Teen pregnancies jump in county in 1992

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor
Teenage girls in Deaf Smith County gave birth to 62 babies in 1992, according to recently released statistics by the Texas Department of Health.
That figure represents a 77 percent increase over the number of babies born to girls under age 17 in 1991.

The figures are compiled in a 284-page Texas Vital Statistics annual report that includes data not only on births, but on marriages, divorces and deaths.
The figures are collected throughout the year, then were compiled and the report prepared during all of 1993. The report was issued earlier this year.

According to the report, 69 girls ages 13 to 17 became pregnant during 1992.
Of those 69, seven obtained abortions. None of those who aborted her child was under age 15, according to a breakdown of pregnancy terminations in the county.
Of the remaining 62 pregnancies, all delivered live babies, for a total of 62.

A new statistic included in this year's report is the pregnancy rate, which is the rate per 1,000 women.
The pregnancy rate for teen girls in Deaf Smith County in 1992 was 76.2 births per 1,000 women. The report said there were 906 girls in the "at-risk" pool for the year, meaning approximately 7.6 percent of the teenage girls in the county got pregnant that year.
In comparison, the 1991 report shows 35 total births to girls age 18 and under.

In 1992, there were 419 live births to county women, while four fetal deaths were recorded and 30 abortions were performed. The total "at-risk" population was recorded as 4,100 women.
In 1991, there were 402 live births among all county women. That year, four fetal deaths occurred. Fetal deaths are recorded only among unborn infants that were at a gestation period of 20 weeks or more.

women ages 25-29; two for women ages 30-34; one for a woman age 35-39; and two for women over age 40.
Among those obtaining abortions, 13 were Hispanic and 17 were Anglo.
In 1991, 17 women from the county had abortions. Of those, six were ages 15-19; four were 20-24; three were 25-29; and four were 30-34.

Of those abortions in 1991, six were to Hispanic women, eight to Anglo women and three to African-American women.

Within the report, death statistics for Deaf Smith County are broken

Harding sues USOC; vows to skate in Lillehammer

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer
LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) - A defiant Tonya Harding struck back at the U.S. Olympic Committee with a $20 million lawsuit and vowed to come to Norway, win a gold medal and "hang it on my wall forever."
The skater asked an Oregon court Wednesday to block the USOC from holding a hearing that could lead to her expulsion from the Winter Games for her actions surrounding the clubbing attack on Nancy Kerrigan.
Harding's attorney, Robert Weaver, expected a court hearing on the request today.

USOC executive director Harvey Schiller said the committee had expected some action by Harding's lawyers. "We are prepared to defend ourselves," he said, but declined further comment until USOC officials in Lillehammer reviewed the suit.
Kerrigan, meanwhile, was en route to Oslo, where she was due to arrive after noon today. "I just can't wait to get there so I can get going," she said before leaving Massachusetts.
Harding has denied advance knowledge of the plot to hobble her rival but admits she didn't immediately come forward when she learned about it afterwards.

She said Wednesday she would like to tell Kerrigan she's sorry and give her a hug - "if she'll let me."
The USOC wants Harding to appear before its 11-member Games Administrative Board in Oslo on Tuesday to answer charges that she violated Olympic rules of ethics and sportsmanship.
One of the witnesses before that hearing could be Jeff Gillooly, Harding's ex-husband and chief accuser who has said Harding gave the OK for the attack.
Gillooly's lawyers asked a judge in Multnomah County, Ore., to let him go to Oslo and testify before panel. He awaits sentencing after pleading guilty to racketeering in the Kerrigan assault.

District Attorney Michael Schruk said he "can't imagine" opposing the request, which Gillooly made after the USOC sent him a letter asking him to be available. A court hearing on Gillooly's request was set for today.
Gillooly also asked that the results of a lie detector test he took as part of a plea bargain be made public and available to the USOC.
But just before the courts closed for the day in Oregon, and in the middle of the night in Lillehammer, Harding's attorneys asked for a court order blocking the USOC hearing.
The lawsuit contends Harding has complied with all rules and regulations of the U.S. Figure Skating Association and should be allowed to compete in the Winter Games.

Seeking $20 million in punitive damages plus compensatory damages to be determined at a trial, the lawsuit notes that people close to Harding have been charged in the assault but that no charges have been filed against her.
It also said the USOC is not providing adequate due process. It cited the timing and location of the hearing, the makeup of the hearing board, limits on Harding's ability to call and question witnesses, the lack of an appeals process and conflicts with a similar disciplinary procedure under way before the USFSA.
In an interview with "Inside Edition" set for broadcast today and Friday, Harding said: "I'm going to the Olympics. I'm going to win a gold medal. And, I'm going to hang it on my wall forever."

She also said that she would apologize to Kerrigan if given the chance.
"I'll tell her that I'm really sorry that this has happened and that I always wish her the best and, hopefully, she'll forgive me for all this crap that's going on," Harding said. "Maybe (I'll) give her a hug. If she'll let me."
She said it means more than money for her to win a gold medal.
"If it all ended tomorrow and I had a gold medal in my hand with the people I'm surrounded with now, my life would be complete," Harding said.
She also was interviewed for "Eye to Eye With Connie Chung," set for broadcast tonight. She said she no longer loved Gillooly because "if somebody loved me, they wouldn't do this to me."

Outreach office head knows how to help violence victims

BY RICK LANNING
Staff Writer
Janie Solis, coordinator of the Hereford Outreach office, feels she is uniquely qualified to work with the police on domestic violence cases.
"I was an abused wife," said Solis, 39, a divorcee and mother of three daughters. The Rio Grande native alleges she put up with mental and physical abuse during a lengthy marriage.
Hereford Outreach is a program staffed by employees and volunteers who work in crisis intervention. The program is sponsored by the Rape Crisis and Domestic Violence Center of Amarillo. Its office is in the county courthouse in Hereford.
Solis works closely with Hereford Police Capt. Pat Michael on domestic violence cases. Last year, Hereford Police responded to 491 domestic disputes, 267 of which escalated into violence.
Michael, chairman of the 12-member Hereford Outreach Board of Directors, said, "This means somebody got hurt."

Solis is the daughter of a migrant farm worker. She was three when her family first moved to Hereford.
"There were nine of us in the family, five brothers and four sisters," she said. "My Dad gave us all a good education because he didn't want us to work in the fields."
After she and her husband were divorced, Solis continued her education and received her G.E.D., equivalent to a high school diploma. At the same time she started sharpening up her job skills.
Michael described her as "perfect" for running the Hereford Outreach program.
Said Michael, "Janie is a survivor. She is using what she learned to help others avoid what she went through."
The Hereford Outreach office opened May 1, 1987 following a meeting in Hereford with community leaders who were part of the criminal justice and social services systems.
While it is part of the Amarillo agency, Hereford Outreach is responsible for its own funding. Trained volunteers answer the 24-hour crisis line, ready to move at instant notice to help anyone in need.
The outreach provides a number of services, including a 24-hour crisis line; emergency overnight shelter in Hereford and referrals to other area shelters where long term housing for victims of domestic violence is available; counseling; courtroom preparation and accompaniment; and referrals to assist victims with medical, legal, housing, and job needs.

whose friend had died tragically after years in an abusive marriage.
A 1981 research study sponsored by the Junior League of Amarillo revealed a pressing need for a shelter in the Panhandle, calling it "the most requested and least available service for battered women and their children."
A center spokesman added, "The study uncovered the shocking reality that the incidence of domestic violence in this area was twice the national average."
Concerned citizens got together and helped raise $303,000 to buy and renovate a home to be used as a shelter for battered spouses and their children.
Many family services are offered by the centers, according to Solis. Parents are taught to improve their relationships with their children by yelling less and listening more.
Students are given input on how to avoid drinking or using drugs and how to deal with peer pressure. Individuals and families are instructed on how to make wise choices on a daily and long-term basis.
For children who are sexually molested, the Family Support System offers counseling and support groups. Victims are assisted in working with police, the courts, and the social service system.

For more details on Hereford Outreach or the Amarillo Shelter, call 364-7822. The 24-hour crisis line is 373-8022.
A support group will meet Monday at 5 p.m. A qualified counselor will be present to help victims of domestic violence or sexual assault.

Administration promising to help welfare moms Long waits for child care may hurt welfare reform

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Tens of thousands of poor working families must wait months for federally subsidized day care, according to a congressional report that suggests widespread child-care shortages could undermine a basic goal of President Clinton's welfare plan.

The administration is drafting legislation, promised by spring, to give single mothers on welfare the child care, education and training they need to get off the rolls within 24 months.
But government records and an investigation by the staff of Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., disclose serious child-care shortages for women now trying to leave welfare and for the working poor. It also found unsafe and unsanitary conditions in many day-care centers that collect federal subsidies.

"It is unclear how welfare reform ... will succeed without radical reform and improvement of the nation's child-care system," according to a staff report by the House Small Business subcommittee on regulation.
Wyden, the subcommittee's chairman, plans a hearing Friday on the availability and quality of child care nationwide.
He also will focus on the "apparent breakdown" of federal programs to reimburse single mothers on welfare who need child care to get a job or attend school or training while still on the rolls.
Government records for 1991, the latest year for which figures are available, show that fewer than 155,000 families on welfare were being helped by those day-care programs out of nearly 4.4 million families on Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Esparza convicted of sexual assault; given 40-year prison term

A 27-year-old defendant in an aggravated sexual assault of a child trial Wednesday was found guilty and sentenced to 40 years in prison.
The 222nd District Court jury of nine women and three men took about 25 minutes to determine guilt of Jose Delaluz Esparza.
In the punishment phase of the trial, the jury spent slightly more than an hour in deliberations before returning to court with the 40-year sentence.
District Judge David Wesley Gulley will pronounce the sentence formally at a later date, after a presentencing report has been submitted by the probation department.
Esparza was indicted in May 1992 on two charges, each alleging sexual assault of a child under the age of 14. The incidents allegedly occurred in March 1992.

Trial on one charge was set for Oct. 27, 1992, but Esparza, according to his own testimony in court Wednesday, left Hereford and went to Mexico just before the trial was to begin.
He was arrested last November in Kansas and returned to Deaf Smith County to stand trial on the sexual assault charges as well as a bail jumping and failure to appear charge.
In determining punishment, the jury had a range of five to 99 years, or life, to consider. A fine up to $10,000 also could have been assessed.

Today, AFDC supports 5 million families, most of them headed by single mothers. Although the government is spending more on AFDC day care and demand has grown, Wyden's staff believes the number of mothers receiving day-care subsidies remains low.

 --Sheriff's deputies arrested a 53-year-old male for public intoxication.

Bush says suspicions will continue

Gubernatorial candidate wants records reconstructed

By CHIP BROWN
 Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush says any suspicions over Gov. Ann Richards' destroyed long-distance telephone records won't be quieted until the records are reconstructed for the public.

"All the explanations which have changed over the course of time could be laid to rest if all the records are made available," Bush said after touring a corrections center in Austin on Wednesday.

John Fainter, Richards' chief of staff, said Wednesday, "We have done everything we can do to resurrect the records and if we come across anything else we will release it immediately. We think we have made an exhaustive search as possible."

Richards on Tuesday released nine of 32 months of telephone records that were destroyed beginning last August by staff members who claimed to be "drowning in paper."

They say even with the phone company's help, they won't be able to reconstruct all of the records.

"The reason given for shredding them - that they needed space the records took up in the governor's 65,000-square-foot office - is just not believable," Bush said.

Richards' staff offered several different explanations before claiming that the state record retention laws are confusing and that the shredding was an honest mistake.

But Republicans say Richards destroyed the records because she had something to hide. They question the timing of the destruction in relation to a raid on Republican U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison's office in June by Democrat Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle.

Mrs. Hutchison is on trial on ethics charges that include tampering with records.

Carolyn Armstrong, chairwoman of the State Library and Archives Commission, which oversees the retention of state records, said Saturday that Richards' staff "misused" the agency by requesting and then revising a letter from the agency that exonerated the governor over the mess.

"It's just raised enough suspicions because of the different stories and the notion of that the archivists were told how to write a letter," said Bush.

"In order to lay this story to rest, the records ought to be made available and then people ... can make the judgment call as to whether or not justice is being applied evenhandedly," he said.

In other political news:

- Texas Attorney General Dan Morales will ask the losers in the judicial reform lawsuit to return $400,000 in legal fees to the state, according to a spokeswoman.

Under court order, the state paid roughly that amount to cover legal expenses of lawyers for black and Hispanic groups challenging countywide election of state district judges in Harris County and eight other urban counties.

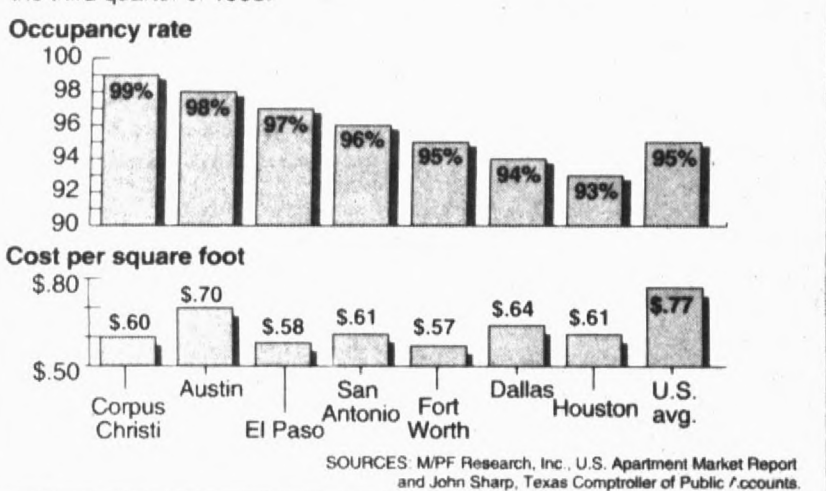

Last month, those groups lost the lawsuit when the U.S. Supreme Court let stand a 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision upholding countywide election of state district judges.

Patricia Guillermo, Morales' spokeswoman, said the attorney general "will be contacting the parties by letter and ask them to return the money. We're hoping they'll turn it all in."

Congressman claims budget is misleading; national debt to rise

WASHINGTON - While claiming a smaller yearly deficit, President Clinton's $1.5 trillion spending plan for the 1995 budget still pushes spending up 23 percent over the next few years and adds $1 trillion to the total national debt, according to U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock.

The interest on that accumulated debt, he said, costs taxpayers $200 billion each year.

"Bill Clinton is trying to divert our attention away from the fact that his spending programs are not digging us into debt quite as quickly as he had planned, but still it is a deep, trillion-dollar debt," said Combest. "The solution to a multi-trillion-dollar national debt is to cut spending. Even the Congressional Budget Office says Clinton's spending is increasing as much as 23 percent over the next several years. Piling yearly deficits onto what will be a $5 trillion total national debt wins the argument I make for controlling spending by passing a balanced budget amendment."

The 1995 Clinton Budget proposes to cut more than 100 federal programs. However, Combest pointed out that the $3.25 billion in spending will merely be shifted to new initiatives. In addition, he said that the president wants to count his health care proposal as saving money, but prefers not to count what amounts to a mandated tax on employers who will have to bear 80 percent of the cost of health insurance for their employees.

"The president tries to focus attention on his budget shell game of shifting responsibility for the costs of health care and shifting spending to new programs instead of cutting spending first," said Combest. "Folks in our part of the country expect that if you claim to cut spending, you are going to spend less money, not shift it around. He tries to shift the focus on spending cuts, but last week the president opposed our efforts to cut $10 billion in spending to pay for California earthquake relief instead of adding the costs to the deficit."

Civil liberties group opposing proposed health book revisions

AUSTIN (AP) - A civil liberties group is criticizing the State Board of Education for considering ordering revisions in health textbooks.

"There is no educational or scientific basis for these changes; they are the result of pressure exerted by lobbyists for religious right political groups," said Michael Hudson of People for the American Way.

Several publishers are threatening to withdraw their health textbooks from Texas schools, saying education officials have gone too far in demanding costly revisions.

"We reserve the right to withdraw the product from the adoption at any time should we be unable to reach mutually satisfactory agreement on the issues," said William Talkington, president of Holt, Rinehart and Winston's school division.

The publisher of another health textbook echoed that sentiment. "Should we be unable to reach agreement during these negotiations, Glencoe would expect that it be allowed to withdraw from the adoption," the company, Glencoe, said.

The warnings have come in letters to Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno, who is proposing more than 500 revisions to five health textbooks.

The State Board of Education in November tentatively approved spending $7.5 million on the books, which would be used in ninth-through 12th-grade classes. The education panel plans to take up Meno's proposals at its monthly meeting beginning today.

Recommendations up for approval include deleting definitions of the terms semen, ejaculation, vagina and penis; removing drawings of breast and testicular self examinations; and deleting illustrations of the female reproductive system.

The Board of Education approved spending $7.4 million for five health textbooks by Holt, Glencoe and three other publishers. But it made approval contingent on revisions to material in the books that a few board members found offensive.

The books were criticized last summer and fall by conservative religious groups. They aggressively lobbied board members to delete references to condoms, sexually transmitted diseases, AIDS prevention, teen-age pregnancy and homosexuality.

Such references promote a homosexual lifestyle and do not adequately stress abstinence as the only sure way to prevent pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases, including AIDS, the groups said.

Also, they complained that books, including teachers' manuals, shouldn't contain hot line telephone numbers for gay and lesbian groups or teen-age suicide prevention groups.

Monte Hasie of Lubbock and three other members on the 15-member board offered most of the proposed revisions.

"To some extent, all of the books promote a homosexual lifestyle as an acceptable, normal lifestyle," Hasie told the Austin American-Statesman. "They are basically condom-based sex education books."

However, some board members said the proposed revisions in health texts would leave Texas high schoolers in the dark about issues they face in their daily lives.

"The recommended changes have one thrust: to restrict the content and limit material to certain beliefs and attitudes," said Will Davis of Austin, vice chairman of the education board. "There is no reason to pretend that a 15-, 16-, 17-, or 18-year-old is not aware of his or her body and sexual activity."

down by selected causes for both 1991 and 1992.

In the county, 130 people died in 1991 and 127 died in 1992.

The leading cause of death in 1991 was heart disease, with 50 deaths attributed to that. Second was malignant neoplasms, or cancer, which claimed 29 county lives.

The remaining deaths were due to a variety of causes, included 12 from accidents, four suicides, six from pneumonia and one from influenza.

The next year, 1992, saw the leading cause of death remain diseases of the heart, with 48 reported deaths there.

Second again was cancer, which claimed 24 county residents in 1992.

Finally, 14 died of cerebrovascular diseases, three of pneumonia, two from ulcers of the stomach and duodenum and five from accidents.

There were no homicides recorded either year and 1992 saw no deaths from suicide.

Finally, 188 people received marriage licenses in Deaf Smith County in 1991, while 65 divorce decrees were finalized in the county.

The next year, 1992, 177 marriage licenses were issued here and 40 divorces were granted in the county.

Hints from Heloise

LAUNDRY HINT

Dear Heloise: When folding laundry, I always get my two daughters' underwear and socks mixed up. It takes too long to look at the size tags, so I found a better solution.

On the back elastic of the underwear and bottom of the socks, I put small slash marks with a laundry pen, one for my older daughter and two for my younger one. That way, when I pass the clothes down to my younger daughter, I just add another mark and the system still works. This could work for three or more (if the clothes last that long) by adding a slash mark for each younger child.

This has made doing the laundry less of a chore for me. — Cheryl Lovett, San Antonio, Texas

Thanks for that great family laundry hint.

Proper care when laundering could help clothing last longer. For anyone out there who doesn't know everything there is to know about sorting, stains etc., I have compiled a pamphlet called Heloise's Rules of Laundry.

Benefit ball Saturday

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Heart Association is sponsoring the "Hearts of Fire Ball" from 7:30 p.m. until 1 a.m. Saturday at the Hereford Country Club. Vera Brothers, a country and western band from Amarillo, will be the featured entertainment. Also, a live auction will be held during the dance. Discussing the major fund raiser are AHA board members, from left, Lisa Formby, Ron Rives, Charmayne Klett and Rita Bell.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You asked your readers to let you know how your advice turned out. Well, I'll tell you. Lousy. And I've been mad at you and myself ever since.

Over 30 years ago, I wrote to you. As a newlywed, I was upset because whenever I tried to appear "alluring" to my husband, he would become verbally abusive. I told you about the sexy black nightgown I bought to surprise him. When he saw me in it, he laughed and said, "What are you supposed to be? A hooker?"

I wrote to you and asked how I could interest him in a romantic evening and what to do next. You advised me to cool it, sit back and wait for him to initiate lovemaking because it was obvious that he didn't like aggressive women. I took your word as gospel, in spite of the fact that he never showed any consideration for my feelings or my physical needs.

I once brought home a well-written, explicit sex manual and quietly suggested that we might both learn something from it. He threw the book across the room and told me he didn't need to learn anything about sex.

Although you counseled me to "work at my marriage," I finally divorced the animal after 29 years. What you SHOULD have said was, "Don't waste your life trying to educate a boor. It can't be done."

I hope your views on this subject have become more realistic over the years. I also hope that any woman who finds herself married to this kind of man will walk out early on and not waste years trying to change him. — Wisser, But Too Old to Enjoy It (Santa Monica, Calif.)

DEAR WISER: Sorry if you felt my advice was lousy, but 29 years? I'd say you were a slow learner.

Now that you are rid of the albatross, enjoy your freedom.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you stand one more letter from a daughter who blamed her parents for everything?

I blame my parents for a happy childhood. They were always there when I needed them. They never missed one of my basketball games and always knew what to say when we lost.

I also blame them for my college education. They worked hard to support me and pay my way. I blame my parents for my sense of honesty and fairness. Dad never brought home from work so much as a pencil that belonged to the company.

It's my parents' fault that I'm open-minded and compassionate. They always accepted my weird friends and my off-beat opinions.

I Behave unselfishly, I blame my parents. They were always willing to help us take care of our pets, and they loaned us their car when we needed wheels. I also blame them for my ability to do a good job—they encouraged us to work hard and do our best.

Finally, I blame my parents for molding my siblings and me into people who know how to love. Every day of our lives, my parents set a fine example.

I hope that as a parent, I'll be as caring, patient and wise as my mom and dad were to us.—A Daughter in Michigan

DEAR DAUGHTER: What a tribute! Your parents will be awfully proud when you phone them this morning and say, "Look at Ann Landers' column today. The second letter is mine!"

Tiffany Hedgecoke feted with recent bridal shower

Tiffany Hedgecoke, who will marry Clint Cotten Saturday, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday morning, Feb. 5, at the E.B. Black House.

Guests were greeted by the honoree; her mother, Ruth Hedgecoke; and her aunt, Barbara Mongold.

The hostesses served refreshments of sausage balls, quiche, fruit tray, cookies, punch and coffee from a table centered with a burgundy and hunter green arrangement.

A comforter and bedding accessories were presented to Miss Hedgecoke by the hostesses: Cori Watts, Laynie Souter, Lara Cotten, Jaci Nikkel, Debra Rickman, Denise King, Holly Andrews and Daisha Edwards.

You can screw two or three cup hooks into a closet door at different levels and use each hook to hold several blouses, children's dresses or other light items.

Kerrigan arrives in Lillehammer

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

OSLO, Norway (AP) - Nancy Kerrigan arrived in Norway today, headed for the Winter Games she almost missed after a thug smashed her right leg with a club at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships.

Kerrigan, who slept most of the way on the flight, was met at the airport by U.S. Olympic Committee security and was hurried into a car for Lillehammer.

The 24-year-old skater, who left Boston on Wednesday, has a news conference scheduled for Saturday, a few hours before the opening ceremonies.

Kerrigan's arrival came on the same day lawyers for Tonya Harding were to go into court seeking to block a USOC hearing that could kick Harding off the U.S. Olympic team.

Harding has been implicated by her ex-husband in the attack on Kerrigan last month.

Asked as she was leaving Boston if she was prepared to skate with Harding, Kerrigan said: "I'm prepared for the competition."

And about the Olympic training schedule, which would require her to practice side-by-side with Harding, Kerrigan told reporters: "I'm more uncomfortable standing here talking to all of you guys."

Unless Tonya Harding is prevented from competing, she and Kerrigan will practice at the same time, following a ruling by the International Skating Union. ISU officials have refused to let Kerrigan and Harding practice separately.

The U.S. Olympic Committee announced Tuesday it will convene a special hearing of its Games Administrative Board on Feb. 15 to review evidence on Harding's possible involvement in the Kerrigan attack.

Passers-by applauded Kerrigan as she walked through the airport.

"I'm so excited, I'm near tears," said Judy Wadleigh, 54, of Reading. "She just needs a lot of support now, and at least folks here can give her that."

Tim Robinson, a book publisher with Little, Brown & Co., of Boston, said he was not a figure skating fan but was still keen to catch a glimpse of Kerrigan on the airplane. He also said he was not surprised by the skater's sudden commercial appeal.

"People with a nose for business are going to try and find a way to make money on the incident, as seedy and horrible as it is," he said.

Pistons' Elliott taking time off

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - A kidney ailment undermined Sean Elliott's trade from the Detroit Pistons to the Houston Rockets. Now the 6-foot-8 forward says he'll take an indefinite leave of absence until the medical problem is resolved.

Elliott said Wednesday he's seeking as many diagnoses and recommendations for treatment as possible from independent medical specialists after getting conflicting interpretations of his problem - and how to treat it - from doctors with the Pistons and the Rockets.

Detroit spokesman Matt Dobek said the Pistons were not advised Elliott had planned to take a leave, and did not know whether his

Ex-OU coach Wilkinson dies

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Bud Wilkinson, who won three national championships at Oklahoma and coached the Sooners to an NCAA-record 47 straight victories, died late Wednesday night in St. Louis after a long illness. He was 77.

Wilkinson compiled a record of 145-29-4 in 17 seasons at Oklahoma. He won one Big Six title, a dozen Big Seven championships and one Big Eight championship. He later coached the St. Louis Cardinals in the NFL and became a broadcaster.

Herd to battle 'Horns for 4th

The Hereford boys' basketball team will battle Caprock for fourth place in District 1-4A at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Amarillo.

Both stand at 2-6 in district play with two games left, including Friday's. In the season finales on Tuesday, Hereford hosts Randall and Caprock plays Dumas in Amarillo.

Overall, Hereford is 8-20 and Caprock is 8-21. In the last meeting, Jan. 25 in Hereford, Caprock pulled away from a close game in the third quarter and won 76-63.

The sophomore boys' team will start Friday's tripleheader at 4:30 in the Caprock Activity Center, followed at 6 by the junior varsity game.

While the Herd varsity and JV will finish up at home against Randall Tuesday, the sophomores will play Tascosa at 4:30 in Amarillo.

The only other basketball left for Hereford--aside from possibly hosting other teams in playoff games--is the seventh grade boys' basketball tournament to be played today and Saturday in Dumas.

As basketball ends, the spring sports are getting underway. The girls' track team will debut Saturday at the Lubbock Christian University High School Indoor Track Meet. It starts at 10:30 a.m. Look for a season preview in Friday's Brand.

Also this weekend, the tennis team will play in a big tournament in Wichita Falls, and the baseball team will scrimmage at Plainview, starting with JV-squads at 10 a.m. and continuing with varsity for most of the afternoon.

Warriors hand Hornets their eighth straight loss

By BERNIE WILSON
AP Sports Writer

Going into the All-Star break, the physically battered Charlotte Hornets look more like a lottery team than the playoff team they were last season.

The Hornets lost their eighth straight game Wednesday night, 126-116 to Golden State, as All-Star Latrell Sprewell scored a season-high 34 points to lead five Warriors in double figures.

If the season were to end today, the Hornets would be in ninth place in the Eastern Conference and out of the playoffs.

"We're still going out there playing hard," said Hersey Hawkins, who tied the team scoring record with 41 points. "No one's going out there being relaxed or with their heads down because we're missing guys. Regardless of how many guys you miss, you've still got to play the game, so you might as well look forward to them and try to enjoy and play the best you possibly can."

Alonzo Mourning, Larry Johnson, Kenny Gattison, LeRon Ellis and Scott Burrell missed the game with injuries, leaving veteran Mike Gminski and newcomer Marty Conlan the only big men available for the Hornets. Occasionally, 6-foot-7

Eddie Johnson was the Hornets' biggest player on the floor.

Golden State led 106-95 with 10:07 left, but Hawkins scored eight points in a 14-6 run that helped Charlotte cut the deficit to 112-109 with 4:57 left.

Billy Owens got a tip-in and Avery Johnson added four straight points to help Golden State put the game out of reach.

Chris Webber scored 22 points, Johnson 20 and Owens and Keith Jennings 15 apiece for Golden State. Owens also grabbed 10 rebounds.

Eddie Johnson had 24 points and Muggsy Bogues had 11 points and 10 assists for Charlotte.

Magic 104, Hawks 87

At Orlando, Shaquille O'Neal scored 37 points as the Magic stopped their longest losing streak of the season - three games - to reach the All-Star break with a franchise-best 27-20 record.

Atlanta fell behind during a 13-1 Orlando run in the opening quarter and never caught up.

Dominique Wilkins had 30 points to lead Atlanta.

SuperSonics 115, Trail Blazers 94

At Seattle, newly named All-Star

Gary Payton had 19 points and nine assists in three quarters.

It was the Blazers' worst defeat of the season. They trailed by 31 points, 102-71, with 6:58 left.

Shawn Kemp, the Sonics' other All-Star, had a season-high 19 rebounds - two shy of his career best - and added 15 points. Clyde Drexler and Cliff Robinson, the Blazers' two All-Stars, scored 19 and 14 points.

Knicks 114, 76ers 79

At Philadelphia, the Knicks avenged a 99-92 home loss two weeks ago by handing the 76ers their worst loss of the season.

Patrick Ewing had 18 points and 11 rebounds, Charles Oakley 13 points and 12 rebounds, and Anthony Mason and Charles Smith 13 points.

Clarence Weatherspoon had 20 points and a career-high 19 rebounds for Philadelphia.

Pistons 102, Celtics 95

At Boston, Isiah Thomas scored 28 points - 19 of them in an otherwise cold-shooting first half for Detroit - as the Pistons broke a three-game losing streak.

Terry Mills and Olden Polynice each scored 16 points for Detroit.

Robert Parish led Boston with 17 points and 12 rebounds.

Pacers 102, Heat 98

At Miami, reserve forward Ken Williams scored a career-high 25 points and Derrick McKey had a season-high 30, including four free throws in the final 30 seconds.

Rony Seikaly and Steve Smith had 19 points each, and Glen Rice added 18 for the Heat.

Suns 111, Timberwolves 106

At Phoenix, Cedric Ceballos and Kevin Johnson each scored 24 points and A.C. Green 22.

Minnesota made the Suns work until the final seconds and tied the game twice down the stretch - the last time on Chuck Person's 19-footer with 2:34 to play. Person led all scorers with 25 points.

Nets 106, Cavaliers 95

At East Rutherford, Kenny Anderson warmed up for the All-Star game with 24 points and three big men contributed more than usual. Backup forwards Armon Gilliam and Jayson Williams scored 19 and 14 points, and center Benoit Benjamin, who was averaging 7.6 points, had 13.

The Cavaliers struggled without center Brad Daugherty (flu) and forward

Larry Nance (sore knee). Tyrone Hill led Cleveland with 18.

Lakers 103, Jazz 96

At Salt Lake City, Sedale Threatt scored 25 points, including eight in the final two minutes to kill a Utah rally.

Karl Malone had 29 points and 14 rebounds for Utah.

Kings 105, Clippers 95

At Sacramento, Mitch Richmond returned from a one-game layoff due to back spasms and scored 23 of his 35 points in the second half.

Ron Harper led the Clippers with 26 points and Danny Manning had 23.

UT whips SMU, aims for Ags

By The Associated Press
An easy victory over Southern Methodist left the Texas Longhorns ready for a showdown game against Texas A&M with revenge on their mind.

B.J. Tyler came off the bench Wednesday night to score 18 points and lead the Longhorns to a 94-66 Southwest Conference victory over the Mustangs. It was the eighth consecutive victory for Texas (15-6).

In another conference game Wednesday night, Texas Tech defeated Baylor, 98-84. The Texas Aggies defeated Oral Roberts 79-66 in a non-conference game.

Texas is 7-1 in SWC action with their only loss an 85-84 defeat by Texas A&M at College Station.

The Longhorns and Aggies will meet at noon Saturday in Austin with the conference lead at stake.

Albert Burditt, who scored 14 points for the Longhorns, said Texas is ready for the Aggies.

"I think we have matured as individuals and as a team since the last time we played Texas A&M," Burditt said. "We're going to come out and play a great game Saturday. I think back to that one-point loss at Texas A&M and it haunts me every day. It's definitely a revenge game."

SMU, the defending SWC champion, fell to 3-16 and 1-7 before 4,378 fans in Moody Coliseum.

Tyler, who missed two games with a small broken bone in his left hand, hit three 3-pointers in only 19 minutes with a protective cast on his left hand.

Texas hit six 3-point baskets including two by Tony Watson in the first half as the Longhorns jumped to a 41-24 lead over the cold-shooting Mustangs, who are tied for last in the SWC.

SMU was led by Chris Boyd who scored 18 points. He was the only Mustang in double figures.

Texas coach Tom Penders said it was encouraging to see Tyler bounce back without any problems.

"I was thrilled with his performance," Penders said. "I told him not to mix it up too much his first time back. He was very active defensively and played very calmly on offense."

Tyler said, "I thought it was a pretty good game. I was out only a week so I didn't lose my timing."

Mark Davis scored 28 points to lead Texas Tech to a 98-84 victory over Baylor, moving the Red Raiders into sole possession of third place.

Jason Sasser had 27 points and Lance Hughes had 22 for the Raiders.

The teams traded the lead 15 times and tied 10 times, and Tech (10-9, 5-3 Southwest Conference) held a 76-74 lead midway through the second half.

But Hughes scored nine points and Davis had seven, leading the Red Raiders on a 22-10 run to close the game.

Jerome Lambert had 26 and Audrey Branche scored 20 to pace the Bears, who beat Tech 83-82 earlier this season in Waco. Baylor slips to 13-7 and 4-4 in the conference.

Texas Tech coach James Dickey said he was worried when the Red Raiders' first-half lead disintegrated.

"This has been a tough series for us," he said. "We had a 12-point lead in the first half, and that got away from us. We didn't convert on some easy plays."

"In the second half, I thought the guys competed hard."

Davis said the Baylor game should help the Red Raiders improve.

"This team has confidence that we can play well as anyone, and I think we showed that tonight," he said. "Baylor is a good team, and we needed to have a good game to get the second half of the conference started."

Baylor coach Darrel Johnson said he was pleased despite the loss.

"I thought we played really well," he said. "Texas Tech is the most athletic team in the conference ... We played really well for a long time. The fouls really hurt us."

David Edwards scored 21 points and had nine assists and five steals, powering Texas A&M to a 79-66 victory over Oral Roberts for the Aggies' 1,000th basketball victory.

The Aggies (14-5) also got 16 points from Chuck Henderson, who hit four of seven 3-point shots. Tony McGinnis added 12 for A&M.

Chris McKinney paced Oral Roberts (6-14) with 22 points, and Fred Smith added 14 in the Golden Eagles' eighth straight loss. Clifford Crenshaw chipped in 10 points.

Hogs topple Kentucky at home

By The Associated Press
Kentucky's lucky Arkansas only comes to Rupp Arena every other season.

The third-ranked Razorbacks ended the Wildcats' 33-game homecourt winning streak Wednesday night, and it was Arkansas which last beat fourth-ranked Kentucky at home.

"My congratulations go to Arkansas," Kentucky coach Rick Pitino said. "They've done this to us twice in a row. They've been the superior basketball team twice in a row."

The 90-82 decision Wednesday night came courtesy of the Razorbacks' press, which spread Kentucky's offense, and a technical foul against Rodrick Rhodes of the Wildcats that sparked Arkansas and got it back in the game.

In other games involving ranked teams on Wednesday, it was: No. 6 Connecticut 94, Boston College 91; No. 10 Purdue 98, Northwestern 81; No. 15 Missouri 82, Colorado 70; No. 17 Saint Louis 90, Iowa State 75; No. 19 Alabama-Birmingham 78, DePaul 73; No. 20 Florida 74, Mississippi 55;

No. 21 Wisconsin 77, Penn State 64; No. 23 Minnesota 79, Ohio State 73; and No. 24 Illinois 72, Michigan State 64.

Rhodes had two 3-pointers and a three-point play in a 12-0 run that gave Kentucky a 39-24 lead with 4:46 remaining in the half. But the sophomore forward became the goat when he was assessed an unsportsmanlike technical foul for having words with Corey Beck. Arkansas (17-2, 7-2) scored eight straight points and was able to rally within 47-41 at halftime.

"I'll take the blame for this loss," Rhodes said. "My emotions got out of hand, and that was a key part of this game."

Kentucky (18-4, 7-3), which had won five straight, led 54-49 on Jared Prickett's layup with 15:15 to go. Clint McDaniel had nine points in a 19-3 run that gave Arkansas a 68-59 lead with 9:21 left.

Scotty Thurman had 26 points and Corliss Williamson added 21 for Arkansas, which beat Kentucky 105-88 at Rupp Arena on Jan. 25, 1992.

No. 6 Connecticut 94, Boston College 91

Donyell Marshall had 33 points and his basket with 2:28 to play in the second overtime gave the visiting Huskies (20-2, 10-1 Big East) a 93-90 lead. Connecticut had the chance to win at the end of regulation but Marshall missed a driving layup at the buzzer. The Eagles (16-7, 7-5) had two shots to win at the end of the first overtime. Billy Curley had a career-high 32 points and matched his career-high with 16 rebounds for Boston College.

No. 10 Purdue 98, Northwestern 81

Glenn Robinson was just over his 28.8 average with 29 points as the Boilermakers (19-3, 7-3 Big Ten) cruised to their 21st win in 22 games against the Wildcats (9-9, 0-9).

No. 15 Missouri 82, Colorado 70

The Tigers (17-2, 8-0 Big Eight) won their 12th in a row at home and are off to their best conference start since 1982. Melvin Booker had 19 points to lead Missouri, which didn't pull away until the final minutes. Donny Boyce had 27 points to lead the Buffaloes (10-10, 2-6).

Home team should succeed at Lillehammer

By DAVE CARPENTER
Associated Press Writer
LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) — No matter that the Norwegians claim to have invented skiing and speedskating. They've been practically "nesten glemt" — an afterthought — at most recent Olympics.

Sure, they fared reasonably well at sports where athletes head off into the woods or keep circling a rink. But entering 1992, they'd won only 22 gold medals in the previous four decades at the Winter Games.

Suddenly, "pang" — boom! They are the mighty Vikings again.

This rugged nation of 4.3 million people is now a winter sports powerhouse, widely predicted to beat Russia and Germany to win the medals race on its "hjemmebanen," home turf.

No more underdog role as in 1992, when Norway snuck up on the world with nine gold medals and an all-time best 20 overall after taking home only four medals from Calgary.

Great expectations, the country's biggest event ever. ... Are Norwegians fretting under the pressure?

Nei.

Publicly at least, you could say they're Lapping it up, with many predicting a better-run Games than Albertville with similar medal results. And that makes their king uneasy.

"I am a little worried that people will be disappointed if we don't get 15 gold medals," King Harald V, himself a world champion sailor, said recently. "If we win three, four or five gold medals we should be happy."

The country has risen to the occasion before. When Oslo was host for the Winter Olympics in 1952, Norway won a Games-high 16 medals.

But when Lillehammer was awarded the 1994 Games 5 1/2 years ago, the government and national Olympic officials decided to take no chances. They overhauled the training program and flooded it with $100 million.

The result: They're competing to beat the world, not just the rival Swedes.

"We used to be Sweden's little brother, but not any more," said Alf Henning Fredstad, sports editor of Norway's largest newspaper Verden Gang, in an interview Wednesday.

Norway gets to show its talent — and its fanaticism — to the world on Sunday, the first full day of Olympic competition. Johann Olav Koss speedskates for gold in the Norwegians' single favorite event, the men's 5,000 meters.

How much do the Norwegians love speedskating? They built an Olympic arena that holds three times as many spectators as the one for figure skating, and snatched up every 5,000-meter ticket long ago.

Kjetil Andre Aamodt, first in the phone book and first in the hearts of his countrymen, could strike gold twice in Alpine skiing after winning two medals at Albertville.

And Espen Bredesen is being counted on to bring home gold for Norway in both the individual and team jumping on the large hill.

Then there are Vegard "the Viking" Ulvang and Bjorn Daehlie, the cross-country skiers who reaped six golds and two silvers at Albertville but who haven't skied as well lately as Vladimir Smirnov of Kazakhstan.

Two years ago, on the eve of the Albertville Games, a member of France's organizing committee said publicly that the Olympics would be a big disappointment if the French didn't win eight to 12 medals.

They won nine. Phew.

Their Norwegian counterparts will have no part of that numbers game.

"To make the Games really a success, it's necessary that we both have very good competitions and also that Norwegian athletes do well," said Martin Burkhalter, sports director for Norway's Olympic organizing committee. "I wouldn't say we have to have a certain number of medals."

In the true spirit of the Games, both Fredstad and Burkhalter said Norwegians are more concerned that the Olympics come off smoothly than that their athletes do well.

After all, Norway has spent about $1 billion on these Olympics.

"I think they will be not only disappointed but angry if the Games don't go well," Burkhalter said. "They will say we had enough money and enough time to do it right."

Yankees trade for Mulholland

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees finally got the starting pitcher they wanted, acquiring Terry Mulholland from the Philadelphia Phillies for three young players.

On the arbitration front, Atlanta Braves pitcher Steve Avery and Montreal first baseman Randy Milligan had their hearings at Rosemont, Ill., while Expos outfielder Moises Alou and Colorado third baseman Charlie Hayes settled. Twenty-seven players remain in arbitration.

On the rehab front, Glenn Davis signed a minor league contract with the New York Mets in an effort to resurrect his career.

To get Mulholland, 12-9 with a 3.25 ERA last season, the Yankees on Wednesday sent the Phillies reliever Bobby Munoz and minor leaguers Kevin Jordan, an infielder, and Ryan Karp, a left-handed pitcher.

ELLIOTT

representatives and those of the team had talked after Elliott's announcement.

Dobek said, "He has to work with us because he is under contract to the Pistons. We are willing to listen to what his ideas are, but he has to work with our team doctor."

Elliott's agent, Burt Kinerk, was not in his office late Wednesday and could not be reached for comment.

Earlier Wednesday, Kinerk said, "We've been in touch with the team. The mutual understanding, I believe, of both parties is that what's best for Sean's health has to be checked out." Kinerk said Houston doctors told Elliott his condition should be treated immediately, which would prevent him from playing for six to eight weeks. Detroit's doctors, however, say Elliott can continue to play while he is treated, Kinerk said.

"What we're doing is getting some independent medical advice to make a determination of what's right," said Kinerk, an attorney. "If playing is detrimental to his health, then at this time he shouldn't be playing."

Valentine plans made by Alpha Iota Mu

Upcoming Valentine events were discussed when members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently at Dr. Stan Fry's office.

The Valentine Brunch is planned at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Hereford Country Club and the Valentine Ball is scheduled at 7 p.m. Feb. 26 at the Hereford Country Club.

During the business meeting with President Jaime Brorman presiding, the opening ritual was observed. Also, various committees reported.

Pattie Urbanczyk received a letter from International with information on members to progress and thank you notes were given to secret sisters from members.

It was announced that Carmen Gonzales will be taking all items donated from members to Good Shepherd.

A social for chapter members and their families was planned. The group will be going to Canyon to a Texas-style "Wizard of Oz" play Feb. 25.

President Brorman led the members in the closing ritual.

Jill Banner was welcomed as a guest by members: Jaime Brorman, Pattie Urbanczyk, Carmen Gonzales, Danell Culp, Janis Betzen, Jane Meiwes, Gwen Betzen, Glenna Calaway, Wanda Huseman, Marrie Leverett and Peggy Hyer, advisor.

Yogurt's new role in battle of bulge

In this age of health consciousness, Americans are learning how to deal with the dilemma of how to prepare dishes that are low in fat, and still receive high marks for taste.

Many believe that reducing fat means reducing flavor. But that's not necessarily the case, especially when an increasingly popular dairy food - yogurt - is used as the substitute for higher-fat recipe ingredients.

Cooking with yogurt makes cutting calories and fat from favorite family recipes without sacrificing taste surprisingly easy. And its nutritional value is an equally pleasant surprise.

One cup (eight ounces) of plain, low-fat yogurt has more calcium (415.0 mg vs. 297.0 mg) more protein (11.9 g vs. 8.1 g) and less total fat (3.5 g vs 4.7 g) than an equivalent amount of low-fat milk, according to a recent report released by the Yoplait Family Nutrition Panel, a group of leading health care professionals that interpret and discuss accepted and emerging yogurt research.

One cup of yogurt also provides about one-third of daily calcium requirements and 20 to 25 percent of daily protein needs. It also has more potassium than a banana and generous amounts of riboflavin, phosphorus and vitamin B12.

Also, unlike fluid milk and some other non-cultured dairy products, yogurt brands such as Yoplait yogurt, which contain live and active cultures, are easily digested by most individuals with lactose intolerance.

The benefits of yogurt can be enjoyed year-round. Try these suggestions for adding nutrition and cutting calories from familiar family recipes.

Replace oil with yogurt when making muffins and cakes. Strawberry or raspberry flavored yogurt adds a tasty twist to vanilla cakes.

-Use plain, low-fat yogurt as a replacement for sour cream in dips. Low-fat yogurt has approximately 350 fewer calories and 45 g less fat per eight-ounces.

-Top shortcakes with yogurt and fruit instead of whipped cream.

-Try yogurt instead of chocolate sauce as a fondue-like dip for pound cake.

-Use fruit-flavored low-fat yogurt as a dip for fruit instead of whipped topping or whipped cream which has about 200 more calories and 25 more grams of fat per eight-ounces.

-Swirl fruit-flavored yogurt on angel food cake for a new taste twist.

-Use yogurt instead of ice cream in milk shakes. Vanilla ice cream has 44 more calories per eight-ounces and about 12 more grams of fat than low-fat, fruited yogurt.

Keep America moving

Advanced technologies helped U.S. troops to identify friendly vehicles in Operation Desert Storm, help air traffic controllers to keep airplanes safe in crowded skies and allow automated bank teller machines to honor requests for quick cash. These same advanced technologies are now being harnessed to make everyday travel safer, faster and cleaner for Americans. States and localities across the country are developing and implementing intelligent vehicle-highway systems-IVHS for short.

The Intelligent Vehicle-Highway Society of America-IVHS America says, "We can't build our way out of modern traffic congestion. Local governments don't have the money. The environment can't stand the stress. We can no longer tolerate 40,000 traffic deaths a year."

Some people recognize IVHS "smart cars and smart highways," but IVHS AMERICA says IVHS goes farther than that. The Society says, "We need smart cars, smart highways, smart public transit, and better-informed travelers. We need a total smart surface transportation system."

-Los Angeles is linking traffic signals at several thousand intersections to a central computer. Roadbed sensors and monitors feed data on traffic flow to the computer. Traffic lights adjust continuously to avoid "wasted green time." The system already is reducing traffic light stops by millions a year, cutting tens of thousands of hours off commuting times, and lowering exhaust emissions by 26 percent. New York City is installing an even larger system.

-Chicago is outfitting 4,000 automobiles with smart in-vehicle navigation systems. Enter your destination and the best route pops up on a TV-like screen on the dashboard. A simulated voice adds specific audible directions.

-Toll facilities in New Jersey, Texas, Oklahoma, and elsewhere use smart systems that identify the vehicles of participating drivers as they roll by at highway speeds. Tolls are deducted automatically from prepaid accounts. On the East and West Coasts, interstate consortiums are installing related technologies that identify and weigh trucks in motion, and record tax and safety information automatically, to reduce stops and improve efficiency for big rigs.

-San Francisco is beginning a market study of variable tolls on the crowded Bay Bridge to find out if drivers will respond to a program of incentives by avoiding trips across the bridge at the most congested times. Rewards would include lower tolls at off-peak times and better public transit during rush hours. A computerized smart system would track and automatically collect the correct tolls.

Planning fund raiser

The public is invited to attend the Hereford Pilot Club's Mexican stack supper planned from 5-8 p.m. today in the Hereford High School cafeteria. Tickets are priced at $4.50 for adults and $2.50 for children and can be purchased from club members or at the door. Among those selling tickets are Verline Shipley, at left, and Margaret Bell.

People neglecting their health

It seems strange that a program that ideally is designed to bring better health care to more people is having the opposite effect, but that is what is currently happening according to a national health leader.

According to Kerwin P. Winkler, DC, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the American Chiropractic Association, while the Clinton administration and Congress are busy trying to develop a new health-care package, many Americans are neglecting their health. They are holding off from seeking professional help for symptoms of health problems until a new health program is put in place.

Dr. Winkler said, "Unfortunately, many people are biting their lips to deal with pain or just looking the other way about health problems because they think a new government-sponsored plan, which will save them money, will go into effect any moment. Of course, they are deceiving themselves about the timetable and possibly even the expectations of cost savings. But meanwhile, their health problems are progressing."

The doctor of chiropractic says this is particularly true of families where the head of the household is out of a job because of company cut backs.

"Many families have been dependent solely on the health insurance offered by employers. Once that has been terminated, they have gone into a waiting mode, not recognizing that it could take months, maybe years, for a government program to be fully operational," Dr. Winkler stated.

The chiropractic leader said that there is a parallel situation occurring with companies which hesitate to update their health insurance or add employee benefits based on current conditions because they expect the red tape of new rules and regulations to come down the line at anytime.

Dr. Winkler projected that as a result of the delay and build-up of need for physician assistance, the system will be besieged with patients once the doors to government-sponsored health care are opened.

"We are going to see a surge in demand for all health services. The question is, will our health system be prepared to handle it? As it appears at this time, no real provision has been made to include the alternative health-care providers who many patients have depended on all along for many of their health-care needs. If chiropractic and the other licensed health disciplines, in addition to medicine, are not included in the new health plan, the system is doomed to failure, both on a service and cost basis. Patients are looking for more accessibility, not less," Dr. Winkler concluded.

Human blood vessels form a branching network of more than 60,000 miles.

Life, death is a number game

At any given time 9,000 Americans (more than half are children) are searching for a life saving bone marrow donor.

A bone marrow transplant is often the only hope of survival for people stricken with life threatening diseases such as leukemia and aplastic anemia or rare genetic disorders such as Hurler Syndrome.

Most of these patients are under 30.

Tissue type is what determines compatibility.

-The odds of two unrelated people matching are 1 in 20,000.

If you are in good health, between the ages of 18 and 55, the National Children's Cancer Society, a non-profit organization providing financial assistance and services to children needing bone marrow transplants, urges you to consider becoming a bone marrow donor.

For a free brochure on becoming a donor call 1-800-5-FAMILY. Finding a lifesaving marrow donor shouldn't be a long shot.

ATLANTA (AP) - If Harry Rossoll had his way 50 years ago, Smokey Bear would be a beaver, snuffing out fires with his flat tail.

In 1944, Rossoll, an artist with the Forest Service, had proposed a character named Ranger Jim and the beaver.

The Forest Service went with the bear, but Rossoll had a long relationship with Smokey anyway. He spent 35 years drafting the "Smokey Says" cartoons in what became one of the most effective public service campaigns in history.

"The problem was trying to say how to prevent forest fires in a thousand different ways," said Rossoll, 84, of Decatur. He retired in 1971.

For Smokey Bear's 50th birthday, the Forest Service is sponsoring a retrospective, including cartoons, posters and videos that trace the origin of the firefighting bear and explains the science of forests and forest fires.

The exhibit opened Friday in Atlanta and will appear in Dallas, Los Angeles, New York, Chicago and Washington.

Babysitter's claims debunked by father

By PEGGY FIKAC Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - The father of a boy who was found buried in a shallow grave scooped at his baby sitter's statement that the infant died accidentally while in her care.

Baby sitter Cathy Lynn Henderson has said she panicked and fled after 3-month-old Brandon Baugh died on Jan. 21, burying the baby's body before going to Missouri where she was arrested last week.

Mrs. Henderson was charged Wednesday with capital murder, which can carry the death penalty on conviction. The ultimate penalty is possible because Brandon is under age 6.

"I would like to know why, if it was an accident, what three numbers stick in your mind? 9-1-1," Eryn Baugh said at a news conference, adding that Mrs. Henderson also could have called him or his wife at work.

"I would have done anything to help Cathy Henderson, had this been an accident," Baugh said. "But there was no phone call. Instead, she ran off and buried my son in a shallow grave, and how can you justify that to anyone? I want to see her prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

The baby's death was ruled a homicide by Justice of the Peace

G.W. Ivey of Bell County, where the body was found between Austin and Waco, said Travis County Sheriff Terry Keel.

Keel said Brandon's injuries could have been caused either by "striking the child's head against something hard, or a hard object being struck against the child's head."

Brandon's skull was fractured. His body was found carefully wrapped in a blanket and placed face-down in a cardboard box, which had been taped shut and buried, said sheriff's office spokesman Andy Saenz.

The shallow grave was found northeast of Temple Tuesday, after law officers obtained a map that Mrs. Henderson had drawn after being arrested on kidnapping charges in Independence, Mo., last week. Her Austin lawyer, Nona Byington, was ordered by a judge to give up the map.

Mrs. Henderson also gave a statement to authorities in Kansas City last week saying that the baby fell accidentally and struck his head while she cared for him at her home near Pflugerville, an Austin suburb.

She said she had been holding him with one hand and trying to turn off an answering machine with the other. After he fell, she said, she tried to revive him for an hour, then panicked and left.

Keel, who said Mrs. Henderson had given several stories concerning Brandon, called her "a coldblooded killer."

"She has been smug about this. She has been uncaring. She has smiled at my investigators about it. She did not care whether we found Brandon or not," he said.

Lawyers who were earlier appointed to represent Mrs. Henderson on the state and federal kidnapping charges, Charles Burton and Linda Icenhauer-Ramirez, did not immediately return telephone calls today from The Associated Press.

Baugh says he knows of nothing he and his wife could have done differently in choosing Mrs. Henderson to care for their baby. The woman also baby sat Brandon's 2-1/2-year-old sister, Megan.

"We went by personal references. She had very, very good references," Baugh said. "We trusted her."

Keel agreed that the Baughs "did everything that anyone could possibly do."

"Human beings live among us who are capable of committing capital murder, and bad guys don't wear black hats," Keel said.

Funeral services were planned in Austin Thursday before the baby's body was taken to Guymon, Okla., where Keel said the Baughs have family ties.

Victim's father allowed to confront killer at trial

HOUSTON (AP) - Moments after a judge sentenced a Houston teenager to death for his role in the gang rape and strangulation deaths of two young girls, the father of one of the victims was allowed to vent his rage at the condemned man.

Jurors decided Wednesday that Pete Cantu, 19, should die by injection for his role in the brutal strangulation deaths of Jennifer Ertman, 14, and Elizabeth Pena, 16.

The girls, who stumbled onto the gang initiation while taking a shortcut in northwest Houston, were raped for an hour before being strangled with shoelaces, a belt and stomps to the throat, a witness said.

After sentencing Cantu to death, District Judge William Harmon allowed Randy Ertman to address Cantu as the jury and a courtroom filled with spectators watched and listened.

Ertman walked over close to the railing separating the defense table from the spectators' benches and shouted at Cantu to "Look at me! Look!

"You're not even an animal! You're worse than that! You're a piece of!" Ertman shouted. "You destroyed my life! You destroyed my wife's life! You destroyed the Penas' life! You're worse than anything I've seen in my life!"

Cantu, who appeared angered by Ertman's statements, turned away when Ertman first began speaking, but looked into his eyes during most of the rambling speech.

The 19-year-old gang leader briefly closed his eyes when the jury's verdict was read. He stood with his hands in his pockets and answered "nah" when the judge asked if there was any reason he should not assess the punishment decided by the jury.

It took jurors about four hours to decide that Cantu should die.

Harmon agreed before the sentence was decided to allow Ertman to speak to Cantu in the courtroom.

Longtime prosecutor Don Smyth, who obviously was not pleased with the judge's decision, said he has never known a Harris County judge to allow a victim's relative to address a defendant in court before.

Adolph and Melissa Pena, the parents of Ms. Pena, and Sandra Ertman, the mother of Ms. Ertman, chose not to address Cantu in court.

Four other young men have been charged in the June 24 abduction, gang rape, robbery and murder of the girls. The other four defendants, all 19, also face a possible death sentence if convicted.

In closing arguments during the punishment phase of the trial, prosecutor Donna Goode urged jurors to sentence Cantu to die to protect the public from his "reign of terror" and to make him pay for his heinous crime.

"If the defendant thinks he's a big enough man to kill young girls in cold blood then he ought to be a big enough man to accept the penalty the law says he deserves," Goode said.

Defense lawyer Donald Davis said that while he was not making excuses for Cantu, he asked jurors to consider his troubled background of emotional problems and a learning disorder that caused him to have to repeat three grades. Davis asked the jurors to give him a life sentence.

"He was a sick kid and nobody was helping him," Davis said. "If you don't help someone who has problems they only will get worse."

Jury selection continues in Hutchison's ethics trial

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - As jury selection was set to continue today, state government records in the criminal ethics trial against U.S. Sen.

Kay Bailey Hutchison have been pouring in by the thousands.

Mrs. Hutchison's lead attorney Dick DeGuerin has subpoenaed telephone records, daily calendars, and campaign finance reports of statewide Democratic officeholders.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, has been indicted on charges that while she was state treasurer - a position she held from January 1991 to June 1993 - she used state funds, state employees and state computers for political and personal purposes, and then tampered with computer records as part of a cover-up.

If convicted on all counts, Mrs. Hutchison could face up to 20 years in prison. She has pleaded innocent.

DeGuerin has said that what the state has accused Mrs. Hutchison of doing is legal and standard practice among other politicians.

Arriving at the Tarrant County Justice Center on Wednesday were boxes of daily schedules of Attorney General Dan Morales and Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, both Democrats.

The schedules of current Treasurer Martha Whitehead, also a Democrat, shows that often her day included both state work and campaign fundraising.

On Aug. 19, 1993, Ms. Whitehead met with attorney Jose Villarreal. On the schedule, he is noted as a major player in President Clinton's campaign last year, and a "must see."

A Sept. 7, 1993 trip to New York included a meeting with Tony Coelho, former majority whip of the U.S. House. The schedule gives Ms. Whitehead background on Coelho and adds, "He will probably want to talk to you about expanding your fundraising network for the upcoming election."

Monte Williams, a spokesman for Ms. Whitehead, said the meetings were justified and legal. "There will be political acts on the part of a state official," he said.

Hershey company celebrates chocolate maker's centennial

By MELISSA B. ROBINSON Associated Press Writer

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) - With a sweet dream of selling candy to tourists, a budding confectioner named Milton S. Hershey moved to Philadelphia in 1876.

Failure, disappointment and illness were his first products. After six profit-scarce years of making candies day in and day out, the overworked Hershey collapsed - and so did his business.

He would try and fail for four more years before a formula for extra-goopy caramels became the catalyst for what is now one of the best-known and most successful food companies in U.S. history.

"Most people remember Hershey because most of us were brought up on Hershey bars when we were kids," said Ray Broekel, a historian from Ipswich, Mass., who has written two books on chocolate. "It's become more or less a symbol of the United States."

On Wednesday, Hershey Food Corp. celebrated the 100th birthday of the Hershey Chocolate Co. with 10 chocolate cakes arranged on a 350-pound chocolate-covered pedestal. Chocolate bars with old-fashioned labels are also being sold nationwide for a limited time.

Today, Hershey Foods Corp. employs 14,000 people worldwide. Last year's sales totaled nearly $3.5 billion, and the company's net income was $193 million. Hershey claims 42 percent of the domestic chocolate candy market, although it lags behind M&M-Mars and Nestle Food Co. overseas.

The founder gave his name to a town, and created what is arguably the simplest, yet most famous confection in the country: the Kiss. In the beginning, though, it was just Mr. Hershey cranking out the candies.

After losing his Philadelphia business, Hershey went to Denver on the advice of his father, who wanted him to cash in on the silver boom. But by the time Hershey got there, most of the silver was gone.

Instead, he went to work for a confectioner who taught him to make caramels using fresh milk, which made them extra chewy and gave them a long shelf life.

"When he learned how to make those caramels, he realized he had potential," said Pamela Cassidy, archivist for the M.S. Hershey Foundation, which runs local historic and cultural attractions.

After leaving Denver, Hershey traveled to Chicago and New Orleans and eventually set up a candy-making business in New York, which went bankrupt after two years. Penniless, Hershey returned to his childhood home of Lancaster, where an aunt lent him enough money to start yet another candy store.

"Milton Hershey was a very imaginative man who liked a challenge, liked new and innovative ideas," Cassidy said. "He was stubborn and thought he could make a success of it."

He was in Lancaster in 1886, when an English distributor fell in love with Crystal A caramels, and placed a major order.

By 1890, Hershey's Lancaster Caramel Co. was a major success, but greater achievements lay ahead.

At the 1893 World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago, Hershey became fascinated with German chocolate-making machinery, bought it, and started a chocolate subsidiary in 1894.

By 1900, Hershey sold his Lancaster Caramel Co. for $1 million and moved to rural Derry Church to expand his chocolate business. The once-poor caramel maker became so successful that, in 1906, the town was renamed in his honor.

Fun fashions featured for spring

By SUZY PATTERSON
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) - Want to look like a hare Krishna cult person, or a Grecian wood nymph; an 18th-century dandy, an Indian nabob or a 19th-century bar girl? It's all offered up in next spring's fashions, but mainly for runways.

Take it all with a grain of salt, but certain directions are in the wind. Lightweight, airy and smooth clothes are next summer's prettiest looks, with a big dash of femininity. The chic silhouette to aim for is on the light side, often silky, sometimes sexy. Bare midriffs compete with bare legs for attention.

Skirts may be long, but most zoom up on the short side again, with micros and minis back in all their glory in some cases. Both long trousers and shorts come in different forms - from wide to clinging.

Several tendencies are working away behind the mainline. "Deconstructed" clothes such as at Comme des Garçons hit the usual enigmatic arty note. Leave a sleeve dangling, turn the seam inside out. Here designer Rei Kawakubo continues in her non-conformist vein, though many fashion critics love her nearly medieval look in layers of ivory-colored natural-fabric clothes.

Other young and hip designers in Paris are striving for creativity, not always saleability. People driving out to the supermarket don't dig Paris runway chic.

But Dries van Noten, a Belgian-born designer, cheers the young at heart with his wrinkled, crumpled looks from the silk route for travelling hippies of all ages. Wrapped pareo and apron-tied skirts, often with ribbed tank tops, and wide-casual pants for the legs would be good for anybody's hot-weather trip to India.

Then there's the costume party. While Paris is generally in a sullen, recession-ridden mood, its designers still know how to posture in scenes from the Comedie Francaise or travelogue cinema.

Christian Lacroix, with his sense of drama, trots out ensembles straight out of Africa in good cotton fabric mixes, and the Far East, with silky tunics and pants. Here we also see fabulous 18th-century silky redingotes, or Parisian misses in 19th-century dance-hall outfits with silky miniskirts and lacy thigh stockings, which could be a best-seller for those with a yen to seduce.

Kenzo also offers up some ebullient dress-up stuff with Indian-inspired Nehru jackets, frock coats to recall the 18th century, and several other costume themes.

But the exotic world-tour winner must be Jean-Paul Gaultier. The fashion world buzzed with his news of far-eastern Hare Krishna girls and boys with their overall face and body jewelry, tattoo-painted people in silky drapes or 18th-century dandy coats.

It all reeks of street-rap chic, but only the avant-garde will go for the excesses. Others may content themselves with a satiny redingote blazer, or just a great jacket - there's always something to wrinkle out from this group of crazy combinations.

Ungaro's tamed-down and lovely offerings are all saleable - from superb ecru rajah coats to airy chiffon skirts in hot colors.

Yves Saint Laurent gets kudos for his spring ready-to-wear, based on his couture looks with lace-edged short lingerie skirts and chiffon overskirts with wonderful linen jackets.

Jean-Pierre Marty at Guy Laroche (who took over for Guy Douvier following his death) turned in some serviceable designs - most on the short side, with fun touches like a green harlequin print on a pine-mint diamond-shaped organza flyaway coat over a pale green strapless mini.

The fashion picture isn't complete without Karl Lagerfeld, who puts out wildly different versions of spring for his own label KL, Chloe and Chanel.

You might forget Lagerfeld's "skin dresses," clinging, lugubrious affairs dedicated to a rather odd and dark idea of chic.

More fun is his Chloe line of wispy misses in their flowing short or longer high-waisted clothes inspired by a Botticelli "primavera" or Grecian-urn maidens. These pastel feather-weight clothes are refreshing, if not for office wear.

Chanel's mini-tweed suits target the younger set, as do the outsized black or red denim pants and bermudas echoing street-rap kids. If you want to pay thousands of dollars for ideas right out of the Inner City, Chanel's the place to do it.

What will real Frenchwomen, Americans or others choose for spring? "I don't know about the U.S. buyers, but ours in France are choosing the most feminine clothes in a long time," says Nathalie Tollu, of the Paris Galeries Lafayette.

"All lines are fluid; we're showing many short dresses, lots of them like lingerie, with touches of lace and transparency."

She also notes a preference for the Indian influence in Nehru collars, off-white and spicy colors in silky fabrics. "We promote all names, but particularly some of the lesser known ones like 'Briefing' and 'Jodhpur' for these middle-priced lines," she said.

Nina Ricci's boutique line is offering fresh spring wear in striped full pants with appliqued flowers and a piped cardigan, or a frothy eyelid-edged blouse in cotton poplin.

In a downplayed, sportive line, Per Spook likes both long and short looks with a touch of naivete. Prices aren't bargain-basement (as are none of the big names from Paris), but quality is worthwhile.

The most noteworthy fabrics of summer fashion are based on airy voiles, georgettes, chiffons, some crochet knits, plenty of cotton and linen, but not too many hippie, rumpled looks this time (except by Dries van Noten and a couple of others).

Color schemes are built on white, black and gray, moving to navy and red, with many original variations:

Ecru or ivory-cream is ladled out for summer, alternating with some spiced colors like cinnamon, paprika, saffron - plus dusty pastels and just about anything in red, from hot tamale to strawberry sherbet.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Please explain revascularization. Local doctors tested me with a sonogram for impotence and gave me a medicine to obtain an erection. The medicine did not work. I was referred to a university hospital, where a different medicine caused an erection. I had to have another shot to reverse it. The doctor said my arteries were blocked and I would need an angiogram and an eight-hour operation to replace an artery.

I am only in my late 30s and have had impotence for about three years. It slowly worsened over the three years. I would like to have other arteries checked and get another opinion with more complete testing. I have had a basic checkup for prostate, testosterone, diabetes and cholesterol, and all were normal.

DEAR READER: It is not clear to me from your letter just what response you actually had to testing. Impotence occurs because the penis cannot fill with, or cannot retain enough, blood for a satisfactory erection. It can be psychological, but most often in experienced males there is a medical reason for it. Sometimes it takes extensive testing to identify the problem. The procedures are too lengthy to discuss here, but I have discussed the various tests in Special Report 125, Impotence, Premature Ejaculation and Peyronie's Disease, and am sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/125, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

One of the most common causes of impotence is fatty-cholesterol obstruction of the arteries. The blood pressure in the penis can be measured and an obstruction may cause it to be significantly lower than the pressure in the arm. You are right in asking to have your other arteries checked. Men over 40 with a penile pressure less than 60 percent of arm pressure are at a significantly greater risk of having a stroke or a heart attack within three years.

An injection of papaverine normally causes the arteries to dilate resulting in a strong erection. But if there is severe arterial blockage, an erection will not occur. With less severe obstruction, a partial erection occurs. A dye can be injected to see the penile arteries with X-ray studies.

Sometimes young men have abnormally rapid drainage from the veins, causing an early collapse of an erection. Surgery can correct this. If you do have significant localized arterial obstruction, it may be possible to surgically provide a detour around the blockage, a bypass, or it may even be opened with the balloon method used to open coronary arteries. Or there is the option of having a penile prosthesis inserted.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband had testicular cancer seven years ago. The cancerous testicle was removed. A urologist said he has extensive nerve damage, and when he ejaculates, his sperm goes into his bladder. I desperately want a child. The doctors say there is no operation that can cure my husband's condition. Please help steer us in the right direction. There must be something that can be done.

DEAR READER: It would be important to know what the quality of his sperm is. If he has sufficient normal sperm cells, something can be done. After an orgasm the urine can be collected and the sperm separated. This can then be used for artificial insemination. Try a fertility clinic and ask about this approach.

I wonder why your husband has this problem, called retrograde ejaculation. This is not uncommon after prostate surgery, but it is not clear from your letter why this should have occurred because of testicular cancer and why there should be nerve damage.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a relative in Zimbabwe who has been diagnosed as suffering from motor neuron disease. Recently, I read about Huntington's disease in the paper. Is there any relationship between the two?

DEAR READER: I understand your concern, because Huntington's disease is inherited, and the gene that is responsible has been isolated. It is associated with involuntary muscle movements and spasms. It is not the same thing as motor neuron disease. There are certain nerve cells in the body that are responsible for stimulating muscle contractions and are called the motor neurons. If those in the spinal cord are destroyed by poliomyelitis, it is a motor neuron disease that causes paralysis. Motor neurons are also in the brain.

There are inherited forms of motor neuron disease, usually apparent in children. In adults, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis is one of the most common forms; it is not inherited. The loss of motor neuron function results in progressive muscle weakness and failure of muscle function with multiple symptoms that tend to be progressive. That does not mean that is what your relative has.

Facts about blankets

Here are a few facts about blankets you may warm up to.

-There are two main kinds of blankets: woven and nonwoven, also known as needlepunched.

-Loom woven blankets are generally considered the highest quality, with greater durability than the less expensive needle-punched blankets.

-Loom woven blankets are soft, comfortable and warm because of their thickness and weight.

-Cotton, acrylic or wool are the fibers used most often in making loom woven blankets.

-Blankets can be woven into thermal or conventional styles. A thermal blanket has a loose construction that lets air circulate through the blanket. A conventional blanket is one in which the threads are in a tight construction, thereby keeping warm air trapped.

-The simplest and most economical way to produce a blanket is through the needlepunched or Needlewoven process (Needlewoven is Beacon's exclusive process for nonwoven blankets).

-Nonwoven blankets are made by running cloth through a machine that literally punches and pounds the fiber into blanket fabric.

-Acrylic and polyester are the two most common fibers used in nonwoven blanket construction.

-The main advantage of nonwoven blankets is that they provide warmth and durability at less cost.

-More needlepunched blankets are sold in this country each year than any other kind of blanket.

-Before you buy a blanket, look closely at the stitching used to secure the binding. Beware of blankets that unravel at the binding.

-It's also smart to look at the number of stitches per inch. The more stitches, the stronger the grip.

-A safety chain stitch is more durable than a plain, straight stitch. Better stitches make longer-lasting blankets.

-The trend today is to put blankets on display. The latest technology can turn out colorful, cotton loom-woven printed blankets that are too beautiful to hide.

That about covers it for this article. You can discover more on modern blankets in local stores. When it comes to learning about blankets, it's a good idea to lie down on the job.

NEW YORK (AP) - Is there life after James Brooks?

Yes, but it's a bleak one, according to Julie Kavner, who plays a Hollywood researcher in Brooks' new movie, "I'll Do Anything."

"It was wonderful speaking Jim's glorious words, just getting to hang around with him, to be directed by him. I guess it's over from here," said Kavner, who is also the raspy voice of television's Marge Simpson.

Kavner and Brooks go back professionally to 1974, when he was executive producer of "Rhoda" and she played Rhoda's schlumpy sister, Brenda.

Kavner went on to meaty supporting roles in Woody Allen movies and starred in Nora Ephron's "This Is My Life" two years ago.

'Race to Freedom' out in front of Black History Month fare

Janet Bailey and Courtney Vance star in "Race to Freedom: The Underground Railroad," airing Saturday on The Family Channel and BET in a simulcast. Producer Tim Reid spent 10 years bringing the production to fruition and has succeeded with the television highlight of the Black History Month observance.

BY SUZANNE GILL

No doubt about it: Tim Reid has done himself proud. His labor of love, a TV movie titled "Race to Freedom: The Underground Railroad," is the highlight of this year's Black History Month observance on television. It premieres Saturday, Feb. 19, in a simulcast on The Family Channel and BET.

Reid ("Frank's Place," "WKRP in Cincinnati" and the upcoming "Sister, Sister") has spent part of the last 10 years bringing this story to the screen. The production agreement, with Canadian film company Atlantis, was announced in July 1992 by Family. The finished product mingles a simple love story with the historical events and figures of the abolitionist era. It begins in 1850 with the passage of the Fugitive Slave Act, which made any runaway slave subject to extradition unless he could pass over the border into Canada — or Canaan, as it came to be known in the coded language of the Underground Railroad movement.

"Race to Freedom" is a strong, well-acted film, with more violence than is suitable for preschool children. It improves upon Alex Hayley's "Roots" and "Queen" in the honesty of its portrayal of life on the plantation. Instead of a slave who bears the love child of her enlightened master's kind son, viewers will see a runaway slave returned to a master who orders him maimed in the blacksmith's forge.

Reid took his idea of portraying the bravery of historical figures like Railroad "conductor" Harriet Tubman, publisher Levi Coffin and Canadian abolitionist Alexander Ross to the major networks first, but was turned down.

"I think the networks were at that time a little afraid of a project like this in terms of what it would become," Reid said in 1992.

"I have a black slave catcher in this that I had some trouble in Canada with — trying to get in this project. But he's an important piece of history, and he's used very well in this project."

The character, Solomon, is played by Glynn Turman. He tracks runaways with a white bounty hunter to earn his own freedom.

"I loved the fact that he was terrible," Turman says. "I don't like playing a slave — maybe one other time I have. The reason I liked playing this slave is he's such a loose cannon. He makes no excuses for his survival."

Turman, whose first film credit was "A Raisin in the Sun," appears here with "A Different World" co-star Dawnn Lewis, who plays one of four slaves who start on the long journey to Canada together. The tempest-tossed lovers are played by Canadian Janet Bailey and Broadway veteran Courtney Vance ("Six Degrees of Separation"). Reid appears briefly as Frederick Douglass.

Also of note this week is PBS' presentation of "A Question of Color," airing Tuesday, Feb. 15 (check local listings). The hour-long film by Kathe Sandler examines the hurtful hierarchy of skin tone in the black community. Sandler reveals that, while it is generally considered better to be lighter-skinned with Caucasian features, both sides experience pain. In one passage, a dark-skinned woman says society tells her she is not lovely and has no reason to exist; a light-skinned woman says she is viewed as a prize, not a person. "A Question of Color" joins past PBS broadcasts of Marlon Riggs' film essay "Color Adjustment" and a "Frontline" episode, "Public Hearing, Private Pain," a look at the Clarence Thomas hearings, in focusing on the complexity of life in black America.

TRIVIA QUIZ

That's MISTER Trivia
to you

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

Questions:

1. Sidney Poitier plays a San Francisco detective determined to get respect in this 1970 drama. (Bonus: Name the movie's prequel and sequel.)
2. Diane Keaton is a Victorian wife who falls for charming prisoner Mel Gibson in this 1984 drama.
3. Vincent Price in a 1950 Western? Yep, name it.
4. Bing Crosby plays a kindly New England physician with an ugly habit in this 1970 telefilm.
5. Warren Beatty plays Vivien Leigh's hired paramour in this 1961 film. (Bonus: Who wrote the story on which the movie is based?)
6. Greta Garbo plays a Swedish monarch in what is probably her best film.

- Answers:
1. The film is "They Call Me Mister Tibbs," a follow-up to "In the Heat of the Night." The third in the series is "The Organization."
 2. "Mrs. Soffel."
 3. Price played an evil (what else?) landowner in Samuel Fuller's "The Baron of Arizona."
 4. Crosby had the unfortunate tendency to bury some of his ailing patients in his flower bed in "Dr. Cook's Garden."
 5. The movie is "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone," based on the novella by Tennessee Williams.
 6. "Queen Christina."

HIGHLIGHTS

Fox pumps some adrenaline into the television with the network premiere of "Point Break" on Monday, Feb. 14.

FBI agent Johnny Utah (Keanu Reeves, left) goes undercover to catch a band of bank robbers who wear masks of ex-presidents while they work. His investigation leads him to Bodhi (Patrick Swayze), a wild man looking for the ultimate thrill. The film includes spectacular sky-diving and other edge-of-the-seat action.

It's also fun to see former presidents steal money.

TRIVIA

Oscar winner Christopher Walken met his wife of 25 years, Georgianne, when both were cast in a touring company of "West Side Story."

TRIVIA

Puppeteer Shari Lewis turned 60 years of age last month. She has won five Emmy Awards since her television debut in 1958.

MOVIES ON TV

NBC has stronghold on new TV movie offerings; Washington in HBO premiere of 'Malcolm X'

BY SARA BENNETT

If NBC is trying to jack up ratings, it's on the right track, airing a new TV movie with controversial subject matter. Sunday, Feb. 13, the network presents "Witness to the Execution," starring Tim Daly as an inmate on death row. In the movie, program executive Jessica Traynor (Sean Young) thinks airing the execution as a pay-per-view event is just what the network needs to get ahead in a close ratings battle. But Traynor begins to have second thoughts; perhaps Dennis Casterline (Daly) isn't guilty.

Tuesday, Feb. 15, on NBC, Lindsay Wagner suddenly becomes a single mother who must tend to the needs of her deaf son following the deaths of her husband and daughter in a fire in "Once in a Lifetime." Barry Bostwick and Rex Smith co-star.

"Moment of Truth: To Walk Again," starring Blair Brown and Ken Howard, airs Wednesday, Feb. 16, on NBC. Cameron Bancroft portrays Eddie Keating Jr., a Marine who gets shot by friendly fire during a training exercise. The incident leaves him a paraplegic with brain damage. His parents fight to get him the care he needs in this fact-based story.

Stefanie Powers and Robert Wagner reprise their roles as Jennifer and Jonathan Hart in "Hart to Hart: Home Is Where the Hart Is," Friday, Feb. 18, on NBC. The film is the second "Hart to Hart" installment in the network's Friday Night Mystery series. The Harts must uncover the secrets of a small town, which will lead them to the killer of Jennifer's favorite teacher and mentor.

Screen star Lolita Davidovich ("Intersection," "Raising Cain") is host of an installment of TNT's "Our Favorite Movies," Thursday, Feb. 17, as the cable network presents "Doctor Zhivago," about the Bolshevik Revolution as seen through the eyes of a sensitive doctor.

"Malcolm X" makes its HBO premiere Saturday, Feb. 19, with Denzel Washington in the title role.

Feb. 13 - Feb. 19 HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)
Your patience with a very difficult situation will soon be rewarded. If you have been thinking of taking a continuing education course, do so.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)
Warring factions will become tiresome, and you will be ready to call a truce. An illness could be the root of a family problem.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
It is time to take a good, honest look at your financial picture. You may not need as strict a budget as you might think.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
This is a difficult time and you will need a great deal of inner strength to get through it. A major shakeup or illness will be the cause.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
You need to sit back and evaluate activities more closely. Are you really where you want to be? Make the necessary changes and be happy.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
There will be good news concerning a new job or promotion. Your domestic side will surface with some early spring cleaning.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
There could be a new venture that will be prosperous for you. It may not be easy, but do your best to communicate your ideas to those around you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)
You may feel as though the only way to get out of a situation is to walk away, but that might not be the best solution in the long run.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 30)
Don't charge into a volatile situation without thinking things through. You will have a chance to do many wonderful things, but don't rush it.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)
A very difficult man may hold many of the cards for you, and you will be unsure of his motives. Don't wait until the worst happens; deal with him now.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
There will be some romantic sparks with an individual you do not know well. Be cautious, and go at your own speed.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
A love relationship could take a surprising turn. Choose your path carefully or risk making one of the most foolish decisions of your life.

LET'S TALK

The history behind TV's 'get busy' guy; 'Jeremiah Johnson' confusion

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Arsenio Hall

Q: I really enjoy "The Arsenio Hall Show." Could you please give me some information about the host? Where is he from? How did he get his break in television? Also, could you please provide me with an address where I can write to him? -J.B., Troutdale, Ore.

A: Hall, a native of Cleveland, knew at the age of 12 that he wanted to do "what Johnny Carson does."

Hall showed an early talent for performing and show business when he took up magic at the age of 7. His father, a Baptist preacher, would perform wedding services and young Arsenio would do magic acts at the receptions.

In high school, he explored other areas of his talent, playing drums in the school marching band, the school orchestra and his own music group. Then in college, Hall got involved in theater and was a disc jockey for the campus radio station.

After graduating from Kent State University, Hall embarked on a career in advertising, but the spotlight beckoned. On a dare, he started doing stand-up comedy routines in 1979 and that was all it took. He quit his job and moved to Chicago, where he was discovered in a nightclub by singer Nancy Wilson, who later aided his move to Los Angeles.

In 1983, he made the transition from clubs to television as co-host of the ABC series "The Half-Hour Comedy Hour," and went on to co-host "Solid Gold."

His rise to stardom accelerated when he was signed as an interim guest host on Fox Broadcasting's "The Late Show" in 1987.

From there, Hall signed a contract with Paramount Pictures, which led to his performance with Eddie Murphy in "Coming to America."

"The Arsenio Hall Show" debuted on Jan. 3, 1989, and the rest, as they say, is history.

You can write to him C/O Paramount Domestic Television, 5555 Melrose Ave., Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Q: One of my favorite movies of all time is "Jeremiah Johnson." My sister tells me that Tanya Tucker had a part in the movie. I have watched it a hundred times and I don't recall ever seeing her. Could you please settle this disagreement? -Christine Roberts, Tigard, Ore.

A: Don't worry, Christine. Your sister is incorrect; Tanya Tucker does not appear in the movie. Have your sister watch the movie with you, if possible, and see if she can point out who she is referring to.

Q: In the mid-1980s, I saw a movie on Cinemax that starred Judd Nelson. His character was paid to go to a private prep school in place of another guy. I know for a fact that Andrew "Dice" Clay was in the movie. What is this movie's name and is it available on home video? -M. Richardson, Earle, Ark.

A: The movie you are referring to is "Making the Grade." It was made in 1984 and is available on videotape.

Q: I am looking for information about a movie made by Jeannette MacDonald and Allan Jones. I think its name was "The Firefly." It featured the song "Donkey Serenade." I would love to get a copy of it on videotape, but can't seem to find one. Could you please give me an address where I could write to obtain this movie? -Maxine Drury, Park Rapids, Minn.

A: You are indeed looking for "The Firefly." Unfortunately, the movie is not available for home video purchase. The film's rights are owned by Turner Programming Services, so there is a possibility that it could pop up on TBS or TNT, so check those local listings.

If truth can be bought, what then?: 'Frontline' wades into news marketplace

Most weeks, this column reports on celebrities in the world of film and television. This week its focus is a TV show that looks at the growing practice of newsmongering, from the tabloids to the talk shows to the networks to The New York Times. "Tabloid Truth: The Michael Jackson Scandal" airs Tuesday, Feb. 15, on PBS' "Frontline." (Check local listings.)

Michael Jackson

The concept, says producer Thomas Lennon, was "simply to jump onto a story that looked like it was going to be a media feeding frenzy and cover not the event, but the people covering the event." Four days after Lennon's abstract idea was approved last August, the story broke that Michael Jackson's home had been raided by police. Ironically, it was Jackson's spokesman, doing damage control, who came forward and said the case involved the alleged sexual molestation of a 13-year-old. Lennon was determined to cover "the zoo, not the story."

"You will see probably three or four images of Michael Jackson in the whole hour," Lennon says. Instead, his cameras went behind the scenes as "A Current Affair" bid with an informant on part of the story. Lennon saw how coverage spread to the mainstream press and TV networks. "Tabloids ... increasingly are setting the pace, breaking the stories, because they have the cash to break them with."

"The nature of the journalistic transaction is being fundamentally changed in front of us," Lennon says. "You watch a story being bought and, many would say, also being changed as it goes through that process.

"Within days, this story jumped from hard, verifiable news to spectacle and entertainment. And it wasn't just 'Hard Copy,' 'A Current Affair' and 'Geraldo' spinning out material; it was CNN, the network morning shows and their nightly newscasts - everybody. They all got caught up in the chase." Jackson's eventual out-of-court settlement cited the pressures of the media blitz.

"The mass appetite for celebrity scandal stories and the growing number of outlets willing to tell them have sharpened the media's carnival skills," adds correspondent Richard Ben Cramer. "But what are the consequences?"

De Niro makes solid directing debut with warm 'A Bronx Tale'

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

Doo-wop, that stirring, a cappella musical blend of close harmonies and urban sensibility, was born in the early 1950s on the sidewalks of New York City. It came from youths with no money for instruments, no training, no real venue in which to perform, just the desire - the need - to let out the music they felt inside.

It surely is the music Robert De Niro heard as a youth. No wonder he chose it as the rhythm behind "A Bronx Tale," a sweet, thoughtful coming-of-age film that marks the actor's directorial debut.

The movie is based on the one-man play written and performed by Chazz Palminteri. On the screen, De Niro gathers a fine cast (including Palminteri and himself) to tell this story of a poor kid's fascination with a local mobster and all he learns as a result.

Francis Capra plays young Calogero at about age 8. The boy has noticed the silk-suited, fast-talking man (Palminteri) who hangs out at the bar down the street. Even at his age, Calogero realizes the man with the steely eyes and quick temper is somehow ... in charge. But it is a true rite of passage when the stillness of a hot afternoon is broken by the sound of gunfire; the boss has shot a man in his own car, apparently over a parking dispute.

There are many witnesses, but only Calogero has the nerve to tell cops he knows who did it. His bravado fails, however, at the moment of truth - under the killer's icy gaze - and his cowardice is rewarded with odd jobs, cash and even fatherly advice from the man he knows to be a murderer.

Lillo Brancato takes over the role (now simply called "C" by his pals) at age 17. He is a young man torn between respect and love for the simple ways of his bus-driver father (De Niro), and the seductive world of power and money into which he's gradually been admitted.

No more should be given away; suffice it to say, "A Bronx Tale" is a film not to be missed ... or forgotten.

Tim Daly portrays a death row inmate who agrees to have his execution broadcast on pay-per-view television in the controversial NBC drama "Witness to the Execution," airing Sunday.

'Witness to the Execution' asks how far is too far?

BY JEFF PLASS

Shock-jock Howard Stern once quipped that the only problem with capital punishment is that "you can't get it on cable TV."

"Witness to the Execution," airing on NBC, Sunday, Feb. 13, takes Stern's remark and builds it into the most intriguing, provocative, multifaceted and controversial film to make its way onto television in quite some time.

There's only one gnawing question. Does it belong on network TV?

Sean Young and Tim Daly star in this drama, which the word "intense" doesn't even begin to describe. Set in 1999, when crime is more prevalent than entertainment and the almighty dollar is still king, program executive Jessica Traynor (Young) has to come up with a blockbuster pay-per-view event to captivate a nation of viewers that has become desensitized to violence.

Her solution? A live broadcast of the execution of a death row inmate.

She finds the perfect star for her vehicle in handsome, charismatic Dennis Casterline (Daly). But as momentum builds toward the event, with millions of viewer dollars pouring in daily, Jessica finds herself questioning the foregone conclusion that Dennis is actually guilty.

Her boss says the show must go on, but Jessica's heretofore negligent moral conscience is weighing heavily on her.

In a desperate race against time, she must find out the truth about Dennis before the "countdown to justice" ticks away its final increment.

The film opens up a colossal can of worms. What can or cannot be permitted on television? How far is too far? When does the responsibility fall on the part of the viewer? The questions the movie asks on the screen are the questions viewers should be asking themselves.

Ironically enough, the answer may have come in real life recently when Howard Stern offended millions with his pay-per-view gross-out, the "Miss Howard Stern New Year's Eve Pageant."

Then again, maybe there's something waiting to get on TV out there that's just a little bit more "out there."

SATURDAY

Bright light! Bright light! With enough movie jokes and dark humor to fill a skyscraper, Gizmo returns with pals and foes in "Gremlins 2: The New Batch," Saturday on ABC, a sequel that improves on the original.
