Prosecutors contend McVeigh dropped truck key found in alley

WASHINGTON (AP) - Clinton administration and congressional negotiators say they are near to resolving remaining differences over the budget-balancing deal they announced nearly two weeks ago.

Top lawmakers say they hope House and Senate committees could start writing outlines of the pact within a day.

Bargainers emerged in a buoyant mood from six hours of private talks at the Capitol on Tuesday, saying an end may be in sight to their disputes over budget details. Many of the remaining disagreements would be settled by President Clinton, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., and House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., they said.

"I think the remaining issues are not insurmountable," Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said. "I look forward to resolving them tomorrow with our leadership."

"It was a rough and tough but positive meeting where we really did move closer," White House economic adviser Gene Sperling said. "We moved much, much closer."

Domenici said his panel could begin its work on Thursday. In evidence of progress made, Sen. Frank Lautenberg of New Jersey, ranking Democrat on that committee, said he now believed a bipartisan measure could be written - a turnaround from last week, when he said no such agreement seemed evident.

Things were testier in the House, where Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., has yet to endorse the emerging deal. House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio, said he wants his panel to meet Thursday, but Democrats said they might try to force a session today.

On May 2, the two sides announced the outlines of their agreement to balance the budget by 2002 by trimming Medicare and other domestic programs, while cutting taxes by about $135 billion. That would be the first balanced budget since 1969 and first major tax cut since 1981.

Included were vague commitments toward each parties' priorities: trimming the capital gains and estate taxes like the GOP wants, and boosting money for children's health care and other Clinton social initiatives.

Since then, the White House and Republicans have been sorting through the details of what precisely they agreed to. They also have struggled over how to assure that those goals will emerge from the tortuous, unpredictable congressional budget process during which committee chairmen and other legislators jealously guard their power to make decisions.

To solve this, White House budget director Franklin Raines said the two sides were working towards a 30-page document that would flesh out some detail, such as the funds that the president's chief domestic priorities would receive.

"You'll know how that's to be protected, and how much" money they should get, he said.

DENVER (AP) - Prosecutors sought to retrace Timothy McVeigh's steps before the Oklahoma City bombing by introducing a blurry videotape of a truck they said picked him up after he stashed his getaway car.

They also introduced into evidence Tuesday a key to the Ryder truck they contend held the bomb that ripped apart the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

Prosecutors contend that McVeigh ran from the building on April 19, 1995, dropping the key to the truck. FBI agents later found the key in an alley a block from the building.

Michael Fortier, McVeigh's former Army buddy and the prosecution's star witness, testified that McVeigh had cased the federal building and decided to park his car in the alley because he wanted to be shielded from the blast.

Locksmith Charles Edwards testified that he built locks for the car ignition and door based on the Ryder truck's specifications. Edwards said he later tried the key in the lock he built, and it worked.

Edwards was expected to continue his testimony today.

Wrapping up five hours of testimony over two days, Fortier repeatedly rejected defense suggestions that he made up the getaway-car testimony after seeing news reports about McVeigh possibly leaving a car near the site of the blast.

On redirect, prosecutor Joseph Hartzler asked Fortier: "Did you know... the FBI had found the key to the Ryder truck in that alley?"

"I didn't know that," Fortier said. "This is the first I've heard."

The Ryder truck, which a witness said McVeigh rented two days before the bombing, was linked to the blast through the vehicle identification number on a mangled axle.

Jurors saw blurry security camera footage allegedly showing co-defendant Terry Nichols driving by the area in his covered pickup truck on April 16 - three days before the explosion.

Prosecutors contend Nichols was there to pick up McVeigh after he parked his getaway car.

FBI photo expert William J. Stokes testified that footage from a camera at an apartment complex a block from the federal building showed a 1984 GMC pickup with a camper shell traveling past the building at 8:17 p.m. Nichols had the same kind of truck and camper shell at that time.

Jurors squinted as they tried to see the blurry images and Stokes admitted he couldn't tell who was in the truck.

Hats off to the academic and scholarship winners at Tuesday night's Senior Awards Assembly! Rob Reinauer and Kari Barrett were announced as valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, and a host of scholarships were presented. The list of grads with grade point averages above 90 was outstanding!

And, congratulations to all the Hereford High athletes on their awards Monday night! It was a great treat to see the Lady Whiteface state volleyball champions receive the ceremonial "Keys to the City" from Mayor Bob Josseland.

As the first HHS team to claim a state title, they are very deserving. The mayor came up with a gem when he said, "The key doesn't fit a thing, except it opens the hearts of the citizens of Hereford."

Hats off to the citizens of Hereford for making the Celebrity Auction such a success Saturday night. The event raised $46,000 for the fund raiser sponsored by Deaf Smith County Health Care Foundation, and it will be money well spent to retain quality care in this county!

National Hospital Week is being observed here through Saturday, and Hereford Regional Medical Center is sponsoring some activities during the celebration.

A free blood pressure screening will be held in the hospital lobby Thursday from 10 a.m. to noon. And the hospital will be offering blood pressure and glucose screenings at the Senior Citizen Center Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon.

We salute all our health care professionals in the community! National Nurses Week ended Monday, and National Nursing Home Week is being observed this week.

We couldn't pass up a photo in the Snyder paper Sunday in connection with Mother's Day - it was a picture of Deshonna Taylor with her quintuplets. We had a note about the quint when they were born, because we became friends with the Taylors when dad Brent worked at the Littlefield newspaper.

Brent, former sports editor at the Snyder Daily news, stays home with the quint and their big brother, Josh. His wife is an RN and wanted to continue her work, so he refers to himself as "Mr. Mom."

Snyder Publisher Roy McQueen claims Brent was in the city park with the clan recently, soaking up the sunny, spring day.

The quint became a screaming quintet. The dad began to mutter, "Easy now. Just keep calm. It's all right. Just relax. It's gonna be okay."

A passerby was impressed. "You certainly know how to talk quietly and gently to children who are upset," Brent replied, "I wasn't talking to them; I was talking to myself!"

Special delivery

Deaf Smith County employee Dean Hacker, Charles Britten, postmaster, and postmen Dwayne Davison and Leon Trevino loaded the last cart of food bound for the Hereford Pantry Tuesday as part of the "Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive," held annually by the National Association of Letter Carriers and the U.S.

Postal Service. Local postmen began collecting non-perishable food items left by customers on each route late last week and netted 1,816 pounds of food by the drive's conclusion. The food will be delivered to local families through the Hereford Pantry, a church-sponsored food bank.

House amends tobacco legislation

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas House has given preliminary approval to a bill requiring tobacco companies to tell the state exactly what's in their products, but only after approving an amendment that allows the companies to protect trade secrets.

Critics of the amendment said it would gut the bill by allowing tobacco companies to continue concealing information from the public.

Supporters of the amendment argued that no company should be required to divulge information that could be considered a trade secret.

"There's no other business that we require to divulge their trade secrets," said Rep. Warren Chisum, R-Pampa, author of the amendment that was approved on a vote of 65-63 Tuesday.

Rep. John Hirschi, D-Wichita Falls, who sponsored the bill, fought the amendment's passage.

"We're gutting what we're trying to do with this bill," Hirschi said. "This amendment is a Trojan horse to give the tobacco companies the ability to continue lying to the American public."

"It's unfathomable to me that we are protecting a product that kills more than 400,000 people a year."

Under the bill, disclosure would be required of all added ingredients by brand, including flavors, fragrances, herbs and colors, in descending order according to the amounts included. It wouldn't require the disclosure of the amounts of each additive and would not apply to cigars.

The Health Department would maintain the list and release it publicly.

Hirschi says cigarettes and other tobacco products have hundreds of ingredients, including - in some cases - one additive also found in rat poison.

He said Texans deserve to know what they're getting in addition to natural tobacco.

Clausen Ely, a Washington, D.C.,

attorney for the Tobacco Institute, has said Hirschi's bill and a similar measure passed in Massachusetts treat tobacco products differently than other consumer products and violate federal law.

The bill, approved on a voice vote, still faces a final House vote before going to the Senate for consideration.

In a related development, a bill that would prohibit minors from using tobacco was approved by the House State Affairs Committee.

The vote sends the bill to the full House for consideration.

Rep. Debra Danburg, D-Houston, had indicated she would attempt to amend the bill to remove a proposal placing fees on outdoor advertising of tobacco products.

The fees - 10 percent of the gross purchase price of the outdoor advertising - would help pay for an anti-tobacco education program for children, showing the ill effects of smoking.

Without the fees, the state's ability to enforce the bill would be gone, supporters of the bill say.

Ms. Danburg, however, didn't offer the amendment before the committee voted.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, the measure's sponsor, said he expected the tobacco industry to make a push to have the amendment attached to the bill when it hits the House floor, likely next week.

"Big tobacco is spending too much money to be quiet from here on out," Berlanga said. "We'll hear from them again. They'll make some runs at us."

The bill, as passed by the House committee, lowers a Senate-approved $160 fee for a two-year permit to sell tobacco. The new fee would be $125 until 1999, and then would be increased to $180.

The fees would be used for programs that educate children on the ill-effects of smoking.

The measure, if passed by the House and signed by the governor, would give Texas one of the toughest anti-smoking laws for minors in the country. Currently, the state prohibits minors from smoking, but has no criminal penalties.

The ingredients bill is HB119. The minor tobacco bill is SB55.

HRSEA recognizes two members for outstanding accomplishments

Special presentations were made to two members during the recent meeting of the Hereford Retired School Employees Association held at the Senior Center.

A certificate was presented to Margaret Bell for being named outstanding retired teacher for District XVI and a certificate was presented to Leona Schilling for being the volunteer with the most hours of volunteer work.

Bell will represent District XVI in the state contest for most outstanding retired teacher.

Schilling not only volunteers for HRSEA, but also for St. Anthony's Church and School, Hereford Senior Citizens and Crown of Texas Hospice.

Louise Witkowski, membership chairperson, stressed the importance of recruiting members for HRSEA since retired teachers association is the only group able to lobby the Texas Legislature for improved benefits.

There are five teachers and employees retiring from Hereford Independent School District this year. The members of HRSEA voted to present one with one years free membership is HRSEA. The name drawn was Betty Bartels.

June Owens was the winner in the "Share the Pot" activity.

Vel Simpson, a Beauty Control consultant, presented the program on skin care for men and women.

Simpson said a person is never too young to start caring for their skin and never too old to start.

She stressed that the skin needs our help as it replaces itself once a month. People should have a balanced diet, plenty of exercise, lots of fresh air and plenty of water.

Following the meeting, Schilling led the group in a game time. Rita Burgess was the winner in the Bunko game.

Brisendine gets scholarship

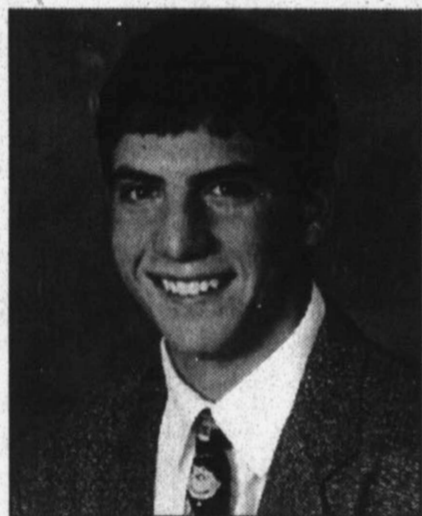

Brian Brisendine, a student at Brownfield High School and son of former Hereford residents Lynn and Linda Brisendine, was selected as a 1997 Panhandle Press Association scholarship winner.

Brisendine was on the honor roll at Brownfield High, was active in band, golf and on the yearbook staff.

He was named most outstanding male band member at the Band Banquet recently.

Ann Landers

Letter left on computer by son was probably not a 'mistake'

Dear Ann Landers: A few months ago, I purchased a used computer from my son and have learned to use it. My son and I have not always had the best of relationships, but things had been peaceful recently.

Several days ago, I explored a file in the computer that I had not seen before. I was disturbed to find a five-page letter addressed to me in which my son went into a tirade about how I had mistreated him all of his life. There were pages of comparisons between the exemplary life he has lived and the failure his brother has been. He expressed bitter resentment that I have not disowned and publicly denounced his brother.

His mother and I have helped both our sons financially, but according to this letter, we have not helped him enough. He speaks with contempt about a recent gift because it was not as much as he expected.

I was hurt by this letter, and my first inclination was to confront him. After thinking about it awhile, I decided to simply delete the letter from the computer and let sleeping dogs lie. I figured that even though he had written the letter, he didn't send it.

Now I am wondering if I did the right thing. Should I let him know I found the letter and was hurt by it, or should I keep quiet? -- Sad Dad in D.C.

Dear Dad: While I do not go along with everything Sigmund Freud said, I do agree with him that there are no "mistakes." While your son may not have consciously left that letter on the computer, he wanted you to see it.

Instead of feeling "hurt," take this opportunity to talk to your son about his feelings of sibling rivalry and his notion that he is somehow entitled to more than you have given him.

This young man sounds extremely angry, and it may well be that his anger is coming from a place that has nothing to do with you. I hope the two of you can work it out.

Dear Ann Landers: When I was 15, I was drinking and smoking pot. When that didn't get me high enough, I went on to bigger and better drugs. By age 25, I was using methamphetamines and anything else I could get my hands on. It didn't take long before the dope took control of my life and I lost my wife, three children, my home, my job, car, everything. I was in and out of jail, became paranoid, stopped eating and sleeping and heard my name coming out of the walls. I overdosed several times, hoping I would die, figuring that hell would be a lot better than the life I was leading.

Two years ago, I called my uncle who lived in another state and told him about my messed-up life. He was working on his own recovery and wanted to help me. Most importantly, he got me into both Narcotics Anonymous and Alcoholics Anonymous. I went to six meetings a week and learned how to be honest, to love and to be loved.

Today, I'm 30 years old and have been clean and sober for 20 months. I have bad days, but I know they will pass. The rush I get now comes from sharing my recovery with others and realizing how blessed I am. I even got my three children back. Please tell people my story. They need to know it can be done. If I can do it, they can, too. -- Nebraska Miracle

Dear Nebraska: You told them, and in a way I never could. Thank you on behalf of all the people you helped today. Testimony such as yours is powerful.

Gem of the Day: Many people complain that the mail delivery is slow and cuss out the Postal Service, but when was the last time your gas, electric or phone bill was late?

Sonics top Rockets, stay alive in playoffs

HOUSTON (AP) - The Seattle SuperSonics found a solution to the Houston Rockets' sharpshooters just in time to stay alive in the NBA playoffs.

Hersey Hawkins had 23 points, including four 3-pointers, and Gary Payton did a defensive job on Matt Maloney to lead the Sonics to a 100-94 victory Tuesday night.

The Rockets still lead the series 3-2 and could end it in Seattle on Thursday night, but the SuperSonics feel good about returning home for Game 6.

"We did what we should have done at home," forward Terry

Cummings said. "It was a gut-check. We did a good job defensively and rebounding. For the first time this series, we concentrated on getting Hersey the ball and making Maloney work."

"We don't think he works hard. He just runs around and shoots."

Until Tuesday night, Maloney and Mario Elie hitting effectively from 3-point range was enough for the Rockets to take a 3-1 lead. But they went cold on 3-pointers Tuesday night as Maloney was 0-for-6 and Elie was 0-for-5.

"My intentions were just to make him (Maloney) drive the basketball,"

Payton said. "He rushed a lot of shots and then he didn't take any more. I was going to let him know that he wasn't going to get wide open looks this time."

Maloney said his shots just weren't falling.

"He did a good job, but they didn't do anything different," Maloney said. "Overall, they came out with a lot of energy. We just didn't do what we had to do. I hit those shots before."

Payton scored 21 points and Shawn Kemp added 20 for the Sonics, who are seeking to become the sixth team in NBA history to successfully come back from a 3-1 deficit.

If Houston wins Game 6, the Western Conference finals will begin Saturday at Utah.

"When you're up 3-1, you ought to finish them off," Charles Barkley said. "But they came out like they were 3-1 trying to finish us off. Now, even if we win up there, we have to go straight to Salt Lake City. That's the worst part of it."

Seattle outshot Houston 48 percent to 39 percent and withstood a 31-point, 16-rebound performance by Hakeem Olajuwon and a 26-point effort from Clyde Drexler.

"You can't be more proud of the effort," Karl said. "We went to a very aggressive mode. We're reaching that point in the series where energy is sometimes hard to find. We reached in and found it."

The Rockets missed their first 10 3-point attempts, then shot 4-of-5 in the second quarter to get back in the game. It wasn't enough.

"Our offense just wasn't smart," Barkley said. "You've got to use your brains. That's not just a hat rack.

We played terrible offensively. We knew about their little traps but tonight for some reason, we didn't handle it."

Seattle led 57-52 at halftime, and Hawkins had five points in a 14-4 spurt in the third quarter that gave Seattle a 76-62 lead with 4:39 left in the period. Houston was cold again in the third quarter, missing its first six 3-point shots.

When the Rockets tried to rally in the final four minutes of the game, Seattle answered each of their baskets with one of its own.

Bulls in finals as Rodman sparks victory over Hawks

CHICAGO (AP) - It was Dennis Rodman unleashed.

Free most of the game from the referees' watchful eye and punishing whistle, the Chicago Bulls' flamboyant forward sparked the defending NBA champions into the Eastern Conference finals.

Rodman rebounded as usual, he characteristically bumped and jostled, he even blocked a shot by 7-foot-2 Dikembe Mutombo. And surprisingly, he made four shots from the perimeter, two 3-pointers, as the Bulls beat the Atlanta Hawks 107-92.

Shackled by fouls and technicals for most of the series, especially the previous two games, Rodman still jawed with officials over perceived slights, claiming as he always does that he is being singled out.

And finally, almost inevitably, he got his two technical fouls after a skirmish with Mutombo and was ejected with 2:44 to play.

"We knew that Dennis was going to have to be bigger than his talents. He's going to have to accept the first blow and play," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said.

"He played very intense without the urge that retaliates and gets him in trouble."

The technicals were his 10th and 11th, but by the time they came the outcome had been decided.

"He's sick. He's sick. He was a decent player and now he's caught up in all this stuff," Mutombo, who didn't score in the fourth quarter as Chicago wrapped up the series 4-1.

Chicago will now play the Knicks or Heat in the conference finals.

"The Bulls can win as long as they can control Dennis Rodman. If they don't control him he will hurt them," Mutombo said. "The guy is just not normal."

After averaging 17 minutes, one point and four rebounds in the first four games of the series, Rodman finished with 12 points and nine rebounds in 33 minutes.

"Tonight he tried to play through everything and gave us what we needed to win this game," said Chicago's Scottie Pippen, who had harshly criticized Rodman after the Bulls lost Game 2. "We've told him he needs to look to score."

Michael Jordan led the Bulls with 24 points, Pippen and Steve Kerr had 15 points each and Brian Williams 12 points and 10 rebounds.

"Dennis brought a lot of energy to the game," Jordan said, "and he shot 3-pointers better than me and Scottie."

Christian Laettner's 23 led the Hawks. Mookie Blaylock, whose shooting tailed off dramatically in the final three games, scored 20 for Atlanta.

Jordan, looking ahead to the next round, said he welcomes what promises to be another physical and grueling series against the Knicks, who were one of two teams to beat the Bulls at the United Center during the regular season.

It is Chicago's seventh trip to the conference finals in the last nine years.

"We feel confident going against the Knicks. We feel we can play better than the last time we played here," Jordan said.

"It may have to go to a seven-game series, but we feel confident we can win. We're leaning toward gearing up for New York until Miami proves us wrong."

The Knicks lead the Heat 3-1. Atlanta, like Washington in the first round, played the Bulls tough, especially in the first two games. The Hawks blew a 16-point lead in the opener before losing and then won Game 2.

But Chicago took control with a sweep last weekend at the Omni. "No one gave us a chance to be here," coach Lenny Wilkens said. "We got eight new people this year. That's a lot in this league. We have a lot of room for growth."

Bonilla's slam leads Marlins past Braves

By The Associated Press
Bobby Bonilla's first homer of the season was a big one.

Bonilla's grand slam highlighted a seven-run fourth inning that gave the Florida Marlins an 11-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves on Tuesday night.

"I was feeling no pressure at all," Bonilla said of his homer drought, which covered 49 games dating to last Sept. 15, when he was with the Baltimore Orioles.

Bonilla's homer came off Paul Byrd, who relieved starter Terrell Wade (1-3) with one out in the fourth and runners on first and second.

The Marlins, who pulled within four games of the first-place Braves in the NL East, got a scare when star outfielder Gary Sheffield injured his left thumb diving for a sinking liner in the sixth inning. But it turned out to be a mild sprain, and Sheffield should be back in a few days.

Rookie Tony Saunders (2-1) beat the Braves for the second time in a week, allowing only five hits and three runs in seven innings.

Wade, pitching with only three days rest in place of ailing Tom Glavine (sore hand), gave up five runs on six hits, including Sheffield's two-run homer in the third.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Philadelphia 3, St. Louis 2; Montreal 7, San Diego 3; San Francisco 4, Cincinnati 1; New York 4, Houston 3; and Chicago 2, Los Angeles 1.

Mets 4, Astros 3

At New York, Butch Huskey hit a tie-breaking homer in the seventh and starting pitcher Armando Reynoso hit his third career homer as the Mets won their fourth straight. Huskey, who has four homers in his last six games, broke a 3-3 tie with a solo shot off Russ Springer (1-1).

Sean Berry homered for the Astros, who have dropped three straight and six of their last eight. Greg McMichael (3-2) got the win, and John Franco worked the ninth for his 11th consecutive save.

Expos 7, Padres 3

At Montreal, Pedro Martinez improved to 6-0 with his second complete of the season. Martinez, who entered with a major-league leading 0.50 ERA, allowed three runs - two earned - and 11 hits. Henry Rodriguez hit a three-run homer and Rondell White went 3-for-4 with three RBIs as Montreal won for the fourth time in six games. Rodriguez homered off Fernando Valenzuela (1-5) in the Expos' four-run first.

Phillies 3, Cardinals 2
At Philadelphia, Scott Rolen's two-run triple highlighted a three-run eighth for the Phillies. St. Louis starter Andy Benes blanked the Phils for seven innings before the Cardinals bullpen blew it. Philadelphia starter Garrett Stephenson allowed just two hits and struck out 12 in seven innings of his first major-league start.

The 25-year-old right-hander fanned the first five batters. Jerry Spradlin (1-1) pitched the eighth for the win and Ricky Bottalico got three outs for his eighth save.

Cubs 2, Dodgers 1

At Chicago, Sammy Sosa hit a two-run homer with two outs in the eighth inning for the Cubs. Mark Grace walked against Pedro Astacio (3-1) and Sosa followed with a homer over the center-field wall to put Chicago up 2-1. Turk Wendell (1-2) picked up the win with one scoreless inning. Mel Rojas got his fourth save despite loading the bases in the ninth.

Giants 4, Reds 1
At Cincinnati, Jeff Kent hit his second grand slam of the season, and Shawn Estes pitched 7 1-3 strong innings for San Francisco. Kent hit his eighth homer of the year as the Giants won their third straight to stay atop the NL West. Estes (5-2) allowed one run on five hits, and also erased two runners with pickoff throws. Rod Beck pitched the ninth for his 13th save in 14 opportunities.

Martinez hits 15th homer as Yanks win; Indians scalp Rangers, 7-3

By TOM WITHERS
AP Sports Writer

Standing apart from the names of all the great sluggers in the New York Yankees' glorious history are these three: Babe, Mickey and Tino.

Tino? Yep, Tino Martinez moved into the company of Babe Ruth and Mickey Mantle on Tuesday night by hitting his 15th homer of the season in New York's 11-2 win at Minnesota.

Martinez's two-run shot in the Yankees' seven-run sixth inning gave him 15 homers in the club's first 40 games, joining Ruth, who did it four times, and Mantle, who did it in his 1956 Triple Crown season.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Cleveland 7, Texas 3; Baltimore 7, Oakland 3; Seattle 2, Milwaukee 1; Kansas City 9, Boston 0; Detroit 4, Toronto 0; and Anaheim 8, Chicago 7.

Martinez hit his homer off reliever Kevin Jarvis, giving him 45 RBIs and moving him two ahead of Seattle's Ken Griffey Jr. for the major league lead.

The defending World Series champions have won 17 of their last 23, while the Twins lost for the 16th time in 20 games.

David Cone (5-2) allowed a season-high 10 hits in seven innings, striking out six and walking one as he won his fifth straight start for the first time in three years.

Indians 7, Rangers 3
At Arlington, Texas, Matt Williams hit a tie-breaking homer in the sixth as Cleveland stopped a three-game losing skid.

Williams' 10th homer of the season off Darren Oliver (1-4) allowed the Indians to complete a comeback after trailing 3-0.

Tony Fernandez went 3-for-5 with an RBI for Cleveland, which earlier Tuesday announced manager Mike Hargrove was given a two-year contract extension.

Juan Gonzalez homered for Texas, which had its winning streak halted at four games.

Orioles 7, Athletics 3
At Oakland, Calif., B.J. Surhoff had a two-run homer and a two-run double, giving him 11 RBIs in his last three games.

Surhoff, who bunted for a single in the second, had a bases-loaded double in the third and hit his fourth homer of the season in the fifth. He went 3-for-4 and has two or more hits in eight of his last 13 games.

Mike Mussina (5-1) allowed three runs on six hits in six innings as Baltimore improved to 25-11, the best record in the AL.

Mariners 2, Brewers 1
At Milwaukee, Jay Buhner's two-run, ninth-inning single off Mike Fetters (1-1) lifted Seattle. Norm

Charlton pitched a perfect ninth for his ninth save.

Buhner's hit was just the Mariners' third and it made a winner of Randy Johnson (5-1), who gave up six hits in eight innings.

The Mariners were 0-13 when trailing entering the ninth inning this season, but they ended Milwaukee's five-game winning streak.

Royals 9, Red Sox 0

At Kansas City, Mo., Tim Lincecum retired the first 15 batters and finished with a two-hitter for Kansas City.

Boston has lost five straight and nine of its last 10.

Belcher (5-3) lowered his ERA to an AL-best 1.72, stretched his scoreless inning streak to 19, and faced only three batters over the minimum.

Red Sox starter Aaron Sele (4-2) lasted only 1 2-3 innings, giving up seven runs on eight hits.

Tigers 4, Blue Jays 0

At Detroit, Felipe Lira (2-2) pitched a four-hitter and Bob Hamelin homered twice as Detroit won its third straight.

Lira won his second straight game after losing his previous nine decisions. Hamelin, recalled from Triple-A Toledo on May 7, homered to lead off the second and seventh innings. His first-inning shot was Hamelin's first homer since Sept. 10 of last season.

Toronto also lost starter Juan Guzman, who left without retiring a batter in the first inning with a sore right shoulder.

Angels 8, White Sox 7

At Anaheim, Calif., the Angels, who scored a club-record 13 runs in one inning Monday night, scored seven in the third inning.

The first nine Anaheim batters reached base during the rally, which turned a 3-0 deficit into a 7-3 lead against James Baldwin (1-5).

Gary DiSarcina drove in two runs and tied a club record with three doubles against Baldwin.

Mark Langston (2-2), who missed his previous two turns in the rotation because of inflammation in his elbow, got the victory.

Dunleavy named new coach for Trail Blazers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - For the first time in five years, Mike Dunleavy is just a coach again.

Speaking fondly of his two winning seasons with the Los Angeles Lakers, and defending his abilities in the wake of his failed half-decade trying to resurrect the Milwaukee Bucks, Dunleavy has become the ninth head coach of the Portland Trail Blazers.

He left little doubt he expects to be the Dunleavy who directed the Lakers to a 101-63 record and a trip to the NBA Finals, and not the one who, in the dual role of coach and general manager, had a 107-221 record in four seasons in Milwaukee. "I feel the same way about this job coming in as I did about the Laker job," he said Tuesday when he was introduced as coach. "I felt like there was a tremendous amount of talent there, and over the next couple of years, you'd have a chance to compete for a championship."

He looks forward to trying to build a rapport with a young, talented and temperamental team.

"I did that in L.A. a lot more than I did it in Milwaukee," he said. "Doing both jobs, you really didn't have time to stay around after practice. I like having that interaction to talk the game, to teach the game. I think it creates a better bond and a feeling of camaraderie throughout the group."

DPS troopers could stop dangerous trucks

New bill passed by House on Tuesday, headed to Governor George Bush's office

By JUAN B. ELIZONDO Jr.
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Fewer overweight and dangerous trucks would be on the road under a bill headed to Gov. George W. Bush's office, a sponsor says.

The bill would allow Department of Public Safety troopers to stop trucks from continuing their routes if their trucks are overweight, unsafe or if the driver doesn't have the proper paperwork or insurance. It quietly rolled through the Legislature and was finally passed by the House on Tuesday.

Attorney General Dan Morales more than a year ago raised concerns about what he called dangerous Mexican trucks that have gotten more access to Texas roads.

In December 1995, a portion of the North American Free Trade Agreement opened up more Texas roads to Mexican trucks. Before that, they were allowed only in parts of the Rio Grande Valley.

Morales said Mexican trucks are older and not as safe as American trucks and face less restrictive weight limits in Mexico. He also said Mexican trucks don't have the same training, licensing and insurance requirements as Texas and American trucks.

Rep. Joe Pickett, D-El Paso, said the bill will make Texas roads safer. He said current law allows DPS troopers to stop trucks and cite them for being overweight or for not following other Texas laws. But the trucks keep going, he added.

"This allows DPS to stop the vehicle," Pickett said.

The vehicles would remain stopped, either at their entry point into Texas or on the road, until the problem was resolved.

According to the DPS, 17,490 trucks were stopped last year for weight violations. The number of insurance violations and other safety violations were not immediately available.

The bill also would allow the department to take action against manufacturers and others overloading the trucks.

"If a driver says he's not taking an overweight truck, the person loading it can say OK, there are other people who will," Pickett said. "This lets (DPS) go after the person loading the truck."

The bill, approved on a 143-0 vote, was listed on the House's "local and consent" calendar. That includes bills that face little or no opposition.

"I was surprised to get it on local and consent," Pickett said. "This makes a big change."

Messages left at Morales' office Tuesday for comment were not immediately returned.

Just before Mexican trucks gained unlimited access to Texas roads, Morales and U.S. Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin agreed to allow state and local law enforcement officials more access to federal inspections and federal information.

Some 5,000 trucks cross into Texas from Mexico each day. About 150 of them are inspected by Texas law enforcement personnel. Experts predict the truck traffic will be three or four times greater by 2000.

The dangerous truck bill is SB1828.

CBS wins ratings week narrowly

NEW YORK (AP) - The Godfather gave Captain Nemo a soaking, and helped CBS to a narrow prime-time ratings win last week.

CBS boasted only four shows in the Top 20, but they included the initial installment of its "Mario Puzo: The Last Don" miniseries, which finished third for the week, according to Nielsen Media Research figures released Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the rival kickoff of ABC's "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" miniseries was submerged at 53rd place, absorbing less than half "The Last Don's" audience.

For this "sweeps" week of May 5-11, CBS had a 10.1 rating and 17 percent share, with season-to-date champ NBC a beat behind with a 10.0 rating and 17 share. ABC was a dismal third with an 8.3 rating and 14 share, Nielsen said.

One bright spot for ABC: "Ellen," in its first post-"outing" episode, ranked a strong 10th place.

Fox had a 7.1 rating and 12 share for its 15-1/2-hour prime-time lineup.

Among the emerging networks, UPN had a 3.0 rating and a 5 share, while the WB had a 2.4 rating and a 4 share.

This was the second full week of the May "sweeps" period, when Nielsen canvasses local markets for ratings used to set advertising rates.

A rating point represents 970,000 households, or 1 percent of the nation's estimated 97 million TV homes. The share is the percentage of televisions in use that are tuned to a show during a specified time period.

In the evening news race, "The NBC Nightly News" regained its customary first-place status, having now won 19 of the past 20 weeks.

Swimsuit nightmare may be thing of past

NEW YORK (AP) - Ughh - swimsuit shopping. It's an annual nightmare for women who struggle to find one that fits right.

But the days of squeezing your body into teeny bikinis and suits with high-cut legs and plunging necklines may be over. Retailers nationwide have expanded their swimwear departments to include more body-slimmerizing styles.

In trendy colors and cuts, this new swimwear lets a woman minimize her bust, tuck in that tummy or hide those hips without wearing a dumpty suit that looks like a hand-me-down from grandma.

"Swimwear is the most revealing piece of apparel that we wear," said Kim Ross, merchandiser of women's swimwear at cataloger Lands' End. "But there now are fashionable suits out there that provide control and still allow us to look cute on the beach."

Women have long complained of the painful experience of finding a flattering swimsuit. For years, skimpy suits that barely covered the average woman filled stores and catalogs, and those suits with more coverage didn't follow fashion trends.

Despite the frustration, women kept buying swimsuits. Swimwear sales rose over 22 percent to $1.4 billion from 1994 to 1996, according to The NPD Group, a Port Washington, N.Y., market research firm.

"When it's hot, you want a bathing suit," said Jennifer Walters, while combing through the swimwear racks at Bloomingdale's in New York. "But that doesn't mean you love putting one on."

This year, however, more retail space has been dedicated to swimwear that promises to enhance a woman's body. Some suits are made with tight-fitting Lycra that holds in everything, while others use special stitching and fabric designs to hide the stomach, bust and rear.

Many suits also include tags that show shoppers how a specific style should look and fit on the body. These tags also describe the suit's special features, like tummy control.

Some stores, like Macy's and Bloomingdale's, have computer kiosks that help a shopper choose a suit to flatter her body contour. Manufacturers also offer similar services over the Internet.

"Women do age and they still want to wear bathing suits," said Debbie Coryell, spokeswoman at Portland, Ore.-based Jantzen Inc. "Our goal is to make the shopping experience less frustrating."

At Target discount stores, shoppers demand suits that are fashionable, yet comfortable.

Store racks this spring include a wide selection of one-piece slenderizing suits as well as brightly-colored mix-and-match separates that allow shoppers to pick what fits them on the top and bottom.

"We start off with a certain customer in mind and we know that she is not looking for the teeny-weeny bikini," said Robyn Waters, Target's director of trend merchandise.

While women cheer the arrival of body-shaping swimwear, they also are paying more to wear it. Lands' End charges $72 for its slender suit, while department store prices top $80 for some brands, like the Miracle Suit and Gottex.

That doesn't seem to faze some shoppers.

"I'll pay anything if I like how I look in the mirror," said Walters. "I mean ANYTHING if I look good."

Art for preschoolers

When rainy weather keeps your preschoolers housebound all day, don't panic! Here are some zany art activities to have up your sleeve. The kids will have fun expressing their creativity.

Edible Art: For a morning snack, paint slices of bread, toast in a toaster, admire and eat! Here's how: Pour a tablespoon of milk in each cup of a muffin tin. With adult assistance, add a few drops of food coloring to each cup to create a bright rainbow palette. Dip a clean paintbrush into the colored milk and paint pictures, shapes or alphabet letters on slices of white or whole-wheat bread. (Day-old bread works best.) Toast and butter lightly.

Paint on Your Back, Michelangelo: Show your child photographs of the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel. (Find excellent reproductions in books at your public library.) Then let your child pretend he is a painter like Michelangelo. Gather markers or crayons and tape a sheet of art paper under the seat of a kitchen chair, then have him lie on his back under the chair and create his own masterpiece!

Removable Wall Art: Make story illustrations on bathroom tile walls and mirror with vinyl, nonadhesive stick-on shapes such as Stickees and Colorforms brands. Create scenes and tell stories about each new picture. Leave it up for several days. When you and your child return to it, continue the story, use new stick-ons and move some others. On special days, use stick-on alphabet letters and turn the bathroom mirror or surrounding tiles into a message board with "Happy Birthday" or "I love you."

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, May 14, the 134th day of 1997. There are 231 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On May 14, 1948, the independent state of Israel was proclaimed in Tel Aviv as British rule in Palestine came to an end.

On this date:
In 1643, Louis XIV became King of France at age 4 upon the death of his father, Louis XIII.

In 1787, delegates began gathering in Philadelphia for a convention to draw up the U.S. Constitution.

In 1796, English physician Edward Jenner administered the first vaccination against smallpox to an 8-year-old boy.

In 1804, the Lewis and Clark expedition to explore the Louisiana Territory left St. Louis.

In 1904, the first Olympic games to be held in the United States opened in St. Louis.

In 1942, the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps was established.

In 1955, representatives from eight Communist bloc countries, including the Soviet Union, signed the Warsaw Pact in Poland.

In 1973, the United States launched Skylab 1, its first manned space station.

In 1975, U.S. forces raided the Cambodian island of Koh Tang and recaptured the American merchant ship Mayaguez. All 40 crew members were released safely by Cambodia, but some 40 U.S. servicemen were killed in the military operation.

In 1980, President Carter inaugurated the Department of Health and Human Services.

Ten years ago: Actress Rita Hayworth died in New York at age 68. The Commerce Department reported that the U.S. trade deficit had narrowed in March to $13.6 billion.

Five years ago: Former Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev addressed members of the U.S. Congress, appealing to them to pass a bill aiding the people of the former Soviet Union. Former football player Lyle Alzado died in Portland, Ore., at age 43.

One year ago: A jury in Pontiac, Mich., acquitted Dr. Jack Kevorkian of assisted-suicide charges, his third legal victory in two years.

To Your Good Health

DOCTOR: I have a condition both annoying and embarrassing. My hands shake when I lift a coffee cup to my mouth. I also spill food when I use a fork. I must write extremely slow to make it legible. My doctor has ruled out Parkinson's disease. Please advise medication other than a beta blocker. I tried it. It did not work. — L.L.

DEAR DOCTOR: My daughter has essential tremor. I cannot find much information on it. Is it hereditary? Is there any medicine for it? — V.M.

ANSWER: Both writers inquire about the same condition, essential tremor. It is a shakiness of the hands, most noticeable when you make a purposeful hand movement, such as drinking a cup of coffee or writing.

Two things are peculiar about essential tremor: It worsens under emotional stress and alcohol abolishes it for a short time, although alcohol has no place in its treatment.

Essential tremor does run in families.

On the bright side, it does not indicate any serious or progressive nervous system disorder. On the dark side, the tremor can be so pronounced that some patients lead a hermit's existence to avoid public embarrassment.

The beta blocking drugs such as propranolol quiet the tremor for most patients, although L.L. had no luck with them.

There are other drugs effective for tremor control. Primidone is one. Have you tried that, L.L.?

Both of you can find a wealth of information by writing the International Tremor Foundation, 833 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, IL 60610.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have bubbles in the urine. I once read something about it, but I can't remember what it was. Please tell me if I have to worry about it. — H.P.

ANSWER: Bubbles in the toilet water after urinating generally indicate no serious problems.

On rare occasions, the bubbles result from protein in the urine. Urinary protein can be a sign of serious kidney disease.

On even rarer occasions, they are due to infection of a fistula, a tunnel formed between the intestinal tract and the bladder.

If you are having no symptoms, you need not rush to the doctor. But on your next visit, mention the bubbling to the doctor. A simple urine test can put the significance of the bubbles to rest.

Readers with questions about the urinary tract can order my report on the subject by writing to: Dr. Donohue — No. 48, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Just what is a myocardial infarction? I feel silly and ignorant to ask such a question. But a relative recently died. I was told the cause of death was a myocardial infarction. I was not sure what that meant, but I was too flustered to ask. — K.K.

ANSWER: "Myocardial infarction" is the official medical term for a heart attack. It's an expression couched in Latin words — "myocardium," for heart muscle; and "infarctus," for tissue death due to lack of blood supply.

A myocardial infarction comes about when blood flow through heart arteries is blocked by a buildup of plaque on the artery wall. Plaque is a slurry of cholesterol, fats and blood platelets that acts as a dam to blood flow.

Heart attacks are the leading cause of death. It's gratifying to know that the number of heart attacks is actually decreasing. The public has become more conscious of cholesterol and fat and is exercising more than it did in the past. Also, the number of cigarette smokers has plummeted. Nicotine is a huge factor in heart-attack occurrence.

Heart-attack pain is described as a severe crushing or squeezing chest pain that lasts for 30 minutes to an hour. The pain might spread from the chest to the neck, jaw or left arm.

In a small number of patients, no pain is felt. The heart attack is silent. Actually, a silent heart attack is more dangerous than one that causes pain. The person remains blissfully unaware of a serious condition. No treatment is sought. No changes are made in diet. The patient does not get to benefit from balloon angioplasty or bypass surgery.

TIP program recognizes exceptional 7th graders

TIP, the Duke University Talent Identification Program, is sponsoring a series of recognition ceremonies to honor some of the most talented seventh-graders in the United States.

Among these students are Benjamin Brock, 12, a seventh-grader at Hereford Junior High and son of Steven and Gene Brock, and Ross Nieman, 12, a seventh-grader at Shallowater and son of former Hereford residents Steve and Rhonda Nieman. Nieman is the grandson of Elmo and Kay Hall and Speedy and Lavon Nieman, all of Hereford.

The TIP program identifies bright youngsters at an early age and by recognizing their abilities, begins the process of nurturing their talents.

Students who scored as well or better than the average college-bound high school senior on either the SAT or the ACT are recognized at state ceremonies.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 --Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 --Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 --Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 --Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

No vaccine to protect against AIDS virus in sight, expert says

WASHINGTON (AP) - Medical science may never find a vaccine to protect against the AIDS virus because the infection poses unique problems that may be unsolvable, an expert says.

Although researchers have found vaccines for polio and other diseases, Dr. Robert Gallo, co-discoverer of the AIDS virus, said "nobody can say that we will (succeed) for sure" in making a vaccine against HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

Gallo, head of the Institute of Human Virology at the University of Maryland, was a member of a panel of experts at a vaccine symposium Tuesday.

"We have to say it is a serious possibility that we will never succeed with a vaccine against HIV," Gallo said. "We have to be realistic."

Others on the panel did not specifically echo his pessimism, but Dr. Anthony Fauci, head of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, said lack of precise scientific knowledge about HIV is the major stumbling block preventing development of an AIDS vaccine.

Fauci, whose agency takes the lead in AIDS research at the National Institutes of Health, said a "full court press" by scientists led to drugs that keep HIV in check once a person is infected. But making a vaccine to protect against the initial infection "has major stumbling blocks."

"There is still a lot of unknowns," he said.

Gallo said that the uncertainty about finding an HIV vaccine has led some people at the World Bank to consider controlling AIDS by treating all of the world's HIV patients with the new and expensive drugs that have been shown to successfully suppress HIV.

"I had discussions with people at the World Bank who are seriously contemplating the possibility of taking the drugs and treating everybody," said Gallo. But he said the discussion was only "exploratory" and that there are no firm plans for drug treatments on such a massive scale.

Gallo said that researchers have put out "an enormous effort" to understand HIV and how it reproduces in the body.

"It is safe to say that we know more about this virus and this disease than we know about any," he said. But Gallo said there is a list of major obstacles, with no known solutions, that may prevent a vaccine from ever being developed:

- There is no cheap, short-lived laboratory animal that can be infected with HIV for the testing of vaccines. Some monkeys get a form of the disease, but they are expensive, rare and develop the disease very slowly.

- HIV constantly changes. Often there are a variety of HIV strains within a single patient. To be effective, a vaccine would have to protect against each strain.

- The HIV virus integrates itself into the body, becoming part of the DNA in cells of the immune system. "As soon as you get infected, it starts impairing the immune system," said Gallo. "Once infection occurs, you've got it" and the immune system, which usually protects the body, is itself under attack.

- To be protective, a vaccine has to prime the immune system against a microbe. "We don't know if the immune system could be primed to do that" against HIV, said Gallo.

- Protection may require that every single virus in the body is killed, a trick that is not required of other vaccines. Gallo said, for instance, that polio vaccine merely represses the virus and "then it goes away," preventing an infection. It may take more than this to prevent an HIV infection, he said.

Dr. Gordon Douglas, president of Merck & Co. vaccine division, said his company made its "most expensive commitment we've ever made to any research program" to develop its protease inhibitor drug, one of the new, successful treatments for HIV.

Inmate Westley executed for 1984 robbery, murder

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Convicted killer Anthony Ray Westley maintained his innocence to the end, insisting while strapped to the Texas death chamber guinea he did not kill the owner of a Houston-area bait shop during a bungled robbery 13 years ago.

"I didn't shoot your husband," Westley, 36, told Eileen Hall, widow of murdered store owner Frank Hall, in the seconds before he was executed Tuesday evening. "I really didn't. I want you to believe. I didn't kill him."

Mrs. Hall stood with her daughter and two sons, watching through a window as Westley received lethal injection. Six minutes later, at 6:30 p.m., he was pronounced dead. "I don't believe what he said, not for a minute," Mrs. Hall said. "No doubt in my mind whatsoever he's the man who killed my husband. I feel it's very ironic. He killed my husband on the 13th. He's been here 13 years. Today is the 13th. I think that's fantastic. I only wish it could have been Friday the 13th."

Looking through an adjacent window in a separate room, relatives of Westley sobbed hysterically, beating on the window and the door to the death house after Westley told them he loved them.

"God be with you all," Westley said, his voice cracking, before gasping twice.

His sister-in-law, Marie Walker, fell to the floor. A brother, Ellis Williams Jr., banged on the door until prison officials allowed him to leave the death chamber prematurely. Outside, Ms. Walker continued her delirium and was joined by other Westley relatives who sobbed uncontrollably on the grass across the street from the prison while a handful of death penalty opponents who routinely stand vigil milled about.

"I would have liked to been banging on that glass like his family next door," Mrs. Hall said. "I probably would have called him a liar."

"It reminded me of how my family was when they said my dad had died," Mrs. Hall's daughter, Christena, said. "But they knew this was coming."

"I grew up without a dad because of him. It's sad he can't accept the guilt that he did this."

Westley became the second man put to death this month in Texas and the 10th this year. Another execution is set for Friday and four more are scheduled for next week.

The U.S. Supreme Court and the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals refused 11th-hour appeals from Westley, who argued an accomplice, John Henry, was the gunman who killed Hall during the $75 robbery.

Westley was one of three men who had been drinking, smoking marijuana and snorting cocaine April 13, 1984 when they walked into Eileen's Bait and Tackle Shop near Lake Houston, pulled a gun on a clerk and announced a holdup.

The clerk testified Westley, an 8th-grade dropout and ex-con, put a gun in her back and ordered her to the floor. The robbery, however, was interrupted when Hall walked in through the front door and pulled his own gun. Westley scuffled with Hall and gunfire erupted.

Hall, 38, a volunteer fireman and ambulance driver, was shot in the back and bled to death on the floor of his store.

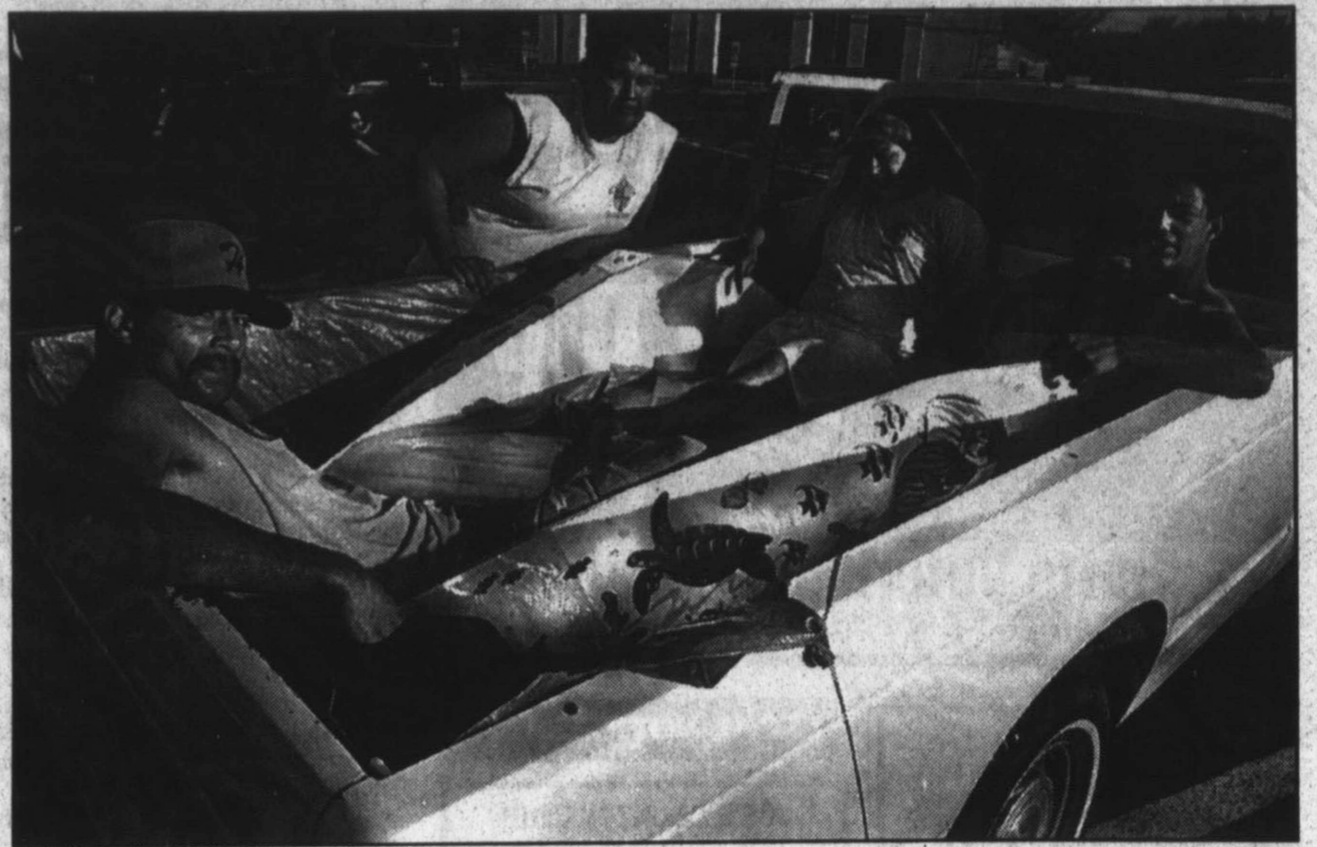

One of Westley's companions, Lee Dunbar, 27, also was shot and killed. The other, Henry, then 30, was wounded.

Westley threw Henry into their car, left him at a hospital and fled. Henry, who received a 35-year prison sentence for robbery and now is on parole, identified Westley as a partner in the shooting. Westley, who learned police were hunting for him, surrendered to authorities.

"We had eyewitness testimony identifying (Westley) as one of the robbers and the person who fired the weapon that resulted in the death of Frank Hall," John Kyles, a former Harris County assistant district attorney who prosecuted the case, said.

Westley, born in Caddo Parish, La., was paroled in 1981 after serving three years of a five-year term for burglary. He also was in trouble on death row, suffering a pair of stab wounds during a 1985 fight with another inmate. He had been held in a death row area reserved for inmates considered more troublesome than the rest.

In this week's other execution, condemned killer Clifton Belyeu was scheduled to die Friday.

Surf's up

Hereford High School students Augustine Rodriguez, Eric Cantu, Ralph Moralez and Raymond Rodriguez, left to right, combined a little ingenuity, 100 gallons of water, a plastic baby pool, tarp and a warm spring afternoon Tuesday as they cooled their feet in this traveling pickup pool they devised. More warm springtime weather is forecast through Sunday.

Prices paid to producers at fourth straight decline

WASHINGTON (AP) - Prices paid to producers fell 0.6 percent in April, the largest drop in nearly four years and the fourth straight decline.

Much of the seasonally adjusted decrease today in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index came from a 2.6 percent drop in energy costs. It was the third in a row and part of a continuing recovery from a run-up in energy costs during the last half of 1996.

Price declines also were widespread through all levels of production, from finished goods ready for the consumer to crude commodities such as ore and cotton, and included food and autos.

In advance, economists were looking for a modest 0.1 percent drop in the index. The much larger decrease was another piece of data supporting the case for Federal Reserve policy-makers to pass up the chance to raise interest rates when they meet Tuesday.

Bond prices immediately shot up after the inflation figures were released, pushing down interest rates. Yields on 30-year Treasury bonds dropped to 6.88 percent in early trading from 6.92 percent Tuesday.

"This is the best economic picture investors could hope for - strong growth, strong corporate earnings, low inflation, stable interest rates," said economist Mark Zandi of Regional Financial Associates of West Chester, Pa.

A month ago, a worrisome rise in producer prices outside the volatile food and energy sectors hammered the stock market, driving the Dow Jones average of industrial stocks down to 6,392 as investors became convinced the Fed would push interest rates up to quash any hint of inflation.

Since then, signs have emerged that economic growth is moderating enough to dampen inflationary pressures and stocks have rallied, with the Dow bobbing above 7,300 Tuesday for the first time before closing down 18.54 at 7,274.21.

Separately today, the Commerce Department said business inventories rose 0.3 percent in March while sales fell 0.3 percent. If sustained, rising inventories in the face of falling sales will act as a brake.

The April drop in producer prices, largest since August 1993, followed declines of 0.1 percent in March, 0.4 percent in February and 0.3 percent in January. They marked the first time the index declined four times in a row since May-August 1993.

Investigating health fields

The Hereford High School Clinical Rotations students have been preparing for their futures in the medical field. The students take a nursing class in school, then train at the Hereford Regional Medical Center or another local medical facility. The purpose of the class, which is taught by Martha Paetzold, is to allow the students to investigate careers in the health field.
