Starr will stay on as Whitewater prosecutor

WASHINGTON (AP) - Saying he will stay on as Whitewater prosecutor after all, Kenneth Starr is trying to restore public confidence in a criminal investigation that has been overshadowed for the past week by news of his planned departure.

With decisions still to be made about what action, if any, to take against President Clinton and his wife, Hillary, Starr announced Friday that he will remain on the job "until the investigation and any resulting prosecutions" are "substantially completed."

Pepperdine University, where Starr had planned to head no later than Aug. 1, said it will keep the deanships of two graduate schools open for him whenever he is able to arrive.

"It is my sense that public confidence in the investigation calls upon me to continue my service now," said Starr.

The announcement did not keep Democrats from blasting Starr, including Rep. Marty Meehan, D-Mass., a member of the House Judiciary Committee.

"I find it amazing that Ken Starr was surprised at the uproar over his resignation," said Meehan. "This is just the latest example of Starr's lack of judgment and his failure to appreciate the importance of his responsibilities as independent counsel."

Republicans regarded the reversal as the right move.

"I'm really delighted that he's staying on for the country's sake," said Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., a former prosecutor in Philadelphia.

"You have a lot of witnesses who are sort of relying on the head guy" and "a lot more prospective witnesses in the wings who are saying, 'I don't know if this investigation is going to last,'" said Specter.

Former Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, who investigated the Reagan administration for seven years before presidential pardons by George Bush scuttled the probe, said "I think (Starr) did the right thing" by staying.

"The defense of the office against political or public opposition is something nobody can do except him," Walsh added.

"I think he underestimated his importance as head of the office, apart from running an investigation day to day and perhaps trying a case, which can be done by deputies."

Starr may have some difficult work ahead of him on Capitol Hill, where investigations are touching on one of the Whitewater probe's key areas of inquiry - money paid to longtime Clinton friend and Whitewater witness Webster Hubbell by allies of the president and first lady.

Hubbell has told Congress he will invoke his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination, a step that could lead ultimately to his being granted immunity from prosecution in order to compel him to talk.

If Hubbell is granted immunity by Congress, that will effectively take away the only leverage Whitewater prosecutors have over him - the threat of further criminal action.

Hubbell - a former law partner of Mrs. Clinton and one-time associate attorney general - has been a disappointing witness for prosecutors, who are trying to determine whether the money paid to him was inducement to provide investigators with little useful evidence.

Recognizing students

Three Shirley Intermediate School students were recognized for their assistance to an elderly woman in Hereford. The Hereford Police Department, Hereford Emergency Medical Service and the school presented several awards to the students. Pictured, from left, are Margie Daniels, Hereford Senior Citizen's Association; Randy Stribling, HPD; Jeremiah Medina; Donna Kemp, Hereford Regional Medical Center; Adrian Hernandez; Carol Keyes, HPD; Captain Pat Michael, HPD; Chris Constancio; Joe Hamby, Hereford EMS; and David Fanning, Shirley Intermediate School principal.

Three local sixth graders are honored for act of heroism

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

Heroism is heroism, even at the age of 12-years-old.

"It's not every day that you find a hero, much less three.

"And when the three are sixth-graders, it's even more special," Donna Kemp, Hereford Regional Medical Center Clinical Services Administrator, said in a recent letter to the editor.

Chris Constancio, Adrian Hernandez and Jeremiah Medina, all sixth-graders at Shirley Intermediate School, were recognized as heroes at a school assembly last week.

Constancio is the son of Joel Constancio and Isidra Zuniga, Hernandez the son of Enrique and Adriana Hernandez and Medina the son of Narciso and Ocelotl.

An elderly Hereford woman fell down her steps as she was leaving her house on Feb. 10, Hereford Police Department officer Carol Keyes said.

The three boys were walking near her house when they heard the lady's desperate screams for help, she said.

"I was scared," Hernandez said. "I wasn't. Well, a little scared," Constancio said.

The boys saw that the lady was cold. So, they took off their coats and covered her up in them, Keyes said.

The boys then took the house keys from the lady. They went into the house, where Hernandez dialed 911, she said.

"He was nervous, so I told him what to say," Constancio said.

The three boys remained extremely calm. They told the 911 dispatcher exactly what had happened and where it happened, Keyes said.

The dispatcher was able to send police officers and an ambulance to assist the boys with the injured lady, she said.

The lady was taken to the hospital, where she was treated for a broken hip, Keyes said.

"If they hadn't had done this, we can only cringe at what could have happened to this lady," Keyes said.

The students received a principal's medal, a Hereford Police Department personal commendation certificate, and a Hereford Emergency Medical Services framed certificate and EMS patch.

The students have been learning the importance of life skills in school, Shirley Intermediate School Principal David Fanning said.

Fanning, who has been involved in education for more than 20 years, said he has never been more proud of his students.

"I am most proud of these students and that they go to Shirley School," he said.

It is people like these three boys that make Hereford a better place to live, Keyes said.

"The City of Hereford is very proud to have Chris Constancio, Adrian Hernandez and Jeremiah Medina living in our community."

"They have proven that they are a tremendous asset to this community and great role models for young and old alike," she said in her personal commendation.

Joel Constancio was extremely proud of his son.

"I think they did a great job for as young as they are."

"It's something you don't hear about every day. I hope it sets an example for all the other youngsters," he said.

When it comes to their hero status, the three boys are humble. But, they are still heroes to many in Hereford.

"She probably would have done the same thing if it had happened to us," Hernandez said.

"If someone needed it, I would do it again," Constancio said.

Clinton says it takes only two ingredients to balance budget

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton said Saturday it takes only two ingredients to balance the budget: Congress' vote and his signature. He asked lawmakers not to spoil the recipe by trying to rewrite the Constitution.

"We must balance the budget, but a balanced budget amendment could cause more harm than good," Clinton said in his weekly radio address.

"Instead, we should simply act this year and act together."

But the president's overture may go unheeded in a Republican-led Congress growing increasingly warm to the idea of a balanced budget amendment.

The issue could come up for a March vote in the Senate, where it failed by only one vote last year. In an attempt to prevent it from dying in the House, a bipartisan group has formed to address some members' concerns over how the amendment will affect Social Security benefits.

"The balanced budget amendment is in trouble - it's very, very close" in the Senate, Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, chairman of the House Budget Committee, said in Cincinnati on Friday. "I'm deeply concerned about it."

A two-thirds majority in each house is required for passage of a constitutional amendment, followed by ratification by three-fourths of the states. A recent poll showed 33 Democratic senators opposed the amendment; it would take 34 votes to defeat it.

In reiterating his opposition to the amendment, Clinton said the Treasury or even a judge might be forced to slash Social Security just to keep the budget in line.

The president also contended that the amendment's limitations would "prevent us from responding to foreign challenges abroad or economic trouble at home, if to do so resulted in even a minor budget deficit."

"These are results no one wants to see happen," he said.

Instead, Clinton argued the $1.69 trillion spending plan he submitted to Congress earlier this month will balance the budget by 2002.

Calling his proposed cuts "tough and specific," Clinton has suggested eliminating $34 billion in corporate subsidies, tacking on $47.3 billion in user fees and reforming entitlement programs.

At the same time, he has proposed augmenting education spending and providing middle-class tax cuts.

Purcella to be recognized at annual C of C Banquet

Josh Davis, winner of three Olympic gold medals at the 1996 Atlanta Games, will be guest speaker when Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce holds its annual banquet March 13 in the Bull Barn.

Don Cumpton, executive vice president of the chamber, announced another banquet feature this week. Special recognition will be given to Steve Purcella of Hereford, world champion team roper.

Purcella, header, and heeling partner Steve Northcutt of Odessa won the team roping average at the National Finals Rodeo in December at Las Vegas, Nv. The team jumped from third to first on the year-long money-winning list, with each man totaling $91,069 in winnings.

The traditional "Citizen of the Year" award will also be a highlight of the annual banquet. Nominations have been taken and the Hereford Lions Club will present the special award.

Davis, the principal speaker, also has Hereford ties. He is the husband of former Hereford resident Shantel (Cornelius) Davis. Josh was a member of three USA men's relay swimming teams.

New officers and directors of the chamber will be introduced at the annual event. Wade Easley is the new president, with Sid Shaw taking the vice president's post and Jeff Brown filling the treasurer's position.

New directors are Andrea Schlabs, Chris Leonard, Mark Collier and David McDonald. Mark Andrews, who was slated to retire from the board, has agreed to serve another term to fill a vacancy that was created when Cumpton assumed the manager's post.

Tickets for the big event are $14 each and can be purchased from directors, Hustlers, or at the chamber office.

Radiation scare slows routine city trash run

BY TOMMY WELLS
Managing Editor

CANYON - A routine trash run to the BFI Southwest Landfill turned into an unusual trip to for Hereford Waste Management officials Friday afternoon. City workers were restricted from unloading the refuse for several hours by state officials when radiation contamination was discovered.

In the end, the wait and worry was for naught.

"It was a minor thing," said Hereford City Manager Chester Nolen. "It was nothing. All it was was some medical waste from a home. It wasn't a plutonium pit or anything like that. It was no big deal," he added.

State health officials responded to the discovery shortly after noon when radiation was detected in one of the Hereford trash disposal vehicles. Officials, however, weren't overly concerned, noting that this type of incident occurs every once in a while. Health officials, using a geiger counter, sorted through the rubble and discovered the medical waste.

"They really felt like it was some kind of medical problem," said Nolen. I wouldn't say this is normal, but it has happened before."

Likely, Nolen said, the radiation

Sherrod files for term on school board

Karen Sherrod has announced as a candidate for a full elective term on the Hereford Independent School Board.

Mrs. Sherrod was appointed to fill a vacancy created when Cheri McWhorter moved from the district. The terms of Randy Tooley and the vacated seat of Roy Dale Messer are also up for election.

Elections are scheduled May 3 for positions on the HISD board, Hereford City Commission, and the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board.

Three positions are up for election on the city commission. Tom Coneway has filed for Place 3 which is currently held by Scott Hall. The terms of Mayor Bob Josserson and Place 1 commissioner Sylvana Juarez are up for election.

Three seats are also up for election on the hospital board. Terms expiring are those of Mal Manchec, Jo Beth Shackelford and Scott Keeling.

Filing deadline for the local elections is March 19.

Storm system moves east; leaves at least nine dead

By The Associated Press
A band of thunderstorms left at least nine dead, including a woman whose mobile home was swept off its foundation by high winds in western Arkansas.

As the storm system moved eastward today, severe thunderstorm or tornado watches were posted today from Alabama to southern Ohio. Winds estimated at nearly 60 mph battered Alabama's northern counties, downing power lines.

There were no immediate reports of injuries there, but five people were killed earlier in Texas, three in Oklahoma and one in Arkansas.

Rain fell at a rate of up to an inch an hour Thursday in Callahan County in northwest Texas, and up to 5 inches of rain fell in south-central Texas. Power was knocked out to 7,600 customers in the Houston area, though most had it restored by this morning.

The Texas deaths included a man who was hit by lightning and a toddler who drowned when the car driven by his mother was swept off a highway. The other three there were traffic deaths.

There were also three storm-related traffic deaths Wednesday and Thursday in Oklahoma.

In Arkansas, a 38-year-old woman died and other family members were injured when their mobile home was knocked off its foundation and slid down a hill near Booneville.

"(The) house was blown straight away," Logan County Sheriff Ray Gack said. "Damage in the county looks to be pretty extensive."

Elsewhere in Arkansas, winds averaging 70 to 80 mph blew steel gridwork off a bridge over the Arkansas River near Fort Smith, dropping them onto a highway. Trees and power lines were down throughout Washington County and boats were ripped from their docks at the Prairie Creek Marina near Rogers, Ark.

Aldo Santi of Rogers said he was in bed when the storm hit.

"The next thing I know, the lights go out and a tree comes into the back room, right over the sofa," Santi said. "I'm 72 years old and have never collected a dime of insurance from any company. Now I'll collect."

Flash flood warnings were posted in parts of Missouri and Illinois. Springfield, Mo., got 2.26 inches of rain in the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m., breaking the record of 1.95 inches for the date set in 1912.

Accumulations of up to 5 inches of snow were forecast in some areas of Missouri by tonight.

Ray says "truth" will never be known if new trial isn't granted

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Suffering from terminal liver disease, James Earl Ray says no one will learn the true story of Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassination unless he is granted a trial.

"Put me on the witness stand and you'll find out what really, what really, what took place," Ray, 68, said haltingly to talk show host Montel Williams Friday.

Asked if he killed the civil rights leader, Ray responded, "No, no. I didn't, didn't do it."

Ray appeared frail but alert during the 15-minute interview, which Williams plans to air on Feb. 28. Ray gave the interview because Williams promised to help in the search for a liver transplant donor, said Ray's brother, Jerry Ray. Speaking from a wheelchair at a state prison hospital, Ray said he wants to take back his guilty plea and get a trial in the 1968 slaying.

Ray pleaded guilty a year after King's slaying and was sentenced to 99 years in prison. But he almost immediately recanted and has been requesting a trial ever since.

Conspiracy theorists have long argued that Ray, a bungling, petty criminal, could not have pulled off the assassination alone.

Ray's bid for trial was kept alive Thursday by a Memphis judge who ruled that new technology might be able to prove if a hunting rifle with Ray's fingerprints on it was the murder weapon.

Grand jury indicts four

A Deaf Smith County grand jury returned four indictments Friday. Names of our other persons were not released, pending their arrest.

An indictment for forgery by passing was returned against Joe Gutierrez, 25. He remains in jail.

Nicanor Ramirez, 34, also known as Nick Ramirez, was indicted on a charge of possession of a controlled substance, cocaine. He is free on $5,000 bond.

The grand jury returned an indictment against Marcelo Aruijo, 21, on a charge of deadly conduct. He is free on $7,500 bond.

Betty Maddon, Oklahoma City, was indicted on a charge of theft over $1,500 and under $20,000. She is free on $2,500 cash bond.

Woman charged in Amarillo murder returned to Texas

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - A 24-year-old woman charged in the slaying of an Amarillo man has been returned to Texas after eluding West Texas authorities for three months.

Brittany Holberg was booked into the Randall County Jail Friday, four days after she was arrested in Memphis, Tenn., on a murder warrant in the slaying of A.B. Towery Sr., 80.

She was arrested after "America's Most Wanted" aired a segment on the case.

Towery was found beaten and stabbed to death in his apartment Nov. 13.

Ms. Holberg is scheduled for arraignment Monday, said Lt. Ed Smith, coordinator of the Potter-Randall Special Crimes Unit.

Investigators have evidence that Towery was robbed as well as killed, Smith said. A Randall County grand jury will decide whether the charge will be upgraded to capital murder, he said.

After "America's Most Wanted" publicized the story earlier this month, investigators received more than 300 phone calls in connection with the case, and the U.S. Marshal's office intensified its efforts from coast to coast, Smith said.

Investigators received about eight tips indicating Ms. Holberg was in the Memphis area. Police arrested her at 3:30 p.m. Monday outside a McDonald's restaurant in Memphis.

State senator apologizes for his arrest

CARTHAGE, Texas (AP) - State Sen. Drew Nixon has apologized after his arrest on a sex charge. But reactions are mixed as to whether an apology is enough for local residents.

Describing himself as "humbled and ashamed," Nixon on Friday said he would seek "professional help." The Republican added, though, that he won't resign from the Senate seat he won last November.

Nixon, 37, posted a personal bond Wednesday morning after spending the night in jail on a charge of prostitution. The Class B misdemeanor carries a punishment up to 180 days in jail and a $2,000 fine.

Within hours of his public apology Friday, Nixon was charged by the Travis County district attorney with unlawfully carrying a weapon on the night he was arrested. The Class A misdemeanor carries punishment of up to a year in jail and a fine of up to $4,000.

In his apology - Nixon's first public statement since his arrest - he said he regretted his actions.

"As an elected official, I should never have put myself in a position that even had the slightest hint of inappropriateness in it," Nixon said at a press conference in his hometown. "I don't deny being there. Details ... we could sit here forever itemizing things. I don't know if that accomplishes anything."

Nixon would not confirm nor deny offering police Officer Christine Shelton $35 for oral sex. He admits stopping his car in front of a small church and talking to Ms. Shelton late Tuesday.

Police said investigators reviewed videotape and audiotape made during Nixon's arrest, standard in prostitution stings.

Larry Brumley, chairman of the Panola County Republican Party, said Nixon's apology appeared sincere and should be accepted by the community.

But Brenda Jones, who owns The Fudge and More Store several blocks away from Nixon's accounting office, said if the senator were sincere, he would resign.

"We all make mistakes, but you don't make that kind of mistake twice and say 'Oh, I made a mistake,'" Mrs. Jones said.

Nixon was stopped by police in East Dallas in 1993 with three prostitutes and a loaded handgun in his car. He said he didn't know the women were prostitutes and pleaded no contest to a related firearms charge.

Nixon, who isn't licensed to carry a concealed handgun, acknowledged having a loaded 9 mm handgun in his car when he was arrested Tuesday.

"It shouldn't have been there," he said.

Robert Davis, who was eating at Joe's Family Restaurant, said he's voted for Nixon in the past and will vote for him again.

"This was bad judgment - absolutely," Davis said. "But I look at the bills he's filed and the bills he's voted for and I think he has used good judgement there. I think he's doing a good job."

Davis said he's not a Democrat or a Republican, but supports Nixon.

Willie Greer, an employee at Henry's Citgo gas station, said he's a longtime Democrat. But he said he accepts Nixon's apology.

"I think he might overcome it," Greer said. "I just can't believe he would do something so dumb."

Nixon said he believes fellow lawmakers also will forgive him. He added that most important was forgiveness from his wife of nine months, Cheryl Nixon.

Crying through much of a short statement, Mrs. Nixon said she had forgiven her husband, but won't stand for another such mistake.

"When we return to Austin next week, it is understood that the past is behind us," she said as Nixon reached to hold her hand. "Work for the district and for ourselves must continue with a single-minded focus."

Nixon, a second-term lawmaker, missed two days at the Capitol after his arrest. He said he would be back to work next week.

He is due in Travis County District Court on March 19.

ROT member wins round in Texas Supreme Court

AUSTIN (AP) - A member of the Republic of Texas movement, which contends the state was unlawfully annexed by Congress in 1845, has won a round in the Texas Supreme Court.

Ralph Kenneth Evans successfully challenged a criminal contempt judgment issued against him after he sued a state judge in federal court.

The case arose after the city of Dallas sued Evans in 1993, alleging he violated a city building code provision, and Evans lost.

Evans then sued state District Judge Candace Tyson, who presided over the court where the earlier case was filed, in federal court. He contended Ms. Tyson violated his civil rights in the earlier lawsuit. The federal court dismissed Evans' lawsuit.

Evans subsequently purported to sue Ms. Tyson in the "Republic of Texas, Milam District Court of Common Law Pleas," and filed another fictitious lawsuit in the "Superior Court of Dallas County," according to the court opinion.

Ms. Tyson obtained a temporary injunction in the 14th District Court in De 'las County saying Evans could not file another lawsuit against Ms. Tyson anywhere except the 14th District Court, unless he obtained an order from the 14th District Court.

Violating the injunction, Evans filed another lawsuit against Ms. Tyson in federal court. The state district court found Evans in contempt and sentenced him to 180 days in jail. He was jailed in September, then released on bond while the Supreme Court considered the case.

The Supreme Court Friday said the state trial court had no authority to keep Evans from filing a federal court lawsuit and found the contempt judgment against him to be void.

Stock show heifer injures 10 youngsters

HOUSTON (AP) - A heifer got loose at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo and ran kicking into a group of schoolchildren on a field trip Friday, injuring 10 youngsters and an adult.

Those hurt were taken to the hospital with cuts, scrapes and bruises.

The heifer escaped from the young person exhibiting the animal after it was unloaded outside the Astrohall.

"It jumped up and started bucking everywhere and the kid let it go. It ran over," said a witness, Matt Rendon. "It started kicking kids."

Rodeo officials met to consider putting up fences to prevent another such incident.

"To have one get loose and run through a group of children is something that is horrifying to us," said Leroy Shafer, assistant general manager. "It ran down the street and it was very frightened animal, just like the children were frightened."

THE KINDEST THING YOU CAN DO IS TO PRE-PLAN YOUR FUNERAL. COME BY OR CALL RIX SO THAT WE MAY HELP WITH YOUR WISHES.

The roots of our success reach deep into the families of Hereford.

Hereford State Bank grew up here in Hereford, just as many of our customers did. Perhaps that's why we know so well what you and the Hereford community want and need from a bank — dedication to hard work, the friendly openness that Hereford people expect from a close neighbor, and commitment to our community. And as novel as it may seem, especially when compared to most banking situations these days, you'll even find a group of businessmen sitting in our boardroom who still have strong local ties to the Hereford business community. They bring a unique local perspective to our bank — a perspective which has helped Hereford State Bank provide your family, your business and your community with the banking services you need and want.

Yes, it's true. There's no place like home. And here in Hereford, there's no bank like Hereford State Bank.

Could you write an essay that explains God? One of our readers has sent us a good example.

Danny Sutton, 8, of Maryland, wrote the following for his third-grade Sunday School teacher, who asked her students to explain God.

"One of God's main jobs is making people. He makes these to put in the place of the ones who die so there will be enough people to take care of things here on earth.

"He doesn't make grownups, he just makes babies. I think because they are smaller and easier to make. That way he doesn't have to take up his valuable time teaching them to walk and talk. He can just leave that up to the mothers and fathers. I think it works out pretty good.

"God's second most important job is listening to prayers. An awful lot of this goes on, 'cause some people-like preachers and things, pray other times besides bedtimes, and Grandpa and Grandma pray every time they eat, except snacks. "God doesn't have time to listen to the radio or watch TV on account of this. "Cause God hears everything, there must be a terrible lot of noise in his ears unless he has thought of a way to turn it down.

"God sees and hears everything and is everywhere, which keeps him pretty busy. So you shouldn't go wasting his time asking for things that aren't important, or go over parents' heads and ask for something they said you couldn't have. It doesn't work anyway."

The story is told of a young fellow who went to Texas A&M with a meager allowance from his dad.

On his first trip home, he was hoping to get a few extra bucks for spending money. He was lavish in praise of his professors. "I believe, Dad, they teach an old dog how to talk." He added that the course would cost $500.

"I'll tell you what, son, you take Old Blue back and enroll him," said Dad.

A couple of weeks later, the son called to say Old Blue was doing real good, but he needed $500 more for an advanced course in speaking. Dad promptly sent the $500.

Coming home for Christmas with Blue at his side, the son was in a quandry... What was he going to tell Dad now?

Outside of Dimmitt, he stopped, took Old Blue out of the car and shot him.

When he arrived home, Dad inquired about Old Blue. "Where is he?"

"Dad, let me tell you happened. Just south of Dimmitt, Blue turns to me and asked if you were still fooling around with that waitress at the Corner Cafe."

Dad was infuriated. "I wish you would have pulled over to the side of the road and shot him, son."

"That's exactly what I did, Dad."

An AP news analysis Clinton says era of big government is over, but radio talks push big goals

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - In President Clinton's Saturday morning radio serial, the episodes feature miniature proposals with worthy goals, low costs and topics that sometimes seem improbable for White House microphones.

All of the above apply to his latest broadcast, a presidential pledge to help make children's car safety seats easier to hook up properly. Under federal regulations he proposes, the seats would come with standard buckles and new automobiles would have latches to fit them, effective in 1999.

"As the president has said, the era of big government is over," Clinton's $1.69 trillion, five-volume 1998 budget notes, in outlining broad federal roles, which don't get to the car seat level.

That is not to suggest that new federal standards aren't a good idea. "We're moving closer to the day when safe, well-attached car seats will be the rule of the road," Clinton said Saturday. Safer for children, simpler for parents often frustrated by the mechanics of widely varying car seats, which now are required in every state.

"Anyone who's ever wrestled with a car seat knows what I'm talking about," said Clinton, the first president to wrestle with the topic in a nationally broadcast address.

In a way, his proposals for limited federal programs, persuasion and sometimes advice on topics from education to crime control to safe driving are attuned to his era of smaller government. In another way, they're attuned to a broadened Washington reach.

Clinton has said, repeatedly, that there is not a program for every problem, that government doesn't have all the answers. His mini-menu offers some, but with limits, especially on costs. He is, after all, pledged to a balanced budget in five years. But even low-priced proposals require rules, standards and the regulators to enforce them.

The strain between the two sometimes is evident, as when Clinton pushed the idea of requiring uniforms for public school pupils as a step to instill discipline and to reduce jealousy and friction that can stir violence.

"Let me be clear: Washington will not tell our schools what to do," he said in that Saturday radio talk, just about a year ago. He said parents, teachers and local school officials will have to make the decision, and the federal government can only advise.

So he told the Education Department to distribute a manual to each of the nation's 16,000 school districts on the advantages of making uniforms mandatory.

The five-minute weekly radio talk, usually live, at 10:06 Saturday mornings, has become Clinton's forum for offering and often repeating such ideas.

It is a presidential format dating from Richard Nixon's time, although only Ronald Reagan and now Clinton made it a weekly fixture. Reagan delivered 331 of them; most were presidential sermons for his programs and philosophy.

"Believe me, Saturdays will never seem the same," he said in the last of his weekly talks.

George Bush used the medium sporadically. Clinton not only revived it, he made it into a production, usually broadcasting live from the Oval Office with an invited audience, sometimes featuring people affected by the measures he is discussing.

For his push to expand the family leave law to permit working people up to 24 hours, unpaid, a year, for things like school conferences and children's medical appointments, he invited three families who got emergency time off under the existing law, the first he signed as president.

Early in his presidency, Clinton concentrated his talks on his major proposals to Congress, particularly on economic matters. He still does so some Saturdays. But more often, he adds to the catalogue of cautious proposals that have been his style since the Republicans took over Congress in the 1994 elections.

The Republicans get broadcast time for a Saturday radio talk of their own. But with different voices and without the White House pulpit, it is an unequal match.

It always has been difficult to calculate the size of the listening audience, but replays, clips and news accounts magnify the impact, especially on quiet weekends.

Just the thing for modest proposals, among them:

-Clinton's announcement of a $14.3 million first installment for school equipment and training to link classrooms to the Internet.

-Word of an administration handbook for police on dealing with witness intimidation by street gangs.

-His directions to federal agencies to save surplus food from their cafeterias for distribution to the hungry.

-His preview of changes in automobile air bag rules to reduce the risk of harming children.

And, of course, easy to install car seats.

One of these Saturdays, perhaps, there'll be instructions on how to program a VCR.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
You gave a party and no one came. I have never known the agony of holding the lifeless child in my arms. I hope that I never must experience that brutal feeling.

The young people of Hereford cared enough but the people for whom they cared, cared not at all. They stayed away.

Police Chief David Wagner has told your story very well; he has praised you and your efforts; other organizations believed and joined with you in your endeavor. Keep believing in yourselves.

It is a terrible thing when love is refused; your love was set aside for the moment; it was not killed. Please keep trying to give; your lives and the lives of others will be the richer for it...your love and service for others. I salute all of you.

Vira W. Jones,
Dumas, Tx.

Miss Wrenn was my science teacher; I remember even her dress! Miss Wrenn is no longer living; she died at Memphis some time ago. Even that was a surprise to me as I expect everyone I know to be eternally young. I am now 78 and expect to live until I am 103--always in good health and in a good, sensible, interesting and invigorating time.

I have never fretted over the passing of time. At the age of 76 I was hired as a proof-reader. I am gratified and thankful for all the good and diligent school teachers with whom I spent those school years at Hereford. My sixth grade teacher still lives there and I discovered her several months ago when her picture was in your paper. Thank you for that, too.

Dear Editor:
What a surprise to open up my copy of the Hereford Brand and see a picture of the 1938 girls basketball team!

As "captain" and a member of that team, it was a wonderful sight! It created a lot of interest and a conversation topic.

Thank you so much, it's good to be remembered!

Thama Cawthon Combs

Dear Editor:
The basketball team of 1938! Thank you for this wonderful day of remembrance. How very ancient I am and so is the team. I finished HHS in 1936.

I remember all of the team except one, and the coach was not there when I was. I finished with a brother or sister of almost every one on the team.

A jewel of any community is the volunteers who donate countless hours to make Hereford a better place. Hereford Regional Medical Center has been blessed with a group of loyal and dedicated group of volunteers who unselfishly give of their time.

For the last three years on Valentine's Day, they have gone out of their way to recognize the employees of HRMC by holding a day-long reception in their honor. Can you imagine the home-cooked goodies that these dedicated volunteers prepare?

HRMC is very fortunate for the countless hours these women also provide to our patients. They truly are an asset not only to HRMC, but to Hereford as well.

Business Mirror We're not as bad off as we thought we were

BY JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Just a minute, please, while we correct the past. Average real wages rose rather than fell over the past two decades. Family incomes grew rather than stagnated. And the buying power of the poor rose strongly rather than remaining just this side of disaster.

These adjustments must be made if we are to believe a Senate advisory commission's finding that the Consumer Price Index has overstated inflation by 1.3 percentage points a year.

Up go measurements of purchasing power. Down go measurements of living costs.

This will require a vast psychological readjustment, of course, because it upsets not only our view of the economic world but in many instances our view of ourselves. Such as, "What? I'm not as poor as I thought?"

But such adjustments are minor compared with the trauma created among scholars, economists, policy advocates and policy makers, elected officials and the media who relied totally on the old numbers.

Briefly stated, they are on record with their books and articles. Their reputations and lifetime work are at stake. Some were elected to public office on the basis of views now said to be untrue. Some earned professorships. Some made big money on the lecture circuit.

And just one tiny, miscalculated, misapplied number threatens to undermine all this? Yes.

The alleged 1.3 percent a year overstatement of the CPI, which is used to adjust or measure incomes for inflation, means that rather than falling between 1977 and 1995, the average hourly wage rose more than 13 percent.

Various benefits rose too. Alan Greenspan, the Federal Reserve chairman, put it bluntly: "There is almost a 100 per cent probability we are overcompensating the average Social Security recipient for increases in the cost of living."

To say that is to invite in return a great deal of noise, because no one group in America has more firepower and willingness to use it quickly than retirees and the institutions that claim retirees are underpaid.

For the time being, there is less of an uproar from scholars who have spread the notion that, except for a fortunate minority, most Americans in recent years have been mired in stagnation or retrogression.

Such dire commentaries, says Professor Richard B. McKenzie, have been a prelude to pessimistic conclusions that the American system has failed and that a more government-centered system must be established.

Americans have so thoroughly accepted the scholars' and commentators' claims, says McKenzie, "that many believe times have never been tougher in the country's post-war history."

And, he adds, "many Americans appear convinced that the charted income decline will continue, meaning today's children will be worse off than their parents, as today's parents are worse off than their parents." If the CPI has been inaccurate, as the commission claims, then such ideas have been like poison to the American psyche and the belief that one generation improved on the other and would in turn be improved upon.

But, says McKenzie in a paper the Center for the Study of American Business at Washington University, Americans have thoroughly accepted the claims, and believe times have seldom been tougher.

Moreover, he adds, "many Americans appear convinced that the charted income decline will continue." In short, Americans were awakening to the realization their dreams could no longer be fulfilled.

McKenzie, a University of California economist well known for turning over statistical rocks, reaches more encouraging conclusions based on a CPI "properly measured and used to adjust income":

1. Americans have made substantial economic gains since the late 1970s. Using 1978 as a base of 100, gross hourly earnings of nonagricultural production workers is now 113.2 percent rather than 86.7 percent.

2. Gains are spread throughout the income distribution, although they may not have been spread evenly. The rich have become richer, but the poor have become less so.

Still, the notions remain and the battle for a new CPI is still ahead. As encouraging as the new CPI might be, many Americans have a vested interest in the old.

TWA, ValuJet crashes made '96 deadly year

WASHINGTON (AP) - The TWA and ValuJet crashes made last year the deadliest for U.S. air carriers since 1985, with 380 deaths in five accidents.

In all, 350 people were killed aboard the planes and 30 died on the ground, the National Transportation Safety Board said Friday in its annual aviation statistical report.

The deaths were the most since 526 people died in seven fatal accidents in 1985. The last year with five or more deadly crashes was 1990 when six accidents occurred, but the death toll was only 39.

The 1996 toll amounted to one passenger death per 1.8 million who flew, the board reported, up from one death in 3.7 million passengers in 1995 but still below the one death in 1.4 million recorded in 1982.

In addition to the large air carriers, the safety board reported that accidents involving private pilots fell to a 15-year low. The year also saw the lowest fatal accident rate in 15 years of recordkeeping for commuter airlines, but the highest for air taxis.

Overall, 1,070 people died in aviation accidents last year, up from 962 in 1995.

The explosion of TWA Flight 800 last July 17 off the coast of Long Island was the year's deadliest disaster, killing 230 people. There were 110 killed in the May 11 crash of a ValuJet DC-9 in the Florida Everglades.

Two passengers died July 6 aboard a Delta Air Lines MD-88 when an engine failed in Pensacola, Fla.

On July 20, all four aboard a Northern Air Cargo DC-6 died in a crash at Russian Mission, Alaska. And on Oct. 22 a Boeing 707 flown by the U.S. company Millon Air crashed in Manta, Ecuador, killing four aboard the plane and 30 on the ground.

Fourteen were killed in a runway collision involving a United Express commuter airliner in Quincy, Ill., Nov. 19. That was more than the nine commuter fatalities the year before but still represented the lowest fatal rate in 15 years for commuter lines, the board said, at 0.032 deaths per 100,000 departures.

For on-demand air taxis, the fatality rate was 1.42 per 100,000 flights, the highest rate in 15 years.

Veterans recall Iwo Jima battle

By JIM CONLEY
El Paso Times

EL PASO, Texas - It was just a little, volcanic island in the western Pacific called Iwo Jima, but 52 years ago it became one of the most famous battle sites in U.S. history.

Eight square miles of land was bought with 6,821 Marine Corps lives and 19,217 wounded - the Marines' second-bloodiest battle after Tarawa. Elmo A. Burns, then a Marine gunnery sergeant, lay wounded by sniper fire when a Navy corpsman pointed out the historic moment unfolding before them: "Look, Gunny, they're raising a flag on Suribachi."

The flag-raising by the Marines atop Mount Suribachi Feb. 23, 1945 - four days after the battle began - became the most famous photo of World War II.

Three of the six men in the photo taken by Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal never learned of their fame: they died on Iwo Jima. The most famous of the survivors was Ira Hayes, a Native American whose life story was made into a movie in the early 1960s.

Three Iwo Jima veterans recalled this week the importance of the battle: Burns, a retired Marine sergeant major now living in El Paso; David E. Valdez of Anthony, N.M., a Navy SeaBee in the war; and Orba Lee Malone of El Paso, an Army Air Force veteran.

They were joined at a lunchtime gathering on Tuesday by Gunnery Sgt. Alfredo Cooke and several other El Paso Marine recruiters for a living history lesson.

"The main reason people associate the Marines with World War II is the flag-raising on Mount Suribachi," said Cooke, 38, a veteran of Desert Storm combat. "But Iwo Jima's significance is it symbolizes the tenacity - the dogged determination - that Marines have to accomplish the mission at all costs."

"They fought an enemy who possessed the same traits as the Marines, the same kind of well-trained troops," Cooke said.

Valdez, 78, a retired federal prison employee and farmer, said the Japanese were indeed tenacious as they fought from deep, interlocking caves in the volcanic rock. More than 21,000 Japanese died in the battle.

"Even with flame throwers, it was difficult to get them out," Valdez said. "We tried pumping water in there, but mostly they would come out when they got hungry. And there were snipers for about three months who kept shooting our heavy equipment drivers."

The major battle for Iwo Jima ended around March 25, but for months, American troops tracked down and killed about 2,000 more Japanese defenders. The last two gave up three years after the war, in 1948.

Malone, 76, a retired lawyer, said he owes his life to the Marines for securing the island so his crippled bomber could land there after bombing Japan.

The Marines were ordered to take Iwo Jima because it would give the United States an airstrip for crippled B-29 bombers only 600 miles from Japan, half the distance they had been flying from Guam.

Malone said he used Iwo Jima 12 times when returning from 12-to-15-hour bombing raids over Japan. By the time the war ended, about 2,500 planes, with 11 crewmen per plane, had found refuge on Iwo Jima - a potential of 27,500 lives saved by the sacrifices of U.S. military invaders.

"Three or four times we wouldn't have made it to Guam if the Marines hadn't taken Iwo Jima," Malone said. "The first time I landed there was April 1, 1945, and there had been about 100 Marines killed there a few nights before in a Japanese attack."

"I had two friends killed there - one I only found out about later," Malone said. "One of the most poignant experiences I ever had in my life was to go to that little island one of the times we landed there and stand at the grave of Wick Mason, who had been my friend."

"Yes, we all felt grateful to the Marines," Malone said.

Valdez said people should remember Iwo Jima and the battle's significance.

"I'd like people to remember that we still have a really fine country and we had to fight for it," Valdez said.

"I think oftentimes people take for granted that freedom comes easy. But you actually have to fight for it."

Insurance companies announce settlements

AUSTIN (AP) - More than 27,000 Texans are to receive nearly $7.7 million in restitution from three auto insurance companies in a settlement announced Friday.

The companies are making the payments to settle allegations that they didn't refund deductibles paid by their customers when required to do so by law, the attorney general's office said.

Attorney General Dan Morales identified the companies as Allstate Insurance Co., GEICO and ANPAC Insurance Groups. The settlement concerns cases in which consumers pay a deductible in the process of filing an auto insurance claim.

Under state law, if a third party may be liable for paying the insured's deductible, an insurance company has six months to either file a lawsuit to recover the deductible or notify the insured that he may file a suit to recover it. If the insurance company fails to do either of those things within six months, it must pay its insured customer the amount of the deductible.

Morales said an investigation by his office showed that the three companies weren't complying with the law and that the problem is widespread.

"These insurance companies are not alone in their failure to refund deductibles to their insureds," Morales said. "Our previous settlements with State Farm and Farmers Insurance on this same issue indicate that this is an industrywide problem."

As part of the settlements, the three companies admitted no wrongdoing.

Pain Relief

TENSION HEADACHE

If you're bothered by headache that seems to have its origin at the base of your skull, you may be suffering from tension headache.

Tension headaches can be caused by an irritation of the nerves in the area of the spine immediately under the skull. These are called suboccipital nerves. They pass through small openings in the spinal column to muscles in the surrounding area. Any abnormal pressure or dysfunction of the neck and muscles can irritate the nerves, causing tension.

The tension doesn't cause the headache. To treat this form of headache, attention should be paid to the bone and muscle structures. They should be returned to normal balance so they can function properly again. Medication is not the answer to tension headaches. Aspirin and other pain-killers may give you temporary relief - but they won't solve the problem. Once the source of the problem is found and treated, THEN you can get the relief you need.

We accept assignments on Medicare & Medicaid & most insurance carriers.

Levelland upsets top-ranked Canyon

TOMMY WELLS
Managing Editor
PLAINVIEW — The Levelland Loboettes walked onto the court Friday with a lot in common with the Canyon Lady Eagles. Both are perennial state powers. Both were state-ranked, and both wanted a trip Austin to be in their neat future. In the end, however, Levelland had something the Canyon Lady Eagles didn't - a little luck. Missy Frazier managed to work her way between two Lady Eagle defenders in the closing seconds Friday night and push home a short jumper that handed seventh-ranked Levelland a 24-22 win in front of a standing-room-only crowd in the Hutcherson Center. The win ended top-ranked Canton's 62-game win streak and their dreams of repeating as Class 4A state champions. Frazier's basket didn't come easily. The Loboettes nearly threw away a chance at the win with less than 15 seconds to play when Canyon's Courtney Sims tied up the ball in the paint. The possession arrow, however, gave Levelland the ball again with 13 seconds left.

Just 7.6 seconds later, Frazier handed the Loboettes a two-point lead by driving between Sims and Valeree Valdez for the game-winning shot. The Lady Eagles had one final chance at taking victory from the jaws of defeat. After Frazier's basket, Canyon regained possession of the ball with 4.3 seconds remaining. They were unable to go the length of the court and get off a shot in time. The Lady Eagles had a chance to take the lead late in the fourth, but Lindy Lombard managed to sink only the back end of a two-shot opportunity from the free throw line. Lombard's free throw tied the game at 22-22 with 29 seconds left.

Gonzalez feels he can return soon

DALLAS (AP) — Juan Gonzalez says he'll be able to play with the Texas Rangers before May, earlier than doctors have predicted. Gonzalez, the defending American League Most Valuable Player, reported for spring training in Port Charlotte, Fla. Friday. The right-fielder tore the ulnar collateral ligament in his left thumb while playing in the Puerto Rican winter league and had surgery two weeks ago. The Rangers were told Gonzalez would not be able to play for 12 weeks and the club said he would likely return in early May.

Canyon dominated the game during the early moments. The Lady Eagles knocked down a pair of shot jumpers, and two free throws in the first 4 1/2 minutes and streaked to a 6-1 advantage.

Levelland came back in the final 1:28 of the period, though. The Loboettes scored the final four points of the frame in that span and pulled to within 6-5.

After Canyon had regained an 8-5 lead, the Loboettes got hot, scoring five unanswered points and claiming their first lead. Frazier, again, turned in the key shot, burying a 8-foot jumper from the right side to put Dean Weese's team up 10-8 with 5:09 left in the half.

Frazier finished the night as the game's top scorer, throwing in 13 points.

Canyon collected three of the final five points in the half, however and trimmed Levelland's lead to 12-11 at the intermission.

Neither team managed to do too much damage offensively in the first half. The Levelland defense held Canyon to just a 5-of-16 effort from the field in the first 16 minutes. The Lady Eagles returned the favor, limiting the LHS cagers to just a 4-of-13 effort.

The defenses continued to shine in the third as both teams combined to score just nine points. Unfortunately for Lady Eagle fans, Levelland scored five of them.

The Loboettes, who had downed Hereford two games earlier, held a shaky 17-15 advantage heading into the final eight minutes of the Region I-4A finals.

Valdez and Sims gave the Canyon faithful hope seconds into the fourth.

Valdez was Canyon's top scorer, netting seven points.

Canyon was unable to do anything else offensively. The Eagles did not score again for almost four minutes.

Loboette guard Kari Willman picked up Levelland's hopes with just over 3 1/2 minutes left when she knocked down a 3-pointer from the left wing. Willman's shot - one of four 3-pointers they would make in the contest, gave the Loboettes a 20-19 cushion.

The two teams traded baskets in the ensuing 2:50, before Levelland's

6-foot-1 post Bandi Bayer drew her fifth foul and sent Lombard to the line.

Levelland 24, Canyon 22
Levelland .5 7 5 7 - 24
Canyon .6 5 4 7 - 22

Levelland - Kristi Voss 1 0-0 3; Missy Frazier 6 1-2 13; Bandi Bayer 1 0-2 2; Kari Willman 2 0-0 6.

Canyon - Candi White 2 0-0 4; Courtney Sims 1 2-2 4; Lindy Lombard 2 1-2 5; Valerie Valdez 3 1-2 7; Brooke Moore 1 0-0 2.

USMC boot camp floors Bowe in just three days

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Three days into his Marine boot camp training, former heavyweight champion Riddick Bowe is throwing in the towel.

Bowe, who stunned the boxing world last month by proclaiming he always wanted to be a Marine, plans to leave the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve in Parris Island today, a Corps officer said.

Bowe entered boot camp 11 days ago and was in his third day of actual training Thursday when he wanted to leave, said Master Sgt. Chuck Demar at the U.S. Marine Corps Recruit Depot.

"He's been released at his own request," Demar said. Bowe was filling out the necessary paperwork and probably would leave this afternoon, the spokesman said.

A recruit can ask to be dismissed at any time, he said.

"He spoke to Judy (his wife) late last night," said Rock Newman, Bowe's manager, told The Associated Press. "Evidently the decision was made last night."

Newman said he has not spoken to Bowe about the decision, and denied that Bowe's joining the Marines was a publicity stunt. "Bowe will be subject to criticism and no one opens themselves to criticism just for publicity."

"It was just that he couldn't handle the regimented training lifestyle," Demar said Bowe told his drill instructor and battalion commander. Bowe told his commanders he wished he had enlisted earlier, the base said in a statement.

"I would think Riddick would like to serve his country, but in some other capacity," Newman, Bowe's manager, told CNN-SI television. "Maybe now he can run for Congress or something."

Bowe announced Jan. 30 he had joined the Marines, and arrived at Parris Island Feb. 10. "It's something I always wanted to do before I got too old," he said told the boxing press then.

The 29-year-old multimillionaire had been scheduled to stay at Parris Island for three months of basic training. Bowe was to serve a total of three years in the active reserve and then five years in the inactive reserve.

The first few days of training begin at 5:30 a.m. and involve mostly physical exercise, running and boxing, although Bowe was not allowed to box because there was no one of his size and skill to match him with, Demar said.

"I am not surprised the regimen and the discipline that the Corps requires is something Riddick had a bit of a problem with over time," Newman said. "To say the least, this is a monumental change for him."

Newman said it also was hard on Bowe to be away from his wife and five children.

The base said the Marines had discussions with Bowe before he arrived at Parris Island about the rigors of basic training and allowed him to visit before he enlisted "so he could see firsthand the challenges he would face.

Bowe, a former heavyweight champion of the world title holder, also was granted age, weight and dependent waivers, the Marine Corps said.

Look Who's 40!

Once upon a time, when you were two; visions of sugar plums danced in your mind. The years go fast, believe us it's true, life slips by though you're one of a kind

Now visions of golf balls fill your brain, and all work and no play is not your concern. The golf links beckon - even in the rain, but what better place with energy to burn?

Now you are forty, but don't worry son, for it could be worse, we can attest; Life is not over, it has just begun, and Mom and Dad wish you the best!

Vikings give Moon his release

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - The Minnesota Vikings released Warren Moon on Friday when the 40-year-old quarterback turned down a $500,000 offer to back up Brad Johnson next season. Moon's agent, Leigh Steinberg, said it was an amicable parting, and he expects Moon to sign with another team in a few weeks.

"We're pleased that they went ahead and did this now instead of waiting, because now we'll have a much better chance to find a new home," Steinberg said.

Moon had been scheduled to earn $4.3 million in 1997 in the second year of a three-year, $15 million contract. When he refused the $3.8 million pay cut, the Vikings let him go. Moon flew to Minnesota for a physical Friday - he passed, Steinberg said - and then returned to his suburban Houston home.

Military family residences spark feud

DEL RIO, Texas (AP) - Something strange happened on Election Day in this dusty border county: The Hispanic candidates for sheriff and county commissioner who were leading all night ended up losing when absentee ballots came pouring in for two whites, one of them a former Ku Klux Klansman.

A closer look at the 800 mail-in ballots revealed that almost all were cast by military members and their dependents - most of them, whites who were once stationed at Laughlin Air Force Base but hadn't lived in Val Verde County for years. Val Verde County is 70 percent Hispanic.

"We all thought that this was a fraud and that democracy was not being respected," said Jovita Casarez, who filed a federal lawsuit over the election. "When this type of fraud is committed, it's embarrassing for all the nation."

The feud could have far-reaching effects, determining once and for all what military families on the move can list as their legal residence and where they can mark their ballots for local elections.

Military families retain residency in one place for the sake of convenience, so that they don't constantly have to get new driver's licenses and registrations.

Texas, with 18 military bases, is particularly attractive as a place of residency because there is no state income tax and because public college tuition for residents is among the cheapest in the nation. Even George Bush claimed a Houston hotel suite as his official residence while he was president.

The "phantom voters," as some people in Val Verde County call those who reside here on paper only, helped bring about Republican sheriff candidate D'Wayne Jernigan's 267-vote victory over Democratic interim sheriff Oscar Gonzalez Jr., and Republican Murry Kachel's 113-vote win over Democrat Frank Coronado for county commissioner.

A federal judge has barred Jernigan and Kachel from taking office until residency questions are settled in a separate state lawsuit filed by the Democratic losers. That case is set for April 21.

The Republicans' victory would give the GOP its first majority on the commissioners court in the 111-year history of Val Verde County, a place of 42,000 residents, 2,900 of them at the Air Force base.

"I followed the law," insisted Val Verde County Clerk Maria Elena Cardenas, who oversaw the November election.

Texas has a "flexible definition" of residency that largely depends on the voter's intent, said Ann McGeehan, deputy assistant secretary of state for elections.

The Texas Secretary of State's Office says service members can apply for a ballot by supplying a Texas address for a place the voter plans someday to return to. The voter doesn't actually have to have a home at that address.

In fact, one of the phantom voters was a man who spent three days at his grandmother's home in Val Verde County during his honeymoon 25 years ago, according to court papers.

"What happens to your representation when you have phantom voters?" candidate Gonzalez asked. "What happened to the one-man, one-vote principle?"

Magician performs tough stunts for new TV special

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Lance Burton thought being buried alive was a tough gig.

That was before he attempted a water torture stunt that magic legend Harry Houdini concocted but never performed.

"It was the scariest illusion I've ever done," Burton said, referring to being strapped in a straitjacket, then padlocked in a cramped, water-filled chamber. "When you can't get oxygen, your mind begins to do funny things."

After taping the stunt twice for his NBC special "Lance Burton, Master Magician: The Encounter," airing at 8 p.m. EST Monday, Burton thinks Houdini had the right idea.

"I know I'll never do it again," he said recently, munching on a Big Mac between shows in his dressing room at the Monte Carlo Resort and Casino on the Las Vegas Strip. "It was just too dangerous."

"When you're under water, you have no sense of what's going on outside the tank," he explained. "You're in your own little world. Everything's a blur. It's very surreal."

Burton is strapped in a straitjacket and lowered into an airtight tank filled with water. The lid is padlocked and chained, and Burton begins struggling to free himself from the tight confines. He is submerged for 2 minutes and 30 seconds before a tarp is thrown over the tank. Seconds later, he emerges on stage, dripping wet.

Burton conditioned himself to hold his breath by submerging himself in a bathtub filled with water and doing cardiovascular exercises to strengthen his lungs.

When the 2:30 mark passed, the assistants on stage - armed with axes to break into the tank if the stunt went awry - edged from concern toward panic.

"It didn't get to the point where I thought I wouldn't get out," Burton said. "But I was very close to the panic point. This was much more intense than I had expected. There is something in your DNA about being under water. Either you handle it or you drown."

The TV special also includes segments from his popular stage show.

FCE to name "Club Woman of the Year"

★ TEXAS GROWN FAMILIES

Highlight of the annual Deaf Smith County Family Community Education Council Appreciation Luncheon to be held at noon Monday in the Community Center will be the naming of the "Club Woman of the Year."

Nominees who have been submitted by their individual clubs are Alta Mae Higgins, Bippus FCE Club; Marilyn Smith, Cultural FCE Club; Tonie Vaughn, Draper FCE Club; Katherine Paschel, Ford FCE Club; and Shirley Brown, Wyche FCE Club.

The theme for this year's banquet is "Texas Grown Families." Featured speaker will be Terry Cosby, pastor of First Baptist Church of Hereford. Special guests for the event will be members of Hereford Rotary Club.

Nominees for the "Club Woman of the Year" award embody the ideals of building families and communities, while sharing education to help others have the best quality of life. These are the goals of all Family Community Education Clubs.

The "Club Woman of the Year" award is being sponsored for the 46th year by The Hereford Brand and will be presented by Becky Camp, Lifestyles Editor.

Nominees submitted resumes which were judged by an out-of-district Family Consumer Sciences Agent.

Nell Pope, member of the Cultural FCE Club, was the recipient of the "Club Woman of the Year" award last year.

FCE club members who have had perfect attendance at the monthly council meetings will receive a special presentation. Those who have had perfect attendance at the club meetings will also be recognized.

Members who have been in club work for 50 years or more will be presented roses and certificates.

Following are excerpts from the resumes of this year's nominees.

Alta Mae Higgins became a member of Bippus Club five years ago; however, her time spent in service to the Bippus Club has numbered far beyond that time.

Computer hair-imaging brings new element to styling choices

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

A change in Cathy Gilter's lifestyle could result in the perfect hairstyle for you.

"When my previous employment ended last year, I began to look for something for myself that I felt I could really enjoy doing," Mrs. Gilter said.

Although she has never been a professional hair stylist, her mother and grandmothers were, and she learned from them.

"I love to do hair and I love computers and I love photography. With this system I have the best of all worlds," she said.

The system she is referring to is computer imaging which allows her clients to actually see themselves with hairstyle changes of their choice.

What woman hasn't wondered how she would look as a blonde -- or a red head? Or worried if she would really like that new shorter hairstyle -- or longer hairstyle -- on herself?

Computer imaging allows Mrs. Gilter's client to see for herself just how she would look. At the end of the session she receives a video tape featuring her with the hairstyle changes of her choice. She can view the video at her convenience or show it to family, friends and her own personal stylist for their opinions or advice.

"It's a fun, affordable 'pamper me thing' that a woman can do for herself. And we all deserve to be pampered some," Mrs. Gilter said.

The client's picture is taken with a digital camera and uploaded in the computer. Then she can see hairstyles she selects appear on her on a color monitor.

A video tape recording, complete with background music, is made of the whole process. Color photos of her favorite hairstyles are also available.

Mrs. Gilter plans to make her imaging system business, Style Pix on Video, fully mobile.

"I will set up in salons or shops and make videos for my clients and their hair stylist to see," she said. "The entire system was designed by Beauty Works to be easily transportable and I can have it set up in a very short time."

She will offer incentives for shop owners and their stylists for hosting a computer imaging event.

"And computer imaging is not just for women. There are style choices available for men as well, so shop owners or stylists can offer this to all their clients, regardless of sex," she said.

Style Pix on Video is located at 200 S. 25 Mile Avenue. More information on how to schedule a computer imaging event for yourself, your shop, or your club or civic organization is available by calling Mrs. Gilter at 364-2205 or 1-800-627-8171.

With computer imaging, you don't have to imagine how you would look with a different hair style. You can see how you will look.

Computer imaging

Cathy Gilter demonstrates how her new computer imaging business, Style Pix on Video, allows her clients to actually see how they look with different hair styles and hair color.

Student Council information will be sent home in the near future.
Yellow and green team Honor Roll and Pride Certified students took a field trip to Amarillo on Friday to skate and to eat pizza at Mr. Gatti's. The pink team will take this trip on Friday, Feb. 28.

Seventeen students attended the History Fair in Canyon on Saturday. Needless to say, there has been much work one on each project since our local fair. Results will be reported this week.

Junior Historians presented a program for the Morning Kiwanis Club on Friday. They will have a part on the program at the School Board meeting on Tuesday and at Noon Lions Club on Wednesday. A different group will attend each of the meetings.

The completion of a slide program for the Court House group will be done this week and next. This will entail the members of the group going to the court house, museum and appraisal office for the slides to be taken and for further research.

Thank you, Jean Beene, for your congratulations to our History Fair winners. We appreciate your support!!!

She currently serves as vice president of the Cultural Club, serves as an active program leader and has served on the yearbook committee. In addition, she has actively worked all club, council and scholarship fund-raisers.

Mrs. Smith states she has learned much by being an FCE member and has enjoyed sharing that knowledge with her children and others. She further states she has a better understanding of the problems we face today in an ever changing world. She credits her club work with enhancing her talents and keeping her up-to-date with current events.

Katherine Paschel is the nominee for Woman of the Year of the Ford FCE Club. She is an eight-year member of the Ford Club. She is the mother of 7 and grandmother of 19 and uses her hobbies of sewing and gardening to share with her children and grandchildren.

Mrs. Paschel has presented programs to her club on her unique hobby of collecting Christmas cribs and decorations. She has served her club on the yearbook committee, as secretary and vice president. She has also assisted in their annual pheasant hunters fundraiser dinner which benefits the local 4-H clubs.

Mrs. Paschel is cited by her club as being a willing worker in the programs and activities they have each year. She also shares within her community and is an active worker in her church, the Immaculate Conception Church in Vega, where she has used her creative talents in flower arranging, sewing of vestment, altar clothes and banners.

She states that being a member of FCE has made her more aware of the needs of her club members and their families and also the needs of her community.

Shirley Brown represents the Wyche FCE Club as their nominee for Women of the Year. She has been an extension club member in Lubbock, Lynn and Deaf Smith counties.

Mrs. Brown is an active member of the Wyche Club where she serves as president and chairman of the executive committee. She has served her club on all committees and been active in presenting trainings and programs for the club.

Following her retirement after 34 years of teaching, she served the club as a "visitor," presenting leader trainings, actively working on the club's service projects of rural neighbor adoption and on the Bippus Community Building.

Mrs. Higgins regularly attends FCE Council meetings and serves as a club liaison. She believes and lives a vision of "doing for others." She has logged 460 volunteer hours for people in her community. Her influence extends far beyond her community as she keeps in touch with youth in college to continually encourage them in their endeavors.

An active member of the First Baptist Church, Mrs. Higgins sings in the Golden Tones Senior Citizens Choir of the church and also participates in the Senior Citizens Young at Heart choir, serving as their secretary.

She is a member of the Hereford Retired School Employees Association, the Delta Gamma Society and has served as president of the Bippus Homecoming Activities.

Since her retirement, Mrs. Higgins states that she felt the need to keep up with changing times and found that FCE club work was one way to keep abreast of new technology and ideas. Mrs. Higgins says she has found club work rewarding and has enjoyed being a part of the service they do for others.

Cultural Family Community Education Club presents Marilyn Smith as its Club Woman of the Year nominee. Mrs. Smith is a four-year member of Cultural Club but is applauded by other club members as a very active and diligent newer member.

She is cited by her club as being a good friend to many as she shares the produce of her garden, shows a willingness to help in all ways that she can and brings an enthusiasm to whatever job is asked of her.

Mrs. Smith is a mother of four children and, with her husband, served as organizational leader of a 4-H club in Castro County. Working within the Extension Service family came natural to this busy and active person.

She began her extension work in the 4-H clubs, assisting her three sons in their 4-H activities and helping organize a 4-H club in southern Lubbock County in the late fifties.

*Mrs. Brown worked as an LVN for the Deaf Smith County Hospital for 31 years. Her continuous learning in her occupational field was attributed to her self-study and education, a positive attitude, tenacity and hard work. Her belief in this work ethic has proven to inspire others to work toward their dreams and goals.

Her club members cite her volunteer spirit as being contagious as she serves and helps others.

Mrs. Brown is active in the First Baptist Church, Senior Citizens Choir, Order of the Eastern Star and several other clubs. She states her love for her community and dear friends has helped her become a caring and concerned person. She firmly believes that Hereford is a special place to live because of the great people who live and work here.

Draper FCE Club has submitted Tonic Vaughn as its nominee for Club Woman of the Year. Mrs. Vaughn is a 17-year member of the Draper Club where she has served as president and reporter and been actively involved in leading training sessions. She is an active visitor and supporter of the Cultural FCE Club activities, also.

Mrs. Vaughn serves on the FCE Council where she is reporter and on the finance committee which is active in fund-raising for Council projects. She is well known for the gifts of food which she takes to those who are ill or just in need of cheer.

Mrs. Vaughn is the mother of seven children with a daughter and two granddaughters in the Draper Club.

She states that growing up on a farm didn't prepare her for a public lifestyle. After her membership in an FCE club, she was able to express her views and ideas in front of others. This gave her education and courage to successfully share, teach and start the FCE spark that might help someone else flourish into a new FCE member.

Mrs. Vaughn is a member of Christ's Church Fellowship, actively visits at Golden Plains Nursing Home, is a member of Hereford Senior Citizens and is supportive of her grandchildren's activities.

Mrs. Vaughn states that her personal hobbies include her activities in FCE and volunteering in her community. The level of involvement that she has given her FCE work has encouraged other members to realize their potential that might have otherwise gone untapped.

— YOUR EYES —

Why Sports Heroes Wear Glasses

There are two important reasons why sports stars wear glasses: to see better in order to play better, and to protect their eyes from injury.

In addition to the basic optometric eye examination, covering the health of the eyes and whether corrective lenses are needed for near or distant vision, an athlete - professional or amateur - may be tested for dynamic visual acuity: how well the individual sees when the body, the ball and other people are all in motion.

Protective goggles are important even for those who don't need visual correction. Without them, hundreds of thousands of sports enthusiasts and athletes suffer sports-related eye injuries each year. Squash and racquetball players are required to wear goggles; tennis players should, too. Football players are wearing face guards that keep fingers from poking at eyes, and baseball and hockey players wear helmets with masks. The best safety equipment is made of tough polycarbonate, a space-age plastic.

Red Cross Update

The first section of the Community First Aid and Safety class, called "Adult CPR" will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 25 at 7 p.m. in the Red Cross building. On Thursday at 7 p.m. the second part, "Child and Infant CPR" will be held. "First Aid" section will be held Tuesday, March 4 at 7 p.m. Please call the Red Cross office to have your name included on the class roster. The number 364-3761.

Last week we announced that we were pleased to welcome two new instructors to the fold, but I failed to include their full names. Albert Cervantez and Romeo Ramirez of the Deaf Smith County Youth Home are our new and very effective instructors. They are qualified as Instructors in all sections of the "Community First Aid and Safety" class, which includes Adult CPR, Child and Infant CPR and First Aid. They have already started teaching and are doing an excellent job.

You can contribute to our preparedness for future disasters by cash or credit card, by calling 806-364-3761, or one of the two national numbers, 800-435-7669 or 800-257-7575 (Spanish), or on-line to Red Cross Internet at <http://www.red-cross.org> on the web.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Time and Attitudes: A Formula for Success

Two men were working at a construction site as a young boy passed by. The boy watched with interest as the men built a brick wall. After a few minutes, he approached one of the workmen. "What are you doing?" he asked. The worker answered without looking up. "I'm laying bricks until the 5 o'clock whistle blows," he asked. The boy walked to the other end of the wall and asked the second worker what he was doing. With a friendly smile the man replied, "Son, I'm building an office building. Someday soon a company will locate here and become successful. I will have a part in their success."

There is a great lesson about time and attitude in this little story. We can either lay bricks 'til 5 o'clock or build buildings to help others become more successful.

Brick laying is actually a good analogy to life. We all have our "bricks" to work with every day. In fact, we all have one brick in common. It is a time brick we call minutes.

Recently, I heard a little poem that expresses this thought beautifully.

I have only just a minute,
Only 60 seconds in it.
Forced upon me, can't refuse it,
Didn't seek it, didn't choose it,
But, it's up to me to use it,
I'm a sucker if I lose it,
Give account if I abuse it,
Just a tiny little minute,
But, eternity is in it.

Time and attitude

When you analyze the lives of successful people, you find that time and attitude play a critical role. In fact, how a person uses time, and the attitude he or she adopts may be two of the most important characteristics of success.

In this column, I'd like to focus on the time factor. Days, weeks and years can all be broken down into those little time bricks we call minutes. How we use our minutes will shape our success. Here are some tips for getting more out of your minutes.

Tips for "minute" management

- Develop an attitude of time control. You are the only person who decides how to use your minutes. Don't let others sidetrack you from your success.

- Set aside time for planning. Planning allows you to look at your future as if it were today. You can chart a course of action today that will guarantee your success tomorrow.

- Begin with the end in mind. This one of the seven habits from Stephen Covey's book "The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People." Covey suggests that you focus on the result your desire, and work toward that end. In other words, decide what you want, then go get it.

- Prioritize your tracks. This is the most important lesson on getting things done I have ever learned. Set aside adequate time for selecting the most important tasks to do. Remember, the results of these tasks are critical to your success.

- Know when you do your best work. If you are a morning person, tackle those tough jobs first. If you're asleep until noon - even when you're at work - use your afternoon "prime time" to work on high-priority tasks.

- Hustle while you wait. Always keep a little work handy to do while you're waiting. I often write at the doctor's office, in airports and while on hold on the phone. It takes a little thought, but those extra minutes can increase your productivity.

- Take a break and play. Finally, make your day a mix of what must be done (highest priorities) and what you want to do (fun). Reward yourself for the completion of a difficult project with some time for fun. The fast track to burnout is all work and no play.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

As the Library Director part of my job is to keep abreast of the latest trends, technology and philosophy in the library world.

In the last two weeks I have traveled to Austin, Laramie, Wyo., and Amarillo. While in Austin I discovered a philosophy of "the library system must comply with the rules."

In an Amarillo meeting of the Harrington Users Group there was the philosophy of "we are in this together how can we make this system better."

I mentioned Laramie because it was during that 10-hour drive that I had a chance to reflect and become more aware of just how far our library has come. It was because of the forward thinking of a group of librarians and county and city commissioners and other library governing bodies that the Harrington Library Consortium was made possible.

In 1986, or there about, librarian Diane Pierson took the proposal to the county commissioners, telling them of the opportunity we had to become a part of a library network. This network would connect all the libraries in the Texas Panhandle together with a common resource database and circulation system.

At that time even the most progressive libraries had a stand alone system for the card catalog and maybe for circulation. As a member of Harrington Library Consortium (HLC) we would be able to look at WT's, AC's and Amarillo Public's card catalog while standing in the library in Hereford.

So before you drove to Canyon or Amarillo you would know the title and the "call number" of the book you wanted. You would even know if that book was available for checkout. Think of what that means. Not only would you know where the book was, but you could use your Hereford library card and check that book out. You wouldn't have to get another card.

The thought of having all the smaller area libraries running to the larger ones had WT, AC, and APL very concerned. What would they do for their students and patrons when their shelves were empty? It never occurred to them that the smaller libraries would have something they could use. Another concern was once a book was checked out, how would we get it back?

Do you know that 90 percent of the people using the library, bring the borrowed materials back. They may be late, but they are returned. Because of our "online," "real time" circulation system we can keep track of that 10 percent that doesn't know how to return books.

If you have overdue books, or fines, or lost books you are blocked from using any of the other libraries. When the books are returned, and the fines are paid then the patron record is cleared and borrowing privileges are restored.

For the first time libraries have a way of helping each other recover materials. In the years that we have been a member of the HLC, our Inter Library Loan service has quadrupled, and Reciprocal Borrowing has doubled, and our library patrons have access to over 1.5 million items.

Many thought that becoming a member of this computer system was too expensive and would become obsolete in less than five years. The builders at HLC created a plan of growth.

The software upgrades have been installed as soon as they were available, and equipment upgrades are still happening. We no longer have any of the original equipment, and well soon -- within the next five years -- replace all of the present terminals with PCs.

Because of our membership in HLC we have the capabilities to search other databases such as Texas Tech, the Library of Congress and even surf the net. I will admit that searching the net with a dumb terminal (that is one with no graphics) may not look as interesting, but for someone that does not have a PC and a modem at home, or at work, it means there is a way they can access the World Wide Web.

Who would have thought that the Deaf Smith County Library, this small rural community library, would have the opportunity to be one of the most technologically advanced libraries in the United States? Did you know we are on the leading edge and that are many libraries where the telephone and xerox machine are the most advanced pieces of equipment?

Did you know that HLC is the leader in library networking throughout the U.S. and its structure and philosophy is taught and sighted as an example in the universities? Did you know that we were the seventh library to become a part of HLC?

I am proud to be from an area and community that can see the needs and opportunities beyond those present for today. I am proud to represent an area and community that can see that what will benefit one will benefit all. And I'm proud that we want to get to know and help each other rather than remain isolated and selfish.

Thank you Deaf Smith County for giving me the opportunity to serve and be a part of you and this wonderful library system.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Do you dare print one more letter about a goofy judge? I hope so because this story is extraordinary. The article appeared in the Minneapolis Star Tribune. -- J.N., Golden Valley, Minn.

Dear J.N.: It is indeed "extraordinary." Thanks for sending it on. Does anyone in Wisconsin have an explanation for this? I am totally baffled. Here's the story:

"A golf course was mostly at fault when a golfer, who drank eight beers and five mixed drinks, fell as he left the clubhouse, breaking his jaw and shattering his teeth on a brick path, a Wisconsin court ruled.

"The 3rd District Court of Appeals upheld a Marathon County judge's decision that found Indian-head Golf and Recreation Inc. of Mosinee was more negligent because of its 14-year-old ramp of terra-lock bricks that led from the clubhouse bar.

"Gaps in the bricks were an 'initiating factor' in causing Dale L. Larson of Schofield to fall, even though Larson had 'a significant amount of intoxication,' the panel said. A doctor testified at the trial that Larson was in a stupor, with a blood-alcohol level nearly three times the legal limit to drive. Larson was awarded $41,540 in damages."

Dear Ann Landers: We are well into the cold and flu season, and I am once again appalled by co-workers who insist on coming to work coughing and sneezing, sicker than dogs, not only with severe colds but contagious conditions such as strep throat. They don't seem to care that they are spreading their germs all over the place.

Are they really that indispensable to warrant exposing an office full of people to a serious illness? Ann, this is a workplace with sick-leave benefits and understanding bosses, so that is not the problem.

How do I get the message across? I have expressed both concern and frustration, to no avail. I've got kids at home, and we all need to stay as healthy as possible. I think you should publish this letter -- maybe some people will recognize themselves when it is posted on office bulletin boards everywhere. -- Healthy Co-Worker in the U.S.A.

Dear Healthy Co-Worker: There is no way you can force a co-worker with a rotten cold to stay home if he or she insists on coming to work. Stay as far away as possible from "Typhoid Mary" and "Freddie Flu Bug," and perhaps the chill of isolation will work.

Dear Ann Landers: I am not writing to ask for advice -- I'm writing to give it. This is for all the nurses who read your column. Put it in big letters, please.

DO NOT MARRY YOUR PATIENT. I did, and it was the dumbest thing I've ever done. My husband is a confirmed hypochondriac. If he has the slightest ache or pain, he goes to bed and I am expected to take care of him. He also has the idea that nurses are physicians, as well. He wants me to prescribe medicine and call a doctor friend to OK the prescription.

We have three kids, and I'm stuck, but I wish I had read a letter like this 10 years ago. -- Lawrence, Kan.

Dear Kan.: I wonder if this is an isolated case. I'd like to hear from other nurses who married their patients. Please write and tell me if you have any regrets and if your spouse thinks you are a doctor, too.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.55.) ANN LANDERS (R) COPYRIGHT 1997 CREATORS SYNDICATE, INC.

Poetry readings featured at Toastmasters meeting

Hereford Toastmasters were treated to readings of original poems by three members at the regular meeting Thursday morning at the Ranch House Restaurant.

Dan Hall read his Valentine poem, "Dirt Moving Gal," which was a KPAN contest winner. Pat Varner read her entry titled "The Man of My Dreams," and Linda Minchew read the poem she wrote and faxed from Boulder as a contest entry titled "Love."

Sharon Cramer was presiding officer for the meeting, Breck Hunsaker led the pledge and Wayne Winget gave the invocation.

Varner served as toastmaster; Margaret Del Toro, time; Hunsaker, AH counter; Cramer, grammarian; and Charles Minchew, wordmaster introducing the world effective.

Winget was topicmaster and topic speakers and their topics were Hunsaker, "What Are Your Thoughts on the Universe?"; Charles Minchew, "Are We Alone?"; Dan Hall, "What Is Our Future Source of Power or Energy?"; and Del Toro, "Final Solution on Over Population."

Del Toro was voted best topic speaker.

Speakers for the meeting were Clark Andrews and Mike Foster.

Andrews spoke on "Do I Want to or Not" and was evaluated by Winget. Linda Minchew evaluated Foster's presentation of "Who Kicked the Cat?"

Foster was voted best speaker and Minchew, best evaluator.

Hall served as general evaluator. Guest was Adolfo Del Toro.

MRS. CHARLES DUSTIN FERRELL
...nee Shawna Lea Williamson

Granddaughter of local couple weds in January

Shawna Lea Williamson of Marshall and Charles Dustin Ferrell of Longview were married Jan. 18 in New Beginnings Baptist Church in Longview.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Kim Williamson of Marshall, formerly of Hereford, and the granddaughter of LeRoy and Mary Williamson.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Ferrell of Longview.

The groom's father officiated the ceremony. Maid of honor was Sharee Williamson, sister of the bride. Best man was Jason Holt of Longview.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown featuring a sweetheart neckline with puffed sleeves ending in a point at her wrists. The heavily-beaded basque bodice fell into a chapel-length train that ended with a scalloped hemline of beaded lace.

She wore a double-layered veil of illusion attached to a headpiece which had been worn by her mother.

She carried a cascading bouquet of silk English ivy and bridal white roses.

The couple was honored with a reception in the church fellowship hall.

The bride is a senior at Centenary College in Shreveport. She is a candidate for May graduation with a bachelor of science degree in business administration and a double minor in speech and economics.

The groom is employed by Jack Long Team Marine.

The couple will make their home in Longview.

Wedding vows repeated in Canadian ceremony

Jennifer Prater of Canadian and Sammy Schafer of Lipscomb were united in marriage Feb. 1 in an afternoon ceremony in the First Christian Church Chapel in Canadian.

The bride is the daughter of Jan and Dale Furr of Hereford and Wyman and Kelly Prater of Canadian.

The bridegroom is the son of Jimmy and Mary Lynn Schafer of Canadian.

Mike Heatwole, of the church, officiated at the ceremony.

Maid of honor was Jennifer Howell of Hereford. Serving as best man was Matt Martin of Canyon.

Pianist was Mary Lynn Schafer, mother of the groom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin with an empire waist. It was accented with pearl enhanced lace.

She carried a bouquet of cream and rose colored roses, cream snapdragons and baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore a dress of hunter green trimmed in green satin.

The couple was honored with a reception in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

Janee Schafer, sister of the groom, presided at the guest registry.

The bride's Italian cream cake was centered between a silver coffee service and silver punch bowl encircled with a flower wreath of alstromeria, cream daisy mums and baby's breath.

After a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple is at home in Lipscomb.

The bride, a graduate of Hereford High School, is employed as secretary-bookkeeper at Prater Enterprises in Canadian.

The groom graduated from Canadian High School and attended Texas A&M University. He is employed at Schafer Grass Seed in Canadian.

Included on this page of the Lifestyles section of the Hereford Brand is a story of the marriage of Shawna Williamson and Dusty Ferrell.

Shawna is the granddaughter of LeRoy and Mary Williamson of Hereford. They were not able to attend Shawna's wedding, but have pictures and a copy of the wedding program. Printed on the back of the program is the following.

It All Began With a Jukebox
In mid-October of 1995, Kim Williamson, father of the bride, had a wreck on I-20 in Longview. Someone had dropped a jukebox off their truck and he hit it!

Dusty was riding as a chaplain with one of the officers of the Longview Police Department that evening. He met Kim on the side of the road, and they exchanged a few pleasantries.

In a conversation roughly three minutes long, Kim handed Dusty one of his business cards and managed to mention that he had a daughter who was about Dusty's age. Dusty took the card and called Kim later that week, under the pretense of looking for a job.

Meanwhile, Shawna got an interesting bit of information about some guy her dad found on the side of the road. Later, Kim and Dusty went for lunch, and Dusty got an earful about his man's daughter. The conversation even included pictures.

Kim eventually gave him Shawna's phone number and offered to pay for the call. By mid-November, Shawna and Dusty had already gone on their first date, and from there...

Well, we all know where it went from there...and to think, it all started with a jukebox!

February is American History Month.

In a report I received from Los Ciboleros Chapter NSDAR, the results of a nationwide multiple-choice survey of "Knowledge of U.S. History" conducted by a research firm in Washington, D.C. were given, along with the questions on the survey.

The questions are listed below, followed by the survey results. Answer the questions and compare your knowledge to U.S. History to that of the 1,000 who were surveyed. (Answers are at the end of the article.)

1. Which of the four achievements is not listed on Thomas Jefferson's tombstone?

A. Author of the Declaration of Independence; B. Father of the University of Virginia; C. President of the United States; D. Author of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom.

2. Who is known as "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen?"

A. Thomas Jefferson; B. James Madison; C. George Washington; D. George Mason.

3. In which state was the last battle of the Revolutionary War fought?

A. New York; B. Virginia; C. Pennsylvania; D. Massachusetts.

4. Who is the author of the Bill of Rights?

A. James Madison; B. Thomas Jefferson; C. John Hancock; D. John Adams.

5. The Revolutionary War began with the Battle of Lexington-Concord in what year?

A. 1775; B. 1776; C. 1781; D. 1783.

6. How many colonies existed at the time of the Revolutionary War?

A. 13; B. 50; C. 10; D. 21.

7. Who wrote "Common Sense?"

A. Thomas Paine; B. Thomas Jefferson; C. George Washington; D. Benjamin Franklin.

8. "Give me liberty or give me death" was uttered by what patriot?

A. Patrick Henry; B. Thomas Jefferson; C. Abraham Lincoln; D. Paul Revere.

9. What were the colonists rebelling against when they staged the Boston Tea Party?

A. Religion; B. Slavery; C. Taxes; D. Other.

Survey results showed that:

*83% knew how many colonies existed at the time of the Revolutionary War.

*90% knew the purpose of the Boston Tea Party.

*43% knew where the last battle was fought.

*35% knew when the Revolution began.

*11% knew who the author of the Bill of Rights was.

Answers to "Knowledge of U.S. History" survey:
1. C; 2. C; 3. B; 4. A; 5. A; 6. A; 7. A; 8. A; 9. C.

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs -- and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examine the latest market trends and housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent/FCS The New Vegetarianism

More Americans than ever consider themselves vegetarians. Most people today turn to vegetarianism for health benefits rather than for ethical or environmental consideration.

According to one survey, the number of self-reported vegetarians is five percent or 12 million Americans. Vegetarianism has a much looser definition than it used to have and only a very small percentage of vegetarians follow a strict diet of solely plant products. Most people eat some animal products occasionally. Different types of vegetarians and the diets are:

*Semi-vegetarians -- those who eat dairy products and eggs as well as a little fish and chicken, but no red meat.

*Pesco-vegetarians -- those who eat fish, dairy products and eggs.

*Lacto-ovo-vegetarians -- those who eat dairy products and eggs but no animal flesh.

*Ovo-vegetarians -- those who also eat eggs.

*Lacto-vegetarians -- those who include dairy products in their diets, mainly as protein sources.

*Vegans -- strict vegetarians who avoid all foods of animal origin.

The clearest health benefit from a semi-vegetarian diet of reduced meat consumption coupled with an increased consumption of fruits, vegetables and grains is the reduced risk of coronary artery disease.

This can be attributed to vegetarians' lower average blood cholesterol and lower blood pressure. The potential deficiencies in a strict vegetarian diet are vitamins B-2 (riboflavin) and B-12.

Riboflavin is found primarily in meat, eggs and dairy products although broccoli, asparagus, almonds and fortified cereals are also good sources. Vitamin B-12 is only found in animal products. Calcium, zinc and iron are minerals which can be deficient in strict vegan diets. While plant sources contain these minerals, they are not as well absorbed as those in meat and dairy products.

The Food Guide Pyramid suggests eating two to three servings each day from the food group which consists of meat, poultry, dry beans, eggs and nuts. Two to three ounces of cooked lean meat, poultry or fish count as a serving. Choose lean meats, trim away fat and skin and prepare them in low-fat ways by broiling, roasting or boiling instead of frying.

The Successful Family

Pretend you are a one-year-old. It must be like visiting another planet! Everything is strange and new. You want to touch and try it all. You don't know when there is danger. You don't know what is safe to eat or touch. YOU NEED A GUIDE.

Kids need guides. They don't know when there is danger unless you show them. They need their parents' help to get safely through each day.

NEGLECT means children are not getting the care and protection they need. At every age, kids need care and supervision from parents -- 24 hours a day. Many parents think this is the hardest part of being a parent. And more kids are reported for neglect than any other kind of abuse.

Watch out for your kids so they stay away from things that are not safe...Electric outlets. Hot stoves.

Traffic. Explain what can happen and why they should be careful.

ALL FAMILIES NEED HELP TO BE A SUCCESSFUL FAMILY. HISD with funding from the Children's Trust Fund of Texas is having activities for families every Tuesday evening from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at the HISD Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue. Drop-in and join the many families benefitting from this program or call for more information to: Tilli Boozer, counselor/facilitator at 806-363-7668.

Wedding information must be submitted by 5 p.m. Wednesday to be included in the next Sunday Brand. Wedding information forms, as well as those for engagements and showers, are available at the news office, 313 N. Lee.

CRP hearing set Feb. 26

Combest will chair subcommittee hearing on USDA's announcement

U. S. Representative Larry Combest (R-Texas) announced that he will chair a House Agriculture subcommittee hearing on February 26 to examine USDA's announcement of rules governing the Conservation Reserve Program.

Combest's subcommittee examination of these new USDA regulations on CRP will be at 10 a.m. February 26 in the House Agriculture Committee Room, 1300 Longworth Building, Washington, D.C.

The Texas Panhandle, South Plains and Permian Basin Region account for 1.5 million acres at stake for re-enrollment in CRP, which protects highly erodible acreage through conservation contracts between landowners and the USDA.

In fact, Combest noted that the region holds 90 percent of all Texas' CRP acreage.

"It is critical that USDA's new rules meet the need for keeping fragile soils protected. I will hold a careful, but timely examination into the effect of the USDA's regulations on landowners with acres currently enrolled in CRP."

"A large amount of land went into 10-year contracts which expire this year, so a careful, but timely review by my subcommittee is essential. This information is long overdue from the USDA, with landowners now faced with uncertainty about re-bidding land or plowing the acreage for planting," Combest said.

The USDA will accept CRP bids from landowners from March 3 until March 28. The USDA has previously indicated that CRP land will be selected in late May.

The following is the expected average county CRP rental rates, which the amounts per acre include the $5 maintenance reimbursement. The rates may be adjusted depending on soil productivity.

Ag Expo features cloud seeding seminar

For years, far-sighted men have dreamed dreams of making rain. Many have tried and failed. But now, hearts are racing because it is possible. You can learn all about weather modification, or cloud seeding, in a special seminar featured at New Mexico Ag Expo '97 to be held at the Fairgrounds in Portales on February 26-27.

The cloud seeding seminar has been made possible through the efforts of Soil Conservationist Scotty Savage, whose career is centered around the pursuit of knowledge and love of the agricultural industry. She works in the Portales office of the Natural Resource Conservation Service.

According to Savage, farmers and ranchers can now get relief from drought conditions with cloud seeding. "I could increase rain by 30-40% at a cost of 8 cents an acre," she said.

George Bomar, a meteorologist with Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, has shown from 25 years of cloud seeding data that by carefully keeping weather data and watching the right conditions, he can spray silver nitrate to produce rain.

How does it work? Savage explained that may times there is plenty of moisture in the air, but because the tiny droplets of moisture have nothing on which to attach themselves, raindrops cannot form. The tiny droplets can easily attach to silver nitrate, an ice-like crystal, thus creating rain.

Bomar will be conducting the Ag Expo seminar on cloud seeding, and Savage hopes that may myths will be dispelled, i.e., that it causes hail. She said silver nitrate is often sprayed to prevent hail.

Savage said, "We are really excited. Area meetings of agricultural leaders, Boards of Economic leaders, and Chamber leaders are already underway to study cloud seeding. I urgently appeal to people to come to the seminar at the New Mexico Ag Expo."

But that is not all Savage will be doing for New Mexico Ag Expo '97. As in previous years, she is working closely with agricultural equipment dealers and coordinating tillage demonstrations to be conducted in a field north of the fairgrounds. "Farmers can do 'hands-on' demonstrations by actually operating the equipment themselves," she said. Demonstrations will be conducted twice daily, one in the morning and one in the afternoon during the Ag Expo.

Water conservation is a constant concern of Savage, especially since our underground water source, the Ogallala Aquifer, is virtually a non-renewable source. Savage has put together an information booth for New Mexico Ag Expo '97, on the efficient use of water through LEPA (Low Energy Precision Application). She explained, "Our irrigation sprinklers maintain only a 50-70% efficiency, creating a 30% loss. By using a center pivot system and applying water to the surface on every other row, 95-99% usage of the water can be achieved." Simply adding hardware to the sprinkler system and changing a few management techniques is all that is needed to save water.

Agriculture Briefs

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Legislature is being asked to spend $2.7 million a year for six years on a program that hopes to take some of the sting out of fire ants.

Tiny, nasty and aggressive, fire ants cost Texans an estimated $300 million a year - attacking everything from cattle to electrical equipment, Rep. Tom Ramsay, D-Mount Vernon, said.

"I thought about the word disaster. Or emergency. I think all those words can be applied," Ramsay said.

"It is a huge problem. It's not only rural but it's an urban problem. Many people do not realize how fast fire ants are multiplying and what damage they can do to industry, to farms, to utilities, to wildlife. All those things are affected."

Ramsay in 1995 sponsored a bill creating the Texas Fire Ant Research and Management Advisory Committee.

Amarillo PCA holds meeting

The Amarillo Production Credit Association will hold its 63rd annual stockholder's meeting at 4 p.m. March 1 in the Branding Iron Restaurant in Dumas.

The business meeting will be followed by a dinner. Entertainment will be provided by Greg Claassen of Kansas.

The association is a major agriculture lender providing credit and other services to its farmer and rancher stockholder borrowers primarily in twelve Panhandle counties.

Charles Hoover of Hereford serves as vice-chairman of the board of directors.

For additional information, contact Amarillo office at (806) 376-4669 or Dumas office at (806) 935-6851.

Choosing The Right Insecticide For Corn

There are many factors that can have an impact on corn yields in our area. But, often the most troubling factors are natural events such as insect infestations both at the seedling and mature stages.

To avoid insect problems in seedling corn, use a soil-applied insecticide at planting.

The ideal soil insecticide should:

- provide excellent control of damaging soil insects
- rank low in mammalian and environmental toxicity, so it's a low risk to humans, birds and earthworms
- have low solubility and soil mobility for reduced chance of leaching or ground-water contaminations.

At planting time, FORCE[®] insecticide is one of the best and safest granular products to control corn rootworms.

As corn matures, scout for corn borers, corn earworms and armyworms. The most common recommendation for controlling these and other tough corn pests in mature corn is to use a postemergence insecticide, such as KARATE[®]. This broad-spectrum pyrethroid insecticide is newly labeled for corn and can control infestations of damaging insects that could greatly lower field, pop, seed or sweet corn yield and quality.

Karate controls a number of ear and fall armyworm pests, including fall armyworm, corn earworm, and Southwestern and European corn borers. Field experience shows Karate controls these tough pests effectively and at a lower cost than competitive products. Karate may be applied by air, ground or pivot.

For more information about Force or Karate insecticides from Zeneca Ag Products, please contact your local ag chem dealer.

Veterinarian helps injured, sick livestock for 47 years

HOUSTON - For about three weeks Tony Barcelona probably has the largest veterinarian practice in the city - or even the state.

His temporary practice includes the more than 10,000 swine, cattle, lamb and horses assembled at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo.

As chief veterinarian of the show, Barcelona, 71, oversees its animal health program.

In his tenure with the rodeo he has treated colic in horses, animal stress, pneumonia, stitched cuts and referred more serious cases to outside clinics.

He is three years shy of marking his 50th anniversary with the rodeo.

Located in a basic blue trailer just off the Fannin feeder road, Barcelona's office is far from the Astrodome, Astroarena or Astrohall.

When he gets a call for service, he jumps onto his Texas A&M maroon-colored Cushman scooter and rides off to his destination. The scooter has been with him about 30 years.

In the back of his scooter, a compartment holds his needles, horse medication, briefcase and other tools of the trade.

"I don't like to fight the crowds inside the building," he said. "Whether it's a sheep call or a swine call I can get there."

During the show, the semi-retired vet is on call 24 hours a day. Some days are busier than others.

"We do the same thing here that we do in private practice but not at this magnitude," he said. "This is an international show. We have animals coming in from all over. It's a big job."

With livestock being the star attraction during the show and rodeo, veterinarians such as Barcelona are a major part of the annual event. Barcelona supervises veterinarian and biochemistry students from Texas A&M who are on site examining proper health papers on animals.

There also is a veterinarian committee that takes urine and blood samples from junior market animals to determine any level of unapproved or approved drug. There are even veterinarians who are competing in events but are available to help out.

"Animal health is utmost in our priority," said John Sykes, livestock manager. "The veterinarians are out (on calls) quite a bunch but they are always here. If we have an animal with the flu, we're going to talk to Dr. Tony. They are important to the show."

And the livestock show has been a major part of Barcelona's life. He grew up enjoying the rodeo and even proposed to his wife, Rosa Lee, during rodeo season in 1949.

"Our lives have revolved around it ever since," said his wife.

Barcelona, his wife, and their four children are all life members of the livestock show. They all work on committees.

Dr. Tony, as he is called, has seen a lot happen during the shows.

He has treated his share of cases and he's seen some animals die.

Some have been by accidents and some by sickness.

While Barcelona does provide treatment to animals sometimes, if what they need is beyond the services offered on grounds, he refers animals to outside clinics.

"You see problems but basically these animals are well-fitted for show. Things happen. You can't predict injuries and you can't predict sickness," Barcelona said. "Things happen that nobody is expecting to happen."

For instance, last year two bovines sustained broken legs and had to be taken to a veterinarian clinic. At an earlier show, Barcelona recalled a top cutting horse receiving a cut on its leg which he referred to an equine clinic.

When the livestock show kicks into high gear and all the animals are on the ground, Barcelona said he can get as many as three to four calls a day. Some turned out to be false alarms.

After being so long with the show he said it just becomes a routine for him.

"At the end of the show you just crash," he said.

Antique tractor show, parade to be featured at Ag Expo '97

Roosevelt County is home of the State of New Mexico Agricultural Trade Show. The show promises to be the biggest agricultural show in the entire State of New Mexico. Not only does it offer a wealth of agricultural information and the opportunity for Ag business people to come together, but it presents fun and excitement for everyone.

The Fifth Annual New Mexico Ag Expo, hosted by the Roosevelt County Chamber of Commerce and slated for Feb. 26-27, is the result of months of planning and hard work. One dedicated committee member is Mike Archibeque. Those attending Ag Expo '97 should be ready for his very special contribution to the show's success.

Archibeque, owner of Bill Johnston Auctioneers in Portales, will once again coordinate an antique tractor show, auction, and an antique tractor parade. The parade will be held on the main grounds of the Roosevelt County Fairgrounds, and the show and auction will be in the Special Events arena at the fairgrounds.

In addition to the parade, Archibeque is coordinating the always-popular auction of country and western memorabilia, providing antique collectors the opportunity to add to their collections or to find the right buyers.

Visitors will be reminded of our rich agricultural heritage when they see items like wagons, cream separators, wood cookstoves, saws, and many samples of western art.

collectors will simply be delighted. One truly captivating feature of the 5th annual New Mexico Ag Expo is the antique tractor parade. What could be more exciting than seeing and hearing these incredible, old machines in action?

Last year, Archibeque's antique tractor auction exhibited 75 tractors for sale. Buyers came from everywhere--Arizona, California, Louisiana, Indiana, Minnesota, and even Mexico. Some 80 antique tractors, which were not for sale, were displayed.

"Some find old tractors and get them to exhibit their tractors. It's very seldom there are people who both exhibit and sell," said Archibeque.

Mike Archibeque, his wife Cecile, and their children, Sara, Amy, and Will, take a great deal of pride in their part of the New Mexico Ag Expo's success. Archibeque owns and shows his own antique tractor. This affords him a special situation for sharing interests with six-year-old Will. "Will's my tractor enthusiast!"

Those interested in selling their antique tractors can register with Archibeque through the morning of the show at the Special Events Arena of the fairgrounds.

The antique tractor show, parade, and auction are just part of New Mexico Ag Expo '97. Seminars, demonstrations, presentations, and other activities bring together farmers, dairymen, ranchers, and ag-related business people. This combination serves to increase knowledge and success of the industry.

Some 7,000 plus potential buyers are expected to visit Ag Expo '97. This provides ag-related business exhibitors an outstanding opportunity to sell their products.

It takes 115 gallons of water to grow enough wheat for the average loaf of bread.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Feb. 23, the 54th day of 1997. There are 311 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Feb. 23, 1945, during World War II, U.S. Marines on Iwo Jima captured Mount Suribachi, where they raised the American flag.

On this date:

In 1685, composer George Frideric Handel was born in Germany.

In 1822, Boston was granted a charter to incorporate as a city.

In 1836, the siege of the Alamo began in San Antonio.

In 1847, 150 years ago, U.S. troops under Gen. Zachary Taylor defeated Mexican Gen. Santa Anna at the Battle of Buena Vista in Mexico.

In 1848, the sixth president of the United States, John Quincy Adams, died of a stroke at age 80.

In 1861, President-elect Lincoln arrived secretly in Washington to take office, an assassination plot having been foiled in Baltimore.

In 1870, Mississippi was readmitted to the Union.

In 1905, the Rotary Club was founded.

In 1927, President Coolidge signed a bill creating the Federal Radio Commission, forerunner of the Federal Communications Commission.

In 1942, the first shelling of the U.S. mainland during World War II occurred as a Japanese submarine fired on an oil refinery in Ellwood, Calif.

In 1954, the first mass inoculation of children against polio with the Salk vaccine began in Pittsburgh.

In 1981, an attempted coup began in Spain as 200 members of the Civil Guard invaded the Parliament, taking lawmakers hostage. The attempt collapsed 18 hours later.

Ten years ago: Missouri congressman Richard A. Gephardt announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Five years ago: The Winter Olympic Games ended in Albertville, France. In Moscow, thousands of pro-communist demonstrators, some shouting, "Down with the Russian government!" clashed with police.

Paul Terry won a narrow victory over Jerry Brown in the Maine Democratic caucuses.

One year ago: The Iraqi News Agency reported that Lt. Gen. Hussein Kamel al-Majid and his brother Saddam Kamel al-Majid, a pair of defectors who were also the sons-in-law of Saddam Hussein, were killed by clan members after returning to their homeland. Dutch tourist Tosca Dieperink, 39, was killed by a gunman at a Miami service station.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Peter Fonda is 58. Singer-musician Johnny Winter is 53. South African anti-apartheid activist Allan Boesak is 52. Actress Patricia Richardson ("Home Improvement") is 46. Rock musician Brad Whitford (Aerosmith) is 45. Singer Howard Jones is 42. Actress Kristin Davis ("Melrose Place") is 32. Tennis player Helena Sukova is 32. Actor Marc Price ("Family Ties") is 29.

Thought for Today: "A good man can be stupid and still be good. But a bad man must have brains." - Maxim Gorky, Russian writer (1868-1936).

Black History Month closes with variety of programs

Actor, comic and former late-night talk show host Arsenio Hall serves as co-host of the NAACP Image Awards, airing Thursday on Fox. The awards show is one of many programs on this week's schedule spotlighting African-Americans as Black History Month draws to a close.

©TVData Features Syndicate

The amazing achievements of blacks from around the world and throughout history are juxtaposed with several high-class dramas to end this year's Black History Month with a blast.

Leading the pack — and risking being overlooked, since it airs opposite NBC's heavily promoted Schindler's List — is The Ditchdigger's Daughters, premiering Sunday, Feb. 23, on The Family Channel. Carl Lumbly stars as a blue-collar father who is determined that his six daughters not be limited to the career fields of "mammies, maids and mommas."

Daughters opens in the 1950s with a husband and wife (Lumbly, Victoria Dillard) embarking on a long and arduous project so they can offer their six daughters more opportunities than they had. Over the course of 35 years, the parents impart valuable lessons and ethics to their children.

The movie repeats Saturday, March 1. Also on Sunday, Steve Allen and Nancy Wilson host taped coverage of the Trumpet Awards on TBS, honoring African-Americans in a variety of fields. Honorees include Louis Gossett Jr., Florence Griffith Joyner and Bernard Shaw. TBS follows the awards show with That's How I See It, in which Olympic gymnast Dominique Dawes and other young people present self-produced videotapes about their lives.

Another highlight of the week is The History Channel's rebroadcast of Alex Haley's grand miniseries, Roots, just in time for the magnum opus' 20th anniversary.

LeVar Burton (Star Trek: First Contact), Cicely Tyson and Maya Angelou star in the drama, which airs Sunday through Friday, Feb. 28.

Later on Sunday, Lifetime spotlights the Roots actress and poet in Maya An- gelou, an episode of Intimate Portrait.

Monday, Feb. 24, brings Dinner With Oprah, a Lifetime special. The talk show hostess with the mostest invites viewers to a "book club dinner" with Nobel and Pulitzer Prize-winning author Toni Morrison, who discusses her book Song of Solomon.

PBS premieres Black America: Facing the Millennium on Tuesday, Feb. 25 (check local listings on all PBS programs). In this hourlong special, three leading African-American analysts will hold forth on the state of black America from historical, cultural and economic perspectives.

A&E continues its commendable Biography observance of Black History Month on Wednesday, Feb. 26, with Nelson Mandela: Journey to Freedom, an hour that dramatically chronicles the South African's rise from an almost idyllic childhood to become one of the most charismatic political leaders of the 20th century. Archival footage and interviews with such figures as Archbishop Desmond Tutu help illuminate the story.

Fox presents taped coverage of the 28th annual NAACP Image Awards on Thursday, Feb. 27, with Arsenio Hall and Patti LaBelle sharing hosting chores and Denzel Washington slated to receive the entertainer of the year award. Opening the festivities will be the artist formerly known as Prince, who also gets a special award.

That same night, A&E's Biography repeats James Earl Jones: With a Strong Voice, a profile of the beloved actor, while Showtime repeats Mandela and de Klerk with Sidney Poitier and Michael Caine.

Friday, PBS presents Signature: George C. Wolfe, a profile of the dazzling playwright-director who also heads New York's prestigious Joseph Papp Public Theater.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ Feb. 23-March 1 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20

Romance is fun and exciting this week, Aries. Clearly it's what keeps the hop in your step. Don't shy away from new opportunities. Take time out of your busy schedule to get to know somebody new. Don't think serious. Think fun. Then, sit back, and enjoy the wonder that every day brings.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

If you have been edgy and uncomfortable around others, this is a good week to set aside time to figure things out. Work on your people skills. There's no better place to start than at home. When family members challenge your patience, take a deep breath, sit back, and roll with it.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

This week, you'll find extra time to catch up on chores. Don't waste it away. You face your worst enemy Tuesday and Wednesday: downtime at work. Stay focused on smaller projects, even some you may deem unimportant. Remember, there are no small roles, only small actors.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Have a case of the midwinter blues? Stop hiding in the house, and have some fun. Outdoor activity will warm you up this week. Make sure the rest of your body joins you. Think ski resorts, ice-skating rinks, even building snowmen. A Libra has good news on Friday.

LEO - July 23/August 23

Money is tight this week, Leo. Watch your spending. Tired of trying to figure out your life's mission? Relax and roll with the punches. You know, you don't always have to have all the answers. A female Capricorn friend looks to you for romantic advice. Practice patience.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Looking for a new job? Try especially hard this week to not let new opportunities scare you off. Know your skills, and learn their value. Read the paper, call your contacts, and see what else is out there. You never know. Your dream job could be at the end of your phone line.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Use this week wisely, Libra. Study your romantic relationship carefully, and figure out what's missing. Are you and your partner making equal efforts? Now is not the time to be lazy or to show your flirtatious side to gain security. You have to stop depending on others to make you feel good about yourself; it's time you take this job on yourself.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

It's a busy week for you, Scorpio, and you'll find little time to even breathe. That's OK. A busy routine equals happiness for you. A new project at work has you perplexed Monday and Tuesday, but by Friday, you are left with nothing but sheer satisfaction and relief.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Put some movies on your calendar this week, Sagittarius. Lately, you seem to have let others' favorite things get in the way of your own. At home, it's best to keep your guard up. Tension on the home front is good incentive for a weekend getaway. Make the most of it.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Settle down, and focus this week, Capricorn. Colleagues are depending on you to get the job done — and to get it done fast. But distractions are hard for you to pass up. Making the most of your time will only work to your benefit. Don't forget details. Your superiors are watching.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

A social event on Saturday has you confused. It seems as though your close friends always have other plans. Still, Saturday presents a good opportunity to make new acquaintances and even some business contacts. Don't pass it up on your friends' busy schedules.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

You're called upon for many decisions this week, Pisces. A romantic partner is feeling neglected, and you'll be asked to think hard about what's important to you. Do it. You need to know for your own well-being, too. A letter from a friend brings surprising news.

CABLE

HBO kicks off its weeklong tribute to comic George Carlin with a special Comedy Hour looking at some of the comic's favorite past routines. George Carlin's Personal Favorites premieres Sunday.

IN FOCUS

Ralph Fiennes received an Academy Award™ nomination for his portrayal of Nazi commandant Amon Goeth in the 1993 drama Schindler's List. On Sunday, Feb. 23, NBC offers the TV premiere of this award-winning drama. Filmed in black and white, the movie tells the story of war profiteer Oskar Schindler (Liam Neeson), who saved more than 1,000 Jewish people during World War II by employing them in his factory. Directed by Steven Spielberg, the movie also stars Ben Kingsley.

Investigator Megan O'Malley (Valerie Bertinelli) searches for an abducted boy in Night Sins, premiering Sunday, Feb. 23, and concluding Tuesday, Feb. 25, on CBS. When Megan begins working on the case with the local police chief, Mitch Holt (Harry Hamlin), she becomes attracted to him. The two start receiving messages from the kidnapper, then follow a lead that involves acquaintances of the boy's family. Karen Sillas and Clayton Taylor also star.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: In Paint Your Wagon, a very young Clint Eastwood appeared to be singing. Was it really him? Then, in My Fair Lady, Jeremy Brett, the PBS Sherlock Holmes actor, played Freddy. Was that really his voice? And do I remember correctly that Audrey Hepburn was dubbed in the musical as well? -Doris Minnich, St. Germain, Wis.

A: I can help you on two of these questions. Yes, that was Eastwood singing, if you want to call it that. And Hepburn's singing was dubbed by Marni Nixon, the voice double who also sang for Natalie Wood in West Side Story and Deborah Kerr in The King and I. By the way, Nixon reportedly was threatened with being blacklisted if she revealed her contributions to My Fair Lady, but the news quickly leaked out.

I can't find any definitive information on who provided the vocals for Freddy. I don't believe Brett was singing, but I could be wrong.

Q: When Gunsmoke began, I thought I remembered that Clint Eastwood played Festus, who had a stiff leg. Please name all the actors who played this role. -Robert Riemenschneider, McQueeney, Texas.

A: Dennis Weaver played limping deputy Chester Goode when the series premiered. When Weaver left the series in 1964, Ken Curtis began playing Festus Hagen, which he continued for the run of the show. No other actor played Festus, and Eastwood wasn't a Gunsmoke regular.

Q: Is Ray Walston, who played Judge Bone on Picket Fences, the same man who appeared in the movie South Pacific and sang "There Is Nothing Like a Dame"? -Elizabeth Lea, Chesaning, Mich.

A: Yes, that was Walston, who also won a Tony Award in 1957 for his portrayal of Mr. Applegate (the Devil) in the original production of Damn Yankees (a role he re-created in the movie version of that musical).

Q: Who was the voice of Carlton the doorman on Rhoda? Did he ever do anything else? -Beth in Midland, N.C.

A: Lorenzo Music, who was a co-producer on the Valerie Harper sitcom, provided the voice of the never-seen Carlton. His most famous endeavor since that show has been providing the cartoon voice of Garfield the cat.

Q: When I was a kid, there was a movie on TV about boys trying to become singers in the Vienna Boys Choir. I haven't seen it in years, but do you know the title and if it is available on video? -Vicki Betten-court, Sacramento, Calif.

A: I'm pretty sure you are thinking of Almost Angels, a 1962 movie from Walt Disney Studios. It's available on the Disney home video label.

MONDAY

Late-night talk show host David Letterman travels to prime time to share video clips from his series in Late Show Video III Monday on CBS. It's part of a monthlong 15-year anniversary celebration.

HIGHLIGHTS

Ellen DeGeneres (ABC's Ellen) returns as host of the 39th annual Grammy Awards from New York's Madison Square Garden. The ceremony airs Wednesday on CBS.

Noted thespian DeGeneres to host Grammy Awards

By Roberta C. Nelson
©TVData Features Syndicate

Though other labels may be up in the air, Ellen DeGeneres is certainly a thespian.

Besides receiving two Emmy nominations for her television show, Ellen, she won an Emmy for hosting the Grammys and received an American Comedy Award for her hosting stint at the Emmys.

So it's no surprise DeGeneres was asked back to host the Grammy Awards this year when CBS airs the 39th annual ceremony on Wednesday, Feb. 26.

Unlike some comics (think David Letterman at the Oscars™), DeGeneres has proven she has what it takes to host the marathon ceremonies. She brings a quirky charm to her hosting duties and this year will probably make at least one veiled reference to the ongoing speculation surrounding her sitcom character.

But while DeGeneres keeps things fun, she doesn't forget what the event is all about, in this case honoring the best of last year's music.

Considered the recording industry's most prestigious award, 89 Grammys will be handed out by the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences. One of the most coveted prizes is for record of the year.

This year, Tracy Chapman's "Give Me One Reason," from her comeback album, New Beginning, is among five contenders for the top award.

Eric Clapton's collaboration with producer Babyface, "Change the World," from the film Phenomenon, is also nominated.

Canadian Celine Dion, who has made her mark recording songs for romantic films, is nominated for her latest, "Because You Loved Me," from the film Up Close and Personal.

Alanis Morissette, another Canadian vocalist, was a big winner at last year's Grammy Awards. Morissette is in the running this year with "Ironic," another song from her debut album, the Grammy-winning Jagged Little Pill.

The final nominee for record of the year is "1979" by alternative rock band Smashing Pumpkins from its double CD Mellon Collie and the Infinite Sadness.

Days of Our Lives fan has had it up to here

Dear Candace: I'm writing to you about Days of Our Lives. I don't know where else to turn.

I'm so tired of Stefano, Sami, Kristen and Peter (Joseph Mascolo, Alison Sweeney, Eileen Davidson, Jason Brooks). I have stopped watching the show because it is the same thing over and over. Nothing is ever settled.

I used to love this show, but not anymore. -Jean in Durant, Okla.

Dear Reader: Your sentiments are shared by many viewers. Most of the letters I receive concern complaints about Days of Our Lives, but the viewers keep watching. The ratings among women ages 18-49 are better than ever.

I wish I could say things are going to get better. Brooks' character, Peter, is off the show, and Vivian (Louise Sorel) discovers Kristen's secret, which livens things up a bit.

Dear Candace: I watch a few of the soaps. I would like to know why the actors keep their mouths open when they kiss. It looks as if they are going to crawl into each other's mouths. Don't they realize it looks dirty and that they can pass germs? Children are watching this on television. -A Watcher in Pennsylvania.

Dear Reader: First of all, children should not be watching soaps. Daytime serials were never intended for a young audience.

Secondly, I'm not sure how you kiss, but most people open their mouths somewhat. Soaps usually are portraying passionate love scenes, and a peck on the cheek just doesn't cut it.

CHITTER CHATTER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) - It takes a brave man to eat dog food and wear a leopard-skin bra in public, and Mel Gibson did not shrink from the challenge.

Gibson, named "Man of the Year" by Harvard's Hasty Pudding theater club, ate a spoonful of canned dog food before sinking his teeth into a dog biscuit.

"It freshens your breath and helps prevent tartar," the star and Oscar-winning director of "Braveheart" said Tuesday, succumbing to the madcap spirit of the evening.

Gibson also had to wear a red wig and was presented with a sparkling, red and blue bra. But he was one step ahead, unbuttoning his shirt to reveal the leopard-skin bra.

The Hasty Pudding awards - little brass pudding pots - are given to entertainers who have made a "lasting and impressive contribution."

Julia Roberts accepted the "Woman of the Year" award last week.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - David Rothenberg should have some special insight for his upcoming role as a burn counselor on "The Bold and The Beautiful."

When he was 6, his father doused him with kerosene and set him on fire, burning him over 90 percent of his body.

Rothenberg, 20, will appear on two episodes as Justin, who counsels a psychiatrist (Hunter Tylo) badly burned in a house fire, CBS said Tuesday. The shows will air March 3-4.

Rothenberg's father, Charles Rothenberg, set him ablaze in a California motel room during a custody dispute.

The elder Rothenberg, who now goes by the name Charles Bocca, was paroled in 1990 after serving a 6-1/2-year sentence.

NEW YORK (AP) - Jim Carrey may be growing up.

The actor, who often plays sophomoric maniacs, wants to expand his repertoire.

"I do all these wacky things, and that's truly a part of me," he says in the March issue of Premiere magazine. "But I'm just trying to show you that there's a worthwhile something inside here - not just funny faces and tricks."

But Carrey's latest film, another comedy, doesn't appear to be a departure: It's called "Liar, Liar."

After four straight blockbusters, including "Ace Ventura, Pet Detective," many critics panned Carrey's last movie, the dark comedy "The Cable Guy."

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

Now newly revised and better than ever!

Shearer Publishing is pleased to announce its new edition of THE ROADS OF TEXAS. We have added dozens of country roads, lanes, cowtrails, and put new names or numbers on hundreds of others, names like Good Luck Road (Guadalupe County), Seven Sisters Drive (Kendall County), and Lone Star Alley (Menard County). Altogether, the new edition identifies more than 25,000 state and county highways and byways, and the bright new cover features current scenic photographs from around the state. THE ROADS OF TEXAS is different from any other road atlas, with more detail, more historical travel information, more heart. It has proven especially popular with the curious traveler inclined toward a little adventure, who doesn't mind getting to Aunt Martha's house just a bit late.

Margie's Notes

By Margie Daniels, HSCA Executive Director

This month has gone so fast and here it is time to write this article for our paper. In fact, it is past time. It was due yesterday. Becky is very patient with me. At this time I can hardly think of what I would like to tell each of you, but for sure I would like to say how much each of you, our Seniors and Hereford citizens mean to me.

I realized again last evening when Mrs. Perrin died how short time can be. She was here yesterday for lunch and we had a wonderful time talking about our next birthdays in August and then by supper time she was gone. She always talked to me about her kids. Her kids were her students she taught and you know she always had something good to say about each one. She loved the center and was always so grateful for the meals served her and the fellowship. We will all miss her.

I have cancelled the tour planned in April to Washington, D.C. The weather has been so unsettled this year and thought it best to go in October. We will leave around the 6th and will be gone approximately two weeks. We can see some pretty foliage at that time.

Plans are almost complete for two trips to Branson, June 17-20 and Dec. 8-12. Also if there is enough interest in a Wildflower Tour this spring, we will go. It will be a short tour, probably about three or four days.

We had a great time at our Valentine Party and Leander and Clara Reinart were chosen King and Queen. Congratulations to the Reinarts!

See you at the Center.

President's Corner

By Norma Thurston, HSCA President

Another month has come and gone, and still no moisture. Looks like it passes us by again.

We are saddened by the news that one of our friends of the Senior Center has passed away. She will be missed. Katherine Perrin always had a smile for everyone.

The center is always a busy place, never a dull moment. Yesterday the hot water heater in the kitchen went out, but today we are back in business.

Truman and I made a trip to Columbus, N.M. We had a good time but were glad to get back to the good old Panhandle of Texas. It takes a trip once in a while to make you appreciate what you have.

The wearing o' the green.

Supper to be served

The Braschler Music Show will be at Hereford Senior Citizens Center on Friday, March 7. The show is sold out and has been for some time, but supper space is still available.

Serving time is from 4:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. and for $4.50 per person you can choose from two menus. One has croissant sandwiches with ham, turkey, lettuce, tomatoes, onions and pickles; coleslaw; potato salad; and apple cobbler a la mode.

The other menu consists of beef stew, coleslaw, cornbread and apple cobbler a la mode.

Your choice of tea or coffee is also included.

Come eat supper at the Senior Center.

HSCA Activities

By Peggy Maxwell, Activities Director

As March arrives there are signs of winter's end, and the hope of spring. Soon we will be doing our spring cleaning, mowing lawns, planting flowers and tending the garden.

The Senior Center's Activity programs provide many interesting projects for your consideration.

We have started a new Decorative and Tole Painting class on Tuesday afternoons from 1-3. Come visit the class and plan your new project.

The Braschler Music Show will be here March 7 for a great night of entertainment. We will honor all of the March birthdays on March 19 during the noon lunch.

There will be a Mexican Stack Supper Saturday, March 22 from 4-8 p.m. Mark your calendar so you don't miss these important activities.

Meeting the HSCA Board Members

NORMA THURSTON

Norma Thurston has lived in Hereford since 1957, so she is not a newcomer! Norma was elected to the board in 1995 and was appointed to serve as president in 1996-1997.

She has two children and three step-children; three grandchildren and seven step-grandchildren, and is expecting her first great-grandbaby any day.

Norma isn't a president who comes to the center once a month to conduct a board meeting. She is here almost every day with her husband Truman. They enjoy being with and are concerned about the welfare of our Seniors and the organization.

SOCIAL SECURITY

"Assistant District Manager"

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: What is the retirement age for Social Security? Is it true the age for retiring is being increased?

A: The usual retirement age for people retiring now is age 65. Social Security calls this "full retirement age," and the benefit amount that is payable is considered the full retirement benefit.

Because of longer life expectancies, the full retirement age will be increased in gradual steps beginning in 2003 until it reaches age 67 in 2027. It affects people born in 1938 and later.

Q: I recently applied for Supplemental Security Income disability benefits. Do I have to wait two years to be eligible for Medicaid?

A: Unlike Medicare, there isn't a two-year waiting period for Medicaid benefits. If you are found to be eligible for SSI disability benefits, your Medicaid benefits will be affective simultaneously.

Q: I'm retired and continue to work. Is it true that I no longer will be required to submit an annual report of my yearly wages? How will Social Security know how much I've earned?

A: If you receive Social Security benefits while you work you may never have to send the Social Security Administration (SSA) another annual report of earnings. SSA has eliminated the separate report for most beneficiaries effective January 1997. Instead, SSA will adjust benefits using the earnings reported by employers on W-2s or income reported on self-employment tax returns. To avoid paying too little or too much, SSA will send you a notice sometime in August to ask whether your earnings have changed during the year. You'll also be asked to estimate your 1998 earnings.

Q: I've frequently heard people talk about the Social Security earnings limit. What's that all about?

A: If a person receives Social Security retirement or survivors benefits and continues to work, his/her benefits are reduced if they earn over certain limits. This insures that benefits are paid to earn over certain limits. This insures that benefits are paid to people who are actually retired, or who are dependent on the worker's replaced earnings that the Social Security survivors benefits represent. The 1997 earnings limits are $13,500 for beneficiaries age 65 and over (benefits decrease $1 for every $3 of earnings over the limit) and $8,640 for beneficiaries under 65 (benefits decrease $1 for every $2 of earnings above the limit). For more information, call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, and ask for the leaflet "How Work Affects Your Benefits" (SSA Publication No. 05-10069).

Q: I don't hear well over the telephone. Can my daughter call Social Security about my Social Security business?

A: Generally, we will discuss your personal business only with you. We need your permission if you want someone else to help with your Social Security business.

If you ask a family member, such as your daughter, to call Social Security, you need to be with her when she calls so we will know that you want her to help. The Social Security representative will ask your permission to discuss your Social Security business with your daughter.

Nutrition Notes

By CHARLOTTE R. CLARK MS RD/LD

February was National Heart Month so let's discuss the topic of cholesterol and your heart. One runs a greater risk of having a heart attack, stroke, or any of several other medical emergencies when you have high blood serum levels of cholesterol.

W.R. Spence, M.D., a physician associated with HEALTH EDCO, a division of the WRS Group, Inc. Waco, Texas, stated in 1991 that more than 500,000 Americans die of heart disease each year, and another 500,000 suffer strokes. High levels of cholesterol put you in the high-risk category of those likely to be affected by these and other medical conditions.

To reduce your risks of heart disease and other conditions that can shorten your life, control your cholesterol levels through diet, exercise and medical treatment. An elevated blood cholesterol level gives you no early warning signs to alert you that your heart is in danger. It's up to you to take control by having your cholesterol measured regularly, and keeping it within safe levels.

Controlling cholesterol is an essential part of making healthy personal behavior choices such as exercising, maintaining ideal weight, not smoking, and developing skills to cope with stress. When you make such choices, you lower your risk of heart disease and improve your overall health.

What is cholesterol? Cholesterol is a member of the family of fats.

It's a waxy substance that circulates through your body in the blood, and is present in all body cells. It's most concentrated in the brain, liver, spinal cord, adrenal glands, gallbladder and skin.

Your body needs cholesterol for many functions. It helps the skin produce vitamin D and plays a major role in the body's development of adrenal and sex hormones. In the gallbladder, cholesterol helps form bile, which is needed for digestion of fats. Cholesterol insulates nerve tissue, particularly in the brain and spinal column, and helps maintain all cell membranes.

Your body actually produces its own supply of cholesterol, so the amount you acquire through the food you eat is not essential for bodily functions.

Cholesterol levels are expressed in milligrams (mg) per deciliter (dl) of blood. Most people have a blood cholesterol level of 150 to 300 mg/dl. A CHOLESTEROL LEVEL BELOW 200 MG IS BEST FOR YOUR HEART. Unfortunately, too many people have cholesterol levels above 200 mg/dl and don't even know it. As with high blood pressure, there are no symptoms of too high a level of cholesterol.

The good and the bad of cholesterol; it's not just the total blood cholesterol that is an indication of risks to your heart. The way cholesterol is packaged has as much to do with its dangerous effects as how much cholesterol is present. Since cholesterol is a fat, it can't be transported in blood without help. Like oil in vinegar, fat would just float on top of the blood and go nowhere, so cholesterol is wrapped in water-soluble "bubbles" called lipoproteins. Some lipoproteins and their cholesterol contents are "good" and some are "bad."

The Good -- HIGH-DENSITY LIPOPROTEINS (HDL) help protect you from heart disease. These fat-like proteins sweep through the blood, collect excess cholesterol, and transport it back to the liver for processing and removal. In the liver, the cholesterol is converted to bile, released into the intestines, and passed on. The greater the proportion of total blood cholesterol packaged as HDL, the less likely you are to develop heart disease. Exercise can actually help increase your "good" cholesterol packages.

The Bad -- LOW-DENSITY LIPOPROTEINS (LDL) carry cholesterol from the liver and distribute it throughout the body. In this way, LDLs contribute to the production of plaque in the arteries. This, in turn, leads to hardening of the arteries (atherosclerosis). The more LDL cholesterol there is in your blood, the more rapidly atherosclerosis and heart disease progress.

Cholesterol is measured from the plasma of the blood. To have your cholesterol checked use the following guide for best results:

1. Need to fast for 12 hours before the test.
2. Blood sample taken and usually refrigerated for specific time.

3. After sitting, the blood sample will have a creamy layer floating on top; cholesterol levels are measured from that layer.

4. Technicians check the triglyceride levels which are the non-cholesterol fats in your diet.

5. High triglyceride levels can also lead to heart disease.

These tests can evaluate your total blood cholesterol as well as your HDL and LDL ratio. The laboratories are trained and have latest techniques to properly check the cholesterol and triglyceride levels in your blood serum and determine data for your physician to evaluate your risks.

Ideally your total cholesterol blood plasma concentration should be less than 200 mg/dl.

LDL cholesterol fraction should be kept below 130 mg/dl and HDL cholesterol fraction should be above 35 mg/dl.

Factors that increase your risk of heart disease; the more factors you have, the greater your risk. It is important that you take action to change the factors.

Factors are divided into two categories:

1. Factors you cannot control: family history of heart disease, male sex, and age above 40.

2. Factors you can control: high blood cholesterol, smoking, high blood pressure, weight, stress management, sedentary lifestyle and balanced diet.

Social Security

By JIM MCDANIEL
Manager in Amarillo

Beneficiaries who owe a past-due debt to Social Security because they received an overpayment of benefits should know the Internal Revenue Service is authorized to reduce or withhold their federal tax refund to collect the delinquent debt. They may find their tax refund held up or decreased as a result.

Approximately 132,000 persons received notices last July and August stating that any federal tax refund they may expect to receive this year will be subject to be withheld for their delinquent debt. This notice was designed to give them an opportunity to repay the debt through other means.

Social Security overpayments occur when beneficiaries fail to report a change in their circumstances that affect their entitlement to benefits. Examples are a mother or father whose young child is no longer in her or her care; or a disabled worker who returns to work. In both cases they may continue to receive benefits to which they are no longer entitled, and may accrue an overpayment.

If you receive a letter from Social Security about money you owe, you can review your records with a Social Security representative. You have 60 days to object to the collection of the overpayment or to repay the debt. If you don't owe the money, your record will be corrected.

But, if you do owe money, you can repay the amount in full or in installment payments -- whichever is most convenient for you. In some instances, the collection of the debt may be waived completely if you can show severe hardship and that the overpayment was not your fault.

To avoid problems with future tax refunds, contact Social Security if you have an outstanding overpayment. You can contact your local office or call Social Security's toll free number 1-800-772-1213. Because the lines are busiest early in the month, call later in the week and later in the month.

Historic Western hotel tries to keep its dignity

He wipes the counter with a tattooed, muscled arm, a growth of white beard covering his friendly face, and expertly mixes a White Russian. Friends and employees gather around as he talks about the "grand old lady," the casino-hotel now listed in the National Registry of Historic Places.

Allison is working to restore the Mizpah to its once-impeccable standards while struggling to survive in this struggling area midway between Las Vegas and Reno.

The hotel's distinctly Jewish name - in an area known for American Indian lore - was taken from a prayer in the Old Testament asking God to keep watch over travelers.

Between regaling his guests with his description of his own brief brush with movie fame, Allison offers insight into the Mizpah's colorful past:

-World heavyweight boxer Jack Dempsey tended bar and worked as a bouncer at the Mizpah. He also boxed in Tonopah and nearby Goldfield. The Mizpah's formal restaurant is known now as the Jack Dempsey Dining Room.

-Gunfighter Wyatt Earp supposedly ran off claim jumpers in nearby Goldfield and relaxed at the Mizpah during the region's mining heyday.

-Reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes married actress Jean Peters at the Mizpah.

Many other celebrities and state leaders also used to stay at the hotel, Allison says.

One of Tonopah's many prostitutes is believed to have been decapitated by a jealous lover at the Mizpah, and many say her ghost still haunts the elegant hotel.

"I've never seen it. It's supposed to be a beautiful lady in red," Allison says. "Everybody that's ever seen this ghost - something good has happened to them. Some people come in and have a seance sometimes."

The five-story hotel, built in 1907-1908, has changed hands many times over the years as business fluctuated.

Presenting our Volunteers

MILDRED, CLARENCE BETZEN

Clarence and Mildred Betzen volunteer at the center in the Home Delivered Meal program.

They started helping with the program in 1986. Clarence served on our board from 1992-1995. They also help with other projects for HSCA, especially the Festival of Trees.

They have five children and nine grandchildren and will celebrate their 50th anniversary in September.

We want to thank the Betzens for their help which makes a difference in the lives of our Seniors.

CHIROPRACTIC For Better Health

Dr. J. Todd Gray, D.C.

Enjoy Health And Vitality In Your Golden Years

Your body's function depends on sound structure. Chiropractic care is based on the philosophy that a person's health is the result of a balanced interplay of physical, psychological and environmental factors. Illness occurs when there is a disruption in this balance.

Chiropractic is safe, hands-on approach to health care which focuses on helping to restore the proper alignment, motion and function of the body's nerves, muscles and skeletal system.

A doctor of chiropractic has at least six years of college and professional education, similar to that of a medical doctor. However, in chiropractic, the clinical emphasis is on conservative forms of treatment rather than on drugs and surgery.

In addition to treating aches, pains and stiffness of an aging body, your doctor of chiropractic utilizes procedures to enable your body to function more eff-ciently. He or she also advises you on proper nutrition and exercise. Chiropractic care helps you remain independent.

As your primary health-care practitioner, your doctor of chiropractic is fully trained in comprehensive diagnosis. If more specialized diagnostic or treatment procedures are required, your chiropractor will refer you to another member of the health-care team.

We accept assignments on Medicare & Medicaid & most insurance carriers.

Golden Plains Care Center gives awards

Golden Plains Care Center named residents and employees of the month for January and February.

The resident of the month for January was Susie Morin and the employee of the month was Teresa Jackson.

For February, Al Smithers was selected the resident of the month and Rosario Alejandre the employee of the month.

Other special events in February were the Valentine banquet and awards assembly and the observance of President's Day by eating cherry cobbler and talking about chopping down the cherry tree.

In March they will have a special celebration on National Pig Day, March 3, with a pot bellied pig as our special guest. March 14 will be employee appreciation day; March 16, resident birthday party; March 17, St. Patrick's Day; March 20, first day of spring with planting of flowers; and March 28, an Easter egg hunt at 4 p.m.

Activity director, Teresa Jackson, said, "Sherry Coker, administrator, Brenda Hanes, director of nurses, and I would like to send a special thanks to everyone who came to our open house, especially the Golden Line Dancers, Happy Hatters and St. Anthony 7th and 8th grade Bible study class for the wonderful job they did on decorations."

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My sister-in-law has a large ovarian cancer — clear-cell type. Why couldn't her doctors have found such a large mass sooner than this? What is the outlook? — V.M.

ANSWER: Ovarian cancer, a leading cause of death in women, kills about 15,000 Americans annually.

Your question is one lots of patients might be asking. Mainly, would timely discovery and treatment reduce the tragic death rate?

A delay is not surprising, given the dearth of meaningful early symptoms. Often, the bloating, abdominal pressure and gas do not appear sufficiently dramatic to raise suspicion. Each symptom is too easily dismissed by the patient.

Ovarian cancer growth is insidiously rapid, further narrowing the envelope of time for recognition, reporting and treatment.

Unfortunately, your sister-in-law's clear-cell type, with its characteristic glass appearance, is less likely to respond promptly to chemotherapy.

Yet with all those negatives, the ovarian cancer patient still can count on substantial expectations of survival. Half of ovarian cancer patients can expect to live for at least five years, if the cancer has not spread.

I must stress that survival figures are always "for others." Many factors arise to make each case distinct.

Women at risk of ovarian cancer include those whose mother, sister or daughter had it. Such women should be screened, and I would specify the CA-125 blood test, plus ultrasound taken within the vagina. The tests can identify very small ovarian cancers.

Why not screen all women, at risk or not? The costly tests are not for everyone, frankly, because of too many false-positive results. That, while tolerable in high-risk women, would not be all right for the vast majority of the population. Medicine obeys certain laws of economics.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How does the drug Sol-U-Medrol help those with multiple sclerosis? What about Symmetrel for multiple-sclerosis fatigue? How do people find out if they should use Betaseron or Avonex? — J.D.

ANSWER: Stated briefly, multiple sclerosis consists of scarrings of the brain and spinal cord, with disruption of nerve signals. Effects are variable throughout the body. MS scarring is random and unpredictable, as are its progress and outcomes.

Many patients experience alternating symptoms and remissions, others rampant progression of incapacitation from nerve damage.

Sol-U-Medrol is a cortisone drug often used for times when MS flares up. It lessens the inflammation and lessens the immune system's role in the scarring.

As with so many medicines, the effectiveness of Sol-U-Medrol wanes with time and use.

Betaseron or Avonex also work by dampening the immune system.

They are not cures, but they do help patients with frequent flare-ups.

Symmetrel relieves fatigue that accompanies MS. I don't know how it works, but I can tell you it does.

FOR MRS. E.V.: There are two "syndrome X" illnesses. One features angina with exertion, but without X-rays showing clogged heart arteries. Most often, the pain results from obstructions in tiny vessels invisible to X-ray. You treat the syndrome the way you do regular angina.

The other syndrome X is a curious combination of disparate features. For example, the person does not handle sugar properly, even with plenty of insulin. Good cholesterol is low and triglycerides high. High blood pressure occurs. With this syndrome X, you treat each feature for its own sake.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

Glamour Boulevard still dazzles in 75th year

By SANDRA KREISWIRTH
The Outlook of Santa Monica
WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif.
 (AP) - The Sunset Strip may not be paradise, but it has, during its seven-plus decades of existence, seemed like heaven to much of Hollywood's glitterati and their legions of fans. The locals recently marked its 75th anniversary.

The Sunset Strip - a 1.7 mile stretch between Doheny Drive on the West and Crescent Heights Boulevard to the east - has changed its look every decade since rising out of avocado groves and poinsettia fields in the 1920s.

Today, it's a promising mix of old and new. The Chateau Marmont hotel (8221 Sunset), opened in 1927, still stands proudly. New is the rock club Billboard Live! (9039) where once was Gazzarri's.

The social and economic rise of the Sunset Strip began in 1924 with land owned by Victor Ponet and developed by his son-in-law, Francis Montgomery (senior), who built four structures in the 8600 block, including The Russian Eagle where Rudolph Valentino hung out.

Today, Montgomery's son, Francis M. Montgomery, 83, heads Montgomery Management Co. and still presides over the choice parcel of land he created and designed, Sunset Plaza, a project he laughingly refers to as "snooty" with its upscale boutiques and trendy outdoor cafes.

Over the years, all the openings, closings, relocations and demolitions that have dotted the Strip provide a sort of show-biz time line filled with celebrity, glamour, gangsters and rock 'n' roll.

It's doubtful that many of the customers who, on sunny afternoons, fill the outdoor cafes such as Chin Chin (8618) realize they are sitting steps away from some of the Sunset Strip's most glorious ghosts, nightclubs paved over to make a giant parking lot, which over the decades, had been home to the Trocadero (8610) in the '30s, the Mocambo (8588) in the '40s and the Crescendo and Interlude (8572, 8568) in the mid-'50s to early '60s.

Another ghost looms large at 8150, the legendary Garden of Allah hotel. Torn down in 1957, it was where such literary figures as Robert Benchley, Dorothy Parker and F. Scott Fitzgerald holed up when they came west.

Those days, clubs, hotels, are flashbacks to a time when celebrities wanted to be seen and photographed. Then came the '60s and new music clubs screaming with the sounds of rock 'n' roll, and waves of young people who made the Strip their home, clogging its sidewalks and streets, driving more sedate regulars elsewhere, forcing more subdued night spots to close.

That kind of congestion is something Francis M. Montgomery's father would have found difficult to imagine back in the 1920s during Prohibition, when the rich and famous drank gin and gambled at such places as Club Ballyhoo (8373).

When the Trocadero debuted in 1934, its pre opening night guest list included the Bing Crosbys, the Fred Astaires, Bill Powell and Jean Harlow. The dinner-dance charge was a whopping $7.50.

By the '40s, the Strip had become almost mythic. Ciro's (8433), the Mocambo and La Rue were the places to be seen.

Preston Sturges opened Players (8225) in 1942 mainly to entertain his pals: regulars like Howard Hughes, Barbara Stanwyck, and Humphrey Bogart.

When the Mocambo opened Jan. 3, 1941, Marlene Dietrich, Carole Lombard and Clark Gable were there.

At the same time, a little desert town called Las Vegas was beginning to develop, attracting gangsters like Bugsy Siegel and Mickey Cohen, big time Hollywood party guys.

World War II drew stars to the Hollywood Canteen to entertain the troops, but they also continued to dine and dance on the Strip.

In the '50s, jazz entrepreneur Gene Norman and jazz club owner Chuck Landis opened the Crescendo and the Interlude, which featured comics like Lenny Bruce and Mort Sahl opening for great orchestras like Stan Kenton and Count Basie. In 1963, a nerdy little comic made his debut: Woody Allen.

Later that year, Norman (who still runs GNP Crescendo Records) anticipating the coming of rock, sold the club.

In 1964, two Chicago club owners, Mario Maglieri and Elmer Valentine, opened the Whisky a Go-Go (8901), America's first discotheque, patterned after the club of the same name in Paris. Go-go girls danced in cages. House bands included Johnny Rivers and the Doors.

When the British Invasion hit America, English bands debuted at the Whisky. Jimi Hendrix performed there.

And just down the street, Bill Gazzarri opened Gazzarri's on the Strip (9039).

Maglieri and Valentine also owned the Trip (on the site of the Crescendo).

In 1973, they opened the Roxy (9009).

The rock 'n' roll time line shows '60s innocence giving way to '70s harshness. A downturn on the Strip continued through the '80s and into the '90s. At the Continental Hyatt Hotel (8401) rockers like Led Zeppelin trashed their rooms. Celebrity drug overdose deaths occurred: John Belushi at the Chateau Marmont and River Phoenix outside The Viper Room (8852).

Still, old fashioned glamour ruled the Strip when agent Swifty Lazar held his famous Academy Awards parties at Wolfgang Puck's Spago (8795).

Today, upscale clubs like the Roxbury - on the site of the Players Club and down the street from the Comedy Store where once was - continue thriving.

Giant billboards still prevail on the Strip. Smaller treasures exist too, like Tower Records (8844) and the Tiffany Theaters (8532).

So, like the adage goes, "You can get anything you want at..." But that's another song.
