HISD energy costs show steady drop

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

The school district's utility costs have steadily decreased in the last four years, Hereford Independent School District Energy Manager David Morris said to trustees in his annual report Monday night.

The actual costs were $410,699 for the reporting period of March 1996 to February 1997, Morris said.

Of the utility costs, electricity was $243,634, or 58 percent; gas was $113,205, or 28 percent; and water was $53,859, or 13 percent, he said.

"This has been our most successful year so far in our conservation program," he said.

In other business, trustees:

- Certified the May 3 District 1, 3 and 6 trustee election.
- Heard a technology update from Technology Director Dianna Drew.
- Heard campus program from Hereford High School choir department.
- Approved Professional Development and Appraisal System as HISD's teacher appraisal system.
- Approved Goals 2000 grant applications.
- Heard a report from Hereford Junior High School Principal Marylin Leasure on the Tex Team grant, which will provide staff development this summer to impact student achievement in mathematics.

The main goals of the energy conservation program are to minimize energy waste and maintain comfort in the occupied areas, Morris said.

"And the bottom line is to save dollars," he said.

The energy cost avoidance was $134,348, or 25 percent, Morris said.

To determine cost avoidance, the district uses Onmi Comp's FASER energy accounting program, he said.

The program begins with usage during the base period; adjusts for temperature changes, building size changes, billing period length changes; develops adjusted baseline; and applies current rates, Morris said.

Trustees canvassed the election returns and certified the May 3 election.

The trustees elected were Karen Sherrod, District 1; Mark Landrum, District 3; and Lloyd Ames, District 6.

The newly elected trustees will be sworn in at the May 20 board meeting.

Grand jury will probe incident

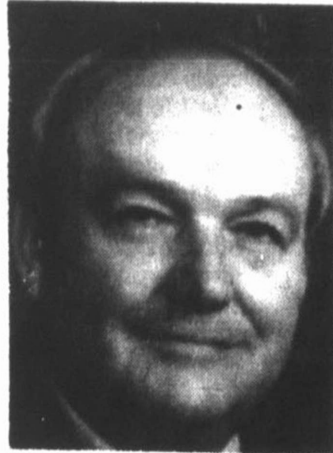

A Deaf Smith County Grand Jury will meet May 16 and is expected to hear testimony about a Hereford man who was shot by city police officers.

Officers said Jose Luis Martinez, 43, refused to drop a knife and threatened Cpl. Terry Brown and officer Ron Taylor when the police responded to a 911 call at an elderly couple's home on April 28. The two officers shot Martinez three times, striking him in the chest and abdomen.

Martinez underwent surgery at Hereford Regional Medical Center. His condition was upgraded from serious to stable over the weekend.

Martinez is accused of stabbing his wife at their home and breaking into the Frank Burns home a block away. The two officers were placed on routine administrative leave during an investigation by Texas Rangers and the Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney's office. Both had returned to work by Saturday.

In a light voter turnout Saturday, local residents elected C.T.(Chip) Guseman, Chris Leonard and incumbent Mal Manchee to the hospital board; elected incumbent Karen Sherrod, Mark Landrum and Lloyd Ames to the school board; and reelected Mayor Bob Josserrand and incumbent Place 1 commissioner Sylvana Juarez, as well as approving Tom Coneway, unopposed for the Place 3 seat.

Voters selected three directors from a field of five candidates in the Deaf Smith County Hospital District election. Guseman led the balloting with 440 votes; Leonard drew 431 ballots, and Manchee was reelected with 379 votes. Peggie Fox was next with 327, and Bryan Hedrick had 142.

Juarez won reelection on the city commission with 56 votes, and challenger Mary Carrillo had 41. Josserrand was unopposed and had 511 votes in the mayor's at-large balloting, while Coneway drew 242 votes running unopposed in Place 3.

Sherrod won the District 1 school post by 85 to 26 count over Angie Alonzo, while Mark Landrum unseated Randy Tooley in District 3 by a 56 to 27 count. Lloyd Ames drew 68 votes to win the vacated District VI seat over Linda Minchew (47), Norman Smith(8), Dori Wimberly(6) and R.L. Johnson(3).

With 9,865 eligible voters in the county, the hospital board election represented a turnout of only 7.2 percent of the voters.

Only voters in three separate districts cast ballots in the school election. District I (with 1,512 registered voters) drew 111 ballots, only 7.3 percent of eligible voters; District 3 (1,196 eligible) had 83 total votes, or a 6.9 percent turnout; and District VI (1,175 registered) attracted 132 voters - 11.2 percent of eligible voters in the district.

In the City of Hereford elections, Place 1 has 1,689 registered voters but drew only 97 ballots, 5.9 percent of those eligible; while Place 3 has 2,553 eligible voters and drew only 242 ballots, or 9.4 percent. The city has 7,736 registered voters, so the 511 ballots for Josserrand represented 6.6 percent of eligible voters.

The voting results were canvassed and approved at the school board and city commission meetings Monday night. The hospital board will make the returns official at a meeting tonight.

City approves 10% hike in water, sewer, trash rates

By TOMMY WELLS
Managing Editor

An expected showdown with the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission, and the need to prepare for an expected $1 million-plus cost for improvements to the current water system forced Hereford City Commissioners to do something they didn't want to do - raise rates.

The commission, faced with a possible financial problem connected with their upcoming TNRCC wastewater permit, approved a 10 percent increase on water, sewer and trash. The increase, which will go into effect June 1, 1997, is the first of three 10 percent rate hikes. The proposed plan, which would help raise the $1 to $1.5 million needed to meet new, stricter TNRCC standards and help repair and replace the city's aging water and sewer infrastructure, would also add additional 10 percent increases in each of the next two years as well.

"This won't accomplish everything, we know," said Mayor Bob Josserrand after announcing the proposal had passed unanimously. "It is less painful for our citizenry to take it (the increase) in steps than all at once. Even with our proposed increases, we're still cheaper than most of the areas other cities," he added.

The move to raise water and sewer rates is the first such action taken by the commission in recent years. The only rate increase approved last year was related to trash collection.

Under the plan, the city's water surcharge would increase less than $1 from its current status, climbing from $10.30 to $11.28 per single family residence that consumes 6,000 gallons of water. Also, the city's sewer rate would climb just 82 cents from its current mark to $8.72 a month, and the trash rates would increase by $1 to $11 per month.

According to figures made available to the public at the meeting, the increase would have a small impact on the average citizen's monthly statement. Residents, on the average, would see an increase of less than $4 per month.

The rate increase was deemed necessary by the commission after reports that the TNRCC had imposed strict guidelines on wastewater disposal on city's similar to Hereford upon their request for their permit's renewal.

"If we are treated like the other cities, and we have no reason to think we won't," Josserrand said, "we're looking at a significant cost, and by significant I mean one to $1 to $1.5 million."

Even with the rate increases, the City of Hereford would still offer its citizens a cheaper water, sewer and trash rate than other Panhandle municipalities of similar size. Hereford's adjusted rate of $11.28 for water is anywhere from $2 to $5 lower than the cities of Canyon, Borger, Dumas and Pampa. Such is also the case with the trash rate increase.

The new $8.72 sewer rate places Hereford in the middle of the rate survey - yet almost $8 less expensive than the $16.25 mark in Borger.

In other business, the City Commissioners canvassed the returns from the May 3 election and recognized Commissioner Scott Hall for his service to the City of Hereford. Hall decided not to seek another term on the commission recently.

The City Commission also approved a request by Bill Hubbard (See CITY, Page 2)

Electric market to be opened to competition Sept. 1, 2001

AUSTIN (AP) - Electric companies would have to compete for the right to power Texas, and the companies that serve most of the state would have to cut rates by 10 percent under a bill touted by Gov. George W. Bush.

The governor, who has taken a lead role in often contentious talks between the various factions of the state's electric utility industry, made it clear Monday that he wants the market deregulated.

"I think people want cheap electric rates, as cheap as they can possibly be," Bush said. "Deregulation will allow that."

Under the Bush-backed proposal, the state's electric market would be opened to competition Sept. 1, 2001, except for publicly-owned utilities and cooperatives, which would get to choose when to join competition.

Investor-owned utility companies, which cover about 90 percent of Texas, would have to cut prices by 10 percent for residential customers and by 4 percent for small business customers over the next three years, beginning Sept. 1.

Publicly-owned utilities and cooperative utility companies would not have to cut rates.

The incentive for the utilities to back the deal is the ability to recover 100 percent of so-called "stranded costs."

All consumers currently pay for the construction and maintenance of power plants owned by their local electric companies. If some customers were to choose a new company, those left with the local provider could be stuck with a larger share of the tab.

The costs that could be abandoned by current customers moving in the future to new companies are called "stranded costs." They have been estimated around $14 billion. The figure could change depending on when and how competition starts.

To help utilities recover those costs, they would be allowed to purchase up to $4 billion in bonds financed by ratepayers to help pay down those costs in the four years preceding the date for deregulation, under the proposal.

Some consumer groups criticized the proposal as a sweetheart deal for utilities.

"We would be better off with no bill, than passing this bill," said Tom "Smitty" Smith, Texas director of Public Citizen. "This is a $14 billion bailout for the big boys and passes the costs on to the consumers."

"It's like giving away the farm and handing the consumers the mortgage."

Gary Rasp, a spokesman for the Association of Electricity Companies of Texas, which represents investor-owned utilities, said, "There are elements in the bill that we could support, but we haven't had a chance to review it thoroughly."

Karen Johnson, president of Beaumont-based Entergy, which serves 317,000 electric customers in southeast Texas, said, "This plan is a very promising approach."

The governor appeared with several lawmakers from both the House and Senate at a news conference drumming up attention for the bill. But Rep. Steve Wolens, D-Dallas, chairman of the House State Affairs Committee, said the bill was a long way from receiving wide-ranging support in the Legislature.

"This is no done deal," Wolens said. "We're a long way from hearing the bill in committee to the point where the governor is signing the bill."

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock initiated efforts to get a bill worked out that all factions of the utility industry could agree on. Bush has taken the lead in that effort in recent weeks.

Texas is falling behind if it doesn't move toward a market that, Bush says, would make cheaper and cleaner energy available to Texans.

"The time is now to act," Bush said.

Critics said the bill doesn't go far enough to address environmental concerns and the concerns of low-income Texans.

"The governor's bill means that dirty coal plants will run longer and harder and result in dirtier air for millions of Texans," said Karl Rabago, manager of the Environmental Defense Fund and a former Public Utility Commission member.

Jane Bricecmeister, of Consumers Union, said, "This would be the only electric restructuring bill in the country to be silent on rate programs for low-income consumers."

American Airlines, pilots have contract

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) - After nearly three years, a strike and presidential intervention, American Airlines and its pilots finally have a contract. This labor peace, however, is an uneasy one.

A five-year contract was approved by 69 percent of the Allied Pilots Association's members on Monday. Despite the overwhelming majority, the union was still wary about losing the right to fly regional jets.

Throughout contract talks, Fort Worth-based AMR Corp. had fought to have its subsidiary American Eagle fly the smaller jets and refused to back down to American pilot demands to control the aircraft.

In the new contract, American pilots failed to get the right to fly regional jets. Various limits on flight distance, jet size and fleet size were added to the agreement, as well as job guarantees that allow furloughed American pilots to fly the jets at American Eagle.

Other contract details include raises of more than 9 percent through 2001, and stock options. The company also will end a second-tier wage scale adopted in the early 1980s.

But what rankles the union is that American Eagle, with its lower-paid pilots, will now fly jets and possibly take away jobs.

"I have been asked many times during the 34 months we spent in negotiations about what I considered to be the biggest issue between our two parties and I would have to say it has been about trust," said APA president Jim Sovich. "Our pilots have had a difficult time trusting the management of this corporation."

The road to a contract was arduous after pilots rejected the first agreement and declared a strike. President Clinton stepped in minutes later and halted it by appointing a Federal Emergency Board to oversee the contract.

Management and the union, under the board's oversight, finally hammered out the second contract during closed meetings at a remote island. The union's board approved the deal by 12-6, sending it to the members for a vote.

Sovich said the majority of pilots in all 10 American bases except San Francisco were in favor of the pact.

to re-zone the property located at 818 South Lee from R-1 (single family) to MH (mobile home). Hubbard, who was permanently injured in an explosion at a local feed mill in September of 1990 and now requires 24-hour care, had asked for the property to be rezoned so that his day nurse could move a residence on the land. The nurse currently lives in Amarillo and commutes daily to Hereford.

"I have driven through the general area," said Mayor Josseland, who made a plea for the commission to override the Planning and Zoning Commission's view and grant the request. "I've seen the trailer homes there. I can't believe that adding one or two, or three mobile homes will destroy it."

The City Commission approved the measure unanimously.

Also, the Hereford City Commission voted to make funds available for summer mosquito spraying and to continue its interlocal agreement with the Hereford Independent School District D.A.R.E. program. The commission also approved a financial advisory contract with Southwest Securities.

Outstanding co-workers named in observance of nurses week

May 6 through May 12 has been designated as National Nurses Week, according to Jim Robinson, administrator of Hereford Regional Medical Center.

In conjunction with this special week, two nurses at HRMC have been voted the most outstanding by their co-workers, according to Donna Kemp, RN, BSN.

Receiving the bi-annual award were Rosemary Barrett, RN, and Janie Gallagher, LVN.

Barrett, who has been with HRMC since 1993, obtained her RN from Amarillo College.

"She was selected because she practices the 'E3' criteria for guest relations at the hospital. We encourage our staff to strive for excellence in patient care and service with every person, every minute, every day. That's what we call the E3 philosophy, and Rosemary and Janie are prime examples of that philosophy at work," Robinson said.

Barrett and her husband, Harold, have two children, Cory and Deana. Gallagher began working at HRMC three years ago.

"In the last three years Janie has been able to win over the hearts of her colleagues and patients," Kemp said. "Her unique combination of skill and compassion allows her to switch gears from being in the ER to going directly into OB."

Gallagher and her husband, Tommy, have one son.

According to those who nominated them, these two nurses provide a great level of encouragement and set an example for others to follow.

"National Nurses Week gives us an opportunity to publicly acknowledge and express our gratitude to these two nurses and the 136 others who comprise a very important professional group in our hospital," Robinson said.

This group makes a very significant financial impact on our community and can be found in all aspects of community life as well, according to Robinson.

"The nurses at our hospital play on the softball teams, sing in the choir, help with the Girl Scout cookie drive, serve on community boards and committees, and serve as homeroom parents. We're proud that this dedicated group of people are so active in the community, and make life better for all of us," he said.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have kept this column of yours for almost seven years, and I think it's time you printed it again. My son will graduate from high school this June, and he and his friends need to see it. -- N. Hollywood, Calif.

Dear N. Hollywood: Thank you for asking. Here it is: An Open Letter to a Discouraged Teen-ager

Dear Kid: Today, you came to me for a job. From the look of your shoulders when you walked out, I suspect you've been turned down before. Or maybe you believe nobody wants to hire a kid just out of high school.

Well, it happens that I did hire a teen-ager today. He had a big smile on his face, and he wore a necktie. What was so special about that kid? Experience? No. He didn't have any. It was his attitude that put him on the payroll instead of you. Attitude, son. A-T-T-I-T-U-D-E. He wanted that job bad enough to put on a clean shirt and take the time to find out something about our company before he came down here. He did his best to impress me. That's where he edged you out.

You see, kid, folks who do hiring look for young people who have a spark. They want someone around who looks energetic, eager and rarin' to go. Your first questions were "What are the hours?" "How many vacations would I get?" and "How much do you pay?" I knew when you asked those questions that you weren't going to get a job here.

I couldn't care less that you're behind in your car payments. That's your problem. What I needed was someone with enthusiasm who'd keep his eyes open and work for me like he'd work for himself. If you have even the vaguest idea of what I'm trying to say, let it show the next time you go looking for a job. If you do, you'll be head and shoulders above the rest.

You know, kid, men have always gotten jobs the same way they get girls. They case the situation, wear a clean shirt, put their best foot forward and appear interested. Maybe jobs aren't plentiful right now, but a lot of us can remember when master craftsmen walked the streets. By comparison, kids today don't know the meaning of the word "scarce."

All around you, employers are looking like crazy for smart, alert, energetic young people. When they find one, they can't wait to get him or her on their payroll. If you paid a dime's worth of attention to what I've said today, you'll land a job pretty darned soon. Good luck. You're going to need it.

Dear Ann Landers: My son, "Hank," is 21 and 6 feet 2 inches tall, looks like Tom Cruise and attracts women like moths to a flame. His father, who died 10 years ago, was the same way.

Hank went to work as a salesman for a big electronics company and makes very good money. His boss is a divorced woman with an 11-year-old son. She says she is 31, but after looking at several photos of her, I'll bet she is at least 40.

Hank called last week to say he is going to get married to this woman and asked if I would come to the wedding if he sent an airline ticket. Question, Miss Landers: Should I go? Even though I haven't met the woman, I have negative feelings about her. I know I would be uncomfortable with her and her family. I'm not in their league socially. I'm going to do as you say. -- Outclassed in Ohio

Dear Mom: By all means, GO! Although this woman is not one you would have chosen for your son, be gracious and have a wonderful time.

Beene is representative at state DAR conference

Jean Beene represented the Los Ciboleros Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution at the annual Texas State Conference recently in San Antonio.

Recognized in the necrology report during the memorial service were Mrs. Herman L. Drake, member of Los Ciboleros Chapter; and Mrs. Euell Elton Norris, organizing regent of the Buffalo Grass Chapter in Floydada and sister of Mrs. Nell Norvell of Los Ciboleros Chapter.

Beene attended the public relations forum where instructions on proper publicity, pictures and good public relations were outlined. Those attending the forum were reminded that "anything the chapter does is publicity."

A new award, the Registrar's Star Award, was presented for the first time to Mrs. Ruth Maples, registrar of Esther McCory Chapter in Amarillo, for having enlisted 25 new members by application in the past year. Mrs. Maples was guest speaker at the April meeting of Los Ciboleros Chapter in Hereford.

In a report by the State Historian, Los Ciboleros Chapter was honored for donating the most books to local libraries.

The local chapter was also recognized for the number of visits made to veterans where they tied for third place.

At the close of the conference, delegates adopted resolutions to continue all policies that support the American military and redouble efforts to affirm responsible government that keeps faith with all military members; urge elected officials to obey the 10th Amendment and return this nation to greatness by protecting its keystone, the individual liberty of each citizen; and send personal letters to Senators and Representatives on legislative issues of concern.

Roses for Mother's Day

Paula Edwards, with shovel, and Patsy McGinty, members of the board of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society, make preparations to plant new roses in the garden of the E.B. Black House. The roses are purchased with money contributed to a special fund in honor of a mother, or anyone special. With a contribution of $15 or more, the name of that special person is added to a Rose Tribute plaque on display at the Black House. Elie, Rockets take lead in showdown with Seattle

HOUSTON (AP) - Seattle took away Hakeem Olajuwon, and the Houston Rockets' second choice was just as deadly.

Double-teaming Olajuwon didn't work out the way the SuperSonics planned because Mario Elie led a 3-point shooting display as the Rockets held off the SuperSonics for a 112-102 victory in the opener of their second-round playoff series Monday night.

"We gave them a lot of opportunities to shoot the ball, and they knocked them down," Seattle guard Gary Payton said. "We have to go out tomorrow and change some things. We'll find solutions. There's a lot of games left in this series."

Game 2 is Wednesday night in The Summit.

Elie finished with 20 points and got the Rockets started by making all five of his 3-point attempts in the first half, matching a playoff record. The Rockets hit 10 of 15 3-pointers for a 64-55 halftime lead and finished the game 15-of-28 from long range.

"I had no conscience, I just let it go," Elie said. "After the first one went down, I felt good. I had fresh legs. I was the lucky guy. I was getting some good looks and the guys kept kicking the ball out to me."

The Rockets kept extending their lead, and the SuperSonics, despite just finishing a tiring five-game series with Phoenix on Saturday, kept charging back.

The Rockets built a 103-76 advantage with 10:07 left, but Hersey Hawkins hit four 3-point baskets in a row during a 26-9 run that cut the Rockets' final victory margin.

"It wasn't easy, it was deceiving," Olajuwon said. "They played very well. We can't get carried away. The pressure is still on until the last game."

Elie tied the record for 3-pointers without a miss shared by three players, most recently by Seattle's Nate McMillan against the Rockets on May 6, 1996.

"He's been our most consistent player all season," Charles Barkley said of Elie.

"What he did tonight didn't surprise me. I was happy with every aspect of our game except me. But I look at my game differently. I expect more out of myself. But I will get better."

Clyde Drexler led the Rockets with 22 points, and Shawn Kemp paced the SuperSonics with 24.

Houston used a 26-9 run to take a 55-35 lead with six minutes left in the half. But Kemp scored eight points over the rest of the period as Seattle's cut Houston's lead to 64-55 at the half.

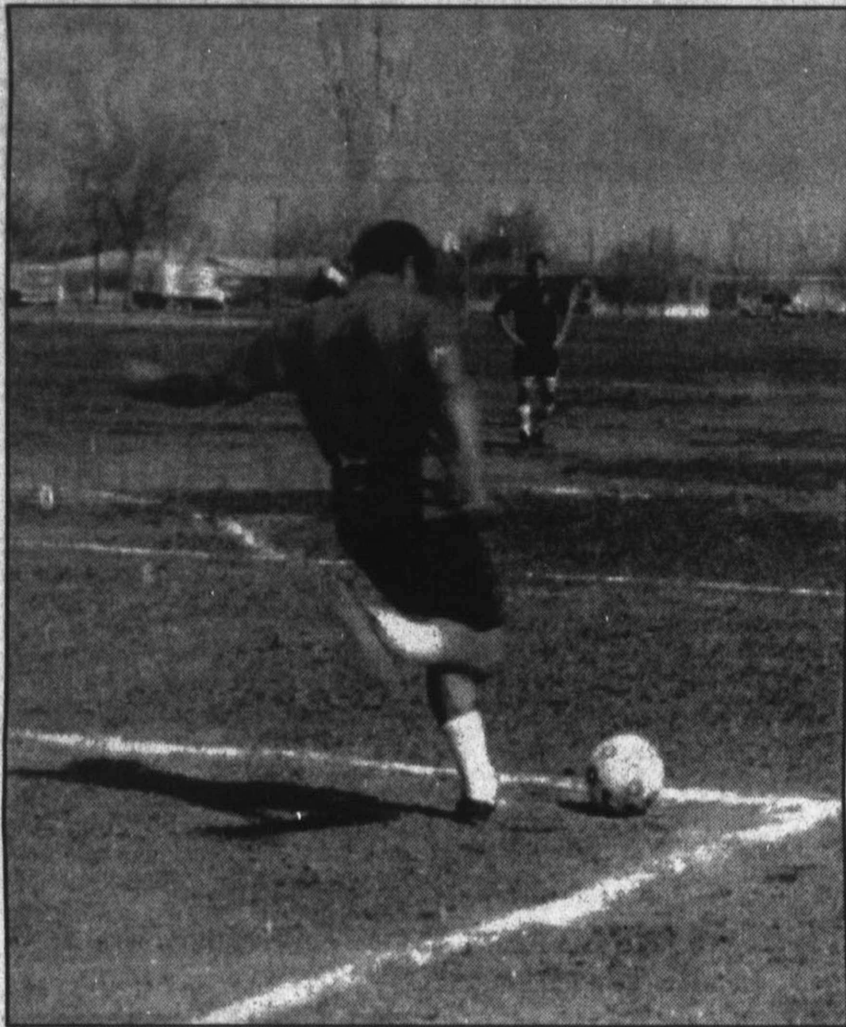

"I think both halves were very different," Seattle coach George Karl said. "In the first half, they shot the ball well and we were hesitating. In the second half, with the turnovers and missed layups, they became sluggish offensively."

"This is two games in a row they've done stuff to us pretty substantially, and we are going to have to evaluate and come back and tinker here and there."

The Rockets won the regular season series 3-1 with the SuperSonics, including a 113-73 victory in the final regular-season game.

"I thought it was an excellent performance by everybody that played for us," Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "Game 1 is so important when you are at home. If you don't win, that then they have another shot at you and you know they have two more games home."

Getting' their kicks

Report: Pitino could leave Kentucky for job with Boston Celtics today

BOSTON (AP) - Rick Pitino could accept what he calls "the greatest opportunity ever afforded a coach." Or he could stay at Kentucky to "impact lives."

The decision wasn't easy, but it appeared Pitino would announce today he will coach the Boston Celtics under a 10-year contract. One report said the deal is worth more than $70 million.

The Celtics also seemed ready to welcome him by beginning a front-office shakeup, which might persuade special assistant Larry Bird to remain with the team.

Pitino wouldn't say Monday how he was leaning and even admitted he might change his mind before today's planned meeting with Kentucky athletics director C.M. Newton.

"Whoever gets the Boston Celtics job is getting a great honor," Pitino said in Atlanta at a bookstore promotion for his motivational book, "Success is a Choice."

The Boston Globe reported today that team president Red Auerbach said Pitino will be coach of the Celtics "and something else" next season. The newspaper said the other position was director of operations.

But Auerbach later denied making that statement, according to the Boston Herald.

Pitino said last month he only would be interested in the Celtics if Bird stayed, an uncertain prospect since the Indiana Pacers are willing to give him a lucrative contract to coach his home-state team.

Yet Monday's reported personnel moves could satisfy some of Bird's public complaints about the management setup. And the Herald said team owner Paul Gaston was still trying to keep Bird.

The Celtics vacancy developed when M.L. Carr quit last Wednesday after two non-playoff seasons in which the team was 48-116. Their 15-67 record this season was the worst in the club's 51 years - in which they've won a record 16 NBA titles - and seventh worst ever in the NBA.

Carr, who stayed as director of basketball operations, began notifying his assistant coaches they should be prepared to move on, the Globe reported.

Director of travel and team services Wayne Lebeau and director of publications and information Dave Zuccaro were fired, both papers reported. Two marketing employees also reportedly lost their jobs, and general manager Jan Volk also might leave after 26 years with the Celtics, the Globe said.

It also said Pitino is expected to bring Kentucky associate coach Jim O'Brien with him to Boston.

Yet Pitino still hadn't announced his decision.

Last June he said he was 99 percent sure he would accept a coaching offer from the New Jersey Nets, but turned it down after a golf excursion to Ireland with university boosters.

He said the Celtics offer came sooner than anticipated, requiring him to speed up his decision.

"For me, it's a matter of whether I want to be a professional basketball coach or impact lives like I've done in the past eight years," Pitino said.

WBZ-TV in Boston reported he already had accepted an offer to replace Carr. The station said the offer included six years as coach and the last four as director of basketball operations.

WKYT, a Lexington, Ky., TV station, said the deal was worth more than $70 million, plus a 3 percent ownership of the team.

But none of the principals in the saga involving two of basketball's premier teams was as definite.

"I don't think it's a done deal," Newton said Monday night. "My gut feeling is that I don't know which way he will go this time. My gut feeling in the past is that he wasn't going to leave."

Cal Garrett, a former golf pro, has been named Manager of Golf Services at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course, it was announced Tuesday by Chester Nolen, Hereford City Manager. Garrett was to begin his duties today. He has recently been semi-retired, however he has a long background in golf management, said Nolen.

Garrett had previously served as the golf pro at Pitman Municipal from 1969 to 1978. "We are pleased to have an individual of his calibre as a member of the City team," said Nolen.

Snyder girls take early lead in race for Class 4A golf crown

AUSTIN (AP) - Austin Anderson, the 1996 runner-up in the boys' Class 4A golf state championship, held the lead by three strokes after first-round competition in this year's tournament. Classes 1A through 4A began first-round action Monday in the state golf tournament. The champions in those classes will be crowned today, barring weather delays. Conditions were sunny but blustery on Monday. Led by Troy Matteson's 72 on the par-71 Roy Kizer Course in Austin, Anderson posted a team-total 304 on Monday, three shots better than McKinney, led by Chris Cureto who shot 73. Jacksonville was third with 318.

Matteson and Jimmy Walker of New Braunfels Canyon each shot 72, the lowest score of the first round in 4A. In girls' 4A action, Snyder had the first-round lead with a 325, ahead of Dallas Highland Park with 330, Fort Stockton with 333 and Bastrop with 334. McKenzie Gibson of Highland Park had the low round, with 73 on the par-71 Roy Kizer Course. Snyder, which took third at last year's state championship, was led by Julie Doolittle (80) and Alissa Wells and Keisha Gafford, who each shot 81. In boys' 3A, Austin Lake Travis shot a 308, taking a five shot lead over Abilene Wylie and Mexia, which each shot 313. Not far behind are Longview Spring Hill at 316 and Texarkana Pleasant Grove at 317.

Michael Martin of Jacksboro and Ryan Hancock of Mexia each shot 74 on the par-71 Lions Municipal Golf Course, taking low-round honors. Austin Lake Travis was led by Jeff Brinkman (75), Robby Holzman (76) and Justin Wendel (77). In girls' 3A, China Spring shot 334 to take a narrow four-shot lead over defending champion Yoakum (338) in a two-team race. Columbus was a distant third, after shooting 368. Nicole Albrecht of Yoakum had the low round after a 79 on the par-72 Morris Williams Golf Course. China Spring was led by Melody Moore (81), Shannon Barr (82) and Whitney Johnson (85). In boys' 2A, Hamilton, last year's third-place team, took the first-round lead with a 318, followed by Cisco (326), Salado (335) and Memphis (336).

Michael Pruitt of Idalou fired the low round with an even-par 71. Hamilton was led by Riley Gardner and Brian Edwards, each with 78, and Brian Fuderburk and Kyle McKandless, each with 81. In girls' 2A, Quana and Ozona were set to battle for the title on today after both teams shot 361, well ahead of Hamilton (387) and Schulenburg (388).

The low round belonged to Jennifer Faulkner of Gainesville Callisburg with a 78. In boys' 1A, Meridian fired a 335, eight shots better than Shamrock (343) and 19 shots ahead of Petrolia and Robert Lee, each with 354. Poultry growing into third-largest agriculture industry in Oklahoma TULSA, Okla. (AP) - It's no secret that poultry is big business in Arkansas. Now the overflow has pushed west, and poultry has grown into the third-largest farm industry in Oklahoma.

Not everyone is happy about the expansion of dense livestock operations in Oklahoma, even though chickens were worth $367 million in the state in 1995.

Suzette Hatfield leads a group opposed to corporate farms that have sprung up this decade. She said the environmental and economic threats are enormous.

"Independent farmers are struggling to stay in business in the face of the tremendous growth of the corporate swine and poultry industries in the state," said Ms. Hatfield, coordinator of Oklahoma Family Farm Alliance. "As a few mega-corporations gain control, they dictate their own terms and squeeze out the small guy."

Poultry, especially the production of broilers for market, found a home in eastern Oklahoma as the industry ran out of space in northwestern Arkansas.

"Growing steady at 5 percent for the last 15 to 20 years, just about everyone who was going to grow chickens in Arkansas already did," explained James Britton, poultry specialist with the Oklahoma Cooperative Extension Service.

Poultry made sense for farmers with fewer than 300 acres, Britton said, and the average size of farms in the five counties bordering Arkansas is a little more than 230 acres.

"It was about the only way to make a living," said Harold Fogleman, a poultry grower near Rose, Okla. "I wanted to have a job where I was my own boss."

For dairy farmers, who dominated the area around Fogleman's farm, poultry brought a different type of

"It's kind of a break," he said. "We're a little tied down, but we could take off until midnight and the birds wouldn't miss you."

Poultry operations spread slowly, and the western boundary now forms along U.S. 69, Britton said. But unless companies build feed mills farther west, poultry growing in Oklahoma might slack off, he said.

"Poultry can only go so far from the feed mills," Britton said, "and they are just about there."

Ice cream party

Homemade ice cream and fresh baked cookies were served to approximately ninety mentors and students from the Northwest Primary School Help One Student To Succeed (HOSTS) program. Mentors and HOSTS teachers rewarded the students for reading 2,645 books in the HOSTS program this year. Each student read fifty or more books. The mentors will be recognized at the HOSTS Mentor Reception on Thursday.

"We need to advertise... business is down and we need to let people know we're here and what we're doing. We can't afford not to -"

"No, we can't possibly afford an advertising push right now. Business just isn't what it should be, and advertising costs money!"

"So we need to place our advertising dollars wisely - someplace that targets our market and gets results fast!"

Bill would ban ownership of dangerous, wild animals

AUSTIN (AP) - Lions and tigers and bears as pets - oh my, not in Texas.

Ownership of dangerous wild animals would be banned in the state, with exceptions, under a bill approved Monday by the Senate.

The bill, which goes to the House for consideration, was approved after sponsoring Sen. Mike Moncrief added exemptions to address numerous concerns from his colleagues.

"We had close to 20 amendments that were rolled into this substitute (bill) in order to satisfy the concerns of various members ... from selling monkeys in the Valley to exhibiting animals to schools for educational purposes," said Moncrief, D-Fort Worth.

He also left the rhinoceros off the bill's list of dangerous wild animals. Several ranches in the state, including one owned by prominent businessman Lee Bass of Fort Worth, have breeding programs for endangered rhinos.

Moncrief declined comment on whether he was pressured to leave the animal off the list but said rhinos haven't been known to attack anyone in Texas. Bass didn't immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press.

The bill comes as the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife is scheduled to lose its authority to regulate dangerous wild animals.

That repeal, which takes effect Sept. 1, was approved because the agency doesn't have the staff or resources to oversee ownership of the creatures, Moncrief said. His bill would transfer the authority to local animal control authorities or county sheriffs.

The bill follows cases in which children have been mauled by tigers and other large, wild felines. Moncrief said the public is in danger when wild animals are not kept in proper enclosures.

"Unfortunately, we can't legislate against stupidity. I wish we could," he said. "It's not an animal rights bill. It's a public safety bill."

Under Moncrief's bill, ownership of 16 types of animals would be prohibited, including lions, tigers, bears, elephants, wolves and great apes.

There would be exemptions such as circuses, television or motion picture production companies, wildlife sanctuaries, licensed exhibitors, research or rehabilitation facilities and university mascots.

Texasns who already own dangerous wild animals would be exempt if they followed certain requirements, such as obtaining a permit from the animal control authority, not breeding the animal and meeting requirements for cages.

People who own an animal in violation of the law could be charged with a Class C misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $500. In addition to such criminal prosecution, a violator would face civil penalties of $1,000 per day per violation.
