Hereford High School student Andrew Tijerina leans over his ladder to tape a piece of masking paper in place on a wall at HHS on Wednesday. Tijerina has worked with school coaches Ron Young and Joe Cabazuela and a team of students to paint several classrooms at the school during the Christmas holiday. Cabazuela said Young was hired by assistant superintendent Don Cumpton, and Young brought in the rest of the crew. The team has painted about 18 classrooms, taking three hours to mask windows, cabinets, paneling, chalkboards and other items, and to cover the floors and furniture. Painting then takes about 30 minutes, with another half hour needed to remove the masking. Today is the final day of work for the group before school restarts next week.

Poll says Americans favor stricter controls on firearms

Clinton promises to cut health care bureaucracy

WASHINGTON (AP) - President have 250 employees and a $2 billion from each health care dollar, with the Clinton promises to simplify health care and free Americans from "the most bureaucratic system that exists anywhere in the world." But Republicans see less choice for patients - and even more red tape.

"Simplicity is, 'I will do what I am told by the government. They'll tell me what I can buy, where I can buy it and how much I'll pay for it," complained Rep. Dick Armey, R-Texas.

"Thirteen hundred pages of red tape," sputtered House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich.

Clinton's critics are attacking two key features of his health reform plan. One is the creation of a powerful National Health Board that could set limits on private health insurance premiums; the other is a requirement that most Americans buy their coverage through new, government--run health alliances.

Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala told a congressional panel in October that the National Health Board would be a "relatively minor oversight board." But an internal memo from HHS lawyers indicated the board would budget to start.

The board, consisting of seven fulltime presidential appointees, would decide whether new treatments were "medically necessary" and pass judgment on changes in the basic benefit package.

It would have a committee to monitor the prices of breakthrough drugs and pressure companies to keep prices down.

And it would tell the health alliances and corporate health plans how much they could spend on Clinton's benefit package. It would compute premium targets and develop a way to "risk adjust" payments to reward health plans that enrolled sicker, higher-cost patients.

Laura D'Andrea Tyson, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, has estimated that the alliances may need to hire 50,000 people. But Walter Zelman. an architect of the Clinton proposal, says those workers will be replacing staff who now perform similar tasks at higher costs.

He estimates the alliances' overhead will take 2 cents to 2.5 cents health plans themselves running up 10 cents in administrative costs. But many small and medium-sized businesses now watch 16 cents to 20 cents of their premium dollars go for overhead.

Zelman says there could be as many as 250 alliances nationwide. They could achieve economies of scale by enrolling 500,000 to 5 million people each.

"From the consumer's point of view, it's incredibly simple," said Zelman. "The consumer gets a brochure that says, 'Here are the 10 to 15 plans in your region in which you can enroll. Here's the price you and your family have to pay to enroll in that plan. And here's some information to help you choose between the plans.

The alliance collects the money from employers and dispenses premiums to the health plans. It also would figure out the subsidies for small businesses and low-income families.

The national board would be an executive branch agency, with rules subject to review by the Office of Management and Budget.

Ex-convict arrested with friend for five New York mail bombings

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - An ex-convict who was said to be bent on revenge against his estranged girlfriend's family was arrested along with a friend in the parcel bombings that killed five people across New York.

Michael Stevens and Earl Figley were charged Wednesday with transporting across state lines the explosives used in two of the slayings. They could get the death penalty if convicted on the federal charges.

Investigators said the bombs were targeted at members of the family of Brenda Lazore, who had been Stevens' girlfriend. Among those killed in four nearly simultaneous blasts Tuesday night were her mother, her stepfather and a sister; an uncle was wounded.

An unidentified law enforcement source told the Rochester Democrat & Chronicle that Stevens "felt the family had turned his girlfriend against him.'

The Buffalo News and The New York Times said relations between Stevens and Ms. Lazore's family became particualry strained around the holidays.

"If there was a precipitous act," an investigator told the News, "it might have been a (family) Christmas party where Stevens was asked to leave." Stevens, 51, of Rochester, and Figley, 56, of Farmington, were ordered held without bail. The men could also face state murder charges.

Investigators said that at Stevens' request, Figley bought nearly 200 sticks of dynamite and 50 blasting caps for $233.17 from the Kentucky Powder Co. in Mount Vernon, Ky., in June, using a Vermont driver's license with an alias.

Figley told police he brought the explosives to Stevens in Rochester and that both men built several bombs, according to court papers. On Tuesday night, six bombs hidden in tackle boxes were delivered by the mail or by delivery services to four homes, an armored car depot and a prison. Four went off within 90 minutes. Two others were intercepted and disposed of.

Unemployment applicants drop to five-year-low

WASHINGTON (AP) - The number of Americans filing the first time for unemployment benefits plummeted by 39,000 last week to the lowest level in nearly five years, the government said today.

In a report that shows just how volatile the job market really is, the Labor Department said initial claims declined to a seasonally adjusted 291,000 in the week ended Dec. 25, down from a revised 330,000 for the previous week. That was the lowest level since Feb. 4, 1989, when initial claims totaled 286,000.

Economists had predicted a decline in part because of the Christmas holiday. Initial claims usually decline in holiday weeks. But the drop of 39,000 was nearly four times what they had expected.

The huge decrease was fueled in part by fewer layoffs in construction, manufacturing and the textile industry.

The four-week moving average of initial jobless claims declined 7,750 from the previous week to a seasonally adjusted 321,000, the lowest level since Sept. 9, 1989. Economists prefer to use that figure as a measure of hiring trends because it is much less volatile than the weekly number, which has swung up and down over the last few months.

The four-week average has fluctuated in a relatively narrow range between 330,000 and 350,000 since mid-August.

Economists have consistently said the job market is improving, led by gains in hiring among smaller companies.

The government reported that for the week ended Dec. 18 there were 8,246 claims filed in 50 states under a federal emergency employment program, up from 6,624 the previous week.

Figures for emergency claims and the numbers for individual state claims lag a week behind the initial jobless claims total.

First family returns for 10th year at Renaissance Weekend event

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - It's not everyone who would want to spend the Christmas holiday sitting through long-winded discussions about death, mistakes and dicting. But then Bill Clinton is not your ordinary vacationer.

CCF, located at 401 W. Park Ave., invites you to a brunch at 9:30 a.m. Sunday to meet the new pastors, Otto and Pat Schaufele. At 10:45 a.m., Otto will officially begin his pastorate at CCF as he brings the Sunday morning message.

Originally founded by five ministers to be an outreach ministry to churches in need or ministers experiencing difficulties, the Christ's Church Fellowship organization will be celebrating its fifth birthday this January. Since first founded in 1989, CCF has grown rapidly into a worldwide fellowship of churches including churches in Russia and Africa.

CCF churches strive first to exalt Christ (John 12:32); believe that all gifts operating in the first century church are still available to believers today (Acts 1:8); that the Bible must b, be taught in wholeness (John 6:63) and reveals truth (John 10:10).

CCF gladly receives persons of all faiths and welcomes all believers to participate in the Lord's Supper and in active praise and worship in song.

LEDYARD, Conn. (AP) - It's lights out on police escorts for casino celebrities - even Frank Sinatra.

State police say they will no longer use flashing emergency lights to escort celebrities to Foxwoods casino - as they did when the Chairman of the Board came to town.

A local resident, Donna Walker, complained after she pulled to the side of the road Nov. 17 when she spotted emergency lights in her mirror. She then watched a white limousine pass by. She later learned the limo was carrying Sinatra.

"There's some things we have to keep sacred, and that's one of them, the use of emergency lights," Mrs. Walker said.

Capt. Manfred Brideau, a deputy state police commander, said state police will end the practice.

Lady Whitefaces pick up win in Kerrville tourney

By JAY PEDEN Sports Editor

The Hereford girls' basketball team closed out the Texas Basketball Festival in Kerrville with a 56-41 win over Kerrville Tivy Wednesday. Hereford claimed fifth place.

Hereford's boys, playing in Canyon, lost the third-place game of the Canyon Rotary Tournament 55-44 to Tulia.

The girls had to overcome injuries from the tournament's first two games and a disappointing loss in the second game (72-70 to McAllen Rowe).

"We were pretty down after Tuesday night, but we bounced back an played pretty well," coach Eddie Fortenberry said. He said the girls had a team meeting and focused on improving their play.

"They made a decision that they weren't going to get beat again, and they gave a better effort (against Tivy)," Fortenberry said.

Post Tarabeth Holmes shook off an injury that knocked her out of the fourth quarter of the Rowe game, and she led the Herd with 16 points against Tivy. Point guard Brittney Binder, injured in the first game of the tournament, also came back to play against Tivy.

Heather Hodges scored 11 points for Hereford, and Stephanie Wilcox added 10.

The Herd boys struggled offensively in their 55-44 loss to Tulia in Canyon.

"We had a real poor shooting night," coach Randy Dean said.

"We never could string anything together offensively at all."

Hereford trailed only 27-24 going into the third quarter, but Tulia stretched its lead to 42-34 during the period.

Cody Marion led the Herd with 12 points, and Benton Buckley added 10.

The Hereford boys are now 5-12.

As the Lady Whitefaces move into District 1-4A play next week, Fortenberry is optimistic about his teams chances of climbing out of the district cellar--Hereford was 0-10 last season--and maybe doing even better.

"We'll play with all of them (the teams in the district). On any given night, we can beat any of them," he said.

Hereford (6-11) opens district play at 6 p.m. Tuesday against Caprock in Amarillo.

Borger is the best team in the district, Fortenberry said. The Lady Bulldogs sport a 15-2 record.

Perennial power Randall is 8-8, and Pampa is struggling at 2-13. Records for Dumas and Caprock are unavailable, but Fortenberry said Caprock's record is not good.

The Hereford boys start the new year off with a home game Tuesday. Frenship will come to Whiteface Gym for a 7:30 p.m. meeting. The junior varsity teams will play at 6.

Hereford starts district play Jan. 14, when Borger comes to town.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - It's about Wyoming, a tri-champion of the Western Athletic Conference, ended Ninety-seven years after it began the season 8-4, losing its sixth playing football, Kansas State finally consecutive postseason game, dating to 1968. The loss dropped the won a postseason game. Albeit, it was Cowboys to 4-6 in bowl play. Kansas State lost 14-3 to Wisconsin in its only other postseason contest, the 1982 Independence Bowl, while Wyoming's most recent such loss was to California in the 1990 Copper Bowl.

Keys to the lopsided win included a 502-yard offensive performance led by quarterback Chad May's 275 passing yards for two touchdowns and his 2-yard scoring run, a 227-yard rushing attack and a defense that held Wyoming to 36 yards on the ground and 302 in all.

But the most critical play may have been Andre Coleman's 68-yard punt return for a touchdown shortly before halftime, which put Kansas State ahead 24-10.

May said the runback, in which Coleman broke to the right sideline and picked up a four-player escort to score untouched, was the turning point. "It got the momentum back on our side," he said. "When I caught the ball, there was one guy to beat," Coleman said. "When I got outside, I turned the corner and I had a wall."

'We haven't had anything like that happen against us this year,' Wyoming coach Joe Tiller said.

Wyoming fullback Ryan Christopherson, who rushed for 1,014 yards this year, gained only 28 yards on 15 carries, including a 3-yard touchdown that pulled Wyoming within 16-10 in the second quarter.

May completed both his scoring passes in the third quarter, a 61-yard play to Coleman and a 30-yarder to Kevin Lockett.

J.J. Smith ran for a Copper Bowl-record 133 yards on 20 carries, scoring Kansas State's first touchdown from the 2-yard line after Wyoming had taken a 3-0 lead on Taylor Sorenson's 35-yard field goal.

Coleman caught eight passes for 144 yards. And Wildcats cornerback Kenny McEntyre, who had 11 tackles, finished the scoring when he returned an interception 37 yards for a touchdown with 6:09 left in the game.

Penalties nullified a first-possession 52-yard Cowboys' touchdown pass play from Joe Hughes to Ryan Yarborough; another mistake cancelled a fumble recovery that would have ended a Kansas State touchdown drive.

The Wildcats also picked off a Wyoming pass in the end zone.

Yarborough, the NCAA's career receiving yardage leader with 4,357, was held to eight catches for 72 yards, about half his 137.5-yard season average, and failed to score for only the second game this season.

In the fourth quarter, Wyoming's Eddie Pratt scored on a 14-yard pass from backup quarterback John Gustin, but Kansas State's Leon Edwards responded with a 13-yard touchdown run before McEntyre's interception runback.

Sonics beat up on Lakers in fight-marred

By The Associated Press

The Seattle SuperSonics were rolling along to their 22nd victory in 25 games in lackluster fashion.

How about a brawl to liven things? The Los Angeles Lakers, whose 99-92 loss was their 10th in 12 games and fifth straight defeat at home, cut

One last-second desperation shot wasn't enough to allow the Texas Longhorns to escape with a non-conference double-overtime victory over Utah.

"We got our butts kicked and that was it," said cornerback Mark Collins. "This is a different game, a different situation.

Collins said the Giants defense has matured since the first game.

We went down to Dallas and a lot of the unger players were in awe of the Cowboys and the situation," said Collins, one of six Giants to play on both their Super Bowl teams. "It was like stage fright. world championship team. I hope we get over it and do a better job.'

No one from the unit was selected to the Pro Bowl team Tuesday although Collins and linebackers Michael Brooks and Carlton Bailey had Pro Bowl-type seasons.

Three Giants made the team on offense: quarterback Phil Simms, tackle Jumbo Elliott and center Bart Oates. The Cowboys landed 11 players on the NFC squad, including seven on offense.

"I don't know if they are angry," Giants secondary coach Zaven Yaralian said. "But in this business everybody likes to be recognized. You tell me who doesn't."

Hamilton said he didn't care, to a point.

"If we go to the Super Bowl, no A lot of guys had never been in the one will really care whether anyone Hamilton said the Giants' linemen situation before of going against a is on the Pro Bowl," the second year pro said. Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since 1993 was the 30th anniversary of the death of President John F. Kennedy, a great deal has been written about the assassination in the past few months.

I was especially interested in the profiles of Lee Harvey Oswald. Please permit me to share an observation. By paying closer attention to the type of child Oswald was, we might have predicted that he would turn into a potentially dangerous criminal.

I hope that teachers and health professionals keep an eye on children who seem to be strange, belligerent, sadistic loner-types who don't seem to fit in anyplace. Individuals who are angry at the world and can't get along with neighbors or co-workers can be dangerous. Lee Harvey Oswald was such a person.

What I am saying is that we would do well to take a closer look at the people around us. Just imagine how differently history would have been written had Oswald, the paranoid megalomaniac, been in a security-type mental institution where he belonged, instead of walking around in Dallas--History Buff (Short Hills, N.J.).

DEAR HISTORY BUFF: In this country, a person must commit an illegal act before he can be put away, unless he is committed for observation by a doctor or family member. While no one should be denied his or her civil rights, I agree that we must do a better job of identifying lunatics who could be potential murderers. Just read the histories of serial killers, and you will find that there were signs all over the place.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My granddaughters call me a "square," but I am ashamed to go anywhere with THEM. They have frizzed-out, greasy hair, T-shirts stretched to the knees and pants that are too tight. If I were running an employment agency, I wouldn't give them a second look.

Even celebrities look tacky--the men with their unshaven faces and torn clothes. The entertainers scream and grab their private parts--it's embarrassing. My grandchildren tell me it's great entertainment. Am I living in another century or what?--Jacksonville, Ark.

DEAR JACKSONVILLE: I agree there's an awful lot of garbage out there, but we don't want Big Brother telling us what we can wear.

As for the way kids dress today, you might as well give up. Everyone wants to look like everyone else. But cheer up. This is something they will eventually grow out of.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's boss sends his children to a private school. We just received a letter from the boss' teen-age son requesting a donation for a school trip to Washington, D.C., scheduled for the spring. There was no mention of a car wash or a bake sale, only a request for a donation, which the letter said was 'tax deductible."

I am outraged that a boss would have his children, whom we've never met, send such a letter to his employees. How should we handle it?--On the Spot in California

DEAR SPOT: I'm oppossed to class projects that encourage kids to get something for nothing. No one should feel obligated to support a trip as a gift. The kids should be required to do something for the money. It will teach them the value of a dollar as well as the satisfaction of a job well done. Gem of the Day: Inflation is when the buck doesn't stop anywhere.

Make a reading resolution

Through the years, I've always cherished for years. Instead of cuddled up with my children and watching my resolution melt like the gently ended the day with "Good Night Moon." But sticking to the focus of family reading time wit bedtime reading ritual may be a compromising its importance. resolution that's not so casy to keep, at least with my older kids.

Exhausted from a full day of day basis: school, basketball practice and oboe spring snow, I'll need to change the focus of family reading time without

Here are some ideas to incorporate reading into family life on a day-to-

-Create your child's own DOOKSNEII, A COLOFIUL, II no matter what his/her age. -Turn the tables and ask your child to read to you in unlikely places while you go about doing a household task. English teacher Ann Sorenson, of Deborah, Iowa, fondly recalls sitting on a step stool at the age of eight and reading to her father as he tinkered under the hood of his car on Saturday afternoons. -Dig out your favorite childhood stories or dive into a new series both you and your child will enjoy. "The Chronicles of Narnia," "Nancy Drew," "Hardy Boys" and Laura Ingalls Wilder's "Little House" books are intergenerational favorites. My ninc-year-old son and I recently turned the last page of a delightful new series of easy-to-read books by Gary Paulsen entitled the "Culpepper Adventures." We took turns reading to each other.

An alcohol problem? How can you help yourself or someone you love? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal with It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When our son married, he informed us that he and his wife were going to use a hyphenated name: "John and Jane Smith-Jones."

My husband and I were very upset. Our name should be good enough for her by itself. I refuse to recognize my son's new name and have told him so. This has caused a rift in our relation-

When I send "Johnny" mail, I use his old name. He accuses me of having no respect for them because I don't address the mail the way they want me

His wife is a control freak. She has never once discussed this issue with me. She always goes through Johnny. He says I should not talk to her about it--because it will only cause trouble.

Recently, we wanted to return some tuned in to a football game. oks they had left at our house. When When I told him I felt left out, he books they had left at our house. When names only on the package. The package was 'returned, marked "Refused." I told Johnny that apparently they didn't want the books and that he should reimburse us for the money it cost to send them. So far, we haven't had a response.

My friends tell me not to back down. They say when my husband and I are dead, Johnny and his wife won't refuse to accept anything we leave them in our wills regardless of what name we use. What do you say, Ann? Is there room for compromise here?-Warminster, Pa.

DEAR PA .: A compromise? No. Your son and his wife have the right to decide what name they want to use. You and your husband should call them by whatever name they choose. If there's a control freak in this picture, it is you, Mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My friend and I have been going together for several years and are considering tying the knot.

Last night, "Alfie" took me to a nice restaurant for dinner. As soon as we sat down, he took out a pair of carphones, put them on his head and

I mailed the books, I put their first said, "I can hear you talk and listen to the game at the same time." We finished our meal in silence.

On the way home, I let Alfie know that I was offended by his lack of attention and that when he takes me out for dinner I expect some conversation. He said I was entirely too selfcentered and that most people would regard his behavior as quite normal and laugh it off. Our relationship is now strained because of that unpleasant episode. Please referee this, Ann. I'm feeling unsure of myself .-- Louise in Illinois

DEAR LOUISE: When a woman is invited out to dinner, she has the right to expect her companion to pay some attention to her. Dining with a man who has earphones clamped on his head is just about the same as eating alone.

Piano students give holiday recital

Piano students of Evelyn Hacker who attend the Nazarene Christian Academy were presented in a recent Christmas recital at the Church of the Nazarene.

Many of the students played duets with Mrs. Hacker, and Riley Hall performed a duct with Kali Hall. Both also played solos.

Those performing solos were: Noelle and Teel Merrick, Allison and Cody Cochran, Marissa Rojas, Kevin and Jennifer Winget, Torree and Tallee McDowell, Sabrina Culpepper, Armando Torres, Erin Noland, Alyssa Hill and Amanda Smith.

Refreshments were served by Lori Hall.

Since Alfie is such an avid football fan, you would be wise to tell him you would prefer not to have dinner with him on football nights. He will probably be delighted to get off the hook, and it will make for a healthier relationship.

DEAR READERS: Tonight is New Year's Eve. PLEASE, if you drink, don't drive. If you drive, don't drink. I have a good column coming up tomorrow, and I want all of you to be alive to read it.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long. business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

quarter of a football game or three minutes left of a basketball game that snares my 14-year old son's attention at bedtime. When I think the game is almost over, he is already asleep. So I quietly turn off the radio by his pillow and let him dream of his own jump shot.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Sharon Stone stirred some basic instincts when she donned an apron and dished out turkey at a Salvation Army Christmas dinner for about 1,000 people.

"She touched my hand. Can you believe it?" asked Roland Maxwell, an unemployed construction worker. "She's a really nice woman. That made my day.'

Justin Alvarez said he recognized the "Basic Instict" star right away but didn't get a chance to talk with her. "I saw her over there talking with a little kid," he said. "It made me want to be 5 again. It really did."

Stone, who is filming a movie here, refused requests for interviews.

Make sure children have access to many different types of reading material in the homes such as magazines, newspapers and newsletters.

-Talk with your children about favorite books. Read some of the books your child reads to acquaint yourself with what he/she enjoys. -Set aside special times when the family reads and tells stories together.

Dear Friends in Rome,

This letter is from Paul, Jesus Christ's slave, chosen to be a missionary, and sent out to preach God's Good News. This Good News was promised long ago by God's prophets in the Old Testament. It is the Good News about His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord, who came as a human baby, born into King David's royal family line; and by being raised from the dead He was proved to be the mighty Son of God, with the holy nature of God Himself.

And now, through Christ, all the kindness of God has been poured out upon us undeserving sinners; and now He is sending us out around the world to tell all people everywhere the great things God has done for them, so that they, too, will believe and obey Him.

And you, dear friends in Rome, are among those He dearly loves; you, too, are invited by lesus Christ to be God's very own--ves. His holy people. May all God's mercies and peace be yours from God our Father and from Jesus Christ our Lord.

Let me say first of all that wherever I go I hear you being talked about! For your faith in God is becoming known around the world. How I thank God through Jesus Christ for this good report, and for each one of you. God knows how often I pray for you. Day and night I bring you and your needs in prayer to the one I serve with all my might, telling others the Good News about His son. And one of the things I kep on praying for is the opportunity, God willing, to come at last to see you and, if possible, that I will have a safe trip. For I long to visit you so that I can impart to you the faith that will help your church grow strong in the Lord. Then, too, I need your help, for I want not only to share my faith with you but to be encouraged by yours: Each of us will be a blessing to the other. Romans 1:1-12

A storm coupled with extreme cold dumped up to 8 inches of snow in much of the East, sending cars into a slide and causing a jet to skid off a taxiway.

"Aaagh! That's how it's been tonight. We've been busy, real busy," Philadelphia police Officer Kimberley Fairweather said Wednesday. "Nothing serious, fender benders, but it seems like if there's something out there to run into, they will.'

And Philadelphia got only 2 inches. Maine and New Hampshire got 4 to 7 inches along the coast. The snow continued early today on Cape Cod, which had at least 3 to 5 inches. New York City got 3 to 4 inches.

The arctic cold that moved in on Christmas lingered in the East and the Great Lakes. It was 16 degrees this morning in Albany, N.Y., 18 in Boston, 13 in Cincinnati, 8 in Portland, Maine, 13 in Detroit and 6 in Lansing, Mich.

AUSTIN (AP) - State insurance regulators have cleared the way for Entergy Corp., an electric utility holding company, to stretch into Texas.

The Public Utility Commission on Wednesday approved Entergy's proposed $2.3 billion acquisition of Beaumont-based Gulf States Utilities.

The two companies will form a iant electric utility that serves nearly 3 million people in five states.

GSU serves 585,000 customers in East Texas and south Louisiana.

Entergy, based in New Orleans, has 1.7 million customers served by Arkansas Power and Light, Mississippi Power and Light, Louisiana Power and Light and New Orleans Public Service.

Entergy executives said the merger will be completed before the end of the year in order to take advantage of tax breaks.

Entergy has proposed a cap on GSU electric rates for five years, and other savings through increased efficiency.

PUC action was the last regulatory hurdle for Entergy, which already had been approved from other state and federal authorities.

"I'm very relieved that we have the regulatory process behind us," said Frank Gallaher, an Entergy executive vice president who will become president of GSU.

He said that a procedure already is in place whereby a juvenile who is brought in on a writ of attachment could be released if there is no room at the detention center and the youth's offense was considered minor.

"I think on balance the benefits contained in the settlement to keep rates low and the operating synergies that will be realized from having Entergy joined with GSU will be good for the state of Texas and Texas ratepayers," Gee said.

Barbara Day, an attorney representing 13 Southeast Texas cities, said the deal was significantly different than what had won tentative PUC approval in July. She cited the FERC's removal of a cap on how much GSU ratepayers would have to pay to balance fuel costs paid by the merged utility's customers in other states.

Gee told Entergy officials to essentially place that protection back in, and after a lunch break the utility offered a similar protection.

Andy Keever, an attorney representing Entergy, also promised that the company would not lay off any employees for at least 18 months.

During that period, employees may be transferred, he said. He said if they refuse to be transferred they will be offered other jobs within the company.

"There will not be merger-related layoffs," Keever said.

Ag Dept. study shows poor ate better in '80s come households ate more dairy red meat, eggs, beverages of all types products, fish, fresh fruits and vegetables and juice in the 1980s while cutting back on poultry, fats, the biggest consumers of juice, cereal, bakery goods, red meat, eggs, sweets and canned vegetables.

And if that isn't good enough news for the health-conscious, spending per person in low-income households dramatic increases in consumption. Agriculture Department researchers looked at data from food consumption surveys conducted in the late 1970s and late 1980s for a new report on what low-income households got for their food dollars over the decade.

The researchers found that regional price differences greatly affected what kind of foods low-income households bought.

Data from 1987 to 1988 showed that those in the West were the largest consumers of dairy products and fresh

WASHINGTON (AP) - Low-in- fruit. Those in the South bought more and fresh vegetables.

Low-income Northeasterners were poultry, fish and shellfish, but they cut down substantially on dairy products.

The report also said:

-Larger households tend to went down for most foods, despite consume less food per person than smaller families, except for milk, sugar and breakfast cereals.

-Low-income families with single mothers bought more milk in the 1980s and spent less on it. Two-parent families bought less milk than before.

Today, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has trained police officers to recognize someone who is driving while impaired. Thanks to these skilled police officers, our highways may be a lot safer.

HOUSTON (AP) - Juvenile probation officials have ordered a constable to round up more than 100 juveniles wanted on alleged offenses ranging from petty theft to aggravated robbery.

Constable Jack F. Abercia told newsmen on Wednesday that he had been trying unsuccessfully for five weeks to bring in the juveniles, but claims he was told to wait because there was no room at the Harris County detention center.

Abercia said Bob Husbands, a juvenile intake supervisor, told him "to hold up till they had room."

Juvenile probation officials promptly denied Abercia's assertions, saying they would not have allowed such a think to happen.

Assistant Director JoAnn Jones said, "I just finished talking to Bob Husbands, and he told me that statement was never made. He does not recall ever having a conversation with Constable Abercia with regard to refusing to accept children on a writ of attachment."

Husbands did not return telephone calls Wednesday, and Executive Director Teresa Ramirez was out of town

The dispute became knowledge when Precinct 3 County Commissioner Steve Radack called a news conference Wednesday and called for a management study of the juvenile agency.

study of the juvenile agency. He said he would question juvenile probation authorities at next week's Commissioners Court meeting. The juvenile agency responded by telling Abercia to start Wednesday night picking up the 103 juveniles, wanted on writs of attachment or warrants signed by judges. The constable said as many as 50 could be in custody by Sunday.

The beleaguered juvenile detention center has been the center of media and Commissioners Court attention for months.

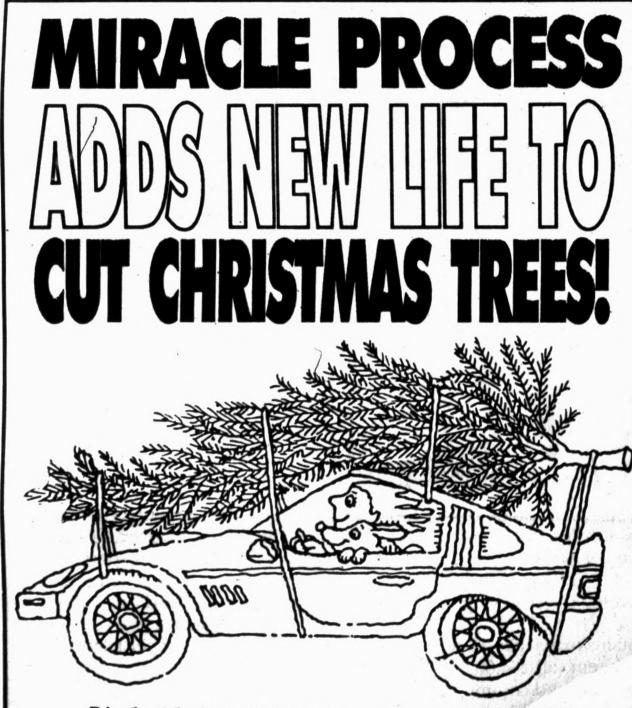

The Commissioners Court last month approved a $17 million expansion that would add 252 beds to the already overcrowded facility, which currently has a population cap of 145. The cap has an overflow allowance of 20 percent, bringing total allowable capacity to 174. Jones said there were 165 juveniles at the facility Wednesday and 14 others had been released that day.

"There's no amount of overcrowding that should stop someone from enforcing the law," Radack said.

Asked where the youths to be taken into custody starting Wednesday would be held if the detention center was full, Radack said, "I don't care if we have to put them in the jury

Bring those tired old cut Christmas Trees to the waste-tree storage facility (vacantlot) at Hwy. 385 and Grand anytime between December 26th and January 8th.

Your tree will then be evaluated (all trees are accepted) and sent through an amazing and revolutionary process discovered in City of Hereford research laboratories.

The process is called grinding, and adds life to your old tree by providing a healthy and suitable mulch for any of Hereford's finest gardens. And best of all it's FREE!
