$86.2 billion budget for biennium goes to governor's desk

By JUAN B. ELIZONDO Jr.
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Texans' tax dollars would pay for more than half of $86.2 billion in state spending over the next two years under a bill sent to Gov. George W. Bush.

The 1998-99 biennial budget, which got final approval from lawmakers Thursday, includes small pay raises for state employees and higher spending on education and prisons.

It's awaiting a final test: Gov. George W. Bush's consideration.

"Governor Bush congratulates members of the Legislature for preserving $1 billion for property tax cuts for homeowners and for putting the majority of new money into our schools," said Karen Hughes, Bush's spokeswoman. "We will be reviewing the budget carefully during the next several weeks."

The budget, $47.9 billion in general state funds and $24.6 billion in federal funds, sets caps on spending. The remainder comes from dedicated and special state funds.

In recent years, agencies have spent less than allowed, sending leftover money back to state coffers.

That money, more than $1 billion from the current budget, is being used to increase Texans' homestead property tax exemptions by $10,000 a year. That amounts to a roughly $140 school property tax cut for most homeowners.

The budget awaiting Bush's signature covers spending from Sept. 1 to Aug. 31, 1998, the state's 98-99 fiscal years. It's 6.8 percent higher than the budget period ending Aug. 31.

"It is a lean budget, but it focuses on the needs of the state," said Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo and a member of a House-Senate committee that negotiated the proposal.

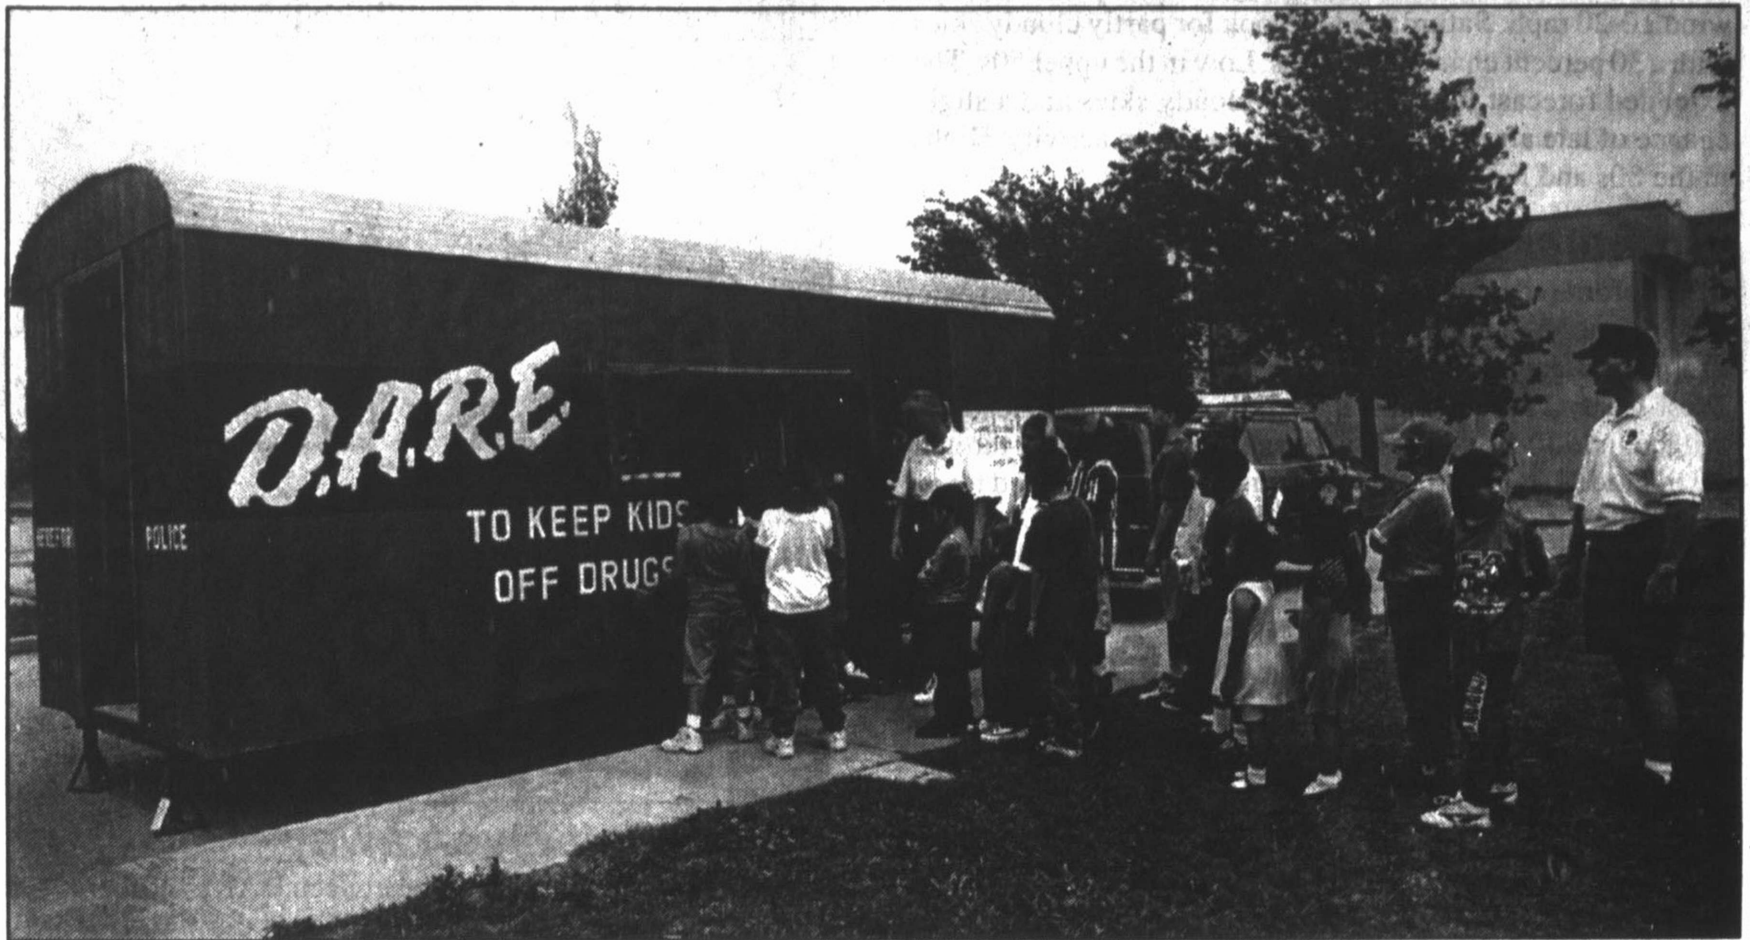

"It focuses on preventing problems and solving problems," she said.

The employees' pay raise, the first in four years, would give about 222,000 workers a $100-a-month increase, starting Sept. 1.

The budget also includes

- Raises of more than $1,000 a month for the governor, attorney general, land commissioner, agriculture commissioner, comptroller and the three railroad commissioners - all officials elected statewide. Bush has said he would refuse his raise.
- $32 million for the governor's proposed reading initiative for youngsters.
- A new higher-education funding formula designed in part to encourage professors to teach undergraduate courses.

(Ed. Note: A breakdown of state spending for the two-year period may be found on Page 2.)

TAAS success draws congratulations from officials at both local, state levels

AUSTIN (AP) - Giving credit to Texas students for buckling down on the statewide academic skills test, Education Commissioner Mike Moses has announced improved scores in nearly every area for the third straight year.

"The students are the ones who take the test, and the students have applied themselves and have shown improvement, and I appreciate their efforts," Moses said Thursday.

Social studies was the only area in which student performance was lower than last year, according to results of the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills administered April 29-May 2 in grades three through eight. Social studies is tested in the eighth grade.

Students made strides overall on reading and math tests, given in grades three through eight; writing, given in grades four and eight; and science, which students take in the eighth grade.

In those subjects, students improved over last year's performance in every group and grade level except one. Black fourth-graders' passing rate stayed the same in writing, at 76 percent.

"Texas students still have room to grow, but ... trend lines continue to look good," Moses said.

Teachers have focused on areas in which students have been weak academically, said Moses, who also praised other school staff, administrators and parents.

"This is a partnership between the home and the school. The parent plays the most vital role in encouraging the child to do well," he said.

A total of 1.6 million students in grades three through eight were tested this year. That's 100,000 more than the 1.5 million tested in 1996. Students can be exempted from the TAAS if their English is limited or if they are enrolled in special education programs. Exemptions decreased in both areas, and fewer students were absent on TAAS testing days.

Gains by minority students exceeded those by white students in a number of areas, heartening officials who have been concerned about a performance gap between student groups.

Test scores on the TAAS are the backbone of the state's accountability system for schools, which also uses dropout and attendance rates to assess performance. School rankings will be released later this year.

Moses particularly praised this year's results in math, where students overall in the various grades have posted gains ranging from 19 to 24 percentage points since 1994. Math gains since last year range from 4 to 9 percentage points.

He said he hoped to see the same kind of improvement in reading, an area emphasized by state officials including Gov. George W. Bush.

As for social studies, Moses noted that this is only the second year that test was given. He added that officials are looking into the results.

The test includes Texas and American history. Moses said he has heard from one parent whose son hadn't studied Texas history because the family recently moved to the state.

Economic growth surges during 1997 first quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's economic growth surged at a 5.8 percent annual rate during the first three months of this year, the best in a decade and even better than the government's first estimate.

The seasonally adjusted annual growth rate in the gross domestic product hasn't been higher since the fourth quarter of 1987.

Today's report by the Commerce Department marks a slight improvement over last month's 5.6 percent estimate. U.S. companies sold more exports than originally thought and businesses built their inventories at a faster rate than first calculated.

Those two changes more than offset a downward revision in consumer spending from a 6.4 percent rate to a still quite-strong 5.7 percent rate.

The extraordinary growth in the first quarter pushed up after-tax corporate profits by 4.5 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $426.5 billion, an all-time high. It was the largest gain in a year.

That in turn has produced a bull market on Wall Street with major stock indices rising to new records this week.

The surprising growth surge in the first quarter is too good to last and analysts have found the seeds of future moderation in the quarter's big inventory buildup. Because shelves

Judge tells jury to consider only evidence in deliberating guilt/innocence of McVeigh

By PAUL QUEARY
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) - More than two years after a truck bomb tore through the Oklahoma City federal building and killed 168 people, a jury of seven men and five women began deliberating today whether Army veteran Timothy McVeigh is to blame.

"Members of the jury, you will at this time retire and begin your deliberations," U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch said after an hour of legal instructions.

Matsch urged the sequestered panel to set aside sympathy, prejudice and public opinion as they deliberate the case of the worst act of terrorism on U.S. soil.

"You must completely disregard anything you have read, seen or heard outside the courtroom related to this trial," Matsch said. "You must not allow public opinion to play any role in your deliberations."

Matsch then read from the 11-count indictment that charges McVeigh with conspiracy and murder in the April 19, 1995, federal building blast. And he told them to set aside McVeigh's possible punishments if convicted, which include the death penalty.

"Under your oath as jurors, you cannot allow a consideration of the punishment ... to influence your verdict or even enter into your deliberations," Matsch said.

When the judge asked if the sequestered jurors felt well enough to deliberate, the all nodded. One, a man, turned to the juror next to him and grinned sheepishly.

After the jury retired for deliberations, McVeigh was smiling as he stood and shook hands with lawyer Rob Nigh. Another lawyer, Jeralyn Merritt, patted him on the back.

Marshals then escorted the 29-year-old Gulf War veteran through a door to his cell. He walked out with his hands buried in the pockets of his khaki pants.

In closing arguments Thursday, McVeigh attorney Stephen Jones also pleaded with jurors to rely on reason, not compassion. He urged them not to let sympathy rule this case like race related the O.J. Simpson murder trial.

"All of us understand the victims' plight. They are not the property of any side to this lawsuit. Their collective loss belongs to the country," Jones said.

Prosecutor Scott Mendeloff followed Jones' summation with the government's rebuttal, the final argument jurors heard.

"That fresh-faced young man over there is a mass murderer," Mendeloff said, pointing across the courtroom at McVeigh.

Earlier, Assistant U.S. Attorney Larry Mackey described how McVeigh set the fuse on the truck bomb within sight of the federal building's day-care center, with only a "wall of windows" to protect the children from the blast.

Speaking just above a whisper, Mackey looked at the jury and said, "It is now time to render justice. ... On behalf of the United States, I ask that you render a verdict of guilty."

By the end of his statement, one juror and more than dozen bombing survivors and relatives were crying.

The defense's sharpest challenge was aimed at the FBI crime laboratory. FBI chemist Stephen Burmeister testified that he found ammonium nitrate crystals on a scrap of Ryder truck panel and traces of explosives on McVeigh's clothing.

"This is a lab without a rudder, without a sail and without a captain," defense attorney Christopher Tritico said. "But this ship is making judgment calls that affect people's lives."

Tritico asked how ammonium nitrate crystals could have remained on the truck panel after heavy rain fell on Oklahoma City that night.

"Magic, magic, more like smoke and mirrors," Tritico said.

During his summation, Jones contended that the prosecution's star witnesses, Michael and Lori Fortier, implicated McVeigh to save themselves from prosecution and they hoped to get rich by selling their story.

"They're not believable," Jones said. "Put everything they said aside. Forget them."

He stressed that no witnesses saw McVeigh building a bomb or saw him in Oklahoma City the day of the bombing. He also attacked the Border Patrol, Mexican agents break up ring smuggling illegals

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - U.S. and Mexican agents have announced that they have broken up an international ring that smuggled more than 400 illegal immigrants a month into the United States.

The U.S. Border Patrol said in Laredo that the group had as many as 40 employees in a pipeline that stretched from deep in South America to the U.S. East Coast and used South Texas cities as major staging areas for its clients.

"This was a major, major organization," said Alfonso Moreno, head of intelligence for Laredo sector for the U.S. Border Patrol.

The San Antonio Express-News reported today that the group, which agents called "the Pena Organization," was blamed for the deaths of two undocumented immigrants whose bodies were found last July behind a service station at Buda, about 10 miles south of Austin.

"These guys were the top for distributing aliens in North America," an unidentified Border Patrol agent told the newspaper.

"We saw them put 4- or 5-year-old kids in those trucks," said the agent, whom the newspaper described as an anti-smuggling specialist. "These guys are career smugglers."

The operation "had no regard whatsoever" for the lives or safety of those it charged up to $8,000 apiece to be smuggled into this country, the agent said.

The smugglers used homes, apartments and motels in Laredo, San Antonio and other Texas cities as safe houses, where undocumented immigrants were kept briefly before being scattered across the country, the agent said.

The standard fee was $6,000 for passage to New York, New Jersey or Massachusetts, although it could be as much as $8,000 in some cases.

The two who died last summer allegedly were among 40 people the smugglers had packed in a tractor-trailer on their way to other cities. Authorities said the men died inside the truck, where temperatures could have exceeded 100 degrees.

"Anytime you have a tragedy like that, the agents really go after it," Moreno said of the Buda incident.

Accused of heading the ring were Carlos Javier Pena Gutierrez, 41, and Hector Lozano Barrientos, 32, both of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. Carlos Pena and Lozano were arrested about two weeks ago by Mexican federal judicial police and are behind bars at the state prison in Piedras Negras, across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass.

All told, U.S. authorities have arrested 150 undocumented immigrants and 17 members of the smuggling organization.

DENVER - After prosecutors tried to press emotional buttons one last time, Timothy McVeigh's attorneys hammered away at the government's scientific evidence and urged jurors to rely on reason - not compassion for the victims. Water legislation may still be enacted

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Legislation that would give Texas its first water conservation plan has been thrown a life preserver.

The bill, the top priority of Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock in the wake of last year's drought, appeared in jeopardy early Thursday after a conference committee of House and Senate members butted heads over a provision regulating interbasin transfers - the transfer of water from one area of the state to another. House members of the panel had threatened to kill the bill, known as Senate Bill 1, if a proposal wasn't adopted that would greatly reduce the incentives for such transfers.

Several attempts by Senate members were made to modify the House's stance, but the House contingent, led by Rep. Ron Lewis, D-Mauriceville, repeatedly rejected those proposals after Lewis voiced an approach of, "All or nothing." Lawmakers downplayed the stalemate after voting to approve the bill and send it to the full House and Senate for consideration.

"Nobody lost in this," said Lewis, the chairman of the five House members on the committee. "Let's don't look at it as winner or loser. It's a great bill and interbasin transfers are a small portion of the whole bill."

Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, the chairman of the five Senate members on the panel, said, "I don't view it as the House or the Senate prevailing. I view it as the people of Texas prevailing."

Bullock said, "I think this is one of the most significant pieces of legislation in the last 25 or 30 years because on six previous occasions the Legislature has failed to move forward in any respect."

Texas is one of only three of the 12 Western states without a state drought plan. New Mexico and Wyoming are the others.

Last year's drought resulted in federal disaster relief for 95 percent of the state's 254 counties and cost the Texas economy $5 billion.

Under the bill, local water districts and irrigation districts would submit to a regional planning group designated by the Texas Water Development Board. A committee representing the regional planning group would then come up with a water conservation plan for the region.

The combination of the regional plans would form a statewide plan.

The biggest sticking point in the bill was the House's demand that "junior water rights" be assigned to any water involved in an interbasin transfer.

Under current law, those with the longest-held, or senior, water rights are able to collect water from those with the shortest-held, or junior, water rights in times of drought. If someone buys senior water rights, they are entitled to the privileges of the original owner.

Under the House proposal, the right to pump water still could be sold but the purchaser wouldn't have senior status. For example, someone who has held a water right since 1910 could, in time of drought, draw water from someone who bought a water right in 1997.

Supporters of interbasin transfers said the House provision on junior water rights takes away all incentives for a transfer.

They say no one would purchase a water right and invest millions of dollars to build a pipeline to transfer the water if the water they just purchased would be the first to be taken away during a drought.

"It's an important protection for the basin of origin," Lewis said.

The Senate wanted to simply leave the fate of interbasin transfers up to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission. Under the bill, the commission would do studies to make sure the benefits of the receiving basin didn't outweigh the detriments of the giving basin.

Jarrell residents feel comfort from wide variety of sources

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

JARRELL, Texas (AP) - From nearby towns and faraway places, from old friends and total strangers, messages of sympathy and support are pouring in for victims of Tuesday's killer tornado.

Offers of food, clothes, blood, money, prayers and even "strong backs" arrived via the Internet on Cox Interactive Media's World Wide Web site.

Many were deeply personal and religiously inspired. One reflected a touching regard for people in need. In a surprising burst of generosity, a vacationing Texas family pulled off Interstate 35 Thursday, drove to the Jarrell Crisis Center and donated $300.

Penny Thomas, a crisis center director, identified the family as the David Hunts of the Dallas-Fort Worth area and quoted young William Hunt as saying: "Dad told us that we need to give this money for our vacation to the families who will never be able to take vacations with their families again."

Mrs. Thomas said the Hunts heard of the storm victims' plight on the radio as they drove south toward San Antonio.

"I was in tears," Mrs. Thomas said. "It meant a lot to me. How many people raise their children to put others first?"

Meanwhile, the Internet was abuzz, and messages were being printed out and posted on a makeshift bulletin board in the school cafeteria that serves as the crisis center.

From Sioux City: "All we can give from Iowa here is blood at the blood bank and our sympathies and prayers."

From Austin: "Remember, the sky may be at fault, but the sky can also bring sunsets, rainbows and stars. Hang on, rebuild and be strong."

From a fellow Texan: "Please let me know what I can do to help you. I have a 4-wheel-drive truck and a strong back."

From Urbana, Illinois: "The whole country is crying for your loved ones. You are not alone."

A number of the e-mail messages were from survivors of other natural disasters, including the 1970 Lubbock tornado and the 1979 twister in Wichita Falls.

From San Antonio, "Jenny" revealed that she was watching a tornado disaster movie on television at the time of the real tornado.

"I was alone at home the night of the storms, watching 'Twister,'" she said. "I was so afraid that a tornado was going to come crashing through the wall."

testimony of the witness who identified McVeigh as the man who rented the truck.

Raising the issue of a severed left leg found in the rubble, Jones suggested the real bomber died in the blast. "That's certainly the experience with other terrorists," he said.

Prosecutors said the defense failed to damage an interlocking case built out of evidence from diverse sources.

Mackey said McVeigh was either the bomber or "the unluckiest man in the world," who happened to be arrested 75 miles from the bomb scene carrying literature announcing his intent, with explosives residue on his clothing.

McVeigh's own writings and anti-government literature showed he was motivated by rage over the deadly 1993 government siege near Waco, Texas, Mackey said. And he said McVeigh was fixated on "The Turner Diaries," a racist novel that describes the terrorist bombing of a federal building.

Mackey used McVeigh's fondness for revolutionary rhetoric against the defendant, saying the victims were not "tyrants whose blood had to be spilled to preserve liberty."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have read your column for as long as I can remember, and I've learned so much from you. And now I would like to pass along some of what I have learned to others. Please print this essay, which someone left in my mailbox. It has inspired me to do a good deed as part of my daily life. I hope it will inspire others to do the same: Conspiracy of Kindness

A woman pulls her car alongside a toll booth and says, "I am also paying for the six cars behind me," and she does. One after another, the next six cars pull up, and the collector says, "Someone ahead of you has already paid your fare. Have a nice day."

The woman who paid the toll for strangers had read a note taped to her friend's refrigerator. It said, "Practice random kindness and senseless acts of beauty." The friend had seen the message on a warehouse wall and couldn't get it out of her mind. She took a pen out of her purse and wrote the saying on the back of an envelope. "I thought it was a message from above," she said.

Her husband, a teacher, was so struck by it that he posted it on the bulletin board for his students, one of whom is my daughter. She passed a copy on to me. The next day, I asked our local paper to run it, admitting I didn't know the source. Two days later, I heard from a writer in California. She had written on a placemat in a Chinese restaurant. "If you think there should be more of something, do it randomly. Kindness can be just as contagious as violence and hate." She was unable to remember who she had heard it from, but it appealed to her.

Now the message is spreading. You see it on bumper stickers and business cards and other unlikely places. As it spreads, the mission is accomplished. A passerby may clear the neighbor's driveway, mow his lawn or trim his hedges. A man plants daffodils in a drab place for others to enjoy. It's a positive disorder and a sweet disturbance.

When you participate, you feel as if your own troubles have been lifted and the world is a better place. You can't be the recipient of a good deed without it altering your outlook on life. If you were one of the six commuters whose fares were paid by the person ahead, what might you do for the next person you meet?

Like all revolutions, kindness begins slowly and with a single act. Do it, and see where it leads. Thanks for printing this, Ann. -- R.C., Carbondale, Ill.

Dear Carbondale: Thanks for your wisdom. Your suggestion of random acts of kindness is inspiring, but if you are in Cincinnati, here's one you should avoid: putting quarters in the meter to prevent some stranger from getting a ticket. A grandmother in Cincinnati did just that and was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct for obstructing official police business. It seems that putting money in an expired meter is against the law in Cincinnati. Will someone please explain this?

Dear Ann Landers: I have a suggestion for people who visit a mother with a newborn baby when there is an older child in the family. Of course, they should bring a gift for the baby, and of course, they should "ooh" and "aah." But there is a way to help the older child feel less pain at not being "Mommy's baby" anymore. Greet the older child first and by name. Say something like this: "I came to see you and your new baby. I brought this gift for you and this one for you to give to your new sister (or brother). Open yours first!"

The older child is pleased to receive a gift and then delighted at giving your gift to the baby. Everyone is happy. Try this. It works. -- Bearer of Gifts in Dallas

Dear Dallas: A generous and simple solution to a sticky problem. Thank you for providing it.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Here is one of my favorite "hands free" tips. It is a great way to carry paper towels around while cleaning mirrors and other surfaces in the home.

Many of the purses I buy have a detachable shoulder strap. I put one of these straps through the cylinder of my paper towels and connect the two end hooks together. I then put the strap on my shoulder (across my body) like a purse.

I can swing the paper towels to my side or to my back. The towels will roll and tear off as I need them and are easy to carry even while stepping up and down on my stepstool, which I must do when cleaning windows.

Thanks for your column. It's both helpful and interesting. -- Gail Bryant, Texarkana, Texas

WORK GLOVES

Dear Heloise: While doing chores around our small farm, I was always wearing holes in the fingers of my right-hand work glove, which I would then discard. Eventually I had several unpaired left-hand gloves.

I discovered that if I turned a left-hand glove inside out, it became a right-hand glove and could be used as a mate with one of my extra left-hand gloves! I used needle-nosed pliers to grasp the inside of the fingers to easily reverse them. -- Jan Borgman, Chicago Park, Calif.

MAKESHIFT TOY BOX

Dear Heloise: Four years ago, my husband suggested we make a toy box for children who visited our home so that they would not be bored.

We took a sturdy box and cut the top flaps off, then we wrapped it inside and out with kiddie paper. Then we bought small toys (for different age groups) such as cars, puzzles, coloring books, playing cards and dolls.

Now, when children visit they are delighted and feel special and they always find something in the toy box to enjoy. -- Kathryn Dreux, Fairfax, Va.

Red Cross responds to Texas tornadoes

WASHINGTON -- In the wake of devastating tornadoes that cut a swath across central Texas, Red Cross disaster volunteers and paid staff responded immediately to meet victims needs.

Professional Red Cross mental health workers have been dispatched from across Texas to meet the needs of families and individuals affected by the destruction and many casualties.

Red Cross staff opened two centers Tuesday night to shelter those seeking comfort and other Red Cross assistance. Most victims are staying with friends and relatives in the area.

Kitchens have been opened to prepare food for those affected and for emergency responders. Emergency Response Vehicles that will be used to provide mobile feeding are en route from Dallas, Abilene, Corpus Christi and San Antonio. Others have been put on alert.

Red Cross damage assessment teams are surveying the affected areas to determine the extent and parameter.

The Red Cross is not a government agency. All Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary gifts of time and money from the American people.

Rockets blow lead, lose to Utah in NBA playoffs

HOUSTON (AP) - The Utah Jazz showed the Houston Rockets something about comebacks.

The Rockets, accustomed to being a team that rallies to win, learned what it felt like to blow a 13-point lead with 6:46 to play as John Stockton hit a 3-pointer at the final buzzer to eliminate the Rockets from the playoffs, 103-100 Thursday night.

The Rockets went into the game with an 11-2 record under coach Rudy Tomjanovich in games in which they faced elimination, but the Jazz made them pay for a fourth-quarter swoon.

The Rockets built a 90-77 lead midway through the fourth quarter before Stockton and the Jazz went to work and kept the Rockets from returning to the NBA Finals for the third time in four years.

"It's so tough to lose, especially when we played so well," Hakeem Olajuwon said. "We had to win the game and we had it in control. We just let it get away."

Stockton scored 13 of the Jazz's final 15 points and had 25 for the game. He also had two assists on 3-pointers to have a had in Utah's final 19 points.

"I don't think we saw it quick enough," Clyde Drexler said of Stockton's game-winner. "I didn't see the release, but I saw the end of it."

The Jazz took the series 4-2 by getting the first road victory in the series.

"This series didn't come down to that one shot," Charles Barkley said. "They won 64 games for a reason. They were the best team in the West all season. I'll be a man, we lost to a better team."

The Rockets took the early lead with a 15-1 first-quarter run and led 49-43 at halftime.

The Rocket beat the Jazz in the playoffs in both of their championship years of 1994 and 1995.

"The bottom line is we didn't make the plays we made all year," Tomjanovich said. "We went to everybody, the high percentage shots that we made all year, but they made the stops."

The loss meant another year without a championship ring for Barkley, who came to the Rockets in a huge offseason trade that was supposed to return the Rockets to the finals.

But Barkley gave tribute to the Jazz as a team and to Stockton for his final decisive minutes.

"You see why John Stockton is one of the five best players I've ever played against," Barkley said. "That guy is as tough as nails. Obviously the best player was John Stockton."

"He finished it off like a star should. He made all the plays down the stretch. Karl Malone deserved to be MVP, but he wouldn't be there without John Stockton."

Utah won the first two games of the series, and the Rockets won the next two. Utah's 96-91 victory on Tuesday night put the Rockets at elimination's door.

Drexler led the Rockets with 33 points, but it wasn't enough to save off the Jazz.

"I'm not ashamed to lose to the Utah Jazz. They deserved to win the game, they made the plays and we didn't," Tomjanovich said. "One more play and we win the game, but they made it and they won."

Ambold signs baseball letter of intent

Eric Ambold, Hereford High baseball pitcher, will soon be playing in the Jayhawk Conference. The three-year letterman signed a letter of intent Thursday to play for Independence College, a junior college located in Independence, Kan. Joining Ambold during the signing were, left to right, his parents, Eddie and Tammy Ambold; Travis Schulte, assistant HHS baseball coach; Pete Rodriguez, head Whiteface baseball coach; and assistant coach Grant Davis.

Four share Memorial Golf lead

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) - There was a point during the first round of the Memorial Tournament when Tiger Woods was nine strokes out of the lead.

Then, just like that, he made an eagle and a birdie, turning what could have been his worst round of the year into an even-par 72, six strokes behind Billy Andrade, Tim Herron, Jesper Parnevik and Glen Day.

On a wet day when soft, receptive greens made birdies plentiful, Scott Hoch was a stroke off the lead with a 67, while Phil Blackmar, Guy Boros and Ernie Els were at 68.

Jack Nicklaus, the 57-year-old founder of the Memorial and designer of the course, shot a 69.

Woods, however, was not able to exploit the friendly conditions as he struggled to find the level of play he had in his record-setting Masters victory last month.

"The swing is just a little too steep," Woods said. "I'll try to get it back before the Open," he said about the U.S. Open next month. "I hit a lot of shots off line to the right."

Woods' highest score this year was a 73 - twice - in the Players Championship, and his only score above 73 in 66 previous rounds as a pro was a 78 in the second round of the Tour Championship, a round he played just hours after his father was rushed to a hospital with chest pains.

Another player who struggled was just happy to be on the course. John Daly, playing his first competitive round since eight weeks of alcohol rehabilitation, shot an erratic 76.

"I was very rusty," Daly said. "It felt good to be back. It's kind of a tough golf course to come back for my first start, but I love playing here."

Andrade got to 7-under through 17 holes and had the lead alone, but fell into a tie when he hit his second shot into the trees on No. 18 and bogeyed.

Parnevik managed his 66 following a transatlantic flight after missing the cut in the European PGA Championship in what he called "the worst I've played as a pro."

The Swede with the upturned hat was 1-over after three holes, then made birdies on seven of the next 12 holes.

Herron, the roly-poly power hitter with the very descriptive nickname "Lumpy," had an rollicking round in which he made seven birdies, an eagle and three bogeys.

Alcott on top again

ST. LOUIS (AP) - One more win secures Amy Alcott's place in the LPGA Hall of Fame.

Not that there's much left to prove. She's won five majors and 29 tour events.

Thirty guarantees a spot in the Hall of Fame, and Alcott has been stuck at 29 since 1991.

The LPGA Hall of Fame is an exclusive club. Only 14 players are in the Hall, plus one honorary member, Dinah Shore.

Alcott, 41, certainly looked like a Hall of Fame golfer Thursday at Forest Hills Country Club. She missed only two fairways and sank putts of 40, 10, 35 and 8 feet.

Joining Alcott at the top was Jody Anschutz, who hasn't won since 1987.

Hiroimi Kobayashi, Penny Hammel and Laurel Kean are a stroke back with 69s. And lurking just two shots back are five players, including the top two money-winners this year, Annika Sorenstam and Karrie Webb. Also at 70 are Dottie Pepper, Nancy Harvey and Karen Weiss.

Anschutz also posted her first sub-70 round of the year. She has missed seven of 10 cuts, including her last four.

Hanzlik to be new coach of Denver team

DENVER (AP) - Bill Hanzlik has never been one to back down from a challenge, no matter how daunting. How else to explain his decision to become the Denver Nuggets' head coach?

Hanzlik, a scrawny 6-foot-7 player who nonetheless played all five positions during his NBA career, was sometimes matched defensively against such 7-footers as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Patrick Ewing, Ralph Sampson and Moses Malone - and more than held his own.

His tenacious defensive play frustrated all of them; Sampson even threw a punch at Hanzlik.

Now, Hanzlik is determined that the Nuggets make a similar stand against what initially figure to be towering odds.

Hanzlik - who has no head coaching experience but has been an assistant for six seasons, the most recent with the Atlanta Hawks - was named Thursday as the Nuggets' seventh head coach of the 1990s. He becomes the 14th coach in franchise history and the third former Nuggets player to coach the club, joining Larry Brown and Dan Issel.

He inherits a team that went through two coaches last season (Bernie Bickerstaff and Dick Motta) and finished 21-61 - just one game better than the worst record in franchise history.

Hanzlik reportedly agreed to a three-year, $2.75 million contract.

Hill, Gonzalez, Rodriguez pace Texas win

SEATTLE (AP) - The days of bitter defeat for the Texas Rangers at the Kingdome could be over.

The Rangers were the ones battering the Seattle Mariners on Thursday night.

Ken Hill (4-2) didn't give up an earned run in seven innings, making manager Johnny Oates beam appreciatively. Ivan Rodriguez and Juan Gonzalez backed Hill with home runs in an 8-2 victory.

The Rangers broke the game open by sending 10 men to the plate in the seventh inning for five runs against Jamie Moyer (4-2) and Scott Sanders.

The Rangers have been predictable in the Kingdome. By winning for only the third time in three years in Seattle, the defending AL West champs ended a six-game losing streak there.

Seattle had to settle for Joey Cora's streak-salvaging infield single with two outs in the ninth. He barely beat out a slow roller to shortstop Benji Gil, extending his hitting streak to 24 games.

Ivan Rodriguez hit his fourth homer of the season, in the first inning. Gonzalez led off the fourth with his ninth homer, tying it 2-2.

The Rangers took the lead in the sixth on Mike Devereaux's RBI single off shortstop Alex Rodriguez's glove.

Texas broke open the game with five runs in the seventh, chasing Moyer. Third baseman Brent Gates' throwing error gave the Rangers their fourth run, Will Clark and Dean Palmer followed with RBI doubles.

Bill Ripken had a sacrifice fly and Gil singled in a run.

The Mariners scored two unearned runs in the first for a 2-1 lead. Gil mishandled Ken Griffey Jr.'s grounder with two outs, and Seattle loaded the bases when Edgar Martinez and Rodriguez followed with singles. Jay Buhner then singled home both runs.

In other AL games, it was Anaheim over Oakland 7-1, Chicago White Sox 5, Boston 2 in 11 innings; New York Yankees 4, Toronto 0; and Milwaukee 7, Minnesota 4. Baltimore at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City were rained out.

Angels 7, Oakland 1
Garret Anderson and Gary DiSarcina had two RBIs apiece and

Allen Watson pitched seven strong innings Thursday night as the Angels topped Oakland 7-1 for their 13th win in 17 games.

The victory kept the Angels (27-23) a game behind first-place Texas (28-22), which beat Seattle 8-2. The Mariners are 27-25, while the Athletics are 21-33.

The lone A's run came on Geronimo Berroa's homer in the second. Mark McGwire, reunited with Bash Brother Jose Canseco this season, went 0-for-4 to end his streak of five straight games with at least two RBIs.

White Sox 5, Red Sox 2
Jorge Fabregas hit a two-run homer in a four-run 11th at Fenway Park as Chicago beat Boston, which got a two-out homer in the ninth from Mo Vaughn to tie the game at 1-1.

Albert Belle extended his hitting streak to 24 games, three less than Luke Appling's 61-year-old White Sox record, with a leadoff double in the fourth inning.

Yankees 4, Blue Jays 0
Tino Martinez hit his 20th homer and David Cone (6-3) struck out 12 as New York completed a two-game sweep of the Blue Jays at Toronto following a 1-6 homestand.

Martinez, who has three homers in his last three games, homered in the third after a run-scoring single in the first, giving him 56 RBIs - second best in the AL behind Griffey.

Cone went 7 2/3 innings and took over the AL strikeout lead with 97, one more than Seattle's Johnson.

Brewers 7, Twins 4
Jeremy Burnitz's two-run double highlighted a four-run fourth and Mark Loretta had a two-run homer as Milwaukee ended a three-game losing streak by winning for just the eighth time in 26 road games.

Astros, Kile whip Padres, 10-6

HOUSTON (AP) - Some managers might have pulled Darryl Kile when he struggled through a four-run inning as he did against the San Diego Padres in the fifth Thursday night.

Houston Astros manager Larry Dierker, however, thought it was one of Kile's better innings in a 10-6 victory.

Kile finished 5-0 with a 1.20 ERA in May. But he gave up twice as many runs in the fifth inning as he did the rest of the month, and Houston's big 9-1 lead appeared in jeopardy to everyone except Dierker.

"We talked about focus before he went out in the fifth because he had such a big lead," Dierker said. "I didn't think he lost focus then. He struck out the first guy and the next two guys got choppy hits and we made the error. It could have been a 1-2-3 inning.

Kile (6-2) ended up going seven innings, allowing five runs on eight hits and striking out a season-high nine.

Kile helped his own cause with a two-run double in the fourth inning, but then gave Dierker a fright when he slid home on a wild pitch that wasn't that wild. Kile scored but Dierker called the play "probably not the smartest thing he ever did."

Bagwell hit an RBI single in the first inning, and Valenzuela tied it with a run-scoring single in the second.

In the third, Valenzuela made a wild pickoff throw to first base, allowing Bagwell to score from second. Sean Berry's single made it 3-1.

Bagwell, Ray Montgomery and Kile all doubled off reliever Sean Bergman as the Astros took a 9-1 lead in the fourth.

In other NL games, San Francisco beat Atlanta 4-2, Colorado rallied past Florida 6-5, St. Louis beat Los Angeles 4-2, and Chicago defeated Cincinnati 2-1.

Giants 4, Braves 2
The way John Smoltz was pitching, and the way the Giants were running, it's hard to believe San Francisco ever scored.

Shut out on two hits for six innings, the Giants broke through in the seventh and beat the Atlanta Braves 4-2 Thursday night despite getting three runners thrown out at the plate.

Down 2-0, the Giants rallied for three runs in the seventh against Smoltz (6-4). Stan Javier hit an RBI single and Bill Mueller had a two-run single off the 1996 NL Cy Young winner.

Rockies 6, Marlins 5
Ellis Burks hit a two-out, two-run double, capping Colorado's comeback from a 5-3 deficit in the ninth inning. The Rockies had lost 10 in a row at Miami since their last win on May 14, 1995.

Larry Walker, Andres Galarraga and Dante Bichette hit consecutive homers for Colorado in the sixth.

Kurt Abbott hit an inside-the-park homer and Bobby Bonilla homered over the wall for the Marlins. Gary Sheffield, activated from the disabled list before the game, doubled twice for Florida.

Cardinals 4, Dodgers 2
Rookie Matt Morris made another impressive start, pitching St. Louis to its fourth win in five games.

Morris (2-3) allowed one run in eight innings. He walked none, struck out seven and lowered his ERA to 2.64, tops among Cardinals starters.

Morris also hit an RBI double. Gary Gaetti backed him with a homer and single, and he scored twice, giving him 1,000 runs in his career.

Mike Piazza had an pair of RBI singles for visiting Los Angeles.

Cubs 2, Reds 1
Rookie Brant Brown doubled home the tiebreaking run in the eighth inning as Chicago beat Cincinnati at Wrigley Field.

Pinch-hitter Dave Clark hit a leadoff single off Stan Belinda (0-1), pinch-runner Doug Glanville moved up on Brian McCrae's sacrifice and Brown doubled.

Cubs starter Steve Trachsel (3-4) pitched three-hit ball for eight innings and had an RBI grounder. Joe Oliver homered for the Reds.

Hingis, Chang advance to third round of French Open

PARIS (AP) - There was double trouble for the women at the French Open.

A nervous double fault by Italy's Gloria Pizzichini let top-ranked Martina Hingis off the hook.

And a whole bunch of double faults spelled doom for young Venus Williams.

Hingis acknowledged that if not for Pizzichini's key stumble, things could have turned out a whole lot worse.

Ranked 75th in the world, Pizzichini won the first set and was a point away from 5-3 in the second when she double-faulted.

What if she hadn't, Hingis was asked later?

"I think it wouldn't look too good after I would be down 5-3," the 16-year-old Swiss star said.

In Williams' case, sloppy mistakes were the rule in her match against Nathalie Tauziat of France. Both players committed 51 unforced errors.

But here, too, the difference was in double faults. Williams, also 16 and playing in her first Grand Slam tournament, lost to Tauziat 5-7, 6-3, 7-5. The match ended on her 13th double fault of the day.

While Williams' exit took a marquee name out of the tournament, the women who were expected to win on Thursday did.

The No. 3 seed, former champion Monica Seles, was admittedly not at her best, but won, as did sixth-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, also a former champion.

Tenth-seeded Mary Pierce, No. 11 Mary Joe Fernandez and No. 14 Brenda Schultz-McCarthy all advanced.

On the men's side, second-seeded Michael Chang advanced in four sets over Jerome Golmard of France.

Marcelo Rios of Chile, the seventh seed, came from two sets down to overcome Zimbabwe's Byron Black 6-7 (7-3), 6-7 (7-0), 6-4, 7-6 (7-4), 6-0. He beat Black's brother, Wayne, in five sets in the first round.

Others who gained third-round berths were No. 11 Albert Costa and his fellow Spaniard, No. 16 Sergi Bruguera.

But Spain's Felix Mantilla, the No. 10 seed, was upset by Sweden's Magnus Larsson.

In top matchups today:

- Top-ranked Pete Sampras, sliding smoothly through the draw on his least favorite surface, but suffering from a stomach bug, faced Sweden's Magnus Norman.

- Defending women's champion Steffi Graf faced Magui Serna of Spain.

Gospel singer formed alliance with evangelist in 1947

George Beverly Shea, Billy Graham still traveling world after 50 years on the road

By GARY D. ROBERTSON
Associated Press Writer
MONTREAT, N.C. (AP) - From Canadian emigrant to America's most recognized gospel soloist, George Beverly Shea can aptly sum up his career with one of his inspirational trademarks: "The Wonder of It All."

The man who, for many modern listeners, immortalized the hymn "How Great Thou Art," is diffident about his place in music history. He expresses wonder at how a former insurance clerk ended up singing in person before what could be more people than anyone in history - some 180 million at Graham's crusades over the course of 50 years.

At 88, Shea's booming baritone voice is still going strong. He recently recorded his first country-and-western album and is preparing for upcoming Graham crusade events.

"This was God's provision for a simple gospel singer," he said recently in Montreat, where Shea and Graham live in the North Carolina mountains, 15 miles east of Asheville. "That has been the Lord's doing."

The son of a Wesleyan minister from Ontario honed his craft around the family table. After college in upstate New York, Bev Shea moved to New York City and trained with some of the world's top voice coaches, including Italian-born Gino Monaco.

At the time, he also was working both as a radio singer at stations WMCA and WHN and shuffling paperwork at Mutual of New York.

Despite several chances to perform on the secular stage, Shea says his heart told him to stay with gospel music. And his heart proved right: He now has more than 60 sacred albums to his credit, along with a Grammy, and is one of the most well-known Christian singers even 20 years beyond the age when most people retire.

"He's just a phenomenon," said Kurt Kaiser, Shea's accompanist over the past three decades. "He's become sort of an icon."

Shea believes the simplicity of the old hymns has drawn people to his music.

"It's the message of the lyrics, the test that hits the heart in a hurry and the melody that goes along with it and seems to all go together," he said.

Shea became famous through his work with Graham but, even before their friendship, he was well-known in Christian music circles. During the 1930s and '40s, he was a gospel crooner on a Chicago radio station and later on ABC radio's "Club Time."

Shea recalls the first time he met a lanky Wheaton College student from Charlotte who came to the studios of WMBI - Shea was 31, and Billy Graham, 21.

"One morning after I've been there for a couple of years, there was a rap on the door of the office. There's a tall young lad and blond hair," Shea recalled. "Our hands shook. ... We started a friendship."

"I knew he was from the South. I could hear it in my ears," he said, laughing. "He was what I call a Southern gentleman. He was just too complimentary of what he was hearing on the air."

In 1943, Graham, then a pastor of an Illinois church, persuaded Shea to perform on his Chicago radio show. Four years later, in November 1947, Shea joined the crusade team. He has been on the road with Graham ever since.

Shea always performs a peaceful hymn just before the Graham takes the podium. The idea is to help the audience prepare for the message - when Graham asks people to make Jesus their personal savior.

Graham "really loves the quiet song before he speaks. Perhaps something that will point to what he's going to speak on," Shea said. "Billy has about 12 to 15 favorites that he likes. And if I get away from one of them, sometimes he'll notice. He'll kid me about it: 'Oh, I like those old songs.' He wants me to sing something familiar."

Kaiser said Shea loves "the inspiration of the moment" and sometimes changes the cadence of his songs. He also has a gift for making his audience feel appreciated.

"When he begins to sing a song, he can sing it directly to you. He tried to find a single face in the audience, maybe a sympathetic gaze," Kaiser said. "This personal quality is same thing that can be found in the gospel message."

Shea, his face creased from the rigors of a long life, has slowed down a bit now, spending a lot of time at his Montreat home with his wife, Karlene.

Graham planned only two crusades this year, and Shea sings three or four times at a four-day crusade.

He's still the featured soloist on Graham's weekly "Hour of Decision" radio broadcast. And he and Kaiser travel to small towns for concerts at churches where people wouldn't normally get a chance to see them in person.

Shea enjoys spinning tales about the past, especially the early days of radio, but friends say he tries to keep with the times. He and Charlotte radio legend Arthur Smith just completed an album called "Out in the Country."

He knows that his time is short, and wants to retire at "the right time." He hopes that can be in 1998, when the Graham crusade team holds meetings in Ottawa, not far from Shea's boyhood home, where a career that has almost spanned the 20th century began around a kitchen table.

Churches join in effort to reduce welfare rolls

WASHINGTON (AP) - Churches across Texas are adopting families on welfare, helping them with resumes, baby-sitting, transportation - just about anything it takes to help parents get and keep jobs.

"They do everything they can to help that family," said John Sharp, the state's comptroller.

The Texas program exemplifies a new approach states are adopting to move people from welfare to work, focusing on challenges families face that have nothing to do with learning to type or work a new machine.

Helping parents keep jobs is "just as critical" as helping them find jobs, Vice President Al Gore said Thursday as he announced creation of a coalition of civic groups committed to helping people make their way into the working world.

"Welfare recipients ... do not have the support systems that many of us take for granted," Gore said. "Simple problems become major obstacles."

For instance, he said, people on welfare may have trouble handling anger and frustration, dealing with difficult co-workers, showing up for work on time, getting a car fixed or developing a household budget.

"If we're serious as a nation about changing the lives of these families ... then we've got to address these basic elements," Gore said.

It is a new focus for government and civic groups working to place people in jobs. In the past, the emphasis was on skills development, said Andrea Cain, program director for welfare reform at the National Governors' Association.

But many people lost faith in traditional training programs, she said. Often welfare recipients could not find jobs to match new skills, and the training went to waste.

Meanwhile, education and training fell out of favor politically, as a "work first" approach gained clout. Work requirements in last year's welfare reform law discourage classes and training in favor of community service and on-the-job experience.

The Marriott Corp. has gained attention for its in-house training program, where a primary goal is to change the way people think about themselves.

But most jobs for welfare recipients will not be found at large companies that can afford training programs. For the most part, they do not need large numbers of low-skilled workers and do not plan to hire many people off welfare.

"Small, medium-sized and sometimes large companies don't have (these) kind of support systems," said Donna Shalala, secretary of Health and Human Services. "We have to recreate them."

Smithsonian's two-year traveling exhibition offers Americans a unique view of history

By JAY REEVES
Associated Press Writer
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - Tracey Shields put on white gloves before stepping close to a rare Tucker sedan traveling with the Smithsonian Institution's biggest road show ever.

Slowly, she lifted a shroud off the champagne-colored car.

That's when it happened.

"Thunk" went a corner of the cloth as it slipped out of her hand, hitting the trunk softly. Ms. Shields cringed like a cannon had gone off, even though no damage was done.

As conservation coordinator for the America's Smithsonian exhibition, Ms. Shields' job is to make sure the 1948 Tucker and about 300 other artifacts aren't damaged during a two-year national tour.

So far, the work has paid off.

Dorothy's ruby slippers from "The Wizard of Oz" still have all their sequins; an Apollo 15 moon suit worn by astronaut James Irwin hasn't been ripped; and the stovepipe hat Abe Lincoln wore to Ford's Theater the night he was assassinated has yet to be creased.

Not that there haven't been some scrapes since the premiere in Los Angeles in February 1996.

A toe fell off a museum-piece bug last week as the exhibit was being set up in Birmingham, where the show was to open today at the civic center. Richard Petty's record-setting stock car was dinged up after getting loose inside its tractor trailer. Both were fixed.

Hands from many of the 2.5 million people to see the exhibit have rubbed silvery spots on a huge metallic meteorite found in Arizona a century ago, but no one is concerned about that bit of damage.

"That's one thing we want people to touch," said project manager Ellen Dorn.

But organizers have gone to great lengths to make sure the artifacts don't receive any unintended wear and tear during the tour, organized to mark the museum's 150th anniversary in 1996.

The exhibit is transported in 70 unmarked 18-wheelers to keep away unwanted attention and trailers carrying artifacts are air-conditioned.

Museum pieces are nestled snugly in containers held within thick wooden crates that have gauges to reveal when they have been jostled, and special lighting is used to guard against damage to delicate materials.

And even though it made it to the moon and back, the Apollo 14 command module is covered with a bright blue tarpaulin when guests aren't around.

Most pieces are in special cases where temperature and humidity are monitored.

Just let a pre-opening visitor get too close to a box holding a black radiator from the Wright Brothers' "Vin Fiz" biplane, which in 1911 became the first airplane to cross the United States.

"Would you please move away from the crate," Ms. Shields says firmly, drawing a glance from one of the many security guards.

All the caution is for one reason: Hardly anything in the exhibit can be replaced. Items from each of the Smithsonian's 16 museums are on display, and the greatest sin is to return something broken.

"We are so conservative you can't believe it," Ms. Shields said.

CAPITOL COMMENT

U.S. SENATOR
KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Waivering on Welfare Reform

Often in the course of a poker game it becomes necessary to call another player's bluff. It seems that Congress has reached the stage in the welfare reform debate where a little bluff-calling is in order.

For 11 months the Clinton administration has refused to grant the Texas a welfare waiver, holding the cards close to its vest and revealing very little information. One can only surmise that the administration thought Texas would fold. But this president doesn't know how we Texans play poker.

Rather than fold, we have upped the ante. On May 22 Senator Phil Gramm and I introduced legislation to give states the right to make the process of determining social services eligibility more efficient.

In October of 1996 Congress enacted and the President signed into law landmark legislation titled as plain to "end welfare as we know it." Congress' intent, which the President endorsed throughout the entire debate, was to allow states to set up more effective, accessible welfare systems.

Congress asked the states to do a job, and Texas was quick off the mark to comply. State officials requested a waiver from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) that would permit us to establish public/private partnerships to run one-stop eligibility centers for welfare, food stamp and Medicaid claims. (What the state formally requested was permission to take bids on such services.) This sat on the President's desk for five months.

The plan, which goes by the acronym TIES, for Texas Integrated Enrollment Services, would consolidate 20 separate application processes for public assistance. State officials estimate TIES will save Texas taxpayers at least $120 million a year in administrative overhead. With those savings, the state intended to provide health care coverage to an additional 150,000 needy Texas children.

The current conflict over welfare reform between Texas and the federal government is simple: Congress gave states the authority to experiment, to run their systems more efficiently. Texas did just that -- and federal big government said, "No."

Welfare as we know it remains the same wasteful mess that it was the day the welfare reform bill was signed -- thanks to the administration's refusal to let Texas play the hand Congress dealt it.

I have arrived at the reluctant conclusion that the only way to rectify this situation is to pass a law that will allow Texans to run Texas' welfare system. Congress' clear intent in the 1996 welfare reform bill was to give states the flexibility to design welfare systems best suited to their own needs.

Congress will have to call the executive branch's bluff. The administration can honor the law and allow plans such as the TIES proposal to go forward unimpeded. But if the administration is going to thwart the law of the land, Congress must act. No other outcome is in the cards.

MIAMI (AP) - Big muscles and big guns may work in the movies, but Sylvester Stallone can't push around city hall.

The star of "Rocky" and "Rambo" wanted city officials to close off the street where he and Madonna have mansions. His neighbors, however, fought the plan and have stopped construction of a fence and gate on the street.

"We were never told of the planned closing," said Dean Ziff of the Cliff Hammocks Homeowners Association in the posh neighborhood on Biscayne Bay.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

NOT ALL THE HERODS WERE VILLAINS!

PHILIP THE TETRARCH, ONE OF THE TWO SONS OF HEROD THE GREAT AND CLEOPATRA OF JERUSALEM, WAS BROUGHT UP AND EDUCATED AT ROME WITH HIS HALF BROTHERS ARCHELAUS AND ANTIPAS. (JOS. ANTIQ. XVII. 1.3) IN A.D. 4 HE WAS APPOINTED BY THE EMPEROR AUGUSTUS TETRARCH OF LANDS EAST OF GALILEE, KNOWN THEN AS BATANAEA, TRACHONITIS AND AURANITIS. HIS MENTION IN THE BIBLE OCCURS IN THE BOOK OF LUKE CHAP. 3:1. HE MARRIED SALOME, THE DAUGHTER OF HEROD (MARIAMNE'S SON) AND HERODIAS. HIS CHARACTER WAS EXCELLENT AND HIS RULE WAS MILD AND JUST. HE ENLARGED THE TOWN PANEA, AT THE SOURCE OF THE JORDAN, AND NAMED IT CAESAREA--IT WAS AFTERWARD OFTEN SPOKEN OF AS CAESAREA PHILIPPI (MATT. 16:13) TO DISTINGUISH IT FROM CAESAREA ON THE SEA. HE RULED FROM A.D. 4 TO A.D. 34, DYING IN THE 20TH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF TIBERIUS CAESAR!

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.
