They walk the walk

Local cancer survivors made the first lap on the way to a state record Friday evening in the opening ceremonies of the American Cancer Society's "Relay for Life" marathon at Whiteface Stadium. The Deaf Smith County unit of ACS registered 40 teams for the 24-hour fundraising event, breaking a state record. Bobby Boyd, center, who is recovering from recent surgery, rides ahead of the pack with Jennifer Eggen, relay co-chairman. The event ended Saturday evening.

CofC sets plans for garage sale

Will promote citywide event

Don Cumpton is excited about a Citywide Garage Sale, but he needs a little help from his friends.

The retail committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will hold the Garage Sale/Sidewalk Sale/Arts & Crafts Show on July 19, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Cumpton, executive vice president of the chamber, is encouraging local residents to sign up for the July 19 extravaganza before July 7.

"We need to get everything ready. We are going to have locator maps to distribute to shoppers, and we need the addresses of all garage sales for the printer by July 7," explained Cumpton.

He also pointed out that the $10 fee to participate in the Citywide Garage Sale includes printing and advertising. "We will put up posters and advertise this event within a 60-mile radius of Hereford," said Cumpton. The City of Hereford is waiving its customary $5 fee that day.

"We're also advertising the crafts show and hope to attract local exhibitors, as well as some from all over the Panhandle," added Cumpton. There is a $25 fee for craft booths. Call Renee Huckert, Andra Schlabs, Nancy Denton or the chamber office for more information.

The locator maps will be distributed from a chamber booth located at Main and US-60 on the morning of July 19. These city maps will have the addresses of all garage sales in town, a list of merchants holding sidewalk sales, and places where craft booths are located.

When shoppers pick up the locator maps, they can also register for a chance to win $100 in Hereford Bucks, which will be given away in a drawing at the end of the day.

Cumpton said anyone who doesn't live in town and wants to have a garage sale can sign up for a booth in the parking lot of FirstBank Southwest.

"I'm excited about the project," said Cumpton. "It's been successful in other communities, and our retail committee wanted to give it a try." He thinks the event could draw a lot of garage sale junkies and shoppers to the city.

On the bottom of the advertising posters being prepared, Cumpton said there would be pictures of Hereford Aquatic Center and Moovies 6, with a line: "Take your kids swimming or to the movies, and shop 'til you drop!"

Defense hopes to save McVeigh from death by humanizing him

DENVER (AP) - As the Oklahoma City bombing trial moved toward perhaps its final week, jurors holding Timothy McVeigh's life in their hands were told that he was once a hungry little boy who grew into a soldier with a deep mistrust of his own government.

The 29-year-old Gulf War veteran was portrayed by his attorneys as smart, but socially awkward. Teachers found him reliable and serious. Classmates remembered him as a non-drinker and a practical joker. Army colleagues trusted him with their lives.

The defense hopes to keep McVeigh from the execution chamber by humanizing him. They must persuade jurors that he should instead spend his life in prison for committing the deadliest act of terrorism ever on U.S. soil: the bombing that killed 168 people.

McVeigh, attorneys told jurors, is "just like any of us." He was disturbed by his government's role in the disaster at the Branch Davidian compound near Waco, Texas.

"You will begin to see through the stereotypes," attorney Richard Burr said Friday as the defense opened its penalty case. "You will be able to see him for who he is: A person not very much unlike your brother, who could be your brother, who could be your son, who could be your grandson."

"There is also a person at the center who you'll not be able to dismiss easily as a monster or a demon."

Burr was careful not to minimize the horror of the blast, pointing out the defense didn't cross-examine any of the survivors who for 2 1/2 days testified for the prosecution how the bombing shattered their lives.

"Leave the emotion as best you can there, and let the facts simply reside with you in a calm way," he said.

McVeigh, who had stared stonily throughout most of the trial, sat up in his chair and beamed as jurors examined his old uniform and the cluster of medals on it, including the Bronze Star. He smiled as he watched former Army comrades testify on his behalf, the first of what was expected to be about two dozen defense witnesses.

McVeigh was the perfect soldier, they said, who quickly rose to sergeant and excelled as an armored-vehicle gunner. One witness remembered the sheets on McVeigh's off-base bed were decorated with the cartoon character Garfield.

While never saying McVeigh admitted to the bombing, Burr said his client had been convicted and it was time to address the forces that shaped his life.

He described how McVeigh believed America's military might was turned on civilians at the Branch Davidian compound. About 80 people died when the compound burned on April 19, 1993, exactly two years before the bombing.

McVeigh, his attorney said, turned to far-right videotapes and to publications such as Soldier of Fortune to learn what had happened.

He concluded that the government had murdered women and children.

"You will hear that the fire of Waco did keep burning in Mr. McVeigh," Burr said. "He is at the middle of this, and there is violence at both ends."

Sharp decides to run for lieutenant governor

AUSTIN (AP) - One day after Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock announced he wouldn't seek re-election, State Comptroller John Sharp stepped up to the plate.

Sharp filed formal papers Friday with the Texas Ethics Commission, a step necessary to begin his campaign.

The Democrat had been touted as a frontrunner in the bid for governor in 1998, but Sharp told his staff he'd be running for the No. 2 job after Bullock made his announcement Thursday. No reason was given for his decision not to challenge George W. Bush for the governor's job.

Sharp, who was sworn in as Texas comptroller in 1991 and has since been responsible for numerous welfare reforms, is expected to officially announce his candidacy in the next few days, spokesman Ross Ramsey said.

Republican Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry also said Thursday he is strongly considering a run to succeed Bullock. Perry and Sharp were college friends at Texas A&M in the late 1960s.

Sharp has been a state lawmaker for many years, serving as a state legislator, state senator and Railroad Commission member.

As comptroller, Sharp has overseen the beginning of the Texas Lottery and he was responsible for the introduction of the Lone Star Card, which allows welfare recipients to receive their benefits electronically.

The Lone Star Card program, which began in 1995, was introduced in an effort to cut down on food-stamp fraud. Seven other states have copied the idea and the Clinton Administration has talked of using the cards nationwide.

Returning home to practice law is dream come true for Castillo

BY JACK STEIN
Brand Editor

Returning home to practice law is like a dream come true for Hereford's newest attorney, Adrian Castillo.

The 1988 graduate of Hereford High School was given the oath of office as an attorney in the state of Texas by District Judge David Gulley.

While the return to his hometown to practice law is somewhat unique in itself, the swearing in ceremony was even more so for the young man who graduated at the head of his class 10 years ago.

New attorneys in Texas, those who have completed many years of study at the university level and have successfully passed the Bar Examination, are normally given their oaths in large groups, at the state capital, Austin.

However since Castillo was out of state completing business in Kansas, he could not participate in this summer's ceremony in Austin, thus he was allowed to be sworn in at his hometown courthouse.

"It's an overall great experience to be sworn in by a local judge," Castillo said, "and be able to learn law from people in my hometown."

The ceremony took place at 11 a.m. Thursday with friends and family looking on as Judge Gulley presided over the occasion, then offered his congratulations to the new attorney.

Castillo will be based in Hereford as the local representative and point man for Lubbock attorney David Martinez who has worked for several years handling local cases.

"I'm looking forward to working with him (Martinez)," Castillo said. "This will give me an opportunity to learn and get experience."

"The attitude of the people here is great, they have been very helpful and offer a friendliness that I didn't find anywhere else."

Castillo said he explored other employment opportunities in large cities including San Antonio "but it just wasn't what I was looking for. The judges and attorneys here are willing to accept a new attorney coming into the community."

Having a family tie with law is also nothing new for the Castillo family, the new attorney's brother, David, is jail administrator in the Deaf Smith County Jail.

After graduating from Hereford High School, Castillo attended the University of Texas at Austin, graduating in 1993 with a B.S. in physics and a B.A. in mathematics, both received with honors.

He then completed his J.D. degree with Dean's Honors at Washburn University in Topeka, Kansas in 1996.

Deciding to specialize in taxation and estate planning, he entered the LL.M. taxation program at the University of Missouri-Kansas City and graduated there in May of this year.

Castillo and his wife, Tanya, are the parents of a six month old girl, Lauren Alexandra. Castillo's parents are Esteban and Angelical Castillo of Hereford.

Bush request denied by feds

Some help may come for tornado victims

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas isn't getting the presidential disaster declaration Gov. George W. Bush requested to deal with the aftermath of the killer tornadoes that hit Central Texas with a vengeance last week.

But that doesn't mean federal help of one sort or another won't be forthcoming.

As residents of Jarrell and Cedar Park work to rebuild lives, homes and businesses, they may be eligible for low-interest loans and other relief from the Small Business Administration, the Agriculture Department, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Nonetheless, Bush and other state officials expressed disappointment Friday that they were denied a major disaster declaration and its promise of greater federal bounty.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency notified Bush that the property devastation from the May 27 twisters, which claimed 28 lives, didn't meet the threshold required to trigger the help.

Based upon a review of all available information, we have concluded that the impact of this event is not of the severity and magnitude that warrants a major disaster declaration," FEMA chief James Lee Witt wrote in a letter Friday to Bush. "Recovery costs for this event seem well within the combined capabilities of the state and local governments."

Some 239 homes and businesses were destroyed or damaged when the twisters hit May 27, striking Jarrell with the greatest violence. Total damages are estimated at $20 million.

Bush, who had voiced concern that his disaster request would be denied, expressed disappointment at the rejection.

But, he said: "Texas will continue to do everything possible at the state level to assist the people of Central Texas whose lives were impacted by the tornadoes."

SBA will provide low-interest loans for eligible homeowners and businesses not fully covered by private insurance in Williamson, Bell, Travis, Milam, Bastrop, Burnet and Lee counties.

Despite the agency's name, a good bit of SBA's disaster help actually is directed at homeowners rather than business owners.

And, farmers will be eligible for low-interest Agriculture Department emergency loans to rebuild farm structures, replace lost livestock and compensate for production losses.

HUD is allowing Texas to shift nearly $1 million in Community Development Block Grants to rebuilding efforts in the recovering areas. Another $1 million will be available for housing replacement and repair under the HOME program.

"No relief program can ever replace the terrible loss of life caused by the storms," Rep. Chet Edwards,

D-Waco, said in announcing the aid. "It is my hope that this assistance will be of economic help to families."

Under federal law, a major disaster declaration is given only when the scope of the damage exceeds a state's ability to handle, said FEMA spokesman Morrie Goodman. Federal officials also examine whether there is adequate private insurance coverage and eligibility for SBA help.

Goodman said a survey of 164 homes that were destroyed or damaged turned up only 38 without insurance. Had FEMA stepped in, its help would have totaled $97,000, he said.

He said major disaster relief, "is meant only to supplement, not to supplant state aid and insurance."

Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, expressed disappointment at the decision.

"However, I appreciate (President Clinton) making available assistance through the Small Business Adminstration and the Department of Housing and Urban Development," she said.

Jarrell and Cedar Park have been hit by a tidal wave of private relief, with the famous - such as Paul Newman and Harry Connick Jr. - and not so famous chipping in food, clothing, supplies and building materials.

About 2,800 fans turned out Thursday for the Tornado Jam benefit concert at the Austin Music Hall,

Starr hoping Clinton may sway witness

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - Susan McDougal refused to talk to a grand jury even after being imprisoned. Prosecutors hope she may be swayed by an object of the Whitewater investigation: President Clinton.

The office of special prosecutor Kenneth Starr said it had asked that "the president urge (Mrs. McDougal) to comply with her legal obligation to give truthful testimony."

The passage was contained in a footnote to papers filed Friday by Starr to keep Mrs. McDougal jailed for refusing to cooperate.

"The president may urge (her) to testify," Starr's filing said.

Clinton attorney David Kendall and the White House declined comment.

Mrs. McDougal has been jailed on a contempt charge since Sept. 6 for refusing to answer questions from the grand jury investigating the financial dealings of the Clintons.

U.S. District Judge Susan Webber Wright ordered her held for up to 18 months to force her testimony. Last month, Mrs. McDougal asked that the contempt citation be dropped, saying eight months behind bars had only steeled her resolve to never testify.

Prosecutors criticized one of the reasons Mrs. McDougal has given for her intransigence - her purported belief that Starr was out to get Clinton.

If she believes that to be the case, prosecutors said, "she should be motivated to help the president by telling the truth."

Rope elevator

An unidentified roofer is lowered from the top of Richard Ireland's home after suffering a seizure while helping re-roof the home. Hereford Volunteer Fire Department was called to assist EMS personnel in the move and utilized ropes and a stokes basket to lower the worker safely to the ground.

Lawmakers told by woman stop 'playing with our lives'

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) - Homeless for a month, out of work and bounced from one temporary shelter to another, Rancee Steffan has strong words for lawmakers in Washington bickering over a disaster relief bill.

"You are playing with our lives," she said Friday. "This isn't some game. ... You should come here and walk in my shoes for a day."

President Clinton has promised to veto a spending bill that includes $5.6 billion for victims of disasters in 35 states, including the flood-ravaged Dakotas and Minnesota. Clinton opposes unrelated, Republican-backed amendments to the bill.

Mrs. Steffan, her husband and two children are living in a sweltering, 35-foot trailer. She said legislators apparently think flood victims are "getting along just fine."

All she wants is to move back into a real home and start working again.

That isn't likely until Congress and Clinton work out their differences. While disaster victims have received some aid for housing and food, the federal relief package includes money for homes destroyed or heavily damaged by flooding.

For weeks in April and May, the swollen Red River swamped Grand Forks and nearby East Grand Forks, Minn., forcing more than 50,000 people from their homes. Damage estimates in Grand Forks run as high as $1 billion.

The aid package cleared Congress on Thursday. Clinton was expected to veto the bill because it includes provisions to prevent a government shutdown this fall even if spending bills aren't in place and to ban a sampling method in the 2000 census that could boost the number of urban Americans recorded.

Democrats pledged to disrupt actions in the Senate next week until Republicans produce a bill that is acceptable to the president.

The Republican National Committee has announced plans for radio ads in Minnesota and North Dakota this weekend urging Clinton to sign. The mayors of Grand Forks and East Grand Forks sent a letter to Clinton on Friday asking him to do the same.

Jack Carroll, chairman of the Grand Forks Chamber of Commerce, offered his idea to speed passage.

"If you don't think there's a problem ... then stand in line at the Salvation Army for your next change of clothes," he said. "And do that each and every day until you sign a bill, and then see if you think we have a problem."

Bill from Ratliff puts rapper in doghouse

DALLAS (AP) - State Sen. Bill Ratliff can't stop Snoop Doggy Dogg from turning out his chart-topping tales of gun-toting and womanizing. But a bill Ratliff authored may let the rapper know he's in the doghouse with Texas legislators.

The measure will make Texas the first state where it is illegal for state agencies to invest in companies whose artists' songs promote violence or degrade women.

And even the governor's office admits the formerly ill-fated bill will pass, regardless of what Bush thinks of it. The fate of Ratliff's bill is irrevocably tied to the state's pending 900-page budget.

Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, the measure targets "gangsta rap." And even the governor's office concedes the bill will be signed, regardless of what Bush thinks of it.

Because the bill is a rider, Bush won't have the option of utilizing his line-item veto power, said Ray Sullivan, a spokesman for the governor's office.

David Douglas manages a small Dallas music store, Pagan Rhythms, that sells some gangsta rap compact discs and tapes. He said the bill is just the latest attack on the musical genre.

"Who are they kidding? They aren't looking to screen all types of music ... They've taken aim at gangsta rap because that's what they don't like," he said. "Gangsta rap is the new heavy metal."

Angry radio disc jockeys have told audiences to call the governor's office and complain about the legislation.

"A lot of people have been calling to protest," Sullivan said. "We're telling callers the governor does not have the ability to line-item veto this provision."

Ratliff and other senators who supported the measure say they are trying to halt an ongoing "American tragedy."

"I defy any newspaper in Texas to print those lyrics," Ratliff challenged. "If they can't be printed in a newspaper, why can they be pumped into 13-year-olds' brains for three to four hours a day?"

Under the bill, state agencies would not be able to buy stock in companies like Seagram Co., which has rights to the lyrics of songs performed by such artists as Snoop Doggy Dogg and Tupac Shakur. All agencies would have to sell the stock or risk losing state funding.

The Employees Retirement System said it had a Seagram investment worth about $8.4 million as of Dec. 31. The University of Texas System said the Permanent University Fund and Long Term Fund had a combined ownership in Seagram of $3.8 million, or .05 percent of their $7.5 billion investment portfolio.

Universal Music Group, which is owned by Seagram Co., declined to comment on the legislation. However, the Recording Industry Association of America says the measure is typical from a state that doesn't seem to have much respect for the First Amendment.

"They know they can't get away with outright censorship, so they're taking it one little move at a time," said RIAA president Hilary Rosen. "They won't be looking at ZZ Top or Willie Nelson, who sing songs that could be construed as degrading women. The bill is aimed at specific groups and artists that have dared to offend the Legislature."

The music industry intends to seek a ruling from Texas Attorney General Dan Morales on the measure's constitutionality. It also intends to file a constitutional challenge in court, Ms. Rosen said.

Patrick Wiseman, an Austin lawyer and state board member of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the bill may not withstand a court challenge.

"It's an attempt to use the state's power to pick and choose which artists are going to receive investments - and it's based on whether or not they exercise rights given them by the First Amendment," he said.

Although many state lawmakers endorsed the spirit of the provision, they objected to how it reached the governor's desk.

By making the bill a "rider" to the budget bill, Ratliff did an end run around a House committee that had killed the measure. A rider is a small attachment to a budget bill meant to amend budgetary matters. In Texas, it has been a way for legislators to circumvent a governor's possible veto or legislative opposition.

Rep. Barry Telford, D-DeKalb, said Ratliff's methods irritated him more than a record with a scratch. "Riders are meant to be used for budgetary matters, not law in general," Telford said.

But Ratliff defended his tactic. "It's a device, and we all use it," he said. "There's nothing sinister about it."

Tex-Mex restaurants looking at healthier approach to food

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Tamales minus the meat filling? Chile con carne prepared with ground turkey? "Refried" beans that aren't fried?

Blasphemy, you say? Not so, contend nutrition experts and a growing number of restaurateurs who favor a healthier approach to Mexican-American cooking.

Their campaign is even evident in San Antonio, where "Tex-Mex" restaurants number in the hundreds and where gooey cheese enchiladas and white flour tortillas are dietary staples.

Advocates of "health-Mex," as some call it, want a return to cooking with more vegetables and grains, ingredients of the traditional Mexican diet, and less reliance on fatty American influences, like beef and lard.

"If they would continue cooking like our grandmothers were doing it, it's a very healthy diet," said Maria Luisa Urdaneta, an associate professor of medical anthropology at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

Her bilingual cookbook "Deleites de la Cocina Mexicana" (Delights of the Mexican Kitchen), co-authored by Daryl F. Kanter, contains more than 200 recipes collected in San Antonio and the Rio Grande Valley.

It explains nutritious ways to prepare the popular regional dishes, providing basic nutrition information and American Diabetes Association exchanges for each recipe.

Among the entries are low-fat cheese enchiladas; baked flautas stuffed with mashed potatoes; and taco filling prepared with ground turkey breast. A recipe for chili con carne also uses turkey breast instead of beef.

Ms. Urdaneta and other advocates of healthier Mexican-American cooking prefer corn tortillas over white flour tortillas, which are made with shortening and lack the fiber and complex carbohydrates of corn tortillas.

"A white flour tortilla - that is a sinful thing," Ms. Urdaneta said.

Flour tortillas were popularized in what is now southern Texas and northern Mexico and evolved from a type of white bread introduced by Jewish Spaniards from the Canary Islands, according to Ms. Urdaneta's research.

The idea for her cookbook originated after Ms. Urdaneta, a registered nurse and an anthropologist, served on the Texas Diabetes Council in the 1980s and began taking a closer look at adult-onset diabetes.

"I was appalled at the fact that Mexican-Americans are at a much higher risk than the Anglo people or other ethnic minorities," said Ms.

Urdaneta, a native of Colombia.

Mexican-Americans are five times more likely to develop the disease. The reasons have been traced to heredity, diet, obesity, stress and decreased physical activity, researchers say.

Often adult-onset diabetes, known as "Type II" diabetes, can be managed through diet and exercise.

In San Antonio, the propensity for obesity was noted in a study released in March by the Coalition for Excess Weight Risk Education in Washington.

Based on research by the Centers for Disease Control, the study ranked San Antonio as the third most obese city among the nation's 33 largest metropolitan areas, behind New Orleans and Norfolk, Va.

Oldways Preservation and Exchange Trust of Cambridge, Mass., also is campaigning for a healthier Latin American diet.

In El Paso last November, the non-profit organization, working with Baylor University and the Harvard School of Public Health, issued its "Healthy Traditional Latin American Diet Pyramid."

Fruits, vegetables, beans, grains, nuts and tubers, such as potatoes, are the suggested foundation for a healthy Latin American diet. Poultry, shellfish and milk products are to be used less frequently, and meat, eggs and sweets only occasionally.

At Adelante Restaurant, a health-oriented Mexican food cafe in San Antonio, owners Debbie and Dan Soder proudly proclaim their establishment bans lard and beef, serves hormone-free chicken and prepares its few fried menu items in canola oil.

"That's kind of how we live. We don't really eat meat," Dan Soder said, adding, "It was a niche that we felt really wasn't explored that much in San Antonio."

Among the cafe's specialties are vegetable tacos, spinach enchiladas and cheese, bean, vegetable and sweet potato tamales.

Adelante's "refried" beans are actually mashed beans seasoned with garlic, salt, peppers and water. The restaurant serves brown rice and only whole wheat or corn tortillas.

"We've had people that were kind of put out that we don't have beef, we don't have flour tortillas," Dan Soder said. "In this market, we say, 'It's not hard to find if that's what you're looking for.'"

The Soders have served "health-Mex" food at their cafe for 11 years. Since the early 1990s, they've noticed more restaurants in San Antonio offering health-oriented Mexican dishes, a trend they note emerged in Austin and other cities even earlier.

One of the biggest misconceptions about healthier Mexican-style cooking, its proponents say, is that the food is bland.

The Soders serve up a spicy chipotle sauce, pico de gallo and a green tomato sauce.

"The secret in good cooking is in using fresh spices," said Ms. Urdaneta, whose cookbook stresses the use of cumin, oregano, garlic, cilantro and the ever-important chile peppers.

Likewise, Ms. Goetz of Oldways points out chiles are a staple on many a dinner table.

"There are definitely ways you can spice it up," she said. "People don't know how vast the Latin American diet is."

"Deleites de la Cocina Mexicana" is published by the University of Texas Press. It can be ordered by calling 1-800-252-3206.

Our bank is our people.

And that makes all the difference in the world.

At Hereford State Bank, we learned long ago that what really separates us from other banks is our people. People like Opal Walterscheid.

Opal, our assistant cashier, has worked at Hereford State Bank for the past 28 years.

She and her husband, Leonard have five children; Doug of Amarillo, Lindy Yosten of Hereford, Brenda Jones of Guthrie, Kari Strader of Houston and Lori Massey of Amarillo. The Walterscheids are members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

We're proud to have Opal, and the many other employees of our bank who work extra hard to make your banking easy.

All banks say they do this -- make your banking easier. Being able to do it better than anyone else is the definition of our success.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says when learning something new, it's best to begin at the bottom - except when learning to swim.

A woman was complaining to her husband about an ill-mannered friend who had just visited. "That woman must have yawned 10 times while I was talking."

"Maybe she wasn't yawning, dear," replied the husband. "Maybe she was trying to say something."

You had to hustle in Hereford this weekend if you wanted to take in everything being offered for public consumption!

The local unit of the American Cancer Society started its "Relay for Life" Friday evening and continued the event through Saturday; the Society for Creative Anachronism convened Friday and held festivities all day Saturday, ending with a feast in Veterans Park; and the annual Miss Hereford Pageant was held Saturday night.

There were activities, of course, for the entire community. St. Anthony's Parish, celebrating its 75th anniversary, invited the community to join them for liturgical celebrations at 9 and 11 a.m. Sunday, and for dinner from 11:30 to 1:30 at the Bull Barn.

Barry Williams, cartoonist who draws the "J.P. Doodles" cartoon which appears on this page occasionally, sent this story about a clever principal:

A middle-school principal had a problem with a few of the older girls who were starting to wear lipstick. After applying the lipstick in the bathroom, they would then press their lips to the mirrors and leave lip prints.

The principal thought he had a way to solve this problem before it got out of hand. He passed the word that all young ladies who wore lipstick were to meet with him in the girls' room at 2 p.m.

When they arrived, they found the principal and the custodian waiting for them. The principal explained that the lip prints on the mirrors were causing a lot of extra work for the custodian. He said he felt the girls did not fully understand just how much work it caused, so he wanted them to witness a mirror-cleaning demonstration.

At that point, the custodian reached in a box and took out a long-handled brush. He dipped the brush into the nearest toilet, moved over to one of the mirrors and began to scrub the lipstick off.

That was the last time the girls pressed their lips to a bathroom mirror!

James Roberts, the old country editor down at Andrews, recalls a surgery he had many years ago in which he was given a spinal and was awake during the entire operation.

Roberts said he swore then that he would never have another surgery while awake. "It was disconcerting, stressful, and discombobulating to hear the doctors, nurses, and aides telling jokes, singing, and discussing our innards in graphic detail."

Last week, he received an e-mail the top 20 things you don't want to hear during surgery - and it's easy to understand why:

1. "Better save that. We'll need it for the autopsy."
2. "Someone call the janitor - we're going to need a mop."
3. "This patient has already had some kids, am I correct?"
4. "Bo, Bo! Come back with that! Bad dog!"
5. "Wait a minute, if this is his spleen, then what's that?"
6. "Hand me that...uh...that uh...thingie."
7. "Oh no! I just lost my Rolex."
8. "Oops! Hey, has anyone ever survived 500 ml of this stuff before?"
9. "Dang, there go the lights again."
10. "Ya know, there's big money in kidneys. Hey, this guy has got two of them!"
11. "Everybody stand back! I just lost a contact lens."
12. "Could you stop that thing from beating? It's throwing off my concentration."
13. "What's THAT doing here?"
14. "I just hate it when there's stuff missing in here."
15. "That's cool! Now can you make his leg twitch?"
16. "I wish I hadn't forgotten my glasses!"
17. "Well, folks, this will be an experiment for all of us."
18. "Sterile, shmerrile. The floor's clean, right?"
19. "What do you mean, he wasn't in for a sex change?"
20. "Anyone see where I left the scalpel?"

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Why does the City of Hereford charge $5 to have a garage sale? Hereford is the only town I know of that charges to have a garage sale. It is not the $5; it is the principle of it. I noticed the ad in the paper that the Chamber of Commerce wants to charge $15 for people to be able to sell vegetables and fruit in town, plus $5 every time they come. I think it is outrageous. It is just greed on the part of the C of C. The farmers market was started to help the farmers get fresh produce to the town people. Maybe they can go outside the city limits to get it.

L.F. Shannon

Dear Editor:

Although I will never regret the two years I have spent as a Kid's Inc. umpire, I have become distressed by the over-emphasis on winning by fans and coaches.

It saddens me to think that we are teaching our youth that sportsmanship and having fun no longer matter. I do not remember the score of any Kids Inc. game in which I played, nor do I remember where in the league we finished.

But I do remember the coaches, fans and teammates who - no matter what the score - always found something to smile about and who never allowed a player to go home discouraged.

At the conclusion of every game, as the teams meet at midfield to shake hands, a smile should be on every face. Postgame talks should be about the effort displayed and fun enjoyed rather than a lecture over what went wrong.

I will always remember the coach of a last-place team who last year presented each of his players with a trophy (which he bought himself) because, "You are all winners."

He is right and perhaps our future would look a little brighter if we began placing our emphasis on fun, rather than a scorebook.

Sincerely,
Jason D. Jesko

Editorials from around the State

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial comment from Texas newspapers:

San Antonio Express-News on killing of teen-ager by Marine: The joint mission of the Border Patrol and U.S. military forces along the Texas-Mexico border, according to federal officials, is intended to "improve the quality of life along the border - to stop criminal activities, alien smuggling, the abuse of aliens and the insidious drug smuggling into this country."

By all accounts, Ezequiel Hernandez Jr., 18, did not fit any of those profiles. The high school sophomore helped his family by tending goats after school and dreamed someday of being a game warden.

Yet the Redford teen is dead, shot and killed last week by a U.S. Marine who was on the border detail.

The Texas Rangers, the Border Patrol, the FBI and the Presidio County Sheriff's Department are investigating the incident, which Border Patrol officials say occurred after Hernandez shot twice toward members of the patrolling unit.

While it goes without saying that the investigation should be thorough, the issues raised should not be limited to the circumstances surrounding Hernandez's death. Officials also should scrutinize the decision to use military personnel to bolster border enforcement.

This is the second shooting incident on the border involving military personnel in the past six months.

In January, a Mexican man who illegally entered the United States near Brownsville was injured when he traded shots with a Green Beret who was part of a joint Border Patrol mission.

The Mexican later pleaded guilty to assaulting a federal officer and carrying a firearm during the commission of a federal crime.

Observers who have criticized the deployment of the military rightly point out that the soldiers are not trained as Border Patrol officers, a profession that - when performed well - is marked with an agent's keen understanding for the unusual place that is the U.S.-Mexico border and the people who live there.

Officials insist the actions of the Marine who shot Hernandez were in "strict compliance with the Joint Chiefs of Staff standing rules of engagement." That is of little comfort.

These rules do not call for military personnel to shoot to kill, but a Marine spokesman acknowledged, "If you reach a point in which you fear for your life, you usually fire to kill."

This one will not - and must not - go away. Hernandez's family and other border residents deserve answers to their questions. Until they get them, they will be wondering which of their neighbors might be next.

Beaumont Enterprise on suing the president:

Some critics of President Bill Clinton rejoiced Tuesday after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled, unanimously, that Paula Jones' lawsuit would not have to wait until he vacated the Oval Office. But their glee could be short-sighted, because the same weapons used against the current president in 1997 could be unleashed on his successor.

Jones say Clinton sexually harassed her in 1991 when he was governor, and her lawyers had some good reasons for wanting the case tried in this century. Witnesses' memory could grow hazy by the time Clinton leaves office (if they're still alive), and a cornerstone of our democracy is that no person, no matter how rich or powerful, is above the law.

But the presidency is the most important job in this country, and presidents must be free to concentrate on their awesome responsibilities. Since they are already immune from virtually all lawsuits for official activity, it follows that the same exemption should be extended during their presidency for things that happened before they were elected.

Most people who could become president in the modern era have a track record in politics or business that could be used by their opponents for lawsuits. In the conflict of rights in this case, the national interests are better served if those potential lawsuits are postponed a few years.

Congress on verge of acting on issues raised by Perot, but he's not talking

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - It wasn't a year ago that Ross Perot was nagging America to balance its budget or face its doom. Now that the country is taking his advice, he's become the man who isn't there.

"I will summarize everything I have said with these words," he said during last year's campaign: "The budget should be balanced. The treasury should be refilled. The public debt should be reduced, and the arrogance of public officials should be controlled."

But now, with Congress on the verge of acting on his big issue with a plan to balance the federal books over the next five years, no pressure comes from Perot to make it happen faster, or with more certainty. Not a word, not even a lecture to Larry King on the deal that the Republicans and Bill Clinton have cooked up.

"He's just been AWOL," said Richard Lamm, the former Colorado governor who contested Perot for the Reform Party's presidential nomination in 1996.

"I have to say we haven't seen

Ross Perot around much lately," said Marsha Phillips, executive director of the Concord Coalition, a grass-roots organization that crusades for an end to deficits.

"He's been working on his businesses. He's spoken out for five years," said Russell Verney, executive director of Perot's United We Stand organization and chairman of the Reform Party's national organizing committee.

The Texas billionaire did not respond to requests for an interview. In his speech conceding defeat after last year's presidential election, Perot promised he would make himself felt on his issues.

"Take a little break," he told supporters, "and then we'll climb into the ring to keep the pressure on and make sure everybody keeps these promises."

Perot's critics concede that he deserves credit for putting the question of balancing the budget on the national agenda, even if he hasn't been a player in this spring's Washington debate.

"He and his ubiquitous charts in 1992 helped cement this in a way that made it unavoidable," said Lamm, who runs a public policy think tank in Denver. "But he's been no help in this last phase. He's offered no suggestions."

Pat Choate, the Washington economist and trade protectionist picked by Perot as his 1996 running mate, said Perot has been quietly advising Rep. John Kasich, the Republican chairman of the House Budget Committee and an architect of the balanced-budget plan.

"Kasich has called Perot, and Perot has helped him time after time," Choate said. Kasich couldn't be immediately reached for comment.

Perot has been equally silent on his other big issues - campaign reform and opposition to free-trade agreements.

Lamm contends that Perot, creator of the most successful third party of the 20th century, has become its chief threat.

"There's a third party straining to be born out there, and it could be the Reform Party, but Ross Perot and his fans are never going to be able to make it an effective party," Lamm said. "You can't build a party around one personality. He's like a big oak tree, where nothing grows in its shade."

Lamm is convinced Perot will make another presidential run in 2000, despite his showing in 1996, when he got fewer than half of the 20 million votes he won four years earlier.

"He's mesmerized by the polls of May 1992 (when he briefly led Clinton and George Bush)," Lamm said. "He's caught in a time warp."

Verney disagrees. "He hasn't given one moment's thought to running in 2000," the United We Stand director said. "We are in the midst of building a competitive third party, which is a huge undertaking."

Hereford State Bank was born in Hereford, Texas 50 years ago. We're proud of that!

The bank was chartered by the State of Texas after some local businessmen, encouraged by Hereford's prospects for growth, were convinced there was room for more than one bank in town.

Way back then, jukeboxes played five songs for a quarter and our tellers worked behind chicken-wire cages. This new little upstart bank even opened for business without any furniture or fixtures due to shipping delays.

But the absence of furniture didn't seem to matter much.

We've done lots of business in Hereford since then. We're still doing business here, and we're still putting our money where our charter is.

Dykes works to put Tech on top of Big 12 Pressure is on as he tries to fill key holes on grid team

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Spike Dykes took a mighty swing with his "Killer Bee" driver and the golf ball bore far into the mist and gloom until it vanished from sight.
"Couldn't hit one like that a year ago," said the Texas Tech Red Raider football coach. "That's a good testimony for losing some weight."
Someone joked that not only was it a miracle that Dykes could lose weight (over 35 pounds) but that he could hit a ball left-handed.
Dykes chortled "maybe I should do an ad. I may have their only left-handed set of clubs. They should have a lefty doing some of their stuff."
During the round Dykes reminisced about the old Southwest Conference and how he still missed a lot of people who were in it. He was one of those who said straight out "if it ain't broke don't fix it."

But others decided the SWC was breaking up and wanted to jump ship before it sank. It became a big political football with backroom deals being struck.
Finally, Texas Tech, Baylor, Texas, and Texas A&M joined up with the Big Eight Conference folks while Rice, TCU and SMU went to the Western Athletic Conference. Houston joined Conference USA and won its first championship.
"This new league (the Big 12) is a darn tough league," Dykes said. "I just miss all the folks who were in the Southwest Conference I don't get to see anymore. I guess I'm just a traditionalist."
Dykes was born in Lubbock and grew up teaching on SWC football.

He coached Texas high school football and coached as an assistant under Darrell Royal.

Now Dykes is trying to get Texas Tech to the top of the Big 12 Conference. Serious business, this, where winning seasons can mean big bucks to a college program.
His teams have gone to four consecutive bowl games but in the real world of college athletics the pressure is on. It's what have you done for me lately?

Dykes has some major holes to fill this season.
He has a major problem at running back.
Byron Hanspard, the All-America, decided not to come back for his senior season so he could join the professional football ranks. He left on a sour note, not attending class his fall semester and producing a zero grade point average. Not a good way to go out.
Then Sam Morris had academic problems.
Then top prospect, Clint Robertson, tore up his knee in the waning moments of spring training.
Abilene Cooper prospect Dominique Rhodes was battling to pass his SAT at last report.
"We could have some major problems at running back," said Dykes, who hates to worry in May about what's going to happen in September. "We'll just have to figure something out."

There was another item that went undiscussed during a casual round at the Big 12 Conference spring meetings. It was about an NCAA investigation of possible Red Raider rules violations. It's another dark cloud hanging over Dykes that won't go away. Dykes can't talk about the matter which surfaced in a Houston Chronicle investigation. Suffice to say it won't go away and nobody knows when the NCAA will announce a decision on the matter.
Then there's THAT opener that the undermanned Red Raiders have to face on Aug. 30.

The Raiders must play the University of Tennessee in Knoxville before some 100,000 faithful.
Asked who scheduled the game, Dykes joked "Oh, we let our janitor do that one. Orange is his favorite color. It's going to be a tough way to open the season without a running back. We'll just have to find a way to do it."
With that, Dykes ripped another long drive down the fairway.
This ball went much farther than the last.
Such is the life of a coach in the new, high-pressure Big 12 Conference. It can make a body yearn for the ole SWC.

Stallings still active in retirement years

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - It's June and - as usual - Gene Stallings is getting edgy.
Naturally, the recently retired Alabama coach still has lingering thoughts about football, but he's also worried about all the work left undone on his Texas ranch since he went down with a broken right hip seven weeks ago.
"There are so many things that need to be done out there, it's hard to think about," said Stallings, who wore a Crimson blazer and used crutches to walk to the podium, where he spoke to a graduating class of state troopers Friday.
Stallings, 62, must spend about five more weeks on crutches while his hip heals. While working on the family ranch in Paris, Texas, in April, he was trampled by three horses, who knocked him down while trying to get to a feed bucket.

"I'm moving around fine, but I can't do a lot of work with my hands," Stallings said. "It's a little frustrating."
He can't do any work that would require him to take the bulk of the weight off of his crutches. That means much of the load on his 600-acre spread must wait until late July.
He said he is still adapting to being out of coaching for the first time in 40 years. Normally in June, he would spend much of his time worrying about where his players were and what they were doing to prepare for the upcoming season.
"I'm getting a little edgy," he said. "This time of year, you get used to thinking about what you have to do to get the team ready."
Stallings still comes to Alabama often for meetings and fund raisers and has no plans to shirk from Crimson Tide games when fall rolls around, as many ex-coaches do when they retire.

SPIKE DYKES

America's best legitimate advertising buy is still the local newspaper that is involved in your community. Junk matters don't contribute a dime to the betterment of Hereford. They take and don't give back.

"I plan to go to some games and I'm looking forward to it," Stallings said. "I'll probably just sit in the press box and try to enjoy it."
Stallings compiled a 70-16-1 record in seven seasons for a winning percentage (.810) second only to his mentor, Alabama legend Bear Bryant. Before Alabama, Stallings coached a combined 32 seasons at Texas A&M and with the Cardinals and Cowboys in the NFL.

Father's Day gift; no more children

Unique promotion canceled

CHARLESTON, S.C. - It sure wasn't Bat Day or Cap Day. And maybe that's why less than a day after announcing one of sports' strangest promotions - a free vasectomy in honor of Father's Day - the minor league Charleston RiverDogs canceled the June 13 giveaway.

The Class A team never meant to offend anyone, general manager Mark Schuster said late Friday. "We found that clearly people didn't like the idea. We are sensitive to our fans' wants," he said.

Thursday night and Friday, team officials, including owner Mike Vecek, were enthusiastic about the promotion. However, after getting some negative feedback, they reversed course.

The Roman Catholic Diocese of Charleston, led by season-ticket holder Bishop David Thompson, was among those who called the team to complain.

"It's just bad taste," said Monsignor Sam R. Miglares, the diocese's vicar general. "It trivializes fatherhood."

Vecek, who bought the RiverDogs this season, has brought his skewed view of baseball fun to this refined Southern city. He's had Bill Murray mask night (Murray is Vecek's longtime friend) and plans Great Inventor's Night to honor devices like the Chia-Pet and the Veg-O-Matic.

"I heard they were going to have some way out promotions," RiverDogs fan Stan Collins said. "This is about as way out as it gets."

But this one seemed to have out-veecked Vecek, the mastermind of the Chicago White Sox's notorious Disco Demolition Night and whose dad, Bill Vecek, once sent a midget to bat in the majors.

"I stopped and thought about it when I first heard. Then I said, 'You've got to do what you say you're going to do and let people have their ideas,'" Vecek said before the promotion was scrapped.

Vecek, who also owns the St. Paul Saints, was in Minneapolis for their opening game and did not immediately return a phone call.

Parseghian helps medical benefit

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) - Ara Parseghian didn't mind shedding a few tears among the cheers.

The former football coach at the University of Notre Dame was lauded by 2,700 students as he received an honorary degree Saturday for his work to find a cure for a disease that recently claimed one of his grandchildren.

Parseghian, 73, fought back tears as he recalled 9-year-old Michael, who died in March from Niemann-Pick Type C, a rare genetic disorder that prevents children from metabolizing cholesterol.

Two of the boy's siblings have the disease, which afflicts an estimated 500 children in the United States.

Carol Killough, the RiverDogs' marketing vice president, had dreamed up the vasectomy giveaway. "Some men find it very useful," she said.

"I definitely don't think this is in bad taste," fan Bob Stefani said. "To me, it's ingenious marketing."

Anyone 21 or older, male or female, could have registered for the drawing at next Friday's game against the Charleston (W.Va.) Alley Cats. The RiverDogs have not scheduled a substitute promotion.

The June 15 Father's Day promotion, a pregame father-son baseball clinic, will go on as planned.

The minor leagues are known for their outlandish and kinky promotions to bring in fans on a summer's evening. Captain Dynamite, whose act was to get in a box and blow it up - then walk away unscathed, made it on the minor-league circuit for several years.

In 1989, the then-Charleston Rainbows ran a motorcyclist through a flaming wall of Spam.

Pete Moore, general manager of the Triple A Charlotte Knights, whose club will give out three riding lawn mowers to honor dads next weekend, winced when he heard about the vasectomy freebie.

"I know that teams do crazy things for attendance," he said. "But this might be a little over the edge."

Vecek's accustomed to backlash. In 1949, his father buried the Cleveland Indians' pennant from the year before in center field, complete with a horse-drawn caisson, and was criticized for making fun of the dead.

Four years ago, the younger Vecek did a tribute to "Two Dead Fat Guys" - Elvis Presley and Babe Ruth both died on Aug. 16 - and was similarly swamped.

"I learned more from Disco Demolition than every bat day I ever ran," Vecek said. "The thing about promotions is to try and make people think. If you make people think, it removes the fear."

In 1979, Vecek invited fans to burn disco records in the outfield at Comisky Park and started a near riot. The White Sox had to forfeit the game and police were called to herd out rowdy fans.

Reds host tryouts at Randall

The Cincinnati Reds will hold a tryout camp at Randall High School on June 19, it was announced this week by Les Houser, scouting supervisor for the Reds.

Registration on that date will begin at 9 a.m. Houser noted that all American Legion players who wish to work out must bring written permission from the post commander or Legion coach.

Any player who is under 21 years of age must have a written release from a parent or legal guardian. In order to participate in the camp, the player must have a release of liability, not just a permission slip.

The tryout camps are also scheduled in other towns, including Lubbock, on June 20 at the Lubbock Christian University baseball field.

Whiteface summer football camp open

Tuesday will mark the beginning of the Whiteface Summer Camps Football series.

The camps began with baseball on May 27 with the basketball camp completing June 5.

The last camp for Girls Volleyball starts July 14. Costs for the camps range from $20 to $50, depending on the sport.

The Whiteface Summer Camps will also include golf with the Lady Whiteface Camps including tennis, basketball and volleyball.

Remaining camps include:

Spurger loses to Fayetteville

AUSTIN (AP) - Ryan Frerichs tripled home the winning run as Fayetteville scored four runs in the top of the ninth and defeated Spurger 6-2 Friday for the Class A state championship.

Fayetteville, making its first trip to the state tournament since finishing runner-up in 1985, finished the year 21-6-1 and relegated Spurger to the role of runner-up for the second straight year.

Spurger, which finished the season 25-5-1, lost in last year's title game to Thorndale.

The game was tied 2-2 at the end of seven innings of regulation play. Both teams went three up and three down in the eighth inning before Fayetteville broke the tie in the ninth.

Josh Vitek walked and then Frerichs ripped a triple down the third base line, scoring Vitek. Evan Alford batted next and ripped a double into the gap in right center field, scoring Frerichs. Brian Krenek then singled home Alford and later scored on a wild pitch, giving Fayetteville a 6-2 lead.

Spurger was unable to answer in the bottom of the ninth. After Marcus McCabe and Cory Jeansonne walked, Ricky Fortenberry grounded out, Andy Odom popped out and Josh Sirmans struck out to end the game.

Fayetteville had a prime scoring opportunity in the fifth after Michael Davis reached third and Todd Fritsch took second on a wild pitch with two outs. But Spurger's Jason Winkle struck out Cyril Keilers to end the inning.

Fayetteville also failed to capitalize on a triple by Daniel Schley in the sixth with one out. The next two batters struck out to end the inning.

Fayetteville took a 2-0 lead in the first inning after Vitek doubled home Cody Fritsch and Daniel Schley.

Weimar beats Alto

AUSTIN (AP) - Jared Barton went 2-for-4 and scored three runs and Patrick Colon pitched a complete game as Weimar beat Alto 9-2 to repeat as Class 2A state champions Friday.

Barton ended up going 6-for-8 in the final and the semifinal - a 12-6 victory over Gunter in which he also was the winning pitcher.

Weimar, which beat Gilmer Harmony in last year's title game, finished the season 22-8.

Alto, led by Miguel Heredia who went 2-for-4 and scored the team's only two runs, finished the year 27-2.

Weimar leaped to a 4-1 lead in the first inning as Josh Prihoda, Barton and Colon all singled and scored. Lance Heger walked and later scored from third on a wild pitch.

Barton singled and scored in the second, putting Weimar up 5-1. He reached base on a fourth-inning error, then stole second before Colon singled him home for a 6-2 lead.

Weimar added a run in the fifth by Matt Kutac, who doubled and scored on Bobby Grohmann's ground out. The Wildcats added two more runs in the sixth inning on scores by Colon and Lee Mueller.

Colon was strong on the mound and managed to avoid disaster in the first and third innings. With Alto's

Jeff Duplichain on third and David Heredia on second and only one out in the first, Colon struck out the next two batters to escape the inning.

In the third, Alto's Miguel Heredia scored, then Stacey Skinner reached third and Duplichain reached second with no outs. But Skinner was thrown out at home and the next two batters popped out and grounded out to end the third.

Colon (8-3) gave up two runs on six hits with two walks and five strikeouts.

Duplichain (4-1) was the loser, giving up seven runs - five earned - on eight hits with one walk and one strikeout in four innings.

Duplichain was potent at the plate, going 2-for-2 with two RBIs.

Belle fined $5,000

NEW YORK (AP) - Albert Belle was fined $5,000 by the American League for making an obscene gesture to rowdy fans in Cleveland following a game earlier this week.

Budig ordered Belle to spend the $5,000 on White Sox tickets and distribute them to disadvantaged youth in Chicago.

The players' union said it will appeal the penalty.

Harley carries Malone, Jazz to 104-93 victory

Utah star comes alive as he leads team back into win column

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Karl Malone slipped on a sleeveless black T-shirt, jumped on one of his Harley motorcycles and took the long route to the Delta Center.

He wanted to feel the wind whoosh past his 6-foot-9, 256-pound body and clear his mind of all the negative thoughts that had been building through two games of the NBA Finals.

When he got to the arena Friday night, Malone was ready to demonstrate why he was chosen the league's MVP.

He took the ball aggressively to the basket, hit jumpers, scattered bodies under the boards and even made clutch free throws as he led the Utah Jazz to a 104-93 victory over the Chicago Bulls.

Inspired by an adoring - and ear-splitting - crowd, Malone had 37 points, 10 rebounds, four steals and three assists as the Jazz officially turned the NBA Finals into an event.

Utah now trails only 2-1 in the best-of-7 series, and has Games 4 and 5 Sunday and Wednesday at home, where it is 47-3 this season.

"We have to pick it up another notch on Sunday," said Malone, who averaged only 21.5 points on 38 percent shooting in the first two games and missed two crucial free throws in the opener. "Well, maybe not higher, but the same. It's going to be tough - those guys were world champions."

Malone, who appeared at his postgame press conference in his black T-shirt, knows one thing that definitely won't change for Game 4.

"I needed that Harley ride, and I guarantee you I'm going to take it again Sunday," he said. "I took the long way here. I normally get here at 4:15. I got here today at 5 minutes to 5. It's just one of those things."

"Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen were laughing at me. They were wearing $5,000 suits and I came with this right here."

Criticized to the point where some even said he simply should hand his MVP trophy to a supposedly more-deserving Jordan, Malone didn't want all of his critics to suddenly be his friends again.

"Down 0-2, people didn't want to talk to you. People wanted to kick you in the rear end," he said. "Now, all of a sudden, you won a game and they want to pat you on the back."

"I don't want to talk to anybody when I leave this room, and I don't want nobody patting me."

The Bulls weren't anxious to pat him on the back, but they did offer plenty of praise after the man known as the Mailman delivered.

"That's the Karl Malone we all know. You have to expect that he was going to come here and play that type of basketball," Jordan said. "Our defense never reacted well toward Karl's explosiveness."

Jordan scored 26 points, but was only 9-for-22 from the floor and attempted only one shot in the third quarter as Utah built a 77-53 lead.

He and Pippen, who finished with 27 points and tied an NBA Finals record with seven 3-pointers, led a furious fourth-quarter rally that brought the Bulls within seven points in the closing minutes.

But the Jazz withstood the charge by going 14-for-14 from the foul line in the final 2:10.

Malone, who has a reputation for choking at the free-throw line, made four of them. Greg Foster, who came off the bench to score a career-high 17 points, made the first two to stall the Bulls' comeback. And John Stockton capped his 17-point, 12-assist night, making the last six.

"We got very casual and didn't handle the ball well," Jazz coach Jerry Sloan said. "When you have a big lead, you tend to get conservative. You play not to lose, instead of doing the things that got you the lead."

"Fortunately, we had enough of a lead that we were able to hang on and make our free throws."

Not only did the Bulls fail to take a 3-0 series lead - an advantage that has proven to be insurmountable over the years - they failed to win Game 3 of a series for the first time this postseason.

In each of their four title years (1991, 1992, 1993, 1996), they won their first road game in the finals.

But then again, the Delta Center is no normal road stop. And that's why Utah has won 22 consecutive home games, including nine straight in the playoffs.

Before the game, there were fireworks, balloons and loud music.

All through the game, there were mascots, dancers and, of course, screaming fans.

"I was wondering if we were actually going to play the game or not after all that stuff they did," Chicago's Steve Kerr said.

"The Jazz are a good team, this is their building, they only lost a few games here all year. They feed off the crowd. They had a lot more energy than we did right off the bat."

One of Chicago's main energizers,

Dennis Rodman, was a non-factor. He played 24 scoreless minutes and had only three rebounds - 13 fewer than the regular-season average that allowed him to lead the league for the sixth successive year.

"He didn't bring what we need," Pippen said. "The toughness, the intensity, his energy."

Rodman did bring a new hairdo - a burst of colors including magenta, red, blue, yellow, green and orange in a series of splotches.

Irwin leads sweep

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Kenny Irwin led a rookie sweep of the top three positions in the NASCAR truck series' Pronto Auto Parts 400 on Friday night, beating road racing star Boris Said by 0.228 seconds.

Irwin, of Indianapolis, a two-time winner this year in a Ford co-owned by former NBA star Brad Daugherty, averaged 131.822 mph over 400 kilometers on the Texas Motor Speedway course in the fastest race in series history.

"We honestly have not thought about running for the championship, but that question has been asked since we have won two races," said Irwin, who jumped to third in the season standings. "We feel our team is solid and has a lot of potential for more wins."

Irwin, who started fifth, took the lead from pole winner Mike Bliss on the 113th of 167 laps when Bliss' Ford dropped back because of a flat tire. Rick Crawford, finished third, followed by Chuck Bown and Bliss.

Series leader Rich Bickle finished 21st, while runner-up Jack Sprague was 31st. Bickle has 1,343 points, Sprague 1,303 and Irwin 1,288.

Judith Henry takes charge of Tech certification needs

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Former Texas Tech dean of students Judith Henry is taking over the school's embattled NCAA certification process, the university announced Friday.

Henry was given the titles of associate athletic director and senior woman administrator.

Henry, a Tech graduate, was the school's dean of students from 1988-93. In 1994-95, she was president of the Texas Association of College and University Student Personnel Administrators.

"We are thrilled to have someone as qualified and capable as Judy Henry," athletic director Gerald Myers said.

Women's basketball coach Marsha Sharp had held the role of senior woman administrator, but she resigned the post recently to focus more on coaching.

Taylor McNeel handled certification matters until earlier this year, when he was reassigned after a series of problems resulted in six different football and basketball athletes missing playing time or being declared ineligible.

One mistake forced Tech to forfeit its Big 12 men's basketball games and withdraw from NCAA Tournament consideration. Another foul-up has placed the highly ranked baseball program in jeopardy of future sanctions.

PLN will host two part study meeting

The Promised Land Network (PLN) is hosting a Southern Plains Study Club meeting on Thursday, June 12 at 7 p.m. in the Centennial Room of Boatman's Bank at 8th and Taylor Streets, located in downtown Amarillo. The meeting will begin with a facilitated discussion of Dr. John Gray's best-selling book, Men Are From Mars, Women Are From Venus: A Practical Guide for Improving Communication and Getting What You Want in Your Relationships (Harper Collins Publishers, 1992). Discussion will focus on the relationships between men and women, key differences identified by Gray's book, and the contribution of healthy relationships to a sustainable agriculture.

At 8 p.m., the second part of the Study Club will feature presentations by Joe and Elaine Sullivan, family counselors and educators from Dallas, TX. Joe will facilitate a group session for men, while Elaine leads a discussion for women. Participants will be invited to focus more directly on issues, challenges and questions in their experience of relationships, whether rural or urban.

The PLN sponsors Southern Plains Study Club meetings as a format for public education and discussion on issues vital for shaping Southern Plains regional agriculture and rural communities towards long-term sustainability. Meetings scheduled in 1997 are exploring the role of human institutions and action in U.S.

Chrysler leads charge to offer ethanol vehicle

Chrysler Corporation will announce plans for a large-scale production of a new alternative-fuel vehicle that will operate on E-85, a fuel that is 85 percent ethanol. The announcement will be made at a press conference at the Doubletree Hotel in Overland Park, KS, at 8:30 a.m. on June 10.

Chrysler's announcement reflects the largest production of any form of alternative-fuel vehicle, in any model year, by any manufacturer-domestic or import.

The press conference kicks off the summer meeting of the Governors' Ethanol Coalition, a group of 21 midwestern governors united by a common goal to increase the use of ethanol. The Governor's Ethanol Coalition is joined by the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) and the domestic ethanol producers in its promotional efforts.

Dignitaries and state government leaders from several midwestern states, NCGA and Chrysler Corporation will be on hand for the announcement. A prototype vehicle also will be on display.

The National Corn Growers Association represents the interests of producers of the nation's top crop. Membership includes more than 30,000 corn growers in 48 states and 42 affiliated state corn grower organizations. The vision of the NCGA is to enhance the profitability and usage of corn.

Military Muster

Marine Pvt. Adolfo San Miguel, son of Aurelino and Florina San Miguel of Hereford, Texas, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

San Miguel successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

San Miguel and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The Crucible, a 54-hour team effort, problem solving evolution which culminated with an emotional ceremony in which the recruits were presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and were addressed as "Marines" for the first time since boot camp began.

San Miguel joins 41,000 men and women who will enter the Marine Corps this year from all over the country.

He is a 1996 graduate of Hereford High School.

Ag products double value

Although cattle and cotton reign in Texas markets, investors in lesser known agricultural products saw prices double in the past 10 years.

Small market volume to benefit potato growers

While potato growers in other parts of the country are suffering from overproduction and resulting low prices, potato growers in West Texas probably won't have to face that problem this season.

Potato growers in this area have a relatively small market volume compared to other production areas, said Dr. Roland Roberts, vegetable specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. West Texas potato growers produce about 300 million pounds of potatoes each year out of the 44.1 billion produced in the United States.

The local crop is grown on approximately 12,000 acres of land, mainly in Bailey, Lamb, Gaines, Castro, Parmer, Hale and Dallam counties. Planting on the High Plains occurs in March and April with harvest usually beginning in the middle of June. The West Texas growing season is in competition with growing seasons on the east coast and California.

Planting dates have a big influence on the production of potatoes. When the temperature is above 85 degrees Fahrenheit, potatoes have a harder time enlarging tubers. Potatoes will grow better if night temperatures drop below 60 degrees. "So far this growing season has been good for potatoes but not for the cotton crop," Roberts said. "A hard freeze on April 12 killed potato plants back into the ground," said Roberts.

"The potato crop is looking good but not as good as usual," said Cliff Black, Springlake Potato Co. "The rain and cold weather has been a problem getting the potato crop started. Many of the growers and farmers are quitting the potato business because they are too old and there is no one to continue the business," Black said.

"In recent years there has not been an overproduction problem in West Texas that would make the market drop," said Roberts. "Sometimes there is a small surplus of the later maturing russet baking potatoes when our growing season overlaps the growing season of Colorado and Eastern Oklahoma. This will cause the price of the potatoes to drop somewhat," he said.

When there is a surplus of summer potatoes, growers have to take a lower price or abandon some potato acreage because summer potatoes can not be stored long. Summer harvesting stresses the potatoes. To protect these potatoes from starting to rot before they can get to the consumer they have to be conditioned and transported at temperatures of 60-65 degrees.

Roberts said there are some problems that go with growing potatoes on the High Plains. One factor is that farmers have no marketing order with the USDA. A marketing order is an industry-grower-supported research and market development program. Areas that do have these contribute money to a fund that pays for market development and field research which benefits growers in the area covered by the order.

County wheat tour scheduled Friday

The Deaf Smith County Wheat Tour, Friday, June 13, will feature irrigated and dryland wheat variety trails, and bindweed control trials. The event which is sponsored and planned by the Deaf Smith County Extension Crops Committee and the Deaf Smith County Staff of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service will begin at 8:30 a.m. with registration and refreshments at Roy Carter's Farm Store in Milo Center.

The first tour stop will be on the Jim Cavin farm located 3.5 miles west and 1/4 mile north of Milo Center where wheat varieties are being grown under dryland conditions.

Tour stop two will be on the Donald Meyer farm located on Highway 385 and 1.75 miles west on four mile road where an irrigated wheat variety demonstration using a late December planting date is being conducted.

The final stop of the morning will be to view a demonstration where fall applied herbicides have been applied for bindweed control. The plot is being conducted in cooperation with Johnny Wall, and is located just south of Wall and Sons Well Service on Progressive Road.

Dr. Brent Bean, Area Extension Agronomist, will be on hand to discuss how wheat is evaluated to determine freeze damage and to discuss herbicides that may be used for weed control in wheat.

Dr. Carl Patrick, Area Extension Entomologist, will be on hand at each location to provide information to producers on integrated pest management and control of insect pest.

Producers with Private Pesticide

Applicators License or Certificates will receive two hours of continuing education credit if they participate in the entire tour. Participants must register at the beginning of the tour to receive credits.

All interested producers and those in agrribusiness are encouraged to attend. Persons needing more information should call the Deaf Smith County office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at 364-3573.

All programs of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are open to persons of all ages regardless of race, color, national origin, creed, religion, sex socioeconomic status or physical handicap.

Businesses Keep Choosing
HEREFORD to GROW their BUSINESS adding jobs for our residents...from 2 to 35!

We're WORKING TOGETHER
HEREFORD PROUD!

Have you heard about...

The airport renovations? More than $3.8 million brought our airport into top shape. Now we can welcome business jets and private pilots bringing business people, friends, and family to visit Hereford.

The expanding number of building permits issued since January 1? Since the beginning of this year, building permits for new construction worth more than one million dollars (through April 30) have been issued. That's a great measurement of our town's growth.

The downtown beautification project? Hereford Beautification Alliance, the City of Hereford, the Hereford Chamber of Commerce, the Downtown Business Association, and a group of volunteers are completing various projects to make the downtown more attractive for all of us.

The new businesses that have opened in Hereford since January 1? New businesses mean more jobs, added payroll... a positive sign that Hereford is growing and thriving.

- Moovies 6 • Taco Bell • A & H Glass Co.
- Maria's Beauty Shop • Style Pix on Video
- Parkside Funeral Home • ALCO • Washateria
- Double S Sales • Noah Computers
- Park Ave. Cafe • Hollowpoint Gunshop
- Hick's Paging • Warrick Investments

- Investment Centers of America

All these changes don't just happen in a community. It takes all of us, working together, to have a successful community. The new buzz word is SYNERGY, but you know that it's just plain common sense.

When Hereford folks support their local businesses with their patronage and their money... When local business owners provide the best service and the best prices... That creates the kind of SYNERGY that makes Hereford a great place to live... and makes out-of-town business owners look at our community for business expansion.

Life in cramped space is part of normal routine for Almanza

For most people, living and working in a cramped and crowded place with about 140 other people is a far cry from a normal life. However, for Summerfield's Alan K. Almanza, this "abnormal" life is part of his everyday routine.

Navy Chief Petty Officer Almanza, the 35-year-old son of Guadalupe and Sue Almanza of Summerfield, is stationed on the nuclear-powered submarine USS Bremerton. Almanza, a fire control technician on the Pearl Harbor-based submarine, maintains and repairs the equipment necessary to operate the submarine's weapons systems.

As a key member of the Bremerton's crew, Almanza, a 1980 graduate of Hereford High School, must also cope with living in the relatively small and enclosed space of submarine for weeks at a time while at sea.

The role of the submarine continues to expand into the next century but their primary mission remains deterrence by stealth. Maintaining a deterrent force requires the 360-foot Bremerton to deploy for up to six months at a time to various places throughout the western Pacific and Middle East. While these deployments mean long hours of hard work and extended periods of separation from family and friends, Almanza still feels it's important for Navy submarines to deploy overseas.

"Unfortunately in today's world, peace is not always an option. To be ready for any contingency, we have to gather information on the opposition as well as those who would be our allies," said Almanza, and 11-year Navy veteran stationed in Honolulu for six years.

"Many people have said that the submarine force is a relic of the Cold War. I can say that our current operational tempo is even greater now than during the peak of the Cold War. We are vital and we are needed."

Stealthy, sleek and lethal, the Bremerton possesses tremendous firepower, as well as high-tech combat systems. Only highly-skilled crewmen can qualify to work and live on a fast-attack submarine. Almanza, one of the Navy's most elite Sailors, has secrets to his success.

"I've achieved this pay grade in what is considered a very, very short time. To do this, I simply did all of the things I was told that were needed and then I did even more. My goals were and still are very high and I will strive to achieve them because of a belief in myself, my family and my Navy," said Almanza. "Everyone must understand one vital aspect of my career; my wife. We have been married for 16 years and she has supported me completely in all aspects of my career."

Almanza is married to the former Kelly Scroggins. They have two children, Katrina who is 15 and Kristopher who is 9.

Even though working on a submarine that operates at depths down to 400 feet below the ocean's

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed many letters on the importance of not keeping silent about child abuse. My story may be pertinent and helpful.

Nine years ago, at age 45, during my fourth marriage, I molested my 12-year-old stepdaughter. I had five children from my previous marriages and had never touched any of them inappropriately. I was incredibly lucky, however. My stepdaughter did NOT remain silent. She told a friend, who told her Girl Scout leader, and by state law, the scout leader had to report what she had heard to legal authorities.

I knew I was sick and immediately enrolled in a program that counsels abusive parents and victims of abuse. I recommended a 12-step program. I had a history of drug and alcohol abuse, so, that very week, I started to attend Narcotics Anonymous meetings and, subsequently, semi-weekly sessions with a psychologist and weekly group sessions with other perpetrators. It was there that I came to realize that my parents had sexually abused both my sister and me.

I was indicted on one charge of criminal sexual contact with a minor, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to supervised probation, with continuing attendance in both individual and group therapies and Narcotics Anonymous.

My wife divorced me, and I feared I would be cut off from my family forever. Not so. My stepdaughter phoned in tears and said that after months of therapy, she had a much better understanding of the situation and wanted to forgive me. This is a small town, and we run into one another frequently, but we now feel at ease being together.

I switched from Narcotics Anonymous to Alcoholics Anonymous five years ago and have been clean and sober for nine years. My relationship with my children is better than ever. I have a wonderful woman in my life, and my business is thriving.

The lesson is clear -- silence hurts everybody. Speaking out, though painful, embarrassing and frightening, is the only way a victim can get the help she (or he) needs, and it is the only way an abuser can be rehabilitated. Please get this message across to your readers. -- Healing in New Mexico

Dear N.M.: It took courage for you to write to me in an effort to help others. No one can tell a story more convincingly than one who has been there, and you certainly have. Thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to speak on the subject of overweight people. My husband and I drove five hours to see our son play in an important college basketball game. There are no individual seats at the stadium, just benches.

When we got to our bench, there was a family of three in the space next to ours, with what looked like a combined weight of 900 pounds. Needless to say, there was barely room for one person, so my husband had to look for another place to park himself.

Since the game was a sellout, every time he found an unoccupied space, he was asked to move so one or two people could squeeze in. By the time the game was half over, my husband was feeling so squashed he was happy to leave.

I know some people can't control their weight, but the obese must realize that they take up more space than people of normal weight. They should buy two seats to accommodate the extra girth or just stay home. What do you say, Ann? -- Nowhere to Sit in Maryland

Dear Maryland: Sorry, I'm against discrimination across the board -- race, religion, sex and add to that height and weight. People of "extra girth" are penalized enough without being asked to pay double at sporting events. Your bias is showing. Get a grip.

New Options For Glaucoma Patients

Glaucoma, a serious eye disease of increasing pressure within the eye, can cause permanent damage to vision. Because its incidence increases with age, the optometrist tests older patients -- anyone over 35 is at risk -- at each examination.

Until recently, medication was the only option for the control of the most-common open-angle glaucoma -- medication that may engender a number of unpleasant, unwanted side effects. Also, elderly patients may forget to take their medication regularly.

A new choice against glaucoma is laser therapy to establish a drainage channel within the eye so that intraocular fluid can drain. The beneficial effects of laser therapy may not be permanent, though; doctor and patient need to weigh the choices.

Visual symptoms of glaucoma are rarely noticed until the disease has progressed. That's why regular optometric exams -- and testing for glaucoma -- are vital, even when no vision problems are evident.

Every parent and teacher should know that children don't know the correct answer to "How many times do I have to tell you..."

As parents and teachers, we have, as you well know, significant responsibilities and privileges. If we heed the message in Proverbs to "cry out for wisdom," our tears will bring knowledge and understanding in this area of parenting and teaching.

Learning as much as we can on a regular basis through reading, sharing experiences and observing others and then applying this acquired knowledge is important; but being willing to grow and change is also important. During these summer weeks, (we once could call them months), when our children are home from school, should give parents a chance to become better acquainted with their children. Learning to understand today's youth as they grow and change will make your summer and your future a happier time.

Teachers are attending workshops and seminars, reading and preparing for the '97-'98 school year. Parents should be preparing, also. A part of my learning experience this summer is being with sixth and eighth grade grandsons on a daily basis as I help them and their mother with a residential move. Do understand this is scheduled between baseball games and practice, basketball camp, church activities and trying to impress upon them the importance of reading! Of course, you parents are used to this!

A few opportunities scheduled for teachers include: All Well "Route to Wellness", June 10-11 at WTAMU; Van Driver Training, July 21-25, HISD Adm. Bldg.; TAAS Math Target Practice, August 23, HISD Adm. Bldg.; Fall Middle School Conference, September 18, Westover Park Intermediate School.

If parents are feeling the aftershock of the information explosion in children's media, the following might prove helpful: Parents' Choice; Family Guide to Prime Time Television; Reviews From Parents' Council; Stay Tuned! Raising Media-Savvy Kids in the Age of the Channel-Surfing Couch Potato; and Children Now. These not only offer guidelines, but helpful suggestions about television, movies and computers.

"Every parent and teacher should know how to act silly and that a little humor goes a long way."

Couple wed in candlelight ceremony

Robin Noelle Clements and Casey Mack Reed were united in marriage Saturday in an evening candlelight ceremony at the Church of the Nazarene. Officiating for the marriage was Jeff Harris, family friend and minister from Sulphur Springs.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Clements of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Reed of Sulphur Springs. Grandparents of the couple include Mr. and Mrs. Roy Clements, Mrs. Katherine Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Barr, and the late Hoyt Smith.

The church decorations included two spiral candelabra with bright mixed flowers, two arch candelabra, one multi-arch candelabra beneath the cross in the church sanctuary. Large ferns and ficus trees complemented the setting. A unity candle and family bride's Bible surrounded by mixed flowers and pew floral arrangements complemented the decorations.

Matron of honor was Julie Clements, sister-in-law of the bride, of Mandeville, La. Best man was Coby Reed, brother of the groom of Sulphur Springs.

Bridesmaids included Emily Fuston of Hereford, Sheri Fuston of Lubbock, Lori Benson of Hale Center, and Robin Oneal of Bridgeport.

Serving as groomsmen were Kyle Benson of Hale Center, Kenny Thompson of Dallas, Tim Ball of Dallas, and Mark Sevier of Lubbock.

Guests were seated by Brett Clements, brother of the bride of Mandeville, La., Chad Clements, brother of the bride of Midland, and cousins of the groom, Janson Head of Clyde and Dan Maberry of Lubbock. Brett and Chad lit candles at the beginning of the ceremony.

Flower girls carrying baskets of flower petals were cousins of the bride, Jordan Rains, daughter of Ron and Dana Rains of Lubbock and Tarah Read, daughter of Dusty and Amy Read also of Lubbock.

Ring bearer for the bridal party was Gentry Cauhape of Hope, N.M., cousin of the groom.

Candlelighters were Brett Clements and Chad Clements.

Becky Weatherly accompanied vocal selections by Noelle Merrick and Sammy Balderaz, Hereford residents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of diamond white silk shantung. It featured a short-sleeved bodice of hand beaded Alencon lace with a low scoop neck and a basque waist. The full skirt, adorned with a low scoop neck and a basque waist. The full skirt, adorned with lace appliques, flowed into a chapel-length train that was caught at the back with a bustle of delicate fabric roses atop a graceful back peplum.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, casa blanca lilies, stephanotis, and ivy surrounding a handkerchief belonging to her late grandfather Hoyt Smith.

She wore her mother's wedding pearls and a blue garter made by her maternal grandmother.

Bridal attendants wore long raspberry dresses of silk shantung featuring an empire waist and a low back with two wide streamers topped with fabric roses attached at the waist. They carried cascading bouquets of mixed flowers.

The couple was honored with a reception at the historic E.B. Black House following the ceremony.

The bride's four tiered cake, designed by the bride, was decorated in white icing with fresh flowers surrounding the base and top layer. It was topped with a soft white Wedgewood bride and groom. The bride's table was covered with a sheer white cloth featuring an ivy design belonging to her maternal grandmother.

The groom's cake was a large chocolate layered cake with basketweave icing and chocolate covered strawberries atop intertwined with ivy. A pewter coffee service belonging to the bride's paternal grandmother was used on the groom's table. Fruit, mints, nuts and punch were served in crystal appointments on the tables.

Servers were Ronda Fuston of Dallas, Marcie White of Hereford, Stacey Browning of Lubbock, and Wendy Lancaster of Matador. Kimberly Reed of Sulphur Springs and Ronda Fuston registered guests for the wedding. Coordinator for the wedding was Diane Hoelscher.

The bride is a 1991 graduate of Hereford High School and is a senior at Methodist School of Nursing in Lubbock.

The groom is a 1991 graduate of Sulphur Springs High School. He lives in Lubbock where he is completing his degree and Texas Tech.

Following a wedding trip to Negri, Jamaica, the couple will make their home in Lubbock.

Lend a Hand

On my honor I will try:
To serve God and my country,
To help people all the time
And to live by the Girl Scout Law.

And those laws are values that make for happy, productive, active people and good citizens.

Girl Scouts is one of the organizations that the Hereford United Way supports...It's one of the groups that does preventive work. By providing an atmosphere where each girl is encouraged and respected--whether they're from an affluent or low-income home, whatever color they happen to be, whether they have a disability or not...a Girl Scout troop can make a positive difference in the life of a girl that will affect her the rest of her life.

75 Hereford Girl Scouts were able to go camping at Camp Kiwanis, 100 girls were recognized for their efforts at the Hereford Service Unit court of awards, 75 Hereford Girl Scouts carried holiday cheer to residents as they sang songs and went caroling at area nursing homes, and 15 girls delivered special valentine greetings to residents of area nursing homes.

Hereford Girl Scouts also had the opportunity to spend quality time with their fathers at the Junior Dad N' Daughter event, travel to the Kansas Cosmophere to foster their interest in science and space exploration, and travel to Branson Missouri. Girls also attended summer

We're trying to prepare girls for the future. And we know that prevention costs our community less than crisis intervention and other aspects dealing with the effects of illegal drug use, domestic violence, and teen pregnancies.

Your support of Untied Way is vital to the well being of our community and its children. It's a way to make your charity dollar go farther and help more people who need it. It's administered locally, and we know where it goes...Through United Way you paint a brighter tomorrow.

Each girl needs the encouragement, the guidance, the wholesome activities that Girl Scouts offers...that they can learn that someone else cares about them, that they are a person of worth, and go on to learn how to make decisions for themselves, to work together with others, to explore learning and career opportunities and to go as far in life as their abilities and their determination will take them.

Because of United Way, along with our G.S. cookie sales and other donation, we never turn a girl away because she cannot afford to join Girl Scouts. Approximately one out of every six girls joining asks for financial assistance.

surface is mentally and physically challenging. Almanza enjoys the job and finds being a part of the Navy's submarine force a rewarding experience.

"We are the best and we will always be the best. The number one thing about submariners is that we work with the greatest people in the world," said Almanza.

While living in a 6,900-ton steel can with over 100 other Sailors might be considered a meager existence to some, Almanza and thousands of Sailors like him take pride in their job and represent the saying for their profession: "Pride Runs Deep."

MRS. KIRK WALTON JOHNSON
 ...nee Josephine Angelique Fogo

Marriage vows are exchanged by couple

Josephine Angelique Fogo and Kirk Walton Johnson, both of Houston, were united in marriage June 7 in an evening ceremony in the Willow Meadows Baptist Church in Houston.

Parents of the bride are Terrance and Pamilla Fogo of Hereford.

The bridegroom is the son of William and Mary Johnson of Houston.

Burt Burelson, minister of Day Spring Baptist Church in Waco officiated at the ceremony.

At the front of the church, five ivory candelabra twined with ivy held 45 tapers, and 30 clear glass candleholders glowed with the light of dark green votives. Center guest pews were marked with large ivory tulle pom-pom bows, and the two side sections of pews were draped with tulle swags. Eight large pots of fern and lilacs completed the sanctuary decorations.

Maid of honor was Jenn Bantz of New York City, N.Y. Best man was Scott Johnson, brother of the groom, of Mountainview, Calif.

Bridesmaids were Dr. Karen Stone, sister of the groom, of Mansfield; Leslie Swift of Houston; and Beth Green of Houston.

Groomsmen were Shawn Fogo, brother of the bride, of Lubbock; Andi Fogo, brother of the bride; and Nick Green of Houston.

Guests were seated by Evan and Josh Smith, both nephews of the groom and the sons of Rev. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Nacogdoches.

Flower girl was Ashley Smith, niece of the groom and daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Robert Smith.

Beth Green performed a cappella solos, "In My Life" and "T'filat Hadrech".

The bride, presented by her parents in marriage, wore a formal gown of ivory silk and lace. The basque bodice, with its sweetheart neckline was beaded and sequined ivory lace over a fully gathered skirt of silk, appliqued with lace, sequins and beads. The long beaded lace sleeves came to a graceful bridal point at the wrists. The chapel train, falling below a peplum bustle, was appliqued around the hem with lace, sequins, and beads.

The bride's veil was made 23 years ago by her maternal grandmother, Hattie Michael, for the bride's aunt. The ivory illusion and lace double cascade veil, studded with seed pearls, was gathered onto an ivory silk brocade bow made by the bride and her mother, and accented with sprays of pearls and baby's breath.

The bridal bouquet was white and lavender lilacs, nestled on a bed of Boston fern and baby's breath. She wore an amethyst solitaire pendant and earrings borrowed from a family friend, and had two silver good-luck charms sewn into the hem of her gown, and gold bells sewn on her petticoat.

The bride's attendants wore street length hunter green dresses with ivory lace collars, and carried an arm bouquet of lavender lilacs tied with ivory tulle bows. They each wore pearl necklaces and earrings, gifts of the bride.

The couple was honored with a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church after the ceremony.

Servers were Jill Fogo, sister-in-law of the bride, of Lubbock; Melissa Sanchez; Sandy Dwileski of Houston; and Jay George also of Houston.

Julie Yen, sister-in-law of the groom, of Mountainview, Calif., presided at the guest registry.

Laura Smith, the groom's sister of Nacogdoches, served as the reception hostess.

The bride's cake was a three layer chocolate almond torte iced in ivory and decorated with large sprays of lilacs. The groom's carrot cake was covered with cream cheese icing and decorated with the monogram insignia of the newlyweds initials designed by the groom for use on the invitations and wedding programs.

The bride and groom hosted a dinner for family and out-of-town guests following the cake and punch reception. The dinner was held at Prima Pasta's Restaurant and toasts to the newlyweds were offered by Scott Johnson and Jenn Bantz.

Following a wedding trip to San Francisco and Los Angeles, the couple will be at home in Houston.

The bride is a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School and a 1990 graduate of Cottey College in Nevada, Mo. She is currently pursuing a degree in elementary education at the University of Houston and is employed as a support teacher at St. Andrew Presbyterian Pre-School.

The groom is a 1983 graduate of Westberry High School in Houston and a 1985 graduate of Art Institute of Houston. He is employed by Houston Photo Imaging as a computer artist.

...celebrate 40th anniversary

Anniversary reception set at Baptist Church

Miles and Ella Caudle will be honored with a reception on their 40th wedding anniversary Sunday from 2:00 to 4:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall. The reception is being hosted by the couple's children, Linda Perry of Hereford and Mike Caudle of Goldsboro, N.C., and their families. The couple was married June 8, 1957, at the First Baptist Church in Lamesa. They were both born and raised in the Lamesa area, and resided in Washington and Kansas, where Caudle was employed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, before moving to Hereford in 1977. They currently farm southwest of Hereford. They are members of First Baptist Church, American Legion, VFW, National Association of Retired Federal Employees, Genealogy Society and Hereford Senior Citizens. Caudle has served on the Board of Directors for Consumer's Fuel Co-op Association and the Executive Committee and Crops Committee of the Deaf Smith County Extension Service.

Red Cross Update

Be prepared this summer, in the event of tornadoes, with an emergency kit:

A weatherproof container filled with items like a flashlight and a radio (with extra batteries for each), rain gear, food and water (with a can opener), and a First Aid kit (with prescription medicine).

Don't forget the sun block!!!

The release of the new American Red Cross Sports Safety Training is going to be a big item on the things to do list. "The SST program trains coaches to provide a safer sporting environment for their athletes." This program was created in cooperative effort with the United States Olympic committee and is coming home nationwide this summer. If you work with kids in any sport, baseball, soccer, football, or whatever, then this certification is for you. You're going to want it even if it isn't required--yet! If you are a CPR/First Aid instructor, this will be an easy upgrade for you, and you can then certify all the other coaches in your organization, thereby, serving as a Red Cross volunteer or authorized provider.

Look for donation cans around town at Gebo's, True Value Hardware, Radio Shack, Alco, Homeland, Thriftway, Taylor & Sons, and Stagner Carr Buick. Radio Shack is also sponsoring a PrimeStar service connection drive during June. For every customer who signs up during June, PrimeStar will give $10 to the Red Cross.

Red Cross relief efforts in South Dakota and Minnesota are expected to cost more than $9 million. This flooding followed on the heels of severe flooding in the western United States in early January, and deadly tornadoes in the southeast and major flooding in the Ohio Valley in early March. Total relief costs for Red Cross relief operations since the beginning of this year will exceed $36 million.

In a report from the central Texas area 257 dwellings in the five county area, were damaged by tornadoes. 72 were destroyed, and 86 had major damage. Red Cross served 7,199 meals. "American Red Cross takes only financial donations, which are spent directly on victims of disasters. --Local churches and other organizations are becoming overburdened with donated clothing. Financial donations are still the best way to help tornado victims."

If you would like to know what Texans are doing in other ways to contribute to disaster relief, or if you would like to train to be part of the American Red Cross Disaster team, you can begin now. Call 806-364-3761. Disaster training is free.

All Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary gifts of time and money from the American people. The Red Cross is not a government agency. To help victims of these and other disasters, call 806-364-3761, or 1-800-Help Now (800-435-7669), or 800-257-7575 (Spanish). You may also contribute to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund by sending a check to your local Red Cross chapter, Box 1372, Hereford, Texas 79045 or to The American Red Cross, PO Box 37243, Washington, DC 20013. Internet users can get more information about Red Cross disaster activities and make a secure online contribution by visiting the American Red Cross World Wide Web site at <<http://www.redcross.org>>

Pre-college workshop set to assist students

A program designed to assist youth in their pre-preparations for college and/or college orientations will be held at 7:00 p.m. Tuesday in the Community Center Club Room.

The workshop will be presented by Beverly Harder, County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Science and Misty Peabody, Summer Assistant for Deaf Smith County Extension Office.

Objective of the workshop will be to help youth who have just graduated prepare for the language, management, finances, and opportunities of college life. Youth that are going to be juniors or seniors in high school for the 97-98 school year are also encouraged to attend to get a head start on the college application and scholarship preparation procedure.

The workshop will be open to anyone who would like to attend and parents or those interested in helping youth in this endeavor are also invited.

Those planning to attend are requested to call the County Extension Office, at 364-3573 and sign up for the event so that adequate handouts will be available.

STEVEN KUPER

Kuper receives college degree

Steven Kuper, son of Roy and Renee Kuper of Hereford, graduated in May from Texas Tech University with a Bachelor of Science degree in biology. He has been accepted into the Doctor of Pharmacy Program at Texas Tech University in Amarillo, which will begin in early August.

Kuper attained this goal while working a full-time job and raising a family of his own.

JARED THOMSON

Grandson is award winner

Jared Thomson, a student at Farmington High School, has been named a United States Achievement Academy National Award Winner.

He is the son of Lorie and Rocky Thomson of Farmington and grandson of Lores and Gene Teters of Hereford.

This is a position of honor less than 10 percent of young people ever attain.

Thomson will begin his sophomore year in the fall.

Two Reasons We Work So Hard On Cellular Service.

XIT Customer Steve Handley and his son Will

And One Great Deal For Father's Day!

At XIT Communications, we have lots of reasons for working so hard to make sure your cellular service is done right. Because we all live right here in the same town as you and we know there's a pretty good chance we'll run into you around town sometime. And you might just tell us a thing or two if it's not.

So we're doing things like expanding our coverage area (over 197,000 square miles!) and adding great new services like XInTouch — your personal 24-hour communications center that combines phone, cellular, pager, voice mail and more into one convenient, easy-to-use system.

And we just wouldn't feel right if we didn't offer a great deal for your dad on Father's Day. Because we might run into him sometime, too. And he's a lot bigger than you.

History of St. Anthony's Church

In pictures through the years

Old courthouse

The old Deaf Smith County courthouse was purchased in November 1910 by Fr. J.A. Campbell who traveled over a wide area of the plains serving both English and Spanish speaking members of the faith. He used the District Courtroom as the first Catholic Church and named it in honor of St. Anthony of Padua in 1911. Late in the summer of 1913, Fr. Campbell settled permanently in Hereford, using some rooms in the old courthouse as his residence.

First church

St. Anthony's Church and School as they appeared in 1922, the results of the labors of Fr. Salvator of the Graymoor Friars. The church was fashioned of the old courthouse at a cost of $25,000. Through the generosity of Fr. Salvator's friends, readers of the "Lamp" and the small congregation, the church was dedicated on June 13, 1922, free of debt.

Present church

St. Anthony's Church, located at the corner of Park and Highway 385, was formally dedicated Oct. 30, 1951. Bishop Lawrence J. FitzSimon officiated at the laying of the cornerstone and blessing of the building. Today, 1997, on its 75th Anniversary, the church serves as parish home to 670 families.

Extension News

How can you know if your credit load is within your ability to repay? First, list all loans and creditor you owe except for your home mortgage. List the balance due and the payments due each month for each source of credit. Now, add up the total of your monthly payments. The following calculations can help you look at your credit load before making another credit commitment.

Multiply your monthly net income by 20. Your monthly credit payments, not including a home mortgage, should not exceed this amount. While 20 percent of your net monthly income is a good rule of thumb, 15 percent is considered manageable for most people.

Another check is to see if you could pay off your debts in two or three years using only 10 percent of your net income. Add up all your credit balances, excluding your home mortgage. Divide your total debt by 10 percent of your net annual income. The answer tells you how many years it would take for you to repay your debts using only 10 percent of your after-tax income.

If the answer is less than 2, consider the other costs and benefits of adding to your credit commitments. If the answer is between 2 and 3, you will probably be able to get the loan, but an emergency or change in income could put you at risk. If the answer is more than 3, stop, and start working on ways to increase your loan payments and reduce your credit balance.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

A Natural Law - Stronger than gravity

Recently, I watched Tiger Woods win his first Master's golf tournament. Though he can hit the golf ball high and hard, gravity always won. Gravity brought his ball back to earth and stopped it every time. Gravity is a natural law.

There are actually two types of laws in this world: man-made and natural. Man-made laws protect our rights, guarantee freedoms and keep others from abusing us. We created these laws with the hope that we could live together peaceably.

Some folks - and I'm one of them - believe that God created the natural laws. These laws include the law of gravity, like begets like and the law of increasing returns.

You may never have heard of the law of increasing returns, but it is just as valid as the law of gravity. You can watch the effect of gravity and you can see the law of increasing returns in many areas of human endeavor.

I learned about the law of increasing returns when I read a book titled "Law of Success," by Napoleon Hill. He wrote, "Render more service than that for which you are paid and you will soon be paid for more than you render. The law of 'increasing returns' takes care of this."

Watching the law work

Once I became aware of this law, I saw its results in other's lives. For example, my eighth grade teacher Mrs. Elgiva McCracken, practiced this law. She gave us much more than she was paid for.

I'm sure she never received monetary compensation equal to her worth in the classroom. Therefore, you might think that the law of increasing returns didn't work for Mrs. McCracken. After all the law says, "...you will soon be paid for more than you render." Mrs. McCracken didn't receive her pay in money. She was paid in love, respect and admiration.

Thousands of us are living more productive and successful lives because of her efforts. We all love and respect her memory. Somewhere in Heaven, I'm sure she's smiling as she watches me write this. (She's probably still checking my grammar.)

Another good example of this law is our retired family physician, Dr. Alva Walker Eitel. She labored many years taking care of folks in rural North Missouri. She worked long days, made house calls and wore out several automobiles on muddy roads. Some couldn't pay, some wouldn't pay, but she cared for us all.

Dr. Eitel retired well, but if you asked her today I'm sure she would tell you the money wasn't all that important. The love and respect of those she served is a much greater reward than a mountain of money.

The law works in business

Deliver more than you promise and your customers will pay you in loyalty and positive referrals. Provide extra value and your satisfied customers will tell others. Anticipate customer needs, then exceed their expectations and they'll be loyal. This is the law of increasing returns.

Unfortunately, many individuals find this process hard to understand. Some are lazy and do only what they must to get by. They steal huge blocks of work time for personal gratification and think they are getting away with it. Since they receive their checks every week, it seems they are.

However, when hard times come, guess who goes first? Management releases the least productive and efficient workers first. When you practice the law of increasing returns, you increase your job security.

In normal times, this law improves your chances for pay increases, advances and additional benefits. Regardless of your position in life, if you give more service than that for which you are paid, you'll eventually get paid more than you're worth. It's the Law.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

When you plan a program or activity, you try to cover all the bases, organizing everything so that it will go smoothly. If you're really good, the whole thing comes off like clock work. Well, we've done our best, but it seems that it just wasn't good enough!

Sounds bad, doesn't it? Not really. This time our problems have been good ones. The response to the summer reading programs has been above and beyond what we expected. We have run out of various registration materials and had to replenish them quickly because of all the children who have come to register, not only for the regular Summer Reading Program, The Incredible Dream Machine, but also for Teen-Read.

Teen-Read is for those who have completed 6th, 7th, or 8th grade. Many of these kids think that they are too old for the traditional program, but still enjoy the activities of a summer library program. They will keep a record of the books they have read and enjoyed (or not enjoyed) as well as books that are recommended to them by friends and library staff.

In addition, they will be doing some fun activities such as painting with water colors, ceramics, a scavenger hunt, a book-nic (a picnic with books), and a parfait party.

For preschoolers, Thursday morning is the Read-To-Me Club summer program. It's a time of stories, music, games, and videos geared to those who are four years old and under.

All in all, it promises to be a very, very busy summer. There are no excuses for your children being totally bored this summer.

If you like stories about strong women, you will be interested in Up Island by Anne Rivers Siddons. After her secure world collapses with the infidelity of her husband of 20 years, the death of her domineering mother, and the scattering of her Atlanta family to the four winds, Molly, frightened and angry, takes refuge with friends in Martha's Vineyard.

As Molly develops new identity in the very different world of the Vineyard, she rents a small cottage on a up-island pond complete with a bitter, aging landlady and her very angry and ill son, Dennis. Their relationship settles into an uneasy truce. When she invites her widowed father, who is suffering back home, to stay with her at the cottage, the shape of her new life is cast.

Caring for Dennis, the landlady, her father, and a pair of crotchety old swans who live on the pond, Molly must turn loose of her worn out notions of family and begins to become a part of a strange-and very real-new one.

If you enjoyed The Devil's Hatband by Robert Greer, you will be interested in his latest, The Devil's Nickel. Bail bondsman and sometime bounty hunter C.J. Floyd is back and looking into the death of Leroy Polk, a.k.a. Daddy Do-Wap, father of beautiful Clothilde Polk. Clothilde does not believe that her father's death was due to a heart attack as his doctors first suspected. Before long CJ realizes that the death is part of a bigger story, one that reaches back to Chicago in the fifties when the Mob called the shots.

Other new fiction includes: The President's Daughter by Jack Higgins. Brewing Up a Storm by Emma Lathen. King Con by Stephen J. Cannell. Purple America by Rick Moody.

Abbreviating Ernie by Peter Lefcourt.

Eternity Road by Jack McDevitt. If biographical accounts are your interest, we have Eight Bright Candles: Courageous Women of Mexico by Doris E. Perlin. This is a collection of profiles of strong-minded women who stepped outside the boundaries of their patriarchal tradition, and social and economic conditions. For some it was a matter of survival that caused them to make history-changing decisions, but for others it was destiny.

The Watchman: The Twisted Life and Crimes of Serial Hacker Kevin

Poulsen by Jonathan Littman is the true story behind the headlines and into the world of Poulsen and his rogue's gallery of cyberthieves. Drawing on hundreds of hours of interviews with Poulsen, his confederates, and the authorities, he tells the story of wiretapping, electronic piracy and the first hacker charge with espionage.

This fast-paced tale carries frightening implications about privacy and security in the Internet age.

"How To" books include: Thin is Just a Four-Letter Word by Dee Hakala, Founder of the New Face of Fitness; Caring For Your Collectibles;

How to Preserve Your Old and New Treasures by Ken Arnold; Letitia Baldridge's More Than Manners! Raising Today's Kids to Have Kind Manners and Good Hearts; and Nolo's Everyday Law Book; Answers To Your Most Frequently Asked Legal Questions, edited by Attorney Shae Irving.

Other new nonfiction books this week are:

Scenic Driving: Alaska and the Yukon by Erik Molvar.

The Minds of the West: Ethnocultural Evolution in the Rural Middle West, 1830-1917 by Jon Gjerde.

NEW YORK (AP) - Bono and Frank. It's starting to get sappy. U2's lead singer and his guitarist, Edge, wrote a song for Frank Sinatra called "Two Shots of Happy, One Shot of Sad."

At a recent U2 concert in Sinatra's home state of New Jersey, Bono said he was sad that O! Blue Eyes couldn't attend.

"Frank's the man," Bono said. "We're all guests on his planet, as far as I'm concerned. The only man we should call Mister - I would call him Mr. Sinatra."

Bono sang "Two Shots of Happy, One Shot of Sad" during an interview this week on "Access Hollywood."

Sinatra heard it and sent his approval. "Lyrics are the soul of a song," Sinatra told the program. "Bono shows he's hip to this. He's a good man and I wish him many, many shots of happy."

Question/Answer

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Special Features
Q: My husband replaced a 15-year-old sump pump, and we now have a gurgling noise in our kitchen sink every time the sump pump goes off. The old sump pump was one-third horsepower, and the new one is one-half horsepower. The sump pit is located in our basement just below the kitchen sink. Water from the sump pit and the kitchen sink discharge into the sewer line. We never had this gurgling noise before, and we want to stop it.

A: The gurgling noise is probably the result of your sink drain not being properly vented.

Venting is very important to your house's plumbing. It serves two functions. Venting provides atmospheric pressure within the drain pipes, and this prevents water from being sucked (siphoned) out of the sink traps, a condition that would allow sewer gas into the house. Venting also lets sewer gas escape into the atmosphere.

A sink trap must be connected within a short distance to vent stack. This is usually done with a P-trap. S-traps, which were used in the early days of plumbing, are not permitted in most municipalities because they are not vented. Consequently, the water seal in the trap can be siphoned off.

When your new, more powerful, sump pump discharges into the house's sewer pipe, the high volume of water rushing past the sink drain connection draws air out of the sewer pipe and creates a negative pressure. This negative pressure is strong enough to pull water out of the trap, creating the gurgling noise.

You can correct this problem by installing an automatic vent valve on the downstream side of the sink trap. This valve equalizes the pressure by letting fresh air in, and closes down when the drain flow stops. Before installing one, check with your local building department for approval.

To submit a question, write to Popular Mechanics, Reader Service Bureau, 224 West 57th Street, New York, NY 10019. The most interesting questions will be answered in a future column.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Lawmakers leave some things to voters

Texans' lives will be changed by 1997 Legislature's work

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - From allowing people to get copies of their contact lens prescriptions to expanding public school choices to creating new criminal penalties, lawmakers have approved measures that could make a difference in Texans' lives.

They also left something for Texans to do: Voters will decide later this year whether to allow second mortgages with strong consumer protections and provide for school property tax relief through larger homestead exemptions.

While the property-tax issue received most of the attention throughout the legislative session that ended Monday, other measures also were passed by lawmakers who heard from Texans seeking a change.

"If we can pay for our house, raise two boys into fine, law-abiding citizens, work for my present employer 25 years ... pay my taxes and never smoked a joint or been in jail, then I think we are quite capable of making our own decisions about what we want to do with our home equity loan," Dallas homeowner W.E. Rogers wrote to Sen. Jerry Patterson, R-Pasadena, in support of a measure to lift restrictions on second mortgages.

Lawmakers approved the proposal, allowing voters to decide in November on changing the state constitution to allow general home equity lending. Texas is the only state that restricts such loans, allowing them only to pay for taxes or home improvements.

In another move for individual freedom, lawmakers approved a bill to allow motorcyclists who are at least 21 to ride without helmets if they either carry a minimum $10,000 in health insurance or successfully complete a safety training course.

Tony Brownword, one of the motorcyclists who pushed for the change, said during the legislative battle that helmets decrease safety by giving riders a false sense of security. And, he said, they're just plain uncomfortable: "Imagine driving in a car with a five-pound brick tied on the back of your head."

Another specific group - those with bad eyesight - would get a break under the contact lens measure awaiting Gov. George W. Bush's consideration. "For those of us who are spectacle-bound, (the bill) will make a big difference," said Tom Smith of Public Citizen.

A study by Consumers Union found nearly 70 percent of Texas eye doctors won't release contact-lens prescriptions to their patients, thus limiting them to buying from their own doctors.

That means the patients can't shop around in a market where the price of a pair can range from $40 to $140, the group said.

Lawmakers also decided to give more choices to parents who send their children to public school.

A Bush-backed bill would give those in low-performing schools a better chance of transferring to other campuses and allow the creation of more independent charter schools, which are free of many state regulations in an effort to encourage education innovation.

Tales of tragedy helped in the passage of other measures.

In a law that Bush is allowing to take effect without his signature, Texas will be the first state to allow patients to sue managed-care organizations for medical malpractice if decisions to deny or delay treatment cause injury.

That measure passed with a push from medical horror stories: There was the woman killed by a brain tumor two years after complaining of headaches and seizures that were dismissed by her health maintenance organization as anxiety attacks. Another man died of a heart attack after his insurer denied coverage for him to see a cardiac specialist.

The 1995 death of 12-year-old Lori Ann Braden, struck by a teen-age motorist in Houston, prompted a bill outlining harsher penalties for young hit-and-run drivers.

The teen-ager who ran down Lori faced only a $100 fine. Under "Lori's Law," juvenile drivers could face criminal charges and punishment of up to five years incarceration and a $5,000 fine. Depending on the case, those who are at least 14 could be certified to stand trial as an adult.

Young people also are targeted by other measures.

One would make it illegal for people under 21 to drive with any amount of alcohol in their blood system. Those who do would face suspension of their driver's licenses and criminal charges.

Another would impose penalties such as fines and required education courses on minors who use or possess tobacco. It was a statement from a teen-age Texan that convinced Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo, that legislative action was needed.

"One in particular told me, 'Nothing happens if you get caught,'" Ms. Zaffirini said in pushing the measure. "That changed my position. ... If they break the law, they must be held accountable and they must be punished."

Shaw records open to public; Friend donates documents

WASHINGTON (AP) - Thirty years ago, the country was startled by a New Orleans district attorney's announcement that John Kennedy's assassination had been the result of a conspiracy, after all, and one of the conspirators was local businessman Clay Shaw.

A five-week trial with 66 witnesses cleared Shaw two years later. Now, historians, researchers and anyone else curious about the accused man will have a chance to go through Shaw's papers - six boxes of them, including his diary, correspondence, business records, passports and photographs.

They promise to shed a bit more light on what became a bizarre footnote to the assassination saga.

The Assassination Records Review Board, an agency created by Congress to gather all available records of the 1963 murder of the president, announced Thursday it has acquired the papers Shaw left behind. Donated by a Shaw friend who preferred anonymity, the papers will be open to all at the National Archives in a few months, the board said.

New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison refused to accept the conclusion of a commission chaired by Chief Justice Earl Warren that a "perpetually discontented" Lee Harvey Oswald was the sole player in the killing of Kennedy in Dallas. Garrison conducted his own investigation and ordered the arrest of Shaw, director of the International Trade Mart in New Orleans.

In 1969, he charged in court that the murder had been planned by Shaw and others, including Oswald and David W. Ferrie, a former pilot.

The district attorney also said that Kennedy and his co-passenger, Texas Gov. John Connally, had been hit by "gunshots fired by different guns at different locations" - contradicting the Warren Commission findings.

Shaw, who died in 1974, was acquitted after the long trial. From the witness stand, lawyer Dean A. Andrews Jr. admitted that the story he had told the Warren Commission about overhearing Oswald and Shaw plotting an assassination had been a figment of his imagination - "huffing and puffing" as he put it.

One of Shaw's writings that will be made public includes a diary entry on March 1, 1967, that details a pre-arrest interview with one of Garrison's assistants, Andrew "Moo Moo" Sciambra. In the entry, Shaw told about the commotion Oswald had stirred up by distributing Fair Play for Cuba Committee pamphlets in front of the trade mart. He wrote that he had been on the phone and missed Oswald's demonstration.

"I explained to Sciambra that I had not at any time had an opportunity to see Oswald and had never met him under any other circumstances and added what turned out to be a very ironic remark - that it was perhaps unfortunate that I did not 'cause then I might possibly have had a tiny footnote in history."

"The Shaw papers will surely add another dimension to this particular chapter of the assassination story," said board Chairman John R. Tunheim, a federal judge in Minnesota.

"Because we had previously acquired records from District Attorney Garrison's office and one of Clay Shaw's defense attorneys, the addition of the Shaw personal papers means we now have an even more complete picture of events that relate to New Orleans," Tunheim said. "All of these materials will enrich the historical record of the assassination for future generations."

The newly acquired papers are significant, said Tom Samoluk, associate director of the board, if only because Shaw was "the only individual ever charged and tried for conspiracy to murder President Kennedy."

Combest asks help for small business

Washington D.C. - House Small Business Vice Chairman Larry Combest (R-Texas), says a six-month delay in a July 1 Internal Revenue Service (IRS) penalty forcing electronic filing of small business payroll taxes marks only a first step.

Combest and Small Business Committee members have pointedly reminded the IRS that Congress wants small business encouraged, but not forced, to file payroll taxes electronically.

Their latest letter to the IRS has strongly urged that small businesses be exempt from filing electronically, and continue instead to have the option of the current paper coupon payment for payroll taxes.

With next month's deadline nearing, IRS has responded with a delay in plans to penalize small companies for paying with paper coupons until after Dec. 31, 1997.

However the IRS has not backed away from its aim to punish companies with a 10 percent penalty after the first of the year - amounting to thousands of dollars a month for a small business not switching to electronic filing.

Combest sees the six-month delay as just one step in IRS recognition of the difficulty of requiring small businesses to file under the new system.

"This is one step in the IRS recognition of the special problems it imposes on small business," said Combest. "Electronic filing can actually be the better alternative over a paper coupon system, but the technical and logistical change should not punish companies with fines of several thousand dollars each month."

"This is the wrong way to encourage companies who already pay their taxes on time, but now face IRS demands for something beyond what they are prepared for."

Spelling puts Pacific Palisades on Fox's map for summer

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

The tale of producer Aaron Spelling's shows could fill a book — an address book.

Spelling has taken viewers to Malibu Shores, Melrose Place, Sunset Beach, Savannah, The Heights, Winnetka Road, Fantasy Island and, of course, Beverly Hills, 90210. Other Spelling titles include The Mod Squad, Family, The Love Boat, Hart to Hart and dozens more. He holds the world record for hours of television produced: more than 3,000.

At the moment, Spelling has five series on three networks, including 7th Heaven on The WB Network. The latest location on the Spelling atlas is Pacific Palisades. And if the title of the Wednesday Fox serial, which returns to the schedule this week, seems arbitrary, it's not.

"I'll be honest with you," Spelling recalls, "When this script came in, its name was Brentwood."

But Brentwood, Calif., already was famous as the home of O.J. Simpson, so Spelling knew it would be associated with the murders of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

"I said, 'We can't call it Brentwood. They're going to say we would do anything to get attention for our show.' So we changed it. We had a contest, and all employees had a chance to suggest titles. Then we tested (some titles with potential viewers), and Pacific Palisades won."

Only four episodes aired this spring before Fox gave Palisades a six-week rest and an order to produce enough new episodes to last the summer.

The cast includes TV veterans Greg Evigan and Finola Hughes, 90210 alumna Natalia Cigliuti, Broadway veteran Jarrod Emick, rookie actress Jocelyn Seagrave and first-time actor Lucky Vanous, famous as the "perfect 10" Diet Coke guy. In the last episode to air before the hiatus, Spelling brought in Joan Collins (a pillar of his 1980s series Dynasty) as temptress Christina Hobson.

"It's a strange combination of experienced people and nonexperienced people," Spelling says. "That's kind of exciting to me."

It's also an awful lot of people over the age of 30 for a Fox show. Is the Generation X network going prematurely gray?

"I think they're ready to spread their wings," Spelling suggests. "I think this whole age thing is overplayed. I mean, you've either been there or you're going to be there."

There's no doubt Spelling is an actor's producer. Perhaps the reason he has generated literally hundreds of parts over the past 30 years has something to do with his empathy for the thespian's lot.

"I love actors and actresses," Spelling says. "The terrible thing is, when an actor comes in, he's not selling a tie or some shoes or a dress that he designed; he's selling himself. It's a very fragile thing."

"I just think producers should remember that, even when you have to say no to an actor or actress. I hope everybody does it in a nice way: 'We'll keep looking for something for you,' or 'Great reading.'"

Diplomacy notwithstanding, some parts are just more interesting than others.

"I adore vixens for the camp," Spelling admits.

"I'll play a game with you. I'll guarantee that anybody you ask cannot really tell you what Eve said to Adam in the Garden of Eden. But I'll bet you know what that darn snake said about the apple, don't you?"

"Because, see, the snake always gets the best lines."

HOROSCOPES

★ * June 8-14 ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20

While your need to voice your opinions can get you in trouble, it won't this week when it comes to your career. Superiors at work are interested in hearing what you have to say. You even may increase your status. That special someone wants to step up your relationship. Consider your true feelings before agreeing.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

Don't be stubborn about accepting help from co-workers. It's a busy week, and you are overloaded with assignments. Getting some help is the only way you'll get things done. As for your family life, you won't feel threatened. Everyone is there to support you, not to aggravate you. Gemini plays a role.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

You need to think fast on your feet early in the week as problems arise at work. Your ideas can remedy the situation and make you the star of the office. You'll be in the spotlight when it comes to romance too. That special someone you've been interested in finally notices you. Make your move.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

A co-worker's mistake puts you in a bad mood, because you're the person who has to repair the damage. Stay calm, instead of getting angry and upset. Your decorum will serve you much better than self-pity. A loved one reveals a secret to you. While it shocks you, you must be supportive and help him or her out.

LEO - July 23/August 23

Your arrogant nature takes control of you at work early in the week. You deserve the praise you get from superiors, but you shouldn't get cocky. This only makes you look bad. A close friend tells you that he or she has romantic feelings for you. Consider your true feelings before rejecting him or her.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

You have nothing to worry about this week. Everything at work goes smoothly, and you make great progress on a project. As for loved ones, everyone is supportive and concerned about your needs. Your love life is even doing well. That special someone responds to your advances.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

You need to seek balance this week. From your career to your family, everything seems to be overwhelming you. Take some time for yourself to set your priorities straight. You can clear your mind and create a "plan of attack." Remember to think of your needs; you have to look out for No. 1.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't let your ego get the best of you this week. Even though you're making great strides at work, you have to remember that you're still the employee - not the employer. A close friend introduces you to an intriguing person. Don't be afraid to get to know him or her better.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Hold your temper in check this week - even when your plans seem to backfire. You're an intelligent person who can deal with these problems without blaming others. Just remain calm and rational. A loved one turns to you in a time of need, because you've always been willing to listen. Don't disappoint him or her.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Your gentle nature serves you well at work this week. When everyone seems to be stabbing each other in the back, your steadiness gets the office back to normal. Superiors appreciate your help. A romantic relationship ends, but don't get discouraged. He or she wasn't right for you.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

It is smooth sailing at work this week. You finish a difficult project and help a manager organize a new program. Your efforts will not be forgotten. However, when it comes to romance, you hit some rough seas. Those few dateless nights turn into what seems like a long dry spell. Don't get discouraged.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

You feel like you're being held back at work this week. Perhaps it's time for you to move on. However, before you burn any bridges with co-workers, make sure you've crossed to the other side. That special someone calls you for a date. Say yes.

Q: In the late '80s, there was a TV drama about an Amish family that moved out to California wine country. It only ran for one or two seasons before being canceled. Can you tell me about the show and whether it's syndicated anywhere? -Rhonda Casier, Defiance, Ohio.

A: Aaron's Way ran only two months in 1988 before NBC pulled the plug because of anemic viewership.

Merlin Olsen played Amish patriarch Aaron Miller, who uprooted his Pennsylvania family and moved to California after his eldest son, Noah, died in a surfing accident. Noah, who had forsaken Amish ways, left behind a pregnant girlfriend (Kathleen York) with a vineyard she couldn't run on her own. Belinda Montgomery co-starred as Aaron's wife, Sarah; Samantha Mathis played the eldest of their surviving children, Roseanne.

Not enough episodes were made for the series to be syndicated, but it might turn up on a specialty cable channel such as Nick at Nite's TV Land.

Q: Is Billy Mummy from the old series Lost in Space the same person as Bill Mummy on Babylon 5? -Mary Belle Campbell, Freeport, Ill.

A: Yes. Mummy, now 43, once played Will Robinson in Lost in Space.

Q: Was Vanna White the first letter turner on Wheel of Fortune? -Shelley Cook, Durand, Mich.

A: No. White succeeded original letter turner Susan Stafford in fall 1982.

UPDATE: I speculated earlier that the nighttime soap Savannah would be back in the fall. It won't. Due to ratings too low even for the struggling WB Network, this expensive show has been canceled.

Rachel on Pacific Palisades also plays Samantha on Melrose Place. My mom says no. -T.R., Port Arthur, Texas.

A: Mother knows best. Natalia Cigliuti, who used to play Chloe Davis on Beverly Hills, 90210, plays Rachel Whittaker on Palisades. Brooke Langton plays Samantha on Melrose.

Actor-comic Mike Myers (Wayne's World, Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery) hosts the MTV Movie Awards, airing Thursday on the cable channel.

Myers hosts hipper-than-hip MTV Movie Awards

By Teresa Ortega
 ©TVData Features Syndicate

Comic Mike Myers, star of Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery, puts aside his bell-bottoms to take on another hepcat assignment when he hosts the MTV Movie Awards. Airing Thursday, June 12, on MTV, the event is destined to be groovy, baby.

"Mike Myers has always been a favorite with our audience, and we're thrilled to have him as the host of this year's MTV Movie Awards," MTV Executive Vice President Andy Schuon says. "He and his famous alter egos will be a perfect match for our alternative show."

Hot off the success of Austin Powers, Myers, who also is the creator and star of Wayne's World, is sure to bring a certain flair to the already unconventional awards show.

The event distinguishes itself from others with a range of offbeat award categories. Along with passing out traditional awards, such as best movie and best male performance, MTV recognizes film excellence in such areas as best kiss, best villain and best fight.

This year's nominees are no less interesting. In the best on-screen duo category, Beavis and Butt-head, moronic sidekicks featured in Beavis and Butt-head Do America, will face off against Robin Williams and Nathan Lane, leads in The Birdcage.

To determine who receives awards, MTV conducts a national poll of its viewers to come up with nominations, then allows viewers to participate in the final judging via phone-in voting and the Internet.

The youth of the voting group is apparent in this year's nominations, in which performers Courtney Love and Madonna ("schwing!") - both snubbed by the board of judges for the more staid Oscars™ - were selected as nominees for breakthrough performance and best female performance.

In addition to the doling out of awards, music naturally is an important part of the festivities, with singer Jewel ("she's shagadelic"), and bands En Vogue and Bush among those scheduled to perform.

As secret agent Austin Powers would say, "That's a show, baby!"

SOAP WORLD

Lando gets dose of his own medicine

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

Dear Candace: Is it true that former One Life to Live star Joe Lando (Jake) is being unjustly pushed out of Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman?

If this is the case, I know the show will no longer be welcome in my home. As far as I'm concerned, they should let Jane Seymour go and call it Sully, Mountain Man. -Linda McIlveen, Canandaigua, N.Y.

Dear Reader: Lando is great to look at, but he isn't much fun to work with. He has had that reputation since his early days on OLTL and it followed him to Guiding Light.

I think there are probably millions of fans who would disagree with your wanting to keep him instead of Seymour. But you know what? I could see your idea about Sully, Mountain Man working as a spinoff for CBS.

Dear Candace: I was wondering if you can tell me if the actress who plays Maria on All My Children is married to the actor who plays Edmund. Someone told me they were, but the show rarely rolls credits. -S.C. on the Internet.

Dear Reader: Eva LaRue (Maria) is married to John Callahan (Edmund). They were married in November 1996.

Dear Candace: We loved the Knots Landing TV movie. Will that show ever return on a weekly basis? If they got all the actors together once, they could do it again. We miss it. -M.S. on the Internet.

Dear Reader: While it was fun seeing Karen (Michele Lee) and the gang again, there are no plans to bring the show back. But you never know when a spinoff might happen. Keep your fingers crossed.

Dear Candace: A friend of mine says Stefano (Joseph Mascolo) on Days of Our Lives once played one of the Cassadines on General Hospital. Is this true? Most of us think my friend is wrong. -C.T. in Lehigh, Pa.

Dear Reader: Mascolo was never a Cassadine on GH.

Without advertising a terrible thing happens...
nothing.

THE BUCK STARTS HERE.

Newspaper is usually the first place people go when considering a purchase. It's their primary source of advertising information.

Newspaper helps spark the local economy by putting dollars into circulation. And that's good for everyone, not just the retailer.

Because a strong local economy means lower property taxes, more jobs, tax support for community services and a better place to live.

Newspaper is more than just a smart place to advertise.

It's an integral part of our lives.

Newspaper. It delivers.

THERE'S MORE Hereford IN THE BRAND.
