'Stupid test' needed for some laws, Combest says

BY TOMMY WELLS
Managing Editor

Stupid laws, and a stupid governmental spending policy, and an untrustworthy president are what U.S. Congressman Larry Combest feels are the main potholes in the common man's freeway of life.

He told a large crowd gathered in the Hereford Community Center for a town meeting, will take some time, but he and his pals in Washington, D.C., are confident they can repave that road.

"What we're dealing with is about 40 years of laws in which we have to deal with," said Combest, the first-ever Republican to represent the 91st District. "As we go back and look at those 40 years we're trying to put these things to a logic test. The laws and regulations from the last 40 years have made the government become an adversary."

"The thing is, and I think it's important people understand, is that we have to go back and change it," he stated. "The problem is, in order to change the law, Bill Clinton has to sign it. When you really cut through what the frustrations are it's really silly things that should never have been there."

An example of stupidity?

Combest cited the situation in which a government agency can garnish an individual's rights to his land without regard to the owner's financial status if an endangered species is discovered to reside there. "I understand your concern," said the former panhandle farmer. "Clean air and water are important, but we feel there's got to be a balance there somewhere."

There is no question that there have been more regulations imposed by this administration in the last five years than any other administration by far," said Combest, noting an instance a few years back when the government wanted to declare 50 counties in the southwest U.S. an endangered species area for the Swift Fox even though the area did not have any.

"This is a concern to me. We tried to go and say that if the government wants to declare an area protected that the owner should get reimbursed for his property." Is that the law? No. For something to become a law the president has to sign it, and so far he has vetoed it."

Need another example of government stupidity? Combest, who serves a district some 400 miles in diameter, cited an instance recently where the Occupational Health and Safety Administration (OHS) fined construction workers who were trying to dig out a co-worker who had been trapped by a cave-in some $8,000 for not wearing their hard hats.

"I'll guarantee you there was never a 'Stupid Test' put to much of this stuff - and that is what they are: stupid," Combest offered.

When the subject turned to the oft-publicized woes of Bill Clinton, Combest didn't shy away from the "I" word - impeachment.

I'll guarantee you there was never a "Stupid Test" put to much of this stuff - and that is what they are - stupid.

Larry Combest on some regulations passed in the past 40 years

"In terms of the president and the issues out there, it's amazing to me. Something can happen and then a document shows up weeks later showing he lied - and that's what it is: a lie."

Clinton, who was recently selected to a second term by an overwhelming majority of the public, is being investigated to scandals involving White Water, FBI tampering and illegal fund-raising.

"Let me assure you Congressman Harry Hyde is looking into the Articles of Impeachment in case there is a reason," he said.

Governmental spending was another popular topic for the former Ag Advisor for the late Texas legend John Tower. Combest said the government could balance the budget and give the citizens of the United States a large tax break in as little as three years if it had to.

"I firmly believe we have to balance the budget. When President Clinton says the budget deficit is at its lowest point in years that's true, but it's because of a tax increase. The revenue increased not the deficit decreased."

Combest said congress is well on its way toward balancing the budget, but that the process should have been done faster.

"We could have balanced the budget in three years," he said, "if we would have frozen spending. If we froze spending we could balance the budget and give one of the most monumental tax decreases in history."

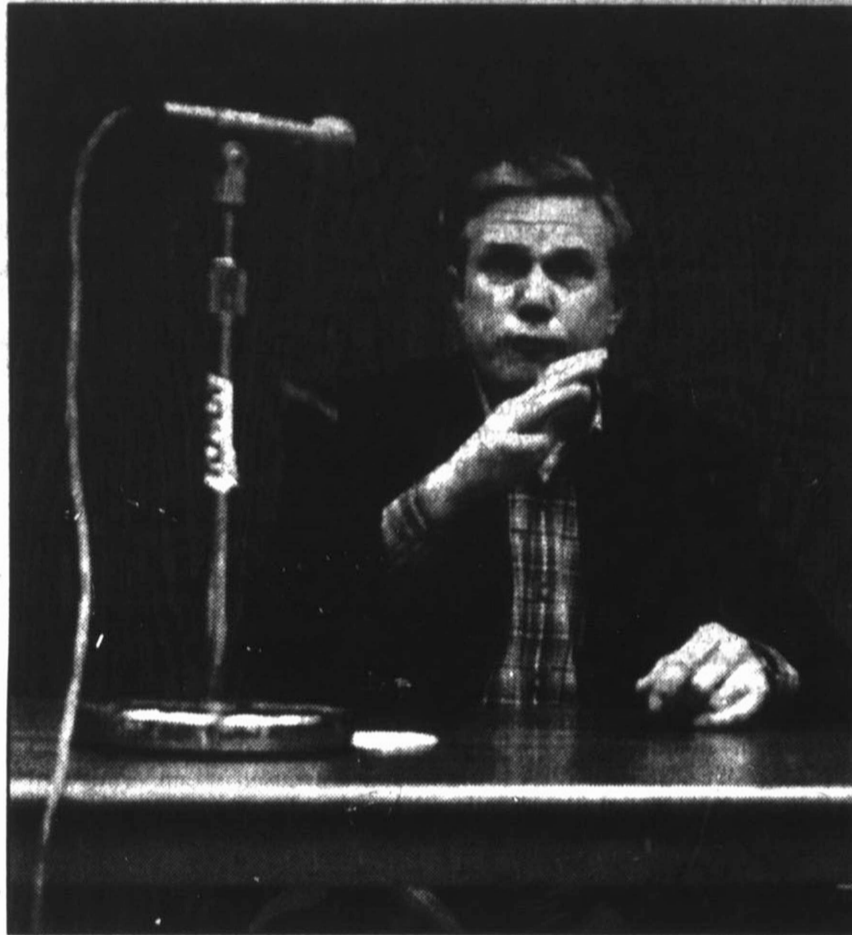

"We need to put the government on a diet," he added.

Combest said one way Congress could go to ease the government's financial woes would be to eliminate the personal income tax and the Internal Revenue Service and go to a flat national sales tax. This plan, he said, would enable the government to fund itself and enable the common worker to take home more of his paycheck - thereby creating an economical boom in the country.

"I can't imagine what it would be like without the IRS," he said.

Combest, who spoke for better than an hour, also said he supported the idea of using U.S. troops to patrol the United States-Mexico border - helping curb the influx of illegal drugs into the country.

"One of the biggest challenges I

U.S. Congressman Larry Combest answered questions from a large crowd gathered in the Hereford Community Center Wednesday morning for a town meeting. Better than 50 people attended the meeting.

Mysterious couple headed cult group

By RON HARRIS
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Marshall Applewhite, found dead with 38 other suicide victims near San Diego, was not always roaming the West preaching about UFOs and exhorting others to follow him to eternity.

Applewhite, 66, was considered a gifted singer and likable music professor in the 1960s who had potential for a career on stage. His 69-year-old sister, Louise Winant of Port Aransas, Texas, got a sinking feeling when she heard of the mass suicide.

"It's not surprising," she told Corpus Christi, Texas, television station KRIS. "He has so much charisma, he can convince others of almost anything."

Asked if that included suicide, she said, "Yes."

Applewhite was born in Spur, Texas, the son of a Presbyterian minister. He attended high school in Corpus Christi and studied music at the University of Colorado.

"He did a lot of work with musicals," retired professor Charles Byers of Mesa, Ariz., told The Denver Post. "He was happy-go-lucky, popular with students."

Applewhite played the lead in "South Pacific" and "Oklahoma" at the university, Byers said. Then he and his wife went to New York so he could become a professional singer. They reportedly had two children.

"They broke up," Byers said. "He didn't get the roles. He was doing a lot of commercials, making a living."

In 1966, Applewhite was hired as a music teacher at the University of St. Thomas, a private Catholic college in Houston. He sang 15 roles with the Houston Grand Opera before leaving in 1970, according to a New York Times Magazine profile.

It was not long before his life took a strange turn when he met a nurse named Bonnie Lu Trusdale Nettles, then about 44. Applewhite's sister said they met when her brother had a "near-death experience."

"He had an illness in Houston and one of the nurses there told him that he had a purpose, that God kept him alive," Ms. Winant said. "She sort of talked him into the fact that this was the purpose - to lead these people - and he took it from there."

The couple opened a store in Houston called the Christian Arts Center, selling information on astrology and other religious-type materials.

Soon they left to travel and developed beliefs that they were reincarnated aliens. Others followed.

City hosts two events for kids

The City of Hereford will sponsor two Saturday events for youngsters in the community - holding a free fishing event from 8:30 a.m. to noon and an Easter Egg Hunt beginning at 10:30 a.m.

The free fishing will be for children ages 14 and under. It will be held at the Aquatic Center Lake, where 500 pounds of trout have been stocked for the event.

Free hot dogs and drinks will be served, and $50 savings bonds will be awarded for the biggest fish in two age divisions. Children should bring their own pole and container, and children under 6 years of age must be accompanied by an adult.

The Easter Egg Hunt will be in Dameron Park, with youngsters between the ages of 2 and 8 invited to participate. Children should bring their own baskets.

Deaf Smith County Tax Assessor-Collector Margaret Del Toro and her staff display a sample of the Texas Department of Transportation's new vehicle registration form. The new form was designed to simplify the process used since 1970. The new notices will begin being distributed in April.

Deaf Smith Co. motorists to start receiving new registration forms

Deaf Smith County motorists whose vehicle registrations expire in May will be among the first in the state to see the new renewal notice. It, Deaf Smith County Tax Assessor-Collector Margaret Del Toro believes, will also make it much more simpler for persons to deal with.

The Texas Department of Public Safety has dramatically changed the old vehicle registration form and made it more customer-friendly. Del Toro said the new registration stickers would begin being distributed during the first week of April.

Gone is the multi-part card Texas motorists have been getting since 1970. The new notice is a standardized 8 1/2" x 11" document similar to a tax, utility or credit card statement.

"The state has developed a renewal notice that's convenient to use," said Del Toro. "The form has many features that weren't available before."

The renewal form simplified motor vehicle registration, she said.

We believe the public will appreciate the new form. There are many features on the new form that make it more customer-friendly

Key pieces of information are highlighted in red, including special instructions, fees, and proof of insurance requirements. The name, address, and phone number of the recipient's tax assessor-collector is printed on the form, providing a local contact for registration questions. Each mailing address on the renewal notice is printed with barcode technology to assure accuracy and to speed delivery through the postal system. And, for the first time, a return envelope is enclosed for customers who wish to renew by mail.

"We believe the public will appreciate the new form," Del Toro said. "There are many features on the new form that make it more customer-friendly."

Some Texans have already seen a prototype of the renewal notice. Texas Department of Transportation officials showed the form to several focus groups last summer in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. The state also invited all county tax assessor-collectors to submit their input.

An insert with a graphical explanation of the new form will be included with each renewal notice. Any one with questions concerning the new renewal notice should contact the Deaf Smith County tax office at 364-7044.

Panel agrees on tax plan to pay for cuts to school property taxes

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. George W. Bush and state lawmakers have said for months that all Texas companies should have to pay some part of state business taxes to help fund public schools.

But a House committee late Thursday decided to take sole proprietorships off the hook.

The Select Committee on Revenue and Public Education Funding met until just before midnight before tentatively agreeing on a $5.7 billion tax plan to pay for cuts to local school property taxes.

The plan, which requires public hearings and a committee vote before going to the full House, would up the state's share of school funding from the current 47 percent to nearly 90 percent. That would force local school property taxes down from an average of $1.50 per $100 in value to about 50 cents per $100 for residential property and $1 for business property.

Bush has proposed a new business tax, a higher sales tax and the use of $1 billion in additional state funds to pay for a slightly smaller property tax cut.

"I think a plan that delivers a two-thirds property tax cut for residential property is quite a plan," said Rep. Paul Sadler, D-Henderson, chairman of the committee. "You have to be delighted with that."

But the plan wasn't easy to reach and could be far from done.

Rep. Ric Williamson, R-Weatherford, objected to a provision replacing local business property taxes with a state property tax for school operations because it would leave business property subject to local taxes for school buildings and debt.

"I thought we were trying to shift the tax burden from capital intensive (businesses) to all of us," Williamson said.

Sadler said no one anticipated the state paying for construction of school buildings or paying the debt on those already built. He said all businesses, not just those in capital intensive industries, would have to continue carrying that load.

For school operations, every type of company except sole proprietorships would be expected to pay the state business tax. Currently, sole proprietorships and partnerships don't pay the franchise tax.

Rep. Warren Chisum, R-Pampa, said he wouldn't support a plan hitting family-owned businesses.

"Sole proprietorships are absolutely the smallest businesses in this state," he said.

The business tax would be the greater of .25 percent of capital or 4.5 percent of earned surplus.

Earned surplus would include compensation for principal officials. But small companies would get a break on that inclusion, taking off up to $100,000 for each partner or stockholder in companies with 35 or fewer partners or stockholders.

The tax plan also would subject many now untaxed goods and services to the state sales tax.

Taken out of the list of proposed taxes were a gas tax increase and a 3.25 percent sales tax on residential use of natural gas and electricity.

Other proposed changes would increase taxes on hotels and motels, car rentals, tobacco products and alcoholic beverages.

Bush never offered perks as condition for donations

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) - George Bush says he never raised campaign funds in the White House or offered perks such as overnight stays there as a condition for donations.

"Never, direct or indirect. Never," the former president was quoted as saying in an interview published today in USA Today. "I know that I never made one single phone call or sat in any single meeting where money was asked for - ever - in the White House."

President Clinton has been criticized over Democratic fund raising at the White House, from coffees with the president to Lincoln Bedroom sleepovers for big-money donors. Meantime, Vice President Gore admitted that he made calls from White House phones to solicit contributions.

"I wouldn't do it," Bush said in the interview. "There was never any quid pro quo in terms of use of the White House, staying in the White House, anything to do with that, Air Force One, Camp David - you name it."

Democrats contend that at least 24 finance-related events were held at the Bush White House, including 10 receptions for donors called Eagles, who contributed at least $15,000.

But Bush drew a distinction between soliciting funds and socializing with donors.

"Some say having the Republican Eagles there was raising money. It was not," he was quoted as saying. Bush did not comment directly on Clinton's fund raising. But the former president, who lives in Houston, did say that from a distance, Washington "looks awful and ugly."

In other remarks, Bush said: "Republican leaders rarely consult with him and he does not confer 'a lot' with Clinton. If he has advice for Clinton, Bush usually goes through top Clinton adviser Thomas 'Mack' McLarty. Bush also talks on the telephone to Secretary of State Madeleine Albright."

think faces this country, and even more so for Texas, is that Mexico has become a main freeway for drugs into the U.S.," said Combest, who opposed Clinton's recent recertification of the U.S.'s southern neighbor. "We have always said we have to use the military to control the border if we don't have enough border patrol. I can't think of a better way to see the government using the military than to stop illegal immigration and protect our borders from illegal drug trafficking," he added.

Combest, who said his office planned to go online via the Internet in a matter of weeks, said there was plenty of work remaining to work out the kinks in the ongoing welfare and medicaid affairs, and that he expected for electrical deregulation to be approved this year.

Ann Landers Reader tells of personal romance

Dear Ann Landers: I love reading the romantic stories in your column about how people met. I hope you will print my story because you are, in a small way, involved.

After my discharge from the Army in 1946, I started my own business. Soon after, a young woman, recently discharged from the Navy, asked for a part-time job. She was attending college on the G.I. bill. I hired her.

I was quite attracted to this young woman, but she was determined to get her college degree and had no interest in dating me, so I left her alone. After she had been working for me for several weeks, I gave her a ride to the local library because she needed some books and it was on my way home. I didn't want to leave her there so late at night, so I waited and asked her to have dinner with me.

We talked a lot, and I was impressed by her determination to earn a college degree. While waiting for our dinner, I surprised myself by blurring out that I thought she was remarkable and I would like to marry her. She was just as surprised as I was and replied, "I'm really quite an ordinary person. Why in the world would you want to marry me?" I answered, "Because you are different from all the women I've ever met, and I have fallen in love with you."

She warned me that I was taking quite a chance but said she was willing to take a chance, too. We were married soon after. She eventually earned that college degree, became a teacher and was much loved by her students and their parents. We were married for 48 wonderful years -- until she died unexpectedly in 1995.

Last year, I noticed in your column you mentioned the Women's Memorial in Washington, D.C., which is being planned to honor women who served in the armed forces. I wrote to the foundation and asked to have my wife's name, Edna Madeleine Head, included. I want to thank you, Ann, for making this tribute possible. If it hadn't been for you, I would not have known about this memorial and would have missed the opportunity to honor the memory of a wonderful woman. -- B.P. DuBois, Boca Raton, Fla.

Dear B.P.: What a heartwarming letter. It was thoughtful of you to register your wife's name with the Women's Memorial in Washington, D.C. The dedication for the memorial will take place in October of this year, and the organizers are still eager to register women who served in our country's military. Service women, their relatives or their friends can write to: The Women's Memorial, Dept. 560, Washington, D.C. 20042-0560, or call 1-800-4-SALUTE and request a registration form. Do it today.

Dear Ann Landers: A while back, you printed a letter from a reader named Bettye Hawley. She said that in the 1930s, she had taken a plane trip. Her glove slipped off and landed in the open zipper of the man seated next to her who'd had one too many drinks. Thinking the glove was his shirttail, he tucked it into his pants and zipped up. Bettye wrote, "I almost died." You thought her story was hilarious.

Well, I am the man who was seated next to Bettye on that plane. Did my wife find the glove? The answer is "yes." She did not believe my explanation of how a woman's glove got inside my trousers. I was given a choice -- divorce or separate bedrooms. I chose divorce.

I now live in Oklahoma. I married again and have two fine sons. By the way, ever since that incident, I've had nothing stronger to drink than Coca-Cola. -- Happily Married in Oklahoma

Dear Oklahoma: Thanks for the follow-up. Some readers may be suspicious of your claim, but I believe you. The best part of your story is that it got you off the sauce. Congratulations.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.15.)

Peabody inducted into TRHA Distinguished Leaders Society

Misty Peabody of Hereford was inducted into the Texas Residence Hall Association (TRHA) Society of Distinguished Leaders at the TRHA conference in Lubbock.

The society recognizes student leaders who have shown outstanding commitment to residence life and to TRHA.

Peabody is a senior nursing major and resident assistant at Shirley Hall at West Texas A&M University.

WTAMU's 35-member delegation captured the TRHA's most coveted award of "Most Spirited Large Delegation" for the conference.

The delegation also was recognized at the state level for an outstanding community service program, Skip-A-Meal/Feed-A-Friend. The November program encourages residents to donate one meal from their meal plan. The donated meal then is served as a Thanksgiving meal at the Salvation Army by RHA members.

Herd golfers breeze into loop play

By TOMMY WELLS
Managing Editor

CANYON - From Stacy Bixler's point of view, the elements could have thrown a tougher situation at them Thursday afternoon. And the Hereford boys and girls golf teams couldn't have answered the challenge any better.

With winds gusting up to 40-50 miles per hour, the Whiteface linksters turned in solid rounds of golf on the Palo Duro Golf Course and found themselves clinging to the top spot in the District 1-4A race following the first of four meets. The Lady Whitefaces did almost as well. Keyed by a round of 85 by Jacque Bezner, the Hereford girls finished second overall, just six strokes off the pace set by Pampa.

"It (the wind) was terrible," said Bixler. "You could hardly stand up much less hit a golf ball. Because of that it was one of those days you can't really look at scores, you just look at where you stand."

"I'm real pleased with their effort, and what they did. For them to be where they're at right now considering the win is amazing," he added.

Perhaps the most amazing performance of the day came from Hereford standout Keith Riley, who fired a tournament-best 7-over-par 79 despite the gusting wind. Riley's holds a one-stroke lead over Caprock's Jeremy Dockery heading into Monday's second round of loop play. Borger's Aaron Smith finished third with an 8-over-par 81.

The Whitefaces, who also had a strong effort on the links from Greg Reinart, didn't waste their opportu-as the top medalist by shooting an 85 - five strokes better than Pampa's Shelbie Allison.

Bezner's play, combined with that of teammates Amy Killingsworth, Stephanie Bixler, Lindsay Ward and Katie Bone, enabled the Lady Whitefaces to finish the first 18 holes with a score of 375. Pampa won the first leg of the loop slate with a score of 369. Borger was a distant third at 401.

Killingsworth and Bixler had a tough time with the wind. Both finished with scores of 96. Ward and Bone fired marks of 98 and 103.

The Whiteface boys' JV struggled somewhat. Hereford placed fourth among JV teams competing, and 11th overall with a tally of 358.

Cody Sargent and Bryant McNutt led the HS junior varsity assault by shooting rounds of 86 and 89, respectively. Teammates Randy Mason, Cal Wallace and Kent Reinart posted scores of 91, 92, and

The HHS girls' junior varsity was sixth after the first 18 holes, and trailed on Pampa for the top honor JV honors. Hereford shot a 455 - better than both the Canyon and Caprock varsity - and trailed Pampa by only 11 strokes heading into the second round on Monday at the Pampa Country Club course.

Jennifer Phipps and Michelle Bixler paced the HHS JV with rounds of 97 and 101. Kristin Cole, Lisa Conway and Sheena Stokes also played well.

Teams will tee off at 11 a.m. Monday

Hanging in

Despite gusts of winds that topped the 50 mile-per-hour mark Wednesday, the Hereford Whitefaces managed to hang tough in their District 1-4A opener in Canyon. Hereford is in a three-way tie with Borger and Randall for first heading into Monday's second round in Pampa.

Lady Whiteface thinclads finish second at Canyon Triangular

CANYON - Kristin Fangman and Michelle Brown each won two events Thursday afternoon and the Lady Whiteface 1,600-meter relay squad turned in a blistering effort en route to helping the Hereford girls take second in the Canyon Triangular Meet. The Lady Whitefaces finished in the top three 16 times and rolled up 196 points - one point off the pace set by the hosting Lady Eagles.

Fangman certainly made her presence felt at the meet. The Hereford standout medaled in all four of her individual events, and then turned in a leg a solid leg on the HHS 1,600-meter relay squad that won first place honors by better than a second.

Fangman began her day's work by garnering second in the high jump competition. From there, she won the 110-meter hurdles and the 200-meter dash, and placed third in the 100.

Brown didn't have to run in order to make a pair of trips to the first place podium. She dominated both the shot put and discus events. Brown won the shot put event by six inches with a heave of 33-8 1/2. The discus race wasn't nearly as close for Brown. She won by better than eight feet with a throw of 102-6 1/2.

Lyndi Carlile and Meredith McGowan added to the Lady Whitefaces' gold medal count. Carlile legged out a time of 50.25 seconds and won the 300-meter hurdles race, while McGowan garnered the top spot in the 400 with a run of 64.32.

McGowan also finished third in the triple jump.

Tori Walker also turned in an impressive effort, finishing second in both the 110- and 300-meter hurdles. Kate Denison finished second in the 40, while Jamie Harrison claimed silver medals in both the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs.

License will be required for public fishing

Persons, ages 17 and over, who plan to fish in the public portion of the Kidfish program this weekend at the Hereford Aquatic Center will need a fishing license and a trout stamp.

The actual Kidfish program is free to those children and parents - and is exempt from state laws requiring licenses. Once the event is over, and the pond is opened to the general public all state laws, including limits, will be in effect.

Hereford's Rodey Wilson won the all-around honors at last weekend's Lazbuddie Rodeo, which was held at the B-S Indoor Arena. He scored 20 points in the event.

Wilson wins All-Around honors at Lazbuddie Rodeo

BY TOMMY WELLS
Managing Editor

Rodey Wilson didn't win an event Saturday afternoon at the Lazbuddie High School Rodeo. He did, however, win the event.

Wilson scored 20 points and won the all-around cowboy honors at the Tri-State High School Rodeo, which was held at Hereford's B-S Indoor Arena. By winning, he became the second Hereford rodeo star in as many weeks to win the all-around title in a TriState High School Rodeo event. Monty Lewis won last week's title at the Swisher County Rodeo.

Wilson walked away with the accolades not by being flashy, but by being consistently good. The cowboy placed in the Top 10 in three events, including second overall in the Team Roping action with his partner Ty Boggeman.

Wilson, who currently stand fifth in the season standings of the TSHSRA all-around race, began his afternoon by taking sixth in the Calf Roping competition. His effort was one place behind fellow Hereford standout T.J. Good and four spots higher than Wilson.

He came back later to grab fifth in the Ribbon Roping, and then finished off the LHS meet by posting a second-place time of 6.448 seconds in the Team Roping class. Their time was .237 of a second off the mark of 6.211 set by Boggeman and Blake Williamson.

Jordan Satterfield and Dusty Latham finished fourth while the tandems of John Ray and Tommy Mather and Craig Seely and Curt Smith collected ninth and 10th, respectively.

Hereford's Trent Barber and Curt Smith also figured into the action, finishing seventh and eighth, respectively, in the Ribbon Roping standings.

Area rodeo standouts will continue their 1997 season this weekend by competing in the Childress Rodeo.

Coaches catching spotlight in NCAA Final Four

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Dean Smith is again chasing Adolph Rupp. Rick Pitino is going for history. Lute Olson is looking for respect. Clem Haskins is trying to shake the rookie tag.

The Final Four always has a solid group of coaches and this year is no exception.

Saturday's first matchup has Smith and his North Carolina Tar Heels going against Olson and his Arizona Wildcats, a rematch of the teams' season-opener won by Arizona 83-72.

Then it will be Pitino's defending national champion Kentucky Wildcats against Haskins' Minnesota Golden Gophers, who are making the first Final Four appearance in school history.

College basketball is a sport of coaches and this Final Four is no exception.

Smith moved to the top of the coaches' victory list in the second round of the NCAA tournament, passing Rupp with win No. 877. Two wins in Indianapolis will move Smith past Rupp and into second place on the Final Four victory list.

This is Smith's 11th Final Four.

one behind John Wooden's record, and a title would be his third and break him out of a logjam of seven coaches with two. Wooden won 10 titles. Rupp had four and Indiana's Bob Knight has three.

"From 1967 to now a lot has changed even with the Final Four," said Smith, whose 65 tournament victories are well ahead of Wooden's 47 on the career list. "The big hoopla came somewhere between our trips in 1972 and 1977. In 1977, I couldn't believe the difference. Yet I believe I'd like our team to approach it as Arizona is the next game on our schedule."

The Tar Heels (28-6) are on a 16-game winning streak and haven't lost since Jan. 29. Their first loss of the season was to Arizona in the Tipoff Classic at Springfield, Mass. "I won't even let our team watch that game," Smith said. "Both teams are so different now."

Arizona (23-9) pulled off the upset of the tournament in beating top-ranked Kansas in the Southeast Regional semifinals and then had to sweat out an overtime win over Providence in the finals.

"I think we're playing very well.

We've not made it easy in terms of getting there with all four games going down to the wire," Olson said. "But without a doubt we're playing the best basketball that we have all year long."

Olson took Iowa to the Final Four in Indianapolis in 1980 and this is his third trip with Arizona. Still, he's a coach whose name is more synonymous with being on the wrong end of first-round upsets.

"I think our program stands on its own and you can't control what people say," Olson said. "Our pro-

Kentucky (34-4) won it all last season and is two games from repeating despite losing the crux of last year's team to graduation, the NBA and a midseason knee injury to star guard Derek Anderson.

Pitino is trying to become the seventh coach to lead a team to a repeat title, the last being Duke's Mike Krzyzewski in 1992.

CAPITOL COMMENT

U.S. SENATOR
KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Getting Antsy

Just thinking about fire ants — those vicious, stinging insect pests that have colonized Texas back yards, pastures and Little League fields — is enough to make your skin crawl.

This pest goes after animals, people, plants and even electrical devices indiscriminately. It has been known to destroy air conditioning units. It has invaded traffic boxes and airport runway light systems. And worst of all, according to the Texas Department of Health, there were 11 fire ant-related deaths reported in Texas from 1980 through 1995.

Texas cattle producers alone sustained $67 million of losses due to fire ants last year, while homeowners spent more than $93 million trying to rid their lawns, gardens and houses of this "attack ant" with an attitude.

All told, fire ants cost Texans $300 million annually in pesticides, agricultural losses, medical bills and utility problems.

Nor is there any sign of a reprieve. The fire ant population has been pushing steadily westward, now infesting 156 of our state's 254 counties. Neither record heat nor cold seems to faze them. Texas now is home to more fire ants than their native Brazil.

This uninvited guest, which arrived here by way of South America in the 1950s, needs to be sent packing before it spoils any more picnics. Given that the fire ant has no natural predators in Texas, it is up to us humans to turn back the insect tide.

The countless Texans affected by this plague need both short-term relief and help in finding a long-term solution to the fire ant problem. I am co-sponsoring a bill that would set up a national research and management strategy to address both those needs.

The legislation would:

- * Establish a National Advisory Board on fire ant control, management and eradication.

- * Provide an initial three-year grant of $1 million per year to fund four eradication proposals as selected by the board.

- * Authorize the board to evaluate and select one of the projects as the basis of a national eradication plan.

We hope to establish this program in cooperation with the State of Texas, which has its own eradication campaign in the works. One Texas legislator has proposed a bill to spend $2.7 million a year in state funds on fire ant research.

Fire ant control — if not eradication — will require a coordinated approach. Isolated programs will only send colonies into adjacent areas. The state and federal government programs must work together.

But beat fire ants we will and must. While not quite the stuff of science fiction movies, they're nasty, nevertheless.

Emerging technology in cancer radiation in clinical trial stages

BOSTON (AP) - Emerging technology in cancer radiation treatment is allowing doctors to aim intense beams directly at tumors while sparing surrounding healthy tissue from harm.

The Intensity Modulated Radiation Therapy is in clinical trials at a handful of sites around the world, including New England Medical Center, which is set to report results of its 2-year-old trials next week.

Daniel Taylor is one success story. The customized treatment killed a plum-sized tumor at the base of his brain without hurting his eyesight or hearing, as doctors feared less-precise conventional radiation would. He never even lost his hair.

"Things are going pretty good," said Taylor, 46, who finished treatment six months ago.

Approved by the Food and Drug Administration last year, IMRT uses 3-D computerized imaging to tailor the beams to specific tumors. After being fed scans of a tumor and other information, the computer sorts through 300 trillion configurations and angles and plots a treatment.

"IMRT is the single most significant technological breakthrough in cancer treatment this country has seen since CT scans and MRIs were first used in the detection of cancer during the late 1960s and early 1970s," said Dr. Brian Butler, an IMRT expert at Methodist Hospital in Houston.

New England Medical Center has treated 83 patients during the last two years. In all, about 350 people have received IMRT in the country. While the Boston hospital will not release its results until next week, Dr. David Wazer, director of its Radiation Oncology Center, called the success rate encouraging.

Dr. Mark Engler, chief physicist at the ROC, said that while conventional radiation might aim a 2-by-2 inch to 16-by-16 inch swath of radiation at an area, the new technology might produce a beam one-tenth of an inch.

"We are very close to surgical precision," he said.

Without IMRT, a tumor is like "a plum sitting in a basket, but we have to treat the whole basket to reach the plum," Wazer said. The less precisely aimed beams may damage surrounding healthy tissue and hair follicles — the reason many patients lose their hair.

"The double-edged sword of treating cancer is that in the process of killing cancer cells, you may also destroy healthy tissue," Wazer said.

Wazer said the technology can deliver up to 40 percent more radiation to the tumor than conventional radiation therapy and can spare 70 percent more of the surrounding tissue.

The best applications of the treatment are being evaluated. It is currently being used primarily on head and neck tumors although it is promising for prostate, lung and other cancers, he said.

The treatment is not likely to be used on skin cancer, where less intense treatment is effective, nor on certain cases of lymphoma, where many nodes require radiation, he said.

IMRT is also cost-effective, at about $500,000 for the equipment, compared to the $60 million price tag of proton beam technology available, the doctors said.

Taylor, a financial consultant in Portland, Maine, until 1992, was diagnosed a year ago and began the IMRT treatments after surgery to remove the tumor was unsuccessful. He was treated five days a week for 2 1/2 months and now receives checkups every three months. There have been no signs of recurrence.

The technology is also in use at Methodist Hospital and Baylor College of Medicine in Houston; Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology at the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis; University of California, San Francisco and Irvine; Western Pennsylvania Hospital in Pittsburgh; University of Connecticut; University of Wisconsin; University Hospital in Brooklyn.

Students make poor showing on end-of-course examination

AUSTIN (AP) - Just 17 percent of Texas students who took the Algebra I end-of-course test last fall passed.

In assessing the poor showing, the Texas Education Agency noted Thursday that all students must now take Algebra I under tougher standards approved by the State Board of Education.

The board in recent years eliminated state graduation credit for lower-level math courses.

Students who finish Algebra I in the fall are taking something other than the traditional two-semester Algebra I course and may have failed previously.

The pool of students taking the test in the fall was relatively small, at just 22,932, officials said.

Last spring, 28 percent of the 226,348 students who took the Algebra I end-of-course exam passed it. The agency acknowledged that is still a low passing rate.

"The test results show that some students while in kindergarten through eighth grade did not develop the math skills needed to be successful in Algebra I," Education Commissioner Mike Moses said, calling results released Thursday "dismally low."

Some teachers who may have been teaching lower-level math courses for years have found the change to Algebra I difficult, Moses added.

The fall 1996 scores are better than fall 1995, when just 11 percent of students passed the Algebra I end-of-course tests.

Students who complete Algebra I in the fall are either retaking a semester because they failed it the first time; are on a schedule in which the entire course is completed in one semester; or are taking the course as a three- or four-semester class.

Stretching the class out over several semesters is meant to improve students' chances of passing, with 669 school districts receiving waivers to allow them to do so.

"This gives students more time to grasp algebraic concepts. It also allows teachers to change their teaching strategies and use a more hands-on approach that can help make algebra more understandable to students who don't learn well in the traditional lecture format," Moses said.

He said a new algebra curriculum that will take effect in 1998-99 should help by explicitly outlining what students are expected to learn. He said the agency is working on teacher training.

Divorce can cause tax mess

By DAVE SKIDMORE Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - D-I-V-O-R-C-E can spell T-A-X-M-E-S-S.

The tax complications that go along with divorce can make a bad experience worse. And, just when cooperation between spouses seems impossible, it can be required to minimize their tax bills.

Divorced and separated people should review the rules in IRS Publication 504 before making such decisions as the timing of their divorce, custody and support arrangements and - for women - whether to resume using their maiden name.

For instance, alimony is deductible for the payer and taxable for the recipient. Child support isn't deductible and it isn't taxable.

Also, women who want to resume using their maiden name should get a new Social Security card. They should use their married name on tax documents until then.

Another consideration is filing status. A married couple usually pays more tax than they would if each spouse were single.

If you were divorced or legally separated under a court-approved decree of separate maintenance on the last day of the year, you're considered unmarried for the whole year.

As a divorced or legally separated person, your filing status will be either single or - if you qualify - head of household.

If you're planning a divorce but still living together, or living apart without a court-approved decree of separate maintenance, then you're married for tax purposes.

Your filing status choices generally are married or married filing separately. However, you may be able to claim head of household status if you lived apart from your spouse for the last six months of the year.

Married-joint status usually, but not always, is preferable to married-filing-separately status, which limits many tax breaks.

separately. But the danger with married status is that each person who signs the return is responsible for the entire tax liability.

Under the Taxpayer Bill of Rights II, enacted last summer, the IRS at least promises to keep each spouse informed of its efforts to collect jointly owed taxes from the other spouse.

If you and your spouse use the married-filing-separately status, you can change your mind later and file jointly using an amended return.

Custody of children affects a range of tax benefits: the dependent exemption, the earned income tax credit, the child and dependent care credit.

There's an exception for the exemption. The custodial parent can permit the non-custodial parent to claim the exemption for one or more years by signing Form 8332.

In cases of joint custody, the parent who has custody for the greater part of the year - even if for only one day longer than the other parent - is considered the custodial parent for tax purposes.

A child can qualify only one parent for head-of-household status. The parent with custody gets to claim the status. If each divorced spouse has custody of a child, then both can claim head of household status.

Eye on Texas Income tax refunds More than 1.8 million Texans applied for income tax refunds under the Earned Income Tax Credit program in 1996.

The Shunammite's Son

THE SHUNAMMITE WOMAN, AFTER AN ARDUOUS TRIP, NOW APPROACHES ELISHA'S ABODE IN THE FERVENT HOPE THAT SOMETHING STILL CAN BE DONE FOR HER DEAD SON....

EVEN AT A GREAT DISTANCE, ELISHA HAS RECOGNIZED HER AND SENDS GEHAZI TO FIND OUT IF ALL IS WELL WITH THE WOMAN'S FAMILY.

NOW ELISHA'S SERVANT, ON HEARING THE WOMAN ASKS THOSE THINGS WHICH ELISHA WISHES TO KNOW....

THY HUSBAND, THY SON—IS ALL WELL WITH THEM?

BUT THE WOMAN WILL DIVULGE WHAT IS IN HER HEART ONLY TO ELISHA!

ALL IS WELL.

LET HER ALONE! FOR HER SOUL IS VEXED AND THE LORD HATH NOT TOLD ME WHAT IS WRONG—LET HER SPEAK!

AND ON REACHING THE PROPHET, THE DISTRAUGHT WOMAN CLUTCHES AT ELISHA IN GREAT TURMOIL—AT THIS UNDUCE ACTION GEHAZI ATTEMPTS TO THRUST HER AWAY, BUT ELISHA INTERRUPTS.

Next Week

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket. For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints: --Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price. --Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition. --Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations. -- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Will be accepting applications for the position of general labor/ housekeeper. ## HOW DO YOU WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT GETS RESULTS?

BE THOROUGH
Sure you want your ad to stand out from the rest, but don't skimp on the sort of information that sells. The items condition, size, age, brand name, and color are some of the basics readers want to know. Without them, your ad may be passed by.

STEER CLEAR OF ABBREVIATIONS
OK, so you want to include all the important basics, now don't confuse your reader by using strange abbreviations. What is perfectly clear to you may be perfectly unrecognizable to someone else!

BE HONEST
Exaggerating your items's finer points may bring in a lot of responses, but a buyer who's misled won't appreciate it - and will take this business somewhere else.

STATE YOUR PRICE
The cost of an item is one of the most important concerns of Classified readers. Ads showing prices are one which get results. Giving a price also serves to "weed out" those buyers not in your price range.

BE ACCESSIBLE
Including a telephone number or address puts you in touch with potential buyers. Be sure to state the hours you can be reached; a caller who can't get through the first time often won't call again.

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs -- and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examines the latest market trends and housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.
