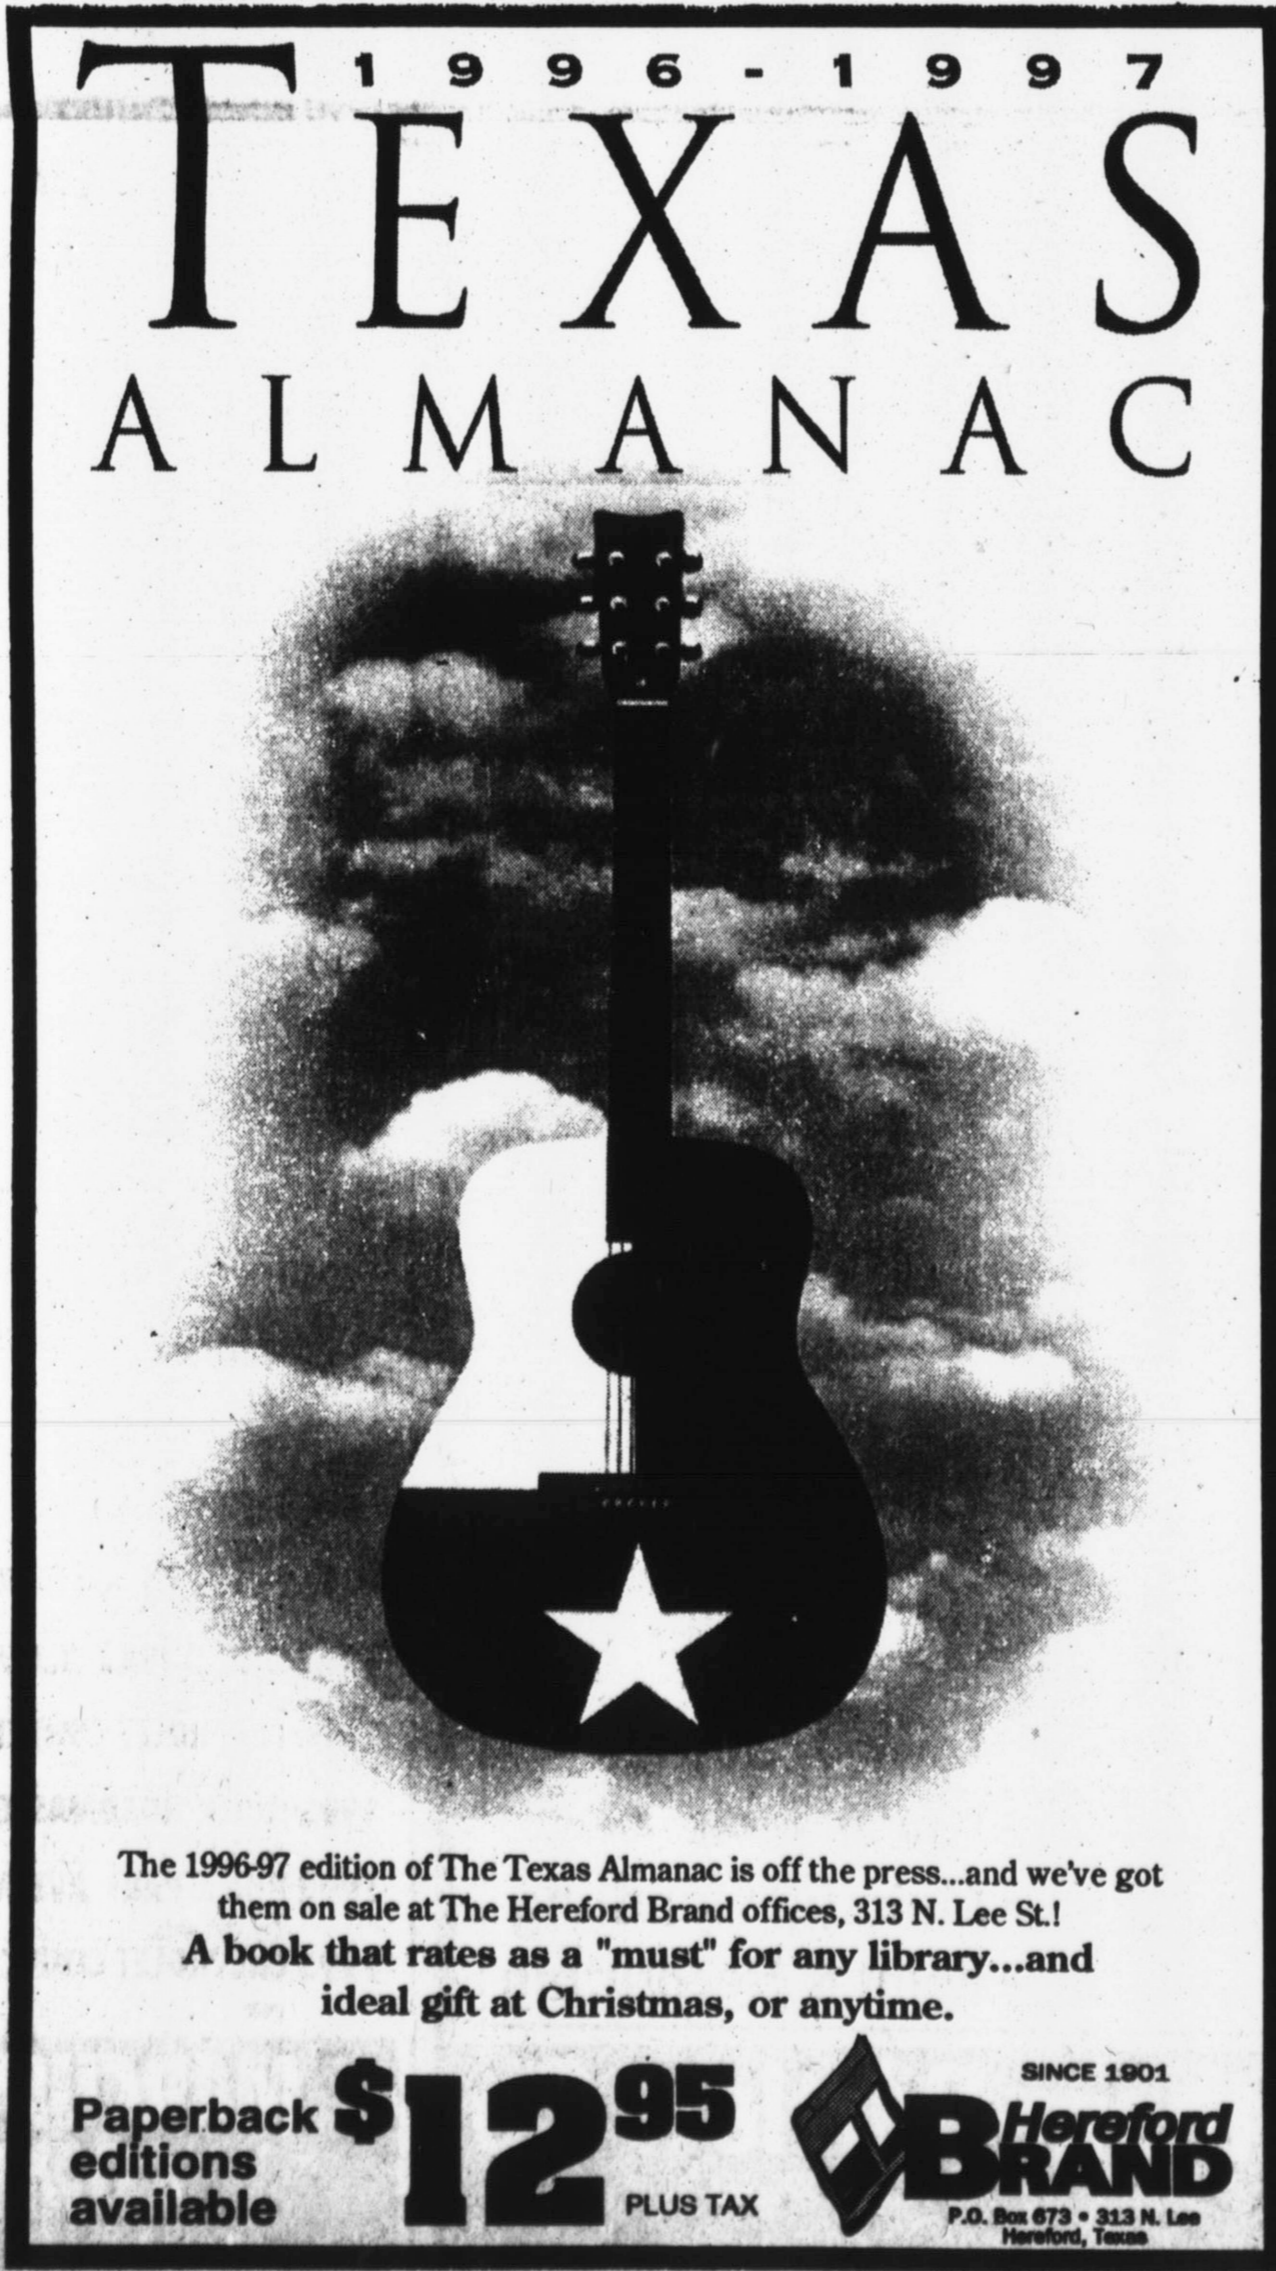

And Beebe ended up reaching the Super Bowl for a fifth time.

"Now," he said, "I just want to know what it feels like to win one."

Arguments over nuclear waste enter new round

By SUE MAJOR HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - The federal government believes nuclear waste can be stored safely in ancient underground salt beds in southeast New Mexico. But critics see unresolved problems and worry the government's main push is to open the repository.

That, in essence, wraps up two decades of arguments over the $1.8 billion Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, a U.S. Department of Energy project designed to bury plutonium-contaminated waste from the nation's defense industry 2,150 feet below the Earth's surface.

The latest round of arguments is under way. The DOE last week began a series of public hearings on a draft supplemental environmental impact statement for the repository.

The first hearings were in Albuquerque, Santa Fe and Carlsbad, N.M., 26 miles from WIPP. Other hearings will be held in Denver, Boise, Idaho; Richland, Wash.; Oak Ridge, Tenn.; and North Augusta, S.C. - areas where waste is generated.

Once hearings are completed, the DOE will analyze the comments and make any changes in the report before issuing a final supplemental impact statement. The final report is required before DOE can decide whether to open WIPP. That decision is expected in late summer.

The supplemental report being debated updates an earlier supplemental document completed in 1990, which in turned updated the original 1980 WIPP environmental impact statement.

"We're confident the science is good, the technical basis of the repository is good, the application we submitted did demonstrate compliance," said George Dials, project manager for the DOE in Carlsbad.

But one of WIPP's leading critics, Don Hancock of the Southwest Research and Information Center in Albuquerque, contends the DOE is being driven by a schedule to get WIPP open by the end of the year and that its impact statement underestimates the repository's problems.

Hancock is blasting the DOE for asking the public to comment on decisions he believes it has already made, including whether to open WIPP, what processing to give radioactive wastes before permanent storage and whether to ship waste by truck or rail.

"We've got a basic concern that DOE is doing this new environmental impact statement because it has to," Hancock said. "If they don't they will be sued and the courts will force them. They're not doing it to involve the public, which they're supposed to do. ... It's a document to justify the decisions they've already made."

Dials said the public has been involved in the WIPP process through countless hearings over the years, and denied that the important decisions already have been made.

"The facility is there. What we're doing now is deciding whether to use the facility or not, and if we use it, what kinds of transuranic waste will be there, what treatment is required and what transportation will be used to get it there," he said.

"We haven't made those decisions. We're open to public comment," he said. "If someone comes in with a technically persuasive argument, we'll modify accordingly."

The idea of isolating radioactive waste in geologic formations goes back to the 1950s. Southeastern New Mexico's salt beds were proposed in the 1970s, and work to excavate WIPP began in the 1980s. The repository was finished in 1988, but cannot open until the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency certifies it meets environmental standards.

WIPP would store such things as tools and gloves used by defense workers dealing with plutonium - so-called transuranic waste. The DOE in October submitted a 20-volume compliance certification application to the EPA, analyzing WIPP and concluding it meets federal disposal standards for the waste.

The application is the Energy Department's formal request for permission to open and operate WIPP. The EPA has a year to review it, but last month asked the DOE for more documentation.

Environmentalists, an independent state watchdog agency and others have raised questions over the safety of hauling radioactive waste hundreds of miles to WIPP, brine pockets in the geologic formation where WIPP lies and the instability of currently excavated salt rooms where waste would be stored.

The Energy Department's application to EPA concludes that WIPP meets environmental standards. The draft environmental report says DOE's preferred alternative for handling the waste is to store it in WIPP.

But Hancock contends the DOE hasn't considered other reasonable alternatives.

"They don't consider disposing of these wastes at someplace other than WIPP," although the 1980 impact statement preferred putting them in a repository for high-level radioactive waste rather than in WIPP.

"So what was a preferred alternative (in 1980) isn't even a reasonable alternative now. Figure that out,"

Hancock said.

Officials today say a repository for high-level waste - spent fuel from commercial nuclear reactors - couldn't be built until after the turn of the century.

The 1980 impact statement said two separate options to develop WIPP, which is designed for much lower levels of radioactive waste, carried the same "acceptably small" environmental impact as the preferred alternative. It said none of the three options was so "clearly superior" it could be considered environmentally preferable.

Dials said DOE officials don't believe it would be preferable for public safety to leave defense industry waste indefinitely stored above ground, as it is now.

"Some of it's been there for quite a while. There is a risk," he said.

And, he said, if the same risk assumptions were applied to current storage sites as were applied to WIPP, the question becomes, "Do you want it on the surface or buried half a mile underground?"

Names in the news

BOSTON (AP) - After all these years, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is going to Washington.

Kennedy and his wife, Vicki, are selling the McLean, Va., home he had built after being elected to the Senate in 1962.

They plan to move into the nation's capital.

The asking price for the house on 6.5 acres overlooking the Potomac River: $4.975 million.

"I've loved living in McLean. But so much of the focus of our weekday activities is in the district," the senator said. "We'll be much closer to the children's school, closer to Vicki's office and closer to the Senate."

Kennedy's two stepchildren, ages 11 and 14, go to a private school in Washington. His wife is a lawyer in a Washington firm.

The Kennedys also own a home in Hyannis Port, Mass., and an apartment in Boston.

NEW YORK (AP) - Della Reese is making a movie about gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, with whom she worked as a teen-ager.

"I'll play Mahalia," the star of TV's "Touched by an Angel" said in Sunday's Parade magazine, "and they're looking for a 13- to 16-year-old girl to play me. And not to flatter myself, but that one's going to be hard to find."

Until then the 64-year-old singer-actress is enjoying her typecasting of sorts: An ordained minister, she plays an angel.

She works on the CBS series in Salt Lake City during the week, then flies to the Los Angeles church where she's pastor so she preach on Sunday morning.

BIBLE BAPTIST CHURCH

We have in the world the mystery of the Trinity. The sun which is one is made up of three. Alpha, Beta, and Gamma rays (Rays which can be seen, but not felt; Jesus Christ, felt, but not seen; Holy Spirit, and actinic rays, which can neither be seen nor felt, God). Again, look at the Trinity in water. Water is classified as H₂O, and yet the term H₂O is three units. One unit of oxygen and two units of hydrogen. Does this make three separate things? No, it is water it is one thing. And yet water can appear in ice form, in liquid form, or in steam form. Do you know what ice is as a liquid? It is water. Do you know what liquid is as steam? It is water. Or as someone said one time, "Three in one, one in three, and the one in the middle died for me."

Astrophysicists reveal ultimate fate of universe

By PAUL RECER
AP Science Writer

TORONTO (AP) - All is dark, totally black. The sun and the Earth, along with everything on it, disappeared trillions of years ago, evaporated into radiation. There remains only a vast and endless ocean of subatomic particles.

That, say astrophysicists Fred Adams and Greg Laughlin of the University of Michigan, is the ultimate fate of the universe in an epoch so far in the future that ordinary time cannot measure it.

In research presented Wednesday at the winter meeting of the American Astronomical Society, Adams and Laughlin said they applied new physics to forecasting what will happen to the universe out to the year of 10 to the 200th power (think 1 followed by 200 zeroes.) The universe will still exist then, they said, but there'll be nobody here to experience it.

Adams said the universe that mankind knows, with stars and planets and life, is only temporary and actually rather young, about 10 billion years old.

"We don't live in a preferred time," he said. "Our current cosmological epoch has no central place in time." The here and now is but a brief phase, said Adams, in a sweep of time and change almost unfathomable to the human mind.

In their study, Adams and Laughlin divided the eras into segments measured by what they call cosmological decades. Ten billion would be decade 10, or 10 to the 10th power.

Laughlin said the current time is what they call the Stelliferous, or star-filled era, a period that is about half over. Energy comes from the birth, life and death of stars, such as the Earth's sun. Life is possible.

But at 20 billion to 30 billion years, the sun explodes and winks out. The Earth is incinerated, either disappearing altogether or becoming a lifeless chunk of burned rock. Everything on this planet is wiped out and gone.

At cosmological decade 15, the Degenerate Era begins. The stars begin to die off as they burn up their nuclear fuel.

"A human eye would observe the universe to be dark and black," said Adams.

Left behind are stellar remnants such as neutron stars, black holes, white and brown dwarfs and scattered dead planets.

Protons, the subatomic particles at the center of the nuclei of atoms, begin to decay. Without protons, matter evaporates into radiation. Carbon-based life is not possible, because carbon does not exist without protons.

"The proton decay epoch will initiate the most significant change in the future universe," Adams said.

Cosmological decade 38 begins an era ruled by black holes. They feast on material sucked in from nearby and grow ever larger. This continues for about 60 cosmological decades.

And then, at cosmological decade 100, the Dark Era begins. "Once the black holes have radiated away, the universe will consist of a diffuse sea of electrons, positrons, neutrinos and radiation," said Adams.

And the universe is totally black.

Adams and Laughlin said their study assumes that the universe will expand forever. Some believe the universe is closed, that it eventually will contract in what some have called the "big crunch."

Robert P. Kirshner of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics at Cambridge, Mass., said the Adams-Laughlin study gives "a plausible picture" based on "pretty solid understanding" of what will happen up to about cosmological decade 13. Beyond that, he said, there could be problems.

"They might have left something out in their calculations," Kirshner said. "You can never test it." One element of uncertainty, he said, is the decay of protons, a part of general particle theory but not yet demonstrated.

"This is a mind-blowing look into the future that makes the present seem much better," said Steve Maran, a NASA astronomer. "They applied a lot of good new physics, so we can approach this with a lot more confidence than with some earlier studies."

The Way You Invest Can Reduce Your Tax Bill

On the first Monday of September, we celebrate Labor Day. How well do you know your other holidays? For example, when is Memorial Day? How about Presidents' Day or Thanksgiving?

Most people could probably answer these questions accurately. But there's an even more important date on the calendar that goes by largely uncelebrated. It's Tax Freedom Day.

Tax Freedom Day is the date on which the average American begins earning after-tax income. In other words, if you had to pay all of your federal, state and local income taxes before taking home any of your wages, Tax Freedom Day is when you would finish paying the government and begin paying yourself.

This year, Tax Freedom Day fell on May 7. That means the average citizen worked about a third of the year — and spent about a third of his or her income — to pay taxes.

This may surprise you, but it shouldn't make you feel helpless. There are ways to make your personal Tax Freedom Day come a little earlier. You may not be able to reduce the amount of taxes you pay on your wages, but you can reduce taxes on your investment income. Here's how:

1. Invest more for growth. Some investments pay income, some provide growth of capital, and some provide both. Investment income is taxed at the same rate as your ordinary income, which can be as high as 39.6 percent. Capital gains, however, are currently taxed at a top rate of 28 percent. If you are in a tax bracket above 28 percent, you may be able to reduce your tax liability by shifting some of your portfolio into growth investments.

Of course, there are many good reasons to select income instead of growth, regardless of taxes. You should work this out with your tax adviser. However, it makes sense for long-term investors who reinvest dividends and income to invest in stocks or mutual funds that emphasize growth.

2. Invest for tax-exempt income. Municipal bonds pay interest that is exempt from federal income tax and, in some cases, state taxes, as well. This can be especially advantageous for people who pay high state income taxes.

You can buy individual municipal bonds or invest in a portfolio of bonds through a mutual fund or unit trust. These fully managed portfolios offer a kaleidoscope of investment options, including high-yield, limited term and select funds for specific states.

3. Invest in a retirement plan. Investing in an employer-sponsored retirement plan, such as a 401(k) or simplified employee pension (SEP), is probably one of the best ways to defer income tax. Contributions to the plan are made before your income tax is calculated. People with earned income who do not have a retirement plan at work can still contribute up to $2,000 per year to an individual retirement account (IRA) and deduct all or part of that contribution from current taxes. In addition to the current tax savings offered by these plans, all contributions and their earnings grow tax-deferred until withdrawn.

4. Invest in a tax-deferred annuity. Annuities are another option for retirement savings. Although annuity investments are not tax-deductible, they do grow tax-deferred until withdrawn. They can be appropriate for people with no retirement plan, those who have put off contributing to a retirement plan or those who have contributed the maximum to their employer plan and IRA but would like to invest more. Unlike IRAs and employer plans, there is no limit on annual annuity contributions.

These are four simple ideas that many investors can implement easily. There are also other ways a careful investor can save on taxes: tax-swapping, charitable giving, trusts and more.

As a tax-paying investor, you should be aware of the relationship between your investments and taxes. Anything less means more taxes for you.

H.O.S.T.S. Notes

West Central held a Christmas reception each day of the week before Christmas. Mentors were served pumpkin roll, party mix and hot apple cider. Mrs. DeLozier reports that levels are soaring on accelerated reading. Testing scores are excellent.

Northwest Spanish HOSTS finished studying a unit entitled "Regalos" (gifts) by wrapping 250 children's books which were donated by the Northwest "Book Angels." Our Spanish HOSTS also made cards for the gifts from discarded Christmas cards and all these presents were given to the American Red Cross for delivery to children at Christmastime.

As the new year and second semester begins, we will be studying about "Sorpresas" (surprises). We're anxious to see what surprises will be revealed to us!

Northwest HOSTS held a Christmas brunch for its mentors from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. on Dec. 19. This gave mentors the opportunity to get acquainted with mentors from other periods. More than fifty mentors were served sausage balls, Mexican pinwheels, pimento cheese sandwiches, banana bread, fresh fruit with dip, hot spiced tea, hot chocolate or coffee.

Students have just completed their mid-year HOSTS reading tests at Northwest. Forty-two students were tested from second- and third-grades. Students showed an average gain of one year and one month. Way to go, HOSTS students!

The new Spanish HOSTS program at Tierra Blanca is proving that it is a small world after all. The students with the help of their dedicated mentors, are showing successful gains in their language development. The students work at their pace and advance to higher levels. At Tierra Blanca, the majority of the students have successfully reached the fourth level out of a possible eight. After the eighth level, the student is ready to transition into English. The children do various activities in the HOSTS room as guided by their own personal mentor. One mentor commented, "This makes me feel like I can make a difference in this world."

Bluebonnet HOSTS Math is off to a great start in 1997! We have done some rescheduling and added five new mentors. We are pleased to have Bart Carter, Ernest Cadenhead and James Glueck from Arrowhead Mills; and Danielle Bartels and Carrie Lange from Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union mentoring for us.

Becky's Camp Site

By Becky Camp

In case you haven't noticed, "Becky's Camp Site" hasn't appeared in the Sunday edition of The Brand for a couple of weeks.

I could compile a list of reasons (or excuses) for this, but truthfully it all boils down to one - no ideas for a subject to write about.

That may be a bad thing to admit, but at least it's honest.

I'm not sure what it's an indication of though. Does it mean I have a lack of imagination or does it mean I just lead a boring life?

Actually, I have had a few ideas for topics, but then I've had second thoughts about whether anyone would read an entire column about them.

So I've decided to list some of these random thoughts and if the subject matter doesn't interest you, just skip to the next topic.

*Living in Hereford: I've talked before about how impressed I was as a newcomer by the people here.

And since I've only been here 2-1/2 years, I'm sure most of the "natives" would still consider me a newcomer.

I still continue to be favorably impressed by Hereford and the people who live here.

(Maybe it would be more accurate to say Deaf Smith County and not just Hereford, since so many people - like my family and I - live outside Hereford's city limits.)

A recent incident has renewed my belief that this is a good place to live. As my teenage daughter was driving home late one Saturday, a tire blew out on her car when she was about five miles out of town. A really nice couple (and I'm sorry to say I don't know their names) who live nearby stopped, offered assistance and drove her the 15 miles home.

This is not the first time one of us has had vehicle problems nor is it the first time someone has come to our aid, but it continues to be one of those things that make me glad we live here.

*Super Bowl time: There are some women who enjoy football and I'm one of them.

I don't profess to know a lot about the intricacies of the game, but I can get involved in a game and really get excited about it.

I have to admit I do have a favorite team and they're not in this year's Super Bowl but still I'm looking forward to Super Bowl Sunday and the rituals it involves.

*New Year's resolutions: Have you been able to keep the resolutions you made this year?

The new year is less than a month old, but I wonder how many of us have been able to keep the resolutions we made with such conviction.

*English language: It's a wonder anyone learns this language when you really stop and think about how many exceptions there are to the rules in English.

I had a kindergarten student who is just learning the alphabet ask me, "What does 'I' start with?"

So I tried to explain that "I" is a word, not just a letter.

His response was, "Okay, 'I' is for I and 'U' is for you."

And coward that I am, I didn't try to explain anything further. What if he had asked about "eye" and "ewe"?

About 97 percent of the earth's water is found in oceans.

Thank You

Whiplash Can Be Helped With Chiropractic Care

Victims who feel pain or discomfort immediately after an accident often seek out chiropractic care, but there are other cases where the cervical damage done by the thrust is not noticed for some time. This is not unusual, as sometimes symptoms may not present themselves until as much as two years after the trauma has occurred. And in some cases, the effects may be felt in some other body area than the neck region.

The sudden force of an accident whiplashes the head, often causing nerve, tissue and vertebrae damage in the neck. Sometimes even a fast start or stop, or a simple rear-end tap, can cause a whiplash injury.

Should you be involved in an auto accident, it is wise to have a health examination to make certain you have not suffered whiplash or some other structural injury.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent/FCS

To build net worth, a family takes stock of their assets and liabilities, and decides if their current use of financial resources will take them to their financial goal destination.

The process of building net worth can become an obsession. Not involving family members in setting financial goals and planning what benefits they are willing to forego now to build assets for future benefits can result in dysfunctional spending practices among family members.

Researchers studying the problem of credit, cash and co-dependency observe that parents who "get on a roller coaster of believing that the more they have, the better off they are" may deny their real situation. Too often they collect large loans and second mortgages to purchase what looks good to them, becoming property rich and monetarily poor.

Financial planners who assist families with saving and investment decisions to build net worth usually begin by constructing the family's financial profile. A profile is a look at the whole picture of the family's life state, life-style, tolerance for risk, responsibilities and financial resources. Make and evaluate your family's financial profile before making decisions about building your net worth, to get satisfactory results for your lifetime efforts.

Your life stage involves whether you are single, married, divorced or widowed, and whether there are dependent or mature children or stepchildren in the family. Typically, stages of family financial management begin with accumulating assets slowly, building as earning power increases and financial responsibilities decline. During early stages, net worth builds.

Eventually, usually at retirement, financial management shifts to disposing of or use of assets more rapidly than they build. Net worth may decline. How quickly net worth declines depends on how assets are managed and the types of expenses the family encounters during retirement.

What is important is to assess your own stage of life and the circumstances of your spending and saving needs, and tailor your financial plan accordingly.

Life-style is probably the most personalized part of financial planning. First, determine your earning power, which is dependent on the career you have chosen. How flexible is your career? Do you have options for increasing your earning power?

Next, examine your spending and saving habits. They reflect your needs for immediate gratification and what gratification you are willing to defer. Disagreements about personal preferences for the use of family resources for immediate and future needs or goals are not uncommon. It is difficult to fit into someone else's mold. Learning together to recognize what is important to each family member and finding ways to work together to meet everyone's needs and goals can be a valuable life skill to teach your children.

Tolerance for risk focuses first on how much money you have to risk. Minimize risks until financial commitments are met. Be sure basic family needs and credit commitments are met before placing savings in high risk investments.

Even if you can afford to risk losing money, some people are willing to take sure lower returns than to chance losing their investment for the chance of larger returns. A general rule of thumb is that the higher the return, the greater the risk.

When it comes to financial planning, there are no absolute right or wrong life-style choices. What is important is to know your tolerance for risk, your financial responsibilities and to make financial decisions accordingly.

Financial responsibilities vary greatly. Each individual or family unit defines how much financial responsibility they will assume for expenses such as their children's education, their parent's welfare, their support of social and community programs or efforts that assume responsibility for others outside their immediate family, and the extent to which they accept responsibility for supporting current wage earners after their retirement.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

If you don't like something, change it. If you can't change it, change the way you think about it!

Many of the choir students are preparing for UIL Solo Contest which will be on Feb. 8. Spring Contest date will be announced in February.

Carlos Perez, who won first place in the DAR Essay Contest with his "Oregon Trail" essay is diligently working on an essay for History Day competition. This will be a first for HJH. Carlos has chosen "Triumph and Tragedy in the Life of Stephen F. Austin" as his title.

Purple Team students are working on their Science Fair projects. The Hereford Science Fair will be held in February.

February will be a very busy month. History Day students are also preparing for their first contest date which will be Feb. 7 for the local fair and Feb. 22 for the area meet. We plan to have at least two individual projects, two papers, several group projects and two group performances.

Blue Team science students are studying about the moon and the earth in space. Forty-five of 108 students on this team passed the science TAAS practice test.

Mrs. Allen's seventh English classes are working on A Wrinkle in Time. Seventh period class, however, is reading Julie of the Wolves, and will prepare posters to enhance this novel.

Thirty-six students from G/T and Junior Historians had planned to attend a Career Planning workshop in Amarillo this past Wednesday. The workshop was cancelled due to the weather but will be re-scheduled.

Marilyn leasure, Diedra Drake and I will be in Corpus Christi late this week for the Annual Texas Middle School Conference. Marilyn is an officer in TMSA and Diedra and I will be making a presentation on Friday.

Junior Historians will mail Phase II of their Adopt-A-Building project this week. Phase III will involve the production of a slide show or a video showing their research efforts. They are also working on "The People's Court" as a joint endeavor. Several of the students are becoming quite adept at note-taking and interviews. We have presentations scheduled for late February.

Students are encouraged to read on a daily basis, even beyond the classroom and homework reading. This cannot but help to raise TAAS scores and to improve their overall reading ability. Many students almost constantly have a book to read in every spare moment and others have to be "made" to read. If you could only know what they are missing....

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Your letter to Arnold Schwarzenegger was right on target regarding actors using tobacco in publicity photos. I have enclosed an ad for the movie "The First Wives' Club" that shows all three female stars smoking cigars. Whose idea was that?

Did you see the episode of Brooke Shields' TV show in which the plot involved her learning to smoke cigars? Have you seen the doctors on "Chicago Hope" light up in their offices at the hospital? How about the actors on "Seinfeld"? Did you see the movies "Reality Bites" and "She's the One," in which all the young adult characters smoke?

I have been working in the field of smoking prevention long enough to believe that very little that has to do with tobacco is a coincidence. I wonder how those tobacco products end up in the prop department. Who calls for the characters to be smokers? And even if it IS a coincidence, is it really necessary to have all these people smoking? Are the directors aware of the message they are sending to our youth? Do they care? I don't think so. -- Janet Lillenthal, director, Tobacco Control Program, Needham, Mass.

Dear Janet Lillenthal: You are right on when you say, "Very little having to do with tobacco happens by coincidence."

The product placement department (yes, it actually exists) is very clever about putting certain products in the hands of actors and actresses in a way that appears to be uncontrived. Meanwhile, the tobacco industry is hard at work behind the scenes.

Danny DeVito, another hero of mine, just got crossed off my list when I saw a full-page ad in which he was featured smoking a great big cigar. No doubt the check is in the mail.

Dear Ann Landers: I have read definitions of conservatives and liberals sent in by your readers. I hope you will print the enclosed copy of "ISMs," which was passed around by students in my history class in Tekoa, Wash., in 1942. I believe these definitions are still applicable today and may help young people understand the various types of governments in the world. -- Rosalia, Wash.

Dear Rosalia: It's amazing to me that the article you sent was written over 50 years ago. Thanks for sharing. Some of those "isms" fit today. ISMs Socialism: You have two cows. Give one cow to your neighbor.

Communism: You have two cows. Give both cows to the government, and they may give you some of the milk.

Fascism: You have two cows. You give all of the milk to the government, and the government sells it.

Nazism: You have two cows. The government shoots you and takes both of the cows.

Anarchism: You have two cows. Keep both of the cows, shoot the government agent and steal another cow.

Capitalism: You have two cows. Sell one cow and buy a bull.

Dear Ann Landers: "Embarrassed by the View" wrote that women wearing short skirts should not cross their legs when they sit on a raised platform or stage. Tell him to mind his own business. Some people enjoy the view. If they didn't, those girlie magazines wouldn't be selling millions of copies every month. -- Metairie, La.

Dear Metairie: Thanks for the input.

Couple honored with anniversary reception

A reception honoring Orval and Jeanne Galley of Tulsa, formerly of Hereford, on their golden wedding anniversary was held Jan. 3 in Calvary Temple Assembly of God Church in Tulsa, Okla. The reception was given by their children.

Galley is the son of Lester and Ruth Galley, who were pioneers of Deaf Smith County. Their farm, ten miles northeast of Hereford, is where Galley was born and lived until 1993. While stationed in Charleston, S.C., during World War II, Galley met Jeanne Belger.

Belger is the daughter of Frank and Doris Belger. She grew up in Detroit, Mich. After a short stay in Charleston, she and her family moved back to Detroit. Galley and Belger were married in Detroit on Jan. 9, 1947.

The couple moved to the farm near Hereford which Galley farmed until 1959, raising layer hens for 10 years. He then worked for the Texas Employment Commission from 1960 until 1981.

Mrs. Galley worked part time for the Christian Bookstore from 1975 until 1981.

While living in Hereford they were active members of the First Assembly of God Church.

Children of the couple are Robert Galley of Englewood, Colo., Janice Hobeiman of Tulsa, and Paul Galley of Austin. They have seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Clothes giveaway will be Monday. We will try to have the clothes available to look through from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. in front of the Red Cross office, weather permitting.

We at Red Cross are all excited about the new classes that are soon to be available from National. The Olympic Committee has been working closely with the Red Cross to develop a class in Sports Safety which is going to be just what many parents and coaches have been wanting to make sports safer, and to better prepare coaches as care givers when "Help Can't Wait!" This course is supposedly going to be required by all the coaches and athletes who will be participating in and associated with the Olympic Games in the future. It sounds like something that has long been needed, from entry level sports on local home fields, all the way to the Olympic Games.

Another class is being prepared in association with the American Campground Association and with the Girl Scouts of America. This class is designed specially for summer camp workers and instructors to prepare them to teach safe practices in water safety and small craft boating, as well as preparing them to be givers of First Aid.

These are just two examples of how the Red Cross is working hard to make the world safer for our children, and to help make us all be more responsible adults. This is a very good time to get involved with Red Cross if you aren't already.

As always, because of the many hurricanes last summer, and the recent severe winter storms in the northwest, there is need for cash contributions. You can contribute, cash or credit card, by calling 806-364-8416, or one of the two national numbers, 800-435-7669 or 800-257-7575 (Spanish), or on-line to Red Cross Internet at <http://www.redcross.org> on the web.

Oldest son of World War II hero works to preserve father's legacy

By MATT SHRUM
Greenville Herald-Banner
GREENVILLE, Texas - The first-time visitor to the Audie Murphy Room at Greenville's Walworth Harrison Library was obviously moved by what he saw as he entered the area.

Terry Murphy, oldest son of World War II's most decorated hero, reminisced earlier this month about the different photographs, stopping to answer questions about himself and his famous father, who was born in Kingston, north of Greenville.

At one point he stopped to sign a petition asking the U.S. Postal Service to honor his father with a stamp. He took a closer look at the medals encased in the center of the room.

Other times, the West Hills, Calif., resident would stop on his own to react to a photograph.

"This is me - me again," Murphy, 44, said.

Can you remember the name of the dog?

"The dog was named Eric ... I am wearing custom cowboy clothes ... this was at a ranch in California. We had 800 acres there ... That was at a corral where dad trained his horses. Les Hilton was one of the trainers. He was the guy who trained Mr. Ed.

"We would go there and do some riding," Murphy said pointing to a photograph of himself and his father.

"I have some other photos from that day with me riding and my hat falling off ... that was quite a day," Murphy added.

Another photo Murphy stopped at showed Audie and his two sons, Terry and James, at a birthday party.

Terry was asked whose birthday it was.

"My birthday is on March 14 and my brother's is March 23. It looks like that is for both of us," Murphy said.

In mid-December, Murphy made his first visit ever to Greenville and his first visit to Texas in 23 years. He is the president of the Audie Murphy Research Foundation and was in Texas doing research along with Larryann C. Willis, secretary-treasurer of the foundation.

On the trip to Texas, Terry Murphy had stopped in Dallas to talk with a few old friends of his father. Ms. Willis said there were so many people in the Greenville area that they could not stop and meet with all of them one at a time, but instead invited them to meet at the library.

Audie L. Murphy, son of a Texas sharecropper, was born in Kingston, just north of Greenville, and enlisted in the Army at the old Greenville Post Office.

After returning from the war, Audie went on to star in movies, including "To Hell and Back," which is based on his life story, and to write country music.

He died in a plane crash on Memorial Day in 1971 and is buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

The Audie Murphy Research Foundation is a non-profit, public benefit corporation established for the purpose of collecting, preserving and making available to the public historical information concerning Audie Murphy.

The foundation is attempting to locate and interview people who knew Audie along with copying photographs, letters, home movies, news reel clips, radio shows and other documents or memorabilia. Much material already has been lost, Ms. Willis said.

"Universal Pictures has given the foundation blanket approval to copy and reproduce any movie stills anywhere," Ms. Willis said. "Universal Studios unfortunately destroyed all of their negatives and there are only about 50 pictures of Audie left out of 2,000 to 3,000 they had."

Other privately-held material has been destroyed in fires, floods and an earthquake.

"We have been making copies of everything we can and then storing the copies in more than one place. The (Greenville) library is one of those places. We also are working with the Texas Collection in Waco, the Hillsboro Library and the Cowboy Hall of Fame has called and wants to help. We do have several locations that are going to be there forever," Ms. Willis said.

She noted the latest technology makes it easy to make copies of pictures without a negative.

"It is very easy now to make a copy. Also, don't assume we have anything. The only way for us to find some of this information is through networking so we are asking for your help," Willis said.

His work in the foundation already has had a side bonus for Terry Murphy who noted the recent resurgence in interest about his father.

"My brother lives about 40 miles away but we had gotten out of touch. This has gotten us back together," Murphy said. "It's nice to have a brother again."

Why Advertising Works!

Maybe you figure other retailers in your line are going to cut back their advertising, so it's safe for you, too. Right? Wrong! You're in competition for the consumer's dollar with every other retailer in town, no matter what he sells. People have only so many dollars to spend, and if they don't spend them for what you sell, they'll spend them for something else.

Deaf Smith County producers need moisture, surveys shows

Deaf Smith County producers within the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 service area need four to ten inches of water from precipitation and/or irrigation to bring the five foot root zone soil profile to field capacity before Spring 1997 planting, according to pre-plant soil moisture survey data released by the Water District and the USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (USDA-NRCS).

"We found that 10 percent of the Water District service area will need from two to four inches of moisture to bring the soils to field capacity. About 40 percent of the area will need four to six inches of moisture. About 5 percent of the area will need eight to 10 inches of moisture to refill the soil profile," USDA-NRCS Soil Scientist Gerald Crenwelge said.

Soil moisture readings are taken by lowering a neutron probe into a permanently-installed aluminum access tube at each of the 299 monitoring sites within the 15-county Water District service area. Each site is chosen based upon the soil type, the variations in the saturated thickness of the Ogallala Aquifer which indicates potential well yields and typical farming operations in the area.

Plant available soil moisture varies according to the previous crop produced at the site. For example, there is between 1.2 and 1.6 inches of soil moisture below the plow layer to five feet for the four main crops of corn, cotton, grain, sorghum and wheat grown within the Water District Service area.

Historical data shows that above average crop yields are more likely when the five foot root zone profile is at or near capacity at planting.

"We hope the area will receive significant precipitation to help reduce these soil moisture deficits prior to planting," Crenwelge said. Rain gauge readings taken at soil moisture sites in Deaf Smith County indicated an average of 14.59 inches of rainfall during 1996.

Use of furrow dikes will help keep any moisture that falls between now and spring planting on the field so that it can soak into the soil.

The annual pre-plant soil moisture survey data informs producers about general plant available soil moisture conditions across the water district.

"Irrigators can use this information to estimate the amount of water needed to bring their soil closer to field capacity without wasting water by over-irrigating. This information reflects general soil moisture trends and should not be used in place of individual soil moisture testing on farms, he said.

Copies of the regional and/or county soil moisture survey maps are available by contacting the local USDA-NRCS office or HPUWD at (806) 762-0181.

Extension Agent's Notes

By DENNIS NEWTON
County Extension Agent-AG
One good thing about being out of commission and not being able to move around is that you get to do a tremendous amount of reading. I've certainly had plenty of time this past week to do just that.

I read a number of journals and producer magazines with articles about the new transgenic corn and cotton varieties that will be available this coming year. I have said many times that this is a very exciting time in agriculture. I feel that in the next few years we will see tremendous changes in the way we produce our food and fiber and in the way we have to manage. Many of these changes will be brought about because of plants that are genetically changed allowing for the use of new practices.

This coming year, we will see several new B+ cotton and corn varieties available for producers. These will help in combating the cotton bollworm, Southwestern and European Corn Borers. These new varieties will help in reducing the amounts of insecticides needed for control of these pest. They will also require different management techniques.

Perhaps the most exciting releases will be in the Roundup resistant cottons. Several companies will be releasing cotton varieties that have been genetically engineered allowing them to be sprayed with Roundup Ultra. For producers that have grassy weeds or weeds that have gotten out of control, this offers much promise. The January issue of Cotton Farming has an excellent article by Mack Ray entitled "Transgenics: The Next Generation." All of you, cotton producers should read it. It outlines the work that is being done in cotton and talks about what the future holds.

The January issue of Cotton Grower has a special issue dealing with risk management. It has some great information about marketing. Carl Anderson, Texas A&M University economist, has an excellent article entitled "Failing to Plan -- Planning to Fail." The article covers the importance of a marketing plan and discusses several strategies for marketing.

Both magazines have several other excellent articles and are well worth your reading time.

Several meetings and events will be taking place this week. On Tuesday, the West Texas Vegetable Conference will be held in the Hereford Community Center. The conference will offer 5.5 CEUs of credit for commercial, non-commercial and private pesticide license holders. Also on Tuesday, the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers will hold a meeting at K-Bob's Annex. The Texas Corn Growers Association will hold its annual meeting in Dimmitt on Thursday, Jan. 23 in the Castro County Exposition Building with registration beginning at 8 a.m.

Please go out and support the 4-H and FFA members from Deaf Smith and the surrounding counties this week during the Hereford Young Farmers Livestock Show. The show will be Wednesday through Friday evenings. The livestock auction will be held Saturday afternoon. Please go out and show your support for a hardworking group of young men and women. The exhibitors have put in many hours with their animals and deserve your support. It is time for everyone to think warm weather and sunshine just in time for the livestock show. See you next week.

4-H'ers learn showmanship

The Deaf Smith County 4-H Showmanship Club held a swine and sheep showmanship clinic at their January club meeting in the Hereford Bull Barn.

The meeting was lead by County Extension Agent Alan Patranello, R.C. Hoelscher, Bud Vance, Jeff Hicks and Erin Auckerman.

Club members learned the proper way to show a pig and a sheep. Members then practiced showing their animals, while the leaders gave comments on their showmanship skills.

Several members will be showing their animals in the Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show.

Sims attends TCFA meeting

Steve Sims of Hereford has been chosen by the Texas Cattle Feeders Association executive committee to participate in the 1997 TCFA leadership program.

Sims recently attended a TCFA board meeting and studied the workings of the TCFA in his first session, a TCFA news release said.

The year-long program gives this young cattleman an opportunity to become more involved in TCFA and the cattle feeding industry.

For farm and ranch women

Extension service to offer management seminars

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will offer the opportunity for a new group of Texas farm and ranch women to begin the Women in Agriculture: Business Management Program in early 1997.

This program includes a series of three two-day seminars (units) to be taken in successive years. Each unit is divided into four half-day modules. The list of the topics to be covered in each unit are listed below:

UNIT I

TOPICS: Family Business Management, Forms of Business Organization and Income Tax Management, Personnel Management and Financial Management.

UNIT II

TOPICS: Estate Planning and Business Transfer Issues, Commodity Marketing, Strategic Planning, Goal setting.

UNIT III

TOPICS: Agricultural Policy, Value Added Marketing, Agricultural

Law and Developing a Management Information System.

Although no formal class sessions are scheduled for the evenings, there will be two optional panels available each evening for those who wish to participate. These are designed for the participants to share experiences, insights and concerns in an unstructured discussion format.

Women taking part in the program can expect to learn practical management and marketing skills, gain confidence in participating in new roles on the farm or ranch and network with other women with similar interests and experience.

According to the program director, Dr. Danny Klinefelter, the need to develop the management skill of farm and ranch women is critical for several reasons:

-- There is a tremendous need to strengthen the management team on farms and ranches, particularly in light of the added risks that will be created by the changes in the government farm program.

-- Too few wives are adequately prepared to take over the business affairs if something should unexpectedly happen to their husband.

-- Texas has 10 percent of all women in the U.S. who run their own farm or ranch operation.

-- The census of agriculture indicates that over the last 20 years, women managers have been the only group actually increasing in numbers in agriculture.

-- Because Texas is a community property state and because women tend to live longer than men, a major portion of the privately held farm and ranch land in the state is owned by women absentee landlords.

The cost of the program is $175 per unit which covers all seminar materials, breaks and lunches for the first and second day but not housing.

The next program will be offered in Lubbock on Feb. 19-21. The programs will begin at noon on the first day and end at noon on the third day.

For more information, contact Danny Klinefelter or Tami Tesaro at (409) 845-7171 or call Beverly Harder at the Deaf Smith County Extension Office at 364-3573.

TGSA, TGSB set meeting

The Texas Grain Sorghum Association (membership) and the Texas Grain Sorghum Board (checkoff) will hold a joint meeting at noon Tuesday in K-Bob's Annex in Hereford.

A free meal will be provided. The meeting is open to all producers and their spouses.

The topics will be how checkoff dollars and membership dues are invested.

A program on estate planning will be prior to the meetings. It is important for both husband and wife to attend.

The speakers will be Mark E. Ensign, an attorney from Amarillo, and Mike Morgan of the New England Financial Group.

To make reservations, call 1-800-765-1351. For more information on the meeting, 1-806-298-4501.

TCGA to hold annual session

"Agriculture Dilemma: What's Ahead for the Producer in '97 and Beyond" will be the theme for the Texas Corn Growers 24th annual meeting Thursday in the Exposition Building in Dimmitt.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. The afternoon session will begin at 9 a.m. with a welcome by Carl King of the Texas Corn Growers Association (TCGA). The morning session will include comments from Gary Goldberg, American Corn Growers Association; Tom Heidler, TCGA; David Senter, TCGA; Harold Bob Bennett, State Farm Service Agency; and Wayne Wyatt, High Plains Underground Water District.

Congressman Mac Thornberry and Richard Rominger of the United States Department of Agriculture have been invited to speak.

A noon meal will be served from 12:15 p.m. to 1:15 p.m. by Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE).

The afternoon session will include the topics of B+ corn, drought resistant corn, sorghum hybrids, P.E.T. network, weed control and short season corn cropping system.

Three hours of continuing education units will be given for those attending the session.

Search under way for 1996 rural hero

WACO - The search is under way for the rural hero for 1996, according to Ben Bullard, president of the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, which presents the annual rural heroism award.

The 1996 recipient will be announced March 17 at the 58th annual Texas/Southwestern Safety Conference and Exposition to be held at the Adams Mark Hotel in Houston.

Deadline for submitting entries will be Feb. 3, Bullard said. Send all nominations to the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, Box 2689, Waco, Texas, 76702-2689.

To qualify for the honor, a candidate must have performed a heroic act of human-lifesaving within Texas during 1996. Preferably, it should be related to farming and ranching, Bullard said.

A letter of nomination should include a written account of the incident and the names, addresses and telephone numbers of all persons involved. Newspaper clippings and photos should also accompany when available, Bullard said.

We appreciated your support of the 1996 Junior Livestock Show, and we look forward to your participation again this year.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Creating a More Competitive Business

The first danger signal Gene noticed was the shrinking checking account balance. A quick check of the current bills revealed that he could only pay half of them immediately. The end-of-the-quarter sales report, confirmed that sales were lagging nearly 15 percent behind last year.

When a new competitor entered the market six months ago Gene wasn't too concerned. Business had been good and there was plenty of cash. Now suddenly, things were going downhill fast and Gene wondered how he could keep up with expenses.

Fortunately, Gene's situation is not an actual case this week. However, I've worked with many business owners in similar circumstances during the last 10 years and situations just like this do occur all too frequently.

A common question I receive is, "How do you protect your business from competition, economic downturns and other adversities?" One of the best protections I know of is to run a cost effective operation. When you run a lean, trim business, devoid of an unnecessary expenses, you can deal with tough times when they come.

Running a bare-bones operation is always easier to talk about than do. Business expenses just naturally have a way of piling up during the good times. When sales are up and profits are increasing, expenses tend to creep up as well. Getting rid of those little extras is often more difficult than one would expect. Trimming fat from a business requires dedicated, day-to-day discipline.

An ounce of prevention

One of the best ways to check your expense fitness level is to compare your expenses with other businesses like yours. When you compare your cost to industry averages, you can see quickly if any expense categories are out of line.

One word of caution here. You should not be content to be "average" in your industry. In tough times, only the best survive. Your goal must be to position your firm well above the average.

Another good principle to apply is to look beyond the largest expense categories. Remember, small expenses add up, too. Rather than trimming a big category by 15 or 20 percent, look for 15 to 20 areas that you can trim by 1 or 2 percent. The results will be positive and you don't run the risk of crippling your business because you cut too deeply in one area.

Some businesses aren't fortunate enough to have industry averages with which to compare their own numbers. In this case, you must use your own historical financial statements as a guideline.

A good starting point is to calculate your operating expenses as a percentage of sales. Look at the last three or four years to see if there is an established trend. Regardless, your goal is to reduce fixed expenses as a percentage of sales. It doesn't matter if sales are up or down, reducing expenses as a percentage will strengthen your financial position.

Be careful where you cut

While there are no sacred cows you should protect when eliminating waste, there are some areas where you need to observe caution. Advertising and promotion budgets deserve careful examination. You should try to trim waste, but don't cut here just for the savings.

Use care when reducing labor costs. You must keep customer service at a high level to be competitive.

Finally, never delay in paying income and withholding taxes. Some creditors can be hard to deal with, but the IRS can lock your front door.

The best possible position to work from is one where you don't allow fat to accumulate in the first place. To ensure success you must make a commitment. Cut the fat and get more competitive.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

We didn't get a count on the number of books that went out of here on the first two days of the book sale, but it was a bunch. One woman had to call her husband to bring their pickup to haul her books home, and many people had to have our dolly (two-wheeler, whatever) to carry out the boxes of books. So far, Friends of the Library estimate that they have made around $700, which accounts for a lot of books at 10 and 25 cents each!

So, now you would think that the basement is bare. Well, not exactly. Actually, not at all. We still have tables and tables filled with books, and the sale is still going on. It is not too late to come, browse, and buy.

Friends of the Library use the funds from the book sale to help with extras for the library. They pay for our Motion Picture Licensing Corporation Umbrella License which allows us to legally show copyrighted videos both here at the library and around town when we take programs to civic clubs, schools, etc. This license is not cheap, so it's a real service to the library for the Friends to do this for us.

We can always count on Friends to help us out with little, and often bigger things, that come up. They so graciously helped us financially with the redecorating of the foyer, purchasing videos and popcorn for family film night, and initiating our books-on-tape collection.

In addition to their financial support, Friends are always willing to help out in other ways. When we began to plan the ribbon cutting ceremony, all we had to do was mention the need for refreshments, and the Friends group took care of it all beautifully. What would we do without them? We extend our tanks and appreciation to the dedicated and willing volunteers of the Deaf Smith County Friends of the Library.

Doesn't the snow and cold weather make you want to curl up in a blanket with a good book and a cup of hot tea?

New nonfiction books this week include George Strait: The Story of Country's Living Legend by Mark Bego. This is the first in-depth, comprehensive look at the country music legend from Pearsall, Texas. Hubble's Universe: A Portrait of Our Cosmos

by Simon Goodwin is a beautiful collection of photographs from the Hubble Space Telescope accompanied by clear, informative captions. Goodwin's introduction provides a fascinating account of the telescope's troubled history, how it works, and its incalculable importance in helping us understand our universe.

A Field Guide to Cows by John Pukite is exactly what the title says it is, albeit a little tongue-in-cheek. In addition to detailed descriptions of 52 cow breeds, their origins and histories and statistics, it gives helpful hints on calling and viewing cows, and appropriate cow watching clothing and equipment. Also available are the superlatives (Largest, smallest, shaggiest, etc.). A funny book.

Other nonfiction books available are: No Contest: Corporate Lawyers and the Perversion of Justice in America by Ralph Nader and Wesley J. Smith, Helping Children Cope with the Loss of a Loved One by William C. Kroen, Ph.D., and When Someone You Love Has Alzheimer's by Earl A.

Grollman.

New Christian fiction includes the second book of Linda Chaikin's The Great Northwest Series, Winds of Allegiance, and a romance by B.J. Hoff entitled Masquerade.

In the mystery category we have Gregory McDonald's Skylar in Yankeeland; Women on the Case, 26 original stories by the best women crime writers of our time, edited by Sara Paretsky; and The Clinic, an Alex Delaware novel by Jonathan Kellerman.

Hope Devane, psychologist, author and recent celebrity, is found murdered on a quiet, tree-lined street on one of L.A.'s safety streets. For three months the police have found no clues. Now Detective Milo Sturgis, newly assigned to the case, turns to his psychologist friend, Dr. Alex Delaware looking for insights into Devane's life.

To both men the cold stalking of Hope Devane suggests calculation fueled by hate - an execution. They discover why as they unlock, one by one, the very private compartments of her life: her marriage, her shadowy work for a Beverly Hills clinic, the Conduct Committee she ran with an iron hand at the University, and her baffling link to another murder victim.

But it's when Alex delves into her childhood that he begins to understand the formidable woman she was - and the ties that entangled her life until the horrifying act of betrayal that ended it.

Other fiction consists of the military thriller Blood and Honor by W.E.B. Griffin; Heart Breaker by Karen Robards; and Zeke and Ned, a funny, exuberant, compelling, violent, and tragic story of frontier life in the Ozarks by Larry McMurtry.

Set in the Cherokee nation not long after the Civil War, Ezekiel Proctor and Ned Christie are the last of the Cherokee warriors, living men whose story is not merely legend, but history - their fates a consequence of the brutal policies which produced the Trail of Tears.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Please inform your readers that rubber bands, while fun, are extremely dangerous toys for pets.

Cats, especially, tend to swallow them. Rubber bands can become entangled in the intestines and cause extreme suffering and quick death if not removed surgically.

My cat managed to get a very small rubber band wrapped tightly around her middle, impairing both breathing and circulation. It was hidden in her fur and she would have died if our very fine veterinarian hadn't found and removed it.

Balls of wadded-up paper or toys pulled along on a ribbon or suspended by a string to bat at and pingpong balls all make fine cat toys. But rubber bands should be inaccessible, always. — Jeanne M. Dams, South Bend, Ind.

Dear Heloise: A few days ago our refrigerator started squeaking periodically.

We called a serviceman and my husband said it probably wouldn't make the noise when the serviceman was there. I brought a small portable tape recorder into the kitchen and recorded the squeak.

Sure enough, it was not making the sound when the repairman arrived, so my husband played the tape for him and he laughingly said, "That's wonderful. I know exactly what it is!"

This could work to check out any strange sound in motors. We enjoy your column. — Lee Carrell Newton, Hot Springs, Va.

Dear Heloise: Here's a great suggestion for a going-away-party gift. Days before the party my hostess began taking individual snapshots of all the invited guests.

The snapshots were mounted in a small album and presented to me. All the guests enjoyed seeing the album and I have a treasure. — Mrs. Dean Leedom, Apache Junction

ALUMINUM PAN

Dear Heloise: Do you have a solution to take a stain out of aluminum cookware? I have a very old aluminum pan that has a dark stain on the inside. — Virginia Keith, Middletown, Ohio

Sure do, and it's as close as your spice rack.

The easiest way to remove the black stain is to fill the pan to the brim with water and bring to a boil. Then, just add a couple of tablespoons of cream of tartar (found in the spice section of supermarkets).

As the water and cream of tartar boil, you can see the black disappear. It may take 10 minutes or so. That's all there is to it. — Heloise

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

The House of the Week

Home Features Interesting Angles

A RAILED porch, bold columns and dormer windows make up this home's traditional, welcoming exterior.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures
Plan G-55, by HomeStyles Designers Network, provides engaging interior angles and 1,902 square feet of living space in a traditional facade.
Exterior appeal is created by a covered front porch with bold columns, attractive wood siding and a pair of dormer windows.
The floor plan consolidates the formal spaces for ease of entertaining, distinguishing the formal dining room from the living room with columns.
The kitchen serves the breakfast nook and great room, and features a practical work island.
The master suite offers a bayed sitting area, walk-in closets and a luxurious whirlpool bath.
Two bedrooms at the opposite end of the house share a full bath.

BEYOND THE FRONT PORCH, an open foyer flows into the formal dining and living rooms, which are separated by stately columns, and continues into the great room. A practical, U-shaped kitchen features a work island, and is nearby a bayed breakfast nook. The laundry room is just steps from the kitchen, and provides access to a two-car garage. Isolated at this end of the home, the master bedroom features a 10-ft. stepped ceiling and a bayed sitting area. Two sizable walk-in closets flank the passageway to the master bath, which features a whirlpool bath, shower and dual vanities. At the opposite end of the home, two additional bedrooms share a full bath.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Faucets: How To Select The Right One

(NAPS)—If you are turned off by the prospects of choosing the right faucet, these commonly asked questions may help.

- Questions
1. A faucet that incorporates a washerless cartridge construction is desirable (a) True (b) False?
 2. A new faucet won't fit on an old sink (a) True (b) False?
 3. A new faucet must have the same configuration as the old one? (a) True (b) False?
 4. A cheap faucet is just as good as an expensive one (a) True (b) False?

- Answers
1. (a) True. They eliminate washers and seals (the most common cause of drips). They are also more durable and reliable. And, if ever repairs are needed, you simply drop in a new cartridge.
 2. (b) False. Standard size sink openings and faucet dimensions are used throughout the plumbing industry.
 3. (b) False. In most cases you can easily change the style on an existing sink. For instance, in the case of kitchen faucets, you can replace a two- or three-handle faucet with a single-handle model, put a faucet with a hose spray on a 3-hole sink or even add a faucet with both a spray and a soap dispenser to a 3-hole sink.
 4. (a) False. Some faucets cost more than others because they are simply made better. They use higher quality material like solid brass or chrome-plated solid brass to provide superior looks, performance and durability. While you may pay more for a quality faucet, you're likely to receive more value for your money as a result of longer, more reliable, trouble-free service.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!
 Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket. For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 --Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 --Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 --Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 --Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Organ transplants for working class financed by bake sales

By LYNN BULMAHN
Waco Tribune-Herald
WACO, Texas - Pat Childs, a Waco hairdresser, suffers from cardiomyopathy, or heart failure. The 49-year-old grandmother needs a heart transplant.

How will she pay for it? Insurance? A government program?

No, bake sales.
A few blocks from the Childs' home, lives Ethel Sandifer, 53. Also a grandmother, she needs a liver transplant. And money to pay for it.

She, too, is hoping that bake sales and similar events - flea markets, raffles and bluegrass nights - will raise the $150,000 or more needed for her transplant and medical treatment.

Without that much money, neither woman qualifies to have her name put on the waiting list enabling her to get a transplant.

Is this unusual? Not at all.
"Almost everybody goes through that unless they are wealthy," said Valerie Ficke, a registered nurse who heads the Waco office of the South Texas Organ Bank.

"Regrettably, that happens to a lot of the middle class," said Mike Miller, director of campaigns for the Indiana-based Children's Organ Transplant Association (COTA). "People cannot believe that here in America there's a price tag on life."

"The middle class are caught totally in a squeeze," agrees Ernie Gilbert of McGregor, a former publishing consultant who received a new liver in 1994. "It's a real bad situation, and it's not getting any better."

"You'd be surprised how many people who need transplants have done all the things they should do" and still fall through the cracks so that they are not covered for the expense, Ms. Ficke said. "It's ridiculous."

She said people who are able to sign a check for $150,000 or more can more easily get on transplant waiting lists. Famous examples include baseball great Mickey Mantle and actor Larry Hagman.

Indigent people who qualify for Medicaid are helped through government programs. To qualify, their income has to be extremely low.

"Middle class people are the ones who really have to suffer," Ms. Ficke said. "You'd better have some good insurance."

Even then, you might not be covered for a transplant.

Ms. Ficke said many patients are denied coverage for transplants, still labeled "experimental" by many insurance companies. Or benefits are limited - far short of the $150,000 price tag for the surgery.

"We take out a policy, then we think that when we're sick - whether we need a tonsillectomy, stitches or a transplant - we'll be covered," Miller said. "That's not necessarily the case."

He said many policies have wording like "customary and usual," which may enable the insurance company to exclude transplants from the procedures covered. Some policies lack provisions for transplant medication, so patients must raise funds for that, Miller said.

According to statistics from United Network of Organ Sharing, there's currently a four-year survival rate of 71 percent for heart transplant patients. Slightly more than 70 percent of liver transplantees survive that long.

This indicates transplantation is "a common procedure, done every day," Ms. Ficke said. But insurance companies are slow to realize it's no longer experimental.

Transplants usually cost $150,000. Mrs. Childs said her insurance will pay $100,000 - after she raises money for her aftercare. This includes another $15,000 to cover checkups the first year following surgery. She'll also need a minimum of $1,500 a month for anti-rejection medicine, her husband, Lester Childs, said.

And that's just for ONE type of pill, Ms. Ficke said. If doctors prescribe additional medicines, the cost will be even greater, she added.

Ms. Sandifer, 53, is in similar straits. A teetotaler, she has a rare liver disease that results in a sort of cirrhosis.

She is getting only limited government help. It's difficult for her to qualify for more because she'd worked before her illness.

Ms. Sandifer is the subject of the "COTA for Ethel" campaign, said her sister, Kathy Hooten of Axtell, who has arranged several fund-raisers. After a holiday hiatus, the effort will again go into high gear in January, Ms. Hooten said.

Churches have taken up love offerings for Ms. Sandifer, and her grandson's school sold candy to benefit her cause. Money that is raised goes to a COTA foundation account - but never to Ms. Sandifer. Otherwise, it could be counted as income and cause her to lose what benefits she now has.

If Ms. Sandifer lives to get her transplant, COTA will sign over the money to the hospital. Otherwise, the funds collected will go to another patient.

"Right now, I have no insurance," Ms. Sandifer said. "The little policy I had was very limited." The policy paid up to $10,000 per procedure, with a $25,000 lifetime limit. It did fund a gall bladder surgery. But it would fall far short of the amount needed for a transplant.

"After I quit work, I couldn't keep up the payments," she said. "So I paid all these years on it for nothing."

Gilbert said he was canceled by his insurance when he became ill. But he was lucky. Despite doctors' predictions to the contrary, he lived long enough to get on Medicare. Then he could have his transplant funded.

Now Gilbert is organizing a local chapter of the Association for Transplant Survivors. Meeting on the third Wednesday of each month at Providence Health Centers, the chapter lobbies for changes in the system and advises new patients needing transplants.

Few such patients can avoid a lot of red tape.

One exception is dialysis patients needing kidney transplants. Since dialysis costs more than transplant surgeries and aftercare, the government will pay for a patient to get a new kidney.

Any other organ and "you're on your own," Ms. Ficke said.

"If I had $200,000 and I walked in Medical City (hospital) tomorrow, they're going to take me," Mrs. Childs said. "But my husband and I are just plain old-working people. Not rich, just hard-working people."

And not poor enough to qualify for Medicaid. "To get on Medicaid, I'd have to be dirt poor - make less than $400 a month. That includes what your husband makes. How can you live on that?"

Mrs. Childs' situation has her friend Marcy Green seeing red.

"Just because they work for a living and they don't have all this money, it's, 'Sorry, we can't help you,'" said Ms. Green, who is conducting some fund-raisers for the patient. "Well, what's the use in paying premiums to an insurance policy and then not get help?"

Gilbert said the number of American hospitals starting transplant programs has doubled in the last eight years.

Yet, he said, it is "almost impossible" for an average American to finance such a surgery. "There are only so many bake sales you can have," he added.

The fear is that people will quit donating to such fund-raisers because there are getting to be so many of them.

4-H and FFA members from five counties will exhibit their animals in the 1997 Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show in the Hereford Bull Barn.

"I hope we're going to have a good show. And I think we will," General Superintendent Greg Urbanczyk said.

The sale will be at 12:30 p.m. Jan. 25.

The sale benefits the youth, so Urbanczyk hopes the local businesses will come out to the sale and support the 4-H and FFA members.

ALLEN POSEY AND LAMB
...at 1997 4-H Project Show

Results of '96 auction

The award-winning steers, lambs and hogs were auctioned in the 1996 Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show Sale.

The annual sale raised $123,000, which was less than the $125,000 raised in the 1995 sale. However, the floor price was higher. The floor amounted to $10,000 to the total take in the sale, show officials said.

Colby Christie's Five-County and County Grand Champion Steer sold for $3 per pound to the Feedyard Buyers Group. Brent Carlson sold his Five-County and County Reserve Champion Steer to the same buyer for $2.75 a pound.

The Booster Club bought the County Grand Champion Hog, shown by Rhiana Noland, for $6.50 a pound. The club also bought the County Reserve Champion Hog, shown by Brittney Binder, for $5.00 a pound.

Chad Christie's Five County and County Grand Champion Lamb sold for $16 a pound to his grandmother, Dolores Christie. Janae Schlabs sold her Five-County, County Reserve Champion Lamb to Wall and Son's Drilling for $6.50 a pound.

Wall and Son's Drilling also bought the last lamb in the sale, shown by Eddie Trotter, for $10 a pound.

On an average, all county steers sold for $1.25 a pound, which was twice as much as the floor price. All county hogs sold for an average of $2.00 a pound and all county lambs sold for an average of $3 per pound.

There were no goats sold in the 1996 sale. The goats sold for 70 cents on the floor.

Friona FFA member drives hog to championship

Wade Schueler of Friona FFA drove his heavy weight Crossbred hog to the Five-County Grand Champion Hog honors at the 1996 Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show.

County honors went to Rhiana Noland, a Deaf Smith County 4-H member, and her heavy weight Crossbred hog.

Tanner Self of Dimmitt FFA won the Five-County Reserve Champions honors in the hog show.

Brittney Binder, a former Hereford FFA member, drove her heavy weight Crossbred hog to the County Reserve Champion honors.

Binder is a freshman at Abilene Christian University.

Mark Houge of Iowa judged the show. There were 300 hogs in the show, which lasted more than eight hours.

Houge studied each hog before making his selections.

"When I look at a class, I start running the good and bad of each hog in my mind. I then start weighing one against the other -- then make my selections," he said.

Amber Hayes of Vega FFA won the senior showmanship competition. Second place went to Brandon Mercer of Randall 4-H.

The junior showmanship winner was C.J. Parsley of Vega FFA. Ryan Mercer of Randall 4-H won second place.

"I am impressed with the outstanding quality of showmen and their hogs," Houge said.

The following is a complete list of placings in the hog show.

Agriculture Briefs

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - Declining milk prices are welcome news to grocery shoppers - for a while. But it could be bad news long term.

The erratic milk pricing that was so noticeable last year drove many farmers out of business. In Missouri, for example, about 200 dairy farms closed in 1996. Some experts say that could mean milk shortages and higher prices down the road.

Cletus Koerner, who tends 87 Holstein cows on his farm in Barnett, Mo., is a case in point. He would like to turn the business over to his son some day.

"I think it's to everybody's interest that we keep the dairyman in business," Koerner said.

New England herd owners are considering a plan that would require milk processors to pay farmers a premium when the price drops too low.

One stabilization plan under consideration in the Midwest would set a minimum basic formula price, said Koerner, a member of the board of directors for the cooperative Mid-America Dairymen Inc.

The cooperative calls for more farmer-funded promotion of dairy products and more purchases by the federal government to lift prices when they fall below production costs, as they have lately.

Koerner said big and small producers are in the same predicament because of the roller-coaster milk pricing.

Last summer dairy farmers were getting up to $15.50 for 100 pounds of raw milk, but weather conditions forced up feed prices. Then feed prices dropped in the fall due to high crop yields.

"Everybody had some optimism in October that it was time to make up for the losses," said David Drennan, executive director of the Missouri Dairy Association.

A president's wish: Family leave act hits prime time

John Ritter, Anna Chlumsky and Tess Harper star in A Child's Wish, premiering Tuesday on CBS. The film dramatizes the troubles of one family, the likes of which led President Bill Clinton to sign the Family and Medical Leave Act. Clinton makes a brief appearance as himself.

By Teresa Ortega
©TVData Features Syndicate

The first bill President Bill Clinton signed into law, the Family and Medical Leave Act, inspired the first drama to include a current president as an actor.

Tuesday, Jan. 21 on CBS, John Ritter, Tess Harper and Anna Chlumsky star in A Child's Wish, about a family that falls into debt and disarray after daughter Missy is diagnosed with cancer.

The story is notable because it was similar real-life instances that prompted President Clinton to sign the controversial act into law in 1993.

Ritter (Hearts Afire) and Harper (A Summer to Remember) play Missy's parents, Ed and Joanne Chandler. The family goes into financial and emotional decline when Ed loses his job because of performance problems caused by Missy's illness.

Wish highlights the difficulties many families faced prior to passage of the Family and Medical Leave Act, which mandates up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave in a 12-month period to care for a seriously ill parent, spouse or child.

Though the film is heavily partisan in its depiction of the political process behind the passage of the Family and Medical Leave Act, the Chandlers' personal tragedy movingly demonstrates the need filled by such protective legislation.

John Ritter and Anna Chlumsky work well together in the many scenes they share, especially during their joint testimony before a congressional review board and in a difficult scene in which Ed Chandler tells his daughter her leg will have to be amputated.

To prepare for her role, Chlumsky met with families who lost children to cancer to hear about their experiences.

"It made me realize how lucky I am," Chlumsky says, "and how unlucky some kids are."

Lawrence Horowitz, co-executive producer, says this is the "only time ever that an actual movie has been filmed in the Oval Office, and the only time that a sitting president has been in a movie other than a documentary."

Clinton, Horowitz says, was "gracious" and "put everyone else at ease."

Chlumsky recalls, "It was weird to see him (Clinton) come into the Oval Office," but once the president started casually talking to the assembled cast and crew, she realized that he was just "a totally normal guy."

The president appears in the movie's final scene, in which Missy, at this point clearly terminal, travels to the White House through the beneficence of the Make-A-Wish Foundation, which grants special wishes to terminally ill children.

In this, the film's dramatic culmination, it is both disconcerting and moving to see the president re-enacting for the screen a scene that has actually taken place many times privately during his tenure.

The line between real life, good TV drama and political speechmaking is blurred.

"When you believe something in your heart, it's not acting," Horowitz says, referring to the president's dramatic debut.

Nonetheless, by enlisting the country's most powerful political figure to tell this story, the makers of A Child's Wish are mixing true-tale dramatization with reality television in a manner destined to be controversial.

The issues brought up in A Child's Wish — including but surpassing its focus on the Family and Medical Leave Act — will undoubtedly reverberate long after its airing.

"Betcha' Didn't Know"

You may know that Ronald Reagan was a movie star before he took office and that George Washington could not tell a lie, but below are some facts that you probably didn't know...

WOODROW WILSON 28th President In the White House, Wilson's daily breakfast was a glass of grapefruit juice and two raw eggs. His favorite lunch was chicken salad. While in office in 1919 Wilson was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT 32nd President While recovering from polio, Roosevelt spent some time writing a movie script based on the history of the ship, "Old Ironsides." He never succeeded in selling it to Hollywood. Roosevelt was the first president whose mother was eligible to vote for him. He appointed the first female U.S. ambassador to a foreign country. And was also a very popular president, he was elected for four terms. JOHN KENNEDY 35th President During his presidency, Kennedy usually swam two times each day in a pool he ordered to be heated to 90 degrees. Kennedy was known to be careless with money and was always borrowing cash from friends.	RICHARD NIXON 37th President Nixon was the first president in American history who managed to visit every state while in office. THEODORE ROOSEVELT 26th President A man of great activity and physical fitness, President Roosevelt was said to exclaim "Bully!" when he was pleased. RONALD REAGAN 40th President At the age of 69, Reagan was the oldest person ever elected president. JIMMY CARTER 39th President Before he took office, Jimmy Carter served as a naval engineer, working with nuclear-powered submarines. He also managed his family's peanut farming business. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS 6th President The old saying "Like father, like son" applies here. Adams was the son of the second U.S. president, John Adams.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ January 19-25 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Think before you act, especially early in the week. If your love life seems to be going nowhere, it's probably time to make a change. Take some time for self-reflection. Feeling out of shape lately? Well, maybe it's time to get off the couch and head for the gym!

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
A friend's change of heart could disrupt your weekly schedule. You may find yourself doing something you hadn't planned on. A look at someone's lifestyle makes you yearn to be more spontaneous. Face it, Taurus — nobody's more set in his or her ways than you! Gemini plays a role.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Your practical side has been on the fritz lately where dollars and cents are concerned. It's not too late to make a resolution to bring it back. Even if financial struggles take over your thoughts, don't let them get hold of your positive attitude. Listen to the sensible twin, Gemini.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Some time to yourself early in the week gives you the rest you need. Your batteries will be fully charged for an unusually hectic weekend. Something you've been waiting for finally comes via the mail. Hooked up to the information superhighway? Surf around for new opportunities.

LEO - July 23/August 23
At work, you're better off handing in no work than producing a sloppy job, especially if your boss is a Scorpio. The demanding Scorpio won't cut you a bit of slack. A Capricorn who once made you see fireworks can't even make a spark for you now. Was it a change in Capricorn or you?

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Teamwork is necessary to get through the workweek. If you find that you're the one putting in most of the effort, it's best to let your feelings be known. You'll be surprised at the results you get once you exhibit assertiveness. Let your conscious guide you through a tough decision on Friday.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
You may bump into an old flame in an unlikely place. This chance meeting will be enlightening and discouraging at the same time. Old feelings — good and bad — are likely to surface. If you are involved with any type of creative work, make full use of your talents and abilities. Proceed with caution when it comes to money matters. Be sure you're getting what you pay for.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Try not to be impulsive just because you're bored with your daily routine. If you need a change of scene, figure out your budget first, and then give a travel agent a call. Family arguments are likely to surface later in the week. Control your emotions before things get truly out of hand.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Social activities abound. Accept an invitation to a party. Go ahead, and invite a new friend out for a night on the town. You will get an enthusiastic "yes." A romantic quarrel will open your eyes to important matters. It could be time to face up to sensitive issues.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Feelings of self-doubt could get between you and a loved one. Look at things from an outsider's perspective, and you just may feel better about yourself. An easier way of handling a routine work project gives you the extra time you need to tackle more creative endeavors.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
A heart-to-heart conversation with a family member may be necessary as tempers rise and emotions get out of control. Expressing your feelings not only helps others understand you, but it gives you the opportunity to vent. There may be some encouraging news regarding finances.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
A weekend getaway is the best medicine for the stressed-out Pisces. Relaxation and fun are what you need to get back on track. Dishonesty — in any form — will work against you this week. It will be especially detrimental if you are romantically involved with Aquarius.

Q: During the 1970s, Michael Richards of Seinfeld was in a weekly late-night show. I thought it was Saturday Night Live. Friends say it was SCTV. Which was it? -Lynn Reimund, Deshler, Ohio.

A: Richards was part of the zany cast of ABC's Fridays, viewed by many as a pale imitation of NBC's SNL. Among his fellow cast members was Larry David, who co-created Seinfeld - and who, by all accounts, is the real-life prototype for that sitcom's George Costanza.

Fridays ran from April 11, 1980, to Oct. 22, 1982.

Q: I say that game show host Wink Martindale is between 60 and 70 years old. My friends say he is older. Who is right? Also, who played the father of Mr. Spock on Star Trek? -Emily Sedziak, Erie, Pa.

A: Martindale was born Winston Conrad Martindale in Bells, Tenn., on Dec. 4, 1934, which means he recently turned 62.

Actor Mark Lenard, who recently died, played the Vulcan father of Spock.

Q: My wife and I watched the 1950 Tyrone Power movie The Black Rose. A woman whose name was given as Cecile Aubry played the romantic interest, and we gradually became convinced that she and present-day actress Linda Hunt must be the same person. Are they? -C.C.A., Athens, Ohio.

A: No. Hunt was 5 years old in 1950.

Q: I once saw a beautiful family movie, starring Jessica Tandy, Hume Cronyn and John Denver, about a Smoky Mountains widow who is visited by the ghost of her husband. Can you help me remember the title? -Leoda Watson, Campbellville, Ky.

Michael Richards

A: That was Foxfire, the lovely 1987 TV movie in which Tandy and Cronyn re-created their Broadway roles from a play he co-created with Susan Cooper, who also wrote the teleplay.

Austin City Limits pushes boundary of country's music

By Dave Larsen
 ©TVData Features Syndicate

Austin City Limits has never been hemmed in by musical boundaries. The long-running PBS series may have once been regarded as a program that catered to country music, but its 22nd season, which begins on Saturday, Jan. 25 (check local listings), presents a range of styles as broad as the Texas horizon.

The season opens in traditional fashion with a special one-hour performance by country superstar Wynonna but subsequent episodes will offer everything from folk and bluegrass to alternative rock and blues.

In February, audiences will be treated to tributes to "father of bluegrass" Bill Monroe and the late songwriter Walter Hyatt. Lyle Lovett, Shawn Colvin, Jimmie Dale Gilmore, Junior Brown and Marcia Ball are among almost a dozen stars who honor Hyatt, who died in a plane crash in May 1996.

Austin City Limits will showcase acclaimed alternative rock acts Son Volt in March and Sheryl Crow in April.

The new season also will feature guitar virtuoso Eric Johnson, blues-rock guitar prodigy Kenny Wayne Shepherd and the honky-tonk rhythms of the Drillers and Dale Watson.

Country music keeps its hat in the ring with performances by Mary Chapin Carpenter and Wade Hayes, as well as a new "Songwriters Special," featuring Waylon Jennings, Kris Kristofferson and Willie Nelson, airing on Saturday, Feb. 1.

Austin City Limits was inspired by the burgeoning music scene of Austin, Texas, in the early 1970s, and has featured more than 250 regional and internationally known artists on its stage over the past 21 seasons.

Austin City Limits has become one of television's longest-running music series largely thanks to its continuing association with traditional country music. But as this season's diverse and distinctive lineup illustrates, the series' scope has expanded beyond its titular borders. "It's not just country music," the program's catch phrase proclaims, "it's this country's music."

SOAP WORLD

Guiding Light celebrates 60 years

By Candace Havens

For more than 60 years the beacon on Guiding Light has been shining on daytime, and it has attracted generations of fans.

GL began as a 15-minute radio show created by Irna Phillips in 1937, and hit the small screen in June 1952. It is the only radio drama to make the transition to television and remain on the air today.

"For something to last six months in this business is amazing," says Jerry Ver Dorn, who plays Ross Marler. "For a show to last 60 years it is phenomenal."

The set on GL is like no other set in daytime. Ver Dorn says part of that is due to a very special woman. "Charita Bauer, who played Bert for 40 years, just took every new person under her wing," Ver Dorn says. "I think she sort of established the familylike tone of our set. She often maintained that there was a GL kind of person. They were hard workers with sense of humor.

"On our set you are very much invited to make a fool of yourself, which makes for a wonderful, creative atmosphere. What we are doing is not brain surgery. If someone makes a mistake, we move on."

Through the years GL has seen its share of changes in writers, producers and actors. Recently, Paul Rauch was hired as the new executive producer.

To celebrate the milestone, Rauch has a special week planned. "We have a gala ball celebrating the 60th anniversary of Cedars Hospital on the show," Rauch says.

"It will be attended by the entire cast and the audience will be treated to visits by favorites from the past. The lighthouse, which symbolizes GL, will play a prominent role when friends and adversaries cross paths to keep the light shining."

There also will be changes in the way the show looks. "We will be re-designing and redecorating all the sets with a lushness and romanticism not seen before on GL," Rauch says.

Famously misquoted, Charles Darwin never used the term "survival of the fittest." A contemporary scientist, Herbert Spencer, coined it.

Dean Johnson, host of PBS' Home-time, was an accounting major in his native Minnesota. He is married to his high-school sweetheart.

A bit cash-poor in 1789, George Washington was obliged to borrow $600 to travel from Mount Vernon to New York City for his inauguration.

Actor Stephen Collins (7th Heaven) is the author of Eye Contact. The novel is currently in its sixth printing.
