But Justice Department officials argue the lab's problems have not changed the outcome of any of 13 cases in which defense lawyers already have brought up the errors in court. And officials say a far smaller number of cases still faces evaluation.

On Tuesday after an 18-month investigation, Justice Department Inspector General Michael Bromwich criticized the world-renowned lab's work in some minor and major cases, including the Oklahoma City bombing, New York's World Trade Center bombing and the mail-bomb murder of federal appellate judge Robert Vance.

Assisted by five outside scientists, Bromwich's investigators studied allegations against three of the lab's 23 units: explosives, materials analysis and chemistry-toxicology. Bromwich said his criticisms "should not be imputed ... to other units."

It was something to do in a village where you lived by your imagination or died of boredom. It was a game Manuel Castaneda loved.

As a boy, his dream was to someday drive a truck. He didn't know where he would go, because he had never been anywhere, but he knew he wanted to drive.

House committee okays plan to cut school property taxes

AUSTIN (AP) - After more than seven weeks of work, a House committee today unanimously approved a plan to cut local school property taxes by about $2.5 billion

The committee worked late Tuesday making final changes to the proposal. It would cut local residential school property taxes in half and would cut local business school property taxes by roughly one-third. The business property tax would be administered by the state.

"It's a good plan. It meets what I hoped would happen," said Gov. George W. Bush, who has made the issue his top priority this session. "It's a fair plan," said Rep. Paul Sadler, D-Henderson, chairman of the committee. "It provides over 50 percent reduction in property taxes for maintenance and operation. It does all of the things within the criteria given to us."

With less than 50 days left in the legislative session, the bill must pass the House and Senate and could face a conference committee to work out differences between the two chambers before going to Bush. An accompanying constitutional amendment, which also was approved today, would go to voters in November.

The governor, who raised the issue of cutting local school property taxes, has said he is confident lawmakers can beat the clock.

To pay for the proposed cuts, the committee plan would expand the state business tax, increase some taxes and add to the list of goods and services subject to the state sales tax. It also would dedicate an additional $1 billion in state funds and lottery

The proposal contains a provision from the property tax cuts. It also would require local governments that added their sales taxes to the newly taxable goods and service to further lower property tax cuts or to ask voters for permission to spend the new revenue on special projects,

Under the proposal, the state would pay about 80 percent of the cost of running Texas' 1,044 school districts. It currently pays about 47 percent.

The plan also would do away with the so-called Robin Hood school funding system by creating a state business property tax. That would replace the current local business property tax.

Robin Hood forces 91 school districts with an abundance of taxable property to share their income with poorer districts.

The proposal would lower the legal limit on local residential school taxes for operation and mainter to 70 cents per $100 in value. The current cap is $1.50 per $100.

The cap on business property would fall to $1.05 from $1.50 level. The limit on local taxes for school buildings and debt would remain at 50 cents per $100. Schools that lowered that tax rate to 10 cents would be eligible for up to $90 per student in state aid to pay off debt. All schools would be eligible for help in paying for new school buildings

Request to cross county road with water line draws protests

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN Editor-Publisher

Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court routinely approved the crossing of two county roads with water and gas lines Monday, but a third request was tabled after a heated discussion.

Caviness Packing Company had requested to cross a road in Precinct 1 with a waste water line, and several persons voiced objection to the plan. Mike Morrison voiced opposition to the request and asked commissioners not to grant the crossing.

He said the line was to be used to carry water to a field, where the affluent would be sprayed. He protested it would create a bad odor, and devalue the land. Morrison the crossing. Commissioner Troy D.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My "problem" may not merit space in your column, but your opinion would be greatly appreciated.

A while back, my sister's daughter was getting married. While I was happy for my niece (I like her very much), my sister and I have had a strained relationship for years. This sister took it upon herself to plan a family reunion the same weekend as her daughter's wedding. On my invitation, she wrote, "Be aware that your ex-husband and his new wife have been invited to both the wedding and the family reunion." When I read that, I was stunned. I felt as if I had been slapped in the face.

My sister had every right to invite anyone she wished to the wedding, but I believe she was totally out of line to invite a sibling's ex-spouse and his new wife to a family reunion. When a couple divorces, especially if there are no children involved, the family structure changes and the old ex is definitely considered out of the family picture.

I have remarried and have a wonderful husband. I felt the inclusion of my ex-husband was an insult to me and to my husband. My sister has always been very close to my ex-husband philosophically, politically and spiritually. They consider themselves "soul mates." Clearly, her friendship with him took precedence over my feelings. I am deeply hurt.

Am I justified in thinking that she betrayed me? -- L.M., Somewhere in Florida

Dear L.M.: The Landers Law on Invitations is as follows: The host or hostess has the right to invite anyone he or she wishes to a party or family celebration. The invitee has the right to accept the invitation or decline.

I would not characterize what your sister did as an act of betrayal, but it was certainly insensitive. I hope, however, that you went to the celebration, held your head high and showed off your wonderful husband.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on the letter from the woman who married an older man years, as well as preaching at rodeos and regretted that they had had no children together.

After the death of my first wife when I was 47, I married a young woman of 27. Since I had two adult children and several grandchildren, I felt no urge to go through the complications of child rearing again. My new wife agreed.

This worked out well for eight years, until nature's maternal instinct caught up with my wife. She intentionally got pregnant. I loved my wife very much and realized that she had a right to a normal life, so we agreed to have the baby. We were blessed with a beautiful little girl. Two years later, we had a fine baby boy. I was 60 when he was born. That was 28 years ago.

Since I was retired and able to spend all day with my young children, I felt very close to them. Now, at 88, I have spent a third of a century with my wonderful son and daughter, watching them grow up. One is a graduate of Stanford University. The other graduated from the University of Southern California.

When they come home to visit us, we have a marvelous time. I am filled with gratitude that my young wife insisted on giving me such a priceless gift. I'm sure the children have added years to my life. I'm -- Blessed in California

Dear Calif .: Those May-December marriages are often very good or very bad. I'm happy that yours is in the first category. Long may you

Cancer society to benefit from 'Relay for Life' planned in June

American Cancer Society has announced plans for its first annual "Relay for Life," June 6-7, at Whiteface Stadium.

The relay, which will feature area residents of all ages walking around the stadium track for 24 hours, will start at 6 p.m. Friday evening with a ceremonial "Survivor's Walk." "Many people think that they must each walk for 24 hours straight," said Adam Treff, publicity chairperson for the event, "but of course that would be impossible for even the most experienced walker.

According to Treff, most people will only be walking about a half hour at a time. He adds, "There will be teams of people, each walking his or her 'shift,' with each team member having one common goal -- to help in the fight against cancer."

Each team member will donate $50 as an "entry fee." And Treff said teams will be made up of local members of churches, clubs and organizations, employees from area businesses or anyone who likes to

"Lots of people in Hereford choose walking as exercise. You can always see them at the mall, around the Aquatic Center lake or just around the block," he said.

Participants in the "Relay for Life" do not have to walk for so many cents

Herd ends 12-game skid against Caprock

By TOMMY WELLS Managing Editor

AMARILLO - The streak is dead.

Perhaps the best way to describe the Hereford Whitefaces' stunning come-from-behind win over the Caprock Longhorns is to classify it with the Houston Rockets' first NBA championship — Unbelievable Believe it.

The Whitefaces rallied from an early deficit to score 10 runs in their final two at-bats and claim a wild, emotion-taxing 11-7 victory over the Caprock Longhorns yesterday evening in front of a large crowd at Longhorn Field. Hereford had trailed by as many as four runs early in the game, before finally catching fire in the sixth and seventh innings.

At the same time as the White-faces were notching their first District 1-4A victory, they also erased the foul memory of a 12-game losing streak that had haunted them for better than a month.

"It's great for the kids," said Hereford head baseball coach Pete Rodriguez, who saw the team's biggest win come on the heels of its most disappointing setback - a 13-2 loss to Dumas in which HHS pitchers has issued 13 walks. "They've been trying hard all year long. The breaks haven't gone our way a lot of the time, but against Caprock they did. It's been a long time since we've won a game, but they never quit trying, so I'm happy for them,"

With the win, the Whitefaces improved to 1-7 in district standings and kept their hopes of earning a playoff berth mathematically alive with four games remaining on their 1997 schedule. Hereford trails current second-place team Dumas by four games.

How big were the sixth and seventh innings for the Herd? Consider this: In the first five innings, Hereford sent 20 batters to the plate and scored just twice. In the final two, they made 21 plate appearances and scored nine times.

The Whitefaces drew first blood in the contest. Tate Head opened the game by reaching first after being hit by a Jesse Rodriguez pitch. Two batters later, Nathan Gavina single to drive him home and give the Herd a 1-0 edge.

Caprock, the victim of Hereford's lone district win last year, got the two runs back in the second on an RBI double by Todd Moore and a run-scoring single by Longhorn catcher Shawn Brasher.

Caprock added three more runs

Lewis, Wilson shine in Local Tri-State HS Rodeo action

By TOMMY WELLS Managing Editor

Monty Lewis and Rodey Wilson turned the Hereford Rodeo into their own personal playground this past weekend. And the rest of the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association was the worse for it.

Lewis won half of the Atl-Around Cowboy honors by finishing near the top in several events in the two rodeos, which were held at the B-S Indoor Arena, Wilson was equally impressive with his rope by helping win the calf roping event twice - with different partners.

Lewis, who tied Wheeler's Matt Carlson for the all-around title with 37 points, turned in strong performance in Saturday's rodeo appearance. He placed second in the Ribbon Roping event, third in the Calf Roping and then teamed with Lazbuddie's Josh Morris to capture fourth in the Team Roping standings.

In the Ribbon Roping event, Lewis recorded a blazing time of 6.815 seconds. He dropped his calf in a time of 11.31 in the Calf Roping, and scored a mark of 7.111 in the team roping.

Wilson and fellow Hereford cowboy Ty Boggeman won the Team Roping title in grand fashion Saturday. The two horsemen bettered the mark of their closest competitor by better than a full second by turning a time of 5.537 seconds, Canadian's B.J. Koch and Gruver's Randy Maness placed second with a time of 6.585.

Boggeman was far from through.
He came back later in the day and teamed with Canyon's Blake

Williamson to finish third.

T.J. Good also finished well on Saturday. He placed second in the Calf Roping competition. Curt Lewis was back in form the following day, winning the calf roping crown with a mark of 12.09 seconds. Smith was fourth overall on Sunday.

Lewis also placed eighth in the ribbon event.

Wilson, too, didn't miss a beat in the second rodeo. He teamed with fellow Hereford roper Pecos Alford to win the team roping event. The two recorded a time of 5.489 seconds - nearly a half-second faster that the time Wilson and Boggeman had won with the previous day.

Hereford's Tommy Mather and Childress' John Ray placed third in the team roping standings, while the tandem of Kip Kendrick and Smith grabbed fourth.

Rodriguez's homer lifts Expos past Astros

HOUSTON (AP) - A little electronic scouting paid off for Montreal Expos outfielder Henry

Rodriguez had a three-run homer Tuesday night to help the Expos take a 7-5 victory over the Houston Astros as Pedro Martinez allowed only three hits in six innings in his first start since serving an eight-

The three-run homer came in the first inning when the Expos scored four runs off Chris Holt (1-1).

Rodriguez had told Martinez on Monday night he was going to hit a homer on Tuesday night. Although he had not seen Holt pitch firsthand this season, he had an elec-

"I saw him pitch against St. Louis on ESPN last week and he had a curve ball, changeup and fast ball, but it wasn't in the 90s so I knew he was going inside on me with those other pitches," Rodriguez said. "I just waited for a pitch away and got a fast ball away."

"Henry told me he was going to go deep," Martinez said. "I couldn't believe he did it, but he did."

"I told him I was going to hit one out," Rodriguez said. "But it wasn't because of the Houston pitchers, I just felt really good, like I was going to hit one.

F.P. Santangelo led off the inning with a double to right and scored on David Segui's single. Rodriguez then hit his homer over the left field

"I don't know about Henry Rodriguez' home run, it sounded like he hit it with a piece of cardboard," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "It didn't sound that good but it did go out."

"The only pitch (Rodriguez) got tonight, he hit," Expos manager Felipe Alou said. "Henry's really vinging the bat right now."

Martinez struck out six batter

After the four-run outburst in the first Holt settled down, holding the Expos scoreless for the next five g, retiring 12 in a row in one stretch. He went 6 1-3 innings, allowing six runs on seven hits and a walk. He struck out three. Houston rookie Russ Johnson made the score 4-1 in the fifth with his first major-league homer.

The Astros added a run off reliever Dave Veres in the seventh.

Witt keys Rangers' 5-2 win over ChiSox

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -Bobby Witt was almost a forgotten man when this season began. 'He's been pretty memorable ever since.

Witt ran his season-long scoreless streak to 16 1-3 innings before allowing two eighth-inning home runs Tuesday night, but the Texas Rangers still cruised to a 5-2 victory over the sagging Chicago White

Witt (2-0) gave up 11 hits in 7 2-3 innings, but the first nine were singles. He didn't walk anyone and struck out two. Xavier Hernandez got the last out of the eighth and John Wetteland pitched the ninth for his third save.

Several off days the first week of the season forced Witt to be skipped the first time through the rotation. He was used in relief in the second game and threw 1 1-3 scoreless innings.

Six days later he got his first start in Milwaukee. He allowed three hits over eight innings, walking just one, as the Rangers won 2-0.

- two aided by balk calls on Whiteface starter Arturo Nava - in the third inning and pushed their cushion to 5-1 heading into the sixth inning.

From there, Eric Ambold lit the fuse that set off the Herd fireworks show. After Joseph Artho had grounded out to short to start the inning, Anthony Lopez walked and was followed by a single from designated hitter Dustin Hill. Ambold, then, pulled Hereford to within 5-3 by chasing Rodriguez from the hill with a two-run double to center.

Caprock's reliever found the road even rockier. Michael Soria hit Nava with a pitch and then loaded the bases by issuing a walk to Jeremy Scott. Head followed by working Soria for another walk and an

Andrew Ramirez drove home the game-tying run five pitches later. After taking the count full at 3-2, the Herd shortstop grounded into a sacrifice at second, scoring Nava. The Whiteface joy turned to gloom minutes later, however. Caprock, courtesy of Hereford's lone error in the field, scored twice in the bottom of the sixth and regained a 7-5 lead.

'When we came in, nobody was down," said Rodriguez. "We had just scored four runs and I told them why not four more."

Down to their final three outs, the Whitefaces did better than that.

Lopez led off the HHS seventh with a single to center. Hill followed with a sharply hit grounder that handcuffed the Longhorns' third baseman and put the tying run Ambold, who went 2-for-3 in the game with four RBI, came away with another clutch hit from there taking Soria's 2-1 pitch deep for another two-run double that tied the game at 7-7.

"Eric had to very big hits for us." Rodriguez stated. "He gave us the spark that we needed at the plate."

Two batters later, Scott gave the Whitefaces the lead for good. He greeted Caprock's second reliever -Jerrad Haws - with a two-run single to center. Nathan Gavina followed with another two-run single.

Nava, who allowed just nine hits in the game, shut the Longhorns down in the bottom half of the seventh to net his first win of the year as a starter.

The Longhorns, with the loss, fell to 3-3 in loop play and to 10-11-1. Hereford is scheduled to make looses life when 'little cabin' burns

By KRIS KELLY

Amarillo Globe-News
AMARILLO - He roughed it in a cabin, a stone's throw from Interstate 40. Cadillacs and semis roared past, but he wasn't rushing, Ernest Ray "Chris" Christofferson, 45, of Amarillo, died early Monday when a fire engulfed what he dubbed his "little cabin" - a makeshift shed attached to a vacant

Fire department officials initially said the blaze may have been caused by a fire started in the shed for warmth. On Wednesday, Lt. Marc Lusk of AFD said the fire remained under investigation.

Christofferson, a drifter with roots, had been living in the makeshift quarters for at least a year, said Bob LaRoche, who owns the property.

The "cabin," constructed of plywood, two-by-fours and plastic, had no electricity, running water or gas - yet it seemed to have what Christofferson wanted.

"Maybe I'm interested in having a big house and a nice car and living a certain way - and he's not that way," LaRoche said. "I kind of feel that some people just want to live a different kind of a life."

LaRoche said he met Christoffer-son after hiring him about 18 months ago as a day laborer.
"I did befriend him, I guess,"

LaRoche said. "He was interesting. He was well-read. He was an Amarillo citizen just like you and me. He read the newspaper every day. He hung at the library. He had an American flag out on the Fourth of July.

"He'd been all over the world.

He'd been to Singapore, Hong Kong, Malaysia, He wasn't like an uneducated, illiterate person."

Christofferson's mother, Joan Morse-Froust of Votaw, near Houston, said her firstborn son had an IQ in the genius range, but he was hyperactive and dyslexic, which caused him difficulty in school.

"'He didn't have an ability to foresee danger. He was so hyperactive. He just had to be watched constantly to avoid hurting himself," she said.

Christofferson served in the Navy as an aviation machinist's mate on the USS Enterprise and USS Coral Sea. He achieved the rate of petty officer third class.

"He just advanced so fast," his mother said. "But he had a problem with alcohol. It seemed to be his way of coping."

Christofferson enjoyed working as a roughneck and ranch hand, she said, and he eventually settled in Amarillo. The move onto LaRoche's property didn't happen immediately, LaRoche said.

"It's not like there was a decision. He knew the place was empty and he knew we owned it. He began going there," LaRoche said. "I, of course, knew that he was going there and approved of it.

'Realistically, what am I going to say? 'No, you can't go over there, and breathe the air and sit on the grass?" LaRoche, who owns Ruby Tequila's Mexican Kitchen and Calico County Restaurant, said he previously used the house to store restaurant equipment.

He didn't mind when Christofferson built the lean-to against the home,

Howard Bilderback, a neighborhood services administrator with the city of Amarillo, said the shed probably violated building codes, but it had not been inspected prior to the

In December, Christofferson's mother came up to Amarillo. She located her son by asking through the local homeless "network," she said.

So at 14, Manuel and a friend got on a bus headed north toward the Mexico border. He wasn't driving, but he was on his way.

In Tijuana, they were robbed of what little money they had. Manuel's friend was beaten.

Frightened and dejected, the pair joined some others also headed to America. Some shared their food with the young men; others scraped together enough money to buy them

Manuel's first day on American soil was spent in jail. Immigration officers caught his group climbing into a van, locked them up and deported them the next day.

A week later, he crossed again and eventually hitched a ride to Los Angeles, where his brother picked him up and took him to Pasco, Wash.,

to join his family.

After two weeks, his parents were threatening to send him back. He wasn't learning English fast enough, they complained.

"I was trying to learn how to cross a street," Manuel recalls. "I had never even turned on a TV or answered a phone, and my parents wanted me to know English."

When they moved to the Portland suburb of Cornelius a year later, Manuel could speak enough English off. Manuel's father was ready to go home, but no one wanted to follow. So they stayed.

Manuel spent falls in the fields, picking asparagus, strawberries, cucumbers and onions. In the winter and spring, he went to school.

He was one of just three Hispanics in a class of 300, but Manuel loved school. He graduated in 1984 with honors, and was rewarded with grant money to attend Portland State University. But Manuel never went to college. A friend advised against it because he and his family were living in the country illegally.

"Illegal alien" was a phrase that shadowed Manuel wherever he went. "It was scary seeing a police officer or simply going to town," he says.

"We usually never went alone. We were all afraid of being deported."
With college out of the question, Manuel started working for a landscaping company. The next year, he quit and started his own business, Pro Landscape. Soon after, Manuel and his family were granted amnesty under the 1986

Immigration Reform and Control Act. Although finally a legal immigrant, Manuel never went back to college. He now employees 20 people, mostly million.

Hispanics, and last year grossed $1.1

Manuel became a U.S. citizen in 1994. His wife, Rosa, a Mexico native and former farmworker with a sociology degree, also is an American citizen. While some Hispanies fear they'll lose their heritage by becoming Americans, Manuel and Rosa say they sacrificed nothing and gained everything. "It was easier for me because I had been back to Mexico and I had seen my schoolmates and what situation they were in," says Manuel. "I thought, I'm a lucky person. It's very easy to appreciate it."

If anything held them back, the couple say, it was resentment from fellow Hispanics.

"If someone's doing better, it's, 'Why isn't he like us?" says Rosa, 28. "Instead of coming up, they try to bring us down. Even my family says, oh, you think you're white."

To fellow Hispanics, Manuel offers: "Be open-minded. Learn the good things that this country has to offer.

It's OK to hold onto your traditions, but move on."

Manuel has preserved many of his native traditions. He makes homemade tortillas, speaks Spanish to his son, Brandon, and refers to his wife as Mama.

He also retained one particular boyhood passion. He now owns a fleet of trucks, and whenever he goes out on a job, he's always behind the

Inc. launched 2CARE for Kids, an outreach and educational project designed to assist the nearly 22,500 Medicaid-eligible children that live in the Texas Panhandle, with medical and dental care.

The Coalition of Health Services is a non-profit organization formed to help communities in the upper 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle establish medical and dental "homes"

The Coalition of Health Services, coordinate their health care," said Sally Carmen, director of development with the Coalition.

> With more than 70 medical and dental providers in the area delivering these essential services under the Texas Medicaid program, the Coalition expects this network to serve more than 22,000 children.

Providers in Deaf Smith County include Dr. Stan Fry, Dr. Charles Hennessey, Dr. Bruce Clarke, Dr. for families.

"Our goal is to provide health Clinic; Women and Children's education and connect these children" Medical Clinic, South Plains Health and their families to a medical Provider and St. Mary Family Health

"The main focus is on prevention," Carmen continued. "By working with various hospital districts in the Panhandle, we have been able to establish wellness programs for women and children in more than 30 communities. We teach disease prevention, spreading the message about the need to have medical and dental exams early, before serious health problems occur."

For example, by the time a child is 2 years old, only $250 is spent on well-child exams and immunizations. This compares with the $250,000 that it will cost to chronically treat a child inadequate nutrition that could be detected during a medical check-up.

annual community education event, the "Blooming Geranium Luncheon" at noon April 22 in the ballroom of Amarillo Country Club.

Keynote speaker, Dr. Henry Foster, founder of the "I Have a Future" teen pregnancy reduction program, will present "America's Children at Risk."

With almost 40 years of health care service, Dr. Foster is at the forefront of leading America to a healthy future. His "I Have a Future" program is designed to help youth realize academic and career goals, achieve positive self-esteem, learn appropriate social skills and have healthier behaviors.

Is teenage pregnancy in the Texas Panhandle a problem? You bet it is.

Maria Smith, director of 2CARE for Kids, explained the project will work closely with agencies that interact with these children and their families such as schools, county extension agents, pharmacies, churches, day care centers and state agencies that make sure all Texas Health Step families are able to access the system.

"We will hold child health promotion events that will coincide with specific awareness months such as prenatal health and child abuse prevention," Smith said. "And every child who comes through the program will receive a t-shirt as well."

2CARE for Kids is a project funded by the Texas Health Steps program at the Texas Department of Health. The Coalition of Health Services assists families in locating medical and dental providers, scheduling appointments, arranging transportation and making referrals for needed services.

*Ninety percent of teenagers who continue their pregnancies keep their babies. Although it is not inevitable, daughters of teenage mothers are more likely to become teen mothers themselves.

*Seventy-seven percent of teenage pregnancies are unintended; many are accompanied by significant emotional distress and family disruption. Due to stress and the immaturity of teen mothers, cases of infant neglect and abuse are more prevalent.

*Studies have linked a high risk of juvenile delinquency to children of teen parents.

Teenage pregnancy not only affects the health and future of mother and child, it also imposes enormous tax burdens on the public. Consider these figures:

*Each year Texans spend an estimated $447 million Medicaid dollars for child deliveries. Approximately $118 million (26.5%) tax dollars were spend on teen deliveries.

*It cost the state an estimated

$9,943 in the first year to provide AFDC, Food Stamps and Medicaid benefits to an eligible mother after the birth of her child. Approximately $6,987 of this cost was for delivery and newborn care.

*Nearly 75 percent of all unwed teenage mothers will receive welfare assistance within four years of giving birth. Texas spends approximately $33.5 million in AFDC payments for teenage mothers and their children.

*Forty percent of Texas mothers and 33 percent of Texas fathers with children under the age of 6 have not finished high school, Pregnancy or marriage is one of the three leading reasons teens drop out of school. The drop out problem is projected to cost Texans over $17 billion dollars.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I love your column.
I get it in the Newark Star-Ledger.
I went to my parents' house for a holiday visit and my mother, Angie DeLuca, had a great idea for drying lettuce. She washed the romaine leaves and put them in a pillowcase. She tied a loose knot and put the pillowcase in the washing machine on the spin cycle. It really worked great. - Lois Huntenburg, Madison, N.J.

CAN OPENER BLADES Dear Heloise: I have a hand-held can opener that I wash each time I use it. The cutter blade would not cut open a can very well. So, I took nonstick vegetable spray and sprayed the cutter blades and now the can opener works like a new one. - Helen Cole, Ashville, Ohio

Cancer experts now say tomatoes appear to be 'looking good' as cancer preventers to eat fruits and vegetables. Now they are trying to answer the next obvious question: "Which ones?"

They are still far from having a firm answer. But studies presented at a cancer conference this week suggest tomatoes are looking good. So are oranges and several other kinds of food, including tofu and spaghetti.

Teasing out specifics about the health effects of different kinds of on health.

However, scientists are trying. lung cancer victims. And tomatoes appear to be the food of the moment.

Last year, Harvard researchers SAN DIEGO (AP) - For years, reported that men who get at least 10 cancer experts have been telling folks servings a week of tomato-based foods are up to 45 percent less likely than usual to develop prostate cancer.

No one knows why, but it could be because tomatoes are the primary source in the diet of a nutrient called lycopene. Now a team from Columbia University has preliminary evidence that this may be especially important for smokers.

Dr. Jean G. Ford and others looked at levels of various vitamins and other foods is difficult, in part because it nutrients in the blood of 204 people, it raises questions about whether may take many years for a particular half of whom had lung cancer. They nutrient to have even a small effect found concentrations of lycopene were was significantly lower in the they found that those with low levels of lycopene have triple the cancer risk of those with high levels. The association was especially strong in people currently smoking. The lower their lycopene levels, the higher their cancer risk.

Ford cautioned that low lycopene levels might be a result, rather than a cause, of lung cancer. Nevertheless, the findings raise the possibility - still to be proven - that this nutrient might somehow help protect smokers from the cancerous effects of cigarettes.

"This is a preliminary report, but there are dietary risk factors that we need to take a closer look at for lung cancer," Ford said.

Among other reports on the effects of food released Sunday at the American Association for Cancer Research meeting:

-Animal studies suggest that orange juice protects lab animals from cancer. In an effort to find out why this might be, Dr. Najla Guthrie and others from the University of Western Ontario evaluated limonoids, the bitter stuff in limes, lemons, grapefruit and oranges. They found that a particular limonoid called nomilin was an especially powerful inhibitor of cancer in the test tube.

-Dr. Rashmi Sinha of the National Cancer Institute looked for links between meat consumption and lung cancer in 1,216 women in Missouri. Women who ate a lot of red meat were twice as likely as those who had it sparingly to get lung cancer, but fish and chicken had no apparent -People in Mediterranean countries have traditionally had relatively low risks of colon cancer, and some wonder whether pasta might be the reason. In a study at the University of Florence, Dr. Giovanna Caderni compared the effects of sugar and pasta in rats. She found that pasta-eating rodents had a lower risk of getting precancerous polyps. -People with high intake of tofu and other foods made from soybeans also seem less likely to get some kinds of cancer. To test this, Dr. Jin-Rong Zhou from Beth Israel-Deaconess Medical Center in Boston fed soy concentrate to mice with bladder cancer. He found their tumors were about one-third smaller than would have been expected.

America's Drug Problem Is Not As Big As You Think.

It can start as a dare. Or youthful curiosity. Or it may be a way to escape problems at home. Whatever the reason, studies show that an alarming number of young children are trying drugs. Unfortunately, too many parents still do not believe that their children are at risk.

The truth is, it's never too early to start teaching your kids about the dangers of drugs.

If you are not sure how to talk to them, call the Texas Prevention Partnership at 1-800-269-4237 and ask for the free booklet called "Growing Up Drug-Free- A Parent's Guide to Prevention. Call today because if you don't take care of little problems, they can easily grow into big ones

Can you remember what you ate, what medicine you took or any change in your usual routine in the 24 hours before your lip swelled? Be on the lookout for the usual suspects, including nuts, shellfish and aspirin.

If the cause search is fruitless, antihistamine pills often can control the swelling. I know you had little luck with them in the past, but now there is a slew of new ones. Zyrtec is an example.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/ products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

-- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no

-- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condi-

-- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Bill would allow state to regulate private jails

AUSTIN (AP) - Last August, law enforcement officials were shocked to learn that two Oregon sex offenders had escaped from a private jail in Houston.

Officials were unaware until the escape that the facility, originally housing Immigration and Naturalization Service detainees, was holding some 200 convicted sex offenders from Oregon.

Under a bill approved Tuesday by the Senate Criminal Justice Committee, private jails holding out-of-state prisoners would be regulated by the state for the first time.

The private jails or the state sending prisoners to Texas also could be required to pay any costs associated with tracking down an out-of-state escapee under the bill by Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown.

The measure was approved 6-0 by the committee and sent to the full Senate for consideration.

"This bill will provide that private facilities accepting prisoners from outside the state must follow state regulations and guidelines to assure the safety of Texas citizens," said Brown, R-Lake Jackson.

loophole existed in the first place."

Under the bill, a private jail would have to contract with the county or municipality in which it was located, and the county or municipality would "Frankly, I am amazed that this then contract with the state sending in prisoners.

Survivors gather at memorial for disaster victims

By JOAN THOMPSON ciated Press Writer

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP)

Georgybel Legendre remembers crawling with co-workers from the rubble of their collapsed building.

Outside in the parking lot, cars were crushed or damaged. A large piece of steel had pierced the steel and oak floor of her station wagon, ng it to the ground like a ated butterfly

The 21-year-old lab worker tugged it out and began ferrying injured people to hospitals.

That was 50 years ago today in what was to become the nation's worst industrial disaster.

"I grew up in a hurry that day," Legendre said. "I think you have to have a pretty strong faith in God to get you through days like that."

This morning, she and other survivors were among about 4,000 people who gathered at a high school football stadium for a memorial service to mark the 50th anniversary of the disaster that killed at least 576 and injured about 5,000.

At 9:12 a.m. on April 16, 1947, a fire aboard the docked S.S. Grandcamp, a French freighter, ignited its cargo of 2,300 tons of ammonium nitrate fertilizer.

This morning at 9:12, under blue skies and a few wispy clouds on a day not unlike that Wednesday half a century ago, there was a moment a silence, then a single bell began tolling.

"It's been a hard week," said Mattie Lou Higgs, wiping her eyes, a greatdaughter at her side. Her husband, Marion Donnis Westermoreland, was one of 27 firemen killed in the blast.

The ammonium nitrate was the same substance used in the Oklahoma City bombing. However, in 1947, the fertilizer was bound for Europe to help farmers recover from World War

Investigators would theorize that a discarded cigarette caused the fire that burned the 100-pound paper bags of fertilizer.

The powerful blast caused other explosions and fires in the huge petrochemical complex of the Galveston Bay city southeast of Houston.

Windows were broken up to 25 miles away. Two small airplanes were blown out of the sky. A huge 15-foot tidal wave tossed a 150-foot-long barge 200 feet away onto land.

Chunks of steel, like those that pierced Legendre's car, rained down on the town of about 17,000.

Monsanto Chemical Co., where Legendre and her father worked, experienced the greatest loss. Some 227 employees and contractors were killed.

The S.S. High Flyer, another nearby freighter loaded with ammonium nitrate, caught fire and blew up 16 hours after the Grand-camp.

The remains of 63 people never were identified and were buried in a graveyard at the edge of town. Others had been swallowed up without a

For six weeks, it seemed like that would be the fate of Legendre's father.

She and her mother repeatedly visited the morgues. On long, sleepless nights, they drove around town in Legendre's damaged station wagon, its windshield gone.

They later identified her father's remains by his pocketwatch, fob and the pale pink thread Legendre's mother had used to mend his pants.

Legendre said the disaster did not make her bitter but taught her to value

"You just have to take what life deals out to you and go on," she said.

Legendre and others see the 50th nniversary as a chance for closure. The three-day commemoration will include a children's parade and a program to thank those people and agencies who pitched in 50 years ago as volunteers or sent food, clothing and donations.

"People came in to help that weren't asked to," she said. "They just came in and did it."

The aging survivors, who have a bond similar to combat unit veterans, also will get to tell their stories, says Charles T. Doyle, mayor of the city that now is home to about 42,000 people.

"In the future we will read about it and see some film of it but we won't really have those storytellers around," Doyle said. "They experienced a terrible tragedy together and they survived, and they survived with a lot of help from a lot of people."

Today has been declared a local holiday. The 470 city workers get the

'They wouldn't have jobs if it wasn't for the survivors who stuck it out and rebuilt," Doyle said.

Ministers preach from the pulpit about courage, faith and love of humanity, but the people of Texas City and those who came to their aid put those qualities into action in 1947, Doyle said.

"I think this was the best sermon ever given by all those who experienced that tragedy," he said. "They showed their courage, showed the faith they had in almighty God."

Potato market has growers on edge

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) - The persisting depression in the potato market has Idaho growers on edge as they make their crop plans for 1997. Potatoes held in storage from 1996 are bringing as little as 30 cents per hundred pounds. Even the biggest and best potatoes are selling for less than $2 a hundredweight.

But Dave Smith, president of the Idaho Grower-Shippers Association, is not betting those conditions will necessarily hold down 1997 potato

"I don't see a lot of people working spud ground," Smith said. "But we in Idaho make a mistake if we publicize the fact that we're cutting back acreage.

Still, Smith believes pessimism characterizes the mood of those who grow Idaho's largest cash crop. A year ago, potatoes were selling at $6, $8 and even $10 a hundredweight. Then prices began sliding in May and by July the bottom was falling out, spurred mainly by fear of a big fall

And it was the biggest ever. "There's a tremendous oversupply, not only in Idaho but across the country," Smith said. He hopes the poor market holds down potato planting and farmers shift to wheat, barley and hay, which are still getting good, if not spectacular, prices.

In northern Maine, tons and tons of unsold potatoes are sitting in fields, and there is concern that if left to rot, they could cause diseases threatening future crops. Most of the potatoes are still marketable, but officials estimate that as much as 500 million pounds will have to be disposed of this spring.

The problem is that potato farmers generally can't afford to dispose of the excess and there is no government money to help.

It costs Maine farmers $6 to produce 100 pounds of potatoes, which now are selling for $1.80, compared with $8 or $9 a year ago.

Dave Beesley, president of the Idaho Potato Farmers Association, worked through the winter to organize a grower cooperative that could control enough of the crop to have some bargaining power that would force up prices at least somewhat. That becomes especially They're marking up potatoes the way important in light of the comparatively high price consumers are paying

As brutal as this is for farmers, there's folks out there making money," Beesley said. "It's not the packers. The brokers are getting a cut. But the real profit is in the produce operating in an economic system that departments in the grocery stores. ... is only half-free, Patterson said.

Short of organizing, there is little growers can do about the spread between the farm and retail prices of potatoes, says Agricultural Extension economist Paul Patterson.

The farmers' biggest problem is

Names in the News

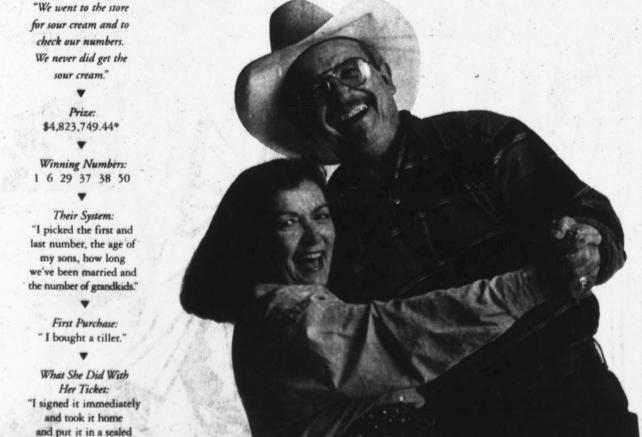

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) -"Fargo" stars Frances McDormand and William Macy share more than Oscar nominations for their roles in the Joel and Ethan Coen movie: Both are alumni of little Bethany College.

Ms. McDormand, who played the calm, pregnant Sheriff Marge Gunderson, has been nominated for best actress. Macy has been nominated for best supporting actor for playing Minneapolis car dealer Jerry Lundegaard.

Ms. McDormand came to the Brooke County school from Pennsylvania in 1975 and graduated in 1979. She won leading roles in college productions including "The Three Sisters."

Macy of Cumberland, Md., came to Bethany in 1968. He soon fell in love with theater and gave up plans for a veterinary degree. He left in 1970 to join a Washington, D.C., production of "Jesus Christ Superstar."

When I acted was the only time I felt I was achieving success," he said. "Besides, the theater women were much better looking."

"I saw that all six numbers matched, and I just went to dancing."
