New cloud-seeding program underway in High Plains area

By Jack Stein Brand Editor

It's just a matter of time before rain generated by artificial means could be falling on Hereford, Deaf Smith County and the High Plains.

Carmon McCain, Information Education Director for High Plains Underground Water Conservation District 1, says the new cloud seeding project is well enroute to success with final preparations completed at the central radar site at Littlefield airport.

"The radar is up and running," McCain said in reference to a C-Band radar unit which will be used to monitor weather conditions and track aircraft used in the cloud seeding operations.

Officials with the project, guided by Chief Meteorologist Scott Ellis, will constantly monitor weather conditions and when everything is right, cloud seeding will begin.

McCain said there are three main criteria to be considered:

1 - Any cloud considered for seeding must first be determined to already have reached super cooled before they are considered safe to 3 - The cloud must have a distinguishable updraft.

When any cloud observed on the radar meets these requirements or Littlefield site will place pilots of the three project airplanes on alert.

This will include the normal preflight check every pilot must make along with assuring the special equipment installed on the aircraft is in place and ready to use.

The three aircraft, Cessna model 340s, are based at Lubbock (two) and Amarillo (one), with pilots in those areas on standby basis at all times.

Once airborne, the pilots will fly their aircraft into the target cloud as directed by staff meteorologists using the Littlefield radar site.

If and when they are authorized to begin the seeding process, the pilots will release silver iodide from flare racks mounted on the aircraft.

Silver iodide has been successfully used in other cloud seeding projects because it is known to provide a base around which condensation can form giving moisture droplets a larger size and weight. This allows the droplets a better chance of falling to earth 2 - Clouds must be free of ice instead of evaporating at lower levels which is normal under similar conditions.

These larger droplets can encourage a cloud to drop its moisture in the form or rain and/or increase the amount of moisture appears close to being ready for dropping from a given cloud seeding, meteorologists at the formation as the precipitation falls.

McCain said early actions of the project included seeding of two "It will take 30 minutes to an hour clouds on May 28, one north of to get the planes ready," McCain said. Hereford and the other over Roosevelt County.

> Results of those seeding efforts were inconclusive because "so many clouds began forming that we had to pull the planes off the project," McCain said.

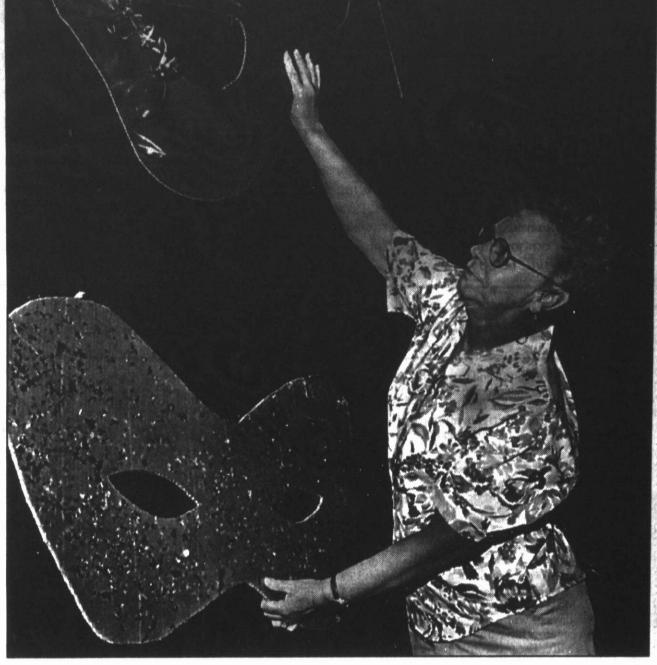

> When these initial seeding operations were undertaken the Littlefield radar site was not 100 percent functional but since that time has been upgraded with complete electrical power and telephone lines.

"This overall project will double the track all the way to California."

Construction is continuing on the railroad line east of the Hereford area.

Dive bomber!

Carida, the Vargas family cat, patiently sits on the front porch of her Ave. B home as a Blue Jay (upper right) makes a bombing run on the hapless feline. Lupe Vargas said she noticed Carida would not stay outside long during daylight hours and upon investigation learned that two Blue Jays were making her life miserable by diving at the three-year-old cat forcing her to run for cover. The birds haven't bothered other cats in the area during the week-long assaults.

The first annual "Relay for Life", benefitting the Deaf Smith unit of the American Cancer Society, was to get underway at 6 p.m. today in Whiteface Stadium.

Businesses, families, churches, clubs and organizations have formed 10-member teams to take part in this 24-hour event to raise funds for the fight against cancer. Each team will be responsible for keeping one member on the track at all times.

Jennifer Eggen, chairman, reported the event could break the state record of 33 teams that entered a Relay for Life event in Mt. Pleasant.

In addition to hosting the teams, the Relay for Life will include many other activities involving the entire community. Throughout the event, there will be local entertainment, food stands, and games and fun for the entire family.

The first lap of the Relay for Life at 6:30 p.m. today will be designated as the Cancer Survivors' Walk. This lap will honor those who have fought and won their battle against cancer. At dusk, relay walkers will participate in a special memorial service.

DENVER (AP) - The day before bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah the Oklahoma City bombing, Mike Federal Building which left 168 Lenz saw his unborn son on an ultrasound machine and gave him a name. The next day, the blast ripped through Lenz's happy life, killing his wife, Carrie, and Michael James Lenz III, the son he never met.

'In one fell swoop, I went from being a husband and a daddy to realizing it was all gone. There was no one coming home, nobody's going to be in the driveway. I lost every-thing," Lenz testified Thursday during the penalty phase of Timothy McVeigh's trial.

In two days of wrenching testimony that has often brought jurors to tears, prosecutors have put on 34 witnesses to support their bid to take Mc Veigh's life. They contend that death by injection is the only just punishment for the April 19, 1995, people dead. Their case was expected to conclude today.

The defense will attempt to spare McVeigh the execution chamber by calling his family members, teachers and military officials. They are expected to describe the influences and events - including the FBI siege of the Branch Davidians near Waco. Texas - that turned the 29-year-old Gulf War veteran against his own government.

Lenz described for jurors his joy of seeing his unborn child on the ultrasound machine in a doctor's office. "I could see a baby, and pretty soon I could see it was going to be a baby boy," Lenz said.

He then recalled his depression after the bombing.

"There was a point when I actually stuck a pistol in my mouth," he said. "I couldn't pull the trigger, thank God. There's nothing more dangerous than a man who has no reason to live.'

A red-eyed Zella Gibson said she knew how excited Mrs. Lenz and her husband were about the anticipated arrival of their first child.

In their presentation, prosecutors displayed photographs of wounds on some of the bombing survivors. Although the judge barred the most gruesome images, the presentation still left jurors looking sickly.

Narrated by Oklahoma epidemiologist Sue Mallonee, the series of pictures showed backs sliced open by flying glass, crushed eye sockets, faces made limp by nerve damage and neck scars where jugular veins had been ripped open.

That will get their attention.

Dear Altoona: Uncharitable? Too

-- Grandmother in Altoona, Wis.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband persuaded me to write since we keep seeing letters about how people met. I hope our story is worth printing.

My husband had just finished basic training at Fort Dix in February 1966. He had a three-day pass and decided to go home with a buddy for the weekend. They got off the bus around midnight, in their uniforms, and stood on a street corner in a blizzard.

They noticed two young girls in a car stopped at the light and flagged them down, all the while thinking, "They'll never pick us up." I was one of those girls, and guess what? We decided those poor soldiers deserved a break and told them to "hop in." We had a terrific evening, and "my" soldier wanted to see me again.

Three days later, much to my sorrow (and his, too), he was shipped out to Vietnam. We wrote every single day for a year and fell in love through the mail. One month after he came home, we were engaged. We will be married 29 years this June and just recently found the nerve to tell our children how we really met. --Joanne in Wellington, Fla.

Dear Joanne: When your letter appears in the paper, the whole world will know -- and I think it's wonder-

Dear Ann Landers: For years, I've been looking for someone who made a big impact on my life. This wonderful person was my fifth-grade teacher, Mrs. Foster. I was in her class in 1978 at Kitty Hawk Elementary School in Huber Heights, Ohio.

The year before, I failed the fifth grade because I had a lousy teacher who did nothing to help the students who were struggling. I made straight F's in that class. Mrs. Foster was the most understanding and caring person I had ever met. She taught me to have confidence in myself. Thanks to her guidance, I made the honor roll.

Mrs. Foster was also the reason I started to read your column. I was flipping through the Dayton Daily News many years ago and came across your picture. You look exactly like Mrs. Foster. I was convinced that she was writing an advice column under your name.

I lost track of Mrs. Foster in 1986, when she and her husband moved to California. I know you're not in the business of finding people, but I would really like to let this wonderful woman know what a positive influence she had on my life. Millions of people read your column, Ann. I'm sure someone out there must know where Mrs. Foster is. Thanks, Ann. -- James in Winchester, Ky.

Dear James: It would have helped to have Mrs. Foster's first name, or her husband's, but if she surfaces, I will let you know.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a grandmother, age 76, with 22 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren. For the last 15 years, I have remembered birthdays and holidays for 52 relatives. Not only do they not reciprocate with so much as a card or phone call (let alone a gift), they do not even thank me for the gifts I send. These people are not at the poverty level. They could easily afford a phone call or a postage stamp.

Am I too demanding? Am I uncharitable to expect an acknowledgment? Please respond in the paper. I can't sign my name. I live in a small town where too many people

Newly ordained priest presides at first Mass Deacon Juan Carlos Barragan, a seminarian for the diocese of Amarillo, was ordained to the priesthood during a 10:30 a.m. Mass Saturday, May 31 at San Jose Church. Bishop John W. Yanta presided at the ordination. Deacon Barragan was the first man to be ordained to the priesthood for the Diocese of Amarillo by Bishop Yanta.

The newly-ordained Father Barragan presided at his Mass

Sunday, June 1 at 11:00 a.m. at St. Anthony's Church.
Deacon Barragan, 29, is a native of Mexico and is the son of Salvador and Catalina Morfin de Barragan. He is the oldest of two brothers and five sisters, of whom the oldest of these sisters is a contemplative Dominican

"I felt my call to vocation when I was 15," Deacon Barragan said. "My Mother encouraged me to be interested in the priesthood."

Deacon Barragan entered El Seminario Deocesano del Senor San Jose in Guadalajara, which at that time, he said, he counted nearly 2,000 seminarians only for that diocese housed in several branch houses.

Of those 2,000 seminarians, he was one of the eight privileged seminarians to study music for five years at the Escuela Pontificia de identified, he said.

DEACON JUAN CARLOS BARRAGAN

Musica Sacra Romana in Guadalajara. While he was there, he reveled in his hobby-music-as he sung in the seminary choir, played accordion, saxophone, bass, guitar and other instruments. Deacon Barragan received a Masters of Divinity, Magna Cum Laude, from Assumption Seminary on May 9. He is currently enrolled for another degree, a Masters of Arts in Theology and expects to continue his education in order to serve better his diocese with which he feels strongly

Erving takes Orlando job

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Julius Erving was wooed for years by his former team, the Philadelphia 76ers, to take a front office job.

But Erving instead chose to take a job as vice president of the Orlando Magic because of a promise that his position would offer a variety of responsibilities beyond day-to-day basketball operations.

"I think just being pigeonholed in a basketball operation in a typical basketball job, I would have had a major problem with that," Erving said Thursday. "I couldn't have accepted a position like that.

In Orlando, Erving - as executive vice president of the team and vice president of RDV Sports, the Magic's parent company - will help set strategic business plans, serve as a liaison between management and players and work on player develop-

Erving, 47, said his position with the Magic was a fulltime job, but wouldn't disclose how much he will be paid. Both the Magic and Erving were vague about how his responsibilities would overlap with those of new coach Chuck Daly and general manager John Gabriel.

Athletes of the Year list Thursday. Cornelius and Kisha Tucker of Tascosa High School were named for volleyball.

Cornelius, who is headed to the University of Oklahoma on a volleyball scholarship, is scheduled to play in the Texas Girls Coaches Association All-Star game in Austin July 10. HHS volleyball coach Brenda Reeh will be one of the allstar coaches.

Cornelius was a four-year letter winner in volleyball at HHS and was named to the all-state team three times. She was named volleyball player of the year by the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame earlier this year, and Coach Reeh was named coach of the year by the Hall of Fame. Cornelius was one of the top players in the state this past season. She recorded 409 kills, 130 blocks, 99 digs and a .518 kill percentage.

Other athletes of the year named by the Amarillo Chamber included:

Tim Dubrule, West Texas A&M, college baseball; Michael Pillard, Claude, and Brett Jackson, Amarillo High, high school baseball; Martin Lattibeaudiere and Natasha Taylor, West Texas A&M, college basketball; Kevin Clayton, Randall, and Bryan Braddock, Nazareth, high school basketball; Valarce Valdez, Canyon, and Jodie Avent, WT High, girls high school basketball; Robert Mack, WTA&M, college football;

Tech suit dropped by district judge

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) A former Texas Tech defensive lineman's claim that Texas Tech broke the U.S. law by exploiting his talents while depriving him of an education is unfounded, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Sydney A.

Fitzwater, in a ruling signed Monday, rejected Stephen Gaines' claims that the school, coaches Spike Dykes and Rhudy Maskew and former counselor Ronn Reeger violated Gaines' rights by hindering his academic growth.

However, Fitzwater allowed Gaines another chance to refile against the three men outside their official capacity at Tech.

'We have said all along that we did not believe that Mr. Gaines' claims against Texas Tech belonged in court," Texas Tech chancellor John T. Montford said. The school still faces an NCAA investigation that largely appears based on Gaines'

Marcus Leinart, an associate of Gaines' attorney, Chris Kalis, said the firm declined to comment Wednesday about the dismissal.

Jones will wait on Irving to regain intensity

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones says he'll wait patiently while Michael Irvin tries to find his intensity for football, but that patience will run out when the team goes to training camp.

Jones gave his reaction Thursday to Irvin's statement this week that he has lost his "intensity and emotion" for the game and might retire. Irvin missed a Cowboys minicamp last month and hasn't appeared at a quarterback school this week.

The team owner said he accepts Irvin's assessment that his game is based on emotion and he can't play without it.

"On the other hand, I think we would all expect him to play through a down period of time," Jones told radio station KTCK on Thursday.

"As it turns out, a lot of us all over this country get up and do things that we've contracted or that we've said we're going to do when we don't feel like doing them. Many people do that, and they do it every day in all walks

Jones said he won't put the receiver's well-being over the good of the team.

"He is a friend of mine. He is a son. He is a brother," Jones said of Irvin, "We're all of these things. ... Now having said that, it's business time. It's business time. And let's do what we said we would do.'

the contest, which awards the $1 million prize if a Mariners player hits for the cycle. Her name was randomly selected before the game, and she was announced as the winner on radio and television broadcasts.

Rodriguez homered in the first, singled in the fourth and tripled in the eighth before getting a bloop double in the ninth. Rodriguez, aware that he needed the double for the cycle, never hesitated going to second after the ball dropped near the right-field line.

"Usually when you try to do something, it doesn't happen," Rodriguez said. "I was fortunate to hit a jam shot down the line."

Rockies hold perfect record

They've never lost in extra innings at home

By The Associated Press
Of all the impressive numbers Larry Walker and his Colorado Rockies have posted at Coors Field, here's one that's absolutely unbeatable: They've never lost an extra-inning game at the ballpark.

Walker kept that mark intact Thursday with two homers, including a two-run shot in the 11th inning that gave the Rockies a 9-7 victory and ended San Diego's six-game winning streak.

The Rockies are 9-0 in extras in two-plus seasons at Coors. Colorado's hitters are a big reason for the success - they're batting .343 at home, led by Walker at .431.

Walker had three hits, raising his NL-leading average to .411. The lefty connected for his winning, 442-foot homer off left-hander Terry Burrows (0-1) with one out and a runner on second base.

"They've been trying to pitch me in the whole series," Walker said. "That one didn't get in enough and was over the plate. I got a good piece of the bat on it and away it went."

In other NL games, Atlanta blanked Montreal 9-0, New York defeated Florida 6-0, Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 9-3, Cincinnati topped Houston 6-5, Philadelphia 9, Chicago 8 in 10 innings; and San Francisco edged Los Angeles 5-4.

Jazz record doesn't phase Chicago Bulls

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Most visiting teams already have lost when the cheering starts at the Delta Center, perhaps the NBA's loudest

Most teams are so intimidated that they can't concentrate on the game, and the Jazz take full advantage. That's why Utah is 46-3 at home this season, including 8-0 in the playoffs, and has won 21 consecutive games

The Chicago Bulls aren't most

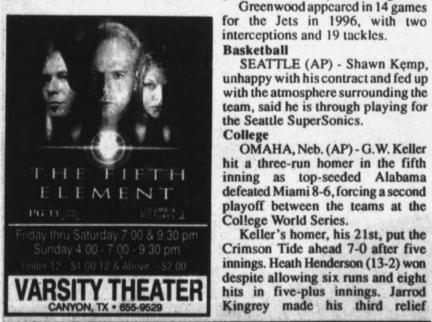

"We love the road. The road is a fun place," Chicago's Ron Harper said Thursday, anticipating tonight's NBA Finals Game 3. "We've got 17,000 fans that hate us. They have a very loud crowd. It's going to be a fun game.'

Winning, of course, would be the | Football most fun for the Bulls because that would all but guarantee their fifth championship in seven years. They would lead the series 3-0, and no team ever has come back from such a deficit.

As it is, the odds are heavily stacked against the Jazz, who also play host to Game 4 Sunday and, if necessary, Game 5 next Wednesday.

The Bulls won their first nine best-of-7 series in which they took 2-0 leads; the Jazz are 0-for-5 when falling behind 0-2.

The Bulls won Game 3 on the road in each of their three previous series this postseason. Their third-game performances at Atlanta in the second round and at Miami in the third round were their best in each series.

On Wednesday night, Walker batted in the ninth inning in a key spot and struck out. This time, he was determined not to make the same

"I had no intention of hitting a home run," Walker said. "With a guy on second, I can break my bat and bloop one in and we still win the game. Last night, I was trying to hit one in the third deck, and I paid the price. Today I just tried to hit the ball hard, and it left the ballpark."

The Rockies turned a team-record six double plays. The major league record is seven, done four times and last accomplished by St. Louis in a 10-inning game against Pittsburgh on June 16, 1994.

Walker moved ahead of Tony Gwynn for the league lead in batting. Gwynn went 1-for-6, leaving him at .403, though he extended his hitting streak to 15 games with a single that set up the Padres' tying run in the ninth.

Braves 9, Expos 0

Denny Neagle pitched his second career shutout - both against Montreal and Atlanta finished a two-game sweep at Olympic Stadium.

The Expos lost more than just their third straight game. Prized rookie right fielder Vladimir Guerrero pulled his right hamstring chasing a ball and was put on the disabled list for the second time this season.

Neagle (8-1) scattered six singles and struck out seven. His other shutout came in 1995 while with Pittsburgh.

Neagle drove in two runs and Keith Lockhart, Javy Lopez and Andruw Jones all homered for the Braves.

Mets 6, Marlins 0 Armando Reynoso, backed by five double plays, held Florida to five hits for his first major league shutout. Reynoso (5-0) pitched his first complete game since May 3, 1994, while with Colorado. The Mets, meanwhile, tied a team record with five DPs - the only other time they did it was in 1983.

Kevin Brown (5-4) has allowed 13 earned runs and 21 hits in his last 12 innings.

Silver charm to go after Triple Crown

NEW YORK (AP) - Are these the seats, 54 rooms set aside at a swanky Garden City hotel and 18 stretch limousines idling at the curb.

That's the way Robert and Beverly Lewis brought friends and family to the Belmont Stakes to see their horse, Silver Charm, try to win the Triple Crown.

Yet, trainer Bob Baffert calls the colt, "just a guy who made it to the ' A real working man's horse. Just like Lewis, a lowly beer salesman who became one of Southern California's largest Budweiser distributors and obviously a very rich man.

Silver Charm will look anything but common Saturday, draped in white carnations, if he wins the Belmont Stakes and becomes the 12th Triple Crown winner, and first since Affirmed in 1978.

"It's a great name, Silver Charm, but I think people follow him because he is such a fighter," Baffert said. "That's what people love. He's come from humble beginnings. He isn't a blue blood."

That is, in fact, the truth. His father is Silver Buck, a modestly successful racehorse whose main claim to fame was that he finished a head back of John Henry in the 1981 Jockey Club Gold Cup. His mother, meanwhile, is a $12,000 claiming mare named Bonnie's Poker, who raced 63 times in her career, including eight times in 27 days once in December, 1985.

The best part about Silver Charm's breeding, if you are into omens, is that both of his parents won their first races at Belmont Park.

"It's starting to sink in that we're going for the Triple Crown," Baffert said at the draw for post position Thursday morning, accompanied by dozens of well-wishers imported from California and other ports of call.

Four workers die in fireworks warehouse explosion

LaFOLLETTE, Tenn. (AP) - Larry warehouse for Pyro Shows Inc. Trotter heard the explosion from two miles away, saw a huge billow of smoke at the fireworks warehouse and feared the worst.

"There are usually a lot of people there. Especially now, since we're just getting ready for the Fourth," aid Trotter, who works at the plant.

Tim Petree, 22, and Allison Hale, among the victims. So were Luther Seiber, 49, and Gretchen Wells, 20.

Latest proposal would let FDA regulate nicotine

WASHINGTON (AP) - The latest tobacco settlement proposal would let the Food and Drug Administration regulate nicotine as long as it didn't ban it as an addictive drug for 10

Another provision under consideration would deposit as much as $7 billion a year in tobacco money into a federal fund to care for uninsured children, a move that may score valuable political points but would leave states with less money from their tobacco lawsuits than they had anticipated, according to a source familiar with the proposal.

Mississippi Attorney General Michael Moore, the lead tobacco peace negotiator, is pushing the new provisions on Capitol Hill this week.

Tuesday, he tests whether his own side will stick together when he travels to Dallas to present the details to all 33 states that have sued the tobacco industry to recover Medicaid costs of treating sick smokers.

Wednesday, cigarette makers are expected to formally receive the full settlement proposal at a meeting in New York.

Connecticut Attorney General Richard Blumenthal pledged again Thursday that the deal wouldn't protect cigarette makers against smokers' lawsuits.

The attorneys general are "resisting any changes to the civil justice system that would deny people their present rights to a day in court," he said.

"If the industry is unwilling to yield on liability, it may be an insurmountable hurdle and a bar to achieving a plan through more talks," Blumenthal added. "I'm hopeful, but can't predict what will happen."

Blumenthal said no final dollar figures had been determined in the settlement.

But a source familiar with Moore's latest proposal said the idea was to divert part of the nearly $400 billion settlement into a fund to pay for uninsured children's health care.

In talks so far, cigarette makers have agreed to a host of unprecedent- career possibilities. Read up on what's ed advertising curbs and other available, and put your ad in the classified limitations. In return, they want some protection against future lawsuits from smokers.

The talks had stalled for a week after Moore and other negotiators, acknowledging growing concern among the states, told cigarette companies not to expect any protection from legal liability.

That remains the largest sticking point in any deal, although compromises now being considered would ban class-action lawsuits against tobacco firms.

But FDA regulation of nicotine had been a stumbling block too. The latest provision would let FDA regulate nicotine and even lower the amount in cigarettes somewhat. But the agency could not ban the chemical for 10 years, the source said.

It was unclear if this would be enough for critics.

Thursday, former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop and former FDA Commissioner David Kessler convened top public health agencies who are key to President Clinton supporting a deal-to write a tobacco policy blueprint.

"There is a push on the part of some to reach agreement as soon as this weekend," Kessler said. "If the attorneys general want to stand up without knowing what the public health community thinks, they do that at their own peril."

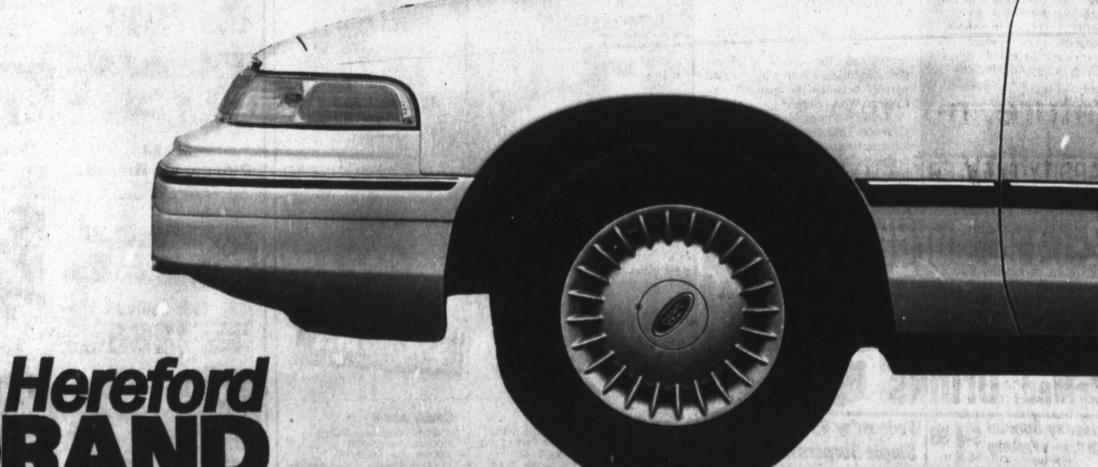

But one tobacco negotiator, Washington attorney John Coale, said he left Kessler's meeting relieved that the health groups have a "moderate position and ... open mind."

Any agreement must protect public health, have strong FDA regulations and be fair to sick smokers, said Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., who was one of several senators briefed on the settlement by Moore.

"I remain very concerned that as we go down the home stretch, the state attorneys general don't blink," he said.

House panel may force closure of Kelly AFB

WASHINGTON (AP) - Privatiza-tion plans ongoing at Air Force depots in Texas and California would be halted in their tracks under a measure approved by a House panel.

The House National Security Committee's military readiness subcommittee Thursday heartily approved an amendment that effectively would force the Air Force to abandon its plan to shield thousands of jobs at Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio and McClellan AFB in Sacramento.

The action reflected the widespread anger that remains in Congress over the White House's decision to bypass recommendations of the 1995 Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission.

The subcommittee's intent is to force the Air Force and the Clinton administration to follow the commission's recommendation to transfer the Kelly and McClellan work to three surviving depots.

Congress pauses to bestow praise upon Mother Teresa

WASHINGTON (AP) - Though it lasted for just an hour, a Congress in the thick of partisan wrangling over budget and international issues paused long enough to bestow praise upon a hero, Mother Teresa.

The 86-year-old Roman Catholic nun was wheeled into the Capitol Rotunda Thursday for a ceremony marking the recent passage of legislation to honor her life's work with the Congressional Gold Medal.

It is the highest honor Congress can give a civilian.

"You must pray for us that we continue God's work with beautiful and with great love," she said after House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., gave her a copy of the half-century ago. resolution authorizing the medal, She was accompanied at the Mother Teresa began the Missionaries of Charity in 1947 in Calcutta, India. It now has more than 4,000 nuns who run more than 500 orphanages, homes for the poor, AIDS hospices and other charity centers worldwide.

Migrant farm workers delaying trips to states with bad weather

BROWNSVILLE, Texas - By now, Manuel Zermeno and his family should be in Traverse City, Mich.

The windows of his Valle Escondido home should have been boarded up, his bags packed months

The harvest is three months old in some states, but Zermeno, a migrant farm worker for the last 25 years, is still in Brownsville.

"This is the first year that we've gone so late. Usually, we're gone by March," Zermeno said.

Migrant farm workers in the lower Rio Grande Valley are delaying their annual trips to Florida, Colorado and other states where farmers employ hundreds of field hands.

Flooding in the Midwest has cut the number of jobs available, but those jobs have been dwindling in recent years, anyway, said one employment agency director in

"We are seeing an increase in the number of migrants that are staying longer" in Brownsville, said Paula Gomez, director of the Brownsville Community Health Center, which provides medical care to migrants.
"We didn't see many leave in April at all, and that's the usual month when a lot of them go north."

Ron Baker, director of the Moorhead Workforce Center in Moorhead, Minn, said "Every year there's been a drop of 3, 4 or 5 percent of farmers using hand workers in the fields, and then we've got a severe housing problem on top of that."

A number of factors, including agricultural mechanization, are making it harder for migrants to find work each year.

"One machine and two guys can pick as many cherries as an entire crew can pick in a week," Zermeno

But these problems were compounded when severe flooding in the Red River Valley of Minnesota and the Dakotas ruined crops and left thousands without housing.

"What we've been telling people is it's advisable to call up here before you come," said Baker.

During a productive season, Zermeno said he can pick as many as five boxes of apples a day. A bad day in a lean season can yield just one or two boxes, and pay rates haven't gone up in more than two decades. For apples, Zermeno said he earns about $12 a box.

Zermeno cites another reason for the annual migration's late start residential camps at some farmworker facilities in Colorado and Wyoming, where his family usually works the early part of the season, have been shut down for violating federal housing regulations.

Other migrants say farms are cutting back on the variety of crops they harvest. Since cucumbers and strawberries, for instance, are harvested at different times of year, the migrant work season is shortened.

"The plant we usually go to in Florida doesn't handle cucumbers anymore so we've got to wait until strawberry season in December," said Leopoldo Hernandez, a migrant who usually leaves Brownsville in late July. "It's hard because we're not making any money."

Sonia Walsh, employment

supervisor for the Texas Work Force Commission, agreed that flooding in the Red River area is one reason migrants are still in town.

Agencies such as the U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration have been cracking down on migrant contractors in recent years for allowing workers to live in substandard buildings, Walsh said.

If farmers have to pay to bring migrant housing into compliance it takes away from what they can pay workers, she added.

"If there is an issue with finding it difficult to find work it could be that some of these farmers have been tagged for not being in compliance. They're spending money to get into compliance, and that's going to hurt," Walsh said.

But Mike Hunter, area OSHA director in Corpus Christi, disagrees.

"We've enforced temporary labor camp standards forever and in fact some of the most atrocious ones I've seen have been down in the Valley, so I don't really think that's the reason," Hunter said.

Zermeno doesn't blame the employers. Instead, he blames workers who are given homes to live in, but destroy them from the inside

"The workers will stick 10 guys in a house. Then on weekends, they'll party there, and wreck the house. You would think a family would take better care of a home they're going to live in, but that's not the case," Zermeno

On average, over four trillion gallons of precipitation fall on the U.S. every day. People use only about six percent of it.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/ products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

-- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no

-- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condi-

-- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.
