Beet growers recognize Cleavinger, Peabody; Holly president is optimistic about industry

Two agribusiness leaders received special recognition; Holly Sugar president Roger Hill gave an optimistic report on the future of the sweetener industry; top growers were recognized, and the "World's Worst Farmer" had the audience laughing when the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association held its 32nd annual banquet here Saturday night in the Bull Barn.
Bill Cleavinger, longtime association leader, was presented with a plaque of appreciation from Holly Sugar and a framed painting from the TNMSBGA board honoring him for 18 years of dedicated service to the association.
Ted Peabody Jr., county executive director of the Farm Service Agency, was presented with the "Ag Man of the Year" award from The Hereford Brand, recognizing him for his contributions to the ag industry and to community involvement.
Lewis Baumgartner, guest speaker from Kansas, was a hit with the audience as he presented a mixture of one-liners and poems - all delivered in his folksy, homespun style. He was introduced by director Coby Gilbreath.

Approximately 300 people attended the banquet, which had special entertainment by the Texas Country band and a dinner catered by K-Bob's Restaurant. Kenneth Frye, association president, introduced directors and Holly officials.
Dennis Printz, Holly ag manager, recognized two growers who made the 10,000 pound per acre club. Alpha Land & Cattle Co. of Dalhart had two contracts to make over 10,000 pounds per acre, and R.D. Offutt Co. of the Dalhart area had four contracts to reach the coveted figure. Printz pointed out that the average pounds per acre for area growers is between 5,500 and 6,000 pounds.
Hill, Holly president from Colorado Springs, pointed out that 1996 was not a good year, but he was optimistic about the future of the plant here. Growers instituted a program to increase the beet acreage to make the facility here more efficient and more viable for both Holly and the growers association.
Beet acreage has been increased from 14,000 to 20,000 acres, which is still 5,000 acres short of the goal. But "with the market for sugar and one of the better factories in the country, we have a combination that can generate a lot of revenue for all of us," said Hill.
In accepting his awards, Cleavinger said it had been "a privilege to serve growers...there were good days and some bad days, but he appreciated the cooperative efforts put forth by growers and Holly."
He also worded an emotional tribute to the late James Witherspoon, whom he described as the father of the sugar beet industry in this area. "It was his baby and he worked for the community without thought of financial reward," said Cleavinger.
Peabody, who came to Hereford as CED of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in 1987, appeared surprised at his selection as Ag Man of the Year.
"However, this does explain some unusual events around my house the past day or two - like my parents saying they'd like to attend the banquet and a daughter showing up to go with us."
Peabody was born in Las Vegas, N.M., and grew up on a farm near Fort Sumner. He was active in 4-H and FFA in high school and graduated from Eastern New Mexico University with a major in agri-business.

He was a certified welder for a couple of years, then joined ASCS in Portales. He was CED for Union County, N.M., and Follert County in Texas before coming to Hereford. He has been involved with youth of the community through 4-H and county extension programs.
Peabody is a deacon at First Baptist Church and teaches a high school juniors' Sunday School class. His wife, Darliss, is financial and

Parks, recreation are focus of re-organization proposal presented by city manager

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer
A re-organization of the City of Hereford staff was reviewed for the City Commission during a Monday work session and the commission implemented a revised ordinance for removal of dilapidated buildings during the regular meeting.
City Manager Chester Nolen told the commission that the proposed changes in staff would require no additional employees although at least one replacement employee probably will be needed. No added expense is anticipated, he said.
The re-organization will give the city a parks and recreation department with oversight of several areas assigned to a director, Nolen pointed out.
During the commission's brief regular meeting, removal of buildings at 226 Avenue A, 318 Avenue A and 314 Avenue A was ordered by resolution. And, a report from the Hereford Economic Development Corporation executive director, was heard by the commission.
Owners of the property will be notified that they have 30 days to tear down the buildings. After 30 days, the city has the authority to raze the buildings and file a lien against the property for expense of removal.
City Attorney Terry Langehennig advised the commission that an ordinance passed several weeks ago speeds up the process of condemning unsafe structures. Previously, court action was required to permit the city to remove such buildings.
Public hearings were conducted on the three buildings but no owners appeared before the commission although they were notified of the hearings. City Building Official Pete Wilt testified to the unsafe buildings.

If owners do not respond to notices before 30 days elapse, the city may proceed to tear down the buildings.
In his review of city staff re-organization, Nolen said changes should result in delegation of some authority outside his office.
He said the number of "individuals for the city manager to communicate with on a daily basis to decrease from 13 to seven."
The major target of his plan, Nolen said in a memo to the commission, will be the parks and recreation department. He said such a department has been a longtime goal of the city.
"The activities of the aquatic facility, the pro shop and golf course superintendent and parks maintenance functions would all fall under a parks and recreation director," Nolen said.
"This plan would allow for the structured activities that have been less than coordinated events. It also would allow for more professional supervision in the parks area," he added.
Nolen said personnel changes are a month, or more, away.
Looking at proposals, the commission agreed with Nolen's assessment of needs, although no action was taken or required for the city manager to implement his plan.

discussed with the commission in a closed-door session at a later date.
Mike Hatley, HEDC executive, said he recently has submitted material about Hereford to a pair of industrial prospects and another business.
In addition, the HEDC is staying in touch with prospective theatre operators, a dairy and a discount retailer.
During the commission's work session, Nolen submitted estimates on revitalizing the Main Street business district.
A cost of approximately $21,600 would cover demolition of existing facilities, construction of new planting areas and islands, 24 trees and 24 sidewalk grates.
The city manager advised the commission that there is no provision in the current budget for the work.
Mayor Josseland suggested that the city should enlist Hereford Beautification Alliance and Main Street merchants in the project.
The city could reasonably handle the demolition, estimated to cost $2,000, and construction of planting areas, at a cost of $10,000, Nolen said.
A total of 24 trees and 24 sidewalk grates would be an additional $9,600.
Commissioners agreed informally that some of the cost should be assumed by merchants.
"I think there should be participation by the merchants," said Commissioner Carey Black. "Business in other parts of town shouldn't pay, through their taxes, to dress up Main Street."
Josseland asked Nolen to notify the Hereford Beautification Alliance that the commission will work in a planning session on Feb. 10, beginning at 5 p.m., and discuss the project. HBA representatives will be invited to take part in the discussions.

Celebration ends, work starts for Clinton's next four years

By JOHN DIAMOND
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Warmed by a night of inaugural revelry, President Clinton today changed from tuxedo to business suit and plunged into a second term that confronts him with ethical, budgetary and international problems.
"It's better the second time around," a jubilant Clinton declared late Monday, only a few hours into the coveted second term that has eluded Democrats for six decades.

"We know that we can make America better. And especially now that we know it, we have no excuse," Clinton told revelers as he and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton raced through 15 inaugural balls and got back to the White House by 1:40 a.m. EST - two full hours ahead of schedule.
Republicans, who will have a great deal to say about how much better Clinton's second term will be, applauded the tone of bipartisanship that Clinton wove into his remarks on the first day of his second term, but said they would believe it when they saw it.
"Only time will tell whether or not he means it or it was rhetoric," said Rep. Bob Livingston, R-La., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.
Clinton, who has done some reading on the largely dismal record of second-term presidents, planned to begin work today fighting the Republican push for a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution.
He also was to urge tougher campaign finance rules during a speech to the Democratic National Committee, a group basking in presidential victory but staring at the prospect of a Republican-dominated Congress poised to investigate its acceptance - and return - of foreign campaign contributions.
Republicans had problems of their own, as the House was to vote today on a resolution to reprimand House Speaker Newt Gingrich for ethical misconduct and assess a $300,000 penalty.
Clinton began his second term in no position to cluck over the speaker's difficulties.
A special counsel continues to investigate the president's involvement in the Whitewater real estate matter. GOP lawmakers say they will investigate questionable Clinton campaign fund-raising practices and White House abuse of FBI files. And one of the cases on the desk of Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, who wished Clinton "good luck" after swearing him in Monday, is the sexual harassment lawsuit of one Paula Jones - against Bill Clinton.

High on Clinton's second term agenda was tightening procedures for access to the White House. The president wants no repeat of the embarrassing stories about a Chinese arms dealer and a convicted felon being among the White House guests at campaign events.
Clinton also was to meet with aides on education, one of the few specific issues he mentioned in his inaugural address.
Later in the week, Clinton focuses on foreign policy, meeting in Washington on Thursday with U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan. Other foreign policy worries include the health of Russian President Boris Yeltsin, which could scuttle a U.S. summit planned for this spring.
On Monday, Clinton's secretary of state nominee, Madeleine Albright, became the first of Clinton's new Cabinet to pass committee scrutiny, winning unanimous approval from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The full Senate was expected to confirm her quickly.
Further down the road, Clinton is supposed to deliver a fiscal 1998 budget to Congress on Feb. 6. Among the expected major items of contention are trimming Medicare and defense spending.
But for a night, at least, and part of this morning, Clinton put those cares aside, donned formal wear and celebrated.
With the bands playing "Unforgettable," Clinton danced with Mrs. Clinton. Daughter Chelsea did her own party-hopping with friends, then caught up with Mom and Dad at the Arkansas ball.
Clinton resisted several offers to play the saxophone but did blow his own horn just a bit at the Pennsylvania-Ohio ball.
"The only reason there was a second term around is because the country is better than it was the first time around," Clinton said. "We put this country back on the right track."

Nominees for 'Citizen' are asked

Nominations for Hereford's "Citizen of the Year" are now being accepted at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office.
The traditional award will be presented at the Chamber Banquet, March 13, by the Hereford Lions Club. L.J. Clark, club president, said the deadline for nominations will be Feb. 7.
Readers who wish to make a nomination should type or print a letter explaining why their nominee should be recognized as "Citizen of the Year." Nominees traditionally are local residents who have contributed time and talents "above and beyond the call of duty" toward making Hereford a better place to live, work and play.

Costs of health care expected to escalate

NEW YORK (AP) - Health maintenance organizations are planning to hike costs this year after holding the price of health insurance in check in 1996, according to a widely watched survey.

The cost of providing health coverage for workers and retirees grew just 2.5 percent last year to $3,915 per person, according to a survey of 3,200 employers released today by the consulting firm Foster Higgins.

It was the third year in a row HMOs and other managed care plans have helped rein in health insurance inflation. However, HMOs, whose rates have been flat or declining for two years, are planning increases in 1997, Foster Higgins said.

"And I think the picture for 1998 is a little nastier because of several converging factors," added John Erb, the study's chief author. For one thing, a public backlash against limitations on care imposed by HMOs is prompting legislation mandating benefits. In 1996, most states and Congress passed laws requiring a 48-hour hospital stay for new mothers.

Hospitals and doctors, tired of having their fees cut by HMOs, are banding together to get more bargaining clout.

And federal and state governments, hoping to ensure the solvency of government health programs for the elderly and poor, are planning to scale back rate increases to HMOs for their Medicare and Medicaid patients. HMOs may try to make up these losses by raising rates further for employers.

As a result, the employers surveyed by Foster Higgins expect costs to increase 4 percent in 1997, and Erb said inflation could get worse after that.

For 1996, however, the picture remained somewhat benign. More and more companies switched their workers from traditional health insurance to managed care, which now covers 75 percent of the Americans who get their health benefits through their jobs.

Average costs for large employers with 500 or more workers rose 3.6 percent while smaller employers with less than 500 workers actually saw a decline of 2 percent. These smaller companies had been slower to accept managed care, but are now catching up, the survey showed.

Erb said the mere fact that most employed Americans are now in managed care plans is one reason that costs may now head back up.

"The easiest most readily available way to save in health plans is getting people out of traditional indemnity insurance and into managed care. That's a kind of low-hanging fruit. Every one you pick, you save bucks, and most of the low-hanging fruit is gone," he said.

HMOs, eager to sign up new business and facing increasing competition, have kept their premiums stable even while their payments to doctors, hospitals and drug companies have been going up.

That caused HMO profits to drop in 1996. Under pressure from investors to restore profit growth, most HMOs are demanding premium increases of between 3 percent and 6 percent this year.

HMOs are also redoubling efforts to cut medical costs, which may bring greater restrictions on specialists, hospital stays and the choice of drugs.

Speaker could face reprimand, $300,000 penalty for violations

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - In the ethics dock after two years of controversy, Speaker Newt Gingrich awaited punishment from fellow lawmakers all but certain to impose a reprimand and a whopping $300,000 penalty for admitted rules violations.

Aides said Monday that Gingrich was not expected to be present in the House chamber for today's debate and vote in a politically charged case in which he denied all wrongdoing until a month ago.

There was little doubt about the outcome, since Gingrich himself agreed in advance to the punishment and the ethics committee rubber-stamped it late Friday night.

The vote on the House floor followed adoption by the ethics committee of a formal report which concluded that "over a number of years and in a number of situations, Mr. Gingrich showed disregard and lack of respect for the standards of conduct that applied to his activities."

The Georgia Republican admitted on Dec. 21 that he failed to seek proper legal advice on using tax-exempt projects to meet political goals. He acknowledged that "in my name and over my signature" inaccurate statements had been submitted to the ethics committee.

The prescribed punishment would allow Gingrich to retain his leadership post, although it also apparently would mark the first time in history that a speaker was cited by the full House for ethical misconduct.

And it was clear from some Republicans that there was little stomach among the rank and file for additional transgressions by the powerful speaker. "I think he has pushed the loyalty litmus test to the limit," said Rep. Ray LaHood of Illinois, echoing what other lawmakers said privately.

Still, controversy swirled around the case even as it reached its conclusion.

Gingrich's lawyer, J. Randolph Evans, left open the possibility the speaker might tap leftover campaign funds to pay his penalty, although he said no decision would be made without consulting legal specialists.

"We don't want to end up with more problems," the attorney said. He said other options include using personal funds or establishing a legal defense fund.

Democrats and several Republicans have publicly urged Gingrich to use personal funds to make the payment. He should use "his own money," said Rep. Jay Dickey of Arkansas in an interview. "We have endured enough. I don't want us to go through with all that legal hair-splitting."

Dickey and other Republicans expressed surprise at the size of the financial penalty Gingrich will be required to pay. But they said it likely wouldn't have interfered with his re-election as speaker two weeks ago had they known about it.

Rep. Tom Davis, R-Va., said lawmakers knew at the time Gingrich was likely to face a reprimand. Dickey said Gingrich would have prevailed because "he is so important to the leadership with his vision."

In another area, a law enforcement official disclosed the FBI is conducting interviews as part of its investigation into the taping and distribution of a cellular phone conversation on Dec. 21 in which Gingrich and the GOP leadership discussed a plan for blunting political damage. The New York Times reported a few days later that it obtained a copy of the tape from a Democratic congressman.

The North Florida couple that has admitted taping the call has said they handed it over to Rep. James McDermott, D-Wash., a member of the ethics committee. McDermott declined comment Monday when asked whether the FBI had questioned him as part of the investigation.

While Gingrich loyalists have likened his offense to "jaywalking," research at the Library of Congress' Congressional Research Service indicated the House action in the matter was unprecedented.

"Although there have been charges, allegations and investigations with respect to alleged ethical misconduct of speakers of the House in the past, none of these instances has culminated in a formal vote by the House of representatives to cite a speaker for ethical misconduct," the material said.

One other recent speaker who confronted ethical woes, Democrat Jim Wright of Texas, resigned before his case could reach the floor.

Gingrich has chosen the opposite course, fighting for his job at the same time he was agreeing in December to admit to rules violations. His admission permitted him to avoid a protracted ethics trial that could have taken months. That delay, in turn, may have doomed his campaign for re-election as speaker when the votes were cast on Jan. 7.

Clinton calls for 'one America' in speech starting second term

By RON FOURNIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - With a flourish of inaugural pageantry and prose, William Jefferson Clinton claimed his second term today, issuing a passionate call for Americans to reconcile their differences and march together into the next millennium. "We must succeed as one America," he declared.

With his left hand on a family Bible, the 50-year-old president raised his right hand and swore the same 35-word oath taken by every president since George Washington.

With that, he stood poised to be the first president of the 21st century. As cannons fired off in salute, Clinton turned and hugged first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton and their 16-year-old daughter. He pecked them both on their cheeks as the applause swelled - then kissed them again.

Moments earlier, Al Gore took the vice presidential oath. He hopes to succeed Clinton, who became the first Democrat in 60 years to celebrate two inaugurations. Clinton cannot serve another term.

Washington's hierarchy, from Clinton's Cabinet to members of Congress, Supreme Court justices, military leaders, foreign ambassadors and political VIPs gathered at the Capitol to witness the start of Clinton's second term. House Speaker Newt Gingrich, like Clinton besieged by ethical problems, stood nearby.

Hundreds of thousands of people, braving near-freezing temperatures, swelled the Mall in front of the U.S. Capitol. It was a moment of celebration or at least a chance to witness history.

"It's a thrill of a lifetime, probably a once-in-a-lifetime thing," gushed Jean Leboff, who had just arrived from Pennsylvania.

It was a poignant moment for Clinton. His beloved mother, Virginia Kelley, stood nearby as he was sworn in as president four years ago; she died a year later.

"The president and I miss Virginia very much, particularly at a time like this," said Dick Kelley, the president's stepfather.

The first family began their day in worship at the Metropolitan African Methodist Episcopal Church, a historic black church seven blocks from the White House. With his eyes raised toward the ceiling, Clinton joined the choir in a thunderous version of "Holy, Holy, Holy."

Keeping with Clinton's plea for reconciliation along racial and ethnic lines, Arkansas poet Miller Williams wrote a verse for the occasion: "Who were many people coming together cannot become one people falling apart."

Throughout the day, Clinton was paying tribute to Martin Luther King Jr., the slain civil rights leader whose birthday is honored today.

Under clear and sunny skies, Clinton slipped off his overcoat to take the oath of office from Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist.

The 22-minute address, unusually brief for Clinton, promises a government "humble enough" not to try to solve all the nation's ills yet "strong enough" to help Americans improve their own lots. He called it a government of "New Promise."

"Let us build our bridge, wide enough and strong enough for every American to cross over to a blessed land of New Promise," Clinton said.

New bishop announced for diocese

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - The diocese of Amarillo has a new bishop, the Rev. John Yanta, who has been serving as auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese of San Antonio.

Yanta, 65, becomes the seventh bishop of the 70-year-old diocese, replacing the Rev. Leroy Matthiesen, who has served since May of 1980. Matthiesen reached the mandatory age of 75 last June.

The Amarillo diocese covers the top 26 counties of the Panhandle and represents about 52,000 Catholics.

The announcement was made early today by archbishop Agostino Cacciavillan, papal nuncio to the United States.

Matthiesen was known for his stance against nuclear weapons. He had called for Christians working at the massive Pantex weapons facility near Amarillo to reevaluate their jobs.

Yanta has served under archbishop Patrick Flores in San Antonio. In 1995, the San Antonio archdiocese had a Catholic population of nearly 640,000.

Hereford volunteer trains others to save lives with CPR, first aid

AMARILLO - "With one minute of CPR, you can save a person's life," lectures Charlie Arellano, community volunteer and maintenance technician with the Hereford Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) office.

"I'm here to give you tools to save someone's life," says Arellano, "so you won't have to helplessly watch someone die in an emergency situation."

Arellano is a volunteer with the Tri County Chapter of the Red Cross in Hereford. He was instrumental in introducing CPR and basic first aid training to every employee of TxDOT.

"The department offers the training to employees on a volunteer basis," says Lou Camp, TxDOT safety coordinator. "We always have safety on our minds. So, it was suggested that we go to every office and train every employee who volunteers to take the training in CPR and basic first aid. We appreciate Charlie's help in getting the program going."

Arellano recently completed teaching employees in the 17 counties that make up the Amarillo TxDOT district. It took four days each week over a period of three months to certify the 328 TxDOT employees who voluntarily took the first aid class.

The Tri County chapter of the Red Cross furnished the materials and the CPR practice mannequins for a small fee. Arellano receives no additional compensation for his instruction, and says he is happy to share his knowledge.

"I really believe in training as many people as I can. No one that I know has had to perform CPR," says Arellano. "But I feel confident that they could save someone's life."

Arellano graduated from Hereford High School and attended Amarillo College and West Texas A&M University. He is a certified Emergency Medical Technician, certified AIDS education instructor, volunteers for the Red Cross. He serves on the Hereford I.S.D. school board and the Deaf Smith County Probation Board.

Arellano and his wife Delme live in Hereford with their two daughters.

L'Allegra Study Club begins year with program on history of gardens

L'Allegra Study Club ended the '96 year with a Santa Claus Christmas exchange and dinner. Members were served hot chicken salad with a special dessert of praline crepes prepared by Toujours Amis Study Club.

L'Allegra's new year began with club members meeting at the home of Barbara Kerr.

A program was given by Carmen Flood about garden history. The program gave a description of gardens from the Garden of Eden to present-day gardens.

Also discussed at the meeting was the success of Project Christmas Card. All donations will be given to Hereford Regional Medical Center to refurbish the obstetrics waiting room.

The next meeting will be Jan. 23 in the home of Diana Griffin.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: While traveling in Denmark recently, I picked up an English-language newspaper and read a Reuters story I thought might interest you:

"Denmark's Social Research Institute says single fathers are calmer and less likely to punish their children than lone mothers, who are often dogged by money problems. 'The daily Berlingske Tidende said yesterday a study of 1,200 children aged between 3 and 5, half living with a single mother and half with only a father, showed that the mothers were far more stressed and depressed than the men.

"The single mothers have more psychiatric problems than fathers. Their self-confidence is lower, and they suffer more from nightmares, insomnia and anxiety attacks," the paper quoted the state-run institute as saying in a report.

"Mothers have far more conflict with their children and are quicker to hit or punish their children," the report said.

"The paper quoted researcher Mogens Nygaard as saying women were not genetically more irritable than men but were under greater economic pressure, being more likely to be jobless or, if employed, generally lower paid than male workers.

"Women also perceived society as having a more favorable attitude to men caring for their children alone than for single mothers.

"Nygaard added that only 6 percent of all single-parent children aged 3 to 5 lived with their fathers, implying that the relatively few men who actively sought responsibility for their children were strongly motivated to meet the challenges."

I guess, Ann, the findings reported in that news article are further proof that parents are pretty much the same all over the world. -- N.Y. Reader

Dear N.Y.: Thanks for sending on the article. The study underscores the importance of providing financial support and job training for mothers. Your assessment regarding the similarity of people all over the world is correct. The article also spotlights the fact that single mothers are more stressed than single fathers not because they are women but because of financial problems. Thank you again.

Dear Ann Landers: I can identify with "Geneva," the son with the impossible mother. For the past 20 years, my mother has accused my wife of sneaking into her residence and taking pots and pans, sheets, bedding and medicine. This began early in my marriage and will continue as long as my mother lives. My mother is very active and lives alone. She believes that my wife is the ONLY person in the world who would invade her privacy. Nothing can stop this totally irrational nonsense. We've given up trying.

My wife has not been inside my mother's home for 10 years. The two of them very seldom speak because we refuse to listen to my mother's foolishness.

Ann, you are right about keeping lots of real estate between "Geneva" and his mother. Some mothers will never forgive the woman who takes her son away. -- Only Son in California

Dear California: Your mother is mentally ill. I'm not a psychiatrist, but it sounds like she is a paranoid schizophrenic. Please speak to a mental health professional about your mother and you will be less judgmental and more sympathetic.

Cultural FCE Club reviews yearbook, sets goals for '97

Members of the Cultural Family Community Education Club answered roll call with "My Goals for 1997" at the club's regular meeting in the Hereford Community Center.

President Nell Pope called the meeting to order and Virginia Sumner led the opening prayer and pledges to the United States and Texas flags. She read a poem titled "I Could Have."

Members elected Marilyn Smith to serve as delegate to the district meeting.

Smith led the group in reviewing the yearbook for 1997.

In attendance were Vernis Parsons, Edna Marnell, Fannie Townsend, Daisy Steele, Pope, Sumner and Smith.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 14.

Members of Sparklers 4-H Club display "sock" snowmen they made at a recent meeting at St. Anthony's School. The girls used their imaginations to create unique designs.

MDA seeks summer camp counselor volunteers

AMARILLO - The Muscular Dystrophy Association is seeking camp counselors for their local camp for children with muscle diseases. MDA is especially in need of male counselors to assist with the camping program. The MDA camp will be held at Ceta Canyon Camp near Happy from June 1-6.

At the MDA camp, counselors work one on one with the campers to provide care, supervision, attention and friendship to children with limited mobility. Young men and women willing to spend a week at camp are needed to fill counselor positions for the camp. The volunteers must be at least 16 years of age and will be trained before camp.

As a summer camp counselor, young people are given the opportunity to perform a valuable community service, develop a greater understanding of individuals with disabilities and enjoy a very special week of summer camp.

Donations of supplies are also needed for MDA's summer camp. Arts and crafts items, prizes and awards, life jackets, sporting equipment, medical supplies, and the use of a golf cart are among the donations being sought to help provide a memorable camp experience to approximately 60 youngsters.

MDA supports a nationwide network of summer camps offering a wide range of activities designed for youngsters who have limited mobility or use wheelchairs. Since 1955, MDA's extensive camp program has built bridges and knocked down barriers, fostering a sense of self-worth in young people with disabilities.

For youngsters with neuromuscular disease, MDA camp is a magical place. At the more than 90 camp sessions nationwide, barriers simply do not exist. Skills are developed and taught for year-round use and a child with a disability can just be a child among friends.

MDA camp programs, although structured, are conducted in a relaxed atmosphere that gives campers and unmatched opportunity to develop lifelong friendships, share interests and build self-confidence. Activities range from outdoor sports such as swimming and boating to less physically demanding programs like arts and crafts and talent shows.

The Muscular Dystrophy

Association serves more than 300 individuals and their families in the Panhandle area. The summer camp program is another part of MDA's comprehensive patient and community services which include clinics, equipment, and support groups as well as research and public health education. The Association's programs are funded almost entirely by individual private contributors.

For more information on becoming a summer camp counselor or to donate supplies for camp, please call 1-800-793-5632.

Hereford native participates in inauguration

Some Hereford residents who watched the inaugural proceedings may have done so in hopes of glimpsing a familiar face in the crowd.

Petty Officer Dagoverto Valdez, son of Sam and Vickie Valdez of Hereford, escorted the wives of the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the inauguration and attended the District of Columbia Inaugural Ball.

Valdez, a 1985 graduate of Hereford High School, serves in the Naval Reserves and applied for the inaugural service.

Valdez served in the Navy for eight years following graduation and has been in the Naval Reserve for four years.

UConn is ranked as top fem team

By the Associated Press
Connecticut, Old Dominion and Stanford held the top three spots in The Associated Press women's basketball poll for the fifth straight week today and Clemson reached the Top Ten for the first time.

A national media panel again made Connecticut an overwhelming choice for No. 1, giving coach Geno Auriemma's team 38 of 42 first-place votes. The Huskies (16-0) had 1,044 points in the voting - 41 more than No. 2 Old Dominion.

Connecticut emerged from routs of Rutgers and St. John's last week as the nation's only unbeaten NCAA Division I team because LSU finally was beaten, losing at Florida.

However, UConn had a tough nationally televised game today at No. 5 Georgia.

Old Dominion (14-1) received two first-place votes, while Stanford (18-1) had one vote for first and 973 points. No. 4 Alabama (15-2) traded places with Georgia (11-3) after beating the Lady Bulldogs in Athens and received the remaining first-place vote.

Louisiana Tech held on at No. 6 and was followed by Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina, each up one spot from last week. Clemson climbed two places to reach the No. 10 spot, its highest ranking ever.

Last week's No. 12 ranking had been the best for Clemson (14-2), which also was 12th twice before, once each in the 1991-92 and the 1990-91 seasons. Clemson joined Virginia and North Carolina to give the Atlantic Coast Conference three teams in the Top Ten.

Vanderbilt dropped four places to 11th after losses at Michigan State and to Tennessee in overtime at home. The rest of the Second Ten had Texas, Arkansas, Texas Tech, Kansas, Wisconsin, North Carolina State, LSU, Florida and Notre Dame. Florida and Notre Dame were tied for 19th.

Auburn, Stephen F. Austin, Western Kentucky, Duke and DePaul held the final five places.

Kansas unanimous choice for top spot

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

Kansas, the lone unbeaten team in Division I, led The Associated Press college basketball rankings Monday for the eighth straight week and was the first unanimous No. 1 choice since Duke in the 1991-92 season.

For the first seven weeks of their run, the Jayhawks (18-0) had Wake Forest right behind them, but the Demon Deacons (13-1) lost to Maryland on Sunday and fell to fourth.

Clemson (16-1) moved up one spot to No. 2 and Kentucky (16-2) jumped two places to No. 3.

Kansas received all 71 first-place votes and 1,775 points from the national media panel.

Colorado jumped into the Top 25 at No. 18, the Buffaloes' first ranking since the 1968-69 season. That was also the last time they won the then-Big Eight and the last time they were in the NCAA tournament.

There were two other newcomers this week - Tulsa and Marquette - although both had been ranked earlier in the season.

Utah jumped from ninth to fifth and was followed by Louisville, Maryland, Minnesota, Cincinnati and Duke.

The Atlantic Coast Conference will have two Top 10 matchups this week: Wake Forest at Clemson on Thursday and Duke at Maryland on Sunday.

Arizona, which lost road games to Southern California and UCLA in week, dropped from sixth to 11th and was followed by Villanova, Michigan, Iowa State, New Mexico, Xavier of Ohio, Stanford, Colorado, North Carolina and Texas Tech.

The last five ranked teams were Indiana, Boston College, Texas, Tulsa and Marquette.

Herd plays Hawks, Sonics unbeaten in NBA play for new year

The Whiteface basketball teams travel to Borger tonight for important 1-4A games against the Bulldogs.

The Hereford boys are tied for third in the district standings with Caprock and Pampa, all with 4-3 records. Randall leads the league at 6-1 and Canyon is second at 4-2.

If the Herd can take care of business tonight, they return home Friday night to face the surging Pampa Harvesters. Three teams advance in the playoffs this season.

The Lady Whitefaces have a firm hold on second place in the district race with a 7-2 mark. The state's top-ranked Canyon Eagles are unbeaten.

"We have to face the fact that we're the team to beat in the battle for playoff berths. We have two big games coming up this week," said Hereford Coach Eddie Fortenberry.

Junior teams top Valleyview

Hereford's 9th grade boys scored a 76-56 win over Canyon Valleyview here Monday night, while the 7th and 8th grade boys also posted victories. Nick Whatley scored 16 points and L.J. Vallejo added 13 in leading the 9th graders to a 20-point margin of victory.

Slade Hodges tallied 26 points, including six 3-point goals, to lead the 8th graders to a one-sided 71-42 triumph. Cody Hodges chipped in 13 points in the win. The team is unbeaten with a 11-0 record.

The 8th grade B-team lost a 53-45 decision to Valleyview. The 7th grade boys scored a 40-30 victory, while the B-team lost a close 25-23 contest.

The teams play at Dumas next Monday.

Parcells says nothing changed on contract

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Bill Parcells said "nothing's changed" despite a Boston Globe report that Sunday's Super Bowl would be his last as coach of the New England Patriots.

After last season, owner Robert Kraft agreed to Parcells' request to drop the final year of his contract.

Hawks, Sonics unbeaten in NBA play for new year

By The Associated Press
It's been a perfect year so far for the Atlanta Hawks and Seattle SuperSonics.

The Hawks improved to 10-0 in 1997 by beating the Charlotte Hornets 106-97 Monday night. The Sonics raised their January record to 8-0 with a 112-96 win over the Vancouver Grizzlies.

Steve Smith scored a season-high 31 points as the Hawks won their 17th straight home game. The Hawks haven't lost anywhere since a Dec. 28 defeat at Washington.

Christian Laettner added 23 points and Mookie Blaylock had 20 points and 10 assists for the Hawks. Glen Rice led Charlotte with 33 points.

At Seattle, Gary Payton scored 30 points as the Sonics handed the second-year Grizzlies their 100th franchise loss.

Shawn Kemp added 23 points and Detlef Schrempf had 20 for Seattle, which scored the final 10 points of the game after the Grizzlies pulled within six.

Greg Anthony scored 24 points and tied his own Vancouver record with six 3-pointers before leaving the game with a cut on his right thumb with 2:10 remaining.

Elsewhere, it was New York 95, Washington 79; Milwaukee 114, Philadelphia 104; Minnesota 96, San Antonio 83; the Los Angeles Lakers 109, Dallas 99; Denver 132, New Jersey 123; Phoenix 89, Detroit 86; and Utah 94, Cleveland 74. Knicks 95, Bulls 79.

At New York, Patrick Ewing had 22 points and 14 rebounds as the Knicks won their 13th straight home game. Buck Williams had 17 points and 11 rebounds for New York, which has won 19 of its last 20 against the Bulls. Chris Webber led Washington with 17 points.

Milwaukee 114, Philadelphia 104
At Philadelphia, Glenn Robinson scored 29 points as Milwaukee handed the 76ers their 13th straight defeat. Vin Baker had 22 points and 12 rebounds for the Bucks. Allen Iverson scored 31 points for Philadelphia, which has lost 23 of its last 24.

Timberwolves 96, Spurs 83
At Minneapolis, Stephon Marbury scored six of his 20 points in a game-opening 14-0 run and matched a career high with 13 assists. Vinny Del Negro scored 22 points and reserve Monty Williams added a career-high 20 for the injury-depleted Spurs, who have lost seven of their last eight.

Lakers 109, Mavericks 99
At Inglewood, Nick Van Exel scored 24 points and the Los Angeles Lakers continued their mastery of the Dallas Mavericks. The Lakers beat the Mavs for the fifth straight time and 19th in their last 21 meetings. Jim Jackson led Dallas with 22 points. Nuggets 132, Nets 123.

At Denver, LaPhonso Ellis scored a career-high 36 points and Mark Jackson had a career-high 22 assists as the Nuggets beat New Jersey.

Jazz 94, Cavaliers 74
At Salt Lake City, Karl Malone scored 32 points, including 14 in the decisive third quarter. The Jazz outscored the Cavaliers 32-10 in the third quarter to take a 77-48 lead heading into the final period.

Suns 89, Pistons 86
At Phoenix, Kevin Johnson and Rex Chapman hit key 3-pointers down the stretch as the Suns won their fifth consecutive home game.

to clinch the win, led the Suns with 19 points. Lindsey Hunter scored 23 for the Pistons.

BASEBALL

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The Texas Rangers signed third baseman Dean Palmer to a one-year contract worth $4.8 million, a day after signing catcher Ivan Rodriguez to a record one-year, $6.65 million deal. Palmer, 28, made $1.92 million last year when he hit .280 with 38 homers and 107 RBIs.

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Milwaukee Brewers first baseman David Nilsson, who hit .331 last year with 17 homers and 84 RBIs, agreed to a three-year, $10.8 million contract with a team option for 2000.

FOOTBALL

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Dick Vermeil, who stopped coaching 15 years ago because of "burnout," is returning as coach of the St. Louis Rams.

The surprise selection was confirmed by Rams president John Shaw following several broadcast reports that the ABC commentator would be hired. The official announcement will come during a news conference today.

Vermeil, who led Philadelphia to the 1981 Super Bowl, will be given total control of the team. CNN-SI reported that Vermeil got a five-year, $7.5 million contract. The Rams fired Rich Brooks following a 6-10 season.

ATLANTA (AP) - Dan Reeves, fired by the New York Giants after a 6-10 season, signed a five-year deal with the Atlanta Falcons as coach and head of football operations. He will be introduced during a news

BASKETBALL

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Chicago Bulls star Dennis Rodman has agreed to pay $200,000 to the cameraman he kicked during a game against the Minnesota Timberwolves, The Associated Press learned.

Eugene Amos was kicked in the groin by Rodman during a game at the Target Center last Wednesday night. Amos filed an assault report the night of the game and said he intended to pursue charges.

The NBA suspended Rodman for at least 11 games, the second-longest suspension in league history. It also fined Rodman $25,000. The suspension will cost Rodman more than $1 million in salary.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - Kentucky senior guard Derek Anderson, the leading scorer in the Southeastern Conference, will miss the rest of the season because of a right knee injury. Anderson completely tore the anterior cruciate ligament in the knee and will undergo surgery.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) - Protected from the searing sun and desert-like winds, Carlos Moya surged into the semifinals of the Australian Open in the first match ever played with the roof closed because of heat.

Moya, conqueror of defending champion Boris Becker in the first round, beat Spanish compatriot Felix Mantilla 7-5, 6-2, 6-7 (7-5), 6-2 today in the mid-70s comfort beneath the retractable roof.

Indoor play continued with South African Amanda Coetzer, a victor over Steffi Graf in Sunday's swelter, moving into the semis with a 6-4, 6-1 romp past American Kimberly Po. In a night match played with the roof open, American Michael Chang beat Chile's Marcelo Rios 7-5, 6-1, 6-4, and France's Mary Pierce defeated Belgium's Sabine Appelmans 1-6, 6-4, 6-4.

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Gary Moeller, fired from the University of Michigan two years ago after his disorderly conduct arrest at a restaurant, joined the Detroit Lions as running backs coach.

BASEBALL

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (AP) - Like a worker burned out on his job, struggling to do well but unable to get it quite right, John Cook was at wits' end with his golf game.

He figured he already had put in 17 mostly good years on the PGA Tour, that his family and other things were more important to him now, anyway, and so he might make golf a sometime thing.

Playing some of the best golf of his life and overtaking Mark Calcavecchia in the Hope, Cook won for the third time in six months.

Calcavecchia had been threatening to turn the five-day tournament into a runaway, but Cook shot a 10-under-par 62 Saturday to cut the lead to three shots, then came back with a 63 Sunday to finish 33-under, one shot in front of Calcavecchia.

KAILUA-KONA, Hawaii (AP) - Hale Irwin figured the MasterCard Championship would come down to the final two holes. It did.

After an afternoon-long sparring session with co-leader Gil Morgan, Irwin rolled in a 28-foot birdie putt on the 164-yard 17th hole Sunday to capture the Senior PGA Tour's first event of the year.

Morgan, meanwhile, lost his concentration on the hole, leaving his second shot 50 feet from the hole and his par try 10 feet short.

The two-stroke swing was all Irwin needed.

They started the final round tied at 3-under 141 and stayed deadlocked from the fifth through the 16th holes.

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) - Karrie Webb had about the same putt on the 18th green as she did minutes before, when she rammed it in from 20 feet to get into a playoff with Michelle McGann at the HealthSouth Inaugural.

If only she had realized how much the circumstances had changed.

"I was so worried about not leaving it short that I didn't notice how quick it was," Webb said.

Faced with a 25-foot putt for birdie on the first playoff hole Sunday, Webb knocked it six feet past and then missed the par putt coming back.

McGann, who blew a chance to win the tournament in regulation by missing a short birdie chance, holed a 30-inch putt for par Sunday to beat Webb for her sixth career LPGA victory.

FOOTBALL

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Kevin Gilbride, Jacksonville's offensive coordinator, signed a five-year contract Saturday to coach the San Diego Chargers.

Gilbride, 45, edged Carolina defensive coordinator Vic Fangio and former New Orleans coach Jim Mora for the job. The Chargers were 8-8 last season under Bobby Ross, who resigned and took the Detroit job last week.

HONOLULU (AP) - Mississippi State punter Andy Russ, who hadn't kicked a field goal since high school, converted from 42, 47, 28 and 31 yards Sunday to lead the South to a 26-13 victory over the North in the Hula Bowl. He was selected the most valuable player of the South team.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) - California's Pat Barnes threw three touchdown passes in the second quarter Saturday to lead the North to a 35-14 victory over the South in the Senior Bowl. San Diego State's George Jones had a 52-yard touchdown run for the North and also scored on a 24-yard pass play.

Curt Flood dies Monday

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Curt Flood was always up for a challenge.

Standing alone in shallow center field, he would defy batters to hit one over him. Flood was equally brazen off the field, bucking baseball's reserve system to single-handedly alter the game's future.

Flood, an All-Star center fielder of the St. Louis Cardinals who took his fight for baseball free agency all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, died Monday of throat cancer. He was 59.

Flood died at the UCLA Medical Center. He had been in the hospital for several months.

Although he was a three-time All-Star and a seven-time Gold Glove winner, Flood was best remembered for fighting baseball's long-standing reserve clause - rules that prohibited players from choosing which teams they wished to play for.

"Every major league baseball player owes Curt Flood a debt of gratitude that can never be repaid," pitchers David Cone and Tom Glavine - the current AL and NL player representatives - said in a statement.

Red Raiders rally for 70-64 OT win

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Rayford Young's five-point spurt late in overtime wouldn't have happened if not for Tony Battie, sore hamstring and all.

Battie finished with 28 points and 10 rebounds - playing all 45 minutes in the process - while freshman Young came through in the clutch to give No. 20 Texas Tech a 70-64 comeback victory over Oklahoma State.

"Next to (Wake Forest's Tim) Duncan, Battie is the best center in the country," Oklahoma State coach Eddie Sutton said.

Battie frustrated the Cowboys' frontcourt all night, but it was Young who saved Texas Tech (13-3, 5-1) with a 3-pointer with 1:31 left in overtime to give Raiders a 66-64 lead just seconds after OSU's Joe Adkins missed two free throws.

Young iced the game a minute later after putting back his own missed layup.

"I was wide open," Young said of his bomb that gave Tech the lead for good. "I couldn't turn it down. I just shot it."

Young and Battie, who played his first full game of the season despite the left hamstring problem that had his status in doubt until game time, credited relentless defense for the Red Raiders' rally from a 43-30 deficit early in the second half.

"I think the press may have won the game for us," said Battie, who said his hamstring bothered him the entire game.

Battie capped his performance by stuffing Brett Robisch's meaningless last-ditch shot for Tech's only block of the game.

Tech has won six of seven while OSU (9-7, 1-4) has lost four of its last six, all in conference play. Two of those losses have been to Tech, and Sutton had high praise for the team coached by his one-time protege, James Dickey.

"Next to (No. 1) Kansas, Tech is the best team in the conference," Sutton said.

The Red Raiders looked nothing of the sort midway through the game.

Texas Tech went 10:41 over the end of the first half and the beginning of the second without a field goal as OSU built their 13-point lead off a 16-1 run.

"I certainly got a lesson in coaching tonight. It was vintage Coach Sutton," Dickey said of his former boss at Arkansas and Kentucky. "This is what Big 12 basketball is all about."

After a timeout midway into the second half, the Red Raiders looked unstoppable, storming back over the next 10 minutes to tie the game at 53 when Cory Carr converted a four-point play after Chianti Roberts hacked him on a made 3-pointer.

Roberts had been OSU's leading scorer with 10 points when he fouled out on the play with 6:28 left.

Carr, who scored 15 points, had a chance to give Texas Tech a one-point lead with 27 seconds left in regulation, but he made one of two free throws and left the game tied at 59.

The Cowboys' Adrian Peterson missed a wild 3-point attempt at the buzzer.

Robisch led the Cowboys with 14 points.

TV movie combines stories of Texas, Georgia girls

PORT LAVACA, Texas (AP) — A made-for-television movie tonight will tell the story of an 11-year-old Texas girl and her desire to meet President Clinton before she died of cancer.

"A Child's Wish" airs on CBS one day after what would have been Melissa Weaver's 15th birthday.

Missy, the star of the two-hour show, is actually a composite of Melissa and Dixie Yandle, a 17-year-old Georgia girl who also died of cancer.

Melissa's doctors told her family to contact the Make-A-Wish Foundation in the fall of 1993 after concluding nothing more could be done for her. Her last wish was granted. She met with President Clinton five days before she died.

"We flew to Vancouver to watch them make the movie. That's where we met Melissa's parents," the Georgia girl's mother, Vickie Yandle of Marietta, Ga., said Monday night.

"The first time I saw it, I cried in three different spots. The second time I saw it, I cried for two days," Mrs. Yandle said.

Melissa's parents, Kenneth and Rosy Weaver of Port Lavaca, said some things that were changed make it easier for them to watch the movie: the girl in the movie is older, has a boyfriend and doesn't resemble their daughter.

"It does not absolutely reflect either family as a whole. There are many small details in the film that are from our long conversations with the writer," Mrs. Weaver told the Victoria Advocate.

And there are many similarities. The father is a car salesman, the same as Dixie's father, George Yandle. The mother is a teacher, as is Mrs. Weaver. The father loses his job because of the time he took off to be with his daughter, as did Dixie's father.

The stars are Anna Chlumsky as Missy, John Ritter as the father, and Tess Harper as the mom. President Clinton plays himself.

It's the final 30 minutes of the movie that tax the Weavers' emotions.

Those are the scenes depicting Melissa's meeting with Clinton. While the actual meeting at the White House was not in the Oval Office as it is in the movie, the story holds true to the actual events, Mrs. Weaver said.

It was a wet and drizzly day and Melissa was not feeling well, Mrs. Weaver recalled. They weren't sure she'd actually get to meet personally with the president.

The Weavers, Melissa and her two sisters, Michelle and Melinda, were invited into the White House, and as they waited in a hallway, the president appeared in his jogging shorts.

"He dropped to his knees beside Melissa's wheelchair and said, 'I'm so glad you've come to see me,'" Mrs. Weaver said. After changing clothes, Clinton returned and posed for pictures with the family.

The Weavers returned to Port Lavaca. Melissa died five days later. "The closing scene ... the final scene, they had to stop the production," she said. "Everyone was so involved. The camera guy said he couldn't go on. Something like this touches everyone. Everyone has known someone."

The Yandles' daughter, Dixie, was 10 when she contracted cancer. She died seven years later.

Both sets of parents say the movie shows the importance of the Family Medical Leave Act, which Clinton signed into law in 1993.

Vickie Yandle said her husband was his company's third top salesman out of 22 the week they fired him.

"It was the day after he got out of the hospital. He had been in intensive care for seven days. They thought he had had a heart attack, but it turned out it was all stress. The very next day that he got out, Dixie had to go in for her first chemotherapy," she said.

They almost lost their house, Mrs. Yandle said.

Because of the difficulty they had, she said, she began working on behalf of the Family Leave Bill, making several trips to Washington to drum up support. In one speech she made, she urged President Bush not to veto the bill, but he did.

When Clinton signed the bill on April 6, 1993, the Yandles were on hand for the ceremony. Dixie was too ill to go. She died two months later.

Because of the Family Medical Leave Act, Weaver was able to take off work in 1993 and make the trip to the White House with his family.

The film was completed last spring, but the president asked that it not be shown until after the election, Mrs. Weaver said.

"It was by his decision that it wasn't shown. He didn't want anyone to say it was a political move," she said.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Jan. 21, the 21st day of 1997. There are 344 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Jan. 21, 1793, during the French Revolution, King Louis XVI, condemned for treason, was executed on the guillotine.

On this date:
In 1861, Jefferson Davis of Mississippi and four other Southerners resigned from the Senate.

In 1908, New York City's Board of Aldermen passed an ordinance that effectively prohibited women from smoking in public. However, the measure was vetoed by Mayor George B. McClellan Jr.

In 1915, the first Kiwanis Club was founded, in Detroit.

In 1924, Russian revolutionary Vladimir Ilyich Lenin died at age 54.

In 1942, Count Basie and His Orchestra recorded "One O'Clock Jump" in New York for Okeh Records.

In 1950, a federal jury in New York found former State Department official Alger Hiss guilty of perjury.

In 1950, George Orwell, author of "1984," died in London.

In 1954, the first atomic submarine, the USS Nautilus, was launched at Groton, Conn.

In 1976, the supersonic Concorde jet was put into service by Britain and France.

In 1977, 20 years ago, President Carter pardoned almost all Vietnam War draft evaders.

Ten years ago: West Germany's Justice Ministry, faced with the recent abductions of two West Germans in Lebanon, indicated that extraditing a suspect in the 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner to the United States could take longer than originally expected.

Five years ago: The Supreme Court agreed to review a Pennsylvania law imposing waiting periods and other restrictions on abortions. The court later upheld most of the restrictions while reaffirming women's constitutional right to abortion.

One year ago: At the 53rd annual Golden Globes, "Sense and Sensibility" won best dramatic picture; "Babe" won best comedy; best dramatic acting awards went to Nicolas Cage for "Leaving Las Vegas" and Sharon Stone for "Casino," while awards for acting in a comedy or musical went to Nicole Kidman for "To Die For" and John Travolta for "Get Shorty."

During a Resolution Party Friday at Shirley School sponsored by Students Involved in Leadership (SILS), the students and faculty released balloons to which each one had attached a slip of paper with their New Year's resolution, name and address. The balloon release also served to enhance recent science class studies of wind and helium.

'Evita,' star claim top honors in Golden Globe awards night

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — "Evita" was chosen top musical or comedy and its star Madonna as best actress at Sunday night's Golden Globes.

"Jerry Maguire," was the musical or comedy actor winner.

England's Brenda Blethyn, the mother of a black daughter she never knew in "Secrets & Lies," and Australia's Geoffrey Rush, the mentally troubled piano virtuoso of "Shine," scored Golden Globes as starring performers in dramatic motion pictures.

Blethyn, virtually unknown to American audiences before "Secrets & Lies," gave her thanks to the Hollywood Foreign Press Association said: "I'm so happy to be in the building much less standing up here."

Rush was a hugely popular winner with the stellar Beverly Hilton Hotel audience, which gave him a standing ovation.

"I'm very proud to be part of a film that has taken such a vulnerable, peculiar and very human character and placed him at the heart of a film," Rush said.

The Golden Globes, which often prestage the Oscars, launched Hollywood's movie awards season with a definite accent on films made abroad and by American independents.

"Evita" also won the original song Golden Globe for "You Must Love Me," sung by Madonna.

Cruise, like Madonna a popular winner with the dinner crowd, began by acknowledging the other nominees, then paid tribute to his fellow actor Cuba Gooding Jr., who played the athlete Maguire managed.

In the television category, "The X-Files" was voted top TV drama and its stars, David Duchovny and Gillian Anderson, won top TV dramatic actor honors.

NBC-TV's "3rd Rock From the Sun" won for top TV musical or comedy series and its star, John Lithgow, won the Golden Globe for best actor in that category. Helen Hunt of "Mad About You" was the top TV comedy actress.

Milos Forman was picked best movie director for "The People vs. Larry Flynt." Mel Gibson, last year's director winner for "Braveheart," handed Forman the trophy.

"Last time I got a cigar from Mel, this is better," Forman told the audience during the nationally televised 54th Hollywood Foreign Press Association presentations.

When screenwriters Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski were announced as winners for "The People vs. Larry Flynt," they hugged Larry Flynt, who sat nearby in his gold-plated wheelchair.

Veteran actress Lauren Bacall, who played the possessive mother of Barbra Streisand in "The Mirror Has Two Faces," and Edward Norton, the suspected killer in "Primal Fear," won movie supporting actor trophies.

Bacall waved her Golden Globe aloft to hoots of joy as the audience rose to its feet.

"I'm in a state of shock," she said. "This is the first time I've been nominated for an award in any role."

She thanked presenter Jeff Bridges, another star in "The Mirror Has Two Faces," and especially Streisand, "without whom the picture would not have been made."

The 72-year-old Bacall then uttered: "It's taken a long time to get here and I'm not giving it (the Golden Globe) back."

Norton came to the stage declaring, "It puts me on the floor to be included with the other nominees" Gooding, Samuel L. Jackson, Paul Scofield and James Woods.

The Golden Globe for best foreign language film went to the Czech Republic's "Kolya."
