Computer upgrading, linkup costs big bucks

Electronic network expensive but beneficial

By JACK STEIN
Brand Editor

Joining the latest trend in education is costing the Hereford Independent School District big bucks but the benefits far outweigh the costs.

Nena Veazey, acting superintendent and Dianna Drew, director of technology, say the upgrade in computer capabilities for the entire school system will not only give teachers and students another tool with which to expand knowledge but will also cut costs to the district.

Installation of cables which will eventually allow interconnection of all schools and the administration building via computer began this week and will continue until all schools are completely "wired" according to Drew.

This portion of the project, costing $249,000, will be followed by the purchase and installation of hardware which will be connected with these cables and this will allow the completion of a network. The school board has approved the hardware phase of the project at a cost of $433,240.

With a total cost of $682,240 Drew feels the school district is getting a good deal. "First estimates for this were as high as $1.2 million so we are getting a real bargain at under $700,000," she said.

Eventually file servers will be added at each campus and this will be the final step in linking all areas of the district electronically. Installation of the file servers will cost approximately $300,000 Drew said.

"We are getting the biggest bang for our buck," Veazey said. "This (system) will save on the cost of software.

"We won't have to buy multiple copies of software like we do now. This system will make software available to everyone via the network.

"It will also get us closer to preparing students to function in a world where computers will be foremost in their lives."

Veazey said another advantage of the electronic system utilizing computers is the way some textbooks are being distributed.

Instead of being printed on paper many books are now distributed via CD ROM disks, high density disks similar to music CDs but which contain information which can be accessed by the student and displayed on a computer screen.

This system will eventually allow electronic communications between schools and administration offices eliminating the high cost of paper-work now used for communications within H.I.S.D.

Still yet another benefit, perhaps the biggest when the system is up in running, Drew says, will be access to the internet, something students and teachers alike will be able to use for expanding the learning environment.

Veazey admits that access to the internet for students is a "worry" but steps are being taken to guard against access to unauthorized areas.

"We will have workshops for teachers who will be able to limit that access," she said. "There will be no open surfing."

"We will be able to lock out certain addresses on the internet," Drew said. Veazey explains that as new "bad" addresses are identified, locations for which H.I.S.D. wishes to restrict access, teachers will be able to lock those out of the network system, thus keeping students from accessing something not related to the school learning environment.

Teachers will also watch closely as students work on computers tied into the internet and this will allow

Installing cable

Hereford High School senior students Anthony Lopez and Eric Garcia work to install guides for computer cables being installed in Stanton School, the first campus in the H.I.S.D. to receive the upgrades. The students have been hired by the contractor, Micro-Media Solutions, to assist with the summer work.

Bush signs bills; uses veto on 33

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. George W. Bush vetoed 33 bills Friday, saying they either ran counter to his philosophy of local control and limited government or would have duplicated existing legislation.

As he wrapped up work on the fruits of this year's legislative labors - signing into law hundreds of measures - among the bills Bush nixed was one that would have limited public access to information on motor vehicle wrecks.

The measure by Rep. Toby Goodman, R-Arlington, was touted as an effort to prevent companies such as automotive repair shops from soliciting business from people involved in wrecks.

But it was criticized by government watchdog groups and the Texas Daily Newspaper Association, who said it went too far in restricting public information. It would have made the accident information available only to someone who already had the name of a person involved in the accident, plus a date or location.

In his veto message, Bush said the measure "is too broad and unduly restricts access to information of legitimate interest to the general public." Another, narrower measure already signed into law addresses similar objectives, Bush said.

Also vetoed by Bush was a bill that had been described by backers as a way for Texas to provide disaster relief when federal funds fall short. Bush said the bill would have created a hidden tax on utility bills and specifically prohibited the tax from being disclosed on consumers' bills.

"The goal of establishing a state fund for emergency disaster relief is a good one, but should not be funded with a hidden tax on Texan's utility bills," Bush said in his veto message.

House Republicans scramble to avoid defeat on budget bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Republicans are retreating from earlier positions on low-income Medicare beneficiaries and wages for some welfare recipients who find jobs. The changes are part of a GOP scramble to avoid an embarrassing defeat next week on budget-balancing legislation.

After a week of secret meetings with administration officials and Democrats, House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio, said Republicans would modify the package before the House votes next week.

After President Clinton issued his first veto threat Friday against the budget-cutting measure, Kasich said Republicans would give in still another area - keeping legal immigrants who become disabled on welfare. But this change, he said, would wait until House-Senate bargainers begin writing a compromise bill in July.

"I regard this issue to be of paramount importance," Clinton told Kasich in a letter, referring to disabled legal immigrants.

He added, "I will be unable to sign legislation that does not" include that provision, which was included in the budget-balancing agreement he reached with congressional leaders.

"There is recognition on my part and the part of (House Speaker Newt Gingrich) ... that this is an issue that clearly will have to be resolved in the conference committee if we are to reach agreement," Kasich said.

In changes Republicans already accepted, the budget legislation would provide about $1.5 billion to help many low-income elderly people pay their monthly Medicare premiums, currently $43.80.

Rail crossings to close here

Traffic over two railroad crossings in Hereford will be interrupted next month as the Burlington North Santa Fe installs a new track through the city.

City Manager Chester Nolen said the city has been advised that the Lee St. and Main St. crossings will be closed on July 7.

"The Main St. crossing won't be more than a day, we've been told," said Nolen. "However, they expect to close the Lee St. crossing for a week."

In the downtown area, the Lawton St. crossing will remain open until the work is completed on the other two streets. Motorists can cross the railroad on Lawton, then go west on New York St. to reach S. Main. Southbound traffic also may use the U.S. 385 underpass at U.S. 60.

Local firm receives HEDC grant for creating basic job

Valley Farm Services, Inc. recently became the first Hereford business to take advantage of a jobs incentive program created by the Hereford Economic Development Corporation.

Owner John Stribling received a $4,000 grant from HEDC because his company created a basic job in the last 12 months. Mike Hatley, HEDC executive director, explained that the program was created to stimulate growth of local businesses.

"The Jobs Incentive Program assists basic businesses who earn 75 percent or more of their revenues from outside the county," said Hatley. It is designed to stimulate manufacturing growth.

Valley Farm Services, which manufactures parts that go on sprinkler systems, applied for the grant in May, 1996. The HEDC approved the grant at that time, but payment is authorized only after the job has been filled for 12 months.

Hatley said the company ships more than a truck load of parts a month to dealers as far away as Pocatella, Id. Valley Farm employs 26 people.

"The wonderful part of this particular program is that it puts the local state sales tax dollars back into the community," said Hatley. He said Stribling learned about the program from an article in The Hereford Brand last year.

"Surprisingly, Valley Farm is the only business to apply for this type of grant thus far," Hatley said. "We would like to encourage other businesses to call the HEDC to learn more about the program. Every time an established business can create a job, the whole community is better off."

Hatley noted that bringing in new business and industry is an important part of the mission of HEDC. "but this type of program is a real benefit for our local businesses. I think it shows great foresight on the part of the board in looking for ways to help established businesses."

Businesses interested in the program should contact Hatley at the HEDC office in city hall.

HEDC presents $4,000 grant

Dr. Cliff Skiles, left, president of the Hereford Economic Development Corporation, recently presented a $4,000 grant to John Stribling of Valley Farm Services, Inc. It was the first grant approved under the HEDC's Jobs Incentive Program, which was created to stimulate growth of local businesses. Mike Hatley (right), HEDC executive director, invites other businesses to learn more about the program.

Hereford girl injured in wreck near Wildorado

Loretta Camp, 18, of Hereford was injured in a head-on vehicle collision shortly after 5 p.m. Friday on an access road at the edge of Wildorado.

Camp sustained severe bruises and a broken ankle, which required surgery. She was in Northwest Texas Hospital Saturday.

Three men in the other car were hospitalized, one in serious condition. Miss Camp, who was driving west on the access road, reported the other vehicle was in the wrong lane.

DPS officers who investigated the accident found drugs and drug paraphernalia in the other vehicle and charges are pending, according to Miss Camp's parents, Lonnie and Becky Camp of Hereford.

Miss Camp, a May graduate of Hereford High, is employed at the Texas A&M Research Center in Bushland this summer. She was headed to her grandparents' home in Wildorado at the time of the accident.

Tobacco industry surrenders to unprecedented regulation

WASHINGTON (AP) - In a far-reaching agreement that would cost cigarette makers $360 billion over 25 years, the tobacco industry surrendered Friday to unprecedented regulation that would strictly limit how tobacco is marketed and advertised in America.

The settlement of anti-tobacco litigation is the industry's first retreat in decades of bitter legal battles. In return for funding anti-smoking programs, the industry won limits to legal liabilities for the health damage incurred by its customers.

Even though the compromises were sure to draw fire, the anti-tobacco bargainers praised the terms of the settlement.

The deal is "the most historic public health achievement in history," said Mississippi Attorney General Michael Moore, who led tobacco foes in talks with industry officials. He predicted the deal would discourage children - like his own 10-year-old - from ever becoming hooked on tobacco.

The tobacco companies called the settlement "a bitter pill" full of difficult concessions. The deal if consummated in Congress would settle suits filed by 40 states against U.S. tobacco interests.

But after four months of hard bargaining - and a bitter last-minute dispute that almost killed the deal - had approved just $600 million for that purpose last week - $900 million less than was called for in the budget deal between Clinton and congressional leaders.

House leaders and administration officials also agreed that welfare recipients placed in public-sector jobs would be paid the full minimum wage, now $4.75 an hour. Legislation approved by the House Ways and Means Committee last week would have allowed those workers to be paid less than the minimum.

The two sides also were discussing other issues in hopes of resolving them before votes on the House floor scheduled to begin Wednesday. This included whether to roll back language approved by the House Ways and Means Committee that would have exempted welfare recipients who take public-service jobs from several federal worker protection laws, such as rules governing workplace safety.

In yet another accommodation aimed at securing votes, House leaders tentatively agreed to preserve the current 5.4-cent-per-gallon discount that ethanol receives from federal gasoline taxes, said Rep. Jim Nussle, R-Iowa.

Nussle and other farm-state lawmakers had rebelled after the Ways and Means Committee voted last week to kill the subsidy on the corn-based fuel additive. But he said Gingrich and committee Chairman Bill Archer, R-Texas, had tentatively agreed to retain the subsidy at least through 2000, when it would expire under current law.

Philip Morris, R.J. Reynolds, Brown & Williamson and Lorillard Tobacco said huge payments and strict rules were "preferable to the continuation of a decades-long controversy" that clouded the industry's financial future.

Skeptical public health groups immediately questioned whether the deal was strong enough to reduce smoking - or if the industry had included loopholes that would allow it to sustain smoking habits and high profits.

About 45 million Americans smoke, and the agreement would disperse the tobacco industry's billions to state and federal governments to help these people kick the habit and for numerous other health purposes.

The agreement must be ratified by Congress - approval far from certain - because it would restrict Americans' ability to win legal damages and would establish government tobacco regulations.

"I'd love to declare victory, but the answers are going to be in the details," David Kessler, the former Food and Drug Administration chief whose 1994 crackdown marked a crucial upswing in the nation's war on tobacco, told The Associated Press.

Any conditions on how the FDA would regulate nicotine "should not be a price that was paid," Kessler said.

In Denver, President Clinton complimented the attorneys general and said they had wrung "an enormous amount of money" from the tobacco companies. But Clinton, whose support is crucial, said the agreement needed "strict scrutiny," and he ordered top advisers to immediately review it.

"We must judge this agreement based on whether it advances the public health and will reduce the number of children who are smoking cigarettes," he said.

Added Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J.: "We want to make sure there are no cozy arrangements in this deal."

In all, the industry would pay out $360 billion over 25 years. Even though only 40 states were suing the industry, all 50 states and the federal government will share the tobacco companies' billion. Money will be earmarked for anti-smoking campaigns, health care for uninsured children and Medicaid restitution.

The attorneys general said the deal protects Americans more than any tobacco measure in history.

"In essence, the Marlboro Man will be riding into the sunset on Joe Camel," said Florida Attorney General Bob Butterworth. "Industry that has never been regulated before is now the most regulated industry in America and that is the way it should be."

But to hold big tobacco accountable should Congress delay or reject the deal, the states pledged to continue pressing in court their lawsuits that seek repayment of Medicaid funds spent treating sick smokers. Mississippi's trial begins July 7, and Moore said he will not postpone it to await congressional action.

The cigarette makers and smokeless tobacco giant U.S. Tobacco acknowledge in the settlement that their products are addictive and dangerous, but they do not have to offer the public apology that No. 5 cigarette maker Liggett Group made in a separate settlement last March.

Not all 50 states endorsed the settlement. Maryland Attorney General Joseph Curran "regretfully concluded that we need to go further." He criticized provisions that restricted how smokers could sue.

If the deal goes through, smokers would see dire new warnings on cigarette packs, get free medical help to quit and be inundated with nationwide anti-smoking advertising.

After the next 25 years are up, the industry would continue paying $15 billion a year, adjusted for inflation.

Donation to King's Manor

Hereford Lions Club presented a $600 donation to King's Manor during the regular club meeting Wednesday. Judy Baker, Lions' vice president, presented the check to Pat Bryant of King's Manor.

Bush signs new bills into law

AUSTIN (AP) - Here's a look at some of the bills Gov. George W. Bush signed Friday. The governor faces a Sunday deadline to sign or veto bills or allow them to take effect without his approval:

HB2777 - Texas' welfare system could be opened to privatization, with oversight from legislative leaders and the public. Lawmakers approved the measure after state officials were stymied by the federal government in a far-reaching effort to let private companies run welfare programs.

SB1 - Texas' first water management plan, the law requires detailed data to pinpoint where and how much water the state has in an effort to develop ways to conserve and maximize future use.

SB35 - Teen-agers will be punished if they even try to drink alcohol under this new law. Under the law, it's illegal for people under 21 to drive with any amount of alcohol in their blood system. Underage drinkers who drive would lose their driver's licenses for 60 days on the first offense, 120 days on the second offense and for six months on the third and subsequent offenses. They also will face criminal charges punishable by up to 40 hours of community service and $500 in fines for the first offense and up to six months in jail and a $2,000 fine for third and subsequent offenses.

HB318 - Gives students more public school choices. The law will allow up to 100 new charter schools over the next two years under existing criteria. In addition, an unlimited number of such schools would be allowed if 75 percent of the student body consisted of students considered at risk of failing or dropping out.

HB119 - Tobacco companies will have to tell the state exactly what's in their products as long as a trade secret won't be divulged under this new law.

HB2918 - Violent criminals and sex offenders released early from prison will face nonstop supervision under the bill.

HB2128 - Most telephone solicitors won't be allowed to block their identities on caller identification devices. The measure will require solicitors to display on caller-ID devices telephone numbers at which they can receive telephone calls if they leave a message on a telephone answering machine. It will take effect Sept. 1, 1998.

HB2914 - The city of Port Arthur will be able to buy clear title to Pleasure Island, allowing it to be developed as local officials see fit. The city will have to pay the state $25,000 to benefit the Permanent School Fund in return for the state's title and interest in the property.

HB966 - The law provides new hurdles for teen-agers to drive boats or jet skis and sets harsher penalties for boating violations.

HB1200 - Texans will pay $24 for a driver's license that will be good for six years, compared with the current $16 for four years.

HB331 - Military personnel and others who are overseas will have to apply for their Texas ballots 30 days before an election to vote in state and local races.

SB148 - Meant to limit the number of remedial courses university and community college students can take. University students will be limited to six state-funded remedial courses, while those at community colleges can take no more than nine.

SB149 - Tenured professors at Texas universities could be fired for poor performance. The law takes effect in January.

SB247 - Minors will have to go to school until the academic year in which they turn 18. The law raises the age at which students no longer are required to go to school from 17. It takes effect Sept. 1.

HB2856 - Abortion facilities must provide access to information regarding their safety to women seeking abortions.

SB121 - Criminal defendants can enter a plea to their crimes by closed-circuit television. Currently, incarcerated defendants must be present in open court to enter a plea or waive their rights. Advocates said the requirement is burdensome on counties that must transport and supervise such defendants.

COMPUTERS

tight supervision of students as they participate in this modern communication technology.

After individual schools are equipped with cables to handle the new system, the file servers will be installed and schools interconnected.

Several of the schools which are in close proximity to each other will be directly connected with fiber optics but most of the inter-school connections will be through the use of telephone lines.

The only exceptions will be the athletics and transportation departments which will utilize modems to connect with other schools and offices.

The project now under construction includes the installation of cables for individual schools is expected to be completed before September. The contractor on this job has also hired several high school students to assist with the work.

Drew said that once the servers are in place the linkup of computers throughout the school district will be possible.

Initially this linkup will involve approximately 160 computers at high school, 85 at junior high, 55 at Stanton and 240 in the elementary schools plus 25 at the administration building.

Plans for installing additional computers in the school district are also on the drawing board with a goal of one computer for each teacher and one computer for every four students enrolled in local classes.

Working the garden

Adults and youth work together to take care of the Community Garden at Coronado Acres, a El Hormiguero Project. Giving directions are the adults, left to right, Enez Reyna, Socorro Melendez and Elias Reyna, owner of the property on which the garden is located. Youth working to pull weeds are Daniella Covarrubia, Angelica Covarrubia, Angel Melendez, Celso Melendez and Peter Covarrubia.

Community garden project blossoms south of Hereford

The El Hormiguero Project at Coronado Acres is off to a good start in just its second year, with changes already in place from last year and more coming in the future.

Lydia Villanueva, director of the project, said there are many members of the community participating in the program which hopes to bring the Hispanic communities together.

The project involves a community garden producing organically grown produce which can be distributed in the community.

Last year the produce was sold following church services but this year the group hopes to entice about 20 people or families to purchase a share of the project at a cost of $75 each.

"The people who buy these shares will then receive the fresh produce grown in the community garden," Villanueva said. She pointed out that this comes out to approximately $6.25 per week considering the produce should be available for approximately 12 weeks after the first harvest.

This year's garden is on land provided by Elias Reyna south of Hereford, and Villanueva says recent rains have really helped the produce grow.

Residents of the area including many teenagers living in Coronado Acres have participated in the community garden and will continue to do so throughout the growing season.

Produce expected to be grown in the garden include carrots, garlic, beans, corn, lettuce, peppers, potatoes, tomatoes, summer squash, zucchini, radishes, cilantro, watermelon, cantaloupe and other items as time and seed becomes available.

The local project is an offshoot of a program started on the west coast which promotes the idea of Community Supported Agriculture (CSA).

The local project is sponsored by the Promised Land Network, an ecumenical rural outreach sponsored by the Catholic Diocese of Amarillo.

The overall program is geared to local Hispanics who own smaller tracts of land. South of Hereford the project involves landowners with five to 10 acres of property.

Some of those property owners already farm their individual lands but have joined in to help with the community garden project.

Additional education on how to best make the community garden grow and prosper will come in the form of a workshop to be conducted by Prof. Miguel Altieri, a native of Chile with expertise in small farm practices.

The workshop will be conducted in Coronado Acres July 17 and will be followed on July 18 by a series of workshops to be conducted in Spanish at Nazareth. This will include programs for children and the adults, a children's tour, noon meal and other activities.

Fatal prank nets 15 year sentences

Teens removed stop sign resulting in fatal accident

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - As family members on both sides of the courtroom wept, three friends were sentenced to 15 years in prison Friday for pulling up a stop sign for kicks and causing the deaths of three teens who drove into the path of an 8-ton truck.

"I understand your parents love you as much as these parents loved their children. There are no winners in this case," Circuit Judge Bob Mitchum told the young woman and two young men who were convicted last month of manslaughter.

Three 18-year-old buddies who were driving around listening to music after a night of bowling were killed when their car breezed through the intersection and was broadsided. The stop sign was found lying on the roadside near the accident.

Turning to the sobbing families of those killed, Mitchum said: "My heart breaks for you."

Though a pre-sentence recommendation called for up to 50 years in prison, the judge known as "Maximum Bob" for his harsh sentences decided to give the defendants far less.

"I don't believe for one minute that you or the other two defendants pulled these signs up with the intent of causing the death of anyone," he told 20-year-old Christopher Cole.

He then sentenced Cole to 30 years, suspending half, and did the same for Nissa Baillie, 21, and Thomas Miller, 20. The three could be eligible for parole after nearly 13 years.

All three cried and repeatedly wiped their eyes with tissue as each stood before the judge in orange jail jumpsuits, their hands cuffed. Their families and friends stood behind them and the families of the victims across the courtroom.

Randall White, Kevin Farr and Brian Hernandez were killed on Feb. 7, 1996, the day after the stop sign was pulled up.

Cole testified he and his friends stole as many as 19 signs along the rural roads east of Tampa the night before the accident. But he told jurors they didn't touch the stop sign at that intersection.

The defendants told investigators they panicked when they heard about the accident and ditched the signs they had collected in a river.

"There's been many a night that I stayed up and cried ... because your sons did not return home," Miller said, his face red and twisted by sobs, as he looked toward the victims' families.

Just before the sentencing, the judge refused a new trial request based on a witness' claim that a prosecutor forced him to lie.

The mother of one of the dead teens also sided with the defendants, saying she believes investigators manipulated evidence. She joined their families in pleading for leniency.

ConAgra to pay fines in grain fraud scheme

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Food giant ConAgra agreed Friday to pay $8.3 million in fines and restitution for its role in a grain fraud scheme that cost farmers and commercial buyers millions of dollars.

Under a plea agreement accepted by a federal judge, the company will pay $6.14 million in fines and investigation costs.

The Omaha, Neb., company also agreed to pay $1.47 million in restitution to Kentucky soybean growers. It already has delivered $535,000 in restitution to Indiana farmers. It also will pay $150,000 for costs associated with improper storage of crops.

Federal prosecutors say ConAgra defrauded farmers by improperly grading their grain and cheated commercial buyers by adding water to the grain. They alleged the practice began in 1989. The U.S. Department of Agriculture began its investigation in March 1992.

ConAgra sells everything from seeds to finished products under such brand names as Banquet, Healthy Choice, Hunt's, Orville Redenbacher's, Wesson and Chun King. Its sales totaled nearly $25 billion last year.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Kathleen Sweeney said the accord has changed the grain industry. "It held a company responsible for more than the cost of doing business," she said.

Mark Enenbach, a ConAgra lawyer, declined to comment after the hearing.

During the proceeding, he had asked Judge Larry McKinney to accept the settlement. He said the company would provide ethics training for its employees and take other steps to prevent a recurrence of the fraud.

McKinney earlier sentenced a former ConAgra manager, Glenn Bussa, to probation for charges he faced for his involvement in the grain scheme. He entered a guilty plea to one count of wire fraud and two of misgrading grain. He was a key witness in the Agriculture Department's investigation.

The roots of our success reach deep into the families of Hereford.

Hereford State Bank grew up here in Hereford, just as many of our customers did.

Perhaps that's why we know so well what you and the Hereford community want and need from a bank — dedication to hard work, the friendly openness that Hereford people expect from a close neighbor, and commitment to our community.

And as novel as it may seem, especially when compared to most banking situations these days, you'll even find a group of businessmen sitting in our boardroom who still have strong local ties to the Hereford business community.

They bring a unique local perspective to our bank — a perspective which has helped Hereford State Bank provide your family, your business and your community with the banking services you need and want.

Yes, it's true. There's no place like home. And here in Hereford, there's no bank like Hereford State Bank.

No opportunity is ever lost; the other person takes what you miss.

And speaking of opportunities, Hereford residents have a chance to participate in a huge sales event July 19.

That's the date set for the big Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Citywide Garage Sale. It has the potential of being a highly successful annual event, especially if local residents cooperate and participate.

Don Cumpston, C of C executive vice president, is encouraging local residents to sign up for the big sale event by July 7 in order for the chamber to get all the addresses and have locator maps printed.

Cumpston hopes a large number of local residents will plan a garage sale that day. In addition, Hereford businesses will hold sidewalk sales, and arts and crafts people will be encouraged to set up booths.

The garage sales offer a real bargain for local residents. The $10 fee includes advertising and publicity throughout the area, as well as distribution of the locator maps for all shoppers who come to town. The City of Hereford is waiving its customary $5 fee that day.

Cumpston said such an event has been successful in other towns, and the chamber's retail committee wanted to give it a try. Posters advertising the event have been printed and are being placed here and around the area.

The posters also invites people to bring their children and let them go to Hereford Aquatic Center or Moovies 6 while the parents shop.

We noticed in the Castro County News that Dimmitt recently held its 10th annual Citywide Garage Sale. Chamber manager Shelly Nutt estimated the event generated $57,000 in revenue for the community. She said 85 individual garage sales reported from a low of $200 to a high of $2,000 in revenue. She said 800 location maps were distributed by 10:30 a.m. on sale day.

We encourage folks to participate in this event - it could be a real doozie!

another one of those stories that makes you wonder if it really happened or someone just made it up. Either way, it's a funny tale:

A man and wife were enjoying a ski trip to Colorado and were on their way up the slopes on a lift. The woman complained to her husband that she was in dire need of a rest room. He told her not to worry; he was sure there would be facilities at the top.

He was wrong, of course, and her pain did not go away. Her husband, picking up on the intensity of her pain, suggested she ski into the woods. In her white ski outfit, he figured no one would notice.

She headed for the tree line, began disrobing and proceeded to do her thing. If you've ever parked on the side of a slope, then you know there's a right way and a wrong way to set your skis so you don't move.

Yup, you guessed it. She positioned them the wrong way. Without warning, the woman found herself skiing backward out of control, sliding through the trees - somehow missing all of them. She slid out on the open slope, her derriere still bare and her pants down around her ankles.

She was picking up speed all the while, continuing backwards, totally out of control and creating an unusual vista for the other skiers. The woman skied, if you use that verb loosely, back under the lift and finally collided violently with a pylon.

The bad news was that she broke her arm and was unable to pull up her ski pants. At long last, her husband arrived, putting an end to the nudie show. He then summoned the ski patrol, who transported her to a hospital.

In the emergency room, she was regrouping when a man with an obviously broken leg was put in the bed next to hers.

"So, how did your break your leg?" she asked, making small talk.

"It was the darndest thing you ever saw," exclaimed the man. "I was riding up this ski lift and suddenly couldn't believe my eyes. There was this crazy woman skiing backward out of control down the mountain with her bare bottom showing and her pants down around her knees. I leaned over to get a better look and fell out of the lift!"

"So, how did you break your arm?" he asked.

Greater love hath no grandma than...

Cockleburrs and Devil's Claws

By Georgia Tyler

Greater love hath no grandma than to sit through three and a half hours of dance recitals to see her granddaughter perform for five minutes, more or less.

Recently, this was the scenario I experienced while visiting that part of my family in San Antonio.

To say the afternoon and evening (the recital was in two parts) were entirely enjoyable may stretch the truth, but only a bit. The best part of the event was watching my granddaughter perform with all the aplomb of a seasoned dancer.

All the little darlings in the recital had their own rooting section. For Erin, there were her parents and brother; her aunt, uncle and two cousins, and her grandma. We were very sedate and conservative about our applause while some were whooping like they were at a football game and saw a touchdown.

The youngest of my grandchildren, now in the middle of her fourth year, was entranced with the performances. We wondered if we could keep her in the audience if she decided to take off for the stage. She's the one who wanted to join the dancers onstage in the performance she saw of "The Nutcracker" last winter. A few months can make a difference -- she was content to sit in her mother's lap this go-round.

Disdainful as they were, even the dancer's brother, almost seven, and boy cousin, age 6 1/2, behaved themselves, although they professed to be more interested in playing computer games than a dance recital.

You may ask, where is all this going? Nowhere in particular except to allow some meanderings of the mind about opportunities open to children these days.

There was a time all these many years ago when dance lessons were available only to the affluent in cities. There once was a dance teacher in a nearby city whose main claim to fame was tap dancing. Now, there's nothing wrong with tap dancing but there's only so much you can do with that kind of dance.

Erin had her choice of tap, ballet or jazz dance as well as tumbling. She opted for ballet and tumbling. At age nine, she also is becoming an accomplished swimmer. Her neighborhood swim club competes through several weeks in early summer with other clubs. Her specialty is the breast stroke.

Besides all that, she belongs to Girl Scouts.

Then, her brother is not quite as organized. He participated in baseball this year for the first time and won a Rookie of the Year trophy for his efforts. The league in which he played is very uptown -- a pitching machine is used instead of a real live boy, or girl, throwing the ball toward the plate. That may cut down on hit batters, too.

He also has become a Cub Scout.

Now, the grandchildren in another, much smaller community, have opportunities but they are somewhat more limited. For instance the nearest dance teacher is more than 65 miles away. There is a tumbling class just 18 miles from home.

Kids' baseball is about on a par with the other community, except the T-ball routine depends on placing a ball on what is commonly called a tee and allowing the youngster to swing away. There rarely are three strikes called because eventually, the batter will strike the ball and/or the tee.

Swim lessons are available in the small town but not as regularly.

This is not meant to advocate everyone should live in a city. It's simply a look at differences in lifestyle and children's opportunities.

Whether living in a city of 900,000 or 1,900, there are activities that provide children with experiences for growth and learning.

It's to the credit of parents that they help their children find their interests.

Now, with the lecture out of the way, let me observe that things used to be a lot simpler. We played softball in the vacant lots of our town. Swimming was available in a stock tank, if you were strong enough to disregard the slobbers from cows that drank in it (I wasn't). Rollerskating was out because there were few sidewalks. And, the Saturday matinee at the movie theatre didn't have to be rated PG-13. A ticket cost a quarter and popcorn was a nickel a bag.

Having thought about all this, I don't think I'd turn back the clock, though. Would you?

Editorials from around the State

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial comment from Texas newspapers:

The Dallas Morning News on electoral fraud:

Despite some notable failures elsewhere, the Texas Legislature managed to enact significant and much-needed reforms of the state's election laws. If they work as designed, the reforms should reduce the fraud that has tarnished some Texas elections, without restricting voting rights.

The Legislature deserves applause for addressing the problem in a constructive, bipartisan manner. Reform has been needed for years. But corrective bills always seemed to break up on the shoals of partisan bickering or to be eviscerated by politicians who felt that cleaner elections would work to their disadvantage.

This year was different. Texas' growing disrepute as a place that failed to adequately respect democratic processes apparently convinced legislators that things could not continue as usual. Too many defrauded candidates were crying foul. Too many frustrated district attorneys and elections administrators were demanding help. Too many newspaper headlines and editorials were baring the embarrassing truth to the world. The stench of fraud was becoming intolerable. Something had to be done.

Once Gov. George W. Bush signs the various reform bills into law - his aides say that he will sign them all - Texas will be able to boast a much improved electoral system.

Following is a description of the major reforms:

- Henceforth, Texans will have to show identification when voting. Believe it or not, it was possible before to vote in Texas without doing so. If challenged, one only had to swear to one's identity. Acceptable identifications will include a voter registration card, driver's license, birth certificate or a preprinted check with the voter's name and address.

- Suspicious ballots will be segregated. Before, ballots that elections officials thought might be illegitimate were mixed in with legitimate ballots. If a voter turned out later to be ineligible, it was impossible to go back later and annul his ballot. Now it will be possible.

- Until now, mail ballot fraud has been a Class B misdemeanor, the maximum penalties for which are six months in jail and a $2,000 fine - not enough for undermining democracy. Henceforth, that crime will be a Class A misdemeanor, which doubles the potential penalties.

- Elections administrators will have to wait 72 hours before publishing the names and addresses of people who have been sent mail ballots instead of the present 24 hours. The change is good because it provides less opportunity for unscrupulous campaign operatives to "help" voters complete their ballots.

- Mail ballots will be sent to voters' residences only. Before, the ballots could be sent to campaign headquarters, post office boxes and vacant buildings, increasing the potential for fraud.

- Anybody helping a person to complete a mail ballot will have to supply his name, address and signature. Before, there was no such requirement.

- Driver's licenses or personal identification numbers issued by the Department of Public Safety will be used to eliminate multiple voter registrations.

- The early voting period will be shortened by about a week from the present three weeks.

- Political parties will be able to hold joint primaries. Before, they could hold only segregated primaries using separate elections officers and staffs. Joint primaries are much less expensive and reduce the potential for voter intimidation.

- Election judges and alternate judges will have to be of different political parties. The party that wins the most votes for governor in a particular voting precinct will name the election judge in that precinct, as long as county commissioners agree.

The reforms are not perfect. Legislators did not increase the age at which elders may begin to vote by mail. Candidates and other political operatives may still be present when a mail ballot is being completed. And mail ballot fraud would not become the felony offense that it deserves to be. But legislators did a good job of shoring up the weakest points in the state's electoral superstructure. They should be proud of their effort.

Special credit goes to Secretary of State Tony Garza, whose early proposals laid the basis for reform and whose constant encouragement and technical assistance kept legislators focused and informed.

Austin American-Statesman on flag amendment:

Thanks to the U.S. House of Representatives it is time once again to belabor the obvious: the proposed flag-burning amendment to the U.S. Constitution is a blatant and pernicious assault on our country's most fundamental liberties.

Lay aside the fact that flag desecration is hardly a common occurrence, much less some kind of raging national plague. The fundamental and fatal problem with the flag-burning amendment is that it negates the very freedom of expression that our flag, up to now, has so proudly represented.

Free speech has been a hard-won liberty. It has prevailed through history over many threats and assaults. But never has it had to face an attack from within the Constitution itself. This is what the flag-burning amendment would represent: an exception to freedom of speech, for a particular government-approved point of view.

That is what flag-burnin' is, expression of a point of view. It is an expression that is offensive, that is horrifying to most Americans, but the endurance of some offensive opinion is the small price a free society pays for the priceless 'enefit of liberty for all opinions. ...

The Senate, which considers it next, should resist falling into the crass hysteria which has griped the House, and send this amendment to the ash-heap of history where it belongs.

Herbs becoming big business in areas of New Mexico

Products manufactured with plants are where the money can be made, say growers

By LORI PUGH
Albuquerque Journal
TAOS, N.M. (AP) - They're in your soup and at your health store. And local farmers say they're here to stay.

Herbs - rich in taste, vitamins and healing properties - are beginning to diversify the crops grown at some northern New Mexico farms.

But farmers say the state's short growing season makes it difficult for them to compete with other areas of the country in prices unless they grow most of their crop in greenhouses.

The real money is in products that can be made from herbs, such as soups, shampoos, teas, dog-biscuit mix and essential oils.

When Bluebird Herb Farm in Taos began its operation three years ago, owners Tim Lindenmeyr and Rebecca Garnett attempted to grow just herbs and some vegetables.

"Originally, our mission was to just get involved with production and supply restaurants," Lindenmeyr says. "We found it was difficult to do organically."

Their second year they changed the focus of the farm to education. It became a visiting farm that offers tours, a tea deck, theme gardens, workshops and classes.

"I would say we gave it a 100 percent effort, but our passion was in the education end of it," Lindenmeyr says.

They still grow organic produce, but just enough to supply local restaurants with fresh culinary herbs and to sell some at the farm. They grow medicinal herbs - such as lavender, chamomile and catnip - for their bath products.

They started a catalog last year featuring all their products from facial toner to dream pillows.

Dixon organic farmers Lynda Prim and Kahsia Hartwell are tripling their amount of herbs this year so they can use them in the Spirit of the Valley soap products.

"It's hard to make a living farming," Hartwell says. "Growing herbs and making them into botanical products helps to add a little bit more money to our bottom line."

Forty to 50 percent of the business Prim expects to do this year at her Maggie Meadow farm will be from herbs. Herbs will make up 25 percent to 30 percent of the business at Hartwell's Moon Mountain Farm.

At Khalsa Brothers, an herb farm in the tiny town of Sombriello near Espanola, herb production is 95 percent of the business, says Karkar Khalsa, who runs the farm.

For the first time, the farm is planting herbs in its fields this year. Previously, all of its production has been in its greenhouses.

Khalsa says he hasn't planted the fields before because it would just add to the glut of seasonal herbs that come onto the market between mid-July and mid-September. This year, those herbs will be used in what Khalsa describes as "value-added products," such as pesto sauces and marinades.

Khalsa says most of the farm's business is done inside the state, but its prices are sometimes higher than those of out-of-state organic produce.

"We do have trouble in competing in price because of the volumes and also the cost of production is higher than a lot of these Mexican and Taos operation started three years ago now puts emphasis on education and herbal products. Production is moving from greenhouse to fields on some farms.

Southern California growers," Khalsa says. "They can produce their products much more cheaply but their quality and freshness can fluctuate."

Connie Falk, an associate professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Agricultural Business at New Mexico State University, is working on identifying what alternative crops, including herbs, will work for small farmers in New Mexico.

"The bulk of herb farmers are in northern New Mexico," Falk says. "The farmers in northern New Mexico are smaller and they are forced to think about innovation."

For the past two years, Falk and her students have been conducting field trials of nine herbs in three locations around the state, including Alcalde. The field trials follow a market study students performed last year that showed a type of echinacea, used to treat a number of ailments, is the most popular herb.

Falk says there are good possibilities for growing echinacea in New Mexico in large quantities.

Daniel Gagnon, owner of Herbs Etc., which uses herbs to make tinctures, says he can't get enough locally produced herbs.

Gagnon estimates he'll spend about $6,000 this summer flying in 6 tons of fresh herbs from other places using next-day air service.

Farmers are reluctant to make a commitment to growing herbs - some take a few years of growing before they become marketable - without knowing whether they have guaranteed buyers, Gagnon says.

But herbs can grow here. Gagnon points to the success of the NMSU project growing valerian in Alcalde.

He encourages farmers to sell him herbs they like to grow.

Herbs Etc. buys fresh herbs and processes them into liquids to take internally. Its products range from Deprezac, a mixture of St. John's wort that Gagnon says some use to relieve depression, to a mixture called Singers Saving Grace, originally made to ease the sore throats of opera singers.

Gagnon says his business has been increasing about 30 percent annually, but overall, the entire herb business has been growing about 20 percent a year.

"Americans are turning more and more toward natural medicine," he says. "Oftentimes, they are leery of drugs. They don't like side effects and want something more in synch with the body. Herbal medicine addresses that."

The recent herb awakening has occurred largely because of the focus on fresh herbs, whose potency is much stronger than dried herbs, Khalsa says.

"I had taken gotu kola a long time ago and I didn't feel anything but it was probably two years old," Khalsa says. "When we first got our first plants going, we tried it and when I took it I said, 'Wow, this stuff is good.'"

Gotu kola is a tropical Asian plant acclaimed in India and in China as a nervous-system rejuvenator and for clearing the mind.

Garnett says taking herbs won't instantly solve anyone's problems.

"They're sort of a long-term lifestyle product vs. a quick fix," she says. "They're representative of a more holistic lifestyle."

And over the past 20 years, changes in cooking have encouraged the use of fresh herbs.

Just adding some canned mushroom soup to a meatloaf was considered gourmet cooking in the late 1960s, chef Matt Yohalem says. In the past 15 to 20 years, there's been a shift toward more organic and authentic approaches to cooking, he says.

Yohalem says the best taste analogy is the difference between eating a waxy tomato from a grocery store and eating one from your own garden.

Most purchased, and most stolen, book is Holy Bible

Thieves target stores and motel rooms

By KELLY ETTENBOROUGH
The Arizona Republic
PHOENIX (AP) - It was the week before Mother's Day. A shopper at Berean Christian Stores in Phoenix asked for help in choosing a Bible, apparently as a gift.

He picked up a nice leather one, then proceeded to wander the store for other shopping. Then he left.

Later, the Bible turned up missing, its empty box found stuffed among the T-shirts.

The Good Book - ripped off?

The Bible, long known as the world's best-selling book, has also earned the less-inspiring reputation as the one most often stolen from bookstores.

They also disappear from hotel and motel rooms, churches and libraries.

"Bibles do leave the store without being paid for, as hard as it is to believe," said Frankie Dagna of the Parable Group. "I would just feel like I would be struck by lightning."

"I just couldn't imagine doing that. What a world we live in!"

The Parable Group is a California-based organization of independent Christian bookstores.

Expensive leather Bibles can cost $100 or more. In addition to shoplifting, store managers said, people will switch price tags on a Bible or put an expensive Bible in a cheaper one's box.

"If we check a Bible to make sure it's the right Bible in the box, people look at us like, 'Do you think we're going to steal it?'" said Jan Brehmer, manager of The Christian Emporium in Phoenix.

Unfortunately, the answer is yes. "People are always surprised Bibles do get stolen."

At Central Christian Supply in Phoenix, a person bought a Bible by writing a check on a closed account. Another person had apparently shoplifted a Bible, then tried to sell it, still in its shrink wrap, at a nearby McDonald's.

Spokesmen for major bookstore chains - Borders, Barnes & Noble, Waldenbooks, Bookstar and B Dalton Bookseller - would not comment on losses. The American Booksellers

Association in New York does not compile loss statistics, but agreed that the Bible is considered the most often stolen.

Bibles are likely targeted because they are higher-end merchandise that's easy to sell, said Donna Paz, owner of Paz & Associates, Bookstore Consultants, of Nashville.

"They're looking for things that are easily marketable with a wide demand, so why not target the Bible?" Paz said. "It's the most well-known book and has the greatest readership."

Larger bookstore chains have gate security systems at their doors; a microchip in the books triggers an alarm if it isn't deactivated. In January, The Parable Group has arranged a membership discount on such security systems.

Berean, the largest Christian bookstore in Arizona, keeps its more expensive Bibles on a higher shelf and in plainer view. Other bookstores keep the more expensive ones behind the counter.

When she came to work at Berean four years ago, Shirley DeTienne said, she found the prospect of someone stealing a Bible baffling. But now she's found Bibles may not even be safe at church.

Some customers come in to buy new Bibles to replace those stolen at church, DeTienne said.

"They're stealing from God."

Twice a year, members of The Gideons International check local hotel and motel rooms. They replace worn Bibles and always find a few missing, said W. W. Vardell of the international headquarters in Nashville.

In the Tempe area, an average of 10 percent of the Bibles typically must be replaced. But after Super Bowl XXX in January 1996, as many as 25 percent had to be replaced at some hotels, a local Gideons volunteer said.

"We would like for the Bible to stay there, but if someone feels the need to take it we're not going to strenuously object, because we feel like they might have a strong need for it," Vardell said.

"It isn't so bad if you figure people will read the Bible," Brehmer said. "I've heard people in testimonies say they were saved by Bibles they had stolen."

Still, most - like Bill Hughes of Berean - doubt that Bible thieves take the opportunity to study God's admonition, "Thou shalt not steal."

"I'd have trouble reading it, personally, if I had stolen it," he said.

Fees for Meredith boats become effective July 1

By TERRY MOORE
Amarillo Globe-News
AMARILLO, Texas - In 1996 Congress directed the National Parks Service and other federal land managing agencies to conduct a three-year pilot program to collect fees from recreational users. The 1996 Omnibus Consolidated Rescissions and Appropriation Act included language establishing a Recreational Fee Demonstration Program (P.L. 104-134). The law further states that all "additional" fee revenue, generated by fee demonstration projects will be available to the National Parks Service with 80 percent remaining at the park where it is collected. The remaining 20 percent will be used on an agency-wide basis.

Under this nationwide program, Lake Meredith will impose a boating fee. Some specifics are:

- A boating fee will be imposed at Lake Meredith starting July 1, 1997.
- The daily fee will be $4; three-day passes are $10; annual passes are $20 for 1997, $40 for 1998 and after. Price is per boat. The yearly pass is a sticker that must be affixed to the boat in a prescribed manner and is not transferable from boat to boat. One and three-day passes will be issued in the form of a paper permit that will be required to be on the boat.

- The penalty for not having a pass is $25 per violation, not per day. For example, if a boat is ticketed in the morning and is put on the lake later the same day without a permit, a second ticket can be issued. A first-time offender written warning system is being devised.

- Passes will be available starting June 23. Signs warning boaters that they must have a permit are scheduled to be put up during the coming weeks and uncovered June 26 or 27.

- Until two automated permit machines are installed later this year, passes can be purchased at the Lake Meredith National Recreation Area Headquarters at 419 East Broadway in Fritch. Mail-in forms for purchasing passes may be picked up at headquarters or obtained by calling (806) 857-3151 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

During July the headquarters will be open on weekends and holidays. During July passes will be available at Harbor Bay, Fritch Fortress, the ranger station at the junction of the marina and Cedar Canyon roads and at Blue West. Until at least July 27, one-day, three-day and yearly passes will be available at all sites. Two locations will be open eight hours a day, seven days a week. The remaining locations will be open eight hours a day, five days a week. After that time, persons wanting yearly permits must go to headquarters to complete paperwork. When installed at Blue West and park headquarters, automated machines will accept cash or major credit cards and return a receipt. The receipt for an annual pass will be valid for one week. Sometime during that week, the receipt will need to be exchanged for an annual pass at headquarters.

- Estimates put the time involved with buying a one- or three-day pass at several minutes; estimates put buying a yearly pass at less than five minutes. There is no mandatory inspection involved with buying passes.

- All vessels requiring state registration are subject to the fee.

This includes personal watercraft such as jet skis, wet cycles and similar crafts. According to state law, motorboats, regardless of length, and sailboats 14 feet in length and longer must be registered. All canoes, kayaks, punts, rowboats or rubber rafts when paddled, pulled, carried or windblown are exempt from registration and Lake Meredith fees.

- All fee permit enforcement will be done by National Parks Service rangers. Fee permit compliance is not a Texas Parks & Wildlife Department responsibility.

George Brett a believer

Interleague play just fine with former star

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Like a lot of people, George Brett loves interleague play. So much, in fact, that he's planning a comeback this month.

Brett, now 44 and a vice president for the Royals, intends to be in uniform when the Royals visit the Chicago Cubs on June 30.

"I never got a chance to play in Wrigley Field," the future Hall of Famer said Thursday during a charity event in Philadelphia. "I'm suiting up, throwing batting practice and hitting fungoes before the game. I'm looking forward to that."

Hey, George, join the crowd!

Designed to create more interest in baseball, the first week of interleague play was a big hit at the gate. Attendance was up 35 percent for the AL-NL matchups, with the 84 games drawing an average of 34,922 fans.

The Subway Series in New York and the Windy City rivalry in Chicago each set attendance records, while Pittsburgh, Milwaukee and San Francisco also had strong showings. Of the only 28 major league teams, only San Diego and Minnesota did not show increases.

"Interleague play has been phenomenal for baseball," Mets owner Fred Wilpon said.

"Yes, I think it has turned the corner," Giants owner Peter Magowan said. "The second phase might not be as strong as the first phase. I hope it will be, but it could well not be."

No doubt, the first round was bolstered by attractive matchups. When interleague play resumes from June 30-July 3, the highlights will be a World Series rematch between the Yankees and Atlanta along with an all-Canada meeting of the Montreal Expos and Toronto Blue Jays.

While fans seemed to be the big winner, the AL teams also fared well. AL clubs went 48-36 against NL competition, with the Boston Red Sox doing the best at 5-1.

"Maybe this means we're ready," said Red Sox pitcher Vaughn

Eshelman, who bunted for a hit against the Mets.

Not many other AL pitchers reached base, though. Forced to hit at opposing parks, AL pitchers batted .108 while their NL counterparts hit .169.

San Francisco and Montreal also went 5-1, with the Expos becoming the first team of any kind to win a series at Baltimore this year. Not all of the Giants were so happy with this new concept, however.

"I'm glad to see the American League get out of here," San Francisco infielder Jeff Kent said. "I don't like the pace or the way they do things. That's why I wanted to come back to the National League."

Many players in both leagues noticed a difference in style, with the NL games seeming a lot quicker.

"Their guys go up there looking to swing the bat. They're not up there to waste time," Texas' Mark McLemore said.

While no AL managers ran short of players, there was a different way of using them.

"In the American League, your extra players are basically looking to play the last couple innings," said Anaheim manager Terry Collins, who formerly managed the Houston Astros. "In some National League games, they have to hit in the fifth inning and then play in the field. The whole approach is different with the double switches and all."

Starting Thursday, teams returned to playing in their own leagues. There will be two more interleague periods, later this month and from Aug. 28-Sept. 3.

"The interleague thing went well, but there's been so much said about it, I'm all talked out," Cubs manager Jim Riggleman said. "I know it's good for the game and good for the fans, but I'm glad it's time for a break."

Interleague play has already been approved for next year - after that, it requires the approval of the players and owners.

Houston may get new team

HOUSTON (AP) - The Regional Football League is looking at Houston, which has been abandoned by the Oilers, as a possible franchise site, a television station reported Friday.

Station KRIV said league officials already have laid the groundwork for region-based franchises in Orlando, Fla.; Boston; and Shreveport, La. They are looking at Houston, San Antonio, Oklahoma City and Tucson, Ariz., for a Southwest franchise.

League commissioner Gus Bell visited Rice University on Friday to look at its stadium. He pronounced it "quite adequate for what we are looking for."

"We are here because Houston is our No. 1 target (for the Southwest region), and so far we're very impressed with what we've seen in the community," Bell said.

"We have three different investment groups that we are talking with this weekend who are very interested in bringing regional football to the Houston area."

The spring league, based in Framingham, Mass., would consist of at least eight teams.

League officials want to begin a 14-game regular season in March. The league's championship would be in June.

Each franchise would have 37 players. Of that number, 32 must have connections to the team's region.

"Regional football, in a nutshell, is putting players together from your particular region," Bell said. "So Houston being in the Southwest would have players from Arkansas, Texas, Arizona and Oklahoma."

The East Division would consist of teams from the Northeast, Atlantic, Southeast and Midwest regions. The West Division would include teams from the Rockies, Pacific and Southwest regions.

Bell dismissed any comparison to the defunct United States Football League.

"We have a very tight budget," Bell said. "It's a $1.5 million salary cap. It will be very tightly adhered to."

The track record of second-tier football leagues in the United States has not been good.

The USFL folded after three years in 1986, while the Canadian Football League's recent expansion into U.S. cities, including Shreveport, also failed after just three seasons.

Second place

Oilers may get release

HOUSTON (AP) - Harris County officials have worked out an agreement to let the Oilers out of their Astrodome lease a year early, but the deal still must be approved by commissioners, a spokeswoman said Friday.

An agenda for Tuesday's meeting of the county commission was posted Friday showing the agreement was up for a vote, said Sally Lehr, spokeswoman for County Judge Robert Eckels.

"It's the same deal that's been there all the time, but they've worked out the details," she said. "It's the same things the Oilers had offered the county, minus $250,000 which the Oilers will pay to the city for their legal fees."

Comet's Cooper complete player

By W.H. STICKNEY JR.

Houston Chronicle
HOUSTON - The Comets' practice this balmy June evening has gone a little overtime, giving those few spectators present an extended opportunity to see Cynthia Cooper show off her many skills.

A potential stand-up comic off the court, the 5-10 guard has far more going for herself than the ability to dribble, play defense and put the basketball through the hoop, all of which she does extremely well.

She is fluent in two languages, can communicate in two others and could open a travel agency based on the number of states and countries in which she has traveled and lived.

"I try to be a complete basketball player, and I try to be a complete person," Cooper, who is in the process of adopting her 4-year-old nephew, said Tuesday. "There are a lot of things about me that people don't know. They just see the basketball player. They see, maybe, just a woman."

"They don't see the sacrifices I make for my family. They don't see the sacrifices I make for my (fiance). People don't know about me. The way I like to characterize myself? I try to treat people the way I would like to be treated. I'm a Christian woman. I don't act like a Christian woman when I'm out on the court, but that's basketball."

Cooper, 34, was the second player signed by the Women's National Basketball Association and was placed with the Comets franchise.

A versatile high school athlete who once was the 300-meter hurdles champion of Los Angeles, Cooper was born in Chicago and raised in California but has lived most of the past seven years in Texas.

Hennings' contract extended

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Chad Hennings has re-enlisted for five more years with the Dallas Cowboys.

The one-time Air Force cadet, who has one year left on his contract, signed a four-year extension Thursday, keeping the defensive lineman from becoming a free agent after this season.

The new contract is worth $7 million, including a $2.3 million signing bonus, said Jack Mills, his Denver-based agent. Hennings' current contract, signed in 1994, expires after the coming $850,000 season.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said the extension was essential in keeping together the core of players who have brought the team two Super Bowl titles.

"Chad has long been seen as one of our top two or three defensive players," Jones said. "He speaks to work ethic, he speaks to discipline; he brought that from the Air Force."

Hennings won the Outland Trophy in 1987 at Air Force, then delayed the start of his pro career while serving in the military. He joined the Cowboys in June 1992 after being a pilot in the Air Force and fighting in the Gulf War.

She was an integral part of the women's basketball program at Southern Cal when coach Linda Sharp and future Hall of Famer Cheryl Miller were leading the Women of Troy to NCAA championships in 1983 and '84.

Cooper has spent the last 11 years playing professionally in Europe and led the European Cup in scoring last season with an average of nearly 38 points a game.

Though "Coop" has been enriched tremendously by her sojourns abroad and met the man she will marry next year, Italian League basketball player Gianluca Castaldini, the extended time away from home eventually took its toll.

Weighing heavily on her, too, until last year was the thought that her dream of playing professionally in the United States became increasingly remote with each passing season.

Cooper said there were a lot of times she thought about quitting.

"Matter of fact, about three years ago, before my last (tour) in Italy, I had actually stopped playing basketball because I was tired of traveling," she said. "I didn't want to do it anymore. I still loved the game of basketball but wanted to switch over to coaching because I love to teach the game of basketball, also."

"And if that was the only way I could stay in America and be around family, friends and Americans, that was what I was going to do. I got tired of going back over to Europe, packing up and leaving every summer, then (returning to America and) feeling like I'm on vacation when I'm really home."

"I got tired of feeling like a visitor in America. So I quit playing basketball."

"You know, the Lord has a plan for each one of us," Cooper said. "I think his plan was for me to keep playing basketball. I got about 15 calls to go back overseas and play. I think I took the last one and left."

A millionaire several times over, Hormel has given away fortunes

By MICHELLE BOORSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
PARADISE VALLEY, Ariz. (AP) -
Geordie Hormel packs a one-two punch.

First, his appearance.
A large, clumsy man with a silver mane and beard, the 68-year-old millionaire meatpacking heir dresses like a vagabond, in sweatpants and mukluk boots. He looks like a cross between Santa Claus and Jerry Garcia - jolly, but rumpled.

Second, his opinions.
Zipping around his suburban mansion in an electric cart, Hormel vilifies corporate America whenever possible, including the famous luncheon meat his father invented, Spam, which Hormel says "kills people for profit."

But this is no monotonous, preachy romp.

When he isn't lambasting the business world he was born into, he's playing rock music extremely loud, doodling obscene cartoons or painting. He scatters notes around his house, urging guests not to pass gas, have sex on the tanning bed or use more than one square of paper towel at a time.

While Hormel may seem an odd millionaire, what's odder is that he's a millionaire at all. By his own description, he may be the most naive financier on the planet.

"If there's one word that describes me, it's four letters and it starts with 'F,'" said Hormel, who estimates that he has blown close to $30 million in the five years since he moved to Arizona from Los Angeles. "I'm one of those people that no matter how often I've been taken I still believe in people. I hate to turn anybody away."

In his zeal to use his wealth for social good, Hormel has literally given away millions - to needy friends and strangers who asked, to failed environmental projects and to impulsive, extravagant purchases. He has spent millions buying homes he'd barely seen and on "genuine" art that turned out to be fake.

But to those who know him, Hormel is more saint than sucker.

"You'll never find a better guy on the planet than Geordie. He has faith and trust in people, even though they screw him over," said Vic Ceasar, a friend since 1958 and one-time staple on the Phoenix nightclub scene.

"He's the kind of man that when he asks you for a favor, you thank him for asking."

Indeed, Hormel has remained beloved by past girlfriends and wives, including French actress Leslie Caron, to whom he was married in the 1950s. He is currently wed to his fourth wife, Jamie, a 28-year-old former department store clerk with whom he has two daughters, ages 5 and 3.

"When I first met him he'd be on the phone all the time giving people advice. He's everyone's best friend because he's so sweet," said Jamie, whom Hormel credits with reining in his reckless spending tendencies. "It's hard because everyone wants something and how do you say no?"

Hormel's inability to say no is hardly a secret. Locally, anecdotes abound about him and Jamie rounding up homeless people, giving them showers, clothes and jobs. He estimates he gave away $1 million to total strangers his first few years in Arizona.

"I got so many calls I had to stop answering my mail and phone," he said with a smile. "They'd tell me their problems and most were legitimate. But if you help the person get through the month, then what happens when they come back the next month?"

Among Hormel's most imprudent investments are environmental and civic.

When he first moved into what is known as the McCune Mansion, he was outraged by the $11,000 electricity bill for the 54,000-square foot, $3.75 million home. He sought out researchers at Arizona State University who were working on a cheaper, more environmentally safe air-cooling system and plunged $1 million into it. Unfortunately, the whole thing relies on butane gas, considered a dangerous explosive.

"No one will touch it," he said of the completed project.

Hormel is currently funding several research projects on alternative fuels, which he won't discuss but calls revolutionary. Researchers in jeans mingle in Hormel's kitchen with nannies and other visitors.

Like the McCune Mansion, Hormel had barely seen the Wrigley Mansion before plunking down nearly $3 million for it in 1992. One of the state's most historic and regal homes, the Wrigley was threatened with being turned into condominiums when Hormel heard of it. He estimates he has lost about $8 million on the project as he keeps it semi-open to the public.

Hormel's hobbies are as expensive as his investments.

The mansion is jammed with state-of-the-art and antique instruments and recording machines for making music, high-tech photocopying equipment and easels for making art and computers and toys for his young daughters. Only slivers of the ballroom floor are visible between all the boxes of art, CDs and books.

An accomplished musician, Hormel estimates that half of television shows in the 1950s had his music playing in the background. He still plays the piano every Sunday at the Wrigley and at various charity events and his artwork is displayed around town.

Hormel is full of regrets about how he's handled his fortune, some of which was left him and some of which he made on his own.

Bullied out of the Hormel Co. when their father died, Hormel says he and his two brothers have no role in running the company but receive about $4 million apiece each year. A recording studio Geordie started in the 1960s became wildly successful and still earns him about $2 million a year. He also came into about $13 million when his mother died.

"If I could do it all over, I'd do nothing the same," Hormel said of how he's blown so many of his millions.

Now, he says, he wants to focus what remains of his money on improving the world. But it remains to be seen which Geordie Hormel will prevail, the fiscally mature one or the curious one with a craving for pricey toys.

Among Alaskan fur seals, the males and females live together only during the summer mating season.

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) - It was billed as a "Republican family reunion," but it was more of a fly-by for former President Bush and his vice president, Dan Quayle.

Bush and Quayle worked different parts of the crowd at their first joint public appearance since leaving office. The two did get together at private receptions with GOP leaders and the fund-raiser's organizers.

The organizers of the $250-dollar-a-plate affair, attended by 400 guests, planned to have Quayle and his former boss together for dinner, said Jess Yescalis, spokesman for the Arizona Republican Party. But Quayle, who now lives in Arizona, had a private engagement and couldn't stay.

Still, Bush had kind words for his absent ex-running mate.

"What an unfair pounding he took from that national media, which I can now say I can't stand," Bush said. "I salute him."

Couple recites vows in evening ceremony

Shambryn Leigh Wilson of Hereford and Matthew Riggle Huie of Beeville exchanged wedding vows on the evening of June 14 at the First United Methodist Church of Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Mickey and Shirley Wilson of Hereford and granddaughter of Elvin and Bobbie Wilson of Hereford and E.G. and Betty Phipps of Friona.

The bridegroom is the son of Reverend Robert and Bishop Janice Huie of Little Rock, Ark., and the grandson of James and Frankie Riggle of Beeville.

Officiating at the ceremony was the father of the bridegroom.

The altar was framed with three arch candelabrams entwined with lemon leaf, seeded eucalyptus and plumosis fern. An altar bouquet enhanced the hand carved ivory unity candle with white casa blanca lilies, white snapdragons, delphinium, larkspur, lissianthus, baby's breath and alstromeria lilies. Pews were adorned with hand tied Carola and Vivaldi roses tied with French chiffon ribbon.

Honor couples of the bridal party were Cody and Karen Wilson of College Station and Brady and Heather Wilson of Hereford. Both couples are brothers and sisters-in-law of the bride.

Shanon Guy of Lubbock served as maid of honor. Bridal attendants were Dorie Burdett of Austin, Stephanie Walsh of Lyle, Misty Dudley of Abilene, Katie Young of Lubbock and, DaLinda Black of Friona.

Jon Gwynn of Robstown served as best man. Groomsmen included Austin Pichot of Austin and Travis Pichot of Katy, both cousins of the groom; Mark Dragon, Jim Sugarek, and Bryan Butler all of Beeville.

Trevor Dragon, son of Mark and Jennifer Dragon of Beeville, was ringbearer. Young cousins of the bridegroom, Carolina Bonner and Rosalie Bonner, daughters of Byrd and Patty Bonner of San Antonio, served as flower girls. Lighting candles were Aaron Stevens and Chris Williams, both of Lubbock.

Guests were escorted by Boone Hand of Lubbock, Drew Baize of Amarillo, and Bowie Hand of College Station, all cousins of the bride.

The bride's twin cousins, Morgan and Logan Baize, sons of Kelly and Myrna Hill of Amarillo and Robin Baize of Friona, served as program attendants. Kinann Campbell of Lubbock and Chelsea Campbell of Hereford invited guests to register.

Wedding music was provided by violinist Ray Jenkins, pianist Jan Walser, and organist Scott McNulty. Eric Gilley, trumpeter, of Canyon, provided the processional. Vocal selections were performed by Cherry Wells of Friona and by the bridegroom's uncle and aunt, Byrd and Patty Riggle Bonner of San Antonio.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal length gown of candle light matte satin. The gown was traditionally styled with lavish details on the ballgown silhouette which included appliques of delicate re-embroidered lace encrusted with bridal pearls, which also enhanced the sweetheart neckline and short capped sleeves. The basque bodice attached to a graceful cathedral train completed the elegant gown.

A crown headpiece of re-embroidered lace accented with pearls gathered the two tiers of cathedral length silk illusion, which was also trimmed with re-embroidered lace and pearls, completed the bride's attire.

The bride carried a hand clustered bouquet of Carola, Bersilia, Texas, and Harmony roses, accented with lemon leaf and baby's breath and tied with ivory French chiffon ribbon. Antique handkerchiefs belonging to the bride's grandmothers, Bobbie Wilson and Betty Phipps, and the groom's grandmother, Frankie Riggle, completed the bride's bouquet. She also wore a brooch attached to her crown headpiece which belonged to her great-great-grandmother, Emily N. Beene.

Bridal attendants wore floor length, ivory chiffon plazio pants and matching fitted ivory chiffon blouses. Attendants carried smaller versions of the bride's bouquet of Carola, Versilia, Texas and Harmony roses also hand tied with ivory French chiffon ribbon.

Following the wedding the bride and groom were honored with a reception in the home of the bride's paternal grandparents, Bobbie and Elvin Wilson.

Shae Hill of Kilgore, cousin of the bride, Lexi Scumbato and Stephanie Wilcox, both of Canyon, Kelly Kelso, Jill Walser, Allison Farr, and Lee Harder, all of College Station, presided at the bride's table.

The four tiered Italian cream bride's cake was decorated with Vivailia, Carola, Versilia, Virginia, Harmony, Timeless and Texas roses nested in lemon leaf and baby's breath. Lladro doves were perched between the centers of the second and third layers of the cake. The bottom layer featured a four leaf clover of "good luck" to the bride and groom.

The groom's red velvet pound cake featured a pair of standing dimensional boots bearing A&M on the front of the boot. The cake was served by the groom's aunt, Gail Huie of Corpus Christi and Deana Sugarek and Ellen Sugarek of Beeville. Assisting with the reception were Dorothy Brownlow, Delores McCuistian, Blanch Sanchez, Ester Moreno, Brenda Campbell, Linda Black, Linda Daniel, Betty Wilcox, Carolyn Fry, Cindy Sublett, Jo Lee, Jan Dudley, Jamie Zinser, and Jane Packard.

Leaving for Orlando, Fla., and Disney World, the bride and groom departed in a 1930 Model A Ford.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1994, and the groom graduated from A.C. Jones High School in Beeville in 1994. Both the bride and groom are candidates for May '98 graduation from Texas A&M University. The bride is an Agri Business major and the groom is an Ag Development major. She is employed by Texas A&M in the University Center Office. He works for Texas A&M Agricultural Extension Service at the extension farm.

Thank You
To all our friends, your kind expressions of sympathy & thoughtfulness are deeply appreciated.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: You certainly went easy on the Internal Revenue Service in your recent reply to "Los Angeles Taxpayer." He described a tale of red-tape madness. You replied, "It's a miracle the IRS doesn't screw up more often." Frankly, Ann, you need a reality check on just how incompetent the IRS really is.

The IRS DOES screw up more often. How about the 3,000 people notified by the IRS in 1993 that they each owed $4 billion in back taxes? How about the Philadelphia chemical firm that was penalized nearly $47,000 because the IRS determined that its tax payment of $4,448,112.88 was a dime short?

The IRS recently spent $8 billion to overhaul its computer programs. What it got for all that money, a top official admitted, are systems that "do not work in the real world." The federal tax agency sends out some 30 million tax penalty notices every year. Nearly half are erroneous.

As the tax deadline approaches each year, the IRS invites taxpayers to call its toll-free number with questions. When they do call in, millions are given the wrong answers. Then when those callers rely on those wrong answers, they are slapped with interest, penalties and liens on their property. The Heritage Foundation compiled nine pages of numbers underscoring IRS ineptitude. Here are just a few examples:

-- The number of times the IRS gave the wrong answer in 1993 to taxpayers seeking assistance with their tax forms -- 8.5 million.

-- The percentage of its own budget for which the IRS could not account in an audit -- 64 percent.

-- The number of correction notices sent out by the IRS each year that turn out to be wrong -- 5 million.

-- The number of women wrongly fined each year because they get divorced or remarried -- 3 million.

-- The number of taxpayers whose old-age benefits will be cut because the IRS doesn't properly record their tax payments -- 10 million.

As the IRS Code grows ever more complex, it becomes easier for agents to find something wrong with any tax return. The existing tax code has become a source of unfathomable power for IRS agents -- and that power corrupts. In a survey of IRS officials in 1991, three-fourths said they would probably not be "completely honest" if they had to testify before Congress. Nearly half admitted they would use their position to harass personal enemies.

So take a few lashes with the wet noodle, Ann. Then add your voice to the cry for a simpler, slimmer, saner tax code. Do it for your readers. Believe me, Ann, they need your help. -- Jeff Jacoby, columnist, Boston Globe

Dear Jeff Jacoby: You've made

— YOUR EYES —

See Better on the Road

Good drivers know they must not outride their headlights -- or their vision. Do you see as well as you should on the road? Check your vision, your car and your driving habits.

If you wear glasses, make sure the prescription is up-to-date. Some drivers prefer stronger lenses for night-time driving. And keep an extra set in the car. If you need glasses for driving, you can't be without them. Wear sunglasses during daylight only. At night they cut visibility of other cars, pedestrians and signs. Schedule regular eye exams to check eye health.

Keep front and rear windshields clean. Dirty windows cause blurred vision and glare. Clean headlights and brake lights, too. Brighter headlights extend your vision on the road; clean taillights make you care more visible to other drivers.

At nights, look away from oncoming headlights, so you won't be blinded temporarily. Best bet: watch your side of the road.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Character is built through discovery and failure." Some suggestions for building your child's self-esteem, (self-esteem is not taught, it is acquired through experiences), should include:

1. Spend quality time each day with your children. This is an opportunity to hear what they did and what is on their minds.
2. Make positive statements to your children as often as possible. No one has enough armor to withstand a constant barrage of "no" and "don't".
3. When disagreements occur, argue only about inaccurate facts or statements. Remember, everyone has opinions. Sometimes we must agree that we disagree.
4. Reach out and touch. Everyone needs it! Everyone wants it! A touch will many times communicate more than just words.
5. Smile! Be happy around your children!
6. Allow children to develop responsibility. Basically, in order to be a responsible family member, one must have responsibility.
7. Be honest with your children. Children will undoubtedly learn their response patterns from parents. Honesty also shows children that you trust them.
8. Separate the behavior from the individual. In problem situations, make certain that the child knows the behavior, not the child, is unacceptable.
9. Deal with here and now issues. Dredging up the past may serve to further block communication within the family.
10. Work on your own positive self-esteem. Happy, well-adjusted people who really care for others make excellent parents, and teachers!

A portion of the above was from the Chemical People Newsletter, Jan.-Feb. 1991 and was reprinted in an article from the Texas State Trooper, Spring/Summer, 1997, issue. Junior Historians will have a planning meeting in late July or early August. Hopefully, we will have at least one summer activity and we need to schedule our annual fall field trip, plus other projects and activities. The topic for History Day is "Immigration: People, Cultures, Ideas." Now is the time to begin making the decision for a topic and to begin gathering information....more on this later. "Raising a child with character is more impressive than raising one with just a trophy case full of awards."

MR. AND MRS. RYAN GLENN VANDERVEER
...united in marriage

Former resident wed in Russellville, Ark.

Jacqueline Lannell Tohm of Russellville, Ark., formerly of Hereford, and Ryan Glenn Vanderveer of Russellville were married on June 2. The wedding was officiated by Wayne Bradley. The bride is the daughter of LeRoy and Lorraine Tohm of 123 Quince in Hereford. The bride is a 1994 graduate of Hereford High School. She is a student at Westark College in Fort Smith, and is employed as a child care giver. The groom is the son of Leon and Lyn Vanderveer of Mena, Ark. He is a 1988 graduate of Mena High School, and a graduate of Petit Jean College. He is employed by the Vital Connection of Russellville and by CarMar Valley of Russellville. Following a wedding trip to Mount Ida, the couple, along with her son, will reside in Russellville.

Award goes to Chandler for execution of duties

An 820th RED HORSE Squadron staff sergeant from Hereford was recently selected as the Air Warfare Center Resource Advisor of the Year and American Society for Military Comptrollers Meritorious Unit under Major Command for Resource Management for fiscal 1996.

Staff Sgt. Dennis Chandler, son of Don and Linda Chandler of Hereford, received this award for his execution of duties during numerous deployments to include Exercise Fairwinds, Port-au-Prince, Haiti.

While in Haiti, Chandler performed as paying agent during his three month deployment expediting local procurement and payment of construction materials needed to complete a two year engineering effort.

He ensured uninterrupted deliveries by hand delivering payment checks to local Haitian vendors as well as assisting the deployed contracting officer in executing supply and service contracts.

During this time, Chandler also administered more than $715,000 for the renovation of three schools, a hospital and a two-mile section of road. His efforts also resulted in a reimbursement of $1.1 million for the Haitian government.

Throughout the year Chandler was responsible for accurately tracking expenses, billings and reimbursements for more than $6.9 million which included rotating deployments in and out of Haiti, South Korea and El Salvador.

According to his peers, his ability to translate budget and accounting "lingo" into meaningful decision-making packages proved to be invaluable not only to the 820th RHS commander and base financial management personnel, but senior base leadership as well.

Chandler is a 1985 graduate of Hereford High School, serving in the U.S. Air Force since 1986. He is a financial analyst currently stationed at Osan Air Base, Korea.

The Successful Family

PARENT POINTERS

1. BE WARM LOVING AND RESPONSIVE.

When children receive warm, responsive care, they are more likely to feel safe and secure with the adults who take care of them. We know that children's early attachments actually affect the way their brains work and grow.

Researchers call those strong relationships "secure attachments", and they are the basis of the child's future relationships.

2. RESPOND TO THE CHILD'S CUES AND CLUES

Recognize and respond to the sounds, movements and expressions that your child makes. This will help you build secure attachments. The cues and clues that infants send are the sounds they make, the ways they move, and the facial expressions they use. Children become securely attached when parents and other caregivers try to read these signals and respond with sensitivity.

There are simple steps parents can take to build trust in their young children; the child smiles and someone smiles back; they are upset and someone comforts them; they are hungry and someone feeds them. Parents who respond to their children's needs for attention, as well as quiet times, help their children form secure attachments.

3. TALK, SING, AND READ TO YOUR CHILD.

All of these interactions help your child's brain make the connections it needs for growth and later learning. Telling stories about daily events, reading children's books aloud, singing songs about the people and places your child knows, describing what is happening during daily routines -- all of these interactions give your child a solid basis for later learning.

If you need more parent pointers or your family needs support during crisis situations, contact Tilly Boozer, facilitator and counselor at 364-HELP for more information and resources. Also keep in mind October 7, 1997 for the next successful Family Nurturing Program sessions at the HISD building.

Extension Agent's Notes

By BEVERLY HARDER

Most consumers pay their debts on time and avoid the consequences associated with a debt being turned over to a collection agency. If you are having problems repaying a debt, contact the creditor before the bill is passed on to a collector. When facing credit repayment problems, creditors may sometimes agree to refinance or modify the agreement instead of paying the debt collector to collect the debt from you.

If a debt is turned over to a debt collector, consumers have certain rights under both Texas law and Federal law. This consumer protection came about when some debt collectors resorted to abusive or fraudulent tactics to collect on past-due accounts.

If your debt is turned over to a collection agency, it is unlawful for the debt collector to try to collect more than what the original amount was, although the debt collector is entitled to charge you a fee. Check the fine print in your original credit contract agreement to determine your obligations for interest charges, late fees and attorney's fees.

If you receive a debt collection notice and dispute it, you should contact the debt collector in writing. The debt collector is obliged to provide you with the necessary forms for the written notice and has 30 days after receiving your written request to determine whether the disputed amount is correct or incorrect. If it is incorrect, it must be corrected and the debt collector must notify anyone who has already received a report containing the incorrect item.

After 30 days, if the debt collector has not been able to determine the accuracy of the item, the collector must make the change you requested and then make proper notifications. If, however, it is discovered at a later time that the item was correct in the first place, collection efforts may be continued after you have been notified.

The following actions by debt collectors are illegal:

- *threaten violence or other criminal acts;
- *use profane or obscene language;
- *falsely accuse the consumer of fraud or other crimes;
- *threaten arrest of the consumer, or repossession or other seizure of property without proper court proceedings;
- *use the telephone to harass debtors by calling anonymously or making repeated or continuous calls;
- *make collect telephone calls without disclosing the name of the caller before the charges are accepted. Fraud and deception by debt collectors are also illegal:

- *using a false name or identification;
- *misrepresenting the amount of the debt or its judicial status;
- *sending documents to a debtor that falsely appear to be from a court or other official agency;
- *failing to identify who holds the debt; (disclosure is not required for first lien mortgage loans or credit card debt, however)
- *misrepresenting the nature of the services rendered by the collection agency or the collector;
- *falsely offering something of value in exchange for personal or confidential information.

Even though some debt collectors may threaten foreclosure on homesteads or garnishee wages, in Texas, a homestead cannot be taken to pay a debt except for purchase of the home, home improvements or certain taxes. Wages may be garnished to pay court-ordered child support, back taxes, and defaulted student loans.

Texas laws cover actions by anyone trying to collect a debt, while federal law (the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act) applies only to collectors working for professional debt collection agencies and attorneys hired to collect a debt. The federal law prohibits calls at work if the collector has reason to know the employer does not permit such calls. Also prohibited are calls before 8:00 a.m. or after 9:00 p.m. unless the collector knows these times are more convenient for the debtor.

Consumers who believe they are being subjected to harassing, abuse, or fraudulent debt collection practices, should notify the collector in writing, keeping a copy and sending the original to the debt collector via certified mail. Further information about consumers rights is available through the Office of the Attorney General. Call the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Hotline at 1-800-337-3928 or contact your nearest regional Consumer Protection Division office.

MR. AND MRS. RAY LEASURE
...observe 25th anniversary

Wedding anniversary celebrated by couple

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Leasure will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary at dinner with their children, Cristin and Ryan.

Ray Leasure married the former Marilyn Murphey on June 23, 1972, in Hereford.

The couple has resided in Hereford since their marriage.

Leasure is a farmer. Mrs. Leasure is principal of Hereford Junior High. She was named Region XVI

Secondary Principal of the Year for 1994-1995. She is on the board of directors of Texas Middle School Association Region XVI and a member of the Texas Middle School Network.

They are members of First Baptist Church of Hereford where both are members of the choir. Mrs. Leasure is the Children's Sunday School director and sixth grade teacher.

Military Muster

Army Pvt. Gabriel L. Mungia has graduated from basic military training at Fort Sill, Lawton, Okla.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Mungia is the son of Gabriel and Lupita Mungia of Hereford.

The private is a 1996 graduate of Hereford High School.

Marine Pvt. Alejandro Nava, son of Jose L. and Maria E. Nava of Hereford, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

Nava successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

Nava and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a.m., by running three miles and performing calisthenics. In addition to the physical conditioning program, Nava spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training. They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training.

Make-A-Wish meets Tuesday

The Make-A-Wish Foundation of Hereford will meet for a brown bag luncheon at noon Tuesday in the Heritage of the Deaf Smith County Library.

Volunteers for Make-A-Wish are needed in Hereford. Anyone who is interested in volunteering their time for this worthy cause is urged to attend the meeting.

For more information, call Deby or Bernadette at 364-6921.

Nava and other recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values--honor, courage and commitment, and what the words mean in guiding personal and professional conduct.

Nava and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The Crucible, a 54-hour team effort, problem solving evolution which culminated with an emotional ceremony in which the recruits were presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and were addressed as "Marines" for the first time since boot camp began.

Nava joins 41,000 men and women who will enter the Marine Corps this year from all over the country.

He is a 1994 graduate of Hereford High School.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

BUYING A FRANCHISE How to avoid the pitfalls

For a would-be, small-business owner the lure of the franchise is strong. We often hear that franchise are growing at faster rates than the overall economy. Franchise proponents tell us that risk is virtually eliminated because of proven systems and methods. We also hear that franchisors look out for the best interests of their franchisees. Unfortunately, not all we read and hear is true. While there are advantages in owning a franchise, there are also pitfalls. Please consider the following myths and suggestions before you part with your hard-earned money.

Five Franchising myths

- A franchise is a safe investment. Opening any business is a gamble. Even with tested formulas, there is risk. A 1992 congressional hearing found that nearly 40 percent of franchisees fail within the first five years.
- Franchisees look out for franchisees. Don't bet the farm on it. Some franchisors are better than others, but their goal is to grow and increase profits and that may often conflict with individual franchisees' needs.
- Franchisees are easy to sell. If things don't work out you can sell a franchise quickly, right? Wrong. All franchisees come complete with a contract. Some have buy-back clauses and most restrict the sale of the franchise.
- Franchisees prosper in bad times. No business is recession-proof. Poor management can cause a franchise to fail in good economic times. In tough times, even well-run franchisees can suffer decline or failure.
- All franchisees are about the same. Not true. Franchisees vary and are like an ever-changing kaleidoscope. Some offer brilliant opportunities. While others become dull and unimaginative almost overnight.

How to pick a winner

- Before you invest heavily in any venture, take a little time to avoid the most common pitfalls. Here are some suggestions to get you started.
- Begin with an honest self-evaluation. What skills, knowledge and abilities do you possess that will help you be successful? Are you really willing to work 70-80 hours every week? Are you comfortable earning less initially? Can you handle the tough parts of the business such as personnel, financial management, accounting and marketing? Do you understand financial statements, labor laws and insurance requirements?

- Do your homework. Learn about the industry surrounding and franchise you might consider. Study the products and services offered. Know the competition. Take a hard look at the trade area. There are many sources of information, but you'll have to dig data out.
 - Study individual franchisees. Not all franchisors offer equal opportunities. Look at the company's track record. Learn about their growth, marketshare and paperwork requirements. Carefully study the company's disclosure documents. Look at information from two or more companies. Bring in professionals when you get ready to negotiate the contract.
 - Visit and interview existing franchisees. Look for successful owners in markets that approximate your potential trade area. Visit in person all those you can. Find out what the franchising company provides and how cooperative it is. Ask about training. Were there any surprises? Would they do it again knowing what they know now? What changes would they make? Franchisees are an excellent, experienced source of information.
 - Visit the corporate office and talk to the staff. You wouldn't buy a house just by driving by, so check out the inside of your first-choice franchisor. Is quality obvious? Are all the staff members friendly and courteous? Are they knowledgeable and forthright in answering your questions? Do they show interest in you, and your needs?
- As with any business start, planning and gathering information are important to your success. Armed with a good plan with a good plan and the right information, your franchise experience can be a positive one.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

Are you getting ready to take a vacation? Got a long car trip in your future? Do the kids get restless on a trip to Amarillo, forget going all the way to Grandma's?

Do we have something for you! This is the season for talking books. Long trips become timeless voyages into new lands when you are listening to books as you travel the monotonous interstates.

There is a talking book available at the Deaf Smith County Library for every taste. In addition to many children's titles, there are audio versions of many best-selling fiction and nonfiction, from Hank the Cowdog series to Stephen King. Written by your favorite authors, many of these are read by popular actors and actresses.

If you feel guilty about spending your travel time so frivolously, there are educational tapes on such topics as self-improvement, history, new management techniques, and speaking Spanish.

The point is, travel time doesn't have to be wasted time, referee time, or boring time. Talking books from the library can transform the trip into quality family time, relaxation time, or learning time, even if you are just going to Amarillo to Wal-Mart.

Not only are we buying new titles along, but we also get a new collection of tapes four times a year from the Texas Panhandle Library System. These are rotating packets that are shared by the libraries of the Panhandle as a benefit of belonging to the System. With over 500 titles which belong to us and the 46 titles in the TPLS packet, you should be able to find many titles which will meet your needs.

These tapes are also good, I am told, for ironing days. I really wouldn't know. I am not organized enough to have an "ironing day".

Summer Reading Club is half over! Can you believe it? We have had wonderful response this year with over 250 children attending each activity day and over 700 children registering to earn prizes. Many have already become well-equipped dragon tamers (for you who are uninitiated, this means that they have spent enough time reading to advance through all levels of the program and earn all the prizes). These kiddos, I am sure, will continue to read even without the incentive of prizes. They have come to love reading and would not be caught without a book.

Teen Read has also had a good response. It is fun to initiate a new program and begin to plan what we will do next year (and not do next year) based on what we are experiencing. Teen Read is designed for those who have finished 6th, 7th or 8th grade and are interested in different kinds of activities from those of the traditional Summer Reading Club.

Country music fans, especially those who have been fans a long time, will enjoy "I'll Hold You in My Heart" by Don Cusic. This biography of Eddy Arnold chronicles his rise from the son of a poor farmer in Chester County, Tenn., to being the recipient of the first Entertainer of the Year Award from the Country Music Association.

In addition to telling the story of Eddy Arnold, Cusic provides an insider's view of the rise of Nashville as the town that has become synonymous with country music as WSM's The Grand Ole Opry. Cusic also introduces Eddy Arnold the Businessman and real estate entrepreneur whose wise investments have made him one of Tennessee's wealthiest citizens.

Are you thinking about home schooling your child this fall? You might find help in Home Education Resource Guide by Cheryl Gorder. This is the fourth edition of the book and includes an expanded chapter on educational software because of the explosion of this media. Also, they have listed companies' E-mail and Web sites. However, this book is not just about electronic resources, but covers virtually all avenues of assistance for the home schooling family.

According to Library Journal, "If you can afford only one resource directory, this is the one to buy." But, of course, you don't have to buy it because it is available from the Deaf Smith County Library.

Are you about to embark on the emotional roller coaster ride of new motherhood? Or are you already there? Laughter and Tears: The Emotional Life of New Mothers by Elizabeth Bing and Libby Colman, Ph.D. may be for you. Daniel Goleman, author of Emotional Intelligence calls this book, "A sensitive and intelligent guide to the sometimes rocky emotional terrain every new mother encounters."

Woodworkers, especially those who are imperfect, can benefit from 100 Keys to Preventing and Fixing Woodworking Mistakes by Alan and Gill Bridgewater. Proceeding through the normal sequence of woodworking from selecting the wood to making the finishing touches, each tip, with its hands-on photograph or drawing, has been carefully thought through so that it sets out the extent of the mistake and then tells you how to avoid or repair it.

New fiction books are: Secrecy by Belva Plain. The Tenth Justice by Brad Meltzer. Deadly Harvest by Leonard Goldberg. Heart Song by V.C. Andrews. Tallgrass by Don Coldsmith. Murder at Midnight by Elliott Roosevelt. Hope of Earth by Piers Anthony.

Hacker is Rockwall Woman of Distinction

Debbie Hacker of Rockwall and formerly of Hereford was recognized as a Woman of Distinction by the Soroptimist International of Rockwall.

The club mission statement reads: Executive women organized in service and striving to identify, create, develop, and provide solutions to specific unmet needs of Rockwall county.

Debbie has impacted the children of Rockwall and the community by her positive attitude and endless dedication in a number of organizations. She has chaired the Children's Holiday Activities and serves as the Vice President/Program Chairman. In addition, she assisted with numerous association activities, including fundraising, babysitting certification seminar, and bicycle safety clinic, Breakfast with Santa, and supplying food to needy families at Thanksgiving. She and other members of RPA coordinated with the Make a Wish Foundation to send a Rockwall Preschool student diagnosed with leukemia to Disney/World.

As a member of Rockwall Newcomers Club she has served as Vice President/Programs and is currently the secretary. She chaired the Tour of Homes in 1995 and also assisted with the membership directory.

As an active participant in local schools, she has served Williams Middle School PTA as a member of the Board, Fundraising Chairman/Chili Supper Chairman and Friday Greeter. She currently serves on the Board of Reinhardt Elementary School PTA and on the Hospitality Committee.

Debbie is married to Stacy Hacker and is the former Debbie Feagley daughter of Bill and Gwen Feagley formerly of Hereford. She graduated from Hereford High School in 1976.

Granddaughter receives funds

Sharee Williamson of Marshall, daughter of Kim and Karen Gamblin Williamson and granddaughter of LeRoy and Mary Williamson of Hereford, recently received a college-sponsored National Merit Scholarship.

Recipients of National Merit Scholarships are chosen by the officials of the institution the recipient will attend.

Williamson attends Austin College in Sherman where she will be a sophomore in the fall. She is a member of the cappella touring choir, the strings ensemble, Sherman Symphony and the Theta Sigma Chi sorority.

Students pass exams during Guild auditions

In recent Piano Guild Auditions held at Christ's Church Fellowship these students passed their Guild exams making Superior ratings. They are students of Evelyn Hacker.

They are Alyssa Hill, Amanda Smith, Mackenzie Watts, Abby Horrell, Clay McNeely, Kimberly Scott, Brenda Brookhart, Flint Dollar, Lisa Coneway, Holly Coneway, Brendon Edwards, Holly Edwards, Laurie Gilbert, Toby Duncan, Natalie Torres, Linden Duggan, and Kari Schilling.

Evelyn Hacker is included on the National Honor Roll of Guild Teachers for 1997.

In addition, five students attended the Pastoral Music Festival held in Lubbock.

All five qualified to go to the State Music Festival held in San Marcos.

Only Flint Dollar and Toby Duncan attended earning Outstanding awards. Flint also won All-State and appeared on the recital featuring All-State performers.

Other students qualifying were Abby Horrell, Lisa and Holly Coneway.

Extension Agent's Notes

By DENNIS NEWTON
County Extension Agent-Ag

The county crop conditions continued to look good this week following yet another rain. It seems hard to believe that just last year we were so dry at this time. Our wheat seems to have recovered well from the freeze in April. From what I have seen, it is going to be at least a normal crop if not some better. I visited with several producers this week and they all agreed that the crop was improving.

I had the opportunity to attend an irrigation system field day sponsored by Winget Pump Company on Wednesday to look at a new center pivot irrigation system that they have installed on the Elmo and Scott Hall Farm southwest of Hereford. The system is state of the art with many new improved features including the ability to control the system from a cellular telephone.

The folks at XIT Cellular were on hand to demonstrate the new features. The communications system will automatically call and alert producers if the system fails for any reason. Producers can call the system and it will give location in the field, time that it has been in running and producers can start, stop, and reverse the system using the telephone.

Dennis Hicks, a representative for XIT, and I were discussing about what an exciting time it is to be involved in agriculture because of all of the new technology that is on the horizon. At no time in history, has it been more important for producers to do their utmost to keep abreast of these changes. Information management in the next few years will become as important as driving that tractor or applying fertilizer. It is a challenge for producers.

We had a good group participating in the annual Deaf Smith County Extension Wheat Tour last week. Plots at the Donald Meyer, Raymond Schlabs, and Jim Cavin farms were toured. Dr. Brent Bean, Area Extension Agronomist, was on hand to review the wheat varieties, discuss weed control and fertilizer practices. Dr. Carl Patrick, Area Extension Entomologist, was also on hand and discussed integrated pest management techniques and insect control methods. The plots are still available for viewing, simply call one of the producers and I am sure they will be glad to answer any questions.

Speaking of wheat. This hot weather has really ripened the wheat. I expect to see some wheat harvested early this next week. Let's hope the weather holds and allows our producers to get the crop out as soon as possible. This time of year, I always worry every time a thunderstorm come up. We have information concerning harvest aid chemicals available in the county extension office for producers that need that information.

For you cotton producers, we now have the updated "1997 Cotton Insect Control Guide" available in the county extension office. Producers desiring a copy may come by the extension office. Think a safe and good wheat harvest!! See you next week.

All programs sponsored by the TAEX are open to people of all ages regardless of race, color, national origin, creed, socioeconomic standing, sex, religion or physical handicap.

Alternate crops can replace cotton

Agronomist offers cautions for replanting fields

AMARILLO - Untimely rains, hail and wind storms have caused some cotton producers to consider replanting to an alternative crop, according to Dr. Brent Bean, agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Service here.

Bean said growers might consider one of several crop alternatives following cotton, such as sorghum, soybeans, sunflowers, or dry beans.

"Producers across the High Plains who are thinking about sorghum may have some difficulty in locating seed due to the unusually short seed supply this year," he said. Hybrid selection for late planted sorghum is an important consideration.

In general, a medium-to-full season hybrid should not be planted after June 15. The cutoff date for a medium maturity hybrid would be June 20 through June 30, while short season hybrids could be planted up to July 10, depending upon the hybrid and how far south in the Panhandle or South Plains the field is located.

"Before planting any hybrid, be sure to check with the seed company for the recommended planting date for that particular hybrid," Bean advises. He said a list of major sorghum hybrids and their maturity class is available at local county extension offices along with recent variety trial data.

Producers who plant late sorghum should be aware that midge infestations and other insects may be a problem, and be prepared to apply insecticides if needed, the specialist cautioned.

Cotton herbicide carryover is often a potential problem in planting sorghum. Treflan, Prowl, Caparol, Cotoran, Karmex and Staple soil residues can all injure sorghum.

"This is especially true on sandy soils, where residues could be relatively deep in the soil due to the recent rains," he added. The agronomist suggested the problem of soil residues can often be avoided in heavier textured soils with a buster planter set to displace the top four to five inches of soil to establish a herbicide-free seed zone.

If Dual herbicide has been applied, safened seed can be planted directly into the treated soil with little risk of sorghum injury.

According to Bean, some cotton producers have used the new herbicide Staple, however sorghum is very sensitive to even small amounts of Staple residue. It is not recommended that sorghum be planted in fields treated with Staple.

Soybeans may be a good replacement crop for cotton in irrigated areas, the agronomist said. Soybeans require about 80 percent of the water needed to grow corn for top yields. The optimum planting date for soybeans is prior to June 1.

"However, soybeans can be planted as late as July 10 and make a crop," he said. Since soybeans are sensitive to day length, late plantings usually result in short stalk growth and may lead to poor harvest of the lower seed pods.

By planting on narrow rows and increasing the seeding rate, the soybean plant can be encouraged to set pods higher off the ground. Group IV soybeans usually work best for our area even when planted late, he said.

Herbicide residues of Treflan, Prowl or Dual will have no effect on soybeans, said Bean. If Caparol, Cotoran or Karmex has been used, at least three or four inches of soil will need to be removed before establishing a seed furrow. Bean suggested if Staple has been applied consider planting an STS soybean variety.

Another alternative crop Bean suggested is sunflowers. Planted as late as mid-July they can still make a good yield.

"This may be an especially good alternative for the dryland farmer," he said. If one summer irrigation can be made it should be applied from budding until two weeks after first flowering. This is the critical period when stress on the sunflower plant should be avoided.

"Land treated with Treflan or Prowl shouldn't pose a problem for sunflowers," he said. However, like soybeans, if Karmex, Cotoran, Staple or Caparol has been used, three to four inches of soil will need to be removed before planting. Sunflowers are also more tolerant to Staple than soybeans, although injury may still occur.

Texas vegetables abundant as markets open this month

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Veggie lovers can look forward to abundant, Texas-grown produce at farmers' markets opening up this month, according to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Even though most vegetable gardens were planted late, districts around the state are reporting favorable yields. According to Tony Douglas, district extension director in Overton, the late planting was a result of the cool, wet spring. However, recent rains have had a positive effect on the vegetable gardens.

"The timely rains have really helped to improve soil moisture," Douglas said. "Although there have been a few dry spots, little irrigation has been needed to sustain the crops."

In East Texas, growers are already harvesting squash, tomatoes, cucumbers, beans, onions and peppers.

"Overall, these crops are doing well," Douglas said.

According to Douglas, producers have had some trouble with watermelon crops and several had to replant their fields and vegetable producers are reporting insect pressure on their crops. Otherwise, the industry is on its normal schedule for the year.

"Farmers' markets have started to open up again throughout East Texas," he said. "We are expecting a variety of vegetables later this month."

Lin Wilson, district extension director in Corpus Christi, reported a variety of vegetables were produced in slightly lower volumes in May due to excess moisture. Many farmers are expecting better yields from crops in June.

Randy Upshaw, district extension director in Dallas, reported a strong problem with aphids in North Texas.

"There are high numbers of aphids on tomatoes," Upshaw said. "And aphids are abundant on everything in Franklin County."

County extension agents in that district reported producers have taken insect control measures, and some are having significant problems with flies.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

-- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

This Fence Doesn't Need Whitewashing

The seemingly unending need for whitewashing and mending of conventional wood fences has motivated many property owners to give up on them. They just don't have the leisure time to play Tom Sawyer anymore.

Traditional whitewashed, wood-picket fences solve plenty of problems but they create problems, too. Fortunately, it's not necessary to give up on picket fences. They can be made of alternative materials such as vinyl, which is much more sensible and not such a drain on your weekends.

The Trouble with Wood

In some areas, almost as soon as the fence is installed it starts coming apart, as if nature somehow abhors fences. The real trouble with fences is that wood just isn't up to the task. As the wind blows against the fence, the long planks act like levers, loosening and fatiguing whatever fasteners hold the planks to the posts. The wood splits along the grains. Holes enlarge. Nails rust. Sooner or later one or more of the planks or pickets come loose, necessitating another round of fence mending.

Also, because wood doesn't weather very well, it frequently needs to be "whitewashed" or painted. Unfortunately, this is a labor intensive activity and, unless you have the genius of Tom Sawyer, it can be expensive.

Today's Tom Sawyer

Perhaps whitewashing wooden fences appeals to some sense of the innate value of hard work, or the need to keep young people busy. But let's face it. Times have changed. It just doesn't make sense to be spending leisure time painting fences. And, as every parent knows, the x, y- and z-generations have better things to do than whitewash fences. Even Tom would have a tough time getting them to take off their in-line skates or walk away from their 3D video-game design platforms to voluntarily whitewash a fence.

Why not get a fence that doesn't need painting? Even if you might liken yourself to a modern-day Tom Sawyer, truth be told, wood fences should not be seen as a human-resource challenge. They are an annoyance to all parties concerned. Unlike Tom Sawyer, you will wind up paying someone else, or else painting and mending yourself.

Just as you begin to appreciate a perfectly-aligned, whitewashed, wood-picket fence that gracefully marks the boundaries of the landscape, one section or another falls apart and needs mending. Of course, there's never enough "spare-time" for this extra chore, and the fence becomes a pesky eyesore until there is enough time.

A Welcome Relief

Plastics are ideally suited for certain purposes - including fences - and polyvinyl chloride (or vinyl, for short) tops the list of plastics with properties appropriate for fences. A fence should stand up to bugs, bacteria, mildew, fungi and other organic processes of rot and decay. Vinyl clearly stands up where wood doesn't.

While a fence could be made of wood, stone or metal, for most landscapes and applications, a vinyl fence offers decided advantages in terms of durability, superb appearance and low maintenance costs (that is, low long-term costs).

Vinyl Is Final

Once a vinyl fence is installed, it offers a trouble-free performance for practically as long as the owner lives and beyond. A vinyl fence is a good example of the appropriate application of technology - something that would satisfy even Tom Sawyer.

Kroy Building Products has been making vinyl products for residential, commercial, security and agricultural applications for over forty years. If there is a vinyl fence in your future, most likely Kroy makes it.

To learn more about modern fencing materials, including styles and properties of vinyl fences, write to obtain a fact-filled brochure. Send fifty cents along with a stamped, self-addressed, business-sized envelope to Kroy Building Products, P.O. Box 309-HP, York, NE 68467. MP

Familiar faces and themes highlight fall lineups

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Competing for a slice of an ever-shrinking viewership pie, all four major networks have lined up a fall roster of shows that are high in familiarity and low in risk.

Complex dramas about the nature of good and evil (EZ Streets, American Gothic)? Forget 'em. Cops shows and workplace sitcoms? Oh, you betcha.

Over at the top-rated Peacock network, NBC has awarded its coveted Seinfeld-ER hammock to Veronica's Closet, the season's most anticipated new sitcom, from the creators of Friends. Triple Emmy winner Kirstie Alley (Cheers) stars as a woman whose booming intimate-apparel line has made her the Queen of Romance. Her splendid supporting cast includes Jamey Sheridan (Chicago Hope) and Wallace Langham (Phil on The Larry Sanders Show).

Among other NBC sitcoms: The Tony Danza Show, with its namesake star playing a divorced sportswriter named — oh, guess; Fred Savage grown out of his "wonder years" into the reality of Working; Union Square, an ensemble show set in a New York diner; comic Royale Watkins in Built to Last, which isn't; and Jenny, as in McCarthy, consigned to a deadly Sunday slot.

Bruce Greenwood stars in Sleepwalkers, a new NBC "thrillology" entry about a team that can infiltrate dreams, while Ice-T stars in Players, a '90s take on The Mod Squad.

Snug in second place, CBS has ordered only six new shows, plus a news-magazine with Bryant Gumbel. Bob Newhart and Judd Hirsch star as in-laws in George & Leo, while Bronson Pinchot returns as a zany space alien named Mork — oops, Meego. A Tony winner makes his sitcom debut in The Gregory Hines Show.

Fittingly playing an ex-cop, red-faced redhead David Caruso (NYPD Blue) returns to the small screen in Michael Hayes, and Danny Aiello stars as a private eye in Dellaventura. Cop show Brooklyn South is one of two new Steven Bochco series.

Mired in third place, an embarrassed ABC is looking to heaven for help. In addition to last spring's surprise sitcom hit Soul Man, the network has added two new shows with celestial themes: Teen Angel, about a youth returning to earth to advise his best buddy, and Nothing Sacred with Kevin Anderson as a priest.

Among the eight other new shows ABC has on order, the network seems high on Dharma & Greg, about newlyweds and dueling in-laws, starring Jenna Elfman (Townies) with Mimi Kennedy and Susan Sullivan as the moms.

Also, look for Timecop, based on the action movie; Over the Top, with Tim Curry and Annie Potts as dueling exes; Hiller & Diller with Kevin Nealon and Richard Lewis as sitcom writers; an American version of England's brilliant Cracker, with Robert Pastorelli subbing for Robbie Coltrane; Genie, a teen sitcom; C16: FBI, an Eric Roberts-D.B. Sweeney action series; and Bochco's Total Security with James Belushi.

New Fox entertainment honcho Peter Roth unveils his first fall season with two prize dramas: Ally McBeal, a courtroom drama from David E. Kelley (Picket Fences), and The Visitor, a sci-fi entry from Roland Emmerich and Dean Devlin (Independence Day). Comic Damon Wayans goes dramatic in 413 Hope St.

Two sitcoms, Between Brothers and the flashback-heavy Rewind, look like standard Fox fodder, but Roth can relax: Whatever he puts on will be better than last fall on his network.

Emmy winner Kirstie Alley (Cheers) returns to NBC's Thursday prime-time lineup this fall in Veronica's Closet, a sitcom about a businesswoman with a successful line of intimate apparel. Otherwise, the 1997-98 schedule seems notable for its conservatism, not its creativity.

HOROSCOPES

★ June 22-28 ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Summer's here, and the living is easy this week, Aries. The sunshine and warm temperatures put you in a great mood that carries over into everything that you do, from your career to your family life. Your happiness is contagious, and those around you will be "infected." Capricorn and Pisces play important roles.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
You get a little hot under the collar at work this week as a project you've been working on runs into problems. If you remain calm and collected, you can come up with a solution. A loved one is there to offer suggestions and listen to you vent. This will make your relationship stronger.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
The workweek flies by, Gemini. You have a lot of work to do, but it doesn't overwhelm you. You actually enjoy it. Family, on the other hand, will try your patience. Everyone calls on you for advice and assistance. Don't get angry. You have to remember that these people always have been there for you. Leo plays a role.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
A superior at work trusts you with confidential information. This confidence means that the higher-ups trust and respect you. Don't let them down by spreading rumors. A person from your past returns for a visit and wants to rekindle an old flame. Think about what happened before. Do you want history to repeat itself?

LEO - July 23/August 23
Work is hectic this week, Leo, but you can handle it if you focus on the tasks at hand. However, loved ones are worried about you, because you don't seem like yourself. Instead of being outgoing, you're acting shy. Don't let their concern make you self-conscious. You just need a little time to think.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Your dependable nature won't fail you this week, which is a relief. You have a lot of appointments to keep, and a lot of people are counting on you. Don't get overwhelmed. A family member turns to you for advice. Make time for him or her, because he or she really needs you. Scorpio plays an important role.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
You have to make a crucial decision at work this week. Don't be rash; think about all of the pros and cons first. Ask for advice if you're not sure of what to do. That special someone is there for you. Don't let work's pressure keep you from developing your relationship.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
You must be determined this week, Scorpio, because you're faced with a lot of distractions. Get your priorities in order, and set an agenda for yourself. It is the only way to get anything done. A close friend needs you to be there for him or her. Don't let him or her down.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Don't go off on tangents at work this week. A lot of people are depending on you to complete your work. Keep your shoulder to the wheel — and your mouth closed! Your input will be needed for a family get-together. Help as much as you can. Gemini and Cancer play important roles.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
That stubborn streak of yours won't serve you well this week. Let your understanding side shine through if you want to accomplish anything. A loved one asks you a probing question. You can't avoid it, so just tell the truth. A secret admirer reveals his or her identity. It may shock you.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
With so much going on at work, it is hard for you not to overanalyze the situation. However, it is in your best interest to stay out of it and just do your own job — even if people try to drag you into the middle of the problem. Loved ones need your support this week. Taurus plays a role.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
It's time to make your move at work. You see the perfect opportunity to show your talent, and you have to take it. Don't worry — it will get you noticed. A close friend introduces you to someone with a lot of influence in your career field. Don't be shy. It's always good to have connections.

Leslie Nielsen takes viewers into his "Savage Garden" in National Geographic Explorer. The "natural history comedy" premieres Sunday on TBS.

'Savage Garden' is no place for the squeamish

Don't bother packing a picnic to eat while watching "Savage Garden" on National Geographic Explorer this week. You won't be hungry.

The stunning photography of common garden insects and small animals is up close and in your face - and it acts as a natural appetite suppressant.

Billed as a "natural history comedy," the film combines lighthearted gardening sequences featuring narrator Leslie Nielsen with close-up nature photography of fire ants, shrews, beetles, bats and other denizens of the flower bed. It airs Sunday, June 22, on TBS.

As Nielsen's character observes, a man's home may be his castle, but it's a jungle out there in the backyard. Life-and-death encounters occur hourly, from the acorns to the zinnias, on a rosebush, under a tomato plant and through the very air.

The delightfully (and mercifully) funny script, by producer John Rubin, is soaked with puns of the verminous kind.

Director Chase Newhart even drops in a Naked Gun-style sight gag for fun. National Geographic cinematographers George and Kathleen Dodge painstakingly filmed nature's drama: a jumping spider's attack on a bee, an acorn weevil breaking a three-year fast, a black widow spider laying her eggs, shrew turf wars, a high-speed chase involving a praying mantis and a hungry bat, and lots of mating.

The fruits of their labor are several photographic firsts, such as a shot of a desperate daddy longlegs losing a limb to a tenacious tiger beetle. The Dodges' work includes visual humor, too. Their herb-garden graveyard is especially witty.

Skillful editing brings all this together with scenes of Nielsen watering the daisies or tasting a cherry tomato (honestly, how can he?) in the 3.5-acre Virginia garden of landscape designer Olwen Woodier.

So weary cooks should take note and tune in, secure in the knowledge that no one in the family will ask, "When's dinner?" while the burying beetles are embalming the shrew with their saliva.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
 ©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: We enjoyed watching Just Shoot Me, starring Laura San Giacomo and David Spade, this spring. It was on for a few weeks, then disappeared. Will it be back next season? -K.L., Danville, Va.

A: NBC ordered a handful of test episodes of such shows as Just Shoot Me and Fired Up to see how audiences would respond to them. Both - as well as The Naked Truth - did well enough to merit slots on the network's fall schedule.

In fact, NBC is so high on Just Shoot Me, it gave the sitcom a coveted time slot: following the Emmy-winning Frasier. That puts San Giacomo, Spade and the other members of the cast in a posh Tuesday night sitcom lineup that includes Mad About You and NewsRadio.

Q: What was the order of hosts on NBC's The Tonight Show? -A reader in Florida.

A: Steve Allen hosted the original Tonight, which began in June 1953 as a local program on NBC's flagship station, WNBC-TV, in New York and moved to the network 15 months later. Allen, who left the show in early 1957, split his host chores with Ernie Kovacs during the last weeks of his tenure.

NBC then tried Tonight! America After Dark, a news-dominated show hosted by Jack Lescaulie, which lasted six months, at which point Jack Paar took over The Tonight Show in more or less the same format that exists today. His stormy late-night reign lasted until March 30, 1962.

NBC had its eye on a young comic named Johnny Carson, who wasn't available until the following October because he was under contract with ABC.

NBC filled the weeks in between with guest hosts such as Art Linkletter,

Laura San Giacomo

Joey Bishop and Bob Cummings.

Carson's historic run lasted from Oct. 2, 1962, to May 22, 1992. The show's current host, Jay Leno, took over three days later.

Q: My friends and co-workers call me a nut because I remember a favorite early '80s program called Automan. -Ricardo Gonzalez, Chicago.

A: Automan, a science-fiction series, had a short run on ABC during the 1983-84 season.

It starred Desi Arnaz Jr. and Chuck Wagner as, respectively, a computer geek and his alter ego, a computer program come to life.

Given today's computermania, the show may have been ahead of its time.

Q: Will Sliders be back next season? -Rachel Schatzle, Cincinnati.

A: No, the show has been canceled. Its Friday time slot on Fox will be filled by The Visitor, a new series from Independence Day creators Roland Emmerich and Dean Devlin. It stars John Corbett (Northern Exposure).

E
The Easiest Way (1931) Constance Bennett, Robert Montgomery. A potential romance with a wealthy foreigner spells trouble for a modeling agent's mistress. 1:45. June 28 3:15am.

Employee's Entrance (1933) Loretta Young, Warren William. A tyrannical department-store manager falls for an employee who is secretly married to one of his assistants. 1:30. June 26 7pm.

Escape From Crime (1942) Richard Travis, Julie Bishop. An unemployed photojournalist finally gets his big break when he accidentally snaps a shot of a bank thief. 1:00. June 27 12pm.

Escape From Terror: The Teresa Stamper Story (1995) Maria Pilla, Adam Storke. "Unsolved Mysteries" viewers are instrumental in the capture of an abusive husband who kidnapped his estranged wife. 2:00. June 26 5pm.

Escape Me Never (1947) Errol Flynn, Ida Lupino. A struggling composer's infatuation with a wealthy woman threatens to break apart his family. 2:00. June 23 3pm.

The Execution of Private Slovik (1974) Martin Sheen, Ned Beatty. The story of the World War II GI whose desertion led to the first execution of an American soldier since the Civil War. 2:30. June 26 2am.

Executive Action (1973) Burt Lancaster, Robert Ryan. Archival film footage blends with fiction in this hypothetical account of a conspiracy to assassinate Kennedy. 2:00. June 23 12am.

Brian Wimmer (left) and Peter Berg thaw out as two fugitives who are accidentally frozen for 29 years in Late for Dinner. The 1991 drama airs Monday on ABC.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.
